During the night all vehicles, except two Air Force vehicles, were sent to infiltrate back to Red lines. The Air Force personnel, Capt. Charles R. Tyler and Lt. Paul E. Dillon 524th Tactical Fighter Squadron, Cannon Air Force Base, N.M.) were able to maintain radio contract with Red Forces to the South and arrangements were made to airlift the battalion personnel by helicopter to Cokesbury, S.C. where our trucks would join up and return us to Red lines. The helicopter flight, two H-34's and six H-21's, could only lift 40 men, so several flights were made with the last flights landing right in the path of a Blue attack and the personnel being scattered. Col. Poole took the fighting force from the first lift and headed south to rejoin the brigade while Col. Carroll and Capt. Ralph P. Kennedy, battalion S-3 accompanied by the Reconnaissance platoon sergeant, SFC John C. Nixon, made their way to the Red lines.

The Battalion S-2, Lt. C. W. Cowgill, and "Recon" Platoon Leader, Lt. P. C. Anderson, remained in the Cokesbury area with the battalion's vehicles, which had not been found by the Blue Forces, and spent the next morning picking up stragglers from the second airlift that had been scattered.

At approximately 1130 hours on the 10th, a flight of Red H-34's picked up the S-2 and 35 personnel from this area and returned them to 2nd Div. Headquarters near Johnston, S. C. The flight was then guided by the S-2 to Donaldson AFB and the location of Company B.

The Donaldson operation was a daring risky operation, to make the least of it, but its successful compleation delayed the Blue airborne forces for 24 hours and thoroughly upset the Blue Force's schedules and plans of action for several days.

Two More Dead

Once again it is the sad task of the Bayonet to make mention of the loss of life by carelessness.

Last week two 2nd Division soldiers were killed. One, by walking into traffic without looking, and the other by handling unsafe electrical wiring.

Safety lectures, pamphlets and orientations are predominate features within the Army, and yet, occurrances such as the deaths of these two soldiers continue to happen.

Why?—No one can say for certain. However, one reason is the lack of attention paid to safety programs and instructions. Always is heard the same classic phrase, "It could never happen to me."

That is probably what two other men thought recently.

Leadership Qualities Reign in 87th EM

By 1st Bn. 87th Infantry PIO

Sp4 George L. Reece and PFC Marvin M. Wright have the qualities that make leaders. Both members of Company B, 1st Battalion, 87th Infantry, have been given letters of commendation by Lt. Col. George Crosby, commander, for their part in the battalion pre-Army Training Test, that took place at Fort Benning recently.

Bravo Company was in a defensive position on high ground overlooking a swampy area when they were hit with a nuclear blast. The umpires adjudged that all officers and non-commissioned officers had been eliminated and at that point specialist Reece assumed command of the company which was then composed 43 survivors. He immediately re-established communications with battalion headquarters, set up a chain of command, took stock of the weapons and materials at his disposal, and reorganized the company defenses. He also relocated the remaining personnel carriers in the event that the company would be required to be withdrawn. Within 45 minutes the company was ready to carry on its mission.

PFC Wright played an important role in the reorganization of the platoons fireplans and the repositioning of the remaining automatic weapons. PFC Wright assumed the position of platoon leader after the atomic attack.

In the letters of commendation, Col. Crosby cited their "fine demonstration of decisiveness and ability that is found only in the highest caliber of professional soldiers . . . qualities that have made the American soldier the tougher competitor in peace and the victor in war."

Armor Specialist Signs for Three In Reenlistment

By 1st Bn. 72nd Armor PIO

A veteran of parachute jumps into Holland with the 82nd Airborne Division in 1942, Sp5 George C. Roberson recently reenlisted for three more years active Army duty.

The specialist was sworn in by Lt. Col. Arthur J. Lochrie, commander of the 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor. Sp5 Roberson recently completed 20 years active duty.

Entering the Army in 1942, he completed basic Infantry training and Airborne training at Fort Benning.

At the completion of Airborne training he was assigned to the 82nd Airborne Division and was with this unit when it made its historic jump into Holland in 1942. While with the 82nd he was awarded the Silver Star, Combat Infantryman's Badge and the Purple Heart for action in the Italian campaign.

With the 187th Airborne he was dropped into combat in Korea and received his second award of the Combat Infantryman's Badge. He was assigned to the 2nd Division in 1962.

72nd Wives Club Conduct Meeting

The Officers' Wives Club of the 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor, held their monthly coffee at the home of Mrs. William L. Vockery. Assisting Mrs. Vockery as hostess was Mrs. Richard K. Yowell, Mrs. Arthur J. Lochrie poured coffee.

LISCUM BOWL LADLE AND CUPS BELONGING TO 1ST BN, 9TH INFANTRY

The 50 cups were made first by a Chinese silversmith. In April 1902 the rest of the silver was shipped aboard a U.S. cruiser from Manila (in the Philippines where the 9th had returned to quell further uprisings) to Yokohama, Japan to be handmade by Arthur, Bond and Company into the tray, ladle and bowl, the three of which took seven months to complete.

This expensive piece of Oriental workmanship was finally received by the 9th in April 1903 at Madison Barracks, N. Y., and the cups inscribed with the entire roll of officers from the battle of Tientsin.

The custom has been carried forward to this day with each new 9th Infantry officer adding his name to the ones before him.

The Liscum Bowl arrived at Fort Benning for the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry more than three months ago but could not be taken possession of until the battalion came back to Benning from temporary duty in Germany.

The bowl belongs to the "first" unit of the 9th Infantry, whether it be the 1st Battle Group, as previously or the 1st Battalion, as is now the case.

LITTLE CREEK

artillery pieces and equipment will travel by military convoy.

Billets and mess facilities will be provided for the troops at Little Creek in addition to the use of all base exchanges, concessions and theaters. Also in the planning stage are various sightseeing trips to places of scenic beauty and historical significance in the Norfolk, Va. area.

At the present time members of the 2nd Infantry Division are looking forward with great anticipation to this year's training at Little Creek because it will mark the first time an amphibious assault is carried out utilizing the uniform control brigade system recently developed by the Army's Reorganization Objectives Army Division (ROAD) concept.

'Conqueror' Legal Clerk Medalled

By 1st Bn., 87th Infantry PIO

The awards were: the Good Conduct Medal; a letter of appreciation from Col. Crosby; and a letter of commendation for duty performance during a recent 2nd Division field exercise.

Price, a native of Los Angeles and La Puente, Calif., came to the 1st Battalion from The Berlin Brigade, Berlin, Germany, where he was legal clerk. A student at the University of California, Los Angeles for three years, his great interest is driving and working on sports cars which he does whenever he gets the chance.

Commo Officer Makes Captain

By 1st Bn., 38th Inf. PIO

The new battalion communications officers of the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry was promoted recently to the rank of captain. Capt. Julian H. Turner received his promotion from Lt. Col. Edward F. Carroll, 1st Battalion commanding officer.

A Reserve Officer Training Corps graduate from Auburn University, Capt. Turner received his master of Education degree in 1958. He joined the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry this month after an assignment at the Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency at Fort Benning, where he served as adjutant and operations officer.

Capt. Turner has completed both the Armor and Infantry Basic Orientation Course, the Associate Company Officer Course, Third U. S. Army Intelligence School and the Adjutant General Officer Familiarization course.

Personnel NCO Promoted Staff Sergeant at 38th

By 38th Artillery PIO

Promoted recently to his present rank is SSgt. Richard A. McDougall, personnel staff noncommissioned officer for Headquarters Battery, 38th Artillery.

The 28-year-old newly promoted staff sergeant joined the Army in 1955 and came to the 2nd Division four years later. Since being with the 2nd Division SSgt. McDougall has served with the 2nd Administration Company, 27th Artillery and his present unit, the 38th Artillery.

He has attended the Staff Noncommissioned Officer School at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

A native of Fort Wayne, Ind., SSgt. McDougall has served in Korea and holds the Expert Infantryman's Badge which he received in 1956.

SSgt. McDougall, his wife, Nancy, and their children, Thomas, Debra and Cynthia, reside at 4466 Harbon Street, Columbus.

Enlisted Men Come To 38th's Service

By 38th Artillery PIO

Newly assigned to Service Battery, 38th Artillery are two enlisted men arriving recently from overseas assignment.

PFC Roger L. Durocher, recently assigned to the S-4 section of the 38th, comes from a previous assignment with the 590th Transportation Company in Ludwigsburg, Germany.

Spt Freddie L. Brock, recently assigned as a mechanic in the battery maintenance section, has just completed a 13-month tour of duty in Korea. While there he was assigned to Company E, 14th Infantry in Taegoen, Korea.

87th NCOs Conduct Leadership Classes

By 1st Bn., 87 Infantry PIO

The battalion ranks have been mysteriously depleted of non-commissioned officers at various times in the past month. If one should happen to wander into Theatre 9, he will find the NCOs lounging in its air conditioned comfort. Rank, it would seem, has its privileges.

Sgt. Maj. James A. Scott points out that this is not so. In fact, these men are engaged in "the dead serious business of refreshing their views on the responsibilities that rank involves." The lectures are designed to indoctrinate the noncommissioned officer with the responsibilities of leadership, an understanding of human behavior and a working knowledge of leadership problems as they apply to the small unit leader.

The lectures were organized and set up by Sgt. Maj. Scott of the 1st Battalion, 87th Infantry under the sponsorship and indorsement of Lt. Col. George D. Crosby, commander.

Classes have been concerned with the basic concepts and charactistics of leadership. They have ranged through studies of morale and discipline; methods of developing personal qualities essential to the leader; human behavior, in an attempt to discover why individuals react differently; the attitudes and responsibilities of the leader to his subordinates, which includes the leaders attitude toward the personal problem of the individual soldier.

Future classes will be designed to orient the noncommissioned officer toward the operation of the various functional units within the battalion. Classes will include maintenance, supply, mess operation, military justice and communications. These classes will be given by the noncommissioned officers in charge of these various phases of operation.

By 1st Bn, 38th Infantry PIO

Captain Richard V. Tiekin recently assumed command of Company C, 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry. He replaced Capt. Benjamin P. Owen who will shortly attend the Infantry Officers Career Course at the United States Army Infantry School.

A 1956 Reserve Officers Training Corps graduate of Mercer University, Macon, Ga., he began his Army career by attending both the Officer's Basic Infantry Course and the Basic Airborne School here at Fort Benning. After completion he remained here and was assigned to the 2nd Battle Group, 38th Infantry, 3rd Infantry Division, rotating with it to Europe in 1958.

The following year Capt. Tieken was assigned to the 3rd Infantry Division Non-Commissioned Officer's Academy in Kitzingen, Germany where he served as department chief, Tactics Department and later as assistant commandant and operations officer until his return to Fort Benning in July, 1962.

Upon completion of the Officer's Advanced Infantry Course in June, Capt. Tieken joined the 38th Infantry as the assistant S-3 officer.

Support Command Officers Depart

Three officers from Support Command left last week for the Infantry School where they will take the Infantry Officers Career Course.

The officers are Capt. Jerry L. Lovinggood, Capt. William L. Glasgow and Capt. Howard Chase; all of Support Command and its subordinate units, reported to their new station.

While in the Infantry School they will study courses such as Staff Operations, Tactics and Communications.

Sgt. Maj. Accosted by Paratrooper

PFC Jay R. Scharbutt

There are many ways in this mortal world to antagonize a brigade sergeant major while in the field. You can pitch a CP tent two hundred yards from the clearing he has selected with great care and forethought. You can heave empty pop cans in the general vicinity of his tent when you think he is dozing. You can drive a deuce-and-a-half at excessively high speeds with the tailgate down, littering the Carolina highways with gas cans, rifles, generators and dog-eared pinochle decks. You can depart KP duty unannounced. You can steal his water can. You can pester him with countless small questions regarding the whereabouts to chow, smokes, mail, women and time off. And if he fails to respond to this kind of nonsense, you might try being a Blue Force paratrooper who likes to raid convoys by dark of night. Simply fire your rifle a mite too close to the cab of his truck, then pop open the door, grab his arm and try to hustle him briskly off to the nearest Blue Force pokey for interrogation. If he has been on his feet for over twenty hours that day, you will find that this has a definite tendency to sour his disposition.

Soft Spoken Gent

Now Cecil R. Bedford is the sergeant major of the 1st Brigade, 2nd Infantry Division. As a rule, he is a soft-spoken, good - natured gent who dispenses aid, advice, chewings-out and daily directives with a calm and orderly manner. It is fairly hard to anger the sergeant major, no matter what the incident, because he is an even-tempered man of high intelligence and stands six-five and weighs over two hundred and twenty pounds. Even if he lacked self-control or intelligence you would consider it wise not to anger him, least he pile-drive you into the ground, feet-first.

But, when the 1st Brigade pulled out of its Command Post location in the woods somewhere near Saluda, S.C., it was three in the morning and Sgt. Maj. Bedford had been able to snatch only a few hours of sleep that day. He had been hard at work all night, sorting out the various sections of the brigade and placing them in their proper positions in the convoy. Naturally he was tired, but he was still going strong. Once the convoy had pulled out of the woods, off the dirt road onto the highway, he settled back in the cab of his truck, lit a cigar, and tried to relax as the brigade pushed forward to its new location.

There were six men in the rear of his truck. They sat hunched over their rifles, dozing fitfully. It was just another sleepless night, with all the shouting and confusion inherent when a large unit moves from one place to another.

Suddenly, a Screaming Eagle from the 101st Airborne Division popped up out of the darkness. This made the sergeant major irritable. Then this eagle screamed and ran toward the truck, firing his rifle. This made the sergeant major more irritable. But, when the young trooper pulled open the truck door, yanked on the sergeant major's arm, and said, "All right, Buster, lets go," the sergeant major became angry, and he took action.

"Man your guns, men!" he roared in a voice that could have been heard from Saluda to San Francisco. Then, noticing that the young trooper still had a firm grip on his arm and was tugging with vigor, the sergeant major extricated himself by giving the lad a gentle push, sending him spinning off into the darkness. There was no time to monkey around with this prisoner business, and he told his driver to drive on.

At dawn the next morning, the sergeant major was seen nibbling on his breakfast of bacon and eggs. A few of the younger members of the 1st Brigade, having heard of his exploit, sought him out and regarded him with awe.

But he wouldn't say much about it, being by nature a modest man.

"Just a minor incident, m'boy," he grinned tiredly. "Just a minor incident." Then he puffed on his cigar and settled back against a tree. In a few minutes, both he and his cigar were out for the day.

Task Force Lion Praised

The 2nd Infantry Division's colorful Task Force Lion, which held wide-spread attention during the recently completed Joint Exercise Swift Strike III, has been cited for a special award from exercise officials.

Capt. Harold C. Lyon Jr., commander of the 23-man force, has been presented the Joint Service Commendation Medal "for truly outstanding performance." The U. S. Strike Command certificate of Commendation is signed by Gen. Paul D. Adams, commander in chief of the U. S. Strike Command.

The Strike certificate to Capt. Lyon acknowledged "exceptionally meritorious performance of duty while participating in Swift Strike III with the 2nd Infantry Division as part of Joint Task Force Red."

"Throughout the indicated period," the award reads, "Capt. Lyon organized, trained and procured equipment for a 23-man special forces group that was utilized by the 2nd Infantry Division. . .As a result of Capt. Lyon's aggressive efforts, forceful leadership, and through planning, this group was able to gather reliable intelligence data concerning enemy forces, conduct harassing operations against opposing troops, and furnish the 2nd Division headquarters information upon which future operational planning could be based."

Capt. Cosgrove Wins Commendation Medal

During a surprise ceremony held last week, the Army Commendation Medal was presented to Capt. William C. Cosgrove, assistant chief of the Personnel Service Division, Adjutant General's Section, for outstanding and meritorious service during the period of July 9, 1961 to August 16, 1963.

Held in the section staff conference room, the ceremony was conducted by Lt. Col. L. H. Dahl, division adjutant general, who made the presentation. Also present were Mrs. Cosgrove and officers and enlisted men of the section.

The citation which accompanied the Medal read in part: "As Chief, Personnel Service Division, Adjutant General's Section, Capt. Cosgrove reorganized the Personnel Division under the new ROAD concept which required elimination of personnel sections within all units and the establishment of seven teams and an Actions, Machine, Management, Pay and Records Branch within the Personnel Service Division to handle all personnel records and provide continued personnel support to all units.

Capt. Cosgrove may be justly proud of his service and achievements throughout the cited period. These were of immeasurable value in the successful accomplishment of the mission of the Adjutant General's Section, and were in keeping with the finest traditions of the 2nd Infantry Division and the United States Army."

A native of Baldwin, N. Y., Capt. Cosgrove was graduated from the University of Miami, Coral Gables, Fla. in 1954 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration. Entering the Army that same year after completeing Miami's Reserve Officer's Training Corps program, he attended the Officer's Basic Transportation Course at Fort Eustis, Va.

After completing a short assignment with the 27th Car Company here at Fort Benning he was assigned to Task Force 7.2 at Eniwetok and served there for one year. In 1956, after a short assignment at the Brooklyn Army Terminal, Brooklyn, N. Y., he received a second overseas assignment to Morroceo.

Major Promoted While in Hospital

A combat veteran who served with the 2nd Infantry Division during World War II was promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel on August 22 in ward B-9 of Martin Army Hospital, where he is recovering from a recent knee operation.

The new silver leaves were pinned on the pajama collar of Lt. Col. William C. Harmon, former division assistant G-1 officer, by Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, assistant division commander, and Mrs. Harmon.

Immediately after the leaves were pinned, Gen. Coffin walked to the foot of the bed and scratched out the word Major on the name plate. He then filled in Col. Harmon's new rank.

After the brief ceremonies were completed, American Red Cross workers served refreshments to the guests.

Col. Harmon first entered the Army in 1942 and after completing Officer's Candidate School (OCS) at Fort Benning, received his commission as a lieutenant in the Infantry.

He was then assigned to the 2nd Infantry Division at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and remained with it until 1944.

At the outbreak of hostilities in Korea in June, 1950, he was assigned to the 1st Cavalry Division and saw combat with the "Black Knights" of the 5th Cavalry Regiment up and down the rugged terrain of the Korean peninsula. During his 12 months in Korea he participated in several major campaigns, including the Chinese Communist Forces Intervention.

Col. Harmon attended the Officer's Advanced Infantry Course in 1955 and was serving with the 10th Infantry Division in 1958 when its personnel was used to fill the newly reorganized "Indianhead" Division.

Col. Harmon has now been reassigned to the Third Army where he will assume the duties of chief, Command Maintenance Readiness Inspection (CMRI) located here at Fort Benning.

He lives with his wife, Reva, and three sons at 17 Lenox Drive, Columbus. A fourth son, his oldest, is presently serving with the Air Force.

Nursing Field is Rewarding Career for Mrs. E. Dunn

By Mrs. Warren G. Freeman

Mrs. Ecolia Dunn, wife of SFC Ecolia Dunn, Headquarters Company 2nd Battalion, 87th Infantry, dons her starched, white uniform and cap, and together with being a wife and mother of four children performs daily the duties of a registered nurse on Wards 8 and 9 at Martin Army Hospital.

"Nursing is a rewarding profession," says Mrs. Dunn "and it has given me an opportunity to meet and work with several hundred people here in the United States and Europe."

A North Carolinian, Mrs. Dunn is presently serving as secretary of Ladies of the Big Indianhead. She has worked actively in her chosen field since graduating from the Columbia School of Nursing, Columbia, S.C.

Sergeant and Mrs. Dunn have been stationed for the most part in the Second and Third Army areas with their stateside tours of duty having taken them to Fort Bragg, N.C., Fort Knox, Ky., Fort Campbell, Ky. and their present tour here at Fort Benning.

"I believe that my favorite stateside post would be Fort Knox," she said. "We spent a long and most enjoyable tour of duty there." The Dunns, alike and along with a great many families, found themselves packing for Germany in the spring of 1960, for they soon were to be stationed in Baumholder, Germany. "With my working we didn't get an opportunity to travel extensively, however just the privilege of living in another country added a great many unforgettable experiences to our lives," says Mrs. Dunn. While in Germany Mrs. Dunn worked at the 98th General Hospital.

When not busily engaged in meeting the needs of her family Mrs. Dunn enjoys crocheting and listening to favorite recordings.

Aside from her active membership in Ladies of the Big Indianhead, Mrs. Dunn holds a membership in Pi Chapter of Chi Eta Phi, a National nursing sorority.

Sergeant and Mrs. Dunn and their children, two sons and two daughters reside on Arrowhead Rd., in Fort Benning.

A welcome was extended to Mrs. James McClurkin, wife of the new 12th Artillery commander, and Mrs. Dillard Jones, who returns to the 12th from the 38th Artillery.

Farewell was given to Mrs. Clifford Phifer, who is going over to Division Artillery.

Mrs. McClurkin was presented with a beautiful flower arrangement in fall colors and Mrs. Phifer was given a planter as a remembrance of the ladies from the 12th Artillery.

The centerpiece was a summer flower arrangement of marigolds.

COOK of the WEEK

The popularity of chicken need not be tested by poll since its acceptance as "good eating" is perhaps attested to by countless families and also dining establishments throughout the world.

Mrs. LeRoy Arnold shares her recipe for Butter Crisp Chicken and Mrs. Virgilio Reyes, a guest of the column shares her recipe for Chicken In Sweet Wine. The recipe for Chicken in Sweet Wine is an authentic translation from Spanish done by Mrs. Reyes.

Butter-Crisp Chicken

Have chicken cut into 10 pieces; wash and drain. Melt butter over low heat; remove from heat and stir in salt, pepper and paprika. Dip chicken pieces one at a time into seasoned butter and then into corn flake crumbs, spooning crumbs over chicken to coat well. Place in a shallow, foil-lined baking pan, then baked uncovered in 350 degree oven until tender when fork-tested about 1 hour. Serves 4.

Chicken in Sweet Wine

Grind garlic, then add next five ingredients; mix with whole chicken. Melt butter or margarine in 3½ quart saucepan; add the chicken and brown over moderate heat for 10 minutes. Add all ingredients in second column, cover and simmer over moderate heat for 15 minutes. Add wine and ½ cup sugar; cover and simmer over moderate heat 15 minutes. Uncover and cook over moderate heat for 25 minutes or more until sauce thickens.

2nd Division Wives Club Host Daughters at Coffee

Youth and beauty flowered at the Main Officers Club recently when the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club entertained their daughters at a morning coffee. The 45 young girls who accompanied their mothers were singled out by appropriate name tags: silhouettes of pony-tailed teenagers.

The spotlight fell on eight of the young ladies who modelled back-to-school fashions from the Ruby Salter shop in the Rosemont shopping center.

The models, Betty Boisvert, Karen Bowland, Dianne Culverhouse, Mary Ellen Gunn, Vivienne Johnson, Kay Joines, Karen Mendenhall, and Myra Phifer, were introduced to the group by Mrs. Taft, the program chairman, and then circulated among the guests passing out samples of Nettie Rosenstein perfumes donated by Miss Salter.

The hostesses, Mrs. Clifford Phifer and the ladies of the 1st Battalion, 12th Artillery and Mrs. Edmund Rozecki and the ladies of the 1st Battalion, 15th Artillery, arranged a charming setting for so much beauty.

The lovely fruit basket centerpieces on the tables were admired by all and especially appreciated by some of the younger guests. A number of the daughters took turns presiding at the tables, pouring for their mothers.

Mrs. John Stoecker, the new President, presented a silver pitcher and said farewell to Mrs. Edgar Poole, the departing President, who is soon leaving for Washington, D. C., where her husband is to be stationed. More happily, she welcomed as a newcomer Mrs. Burnside Huffman, wife of the new Division Artillery commander.

It was a delightful and unusual occasion for both the mothers and the daughters.

Monthly Coffee For 15th Arty.

Mrs. Robert Gabrielli poured at the monthly coffee for the 15th Artillery Officers' wives which was held recently at the home of the hostess, Mrs. Fred E. Glascock. One new member, Mrs. Philip Owens, was welcomed to the group.

DivArty Coffee Held

The ladies of DivArty Headquarters held their monthly coffee Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Burnside E. Huffman, wife of the DivArty commanding officer.

Special guests for the event were Mrs. John F. Uncles of Washington, D. C., mother of Mrs. Huffman.

PFC MENHENNETT
Company Clerk

PFC D. Menhennett

PFC Daniel Robert Menhennett, company clerk of the 2nd Admin Company, 2nd Infantry Division, is a typical example of the many young men in the Army today, who are fulfilling their military obligation to their country.

PFC Menhennett entered the Army in May of 1962 in Wilkesborough, Pa. The young man was immediately sent to Ft. Gordon, Ga. for his basic training, and upon completion was assigned to the Army Administrative School in Ft. Jackson, S. C. for eight weeks advanced training.

In October of 1962 PFC Menhennett was assigned his present duty here at Ft. Benning.

As the company clerk of one of the largest companies on Ft. Benning, PFC Menhennett's duties are many and varied. There is the daily morning report, all types of correspondence, leaves, passes and many other clerical duties.

PFC Menhennett was born and raised in Harding, Pa. and is the youngest of three children. He has an older brother who is presently serving in the Navy.

The company clerk is a graduate of West Pittston High School in West Pittston, Pa. and upon completion of his military duty he hopes to attend college. According to PFC Menhennett, his interests with regards to higher education are in "the fields of Teaching or Forrestry".

Sgt. G. J. Hutcheson

Sgt. Gilbert J. Hutcheson, a career soldier, presently assigned with the Administrative Machine Branch of the Personnel Services Division, 2nd Infantry Division, has seventeen years of varied and interesting experiences in this modern Army.

Sgt. Hutcheson, who is called "Hutch" by many of his friends, enlisted in the Army shortly after graduation from Santa Barbara Catholic High School in 1946. The eighteen year old youth went through basic training at Camp Polk, La. and upon completion of his training he was immediately assigned as a Medical Aid Man with Company B, 351st Infantry, 88th Infantry Division in Northern Italy.

In March of 1947, the then PFC Hutcheson was assigned to the 313th Medical Battalion in Italy and later that year was transferred to Company K, 351st Infantry in Trieste, one of the first Free Territories administered by the United Nations. He pulled outpost duty and border patrol along the Yugoslav border. During his three year tour of duty in Italy "Hutch" attained the rank of sergeant and in November of 1949 he returned to the States and was assigned to the Letterman Army Hospital in San Francisco, Calif.

SGT. HUTCHESON

A NEW BAYONET WEEKLY FEATURE
The Men Behind The Troops

In June of 1950 Sgt. Hutcheson was selected to attend a 40 hour course in IBM School. Upon completion of this course Sgt. Hutcheson returned to Letterman Army Hospital and was assigned the job of Shift Supervisor in the Patients Accounting Office. Hutch remained at Letterman Army Hospital until June of 1952, when he was assigned to Fitzsimmons Army Hospital in Denver, Colo. While stationed at Fitzsimmons, Hutch was assigned duty as Machine Room Supervisor dealing primarily with medical statistics. Sgt. Hutcheson says he found his work at Fitzsimmons "quite interesting."

Sgt. Hutcheson once again returned to the States in November 1959 and was assigned to the 56th DPU in San Francisco, Calif. He served as supervisor in the Strength Accounting Section until December of 1961 when he was sent to the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky. Here Sgt. Hutcheson and other experienced NCO's from Army areas throughout the United States, were to test the feasibility of machine accounting at division level. Previously, machine accounting was only maintained at the Army or Corps level. In July of 1962, after the final Department of Army inspection, it was concluded that this system was feasible at division level.

Sgt. Hutcheson arrived at Ft. Benning in December of 1962 and was assigned duty in the Finance and Accounting Office as supervisor in the Data Processing Section. Here he was engaged in the preparation of all financial data pertaining to personnel, equipment and maintenance. In April of 1963 the Data Processing Section was placed under the control of the Post Comptroller's Office, and Hutch was assigned the job of Project Planner. This position consisted of setting up the supply line item accounting system and studies on personnel accounting, at the class-one installation level. Then in June of the same year Sgt. Hutcheson was assigned to the Administrative Machine Branch of the Personnel Services Division as Machine Section Supervisor, where he is presently working.

Sgt. Hutcheson is married and has a family of three children. His wife and family are presently residing in Clarksville, Tenn.

'I Want to Be a Teakettle. . .'

Harvard Graduate Has Varied Talents

By 1st Bn, 87th Infantry PIO

At one time or another during our all too brief lifetime, we indulge our fancy as to what we would like to be. Some wish that they were suspension bridges, some, as J. D. Salinger's hero, "Seymour," would like to be a dead cat. There are those who have less imaginative aspirations such as being a member of royalty in some far off Utopia; some, the king or queen of Sheba; and some, just very successful businessmen in the manner of Henry Ford or J. P. Morgan.

In some cases we truly believe that we shall attain our goals and in other cases we only indulge our imaginations. In either case it matters not a whit, for reality is of little value. The imagination is of such a nature that it must be allowed a certain levity in its operation.

Wants To Be a Teakettle

It is for these reasons that the new member of 1st Battalion, 87th Infantry aspires to be a teakettle. Not just an everyday teakettle, but an ornate brass one, that decorates some high pantry shelf. Why? Well, that's Pvt. Gerard McGhee's secret.

This is the apiration of a Pvt. McGhee, who comes to the battalion from Fort Jackson where he has been a clerk in the Courts and Boards section at Special Troops. He is the Court and Boards clerk for the 1st of the 87th.

McGhee comes originally from Chatham, N. J. He received his Bachelor's degree from Saint Peter's College where he majored in sociology. He also holds a law degree from Harvard Law School. He has not, however, written Bar Exams in order to practice law in any state. His education was achieved through scholarships. There are ten brothers and sisters in his family and six of them are presently engaged in acquiring an education in institutions of higher learning and all of them are doing it on scholarships of one kind or another.

Pvt. McGhee's background is as varied and colorful as one could wish it to be. He is a partner in the "Four Lanterns Bookshop" on Greenwich Ave., Greenwich Village. He is presently cast in the part of the Inquisitor in the Lillian Hellman adaptation of Jean Anouilh's play, "The Lark," a production that is presently being mounted at the Fort Benning Little Theater. He has also played Antonio in the "Cradle Song," he has played in "Apollo of Bellac" and in an English adaptation of "Crime and Punishment."

McGhee has been a part-time draftsman, clerk, milkman and bartender while trying to sustain his education.

He wants to enter into trial practice when his service obligation is completed.

$The Baleful Lament of a Dollar Bill$

This is a strange story — a true one. A story of the most important thing, unfortunately, to everyone. The truth of this story cannot be proven, nor disproven. But it exists. This is the tale of an imaginary life . . . the life of a dollar bill.

The End Is Near

It is dark and hot in this room. Myself and thousands of others like me lie here waiting for the end; the end of our lives. We are crumpled and torn and worn out from mis-use. Our poor frames are faded and our features distorted. We lay here in an enormous pile waiting listlessly for the sound of the scraping shovel and listening to the crackling flames — wondering if our turn will be next.

I still remember that very first day, the day I was born. With others like me, I was stamped into existence by a large mechanical press. As I rolled off the birthline and passed a careful inspection, I was vibrant and full of expectancy. I felt crisp and shiny. I knew that I was about to embark upon a life so wonderful that it was beyond imagination.

After inspection I was transported in a sack, by truck, to my first destination. There I was placed in a large vault, sorted out with my friends, and neatly stacked on a shelf. This was my first contact with humans. I learned a lot about them during my life.

A few days later I was put in a tray and given to a nice young lady who deposited me in a drawer by which she stood. Many times during the day she would reach down, sort out a few of my companions, and hand them through a small barred window to another human. This was called banking. I never did learn much about this sort of business because once I left there I never returned to another bank. My destiny was to be a life of anguish. A life, which I have since learned, is common among my class in the human society.

A Frightening Monster

One bright morning I was chosen and transferred to another woman who placed me with loving care in her purse. I was pleased and thrilled to have my very first master. However, I must not have been very satisfactory for within the hour I was being given to a man in exchange for some silly looking parcel. Then, almost to the hour, I was given to a new person in exchange for one of my superiors. This man stuffed me roughly into his pocket and I was knocked about by keys and a frightening monster called a cigarette lighter.

Shortly after that I found myself placed on a shiny bar and my master traded me for a glass of colored liquid. I was slipped into a drawer that rang loudly whenever it opened.

During that day I passed back and forth on the bar, from clanging cash register to a new master and back again, at least ten times. The colored liquid is a favorite thing among humans.

Finally, later that day when everyone had gone, and it was extremely dark, I found myself and others being shoved into a paper bag and handed to some man who whispered in the darkness.

The next time I was out in the open, I was being placed on a table where three men sat. Before them were similar members of my class; all denominations. Also on the table were round colored chips, and square looking paste-boards, with numbers and pictures on them.

They played with these cards, as they were called, and I passed back and forth across the table many times. I was folded, torn, squeezed and rumpled until I felt I would surely die from mishandling. Later I was put into another pocket and carried out into the dawning day.

Traded for Candy

I traveled a great deal this day. I was on the bar again, in a store, a movie, two or three cash registers, dropped on the floor and picked up by a small child and traded for some candy. I had around twenty or thirty different masters within hours and their complete disregard for me was quite evident. I was constantly manhandled, woman-handled and always badly handled. It seemed apparent that I was of great, yet of little, importance to these people. They all seemed to want, desire and need me desperately, yet when in their possession, my importance dwindled and I was treated with indifference and waste.

At times during this lifetime I have had, I have been coveted within the homes and purses of kind and gentle people, the kind who felt I was worth something to them and handled me so. I have been given in receipt for hard work and as a gift. I have been stolen, marked on, inKaied, hidden, nibbled on by a dog (a most unnerving experience) and placed in cookie jars. I have been gambled with, torn, and at one time, set on fire briefly as a joke of some kind. I have traveled all over the world and met more people than a hundred Dale Carnegies. And believe me, I know how to win friends and especially influence people.

After so many years of this type of life I have become little more than a bone to be chased after, passed around, buried and guarded by humans. I have had the cherished feeling of importance and also the disheartening emotion of the maltreated. I have gone from birth, fresh and new, to my now closely threatened oblivion; tired, worn out and grateful that the mad race is over.

Think about it for awhile. You can see that what I say is true. Nothing will ever change it.

Shovel Me Quickly

My time has come. I hear the scraping of the shovel moving across the floor again. It keeps getting closer each time. I wish it would hurry. Maybe this time ... Good! It has me! I feel myself being lifted and I can see the soaring hot flames through the open jaw of my purgatory. The heat is intense now. There is the pause ... now I am being plummeted through the passage-way. Ah! Peace at last

This is how it has been. Me, a dollar bill.

What Comprises a Hero?

These questions have no firm solution. There are no definite answers. Many interpretations have come about over the years, but, the old adage still holds: "Heroes are made, not born."

The sudden surge within a man to attempt a feat out of the ordinary involving risk to his personal safety has long been a thorn in the side of psycologists. They have never been able to come up with a universal answer as to why?

Heroism Differs

Each case of unique heroism differs from another. What went through the mind of Colin Kelly as he plunged his crippled plane into the enemy, will never be known. What Audie Murphy thought about as he stood alone on a burning tank and faced an entire company of onrushing German soldiers, even he cannot answer.

If the reasons for bravery are impossible to pinpoint, then how can a hero be classified?

Well, a hero is many things to many people. Every dad is a hero to his son. Youngsters all over the world look upon John Wayne as a hero, and, soldiers in their starched uniforms walking down the street are heroes to all the kids in town.

Heroism is a type of worship that most everyone goes through in life at one time or another. Each have their own individual heroes to whom they look up to and, secretly, hope someday they might be able to imitate.

But, the so-called extraordinary man, the man who actually performs an act of heroism, quite often is not so extraordinary at all. More times than not, he is just a plain normal guy — the kid fresh out of high school, quiet and mild-mannered; or the man who used to deliver the mail and was easily frightened by the neighborhood dogs — these are the ones that usually, when the hour calls for great risk, steps forward into legend.

Many Unknown Heroes

There have undoubtedly been many instances of heroism that were never recorded, and, perhaps, many men deserving of awards. But, for some reason or another, circumstances caused history to pass on by without noticing.

What makes a hero? That's easy — life!

Each man travels a road in life. He travels it in many ways. He takes the good and the bad, and responds to it in a hundred different ways. He may run or attempt to hide from what life throws; or he may face it, but undecided how to handle its problems. Or, in those rare cases, he may give that little extra that is called valor. But, each road is different; as are the men who travel them. Not all of the twisting paths of life have such blockades; and not all those who travel these paths will react in the same way. Life, makes heroes.

Then, what is a hero? That's not so easy.

Why?

I suppose it would be possible to say that he breeches the blockades for himself, or others, regardless of the danger he must face. But then there is the question—why? Why does this breed of man respond this way? No one knows for sure, they can only guess.

I have been privileged to have met a few such men. They seemed no different than anyone else. Yet, at a certain time, in a specific place, they were very different. Try to analyze why, I cannot. Try to guess, impossible!

There is an old quotation that has been handed down over the years that says: "I shall pass through this world but once. If, therefore, there be any kindness I can show, or any good thing I can do, let me do it now; let me not defer it or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

Could it be possible that when that frightening moment in life comes, causing a man to decide upon a course of action that the world calls heroic, that this quotation answers best—why he became a hero?

FLYING CHAPLAIN GOING TO AIRBORNE SCHOOL
Chaplain (Capt.) Pulley

Airborne-Bound Chaplain Was World War II Pilot

The 2nd Division Artillery chapel operates under the auspices of an angel in the literal sense. Capt. James F. Pulley, "Divarty" chaplain, is a qualified pilot of both fixed wing aircraft and helicopters, and has been since he joined the old Army Air Corps Cadet Program in 1942.

Commissioned a flight officer in 1944, he transferred to the U.S. Army National Guard in 1952, and by 1954 successfully completed courses at the Army Aviation Pilot School and Army Aviation Helicopter School at Fort Sill, Okla.

Felt Need

In 1956, while at the Army Aviation Instrument School at Fort Bucker, Ala., Capt. Pulley says he "felt a need to prepare myself for the Protestant ministry, either for civilian life or for the Army, which I realized would require college and seminary work."

With this great change of plans in mind, Capt. Pulley withdrew to the U.S. Army Reserve and entered Atlantic Christian College at Wilson, N.C., where he was graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1960, and Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary at Wake Forest, N. C., where he was awarded a Bachelor of Divinity degree in 1963. He is presently working for a Doctor of Education degree with the American University.

Upon leaving Wake Forest, he returned immediately to active duty, was transferred from the infantry to the chaplain corps, and was first assigned as Support chaplain at the 2nd Infantry Division.

Airborne

Capt. Pulley will attend "jump" courses at The Airborne School next month, and is being reassigned to the 11th Air Assault Division.

Reenlists During Swift Strike III

By 17th Artillery PIO

SFC Hubert Pearson, a member of B Battery, 17th Artillery, reenlisted in the field recently while participating in Joint Exercise Swift Strike III.

SFC Pearson enlisted in the Army in 1952 and received Basic Combat Training at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii. He is a veteran of the Korean Conflict and has been awarded the Combat Infantryman's Badge and the Korean Service Medal.

Prior to joining the 17th Artillery, SFC Pearson served with the 1st Battalion, 29th Artillery, Fort Devons, Mass.

He and his wife, Olga, who make their home in Ackerman, Miss., now live in Columbus.

2nd of 9th SFC Reenlists for Three

MANNHEIM, Germany — SFC Hoyt A. Strickland, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry communications chief, reenlisted for three years here recently, making the "Manchu" Re-Up rate 100 per cent since its arrival in Germany.

Lt. Col. Jack Samson, battalion commander, administered the reenlistment oath to officiate the ceremony.

Sgt. Strickland, a veteran of 18 years active duty, has been in communications throughout most of his Army career.

Prior to his assignment to the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry in April, he was noncommissioned officer in charge of the Communications School at Fort Lewis, Wash.

To Play in All-Army Tournament. . .

Hamby Makes Third Army Team

Although skidding to a four over par 76 in the final round of the Third Army Golf Tournament last week at Fort Benning, a 2nd Infantry Division golfer was still able to capture fourth place and secure a birth on the Third Army Golf Team.

Lt. Joe Hamby of Company A, 1st Tank Battalion, 72nd Armor fired an even par 72 on the opening day's play to share the first round lead with Harold Zink, a retired Army Major playing out of Fort Gordon, Ga.

In the second round of the 72 hole event, he slipped to a one over par 73 for a 36 hole total of 145, just one stroke behind the halfway leader Bob Zimmerman of Fort McPherson, Ga.

Steady Joe Hamby remained well up in contention after completing the third round by carding another 72 over the post country club's rolling fairways for a three round total of 217; two shots behind Zimmerman and one behind his post team mate, Bill Martindale.

But disaster struck Hamby on the final 18 holes and he soared to a four over par 76. His four round total of 293 was six strokes behind Zimmerman's winning total of 287 but still good enough for fourth place and the number four spot on the Third Army team.

The team will participate in the All-Army competition to be played September 17 through 21 at Fort Monmouth, N.J.

Hamby started his golf career at the age of 11 and in four short years was consistently shooting in the 70's. He played four years of varsity golf at Florida Southern College, Lakeland, Fla., and was a member of the winning team in the 1961 Florida State Four - Ball competition.

Costly Errors Prove Fatal to Admin

After jumping off to a flying start in the United States Infantry Center company level softball tournament last week the 2nd Admin Company succumbed to superior pitching, plus a series of costly errors, and were eliminated in the fourth round of play.

Drawing a bye for the first round of the double elimination tournament, 2nd Admin played their first game against the 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion at 2nd Admin Field and slammed their way to an 8-3 victory.

Advancing to the third round, Admin travelled to WAC Field at Main Post and ran across its first stumbling block by the name of Thomas Awrty, a young pitcher for Company A of the Infantry School Battalion. Awrty turned in a solid one-hit performance, giving up just one two-base hit to Don Mackin in the first inning.

Admin's final defeat came later that same day when two costly errors in the third inning of extra play allowed the Center Troop Command to push across the tie-breaking and winning runs.

In their opening game against Company A of the 611th A-C Maintenance and Supply Battalion, 2nd Admin's hitting attack was led by Ron Pensworth, Tom Unger and Bob Stocker, who collected four doubles between them.

Holding a slim one run lead going into the top half of the final inning, the representatives of the "Indianhead" Division exploded for four runs with two out to put the game on ice.

After Don Mackin struck out, Don Holt rapped a sharp single to left field and held his ground when Tom Unger popped to first base. Bob Stocker then smashed a ground rule double to left center, moving Holt to third. Pensworth followed with his second two-bagger of the game and cleared the bases. Ken Stelzer's single down the third base line scored Pensworth who later scored on a long single to center field by Jax Henwood. Bill Scott then struck out to end the scoring spree. The final tally of the game was 8-3.

Riding high after their decisive win, the admin "nine" from the 2nd Infantry Division journeyed to WAC Field in high spirits only to have them dampened by the excellent one-hit performance of Awrty for the Infantry School Battalion. The contest ended with Company A picking up five runs on five hits against Admin's no runs on one hit.

Their final hopes for remaining in contention were crushed when a total of seven errors helped them to defeat themselves in a marathon 10 inning game against the representatives of the Center Troop Command.

With the score tied at four apiece, Center Troop Command came to bat in the top of the 10th and Brown banged out a sharp single to center field. After reaching third base on two consecutive errors by Admin's left fielder, Grimes's single to right field allowed him to score what proved the winning run as the Quinn-Men went scoreless in their half of the inning to end the game and their hopes of a victorious come back.

BOB ZIMMERMAN, 3RD ARMY GOLF CHAMP
Wins By Two Strokes

Zimmerman Is Golf Champion

By Pete Shough

Bob Zimmerman was crowned the 1963 Third Army golf champion last Friday when he toured the Pine Side of the Fort Benning Country Club course with an even par 72 to hold off second place finisher Bill Martindale by two strokes.

Zimmerman, Fort McPherson (Ga.), pro, played Friday's 18 holes with only two birdies to win the coveted title. The new champion was forced to play out of trouble only once when he pulled a drive into the woods on the par four 12th hole. From there on it was Zimmerman all the way.

The 1963 Fort Benning post champion, Martindale, tried to close the gap when he scored three birdies on the back nine but it just wasn't enough to catch the Dayton professional. Martindale missed several short putts that may have put a different light on the championship flight.

All-Army Champion

The 1962 All-Army champion, Cliff Harrington of Fort Campbell, Ky., had his putter working but just couldn't keep his iron shots out of trouble. He hit into two sand traps on the back nine to stop him from pressing the new Third Army champion.

Fort Benning's opening day leader, Joe Hamby, just couldn't keep up the pace in Friday's heat and slid four strokes off the pace with a 76. Hamby changed putters at the beginning of Friday's round but the Florida professional's irons were off his usual style.

Harold Zink played his worst round of the four-day tournament because he couldn't keep his drives out of the rough. On several occasions, he pushed drives into the woods or heavy rough that prevented second shots to the green.

On the opening nine holes, the former Third Army champion tallied two double bogies to place him an early four strokes over par. Zink just couldn't get things going again after his double bogies and finished six strokes off the pace.

Jim Remmert played a three over par 75 Friday to win fifth place honors while Fort Bragg's (N. C.) Jerry Roof stayed one stroke behind the Fort Benning team member with an even par 72.

Hardgrove's nearest competitor, Mike Kulikowski of Fort Jackson, S. C., scored a nine over par 81 to win second place honors.

Lynn Fargo of Fort McPherson, Ga., slipped out of second place when he scored a nine over par 81 to score 312. Fargo had several bogies on the back nine of the course.

Amelia Amizich of Fort Campbell, Ky., exploded into her worst round Friday when she recorded a 10 over par 82, but the Army nurse was so far out in front of the field that the bad round did not affect her standing.

Her nearest competitor, Elinor Jones of Fort McClellan, Ala., who was 17 strokes off the pace, broke the 80 barrier Friday with a seven over par 79.

Joyce Collins of Fort McClellan, was next in line with a 96 to add to her total of 263.

Top finishers in the Open Division were:

Zimmerman—73, 71, 71, 72—287; Martindale—74, 71, 71, 73—289; Harrington—76,72,69, 72—289; Hamby—72, 73, 72, 76—293; Zink—72, 75, 74, 78—299; Remmert—74, 77, 74, 75—300; Roof—76, 80, 73, 72—301; Capt. James Carlisle, Fort Rucker, Ala.—75, 77, 74, 74—301; 2nd Lt. Jerry Greenbaum, Headquarters, XII Corps—77, 74, 75, 76—302 and 2nd Lt. Dave Farr, Fort Bragg—75, 75, 71, 80—300.

Senior Division:
Hardgrove—72, 76, 72, 70—290; Kulikowski—79, 77, 75, 81—312; Fargo—78, 75, 81—312; Major Carl Knowles of Fort Gordon, Ga.—80, 75, 77, 79—311; Lt. Col. Harry Jensen—72, 84, 79, 84—320.

Women's Division:

Third Army Tourney

Benning Wins Behind Miller

By Ted Williamson

A pair of strikeout artists stole the show Monday as the Third U.S. Army baseball tournament got under way amidst waving banners and brass bands.

Larry Purdy of Fort Jackson and J. R. Miller of Fort Benning each racked up 12 strikeouts while pitching their teams to opening round victories.

All was not a bed of roses for Purdy, however, as some sloppy play by his teammates allowed Fort McPherson to jump into a 5 to 0 lead in the first inning. Two costly errors by starting catcher Charlie Adams helped Fort McPherson to four unearned runs and what looked at the time to be an unsurmountable lead.

Fort Jackson Rallies

However, Fort Jackson chipped away at the lead as Purdy settled down and became miserly with base-hits. The South Carolina club tallied single runs in the fourth and seventh innings before erupting for four big ones in the eighth. After Bonnie James had walked and Van Worrell had singled, pinch-hitter Dan Romero lined a clutch single to center to drive in the first run of the winning rally. Two walks forced in another run and Everett Ware drove in the eventual winning run with a single to center.

In the night game Monday, J. R. Miller, the big lefthander from the 197th Infantry Brigade, pitched no-hit ball for six innings and went on to pitch a sparkling four-hitter as he defeated Fort Campbell's "Screaming Eagles," 7 to 1. Miller walked only three batters on his way to victory.

TIC Hits Well

Miller's teammates supported him in fine style as they blasted starter and loser Tom Shafer for 11 hits including three doubles. Slugging first-baseman Pedro Berrios led the Doughboy attack with three hits, including two of the doubles. Eley Zamora and Porter Wooten each had two hits for the evening and Roger England collected the other double.

Campbell's Shafer, although hit rather heavily, walked only two while striking out nine in his losing effort.

Fort McPherson's Big Bill Osborne took the loss in relief of Del Painter in the afternoon game, and Purdy went all the way to pick up the win.

Only about 400 fans turned out for the opener, but Gowdy Field was jammed to near capacity Monday night to watch the Doughboys rack up a relatively easy victory.

'Chute' Club To Compete Tomorrow

Eighteen members of the Fort Benning Sport Parachute Club will participate in the fourth annual Cottonbelt Conference at the Auburn-Opelika (Ala.) Airport tomorrow through Monday.

The Cottonbelt Conference, a gathering of some of the top skydivers in the Southeast, is sponsored by the Opelika Sport Parachute Club.

Fort Benning parachutists will be entered in all three individual jumping events as well as team categories. Judging, depending upon which class a jumper enters is based on accuracy and style.

Air Assault Umpire Is the Sports Type

The 10th Air Transport Brigade, an attached unit of the 11th Air Assault Division, now has its own umpire.

He is not a fugitive from Swift Strike III who assesses battle casualties, he is the kind who officiates at softball, baseball, football and basketball games.

Spc Vincent A. Richardson, the Brigade legal clerk-court reporter, was recently assigned from Fort Carson, Colo.

There is a similarity in Richardson's military duty assignment and his hobby. Both jobs require that he be correct in law and substance. Just how correct he has been in these two determining factors is attested by citing several of the sports events he has been chosen to arbitrate.

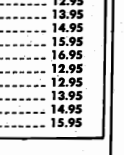
The most recent occasion was the Pueblo Colorado Invitational Fourth of July Tournament. The Colorado baseball commissioner chose Richardson to call the plays behind the plate in both the consolation and championship games, in addition to several games of the tournament. During the past football season at Fort Carson, Richardson officiated at all of the games of the Fort Carson Touch Football League. The managers of the two top teams of the Championship playoffs selected the officials for the game, and Richardson headed the list.

In Korea, 1961 and 1962, he officiated at the Korean International Invitation Baseball Tournament, U. S. Army, Europe Softball Tournament, in addition to officiating at 10 of the 12 football games scheduled in the 1961 season.

Digging a little further into Richardson's officiating career, he was considered one of the top softballs officials in the Baltimore City Recreation Department from 1957 though 1960. It was in Baltimore that Richardson claims he got his best insight in the game of softball since only one official was assigned to a game and he had to call both balls and strikes and the plays on the field.

When asked what it takes to be a good official, Richardson replied, "Playing rules are based on common sense, good judgment and fair play. A good official must be the judge who applies these three factors in enforcing the rules."

Better Bowling



SHOOT FOR SPLITS . . . Someone once said that making spares is the mark of a good bowler. This is true especially when you take converting splits into consideration. While many spare conversions are difficult, none are as hard as splits. The 4,7 and 9-pin split is one such. To convert this split, the ball has to hit the 4-pin thin on its left side so that it takes out the 9. The ball then takes out the 7-pin. There is very little luck connected with this split. It must be converted by being on target.

BASEBALL BANQUET . . . Maj. Gen. C.W.G. Rich (L), commanding general of The Infantry Center, gets a big laugh out of remarks made by Elmer Riddle (R) during his speech given Sunday night at Salerno Mess at the Third Army baseball tournament banquet. "Skeeter" Newsome also addressed the representatives of the six posts here for the tournament. Both guest speakers are ex-major league ball players. (Photo by MSgt. W. G. Smith)

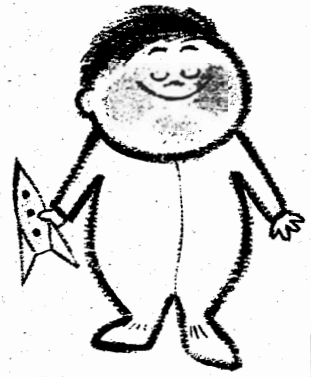
Dental Clinic Holding 'Name the Man' Contest



This week we are going to do something different. We have a picture of a young man who is going to become quite a star in his own right. We plan to use him in posters and illustrations at A-14 Dental Clinic.

The only trouble with him is he has no name and so far is tongue-tied. So we need two things:

(1) A name—something to identify him like 'Charlie Brown' of PEANUTS.

(2) Some cute sayings with referral to dentistry, of 10 words or less in length.

In return we will use the winner's name and winning title in our weekly column.

No restrictions on entry — send as many names or sayings as you like to:

Preventive Dentistry Section
c-o Post Dental Surgeon

or drop your entries off at A-14 dental clinic. Please date your entry so we can pick the earliest saying in case of duplication.

Coin Machines Causing Acute Change Shortage

NEW YORK (AFPS) — The vending machine is breaking up that old piggy bank of mine. Such could be the wail of the youth of the country if Miss Eva B. Adams, director of the U.S. Mint, should change her mind and ask for more change to be put in circulation.

The director said, however, "Oh, I think the psychology of that would be terrible." So, despite the fact that coin collectors, vending machines operators and slot machine manipulators are moaning and groaning because the mints of the land are not turning out nickles, dimes and quarters fast enough, present plans call for no drastic action.

Miss Adams said, "There has been a shortage of coins for months, and it appears to be getting worse." This however, does not mean the country is in a poor economic situation for the fluctuation in the availability of coins seems to go along with the surges of the economy of the land.

Materials used to make coins are not in short supply, she said.

Long range relief is in sight since the Senate has passed a bill providing for the replacement of the Philadelphia mint with a more modern and larger facility.

But, until the coins start dropping through the mint machines and until the toll roads stop eating quarters, it behooves the traveling serviceman to watch his own coin purse.

New EM Club In Operation This Week

A brand new facility for the use of the enlisted personnel in the grades E-4 and below opened recently in the Harmony Church area.

Called Annex 4, Central NCO Open Mess, the new club is located in Bldg. No. 4497 on Long Street.

The club is the largest of three such clubs for the lower rank enlisted men and is open to all qualified personnel. However, due to its convenient location for the 11th Air Assault Division personnel, it is expected to draw most of its clientele from this unit.

The club is under the general management of the Central NCO Open Mess. The mess secretary, Sgt. Loyd C. Gregg, said in discussing the operation that he hopes it will be well patronized.

The club is managed by MSgt. Roy Fugate. According to Sgt. Fugate, refreshments are now available at the club and a kitchen and snackbar will open in approximately a week. He also indicated that there will be a dance each Saturday and Sunday evening. The hours of operation are 5 to 11 p.m. Mooday through Friday, and from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

Together with Victory Lodge, which is for the use of enlisted men of grades E-5 and above, this facility provides accomodations for the entertainment and relaxation of all the enlisted personnel on post.

Lt. Col. Blaney Joins CDCIA

Lt. Col. Kermit B. Blaney has been assigned here as executive and project officer in the Doctrine and Organization Branch of the U.S. Army Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency.

His assignment before coming to Fort Benning was on Okinawa where he was secretary of the Joint Area Command.

Col. Blaney, a graduate of the University of Virginia was commissioned in 1939.

Know Your Allies

He Survived Sub Crash

One of two survivors from a sunken German submarine, Maj. Heinrich Luschin, is now a student of The Infantry School's associate career officers course No. 5.

Maj. Luschin, who arrived at Fort Benning in May, explained that in 1938 he was taken into the German Navy and sent to the Naval Academy in Flensburg, Germany. After receiving submarine training he was graduated from the academy and sent to active duty.

In the spring of 1941 he was promoted to ensign followed by another promotion to Lt. (JG) in 1943.

That same year, 1943, he was aboard a 500 ton submarine about 600 miles off the Brazilian coast when it was rocked by a crippling explosion and sunk. Of the entire crew, only Maj. Luschin and one other survived.

After spending 29 hours in the water, he was spotted by an American plane which dropped him a rubber raft. A short while later he was found by a Brazilian ship and remained in Brazil as prisoner of war for approximately six months when he was tranferred to the United States to spend another 12 months as a POW.

After the war he returned to Austria, his place of birth, and entered Graz University where he received a certificate of translator.

From '46 to '56 he remained a civilian.

In 1956, when Austria was declared an independent nation, Maj. Luschin joined the Infantry. He now holds the position of company commander and commander of Garrison in Bleiburg.

He speaks German, English and French fluently. He looks forward to a new assignment when he returns home in October.

Capt. Charles H. Dayhuff III commands Company A.

Company C Gets Commander's Trophy at 577th

Company C, 577th Engineer Battalion Construction was awarded the Commanders Trophy for a first place finish in the competition held during Organization Day last Saturday.

Thirteen individual and team events were held with Charlie Company winning five, and placing in most of the others.

Trophies were presented to winners in each event by the battalion commander, Lt. Col. William K. Jordan, who also presented Lt. George P. Perdue and 1st Sgt. Willie C. Martin with the top award for C Company.

Florida School Teacher-Soldier Comes 'Home' to Fort Benning

For a Florida school teacher, reporting to Fort Benning for two weeks of active duty as a U.S. Army Reserve officer was really "coming home."

Capt. George L. Brown Jr., was born here, attended the post dependent schools and has many memories of childhood activities on the reservation.

When he arrived on the post for summer training, he was assigned to the 39th Transportation Battalion as S-3 (plans and operations officer). The S-3 office turned out to be in the same room where, as a child, he frequently visited his father, a member of the 24th Infantry Regiment Band.

The office in the third cuartel, also reminds Capt. Brown of the officer who was adjutant of the 24th Infantry Regiment 22 years ago, 2nd Lt. (now Major Gen.) B. O. Davis Jr.

"We children living on the post had the run of the place in those days," Capt. Brown said. "We knew everyone and everyone knew us."

"We used to run up and down the outside corridors of the cuartels," he said. "The first two cuartels and the south wing of the Third Cuartel were the only permanent buildings on the post then beside the 'Big House' (Infantry School), Officers' Mess, Gowdy Stadium and part of the bus station.

"The 'Little Train' on display across from the Main Post Catholic Chapel was my toy to us," he continued. "We rode the 'dinkey' to outlying rest areas and ranges for it was the major means of transportation about the post. During the summer, we were permitted to 'run a problem' or go on bivouac with our fathers. Why, I could disassemble a Springfield rifle when I was 8."

Capt. Brown said there have been many changes since he lived here. The Eubanks Field airborne training facilities, he recalls, included only two jump towers and none of the mock-ups now in use.

"One of the most important events of my life took place here," Capt. Brown said. "In 1936, President Roosevelt visited the post. We were permitted to move right up close to the President's car. It was an impressive moment for me as a child."

Another unforgettable experience was the dedication of the first jump tower. The now familiar "buddy seat ride", a simulated parachute jump from the 250-foot tower, was a new thrill for the children on the post.

CAPT. G. BROWN JR.

"We didn't ride once nor twice but over and over for half a day," Capt. Brown said.

Entering the service as an enlisted man in 1947, he served three years in the Far East.

In 1950, he returned to civilian life and began his college education at Tuskegee (Ala.) Institute, where he was commissioned under the Reserve Officer Training Corps program as a second lieutenant of Infantry.

Called to active duty in 1952, Capt. Brown served three years in Japan before returning to Tuskegee to complete requirements for a B.S. degree.

He was graduated from the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor in 1958 with a master of science degree.

We Goofed!

In last week's Bayonet a story entitled "Know Your Allies" incorrectly identified Maj. Miguel Alfredo Coquet, an Argentine Infantry officer, as having begun his military career as a Warrant Officer.

Maj. Coquet began his military career in 1946 when he graduated as a lieutenant from Argentina's National Military School.

Also, in 1959 Maj. Coquet was assigned to the General Staff of the Army, not of the Infantry as the story stated.

LOYD IS ONE OF FIVE PERMANENT SCHOOL BUILDINGS IN THE CHILDREN'S SCHOOL SYSTEM.
Twenty-three Classroom Building Was Constructed in 1958 and Named for 2nd Lt. Frank B. Loyd Jr., Holder of the Distinguished Service Cross.

'Million Dollar School' Developed From Three Teachers in a Barn

Approximately 3,000 military dependents will troop back to school at Fort Benning Sept. 3, beginning the 42nd year of the post's Children's Schools.

Army youngsters will go to school in one temporary and five permanent schools.

The school system, which cost approximately $1,150,000 to operate during the 1962-1963 academic year, is financed by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The department bears the cost of building, operating and maintaining the post schools.

First Opening

Looking back to the opening of the first Children's School at Fort Benning in 1921, a private school with 60 pupils and three teachers, using a renovated cow barn for a schoolhouse, the growth and development of the post's modern school system with educational plants unexcelled anywhere seems phenomenal.

The post's newest school building is Edward A. White School on 1st Division Rd. Constructed in 1961, the building's original 11 classrooms will be augmented this year by a five-classroom wing scheduled for completion in time for the opening day of school. The school has a library and is equipped with a multi-purpose room, adaptable for use as a gymnasium, cafeteria or auditorium.

The building was named for 2nd Lt. Edward A. White who was posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for heroism near Kumchom, Korea, Aug. 2, 1950.

Loyd School, constructed in 1958 on Santa Fe Rd., is named for 2nd Lt. Frank B. Loyd Jr., who also received a posthumous award of the Distinguished Service Cross. He was cited for heroism near Sinan-Myan in Korea, Sept. 26, 1950. The 23 classroom school, like Edward A. White School, has a library and a multi-purpose room.

30 Classrooms

Faith School, south of Glen Field, between Lumpkin Rd. and Ingersoll St., was built in 1952, with additions in 1953 and 1955. There are 30 classrooms, library, industrial arts shop, art, music, science and home economics rooms and a multi-purpose room.

The school was named for Lt. Col. Don C. Faith Jr., who received a posthumous award of the Medal of Honor for gallantry near Hagaruri, North Korea, Dec. 1, 1950.

Wilbur School, off Custer Rd., was built in 1950, and enlarged in 1955. It contains 14 classrooms, a library and a multi-purpose room. The school, like Edward A. White, Loyd and Faith, bears the name of a hero of the Korean conflict, 2nd Lt. William H. Wilbur Jr., who was posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for his action near Tabudone, Sept. 3, 1950.

Oldest School

Patch School, the oldest of the post's five permanent elementary school buildings, was built in 1931. It stands at the corner of Lumpkin Rd. and Baltzell Ave. There are 13 classrooms, a library and an auditorium.

Capt. Alexander M. Patch Jr., a hero of World War II, for whom the school is named, received the Distinguished Service Cross, posthumously, for his action near Sailly, France, Aug. 27, 1944.

The Hospital Area School will occupy Bldgs. 1005, 1006, 1010, 1011, 1092 and 1093. These are temporary buildings formerly part of the Fort Benning Army Hospital, which is now Martin Army Hospital, housed in a modern plant.

The post's first schoolhouse in 1921, was in a building that had been carefully located at a "discreet" distance from "Riverside," the original "Big House" of the old Bussey Plantation. It's location was influenced by the fact that the building was originally built to house dairy cattle.

Dairy Barn

When the government bought the plantation, the dairy barn became the schoolhouse, Riverside became the commanding general's quarters, and the title "Big House," so long used by plantation servants and field hands to refer to the Bussey home, was transferred with dignity and loyalty to The Infantry School building.

Differences between the post dependent school of 42 years ago and the six schools today are many.

Parents paid tuition fees to supplement post funds used to support the school.

Desks were adult size, for the classrooms were used by students officers at night. Small legs dangled from the large seats and books were held on the lap until some enterprising soldier made tiny stools to place in the adult seats.

Children walked to school, often through the red clay mud, for three-year-old Fort Benning had no pavement.

No inconvenience, however, was considered a hardship by the children. They had a school in their own community after three years with none.

During those first three years in the life of the post, the nearest public school was in Columbus. There was no paved, four-lane Victory Drive, nor were there any school buses to take post children to town to school.

Even soldiers who lived in Columbus traveled to the post each day by the Old Macon Rd., which became impassable after a rain. In bad weather, then, the only access to and from Columbus was the train.

Post Commander

The importance of the Children's Schools at Fort Benning is emphasized by the fact that dependent schools constitute one of the many activities considered to be a direct responsibility of the commanding general, Maj. Gen. C. W. G. Rich.

The post commander exercises his responsibilities for the schools through two channels. First, there is the school board, like that of any civilian community.

Col. Howard R. Scroggs of (1216 Virginia Place) Fort Worth, Texas, is president of the board.

Serving with Col. Scroggs are Lt. Col. John W. Williams of Lake Kerr, Citra, Fla., Lt. Col. Wallis McLain of (933 Cedar Lane) Paducah, Ky., Lt. Col. Lewington S. Ponder of Cincinnati, Lt. Col. John K. Roberts Jr., of Somerspoint, N.J. Major Jean P. Doerr of (2305 Edgewood Rd.) Columbus, and Sgt. Major C. R. Westervelt of Muscogee, Okla.

Col. (Ret.) Calvin T. Roush, of (3 Esquiline Court) Columbus, post schools officer, is secretary of the board, while Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, post superintendent of schools, is an ex-officio member.

In Mrs. Scudder, the post commander has a city superintendent of schools with responsibilities and functions found in the schools of any civilian community. Mrs. Scudder's office is in Bldg. 880-A, near Faith School.

The second channel through which the post commander exercises his responsibility for the dependent schools is through the G-1 (Personnel) Section of the U. S. Army Infantry Center.

Col. Roush, as schools officer working with G-1, handles matters concerned with budget preparation, construction, maintenance, transportation and supply. He also acts as liaison officer between the installation and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

GO HOME HENRY! . . . Tommy Buckner, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Lewis Buckner and a fourth grade student in the post's Children's School System, tries unsuccessfully to explain to Henry, his canine friend, that the schoolhouse is no place for dogs.

Principals 'Educated' In Summer

A Fort Benning elementary school principal, Rupert C. Nunally of (2805 Walker St.) Columbus, Ga., toured eight European countries during the summer vacation.

Accompanied by his father, Van D. Nunally, a retired school teacher from Baxter, Tenn., Nunally made the tour with 34 other Georgia teachers.

The group, all members of the Georgia Education Association, were in Europe from July 15 to Aug. 5.

"We were typical tourists," the Wilbur principal said. "We saw all the usual sights and heard all the briefings on points of general interest. The purpose of the trip was to broaden our education."

"A highlight of the trip was a visit to East Berlin. We saw 'the wall', an unforgettable experience," he said.

Other post school administrators furthering their education during the summer were Miss Ruth Massey (of 2256 Vicky Ave.), director of guidance, and Mrs. Pearl M. Brakonecke (of 2302 Sharon Ave.), principal of Edward A. White School, who attended summer school at Peabody College in Nashville.

Mrs. Evelyn Southwood of (2602 Walker St.) Columbus, assistant principal of Faith School, attended the University of Alabama summer school at Tuscaloosa.

School Officials Set Schedules for 63-64

Officials of the Fort Benning Children's Schools have announced schedules and a tentative attendance plan for six elementary schools on the post, slated to open Sept. 3.

Pupils from kindergarten through the eighth grade who live on the reservation will attend Faith, Loyd, Wilbur, Patch, Edward A. White or the Hospital Area School.

Dependents on the post who are in the ninth through 12th grades will attend Baker, Carver, Columbus, Jordan Vocational or Spencer High Schools in Columbus.

Kindergarten pupils will attend one of two daily sessions to be conducted from 9 to 11:45 a.m. or from 1 to 2:45 p.m.

First and second grade pupils will be in school from 9 a.m. to 2:45 p.m., while the third through eighth grades will begin at 8:30 a.m. and close at 3:15 p.m.

High Schools in Columbus will maintain a 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. schedule.

Cafeterias will be operated at Faith, Wilbur, Loyd and Edward A. White Schools. A well-balanced meal will be served for 35 cents or at the rate of 30 cents if a meal ticket is purchased.

Children who attend Patch or the Hospital Area Schools should carry a lunch.

Milk will be included in the price of the meal or can be purchased separately at all schools for three cents a half pint.

The first day of school will be a full day. Cafeterias will be open.

Transportation schedules and information as to which students will be transported to and from school have been issued to parents, officials said.

Transportation will not be furnished at noon except for kindergarten children completing the morning session and beginning the afternoon session.

Kindergarten children should be accompanied to school by a parent on the first day.

Both kindergarten and first grade pupils should wear name tags with address and telephone number the first month of school.

School officials said the attendance plan is subject to change to meet fluctuations in enrollment.

All kindergarten and some first grade classes will comprise the Hospital Area School.

In Bldgs. 1010 and 1011, during the morning session, kindergarten classes will include half of the children from NCO Capehart and all of Harmony Church, and the afternoon session, remainder of NCO Capehart and children from the Main Post north of Baltzell and Wold Ave.

Bldgs. 1092 and 1093, kindergarten, morning session, Custer Terrace and Main Post south of Baltzell and Wold Ave., and afternoon session, Officer Capehart, Benning Park, Battle Park and Upatoi.

Bldgs. 1005 and 1006, first grade classes from undetermined areas of the Main Post, dependent upon enrollment trends. (The Hospital Area first grade classes will be established to prevent over-crowding in any of the other five schools on the post.)

Loyd School, first through fifth grades, NCO Capehart.

Patch School, first through fourth grades, Benning Park, Harmony Church, and Main Post north of Baltzell and Wold Ave.

Edward A. White School, first through fourth grades, Main Post south of Baltzell and Wold Ave., including the new NCO quarters northwest of Indianhead Rd.

Faith School, fifth through eighth grades from Benning Park, Main Post and Harmony Church, and sixth through eighth grades from Custer Terrace, Battle Park, Upatoi and Officer and NCO Capehart.

Librarians include Mrs. Jean A. Curran, Miss Lusshian V. Ham, Miss Priscilla O'Gwynn and Mrs. Gwendolyn Windham.

Col. Vern L. Joseph President Of Post Parent-Teacher Group

Col. Vern L. Joseph is president of the Fort Benning PTA.

He was elected to the office in March to succeed Col. Edward M. Foxworth, who served during the 1962-1963 school year.

Col. Joseph is chief of The Infantry School's Office of Advanced Studies.

Other officers for 1963-1964 include Lt. Col. Charles A. Morris, first vice president; Sgt.-Maj. Jessie Easterwood, second vice president; Mrs. Royal B. Brown, third vice president; Lt. Col. J. D. Clark, secretary; Maj. Leroy W. Smith, treasurer, and Capt. Tomas Bonilla-Acevedo, assistant treasurer.

There were 2,223 parents and teachers enrolled in the group during school year 1962-1963.

A highlight of the year was a tea sponsored by the PTA at the Supper Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess for 650 delegates and officials of the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers during its annual convention in Columbus last April.

In the receiving line were Mrs. Clifford Jenkins, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. Cicero Johnston, state PTA president, and officials of the Fort Benning and Muscogee County PTA's and schools systems.

Throughout the school year, the post PTA assisted the Children's Schools with a health program, provided prizes for 100 per cent PTA membership and attendance by rooms, and donated funds for athletic trophies and awards, film rentals and printing of programs.

They provided $700 for the purchase of audio-visual aids for the schools, including a filmstrip projector for kindergarten use, 27 art appreciation print sets, and eight record players.

The PTA sponsored a workshop visit to the post by 20 educational leaders representing the Southern Association, of Colleges and Schools, Georgia State Department of Education and Georgia public schools.

The visiting team made a careful study of the post Children's Schools and recommended that the schools be accredited by the Southern Association. Application for accreditation will be submitted to the association before the next annual meeting which will be conducted in the fall.

The workshop was part of a long-range continuing In-Service Program of the post dependent schools, financed largely by the PTA. For the school year 1962-1963, the cost of the program was approximately $1,000, of which the PTA provided $900.

The purpose of the In-Service Program is to provide opportunities for teachers and school administrators to keep abreast of current educational trends and practices. The program also provides an opportunity for post educators to participate in a cooperative study approach to the fast-changing needs of a technological society.

COL. R. A. SCROGGS

DR. J. J. CONFORTI

The program has for several years included an annual five-day workshop, administered by staff members and representatives of the PTA. School personnel plan, organize and operate the program, but PTA members are invited to participate in all phases of the workshop.

The school staff selects areas for study and invites an authority in that field to act as leader of the workshop.

The PTA finances the project, including the visitors' transportation, housing during the workshop and an honorarium for his services.

Good Driving Attitude 'Peels Lots of Potatoes'

BY NORMAN C. EVANS
Post Safety Officer

If you have ever peeled potatoes for a really big mess and for every bag you peeled it looked as if the mess sergeant had two dumped in its place, then you know what its like to try to lower the rates in the nation's traffic tragedy.

Maybe we could take a tip from a Tokyo bus company that ordered its drivers to take a two week course in Yogi style zen meditation at a local Buddhist temple. The theory is that once they obtain the "inner light," the drivers will have peace of mind and be able to discipline any urge to speed or take chances.

Certainly we know that state of mind has much to do with the causes of nearly 40,000 vehicle deaths in the United States every year. We call it attitude.

While thinking about the attitude of our drivers in this country, it brings to mind the fact that wars have not equaled the American automobile in killing people. More Americans have died from traffic troubles than from wars. You may be planning a trip this Labor Day. Think about your attitude — what is it going to be?

Nice people can have bad driving attitudes and not even realize it. This is not to ridicule anyone but we hope it will cause some thinking. Are you really going to hold your speeds down within the speed limits, according to conditions? Are you going to be courteous even when the other fellow is nasty? Give him a break; he may be deaf or otherwise handicapped.

Are you going to throttle your impatience (that is, if you are impatient) so that you do not attempt to pass except when you know the way is clear? Are you going to be thoughtful enough that you will have planned to leave yourself a way out if the other driver happens to get you in a pinch? Are you going to refuse to drive if you have had a little drink or if you have not had enough rest to be physically awake and mentally alert? You know your family, if they are with you, and many others may depend on your having the right answers for their survival.

Attitude is a big word in safety. It covers more than just driving vehicles. On the beach, for instance, the lifeguard (and we hope you would not swim where there is no lifeguard) says its dangerous to go out beyond a certain point. Do you accept what he says or do you assume that you can go just a little further because you are a good swimmer? Do you wear a life preserver around water? Do you refuse to overload a boat? Do you know how to give mouth - to - mouth resuscitation? Do you always learn about tides and depths and other matters of vital importance before going into a strange area to swim?

If you will think about all of these things and use the right attitude you will have helped peel a lot of potatoes.

THIS WAS A CASE OF 'BAD ATTITUDE' DRIVING
Driver Regarded Safety Rules As Being for Others

Labor Day Message

The bill designating the first Monday in September as Labor Day was passed by Congress on 28 June 1894 in honor of our country's wage-earners.

This is the last holiday for the summer season and no doubt many people will be traveling to the various recreational areas and to visit friends and relatives. As they travel on the highways, they should be ever mindful of others. It is a time to practice defensive driving.

Commanders at all levels should use every practical means of acquainting personnel with the various hazards they might encounter during this holiday period. Personnel should be discouraged from taking long trips while fatigued, driving after darkness, and using intoxicating beverages while driving. This holiday can be made safe by proper planning and actions.

Test and Evaluation Unit Checks All Items of Issue

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Army Test and Evaluation Command at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., and installations from Alaska to Greenland and to Panama are called upon to make sure every item of Army equipment will perform as intended under field conditions.

The container was put through such rugged tests as being dropped from heights and run over by heavy machinery. The cap still open easily.

But in Alaska's sub-zero conditions, a soldier tried to lift the can and was unable to get his thickly gloved hand through the handle. So designers had to go back to their drawing boards.

This is the reason why the Army has a Test and Evaluation Command with 22,500 men, and a 200 million-dollar annual budget.

Army, Navy and Air Force logisticians usually keep what they wryly call Murphy's Law in mind whet. testing equipment. The Army test Command's version of the law is:

"If there be one obscure way in which an item of equipment may be damaged or destroyed, the operator in the field will inevitably discover this one shortcoming or deficiency."

Lingo Lab Is Success Overseas

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army's desire to improve community relations has recently been dramatized by the success of the Seventh Army's German Language Training Program conducted at education centers througout the command.

The course is designed to train Army officers, enlisted members and their dependents to communicate with the German people in their own language. This program not only gives the student a basis for speaking and understanding the German language, but also teaches him some of its culture and history.

Personnel who volunteer for the off-duty training are drilled in day-to-day conversation. The classes are designed so that the student mitates the instructor. Hence, instead of learning about the language, the student learns "in" the language.

During the past year, 12,500 officers and enlisted personnel have been graduated from the schools. The program has been so successful in achieving its ultimate goal of obtaining greater understanding of the German people and fostering better community relations that the Army is considering its expansion to other countries.

Army Magazine Views New Air Assault Division

In what may be the most significant article on tactics published since the end of the Second World War, Army magazine in its September issue presents the views of Gen. Hamilton H. Howze on the tactics of the new 11th Air Assault Division.

Gen. Howze was president of the 1962 Army Mobility Requirements Board which produced the famed "Howze Board" report that recommended the formation of air assault divisions and air cavalry brigades.

Using the problem and terrain of the Swift Strike II exercise in South Carolina in 1962, Gen. Howze assigns to the Blue side one air assault division which fights a defense retrograde action until it is augmented by a second air assault division, when the Blue side counter attacks. Throughout the exercise the Red side is numerically stronger, consisting of an infantry division with two battalions of tanks attached and airborne division and normal corps artillery.

Gen. Howze writes that "air assault divisions and air cavalry combat bridges — mixed with conventional formations — will afford corps and field Army commanders a quantum jump in tactical mobility."

He lists these advantages of the air assault division:

"Most important is the ability of the new division to turn upside-down the problem of the terrain obstacle. . . In taking to the air the new division suddenly finds that most terrain obstacles work for it. . . It is quite impossible to exaggerate the effect of this advantage."

Another advantage is the opportunity the air assault division has to "muck up the terrain, by blowing all the bridges and culverts and infesting all bypasses, roads and trails with mines. We are very prone to forget, 18 years after the conclusion of World War II, the deterrent effect of mines."

A third advantage is "the great flexibility of employment which comes from mobility. The air assault commander has open to him a far greater variety of feasible courses of action in the attack, a new latitude of choice as respects both point of thrust and direction of thrust.

Today's Army Needs Brighter Inductees

The growing complexity of equipment is responsible for the trend toward higher selectivity in the military draft, Pentagon personnel experts say.

Officials report the upswing in selectivity has been underway several years. Last May 1, mental standards for inductees were raised.

Only the Army has used the draft since the Korean Conflict.

"On the average, the quality of draftees today is better than World War II and Korea because the mental standards for induction are higher," the Army report discloses.

Fewer lower - mental - category personnel qualify or are permitted to stay in the service. On the other hand, fewer high-mental - category personnel are being inducted today because of a smaller draft than in World War II and Korea.

Physical standards are essentially the same.

The Army says the military can afford to be more selective in peacetime than in war, and today's rejection rate on the basis of mental tests is now higher.

The present Congress has extended the draft law another four years. Military manpower experts say, however, it is their judgment that the Selective Service system and draft authority will be required so long as the international situation remains substantially unchanged.

Mental and physical standards are set by the Department of Defense. Then the Selective Service picks out the kind and numbers of men the Army wants.

Army personnel experts reveal that their goal is to get men who are trainable for today's complex Army needs and who will perform satisfactorily on the job.

Modern warfare demands skills in language, engineering, electronics (for missile work) and medicine.

When the September draft quota is filled, 2,845,450 men will have been drafted since September 1959. Today's Army strength is nearly one million.

A STEP TOWARD UNDERSTANDING . . . Col. Hiram Carpenter, commandant of the Pittsburgh Reserve School, talks with Capt. Ali Doniyai-Hassan of Iran at an informal get-together held by school members recently for Iranian officers attending The Infantry School. The idea came from Lt. Col. William L. O'Sullivan after he became convinced that there is a need for more social exchange between allies and American officers attending the school. He felt the allies need more of a chance to get to know Americans, and vice versa. Col. O'Sullivan suggests that other reserve groups take the opportunity during their summer training to seek out and meet with allied officers, in order to benefit both groups.

Tiros VI Outlasting Ancestors

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The Tiros VI weather satellite, launched Sept. 18, 1962, has exceeded the 320-day record achieved by its predecessor Tiros V.

The quality of pictures transmitted by the satellite remains excellent and indications are that the spacecraft will continue its record breaking performance.

Tiros VI was launched to give global weather coverage. So far it has directed sand storms in Saudi Arabia, ice conditions in both Northern and Southern hemispheres and furnished data used as a basis for many storm advisories to foreign countries and the United States. Tiros VI gave early data on tropical storm Arlene, the first such storm of the 1963 season.

The original life expectancy of Tiros satellites was estimated at three to four months. Tiros I had a useful of 2½ months; Tiros II, III, and IV, 4½ months; and Tiros V, 10½ months.

Fear Grips AF As Base Dentist Operates on Dog

Working during off - duty hours, a base dental officer and his assistant performed the snappy operation. Point of the operation was to sharpen Charlie up with chromium cobalt for his hair-raising duties.

Col. Madding Gets Scout Post

Lt. Col. A. S. Madding, deputy director of the Airborne-Air Mobility Department, has been named scouting coordinator for the Fort Benning Youth Activities Club.

Col. Madding, who replaced Lt. Col. Hollis C. Lewis, said registration tables for all Scout activities will be set up at each post school during school registration periods.

Defense Secretary Cites U.S. Nuclear Advances

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — In his testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee regarding the nuclear test ban treaty, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said there have been substantial increases in our nuclear forces over last five years and further increases are programmed.

During the past 24 months alone, he stated, there has been a 100 per cent increase in the number of nuclear warheads in the strategic alert forces, and a 60 per cent increase in the tactical nuclear forces deployed in Western Europe.

In reference to the force structure, the Secretary told committee members that during the past two years there also has been:

A 30 per cent increase in the number of tactical air squadrons.

A 100 per cent increase in ship construction and conversion to modernize the fleet.

The Secretary said that the U. S. force now contains more than 500 missiles — Atlas, Titan, Minuteman, Polaris — and has planned to increase to over 1700 by 1966.

In addition the United States has Stategic Air Command bombers on air alert and over 500 bombers on quick reaction alert.

By comparison, Secretary McNamara said, the consensus today is that the Soviet could place less than half as many bombers over North America on a first-strike. The Soviets are estimated to have only a fraction as many Inter-Continental Ballistic Missiles (ICBM). Their sub-launched ballistic missiles are short range, require surface launch and generally are not comparable to our Polaris force.

Referring to survival of the U. S. strategic missile force in case of an attack, Secretary McNamara told the committee that this force "is designed to survive and it will survive."

Pentagon 'Feeds an Army' 30 Tons of Food Per Day

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — For the lady who thinks she has to cook for an Army — cheer up, things could be worse.

Consider, if you please, these facts about one cafeteria and be glad that every day you don't have to:

Bring groceries home in 35 or 40 vans.

Serve 16,000 trays.

Wash 25,000 trays.

Brew 30,000 cups of coffee.

On notice its kitchen can give forth 30 tons of food into six cafeterias, three dining rooms and ten snack bars.

The system requires the services of some 560 employes.

Every day nearly 9500 donuts, 800 pies and 200 layer cakes are turned out.

Using a cavernous rotary oven 240 pies can be produced in 45 minutes.

Mid-Pacific Lighthouse Rebuilt After 22 Years

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Amelia Earhart Lighthouse, partially destroyed by Japanese naval gunfire in World War II, has been rebuilt by the United States Coast Guard to aid mariners plying the lonely mid-Pacific.

Erected in memory of the famed flyer who lost her life off Howland Island, the light stands on the tiny, barren speck of American soil just north of the equator and about 250 miles east of the International Date Line.

Miss Earhart and her navigator, Fred J. Noonan, disappeared on July 2, 1937, while enroute to Howland from Lae, New Guinea. Howland was to have been one of the last stops on the round-the-world flight that began in Oakland, Calif., the previous May 20.

The plane never reached Howland and despite a massive search by battleships and aircraft carriers no trace of it was ever found. America and the world mourned the two pioneers.

At her intended destination, Hawaiian "colonists" later built a fitting monument — a 20-foot stone lighthouse — and inscribed on it "Amelia Earhart Light, 1937."

Earlier in 1937 the Works Progress Administration and the War, Navy, and Interior Departments built a runway on Howland. This was Miss Earhart's target on the 2,500-mile flight from Lae.

Four volunteer settlers were still on Howland on Dec. 8, 1941—the day after Pearl Harbor—when a Japanese vessel shelled the island, killing two of them and damaging the lighthouse.

Also in honor of Miss Earhart's birthday, July 24, 1963, the Post Office Department issued an eight-cent, air mail commemorative stamp—latest in a long series of honors awarded the first woman to make a solo trans-Atlantic air crossing.

New Machine Can Find Needles in a Haystack

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — How long would it take you to find one word from a list of a million?

If it's more than a second you might be considered a little slow by the latest electronic brain. Univac 1107, scheduled for use by the Defense Documentation Center, can find "one word in a million" in an eighteen-thousandths of a second.

To the layman this computer will have storage for 500 million alpha-numeric characters which is equivalent to storing a million words and locating any one of them in eighteen-thousandths of a second.

Univac 1107 will be one of the largest processors of its type in the military establishment. It is expected to become operational in January, 1964.

The huge immediate access storage provided by the computer will contain information necessary to identify for retrieval the hundreds of thousands of documents in the Defense Documentation Center master technical information file.

Included in the storage will be subject of identification, security status and release limitations for each document and complete information as to the extent of service authorized for the more than 4,000 organizations served by the Center.

More than one million requests are received annually by the Center from Army, Navy, Air Force and DOD agencies and contractors for technical information regarding research, development, and test and evaluation of equipment.

The new system can accomplish several processing operations concurrently making it possible to have immediate access when custom searches or other bibliographic data are requested.

Trieste Starts New Thresher Search Series

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Navy's deep-diving bathyscaph Trieste goes to sea again this month in search of the sunken nuclear submarine USS Thresher.

Secretary of the Navy Fred Korth announced that, weather permitting, the Trieste will be towed from the Boston Naval Shipyard in mid-August for a new series of search dives.

The USS Thresher sank last April 10 in 8,400 feet of water about 220 miles east of Cape Cod, Mass. The Trieste located a considerable amount of debris, but failed to locate the hull of the submarine.

Part Time Sailors Are Sky Soldiers

Four Sky Soldiers from the 37th Air Transportation Battalion, 10th Air Transport Brigade, a unit attached to the 11th Air Assault Division, turned sailors this weekend when they sailed down the Chattahoochee River from the pontoon bridge to Lake Woodruff in Chattahoochee, Fla., a distance of about 160 miles.

The four men were Sgt. Maj. Patrick E. Pettingill, Sgt. Lawrence A. Damon, PFC Hans P. Appelt, and PFC Robert Wilson. They began to navigate the Chattahoochee River at 6 p.m. Friday. They hit port in Florida around 2 a.m. Saturday. The round-trip distance of about 320 miles took roughly 16 hours.

Navy Medicine In Philippines Fights Cholera

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A team of U. S. Navy medical specialists from Taipei are aiding the fight against cholera in the Philippines.

The team set up laboratory facilities in Manila to aid Philippine medical authorities.

U. S. military personnel, dependents and civilians assigned to the Asian mainland and the Philippines are required by regulation to receive cholera immunization. Reimmunization against cholera is required every six months in these areas.

As part of its program, the Navy medical team is conducting research on the use of radioactive isotopes to trace the course of body substances in cholera victims.

The cholera fatility rate among patients at the San Lazaro Hospital in Manila has dropped from 17 percent to two percent since the Navy medical team began its work less than two years ago.

Gen. Rich Challenges Shooters To Enter Matches Only to Win

"What competitors do, or fail to do here, is the image of all Americans," Maj. Gen. C. W. G. Rich, commanding general of The Infantry Center said recently at the National Matches ceremonies at Camp Perry, Ohio, kicking off the Small Arms Firing School for big bore rifles.

"I urge you," he said, "to enter the competition with the idea of winning, for only he with this confidence will win. Only he who strives to win will prevail."

Shoot for "V's"

Gen. Rich said that shooting at a 200 or 300 - yard target is becoming more commonplace, and the act shows that shooting the letter "V," inside the bullseye, stands for victory.

He added, "The person whose aim is to win 2nd, 3rd, or other awards doesn't last long. No one should want other awards, but should strive to win. And the man who wins, usually wins as a matter of two or more "V's."

Over 1,500 big bore firers, some of whom will be attending the Small Arms Firing School and then continue in the Big Bore Matches which started yesterday attended the ceremonies.

There is a reason, the general said, for us wanting to keep competition high in the United States. Because the eyes of the world will be watching us — especially the Russians'.

We can excel if we continue to work and train in marksmanship. But, we cannot excel if we have lost our dedication to our goal.

"This," The Infantry School general added, "is only a forewarning. You must dedicate yourselves to your work and learn the training techniques, and dedicate how much time you want to give to become a good, better, or best, and to how much time you will give to go forward."

Gen. Rich was impressed at the dedication of the true marksman. He said that a person may never be truly beaten, although he may be outscored one or several days. But it becomes progressively more difficult to beat him because of his determination to win, and his confidence that he can win.

Gen. Rich stated, "I have seen men of similar stature on the battlefield. No matter how powerful the forces are against them, nothing can shake their determination to win."

"And finally," he added, "this competition adds to the strength of our nation. The competitor who comes here will be richer in learning when he leaves, and next year he may come back and win. So, good luck and good shooting."

Army System Gets New 'Airborne' Radio

WASHINGTON (ANF) — A new, high-powered, single sideband, air transportable radio terminal (AN-TSC-38) is the latest development in the Department of Defense communications system.

The terminal, which has a range of 5,000 nautical miles, will be ready for use by the Department of Defense global communications system this summer.

The AN-TSC-38 was developed jointly by U. S. Army's Strategic Communications Command, Arlington, Va., a field agency of the Office of the Chief Signal Officer, U. S. Army, and the Collins Radio Company of Dallas, Tex.

The compact communications facility that could be transported quickly to any part of the world by air, if necessary. Transistorized modular electronic components and new packaging techniques have reduced the weight of the system to less than 10 tons in contrast to earlier comparable equipment weighing more than 50 tons.

The system consists of two transportable units, both of which may be transported in a single C-130B aircraft. Complete installation of the system, including erection of the antenna array, will take less than six man-hours and will provide a fully operative communications facility that could be established anywhere in the world.

Acronyms Aplenty

Army's 'Alphabet Soup' Building New Language

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — What's in an acronym?

Plenty, if you're a member of the military trying to find your way around the Pentagon, or any part of the U.S. Armed Forces.

Acronyms are words or names formed by using initial letters of titles, etc. They have become increasingly popular since the beginning of World War II, and now acronyms are an integral part of military life.

For example, a soldier told to report to DSCPER, STRAC, CONUS would be in trouble if he didn't know his acronyms.

And if he really got his signals crossed, he might take MATS to a USARPAC station. Then he might have to depend on COMSERVPAC personnel to get him back to CONUS.

But it was a red-faced Pentagon information clerk — an expert on acronyms — who dove off the acronymical deep end.

Busily giving directions at her information counter on the vast Pentagon main concourse, the clerk was approached by a jokester who asked for directions to the catacombs.

"Not thinking, I tried to find 'CATACOMBS' in the directory, but all the man wanted to know was how to get to the basement," she explained.

There is no sympathy due the man who charged that today's abundance of acronyms causes confusions.

"Acronyms make for too much SNAFU," he said belwideredly.

Santa Claus Is Assigned No. 99701

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Santa Claus will receive letters this year by ZIP.

Postmaster General J. Edward Day unveiled this year's Christmas stamp and revealed hat even Santa Claus has a ZIP code number.

It was one of the last official acts of the postmaster general before stepping down to return to private law practice.

The new five-cent stamp is a three-color reproduction of a lighted National Christmas tree behind the White House. It is blue, green and red on white paper and is slated to go on sale early in November.

In answer to a letter from two children, Mr. Day disclosed that Santa's ZIP code is 99701.

ZIP stands for the department's new Zone Improvement Plan, aimed at more efficient distribution of mail throughout the country.

When you write Santa, address your letter to the North Pole and be sure to use ZIP code No. 99701.

Food Service Chief Assigned to MAH

Maj. Edith M. Hobson has been assigned as chief of the Food Service Division of Martin Army Hospital.

She succeeds Maj. Jean M. Hawkins who will retire tomorrow.

Confederate Torpedoes Destroyed 39 U. S. Ships

FT. LESLEY J. McNAIR, Washington (AFPS)— Torpedo planes played havoc with Allied shipping in the Pacific in World War II. Submarine torpedoes sank innumerable ships in the Atlantic during both World War I and World War II, but the average military man may not know that 39 U. S. vessels were destroyed or damaged by Confederate torpedoes during the Civil War.

Official records of the Union and Confederate navies are filled with references of the damages caused to Union shipping by torpedoes.

They were used from the Potomac to Mobile Bay. Union officers abhorred their use but finally the North was forced to manufacture some to combat the South.

Recently, an old Confederate torpedo was unearthed here. The weapon is believed to be a "frame torpedo," a type of defense used by the Confederates at Charleston, S. C. There are only a few known to be in existence.

The name comes from the way the torpedoes were deployed. The frames, constructed of heavy square timbers and weighted with huge stones, were submerged in rivers and harbors. As many as 12 of the torpedoes were attached to a frame.

The frames were arranged in triangles to prevent vessels from passing over them without striking one of the torpedoes.

Reservists Completing TIS Course

The officers, second and third-year students, represent all-six U.S. Continental Army Command areas.

The summer training school, which has a 158-member staff and faculty, conducts classroom and practical day and night problems in tactics, weapons, communications and combat mobility.

Col. Hiram A. Carpenter Jr. is commandant of the school, and Col. John M. Hilts is his assistant.

The Champaign USAR School is supporting the Pittsburgh school during the two-week summer encampment.

Engineers Witness 'Revolution'

Officers and NCO's of the 806th Engineer Battalion (Construction) recently attended a class on a new substance which may revolutionize the construction of hasty runways.

The class, presided over by engineers from the U.S. Corps of Engineers Experimental Station at Vicksburg, Miss., was also attended by officers from the post engineer's office.

The new substance, a plastic material, approximately one-sixteenth of an inch thick, is light, easily stored, and easily emplaced. It is laid by covering the designated landing area with the material, leaving a three-foot overlay on each side. This extra material is dropped into a trench, which is backfilled. This forms a quick, yet effective, anchor for the temporary runway.

The plastic, light as it is, is extremely tough, and is completely impervious to water seepage from either top or bottom.

The officers of the 806th are particularly interested in this new discovery, since it may be used for a 2,500-foot runway to be built as part of the huge McKenna Complex project. This runway would be utilized by the giant Caribous of the 11th Air Assault Division.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

New Guide Book For Managers To Get DOD Use

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A new management technique guide being widely adopted in industry has been accepted for use in the Department of Defense.

It is a program evaluation and review technique, referred to as PERT.

The new guide is the second document issued by the Government PERT Coordinating Group in its efforts for uniformity in management techniques.

The guide was developed by staffs of the military departments and government agencies to cover PERT time and emphasize refinements of PERT cost.

Copies of the guide are available through the Government Printing Office.

'Gorilla' Action Enflames Park In New Jersey

NEW YORK (AFPS) — "Smokey the Bear" may have burns all over his feet from stamping out forest fires, but a cloth gorilla, who once resided in the fun house at Palisades Amusement Park, N.J., has nothing to show from his first and last inferno but a pile of smoldering stuffing.

When it was all over, fire officials surmised that a passing customer had evidently struck back at the frightful ape, who had been scaring fun house customers for years, by throwing a lighted cigarette at the animal.

ORIGINAL DESIGN

The original design of the U. S. Savings Stamps was adapted from Daniel Chester French's Minute Man statue at Concord bridge, "where once the embattled farmers stood and fired the shot heard 'round the world'."

Postal Authorities Alphabetize More in Effort to Improve Service

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Ever since noodles came in letters and alphabet soup outsold "chunky-unkies" government agencies have moved closer to complete alphabetization. The Post Office Department, which only recently brought forth the Zoning Improvement Program (Z.I.P.) now offers a new combination, V.I.M., meaning Vertical Improved Mail.

V.I.M. joins Z.I.P. and A.B.C.D. (Accelerated Business Collection Delivery) in the Postmaster's plan to improve postal service. The overall program goes under the name of N.I.M.S. (Nationwide Improved Mail Service).

V.I.M. is presently being tested in San Francisco in the 20-story Crown Zellerbach Building. It works like this:

A vertical mail conveyor system, something like a dumbwaiter, carries mail up to all floors of a multi-tenant office building, with one postman assigned exclusively to that building in a basement postal station.

Conveyor trays are equipped with locked covers, with each firm having a key of its own to enable employees to remove its incoming mail, insert outgoing mail and relock the cover. The conveyor can deliver mail at frequent intervals within minutes of its arrival.

A survey of large cities indicates there are many large buildings currently on the drawing boards. These, if V.I.M. is found practical, will be encouraged to include the conveyor belt system.

Post Office authorities indicate the system will pose no threat to postal employees but on the contrary will guarantee that delivery personnel can continue to be used to maximum efficiency.

Some large office buildings now require as many as 30 carriers to deliver mail to hundreds of individual tenants over a period of several hours.

Officer Candidates

At present the Infantry officer candidate school at Fort Benning and the Artillery officer candidate school at Fort Sill, Okla., are the only schools of their kind operating within the U.S. Army.

Oldest USMA Grad Credits War Wound

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The oldest living graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point says the bullet that cut him down in the Spanish-American War may be the best thing that ever happened to him.

"It got me through the liver and lung," says Col. John P. Hains, a 97-year-old former artilleryman.

"Since then I've had to take care of myself and live a good life. Can't drink or anything," he explains.

Wounded in 1898 while commanding an artillery platoon near Aibonito, Puerto Rico, Col. Hains was awarded the Purple Heart and the Silver Star.

The colonel, who will be 98 on Aug. 23, began his 40-year career as an Army officer when he was graduated from the Academy in 1889. He retired in 1929.

Col. Hains now lives here with a niece. His father, Maj. Gen. Peter C. Hains, was a member of West Point's Class of 1861 and later served in the Civil War.

Gen. John J. Pershing was an upperclassman at the Point when the colonel was there. "He was the greatest soldier I have ever known," says the old trooper, whose voice and handshake are still firm.

Col. Hains says he thinks the modern Army is fine. "They're still good Americans — not afraid," he says.

But modern warfare is something else. "I don't like these rockets and things. You don't now where they come from."

FLAG AND MINUTE MAN

The 25 cents U. S. Savings Stamp now on sale at Post Offices and in many schools throughout the nation features the flag and the minute man, symbol of the U. S. Saving Bonds program. In addition to the 25 cents size, Savings Stamps in 10 cents, 50 cents, $1 and $5 sizes are on sale at the post office at all times.

Talks on customs and courtesies and calls and calling cards were given by Mrs. Barber.

Hostesses included Mrs. Ernest Akins, Mrs. Wilbert Ford, Mrs. William Bowman, Mrs. Harlow Close, Mrs. David Faughnan and Mrs. Boudewyn Van Pamelen.

The next meeting of the two clubs also will be held in the 51st Company dayroom on Sept. 9.

TWO PLANS

Since 1941, the Treasury has sponsored two partial payment plans for purchasing U. S. Savings Bonds: through the Payroll Savings Plan "where you work," and through the purchase of Savings Stamps at schools and post offices.

DOD Directs Major Changes In Services Pro Pay Program

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Department of Defense has modified policies governing the award of "proficiency payments" to enlisted personnel in the Armed Services.

The new policies, which will become effective October 1, 1963, are included in a new Directive (1340.2) and provide for two distinct pay systems, identified as "specialty pay" and "superior performance pay."

"Specialty pay" is intended as a retention incentive for personnel in highly technical, hard-to-keep enlisted specialties will be eligible for this extra pay as well as certain personnel on initial tours of duty, who have signed reenlistment commitments. Special competitive examinations or selection procedures now required in some of the Military Services no longer will be required as a condition of eligibility for this pay, in the approved specialties. Under the new policies, a career enlisted man — once approved for specialty pay — normally will be able to count on retaining this pay while working in his specialty.

"Superior performance pay," on the other hand, will be awarded normally for 12-month periods only, based on competitive selection procedures. Initiation of these payments will be at the option of each of the Military Departments.

Detailed plans for implementing the new policies, including revised lists of eligible specialties and rates of pay, are currently being developed. It is anticipated that the existing schedule of proficiency pay rates of $30 and $60 per month will be increased on a selective basis for some of the specialties to be included under the "specialty pay" program.

Control Program Insures Quality In Every Item Sold in Exchange

NEW YORK — A quality control program developed by Army and Air Force Exchange Service headquarters here assures that merchandise sold in local post exchanges meets established standards of quality and value, according to William Greenwell, chief of the quality control section.

The goal of the section is to protect the soldier against possible inferior merchandise in his post exchange through testing and inspection.

Manufacturer's performance reports are compared to those accepted in the industry and, in some cases, to federal specifications. The section also makes tests at independent and government laboratories. A formal product evaluation report is sent to the requesting post exchange buyer.

The section also conducts plant inspections to determine if a manufacturer's in-plant quality control inspection methods meets accepted standards. As a result of these visits the manufacturer is alerted to post exchange tolerance requirements.

The testing conducted by the quality control staff is either self-initiated to establish product standards, or results from a particular request by a post exchange buyer. The request may be to evaluate the quality of a given item or to compare it to similar competitive items.

Testings during the past year have included such diversified products as underwear, chaomis skins, charcoal briquettes, and women's hosiery.

Currently being developed is an exchange service vendor's experience control system for compiling data on a manufacturers' performance with respect to the quality of their merchandise as determined by tests. Buyers will be made aware of repeated shipments of substandard products from a particular manufacturer.

"The most important phase of our 'program,'" asserted Greenwell, "is to have manufacturers tighten up their inspection of all shipments destined for post and base exchanges. This is primarily a job of selling the manufacturer the idea that the post exchange will buy only quality merchandise," he concluded.

In addition to Greenwell, the quality control section is staffed by two technical specialists, Joseph Churak and Joseph Werres. The trio has the combined background of technical, merchandising and industrial engineering experience.

Post Scouts Plan 8-Day Excursion

The call of the trail and the desire for adventure has hit Boy Scout Troop 20 and Troop 127. Members of both troop left Fort Benning Aug. 24 to hike 71 miles across the Appalachian Trail in the Great Smoky Mountains.

Fourteen Scouts and three leaders were driven to Davaport Gap, Tenn., where they began their march. They will be picked up eight days later at Fontana Dam, N. C. They plan to spend six days hiking the 71 miles and two days visiting the Cherokee Indian reservation and other points of interest along the way.

The hike has been carefully prepared under the supervision of Sp4 Bernard W. Thornberg, with help from Sp5 Dan Pate and PFC Tom Kimbrough, guide for the trip.

In preparing for the hike, the scouts have been taking physical training several nights a week and reviewing their scouting skills.

SCHOOL SAVINGS PROGRAM

The Treasury's School Savings Program, now getting under way for the new school year, is the "junior" version of the U. S. Savings Bonds Program. It is fundamentally an educational program to promote thrift and good personal money management among young Americans.

Command Change Scheduled For Artillery

Lt. Col. Patrick M. Neilond will take command of the 2nd Battalion (Composite) 10th Artillery, 197th Infantry Brigade Saturday August 31.

Col. Neilond will accept the battalion colors from Lt. Col. Wallis E. McClain, who has commanded the 10th since November, 1961.

More than 400 men of the battalion and over 50 vehicles will pass in a mounted review to welcome the new commander and bid farewell to Col. McClain.

Col. Neilond comes to the 10th Artillery from an assignment in Morroco. He is a graduate of the United States Military Academy, class of 1944.

Post Art Contest Winners Named by Special Services

Each of the three men won more than one award.

Crow took first place in mixed media for which he received $20; second place in mixed media, a certificate; third place in drawing, $10, and third place in water color, $10.

Traylor won first place in water color, $20, first place in oil, $20, and second place in oil, a certificate.

Cardona won first place in drawing, $20, and second place in drawing, a certificate.

There were 38 entries in the Fort Benning phase of the contest.

The entries were judged by a local board of artists. Rules and regulations for the contest were set by the Department of the Army.

Five categories of art were open to competition including oil painting, water color, drawings, mixed media and prints. There were no entries on the post in the print category.

Regulations prohibited a contestant from receiving more than one cash award in a given category. Contestants who placed more than once in a category received the highest cash award earned with a certificate for each other winning entry he had in the category.

The contest was open to all military personnel on active duty for more than 90 days.

The basis for judging entries was originality, ingenuity, composition, craftsmanship, apparent meaningfulness to the participant, and technical skill.

The Third Army contest, to be conducted soon, will screen from installation winners, a maximum of 30 entries to go to Department of the Army finals at Fourth U. S. Army Headquarters in San Antonio, Texas.

Department of Defense Savings Increase Military Effectiveness

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Defense Department (DOD) savings for Fiscal Year 1963 have been set at $1 billion and have "actually increased our military effectiveness," according to Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

In a report to President Kennedy, Secretary McNamara said Defense expenditures have been cut without compromising the national security. The report revealed that Defense has saved $250,000 more than estimates tabulated a year ago.

The Secretary listed these accomplishments in his year-end report:

A 100 per cent increase in the number of nuclear warheads in strategic alert forces.

A 200 per cent increase in the Special Forces program, which trains men to fight guerrilla insurgents.

McNamara said savings were realized because of: (1) the purchase of only what is necessary for balanced readiness, (2) the purchase of equipment at the lowest sound prize, and (3) integration and standardization of operation schemes.

In the first instance, McNamara said costs were lowered by transferring excess equipment instead of buying additional or new equipment to fill needs.

Secondly, better competitive contracting resulted in spectacular reductions in unit costs compared to older "single source" and "cost plus" methods.

McNamara said the estimated $3 billion savings predicted during FY63 to FY67 can be raised another billion, based on experience.

17,000 to Get Draft Call

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Defense Department has issued a draft call for 17,000 Army recruits in October.

The Selective Service system has been asked to provide that many of a total of 35,500 enlisted men the Army will need in October, the Pentagon said.

The Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force will not seek draftees in October, a spokesman added.

The new call, larger than those of previous months, is necessary to replace losses from draftees who enter the Army during the Berlin crisis in the fall of 1961.

A New Captain Arrives at 9th

By 1st Bn, 9th Infantry PIO

A new arrival at the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry is Capt. George M. Font, who came to the 9th from the campus of the University of Maryland where he completed his studies for a Bachelor of Science degree.

The 32 year old captain, who is here on his fourth duty assignment at Fort Benning, has taken over as commanding officer of Company A, replacing Lt. Kerop S. Nalbandian, who is moving to battalion to become the new S-2 officer.

Capt. Font, who's Army career started in 1952, has attended Officers Candidate Course and the Army's Airborne and Intelligence Schools.

Prior to joining the 9th Infantry, Capt. Font was a counterinsurgency instructor with the U.S. Army Caribbean School-Panama. Before this he served with the Korean Military Advisory Group (KMAG), 7th Infantry, 3rd Division, and the 135th Infantry, 47th Division.

Farewell Given For Departing 1st Brigade CO

By 1st Brigade PIO

The officers and wives of the 2nd Brigade's staff gathered at the Supper Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess last Thursday to bid goodbye to Col. and Mrs. Edgar R. Poole, departing 1st Brigade commanding officer.

The affair, which lasted from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m., began with a reception line which included Col. and Mrs. Poole and Capt. Thornton A. Burns Jr., brigade adjutant. Mrs. Poole was wearing a purple orchid presented to her by the personnel of Headquarters Company.

Following the reception line, a brief ceremony was held with Col. Poole receiving a scrapbook that contained pictures and newspaper clippings of the 1st Brigade while under his command. Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, 2nd Division commanding general remarked at this time that, "all you have to do is give Col. Poole a mission, a minimum of guidance, and the next thing you know the mission is completed."

Honored guests on hand to say farewell and to wish the Pooles good luck on their new assignment were Gen. and Mrs. Billingslea, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. John T. Corley, assistant division commander, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Robert E. Coffin, assistant division commander, Col. and Mrs. Lucien F. Keller, chief of staff, and Col. and Mrs. William J. Ray, new 1st Brigade commanding officer.

Mrs. Rich Guest Of Headquarters Ladies at Club

Ladies of the Headquarters Section were hostesses to 44 ladies of the Weapons Department recently in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Special guest was Mrs. C. W. G. Rich, wife of the commanding general of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School.

An arrangement of yellow and white mums and fern comprised the centerpiece which was later presented to Mrs. Douglas Williams. The tables were decorated with clown faces made of pastel colored balloons.

NEW MOUTHPIECE

Bob Sheffing, deposed Detroit Tigers manager, will move into the broadcasting booth next year to join Tiger broadcaster Ernie Harwell. Sheffing will replace George Kell.

VOL. 21, NO. 52 | FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1963 | FORT BENNING, GA. | 32 Pages — 5c

175 Top Shooters Fire Here Monday

The hopes of the United States for the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo in the shooting field will be seen at Fort Benning Monday as more than 175 of America's top international rifle and pistol marksmen take the firing lines for the Third Annual Armed Forces International Shooting Competition.

This competition, which differs from the previous two in that not only military marksmen but also civilian shooters will compete, will run through Sept. 23.

Opening ceremonies will be held Monday at 7:30 a.m. with Lt. Col. Edgar S. Burroughs, Match Headquarters director, and Otto A. Findlay, National Rifle Association representative, as guest speakers.

This match is in actuality an incorporaton of two: the Armed Forces International Shooting Competition and the U. S. International Shooting Championships.

The Free Pistol championships will kick off the actual record fire on Monday. Capt. William McMillan of the Marine Corps and SFC William B. Blankenship Jr., are seeded as top contenders in the free pistol and the center and rapid fire pistols.

The Navy pistoleers will be led by Torpedoman First Class Gaspar M. Definio with Capts. Franklin D. Green and Thomas D. Smith anchoring the Air Force team. First Lt. Gail Liberty will also shoot for the Air Force.

Twenty-nine individual and team championships will be decided during the competition to be hosted by The Infantry Center. The program is sponsored by the U. S. Continental Army Command and sanctioned by the chiefs of staff of the respective Armed Forces and the National Rifle Association.

The program will see five ranges used by the crack competitors who comprise the greater part of America's hopes in future world shoots, said Match Headquarters officials who will direct the shoot.

Last year's competition, the second of its kind, saw the Army cop 26 of 29 "firsts."

Events programmed for the coming Fort Benning meet include International trapshooting, International skeet shooting, 300-meter and 50-meter rifle, 50-meter pistol, 25-meter pistol, rapid fire and center fire pistol, and Running Deer matches.

This International - type firing is conducted over courses of fire and ranges especially designed by the International Shooting Union for world shoots.

Plans for JCOC In Final Stages

Planning for the Army phase of the 33rd Joint Civilian Orientation Conference (JCOC) at Fort Benning Sept. 25-27 is moving into its final stages as The Infantry Center prepares to welcome some 75 principal conferees, 90 U. S. Continental Army Command guests and 250 representatives from various armed forces schools.

Although some definite acceptances of invitations have been received, a confirmed list of conferees and guests still is not available due to its incompleteness.

JCOC is sponsored by the Department of Defense and is designed to serve as a military report to Americans and to acquaint leading citizens from all walks of life with the programs, policies and posture of the Department of Defense. By providing a large segment of the American public a better understanding of national defense policies and programs through the conferees, the Department of Defense desires to develop public support through an informal citizenry.

The Army phase is the second of three stops included on the tour of the conferees, who include corporation presidents, lawyers, doctors, clergymen, newsmen and other industrial and manufacturing representatives.

The tour will begin at Norfolk, Va., for Navy - Marine training, and will conclude at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., where the Air Force will flex its muscles for an air power demonstration.

Some demonstrations to be conducted at Fort Benning during JCOC include weapons of the Infantry, Rangers in action, airborne training and a reinforced rifle company in defense, as well as other phases of training at The Infantry School.

Pay Raise Effective in October Regardless of Delay in Congress

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Regardless of a delay in final approval of the 1963 military pay bill, servicemen have been assured that the effective date of Oct. 1 will stand.

Both Sen. Richard Russell (D. Ga.) chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and Rep. L. Mendel Rivers (D., S.C.) of the House Armed Services Committee, told Armed Forces Press Service that any delay "would not alter the effective date of Oct. 1."

This means the pay raise would be retroactive if passage is stymied by other, more urgent bills in Congress.

As it now stands, the Senate and House have passed separate military pay bills that differ in some areas. A conference committee from each must meet to iron-out the differences before the bill can be sent to President Kennedy for signature.

A Senate spokesman said an announcement will be made of the Senate conferees.

Air Assault Activates Its Artillery

Formal ceremonies were held recently activating the Army's first completely air-mobile division artillery unit.

Brig. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general of the 11th Air Assault Division, presented the new unit colors to Col. Richard T. Knowles, division artillery commander. Upon receipt of the colors, Col. Knowles presented red guidons to his individual unit commanders.

Under the air assault concept, this new artillery command represents a new and radical departure from the days of the rumbling caissons or road-bound artillery pieces. According to officials, the challenge of this concept of artillery deployment is testing the ingenuity and flexibility of the artilleryman.

Never before has an artillery unit been called on to support assault Infantry troops in a type of warfare where there are no front lines or emplacements. In combat the air assault division would be constantly on the move. There would be no time to choose ideal terrain for placement of the pieces. The artillery would be a part of the constant assault.

Road Closures Announced

From noon until midnight tonight Red Diamond Road will be closed from the junction at Hourglass Road southeast to the junction at Anzio Road.

Hourglass Road from the Black Hawk Trail junction northeast to Pine Tree Road has been closed since midnight last night and will remain so until midnight tonight. These closures were necessitated by Infantry School training activities.

Doughboys In Action Tomorrow

The 1963 edition of the Fort Benning Doughboy football team will go into action for the first time this season Saturday night when they meet the Southwest Florida Athletic Assn. at Doughboy Stadium.

The Doughboys, 1962 Interservice football champions, will attempt to extend their victory string to 17 games when Coach Oren DeHaven fields his star-studded eleven.

Several last year Doughboy regulars will be back at their old positions including Fred Murphy, Dan House, Bill Nance, Joe Wendryhoski, Elliott Moseley, Marvin Tibbetts, Ron Quillen and Bobby Towns.

10th Artillery Holds Review for New CO

Lt. Col. Patrick M. Neilond accepted the colors of the 2nd Battalion (Composite) 10th Artillery, 197th Infantry Brigade from the departing commander, Lt. Col. Wallis E. McClain in a massive mounted review on Sightseeing Field last Saturday.

More than 400 men of the battalion along with some 60 vehicles ranging from jeeps to the newest in artillery, the M-175mm self-propelled gun, passed in review.

The 10th Artillery commander, a 1944 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, served in World War II as a forward artillery observer and was a member of two 3rd Infantry Division campaigns.

On his return to the United States, Col. Neilond was assigned to the Pentagon until 1950. The commander then received his first assignment to Fort Benning to serve as battery commander and battalion S-3 of the Infantry School's supporting artillery unit, the 41st Artillery Battalion.

From Fort Benning, Col. Neilond was sent to Korea in 1951. During his Korean service, the new commander was awarded his second Bronze Star and participated in three campaigns.

After the Korean War, Col. Neilond returned to the United States for a short time until he received orders for an assignment in Germany in 1953. In 1956 he returned to the United States and served with the Fourth Army Headquarters at Fort Sam Houston.

Col. Neilond attended the Command and General Staff College at Fort Sill later in 1956. After completing the school, he received orders for attache duty in Rabat, Morocco for four years.

Army Post Going For Highest Bid

NEW YORK (AFPS) — Camp Kilmer — familiar to thousands of American troops embarking and debarking during WW II and the Korean Conflict — is headed for different days.

The famed post, 1,440 acres and 1,967 buildings near New Brunswick, N. J., was recently declared surplus by the United States government.

Bidding for the post has commenced already and authorities handling the sale say that priority for bids will go to institutions with a predominant health or education activity.

In 1956 Camp Kilmer was the post used to process the large groups of refugees from Hungary.

13 Cannons Hail Envoy From China

Maj. Gen. Shu Kuang Hu, director of the Liaison Bureau, Ministry of National Defense for the Republic of China, arrived on post Wednesday for two days of briefings and demonstrations.

Honors ceremonies for the general were conducted at 11:15 a.m. Wednesday on Chapel Field, where a 13-gun salute was fired.

Gen. Hu was accompanied by Maj. Gen. Tzu Chien Chou, administrative assistant to the chief of the Ministry of National Defense General Staff, and Col. Ning Li, Col. Terry L. Chow and Lt. Cmdr. Chia Piao Chang, all of the Liaison Bureau.

Wednesday afternoon he saw a rifle platoon in attack at Jamestown and Sunshine Roads and techniques of rifle fire at Buckner Range.

Thursday he observed a demonstration on ground vehicles available to Infantry commanders, toured Officer Candidate School facilities and was oriented on airborne training.

Board Gets Education Certificate

The Infantry Board has been honored for achieving the highest participation in an educational development program on the post during fiscal year 1962-1963.

Principals in the award ceremony were Col. Robert C. Williams, president of the Infantry Board, who accepted the plaque on behalf of his unit, and Col. A. L. Hoebeke, deputy post commander, who made the presentation.

The Infantry Board earned the award in competition with other units on the post in a year-long program sponsored by the Army Education Center, which included military personnel participation in various education programs.

Authorized programs considered in the competition were U. S. Armed Forces Institute correspondence courses, preparatory, high school and college courses, MOS related courses and tests administered by the Army Education Center.

Public Judges Army By Soldiers' Conduct

The most important protector, defender, and custodian of liberty, at home and abroad, is the soldier. But an additional duty the soldier is expected to perform is that of serving as an ambassador of good will.

Since military objectives depend upon public acceptance for success, the question arises, how does a community secure information to intelligently weigh both sides of an issue?

Community relations within a command covers a broad spectrum of activity, but we'll narrow the field and concentrate on one facet of C.R.—the individual soldier.

Through a serviceman's association with the public, an image of the Army is projected. A soldier embodies all the qualities and traits of John Q. Public, but retains a brand of discipline peculiar only to the military world. Civilians feel, and rightly so, that the soldier is more conscious of the inner workings of the Army because he is part of them.

Besides popular media such as newspapers, radio and television, there are few avenues of Army objectives open to the public. More than half of all military information received by American communities is secured through soldiers, in and out of active duty status.

A soldier reflects not only his discipline, but also a unique way of living unfamiliar to most people. The life is that of a man visibly dedicated to the principles of freedom and liberty through loyalty and sacrifice.

An image mirroring these characteristics with reverence will produce an acceptable relationship between you and a community, and an effective ambassador for the Army. (Reprinted from the Army Flyer)

(By Armed Forces Press Service)

A Democratic and a Republican senator opposed any attempt to raise their $22,500-a-year senatorial salaries. Sen. William Proxmire (D., Wis.) said, "I think it makes no sense for a man to argue for economy on one hand and say, 'Yes, but I should be paid more,' on the other." Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R., N.Y.) agreed. "If you're going to be for economy you should include yourself in on that," he said. Appearing on a taped interview for television and radio stations, they were referring to proposals to boost salaries of Congress to $35,000 yearly.

The Senate approved a three-year extension of Federal aid to airports after refusing to cut the $75,000,000-a-year program to $50,000,000. The bill now goes to the House.

A scientist set Congressmen adrift on a semantic minefield when he casually mentioned nanocuries. Things had been moving along nicely at the nuclear-fallout hearings conducted by the joint Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee. Radioactive reindeer and caribou in Alaska were being discussed. Then came nanocuries. "Please stop right there," said Rep. Melvin Price (D-Ill.) "What's a nanocurie?" The scientist said, "Why, it's just 10-to-the-minus-ninth curies—the same as 1,000 picocuries." A gleam of recognition (or mystification) came into the Illinois Representative's eyes.

Chaplain's Corner

The Sin of Ingratitude

By Chaplain (1st Lt.) Harold A. Collins

Someone once said, "One of the most common sins is that of ingratitude—taking things for granted. It is a form of selfishness—a cancer in the soul. It boils over in fault-finding and criticisms; it produces a coldness in the home and society; it irritates social relations; it takes joy out of living; and it interferes with right relations between God and man."

One day ten lepers were healed when they met Jesus as He passed through Samaria. Jesus commanded them to offer to the priest what was customary for their cleansing according to the law of Moses. One returned immediately to give thanks to Jesus, while the others never returned. We read in the Scriptures where Jesus asked, "Where are the nine?" Yes, the other nine showed their ingratitude while this man returned to show his gratitude, but this is not all to this story.

The record implies that this one man never went to the priest at all. For we read, "And one of them when he saw that he was healed immediately turned back." Now there are two reasons why this man returned immediately to give his thanks to Jesus. One is that he realized what a great thing Christ had done for him and wanted to be first to express his gratitude. Second, it would have been utterly impossible for him to offer what was required by the Law of Moses to the priest. For he was a Samaritan and we read in Scriptures that the "Jews had no dealings with Samaritans."

This meant he could not enter a Jewish Temple and make his offering to a priest for his cleansing. But Jesus received him. The Mosiac priest speaks of the law which demands perfection. But Jesus, the Great High Priest, speaks of Saviour of Mankind, who receives sinful men and cleanses them by His grace. Therefore our gratitude to Him should be of paramount importance.

Military Can't Afford Defeatist Philosophy

When Aesop's frustrated fox fell short in the grape grabbing derby, the fable reports that he convinced himself that he didn't want them anyway because they were sure to be sour. Thus the words "Sour Grapes" became the expression of an attitude widely recognized in human nature. Psychologists define it as the rationalizing process in which you disparage the goal you missed to soothe an injured ego.

In the military world this type of rationalization is well illustrated by the oft heard, little heeded—"I didn't want OCS anyhow," or "Who cares about going to Japan," or "The devil with that language school. I didn't want to go in the first place." These are concrete, though negative statements and indicate a case of malignant "Sour Grapes."

On the other hand there is another group which take a more positive position than the "Sour Grapes" philosophy. Military and civilian alike share, in a less publicized manner this ego saving maneuver.

This is the cheerful submission to a fate that you would really like to; but can't, change. For instance to compensate for the new car you can't afford, one reasons it is healthier to walk; saying with a smile that a sparse wardrobe is easier to care for than a lavish one.

Thus by emphasizing the advantages in doing without what you were striving for you imply that you never wanted to change things anyway. An apt name for this attitude is "Sweet Lemon." It is plain that only the positive nature of the explanatory statement shifts this type of ego protection from the "Sour Grapes," classification to the one of "Sweet Lemon."

Perhaps one is better off living in a "Sweet Lemon" world than in the "Sour Grapes" environment BUT neither of these defeatist attitudes, negative and positive, should be in a military man's philosophy. He should be constantly striving to better himself, his family and his country. If he stops by the wayside to taste either some "Sour Grapes," or "Sweet Lemons," he'll miss the satisfaction of moving ahead. (AFPS)

The Judge Says . . .

BY CAPT. STEPHEN V. DUBIN

Giving general power of attorney to another person constitutes an act fraught with danger. Anyone with this power can do any act that you could legally do yourself, including mortgaging or selling your property, incurring debts in your name and using your funds.

The fact that you did not know or would not have approved of such actions by your attorney-in-fact does not release you from responsibility for his actions. Until this power is terminated by his or your death or by acutal notification of termination, he has the fullest powers to spend every penny you have or to put you in debt to any amount.

As you can see, there is a great deal of "power" in a general power of attorney.

Because of the possible danger invloved, it is best to consult your lawyer or Soldiers Advocate before executing a general power. He will explain to you it's provisions and terms and will advise you as to whether a special power of attorney, rather than a general power, will meet your needs.

A special power of attorney, as its name implies, constitutes a grant of only limited power to act in your behalf, instead of practically an absolute one. The time and effort it takes to get legal advice before executing a general power of attorney may prevent some very costly problems.

Tactics Most Interesting

A member of the Burmese Army, Maj. Khin Maung Than, recently graduated from the associate career officers course No. 4 and is now receiving on-the-job training with the Weapons, Ranger and Airborne-Air Mobility departments of The Infantry School.

The major, who finds tactics the most interesting part of his courses here, arrived at the school in March, coming from the Non-Commissioned Officer's Academy in Bahtoo, Burma, where he served as wing commander.

Besides The Infantry School, Maj. Than has been a student at Burma's Officer Training School in Maymyo. In Bahtoo he attended the Burmese Army's Combat Forces School and later was a student at the Staff College in Kalaw, Burma.

In 1954 Maj. Than was a guest of the English government attending the Jungle Warfare School held in Singapore.

Maj. Than's country, which is slightly smaller than Texas in size and is comprised of a series of river valleys running north and south and is divided by mountain ranges and plateaus, in 1953 and '54 became very prominent in a tactical sense.

The Nationalist Chinese forces of Chiang Kai-shek decided to use Burma as a means of entering Communist China, Maj. Than explained.

During this time the major was a platoon leader and was part of the force which pushed the Nationalist forces out of Burma.

Before entering the Army in 1950 Maj. Than attended the State School of Kyaukse, and then went on to the University of Mandalay where he received an intermediate degree in Arts.

Post Scouts Kept Link With Home

A Fort Benning non-commissioned officer helped make possible almost daily radio telephone contact with members of the Georgia-Alabama Council of the Boy Scouts while they were on the 22-day Philmont Trail expedition that ended Aug. 7.

SFC John Nebiolo coordinated with amateur radio stations on various military installations where the scouts stayed each night so daily reports could be made to the boys' parents at home.

While on the expedition that began Aug. 5, the Scouts visited nine military installations, including six Air Force bases, the White Sands Missile Range, N. Mex., Fort Bliss, Tex., and the Naval Air Station, New Orleans.

New Marina Nearing Completion

The first phase of The Infantry Center Special Services Boat Marina has been completed by Company C, 577th Engineer Battalion (Construction), on the Chattahoochee River just behind the Main Officers' Open Mess dog kennels.

When completed the Marina will include a large picnic area, playground, snack bar, restrooms and a parking area which will accommodate 150 automobiles. It will accommodate 52 boats.

I have an apology to make to Baker High fans. Somehow, the Baker football players weren't mentioned last week.

They are probably the largest group of post boys participating in any sport at any one school. Among the athletes are Liny Shores and Paul Ferguson, quarterbacks; David Harman, Jerry High, Harold Lane, Warren Bowland, all halfbacks; Dennis Stanford, Ed Burroughs and Tom Nichols are guards. Ends are: Dudley Wells, Neil McClain and Mike Bigs.

Since school has started, teens are beginning to realize just how many people have moved away. Jean Dixon left just a week ago. Maybe you went to that Bon Voyage party that Cathy Knowles and Casey Nottage gave for her last Monday. All three schools were represented at the open - house, including many college-bound kids.

That reminds me of school. So many teens I've talked to aren't ready to get back to studying.

There are always exceptions to the rule: Cathy Jones is one exception. She told me the other day that she couldn't wait to get back to school so she could have some free time.

There will be a big change this year as far as school is concerned. All of the incoming freshmen at Columbus High will go to old Columbus College. It has now taken on the name of "Freshmen Center." These freshmen won't be cut off completely from the high school. They will come over for all of the pep rallies, and will participate in all of the activities.

Seniors at Pacelli, Baker and Columbus are looking forward to receiving those long - awaited "senior privileges." Sophomores are glad to get out of that "rut" as small freshmen, and juniors are happy to accept the responsibilties of upper-classmen.

Freshmen are beginning to be accepted into the various clubs. For instance, there will be a Coke party September 21 for all incoming freshmen girls. J.A.D.A., an organization for all officers' daughters, high school age, invites all members and freshmen to attend.

Classes in Tap To Be Conducted Every Saturday

Mrs. Margaret LaForest, director of the Women's Club School of Dance, announced this week that a special all-boys tap dance class will be conducted every Saturday morning.

Boys 4 and above are eligible to take part in the group.

The all-boys class was formed because of special request from parents. Registration is now underway.

In addition to the new tap classes for children, Mrs. LaForest also announced that a Wednesday night adult ballet group is being formed. The class is especially intended for adults interested in ballet exercises but not necessarily dancing.

Army Test Fires Missile From Texas to N. Mexico

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army recently fired a Pershing ballistic missile from Hueco Range part of Fort Bliss, Tex., to an impact point at White Sands Missile Range, N. M.

The test provided impact data as well as information on Pershing's performance.

Tactical conditions were simulated throughout the firing operation, a service test to determine if the Pershing's system meets the desired military characteristics when used by the troops in the field.

This was the first White Sands firing of the Pershing, the Army's long-range ballistic artillery missile which is being readied to replace the 70 foot Redstone missile. The firing was at less than maximum range, and was accomplished by Battery A, 2d Missile Battalion, 44th Artillery. Later this summer and continuing into the fall, Pershing missiles will be fired over greater ranges to impact within White Sands. Maximum precautions for land and air safety have been made for all firings.

The Pershing is 34 feet long and 40 inches in diameter. In combat, the nuclear warhead would be propelled to the target by two stages of solid propellant motors and guided by an inertial system within the missile.

Matching Combinations Checks Your Sophistication

How sophisticated are you? One sign is how many familiar combinations you recognize — like the lovers Romeo and Juliet, the phrase "with might and main." You might be surprised at how many combinations exist — and how many you know, without knowing you know!

This article will put your knowledge to the test — besides informing you about some curious combinations you may want to learn more about. Give yourself five points for each right answer.

Let's start with some easy ones. Sometimes two names are linked because they suggest a husband and a wife. Can you identify the spouses of these people? Porgy. . . Orpheus. . .Harry James. . .Robert Browning. . .Pocahontas.

Porgy was the husband of Bess, in Gershwin's musical, "Porgy and Bess." Orpheus had just been married to Euridice when she died of a snakebite. He went to the underworld to bring her back, and, because of his great musicianship, the underworld gods gave him permission. But, though he had been forbidden to on the journey back, he looked at Euridice — and she vanished. Harry James is married to Betty Grable. Robert Browning, the poet, was married to another poet, Elizabeth Barrett. Now, Pocahontas was not the wife of John Smith, though she did save his life. She was married to John Rolfe, another English settler.

Who Killed Abel?

You got one or more right? Then here a tougher, and sadder, quiz: name the person whom the following people killed — Cain; Romulus; Claudius; the sparrow; Rustum.

Cain killed Abel. Romulus also killed his brother, Remus: the two are the legendary founders of the city of Rome. And Claudius killed his brother, the father of Hamlet, Prince of Denmark. The sparrow killed cock robin — with his little bow and arrow. Rustum killed his son, Sohrab.

According to legend, Rustum was a warrior. His wife didn't want their son, Sohrab, to be killed in battle, so she informed Rustum—while he was away at war — that their newborn child was a girl. Years later, Sohrab, a brave young man, decided to go forth to battle. One day he engaged Rustum in a fight — and Rustum mortally wounded him. In his dying breath, Sohrab revealed his identity to his grief-stricken father.

Now Lovers

From murderers let's turn to lovers — and don't forget to keep score. Whom did Dante love? Scarlett O'Hara? Leander? Frankie? Pygmalion?

Dante loved Beatrice, though he saw her only once, when she was 12. Scarlett loved Rhett Butler in the novel "Gone With the Wind." Leander loved Hero, and every night would swim the Hellespont to be with her. But one night the waves were rough and he drowned. Hero, finding his body, killed herself by leaping from a tower. Frankie and Johnny were lovers, at least until Johnny met Nellie Bly and done Frankie wrong. Pygmalion loved Galatea.

The musical, "My Fair Lady," is based on Bernard Shaw's play, "Pygmalion," which is based on the Pygmalion legend. Pygmalion was a great sculptor who hated all women. Then he created a beautiful statue of a woman, Galatea. Amazingly, he fell in love with the statue — he even brought gifts to it. After he prayed to Venus, the statue was brought to life.

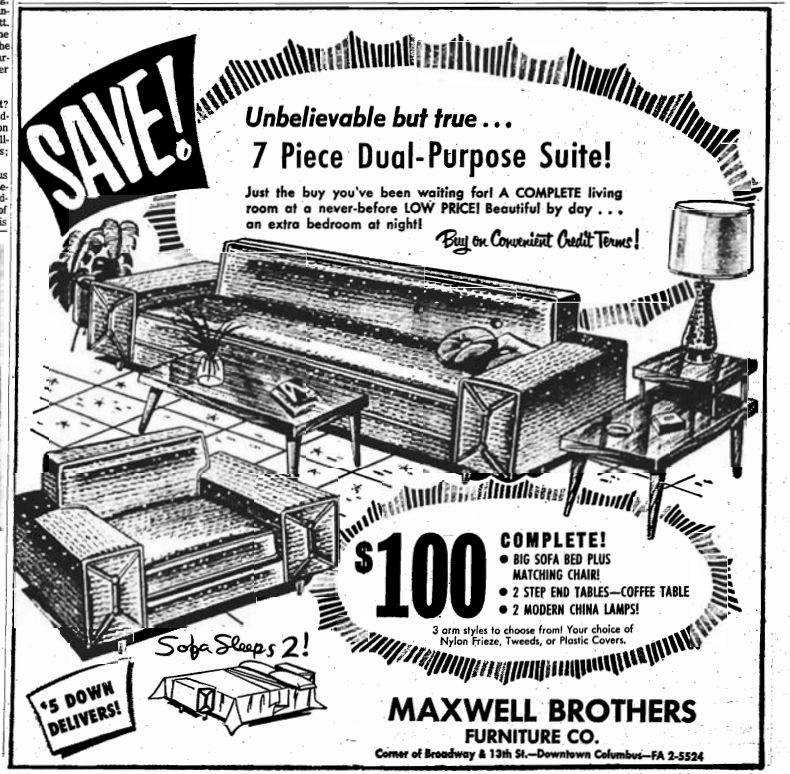
Let's visit a few cities, Sodom and what other place were the "cities of the plain?" St. Paul and what other city are the Twin Cities? Finish the blanks from the Bible? "From Dan -even to ——;" "Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of ——." In Browning's poem, a messenger brought good news from Ghent to what city?

Sodom and Gomorrah were the cities destroyed because of the wickedness of their inhabitants. The twin cities are Minneapolis and St. Paul. "From Dan even to Beer-Sheba," ". . . streets of Askelon." The messenger brought the news from Ghent to Aix, running all the way, and then fell dead. Now. . .famous sports combinations. Mantle and who? Ruth and who? Glenn Davis and who? Tinker and Chance and Who? Charles Goren, the bridge player, and who?

Murderers' Row

Mantle and Roger Maris, of course. Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, part of "Murderers' Row." Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard, football players. The infield of the Chicago Cubs made many double-plays with Tinker, Evers, and Chance. Goren's favorite bridge partner is Helen Sobel.

FIVE - YEAR - OLD RECORD . . . The National Trophy Individual Rifle Match record was broken last Thursday for the first time since 1958 when MSgt. Maxie W. Fields of Fort Benning, scored a 250 with 30 V's to top the old record by 7 V's. He received the Daniel Boone Trophy plaque Friday afternoon. Third place was SSgt. Raymond J. Calvez, also of Fort Benning, with a 249-29.



VIP's Get Real Show From 11th Air Assault

By Maj. Ben Nichols and Sp4 Chuck Lowenhagen

Few surpass those that have been planned and executed by the Army's new 11th Air Assault Division and the attached 10th Air Transport Brigade.

The interest that these test units have generated within the Army is evidenced by the caliber of visitors that have journeyed here from far and wide to see the division at first hand. Brig. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, the division commanding general, recently remarked, "We will have run the gamut if the President of the United States should pay us a visit. All others in the "chain of command" from Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara down have already done so."

CONARC Chief

The impressive list of visitors started on the day the division was formally activated, Feb. 15, 1963. On this occasion Gen. John K. Waters, commanding general of the U. S. Continental Army Command, turned over the division colors to Gen. Kinnard at a ceremony attended by then Maj. Gen., now Lt. Gen. Ben Harrell, deputy chief of the Army's Forces Development Unit.

Among the guests were Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general of the 2d Infantry Division, and Brig. Gen. Robert R. Williams, commanding general of the U. S. Army Aviation Center.

A principal figure behind the air assault concept, Gen. Hamilton H. Howze, now commander of all U. S. and U. N. Forces in Korea, paid his first official visit to the division on March 22, 1963. Gen. Howze headed the distinguished group of officers, known as the "Howze Board," whose studies of battlefield mobility resulted in the bold, new idea of a ground unit relying on air vehicles for its tactical movement.

15-Gun Salute

Gen. Howze was met by an honor guard of the 3d Battalion, 187th Infantry and received a 15-gun salute by Battery A, 42d Battalion, 42d Artillery. He was introduced to the division general and special staff officers and to the subordinate unit commanders' Sgt. Maj. Chester R. Westervelt, division sergeant major, was on hand to introduce the unit sergeants major.

Organization Day, May 2, 1963, was the scene of the first full scale review and demonstration put on by the division. For this event Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Joseph M. Swing, the first commanding general of the now de-activated 11th Airborne Division, traveled all the way from California to stand beside Gen. Kinnard, the first commanding general of the 11th Air Assault Division, as the 8,800 troops that comprised the nucleus of the embryo division passed in review before them.

"Flying Review"

In keeping with the air mobile concept, the two generals "trooped the line" in an UH-1B Iroquois helicopter, and later a representative portion of the division and brigade aircraft passed in review by executing a fly-by.

In his remarks to the assembled troops Gen. Swing said, "Today will be remembered throughout the years by you as the entry into the greatest episode of your lives."

After the review, the 11th Aviation Group and the 10th Air Transport Brigade demonstrated the air assault concept to an audience of several hundred spectators. In what could have been a typical combat situation, a fast, sleek, OV-1 Mohawk aircraft slipped in over the field on a reconnaissance mission.

Support Craft

Next to arrive on the scene were two tiny OH-13 Sioux observation helicopters. These craft came to the support of the beleaguered pathfinders, covering the woodline with scathing machinegun fire. They were soon joined by a flight of Iroquis's carrying troop reinforcements.

These were landed near the woodline and were able to throw a cordon around the airfield and secure it. A nest of the enemy was routed from an inaccessible part of the woods by a squad of air assault troops who rappelled into the area from a hovering Iroquois.

Soon a CH-34 Choctaw helicopter came into view, dangling from an external sling a rubberized 500-gallon gasoline container, which was quickly put into use as a field refueling station for the fighting aircraft. More reinforcements were brought in by CH-37 Mojave helicopters carrying entire squads of Infantry or artillery gun crews complete with their basic weapon, the 105-mm howitzer.

More Dignitaries

On April 25, the 11th was honored with a visit by two assistant secretaries of the Army, Paul R. Ignatius and Finn J. Larsen. After traveling to the home of the division, the Harmony Church area, they were briefed by Gen. Kinnard and members of his staff. They witnessed a demonstration and display of signal equipment used by the division.

Following a tour of the division area, the secretaries boarded an Iroquois and flew to McKenna Airstrip, where they witnessed a demonstration of a platoon in an airmobile assault. Next they flew back to the main post and hovered in the air while troops of the 11th performed a "rooftop assault." Their visit was concluded with a trip to Lawson Army Airfield and a tour of the Division Aviation Group and the attached 10th Air Transport Brigade.

With the roar of a 19-gun salute echoing in his ears, Army Chief of Staff, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, was welcomed to Fort Benning on May 27 by Maj. Gen. C. W. G. Rich, commanding general of The Infantry Center.

The following morning Gen. Wheeler visited the 11th Air Assault Division. After a briefing at the commanding general's mess on the status and future plans of the 11th, he was flown to McKenna airstrip. As he stepped out of the helicopter, two of the division aircraft, Mohawk and a Caribou executed minimum distance landings by touching down in approximately 800 feet.

He watched demonstrations consisting of squad composition and organization, equipment displays and rappelling. The latter was accomplished by four men of Company C, 3d Battalion, 187th Infantry, rappelling from a helicopter hovering at 100 feet.

"I am aware of your mission and I feel that your work will have a great impact on the Army as a whole," were the words of still another famous visitor to the 11th Air Assault Division. The last commander of the 11th Airborne Division and currently commanding general of the Seventh U. S. Army, Lt. Gen. Hugh P. Harris journeyed here June 4 from Germany to present a ceremonial urn called the "Trooper's Tub" to Gen. Kinnard.

The silver urn, which belonged to the 11th Airborne Division until its deactivation after World War II, bears the names of the nine commanders of the division. In his presentation speech, Gen. Harris said that the cup had been placed in his care, with instructions that it be returned to the division whenever it spread its wings again.

He went on to say, "This cup was the most valued possession of the 11th Airborne. It is not a thing of art but it has a sentimental value that cannot be put into words."

Upon accepting the urn, Gen. Kinnard said, "This is still another tie with which we proudly bind ourselves to the 11th Airborne Division. By accepting the "Trooper's Tub" we complete the passing of the baton and we shall hold that baton high."

On June 24 the division was visited by Dr. Jacob A. Stockfisch, the director of Special Studies in the deputy assistant Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) Systems Analysis Office.

After a series of briefings, the party was driven to McKenna airstrip and from there flew aboard a Caribou to Fort Stewart, Ga. Landing at Hertzagen Airfield, they observed exercises by Troop B, 3d Squadron, 17th Cavalry, and the formation landing of other CV-2's.

Defense Secretary

Among the latest visitors to the 11th Air Assault Division, and probably the most well known, were Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Secretary of the Army Cyrus Vance.

On July 25, Mr. McNamara arrived at Lawson Army Airfield to take his first look at Fort Benning, accompanied by Mr. Vance. After touring various parts of the Infantry Center they journeyed to the Harmony Church area for a briefing by Gen. Kinnard on the progress on the tests which are to decide whether or not the Army will adopt this new type of unit.

Know Your Senior NCO's

Our senior noncommissioned officer for this week is MSgt. Robert J. McIntyre, sergeant major of the Airborne-Air Mobility Department of The Infantry School.

Sgt. McIntyre entered the service at Pittsburgh, joining the Army Air Corps in November, 1942. During World War II, he served as an instructor in aerial gunnery and then joined a heavy bomber squadron on its way to England to become part of the Army Eighth Air Force, which was giving Nazi Germany its biggest headache.

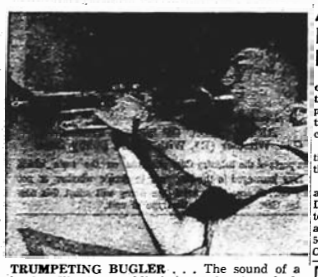
Sgt. McIntyre saw combat as an aerial gunner on a B-17 Bomber and flew 18 missions before being shot down over Berlin, in August of 1944.

His plane received a direct hit by flak and burst into flames, forcing the crew to bail out at approximately 25,000 feet. He landed right in the city of Berlin and became a prisoner of war. After a few weeks in the hospital, he was sent to a POW camp to wait for the end of the war.

In 1948, Sgt. McIntyre decided to go airborne and joined the Army. He came here for jump training and graduated in January, 1949.

His decorations include the Air Medal with one cluster, Purple Heart and three Battle Stars on the ETO Campaign Ribbon and the Master Parachutist Badge.

Sgt. McIntyre has been overseas three times since World War II with tours in Hawaii, Austria and Korea. He now resides at 412 Olsen Ave., Columbus, with his wife and two children.



TRUMPETING BUGLER . . . The sound of a bugle still stirs a soldier's heart, but in today's Army it is usually the trumpet which is used to perpetuate the bugle's ancient tradition. Here Sp4 Eaton Rockwell displays the bugling — that is—trumpeting, technique he has used to sound taps at more than 5,000 military funerals at Arlington National Cemetery.

SP4 MARLAND TAHBONEMAH, DIVISION INDIAN, LEADS REVIEW PAST RETIRING 2ND DIVISION SOLDIERS

15 Division Men Retire

By BOB de CAMARA

Soldiers of the 2nd Infantry Division totalling 300 combined years of service retired officially last week in ceremonies on the division's Marne Field.

An extra treat was in store for the men, all retiring after 20 or more years active duty. The retirement was viewed on the parade grounds by Lt. Gen. Albert Watson II, the commander of the Third U. S. Army who stopped by the "Indianhead" Division garrison on a visit to Fort Benning.

Gen. Watson, who commanded the U. S. Army's Berlin garrison during tense moments in 1961, addressed the division's officers and top-ranking enlisted men in a theater after he viewed the departing sergeants.

Altogether, the "Indianhead" Division lost 15 soldiers through retirement; 11 division units were affected by the cut.

The "Indianheads" said goodbye to one first sergeant. He is 1st Sgt. James R. Bryant of the 2nd Supply and Transportation Battalion.

Three master sergeants retired: MSgt. Telespore G. La-Fay, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry; MSgt. Hubert D. McNeer, 7th Cavalry; MSgt. H. W. Van Valkenburgh, 38th Artillery.

The other retirees were: SFC Arthur R. Caldwell, 37th Artillery; SFC Allen DeVille Jr., 15th Artillery; SFC Robert H. Imel, 37th Artillery; SFC Glenn L. Matlock, 702nd Maintenance Battalion; Sp5 David M. Bressler, 2nd Administration Company; Sgt. Charles M. Combs, 2nd Battalion, 87th Infantry; Sp5 Charles B. T. Washington, 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor; Sp5 Eugene Weatherby, 2nd Battalion, 87th Infantry; Raymond G. Hamilton, 2nd Engineer Battalion; Sp4 Phillip J. Jones, 2nd Battalion, 87th Infantry; and PFC Perry K. Conn, 2nd Engineer Battalion.

The retirees lined up on the parade field to hear the separation orders read. Gen. Watson and Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general of the 2nd Division, then walked down the line, congratulating each of the men in turn.

Present for the ceremonies along with the "Indianhead" band was the division Indian, Sp4 Marland Tahbonemah, attired in his costume the colors of the rainbow and wearing a gaily - colored chief's bonnet.

Tahbonemah is a full-blooded Kiowa Indian from Lawton, Okla., a veteran of 10 years service aboard U. S. Navy destroyers and the grandson of a Kiowa chief who served the Army for 40 years in his permanent rank of sergeant.

The ceremonies concluded as the unit color guards, commanders and top sergeants passed in review and off the parade grounds. The miniature review had token representatives from all the "Second to None" battalions.

Engineer Sergeant Is Awarded ACM

MSgt. Floyd H. Bowman, battalion motor sergeant, received the decoration from Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow Jr., commanding officer, at an informal ceremony in Col. Snow's office. Special guests were Maj. Henry Farmer, executive officer, Capt. William H. Casey, adjutant, Capt. Durvis Windham, motor officer, Lt. Thomas M. Kane, commanding officer at Headquarters and Headquarters Company, and Sgt. Maj. Edward Leavitt.

The citation read, "As Battalion Maintenance Sergeant, 106th Transportation Battalion, Croix Chapeau, France, Sgt. Bowman distinguished himself by outstanding and meritorious service during the period July 20, 1962 to July 3, 1963.

9th Promotions Include Sgt. 'Z'

By 1st Bn, 9th Infantry PIO

The latest promotions at the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry show four men being upped in rank. Being promoted to their present rank were SSgt. Chester Sparks and Sp4 Raymond F. Eckert and Thomas Croft.

The top promotion of the month, which was for SFC, went to the battalion personnel NCO, SFC John A. Zimmerman.

Sgt. "Z", as he is better known around the battalion, joined the Army from his hometown of New Rochelle, N.Y. in March, 1944. His first assignment took him to Europe where he served as Mess Sergeant with the 62nd Field Hospital. He returned to the States in 1947 and became an administrative NCO with the New York Military District. In 1955 he went to Panama where he served four years as an administrative specialist. Then to the University of Ohio as an instructor and from there he came to the 2nd Division.

Brigades Holding Religious Retreat

By 3rd Brigade PIO

A religious retreat sponsored by the Chaplain's sections of the 3rd and 1st Brigades will be conducted on September 19 from 8 a.m. to 4:15 p.m.

Chaplain (Capt.) John E. Green, 3rd Brigade Chaplain, reported the theme of the program, "2nd to None in Christian Living." Services for Catholic and Protestant personnel will be held at Sand Hill Theater 6, Chapel 3 and Sand Hill Chapel 2.

Personalities on the program include Jack Rutledge, Muscogee County Sheriff and Dr. Charles S. Granade, pastor of the Wynnton Road Baptist Church. The opening services will be at Theater 6.

A devotion period and Bible study follows after those of Catholic or Protestant belief go to Chapel No. 2 and Chapel No. 3 respectively. Two conferences, entitled "A Soldiers Responsibility as a Christian" and "Marriage," will be held in addition to a panel discussion. A film will be shown at Chapel 3 also. A worship service will conclude the retreat.

Registration for the event may be made through the company orderly room or by phoning Chapel 3.

Two Lieutenants Discover Field Problem 'Unusual'

Two officers were promoted under rather "unusual circumstances recently in the 6th Battalion, 37th Artillery.

Lt. Donald Simanton, the executive officer of Battery D, and Lt. Melvin D. Snead, executive officer of Battery B, were both promoted to their silver bars while training with their men in the field.

Lt. Col. Francis E. Mendenhall, commanding officer of the 6th Battalion, 37th Artillery, 2nd Infantry Division made a surprise visit to the training site and "ordered" Lt. Simanton to form his men into a "platoon wedge" near him. When this was accomplished, with the men holding their weapons at "high port," Col. Mendenhall proceeded to strip the gold bars from Lt. Simanton's shoulders and replaced them with bright new silver ones.

Knew He Was Eligible

Lt. Simanton was well aware that he was eligible for the promotion but he was certainly not prepared for the unusual circumstances under which it was granted!

The new first lieutenant laughed as he recalled the words of another 6th Battalion officer, Lt. Charles F. Wendt, Battery Commander of Battery A, who came up and congratulated him on his promotion and said "Welcome to the Officer's Corps."

Col. Mendenhall used different tactics with Lt. Snead. He sent his S-4 Officer, Lt. Michael F. Davis, looking for Lt. Snead and when he was located, he was told in the "direst of tones" to report to the Battalion Commander. The young lieutenant immediately began to sweat, and while he was searching for Col. Mendenhall, he racked his brain trying to figure out what he had done wrong. When Lt. Snead reported to Col. Mendenhall the colonel stated quite pointedly that "you are out of uniform," and after an exasperating pause, added that "you're wearing the wrong insignia." Col. Mendenhall then produced a set of silver bars and pinned them on the "greatly relieved" lieutenant's shoulders.

Had No Idea!

Lt. Snead said that he "had no idea that the promotion would come so soon, or in such an exasperating manner."

Lt. Simanton entered the Army in February 1962 and was sent to the Field Artillery Officers Orientation Course at Ft. Sill, Okla. Two months later, upon completion of this course, he was assigned to Battery A, 12th Artillery, 2nd Infantry Division. This outfit was later reorganized and designated as Battery D, 6th Battalion, 37th Artillery, which is his present organization.

Before entering the Army Lt. Simanton graduated from the University of Florida in Gainesville, Fla., where he majored in mathematics. Lt. Simanton's home is in Winter Haven, Fla. He is married and has one small daughter. His wife and family are presently residing with him here at Ft. Benning.

Lt. Snead is a graduate of the University of Richmond.

Divarty 1st Sergeant Reenlists for Five

A native of Groton, Conn., Sgt. Peropat first came on active duty in 1943 and completed his basic training at Camp Atterbury, Ind. with the 353rd Ordnance Company. Accompanying that unit overseas, he served with it in the European Theater of Operations until the end of World War II, serving in four major campaigns.

He received his discharge in 1945 and worked as an automobile mechanic until August of 1950 when he returned to active duty with the 238th AAA Gun Battery of the Connecticut National Guard.

After enlisting in the Regular Army the following year, Sgt. Peropat's unit was assigned to Japan where it remained on occupation duty until 1954.

Upon his return to the U.S. he was reassigned to the Boston, Mass. Air Defense.

In 1957, while serving with the 839th Missile Battalion of the Providence, R.I. Air Defense, he was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious service.

He came to Fort Benning in 1961 after completing a three year tour with the 6th Artillery Battalion, 3rd Armored Division in Germany and assumed his present duties in April of this year after returning from Germany with the 38th Infantry.

Sgt. Peropat lives with his wife, Lorraine, and their four children at 111 Englander St., Fort Benning.

First Sergeant Promoted In Artillery Ceremonies

During a short ceremony held on August 31 in the office of the commanding general, 1st Sgt. Ernest V. Blount formerly of Battery B, 8th Battalion, 38th Artillery, was promoted to his present rank.

The presentation of his orders and chevrons was made by Maj. Gen. Charles Billingsles, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, who stated that he soon hoped to see Sgt. Blount's promotion to the top enlisted grade of sergeant major.

motion was Col. Lucien F. Keller, division chief of staff, and Sgt. Blount's new commanding officer, Maj. Edmund D. Roscki, commander of the 1st Battalion, 15th Artillery: Because of his advancement in grade Sgt. Blount has now assumed the duties of first sergeant of that unit's Service Battery.

Born and raised in Hinesville, Ga., Sgt. Blount first entered the Army in 1945, just two months after his 18th birthday, and completed his basic training at Fort Bragg, N.C. He received his discharge two years later after completing an overseas assignment with the 1st Infantry Division in Germany and reenlisted in October, 1948. Since then he has had numerous assignments in the Continental United States plus overseas tours in Korea and Germany.

Sgt. Blount came to the 2nd Infantry Division in May, 1961 and since then he has served with the 17th, 27th and 9th Artillery Battalions.

He lives with his wife, Elisabeth, and their five daughters at 194-H Magrath St., Fort Benning.

7th Cavalry Sergeant Reenlists for Six More

SFC Julius Sumrall, a master gunner in Troop A, 4th Recon Squadron, 7th Cavalry Division, reenlisted for another six years last week.

The fifteen year veteran will have over twenty years in the Army upon completion of this enlistment.

Sgt. Sumrall entered the service initially in August of 1948, and was sent to Ft. Jackson, S. C., for his basic training. After basic he was assigned with the 24th Constabulary Group of the 3rd Infantry Division in Hersfeld, Germany.

Mrs. McClurkin Has Found No Dull Moments in Army

By Marilyn Williams
Ann Langley

Mrs. James H. McClurkin, wife of the new battalion commander of the 12th Artillery, has found that there is never a dull moment in the life of an Army wife. Having moved more than 15 times in the last 19 years is quite a switch for a girl who spent the majority of her life on a farm in the small North Carolina town of Salemburg, near Fort Bragg. She lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Underwood and her five sisters and one brother.

MRS. MCCLURKIN

Pauline "Polly" Underwood went to Salemburg High School and then attended Pineland College in Salemburg where she took a business course. Upon graduation she put to use what she had learned in college when she took a job as secretary for the Carr Motor Company in Fayetteville.

While "Polly" was working in Fayetteville, Lt. James Looker wanted very much for her to meet a friend of his who was also in Field Artillery at Fort Bragg. Finally, after much persuasion, Polly agreed to have a date with Lt. James H. McClurkin. Well — that was the beginning of Polly's Army life. After a short courtship, they were married in June, 1944. The next 19 years were to be ones of constant moves and several separations.

The first separation came before they had been married a year. With World War II underway, Lt. McClurkin received his first overseas orders and in February 1945 he left for Germany where he was with an Airborne division near Wesel. Polly went back home to Salemburg where their first child, Pollyanna was born.

Lt. McClurkin arrived in New York on his way to Japan only to find the war was over and he was to go to Fort Bragg instead. Here he and Polly had their second child, Nancy. The next assignment resulted in another separation. Lt. McClurkin had received orders for a tour of duty in Japan in 1947. Before leaving, the McClurkins went to Salemburg and bought a small tobacco farm where Polly, Pollyanna, and Nancy stayed for a year. When Lt. McClurkin had received enough overseas points his family joined him and they were there for another year. It was during this stay that their third child, Susan, was born.

From Japan the five McClurkins journeyed to Fort Campbell, Ky. and from there to Fort Sill, Okla. where Capt. McClurkin attended an Advanced Course. Then once again the McClurkins returned to Fort Bragg for a short time before coming to Fort Benning where he was with the 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion in the same area he is in now.

In 1953 the McClurkins returned to Fort Bragg where Capt. McClurkin was a member of the 10th Special Forces Group. Here their only son, Robert, was born. In this same year Capt. McClurkin received orders for Germany and the family was able to join him shortly afterwards. Polly enjoyed her two year stay in Badtolz in Southern Bavaria very much. Here they were able to take advantage of the winter sports such as ice skating and skiing. Polly did quite a bit of bowling as she was a member of the bowling league.

Their next assignment took them to Fort Leavenworth where Maj. McClurkin attended the Command & General Staff College for nine months. Polly enjoyed her work with the Grey Ladies there.

After completion of the school at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., the McClurkins traveled to Fort Chaffee, Ark., for a short six months before the third separation took Maj. McClurkin to Korea for 13 months and the rest of the McClurkins back to their farm in North Carolina.

In 1959, Col. McClurkin's orders took him and his family to Auburn University where he was assistant PMS of the ROTC Department. This was a welcome assignment for the McClurkins for it was here that Col. McClurkin went to college and played college football. They were here for four years before coming to their present assignment with the 12th Artillery at Ft. Benning.

Oriental Theme Given to Coffee

Two Japanese farmer dolls, a man and a woman, decorated the serving table and gave an oriental theme to this month's coffee attended by the officers' wives of the 702nd Maintenance Battalion.

The coffee, in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess, featured oriental decorative pieces brought back from an assignment in Japan by Lt. and Mrs. Vester L. Shuman. Figurines of temple dogs were placed on each of the lamp tables and a Saki set was on the coffee table. Name tags were passed out to each of the guests bearing their name and the Japanese for "Greeting to the party."

Hostesses were Mrs. Noel R. McLaughlin and Mrs. Shuman.

Mrs. Philip Taft, wife of the commanding officer, extended a warm welcome to Mrs. Matthew Becker, mother of Mrs. Walter Boyles, who is visiting from West Orange, N.J.

Mrs. Taft introduced the wives attending their first coffee: Mrs. Herbert Altman, Mrs. Pete B. Burke, Mrs. Gene Byars, and Mrs. John L. Okins.

A short business meeting was held.

'Informal' Dinner Held by 23rd Inf.

"Come as you are to my house" was the greeting of Betty Kendrick in inviting each of the officers' wives of the 1st battalion, 23rd Infantry to a Come-as-you-are dinner party.

Calls for the party, to be held in Mrs. Kendrick's home on Austin Loop, were made two days prior to the affair and were placed all during the day so as to catch the invitees in all manners of dress. The clothing worn to the party was a variety of pajamas, gowns, robes, shorts and dresses. Feet were shod in everything from high heels to flats, but the majority of the party-goers arrived in no shoes at all.

Following a refreshing social hour, a supper was served on the porch. Crisp shrimp salad, hot bread sticks with butter and cake were accompanied on the menu by a variety of beverages.

2nd of 38th Has Monthly Coffee

The monthly coffee of the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry was held at the home of Mrs. Tom Fincher. She and Mrs. Bob Worthington were hostesses.

Assorted cakes and pastry were served and Mrs. Worthington poured coffee for the ladies.

Mrs. Sherman Hardman spoke to the ladies about new projects for the group and of coming social events.

Mrs. Chance Welcomed Back to 38th Artillery

During a short business meeting Mrs. Richard L. Sheridan was named the new reservations chairman for the group.

The battalion wives welcomed back Mrs. Francis A. Chance Jr., who had resided in Maryland while her husband, Lt. Colonel Chance, was on temporary duty.

2nd Brigade Holds Coffee at MOOM

Shipwreck Party Held by 702nd

The patio of the Main Officers' Open Mess was the scene of a Shipwreck Party held recently by the officers and their wives of the 702nd Maintenance Battalion.

Mrs. Noel McLaughlin, Mrs. Vester Shuman and Mrs. Richard Oswald took charge of the arrangements for the affair.

Fishnets, sea shells, blown glass balls in decorative colors, miniature ships and driftwood were arranged on the buffet serving table and the individual tables. Name tags and place cards were in the shape of small ships.

Special guests seated at the Head Table were Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Morris, commanding officer of Support Command.

Lt. Col. Philip Taft, commanding officer of the battalion, presented engraved silver calling card trays to Capt. and Mrs. William Glasgow and to Capt. Jerry Lovinggood, who are leaving to enter the Advanced Infantry Career Course on Main Post.

Lt. and Mrs. Walter Boyles received a silver bon-bon dish engraved from the battalion as a wedding gift.

Lt. and Mrs. Hugh Donnell were given a silver baby cup engraved from the officers for their son, Hugh L. Donnell II. Lt. Richard E. Oswald's name was drawn for the men's door prize, and Mrs. Vester L. Shuman won a free shampoo and set from the Traffic Circle Beauty Salon.

Col. Taft introduced the new officers and their wives: Capt. and Mrs. Herbert Altman, CWO and Mrs. Pete Burke, Lt. and Mrs. Gene Byars, Capt. and Mrs. Alfred Clow, Lt. and Mrs. Jerrod Howard, CWO and Mrs. John H. Logan, Capt. and Mrs. Daniel Megehee, CWO and Mrs. Thaddeus Pinkney, Lt. and Mrs. Robert D. Taylor. Lt. Rene C. Herman, Lt. James J. Herrick, and Lt. Arthur Pearce.

Promotions, Arrivals Liven 1st of 87th's August Hours

Three new noncommissioned officers were recently assigned at the 1st Battalion, 87th Infantry, and three other enlisted men were promoted to higher grades.

Newly assigned as supply sergeant at Company C was SFC William E. Abbot, formerly with the 2nd Battle Group, 2nd Infantry.

A veteran of 13 years' service, Sgt. Abbot was with the "Second to None" Division during the Korean War as a member of the 9th Infantry, after which he returned to Fort Benning in February 1951 for duty with The Student Brigade. He returned to Europe with the 18th Infantry, participated in Operation Gyroscope and returned to Fort Riley, Kans. Sgt. Abbot originally hails from Alamo, Ga.

SFC Earl W. Morton, former supply sergeant at Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 58th Infantry, was assigned as supply sergeant at Company B. A veteran of World War II and Korea, he has worked as a supply sergent since 1960.

Also newly arrived at Company B is SSgt. Charlie C. Davis, formerly assigned with the 101st Airborne Division.

Sgt. Jones New 'Top' For 87th

First Sergeant Howard E. Jones has recently been assigned to Company C, 2nd Battalion, 87th Infantry.

Sgt. Jones entered the Army in November 1937 and took his basic training at Fort Benning with Company G, 29th Infantry. He was permanently assigned as cadre to this unit after completing basic.

In September 1943, he was assigned to the Infantry Replacement Training Center at Camp Blanding, Fla., as senior instructor in basic training.

In April 1944, Sgt. Jones was with the 320th Infantry, 35th Division. He fought in two campaigns, the Ardennes and Rhineland — both campaigns were during the Battle of the Bulge.

After the war he rotated back to the U. S. for duty as enlisted reserve recruiting noncommissioned officer with the 3rd Army Separation Point, at Fort Benning.

Gen. Billingslea to Speak At Division Wives Club

After a summer program of monthly coffees, this next Tuesday, Sept. 10, the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club resumes its monthly luncheon.

This month's luncheon will be a birthday 'party' for the club, at which Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea will be the guest speaker.

The main dining room of the Main Officers' Club Open Mess will be the location of the luncheon, which will begin with a Sherry Hour at 12:30. The luncheon will be served at 1:30.

Hostesses are the officers' wives of Division Headquarters and the 1st Battalion, 87th Infantry. Mrs. Lucien Keller and Mrs. George Crosby are in charge of arrangements.

Doughboys Slog Through Pages of Division Records

By BOB de CAMARA

A treasure has been discovered in the 2nd Infantry Division's information office.

The "treasure" is a book, close to six inches thick and bound in red and black leather. It oozes age and crisp authority.

Reporters turned loose on a hunt for new material and new stories uncovered the volume. Impressive looking, it still had never been cracked. Perhaps it looked too dry in its Victorian wrapper and yellowed pages. Now that it has been opened, a storehouse of humorous and vital division history has been unearthed along with extended accounts of battles and intelligence reports and enemy interrogations.

Stories Not Dry

It is not a dry tome, arid, festooned with the indulgence of latter-day historians chronicling with the aid of hindsight. It is, instead, a systematic harboring of World War I orders of the day, and accounts of valorous doughboys slogging through the trench warfare of that last gallant epoch of individual combat fleck the pages. It is filled with the song of conflict and peace and studded with names of towns through France, Luxembourg and Germany that the 2nd Division campaigned through or occupied.

It is dated. Here and there the word "honor" is spelled "honour," with a British influence. Stabling mules and cutting trees are mentioned in detail.

An order in English prohibits the sale of any intoxicant but beer and light wine between prescribed hours, this from Germany. The same order appears in its German - translated equivalent, as it was posted on the buildings of the town for the civil population.

Detail Entices

It is the plethora of detail that is highly insinuating. Looking back on World War I, a broad outline of the entire struggle by any text is given with facility; but the humanizing burrs are lost.

"Records of the 2nd Division (Regular)," subtitled "General Orders," Intelligence Reports, Field Artillery Data," resupplies the humanity, puts the people back in the scenery and fills up the maps and arrows and dotted lines of the training manuals.

The 2nd Infantry Division was activated in Bourmont, France on October 26, 1917, of U. S. Army and Marine units. General Order Number One, dated October 26, 1917, begins the records with a list of the new division staff.

The order is headed: "Headquarters Second Division, American Expeditionary Forces, France" with the date. The chief of staff is listed as a Marine lieutenant colonel: the adjutant, a Marine major. The division quartermaster is a captain of the 23rd Infantry, as is the surgeon.

Divisions grow up faster than real children do and are of stranger parentage. This division was born of the 9th and 23rd Infantry Regiments and the 5th Machine Gun Battalion, the 5th and 6th Marine Regiments and the 6th Machine Gun Battalion Marines, the 12th, 15th and 17th Field Artillery Battalions, and the 2nd Trench Mortar Battery, the 4th Machine Gun Battalion, the 2nd Engineers, the 1st Field Signal Battalion and Division Trains. A number of Naval Medical Corpsmen also served in the division, attached to the Marine units.

This mewling, squalling infant, sired by the U. S. Army out of the U. S. Marine Corps, was fighting before children are usually walking, born in wartime, bred in battle.

Chateau Thierry

The 2nd Division didn't actually see full-scale combat until June 1918 at Chateau-Thierry after the "Boche" had pushed to within 40 miles of Paris. The 2nd Division was committed on the Chateau Thierry - Paris Road, stopping the Germans cold and pushing ahead themselves to recapture Bealleau Wood and the villages of Bouresches and Vaux.

An information bulletin from Vaux on June 29, marked "confidential," describes the town. "The houses are all built of hard, flinty stone with an average wall thickness of 45 cm. The height of the garden walls is about 1.9 meters and an average thickness of 40 cm. The majority of the gardens are built of uncut stone and the greater part of the houses have gardens. There is no church and no school in the town. The average width of the streets is four meters, and the height of houses, 13 to 14 meters. There are 82 houses in the town and prior to the evacuation there were 230 inhabitants. The majority of them were well-to-do and their establishments were kept accordingly."

A subheading gives an intelligence estimate of enemy troops in the vicinity. The names are foreign and romantic. They shine with the steel of battle and flower on the French countryside.

"The area which includes Vaux is held by the 1st Battalion of the 402nd Regiment (201st Division). The 402nd Regiment which is considered the best in the division forms the right wing of the division. It has one battalion in the line, one in support (probably in Bois des Brulits) and one battalion in rest billets to the rear. The 2nd Company occupies the village of Vaux on either side of the Vaux - Monneaux road. This company had lost six men killed up to June 24th. One hundred and sixty men of the 1st Battalion had been evacuated due to illness. The general health of the unit appears to be poor. The present strength of the company consists of 2 lieutenants, 1 officer stellwerteter, 1 Vice Feldwebel and 137 men, of which 90 are combat troops. There is one assault group of 8 men. There were 5 light machine guns and 3 granatenwerfer (grenade throwers) with the company. Lt. Adamson commands the company and Lt. Mittag has the second platoon."

The division did not go into battle as soon as it was organized. First, a brief period of training and, next, routine duty in the trenches for months before the big campaign.

Entrains at Bourmont

An unknown writer describes the early circumstances. "The 9th Infantry, after a long period of guard duty and railroad building, and an all too brief period of training in the Bourmont area began its journey to the front on March 14, 1918 on which day the 2nd Battalion under command of Maj. Joseph J. Travis entrained at Bourmont in a French omnibus train, designed to accommodate a French battalion. The entraining was the most difficult maneuver yet attempted for not only was the numerical strength larger than the accommodations provided but also the salvage system had not been cordially received and all units clung desperately to boxes of Red Cross blankets and sheep-skin moccasins. even mess tables so that there was considerable difficulty in finding room for the personnel.

The detraining of the Regiment was at Souilly, the railhead of the division and the troops were marched to the towns of Amblу, Tilly, Bocquemont and Camp Gibraltar, along the Meuse River."

The writer then describes the prevailing battle lines and the nationalities of the units in the area and details the centers of resistance and tours of duty.

Adjust to Trenches

"The 23rd French Infantry left for instructors one officer for the battalion and one for each company while an experienced sergeant remained with each platoon. The men quickly settled down to trench-life and in a very short time the battalion was functioning smoothly.

The lines occupied had remained practically unchanged since 1914 so both our own and the enemy positions were well organized with very fair dugouts, deep trenches and good wire. The plans of defense were carefully worked out and the dossiers for each company sector were voluminous. A more ideal sector for training in highly developed warfare of position could hardly have been selected. The enemy had the advantage of the height of ground necessitating an extensive use of camouflage to prevent his observation. The lines were thinly held by small combat groups not to exceed one-half platoon.

These groups or "ilots" were widely separated and at night isolated themselves by gates of iron and wire or chevaux-de-frise thrown in the trenches. Companies maintained liaison on their flanks by visiting patrols through the trenches at night. The boche knew where each combat group was stationed and never wasted shells by firing at the unoccupied parts of the trenches.

As soon as the command passed to the Americans active patrolling was started. The sector was excellent for practical training in patrolling. The enemy trenches were distant from 200 yards to more than a thousand at some points and the terrain between the lines was of a diversified character with trees, brush, fields and a brook running parallel to the lines. The enemy had two advanced posts in a reentrant in our lines consisting of the ruined village of Spada and Reiaincourt mill.

On one of the first patrols sent out about the 23rd of March, 2nd Lieut. Moses N. Taylor of C. Co. was ambushed and shot down and his body captured by the enemy. This was the only loss any of our patrols suffered though they later inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy in several patrol battles. The reconnoitering patrols also secured valuable information. Control of No Man's Land passed to us and the enemy was surprised as they attempted to reconnoiter the town. Two Boche were killed and several wounded. The conduct of the patrols and the excellent observation of the Regimental and Battalion Intelligence earned the following praise from the French Division Commander."

(The French Division Commander, typically military and imbued with the pomp of a by-gone era, had little to say and his words now sound high-flown and hollow.)

From the commanding general, 52nd Division:. "The General commanding the 52nd Division addresses his felicitations to the 9th Regiment Infantry, U. S., for the excellent reports given by its Intelligence Department and the good work of its patrols near Spada and Relaincourt. Signed: Boyer."

Gas Attacks

The various battalions manned a given outpost for a designated period of time and then were relieved by a sister battalion. The open warfare of the day emphasized paralyzing gas attacks and artillery barrages and large infantry assaults across where the men were constantly exposed to artillery and small-arms fire as they raced from their own trench to the enemy's.

On April 13-14 while the 3rd Battalion held the center of resistance known as Marie-Louise, an assault developed and was pulled off with devastating consequences, for a small battle, for the Germans. The attack was preceded by a day-long artillery barrage.

"A heavy barrage at nightfall consisting of high explosive and gas was thrown on the left sector occupied by E Company, to create a diversion from the place actually contemplated. At 10:45 p.m. most of the fire was switched to the Marie-Louise sector and a box barrage laid over the area occupied by I and L Companies.

The raid was executed by a detachment of picked troops who had been drilled and rehearsed for several days behind the enemy lines on an outline of our sector. The raiding force according to statements of prisoners consisted of 100 Storm troops, 40 pioneers, and picked men from 3 rifle companies with at least two machine guns—a force of over 500 men.

Disguised as Allies

Under cover of the barrage the raiding party made their way through the wire, the first entry being made in the interval between the two battalions, and by means of deception penetrated deeply into our lines. Many were dressed as French or Americans and called "Gas" and that they were French coming to the counter-attack.

The Americans were at first deceived and many were surrounded and captured but soon they took up the fight hand to hand and fought themselves free from their captors. Individuals fought their way to others and soon small groups were going through the trenches attacking the Boche with grenades, rifles and bayonet. The raiders who had split into three groups for the purpose of filtering in were forced to retire before a junction of the groups could be effected and one of the parties was completely dispersed."

On New Year's Day, 1919, General Order Number One came down from headquarters for posting on the boards. The signature belonged to Maj. Gen. John A. LeJeune, a Marine and the commanding general of a division that was now called "Second to None" and wore the "Indian-head" patch. The order was written and posted in Germany.

"TO THE OFFICERS AND MEN OF THE SECOND DIVISION.

1. The year that has just ended has been the most momentous of the century. A year ago the military situation was ominous. Russia, and Roumania had been crushed, and the enemy was able to mass a greatly superior force on the Western front. In March, April and May, he struck powerful and victorious blows in Picardy, Belgium and on the Chemin des Dames. At this critical hour, the American forces were placed in the battle lines, and on November 11th, after an offensive campaign by the Allies' Commander-in-Chief, conducted with consummate skill and characterized by a continuous battle of unparallel activity and violence, the enemy was defeated and the victory was won.

2. The Second Division played a part of great military and historic importance in this tremendous engagement. It fought five pitched battles or series of battles, always defeating the enemy, and it has won the right to have inscribed on its banners the names of the brilliant victories won by it at Chateau Thierry, Soissons, St. Mihiel Salient, Blanc Mont, and Argonne-Meuse. Its casualties were 732 officers and 22,653 men, total 24,385. This was about ten percentum of the total casualties of the American Expeditionary Forces. It captured 12,026 prisoners, over one quarter of the total number captured by the A.E.F.

A poem from the November 9 information bulletin, two days before the Armistice, expresses the American sentiment.

TO THE BEAST OF BERLIN
Here's to the Kaiser
The Sauer-kraut Hun,
We'll annihilate him
And His Hun of a Son.
We'll smash back his herd
Of Hindenburg swine,
And feed them, by gad,
To the Carp in the Rhine.

Divarty Holds Ceremony Honoring Special Awards

The five units of the "Second to None's" Division Artillery passed in review on August 31 to honor seven individuals of the command who were presented awards ranging from the Army Commendation Medal to the second place trophy of the Apache Softball League.

Held at Knight Field, the ceremonies were witnessed by Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, assistant division commander, 2nd Infantry Division, and members of the award winner's families.

After the massed colors were brought forward, the seven men lined up directly in front of them and received their individual presentations from Col. Burnside E. Huffman, the division artillery commander with an assist from his sergeant major, Sgt. Maj. F. E. Lee. During this time the citations and awards were read by Maj. William A. Lowe, the division artillery adjutant.

The top award of the ceremonies, the Army Commendation Medal, was presented to MSgt. Horace W. Van Valkenburgh, Headquarters Battery, 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery, for meritorious service from October 5, 1961 to August 31, 1963.

His citation read in part: "During the cited period MSgt. Van Valkenburgh performed his duties in a meritorious manner while serving as Operations Sergeant, 5th Battalion 38th Artillery. Throughout this entire period of time he executed all his duties in a truly exemplary manner. He demonstrated leadership, intelligence, good judgement, and thorough technical proficiency in all matters pertaining to field artillery operations, plans and training. Due to the shortage of officers, he performed the duties of assistant S-3. Throughout his tenure he maintained a spirit of cooperation with higher, lower and adjacent headquarters and was held with great respect by all those who came in contact with.

The character of MSgt. Van Valkenburgh's service was such that it reflected great credit upon himself, his unit, the 2nd Infantry Division and the U. S. Army."

The second award was a Certificate of Achievement presented to MSgt. Joe R. Camp for exceptionally meritorious service as Communications Chief, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 27th Artillery, 3rd Armored Division during the period of November 6, 1960 to November 9, 1962.

The certificate stated that during this period "he demonstrated exceptional leadership, mature judgment, and consideration for the welfare of subordinates while demanding maximum performance at the same time. His outstanding organizational and supervisory ability has contributed immeasurably to the constant state of combat readiness of his section and reflects great credit upon himself, the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 27th Artillery and the 3rd Armored Division."

A second Certificate of Achievement was presented to Sgt. William T. Belvin, now a member of Headquarters Battery, 15th Artillery, for outstanding service from March 20, 1962 to March 12, 1963 as a member of the 7th Infantry Division. "During this time Sgt. Belvin demonstrated outstanding professional competence and leadership as Communications Sergeant of his unit by directing the efforts of all personnel in his section in such a manner that the section was rated as superior on all inspections. Through Sgt. Belvin's efforts, his section contributed materially to the superior rating awarded his battery on the Battery Army Training Tests conducted on December 1, 1962. This achievement reflects great credit upon Sgt. Belvin, his unit and the U. S. Army."

First Sergeant John Peropat of Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 2nd Division Artillery then accepted the Third U. S. Army's Savings Bond award in his unit's behalf in recognition of outstanding accomplishment in achieving 91.24 percent participation in the Third U. S. Army Savings Program.

Accepting the same award in his unit's behalf was Sgt. Maj. Dennis J. Amaturio, sergeant major, 1st Battalion, 15th Artillery which achieved 18.67 percent in the Savings Program.

The "Best Mess Plaque" was awarded to Headquarters Battalion, 12th Artillery and was accepted by that unit's mess steward, SFC Francis T. Doner.

The final presentation of the day was made to Spc Hal Walker of the 1st Battalion, 15th Artillery who accepted his unit's trophy for finishing second in the Apache League Softball tournament.

Three Promoted In 3rd Brigade

By 3rd Brigade PIO

A trio of 3rd Brigade enlisted men made their next highest grade recently. One staff sergeant and two specialists fourth class received their orders.

GI Joe's Not Really So Tough

Take combat for instance. In wartime the easy-going, quiet-mannered youths from the farms and cities turn out to be the toughest fighters in the world. And, they seem to get all the tougher when a situation becomes really hazardous. "The Americans are devils! They fight like madmen!" These were the words of Japanese soldiers during World War II.

Chase Girls

They brawl, chase girls, and when things get desperate, drink shaving lotion. They will throw rocks at cats and sit under a tree and shoot at birds. They snarl when their sleep is interrupted, yet happily throw cold water on a slumbering buddy.

They will trudge through the rain and mud and cuss an enemy for shooting too close. Most will gladly engage in a fight with sailors, marines and airmen, mocking their opponents branch of service (though heaven help the civilian who flaunts a sister service).

Alas! Wartime is not the only time that a soldier romps. Even in peacetime he still maintains the off-duty style commensurate to GI Joe legend. After a hard day of training, or field problem, he hops in his jalopy and heads for town, leaving pedestrians and traffic cops slightly edgy. He continues his heritage of movies, dances and dragging main street; but always, chasing girls.

He gripes at, or about, sergeants, recruiting posters and chow. He hates guard duty and KP with a passion and would rather wrestle a boa constrictor than partake of a GI Party. He also is inherently terrified of duty rosters. He eats C-Rations as if each mouthful is pure unrefined cyanide and thinks salt tablets are for cows.

He smiles like a rabbit eating carrots on payday and two days later frowns like a potato-peeling private as he heads for the nearest pawn shop. Reville comes at an hour when sane men should be sleeping and he swears that generals do nothing but stay up nights dreaming of new inspections to hold.

Like A Chameleon

Intrinsically, soldiers are a tough, normal fighting machine who can take anything, anytime, anywhere without a bother. Yet, let some unusual incident occur, or some seemingly trivial episode in life take place miles from him and he changes like a chameleon.

During the recent orbital ride of Astronaut Cooper television rooms were brimmed with noisy soldiers. Then it happened ... the big change. Major Cooper's electrical system went out. Reentry became a danger. The world tensed. Grand Central Station in New York City was crowded with apprehensive people and the soldier-filled TV rooms became suddenly quiet. A man none of the soldiers had ever met, nor were likely to meet, was in trouble. An American. The tough, leather-skinned and uniform-clad troops had suddenly become silently worried for this man's safety. A big husky sergeant fondled his rosary through the crucial minutes of reentry and a usually boisterous private, dressed in T-shirt and shorts, smiled broadly when the capsule pierced the ionosphere on target, and looking up through the ceiling and mumbled a soft "thank you, sir."

Backs An Underdog

Give him a battle to fight and war to win and he'll do it everytime. He'll face any danger for a country and flag he loves, though often acts like patriotism is for the birds (not wanting anyone to believe he's not really as tough as he acts), and will breech the walls of impossibility without question or effort. Yet, sit him in a sad, dramatic movie and his eyes will water; show him a tragedy and he will sympathize; confront him with a starved, frightened child and he will offer the last of his food; he will back an underdog everytime, and embarrassingly pray for all but himself.

That's how it is with this guy called GI Joe. He drives fast, lives fast, and will continue to chase girls as long as this world exists. But, the free world will stay free because of men like him. He's still just like all Americans — calloused and tough, but sentimental and unbeatable.

New Division Chaplain Served With 2nd in Korea

Lt. Col. James C. Carroll, former deputy Third Army chaplain at Fort McPherson, Ga., was assigned to the "Second to None" just in time to put down his suitcase, pick up his steel helmet and go on Swift Strike III, and is now fully established in his new office.

Assigned as chaplain to the 38th Infantry Regiment during the first 13 months of the Korean Conflict, Col. Carroll has vivid memories of the Hoensong Valley and Chinese Spring Offensive campaigns, which were the most bitter ones of the early phase of the fighting in Korea. His decorations include two Bronze Star Medals for valor, the Korean Service Medal with six battle stars, and the Army Commendation Ribbon.

Prior to entering the Army, Col. Carroll attended St. Thomas' Seminary at Bloomfield, Conn., for two years, and St. Bernard's Seminary at Rochester, N. Y., for six years, where he received a Bachelor of arts degree and was ordained a Roman Catholic priest. He is a graduate of the career chaplain's course and the Command and General Staff College.

A native of New Haven, Conn., Col. Carroll has always been a participant in athletics, particularly hockey, football, golf and swimming.

1st of 87th Has New Command Changes

The 1st Battalion, 87th Infantry has three new company commanders as a result of the appointment of five captains to other positions within the 2nd Division. Replacing Capt. Stanley Z. White as commander of Company B, is Lt. Charles C. McIntosh. Lt. Robert A. Bianchi succeds Capt. Wallace M. Evans, as commander of Company C, and Lt. Richard R. Browning replaces Capt. Wayne H. Becthold as Headquarters Company commanding officer.

Lt. Charles C. McIntosh, a native of Brownsville, Pa., has 11 years of military service as an enlisted man on which to draw in his new position as commander of Company B. He succeeds Capt. Stanley Z. White who has been reassigned as assistant adjutant of the 3d Brigade.

Lt. McIntosh has seen overseas duty in Korea, Iceland, and Germany. He came to the 87th in March of this year and has been commanding officer of Headquarters Company, and executive officer of Company B. He came to the 87th from the 2nd Armored Rifle Battalion, 41st Infantry, 4th Armored Division, where he served as a company executive officer and as battalion liaison officer. He has twice been commissioned as lieutenant first in 1956, when he was given a direct commission and when he was recalled to service in October 1962.

Lt. Robert A. Bianchi was commissioned as lieutenant on September 21, 1962 upon completion of Officer Candidate School. He has seen two tours of duty in Korea as an enlisted man and attended the 4th Army Noncommissioned Officer Academy in 1959.

He came to the 87th in October 1962 and has served as platoon leader in Bravo Company until February of 1963 when he was appointed as liaison officer, a position which he held until the time he was appointed to his present position.

Lt. Richard R. Browning came to the 1st Battalion, 87th Infantry immediately upon graduation from the Infantry Officer's Orientation Course after returning to active duty. Lt. Browning has spent three years on active duty as an enlisted man, during which time he served with the 101st and the 11th Airborne Divisions. He has attended the Engineer Officer Orientation Course at Fort Belvoir, Va. and he is an alumnus of the University of Akron.

Doughboys to Open 1963 Football Season Saturday

By Dave Braun

The Southeastern section of the country will be well represented when Fort Benning ignites its 1963 football campaign tomorrow at 8 p.m. against the Southwest Florida Athletic Association at Doughboy Stadium.

Approximately 18 footballers hailing from Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, and North Carolina are among those who will be listed on the official program of the 1962 recognized Inter-service champs and winners of 16 consecutive games.

Head coach Oren DeHaven, will have his squad fairly well pat at end where both veterans Fred Murphy and Dan House are returning. Murphy, who tied for the team scoring championship a year ago with six touchdowns to his credit, is a former member of the professional Cleveland Browns and Minnesota Vikings.

House, on the other hand, though not as spectacular last season as a scorer for the Doughboys, made many key catches and was instrumental as a blocker on Fort Benning's sweeping end runs.

House was named to the All-Southern Conference team while at Davidson in 1959-1960. He holds the conference record for pass receptions and yards gained and was given honorable mention on the 1959 Little All-America team.

Backing up House and Murphy at the corner spot will be George Walstad and Bruce Roach. Roach was named to the All-Conference first team from 1960-1962 while at Pittsburgh State in Kansas. Walstad earned three varsity football letters at Oklahoma State University.

Heads Tackles

Heading the list of tackles slated for action will be six-foot, four-inch, 227-pound Bill Nance. Nance, a veteran of last years squad, attended Mississippi State in Starkville.

Six foot, four-inch, 250 pound Bob Creviston will be another tackle destined to put fear into Doughboy opponents. Creviston played his collegiate career at the University of Illinois.

Wayne Peters is another returnee listed among the tackles. The five foot, 11 inch, 220 pounder starred for East Tennessee State College in Kingsport for four years.

All-America at Guard

The 1953-1960 University of Georgia All-America Pat Dye heads the list of guards for the Army contingent. Dye, five-foot, 11 inches, and 200 pounds of battling might, is a former member of the Canadian League Edmonton Eskimos.

Hal Erickson, is another Southern boy who will give the Doughboys plenty of beef in the center of their forward wall. Erickson toiled his collegiate days for Georgia Tech.

Wendryhoski Returns

Returning from last years unbeaten squad is veteran Joe Wendryhoski. The six foot, four-inch, 240 pound former University of Illinois standout is the anchor man in the middle of the line last season for the Doughboys.

The University of Wisconsin's 1961 captain and a member of the Badger January 1961 Rose Bowl team, Don Schade is another guard slated for plenty of action this season. Shade stands five foot, 11 inches and weighs 220 pounds.

Alabama Star Back

Returning to the center position is Elliott Moseley, former Crimson Tide footballer. Moseley stands six foot and tips in at 195 pounds.

Completing the list of centers for the Doughboys is Luther Cranford. The six foot, two inch, 195 pounder was a center for the University of Chattanooga.

In the backfield just about every position seems set and there is depth galore.

Calling the signals will be returnee Marvin Tibbetts and newcomer Dave Sarette.

Sarette quarterbacked the Orangemen of Syracuse University two years ago and was named to the first team All-Eastern squad while Tibbetts, a former Georgia Tech signal caller, scored 24 points for last years champs while also handling the Doughboys punting chores.

Leading runners at the halfback slot are Ron Quillen, a speed merchant who scored 30 points last year, Bobby Towns with six TD's scored last season, breakaway threat Brewster Hobby and DeWayne Jeter last season's second team quarterback.

Quillen was selected to the All-Ohio Valley Conference team while at East Tennessee College and served one year with Edmonton in the Canadian football league. Town's, the Southeastern Conference leading pass receive in 1959, played two years with the St. Louis Cardinals professional football team.

Five foot, eight-inch, 160 pound newcomer Billy Williamson has also received tremendous praise from Coach DeHaven for his work during pre-season practice.

Other halfbacks are Ken Bolin, former University of Houston back; Ken Brewer, former Florida A&M standout; Elroy Foley, Paul Friesner, Harold Hennessey and Raymond Pitts.

At fullback is returning starter Wallace Johnson. Johnson ripped through 1962 Doughboy opponents for 18 points and was a key figure in most of the scoring marches.

World Series May Pit Yanks And Dodgers

NEW YORK (AFPS) — The baseball season has reached the home stretch.

Only in the National League does there appear to be anything like a pennant race. Even there the Los Angeles Dodgers are keeping a bouncing ball lead of from 4½ to 7½ games over two perspiring rivals; the 1962 league titlists the San Francisco Giants and the persistent, underrated St. Louis Cardinals.

As summer fades away the Philadelphia Phils have moved to within seven games of the leaders to indicate they might still be heard from. The other teams have either faded or made no significant move.

In the American League the dis-Mantled New York Yankees are only amusing their fans by the size of their lead over the nearest contenders. Here, anywhere from 10 to a dozen games in the wake of the World's Champions, may be found the Chicago White Sox, Baltimore Orioles and the Minnesota Twins. Second place is certain for one of this trio. Otherwise the fans are cheered by Detroit's recovery which has moved the Tigers close to the first division.

Predictions by amateurs, by Las Vegas odds makers and by veteran sport writers all tend to point to the second Atlantic and Pacific World Series in October. But this year Los Angeles will host the Yanks instead of San Francisco.

Bragg Takes 3A Baseball Crown

Blood Burns Baffles Benning

By Ted Williamson

The 1963 Third Army Baseball Tournament ended with a despondent note for Fort Benning fans last Friday, as the gritty Doughboy team ran out of gas and dropped the championship game to a fine Fort Bragg club, 4 to 0.

Thirty-nine year old right-hander Blood Burns, who works much in the same style as Satchel Paige, completely baffled the Doughboys with his changing speeds and sneaky fast ball.

The tired Doughboys could manage only four hits off the crafty Burns, while his teammates produced three runs in the fourth and one in the seventh as Burns accounted for the final run, driving in centerfielder Larry Adams with a bloop single.

Little Elroy Zamora collected two hits for the Doughboys, while Dick Stauffer's two run single in the fourth was the big blow for Bragg.

Starter and loser J. R. Miller struck out 10 Bragg hitters, and was effective enough to win most games. Burns also racked up ten whiffs, striking out the tourney's leading hitter, Pedro Berrios, three times in succession.

The Doughboy's only serious threat came in the second inning when Juan Martinez singled, went to second on John Overcash's infield hit and took third on a passed ball. The threat was stymied however, when J. R. Miller topped a roller to the mound and Burns cut down Martinez trying to score.

Baseball Banter

By Ted Williamson

We would like to toss a few bouquets to some deserving people who were behind the scenes of the Third Army tournament last week: first, to SSgt. Merrill Lacey who did such a wonderful job as tournament director, and to SSgt. John Russen and Specialist Calvin Thomas, groundskeepers, who had Gowdy Field in tip-top condition during the entire tournament. The "Golden Voice of Gowdy Field," Leo Zani, also deserves a bouquet for his work on the P. A. system. And to MSgt. William Edons, when is your next bouquet?

The luck of the draw and a crafty pitcher who sneers at Father Time were the primary reasons the Doughboys failed to repeat as champions. After Tuesday's loss to Redstone Arsenal, they faced the task of not just playing, but winning, five games in three days.

The first three games of the tournament were dragged out affairs and the fourth game between Fort Benning and Redstone Arsenal, was the topper, requiring three hours and fifty-five minutes to decide a winner.

Tournament Standouts

Some of the outstanding players of the tournament were Fort Benning's Pedro Berrios, Eloy Zamora, Joe Barke, Porter Wooten and Roger England. Fort Bragg's Mick Hennessey, Bill Tryder and Larry Adams. Redstone Arsenal's Mel Anderson and Caesar Burkes, and Fort Jackson's Vonnig James. Outstanding pitchers were Fort Bragg's Blood Burns and Hugh Reynolds

Fort Benning's J. R. Miller, Dick Carton and Glen Ponte. Fort Jackson's Larry Purdy and Redstone Arsenal's George Downing also turned in some fine work.

Berrios had the most hits in the series, ten; including four doubles and a triple. Mick Hennessey had the only home run in the tournament and it came in Braggs 15 to 0 rout of Fort Jackson.

England and Barke Excel

A couple of managerial moves by Bob Kinnard turned out to be very wise ones. Kinnard moved Roger England to the lead-off spot in the batting order and installed Joe Barke at third base. Both responded with their best performances of the season.

Attendance at the tournament exceeded expectations as tourney officials estimated total attendance between five and six thousand. The press box at Gowdy Field was swamped with calls during Friday's finale as many fans who couldn't attend the game inquired about the score.

Fort McPherson was the only team in the tournament to return home winless. The "Colonels" dropped the opener to Fort Jackson, 8 to 5, and were eliminated by runner-up Fort Benning, 3 to 1.

The fans attending the final game were silent by the seventh inning as it became apparent that the Doughboys weren't going to have much luck with the deliveries of Blood Burns, and by the time pinch hitter George Rogers struck out for the final out of the ball game the stands were virtually empty.

DISAPPOINTING

No doubt about it, the two biggest disappointments in baseball this season are the unsteady showings of the Cincinnati Reds and the Detroit Tigers. Experts figured both clubs to be in the thick of National and American League pennant races.

Substitution Rules Top 1963 Football Headlines

Changes in rules, musical chairs within the coaching ranks, and the powerful statures of Southern California and Northwestern are hoarding headlines in the 1962 college football outlook.

But, however cut-and-dried a football season may appear, the game is notorious for its reversals, surprises and upheavals.

It remains to be seen what "real" effect the new substitution rule will have on major college football, but consensus holds that it will increase spectator interest while sacrificing the three unit system invented at Louisiana State by Paul Dietzel, now at Army.

The controversial rule stipulates that unlimited substitution may be made by either team during all time-outs except on fourth down or on the down immediately after the ball changes hands. But a team may substitute two "wild card" players on fourth down or the down following change of possession.

Ninety-four coaching seats have been vacated and filled at NCAA affiliated schools since last season ended. When the music stopped, notables grabbing new chairs included Hugh Devore at Notre Dame, John Ralston at Stanford, Jim McDonald at Tennessee, Ed Crowder at Colorado, Phil Outchin at Oklahoma State, Jack Green at Vanderbilt and Johnny Pont at Yale.

Meanwhile, who will rule the roost in national rankings this year? Concensus points its finger at a ripened bunch from Northwestern (Big Ten) and champ, Southern California (Big Six).

BIG TEN—Northwestern, it is generally felt, has the best chance to win the conference title and visit the Rose Bowl on Jan. 1, 1964. Coach Ara Parseghian bases his optimism around rugged gaurd Jack Cvercko and junior quarterback Tom Myers. As a soph, Myers' brilliant passing gave the Wildcats a fast start last year.

In the wings are two perennial Big Ten contenders, Wisconsin and Ohio State. Milt Bruhn must fill the shoes of Ron VanderKelen and Pat Richter. Ohio's Woody Hayes may find the dark horse role his cup of tea.

Minnesota, Iowa, Michigan State and Purdue will make their Big Ten presence felt. Cellar-dwellers Michigan, Indiana and Illinois should show marked improvement.

BIG SIX — The Trojans of USC are busting to repeat, and the "B" boys — Bedsole, Brown, Barne and Beathard—rate "A" attention every Saturday.

Washington looms as a troublemaker, but depth problems cause concern in Seattle. Stanford, UCLA and California are hampered by a combination of things — among them lack of material, coaching changes and Southern California.

New Hospital Recreation Director Worked on Front Lines in Korea

By Ida C. Evans

For Miss Robbye K. Beasley, new recreation director at Martin Army Hospital, work with the American Red Cross has taken her to many places, even to the front lines in Korea.

"I volunteered to go to Korea to work at the 121st Evacuation Hospital at Yong Dong Po," she said. "When the opportunity came to go up to the front for three days, I put on combat boots and fatigues and made the trip in a jeep.

"We had been working at the hospital so near the front that we saw the patients when they were first brought in. It was not like seeing them later as we did during World War II when I worked at the Naval Hospital in New Orleans," she continued.

"There was a lull in the fighting. Another Red Cross worker and I were invited to visit the troops on the front line. We inspected a 'friendly' machine gun nest, ate lunch with the commanding general and then stood on the top of a hill looking over at Communist troops nearby," Miss Beasley recalled.

"At night we shared tents with nurses at a mobile hospital unit, but we slept on the ground in sleeping bags," she said. "I was glad to be there. I hope we never have another war, but if we should, I would volunteer again to work as close to the front as possible."

Miss Beasley was born in Carthage, Tenn. She is the daughter of Mrs. M. Y. Beasley and the late Mr. Beasley who was an attorney.

A skilled concert pianist and accompanist, Miss Beasley has played the piano since she was 10 years old. She attended grammar and high school in Carthage, then went to the University of Tennessee in Knoxville for a B.A. degree. The next year, she studied piano at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music.

For the next two years, Miss Beasley was a music teacher and professional accompanist in Nashville and Carthage. She also continued an active participation in the musical and educational program of the Baptist Church, an activity begun in early life.

In 1943, Miss Beasley became associated with the American Red Cross and was assigned to the Naval Hospital in New Orleans. After three years in Louisiana, she was at Fort Bragg, N.C., for a year.

Following a year at Maxwell Air Force Base, she went to Japan in 1950. It was while serving with the Red Cross there that the opportunity came to volunteer for duty near the front in Korea.

After the battle front in Korea, the next few years seemed "just routine," Miss Beasley said, and some of it was "backtracking." She served at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., and the Naval Hospital in Charleston, S. C., and then "went back to Bragg, back to Maxwell and finally, back to Nashville."

"Back to Nashville meant back to school," she said. "I enrolled in the University of Tennessee on a Red Cross scholarship. In June, 1961, I received an M. A. degree in social work.

"At the same time, I was offered an assistantship in social work at the University and a scholarship provided on a merit basis by the Nashville Jewish Community Center," Miss Beasley said. "That made it possible for me to continue my graduate studies another year."

For the third time, Miss Beasley was assigned to Maxwell Air Force Base. She had not lost contact with the Red Cross work there, however, for during the summer vacations, she had returned from Nashville to serve with the Southeastern Area Training Center, a school at Maxwell for new career hospital Red Cross staff personnel.

From August, 1961, until August, 1963, Miss Beasley served at Maxwell as hospital recreation supervisor and recreation training director.

Davey Crockett Team Makes Motion Picture

By John Holland

Although the movie - making outfit was not of the Hollywood type, the procedures, techniques and processes were basically the same.

The movie unit was from the Army Pictorial Center, Long Island, N. Y., and was at The Infantry School to make a 90-minute training film on the Davy Crockett, a weapon designed to provide organic nuclear fire support to Infantry and Armor units.

The soldier - actors involved, members of the Weapons Department Mortar Committee's D Instructional (Davy Crockett) Team, were SFC Wyley M. Brown, SFC James A. Fowler, SSgt. Haskel R. Riddle, Sgt. Curtiss A. Peterson and Sp4 Thomas C. Love. SFC Billy R. Lynn, senior enlisted instructor for D Team, served as technical adviser.

The film will be used by the Army for instructing troops in the field and will show what a Davy Crockett crew must do in preparation for actual firing of the nuclear projectile and out - of - action steps to be taken after the firing is completed.

Getting the film to troops in the field will not only assist those men who have been trained by D Team, but to those personnel who are not able to come to Fort Benning for training.

The camera crew, headed by director Jim Zernecke, was scheduled for two weeks of filming, but heavy rains and shifting cloud formations forced delays in the outdoor shooting at Dickman Field and the crew's stay extended into a third week.

Army Engineer Corps Erecting Giant Structure

The structure is the $100-million - plus Vertical Assembly Building for the Saturn V space vehicle which will power the Apollo spacecraft on the first manned landing trip to the moon.

When completed in 1965, the building will be the largest ever constructed, enclosing 125 million cubic feet of space—more than half again as large as the Pentagon.

Approximately 52,000 tons of structural steel will go into the framework of the assembly building while another 21,500 tons of steel will make up the 128 miles of piles forming the foundation.

The 7.5 million pound thrust rocket and its Apollo spacecraft will be constructed vertically on a huge launch platform.

After checkout of the rocket the whole assembly will be picked up by a giant crawler-transporter and carried several miles to the launch area on the Atlantic Coast north of Cape Canaveral.

The Army Corps of Engineers is the design and construction agent for NASA's manned spaceflight program, and manages construction contracts in the Merit Island Marsh area.

Ranger 6 Cameras Will 'Shoot' Moon

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — When the U.S. Ranger 6 spacecraft is launched later this year it is hoped that detailed pictures of the moon's surface will be transmitted back to earth via Vidicon TV cameras.

The Ranger's cameras will bring into focus suitcase-sized objects.

'Old Ironsides' Cannot Travel; Will Miss Fair

NEW YORK (AFPS) — "Old Ironsides" won't be at the New York World's Fair in 1964. The Navy has decided that the voyage from Boston, where she is now berthed, might be unsafe for the 166-year-old frigate. The ship is famous for actions against the Barbary pirates and in the War of 1812.

Senators Leverett Saltonstall (Rep.) and Edward Kennedy (Dem.) of Massachusetts led the fight to keep "Old Ironsides" — officially the USS Constitution—at its berth in the Charleston Navy Yard, Boston.

Dental Clinic Treats 3,000 With Flouride

By Capt. Robert Cross

Our school program for 1963-1964 will again include fluoride treatments. It would be worthwhile to explain what your child receives from this program.

Each year, using the present technique, we can expect to clean and apply topical fluoride to the teeth of at least 3,000 children. It is difficult to determine the dollar and cents worth of this combined treatment, but some of the known values will be given.

First, due to the use of the fluoride and with tooth-brushing, we can be certain of at least a 50 per cent decrease in new tooth decay. This, of course, is extremely important but let's look at some of the other worthwhile benefits.

The prophylaxis, or cleaning, has a great value, also. Most cases of periodontal disease, or pyorrhea, start during the teenage years. Usually, it is not determined as such until the patient is an adult. By having this routine program of cleaning, we hope to prevent many cases of pyorrhea, by teaching the patient proper care.

The added attention given to the child often makes the difference between good home care and the absence of thorough brushing. Habits form in our patients at an early age, and the child must be taught early to guarantee good results. Each of us likes to feel important, and the child appreciates the extra attention he receives on a personal basis.

Another benefit of the program is the arrestment of much early decay, preventing the cavities from growing larger. This should not be taken for granted by anyone. Final judgment as to whether a tooth needs filling or not rests with the dentist. It is generally accepted that many small cavities treated with fluoride will not require filling.

The hygienists this year will also increase their individual home care instructions to each patient. We want to see that the care given to the child is not wasted. Lack of brushing at home can undo all the benefits the child receives from the treatment at school. Make certain to fill out the form your child brings home, and see that it is returned promptly.

More Taking Advantage Of Educational Chances

Increasing numbers of military personnel are taking advantage of the educational opportunities provided by the Army's Educational Development Program. The vast educational program for military personnel was established by the Army in recognition of the need to supplement military training with civilian education.

The GED program is operated at 305 education centers located on Army installations throughout the world. Approximately 300 professional civilian educators are employed in the Army as career administrators of the program for local commanders.

Particularly encouraging to the commanders was the increase in completions of Military Occupational Specialty related courses which showed a gain of more than 33,000 over the previous year. Typical of such courses are classes in mathematics to prepare students for attendance at guided missile schools.

In order to provide opportunity for military personnel to improve their performance potential, the Army has made special provision for the study of foreign languages. During the past year, military personnel studied 36 different foreign languages ranging from Hindustani to Serbo-Croatian — a Slavic language dominant in Yugoslavia.

Some 41,840 soldiers completed the high school GED test battery which is accepted by the Army and many civilian schools as the equivalent of high school completion. The number of military personnel completing college degrees each year is also significant, with 743 officers and enlisted men receiving baccalaureate or advance degrees during Fiscal Year 1963.

Ladies Puffing Long Stogies; Cause Shortage

NEW YORK (AFPS) — Other reasons than the lack of Cuban tobacco have caused a shortage of your favorite cigar at the post exchange tobacco shop. The fair sex has adopted the use of the elongated weed.

Newspaper reports show that a Mrs. Sally Bison, a cigar smoking Phi Beta Kappa from Wellesley College, is seeking to have women admitted to the membership of the Cigar Smokers of America, an all male organization.

Her previous request to join the Boston Humidor — another cigar smoking men's group — was turned down by the men. After this she threatened to form a humidorette for women. She claims 1,000 women in this country are regular cigar smokers today.

She points out that Amy Lowell, sister of a former Harvard president and a renowned poetess, was well known for her cigar smoking habits.

11th Air Assault Readies for Test

Approximately 3,000 Sky Soldiers and 200 aircraft from the 11th Air Assault Division and the 10th Air Transport Brigade, are scheduled to undergo the first formal test of the bold new air assault concept.

The test will take place at Fort Stewart, beginning Sept. 23 and ending Oct. 15. Called Sky Soldier I the test will be divided into four phases with an administrative break following each phase.

The test unit will be of reinforced battalion size and testing will be conducted by the Test, Evaluation and Control Group (TEC). All actions and steps taken by the Army's newest division will be carefully watched and weighed by members of the TEC teams. TEC controllers will also monitor the test and hold critiques after each phase of Sky Soldier I has been concluded.

Brig. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general of the 11th Air Assault Division, has commented on the tremendous progress of his Sky Soldiers thus far. The 11th has participated in exercises from squad to battalion level at Fort Stewart during the past several months.

Two brigade controlled exercises were completed there in August in preparation for the test. Exercises Eagle Strike and Eagle Claw were held recently on the Fort Benning reservation with the division headquarters participating.

CONARC Chief

Gen. John K. Waters, Continental Army commander, and Lt. Gen. Albert Watson, II, Third Army commander, were on hand to watch the Sky Soldiers go into action during Eagle Claw.

Flexibility will be the major theme for the Fort Stewart bound Sky Soldiers during this test. The 1st Air Assault Brigade, commanded by Col. George S. Beatty Jr., will be the major command tactical headquarters to which combat and supporting units will be attached to perform specific missions.

The Infantrymen of the 3d Battalion, 187th Inantry, commanded by Lt. Col. John J. Hennessey, will have the task of providing lean and mean troops who are as at home landing in helicopters as they are rappelling from them.

Aerial Marriage

This aerial marriage of Army aviation and combat-equipped Infantrymen gives the 11th Air Assault Division the power to strike an enemy and keep him off balance.

The unique unit which distinguishes the Air Assault Division from all others is the 11th Air Assault Division Aviation Group under the command of Col. George P. Seneff. Here is where the aircraft, both helicopter and fixed-wing are concentrated. This group will provide the eyes and ears for the division with its air cavalry troop whose fast, armed helicopters pack a punch as heavy as conventional artillery.

Ahead of the cavalry will be the Army's Mohawk surveillance aircraft using their detection capabilities to direct artillery and rocket firing helicopters to profitable targets.

DivArty

Division artillery, under the command of Col. Richard T. Knowles, is the Army's first complete air mobile division artillery unit. Under the air assault concept the new artillery commands a totally new and radical departure from the days of the rumbling caissons or ground-bound artillery pieces. The challenge of this concept of artillery deployment will be called upon to support assault infantry troops in a style of warfare where there are no front lines or fixed emplacements.

In addition to the new XM-102 model 105mm howitzers the unit has several specialized weapons. The Little John rocket adds a fast striking nuclear capability and versatile helicopter mounted aerial rockets insure potent fire-power on an objective from aircraft which fly in the same formation with the assault troops.

300TH BABY CALMLY SUCKS HIS FINGERS
Capt. Sescia (L), Watches Sgt. and Mrs. Hernandez

New Record

Stork Kept Busy at MAH

Little Joe Hernandez began his life by breaking a record for Martin Army Hospital. Joe was the 300th baby born in August, a number never before reached at Fort Benning.

The fifth child of Sgt. and Mrs. Jesus Hernandez of Corpus Christi, Texas, little Joe enjoyed all the honors and privileges of a champion, even though the two and a half days remaining in August produced 27 more new military dependents.

With 327 babies born during the month, an average of more than 10 per day, the record for 1963 is apt to exceed by far the 2,705 babies born at the hospital in 1962.

At midnight, Aug. 31, the total for this year was 2,961.

If September and October prove as fruitful as August, Martin Army Hospital personnel may consider November and December babies as a "bonus" for the year.

Babies are nothing new to Joe's parents.

"Our oldest son, Jesus Hernandez II was born at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., six years ago," Sgt. Hernandez said. "Joyce was born two years later in a civilian hospital in Corpus Christi. That was because I was in Korea."

"The next year Janet was born at Fort Devens, Mass. We went back to Fort Leonard Wood in time for Johnnie to be born there a year and a half ago," he continued. "And now we have Joe, born at Fort Benning."

Mrs. Hernandez is the former Ruby Kelly of Duke, Mo. Sgt. Hernandez is a member of Company C, 1st Battalion, 87th Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division.

Benning 11 On the Road This Week

The Fort Benning Doughboy eleven will travel to Camp Lejeune, N. C. this weekend in quest of their second consecutive victory of the young '63 season.

Going back to the middle of the 1961 season, the Doughboys have won 17 straight games.

Coach Oren DeHaven reports that the team will be in top condition to meet the always tough leathernecks.

Three men suffered minor injuries in last week's 58-0 romp over Southwest Florida, but Coach DeHaven expects team depth to cover for the injured starters.

High Holy Days Set To Begin on Sept. 18

At sunset Wednesday, Sept. 18, Jewish personnel will begin the age-old celebration of the High Holy Days.

Beginning with an Eve of Rosh Hashana service at 8 p.m. at the Main Post Jewish Center, New Year observances will continue until sunset Saturday, Sept. 21.

On Sept. 19, the first day of the New Year, Rosh Hashana services will be conducted at the Center at 9 a.m. and 7 p.m.; Sept. 20, the second day of the New Year, at 9 a.m. and 8 p.m., and on Sept. 21, special Sabbath services at 9:30 a.m.

Observance of the High Holy Days has special significance for Jewish families throughout the world.

The period from Rosh Hashana to Yom Kippur, which will be celebrated Sept. 28, is known as the "10 days of repentance." The time is to be devoted to careful self-examination, confession of wrongdoing and attempts by the worshipper to establish a closer communion with God and his fellow man.

The Rosh Hashana service stresses the idea that character can be changed by self-scrutiny and repentance. The individual thus becomes entitled to be inscribed in the

CAA Drive Kickoff Set For Monday

The Community Activities Association Fund Drive, which kicks off Monday has set its goal at $135,661.

The goal was announced this week by Maj. Gen. C.W.G. Rich, post commander.

Gen. Rich, along with Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, 2nd Division commander, and Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Reuben Jenkins, will officially kick off this year's drive at Theater No. 1 at 9 a.m. Monday.

The CAA Fund Drive, which is operated in conjunction with the Muscogee and Russell Counties' United Givers Campaign, supports three on-post agencies and contributes to the support of 32 agencies in the neighboring civilian communities.

sion Support Command, under the guiding hand of Col. Robert C. Shaw, provides the majority of the combat service support. The command also provides maintenance support, air ambulance support plus normal medical facilities.

Col. Delbert L. Bristol and his 10th Air Transport Brigade, which is an attached unit of the 11th, will provide additional air-lift capabilities to maintain an air line of communications. Like the famed truck companies of World War II, the brigade's mission is to provide troops and cargo transport for the air mobile Sky Soldiers. All units in the 10th are also capable of providing both communications and local security forces in tactical situations.

Communications will be provided by the 511th Signal Battalion under the command of Lt. Col. Tom M. Nicholson, 11th Division signal officer. Its mission is to provide immediate and dependable communications under conditions of wide dispersation and fast deployment. It will furnish all signal support for the entire exercise at Fort Stewart.

Company A, 127th Engineer Battalion, commanded by Capt. Leon A. Zolnowski, intends to make its motto, "That Others May Follow," a reality during the test slated at Fort Stewart. In addition to constructing fortifications, minefields, obstacles and such other normal engineer functions, they will also be preparing helipads and landing sites for the air vehicles of the Sky Soldiers.

When the dust settles on Sky Soldier I at Fort Stewart on Oct. 15 and the troops return to their home base at Fort Benning, they do so with the knowledge that future air assault troops will employ the tactics and doctrine developed and tested by the pioneers of the air mobile concept.

Work, Boy and Girl Scout groups, cerebral palsy research and treatment, and several other health, welfare ando character building agencies.

In urging post personnel to participate in the drive, Gen. Rich said, "Consider your personal assets and advantages over those less fortunate and then make your contribution in accordance with the dictates of your conscience."

Gen. Rich said the "primary objective" of the drive is "one hundred per cent fair share participation by all personnal at this installation."

At a meeting of fund drive team captains this week project officer, Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Arthur J. Estes, pointed out that the individual fair share was less than one-half day's pay.

Col. Robert Williams, chairman of the drive and commander of the 197th Infantry Brigade, said this week, "The importance of Fort Benning's annual CAA Fund Drive cannot be over-emphasized.

"The contributions support and make possible those organizations and activities which make the American way of life the envy of the world. Each individual who contributes his fair share of the money in this fund drive can take pride in the fact that he has demonstrated his faith in his community, and his desire to take an active part in it."

The drive will run from Sept. 16 to Nov. 15.

Holy Days

"Book of Life."

A ram's horn, called the Shofar, is sounded at intervals during the service. The horn has an ancient meaning as well as a modern one to the Jews.

During Biblical times, when danger frequently threatened the Children of Israel, the Shofar was sounded as a signal of alarm. Its present use in the Rosh Hashana service signifies a warning of sin and an urgent time honored call to God's people to forsake their sinful ways and return to the fold.

The 10 days of repentance lead up to Yom Kippur, a day of prayer and fasting.

Brush Fire Turns Tables On 11th Officer

A Chemical Corps officer who has provided many smoke screens for Army troops had the tables turned on him Sunday when he was enveloped in a smoke cloud.

Capt. Harlan J. Brady, commanding officer of the 11th Administration Company, 11th Air Assault Division Support Command, and his wife were out driving in the Sand Hill area off St. Mary's Road, when they noticed smoke coming from a small brush-fire.

Capt. Brady stopped his car and told his wife to call the Post Fire Department, while he took some blankets from the car and proceeded to try to put out the fire. Soon he had it under control. When the firemen arrived on the scene the fire was out.

Asked later about the fire, Capt. Brady remarked: "I've layed down many smoke screens as a chemical officer, but this is the first time I have had to do away with one."

High Holy Days Message

It is with utmost pleasure that I extend to the men and women of the Jewish faith assigned to this installation my sincerest best wishes for the coming High Holy Days.

These important festivals of Rosh Hoshana, the New Year and Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, will be observed with full solemnity at this and other military installations throughout the country. While all of you are most welcome to attend services on the reservation, I sincerely hope that it will be possible for most of you to spend this important season with your loved ones at your home synagogues and temples.

May the New Year usher in a time of peace and universal brotherhood that we all so earnestly desire.

Cold Statistics Tell Of E. German Shame

Statistics can often be extremely boring to read or hear. But the Federal German Press Office has compiled a set which is quite thought-provoking.

The following was taken from the Aug. 19 edition of Focus on Germany, an official publication of the Federal Republic:

"It is now two years since the Communists in the Soviet Zone of Germany started to build their Wall across Berlin. The following statistics, officially compiled illustrate some of the consequences:

Length of wall	9 3-8 miles
Length of barbed wire barriers	80 1-8 miles
Shelters and firing posts	229
Observation towers	131
Observation screens	57
Stationary loudspeakers	91
Known cases in which the Communist guards have fired on would-be escapes	618
Cases in which tear gas has been used by the Communist Guards	404
Persons arrested by Communist police at the sector boarder	1,519
Members of the Soviet Zone's "armed organs" fleeing to West	369
Persons sentenced by Zonal Courts for "political offenses"	1,422

Schools Open Door To Understanding

Schools have either just reopened or will reopen soon.

Youngsters of military personnel stationed all over the world will return to their books after a summer if frolicking and freedom from study. College students will go back to their classrooms where professors will try to explain to them the world in which they live.

Education, it will be reiterated again and again, leads to better jobs, higher pay, and better opportunities for wealth and fame. Dropouts will be urged to return to school in order not to forfeit higher wages and more attractive employment. In all, the major emphasis on education seems to be as an investment for better material returns and economic well-being.

It would be wrong to disregard or deny the economic advantages inherent in education. However, we should also stress and emphasize the ultimate purpose of true education. It is to grow to "know thyself" and to know others. Knowing others will lead to understanding and true understanding will lead to the respect for your fellow man.

In the world in which we live, the understanding of and respect for fellow men is more important and more difficult to achieve than any other goal. If the goal is reached it will lead to true world peace and bring certain self satisfaction to all individuals at a time when anxiety, tension and disaffection MUST fade away.

It is up to the halls of learning to open the portals of the human heart to these truths. (AFPS)

Better Slow Than Sorry

By Chaplain James M. Reaves

Nine out of every ten automobile accidents could have been prevented if the driver had not been speeding. Going too fast kills or injures people every day.

Going too fast wrecks lives and breaks homes every day. Young men and women especially need to slow up in making decisions that will affect the rest of their lives.

An old saying goes, "Marry in haste and you will repent in leisure." Many wrecked marriages and broken homes could have been prevented if the couple had not been in such a hurry to get married or divorced.

Your Chaplain, be he a Minister, Priest or Rabbi, is always ready to talk over any problem or decision which may be facing you, but he will urge you to go slow in making any decision because he knows you may well be sorry later if you rush into anything.

Sen. Roman L. Hruska (R., Nebr.) urged that President Kennedy take immediate, firm action to halt an increase in the number of government employees. In FY63, Hruska said in a statement, the number of federal jobholders reached the highest level in a decade and total salaries of federal workers were the highest in history.

The Judge Says . . .

BY CAPT. DAVID E. REBBIN

The subject of worthless checks is familiar to all commanders. In practically every company on post, the commander has had to deal with the worthless check problem in one manner or another.

As you know, there is more than one reason why a check may be worthless. Perhaps we have all at one time or another allowed our checking account balance to slip a little below where we would like to see it. Many of us have written checks knowing that we did not have sufficient funds in the bank to cover the amount of the check, but counting on the fact that we were going to deposit some money soon. This is especially true around payday.

Some have even written checks knowing that they would be dishonored, but hoping that they would have the money to "pick up" the check by the time it "bounced."

You can avoid grief and hardship by practicing strict discipline and careful arithmetic in maintaining your check studs and abiding by the following DOs and DON'Ts:

DO be sure that you are thoroughly familiar with your bank's regulations and policies relating to checking accounts.

DO find out the types and amounts of service charges, penalties for overdrafts, and miscellaneous charges made by your bank, and if you have any doubt regarding your checking account balance, DO take time to verify it with your bank before writing another check.

DO use only one checkbook for an account, even if you and your wife have a joint account, and always keep your checkbook handy so you will use only blank checks from it.

DO enter the amount of the check on the stub at the time you write it and carry your balance forward.

DO ask for monthly bank statements and make it a practice to "balance" your check book each time you receive your statement.

DON'T write a check on money not actually in the bank but which you expect to have on deposit in time.

DON'T depend on your wife or relatives or friend to make a deposit to cover your checks.

By observing these DOs and DON'Ts, you will insure against one of your checks being returned because of insufficient funds.

As I have previously stated, there is more than one reason why a check may be worthless.

I have thus far mainly discussed carelessness. There is also the person who willfully passes a bad check, knowing that he does not have the money in his checking account to cover the amount of the check, or who writes a check on a non-existent account.

Under the Unifirm Code of Military Justice, these are criminal offenses. In effect, this is tantamount to stealing the money from the person who cashed the check for you. Furthermore, the Uniform Code of Military Justice provides that if a dishonored notice of such dishonor, the presumption is that there was criminal intent present at the time that the check was cashed. This does not mean that there is no offense if the bad check is not redeemed within five days of offense is committed when the check is cashed. The five day provision relates only to the matter of proof of the offense on trial.

So you see, there is not only a chance of you ruining your good credit if you do not keep track of your checking account, there is also the distinct possibility of your being charged with a criminal offense punishable by imprisonment.

TIS Depts. Honing Techniques for Demonstrations

The 75 principal conferees and 90 Continental Army Command (CONARC) guests expected to arrive Sept. 25 for the Department of Defense's 33rd Joint Civilian Orientation Conference (JCOC) will get a close look at the Army fighting man, his training, firepower available to him and his mobility.

Various departments and support units of The Infantry School presently are honing their techniques for six major demonstrations. These training problems include weapons of the Infantry at Hook Range, Rangers in action at Victory Pond, rifle company team in defense at Ruth Range, Army aviation and Pathfinders and joint airborne troop carrier demonstrations at Fryar Field, and a firepower and airmobile assault demonstration at Underwood Road.

This year's JCOC not only will include approximately 165 principals and guests, but about 350 representatives from various armed forces schools, who are slated to attend the three phases of JCOC.

The three phases include Navy - Marine training at Norfolk, Va., Army training here and Air Force training at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

The conferees, who are slated to arrive at 11 a.m. Sept. 25 will have a busy afternoon and night ahead of them, since they will attend the weapons of the Infantry, Rangers in action and rifle company team in defense problems that day.

During the weapons of the Infantry demonstration, they will see the wide array of weapons upon which the Infantryman can call and defend, incuding the M-14 rifle, M-60 machinegun, hand grenades, grenade launchers, flame throwers, 4.2 inch and 81-mm mortars, the Davy Crockett weapons system, mines, 3.5 inch rocket launchers, 106-mm and 90-mm recoilless rifles, the M-1 and M-60 tanks and antitank guided missiles.

At Victory Pond, they will observe hand to hand combat demonstrations by Army Rangers, including the disarming of an enemy, "pugil stick" training, survival and reptile demonstrations, the art of military mountaineering and Ranger confidence tests.

The rifle company team in defense demonstration at Ruth Range is designed to illustrate the firepower of the unit and to show its employment against an attacking enemy at night. The probem is divided into three phases; a discussion of the organization for defense of a rifle company team; a demonstration of the fires of weapons located within the company area or in support of the company, and a demonstration of the conduct of defense of a rifle company team as a part of a battalion participating in a defense.

During the night demonstration, riflemen and machinegunners will fire full tracer ammunition in order that principals and guests may see the firepower.

Wednesday morning (Sept. 26) principals and guests will be oriented on airborne training at Eubanks Field before going to Fryar Field for the Army aviation and Pathfinder and joint airborne - troop carrier demonstrations.

JCOC guests will see Army Pathfinders jump from U-1A Otters at Fryar Field, to establish a drop zone for an air drop which will occur later, the joint airborne-troop carrier portion of the presentation.

OCS Luncheon

From Fryar Field, the JCOC group will go to Victory Pond, enroute to Underwood Road, for a luncheon sponsored by the Officer Candidate School.

At Underwood Road, a presentation designed to display elements of the Army's new ROAD (Reorganization Objectives Army Division) concept will be demonstrated, with emphasis on the flexibility of organization, available weapons and firepower, battlefield mobility and combined arms.

Following a review of the ROAD organization, a demonstration of the Infantry's principal supporting arm, the artillery, and the airmobile assault demonstration will be given.

In Phase II of the demonstration, weapons, equipment, techniques and organizations representing part of the Army's ability to fulfill its many-sided mission will be employed on a "nuclear battlefield." Army aviation, aircraft of the Air Force's Air Command and supporting fires of artillery will be merged with Infantry, tank, and other tactical elements of a mechanized Infantry division, to form a combined arms team in an airmobile assault and coordinated attack on prepared enemy positions.

In addition to these major demonstrations, conferees and guests will be oriented on the Army's overall role in the counterinsurgency movement, see a Civil Affairs School (Fort Gordon, Ga.) display portraying civic acts to assist underdeveloped countries to improve themselves and witness a skydiving exhibition by members of the Fort Benning Sports Parachute Club.

The principals and guests will be honored at an official reception and dinner at the Main Officers' Open Mess Supper Club beginning at 6:30 p.m. Thursday (Sept. 26) and some guests will depart that night, while others will leave the next morning (Sept. 27).

Emulate Your Ideal?

Not Every Time, Soldier!

By Sp4 Frank Luzzi

Remember way, way back during basic training when you were told that one of the best methods for becoming a good soldier was to select one whom you admired and emulate him in every way possible?

Early in August 1st Lt. Clarence D.Griffith Jr., commander of Company B, 806th Engineer Battalion (Construction), became the papa of a son, the second born to him and Mrs. Griffith.

In quick succession, as rapidly as machine gun fire, Sp4 Billy Parker and PFC's Peter Cahill and Gary Johns were presented with offspring by their respective spouses. All were born in August and all were boys.

Lt. Griffith reports that he may call a meeting of married personnel in the company and explain that even though he admires their efforts, this is one field of endeavor where personal judgment and initiative would be preferred,and that in no way should anyone feel obligated to match his accomplishments in such matters.

Weight Limits Going Up On Household Shipments

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Weight limitations for shipment of household goods are to be increased 500 pounds for officers up to 0-4 grade and all enlisted men entitled to such shipment.

Officers in the 0-5 grade will receive a 1,000-lb. increase bringing them to the maximum permitted by law, 11,000 lbs.

No definite date for the increase was given, but Defense Department officials said it was just a matter of changing the existing Joint Travel Regulations with regards to weight limitations.

The change resulted from a study instituted by the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Manpower) Norman S. Paul when it was discovered that increasing numbers of uniformed personnel were finding themselves in debt to the government for overweight shipments.

With the change, E-4s with over four years service will be allowed 5,000 lbs.; E-5s, 5,500 lbs. and each next higher grade an additional 500 lbs. up to the E-9s 7,500-lb. limitation.

Wife of TEC Commander

Mrs. Jean Williams Accepts Women's Club Post

By Marge Lennon

Although Jean Williams has only been at Fort Benning a little over two weeks, she has already become known as a truly delightful and charming personality and has made many new friends.

As the wife of Brig. Gen. Robert R. Williams, commanding general of the TEC Group, formed to evaluate the 11th Air Assault Division, she recently accepted the role of honorary board member of the Women's Club.

While in her early teens, Jean Blair and her family moved to Evenston Wyo. Her father was a pharmacist. It was there in high school that she met and became friends with Robert Williams. They later parted however, as each went their separate ways to college — she to Utah and Wyoming Universities and he to West Point.

When Cadet Williams was in his third year at the Military Academy, he came home on a 3 month leave (a system which has since been changed). "It was at this time," says Mrs. Williams, "that we really became good friends!"

He graduated from the Point in 1940 and they were married on Valentines Day, 1941, at Fort Sill, Okla., their first post.

Several posts and three children later, the Williams' household was kept jumping by the activities of "Missy," an 8-year-old Dachshund, and Keith, 11, who is an avid golf and horseback riding fan. Keith is a 6th grader at Faith School.

Pretty Kathleen, 17, is a senior at Columbus High School. When she was born in Spokane, Wash., while her dad was in Europe Kathleen's parents were quite relieved to find she was a girl! Both had selected the name Kathleen if it turned out to be a girl, but they just couldn't agree on a boy's name.

The Army has taken the Williams' on tours to Norfolk, Va.; Fort Sill, Okla.; Stutgart, Germany; Carlisle Barracks, Pa.; twice to Fort Rucker, Ala. (where General Williams was one of the men who formed the Army Aviation Board) and twice to Washington, D.C.

"Pentagon duty was hard work and long hours. Although we loved the atmosphere of Washington, the Pentagon pace was frantic."

At the time of his promotion, Gen. Williams was the 2nd youngest general in the Army, the youngest beating him by two months!

Petite Jean Williams (exactly 5' tall) enjoys ceramics, sewing, and flower gardening. She has been a Grey Lady and nurses aide for 7 years. At Fort Rucker she helped organize teen activities and has been a den mother and Girl Scout leader. In Montgomery, Ala., she was on the Girl Scout board.

Reflecting her own personality, the Williams home is decorated with warm, happy colors in a contemporary design. In one corner of the living room sits a three-tiered marble fountain with magnolia pods and philodendrum plants. It is backed by a walnut shuttered screen.

Many ebony and teak wood carvings are scattered throughout the house.

"The saddest part of being in the Army," commented Mrs. Williams, "is leaving old friends. And yet the happiest part is seeing them again after many years."

Needless to say, the Women's Club is thrilled to have her. This energetic, sparkling and friendly woman will be a valuable asset to our club in the coming year.

Custer Terrace Will Be Scene Of Jewish Tea

The Jewish Sisterhood at Fort Benning will entertain new members at a tea at 2:30 Sept. 17 at the Custer Terrace Branch of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The first meeting of the 1963-1964 season, the tea will feature an orientation for new Jewish personnel on activities and facilities of the Main Post Jewish Center, Bldg. 1071 Hospital Area.

Information booklets have been prepared and will be distributed at the tea.

Guests will be welcomed by the Sisterhood president, Mrs. Edward Karl.

The invocation will be given by Mrs. Alfred B. Landsberg.

Chaplain Landsberg will address the group.

Invitations have been sent to Jewish ladies in the Fort Beining area. Anyone who has not received an invitation and wishes to attend is requested to telephone Mrs. Epstein at 689-8332 or Mrs. Rubenstein at 687-2555.

OC Wives Hold Coffee In Dayroom

The organizational coffee of the 50th Company Officer Candidate's Wives Club was held recently in the company dayroom.

Honored guests were Mrs. Claude Baker, Mrs. Donald Holmes, Mrs. George McLendon, Mrs. Carl Unlaub and Mrs. Robert Benning.

Lt. Holmes, 50th Company commander, introduced the tactical officers and gave an introductory speech concerning the Officer Candidate School. Each tactical officer conducted the wives on a tour of the building.

Mrs. Unlaub discussed how to write, send and reply to written invitations.

Mrs. Holmes conducted the nominations for officers and those elected were as follows: chairman, Mrs. Hilbert Chole; co-chairman, Mrs. Kenneth Gilbert; treasurer, Mrs. John Wiest; publicity chairman, Mrs. James Hicks, and hospitality chairman, Mrs. Nicholas Romaine.

The next coffee will be held in October in the 50th Company dayroom.

Mrs. Viestenz, Mrs. McCluskey Guests at Coffee

The wives of the Infantry officers' basic course No. 3 met for their follow-up coffee recently in the dayroom of Detachment 21, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade.

Monarchs Crowned At Dance

The dance, attended by fifty children ages 9 to 16, celebrated the graduation of the advanced students and promotion of the beginners' clases to the advanced group.

Corsages and boutonnieres were presented to Jenny Ely, Linda Miles, Janie Wayment, Maureen Gagliano, Alan Wayment, Nell Coghill, John Green, Tom Jones, and Eric Kobaly for their outstanding attendance record.

MOOM Honors Gen. Williams For TEC Group

The Test Evaluation and Control Group (TEC Group) honored Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Robert R. Williams at a reception in the Main Officers' Open Mess recently.

Gen. Williams last week assumed command as chief of the TEC Group which is analyzing tests of the air assault concept by the 11th Air Assault Division.

Among the guests were Maj. Gen. C. W. G. Rich, commanding general, U.S. Army Infantry Center, and Mrs. Rich, and Brig. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general of the 11th Air Assault Division, and Mrs. Kinnard.

IOBC No. 1 Wives View Travel Slides At Club Luncheon

The supper club lounge of the Main Officers' Open Mess was the scene of a luncheon recently for wives of students of Infantry officers' basic course No. 1, 2nd Student Battalion, the Student Brigade.

Mrs. Henry Peckham and Miss Ann Dismukes of the Harris Travel Agency of Columbus showed slides of places of travel and also of fashions to the 26 ladies attending.

Honored guests were Mrs. C. W. G. Rich, Mrs. John Norton, Mrs. J. G. Cornett, Mrs. Claude W. Baker, Mrs. Arthur Estes, Mrs. Ralph J. Viestenz and Mrs. William E. Killoran.

Sword and Pen Holds Fall Dinner

The Sword and Pen, the Fort Benning chapter of the Armed Forces Writers' League, held their first fall meeting at the Black Angus Ranch on Sunday, September 8th, at 2:00 p.m.

Eight o'clock comes and everyone is impatiently waiting for the school bus. By quarter after eight, high school teens have been packed into the cars like sardines, and are ready to begin their journey to Baker, Columbus or the Freshmen Center.

Once the students enter the school building, they report to their homeroom for morning devotional and various "exciting" preliminaries in the commencement of school.

After three months of vacation, you might find it very very hard to get back into the groove of studying. Instead of paying attention to the "professor" you might be laughing at Betty Boisvert because Dickie Bowlen pulled the chair out from under her.

Or, you may be thinking about that party Saturday night that Karen Kendall and Kay Eckland threw. The party was no elaborate affair. There were about fifty teens there from varied schools. Many of them retreated to the television room when the Miss America Pageant was on, while others danced away the evening.

Two "school life-savers" were Sally Scovill, and Susanne Cerrone. Sally and Susanne had their party Friday night at the Officer's Club Pool. Around 8:30, swimming was halted and dancing began. I understand that the affair was quite a success for the freshmen and sophomores.

Saturday afternoon was "dress-up" day for many Fort Benning girls when J.A.D.A. held its monthly luncheon. Among the topics of discussion was a newspaper drive. Flyers will be distributed before the street chairman collect the papers. Linda Taft is the chairman of the newspaper drive and has volunteered to store the papers until J.A.D.A. can dispose of them.

May I remind you again that the coke party is September 21 at ten o'clock. All freshmen and old members are invited.

Not only has the high school set gone back to school, but the college kids are beginning to break away. Joe Ely went back to Texas A&M Tuesday to begin his sophomore year. Richard Hodges left for the University of Alabama last Tuesday.

Know Your Senior NCOs

Sgt. Maj. Edward A. Owens, a veteran of both the Normandy Invasion and Pork Chop Hill, recently passed the 20-year service mark.

The 10th Artillery sergeant major was drafted into the Armed Forces on July 11, 1943 at Meridian, Miss. Soon after basic training Sgt. Owens joined the 29th Infantry Division to begin the first of 27 months of combat duty during World War II.

Just one year after entering the service, Sgt. Owens went ashore with the first wave at Omaha Beach during the Normandy Invasion June 6, 1944. At this time Sgt. Owens was a platoon sergeant with Co. E, 116th Infantry, 29th Division.

After the war Sgt. Owens returned to Fort Sill where he was assigned to the 6th Field Artillery Battalion.

At the outbreak of the Korean War the 10th Artillery sergeant major was sent overseas with the 48th Field Artillery, 7th Infantry Division and saw action at Pork Chop Hill. Sgt. Owens experienced 15 months of combat duty in Korea.

During his 20 years of service Sgt. Owens has had duty in 12 countries including Germany, France, Holland, Italy, Switzerland England, Spain, Belgium, Japan, Korea, Austria and the United States.

St. Owens' decorations include the Bronze Star with Bronze Arrowhead, Combat Infantryman Badge, Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster and eight battle stars.

Sgt. Owens presently resides at 25 Artillery Drive in Columbus with his wife. The couple has no children.

Gen. Liu Completes 2-Day Visit

Gen. Liu An-ch'i, commander in chief of the Republic of China Army, spent Monday and Tuesday at Fort Benning attending briefings and demonstrations at The Infantry School.

Accompanying Gen. Liu was Lt. Gen. Lu Fu-Ning, Chinese military attache to the United States, and Lt. Gen. T'ang Chun-po, commanding general of the Chinese Army's Logistic Command.

Following ceremonies on Chapel Field, Gen. Liu called on Maj. Gen. C. W. G. Rich, commanding general of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School.

He was briefed later on the organization and mission of both The Center and The School, and saw transition instruction firing of the M-60 machine gun and a weapons display.

A reception and dinner in Gen. Liu's honor were held at 7 p.m. Monday at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Teeth Shouldn't Be Used Except in Proper Manner

By Capt. Robert Cross

Do you really need your teeth? You don't use them to gnaw down trees as the beaver does. For those who are interested, and many of you might be, there are great numbers of beaver on Fort Benning reservation and just a little looking around some of the ponds will show you how their teeth work to cut trees.

You don't use your teeth for catching and killing your next meal like the fox or the wildcat. Again, you might see these, if you have the time and patience to look, for they too are there as their tracks will testify in many places.

I hope you don't use your teeth as nutcrackers or bottle openers, though some people do and sooner or later pay the consequences.

If you eat a diet of cakes, cookies, bread and mashed potatoes, crackers and overcooked vegetables, you probably can get along without them, but can you imagine sinking toothless gums in an inch thick, juicy, charcoil broiled, well-done on the outside and as-you-like-it in the inside steak. Can you imagine trying to eat fried chicken or corn-on-the-cob with no teeth, or raw carrots or celery?

And what about talking and finally, what about smiling? Admittedly you can smile and talk without teeth, but do you want to? There is something ludicrous and pathetic about the individual who has no teeth. You are lucky. You never need to be without your teeth if you follow the rules we have told you.

We hope that when you smile, the world smiles with you - not at you.

Ceremony Was Small But Promotion Big

By Ida C. Evans

From enlisted man to second lieutenant represents long hours of study and a lot of hard work for Benjamin Davis.

The new second lieutenant exchanged the emblem of specialist four for a gold bar, and the job of baker at Martin Army Hospital for that of a dietetics intern at Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco in a brief ceremony recently.

"It didn't take but a few seconds for Bob Reed to rip that 'Spec Four' insigne off my sleeve while Lt. (Billy A.) Heaton pinned the gold bar on my collar, but what a lot of hard work it represented," Davis said.

Study Route

"I took the study route to my commission," Lt. Davis said, "I had been in food service since I finished basic training in 1959 at Fort Jackson."

Davis continued, "I had eight weeks of training at the Food Service School at Fort Knox, Ky., experience as a ward food service NCO trainee at Fort Jackson, six months as the only E-4 mess steward in the 7th Division in Korea and almost two years as a cook in Japan."

From Japan, Davis went to Oakland, Calif., where he was discharged. The status of civilian was only temporary, however, for Davis headed for Fort Benning to arrange to re-enlist, work at night at Martin Army Hospital and attend Auburn (Ala.) University during the day.

Hospital Baker

"Since November, 1962, I have been a baker at the hospital," he said. "My hours were usually 7 p.m. to 4 a.m., depending upon what the hospital needed in my line. I worked sometimes seven and sometimes 12 hours a day, or rather, a night.

"I got my B.S. degree in food and nutrition on March 16. Really, it is a degree in home economics. For the past three months, I have been working toward a master's degree and hoping for this commission. Now I will go to Letterman as an intern in dietetics," he said.

Davis applied for the Reserve Medical Specialist Corps June 1. The approval came Aug. 22. He will report to Letterman Sept. 12.

Big Shock Awaited Col. Seneff

It was like opening your eyes after waking up from a four-day binge and finding all of your friends looking at you, or so it should have been to Col. George P. Seneff, commanding officer of the 11th Air Assault Division Aviation Group, recently during Exercise Eagle Claw.

On August 26, the opening day of the exercise, Col. Seneff was captured by unknown forces and whisked away by helicopter while blindfolded and tied. After a short flight and a heated interrogation, the chopper landed.

Another interrogation ensued and after it became evident the colonel wasn't going to "talk," he was doused with a bucket of ice water.

His captors, to show respect for the colonel's taciturnity, treated him to a bugle call of charge.

When his blindfold was finally removed he found himself at 403 Baltzell Ave., much to his surprise, his home. Strewn all around him were gaily wrapped packages and accompanying these were friends who joined in a collective round of "HAPPY BIRTHDAY."

Maj. C. E. Welch Slated to Speak

Maj. Charles E. Welch will be guest speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Armed Forces Management Association at 12 noon Sept. 17 at the Black Angus Restaurant in Columbus.

This will be the first meeting of the Fort Benning Chapter of the Association for the 1963-64 season.

Maj. Welch will discuss "Data Processing at The Infantry School." The presentation will include present procedures and future plans for the school's Data Processing Center. Major Welch is chief of the center.

Reservations for the luncheon may be made by telephoning LI 5-7973.

HEARST TROPHY WINNER . . . Lanny R. Bassham, a post dependent, received a plaque of the Hearst Rifle Trophy for being the top ROTC or Service Academy shooter in the National Trophy Individual Rifle Matches, at the 1963 Rifle and Pistol Matches, Camp Perry. Lanny is the son of Maj. William L. Bassham, a member of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit and team coach of the 215-man Army National Trophy team which took five firsts in the individual and team matches. Lanny is in Junior ROTC at Baker High School. The trophy, a 17th Century Spanish flintlock carbine, was donated by William Randolph Hearst from his private collection.

Col. Robert Williams Honored From Europe

Col. Robert M. Williams, commanding officer of the 197th Infantry Brigade, last Friday was presented the U.S. European Command Certificate of Achievement by Col. Adrian L. Hoebecke, deputy post commander. The certificate was for outstanding service during the period of June, 1961, to June, 1963 as chief, U.S. Army Section, Military Assistance Advisory Group (MAAG) of Spain, U.S. European Command.

The presentation was made at the Brigade Review Field with troops of the 29th Infantry, 58th Infantry, 69th Armor and 10th Artillery in attendance. The award was made at the recommendation of Maj. Gen. Joseph D. Caldara, U.S. Air Force, chief MAAG-Spain.

His letter of recommendation stated, "Col. Williams displayed driving leadership and great initiative in supervising the development and implementation of a wide range of effective management instruments for evaluating, planning and monitoring the Military Assistance Program for the Spanish Army ... "Furthermore, the information thus obtained (by the program) has been extremely useful in persuading the Spanish Army to recognize and frequently adopt the point of view of the MAAG in their preparation of priority lists for Military Assistance Program equipment and training.

"The achievement and maintenance of high levels of 'customer satisfaction' on the part of the Spanish bears valid testimony to Col. Williams' foresight and effectiveness in adopting successful measures for attaining harmony on these highly controversial matters.

"Col. Williams, by using his knowledge of the Spanish people and their language, won not only acceptance and cooperation, but also recognition as a respected military equal by Spanish officers far superior to him in age, rank and service."

The troops at the ceremony passed in review as 2nd Lt. Warren B. Williams, Company E, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, officiated as commander of troops. Also present at the review was the elite Company C, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, which is The Infantry Center Honor Guard. The Infantry Center Band provided music for the review.

Rehearsals for the Fort Benning Little Theater Group's Oct. 16, 17, 18, and 19 production of "The Lark," a dramatic and realistic description of Joan of Arc, are under way at the Little Theater (Bldg. 2519).

Vividly narrated by Little Theater veteran PFC Ted Martin, who also serves as the Earl of Warwick, the play evolves around the attractive, compelling peasant girl Joan, portrayed by Carolyn McGee.

The play, under the direction of Sp5 Peter Tatischeff, is taken from the book entitled "The Lark," written by Jean Anouilh and adpted for the American stage by Lillian Hellmann.

The play is built around the trial of Joan of Arc held in France in 1431. The peasant girl Joan, inspired by the religious intensity of the Middle Ages, throughout the play is examined by religious and political authorities of France and England.

Miss McGee re-enacts Joan's life through her most emotional experiences up until the time of her final confession, denial and her death.

Pvt. David Lile serves as Cauchon, the Bishop of Beauvis who, although he is a protector and a believer in Joan, is in many ways responsible for her death.

Capt. Richard Barratt as Beaudricourt, plays the forceful, but simple loyal officer of the Army who is completely won over by Joan. The La Hire, a professional captain in the Army and Joan's loyal battle partner is played by Pete Young.

Jerry Murray appears as the Dauphin, Charles VII of France, who is a clever son of a madman and totally abnormal woman. The Dauphin acts under the guise of a weak, silly and childish individual.

Brother Ladvenu is played by Sp4 George Angermann. Ladvenue is a monk who brings sympathetic youth and compassion to the trial.

With 17 principal characters and approximately 15 people playing monks, soldiers of France and England and the peasantry and notrility of France, the play promises both humor and emotional power.

42,743 Finish School In Army During 1963

During the same period nearly 42,000 soldiers qualified for high school diplomas through High School General Education Development (GED) Tests.

The GED program is operated at 305 education centers located in Army installations throughout the world, and approximately 300 professional civilian educators are employed by the Army as career administrators of the program.

Increases in nearly every phase of the education program were reported for Fiscal Year 1963. Of particular significance was the increase in completions of Military Occupational Speciality related courses which showed a gain of more than 33,000 over the previous year.

Typical of these are the mathematics refresher courses taken in preparation for attendance at guided missile schools.

Couse completions for the entire program totalling 657,178 during the year compared to 587,321 in FY62 and 488,399 in FY61.

Nike X System Test Success in Pacific

The Army has made another successful interception of a target vehicle launched on a 5,000 mile trajectory at intercontinental ballistic missile speed in the test program to develop its Nike X anti-missile missile system, the Department of Defense announced today.

The interceptor missile, a three stage Nike Zeus, was fired and controlled from the Army test installation on Kwajalein Island in the mid-Pacific.

Fired west over the Pacific Missile Range, the target vehicle was boosted by an Atlas ICBM launched from Vandenberg Air Force Base, California, in a training exercise carried out by the Strategic Air Command.

Components, concepts and techniques evaluated and proven in the test engagements are being applied to the Nike X system development, an advanced anti - missile missile system with greatly improved capability.

The Nike Zeus missile will be used in the Nike X system, as will other equipment developed in the earlier program. A high acceleration Spring missile and a multi-function array radar are also being developed for the Nike X system.

Gound distance from Kwajalein and the altitude of the intercept were not revealed. The Army said precise tracking equipment proved the Zeus missile got within killing distance of its taget.

Neither missile carried a live warhead.

A number of Nike Zeus missiles have been fired to date as part of the Nike Zeus development program. In addition to test firings against test targets and simulated targets fed into the computer from tapes), other firings have been conducted to verify missile structure and to test operation of the ground complex.

AWARDED COMMENDATION MEDAL
Col. Dickson and SFC Clawson

Redesignation of 87th Infantry Brings 9th & 23rd Back Home

By Bob de Camara

A change in names has returned two of the 2nd Infantry Division's original units from Europe where they had been stranded by the cancellation of the Rotaplan rotation system.

The Army's solution was easy. The 2nd Brigade's 1st and 2nd Battalions of the 87th Infantry have been redesignated the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry and the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry, the names of the two battalions overseas.

The name switching took place on Essebagger Field last week at a parade that doubled as an awards ceremony.

Two Army Commendation Medals were given and three squad leaders of the month honored along with two soldiers of the month.

The 9th and 23rd Infantries have been with the "Indianhead" Division since its inception on October 26, 1917 in Bourmont, France. The 87th Infantry is a comparative newcomer, joining the 2nd Division after the Korean Conflict.

The colors of the two battalions back from Europe stood on either side of the reviewing stand until the appropriate time in the ceremonies when they were presented to the unit commanders.

The two battalions in Germany will continue training with the 8th Infantry Division as the two battalions of the 87th. The only transfers taking place in this transactions are on paper. Neither personnel or equipment is involved.

An Army Commendation Medal Ribbon was awarded PSgt. Theodore S. Clawson of the 1st Battalion, 23rd for "meritorious service" with Combat Support Company of the 1st Battle Group, 26th Infantry in Germany from July 1962 to February 1963.

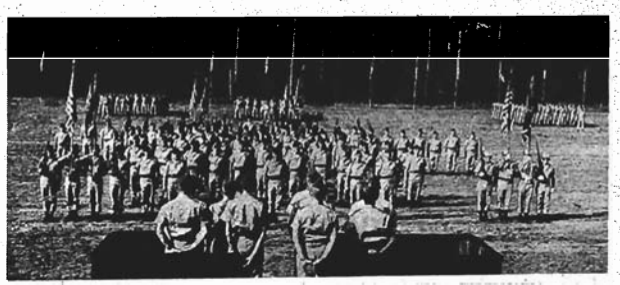
A squad leader from each battalion of the 2nd Brigade was recognized outstanding for the month of August in the parade field program. The 1st Battalion, 23rd's winner was SSgt. William Daly.

Sgt. Abraham L. Fields stood high man in the "2nd of the 23rd," and Sgt. Robert Kinney scored with the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry.

Two brigade soldiers of the month for July and August were noted. Carrying away the July prize was Sp4 Kenneth B. Hyatt of the 2nd Battalion, 23rd. The same battalion also supplied the August champion, Sp4 Harry G. Christy.

Present for the afternoon tribute and name changing were two of the "Indianhead" Division's three chieftains; Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general; and Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, assistant division commander.

Next to Col. Dickson in the reviewing stand was Lt. Col. John H. Cochran who commanded the 1st Battalion, 23rd in Germany before the name was transferred to the Fort Benning-based unit.



TROOPS LINE UP FOR AWARDS AT REDESIGNATION CEREMONY

2nd Brigade Finishes Amphibious Training

One hundred selected personnel representing all units in the "Indianhead" division completed the initial phase of instruction on Amphibious Training last week.

The graduation ceremony was held last Thursday on Kelley Hill. The select group will now go on to Little Creek, Va. where the "practical application" of what they have learned will be the order of the day.

The first phase of training dealt primarily with staff procedures. While this group was absorbing the classroom instruction members of their respective units were busy learning such things as how to climb mockup nets used in debarking Navy ships and how to meet and overcome different beach obstacles.

Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, assistant division commander, was the principle speaker at the graduation ceremony. Gen. Coffin praised the quality of instruction which was conducted by a Marine-controlled inter-service team, consisting of 28 officers and non - commissioned officers from the Amphibious Training School in Little Creek, Va. The General stressed the importance of being "adaptable in the field," and said he was looking forward to the upcoming amphibious exercise.

The highlight of the entire exercise will come on the final day of training when the "select group" will participate in a full scale amphibious landing on the beach at Camp Pendleton, Va.

This year the 2nd Brigade will be furnishing the units for participation in the Little Creek Exercise. There will be two phases of assault landings in conjunction with the Marines and Navy.

One 2nd Brigade unit will depart the 2nd Division area later in September and make an assault then return. While the first unit is returning another will be on its way for the final assault exercise.

By 1st Bn, 9th Infantry PIO

The 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry is heading for its annual Amphibious Training Exercise at Little Creek, Va.

The convoy of trucks and jeeps left early Wednesday morning while the main group left this morning by commercial bus.

Training in preparation for the exercise started two weeks ago with the men taking part in basic classes to introduce them to the new tasks they will be performing in amphibious operations.

Using mockup nets the men began mastering the art of debarking, through the use of these nets, from Navy ships. Beach assaults and methods of overcoming beach obstacles have taken up many hours. They have been learning about the different types of craft they will be using and the waterproofing of communications equipment.

Along with this, six officers and four enlisted men from the battalion, headed by Capt. Dick T. LeClere and Capt. William L. McMullen have been attending the Amphibious Staff Planning Course on Kelly Hill which was given by a Marine-controlled interservice team of 29 officers and non-commissioned officers from the Amphibious Training School at Little Creek, Va.

Saturday Soldier Spends a Sunday In Civilian Life

By 1st Brigade PIO

After nineteen years and six months of distinguished Army service, MSgt. Caswell H. Edwards spent a leisurely civilian Sunday this week. Primarily because the 2nd Infantry Division reenlistment office does not normally conduct business on Sundays, Sgt. Edwards, whose current term of enlistment ended at midnight Saturday, temporarily traded in his seat in the S-4 section, 1st Brigade, for an easy chair in front of a television set at home. It is reported by reliable sources close to the popular gravel - throated sergeant that he spent his civilian Sunday afternoon sipping soft drinks, watching a football game, and telling his wife, Emma, what it was like in the Old Army.

On Monday morning, however, the grizzled veteran of World War II and the Korean Conflict reported to the 2nd Infantry Division's Reenlistment Office, where he was sworn in for three more years of active duty. Then, he returned to his seat in the S-4 section, 1st Brigade, and resumed normal operations as if nothing extraordinary had happened over the weekend.

His Promotion Was a Surprise

Sometimes promotions come when you least expect them. Take the case of SSgt. Calvin E. Horn who works in the office of the Adjutant General, 2nd Infantry Division.

Sgt. Horn was called into the office of Lt. Col. L. H. Dahl, the adjutant general of the 2nd Infantry Division, when he returned from lunch recently. As he puts it, "I thought I was going to get chewed out for something, but instead Col. Dahl and Captain Charles D. Hodge, the Chief of Records Branch, Personal Services Division, pinned E-6 stripes on my sleeves and congratulated me on my promotion!"

The pleasantly surprised sergeant entered the Army initially in April of 1946. He was sent to Korea after basic and worked as company clerk in Company A, 85th Signal Operation Battalion in Seoul. In January 1948 Sgt. Horn re-enlisted and was sent to the Army Stenographic School at Camp Lee, Va.

'What Do You Think of Taxes?'

A 1st Brigade Company Clerk Takes the Oath as U. S. Citizen

By 1st Brigade PIO

According to one definition by Webster, an alien is a person who could be called "different in nature; hostile; foreign." Now if you wanted to be technical about it, Joseph J. Stracci would probably fall under the first two categories. As for the last, it is past history for Sp4 Stracci, who became a U.S. citizen early this September.

SP4 JOE STRACCI

Currently the company clerk of Headquarters Company, 1st Brigade, Sp4 Stracci is a peppery little gent whose main difference in nature lies in that he has knocked about the world perhaps a few times more than the average company clerk, and consequently has mastered the difficult art of diplomacy. Diplomacy, according to Stracci, is the ability to tell a man that his leave has been canceled without drawing a fist in the mouth.

Sp4 Stracci is a man of opinion and becomes hostile only when his judgement is doubted on the subject of baseball, politics, religion, stocks and bonds, fine food, child care, the Common Market or the preparation of lasagna. He is considered an authority on these topics and should you question his knowledge, there will follow a debate comparable to say, the average chat between Leo Durocher and a home plate umpire.

Born in Tunisia

In regards of being foreign, Joe Stracci was born 25 years ago in Tunisia, then a French protectorate in North Africa. His parents were Italian nationals living in Tunis and if that isn't foreign enough for you, perhaps a hurried consultation with the State Department could be arranged to find out exactly what is.

In 1954 the Stracci family pulled up stakes and left Tunisia for a new life in the United States. For Joe, it was a drastic change from the Ecole de Gracon Charles de Gaulle Lycee Carnot — his North African alma mater — to Benjamin Franklin High School in New York City, but he made the transition easily. By the end of his senior year, Sp4 Stracci had received the Benjamin Franklin Music Award, organized a 6-piece dance band with great success, and had been elected president of the French Club.

He later attended New York City College and Pace College majoring in Business Administration. On the morning of his wedding to the former Carol Ann Fiorello, he received a notice from the President of the United States which indicated the time had come to "Go Army."

Starting in February, 1962, Stracci attended Basic and Advanced Infantry Training at Fort Dix, N.J. Following his assignment to the 2nd Infantry Division the same year, he went through a succession of positions until his appointment to the post of company clerk, Headquarters Company, 1st Brigade.

Filed Papers

In January of 1963, Sp4 Stracci filed the papers necessary to becoming a citizen of the United States. On September 4, he gathered up his documents, donned a sharply - pressed khaki uniform and reported to the U. S. Immigration and Naturalization Office in Columbus. There were well over 70 applicants for citizenship at the office, ranging from the very young to the very old. The corridors were crowded and there was a long line of applicants waiting patiently to complete the legal work which would be the final step toward citizenship.

Sp4 Stracci finally emerged from beneath a flurry of paperwork and walked briskly into the Federal courtroom, which was large, but not large enough to hold both the applicants and their well-wishers. Most of the spectators had to remain outside for lack of space. District U.S. Judge J. Robert Elliot entered the courtroom and the doors were closed.

Two hours later the doors opened and an obviously happy crowd of people poured out. Among them was Joseph J. Stracci, a former Italian citizen from French North Africa. He closely resembled Joseph J. Stracci, a U. S. citizen from New York City. He was asked how he felt about taxes. He replied in the American manner, with vigor.

1st Brigade S-3 Gets a New Officer

By 1st Brigade PIO

Lt. George E. Robinson was recently assigned to the 1st Brigade, 2nd Infantry Division.

A graduate of OCS, Lt. Robinson first entered the Army in September, 1952, attending basic training at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, Pa. Following Leadership and Airborne Schools at Fort Benning, he was assigned to the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, then stationed on Sand Hill.

In June, 1955, Lt. Robinson attended Jungle Warfare School at Fort Kobbe, Canal Zone. After his graduation from OCS in 1958, he served in Company E, 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry as a platoon leader and later the executive officer.

Taking 24 months out for police work in Ohio, Lt. Robinson reentered the Army in August this year and was assigned to the S-3 section, 1st Brigade as a Liaison Officer.

2nd of the Ninth Now 2nd of 87th

By 2nd Bn., 9th Infantry PIO

BAUMHOLDER, Germany—A sample of the German winter was weathered by the 2nd Battalion 9th Infantry here recently as it took part in the 8th Infantry Division's "FTX August Guns."

The FTX marked the final field maneuver for this battalion under the name of "Second Battalion, Ninth Infantry." On September 4, the unit was renamed 2nd Battalion (Mechanized), 7th Infantry and permanently assigned to USAEUR's 8th Infantry Division.

Although officially, winter is still several months away, daily rains, chilling temperatures and sloshing mud made it difficult to believe for the transplanted "Manchus."

The last field exercise experienced by the "Manchus" was its ATT, staged at Fort Benning in the middle of the Georgia summer.

Armored Personnel Carriers (APCs) were transported by rail from the "Second of the Ninth's" home in Sullivan Barracks (Mannheim) to the Baumholder training area some 90 miles away.

The "Manchus," accustomed to training conditions in the Continental U.S. Army Commad (CONUS), were impressed by several incidents involving German nationals during the problem.

At one convoy rest stop enroute to the training area, a farmer told a group of Company A soldiers that in World War II he was captured by U.S. forces near Baumholder, approximately five miles from the place of their conversation.

"The terrain and general nature of the problem differed from the maneuvers we encountered at Fort Benning," Lt. Col. Jack Samson, battalion commander, said, "... we benefited from it greatly."

Many young enlisted men, not familiar with the realistic USAREUR training, were impressed with the nature of the maneuver.

No Police Calls

There are very few routines in the life of the American soldier which he dislikes more than daily police call. Each morning he will emphatically state that it is an insult to himself and his uniform to have to walk around picking up dirty paper, empty cans, broken bottles, cigarette butts and the like because careless litterbugs couldn't be bothered, or were in too much of a hurry, to look for a trash can or dumpster. And, he is right! It is an insult; not only to himself and the uniform he wears, but also to every principle that both stand for.

But now let's stop and take a closer look at the problem. We all know that there are very few civilians located in the 2nd Infantry Division area. So who is the thoughtless individual that is making life miserable for the American fighting men stationed in the 2nd Division area? The answer to the question is sad but simple. It is usually the same person who does the complaining; the American soldier.

So remember, the next time you finish a coke, open a pack of cigarettes or have anything to throw away; hold it for the litter basket and save both yourself and your buddies a lot of unnecessary griping and work.

'Stand Up! Hook Up!' Division Information Officer Airborne

BY BOB DE CAMARA

The soldier made his way cautiously along the plane's spine. Through the small ports of the side, the greens and browns of Fort Benning's vast military post shimmered in the heat, looking small and even. The propeller chopped through air and the ground pitched.

Through the two open doors at the rear of the C-119, the wind pulled, tugging the shouted words away from the jumpmaster who stood there and tossed them outside to be lost.

Nothing But Space

At a command, the men shuffled forward toward the open doors like one long, living creature, their backs humped. The lead men at each door saw nothing but space.

At a signal, the first man went. Almost on his back followed the next man, and the next, falling with a sharp ripping sound like a zipper as the static lines trailed out and popped the chutes open automatically.

The last man got a shove off the jumpmaster's boot going away, and the jumpmaster turned to face the empty plane with a radiant smile like a man who's just seen his last child off to school.

Class number seven's third load of jumpers at Fort Benning's well-known Airborne School had just made its third jump, a mass drop on drop zone Fryar from 1,250 feet.

Information Officer

The first man out the door of that C-119 had been a 2nd Infantry Division lieutenant, an assistant information officer, who discovered that airborne training and, after that, Ranger School can be stepping stones to a successful military career. He is Lt. Henry B. Thorpe, a graduate of the University of North Carolina.

What Lt. Thorpe saw when he arrived at Building L-11 for his last week of airborne training may not have surprised him, but at times, it must have sorely tried his endurance as it does all trainees.

The sergeants on the jump committee operate with a maximum of decorum and lung power.

Building L-11, the briefing room, is another converted hangar. It has numerous pine wood benches, very deep seated, and raised daisies from which the sergeants speak with microphones slung about their suntanned necks.

The troopers ushered out of the rows, jogging, through the front of the briefing area and past Sgt. Kapelka who put a slash beside each man's number on the loading manifest as it was called out to him with air-borne renonance.

Out the door onto the loading line, the men raced and took up positions for a final equipment check and the arrival of their plane which returned in a few minutes from dumping another load over the DZ.

Loaded and airborne the plane weaved and circled, and the jumpmasters held lightly onto bits of stripping, unconcerned by the dipping deck and tugging air at their elbows.

Photos By Shaner

Sgt. Thomas Skinner, jumpmaster, who straddled his legs between the two doors and didn't appear to need a handhold. The Army photographer for the trip, PFC Hal Shaner, was clicking away at pictures unsteadily. As he shot one, he threw the used flash bulb to Sgt. Skinner who danced for the flying bulbs with the ease of a centerfielder.

Their jump was just minutes away, and as I stood at the end of the line, wondering why a soldier wants to jump hundreds, or even thousands, of feet from an aircraft into nothingness and what it must feel like, emotionally and physically, I talked with the trooper standing next to me, Pvt. Ronald E. Kelley.

He started the conversation. "You ever jump before?"

No, I hadn't ever jumped before and this wouldn't be my first time, if I could help it.

"You don't know what you're missing," said the young private from Phoenix, Ariz. "I've been waiting for this since I was 15."

That's a long time to wait, I thought. "How old are you now?"

"I'm seventeen. I joined the Army on my birthday. And, man, I'm telling ya—there's nothing like this in the whole world."

Gen. Billingslea and Corley Guests at Wives Club Social

The Fort Benning Main Officer's Open Mess was the scene for the 5th annual birthday celebration of the 2nd Infantry Division given by the "Second to None's" Officer's Wives Club last Tuesday.

On hand to help celebrate the gala occasion was the guest speaker, Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding officer of the 2nd Infantry Division and assistant division commander, Brig. Gen. John T. Corley.

The festivities opened with an informal get together in the club's main ballroom. At this time, the 1964 Second Infantry Division Engagement Calendar was introduced to the guests by Mrs. John Cochran, Mrs. Robert G. Spurling and Mrs. John Moscrip Jr., who were attired in brightly colored Indian Maiden costumes. The three Indian "Maidens" were located in front of a five-foot high paper "tee-pee" in the center of the ballroom floor.

At the onset of the luncheon, served in the Fountain Room, Mrs. John V. Stoecker, the club president, welcomed all the guests and led them in a verse of "Happy Birthday" to the "Indianhead" Division.

Luncheon was then served, which consisted of Tomato Aspic Salad; Green Beans Almondine and Chicken with Rice. In honor of the occasion, dessert, a cupcake complete with birthday candle, was served.

After the thoroughly delightful meal was finished, Mrs. Stoecker again took the floor and presented certificates of appreciation to three former club officers who are about to depart Fort Benning. They were: Mrs. Fred Smith, treasurer; Mrs. Richard Hai, publicity chairman, and Mrs. James Peabody, dance chairman. The three women filling these posts: Mrs. Burnside E. Huffman; Mrs. Robert Castow and Mrs. Kenneth Schreiber were then introduced to the audience.

Mrs. Stoecker then introduced Gen. Billingslea who opened his talk by congratulating the ladies on the club's accomplishments during the past year.

He then went on to outline the many accomplishments of the division during the past year and stressed the important role played by the "Army Wife" with regard to her husband's performance and capability as a soldier. He stressed the point that it is the wife's duty to create a happy home and care for the children and concluded by stating that members of the club should aid young "Army Wives" in adjusting to Army life.

The hostess units for the gala event were the ladies of Division Headquarters and the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry. Heading these two committees were Mrs. Lucien F. Keller, wife of the division chief of staff, and Mrs. George Crosby, whose husband commands the Second Battalion 9th Infantry.

17th Artillery Meet for Coffee

A short business meeting was held with Mrs. Boisvert presiding. New members welcomed were Mrs. Robert Fellows and Mrs. David Stonecipher. Farewell was bade Mrs. James Compton whose husband is departing for Korea.

2nd Med Hosts Support Command Wives Club Coffee

Officers' Wives of the 2nd Medical Battalion were hostesses to the ladies of Support Command for their monthly coffee held at the Supper Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Coffee was poured by Mrs. Dan Murrele and Mrs. Jim Torrance. In keeping with the back to school time of year, a unique centerpiece, designed and constructed by Mrs. George Trick brought happy smiles to the faces of all mothers present. The Centerpiece was a Little Red School House, complete with miniature children in attendance.

Alternate Coffee For G-2 Ladies Is Held Recently

An alternate monthly coffee was recently given by Mrs. Arnold Dryer Jr. for the ladies of G-2 Section, 2nd Division. Mrs. Charles K. Phalen and Mrs. Robert Gorey assisted Mrs. Dryer as co-hostesses.

Hospitality, floral and sunshine committees were established at a meeting following the coffee. Mrs. Arnold Dryer Jr. was named as publicity chairman and Mrs. Zeruo Miyagishima became reservation chairman.

New arrivals Mrs. Shelby C. Roberts and Mrs. S. V. Wielga, were welcomed to the group. Farewells were said to Mrs. Raymond D. Wentz, Mrs. Clark Miller and Mrs. J. L. Cole.

Chaplain's Home Scene of Coffee

The home of Chaplain and Mrs. Henry F. Ackerman was the scene recently for the monthly coffee of the ladies of the 1st Battalion, 87th Infantry. Assisting Mrs. Ackerman as Hostesses were Mesdames: Richard R. Browning, Oren R. Brown, James C. Krannawitter and John Moscrip Jr.

The next monthly coffee will be held at the home of Mrs. Crosby.

Birthday Party Surprise Theme at 23rd's Coffee

The format of the coffee underwent a drastic change. This was not only the final coffee for the 23rds' husbandless Ro-to-Wives, but also a surprise birthday party for Mrs. John H. Cochran, wife of the battalion commander.

Following the traditional singing of Happy Birthday, blowing out of the candles and a birthday wish, Mrs. Robert C. Kendrick, on behalf of all the officers' wives presented Mrs. Cochran with a specially engraved silver tray. The inscription read, "To Our Jody, from those who were left behind — Ft. Benning 1963".

Bacon strips won't twist or curl when dipped in water before frying.

New Adjutant Arrives Joining the 1st of 23rd

By 1st Bn., 23rd Infantry PIO

The new adjutant of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry is a former Medical Service Corps Officer, Capt. Burce H. Cleaver, a native of St. Louis, takes over the position left vacant by the departure of Capt. John M. Arnold who is attending the Infantry Officer Career Course at the Infantry School.

A graduate of Westminster College in Fulton, Mo., where he majored in business administration and was a student of the ROTC course, Capt. Cleaver accepted a commission in the Army shortly after graduation.

Entering active duty he went to the Medical Company Officer Course at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, before being assigned to duty with First U.S. Army Headquarters at Fort Jay, N.Y. While assigned to Fore Jay, Capt. Cleaver attended the Graduate School of Business at City College of New York.

Moving to duty in France in March 1960, Capt. Cleaver served as company commander of the 550th Medical Company (Ambulance) and of Headquarters Company, 60th Station Hospital both in Chinon, France.

Transferring to Infantry in December, 1962, Capt. Cleaver came to Fort Benning to attend the Infantry Officer Basic Course and stayed to complete Airborne training to August 1963. He then came to the 2nd Infantry Division and his present duties.

23rd Legal NCO Is Sp5 L. Loving

By 1st Bn, 23rd Infantry PIO

A veteran of 15 years of service with the U. S. Air Force is now serving as Legal NCO of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry, Sp5 Leonard J. Loving replaces Sgt. Patrick Sheridan who is terminating his military career.

A native of Wister, Okla., Sp5 Loving first entered military service in July 1941 enlisting in the Army Air Corps. He served in the European Theater for 28 months during World War II as an Aircraft Supply Specialist and later as an Administration NCO.

Following a short break in service at the end of the war, Loving returned to duty with the Air Force. In 1948 he got his first experience in legal work and has been at it ever since. He took time out from his military career in 1954 to attend Columbia Bible College of Columbia, S.C., returning to active duty in 1955. In 1957 he again left the service to attend school. He reentered military service in 1962 when he enlisted in the Army.

During his long and varied military career, Sp5 Loving has served in Europe, Iwo Jima, Guam, and Korea. He comes to Fort Benning from a tour of duty in Korea where he was assigned to Headquarters, Seoul Area Command.

Sp5 and Mrs. Darlene Loving currently reside at Fort Benning with their three children: Jackie, 12; JoAnn, 9; and Joyce, 7.

1st of 23rd Selects Sp4 Smith as SOM

By 1st Bn, 23rd Infantry PIO

The 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry Soldier-of-the - Month for August 1963 is a 22-year - old Automatic Rifleman from Company C, Sp4 David L. Smith earned his title and an on-the-spot promotion to his present rank by displaying a superior knowledge of military subjects before a board of officers of the battalion. In addition, he was judged on his appearance and bearing.

Lt. Col. William H. Cox, battalion commander, presented Sp4 Smith with a Letter of Commendation, a three day pass and a check for ten dollars. He praised the young soldier as a credit to the unit.

Headquarters Company Takes 23rd Softball Title

Headquarters Company won the 2nd Battalion, 23d Infantry softball championship by slamming the Bravo Rangers of Company B, 4-1, in a thriller at Kelley Hill recently.

The victors are representing the battalion in the 2nd Infantry Division tourney that is now in progress.

The Rangers scored their only run in the fifth when Hector Torres singled, advanced to second on a passed ball and raced home when Larry Gilbreath singled through the middle.

Gilbreath went the route for the losers and was charged with the loss.

In opening round play of the single elimination tourney, Headquarters defeated Company C, 13-3, and Company B downed Company A, 4-2.

23RD INFANTRY

The 23rd Infantry Regiment joined the 2nd Infantry Division in September 1917 and was one of the first units to arrive in France after the United States entered World War I.

38TH INFANTRY

The 38th Infantry earned its motto "Rock of the Marne" in the year 1918 when it repulsed the attacks of nine German regiments during the fighting on the Marne River in France.

Division Praised

Gen. Mark Clark once remarked, "I express my pride in the "Second to None" Division and extend my profound appreciation to its officers and men, past and present, who met the enemy's challenge in Korea with the loyalty and courage which has earned the respect and honor of the free world."

Officers' Wives Are Entertained At The Home of Col. Cochran

By Frances Cooper

Officers' Wives of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry recently spent a very enjoyable evening at the home of Lt. Col. and Mrs. John H. Cochran Jr. Col. Cochran was the commander of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry recently on Rotatour in Baumholder, Germany. Maj. Robert C. Kendrick, Capt. Louis C. Menetrey and Capt. Luther V. Kennedy, all former members of the 23rd, and newly returned to Fort Benning, were present.

Col. Cochran explained the objectives put before the 23rd while in Baumholder and the many goals reached and surpassed by the unit. He stated that though each and every man was anxious to return to Fort Benning, the morale was high, and the men were determined to keep the unit above par and running as smothly as possible. Two scrapbooks and many new pictures brought back by Col. Cochran brought much pleasure. One very interesting momento was a composite picture of carjcatures of each officer in the battalion.

The sincere appreciation of many wives goes to Capt. Louis Menetrey for a sacrifice above and beyond the call of duty. Though the evening was very warm, Capt. Menetrey sacrificed his own comfort to wear a navy blue winter weight, blazer sport jacket. He was actually giving a fashion preview for the wives as almost all the husbands have purchased identical blue blazers in Baumholder.

Special guest of the evening was Mrs. Bernard E. Murray, of Gettysburg, Pa., mother of Mrs. Clyde Cleveland.

Many of the wives continued the evenings festivities with a late dinner at the Supper Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Division Changes

Between World War II and Korea two major changes took place in the organization of the "Second to None." In 1948 the 72nd Tank Battalion added its armored punch to the other fighting potential of the division, while in 1949 the 22nd Antiaircraft Artillery Automatic Weapons Battalion was assigned as part of 2nd Division Artillery.

Ballet School to Begin All-Age Group Classes

For the young people there are three different classes, 12 classes each offered in ballroom dancing that began Monday, and will continue through November 25.

On Monday nights from seven to eight p.m. the beginners from the 5th and 6th grades will be instructed. Then on the same night, from eight to nine p.m., 7th graders - on - up will have their lessons.

On Tuesday night from 7:30 to 8:30 adult classes for all ages will be held for learning the latest dances.

The instructor for both the adults and young peoples class will be Rossie Gilmore, both a professional public school teacher and a professional dancer.

All those interested in the Fort Benning Ballet School registration should call either Mrs. George Arnold, 544-1206 or Rossie Gilmore at FA 3-3072.

Big Admin Company Keeps the Troops in Business

PFC JAMES MILLER, MAIL CLERK

Commanded by Capt. George L. Quinn, the 2nd Administration Company looms throughout the 2nd Infantry Division as the biggest company within the "Second to None" family.

Faced each day with a tumult of paperwork and support for the STRAC division soldiers, Admin keeps the men paid, on orders, and, in essence, ready around the clock.

Walking into one of the composite teams, machine branch sections, reproduction rooms, card punch vans or message centers leaves a person with a feeling of awe. Paper, paper, paper! It takes a lot of felled trees to keep Admin Company functioning. And, it takes a lot of paper to keep the proper records, orders and what-have-you on the mobile 2nd Division "Indians."

Though often jokingly braced with the term "pencil pushers" Admin proved beyond doubt at a recent ATT that they can function in the field with the best of the combat - ready troops. Normally used for support-assisting only, they have shown their capabilities to "take a hill" like a crack infantry company, if need be.

Well over 400 men strong, Admin keeps an infinite amount of rosters and records moving smoothly. And when a unit comes from the field after an exercise there is no worry as to pay, orders etc. All is ready and waiting. Admin has seen that it is so.

2nd Division Jeep Driver Holds 23 Racing Trophies

The term "drag-racing" is usually associated with duck-tailed youths in hot rods who speed away from stop lights and race around town endangering the lives of motorists and pedestrians alike with their careless antics. But for a young PFC in Headquarters Battery, 38th Artillery Battalion, drag-racing is a serious sport which has brought him 23 individual trophies during the past four months.

Civilian Mechanic

PFC Joseph E. Scott, Jr., a mechanic in civilian life, purchased a 1956 Chevrolet two-door sedan last January for everyday use, and in his spare time overhauled both the body and the engine. The engine is a stock 265 cubic inch, 162 horsepower V-8 equipped with a double-barrel carburetor and coupled to a three speed, manual transmission.

In April of this year he became acquainted with a police - sanctioned, quarter-mile drag strip in Phenix City, Ala., that sponsors weekly races for trophies and cash prizes and decided to try his luck.

Teaming up with a mechanic friend, Kenneth Henry of Company A, 702nd Maintenance Battalion, he brought his Chevy to Phenix City and entered it in the "F" Stock, two-barrel carburetor class. Class for drag racing is determined by the amount of horsepower times the weight of the car.

All events at the strip are a quarter of a mile long. The winners are determined by a process of elimination in two car heats.

Running in his class, Scott entered and won 10 consecutive races over a two month period, sometimes competing in as many as six heats in order to collect a single trophy.

Raced in Bigger Class

Completely dominating his class, Scott got bored with the lack of competition and, deciding to risk a less, upped himself into the "F" Stock, four-barrel carburetor and "E" Stock classes.

But the risk involved never materialized and instead of losing he kept his winning streak intact; adding an additional 13 trophies to his collection.

His fastest time over the quarter-mile strip to date was 16.85 seconds with a top speed of approximately 82 miles per hour. His average time usually fluctuates between the high 16 and low 17 second brackets.

Just recently he installed a new four barrel carburetor in his engine which he plans to try out in competiton in the near future.

In order to keep his car in top-notch condition, both he and Henry spend about eight hours a week on overall maintenance.

PFC SCOTT, UNDEFEATED DRAG-RACER, AND TROPHIES

Strong Pitching Sparks 1st of 23's Company A

By Ken Goodman

Behind the strong pitching of Torres Maae, James Drake, and Ronald Gramlich, the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry's Company A "nine" got off to a roaring start in the 2nd Infantry Division Company Level Softball Tournament.

In the first game of the tourney, Gramlich and Maae combined to pitch a 19-0 no-hitter over 2nd Supply and Transportation Battalion. In this contest at Sand Hill's Admin Field, the powerful Company A team produced three home runs and 16 hits to turn the contest into a rout.

In their second encounter of the season, the 23rd Infantry team, and pitcher Gramlich, ran into a bit of difficulty. Several key errors produced six unearned runs in the first inning for the opponent, 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry. Some anxious moments were experienced before the team settled down to methodically work their way uphill to a 10-8 victory. Credit for the win went to pitcher Maae who relieved an unusually erratic Gramlich in the second inning. Thus Maae was credited with two wins in as many days, a feat which is, to say the least, unusual.

In game number three James Drake took to the mound to preside over an 11-0 victory over 2nd Medical Battalion. Drake, exhibiting fine control, limited the opposition to a mere two hits while the mighty bats of Company A boomed throughout to mount the final 11-0 tally.

Company A's team which produced many of the members of the 2nd Battalion, 87th Infantry's Division Champion Battalion Level Softball team, is looking toward similar performances in the days to come. While manager "Big Carl" Halkyer insists that there are no "stars" on his team, this reporter cannot overlook some of the more familiar faces in the lineup. The "field general" of the team is John Wells. Equally at home at his catcher's slot or in the batter's box, Wells is responsible for some of the fancy hitting that has been attributed to the team. A veteran of the 2nd Battalion, 87th Infantry Championship Team, as well as a member of the 1st Battle Group, 26th Infantry's 1962 Division Flag Football Champion "Eleven," John's face and outstanding achievements in he sports field have graced these pages and the division sports scene on several occasions this past year.

The gangling giant with the thundering voice who guards first base, is Ted Yancy. Known among his compatriots as "Zeke", Yancy is most likely the first person that the spectator notices as he is continually exercising his mighty vocal cords to lend encouragement to his fellows and discouragement to the enemy. No slouch in the performance department, he is also a tough man with either bat or glove.

This team, its manager and players have a feeling of victory in their bones. For the division title no less.

Reaction Course Is Run by 23rd

By 1st Bn., 23rd Infantry PIO

Abandoning the relative luxury of their barracks at Kelley Hill, the men of Company B, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry recently moved to the field to provide support for the division's Counterguerrilla Reaction Course. The course, which will be attended by the combat elements of the division, is being conducted during the period of September 6 through October 5.

Personnel of the company will act as demonstrators, guerrillas, controllers, and instructors as each tested unit undergoes the six day block of training. Units will receive three days of instruction followed by three days of simulated combat in which they will be required to search out guerrillas utilizing the skills that they have learned.

Division Swimming Meet Is Scheduled

The 2nd Infantry Division Special Services Officer has announced that the annual "Indianhead" Division Swimming and Diving Meet, consisting of 12 events, will be held at Carey Pool, Fort Benning, between September 23-27.

Governed by the NCAA Official Swimming and Diving Guide, the competition will take place between teams not exceeding 10 men entered from all battalion size units in the division plus the 2nd Administration Company and a composite team made up of Division Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Headquarters Company and Band, and Support Command.

Included in the 10 swimming events will be the 100 and 400 meter free style;the 100 meter butterfly; the 100 meter backstroke and the 80 meter free style relay. The diving portion of the meet will feature competition from both the one and three meter boards with each hopeful executing a series of five mandatory dives in addition to one of his own choice.

Scoring for all events throughout the meet will be done on a point basis with points being awarded up to and including fifth place.

Since the Swimming and Diving Meet is an integral part of the Commanding General's Sports Trophy Program, the winning team will be selected on its point aggregate over the five day period.

Carl Halstead's 'After Hours'

School Has Started---Watch the Kids

Ah! September. The heat of summer draws to a close as nature prepares to caress the countryside with beauty and the coolness of fall. Swimming pools begin to shut down and families start brushing off their winter clothes.

The scent of football weather and burning leaves electrify the nostrils, and mothers suddenly feel lonely as homes become surprisingly quiet. The kids are gone. School has started.

High school and college students roam the campuses renewing old acquaintances and acquiring new ones. On enrollment day can be heard "Man, take a look at the new car I got this summer." or "I tell you, she was a doll! I met her at the lake and . . ."

GIVE US A CHANCE—PLEASE DRIVE SLOW

That Feeling of Youth

In grade schools the small fry run and play with the excitement of it all, oblivious to anything but that wonderful feeling of youth. Laughing, running, drawing pictures on the walls with crayons and make-believing in a world known only to them. September has come. School has started.

Some will be going for their very first time — nervous, not quite sure of themselves, yet thrilled. Mothers smile and check them over, then send them off on that first day with concerned farewells. Then when the doors close, and the school buses pull away, there's a tightness to the chests and moist films to the eyes.

The streets and roads that had been travelled all summer at a faster speed suddenly spring anew with SCHOOL ZONE signs. Still the same amount of traffic lumbers through the hours. Big cars, little cars. . .all kinds.

No One Would Hurt Them

To the youngsters walking home from school or playing during recesses, they have no fears. When the ball they play with rolls into the street, they run after it. . . there is nothing to fear. Their minds are young. No one would want to hurt them.

They have been raised with love and protection. Danger instincts are still unborn. There is no carelessness; they are just young, and full of life and play. And their lives consist of only the good things; fun, love, food when they are hungry, and safety.

To the drivers, rushing to and from work, it is hurry hurry, hurry. "Kids have more sense than to run into the street!" Hurry, hurry! Then, suddenly, a small brightly colored ball rolls in front of the speeding car. . .

Future President

Right this minute, somewhere in this great country of ours, a future President of the United States and Miss America are in school. You would never be able to pick them out, but they are there. Freckles, plump knees and silly smiles that can tug at the heartstrings. . .they are there.

Each day they will continue to learn, grow, and marvel at such things as frogs, candy and grownups. Question after question they will ask; eager to learn; inquisitive; youthful.

Little girls sneak mom's lipstick and smear their lips and that boy of dad's will beam when his hero lathers his smooth cheeks and pretends to shave him. Then at night, they sleep the slumber of the secure and unafraid. Life holds so many wonderful things yet to be done.

Soon, winter slips its white veil over the land and another magnificent feat of magic has been performed for children to revel in. Snowmen, sleds, getting wet and catching those inevitable colds, are all part of the game.

Off they go to school; bundled up, and sliding playfully on the slick sidewalks. There, partially covered with a white crown of snow, the SCHOOL ZONE and DRIVE SLOW signs still broadcast their pleas.

Then, before one knows it, summer is back again. School is out. The children happily play every day. For the mothers, their daylong jobs have returned, and the future President and Miss America are one year older.

But, that will be next summer. This one has just ended. September has come. School has started. . .give them a chance. . .drive with care.

Lt. Leverette Leaves for Vietnam

A member of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry will soon depart the unit for duty with U. S. S Forces in Viet Nam. Lt. Thomas E. Leverette recently received orders assigning him to the Far Eastern post.

The Ashburn, Ga. native is currently serving as Company C commander. A qualified jungle expert, ranger, and paratrooper, Lt. Leverette entered the service in September 1960, shortly after graduating from North Georgia College.

A Transportation Corps officer, he was assigned to temporary duty with the Infantry in October 1961. He completed the Infantry Officer Basic Course as well as Airborne and Ranger training before being assigned to duty with the 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry of the 2nd Infantry Division.

With the coming of the ROAD reorganization, he came to the 2nd Bn., 87th Infantry where he served in various posts including company executive officer.

1st Brigade S-3 Section Receives a New Captain

By 1st Brigade PIO

A 1956 graduate of the University of Hawaii, Capt. Yashima came to Fort Benning the same year to attend the Basic Infantry Officers' Course under the provisions of the Reserve Forces Act. Upon returning to civilian life, he taught high school industrial arts and mathematics in Hawaii. During this period, Capt. Yashima served as an Active Reservists with the 100th Battle Group, 442nd Infantry, which was the highly-decorated Nisei "Go For Broke" regiment of World War II fame.

Capt. Yashima volunteered for active duty and in October 1962 came again to Fort Benning as a platoon leader in Company E, 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry, and later became the executive officer of Headquarters Company of the same unit. Following the redesignation of the "Always First" under the new ROAD concept, he became the S-2 officer of the 2nd Battalion. 23rd Infantry.

Capt. Yashima was promoted to his present rank in April 1963, and in September was assigned to the S-3 section, 1st Brigade, as a liaison officer.

New S-3 Officer Assigned to 23rd

By 1st Bn, 23rd Infantry PIO

The 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry has a new S-3 (Operations) Officer. Capt. Fitzhugh H. Chandler, Jr., recently moved into the slot vacated by the departure of Capt. Robert Shaw who is attending a course at the Infantry School on Main Post.

Capt. Chandler, a native of Arlington, Va. is a 1959 graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point. He attended the Infantry Officer Basic Course here at Fort Benning and stayed on to complete Airborne and Ranger training.

Going for No. 18 Against LeJeune

Fort Benning's rampaging Doughboy football team will be gunning for victory No. 18 in a row Saturday morning when they do battle with the leathernecks from Camp LeJeune on the North Carolinians gridiron.

The Doughboys, conquerers of six opponents in 1961, 10 straight last season and one this year, will be out to repeat a 21-14 verdict handed to the Marines last year at Doughboy Stadium.

Head coach Oren DeHaven of Fort Benning reports that his squad has been working hard for the Camp LeJeune encounter and should be ready to go at top speed with the exception of three players who are on the injured list.

Reports Injuries

End Fred Murphy has an injured back, fullback Wallace Johnson has a bruised ankle and scatback Ron Quillen pulled a leg muscle. Quillen should be ready by game time.

In the backfield will be quarterback Marvin Tibbetts, halfbacks Ron Quillen and Bobby Towns or Billy Williamson and fullback Brewster Hobby.

Top Scorer

Williamson leads the Fort Benning scorers with three toughdowns, while second place in the scoring department goes to quarterback DeWayne Jeter with 15 points, coming on one TD and nine extra points.

Nine players are tied with six points each.

NEEDS COACHES

The Youth Activities Club at Fort Benning is in need of coaches for the coming YAC football season. Anyone desiring to coach a team is asked to telephone the YAC office at 545-2130.

The Fort Benning Sport Parachute Club — the "Diving Doughboys" — was named overall team champions at the 4th annual Cottonbelt Conference Parachute meet in Opelika, Ala., recently and brought back four of the 11 trophies at the meet.

Sgt. Richard L. Morgan, an instructor in the Airborne-Air Mobility Department, won first place for accuracy.

Cpl. Russ Rutpin, an airborne student, won first place for accuracy in a night jump and third place for style in skydiving.

There were 125 competitors in the meet from seven Southern states. During the meet approximately 400 free falls were made from 3,000 to 12,500 feet during the three days.

Skydiving, which attracted 35 contestants, consists of various maneuvers such as figure eights and back loops. Accuracy jumps are made for cross-shaped targets.

CARDINALS WILL NOT VOTE

Coach Wally Lemm of the St. Louis Cardinals objects to players choosing their own captains and will appoint the team leader of the Cards. This leaves only the Minnesota Vikings holding an election, which is a popularity contest, according to Lemm.

U.S. Athletes Win 6 Medals In Track Meet

BRUSSELS (AFPS) — Athletes of the U.S. Armed Forces were victorious over those of 16 other nations in the 1963 International Military Sports Council (CISM) track and field championships held here.

Army PFCs Bobby Poynter and Roy Hicks each won three gold medals in the United States assault that produced six CISM records. Foreign athletes broke three others.

Air Force Lt. Darrell Horn leaped 25-ft., 3¼-in. to beak his own broad jump record established in 1962. Hicks shaved 1-10th of a second off the 110 meter hurdles record with a blistering time of 13.9.

The 400 meter relay team, composed of Poynter, Hicks, Johnny Moon and Paul Drayton, all Army men—set a record of 40.2 seconds. The old record, 40.7, was set by the United States in 1956.

The 1,600 meter relay team, composed of Lts. Ollan Cassel (Army), Ronald Ablowich (Marines), James Heath (Marines) and Ensign Hiram Carroll (Navy), covered the distance in 3:10.4. The old record was 3:10.9.

Hicks record breaking leap of 6-ft., 7⅛-in. in the high jump bettered the old record of 6-ft., 6¾-in.

Williamson Shines With Three Tallies

By PFC Dave Braun

Fort Benning's 1963 football machine, oiled for big things this season, warmed up at Doughboy Stadium last Saturday night by crushing the Southwest Florida Athletic Association to the tune of 88-0.

Approximately 10,000 fans turned out to watch the blue and white clad Army contingent cross the enemy goal line no less than 13 times as head coach Oren DeHaven emptied his bench, playing much of the contest with his No. 4 unit.

The Doughboys, who seldom went to the air and, hit on two out of six passes for 63 yards, rambled for 448 yards on the ground.

The smaller Fort Meyers, Fla., crew was stopped cold on the ground. They were held to zero yards rushing while picking up 14 yards in the air on two completions in 10 attempts.

22 First Downs

In the first down department Fort Benning gathered 22 to only one for the red and white dressed Florida team. The Doughboys also pounced on four Raider fumbles while the visitors took advantage of one Doughboy bobble.

Scoring honors went to former Georgia Tech scatback Billy Williamson, with three touchdowns. Twice Williamson raced to paydirt from 16 yards out while his third tally came on a 30-yard aerial from former Syracuse University star, Dave Sarette.

Other Doughboys making the statistics column were quarterback Marvin Tibbetts, end Dan House and backs Wallace Johnson, Ron Quillen, John Greene, Richmond Pitts and Elroy Foley.

Jeter Scores

DeWayne Jeter, last season's second team signal caller, also picked up a touchdown on a beautifully executed bootleg play, in addition to splitting the uprights with nine extra points in 10 attempts. Bruce Roach also added a point after.

Minutes later Ken Bolin took a handoff from his own 36 and raced all the way to the Raider 16-yard stripe. The 160-pound Williamson then shot in standing up and the scoreboard read 13-0.

Fort Benning scored twice more in the initial period and quickly added a fifth tally in the second stanza as Jeter placed the ball on his hip from three yards out, completely faking the defense and walked in for the TD. Roach's extra point made it 34-0.

Just before the end of the first half Fort Benning recovered a Raider fumble on the six-yard line. Two plays later Johnson plunged in for the score and it was 40-0.

Sarette Calls Signals

The Army squad quickly added another tally at the onset of the second half and then scored again minutes later when Sarette fired a 30-yard strike to Williamson deep in the end zone, making it 54-0. Fort Benning added another tally at the close of the quarter.

With everybody on the bench now seeing action, the Doughboys crossed the Raider goal line four times in the final period, capitalizing on two enemy fumbles which set up two of the scores.

AT THE Movies

LASSIE'S GREAT ADVENTURE is the exciting adventure of a dog and her young master relying on the lad's own skills to survive in the North woods. Lassie, June Lockhart, Hugh Reilly and Jon Provost are the stars.

SAVAGE SAM is a Walt Disney production which finds a "blue tick" hound dog, a scrappy youngster and his uncle who have a run-in with a band of marauding indians. Brian Keith and Tommy Kirk are the co-stars.

BACK STREET finds a young fashion designer becoming romantically involved with a dashing department store tycoon only to discover that he is married. Unable to break the relationship, they continue the ill-fated affair until its torrential climax. Susan Hayward, John Gavin and Vera Miles have the leading roles.

SHOCK CORRIDOR finds Peter Breck as a reporter who has been committed to a mental institution in order to solve a murder. He runs the gamut of being an actual mental patient. A startling twist of fate leads to a shocking climax for the reporter. Constance Towers has the female lead.

A NEW KIND OF LOVE, starring Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward, is the story of an American newspaperman who likes girls, and a career girl, who doesn't like boys, or men, because one got away. Both are confused, bothered and bewildered. But in Paris they become bewitched.

Surgeon Says

Lighten Your Load, Soldier

Extra pounds cut down efficiency, impair health and shorten life. Extra pounds start piling up when more is eaten than is needed for physical activity and bodily processes. That's simple enough.

The hard job is to eat less than your energy requirement while maintaining a state of nutritional health, until you have reached a satisfactory weight. Then you must match food intake with energy needs or the fat will come right back.

This may mean that you have to change long established food habits. No one will say it is an easy thing to do. First you have to want to reduce. Then use self-restraint and common sense until you succeed — and you will.

A visit to a Medical Officer is the place to begin. He can best evaluate your physical condition, energy requirement and ideal weight. He'll then suggest a diet plan which will allow you to lose slowly, sensibly and still feel good without becoming run-down.

A common excuse is that it's impossible to reduce while eating in a troop mess. This isn't entirely true. It isn't necessary to heap your plate, eat several pieces of bread and butter, and the rich dessert just because it's available. Here's a menu plan that will average about 1,500 calories per day, and can be followed in any troop mess:

BREAKFAST
1 serving fruit or juice
2 eggs, 1 slice dry toast, or
2 French toast no syrup, or
2 pancakes, no syrup
1 strip bacon or 1 pat butter
1 glass milk
Plain coffee as desired
DINNER AND SUPPER
1 medium serving meat or substitute (If stew or spaghetti, etc., do not take potato or bread)
1 small serving potato or rice or beans or bread
1 serving cooked vegetable
Green salad, no dressing
1 glass milk at either dinner or supper
Fruit for dessert, if available
Plain coffee or tea as desired

While reducing, here are a few things to keep in mind:

1. Always eat breakfast!
2. It's important to get as much food value for as few calories as possible. Fats, sweets and alcoholic beverages are high in calories and do not give many of the nutrients necessary for health.
3. Use fruits and vegetables for snacks, or save part of the food from supper for evening nibbles.
4. Drink plenty of fluids. Water is necessary to maintain body function. The normal person will keep a fluid balance. A fluid loss, besides being harmful, doesn't mean you've lost any fat.
5. It may take as long as two weeks for an initial weight loss to show. Don't get discouraged. After that, 2 pounds per week is considered a safe rate or loss. If you fall off your diet, climb right back on. Don't give up!

One last word. Beware of fad diets, or any plan that offers a simple way to reduce, including liquid formula diets. These are crutches which may prove harmful and do not teach you good food habits that will allow you to maintain healthy and proper weight for the rest of your life, which is the goal of any pattern of eating.

The battle to control your own appetite may be the toughest one you've ever fought, because the enemy is YOU. The rewards of victory are better appearance, more stamina and endurance. Also you've rid yourself of a silent but eloquent reminder to your commanding officer that perhaps he isn't working you hard enough.

Infantry Mag Features Night Vision Methods

The equipment that gives the Infantry daylight in darkness is featured in a special eight-page illustrated article in the September-October issue of Infantry Magazine. The magazine was mailed to subscribers September 6.

Written by Capt. Normand Heon of The Infantry School's Weapons Department, the article explains the infrared theory, outlines the infrared equipment available to the Infantry, and tells how such equipment can be used tactically.

Medicare Under Study by DOD For Retirees

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—How to best provide medical care for retired military members and their dependents is the subject of a study being conducted by the Defense Department.

By law, retired military and their dependents are entitled to medical care at military hospitals on a "space available" basis.

However, DOD estimates that the increasing number of retirees will soon bring about a situation where such facilities will be insufficient to meet their needs.

TIS Used for Transition

In changing from the Artillery Corps to the Infantry, Commander Claudio N. Collados, a member of the Chilean Marine Corps, is making his transition through The Infantry School's associate career officer's course No. 1, now in its seventh week of a 19 week course.

The Chilean Marine, whose rank is the equivalent of a lieutenant colonel under U.S. standards, arrived at the post in early July and expects to be graduated from the career course in early December.

After his tour at The Infantry School he expects to go to either Camp Lejeune or Quantico Marine installations for two months of observation of training.

CMDR. COLLADOS

He began his military career when he was graduated from the Naval Military in his country. He has served as a battery commander, battalion S-3 (plans and operations officer), executive officer of the Chilean Marine Corps School and, before coming to the School, was G-1 (personnel officer) of the Marine Corps.

Cmdr. Collados attended the Landing Force Staff School at San Diego, Calif. During two other stays in the United States he served on the staffs of two recruit training regiments at San Diego, Calif., and Camp Pendleton, Calif.

The Commander's native land is a long narrow country situated on the west coast of South America. Chile may be divided into three distinct geographic regions — the Andes, occupying one-third of the width of the country on the east, the coastal mountains on the west, and a narrow fertile valley in between. In the north is located the Arid Atacama Desert. The central part of the nation which is the population center has a Mediterranean climate with mild wet winters and hot dry summers.

U.S. Training Viewed Here

The U. S. Infantry's training techniques were viewed here this week by the commanding general of the Iranian 9th Division, who arrived Monday afternoon for a three-day visit.

Maj. Gen. Mohammed-Hossein Zargham was accompanied by Brig. Gen. Mohamad Hassan Chaman - Ara, deputy commander of the Iranian 1st Division; Brig. Gen. Jafar-Gholi Moustafi-Sadri, 5th Division deputy commander; Col. Maghsood Hampaie, chief of staff of the Iranian Infantry Center, and Col. Hosseir. Noorbakhsh, Artillery Center chief of staff.

Tuesday morning, after visiting Brig. Gen. John Norton, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, the Allied officials saw various training aids used in the instruction of Infantrymen, and were briefed and mission of the world's largest Infantry Center and School.

After lunch, they observed airborne training, visited the leader's reaction course in operation by officer candidates.

Wednesday's itinerary included an orientation on training scheduling, the Communications Department and mechanical training on Coolidge Range.

The Iranian officers left at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

Two honors were bestowed upon 1st Lt. John F. Biemick, a graduate of Class 1-64 of The Infantry School's officers basic course.

Later that day he was presented the Army Commendation Medal by Col. Walter D. Short, commander of The Student Brigade, "for exceptionally meritorious service" while assigned to the 4th Training Regiment, Fort Jackson, S. C., during the period June 25, 1962 to June 3, 1963.

Florida City Plans Salute To Services

MIAMI, Fla. — Miami will greet thousands of members of the military from all parts of the United States and overseas Oct. 13-19 during this city's fourth annual "Salute to Servicemen Week."

Highlight of the festivities will be the football game Oct. 18 between the University of Miami and the University of Georgia in the world - famous Orange Bowl. All servicemen in uniform will be admitted free to the Friday evening battle that will feature All-America George Mira at quarterback for Miami.

A special Servicemen's Handicap will be held earlier in the week at Biscayne Kennel Club, home of championship greyhound racing. Uniformed servicemen will be admitted free here too. Dances and other events again will be held this year.

Room rates are low during the fall while a group of seven downtown Miami hotels will feature a weekend football package of three days and two nights for only $18.95 per person, double occupancy.

Miami's USO Club has been designated headquarters for the event. Visiting servicemen will be able to get information on discounts for hotels, motels, sightseeing boats and tourist attractions here. The discounts also will apply to married members of the military vacationing here.

Last year's program, the most successful to date, saw more than 4,500 servicemen on hand. Highlight of the week was the hard - fought 28-24 Miami victory over Maryland in the Orange Bowl. Guests of honor were 10 sailors and a marine stationed at Guantanamo Navy Base, Cuba.

Mexican Campaign Veteran Retires

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Maj. Gen. Donald W. McGowan, the last active duty veteran of the Mexican Border Campaign of 1916, has retired. He was Chief of the National Guard Bureau and had completed 47 years of military service.

YCS Group Participates In Study

Soldiers of the 11th Air Assault Division recently participated in a national study week at Rensselaer Ind., where discussions centered on the religious, political and social problems facing young men and women of today.

The seven soldiers and Chaplain (Capt.) Michael J. Rogers, members of the Young Christian Servicemen group, listened to talks explaining the ecumenical movement developing among the Christian faiths, more active participation in the Churches Liturgy, and the layman's role in politics and social order.

After hearing and discussing the challenges of the present day in Christianizing the civilian community, the servicemen now expect to apply similar ideas to develop sound moral and social attitudes among military personnel.

Meeting each week, the Young Christian Servicemen talk about the attitudes of soldiers regarding topics such as friendship, military authority, respect for women and use of recreational facilities.

From this discussion the YCS group looks for actions which they can perform within the next week to develop better attitudes.

Artillery Holds Battalion Review

In a battalion review held this week on Peden Field, the 2nd Battalion (Composite), 10th Artillery honored several soldiers and batterys in monthly award ceremonies.

Lt. Col. Patrick M. Neilon, battalion commander, presented the Honor Battery award to Service Battery.

The Best Mess Award went to Headquarters Battery for the second consecutive month while the Best Motors Award was presented to Battery B.

Soldier of the Month

Pfc James J. Gagliardi, a member of Service Battery was selected Soldier-of-the-Month.

Pfc Thomas J. Harris of Battery B was presented the battalion Driver-of-the-Month Award.

Red Cross Still Needs Volunteers

Women who are interested have been invited to attend application interviews Sept. 23, 1:30—3 p.m., Oct. 3, 9:30—11 a.m., or Oct. 8, 9:30-11 a.m. in the ground floor American Red Cross recreation hall at Martin Army Hospital.

Certified volunteers will find themselves in great demand, with a wide choice of assignments in a variety of activities. They are welcomed and needed at Martin Army Hospital, in the dependent Dental Clinic, the Bloodmobile, the post school physical examination program and at the various Red cross offices throughout the area, according to Harold E. Greer, acting field director.

Engineers Winding Up New Airstrip

With the project deadline of Sept. 15 only days away, Company D, 806th Engineer Battalion (Construction) is finishing various phases of its construction requirements on the McKenna Air Strip project.

Completed to date are the aircraft wash rack, a storage area for combustible materials, control tower and much of the earthwork.

The aircraft wash rack is a concrete slab six inches thick and 50 feet by 220 feet. About 330 cubic yards of concrete were placed in two days by the 1st Construction Platoon of Company D.

Surrounding the surfaced storage area is an earth berm 4 feet high and 20 feet wide to protect the project from possible fires. Outside the berm there is a four-strand barbed wire fence.

The control tower, being built by the 2nd Construction Platoon of Company D, is situated so as to view both the air strip and the helicopter landing pads.

While the construction platoons have been busy with these projects, and supporting the clay hauling operation with five-ton dump trucks, the earthmoving Platoon has been continuing the task of cutting, filling, compacting and grading the air strip, taxiways and parking area. At this time the parking area and taxiway are about 90 per cent complete and the air strip about 50 per cent complete.

6 New Classrooms Built by Engineers

Six temporary classrooms to accommodate the rising student population at Fort Benning have been completed by Company B of the 577th Engineer Battalion (Construction). These classrooms are located in the old hospital area

American Citizens Set New High For Investment in Savings Bonds

WASHINGTON (AFPX) — The U. S. Treasury Department has reported that Americans own more than $46.5 billion in Series E and H Savings Bonds — all of which are earning interest.

The original Series E bonds were issued in 1941. Although they were intended to expire in 10 years, their expiration date has been extended to 1970 and they continue to earn 3¾ per cent interest. Those issued from June 1, 1949 to April 1, 1957, may be held up to 10 years after maturity.

A Series E bond, purchased in 1941, would be worth double its purchase price today. The E bonds now mature in 7 yrs. 9 mos. with interest accumulating every 6 months. Bonds issued May 1, 1957, and thereafter, also have an extension privilege.

Series H bonds mature 10 years from the date of issue. Current income from the bonds is paid by semi - annual interest check. The yield increases the longer the bond is held. A bond held to maturity averages 3¾ percent interest annually.

These bonds are redeemable after six months from purchase. The seller must, however, give one month's written notice of intention to sell.

Series H bonds issued between June, 1952, and January, 1957, may be retained for an additional 10 years with semi-annual payments at a rate of 3¾ percent per annum. No extension privilege has been announced for those purchased after February, 1957.

New Combat Developments Chief Visits 11th Air Assault Division

Lt. Gen. Dwight E. Beach, who succeeded the late Lt. Gen. John P. Daley as commanding general of the U.S. Army Combat Developments Command, recently made his first visit to Fort Benning since assuming his new post.

Gen. Beach was accompanied by Brig. Gen. Harry L. Hillyard Jr., deputy commanding general for Doctrine Development, also of the Command.

Gen. Beach and Gen. Hillyard were transported by helicopters from Lawson Army Airfield to the 11th Air Assault Division area.

After a conference on command relationships, the visitors were guests at an official luncheon in the Commanding General's Mess, with Brig. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general of the 11th as host.

The afternoon was devoted to visits to the division and the Test, Evaluation and Control Group.

Gen. Beach and Gen. Hillyard also visited the Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency, and the Infantry Board.

Maj. Gen. C. W. G. Rich, commanding general of The Infantry Center, was host at an official luncheon for the visitors.

Gen. Beach was born in Chelsea, Mich. He attended the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor for two years before attending the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

Upon graduating from West Point in 1932, he was commissioned a second lieutenant in field artillery.

During World War II in the Southwest Pacific, he organized and commanded the 167th Field Artillery Battalion, using wild horses purchased in Australia.

Later, Gen. Beach became executive officer of the 24th Division Artillery, participating in four amphibious assaults and amphibious operations.

Since World War II, he has commanded artillery of the former 11th Airborne Division, antecedent of the 11th Air Assault Division, and the artillery of the 45th Infantry Division in Korea.

In Korea

He also served as artillery officer and deputy chief of staff for Plans and Operations, Eighth U. S. Army, in Korea. In November 1954, he became chief of staff of the organization.

After the Korean conflict, Gen. Beach went to Continental Army Command headquarters at Fort Monroe, Va., as director of the Office of Special Weapons Development. Later he became director of Guided Missiles, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Military Operations, Department of the Army, in Washington.

While he was director of the guided missiles branch, the United States placed in orbit the first free world satellite, Explorer I, in 1958.

Gen. Beach has commanded the 82nd Airborn Division at Fort Bragg, N.C.

He was chief of Research and Development, Department of the Army, in Washington, before assuming his present command.

CAA Fund Drive

Gen. Rich Keynotes Big Kickoff Meeting

BY 2ND LT. SAM[illegible]

Approximately 1,0[illegible] were challenged Monday morning to see how much post contributes its "fair share" to the 196[illegible] munity Activities Association Fund Drive.

The drive supports three on-post [illegible] and contributes to the support of 32 United Givers agencies in the neighboring communities.

Maj. Gen. C. W. G. Rich, post commander, told the assembled campaign workers "many worthwhile activities would be curtailed or eliminated" without Fort Benning support.

He pointed out that one-fifth of the area population is comprised of military personnel and that while the post only provides one-tenth of the bud[illegible] ets of United Giver agencies, they devote one-third of their services to the military.

Specific Agency

Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Reuben Jenkins of Columbus mentioned some specific agencies that the military receive from the South Columbus Boys Club. [illegible] annual budget of $30,[illegible] and over 65 per cent of its membership from the [illegible] figures the civilian em[illegible] of the post.

Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commander of the 2nd Infantry Division, said the drive is "particularly important and significant within the division . . .We have called frequently (upon the agencies) for aid."

"Will Exceed"

He added that the division expects to exceed last year's contribution.

Col. Robert Williams, drive chairman and commander of the 197th Infantry Brigade, told the group that the drive is a "part of a national American effort. . .to raise funds to support. . .agencies which do so much."

"I have no doubt we will meet that goal ($135,681) and top it," Col. Williams added.

The 78 principal conferees, guests of the Department of Defense, and 55 other professional, business, civic, educational and fraternal leaders, invited by the six areas within the U.S. Continental Army Command, are slated to begin arriving between 8 and 11 a.m. Wednesday.

In addition to the more than 150 principals and guests, approximately 450 representatives from various armed services schools are slated to see the modern Infantry in action, geared to fight under any conditions, over rough terrain, mountains, swamps and from the air.

Principals, guests and service school faculty members and students will get a close look at the Army fighting man, his training, firepower available to him and his mobility in six major demonstrations.

Major problems to be observed include weapons of the Infantry at Hook Range, Rangers in action at Victory Pond, rifle company team in defense at Ruth Range, Army aviation, airborne and Pathfinders at Fryar Field, and a firepower and airmobile assault demonstration at Underwood Road.

CG Speaks

The Army phase, one of three JCOC phases, will be officially opened with a welcoming address Wednesday at 1 p.m. at Hook Range by Maj. Gen. C.W.G. Rich, commandant of The Infantry School.

JCOC participants will visit the Norfolk, Va., area for Navy - Marine demonstrations before coming to Fort Benning coveted championship.

On the team scene, behind the 545 shooting of Capt. Franklin C. Green and SSgt. Robert C. Meagher, the Air Force blasted a 2,173 score out of a possible 2,400 to lead its next opponent. The Marine Corps, by six points.

The Air Force reigned supreme Thursday (Sept. 12) with a clean sweep of the clay pigeon and free pistol championships.

A2-C Philip D. Ross from Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., with a 294 score out of a possible 300, not only won the [illegible] service clay pigion crown [illegible] with his record breaking [illegible] also took the U.S. In[illegible]ional championship.

Capt. This Third annual competition is unique since it is not only hosting one but two championships. Being held along with the Interservice championships are the U.S. International matches, which were held at Fort Benning last year under the name of the "World Tryouts" for the world championship matches fired at Cairo, Egypt.

Each individual match determines a winner in the Interservice realm on the first completion of a course of fire. Under National Rifle Association rules which govern the national shoot, a winner must go over the course of fire three times. The only exception to the foregoing is in the skeet match. An Interservice winner is required to go over the course of fire twice while the national championship requires three runs.

Armed Forces personnel are eligible for wins in both the Interservice and U. S. championships while civilians are eligible in the U.S. portion.

The Army, with the help of a record-breaking score, broke into the winner's circle Saturday and continued winning to share weekend winner's laurels with the Air Force.

Doughboys Clobber Marines

After racking up 105 points in two weeks, the Doughboys are taking a rest. There is no game scheduled this weekend.

The Oren DeHaven coached eleven followed their 88-0 romp over Southwest Florida with a 17-0 win over the Camp LeJeune Marines last Saturday morning on the Marine's home field.

The Doughboys are scheduled to journey to Florida next weekend for a Saturday night battle with the ever-tough Pensacola Navy Goshawks. (See the Bayonet sports page for a full account of this week's win over Camp LeJeune.

and will conclude the conference at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., where they will observe Air Force demonstrations.

In addition to major demonstrations, conferees and guests will be oriented on the Army's over-all role in counterinsurgency, see a Civil Affairs School (Fort Gordon, Ga.) display which portrays civic acts designed to assist underdeveloped countries to improve themselves, and witness a skydiving exhibition by members of the Fort Benning Sport Parachute Club.

CONARC Chief

Gen. John K. Waters, commanding general of the Continental Army Command, will be guest speaker at an official reception and dinner at the Main Officers' Open Mess Supper Club beginning at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

Some guests will depart that night, while others will leave the next morning.

Besides Gen. Waters, Gen. Rich and Brig. Gen. John Norton, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, other distinguished Army representatives slated to attend JCOC include Lt. Gen. Albert Watson II, Third Army commanding general; Maj. Gen. Daniel A. O'Connor, deputy Third Army commander; Maj. Gen. Philip C. Wehle, Military District of Washington, D. C., commanding general; Maj. Gen. Andrew R. Lolli, XV Army Corps commanding general; Maj. Gen. Orlando C. Troxel Jr., deputy commanding general, Second Army; Maj. Gen. John F. Smoller, II Army Corps commanding general, and Brig. Gen. John D. Lawlor, chief of staff, Fifth Army.

jority of support for three on-post agencies — the Youth Activities Club (YAC), Visting Nurses and Preventive Dental Health Program.

Provides Leadership

YAC provides central organization for youth programs such as Boy and Girl Scouts, Brat Barracks, the Junior National Rifle Association and other recreational programs that give post youth leadership and opportunity in recreation.

The club served approximately 4,000 boys and girls last year, as compared to 3,500 the year before.

The visiting Nurses Program renders health education to dependents by visiting homes or by consultation. A total of 11,965 people received aid from the nurses last year.

The Preventive Dental Health Program provides free cleaning and fluoridation of teeth for dependent children under 18 yeatrs old. In 1962 this program served 4,245 youngsters.

The drive will run through Nov. 15.

The first company-sized unit on post to reach 100 per cent participation was the 55th Officer Candidate Company of the 5th Student Battalion. Lt. Col. George P. McLendon, battalion commander, and Capt. Richard E. Black Jr., company commander, presented Chaplain Estes with a check for the company's fair share Wednesday morning.

team, behind the shooting of individual match winner, 1st Lt. Presley Kendall with a 593 score, and 2nd Lt. Eugene Koistad, blasted a two-point, record-breaking score of 2,254 out of a possible 2,400 to win the individual and team crowns and its first two championships of the two-week competition.

The Air Force stuck to its winning ways in the center fire pistol competition by taking the individual and team match. Capt. Franklin C. Green, with a 593 score out of a possible 600 - point course, took the Interservice crown for individuals and sparked his team to a 2,338 victory.

A 592 score led the Air Force to its third Interservice crown of the day in the skeet shoot. The championship, which was won by the Army last year with the same score, saw A2-C Thomas J. Heffron with a 98, MSgt. Robert B. Reay with a 99, TSgt. Jack E. Johnson with a 98 and TSSgt David G. Bywater with a 97 total, teamed up for a score bettering their next contenders by six fallen birds.

The Army added two more championships to its lists Sunday, one on the Interservice level and the other on the national plane.

Second Lt. William C. Morris, one of three shotgunners tied Saturday with 99 out of 100 birds, came back in the second day of competition with 98 out of 100 to post the winning score in the Interservice skeet championship.

The national crown won by the Army, the U.S. smallbore rifle prone championship, went to MSgt. William E. Krilling with a score of 1,763 out of a possible 1,800, making this the first national level crown won so far by the Army in this two-week competition.

In the center fire match, Capt. Green went into the day's round of fire with a 1,183 score, two points ahead of his next competitor, SFC Ralph O. Thompson of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit. When the competition had finished Thompson had picked up the necessary two points to throw the match into a deadlock, 1,771 each.

A shoot-off of 300 points was fired to determine the winner, with Capt. Green coming up the victor with an almost perfect 299 score as opposed to Thompson's 297 total.

Sgt. D. I. Boyd of the Marines worked his way to the coveted 50 - meter smallbore rifle three-position aggregate championship by firing winning scores in the kneeling and standing 50-meter shoots to easily walk away with Tuesdays individual laurels. His score of 1,146 out of a possible 1,200 score was 14 points ahead of his next contender.

Boyd won the kneeling match with 385 points out of a possible 400 and the standing competition with a 371 score.

Teamwise, the Army took the aggregate match with 4,495 points out of a possible 1,800, led by their winning prone team score of 1,563 out of the possible 1,600.

Test Unit Relocates At Gordon

The Test, Evaluation and Control Group headed by its chief, Brig. Gen. Robert R. Williams, moved most of its operations to Fort Stewart this week in preparation for Phase I of the air assault concept test, scheduled to start next week and run through the middle of October.

Actually advance elements of the TEC Group went earlier to Fort Stewart to make the ground arrangements which culminated many months of planning for the initial tests.

The tests are being run using one Infantry battalion plus supporting elements of the 11th Air Assault Division in a variety of situations. Test evaluators and control personnel of the TEC Group will be collecting "hard" data and using military judgement to come up with information which will be studied, correlated and evaluated.

577th Engineers Complete Project

Company C, 577th Engineer Battalion (Construction) has just completed the rehabilitation of another thirteen (13) buildings in the Harmony Church area. Scheduled for immediate occupancy by the 11th Air Assault Division, these structures were restored to original condition after having been vacant for some time.

Lt. Ronald Whippeman was Project Officer and SFC Hatcher served as Project NCO. Company "C" is commanded by 1st Lt. George P. Perdue.

Maj. Gen. Rich Urges Support of CAA Fund Drive

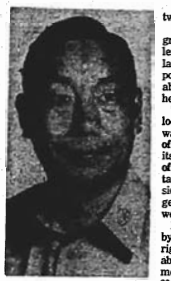
During the period 16 September through 15 November 1963 you will be asked to contribute to the Fort Benning Community Activities Association Fund in connection with the annual drive for funds. This fund supports post welfare, health, and youth activities and makes a substantial contribution to the United Givers Fund in the adjacent civilian areas. The United Givers Fund supports welfare, health, and youth activities to include Scouting, Travelers Aid-Family Service, Red Cross, and many other charitable and welfare activities which provide benefits for military and civilian personnel and their dependents alike.

This year our goal is $135,700 with the primary objective of one hundred percent fair share participation by all personnel at this installation. Attached for your information is a suggested "fair share" based on annual pay. Consider your personal assets and advantages over those less fortunate and then make your contribution in accordance with the dictates of your conscience.

I enjoin all to support this consolidated annual drive for funds for this worthwhile civic endeavor.

Know Your Allies

He's Served 24 Years



LT. COL. LI

Lt. Col. Li Shu - Chi, an Infantry Officer in the Army of the Republic of China, is currently attending The Infantry School's career officer's course No. 1.

Col. Li, a veteran of almost 24 years as an Infantry officer, arrived on post in late August. He expects to return home when his class is graduated next May.

He has held many positions during his career, ranging from platoon leader to division staff officer. Before being selected by his government to attend The Infantry School, the colonel served as chief liaison officer of the Matzu Defense Command.

Matzu, a small island near the China mainland, has been prominent in the news several times when Chinese Reds threatened to shell the island as a prelude to claiming it as their territory.

Col. Li is married and has two children.

"I don't know if I am a grandfather," he said. "I left my family on the mainland and it is almost impossible to get information about what they are doing," he explained.

The Republic of China is located on the island of Taiwan but claims sovereignty of mainland China. Taiwan itself is about twice the size of New Jersey. High mountains rise along the eastern side of the island and slope gently into plains of the west.

It was originally inhabited by fierce, headhunting aborigines, who now number about 150,000 and live in remote mountain areas. About 80 per cent of the island's 10 million population are direct descendents of mainland Chinese.

15 Officials Make Jump For Grads

Fifteen men of The Infantry School's Airborne-Air Mobility Department teamed up last week to help Col. Michael Pavlick, department director, conduct one of his last official acts when they parachuted onto Fryar Field for the graduation of class No. 8.

Col. Paulick and Lt. Col. A. S. Madding, deputy director, headed the team of veteran parachutists, who represented 185 years of airborne service and more than 3,000 jumps.

Honor graduate of the class was Pvt. Raythel F. Burnette, 18, who received a paratrooper statuette and framed diploma, in addition to his Parachutist Badge.

Col. Paulick, who has been assigned to U. S. Strike Command, MacDill Air Force Base, Fla., challenged the 379 graduates to maintain the high esprit de corps and mental and physical alertness they acquired during airborne training.

He added that they had been trained by "some of the finest men to be found anywhere in the world."

Daily at Martin Army Hospital a small army of doctors and nurses busy themselves caring for the ill and injured, but their work, though difficult at times, would often be more so without the strong corps of Red Cross Volunteers that come to give their time and energy to a multitude of tasks.

Last year alone, Red Cross Volunteers contributed in excess of 25,000 hours to Martin Army Hospital, the Dependent Dental Clinic, school physical examinations and the Bloodmobile.

More volunteers are needed. For those women who are interested in becoming uniformed Red Cross Volunteers, a training class for Gray Ladies, Staff Aides and Volunteer Nurses aides will begin Oct. 14 in the second floor conference room at Martin Army Hospital.

Application interviews will be held Sept. 23, 1:30-3 p.m., Oct. 9, 9:30-11 a.m. or Oct. 8, 9:00-11 a.m. in the ground floor American Red Cross Recreation Hall at the hospital.

DUSA Tot Town Nursery provides class members and volunteers with free nursery service.

Freedom's Story Told In America's History

The annual Freedoms Foundation contest has begun. This year the contest's theme is, "What Can I Do For Freedom?"

The contestants will be letter writers from the very foundations of Freedom—the men and women of the United States military forces.

It is not for us to tell them what they should write, but possibly we may remind them what others have done for freedom.

The Pilgims in New England crossed uncharted seas to secure freedom to worship as they desired.

In Georgia, debtors were brought to the land of the free as indentured servants. They worked their way to freedom.

In a speech to Congress in 1941 President Franklin D. Roosevelt called Freedom of Speech and Expression, Freedom of Worship, Freedom from Want and Freedom from Fear, the foundations of Americanism.

Freedom has not come easily to Americans.

We are constantly striving to make freedom greater. And we must vigilantly guard the precious freedoms already attained.

Let us put to use the Freedoms Foundation contest to express our own contributions to freedom—small though they may seem alongside those of our forefathers. In this manner others may recognize WHAT WE CAN ALL DO FOR FREEDOM. (AFPS)

Chaplain's Corner

Golf, a Humblin' Game

By Chaplain (Lt. Col.) James C. Carroll

Whether you're a pro, a low handicapper or a week-end duffer, you can exercise and demonstrate many virtues on the golf course. Of special note would be the virtues of honesty, humility, charity and patience.

When you approach the starter, well equipped with full regalia, you check your watch, gather your foursome, prepare the score card, meet old golfing cronies, loosen up your arms and legs, then patiently await your call to the first tee.

Despite some thirty odd cohorts waiting their turn, a pall of silence falls over the crowd as they attach their eyes to your ball, stance and backswing. In grim determination, you decide exactly where the ball will travel. But fate steps in and after a mighty swing and supposed perfect timing, you dribble the ball but a few yards to the front.

You may even manifest complete satisfaction, as the ball starts off, true to course, only to discover either a big hook or a wide slice. Does the crowd laugh, murmur or stir? To the contrary; your partner utters a confident bit of advice and you head silently down the fairway.

All manifest extreme politeness in giving proper honor to the man farthest from the pin. Angels guard the fairways and bunkers and anxiously pray that you will escape from the traps or roughs with only one sturdy swing.

At the end of each hole the simple question is asked of all: How many strokes? You can forget, underscore or exaggerate, but, afterall, whom would you offend? All golfers develop a strong sense of personal honesty.

We could enumerate many more virtues if we circle the entire course. One hole is sufficient for discussion. Golfers are basically religious people. Waiting wives, sweethearts and friends should know that a dedicated golfer, with proper intention, can truly give due honor to a loving God.

Diplomatic 'Hot Line' Is Now in Operation

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A diplomatic "hot line" between Moscow and Washington has gone into operation. It began with the simultaneous clattering of telecommunication machines in the Kremlin and the Pentagon.

The emergency communications channel is designed to reduce the risk of accidental war. The opening was announced in a one-sentence Defense Department statement:

No ceremony accompanied the implementation of one of the few arms control measures that the United States and the Soviet Union, the two major nuclear powers, have been able to agree upon.

There was no exchange of official messages. Instead, from Washington went the message used by Teletype operators to test whether a circuit is operating — "The quick brown fox jumped over the lazy dog's back 1234567890."

Back from Moscow came a message in Russian, which was completely unintelligible to the United States operators but showed that all the Russian characters on the Teletype were working correctly.

The decision to establish a "hot line" is a direct outgrowth of the serious delays that developed in diplomatic communications between the two capitals during the Cuban crisis last fall. Diplomatic messages are now sent over normal commercial channels to the United States and Soviet Embasies in Moscow and Washington.

With the time consumed by transmission, coding and decoding, translation and delivery, hours are often required before a message reaches its destination.

The Judge Says . . .

By Capt. Stephen V. Dubin

During a man's lifetime, he will assume many obligations. One of the foremost of these is the obligation to support his wife and children. Many servicemen are today finding themselves in a great deal of trouble because they have shirked their duty of support.

Let's take a look at the possible legal consequences that may result from nonsupport. First of all, your wife may notify your unit commander through channels of your failure to provide support for your family. At the least, this will cause great embarrassment to you, and possibly it will lead to disciplinary or adverse administrative action.

Secondly, there are many civil consequences that may result from shirking your responsibility. All states provide for civil proceedings for non-support. In these proceedings the husband is brought into court and either pays up or he can go to jail. Also, as a few men can testify, you can't escape this civil proceeding by being stationed in a state other than that in which your family resides. By means of the "Uniform Reciprocal Act," the long arms of the law can reach you in any state. Some states even make non-support a criminal offense with a prison term as punishment. As you can see, it is best to meet your obligation of support and to meet it promptly.

Now, a word to those who are divorced. It is the infrequent case where divorce terminates the obligation of support; often divorce increases this obligation. Failure to obey the provisions of a divorce decree as to alimony and child support payments can lead to the same kind of trouble as the failure of a married man to provide support. Even if you remarry, you are still bound to pay the amount provided for in the divorce decree.

If you can't afford to pay, because of the burden of supporting two families, it may be possible for you to have the decree amended. Don't just sit around without paying; you may find that the payments due will accumulate to the point that you suddenly are way over your head, and you could wind up in jail for failing to obey the decree.

If you are having difficulties in supporting your dependents, do something about it. Personnel of the Soldiers Advocate Division of the Staff Judge Advocate's Office (Building 5; phone 545-4893) are ready and willing to help you with this or any other legal problem.

Capitol Notes

Congress moved into the month of September with most of the big battles still ahead. Usually by Labor Day, Congress is breezing down the home stretch. But this year it has a great deal of legislation to be dealt with before adjournment and many Congressmen fear they'll still be around at Christmas.

The Senate on Aug. 30, with Sen. Lee Metcalf (D., Mont.) presiding, and the only one of the 100 members in the chamber, tied the brevity record for a meeting — 3 seconds. Senator Metcalf, who also presided July 5 when the previous 5-second record was broken, opened and closed to the token session with the terse announcement: "The Senate, under previous order, now adjourns until Tuesday next." This took care of the Labor Day work break.

Fort Benning Society Women's News

This past week may have gone a little faster than the previous week. School life has settled down to its normal routine. One of the duties of students is to elect officers for various positions in the school. You may have seen Cissy Whitt's name in the paper last week sometime.

Cissy is a senior at Baker. She was named editor of their school newspaper. That is not all Cissy does. She is a varsity cheer-leader, secretary of student council, and treasurer of the Civinettes.

The co-editor at Columbus also happens to be from post. Kathy Aure, a member of Quill and Scroll, shares her title with a Columbusite. Besides being co-editor of the "Blue Streak," Kathy is the chairman of the senior bulletin board.

There are quite a few post girls at Baker who have been selected as R.O.T.C. sponsors. Among the twenty girls are: Sandy Roche, Mickey Scott, Gail Brophy, Kathy Henson, Lucia Wells, Gil Valenteen, and Corliss Cornett.

Sandy Duke represents Fort Benning as an R.O.T.C. sponsor at Columbus High School. Because there is no R.O.T.C. program at Pacelli, there are no sponsors there.

Not only have schools been electing officers, but other organizations have selected their sponsors. The sorority on post re-elected Sandy Duke a senior at Columbus, president. The vice-presidency went to Kathy Gueymard, also a senior at Columbus. Other seniors of C.H.S. are Linda Taft, recording secretary, and re-elected treasurer, Terri Setaro.

Kay Eckland, a junior at C.H.S., is property mistress. Pricilla Moore was elected corresponding secretary. Neville Brickhouse, a senior at Pacelli, is chaplain and goat mistress. Besides holding these positions in the sorority, Neville is president of J.A.D.A.

Instead of attending school, a few of the Fort Benning girls went to New York for five days. Liz Costigan, Linda Taft, and Bonnie Boyle were invited to West Point for the famous "Ring Dance." I understand that they enjoyed themselves immensely.

This past weekend was quite a novelty for the three local high school football teams. Pacelli won their game against Harris County, 26-0; Columbus tied Willingham, 13-13; Baker lost to Valdosta, 6-0. No matter what the scores were, all three schools played magnificently. Even though the schools are rivals, teens from all three schools were cheering the other on to victory.

This weekend was ended with a going away party for Vivienne Johnson, a junior at Columbus. The affair was given by Rica Spencer at the Women's Club. Vivienne spent her freshman year at Baker, where she decided to change schools. Columbus was glad to have her for her sophomore and part of her junior years. She also has a lot of friends at Pacelli. We want Vivienne to know that we send our best wishes with her as she leaves for Germany.

TIC Ladies Hold First Luncheon

The ladies of The Infantry Center Troop Command held their first luncheon of the season in the Supper Club Lounge of the Main Officers' Open Mess recently.

Hostesses for the event were the wives from Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Center Troop Command, under the guidance of Mrs. Earl F. Holton, wife of Col. Holton, CTC commander, and Mrs. John K. Roberts Jr., wife of Lt. Col. Roberts, deputy commander.

The walls of the lounge were decorated with maps of the world and the United States. A German motif was created on the wine table with maps, grapes and a wooden hand-carved wagon. Maps of the different sections of the United States decorated the U-shaped luncheon table.

Cowboys and indians highlighted the western states; the northern states were represented by timber and ice bears; the symbol for the eastern states was skyscrapers, and the Southern parts were ornamented with cotton and sea shells. A road led from all states to the headtable, which was decorated with the flags of the United Nations, soldiers, tanks and trucks, and the emblem of the Infantry.

Mrs. Felix B. Moss, was presented a corsage of red and white carnations.

The doorprize, an arrangement of artificial fruit and flowers, was won by Mrs. Strech, mother of Mrs. Roberts.

FRUITY SNOW SALAD

1 tbsp. (1 envelope) unflavored gelatin
2 tbsp. lemon juice
3-oz. Package cream cheese
¼ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
½ cup cream, whipped
No. 2½ can fruit cocktail, drained
½ cup chopped pecans
¼ cup sugar

Soften gelatin in lemon juice; dissolve over hot water. Soften cream cheese and blend in mayonnaise. Stir in gelatin, fruit cocktail and pecans. Add salt and sugar to whipped cream; fold into fruit mixture. Pour into 1½-qt. mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on ruffle of lettuce. Garnish with pineapple slices and maraschino cherries. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Ladies Tea To Be Held

Over 1,700 ladies are expected to attend the opening tea of the Women's Club of Fort Benning Oct. 2 in the Main Officers' Open Mess from 2-5 p.m.

Always a gala affair, this year the ladies of the 11th Air Assault Division will be hostesses for the tea. They are already in the process of planning the event.

The entire main club will be transformed into visions of fall. Elegant floral arrangements and displays will decorate the main ballroom in fall colors of gold, brown and dark green.

In the receiving line will be some of the club's officers and honorary board members.

Coffee and tea, assorted finger sandwiches and petite fours will be served to the women.

Colorful exhibits are to be prepared informing new members of the club's many varied activities. This year they include everything from art lessons, cake decorating, horseback riding and cooking to knitting and reducing lessons. Registration for these activities will be taken at the tea. The chairman of each group or instructor will be on hand to answer any questions that may arise.

Invitations to the opening tea have been mailed individually in past years, however, due to the increase in membership this year, members are urged to read their club bill, as future invitations will be tucked inside.

Nursery School Plans Festivities For Anniversary

Tot Town Nursery will observe its sixth anniversary under the sponsorship of the Daughters of the United States Army (DUSA), Fort Benning chapter, Saturday (Oct. 26).

Plans are in progress for the entertainment of children 3-years and older who are registered at Tot Town. There will be a clown magician, games, cartoons, novelties for each child and a gift for children whose birthday falls on the 26th.

Tickets will be on sale at the Nursery, Bldg. No. 1075, and the commissary nursery, Bldg. No. 1830, and will cost 50 cents.

A ticket entitles the children to two hours of nursery care, and party favors. Parents and interested persons are extended an invitation to visit the nursery where they also will be served refreshments.

The October luncheon will be sponsored by wives of the officers assigned to Radiology, Lab, and EENT Services. A fashion show will be presented by Kiraly's.

Mrs. William A. Todd gave an interesting report on the Women's Club Nursery.

Letters were read by the Secretary, Mrs. Robert E. Murray, from the Thrift Shop, thanking everyone who had helped this past year. A thank you note from the past president, Mrs. George Schonholtz expressing her appreciation for the lovely piece of silver also was read. Another letter was read from the Woman's Club encouraging all to attend the opening Tea Oct. 2.

'Rozelle Show' Hosts Women's Club Members

Four women from the post appeared on a local television program last Friday to publicize the forthcoming sale of "Queen of Battle, Her Recipes," the cookbook being printed by the Women's Club of Fort Benning.

Appearing on "The Rozelle Show" on WRBL television were Mrs. Curtis L. Hankins, chairman of the Cookbook Committee, Mrs. Bea Woestenburg, Mrs. John H. Cochran, second vice president of the Club and Mrs. Robert D. Worthen, Women's Club Welfare chairman.

Mrs Hankins and Mrs. Woestenburg prepared recipes from the cookbook and Mrs. Worthen and Mrs. Cochran talked with Rozelle about the sale of the book and discussed what will happen to the profits made from its sale.

Slated for its first public appearance at the opening tea in the Main Officers' Open Mess October 2, the cookbook will sell for $2. A great demand is anticipated and women are urged to purchase their books early.

Col. W. R. Lynch And Capt. Geczy Receive Honor

Officers and their ladies of the Company Tactics Committee met recently at the Country Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess for an informal fall get-together honoring two members of the committee who are leaving.

Members of the committee receiving honor were Col. W. R. Lynch, former committee chairman, now Company Operations Department director, and Capt. George Geczy, an instructor with the department who is leaving to attend a career officer's course.

Others honored were Maj. Wilbur J. Thiel the new committee chairman and Capt. Neil McCurdey new assistant operations officer for the committee.

Highlighting the evening, following cocktails and dinner, was a skit presented by three officers and an enlisted man depicting the trials and tribulations of a battalion commander in dealing with the leaders of his support units.

The skit was followed by the presentation of company tactics master tactician awards to each of the departing members.

Mrs. Paul Johnson was head of the committee who directed the efforts of all involved in setting up the affair.

Defense Department Explains New Pro Pay Policy

The Department of Defense has reviewed the MOS structure of all services and has redefined the critera on which proficiency pay is to be based.

The current enlisted proficiency pay program will be phased out on Sept. 30, 1963 and replaced Oct. 1, with a revised program.

The new program is aimed at providing an incentive to remain in the service for personnel required in MOS which are costly in terms of training time and money and in which the supply of career personnel is inadequate to meet Army-wide requirements. This category of proficiency pay is based on the soldiers' specialty.

Another purpose is to retain an incentive for superior job performance by personnel in other MOS. This category of proficiency pay is based on superior performance of duties.

This new program will result in increased dollar payments for personnel assigned to and qualified in MOS designated for proficiency pay (specialty) at monthly rate of P-5, $100; P-2, $75; and P-1, $50 and provide greater assurance of continuity of their pay than before. An incentive for superior job performance by personnel in all other MOS will be provided in the form of proficiency pay (superior performance) awards at the rate of P1, (Sp) $25.

All soldiers who meet the criteria outlined below will be eligible to receive specialty awards or to compete for subperiod performance awards since ALL MOS are included in the new program.

To be eligible for either type of proficiency pay, an individual must be on active duty, be in grades E-3 or higher, have completed 24 months active duty and have a minactive duty and has a minservice immediately prior to the award.

In addition, the individual must satisfy specific requirements for the type of proficiency pay authorized for his MOS.

To get specialty pay, a soldier must be a careerist. (A careerist is defined as an individual on his second or subsequent enlistment, or a first-termer whose active service obligation totals six or more years.) He must be qualified in and assigned to duties in his PMOS, and he must verify his PMOS periodically under the enlisted evaluation system to maintain his MOS qualification.

To get Superior Performance pay, he must have attained or exceeded the Superior performance qualification score established and announced by Headquarters, Department of the Army, for the PMOS and skil level in which evaluated.

He must have demonstrated superior performance on the job in the PMOS and skill level in which serving for a minimum of six months, and he must be selected for the award by his unit commander.

Personnel who may suffer a net pay loss as the result of implementation of this new program will be encouraged to apply for retraining in shortage MOS approved for Proficiency Pay (Speciality) in which they may have had prior experience or training, or for which they indicate an aptitude.

Eye Clinic Can Answer Questions About Vision

BY 2D LT. DAVID L. ARMSTRONG
MSC Optometry Section, MAH

This week let's answer a few questions concerning vision. The following questions are often asked by patients in the Eye Clinic. Perhaps the answers presented will clear up some questions in your mind. If you have any additional questions about vision, be sure to ask the doctor when you have your next visual examination.

Q. WHAT IS A VISUAL EXAMINATION?

A—A complete visual examination consists of an investigation of both eyes to determine the presence or absence of ocular disease and a visual analysis (refraction) of the visual apparatus.

This analysis consists of objective and subjective tests, from which is determined the prescription necessary for clear and comfortable seeing at a distance and at near points. Included are tests which will indicate how well the two eyes function together as a team.

An important act to remember is that a visual examination may reveal the presence of a general systemic illness as well as ocular pathology, since many diseases of the body will cause the appearance of clinicl signs in the eyes.

Q—IS 20-20 PERFECT VISION?

A—Many people think that because they can see the 20-20 letters on a chart 20 feet away, they have perfect vision. A visual acuity of 20-20 is one aspect of good vision but by no means the only one. All we know when a person has 20-20 vision is that he can see clearly at a distance.

Some other important things that make up perfect vision are the ability of the eyes to work well together as a team, the ability to see clearly at the normal reading distance, good depth perception, good vision to the side and good color vision. There are many other factors involved in perfect vision, but the point has been made that 20-20 vistion does not necessarily indicate perfect vision.

Q—HOW OFTEN SHOULD I HAVE MY EYES EXAMINED?

A—The answer to this question depends upon your age and your visual condition. A young person in school should have his eyes checked once a year as should a person over the age of 40. From ages 20 to 40, vision is likely to change less rapidly, and a visual examination every two years should be sufficient. (Usually a vision screening by the school nurse or hospital corpsman will indicate if a complete visual examination is necessary). In some cases, the doctor may recommend more frequent examinations than suggested above.

Q—HOW CAN I TELL IF MY CHILD NEEDS A VISUAL EXAMINATION?

Let me begin by saying that every child should be given a complete visual examination before entering school. Many children in school are laboring under a severe handicap because they do not have the clear comfortable vision which modern visual care could give them. There are a number of signs that every parent and teacher should watch for which indicate visual problems. Some signs are crossed eyes, constant red eyes, excessive tearing, holding reading material close to face, reading difficulty, inability to see distant objects, headaches, frequent styes.

If any of the above symptoms are noticed in your child, a visual examination should be obtained as soon as possible.

Q—ARE VISUAL DEFECTS HEREDITARY?

A—The answer to this question is usually, 'yes.' Depending upon the specific defect, it may or may not be hereditary. Refractive errors like nearsightedness, farsightedness and astigmatism seem to be hereditary in most cases. Some ocular diseases like glaucoma show a definite tendency to be hereditary. If there is a history of any ocular condition in your family, you should check with the doctor. His thorough examination is the only way that you will know whether or not you have the condition and will need treatment for it.

Q—WHY BIFOCALS?

A—A bifocal lens is used when the patient has a visual problem which requires a different lens for near and distant vision. In many instances, an individual is unable to focus from distant objects to near ones. In that case, the bifocal lens does the focusing. Sometirnes a person's eyes do not perform well together as a team when he is reading through his distance lenses. This may result in headaches, excess tearing or burning eyes. In this case, a bifocal may be prescribed to improve the co-ordination of the two eyes.

The above problems may be present in persons of all ages. Since we are now using bifocal lenses on many children and young persons, they are no longer the supposed sign of age they once were.

2nd Engineer's New Sp6 Is First in Unit's History

Friday the thirteenth of September 1963 turned out to be a lucky day for Sgt. Emory R. Williams Jr., a member of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Engineer Battalion. In a ceremony held in the office of Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow Jr., commanding officer of the 2nd Engineer Battalion, Sgt. Williams was promoted to the grade of Sp6 and became the first person to hold that rank in the long and glorious history of the Second Engineers.

Specialist Williams entered the service in February 1953 and underwent Basic Combat Training at Camp Atterbury, Ind. Upon completion of his basic training he was assigned to the 112th Engineer Battalion, Headquarters and Service Company as company clerk. On June 15, 1954 the 112th Engineers were redesignated the 41st Engineer Battalion and it was as a member of the 41st Engineers that Sp6 Williams first enlisted for six years on November 18, 1954. In August of 1955 Specialist Williams departed for Kitzingen, Germany, as part of the advance party of the 41st Engineers, and assumed the duties of S-1 Clerk, Courts and Boards Clerk, and Personnel Administrative Clerk. Specialist Williams then rotated with the 41st Engineers to Fort Benning in March of 1958 and continued his duites as S-1 and Legal Clerk.

In June of 1958 the 41st Engineer Battalion was redesignated the Second Engineer Battalion and Specialist Williams became the Personnel Sergeant for the Battalion. Next, in October 1961 Specialist Williams resumed the duties of the S-1 and Legal clerk, and was officially designated the Battalion Legal Clerk on February 1, 1963, under the new ROAD organization. Sp6 Williams has the distinction of having served ten years of continuous service with this unit.

Specialist Williams has attended the Second Infantry Division Non-commissioned Officer's Academy in June of 1959 and the special course for Personnel Staff (NCO's) at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. in 1962.

He has been awarded the Good Conduct Medal on three different occasions, February 16, 1956, March 1, 1959, and September 29, 1962. He has also received one division Certificate of Achievement.

Viet Nam Veteran Wins Bronze Star

Combat Badge and Medal Awarded to Division Capt.

By Bob de Camara

RECEIVES COVETED BRONZE STAR MEDAL

The coveted Bronze Star Medal and the Combat Infantryman's Badge, an award rarely given in peacetime, were presented to a 2nd Infantry Division officer last week at parade field ceremonies that also honored other officers and enlisted men.

A tour of duty in South Viet Nam from February this year year to February this year earned the Bronze Star and battle badge for Capt. Clyde T. Sheffield of the 2nd Division's training and operations general staff section.

During his year in Viet Nam, often under hostile fire, Capt. Sheffield advised the 41st Civil Guard Battalion on Long Khanh Province and took part in "15 or 17" combat operations.

On Marne Field alongside Division Headquarters, top ranking commanders and sergeants watched as Lt. Col. Francis E. Mendenhall, commander of the 37th Artillery, was given an Army Commendation Medal for service as military assistant to The Hon. Stephen Ailes, Under-Secretary of the Army.

Col. Mendenhall's assignment with Mr. Ailes was from September 1961 to June 1963.

A certificate of Achievement, Soldier - of - the - Month honors and "Best Mess" plaques for Sand Hill and Kelley Hill also received the attention of Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general of the "Indianhead" Division, who made the presentation.

Maj. James F. Rast of 3rd Brigade Headquarters picked up a Certificate of Achievement for "meritorious performance of duty" as a plans and policies officer for the European Communications Zone. Maj. Rast was stationed in LaRochelle, France.

The Division Soldier-of-the-Month, for July finally got his multiple bonus which was held up by the division's participation in Swift Strike III. A certificate, wrist watch and

By 1st Bn., 23rd Infantry PIO

Smiling faces and warm welcomes were the order of the day as members of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry arrived home from duty in Germany. The first of some 700 "We Servers" arrived at the battalion's Kelley Hill headquarters last week with the remainder to follow shortly.

Lt. Col. William H. Cox, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry commander was on hand for the late night arrival to greet his men, as was Lt. Col. Lewington S. Ponder, divison G-1, who represented the Commanding General.

Wives and children of returnees were also present to help greet the men as they debarked from the buses which brought them from Turner Air Force Base, the terminal point of the special Military Air Transport Service jet that brought them across the ocean.

The men, "stranded" in Europe with the discontinuance of the Army's Rotaplan, are being ferried back to Fort Benning to rejoin their unit. Most will remain with the battalion, with a few surplus personnel being reassigned within the division.

Top Division Shooters Awarded Coveted Badges

Marksmanship awards were presented to two present and one past member of the "Second to None's" Marksmanship Detachment by Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general, 2nd Infantry Division, in front of Division headquarters on September 11.

SFC Burl Branham received the highest Army award given for service rifle competition, the Distinguished Marksman's Badge, while SFC William Thornton, now a member of the Third U. S. Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit, and Sp5 Jadie Price both received Excellency in Competition Badges. In the case of Sgt. Branham, he received a coveted award which has been given fewer times than the Congressional Medal of Honor.

All three badges were earned during the Third U.S. Army Commander's Matches held here at Fort Benning last May at which time Branham fired 245-23V; Thornton 242-15V; and SP5 Price 246-20V.

A survey instrument operator with the 17th Artillery's Headquarters Battalion, Sp4 Moore won the battalion soldier-of-the-month title in February, the Division Artillery title in March and repeated as Division Artillery top soldier in July along with the division award.

Moore has been with the "Second to None" since August 1962 and was promoted recently.

For the Sand Hill area: SFC Horace R. King accepted the "Best Mess" plaque for Company C of the 1st Tank Battalion, 72nd Armor. The counterpart plaque on Kelly Hill went to the 15th Artillery's Headquarters Battery and was handed to SSgt. Charles T. Monaghan.

The 2nd Military Police Company supplied an honor and color guard. Besides Gen. Billingslea, who took an active part in the review, Brig. Gen. John T. Corley, assistant division commander, was also present and seated in the viewers' stand.

2nd Infantry Division Receives A New Staff Judge Advocate

Lt. Col. Willard Young has recently been assigned as the "Indianhead" Division's new staff judge advocate, replacing Lt. Col. John F. Kearns, who is retiring from active military service.

Coming to the division for the first time, Col. Young was last assigned to the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, Eighth U. S. Army Headquarters, in Seoul, Korea.

Born and raised in Huntsville, Ala., he entered the University of Georgia with the ambition of receiving a law degree. But World War II postponed the realization of that ambition and he entered Officer's Candidate School here at Fort Benning in 1943.

After receiving his reserve commission as a lieutenant in the infantry, Col. Young was assigned to the Pacific Theater and remained in Hawaii until 1957 when he received his discharge from active duty.

Returning to the University of Georgia, he obtained his Doctor of Laws degree the following year. Shortly after this he returned to active duty and attended the Officer's Associate Advanced Infantry Course, also at Fort Benning, and upon its completion was integrated into the Judge Advocate's Corps with a Regular Army commission.

His first assignment in this new branch of service sent him to the Military Affairs Division, Office of the Judge Advocate General, the Pentagon, Washington, D. C. where he served until 1952.

The following three years saw him stationed in the Office of the Judge Advocate, Antilles Command, located at Fort Brooke in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

After the completion of his overseas tour, Col. Young returned to the Pentagon, this time to the legal office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics.

His last assignment in the Continental United States before going to Korea in 1962 was spent as the staff judge advocate at the U. S. Army Ordnance Missile Command, Red Stone Arsenal, located in his home town of Huntsville. This tour of duty earned Col. Young the Army Commendation Medal for outstanding and meritorious performance of duty.

1st of 9th Painter Does Sign Again

By 2nd Bn., 9th Infantry PIO

When the 1st Battalion, 87th Infantry was redesignated as the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry, the task of repainting the Headquarters Company sign fell to PFC Paul J. Marchand of Headquarters Company. Pvt. Marchand is no stranger to this task. He has done it twice before.

Marchand painted the Combat Support Company sign when the 87th was a Battle Group. When it was reorganized under the ROAD concept he repainted the sign for Headquarters Company of the 1st Battalion, 87th Infantry. Last week he was once again out painting the sign.

A native of Hollister, Mass., PFC Marchand has had no experience as a sign painter.

He is presently assigned to the Davy Crockett section.

Downs 2nd MI Detachment

ASA Wins Support Command Trophy

The Support Command Softball Championship was decided last week when Company A, 303rd Army Security Agency outscored the 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment 4-3 in the final game of a best of three series.

All six runs scored in the game crossed the plate in a hectic fourth inning. ASA started off the action in the top of the inning by combining one hit, a stolen base and an MI error to produce their only two tallies of the game.

Roger Butcher started things rolling with a line drive three bagger to left field and was followed by Jerry Cole who bounced out third to first. Sam Mandia then hit a towering infield fly to short which was dropped by Ed Valenz after he lost it in the lights. Butcher scored on the error and Mandia safely reached second base standing up. The alert left fielder then proceeded to steal third and racked up MI's second and final run of the game on a long sacrifice fly to center field by Frank Surano. The side was retired when James Merrit flied out to center field.

Coming to bat in their half of the inning, ASA didn't waste any time in erasing the two run deficit. Al Futch led off and safely reached first after laying down a perfect drag bunt. He shortly moved to second on a repeat performance of the play by Earl Smith. Ed Valenz then hit a fly ball into short right field which dropped in for a single scoring Futch from second. A wild throw on the play advanced Smith to third and allowed Valenz to reach second base.

After Jim Bell struck out, Grady Ross drilled a long fly ball to deep center field, scoring Smith from third with the tieing run. Falgout then aided his cause by banging a single over second base to score Valenz with what finally proved to be the winning run. An insurance run was added when Chico Fernandez knocked in Falgout, who had stolen second base.

Operation 'Sky Soldier' Is Next for 2nd of 9th

By 2nd Bn., 9th Infantry PIO

Last Monday morning silent shadows moved through the 4 a.m. darkness making the last minute preparations prior to "moving out". Trucks were loaded and personal equipment was crammed into chartered buses.

Elements of the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry were getting ready to move out to Fort Stewart where they will take part in "Operation Sky Soldier I". The 9th will assume the role of the aggressor in this evaluation of the air assault principles and techniques.

Company A and Company C of the 2nd Battalion have been chosen for this role. They will be supported by various elements of Headquarters Company. The remainder of the week will be spent in familiarization with the terrain of Fort Stewart and the particular aspects of the problem before taking to the field in their aggressor uniforms next week.

Headquarters and Bravo companies form the battalion rear detachment. They are presently providing the personnel to take part in the Joint Civilian Orientation Course to be held on the 25th and 26th of September.

Command Changes Within Company B At 2nd of 23rd

By 2nd Bn., 23rd Infantry PIO

Capt. Gregory P. Dillon has been appointed commanding officer of Company B, 2nd Battalion, 23d Infantry. He replaces Capt. Clifton D. Lollar who was transferred to the 3rd Brigade.

Prior to assuming his new position, Capt. Dillon had been the Battalion's S-3 Air. He is a 1957 graduate of the University of Alabama.

Engineers' History Gallant Story

The history of the 2nd Engineer Battalion is a history of men who also faced battle. As individuals, the unit has known its great heroes and its brave men. As a recognized and honored part of an organization of war, the unit has known great honor always. It is a colorful, dramatic, and, sometimes, tragically heroic history.

It Begins

It begins on August 3, 1861, when the decision was made to organize the Battalion of Engineers, Army of the United States. The Civil War was in its beginning days and the fierce battles of Peninsula, Antietam, Fredricksburg, Chancellorsville and numerous others lay ahead. In each of these battles, the engineers used their talents and abilities for their primary mission and, when needed, fought courageously as infantry support.

Through the bitter years of the Civil War, the Battalion of Engineers fought valiantly and, at the end, held streamers for the aforementioned battles, as well as Virginia 1863, Wilderness, Spotsylvania, Cold Harbor, Petersburg and Appomattox.

The nation lapsed into its great Reconstruction Era after the war and it was not until 1898 that the Battalion went to war again. This time, though beseiged by insects, humidity, sultry weather and disease, as well as by the enemy, the unit was awarded streamers for its participation in the battles for the Cuban stronghold, Santiago, and for its work during the Philippine Insurrection.

Chased Pancho Villa

The bandits, headed by the wily and famed Pancho Villa, were pursued with vigor by these men and for their efforts, the unit received a campaign streamer for this punitive expedition.

A year later, September 1917, an enlarged unit was assigned to the 2nd Infantry Division. It was this unit which was to distinguish itself during the bitter fighting in the trenches of World War I. Two Croix de Guerres were awarded the unit by the government of France, both after battles in which the casualty rate of the hard-fighting engineers rose steadily higher. At the end of the war and conflicts such as Meuse - Argonne, Aisne-Marne, Ile de France, and St. Mihiel, whose names will live forever in the annuals of great battles, the Regiment had received a higher percentage of battle casualties than any other engineer unit in France.

With the advent of World War II, the 2nd Engineer Battalion, after intensive training in Fort Sam Houston and in England, took part in the great D-Day activities. On June 6, 1944, one officer and 69 enlisted men waded ashore on bloody Omaha Beach at H-hour to blow up obstacles in the path of assault boats and landing craft carrying the infantry. These 70 men were awarded the Bronze Arrowhead and the Distinguished Citation.

At one point during the bitter fighting of the early days of the Northern France Campaign the war took on an aspect of a personal contest as coincidence pitted the men of the American 2nd Engineer Battalion against their counterparts of the German 2nd Engineer Battalion.

Medal of Honor

It was also during this period that Technician Grade Four Truman Kimbro, Company C, gave his life endeavoring to halt German tanks by placing mines directly under them. For this act of heroism, he was posthumously awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

After a period of peace, conflict broke out on a peninsula in the Far East that few of the world's population had ever heard of. Its name was soon to be engraved in the annals of the Battalion's history in block letters of bright red. Korea!

Battled in Korea

The Battalion sailed from Fort Lewis, Wash., to take their place in battle. Soon after their landing at Pusan, they spearheaded a drive north to the Yalu River. Then began the Chinese Communist intervention.

What followed was possibly the most heroic and tragic action of the Battalion's history.

The huge force of the advancing hordes of Chinese soon required the Division to withdraw down the peninsula. The men of the 2nd Engineer Battalion received the order: Hold!

For the five days between November 25 and 30, the Battalion's defenders viciously fought off the incredible numbers of the enemy. They were overwhelmed at Kunari. Three hundred and twenty-nine officers and enlisted men were killed or captured.

On June 14, 1958, the Battalion was reactiviated after three years of inactivity at Fort Benning. Its mission was both training and engineer support of the 2nd Infantry Division, a training division.

Since its reactivation in 1958, approximately 11,000 trainees have been processed and trained by the Battalion. Engineer advanced individual training cycles were trained for the replacement of personnel in the 10th Engineer Battalion in Germany.

1st of 23rd Makes Musson New SSgt.

By 1st Bn, 22rd Infantry PIO

At a ceremony conducted in the office of the battalion commander, the personnel staff NCO of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry was promoted to the rank of SSgt. Clinton A. Musson received the chevrons denoting his new rank from Lt. Col. William H. Cox, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry commander.

SSgt. Musson, a native of Panama City, Fla., entered the Army in February 1957 and completed basic training at Fort Jackson, S. C. He then joined the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry at Fort Benning to undergo advanced training in infantry weapons. He stayed with the 29th Infantry as a rifleman until selected to serve in the battle group personnel section.

In December 1960 he was assigned to the 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry and again served in the personnel section. With the advent of the ROAD reorganization, he moved to 2nd Admin Company for a short time before assuming the duties of Personnel Staff NCO of the 2nd Battalion, 87th Infantry. He remained with the unit when it was redesignated as the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

Sgt. Musson is a graduate of the Personnel Management Course and the Personnel Staff NCO Course both at the Adjutant General's School, Fort Benjamin Harrison Ind.

By 2nd Military Police PIO

The 2nd MP Company took 2nd place honors in the 1963 Police Pistol Match held at Fort Benning September 3rd and 4th.

The match sponsored by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club saw competition from civil police and military police from the Georgia - Alabama area.

The 1st Brigade Sergeant Major Departs Division

By 1st Brigade PIO

Sgt. Maj. Cecil R. Bedford, a 28-year veteran of distinguished Army service was honored recently in a ceremony which marked his departure from the 2nd Infantry Division's 1st Brigade to a new assignment as Sergeant Major of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry.

Col. William J. Ray, commanding officer of the 1st Brigade, held the brief ceremony in his office. Col. Ray presented the Sergeant Major with a letter of appreciation which stated, in part, that Sgt. Maj. Bedford's "high standard's of appearance, loyalty, devotion to duty, and professional competance have set an example for others in the command to emulate."

A small gathering of 1st Brigade section chiefs heard Col. Ray express his regret at Sgt. Maj. Bedford's departure, although, as Col. Ray stated, "I am sure that the ability and experience which you have so clearly demonstrated while a member of this command will serve to make you an equally valued member of your new command."

Afterwards, Sgt. Maj. Bedford made a few remarks of his own to the enlisted members of 1st Brigade. He then introduced his replacement Sgt. Maj. Lory Bell, formerly of the 3rd Brigade. After shaking hands with all staff members, Sgt. Maj. Bedford said farewell and reported to his new job.

New Executive Officer Assigned With 2nd S & T

By Support Command PIO

Members of the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion (S & T) welcomed their new executive officer to the battalion last Tuesday morning.

Maj. Kulman B. Smith, a native of Georgia became the executive officer Tuesday when Maj. Norman F. Essick was transferred to the maintenance Battalion.

Maj. Smith came to the 2nd Infantry Division for the first time from Viet Nam.

During World War II, the major served with the U.S. Navy in an enlisted status.

BY HAL SHANER

An Army newspaper seems to be an especially good place for a photo column. Army personnel are exposed to the double dividend of attractive camera bargains at Post Exchanges and service in world-wide locations. Consequently most servicemen have cameras and desire to record their stay in places they might not otherwise have been.

The problem becomes one of furnishing information that will be widely useful for a variety of people, places and equipment. Also, purely technical problems such as exposure, development, printing, optics, etc., are rapidly becoming things of the past where the general tourist photographer is concerned. Modern equipment in almost all price ranges takes over the job of producing the image and does it very well. What's left to discuss? Well, a lot. Why take pictures at all, for instance? Take them of what? When? Why take them lousy when it costs no more to take them better.

This column will attempt to help everyone's photographic thinking. It will assume that a great many photos are being made all the time, anyway, and that nearly all of them could have been better than they are.

A thing that all cameras have in common is called the viewfinder. The use or mis-use of the viewfinder makes up a whole big topic called composition. Composition is what people see when they look at the final print. It is questions like "What is this supposed to be? Who is it? Where are we? What's happening? What's this way down here in the corner? Why is this telephone pole growing out of your head?" If you hear comments like these when you show your pictures, you're having trouble with composition, or use of the viewfinder.

Most people use the viewfinder like the sight on a rifle. That is, they aim the camera with it. This is fine, but it's not enough. Your sight picture with the rifle is always the same, but what you see in your viewfinder is always different. So when you look through the viewfinder you are not just aiming the camera, you are actually composing a picture.

Right at this point is where the work begins and where the improvements are made. After you press the button, it's too late. You can't do anything about the picture that just went by. So wait. Think. Compose.

Probably the single most common fault in snap-shooting is that the final picture shows too much. It is not one picture but many, all thrown together and competing for viewer's attention. Decide. Decide what the picture is for, what it is to show, and then adjust what you see in the viewfinder so that everything not essential to the picture is out of the picture. This one idea, applied to your own picture taking, will result in a vast improvement on your next roll of film. Move closer. Tilt the camera up and down slightly. See if you can still show what you want to show from a more pleasing or more unusual angle. After you start this type of thinking about your pictures, analyze your prints and see if you actually accomplished what you had in mind. If not, figure out why and remember to avoid the same error the next time out.

The great thing about all this is that you don't have to buy anything new to give it a try. All it takes is your head and a little thought and interest.

Let us see some of the results and we'll comment on them for you. If you have a shot that turned out well or turned out poorly, but you're not sure why, send it to the Bayonet. We'll try not to lose it and if it will help to illustrate a point of interest to everyone, we'll print it.

Photography can be fun!

DATELINE. . .Little Creek

Navy Language 'Different' to Indianheads

By Byron Dunham

LITTLE CREEK, Va., What does it take to shepard 4,000 Army troops quartered on a strange Navy base? For one thing, it takes a team of competent sergeants to decipher and translate everyday Navy procedures and expressions for living space, eating, supply and transportation into understandable Army use. Maj. Ross Leety, commanding officer of the 2nd Infantry Division's Site Support Group at the U. S. Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek, Va., and Sgt. Maj. James G. White found that white buildings, grey vehicles and mazes of heating pipes covering the landscape are not the only differences harbored by the Navy.

The group includes noncommissioned officers from several unrelated "Indianhead" units. From the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion are SFC George Cox, assigned as operations sergeant at Little Creek; SFC Porter T. Davis, food service chairman; and SFC Kenneth Williamson, transportation sergeant.

Others present are SFC Romallas Brooks and Sgt. Harold H. Higgason from the 2nd Military Police Company; SFC Bruce Cartwright from the 2nd Medical Battalion, and SFC Ira M. Grant from the 702nd Maintenance Battalion.

Nearly the entire command and staff of Headquarters, 2nd Brigade, which will oversee the "Second to None" activities here at Little Creek, arrived late one night recently and are prepared to receive the first group of troops. The party included Lt. Col. William D. Preston Jr., executive officer, Maj. Ben S. Malcom, S-3 officer; Maj. John Serafin, adjutant; Maj. Hugh C. McKeown, brigade chaplain; and Capt. Billy L. Whorton, liaison officer.

COOK of the WEEK

By Mrs. Warren G. Freeman

Rarely ever is a trip abroad considered a total success unless some culinary fare of one or many of the countries visited is sampled and judged perhaps interesting enough to prepare and serve to friends and neighbors at home.

Because service personnel are extremely well travelled many foreign dishes could be created not only to reacquaint the palate with that exotic flavor from abroad but also to reminisce on memorable experiences.

An "Around The World" buffet would be a most enjoyable way to entertain informally or to introduce a selection of color slides.

Our buffet will include a variety of dishes. Let us begin our imaginary journey: It first takes us across the ocean to Germany well known to hundreds of service men and their families to enjoy a unique serving of Schinkenschoeberl (Ham and Egg Squares in Consomme). The recipe was submitted by Mrs. James A. Scott.

3 eggs
½ tsp. salt
1Tbsp. butter
1 small onion, chopped
1-3 c. diced, cooked ham
¼ tsp. pepper
2 Tbsp. snipped parsley
¼ c. flour

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Beat egg whites with salt until stiff. In skillet saute onion and ham in butter until golden. Fold into egg whites with pepper, snipped parsley, flour and egg yolks. Pour into well greased 8x8x2-inch baking pan, and bake 20 minutes. Cool. Just before serving, cut into small squares. Place some in each soup bowl, pour on hot, canned consomme, and sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese. Nice first course at guest dinner for six.

While in Europe we will cross the border to the land of the Dutch and since we are not counting calories we'll enjoy a rich meat dish called Hete Bliksem (Pork Chops with Apples). Mrs. Joe M. Foy tells us by way of introduction to her recipe that "Holland is a six-meal-a-day land for many, and the Dutch regard the calorie most casually." Bearing witness to this zestful attitude is the following dish:

Cut six center-cut T-bone pork chops, 1-inch thick; trim off excess fat. Sprinkle chops with salt and pepper. Brown well on both sides in skillet, then add ¼ cup water, cover, and simmer until well done — about 1 hour, turning often. Meanwhile, pare 3 lb. each of potatoes, apples; cut into 1-inch cubes. In large kettle heat 2½ c. canned condensed beef broth, undiluted. Add potatoes, apples, 2 large onions, chopped, 1 tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper. Simmer, covered, ¼ hour, stirring often. While potato mixture simmers, place 12 fresh pork chop sausages and ¼ c. cold water in large skillet; simmer, covered for 5 minutes. Drain off water, then let sausages cook until well browned. Heap potato mixture in center of heated platter; arrange meat on platter around potato mixture, then garnish with fresh dill. Six to eight servings.

On south to Italy to have our appetites further stimulated with wonderful stemming Ravioli. This recipe is shared with readers by Mrs. Kenneth Hangartner.

Dough
3 c. flour
2 eggs
1 tsp. oil or water
Filling
1 lb. minced cooked chicken
1 chicken liver, chopped
½ c. cooked drained spinach
2 small onion, finely chopped
2 Tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese
1 tsp. parsley
Dash nutmeg
2 eggs
Salt and pepper to taste

FILLING: Mix ingredients together in bowl.

DOUGH: Sift flour and salt together in bowl; drop in eggs, then add oil and mix. Add a little water to make a rather stiff dough. Knead until smooth, then cover and let rest 5 minutes. Place dough on flat board, then cut in half. Roll on lightly floured board until very thin.

Place mixture (about ¼ tsp.) 1-inch apart on dough (will resemble small hills). Roll remaining dough and cover top, pressing to seal around each hill. Cut with pastry wheel and let stand at least 2 hours. Drop into 5 qt. boiling salted water and boil about 15 minutes, or until tender. Serve with tomato sauce and grated Parmesan cheese.

Our last stop before returning stateside will be in the land of lotus blossom, for here in Japan as we imagine ourselves dining in true Japanese style we will treat ourselves to Sukiyaki, by Mrs. Leroy Vollmer Jr.

1 Tbsp. cooking oil
½ lb. sirloin steak, cut in thin diagonal slices, 2x½-inches in size
¼ c. soy sauce
¼ c. sugar
¼ c. water or mushroom stock
1 onion, thinly sliced
1 green pepper, cut in thin strips
1 c. celery, cut in 1½-inch strips
½ lb.-8-oz. can bamboo shoots, sliced, or 8-oz. can mushrooms, stems and pieces
1 bunch green onions, cut in 1-inch strips, including tops.

Heat oil in skillet; add meat and brown lightly. Combine sugar, soy sauce and water or mushroom stock; add this to meat, cover and bring to steaming point. Cook about 40 minutes or until tender. Add remaining ingredients, except green onions; cover and cook over high temperature only a short time — about 2 to 3 minutes. Add green onions and cook 1 minute. Serve with hot steamed rice. Sukiyaki must be served as soon as the vegetables are done so they will retain their crispness. Serves 4 to 6.

122nd Signal Holds Coffee

Officers' wives of the 122nd Signal Battalion recently gathered at the home of Mrs. John E. McIntire for their monthly coffee.

Guests included ladies of the 511th Signal Battalion and Miss Ellen Pesout, of Cincinati, Ohio, sister of Mrs. Roger L. McKenzie.

Notice

On October 17th at 1:30 p.m. at the Sand Hill Non Commissioned Officers Open Mess, The Ladies of the Big Indianhead, will entertain members, friends and honored guests at a birthday membership tea. The steering committee chairman for this affair is Mrs. Lester Severns. Mrs. Wayne D. Cliff is president.

Farewell Luncheon Given

Mrs. Robert C. Culverhouse and Mrs. Joe R. Hamby were guests of honor at a farewell luncheon given last Friday in the Anzio Room of the Main Officer's Open Mess.

Hostesses for the occasion were the wives of the staff of the 1st Battalion 72nd Armor. They included: Mrs. Donald A. Funk, Mrs. William A. Rusher, Mrs. Michael R. Fortini, and Mrs. James C. Shepard.

The club room was brightened by gay, yellow Armor tablecloths and a most attractive floral arrangement in yellow, gold and rust.

Following a delicious seafood luncheon, plans were announced for a battalion party at Indianhead Lodge on September 21.

Mrs. Arthur J. Lochrie, wife of the battalion commander, expressed the feelings of everyone in praise of the departing wives and how much they would be missed. Mrs. Culverhouse was presented the centerpiece in recognition of her many years as an Army wife.

Maj. and Mrs. Culverhouse have been with the 72nd Armor Battalion for the past four years. He is retiring with more than 22 years of service. When the present school term finishes next summer, they will make their home in the Carolinas. Lt. Hamby has been reassigned to the 2nd Administration Company.

A special welcome was extended to Mrs. Merle Lynch, a newcomer to the group.

2nd Engineer Awards Trays At Bn. Coffee

Mrs. Gurvis and Mrs. Albert Rushing sponsored the 2nd Engineer Battalion coffee in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess recently.

Coffee was poured by Mrs. Jerry L. League, from a table holding a centerpiece of orange gladiolus. The centerpiece was later given to Mrs. Harvey Walker who gave birth to a baby girl early this month.

Silver trays were presented to Mrs. Henry Farmer, whose husband has been assigned a Korean tour, and to Mrs. Eugene Randall whose husband has also been reassigned.

New Members Met At Coffee

Hostesses for the event were Mrs. James Wilkie and Mrs. Braxton Snowden. Mrs. W. T. Wade poured.

The centerpiece was an arrangement of fall flowers, which later served as a floor prize, it was won by Mrs. E. T. Hamilton.

Newcomers welcomed to the group were Mrs. Gary Kuhn, Mrs. Melvin L. Patterson and Mrs. Eugene Gardner.

DIVISION CHORUS

Anyone interested in participating in the proposed 2nd Infantry Division Chorus should contact the Division Bandmaster (544-7316) to schedule auditions.

1st and 3rd Brigade Co-Sponsor A Day of Meditation and Prayer

BY BOB deCAMARA

A joint 1st and 3rd Brigade religious retreat with a theme of "Second to None in Christian Living" featured a day-long program recently of meditation, "singspiration" and seminars guided by 2nd Infantry Division chaplains.

A special guest at the Protestant retreat program was sheriff Jack Rutledge of Muscogee County who led the "singspiration" and sang a solo of "How Great Thou Art" before a large audience of division soldiers in green fatigue uniforms.

Another civilian Protestant leader participating in the services was Dr. Charles J. Grenade of the Wynnton Baptist Church who delivered a message on the "Glorious Gospel."

Retreat master for the Catholics' "Day of Recollection" was Father Damien Breen of the Trinitarian Order.

Catholics and Protestants met together in Theater 6 at 8 o'clock in the morning for devotions and words from division leaders and then split into two groups to carry on the all - day conference at their separate chapels.

The reatreat opened with an invocation by Chap. (Lt. Col.) James C. Carroll, the division chaplain. Following Chap. Carroll, the assistant commander of the 2nd Division, Brig. Gen. John T. Corley, a decorated combat veteran and active member of the "2nd's" Holy Name Society, addressed the assembled troopers.

Before the two denominations broke up to pursue their individual activities, they heard from the commander of the 1st Brigade, Col. William J. Ray, introduced by program chairman Chap. (Capt.) Duie R. Jernigan, and the 3rd Brigade leader, Col. John K. Walker Jr., who was prefaced by the ceremonies' project officer, Chap. (Capt.) John E. Green.

After a prayer of dedication and benediction led by Chap. Green, the two groups split up, going to Chapel 2 and Chapel 3.

"Second to None in Christian Living" is patterned after the 2nd Infantry Division motto of "Second to None", a phrase earned in World War I soon after the division's birth in Bourmont, France.

The Protestant program, at which Muscogee County Sheriff Rutledge appeared, highlighted "Second to None. . . in Christian devotion. . .in Bible knowledge. . .in Christian responsibility. . .in Christian marriage. . .in Christian living. . .in Christian witnessing. . .in Christian worship."

Each topic was led by a unit chaplain. Chap. (Maj.) Frank E. Deese, the assistant division chaplain and recently promoted to the rank of major, on Swift Strike III, guided "In Christian Devotion" and held an invocation, a "singspiration", and a devotional on "The Conquering Life."

1st Brigade Radioman Is a 'Ham'

By Jay R. Sharbutt

Radiomen are a weird breed of people. Quiet by nature, they tend to speak in low, guarded tones about such things as the single side-band, a UHF rig, or the RTT net; every now and then, they'll throw in some idle talk about the low-resistance transducent coil condensor, which apparently performs the same function as the high-resistance transducer coil condensor. Or so they tell me. The radio boys are basically a clannish bunch and usually mill around together during off-duty hours, discussing radios. It can jar you some if you see a radioman milling around. . .by himself. But then, it might be expected of a man who transmits on his own rig after a day of transmitting for the Army.

Spd William A. Stewart of Headquarters Company, 1st Brigade is in many respects like the airline pilot who builds and flies his own light plane on weekends for the fun of it. A radio operator and repairman for the 1st Brigade, Sp4 Stewart holds an FCC Amateur's License and is a member of MARS (Military Affiliate Radio System).

Talks To Canada

After his working day, Stewart cranks up his personal radio and shoots the breeze with people as far off as Mexico and Canada. He is permitted by law to apply only 1,000 watts of power upon those in Radioland, but has talked with a lady transmitting from Lima, Peru. This is roughly akin to shouting a question from Roundup, Montana to Azuza, California and getting an answer.

"Atmospheric conditions sometimes do wild things," says Stu, an articulate man whose grasp of the King's English often includes the lingo of the jazz musician. "One time I was scanning the dial and I picked up a weak signal. I checked the call sign out of the wall map and found it was a cat broadcasting from Russia."

"What was he asking for . . .help?" inquired PFC Thomas Kovalchik, a sidekick of Stewart's.

"Naw, he was just calling out to see who he could contact," said Stewart. "They've got a few hams over in Russia. Their licenses are issued on a much more restrictive basis than ours, but they've got 'em." He went on to say that the United States has over 200,000 registered amateur radio operators.

What do hams talk about when they make radio contact?

"Oh, they usually talk about the weather, the equipment they're using and what kind of power they have," said Stewart. "Sometimes they swap names and addresses. It's mainly technical stuff, though."

Has Hi-Fi

In addition to owning a ham rig, Stewart has a hi-fi set and an extensive collection of jazz records. One of his most treasured possessions, however, is a recording of Connie Francis singing in English. "Very rare," admits Stewart.

Sp4 Stewart is a fair drummer and a good athlete. During the past season, he played shortstop for the 1st Brigade softball team. He holds strong opinions on the Los Angeles Dodgers and the New York Giants. He is also a Senior Parachutist, holds the Expert Infantryman's Badge and the Pathfinder's Badge. If you wish to discuss radio, sports or politics with him, give him a call at WA2VSZ. Odds are, he'll answer quickly.

Wins Division Title

By Ken Goodman

Producing an 18 run, 15 hit assault, the men of Company A, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry rolled over a valiant 2nd Admin team to complete the tournament undefeated and capture the 1963 Second Infantry Division Company Level Softball Championship.

Brig. Gen. John T. Corley, assistant division commander, was on hand for the final game and presented the Division Championship Trophy to team manager Carl Halkyer, and individual awards to all members of the winning and runnerup teams.

The contest, held at Sand Hill's Admin Field, was never in doubt as the 23rd Infantry team came across with five runs in the first inning and three more in the second frame to assume a commanding lead while pitcher Jim Drake held the opposition scoreless.

The 2nd Admin team finally got rolling in the third inning to tally a lone run but succumbed to the superior defensive play and fine pitching produced by the champions. They failed to score again until the sixth inning and by this time it was too late. The booming bats of the "We Servers" produced scores in all but one of the seven innings to mount the final 18-3 tally.

Standout performances on the part of the Company A "nine" were numerous. Pitcher Drake displayed the control that earned him three of the team's six tournament victories as he gave up only eight scattered hits.

In the batting department, center fielder Wardell Ross climaxed a fine season with two doubles and a towering home run for a total of five runs batted - in. First baseman "Zeke" Yancy connected for two singles in two official trips to the plate and personally crossed home plate with three runs while pitcher Drake aided his own cause with two key base hits. Left fielder Bob Sparks was three-for-four and scored on each of his trips to the base paths.

On the defensive side of the ledger, third baseman Laurey Jordan went through a series of acrobatics in the "hot corner" to turn many potential base hits into outs. With the rifle arm of Sparks, Ross, and right fielder Roy Rodgers limiting opposing base runners to the absolute minimums, the keystone combination of Ken Sheppard (shortstop) and Ralph Bean (second base) accounted for two double plays and directed numerous put-out throws to the able hands of first baseman Yancy while catcher John Wells was busy nailing two men at home plate.

Any mention of this team's outstanding performances would be incomplete without mention of a tall, blonde specimen of that mysterious breed known as the baseball manager. Company A's champions are under the direction of "Big Carl" Halkyer. A former semi-pro baseball whiz himself, Halkyer's able direction, easy going manner, and comprehensive knowledge of the game contributed immensely to the team's performance. Although he will quickly pass the credit to his players, they concur in hearty praise of his ability.

The 23rd Infantry team in posting their undefeated record tallied an incredible 81 runs for an average of 13.5 per game while allowing opponents to account for only 16 runs or 2.6 per game. In no game did the champs score less than 10 runs.

Runnerup 2nd Admin Company suffered their only two losses of the tournament at the hands of the 23rd. Third place honors went to the 303rd ASA Battalion.

THE WINNERS . . . The winning softball coach and pitcher for the victorious 1st of the 23rd smile after game. (L-R) Carl Halkyer and and James Drake.

CAPT. JARRETT (L) DEMONSTRATES 'BLOCK & CHOP' TO STUDENT

Holder of Black Belt Is Also Battalion 'Exec' for the 23rd

By Ken Goodman

Capt. Jarrett became interested in the ancient oriental art of hand-to-hand combat while serving at Fort Campbell, Ky., in 1958. His teacher, 1st Sgt. Henry Slomanski, is the second ranking Karate man in the world. Under his tutilage, Capt. Jarrett rose to the rank of Black Belt in one year (average is about 8 years). The Capt. earned the grade of Second Degree Black Belt in 1961.

In addition to his own proficiency, Capt. Jarrett, an accredited instructor, has seen two of his students reach Black Belt status and five more attain Brown Belt, one step below.

A 31-year-old native of Oak Lawn, Ill., and a graduate of Michigan State University with a degree in Economics, Capt. Jarrett entered the service in December 1954. He completed the Infantry Officer Basic Course, as well as Airborne and Jumpmaster training here at Fort Benning before being assigned to duty with the 25th Armored Infantry Battalion at Fort Hood, Texas.

After completing fixed wing flight training at Fort Rucker, Ala., the captain was assigned to the 101st Airborne Division as a reconnaissance-surveillance pilot. He served as Intelligence Officer and Operations Officer before departing the 101st Division to attend helicopter school. Successfully completing training as a helicopter pilot, he was assigned to duty in Germany in 1959. While in Germany with the 24th Infantry Division, he served as personal pilot to the division commanding general and later as Aide-de-Camp to Maj. Gen. (now Lt. Gen.) Charles H. Bonesteel.

Returning to CONUS in 1962, Capt. Jarrett attended the Infantry Officer Career Course and went on to complete Ranger training before being assigned to his present duties.

87th INFANTRY

The 87th Infantry is the youngest of all Regular Army units. The unit was constituted at Fort Lewis, Washington on 15 November 1941.

Doughboy Defensive Wall Holds Back Marines

Leathernecks Held Scoreless; Benning Romps to 18th Straight

LEE AND WILLIAMSON DOUBLE-TEAM MARINE FOR FUMBLE

By Dave Braun

Fort Benning's defense threw up a stone wall last Saturday morning at Camp LeJeune, N.C., and then drove back a determined gang of Marines, 17-0, before about 6,000 rain-chilled fans.

Several times the Leathernecks were given scoring opportunities in Fort Benning territory as the result of fumbles and pass interceptions, but in each instance the Doughboys stopped them cold.

Quarterback Marvin Tibbetts cashed in on two touchdowns and also added a two-point conversion for the Army contingent.

Fort Benning battered the Marine line for 196 yards on the ground and 70 yards in the air, coming on four of 13 completions.

The Leathernecks could only amass 50 yards rushing and settled for 37 yards via the aerial waves on five completions in 14 attempts. In a bruising battle, LeJeune was the victim of one fumble while the Doughboys bobbled twice to the Marines. LeJeune picked up 42 yards in penalties as compared to 52 for the Doughboys.

LeJeune won the opening toss and elected to defend the west goal with the wind. With Billy Williamson, Ken Bolin and Warren Maccaroni carrying the bulk of the load, Fort Benning moved from its own 14-yard line to the Marine 19-yard stripe in 11 plays.

Tibbetts on a rollout then pitched to Williamson and the 160-pound scatback scooted to the 13-yard marker.

LeJeune was penalized half the distance to the goal for a personal foul and three downs later Tibbetts lowered his head and lunged in for the score with 7:51 remaining on the clock.

Jeter's extra point attempt was partially blocked and the blue and white squad had a 6-0 lead at the first quarter stop.

The Marines came alive at the onset of the second period, but six tries at the Army defensive wall failed from within the 29-yard line and Benning took over on downs at the 18.

Moments later the Leathernecks threatened again on a 19-yard strike to the Fort Benning 22-yard line. Three times they went to the air, the first two incomplete and the final pass being intercepted by Brewster Hobby in the end zone.

The Doughboys began moving with the ball on their own 17 as Tibbetts lofted a 23-yard aerial to end Dan House complete for a first down on the Doughboy 41.

Hobby then took a hand off and darted to the LeJeune 41-yard line. Tibbetts, unable to find the range on two passes, unlimbered his throwing arm with a 28-yard toss complete to Hobby on the 13.

Bobby Towns cracked off left tackle for four yards, and Tibbetts quickly moved for a first down on the two-yard stripe. When the LeJeune forward wall stopped Ron Quillen for no gain, Tibbetts then sneaked in for the score.

Moments later Tibbetts made it 14-0 on a two-point conversion to end the scoring for the first half.

The Army team gave LeJeune another scoring opportunity mid-way in the third period when a Jeter pitchback was fumbled and recovered on the Doughboy 23.

Pugil Training Being Held At Old Post Gym

Boxing stepped into the sports scene at the post Monday when workouts began in the Old Post Gymnasium being held weekdays from 6 to 8 p.m.

SFC Larry Jones, All-Army middleweight boxing champion from 1948 through 1951, will be head coach with SFC Merrill Lacy, 1963 Third Army Baseball Tournament director, acting as trainer.

These nightly workouts are being held to train prospective boxers for a coming program of boxing smokers to begin, it is hoped, sometime in October.

All necessary equipment for training will be provided boxing enthusiasts with the exception of tennis shoes and shorts.

Cuartel Quarterback

Southern California Faces Tough Opener

(Editor's Note — Hidden somewhere in one of the cuartels on Main Post is one of the world's foremost experts on collegiate football. He never says much about his knowledge, but he has consented to share weekly predictions with Bayonet readers. Because of modesty, the "Cuartel Quarterback" insists on remaining anonymous.)

Football action doesn't get into full swing for another week, but a few big games are on tap for tomorrow. The Southern California - Colorado U. game could be the most important as quite a few of my cohorts see the Bears as national champs for 1963. An upset in the opener could really flip the apple cart.

SOUTHERN CAL OVER COLORADO . . . Experience and depth should give the Bears a two touchdown advantage.

AIR FORCE OVER WASHINGTON . . . Here we're playing a hunch that the Falcons will be one of the real comers among the national powers in '63. Six points should be the difference.

ARMY OVER BOSTON U. . . . Paul Dietzel's crew should romp over Boston even without the 'Bandits.' Army will win by 20 points.

MARYLAND OVER NORTH CAROLINA STATE . . . The 'Terps' aren't as 'terrible' as they used to be, but they're on the move. They will win by 10.

MIAMI (Ohio) OVER XAVIER . . . After last year's big Purdue upset I learned to respect little Miami. Xavier might score one touchdown, but Miami will score three.

ALABAMA OVER GEORGIA . . . Wally Butts doesn't work there any more, but the 'Tide will still wallop the Dogs by 21 points.

ARKANSAS OVER OKLAHOMA STATE . . . The State boys are scrappers, but they can't play in the league with Frank Broyles' Razorbacks. Arkansas will win by 17.

1963 Softball Champions Aim for Basketball Crown

With two championships already to their credit this year, Company C, 1st Battalion of the Center Troop Command, is already making plans for the basketball season.

Company C, last year's runner-up in the CTC softball tournament, came back this year with a stronger team to win the championship, only to have their efforts thwarted in the post playoffs by the Student Brigade nine in the final game.

Behind the pitching of Jerry Gandy and Gerald Lamburg, the "C" Company softballers whizzed by their major unit competitors to easily win the championship.

Bouncing back from their first loss the CTC representatives went on for a perfect run and found themselves in the championship playoff bracket with the team that handed them their only loss.

Catcher Wiley Grimes, coming to bat in the seventh inning of the first game, hit a single to left centerfield, driving in two runs, to win the contest 6-4.

In the final game which went into extra innings the TSB men finally pulled it out in the tenth inning to set themselves up as post representatives in the Third Army tournament held at Fort Jackson.

Bowling Champs

PFC Bob Paul helped heal the wound left by the company's loss in the post softball tournament when he led his bowling team to the post's major league championship.

With basketball season nearing, the third cuartel company is making ready for what is hoped to be a winning season. Dave Braun, a former Kentucky University standout, will player-pilot this year's team.

Braun expects a strong team this year.

IN THE FRENCH STYLE, finds an American girl, Jean Seberg, arriving in Paris as an art student. She plans to spend a year painting, but a series of unexpected developments keep her in Paris for four years.

☆ ☆ ☆

CALL ME BWANA, starring Bob Hope and Anita Ekberg, is a story which finds a returning moon capsule bearing vital information going off course and landing in the heart of Africa. The government asks a world famous African explorer and expert (who is an utter fraud and an authority on nothing unless it be feminine pulchritude) to regain the capsule. Unknown to him, an exotic foreign secret agent is out to get it from him. Their misadventures cause many hearty laughs.

Independent Powers Appear Bowl Bound

An intense game of "bowlarama" will open this football season for the major independent teams and the rugged Southeastern and Southwestern Conferences.

Fighting for top bowl berths will be such independent powers as Miami (Fla.), Syracuse, Oregon and Pittsburgh, while the SEC and SWC will renew their annual scraps for New Year's Day dates.

Not to be forgotten in the struggle for trips to Miami, Dallas, New Orleans, Philadelphia, Jacksonville and other bowl sites are members of the Big Eight, Atlantic Coast Conference; Southern Conference, Missouri Valley Conference and the Mid-American Conference.

INDEPENDENTS — With any luck against murderous schedules, Pitt, Miami, Syracuse, Oregon and Penn State could wind up with bowl berths and high national rankings.

SWC — Texas and Arkansas .. the annual fight for the coveted conference title. But behind these two powers loom improving teams tired of "also running." On the "I've-got-surprises" list are Texas A and M, SMU, Baylor and Rice.

SEC — Mississippi, with its cuttery schedule, looks like an undefeated conference champ. But, the season record is the thing in this most bowl-conscious conference of all.

BIG EIGHT — Bud Wilkinson's Oklahoma team is in line for not only a league title, but a national title as well. Assembled in Norman, according to reports, is one of Wilkinson's finest squads.

Nebraska, Missouri and Kansas — after enjoying room at the top recently — will have to get used to eviction.

ACC — in a year when no league member is boasting invincibility, a your-guess-is-as-good-as-mine season is expected. The best appear to be Duke, Clemson and Maryland, but no one is overlooking the Carolina schools.

Single Men To Be First For Draft

President Kennedy has signed an executive order limiting the drafting of married men.

The order provides that married men shall be inducted only after all available single men in the 19-25 age group have been drafted.

Military sources said that, for the foreseeable future, enough single men will be available so that there will be no need to draft husbands.

Only a major increase in military strength, they said, would again place married men within the scope of the draft.

Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, estimated that about one out of every five men now classified 1A-available for service — is married and without children.

Maj. McIntyre Speaks At Commo Graduation

Twenty-four U. S. and one Allied student were graduated from an Infantry School communications supervisors course last Thursday.

The class, comprised of enlisted men, was addressed by Maj. John E. McIntire, division signal officer and commander of the 122nd Signal Battalion of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Maj. McIntire told the graduates they will be commonly referred to as "Commo Chiefs."

"Don't lose sight of the fact, however, that you have been trained as a communications supervisor," he said. "You will be expected to oversee and direct."

"You have learned the full capabilities of all facets of your equipment. It will be part of your new job as Infantry communicatons NCO's to prepare and give instruction and to take squads or platoons into the field to do practical work. You will grade the men you teach."

"You will prepare your unit to attain the highest standards of operational readiness possible," Maj. McIntire said. "You will prepare them to go into the field and sustain themselves for an indefinite period."

The graduates and their families were welcomed to the exercises by Lt. Col. D. A. Beyer, acting director of the Communications - Electronics Department which conducts the course.

Col. Beyer commended the class for their attitude toward the course.

"This class is characterized by the fact that each of you was experienced in the Army and in communications before you came to the school," he said.

"Yet, in spite of your previous knowledge and experience, you took the attitude that there was something more for you to learn here."

Maj. McIntire presented a certificate of academic achievement to the honor graduate, SSgt. James E. Traver, who scored an average of 97.7 per cent for the course.

Traver also received a year's subscription to Infantry Magazine.

Sgt. Boonlue Omnomphunt, the Allied student member of the class, was presented an Infantry School "Follow Me" pin, after he received his diploma.

At National Meeting

Gen. Kinnard to Discuss Air Mobility for AUSA

Brig. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general, 11th Air Assault Division (Test), will be one of five panel members discussing "Army Air Mobility" at the annual meeting of the Association of the United States Army Oct. 21-23 in Washington, D.C.

On the panel, moderated by Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Arthur C. Trudeau, president of Gulf Research and Development, will be Maj. Gen. Clifton von Kann, Army aviation commander; Maj. Gen. Alden K. Sibley, Army Mobility Command; Maj. Gen. Edward L. Rowny, special assistant for tactical mobility, Department of the Army, and Fred Wolcott, director of Systems Engineering, Research Analysis Corp.

More than 4,000 business, industry, government and military leaders will attend the meeting in the Sheraton - Park Hotel.

Heading the list of speakers for the three - day affair will be Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Other principal speakers who will accent the meeting's theme of "Modern Army on the Move" will be: Secretary of the Army Cyrus R. Vance; Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, Army chief of staff; Gen. Barksdale Hamlett, Army vice chief of staff; Gen. John K. Waters, Continental Army commander, and Gen. James F. Collins, Pacific Area commander.

Seventy industrial and military exhibits covering 50,000 square feet will present the latest trends and developments in military equipment and operations.

Exhibits and demonstdations will be open to the public.

1st PTA Meet Set for Tuesday

The Fort Benning PTA will hold the first meeting of the 1963-1964 school year at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Faith School auditorium.

Guest speaker will be Col. Adrian L. Hoebeke, deputy commander of The Infantry Center.

Membership cards will be available at the meeting.

Both fathers and mothers are urged to join the PTA.

Rooms attaining 100 per cent membership of both fathers and mothers will receive prizes, officials said.

Sports Chutist Plunges 2 Miles; Lands on Feet

SEDALIO, MO. (ANF) — Sgt. Walter Morgan of the Army Parachute Team, the Golden Knights, plunged 13,600 feet before he managed to open his faulty parachute. The chute finally opened 200 feet above the ground. Sgt. Morgan miraculously was able to land on his feet uninjured.

Senior jumper of the Golden Knights, 1st Sergeant Harold Lewis, said that the incident was a case of mechnical failure corrected in the air by an expert.

The incident took place at the Missouri State Fair before a crowd of 3,000 people. Sgt. Morgan, obviously shaken by the ordeal, said that he had made some 450 jumps without any difficulty.

Col. Walker Joins Armor Committee

Lt. Col. William J. Walker was recently assigned to the Armor committee, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department of The Infantry School.

Col. Walker received his commission in 1942 through the OCS program at Fort Riley, Kansas.

His last assignment before coming to Fort Benning was in Germany.

J. D. Reed To Address Post DSA

J. D. Reed, district manager of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, will be the speaker at the September meeting of the Fort Benning Chapter, Defense Supply Association. The meeting will be held in the Royal Crown Cola Auditorium on 10th Avenue, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Mr. Reed, an executive with the telephone company for sixteen years will speak on the "Telstar Program." Mr. Reed was born in Gainesville, Ga., attended North Georgia College, is a member of the Board of Stewards of St. Luke Methodist Church and is a member of the Board of Directors of numerous Columbus civic and charitable organizations.

The annual election of officers for the 1963-64 year will also take place at the meeting.

C. L. Canington, president of the chapter, has extended an invitation to all members and other officers and civilians interested in the field of logistics.

NOTRE DAME COACH

Notre Dame Football captain, Bob Lehmann, was a student trainee with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers during the summer.

Gen. Seitz Addresses Students

Brig. Gen. Richard J. Seitz addressed the combined Infantry officer career classes of The Infantry School Wednesday at 9 a.m. in Theater No. 1.

Gen. Seitz, who as a lieutenant colonel directed the school's Airborne - Air Mobility Department from 1950 to 1953, is chief of the Combined Arms Division, Office of Personnel Operations, Department of the Army.

Wednesday morning, the visitor called on Maj.Gen. C.W.G. Rich, commandant, and Brig. Gen. John Norton, assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

After the lecture, he was the honored guest at an official luncheon at the Main Officers' Open Mess. Gen. Rich was host.

Gen. Seitz conferred with personnel of The Infantry Center G-1 Section.

He was accompanied to the post by Lt. Col. John H. Spears chief of the Infantry Branch, and Lt. Col. Lawrence L. Mowery, chief of the Education Section, and Maj. James M. Vail of the Assignment Section, both of the Infantry Branch, all of the Combined Arms Division.

Post TV Show Returns to Air Tomorrow

"Fort Benning Reports," a weekly television report from The Infantry Center, will return to the air this Saturday afternoon on WRBL-TV, Channel 3.

The program will cover the week's happenings at Fort Benning, the world's largest Infantry center. In addition a special feature will highlight the first program of the new season, a pictorial guided tour of the sprawling Army post.

Slots Open In TIC Band For Musicians

WO Ralph J. Fera, commander of The Infantry Center band, told the Bayonet today that there is a critical need for musicians to fill band slots.

Mr. Fera explained that anyone with high school or college band experience may audition at the band quarters in Bldg. 83. This can be arranged by telephoning the AG enlisted branch at 545-1676 for an assignment interview.

Mr. Fera emphasized that "though many former musicians on post may need work to rebuild their skill, if they can read and understand the music, the band can provide them with practice and instruction."

Mr. Fera reported that the situation will continue to be critical unless the band is replenished from personnel already assigned to The Infantry Center.

There are open slots for brass, reed and percussion instruments, according to the commander.

University Announces Schedule

The Columbus Center of the University of Georgia has announced its registration dates and courses for the fall quarter.

Registration is Friday, Sept. 20, from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m. in the conference room of the Library-Administration Bldg. at Columbus College.

Classes begin Sept. 24 and end Dec. 12.

Military personnel should obtain counseling concerning their military programs and secure partial payment permits for tuition from the Educational Development Section. The Armed Forces will pay three-fourths of the tuition fee for military personnel.

The schedule of classes is as follows:

Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:15 to 8:25 p.m., Economics 360, Principles of Marketing; History 381, Far Eastern Civilization, and Psychology 415, Psychometrics.

Also Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8:35 to 10:45 p.m., Business Administration 311, Introductory Cost Accounting; Business Administration 370, Principles of Business Law; Psychology 459, Mental Hygiene, and Psychology 414, Psychology of Personnel.

Maj. Roy M. Rich Assigned to CDCIA

Maj. Roy M. Rich has joined the Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency to assume the duties of signal staff officer in the Combat Materiel Division.

Maj. Rich is a graduate of Northeastern University, Boston, Mass., where he obtained a bachelor of science degree in business management.

Cindermen Are Victorious In Brussels CISM Meet

BRUSSELS, Belgium (ANF)—American trackmen outraced, outjumped and outthrew representatives of 17 other nations to win the XVIII Conseil International du Sport Militaire (CISM) track and field championship. The meet was held at Heysel Stadium in Brussels, Belgium, before 40,000 cheering fans. America won the CISM trophy with 261 points — 91 points ahead of Germany, her nearest competitor.

Army entries set four new CISM marks and took nine gold, five silver, and five bronze medals. One other CISM mark was broken by Ernie Cunliffe of the U.S.A.F. in the 1500 meter run.

Individual Army stars were Roy Hicks, a Pfc from Fort Hood, Tex., who set CISM records in the high jump at 6 feet 7¼ inches and in the high hurdles with a 13.9 sprint. Hicks was also leadoff runner in the 400 meter relay which cracked the CISM record with a 40.2 time. Pfc Bob Poynter of the Presidio of San Francisco repeated his sensational springtime triumphs in winning the 100 and 200 meter events and running with the winning 400 meter team.

5,000 Smile Checkup Can Save Your Teeth

By Capt. Robert Cross

Have you had your 5,000-smile checkup? Figuring two smiles per waking hour, our 5,000-smile checkup will come every six months, just when most dentists feel a checkup is due.

A radiant smile is a joy to see and usually indicates healthy pride of ownership and regular care. But time and the forces of nature can dull or mar the bright smile.

That's why it's a good idea to have regular 5,000-smile checkups before little troubles become big troubles, and when prompt treatment can prevent major damage.

Not everyone is aware of the need for regular oral care, and the dentist is often visited only for emergencies. Lifelong preventive oral checkups are for everybody — for the mouth is the gateway through which all nourishment passes, and from which our speech and smiles help express our personalities.

When should checkups begin? As soon as possible after all the deciduous, or baby teeth, are in place. Often, decay follows soon after eruption, but even in the absence of decay, the early visits are important as an introduction to the dentist.

Checkups should continue throughout childhood, since the temporary teeth are important to prevent later crowding of the permanent teeth.

Loss of the baby teeth begins at about 6 years of age and continues until 12. During this shedding and eruption period, the dentist should help prevent and treat decay, and avert or correct malocclusion, or improper bite.

The habits developed at an early age will continue during the lifetime of the individual. GET YOUR 5,000 - SMILE CHECKUP NOW.

PWOC Installs New President;

Mrs. B. F. Collins will be installed as president of the Protestant Women-of-the-Chapel of The Infantry Center Sept. 25.

The installation service will be conducted at 9:30 a.m. at the Religious Education Center, Bldg. 2605 on Dixie Rd.

Other new officers to be installed include Mrs. J. I. Demarco, vice president; Mrs. W. G. Freeman, secretary, and Mrs. C. H. Drawdy, treasurer.

The installing officer will be Mrs. J. F. Alutius Jr., who also will conduct the devotional.

Mrs. D. E. Gelke will sing "I Sought the Lord" by Frederick Stevenson.

Hostesses for the meeting will be Mrs. Demarco and Mrs. W. S. Scott.

A nursery will be provided in Bldg. 2604 during the meeting.

Gordon Gray Chosen For Marshall Award

Gordon Gray, former Secretary of the Army and prominent public affairs official under three Presidents, has been selected by the Association of the U.S. Army's (AUSA) Council of Trustees to be the 1963 recipient of the George Catlett Marshall Medal, it was announced today by James M. Gavin, president, AUSA.

The award, given annually "for selfless and outstanding service to the United States of America," will be presented at the Marshall Memorial Dinner in the Sheraton-Park Hotel on Oct. 23. The dinner will climax AUSA's 1963 annual meeting in Washington.

The Marshall Medal, named for America's soldier-statesman of the World War I-Korean War period, Gen. George Marshall, was presented in 1962 to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. Other Marshall Medals in 1960 and 1961 went to Robert A. Lovett, former Secretary of Defense, and John J. McCloy, former high commissioner of the U.S. Zone in Germany.

Mr. Gray served as Secretary of the Army from June 20, 1949 to Apr. 13, 1950, following earlier service as assistant and under secretary of the Army. After serving as a special assistant to President Truman from Apr. 13 to Sept. 23, 1950, Mr. Gray became president of the University of North Carolina, a post he held until 1955.

He returned to Washington and government service as assistant Secretary of Defense (International Security Affairs) on July 14, 1955. His posts from June, 1958 to January, 1961 included director of the Office of Defense Mibilization and special assistant for National Security Affairs.

Since May of 1961, he has been a member of President Kennedy's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board.

11th Air Assault In Division Test

FORT STEWART, Ga. — United States forces are moving into staging areas in the vicinity of Vidalia, Ga., in preparation for deployment to Stewartland (a hypothetical republic established in the eastern part of Georgia for exercise SKY SOLDIER I purposes). Their mission is to assist the beleaguered Stewartland fighting units in expelling the Georgana (another hypothetical country) aggressors and in restoring the Stewartland Northern border.

In response to a request for aid by Stewartland, the Department of Defense has announced that it has ordered the Army's newest unit, the elite 11th Air Assault Division, to deploy a brigade size task force to aid the besieged republic.

First Test

The Stewartland operation is the first real test of the Army's new air assault concept. Formed at Fort Benning last February, the 11th Air Assault Division, commanded by Brig. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, has been engaged in developing the tactical doctrine to go with this bold, new concept of assaulting enemy positions with swift-striking, helicopter-borne forces.

The descent in mass of such a force on an unsuspecting enemy can only be described as having an "explosive shock effect." This effect, plus the ability to disengage from the enemy, regroup and hit elsewhere almost immediately, makes an air assault unit a formidable opponent.

The 1st Air Assault Brigade, under the command of Col. George S. Beatty Jr., has been given the task of seizing a base area in Stewartland, establishing it as a battalion base, then building it into a brigade base from which to conduct future operations.

Attached to the 1st Brigade to form the task organization needed to accomplish this mission are: The 3rd Battalion, 187th Infantry, a "lean and mean," lightweight modification of a conventional Infantry battalion; elements of the 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery, whose weapons provide closely integrated fire support; forward support elements of the 11th Air Assault Division Support Command to include medical, maintenance, supply and service units; and Company A, 51th Signal Battalion, and Company A, 127th Engineer Battalion, which provide communications and engineer support, respectively.

Also under the immediate control of the 1st Brigade for the Stewartland operation are units of Col. George P. Seneff's 17th Aviation Group including Companys A and B, 228th Aircraft Surveillance and Attack Battalion; the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion; Company A, 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion; Company A, 611th Aircraft Maintenance Battalion; and a team of Pathfinders.

Under division control, but designated to support the task force as required, are the remainder of the 11th Aviation Group and the 11th Support Command.

Air Mail

The 10th Air Transport Brigade, attached to the division from higher headquarters, will establish and maintain the air line of communications needed to support the widely dispersed units involved in the operation. Col. Delbert L. Bristol is the commander.

The tests at Fort Stewart are designed to help determine just how effective an air assault unit can be and how far the U. S. Army should go in replacing its ground vehicles and ground-based weapons systems with aerial counterparts.

806th Engineers Finish Mission With U.S. Army

By SSgt. M. W. Prue

On Sept. 20 the 806th Engineer Battalion (Construction) ended its role for the Army of the United States. The battalion was inactivated.

The parent unit of this batalion, the 806th Engineer Company (Aviation) (Separate) was activated Feb. 3, 1941 at Langley Field, Va. It was reorganized and redesignated the 806th Engineer Battalion (Aviation) (Separate) April 13, 1942.

In August 1942, it was redesignated as the 806th Engineer Aviation Battalion and during World War II served in the Pacific where it was awarded the Campaign Streamer for operations in the Western Pacific and the Ryukyus and also the Meritorious Unit Streamer embroided ASIATIC PACIFIC THEATER.

The unit was inactivated March 15, 1946, at Futema, Okinawa, and reactivated Oct. 15, 1946, at Waller Field, Trinidad, British West Indies.

The unit was again inactivated at Orlando, Fla., May 16, 1953. On July 8, 1955, the battalion was allotted to the Regular Army and reactivated on Sept. 25, 1955 in the British West Indies, where it constructed down-range facilities of the Atlantic Missile Range.

The battalion reverted from SCARWAF to Army control on March 1, 1956. A month later the battalion was assigned to Fort Rucker, Ala., and was redesignated as the 806th Engineer Battalion (Heavy Construction. The battalion (less Co. C) moved to the present location June 15, 1959.

The battalion was reorganized from a heavy construction battalion to a regular construction battalion in the fall of 1960.

At Fort Benning, the battalion has had the mission of supporting The Infantry Center Infantry School, by construction facilities as required and furnishing domestic emergency teams.

Effective Sept. 23, 1961 the 806th Engineer Battalion (Con-

Doughboys In Pensacola For Big Game

After giving themselves and their opponents a weeklong respite, the undefeated Doughboys are traveling to Pensacola today to get ready for a Saturday night battle with the highly-touted Pensacola Navy Goshawks.

The Doughboys will be gunning for their third straight season victory and their 19th consecutive win stretching back over three seasons. Pensacola is out to avenge a 30-7 licking they suffered at the hands of the Doughboys here last year. They are undefeated this season.

575 Tour Post In 33rd JCOC

More than 575 military leaders and civilian business and industrial magnates spent Wednesday and Thursday at The Infantry Center to see how the Army operates, how it trains its soldiers and how it plans to defeat its enemies in time of war.

The visitors were on post for the Army phase of the 33rd Joint Civilian Orientation Conference (JCOC), sponsored by the Department of Defense.

There were 78 principal conferees and 55 other professional, business, civic, educational and fraternal leaders among the guests.

In addition to the more than 150 principals and guests, approximately 450 representatives from various armed services schools saw the modern Infantry in action, geared to fight under any conditions, over rough terrain, mountains, swamps and from the air.

Principals, guests and service school faculty members and students got a close look at the Army fighting man, his training, firepower available to him and his mobility in six major demonstrations.

Major problems observed include weapons of the Infantry at Hook Range, Rangers in action at Victory Pond, rifle company team in defense at Ruth Range, Army aviation, airborne and Pathfinders at Fryar Field, and a firepower and airmobile assault demonstration at Underwood Road.

The Army phase, one of three JCOC phases, was officially opened with a welcoming address Wednesday at 1 p.m. at Hook Range by Maj. Gen. C. W. G. Rich, commandant of The Infantry School.

JCOC participants visited the Norfolk, Va., area for Navy-Marine demonstrations before coming to Fort Benning and will conclude the conference at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., where they will observe Air Force demonstrations.

In addition to major demonstrations, conferees and guests

Among the contributions made to Fort Benning by the 806th Engineer Battalion are range towers, trainfire ranges, parking lots, heliports, new roads and bridges, a new Caribou landing strip, PT testing fields and a completely renovated Victory Lodge.

The group is slated to leave Fort Benning Saturday morning.

Top Officials Lends Support To Fund Drive

President John F. Kennedy, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Secretary of the Army Cyrus Vance have all given their support to the "United" fund-raising campaigns now under way on military posts.

The United campaign at Fort Benning is the Community Activities Association Fund Drive, which includes three CAA agencies on post, and 32 United Givers agencies in the neighboring communities. The campaign here is in its third week, and will run through Nov. 15.

The President said:

"These United campaigns offer us the opportunity to contribute to a wide variety of humanitarian organizations through a single appeal . . . We in government want to continue to carry our full citizens's share of the voluntary support of health and welfare services.

"Let us all take the opportunity that these campaigns offer to personally rededicate ourselves to the deep abiding American belief in neighbor's concern for neighbor."

The Secretary of Defense added his indorsement to United campaigns, and Secretary Vance said "This is a support of all personnel of the Army. I am confident that our response will be as generous this year as it has been in the past."

Bishop to Visit Post Episcopal Congregation

Rt. Rev. Henry Irving Louttit, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of South Florida and chairman of the Armed Forces Division of the Protestant Episcopal Church will make an official visit to the Episcopal Congregation here Sunday.

He will celebrate Holy Communion at 9:15 a.m. and will conduct the Apostolic rite of confirmation at 10:30 for the St. Michael's Mission congregation.

Following the late service there will be a reception in his honor and a confirmation held in the Parish Lounge of Main Post Chapel No. 3. The Episcopal Churchwomen, under the direction of Mrs. Paul E. Nottage, president, will be hostesses for the reception.

Chaplain (Maj.) James M. Reaves will present newly elected vestrymen and Lay-readers for installation at 9:15 and the confirmation candidates at 10:30. The public may attend.

M-14 BRIEFING . . . Col. Lawrence S. Reynolds (R), director of The Infantry School's Weapons Department, briefs two Republic of China officers on an M-14 modified rifle at Buckner Range. Maj. Gen. Shu Kuang Hu (L), director of the Ministry of National Defense's Liaison Bureau, and Col. Terry L. Chow, MND Section 4 chief, visited Fort Benning recently for two days of orientations and demonstrations.

Ingenuity Of Members Aids 577th

The earth moving capability of the 577th Engineer Battalion has been greatly increased through the ingenuity of three of its soldiers.

A few weeks ago the battalion was issued a number of 25-ton wheeled Caterpillar tractors. The 18-cubic yard towed scraper usually bought with the tractor was not available. The tractor was almost useless without the scraper.

Capt. Charles E. Mattix, commanding officer, A Company, MSgt. Herbert A. Southall and Spc6 "Pappy" Long started almost immediately to design a modification which would allow the big tractor to pull a smaller 12-cubic yard scraper, formerly used with the less powerful Tournadozer.

Several methods were tested, but the one that proved satisfactory involved the removal of the pintle universal on the rear of the tractor and forging a smaller one to fit the scraper.

This modification, after testing, was applied to all the tractors. As a result the battalion's support capability increased by almost 35 per cent. Proof of this is the additional support being rendered at the McKenna Complex construction site by the 577th.

New Recoilless Rifle Is Tested By Board Here

A new candidate for the Army's family of recoilless rifles, a 120-mm caliber weapon designated the XM105E1, was recently evaluated by The Infantry Board.

The test rifle is approximately 100 pounds lighter than the 106-mm recoilless rifle and has a much greater range and tank-killing capability.

One of the most unique features of the rifle is its tripod mount, which incorporates a "joystick," or free traverse and elevation principle, to align the weapon on target.

Use of the joystick is made possible because the weapon becomes perfectly balanced when a 120-mm cartridge is loaded into the breech.

11th Air Assault Officials Inspect Vidalia Airstrip

VIDALIA, Ga. — The commanding general of the 11th Air Assault Division, Brig. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, and Brig. Gen. Robert R. Williams, chief of the Training Evaluation and Control Group, visited the Vidalia Airstrip this week to take a close look at the build-up which took place in preparation for SKY SOLDIER I, which started Tuesday.

The two generals were briefed on the 11th Air Assault Division Support Command's mission by Maj. Griffin M. Dodge, S-3 of the Support Command. Accompanying the two officials were Col. George S. Beatty Jr., commanding officer of the 1st Air Assault Brigade, and Col. Hubert E. Strange, deputy chief to Gen. Williams.

FIRST ARRIVAL . . . Gen. John K. Waters (R), commanding general of the U.S. Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Va., is welcomed to the post by Maj. Gen. C. W. G. 'Beehive Base' Consumes 5,000 Gallons Per Day

VIDALIA, Ga. — To keep the 11th Air Assault Division moving during SKY SOLDIER I, men from the 408th Supply and Service Company, 11th Air Assault Division Support Command, have the responsibility of operating the huge Petroleum, Oil, Lubrication, (POL) Depot here at this former Army Air Force World War airstrip.

Once SKY SOLDIER I gets the green light this base will become a beehive. Gasoline is just as important to the vehicle and aircraft as food is to the men participating in SKY SOLDIER I.

More than 5,000 gallons of gasoline will be dispensed daily to keep the Sky Soldiers moving. The NCO in charge of the POL Depot is SFC Jesus D. Oliva. Ready and waiting are 11 huge rubber tanks measuring about 20 feet long and 8 feet wide that can hold 10,000 gallons of gasoline each. From the air these large black tanks resemble whales.

Nearby is a large pump that can be operated by a generator. This pump is set on wheels and can be rolled into position and pump 250 gallons of gasoline per minute.

In addition 176 smaller 500 gallon rubber tanks are loaded on dollies that can be rolled into a waiting Caribou or Mohawk. They also can be sling loaded by most of the division's helicopters and carried where they are needed. These smaller tanks resemble large airplane tires.

No time is lost at the POL Depot. Whether a three-quarter ton jeep, a five-ton forklift, a helicopter, or one of the Army's largest aircraft, the Caribou, is hungry for fuel, men from the 408th have the means to fill the bill in a few minutes.

Col. Mabry To Head Up OCS Group

Lt. Col. Ned B. Mabry has been named to succeed Lt. Col. George P. McLendon as commander of The Student Brigade's 5th Battalion. The changeover will be effective Oct. 7.

The 5th is the brigade's officer candidate battalion.

Col. Mabry is presently serving as deputy secretary of The Infantry School.

He entered active service in September 1941, after being commissioned in the Reserves in 1938. During World War II he served as G-2 operations officer with the XX Corps in the European Theater.

His overseas assignments have included tours in Korea and Hawaii. He has attended the Advanced Regular Course at The Infantry School and the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Among his awards and decorations are the Bronze Star Medal, American Defense Service Medal, National Defense Service Medal and the United Nations Medal.

A native of Abbeville, S. C., the colonel holds a bachelor of arts degree from Furman University. He is married to the former Gloria Tucker of Tampa, Fla.

Conservation Applies In the Mess Hall Too

The Armed Services are constantly urging servicemen to conserve resources.

We usually think of resources as lights, gas and other material goods used daily in military life. One very important area is often overlooked — conservation of resources in the mess hall.

Often, servicemen fail to realize the great expense of running a mess hall. At least this seems the case when men daily pile their trays high with meat, potatoes and fruit and then return a hefty portion to the scullery.

For many years servicemen were greeted in mess halls by the slogan "Take all you want but eat all you take." Even though it's not used much any more, it's still very pertinent.

No one cares how much food you take as long as you eat it all. But taking too much to begin with, knowing you will never be able to eat it all, is wasting food, money and manpower.

Wasting food is unnecessary and in turn means that money is wasted both in buying and preparing food.

The Armed Forces spend about $2.5 million a day to feed military personnel. How much of this is literally thrown away?

A concerted effort by servicemen to conserve food in the mess hall could lead to dividends in other areas. Money saved in the mess hall could be used elsewhere to make the serviceman's life more comfortable and fulfilling. (AFPS)

It Pays to Advertise

By Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Thomas F. Daley

"It pays to advertise" seems to be the motto of the day. As we ride the highways, we see the large bill-boards advertising products in which consumers are interested; products which the public needs. All one has to do is to watch television or listen to the radio to see how the various concerns will spend a great deal of money for advertising. Many people will buy a product because they have seen it advertised.

As in the case of merchandise, so too, in the case of individuals. Keep before the public eye and people will remember you; keep in the background and you will soon be forgotten.

Recently I read a magazine and the writer had this to say concerning some people of the present day: "This is the age of self-glorification. The fellow who beats his own drum the loudest and most persistently is pretty sure to be regarded the best in his line.

"The greatest thing nowadays is to create a legend about yourself; to invent yourself into a myth. It contains little which corresponds with reality. It will dumbfound or cynically amuse those who know you well, but the thousands who do not know you will be taken in by it. If you keep feeding pieces about yourself to the press, ultimately the illusive impression you create will be accepted by the people."

We will have to admit, although we may be reluctant to do so, that the writer of the article is correct. What all of us ought to do and what we ought to pray for is this: To be honest with our God, our neighbor and ourselves; and to regard ourselves as St. Paul did of himself: "By the grace of God, I am what I am."

Rep. Carl Vinson (D., Ga.), Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, urges approval of the Administration's $190 million "first step" shelter system for Civil Defense. He calls the "risks and consequences of nuclear war ... far too serious to brook delays."

* * *

The first measure of the Administration's education program cleared Congress when the Senate approved a $236.4 million bill to provide teaching facilities for physicians, dentists, and other health personnel ane make loans to students of medicine, dentistry, and osteopathy. Because the Senate passed the House-enacted bill without amendment, the measure went straight to the White House.

* * *

The Senate Commerce Committee unanimously approved a bill prohibiting foreign fishing vessels from operating inside U.S. territorial waters and subjected violators to a fine ($10,000) or imprisonment (one year). In an unprecedented step, the measure would extend U.S. jurisdiction over offshore waters to include the continental shelf, reaching 180 miles into the Atlantic and 25 miles into the Gulf of Mexico.

The Judge Says . . .

By 1st Lt. James D. Santini

This column summarizes the right of the serviceman — or any citizen — when arrested by civilian authorities. It is important to understand what your rights are and to secure proper legal assistance to enforce them.

Rights At Time of Arrest: Generally a policeman may arrest a person if;

1. He is acting under a warrant for the arrest of such a person.

The policeman is entitled to use such force as is reasonably necessary in order to effect a lawful arrest. While a serviceman may believe that he has not committed any offense, he is nevertheless required to submit to the arresting authority. If he does not, he commits the crime of resisting arrest. If the policeman has acted unreasonably in making the arrest, the serviceman has a civil remedy — a lawsuit for damages.

2. He observes a person violating any law:

3. He is acting upon a reasonable belief that a felony has been committed and that the person he arrests has committed it.

Rights After Arrest: Initially, the fact of arrest and the charge on which it was based should be recorded in the arrest book. If any personal property is taken from the service man, he should be given a receipt or list thereof. The serviceman is entitled to:

1. A statement as to why he has been arrested and the charges against him;

2. Immediate release or an opportunity to obtain bail;

3. Communication with a lawyer at once in order to ascertain his legal rights;

4. Contact family or friends by telephone or mail;

5. Contact the unit to avoid an entry of absent from duty or absent without leave.

There is no general limitation to ONE telephone call. But the serviceman arrested cannot disrupt the orderly routine of the police station. The only definite restriction in this area is that he cannot be held, "incommunicado".

6. He has the right to refrain from making any statements or submitting to any tests which might tend to incriminate him. Generally, confessions or admissions elicited by coercion or illegal promises are not admissible in a later trial. Further, any promises of leniency made by law enforcement officials are not binding upon them. The tests which CANNOT be imposed without the serviceman's consent are: Handwriting samples, modeling requested items of clothing for identification, giving of blood or urine, the lie detector test and the baloon test (drunk-o-meter).

The serviceman MUST submit to questioning in relation to the alleged offense, to photographing and to taking of fingerprints and measurements, as well as any other identifying marks. Of course, the serviceman may volunteer information or submit to the tests, but he would be well advised to consult an attorney before doing so because such information can be used against him at a later date.

Rights In Court: Upon appearance in court, the serviceman will be given the opportunity to plead "guilty", or "not guilty" or "nolo contendere" (no contest). At this time, he may exercise his right to request a jury trial.

If further time is needed to prepare a defense, a continuance may be requested. Here again, the importance of advice from competent legal counsel is apparent. The attorney will be able to protect the interests of the serviceman in all matters of pleading, trial procedure and sentencing. If the serviceman is unable to afford an attorney, he should request that the court appoint an attorney for him.

Brigade and Battalion Operations Dept. Provides 'Spirit of Initiative'

Infantry School Report

The spirit of initiative has proven to be a vital ingredient of warfare throughout military history.

It was essential to Alexander the Great when he battled his legions across Asia Minor; it was a critical factor in Napoleon's successes on the Continent, and it was equally important when the Allied armies cracked Fortress Europe. And, today, every aspiring military leader still must be imbued with the spirit of initiative for it results in decisive action, and ultimately, in conclusive victory.

The responsibility for providing Infantry officers with an appreciation of this spirit and the professional qualifications to conduct decisive actions at the battalion and brigade levels, rests with the Infantry School's Brigade and Battalion Operations Department.

Directed by Col. Howard B. St. Clair, the department develops and presents a program of instruction which includes over 7,000 hours of leadership and specialist courses. Emphasis is devoted to presentation at the career and associate career course level of instruction.

In addition to teaching the 525 problems comprising this program, the department is responsible for publishing a variety of Infantry School student texts for use in both resident and nonresident instruction. Included are the Infantry Reference Data and Operations and Training Handbooks and special texts covering subjects from Army Aviation and Artillery to Preventive Maintenance and Effective Writing. In supervising these tasks, Col. St. Clair is ably assisted by the department's deputy director, Col. Donald T. Kellett.

To accomplish its mission, the department is organized into four major sections: Attack Committee, Defense Committee, Nuclear Weapons Committee, and the Associate Arms Group.

Attack Committee

The Attack Committee, headed by Col. Ralph L. Whitt, presents instruction covering the wide spectrum of Infantry, mechanized Infantry, and airborne Infantry offensive operations in all types of environments—to include mountains, jungles, and arctic areas. Just as versatility is the prime characteristic of the Infantryman, so it is of the Attack Committee.

It is responsible for classes not only in the fundamentals and techniques of offensive operations, but in the production of combat intelligence and in the duties of both the intelligence and operations officers and their sections at brigade and battalion level.

Defense Committee

The department also provides instruction in defensive tactics, logistics, personnel administration, and other fields of interest to include legal subjects, effective staff writing, and the Army Information Program.

These topics are the responsibility of Col. Warren D. Hodges' Defense Committee. This country's commitment of military assistance in support of South Vietnam has significantly influenced the scope of problems developed by the Defense Committee, for it also provides Infantry School students with current information on Cold War, guerrilla, and counterinsurgency operations. Assisting in the presentation of logistics and personnel instruction are representatives of the Judge Advocate General, Military Police, and Transportation Corps.

Associate Arms

It is obviously not feasible to teach Infantry tactics or combat operations without including the functions of the supporting arms and associated services. This is provided by the Associate Arms Group, headed by Col. Thomas G. Ferguson, which consists of Armor, Artillery, Chemical, Engineer, Marine and Air Force representatives. Lessons learned on both hot and cold war battlefields have proved the need for Infantry leaders who know the capabilities and limitations of associated and combined arms team work.

For example, an effective Infantryman, whether assigned to an armored, mechanized Infantry, airborne or Infantry division, must be familiar with tank operations since armor represents such a potent weapon for accomplishing offensive or defensive missions.

Lt. Col. William J. Walker and the members of the Armor Committee show how the Infantry can best employ tank forces in combat. By using a combination of conferences, demonstrations, practical work and map exercises, the Armor Committee illustrates to the student officer how the field commander can launch and maintain fast-moving combat operations and how to analyze the vital factors involved when using armor.

It is common knowledge that the Artillery School at Fort Sill, Okla., trains artillerymen both in general and specialized artillery subjects; it is not so commonly known that a program to train Infantrymen in artillery subjects is conducted at Fort Benning.

The Artillery Committee, headed by Lt. Col. James D. Clark, consists of a select group of artillery officers and enlisted men who prepare accurate and timely instruction designed to provide a general knowledge of artillery organization, tactics, and doctrine to Infantry student officers. Artillery instruction presented at The Infantry School welds ever tighter the traditional bond between the members of these two combat arms.

Lt. Col. William C. Carter's Engineer Committee makes an equally impressive contribution toward fulfilling the Department's instructional mission. This committee presents practical instruction covering field engineering and the proper employment of engineer troops. The principal subjects taught are: Combat Engineer Organization and Employment, Demolitions and Military Explosives, Field Fortifications, Obstacle Construction and Destruction, and River Crossing Techniques. The demonstration of River Crossing Techniques has long been a highlight of Infantry School instruction.

In addition to preparing Infantry officers for operations in conventional warfare environments, the Brigade and Battalion Operations Department presents comprehensive instruction involving the techniques of nuclear and chemical-biological - radiological warfare. This instruction is conducted by the Chemical and Nuclear Weapons Committees, headed respectively by Lt. Col. Clinton D. Harvey and Herman Webel Jr.

Lt. Col. Jean Woodyard, USAF, and Lt. Col. Stanley Davis, USMC, supplement the Brigade and Battalion Operations Department faculty by presenting instruction in such subjects as Tactical Air Operations, USAF Special Warfare Operations, Amphibious Operations, and Organization of Naval Forces.

While the instructional elements of the department focus their effort primarily on preparing Infantrymen to assume the tasks of today, the department must continuously evaluate the capability of current doctrine, organization, and materiel to meet the demands of future battlefields. The Plans and Review Section under Maj. Dean Yow, considers concepts for the future, ranging from tactical doctrine and organization through the gamut of developmental weaponry and equipment conceived to increase the effectiveness of tomorrow's Infantry. As these concepts progress to doctrine, and as developmental weapons and equipment become standard items, the Plans and Review Section gradually phases appropriate training into the various Programs of Instruction. Concurently, the section prepares special texts or other guidance to assist the instructor make the transition from the old to the new.

In a Department authorized 113 officers, 89 enlisted personnel, and 16 civilians, internal administration and supply become major functions. The director's principal assistants in this area are Capt. Lee W. Roberts, administrative officer, Lt. Herbert Williams, supply officer, and MSgt Frank Rodriguez, chief NCO. This section performs personnel administration, maintains the record file system, and obtains and distributes operating supplies and equipment.

Converting the hundreds of drafts and rough manuscripts prepared routinely by instructors into the "printed word" is the task of the civilian typists interspersed throughout the organization, these operations Department faculty by presenting instruction in such subjects as Tactical Air Operations, USAF Special Warfare Operations, Amphibious Operations, and Organization of Naval Forces.

Focal point for coordinating the development, support, and presentation of the Department's 525 instructional problems is the Operations Section, headed by Lt. Col. Martin F. Schroeder. Assisted by Maj. Thomas Scovill and MSgt. Hubert Walker, Col. Schroeder advises the department director on the subject content of programs of instruction and various plans, coordinates the review of all instruction, and obtains the troop, equipment and logistic support required by the department. The task of scheduling 7,000 hours of instruction annually is performed by Miss Annie Wheelus, operations assistant.

As noted, the department is organized and staffed to provide the Infantry officer with the highest quality of combat instruction — his most basic professional requirement. But, in addition, the Brigade and Battalion Operations Department gears its instruction towards success on the battlefield by providing the Infantry leader with the spirit of initiative, traditional hallmark of the INFANTRY!

Women's Club Opening Tea Scheduled Wednesday

BY MARGE LENNON

With the coming of Fall each year the members of the Women's Club of Fort Benning officially begin their activities for the season with their Opening Tea.

Scheduled this year from 2 until 5 p.m. at the Main Officers' Open Mess, Wednesday, the tea will provide an introduction to more than 30 activities of the club's 1963-64 season.

In the receiving line will be Mrs. C. W. G. Rich, Mrs. Robert R. Williams, Mrs. Harry W. O. Kinnard and Mrs. John Norton.

Also in the receiving line will be Mrs. Charles Billingslea, Mrs. William R. Lynch, president of the Women's Club, and Mrs. James O. Jones, first vice president of the Club.

With final plans now completed, over 4,000 invitations have been sent out for the affair. All wives of officers, both active and retired, are invited to attend. There is no need for reservations and there will be no charge. Previously, individual invitations have been mailed to the women but due to the tremendous increase in personnel at Fort Benning invitations to this tea and future events will be sent via the Officers' Club monthly bill.

New members, perhaps just arriving at the post, will find not only the hand of friendship extended to them but also a wealth of opportunities when they become members of the club.

Colorful exhibits have been prepared to inform the women of the Club's varied activities. Mrs. James O. Jones, is Activities chairman of the group and has been working long hard hours throughout the summer to secure the finest instructors for each class.

This year they include everything from art lessons, cake decorating, flower arranging and reducing lessons to knitting, cooking and horseback riding lessons. Registration for these activities will be taken at the tea. The chairman or instructor of each group will be on hand to answer any questions that may arise.

In addition to the classes, the club sponsors such varied activities as the annual shopping trip to Atlanta, a bowling league for members, the pre-kindergarten school, a monthly coffee hour for patients at Martin Army Hospital, the Thrift Shop, a choral group, the Women's Club School of Dance, an annual fund raising Distaff dinner and many welfare activities.

Mrs. Jesse L. Morrow, Allied Liaison chairman of the club, will escort and hostess the Allied wives to the Opening Tea.

This year the ladies of the 11th Air Assault Division are hostesses for the event. Mrs. Harry W. O. Kinnard and Mrs. Robert R. Williams and their committee, have selected pretty and very elegant decorations. Other chairmen of these committees are Mrs. Hubert Strange, Mrs. George Beatty, Mrs. Richard Knowles, Mrs. Robert Shaw and Mrs. Delbert Bristol.

Floral arrangements in colors of yellow, brown and green will transform the Club into visions of Fall. Coffee, tea and punch, assorted finger sandwiches, petite-fours and other yummies will be served to the guests in attendance. Women new to Fort Benning will wear leaf-shaped name tags in shades of yellow.

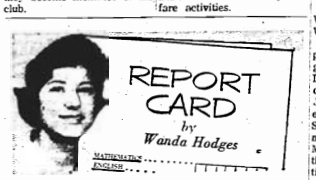
"Queen of Battle, Her Recipes," the 1963-64 Women's Club cookbook, will be on sale for the first time at the tea. Containing over 700 taste-tested recipes submitted by Army wives at Fort Benning, the cookbook covers everything from turkey fricasse to fruitty snow salad to yummy desserts.

The cookbook will sell for only $2. A large quantity of books have been ordered pre-wrapped for Christmas mailing at $2.25. They are dressed up by a bright Christmas seal. All profits made from the sale will be turned over to the Welfare Fund for eventual dispersal to welfare type activities.

Editor and chairman of the cookbook committee is Mrs. Curtis L. Hankins. Mrs. Bea Wostenburg is co-editor. Joan Morgan, Jerry Brophy and Yvonne Hawley are other committee members.

Officers of the Women's Club not already mentioned include Mrs. John H. Cochran, 2nd vice-president; Mrs. James E. Stacy, 3rd vice-president; Mrs. Garmon O. Aure, recording secretary, and Mrs. Joffre L. Gueymard, corresponding secretary.

Other officers include Mrs. Charles J. Oram, treasurer; Mrs. Clinton L. Gould, custodian, and Mrs. Rutland D. Beard, junior parliamentarian.



The story you are about to read is based on fact, although the names have been changed to protect the innocent. Date: Sept. 20, 1963; Location: French Class, Columbus High School, County of Muscogee; the Crime: Cat-Concealing.

While delving through the trash cans at school, Katti Goofenhiemer, alias "Nervous," spied a small calico kitten. Feeling sorry for said cat, Katti put it in her purse and proceeded to French Class. Upon arrival, Katti removed the mouser and concealed it in her desk.

Presently, Mr. Manhattan entered the room and loudly proclaimed, "Fe, Fi, Fo, Fat, I smell the hair of a calico cat," and proceeded to walk up and down the aisle exercising his proboscus furiously.

Ann Strong, an accomplice of Katti's, realizing that Mr. Manhattan was hot on the trail of discovering the cat, passed a bottle of "eau de Cologne" to her friend in need. Whereby, Katti proceeded to douse feline, desk, and herself with liberal amounts of the aromatic fragrance.

At the end of the class period, Mr. Manhattan had failed to uncover the source of his irritation. Having succeeded in preventing detection, Katti redeposited said cat in her purse and strolled nonchalantly from the classroom.

The moral of this story is: "A friend in need is a friend in deed" or "you can fool some of the people all the time, and all of the people some of the time, but to fool Mr. Manhattan you need 'eau de Cologne'."

As you may have heard me mention in previous articles, J.A.D.A. was to hold a Coke Party for all incoming Freshmen this past Saturday. The party was quite a success, and J.A.D.A. "grabbed" a few new members.

Reville Brickhouse, the president, introduced the various officers and gave a short history of the Junior Army Daughters of America. All those girls who did not attend the party, and would like to join should contact Kathy Aure.

Quite a few of Fort Benning's young ladies have just completed a charm-course given by Mrs. Ann Roberts. Besides learning the grace and poise of a charming lady, the girls had their hair styled by a professional hair stylist. The girls who took the course are: Karen Mendenhall, Kathy Morgan, Debbie Francis, Susan Gingrich, Sheila O'Byrne, Sharon O'Byrne, Kathy Geoffrion, Mary Plowsman, Cindy Shaw, Kathy Britt, Carla Britt and Kathy Roberts.

'Autumn Leaves' Theme Is Highlight at Crain Hall For NCO Wives Meeting

The Non - Commissioned Officers Wives' Club of Fort Benning entertained with a fashion show and luncheon recently at Crain Hall.

Centerpieces of autumn flowers laced with green ferns and trailing ivy carried out the theme of the luncheon, "Autumn Leaves." White linen table cloths with colorful Autumn leaves for place marks and green and white sparkling crystal completed the decorations.

Honored guests were Mrs. C. W. G. Rich, and Mrs. Harry W. O. Kinnard.

Mrs. Robert E. Lamb, club president, introduced special guests and members: Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith, president of the "Sword and Pen;" Mrs. James Reddick, TV script-writer and author; Mrs. W. T. Smith, president of the Benning Hills Women's Club, and Mrs. Hollis Gill, president of the Practical Nurses Association.

Also attending were Mrs. Wayne D. Cliff, president of the Ladies of the Big Indian-head and Mrs. George E. Foss, president of the 11th Air Assault N. C. O. Wives' Club.

Fashions were by Eileen's of Wynnton. Fashion models were from the Mable Bailey School of Charm.

Background music was by MSgt. Silas Christian.

Luncheon favors were from "Gift Shop" and Ray's Home Portrait Shop.

Arrangements for the fashion show were by Mrs. Elmo Z. Farmer. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Oscar Mercer and Mrs. Flora Brewer, assisted by Mrs. Henry Speech, Mrs. Robert Henderson, Mrs. Julias Fritz, Mrs. Robert Edwards and Mrs. Herbert Lauve.

IOCC 2 Wives Receive Briefing On Career Class

The wives of officers attending Infantry officer career course, class 2, met for an orientation coffee, recently in the battalion classroom of Detachment 22 of the 2d Student Battalion, the Student Brigade.

Lt. Col. Joseph E. McCluskey, commander of the 2d Student Battalion, and Capt. Billie Ramsey, Detachment commander, spoke briefly of the course and the Student Brigade. Mrs. Ramsey added points of interest for the ladies.

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Arthur J. Estes spoke of the Christian Religious Program offered at the post.

Honored guests were Mrs. John Norton, Mrs. Walter D. Short, Mrs. Arthur J. Estes, and Mrs. McCluskey.

Fall Mood Accents Anzio Room

The first signs of fall were evidenced on the coffee tables recently when the Dental Wives met for a coffee in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Hostesses were Mrs. Harold G. Carter, Mrs. Virgil Woods, Mrs. Claude R. Wood, and Mrs. Richard L. Clardy.

A large basket of fruit and nuts centered an arrangement of colorful autumn leaves on the coffee table. Mrs. Stuard M. Mitchell, wife of the post dental surgeon, poured the coffee.

Mrs. George W. Grabiak, president, introduced the other new officers for the year: Mrs. Mitchell, honorary president; Mrs. Robert K. Hubbard, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Edward H. Karl, program chairman; Mrs. Harold G. Carter, catering chairman; Mrs. Hubert W. Merchant and Mrs. Walter J. Bolbat, hospitality chairmen, and Mrs. Clardy, publicity chairman.

New members welcomed to the group were Mrs. Charlie F. Kanze, Mrs. Bert Louscher, Mrs. G. A. Richards, Mrs. Robert J. Balserak, Mrs. Gary L. Anderson, Mrs. Fenton P. Hardison, Mrs. James J. Wempa, Mrs. Regis A. Welsh, Mrs. Terry C. Watson, Mrs. Jon S. Michael, Mrs. James W. Hunt, and Mrs. Hamil Cupero. Mrs. Grabiak's niece, Miss Dolly Kline, was a guest at the coffee.

Embellishments Made Available By Women's Club

Mrs. Clinton L. Gould, recently appointed custodian of the Women's Club, has given the club's storage building a complete cleaning and reorganization.

In so doing, she and her assistant, Mrs. Robert Hermann, have discovered large quantities of usable decorations for coffees, luncheons and other activities, in addition to several large silver pieces available for use by members at organizational functions.

"We operate on a 'lend-lease' basis," Mrs. Gould explained. "Any club may borrow our decorations for their gatherings simply by contacting me or Mrs. Hermann. We would like to do the same with their used decorations. It saves us both a considerable amount of money."

Available are such items as fall leaves, items to be used at fashion shows and golded birdcages.

The club's silver tea service, candelabra and punch bowl are valued at over $7,000. They may be used by member's who are hostessing an organizational or unit functions such as a monthly coffee or luncheon. They may be used only for non-personal gatherings, however, according to Mrs. Gould.

For further information on these items contact Mrs. Gould at 545-1430 or Mrs. Hermann at 545-7500.

USAMTU Wives Fete Mrs. Peot

Mrs. Joseph J. Peot, wife of the commanding officer of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, was welcomed at a monthly coffee held at the Main Officers' Open Mess last Friday by the ladies of the MTU.

Mrs. William S. Brophy, Jr., served as hostess and Mrs. William L. Bassham poured.

Crazy Hats Are Theme Of Ranger Wives Meet

Crazy hats were the highlight at the recent luncheon of the Ranger Department Wives' held at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

A prize was given for the most original hat. The judging was held following lunch, and Mrs. John R. Hardy, wearing an old Army campaign hat with a hunting license and a stuffed squirrel perched on the top, was awarded the prize.

Mrs. John W. Jackson, wife of the department director, presided over a short business meeting. Volunteers were asked to help in the Thrift Shop on the fourth Tuesday of every month.

Mrs. Jackson announced that Mrs. Gene A. Mitchell had been appointed publicity chairman for the group, and that Mrs. Harold S. Barker would continue to act as group treasurer and chairman for the bridge group.

New members welcomed to the group were Mrs. Robert M. Brumback, Mrs. Kenneth R. Guillory, Mrs. Gerald L. Koch, Mrs. David A. Luedtke, Mrs. Bruce E. Roach and Mrs. William S. Spies. Also present were former members Mrs. Robert B. Nett, Mrs. Cedric Blackwell, and Mrs. Jon C. Crawford. Mrs. David L. Davis, whose husband left the Ranger-Department during the summer, received her silver dish from Mrs. Jackson.

Mrs. Helen K. Chalmers, mother of Capt. J. R. Chalmers, and Mrs. Bruce McClure, wife of Major McClure, were welcomed as guests.

The meeeting was then turned over to Col. John W. Jackson, who gave an interesting and informative talk, accompanied by slides, on the missions and operations of the Ranger Department.

Mrs. Jackson thanked Mrs. Christopher M. Gooch and the other wives of The Infantry School Ranger Committee for their combined efforts on the luncheon, and stated that the October event would be sponsored by the Physical Training and Combatives Committeemen's wives.

Airborne Ladies Bid Mrs. Paulick A Fond Farewell

With the excitement of "Back to School" still in the air, the ladies of the Airborne - Air Mobility Department held their first meeting of the fall at the Main Officer's Open Mess.

Amidst school pennants, books and paraphenalia, the honored guest, Mrs. Michael Paulick, was presented a "football" chrysanthemum corsage. The ladies were bidding farewell to Mrs. Paulick who is departing for Florida. Each table was centered with an oversized pencil, notebook or apple which also concealed the door prizes.

Special guests were the secretaries of the Department, Mrs. Kathleen Meyer, Mrs. Louise Keen, Mrs. Heidi Montgomery, Mrs. Brenda Phillips, and Mrs. Carol Stout. They were greeted by the hostesses, Mrs. A. S. Madding, Mrs. James E. Witek and Mrs. Thomas Zagner.

Army's Late Surge Wins Third Armed Forces Crown

The Army easily walked away with team laurels for the third year in succession in the Third Annual Armed Forces International Shooting Competition held at the post Sept. 9-23.

With a total of 380 over-all points out of a possible 784, the Army was ahead of the second place team, the Air Force, by 171 points.

With the end of last week's results the Air Force held a slim competition lead going into the U. S. smallbore three position championship match.

Sgt. David I. Boyd of the Marine Corps Marksmanship Va., who had won the first round of the three position match for the Interservice championship kept a steady pace going throughout the remaining two rounds to walk away with the U. S. International championship with a 3,407 score out of the possible 3,600.

His runner-up, Capt. Verle F. Wright of the Army Marksmanship Training Unit behind by 16 points after the first round of fire, closed the gap between himself and the winner steadily but not fast enough, landing four points away from the champion.

Second Lt. Eugene Kolstad, another Army firer, had to settle for third place with 3,387 points.

Following the three position matches came the Interservice portion of the free rifle championship at 300 meters. Army MSgt. William E. Krilling took first honors in the standing, kneeling and prone position aggregate match with 1,130 points out of the possible 1,200 points to win the title of Interservice International Free Rifle Champion.

Only one point away was Air Force Capt. John T. Bertva followed by Army 1st Lt. Presley W. Kendall with 1,123 points.

Krilling won the first of the three matches which made the prone match, with 393 points. Marine Corps WO James E. Hill took the second match, the kneeling tilt, with 381 points, and Bertva took the last of the three matches, the standing competition, with 365. All three matches had possible 400 scores.

The team match was no trouble at all for the Army firers, led by Krilling and Kendall, and adding Capt. Wright and Lt. Kolstad to make the foursome, they compiled a 4,475 score out of the possible 4,600 to walk away with the championship by 67 points.

The Marine Corps was second with 4,407 followed by the Air Force with 4,404.

Krilling added a little frosting to the cake in the U. S. portion of the match by pulling a full 25 points ahead of his next contender, Mr. Hill of the Marine Corps, and posting a winning 3,387 points out of the possible 3,600.

Capt. Wright moved up for the third position with 3,361 points.

The four time winner of the national pistol championship, Bill Blankenship Jr., copped the next win for the Army, this time on the International Pistol Range.

Absent for the earlier center fire matches, Blankenship returned to take first place in the 25-meter rapid fire match with 586 points out of a possible 600, becoming Interservice rapid fire pistol champion.

SSgt. James H. McNally of the Army lost out to the champion in a shoot-off firing the same score in the match. Air Force SSgt. Edwin I. Teague mastered the course for a 585 score for third place.

Again the Army team had no trouble in the team category, behind the shoot - off combination and M-Sgt. Richard Stineman with a 572 score and Capt. Cecil Wallis with a 571, they rolled-up a 2,315 score out of the possible 2,400, to win the Interservice rapid fire pistol team championship.

McNally, the loser to Blankenship in the shoot-off, kept a good pace going in the three days of firing and wound up the U.S. champion with a 1,753 out of the possible 1,800 score. SSgt. Teague, the third place winner in the Interservice competition moved up a peg in the U.S. portion of the match with 1,751 points.

First Lt. Gail Liberty of the Air Force won on the women's scene of the U. S. competition with 1,692 points followed by Trude Schlernitzauer, a civilian, with 1,634 points.

On the running deer range, the Army made a clean sweep of the first three places in all the matches with the exception of the third place in the Interservice single runs championship. Capt. Franklin C. Green, a double winner in pistol competition, fired a 224 score out of a possible 250 to ruin the Army's clean sweep.

In the double - runs match it was Lt. Foster, the single runs runner - up, with a 219 score out of the possible 250. Following him was 2nd Lt. Griggs with 218 hits.

SSgt. Bobby G. Tubbs lost the second position in a shoot - off when he had the same score the runner - up had.

The Army's team, with no other competition in sight, took both the single and double - runs team championships with scores of 885 out of a possible 1,000 in the single runs and 866 in the double runs.

SFC Lloyd G. Crow Jr., firing over the three day U. S. International course, won the national single-runs championship with 676 points out of a possible 750. Following him was Lt. Griggs with 670 and Lt. Foster with 662 points.

The first and second place positions switched in the double runs championship as Griggs took the winner's laurels with a 666 score out of the possible 750 followed by Crow with 663.

Lt. Foster took the third position again with a 653 score this time.

This Third Annual competition was unique since it not only hosted one but two championships. Along with the Interservice championships were the U. S. International matches, which were held at Fort Benning last year under the name of the "World Tryouts" for the world championships matches fired at Cairo, Egypt.

Each individual match determined a winner in the Interservice realm on the first day of completion of a course of fire. Under National Rifle Association rules which governed the national shoot, a winner had to go over the course of fire three times. The only exception to the foregoing was in the skeet match. An Interservice winner was required to go over the course of fire twice while the national championship required three runs.

Armed Forces Personnel were eligible for wins in both the Interservice and U. S. championships while civilians were eligible in the U.S. portion only.

Capt. Zolnowski To Speak Today At MOOM Fete

Capt. Leon A. Zolnowski will be guest speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Fort Benning-Columbus Chapter, Society of American Military Engineers, Supper Club at 11:30 a.m. today.

Capt. Zolnowski, commander of Company A, 127th Engineer Battalion, 11th Air Assault Division (Test), will discuss the mission, organization, capabilities and trends of an engineer battalion in an air assault division.

Military Police Observe Corps' 22nd Birthday

Military policemen at The Infantry Center joined their fellow MPs throughout the U. S. Army Thursday in celebration of the Corps' 22nd anniversary.

Fort Benning MPs postponed any official celebration, however, due to two major committments this week, the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference at The Infantry Center and the Georgia Peace Officers' Assn. in Columbus.

In a letter directed to all military policemen at Fort Benning and to Col. Howard B. Wells, post provost marshal, Maj. Gen. C. W. G. Rich, Infantry Center commanding general, said:

"On the occasion of the 22nd anniversary of the Military Police Corps, I extend best wishes and congratulations on behalf of all personnel of the United States Army Infantry Center.

"The contribution the Military Police Corps has made to the administration of justice, and the enforcement of law and order has been significant. The Corps has proven itself, in its efforts to protect the welfare and rights of all military personnel, to be an efficient, capable and professional organization. The outstanding military bearing and ability of its members have been a definite source of pride to the entire Army.

"I am positive that the past performance of the Corps is an indication of its future success."

Although the Corps of Military Police was established in 1941 to meet the needs of a swiftly expanding Army, the Corps did not become a permanent branch of the Army until June, 1950.

Since the Continental Army days, the office of Provost Marshal was activated only when the need arose and it was not until World War I that a strong effort was made on behalf of a permanent military police force.

In 1941 the Corps found standardized military police doctrine and procedures almost non-existent. Training programs had been based upon civil police methods which were not completely adequate within the military sphere.

To fulfill its far-flung responsibilities, the Provost Marshal General's School and the Military Police Training Center at Fort Gordon were established.

In a comparatively short time men of the Regular Army watched the MPs grow to a crack Corps now found on duty at points all over the world where Army men are stationed.

Today's MPs proudly serve under their motto, "Of the Troops and For the Troops," and are skilled in many different fields, from processing prisoners of war to escorting distinguished guests.

Trained to meet a multitude of emergencies, he handles his daily duties with the tact and diplomacy of a senior non-commissioned officer.

Upon his instant decision may rest the life of a traffic victim and in some instances, his own.

OC Profile

Moon Shot Objectives Explained

DECATUR, Ill. (AFPS)—An explanation of the advantages of the Apollo program has been outlined by Wesley Hjornevik, assistant director for administration at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) in Houston, Tex.

Mr. Hjornevik said that the Apollo program is important because it provides the United States with a clearly defined goal; a goal that is a challenge to this nation's strength and technical ability but is feasible and achievable within this decade.

"On the first lunar mission," Mr. Hjornevik said, "the total time on the moon will be about 24 hours."

After completing their exploration and sleeping a few hours, two astronauts will take off in the Lunar Excursion Module and rendezvous with the third man in the Command Module which will be orbiting the moon. The three astronauts will then return to earth.

45-Jump Airborne Vet Is Now Attending OCS

The Infantry Officer Candidate School is a melting pot of the Army. The course attracts men from all branches of the service, men with a multitude of backgrounds. They all meet at OCS.

An airborne medic from the Philippines is one of the candidates currently undergoing training in The Infantry School's 55th Officer Candidate Company. He is OC Arthur A. Green.

Swift Strike

During his military career he has taken part in several military exercises. He participated in Operation Eagle Wing, Swift Strike I and II and Operation Banyan Tree in Panama.

OC Green has completed Jumpmaster School, Air Mobility Course and Air Transportability Course. He graduated second in his class from the NCO Academy.

In 1962, he applied for admission to OCS. He hopes to attend Ranger school upon completion of OCS and for an eventual assignment to Special Forces.

OC Green has had assignments with the 25th Medical racks, Hawaii, 7th Medical Battalion in Korea and the 82nd Medical Company, Fort Bragg, N.C.

Since completing jump school six years ago, OC Green has made more than 45 parachute jumps. He "went airborne" following his sixteen weeks of basic and advanced Infantry training in 1957.

Dual Nationality

He was born in March, 1938, in Dansalan Lanao, in the Philippines. Being of dual nationality (he has an American father and a Philippine mother) OC Green had a choice of citizenship upon reaching his 18th birthday. He picked U.S. citizenship.

He received his education in the Philippines, majoring in English at Xavier University in Cagayan.

After completing jump school, he was assigned to Fort Sam Houston, Tex., for the basic medical course.

OC Green has had assignments with the 82nd Medical Company, Fort Bragg, N.C.

General Tells Students

'Gung Ho' Attitude Helps Officers' Army Career

An Army officer can bolster his career by performing every assignment with a "Gung Ho" and "heads up" attitude, 450 career officers at The Infantry School were told last week.

The speaker, in Theater No. 1, was Brig. Gen. Richard J. Seitz, chief of the Combined Arms Division, Office of Personnel Operations, Department of the Army, in Washington.

Gen. Seitz is the first of 24 guests slated to speak to the career course students during the next 36 weeks, according to Brig. Gen. John Norton, assistant commandant of the school who introduced the speaker.

Gen. Seitz presented an orientation on the organization of the Office of Personnel Operations, career planning, educational programs and promotion opportunities for career officers.

Influence Career

"Three elements primarily influence your career," he said. "They are the Office of Personnel Operations, your commanding officer and you."

"Evaluation of your career needs and your potentialities are made by Department of the Army from your efficiency reports," the general continued. "Now, you have never seen these reports, unless you have made a trip to DA to see them. Most men never come in to see their records until they have been passed up. My advice to you is come to the Office of Personnel Operations and look at your records. We are there to rate you and to guide you, as well."

"Look to your commanders for guidance and when you get your command, guide the officers under you. Too many officers are being patted on the back but not guided," he added.

"In making your assignments we consider the needs of the service, your career needs and your preferences," Gen. Seitz said. "In the Career Branch, we do read your preference sheet and we do attempt to match your preference with your assignment."

Study Beginning

"Your military education is just beginning," the speaker said. "You will spend the rest of your career learning your basic tools."

"This career course you are taking is of primary interest to you. Your paramount object during the course should be to learn all you can and to make friends among your contemporaries. They are the men you will work with throughout your career," he said.

"The Army provides for civilian education with an off-duty program, degree completion program, and provisions for advanced graduate studies," Gen. Seitz added.

"The off - duty program requires a lot of work but it is worth it. To complete a degree under the degree completion (Bootstrap) program, you must apply five months in advance of the opening of the school session you want to attend," he explained.

Needs People

"The Army has need for people with advanced schooling," Gen. Seitz said. "However, the Graduate School Program is intended to train you to perform a requirement in the army, not just to give you an advanced degree."

"A good officer with a degree is an asset to the Army but a mediocre officer with a degree is just a mediocre officer," the speaker said.

Following the address, a question and answer period was conducted.

Know Your Senior NCO's

MSgt. Julian R. Guzman, a veteran of 19 years of service and 16 years as a paratrooper, is the senior instructor of the Advanced Airborne Training Group, Airborne-Air Mobility Department.

This noncommissioned officer was drafted in April, 1944. Soon after completing basic training, he was assigned to the 66th Infantry Division at Fort Rucker, Ala. He moved overseas with this unit.

One of the most memorable events of his career occurred during World War II while crossing the English Channel: the ship transporting his unit was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine about six miles off the French coast. Of the 2,400 troops aboard, 600 were lost. Sgt. Guzman was picked up several hours after the sinking by a Coast Guard boat. He spent 10 days in an Army hospital before rejoining his unit which was fighting in northern France. He remained with the 66th for the duration of World War II.

Goes Airborne

After the war, Sgt. Guzman returned to the United States and was assigned to Fort Hood, Tex., and later to the Armored School at Fort Knox, Ky., in 1947. While at Fort Knox, he volunteered for Airborne training and attended the Airborne School here. At that time, the Airborne Course consisted of six weeks of training which included glider qualification parachute packing.

Sgt. Guxman has served with the 82d, 11th and 101st Airborne Divisions, and the 508th ARCT. His tour with the 11th occurred during the occupation of Japan.

His last overseas assignment was spent on a military mission in Saudi Arabia in 1960.

Since his return, Sgt. Guzman has served with the Airborne-Air Mobility Department as NCOIC of the Caribou Section, Air Movement Committee, and as senior instructor, Advanced Airborne Training Group.

This veteran has over 160 parachute jumps to his credit.

He was an honor graduate of the Ranger Course.

2nd Division Troops Storm Ashore at Little Creek

9TH INFANTRY TROOPS LAND ASHORE AT LITTLE CREEK

'Indianheads' Get Wet During Assault Landings

BY BOB DE CAMARA

Wave after combat-clad wave of division infantrymen hit the beaches at Camp Pendleton, Va., today winding up two weeks at the Naval Amphibious Training School with a full-scale assault.

The troopers, carrying battle gear and M-14 rifles, stormed ashore from Navy landing craft, secured a beachhead under heavy opposition and braced for the push inland.

The landing force consisted of nearly 2,000 men from four division units: the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry; the 2nd Tank Battalion, 72nd Armor (a division unit from Fort Stewart, Ga.); the 38th Artillery; and Company C, 2nd Engineer Battalion.

Even as these men were hitting the beaches under closely-simulated combat conditions, another 2,000 "Indianhead" troopers prepared for the start of a similar two weeks course.

The landing parties loaded aboard Navy ships in the play to culminate many hours of classroom and practical work. At H-hour the men poured over the sides of the ship and climbed precariously down the nets into the smaller boats for the run to shore.

Thousands of tons of simulated cargo for establishing supply points on shore, tanks, artillery pieces, trucks and heavy equipment all came off the ships for the assault.

The class starting today will be the last for the division this year at the amphibious school in Little Creek, Va., next door to the Marine post "attacked" by soldiers wearing the "Indianhead" patch.

Group II (the second class) is made up of four other division units: the 1st Battalion, 38th 'Infantry,' elements of the 72nd Armor; the 15th Artillery; and Company A and D, 2nd Engineer Battalion.

2nd Division CAA Fund Drive Given a Start by Gen. Billingslea

Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commander of the 2nd Infantry Division, kicked off the division's 1964 Community Activities Association (CAA) Fund Drive Monday morning, when he presented a personal check to CWO Frank H. Fallis, key man for the command group, outside of division headquarters.

The CAA is an agency which approves fund requests for the operation of three principal Fort Benning community activities. These activities are the Youth Activities Club, the Visiting Nurses Program and the Preventive Dental Health Program.

This is an annual drive conducted to raise funds to meet the budgets of the above organizations. In addition, this drive is conducted in conjunction with the Muscogee and Russell Counties United Givers Fund drive, which raises money for the support of 30 local and national health, welfare and character building agencies.

At Fort Benning the two drives are combined into one. Based on a percentage of service rendered to military personnel and their dependents, Fort Benning's "fair share" of money collected in the joint drive is contributed to help support local and national agencies of the United Givers.

The United Givers agencies, which Fort Bening is asked to help, devote over 43 per cent of their budgets to the military.

According to Maj. Robert E. Pardee, 2nd Division Chemical Officer and this year's Project Officer for the 2nd Division's CAA Fund drive, the goal of the 2nd Infantry Division is $38,411. To provide an equitable basis for reaching this goal, the contribution of .17 of 1 per cent of annual base pay for military personnel is recommended.

Maj. Pardee explained that they plan to split this drive into two different parts, taking in two successive paydays (September and October) so as not to inconvenience any individual who might want to contribute to this worthy cause. He also hastened to explain that the .17 of 1 per cent of annual base pay is only a recommended amount, but anyone can give any amount that they may choose.

Anyone who contributes to this worthy cause will receive a pin that may be worn on their uniform, showing that they have given "The United Way."

Army Commendation Medal Awarded to Captain Wentz

Capt. Raymond D. Wentz, Assistant G-2, Second Infantry Division, received the Army Commendation Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and a Certificate of Appreciation from the Army's Chief of Staff last week, on the occasion of his retirement from active service.

The twenty - year veteran's first oak leaf cluster was awarded for services he rendered from 3 June 1959 through 31 August 1963. The Commendation Medal citation was read by Maj. Raymond W. King, assistant G-2 and presented to Capt. Wentz by Brig. Gen. John T. Corley, assistant division commander. The citation reads in part, "Capt. Wentz served as G-2 AIR, and assistant G-2 AIR, Training & Inspection Officer, and Security Officer. In the performance of all assigned and additional duties, he demonstrated professional competence, unlimited energy, and mature judgment." The citation goes on praising Capt. Wentz's accomplishments and closes with the statement, "Capt Wentz may be justly proud of his service and achievements throughout the cited period, for they were in keeping with the finest traditions of the 2nd Infantry Division and the United States Army."

The certificate was signed by Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, United States Army, chief of staff, and was presented to Capt. Wentz by Brig. Gen. Robert

2nd Med Visited By Col. Canellia

Col. C. J. Canellia, Support Command commander of the 1st Infantry Division at Ft. Riley, Kan., paid a visit to the 2nd Medical Battalion, 2nd Infantry Division last week.

Col. Canellia was the guest of Lt. Col. J. D. Wallace, commanding officer of the 2nd Medical Battalion, 2nd Infantry Division.

During his two day visit Col. Canellia visited with members of the 2nd Division Staff, the 2nd Supply & Transport Battalion, the 702nd Maintenance Battalion and the 2nd Administration Company.

Col. Canellia's visit was designed to afford him the opportunity to observe present logistical operations of the 2nd Medical Battalion and to discuss problems pertaining to their recent reorganization to the Army's new ROAD concept.

2nd Division Organization Day To Select 'Best Drilled Company'

Competition on three separate levels to select the best drilled company in the "Indianhead" Division began Sept. 16 and will conclude Oct. 16 during the 1963 Second Infantry Division Organization Day activities.

Being held in accordance with the regulations stated in the Field Manual 22-5, the competition is emphasizing appearance, manual of arms and foot movements generally associated with ceremonies, parades and reviews.

Companies, batteries and troops throughout the division are now in the process of selecting their best squads, composed of 10 enlisted men and one non-commissioned officer, to participate in the squad competition scheduled for Oct. 7-11. All companies in the division, with the exception of Division Headquarters and the 2nd Military Police Company, will enter this phase of the drill activities.

Brigade competition to select the outstanding platoons will be held Oct. 14-18. All platoons to be entered will consist of four 11 man squads in addition to a platoon guide and one officer platoon leader. For the express purpose of the competition the 2nd Engineer Battalion will be attached to the 1st Brigade and the 122nd Signal Battalion to the 2nd Brigade.

All major subordinate commands will conduct company level competition during Oct. 21-22 with the results being submitted to the office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, not later than Oct. 23.

Companies entered in the competition will consist of three platoons, a guidon bearer and a company commander, totaling 136 enlisted men and four officers.

A board of officers and non-commissioned officers designated by the Commanding General, Second Infantry Division will select the "best drilled" company in the division on Oct. 26 at Wetherby Field. In addition to the drill award a best appearing company will also be picked at that time.

Former 1st of 23rd Commander Becomes New G-3 Assistant

Lt. Col. John H. Cochran Jr., former commanding officer of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry, recently assumed the duties as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, upon his return from Germany earlier this month after participating in the now defunct Rotaplan system.

A native of Cape Girardeau, Mo., he was graduated from his home town high school in 1938 and later entered Southeast Missouri State College, also located in Cape Girardeau. But World War II interrupted his studies and he entered the Army as an enlisted man in 1942, completing his basic training at Camp Wolter, Tex.

Upon completion of his initial Army training he attended the Officers Candidate School here at Fort Benning and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the infantry in December of that year.

Col. Cochran was then assigned to the 66th Infantry Division at Camp Blanding, Fla. and remained there until the Spring of 1944 when he was transferred to the 90th Infantry Division.

He accompanied the "Tough Hombres" overseas in April of that year and remained with it until the close of the War in Europe. During this time he participated in five major campaigns: Normandy, Northern France, Rhineland, Ardennes-Alsace and Central Europe, earning for himself the Silver valor with one oaf leaf cluster, the Purple Heart with two oak leaf clusters and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

After his return to the United States in 1945, Col. Cochran served with the 5th Infantry Division Fort Campbell, Ky., until the following year when he traveled overseas again for a three year tour with the 88th Infantry Division and the U.S. Forces in Trieste, Italy.

He attended the Officer's Advanced Infantry Course, Ft. Benning, in 1949 and was then assigned as the Professor of Military Science and Tactics for the Reserve Officers Training Corps at Opelika High School, Opelika, Ala.

Following his completion of the Command and General Staff College, Fort Levenworth, Kan. in 1953, Col. Cochran made his first journey to Korea where he served as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, and acting Chief of Staff with the 7th Infantry Division.

In 1959 he received his Bachelor of Arts degree after serving for three years at Fort Monroe, Va. with Continental Army Command Headquarters.

Col. Cochran first came to the "Second to None" Division in September of last year following a tour of duty in the Intelligence Division of Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers Europe (SHAPE).

After serving as the executive officer of the 2nd Brigade for three months he assumed command of the 2nd Battle Group, 23rd Infantry which later became the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

Col. Cochran lives with his wife, Jo, and their two children at 101 Rainbow Ave.

COL. COCHRAN

Altogether, the "2nd" has close to 5,000 men involved at Little Creek, two classes plus supporting elements.

The support units at Little Creek for both classes are 2nd Brigade Headquarters as the control organization; Company B, 2nd Engineer Battalion; Company D, 2nd Maintenance Battalion; Company C, 2nd Medical Battalion; and a detachment from the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion.

Amphibious training is one more in a series of intensive exercises to equip the 2nd Infantry Division for any type mission. This fits in neatly with the counter - guerrilla instruction currently given line units and the conventional infantry dills.

At Little Creek, the men learn everything from Navy slang to clearing the beach of obstacles, waterproofing communications facilities and digging in on shore under realistic artillery barrages of TNT.

The wind-up giant assault was viewed today by Brig. Gen. John T. Corley, assistant commander of the 2nd Division and a veteran of wartime landings at North Africa and Normandy, among others.

The much-decorated battlefield general was accompanied on his tour of Little Creek by a Columbus Enquirer reporter who shared similar World War II experiences in a different theater of operations.

Charles Black, the reporter, served with the 4th Battalion of Edson's Marine raiders at Tulagi, Guadalcanal and New Georgia, and with the 2nd Marine Division's famous Scout and Sniper Platoon at the Tarawa landing in 1943.

Another assistant division commander, Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, returned earlier from an inspection trip to Little Creek after witnessing smaller unit maneuvers.

The men will halt today's exercise only after nailing down a beachhead at Camp Pendleton and moving inland on the offensive.

Medal

E. Coffin, assistant division commander.

Capt. Wentz's immediate plans for the future include a trip to the west coast, where he and his wife will visit with relatives. Upon completion of this trip Capt. Wentz and his wife will reside in Edmonds, Wash.

1st of 9th Gets 2 New Officers

By 1st Bn 9th Infantry PIO

During the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry's amphibious training conducted at Little Creek, Va., two company officers were assigned to posts at battalion headquarters.

Assigned as adjutant was Lt. Richard K. Holiday, former executive officer at Company A.

2nd Med Sgt. Awarded ACM

By Support Command PIO

The men of the 2nd Medical Battalion recently watched an awards ceremony at Weatherby Field where one member of the battalion received an Army Commendation Medal and several others received letters of Commendation and green tabs.

Lt. Col. Jack Wallace, commanding officer of the 2nd Medical Battalion, congratulated all the men on their performance during Swift Strike III and reminded them not to lose this spirit because they were back in garrision.

The Army Commendation Medal was presented to 1st Sgt. James E. Dyer of Headquarters and Support Company, while 1st Sgt. William T. Craig of Company B, and Sgt. Kevin C. Reily of Company A received the certificate of Achievement.

The men receiving the Letters of Commendation were: Lt. James B. Laughnane III, Sgt. Robert Sweat, Sgt. Milton Harlow, Sgt. Harold W. Rampey, Sgt. Levi Sencliare, Sp5 Dock H. Dillman, Sgt. George Wunstell, Sp4 Ernest Bongiorno, PFC James Boutier, PFC Sevorn Cole, PFC Dana R. Brown, PFC Bobby J. Longan, and Pvt. Robert C. Cummings.

Also, the Green Tab, Battalion Crest, and French Fourragere were given to 1st Sgt. William T. Craig.

New Sergeant Major Assigned to 3rd Brigade

By 3rd Brigade PIO

Sgt. Maj. James L. Runyon recently assumed the duties of chief enlisted advisor to the 3rd Brigade commander, Col. John K. Walker Jr.

Coming from the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry, Sgt. Runyon joined the 3rd Brigade just one month after Col. Walker, who assumed command during the Joint Military exercise, Swift Strike III, which was held this past August.

Upon his arrival at 3rd Brigade headquarters three weeks ago, a swirl of activity developed in the S-1 section. Desks were rearranged, duties reassigned and section personnel were briefed on what was to be expected of them.

Appearance, military courtesy and job efficiency rank high on Sgt. Runyon's check list. One clerk in the section commented, "I hope he knows I've never done this type of work before." He then began to carry out his duties in the manner in which the sergeant major expected.

Sergeant Major Hosted to Dinner

By 12th Artillery PIO

Sgt. Maj. Wallace C. Treadwell, who recently became the 2nd Infantry Division Artillery Sergeant Major, was honored by the NCO's of his former battalion, the 12th Artillery, with a "bar-be-que dinner" on Friday September 13. 1st Sgt. Elton R. Butler was head of the planning committee and mess steward Francis T. Donier prepared barbecue chicken for the occasion.

Mail Clerk Is a Hurryin' Hoosier

By Jay R. Sharbutt

Indiana, an East North Central state, was explored by LaSalle in 1670, became a Territory in May, 1800, and was admitted as a state in December, 1816. In March, 1963, it sent a native son, one Fred B. Cammack, to Fort Jackson, S. C., to attend a series of lectures given by the Army on Basic and Advanced Infantry tactics.

Currently the mail clerk for the 1st Brigade, 2nd Infantry Division, PFC Cammack remains a Hoosier at heart, although his present address is Fort Benning, Ga. One of Fred's main hobbies is talking about Indiana.

"Do you know that we have 20 state parks, 2 state beaches, and 14 state forests?" asks Cammack.

"No," reply his listeners, who, until then, had been discussing the outcome of the World Series.

"We also have 5 game preserves and 11 fish hatcheries," says Cammack.

"No kidding," they say.

"Not only that, but Central Indiana produced 2,103,000 cattle and 4,801,000 hogs and pigs in 1962," says Cammack.

"Really?" they ask.

"Best you move to Indiana," advises Cammack. "Lest you miss out on all them goodies for the fiscal year 1963-64."

PFC Cammack is a 1957 graduate of Corydon Central High School. If you ask him where Corydon is, he will explain that it is 400 miles due south of Gas City, also a small town in Indiana. You can't say he's not helpful.

Before entering the Army, PFC Cammack was a quality control inspector for a nationally known fine furniture firm. What does a quality control inspector do?

"Well, in my case, I kept an eye on all the nationally known fine furniture as it came down the line," explained Fred. "If there was something like a six-foot hole in the seat of an easy chair, I marked it 'slightly damaged' and sent it right back where it came from."

One of Cammack's listeners observed that it must have been difficult to send an easy chair the wrong way on an assembly line.

"It was," agreed Fred. "But then, I was paid for results, not complaints."

PFC Cammack intends to study at the University of Indiana after he finishes his military obligation. What will he study?

"Coeds, probably," says Cammack. "Which reminds me. Did you know that we have more pretty girls in Indiana than any other state . . ."

His listeners resumed discussion of the World Series. They were from Ohio.

Squad Leader Of the Month Is Sgt. Fields

New Command For 1st of 23rd Headquarters

By 1st Bn, 23rd Infantry PIO

The company guidon of Headquarters & Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry and the green tabs of a combat commander were recently presented to Capt. John H. Bates. Capt. Bates moves to the top slot in Headquarters Company from his former duties of Company Executive Officer to replace departing Capt. Paul F. Sommerville.

A 27-year-old native of Ranger, Texas, Capt. Bate is a graduate of Texas Technological College of Lubbock, Texas, where he majored in petroleum engineering. A distinguished military graduate of the school's Reserve Officer Training Corps program, he was commissioned in the regular Army upon graduation and proceeded to Fort Benning where he completed the Infantry Officer Basic Course in September 1959.

Assigned to Germany, Capt. Bates served with the 4th Armored Division in Erlangen until he returned to CONUS and duty with the 2nd Division.

SP5 DONALD HOLT
Personnel Team No. 4

Sp5 Donald Holt

Sp5 Donald G. Holt is a two year veteran of the 2nd Infantry Division's Military Pay Branch, Adjutant General Section, Personnel Service Division who makes sure that over 450 soldiers of the "Second to None" Division receive their pay each month.

As a pay clerk in Team 4, he prepares and types the pay vouchers of the men in division headquarters and Headquarters Company, 184th Chemical Company, 26th Chemical Company and Headquarters and Band, Support Command each month and forwards them to Division Finance for computation and payment.

The only child of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Holt, he was born and raised in Buena Vista, Va., a small town located just six miles away from Virginia Military Institute in Lexington. After graduation from Parry McCluer High School in 1956, Holt worked as a weaver's helper with James Lees and Son before entering the National Business College, Roanoke in 1958.

After completing his course of study in 1960 he worked as a bookkeeper with Lexington Motor Sales in Lexington for a year and entered the Army on August 2, 1961. He completed his basic and advanced training at Fort Jackson, S. C., specializing in the Army Basic Administration Course.

He came to the "Indianhead" Division on January 24, 1962 after finishing a four week Pay Specialty course at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. and was assigned to his present duties.

Following the completion of his active military obligation in August of next year, he plans to work for an accounting organization.

At present Holt, his wife Jean, and their three month old daughter Tracey are living at 132 C, Baker Village in Columbus.

SSgt. M. E. Holloway

SSgt. Marvin E. Holloway, a veteran of the Korean Conflict, carries a large amount of responsibilities as Pay Chief and composite team leader of Team 2, Adjutant General Section, Personnel Service Division.

Besides having direct responsibility over five pay clerks, he also supervises the work and actions of the remaining men of the team who work in the management, actions and records branches. In addition to these two important duties, he is also responsible for the constant maintenance of his building.

Born in Cleveland and raised in Muncie, Ind., Sgt. Holloway was graduated from Central High School, Muncie, in June, 1945. After working a short time he decided on a military career and entered the Army the following January.

After completeing his basic training at Fort Lewis, Wash. he received his first overseas assignment and journeyed to the "Land of the Rising Sun" where he served as part of the American occupation force with the 92nd Railhead Company in Tokyo until May, 1947.

Shortly after the outbreak of hostilities in Korea in June, 1950, he was assigned to the 3rd Infantry Division and fought with that unit through five bloody campaigns.

Since that time he has served a three-year-tour with the 8th Infantry Division in Germany plus several assignments in the Continental United States.

He came to the 2nd Infantry Division on August 1, 1959 and was assigned to the 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry where he stayed until February of this year when he was reassigned to the Military Pay Branch and his present duties.

Sgt. Holloway, who is currently on his last enlistment before retiring, now lives with his wife and three children at 1533 Bowie Ave., Columbus.

SSGT. M. E. HOLLOWELL
Personnel Team No. 2 Chief

PFC WAYNE SCHULTE
Personnel Team No. 2

PFC Wayne Schulte

PFC Wayne E. Schulte, 20, is a young man who is currently fulfilling his military obligation by working as a pay clerk in Team No. Two, Adjutant General Section, Personnel Service Division.

It is his responsibility to maintain a careful check on the financial data records of over 400 men in Companies A and B of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry. His duties include the monthly preparation of pay vouchers complete with all entitlements and collections which enable the Finance Section to compute and pay the troops of his units.

Bron and raised in Norway, Iowa, located just outside of Cedar Rapids, he grew up on his parents farm which specializes in raising cattle and corn.

He attended Prairie High School in Cedar Rapids for four years and was graduated in 1960. After working on the farm for two years, Schulte decided to complete his active military service before furthering his education and entered the Army on June 18, 1962.

After enlisting at the Main Recruiting Station in Des Moines, Iowa he was sent to Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. where he received his initial taste of Army life and adjusted to the military routine during eight weeks of basic training. Upon completion of a short leave he travelled to Fort Ord, Calif. and received advanced individual training as an Army Administration Clerk.

From Fort Ord Schulte was assigned to Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. where he attended the Pay Specialty School for four weeks.

He arrived at Fort Benning on December 4 of last year and was assigned to the 2nd Engineer Battalion of the "Indianhead" Division. Then, after a two month period he was reassigned to the 2nd Administration Company and his present duties.

Upon completion of his present tour of duty, Schulte plans to attend business college and pursue a career in the accounting field.

COLUMBUS POLICEMEN STUDY WITH 2ND MP COMPANY

2nd MP Company Trains Local Police

By 2nd Military Police PIO

The 2nd Military Police Company recently hosted four Columbus city policemen to classes on military law.

The men selected by Capt. Grover Knox, of the Columbus traffic police, attended a three hour block of instruction given by Capt. DeWitt H. Hudson Jr., commander of the 2nd Military Police Company.

Capt. Hudson covered military police methods, "The Posse Comitatus Act," and military law is an effort to present a clear understanding of the duties and authority of the military policeman outside the reservation boundries.

Capt. Hudson and Capt. Knox felt this joint training would greatly benefit both the civilian patrolman and the military policeman in the execution of their duties while working together off post.

The four selected men were: patrolmen Eddie Longshore, John T. Whittlesey, Lloyd D. Byrd and J. C. Green.

Inter-Service Rivalry Not Classified by Webster

By Peter Tatischeff

LITTLE CREEK, VA. . . "Hey, Dogface," the Jarhead cried barkingly. (This Tom Swiftsy is a Marine favorite here.)

Despite such ungentle rivalry, "Dogfaces," are existing side by side with "Jarheads" here at the U.S. Navy's Amphibious Training base as 2,000 Second Division soldiers take their annual beach assault training course.

Second Infantry Division soldiers, not to be outdone, retort with "Jarhead" for the Marines and one of three terms for their good old Navy friends: "Anchor Clanker," "Paint Shippers," or "Milk Bottles."

There hasn't been a fight yet, not officially, at any rate.

Army, Navy and Marine servicemen exist here in friendly rivalry. At Little Creek's Amphibious training base the Army man is passed off as a "Dogface" (the name usually followed by vigorous barking by the Marine involved).

S-4 Assigned To 2nd of 23rd

By 2nd Bn., 23rd Infantry PIO

Lt. James R. Brown has assumed the S-4 duties of the 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry. He replaces Lt. Guenther J. Tisson who was transferred to the 2nd Brigade headquarters.

Lt. Brown, prior to becoming S-4, was the Support Platoon Leader and the assistant S-4.

His military career started in January 1955 as an enlisted man, serving until September 1962 before receiving his commission through Officer's Candidate School.

A native of Conneautville, Pa., he is married to the former Dorothy Ann Faust. They have two children, Charles and Helen, and reside at 213-C Christian Lane, Fort Benning.

Col. Connell Praised By Division Commander

Lt. Col. James M. Connell, assistant chief of staff G-3, Second Infantry Division, received a Certificate of Achievement from Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commander of the 2nd Infantry Division, Monday morning.

The Certificate of achievement was presented to Col. Connell in recognition of his outstanding performance of duty during the period September 1962 through September 1963.

The Certificate of Achievement is signed by Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea.

Col. Connell is about to assume new duties as the principle assistant to Maj. Gen. C. V. Clifton Jr., Military Aide to President Kennedy, in Washington.

G-2 Captain's Escort Duty Is Praised

Capt. James R. Bell, Chief of Operational Intelligence Branch, G-2, 2nd Infantry Division, has received no less than three letters of praise, for services that he has rendered within the past five months.

In March of this year, Brig. Gen. William E. Enemark, who is now the assistant division commander of the 24th Infantry Division in Germany, visited the 2nd Infantry Division. Capt. Bell was assigned as escort officer for Gen. Enemark, during his three day visit.

Gen. Enemark wrote a letter of appreciation to Maj. Charles Billingslea, 2nd Infantry Division commander, mentioning the services of Capt. Bell. The letter from Gen. Enemark reads in part, "I am particularly grateful for the assistance given me by Capt. James R. Bell, who was my escort officer. He was willing and especially resourceful in anticipating my requirements and in suggesting and arranging discussions. Please pass on to him my regard and my thanks."

Ironically, the three letter's of praise for Capt. Bell's achievements are all dated within a twelve day period.

Carl Halstead's 'After Hours'

She Is a Legend to All Her Men

I cannot remember when I first saw, or even heard about her. It was far too many years ago. But, like all the others, I hardly notice her anymore. She is just there; always taken for granted. But the story, the legend that is wrapped around her, is a masterpiece.

She wasn't exactly born. . . she was created. And like all other living things, she grew. She grew from a sort of childhood to maturity alongside all her lovers. . . constantly eager to serve, proud; protective.

Strength of a Father

Throughout the years she has received the respect of a mother, yet instilled within her children the strength from a father. She has watched over and guided many great men, and been the inspiration to some of history's greatest moments.

The wonder and magnitude of all the things she has done during her lifetime is beyond belief. She has traveled to the furthermost fathoms of the sea, and even graced the infinitude mileage of space.

She has stood without protection against the most severe storms. . . always staunch, immovable and magnificient; constantly there when she was needed, regardless of the circumstances.

Sprays Her Beauty

Her lovers pay little attention to her most of the time, yet she continues to spray her beauty upon them without jealousy or condemnation for their indifference and ingratitude. She just waits — their love has never failed her when she needed it.

To the poor and the downcast she gives faith and inspiration to some of history's greatest moments.

The wonder and magnitude of all the things she has done during her lifetime is a weary traveler shivers at first sight of her.

Wherever her lovers go, she follows. From one corner of the earth to another she has kept faith with her protectors. She has stood by their side when they fought her battles of honor, and when some died, she laid herself upon their coffins in mourning.

Like A Tidal Wave

She is awakened in the mornings by her men and after the day passes, she is tucked in bed. Always her honor is protected and guarded. And when assailed, her roster of lovers rise like a tidal wave and smite down her enemy with a force second only to God's.

To her enemies she is confusing. They cannot understand how she can be so disregarded the majority of the time, and yet, the slightest provocation toward her unleashes a quick defense and vehement retaliation. It is hard for them to grasp how she alone can master such a mighty force of servants, when actually, she is of little material value.

Songs and books have been written about her, and children everywhere learn of her greatness during their earliest school days. Her list of admirers continuousy grows.

The North Star

No words can adequately describe her. She is a miraculous beauty beyond mere human distinction. She is like a blazing ruby centered in a great sea of buttermilk; statuesque, brilliant and warm. Like the north star shining all alone in the great galaxy she radiates awe and inspiration. She is a monument, a dream. . . .

And when Old Glory's theme song is played, men everywhere remove their hats in tribute and salute her. She is a mighty, and a proud flag.

Troops at Little Creek Find Dimes to Be Golden

Although the troops from the first group of representative elements from the 2nd Infantry Division training at Little Creek, Va. are kept busy all day by Navy and Marine Corps instructors, many of them like to stay busy during their spare time.

Lt. Guenter J. Tisson and Sgt. Howard T. Enlow Jr., assigned by the 2nd Brigade to develop athletic and recreational possibilities, discovered that on a Navy base there are a number of things a trooper can do for ten cents; for instance, go to any movie, rent bowling shoes, or work out at the gym; where weights, trampolines, gymnastic equipment and steam baths are free, and gym clothes are available for a dime.

In addition, the Amphibious Base has tennis courts, a sea-side golf course, a skeet range, woodworking and ceramics shops, a resort - style swimming pool, a training pool, motor boats and fishing of all kinds, from bamboo pole to deep sea fishing.

Several tours are planned of historic places in the Virginia Tidewater area, such as Williamsburg, Yorktown and Jamestown, and of the Norfolk Naval Base and Yards.

The 2nd Brigade is conducting a softball tournament composed of four leagues: Artillery (red), Support (white), Infantry (blue), and Armor (yellow). Participating units are the 5th Battalion, 60th Artillery; 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry; Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Brigade; 2nd Battalion, 72nd Armor; and a few separate companies of the 2nd Engineer Battalion, 2nd Medical Battalion, 702nd Maintenance Battalion and 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion.

Three Officers Depart the 38th

1st Bn., 38th Infantry PIO

In the past few weeks the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry has lost three of its outstanding officers; all of which were a credit to this unit.

Capt. Armand E. Malo, battalion S-4 officer, was the first to leave. He has gone to the 11th Air Assault to further his military training and knowledge. Capt. Malo has been replaced by Capt. Rodney T. Finkle, whose last assignment was in Washington, D.C., under the Commanding General's office.

Lt. Phillip G. Stanage of the 1st Battalion has also left for special training. Lt. Stange was the battalion S-2 officer. He is presently stationed at Fort Bragg, N.C., undergoing training for Special Forces.

The third officer to leave was Lt. Leon N. Tomlinson of Company B. Lt. Tomlinson was the executive officer and is now attending school before being sent overseas to Okinawa.

SFC Sylvester to Retire After 20 Years Service

By 1st Bn, 22rd Infantry PIO

The 30th day of September marks the end of a 20-year service career for SFC Kenneth Sylvester, in the United States Army. He entered the Army on June 5th, 1943.

SFC Sylvester took his basic training at Fort Sill, Okla. He was then transferred to Camp Hale, Colo. where he began training with the Pack Artillery. This training was broken into two phases. The first phase dealt with mountain training at Camp Hale and the second phase led to summer training at Camp Swift, Texas.

Upon completion of this training he was sent to join the 10th Division in Italy and he entered into combat with them that lasted thru the end of the war. At the end of the war he was sent back to Camp Hale, at which time the division was deactivated.

In 1946 Sgt. Sylvester returned to overseas duty with the 504th Military Police Battalion which was stationed in Germany. He remained with this unit until 1949 when he was reassigned to the 535th MP Company at Stuttgart, Germany. He remained there until November of 1951, at which time he was reassigned to Fort Myers, Va.

Sgt. Sylvester remained at Fort Myers until April 1953 when he was sent to KMAG in Korea. In August, 1954, he returned to the States and went to the 52nd Armor at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. until 1955.

The 10th Division reactivated at Fort Riley and Kenneth Sylvester was on hand to join up with his old unit. They moved to Germany in 1955 and returned to CONUS in 1958, this time to Fort Benning. The division deactivated again and Sylvester found himself in the 2nd Division.

In October, 1960 he was reassigned to the 50th AIB in Germany and returned, once again, to Fort Benning in 1962. He was the reassigned to the 26th Infantry and went through the reorganizaton of the 57th Infantry and then transferred to the 23rd Infantry.

Upon his retirement, SFC Sylvester and his family plan to remain in Columbus.

'Manchu' of the Month Selection--Sp4 Hammond

By 1st Bn, 9th Inf PIO

LITTLE CREEK, VA.

A man with a taste for swinging music and the ability to play it was chosen as the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry's Soldier - of - the - Month. Selected as the "MANCHU MAN" for the month of September by a board made up of the battalion sergeant major and company first sergeants was Sp4 Henry M. Hammond, a senior rifleman at Company C.

Hammond started his musical hobby while attending Northern High School in his hometown of Detroit, Mich. When not doing homework or acting in his capacity of Reserve Officer Training Corps cadet company commander at Northern High, he sang with a small group around Detroit, and when he entered the Army in January, 1961 he devoted most of his spare time to music and swimming. At Fort Benning he participated in several special services talent contests with a group called the Happy Four, and twice they took honors.

Specialist Hammond, who was chosen as Soldier-of-the-Month for his complete knowledge of military subjects, battalion and division history and outstanding military appearance and bearing, not only sings but also plays the drums, piano and bass.

New Sergeant Major Joins the 2nd of 23rd

By 2nd Bn, 23rd Infantry PIO

A sergeant major, who served as the top non-commissioned officer for the Allied Staff in Berlin for the past two years, became sergeant major of the 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry recently.

He is Jack R. Beach.

The Allied Forces is composed of British, French and United States soldiers with the commanding general rotating as commandant between the three every 30 days. Sgt. Maj. Beach served as sergeant major for all three.

The 37-year-old soldier entered the Marine Corps in 1943 before commencing his Army career in 1946. His explanation for leaving the Marine Corps was that the Army had a larger, organization and the chances for advancement was much greater.

Sgt. Maj. Beach applied for a direct reserve commission in 1953 and holds the rank of captain on inactive duty.

He saw 11-months of combat action with the 197th Airborne Infantry in Korea in 1950-51, participating in the only two combat jumps made during the War. Another member of the 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry, Sgt. John W. Earnesty, Company A, was a squad leader for Sgt. Maj. Beach in Korea.

Sgt. Maj. Beach was on jump status from 1946-56 and made over 100 jumps during his 10-year tenure.

A native of Belleville, W. Va., he is married and the father of a 10-year-old daughter.

His plans after retirement—to enter the electronics field after furthering his education.

Custer Terrace is Site For DivArty Luncheon

The officers' wives of the 2nd Division Artillery held their first luncheon of the season at Custer Terrace Officers' club on September 23.

Mrs. Francis Mendenhall, wife of the commanding officer of the 37th Artillery, and the ladies of the 37th Artillery were hostesses for the occasion.

Mrs. Mendenhall introduced the honored guests, Mrs. Coffin and Mrs. Burnside Huffman, wife of the commanding officer, and presented them with orchid corsages.

A "Fall Auctions" theme was used for the decorations with red and white checkered table cloths and colorful dripping candles. The centerpiece was an arrangement of crysanthemums, marigolds and snapdragons. On special display were several antiques and collectors' items, donated by the ladies of the 37th.

A raffle was held with a ceramic windmill, donated by Mrs. Kenneth Biddle of the 37th, and the winner was Mrs. Dillard Jones.

The centerpiece, given as the doorprize was won by Mrs. Charles Wendt.

Gen. Corley and Gen. Coffin Hosted

1st Brigade Officers Hold Party at MOOM

By 1st Brigade PIO

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. John T. Corley and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Robert E. Coffin were guests of honor in a 1st Brigade Officers' Party held last Saturday night in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers's Open Mess.

Col. William J. Ray and Lt. Col. Ted E. Gordinier, respectively the commanding officer and executive officer of the 1st Brigade, were on hand with their wives to greet the two 2nd Infantry Division assistant commanders and their wives.

The party was attended by the staff and company officers of the 1st Brigade. Special guests included Col. and Mrs. Lucien F. Keller, Division Chief of Staff, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Edward F. Carroll, 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry, and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Donald H. Lanier, 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry.

The party, which featured the piano artistry of Jessy Fauntleroy, began at 6:30 p.m. with a receiving line and cocktails in the Normandy Room. Afterwards, the officers and their ladies retired to the Corregidor Room for supper.

The festivities were highlighted by the after-dinner remarks of Assistant Division Commander, Gen. Corley. Later in the evening, Col. William J. Ray, commanding officer of the 1st Brigade, handed out silver trays to officers leaving the brigade for new assignments. Among those receiving trays were: Capt. Douglas R. Harris, Capt. Joseph A. Canty Jr., and Capt. Francies R. Baline, Jr. In addition, a wedding tray was presented to recently married Capt. and Mrs. Douglas R. Harris.

Col. Ray presented a silver baby cup to Lt. and Mrs. William R. Dydell, whose son, Baline, was born on July 30 this year.

Navy Classes Informs Division Men of Training

On their first day of training, at Little Creek, the 2,000 troops from the 2nd Infantry Division were deluged with Navy and Marine classes of all descriptions.

An early morning presentation brought the troops face to face with their commanders, Rear Adm. James C. Dempsey, U. S. Navy; Brig. Gen. John C. Miller, U. S. Marine Corps, and Col. Dwight B. Dickson, 2nd Brigade commander.

The troops will get basic amphibious training under the overall command of Adm. Dempsey, head of the Atlantic Fleet's Amphibious Training Command.

The week - long ashore phase of the training, which includes vehicle waterproofing and equipment stowage, net embarkation and assault boat landing, will be given by the Landing Force Training Unit, headed by Gen. Miller.

The second week afloat will be devoted to acclimatizing the men to shipboard life and embarkation procedures for an amphibious assault. It will end with an actual practice invasion on the beaches of Camp Pendleton, Va. Lt. Cmdr. Harry R. Graff, commander of Amphibious Squadron 4, will be in charge of this phase.

After the command presentation groups of various sizes attended courses on subjects like beach hydrography, water survival, which was given at the base swimming pool, fundamentals of embarkation, characteristics of amphibious ships, crafts and vehicles, characteristics of inflatable boats, ship - to - shore movement, naval guns, ships and ammunition, and naval gunfire communications and planning.

Mrs. William Conger, Mrs. William Cox and Mrs. George Crosby were the guests of the morning.

15th Artillery Coffee Hosted

A beautiful arrangement of fruits served as centerpiece for the monthly coffee of the 15th Artillery Officers' Wives held recently at the home of hostess, Mrs. Robert Gabrielli. Mrs. Edmund Rozecki poured for the nine members in attendance.

Attending for the first time was Mrs. Donald S. Fujitani, whose husband recently joined the 15th after a tour at Ft. Sill Okla.

Mrs. Pitts Hosts 12th Artillery Monthly Coffee

Mrs. Joseph Pitts was hostess to the ladies of the 12th Artillery for their regular monthly coffee recently.

An arrangement of artificial fruit and greenery made the centerpiece.

Plans were made for a battalion party to be held at the home of Mrs. Edward Reed on the 28th of September.

MRS. REDDICK

Mrs. Reddick to Join New TV Show Staff

An Autumn theme, staged like a scene from the movie, "The September Song," greeted guests at the coffee given by Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith, president of the Sword and Pen, Fort Benning chapter of the Armed Forces Writers League. James Reddick, wife of Sgt. James Reddick of the 7th Cavalry.

Silver candelabra, holding pastel yellow tapers, tied with brown velvet ribbon and entwined with Ivy graced the serving table, which was covered with a cloth of Belgian linen. A wicker cornucopia over-flowing with fruit of the season completed the decorations.

Mrs. Reddick, who is a registered nurse and writer will be leaving soon for California to join the advisory and script staff of the TV show, "The Breaking Point." Mrs. Reddick is treasurer of the Armed Forces Writer League and past president of the Registered Nurses Association of Southern California.

Mrs. Robert E. Lamb, president of the Non-Commissioned Officers Wives' Club, poured.

Country Club Scene of Dinner

By 2nd Bn., 9th Infantry PIO

The County Club was recently the scene of a dinner party. It was the last official social function of the 1st Battalion, 87th Infantry in its old surroundings, and the first social function of the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry in its new location.

Present at the function were Lt. Col. George D. Crosby, commanding officer of the 2nd of the 9th, Mrs. Crosby, Capt. Roy S. Dunaway, acting battalion executive officer, Mrs. Dunaway and Mr. Roy S. Dunaway, Sr.

Mrs. Robert A. Bianchi and Mrs. James C. Krannawitter were presented with baby cups, in honor of the new arrivals to the lieutenants Bianchi and Krannawitter families.

The highlight of the evening came when the adjutant, Lt. Dahl Marshall, presented Col. Crosby with a "Certificate of Association" honoring him as the "chief conqueror."

DivArty Coffee Honors Departing Mrs. Johnson

Ladies of Division Artillery Headquarters honored Mrs. Floyd L. Johnson at their recent monthly coffee. Lt. Col. and Mrs. Johnson will soon be leaving for Heidelberg, Germany.

Mrs. Francis P. Mulvey and Mrs. Gorden Blitch were hostess for the exent which was held in the East Room of the Supper Club. Mrs. Johnson was presented with a gift of silver.

White linen covered the serving table and an arrangement of red carnations and chrysanthemums, forming replicas of the Artillery insigna, centered the table. Mrs. Burnside E. Huffman presided at the coffee service.

Special guest of the morning was Mrs. S. T. Dell of Gainesville, Fla., mother of Mrs. Blitch. Farewell was bade Mrs. F. Pulley, whose husband, Chaplain Pulley, has been assigned to the 11th Air Assault Division.

1st Brigade Captain Praised by Commander

By 1st Brigade PIO

Capt. Wayne H. Bechthold of the 1st Brigade recently heard from the commanding officer of his former unit, the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry.

In a letter of appreciation from Lt. Col. George D. Crosby, the battalion commander, Capt. Bechthold was praised for his tireless efforts and devotion to duty while serving as commanding officer of Headquarters Company, 9th Infantry.

The letter was sent through Col. William J. Ray, commanding officer of the 1st Brigade, who extended his own congratulations and wished the captain every success in his new assignment as commanding officer of Headquarters Company, 1st Brigade.

Capt. Bechthold, a 1959 graduate of West Point, came to the 1st Brigade in late Aug. 1963, replacing Joseph A. Canty Jr., who was assigned to Headquarters Company, Support Command.

Mrs. Huffman Hostess For Informal Coffee

Ladies of 2nd of 9th Hold Final Get Together

The home of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Jack L. Samson was the scene of the final gathering of the ladies of the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry. Many officers of this former Rotaplan unit, including, former battalion commander Col. Sampson, will be returning from Germany, to new locations and assignments throughout the division.

Refreshments, and a casserole dinner were enjoyed by Mesdames Robert Matheson; Frank Widrig; Robert Casto; William J. Boyd; Thomas Malloy; Thomas Stephen; Charles Hudson; Robert Hill and James Long.

The ladies presented Mrs. Samson with a silver chip & dip set.

Mrs. Burnside E. Huffman was hostess for an informal coffee held at her home for the Officers wives of Headquarters, 2nd Division Artillery and the 38th Artillery Battalion. The two groups will host the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club Luncheon and fall fashion show to be held October the 8th.

Committees were formed to plan the menu, decorations and door prizes.

1st of 23rd Wives Hold September Coffee

Wives of the 1st Battalion 23rd Infantry held their September coffee at the home of co-hostess Mrs. George W. Moss. Mrs. Walter F. Walls was the 2nd hostess and Mrs. William H. Cox poured for the ladies.

Volunteers were asked to participate in the 2nd Division's Christmas program.

New arrivals welcomed to the organization were Mrs. Don L. Crasto and Mrs. Neil D. Dietrich.

Country Club Formal Dance Is Held Recently

The 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry, held its first formal dinner dance at the Country Club on September 20, 1963. Prior to the party, the officers and ladies of the battalion met at the home of the battalion commander, Lt. Col. William E. Conger Jr., and escorted Lt. and Mrs. Jack R. Gandy, battalion newlyweds, to the Country Club in the traditional jeep drawn wagon.

A receiving line composed of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Conger; Maj. and Mrs. Jerome J. Repsher; Capt. and Mrs. Palmer McGrew; and Capt. and Mrs. John J. McCarthy greeted the guests as they arrived. A cocktail hour was climaxed with an impressive Korean Bowl Ceremony performed by the officers of the battalion in remembrance of the Honored Dead of the 23rd Infantry.

This was followed by dinner after which introductions and presentations were made by Lt. Col. Conger. New arrivals and guests introduced were: Capt. Joseph C. De Francisco; Chaplain (Capt.) Raymond B. Fullam, 2nd Brigade Chaplain; Lt. and Mrs. James L. Litton; Lt. and Mrs. Jack Gandy; Miss Judy Tillman and Miss Barbara Skerness, Cleveland, Ohio, guests of Capt. and Mrs. Robert Witter.

A baby cup was presented to Capt. and Mrs. McGrew. Silver trays were presented to newlyweds Lt. and Mrs. Hadaway, and Lt. and Mrs. Gandy. Plaques were presented to departing officers: Capt. Clifton Lollar, Capt. Yashima, Capt. William Rickett, Lt. Gunther Tisson, and Lt. Walter Everhart. Col. Conger congratulated the battalion on its outstanding performance during Swift Strike III. The party continued with dancing until one a.m.

Captain Enters Married Life

Capt. Albert B. Guess of the 2nd Infantry Division's 1st Brigade recently announced a personal change in status, from single to married.

LOBBY TRAFFIC . . . The National Bank of Fort Benning is always brisk and bustling. All bank personnel are aware that speed, courtesy and efficiency are the prime requirements in serving their military and civilan customers of the Fort Benning area.

Operation of 'The Infantryman's Bank'

Unusual both in policies and clientele is this full-fledged bank at Fort Benning, the nation's largest military base of its kind

BY ERSTON G. SPARKS
First Vice-President and Cashier
National Bank of Fort Benning
Fort Benning, Georgia

Most bankers who visit us find our entire situation amazing. To reach our bank they have to pass a military police outpost and drive several miles through a busy traffic of Army trucks, jeeps, even tanks. Inside the bank lobby the tellers are cashing checks, receiving deposits, and performing other conventional banking services for lines of men in uniform, with an intermingling of Army wives and a few civilians. An Italian bersagliere, a West German Wehrmacht captain, or a brisk Nationalist China major may be seated at an officer's desk discussing a personal problem of foreign exchange.

Each morning's mail brings a heavy airmail from U. S. military posts and missions throughout the world. When the telephone rings, it often is a customer calling from Vietnam or Alaska or Turkey to request that we credit his account immediately with a thousand dollars and send him a note to execute. Such transactions seem outlandish to our banker-visitor, but more than 45 per cent of our customers live elsewhere and the proportion grows year after year. We take odd requests in stride, for experience has shown they turn out fully as well as conventional banking transactions.

Contrary to a delusion carried over from long-gone decades, today's typical soldier is a good man to do business with. His intelligence, education, and moral stamina measure up to the civilian age. He is at least a competent technician, not a foot-slogging nomad.

His income entitles him to respectful consideration as a bank credit risk. The enlisted man's pay can range from the recruit's basic $936 a year to a maximum of $8,000, which includes special pay and allowances for a long-time career soldier, and he receives fringe benefits and opportunities for promotion far exceeding those of many employes in civilian life. Sergeants and upper-level non-coms, hold substantial supervisory and managerial jobs, and they draw pay befitting their responsibilities. Officers, with their still greater responsibilities, have an income range of $2,820 to $22,560, plus fringes. By any reasonable standard of capacity to pay his obligations, today's soldier ranks high.

Our recognition of this fact led to founding our military bank in 1957 to serve the military and civilian personnel of the nation's largest infantry base. Ours is a full - fledged bank, not to be confused with the military "banking facilities" which many banks operate on their neighboring military reservations subject to strict military regulation of services provided, charges permitted, and records maintained.

A military bank, in contrast, is an independently owned corporation that conducts a full banking business according to the decisions of its directors and officers as to its services, charges and operations. It is subject only to the usual public regulatory authorities. Our bank is built on land leased from the Army, and of course any bank on any Army post must also cope with Army regulations. Incidentally, having some retired military personnel among the organizers, directors, and officers minimizes the likelihood of friction from this direction.

A military facility may make the usual bank service charge for checking accounts, may charge non-customers for cashing checks, and may charge for selling cashier's checks and similar instruments. It may not make loans. Thereby it is prevented from offering a service that its customers need for their convenience and that the bank needs for revenue. Few banks operating facilities are satisfied with the arrangement. Some banks continue operating their facilities to meet competition and from a sense of duty to the men in uniform near their home towns.

Men in uniform generally are dissatisfied with such banking facilities, in part for sound reasons and in part from misunderstanding. They resent not being able to get full banking services. They feel that the hours the facility is open should take into consideration the soldier's work schedule. In brief, the soldier feels he is served by one banking policy while everyone else is served by another policy. The banking facility's image is seldom favorable in military circles!

Because of this fact we carefully surveyed the field before proceeding. Our findings reassured us that a separately chartered bank could operate profitably by providing a complete banking service especially designed for military personnel. There have been several successful military banks since the National Bank of Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, was established in 1907. But none, to our knowledge, was soldier-owned. We determined to abort any soldier prejudice by selling bank stock to soldiers. A purchaser might be active, on reserve, or retired. He might be commissioned or

Pugil Training -- Another First for the 'Second'

BY BOB DE CAMARA

Pugil training has come to the 2nd Infantry Division as another first in a year of firsts.

First division in the United States to reorganize under ROAD concept, first division to send units overseas under the now-canceled ROTAPLAN, first old-time Infantry division to fight Swift Strike in the new streamlined posture, and now, the "Indianhead" Division is the first Army division anywhere in the world to add gripping realism to bayonet instruction by means of the pugil stick, an instrument as old as Sherwood Forest and older.

In fact, watching a pugil bout, two men wielding stout oak rods with canvas tips, brings the family resemblance of this advanced bayonet training clearly into definition.

Like Boxing

It has elements of boxing, popularly known in Brooklynese elite as "pugilism," elements of fencing and heavy accents of old-style bayonet work, although the combatants are prone to get more lively in pugil contests where the clout is canvas-covered foam rubber rather than steel.

This is precisely why Brig. Gen. John T. Corley, assistant commander of the "2nd" and formerly director of the Army's Ranger School, initiated the new exercise and gave the 7th Calvary's "D" Troop orders to whip a cadre into shape for division-wide training.

Heavily protected with football helmets, woven steel face and throat guards, 15 lacross gloves and groin protectors, the men square off with little chance of injury and gusto at the thought of a good roughhouse tumble sanctioned by commanding officers.

That reference in the paragraph above of the pugil stick to Sherwood Forest is especially apt at the 2nd Division's newly - constructed advanced bayonet and pugil training course, a marvel of Company A, 2nd Engineers' ability to transform pine forest into classroom without damage to idyllic surroundings.

Just a short distance off one of Sand Hill's paved roads here at Fort Benning the trail to the course begins and takes the student or spectator forward through handlettered signs, such as the memorable "Think Bayonet," to a sizeable cleared area fenced with split logs and floored a foot deep or more with tiny wood chips.

The setting is serene. The training area maintains a harmony with nature of which the late Frank Lloyd Wright would have spoken highly. Standing pines stretch upward out of sight; enclosing the hundred yard ring, a shaded band of greenery.

Bayonet vs Pugil Stick

On one side of a raised speaking platform stands a soldier, fatigue jacket discarded, holding an M-14 rifle with fixed bayonet across his chest at port arms. On the other side is another teeshirted soldier. His weapon held at port arms is a pugil stick, the size and weight of an M-14 with bayonet.

A deep growl splits the stillness of the forest and the rifle-toting soldier wheels and charges. The stickman screams, turns and races to meet him. They engage each other in the instruction area and the rifle-toter goes down solidly on the sawdust from a heavy blow administered with the pugil stick.

This is an hors d'oevre to make the class sit up and take notice. It is not meant to suggest that 2nd Division soldiers should face a real battlefield enemy with oak staves.

Now the class is in for one hour of classroom instruction in pugil training and two hours of practical work, during which time each student will don the elaborate gear provided for the occasion and buffet his opponent unmercifully as he picks up the finer techniques of hand-to-hand combat.

He has already learned the rudiments with the deadly-serious bayonet and, on top of that, taken 12 hours of advanced bayonet training as a prerequisite for pugil instruction.

The First to Train

"Good morning, gentlemen. You are the first men in the U. S. Army to be given this training." Lt. Thomas J. Kaplan, executive officer of 7th Cavalry's "D" Troop and practical taskmaster of the course, greets the assembled men. His statement is only partly true.

The Army's Ranger School has used pugil training but does not currently. The training is a milestone in that no other Army duty unit, from division to detachment, has capitalized on this simple but effective means of adding realism to bayonet training.

Lt. Kaplan is assisted on the speaker's platform by a

THE PATIO BANK . . . Considerable newcomer in banking service, the Patio Bank is the National Bank of Fort Benning's latest addition. A slogan theme "Outdoor Banking for Outdoor People" is most appropriate in the military circles.

BANK

enlisted. But particularly we wanted our shareholders to include enlisted men on active duty at Fort Benning. We wanted a clear title to call ourselves "The Infantryman's Bank."

We sold stock in this market by all of the usual ways of a bank being organized. But also we advertised it in newspapers and other publications catering to military personnel, specifying the maximum and minimum number of shares anyone could buy. Par value was set at $5 to keep the purchase price within reach of prospects of modest means. The capitalization of $450,000 was subscribed in 10 days.

A military bank requires a larger capital structure than ordinary banks because deposits run low in proportion to loan demand. A graph of our deposits looks like a ratchet, with a monthly peak on payday and a downhill slant throughout the rest of the month. Loans outstanding take exactly the opposite course. They drop off sharply on payday because many of our notes are written for that due date, then climb steadily for the next 30 days.

Activity is high in relation to dollar volume. With $7,000,000 deposits, we handle as many items as an average $20,000,000 bank. Yet we are able to make money for two reasons: Service charges and personal loans.

Our service charge schedule runs against all banking tradition. Instead of account analysis, we tailored our charge to the soldier's preference for being charged the same amount every time. He likes our flat charge of $1.50 per month for checking accounts with minimum balance under $300, our no-charge policy for larger accounts.

With our extremely high activity, expense control is of great importance. Incidentally, we soon found it necessary to modify our original liberal ideas on banking hours, in order to retain staff and keep salary cost within bounds. We do keep longer hours one day a week, and on occasion will open the bank at odd hours for some such reason as a battalion being ordered overseas on short notice. The rest of the time we are open from 10 to 2.

While on the subject of performing unusual banking duties for the sake of serving the military, reference should be made to an outstanding banking innovation. This, of course, would be the National Bank of Fort Benning's new Patio Banking services. On Tuesday, July 23, 1963, "The Patio Bank", a totally new concept of banking was formally introduced. Unlike the usual drive-in and walk-up teller window, the Patio Bank has four tellers windows located at the outside rear of the main building under a fully covered patio. Not only has this facility offered faster service, but the casual outdoor banking for the busy outdoor people.

Certain expense short-cuts are available to a military bank. For example, customers may assign their pay and allotment checks to the bank for deposit, and we receive these in a bulk deposit with a listing of accounts and amounts for us to credit. For certain financial services that we provide to the Army, we receive 2 per cent depository bonds as compensation. However, we share the general banking opinion that this payment is inadequate to meet the expense it is intended to offset.

By far the greater number of our loans fall into two classes: PDQ and MRL, for Pay Day Quick and Monthly Repayment Loan. It is not unusual for us to make 40 or 50 loans in a single day as payday approaches; we average more than 500 loans per month.

Our PDQ loan form has been described in Burroughs Clearing House. It is a three-part snap-out that provides the note, the past due notice, and the note register at one operation. Practically any soldier favorably known to us can get a PDQ loan of up to $200 without any red tape or delay. It falls due on next payday, whether this is tomorrow or 30 days distant.

PDQ loans provide a credit service that keeps the soldier out of the clutches of small loan firms and keeps him convinced we are indeed his friend in time of need. PDQ's account for about 5 per cent of total loans in our portfolio, as compared with 75 per cent in MRL's.

How about the net profitability? In 1962 our bank had net profit of $2.06 per share (44,000 shares outstanding). This is in line with experience of the past several years. We are making a reasonable return, and our shareholders seem fully as satisfied as our customers.

Ranger graduate, Sgt. Kelly Waggoner of "D" Troop, who happens to be a Special Forces aspirant.

The sergeant has already added a little lustre to his own tradition. On the 7th Cavalry's birthday before a delighted crowd, Sgt. Waggoner was one of two men to rappel down to the parade field from a hovering helicopter rather than take the more convential mode of entry into the ceremonies.

"D" Troop is the cavalry's air mobile contingent, transportable by helicopter with a quick strike capacity at the objective.

Bayonet Lacked Realism

Officially, here is the reason why the 2nd Division's commanders decided it would be wise policy to institute pugil training. "Until recently bayonet training has lacked realism," states a Ranger field manual with authority. "He (the soldier) has not experienced the realism of an actual bayonet fight. The targets used in training cannot fight back or take evasive action. The only true test of the soldier's skill with the bayonet is vicious close combat against an armed opponent. Experience is a hard teacher and we cannot afford to learn on the battlefield what should be taught during training."

Concluding this, the Army pondered a solution and found it. "Pugil training is a means of teaching the soldier to use the 'bayonet with confidence and aggressiveness. After the soldier has become proficient in the basic positions and movements with the rifle and bayonet, he should then be introduced to pugil training. Realism in bayonet training is provided by using the pugil stick. The use of this equipment furnishes the bayonet fighter with an opponent, or target, who can think, move, be evasive, fight back, and (most important) make corrections."

To this end, the 3rd Brigade, commanded by Col. John K. Walker Jr., with overall responsibility for the training, has in storage in the division area 144 sets of pugil equipment valued at seven to eight thousand dollars.

Holds Vital Spot

Pugil training is assuming a vital spot in the current emphasis on unconventional warfare, filling out the division's Counter - Guerrilla Reaction Course set twenty miles further out in the boondocks of Fort Benning.

A sister unit of the cadre, "C" Troop, 7th Cavalry, is the first unit to undergo the well-received new program scheduled eventually for all the division's line units.

Commander of the "Second to None's" 7th Cavalry is Lt. Col. James L. Keown. Another officer immersed in preparation for the course was Maj. Charles M. Bolen Jr., who heads the 3rd Brigade's training section. "D" Troop is commanded by Capt. Horace Griffith.

World War II Veteran Tells Life as German Soldier

By J. Paul Vogenthaler

Sp4 Kurt Hoffman, a Military Policeman with the 2nd Military Police Company, 2nd Infantry Division, was forced into combat against invading American Forces, in defense of his homeland, during World War II.

The circumstances surrounding this occurrence are both fantastic and fascinating.

Kurt Hoffman was born and raised in Faurndau, Germany, a small town twenty-five miles east of Stutgart.

In the year 1943, after the German mainland had been invaded, the German government issued an order commanding all male boys born in the year 1930 to report for "defense Labor." Young Kurt Hoffman, thirteen-and-a - half years old at the time, and many boys like him were forced into "Defense Labor Groups." The boys were issued uniforms, much like the ones that were being worn by the Regular German Infantry; except that they wore a "German Swastika" armband which identified them as "Hitler Youth."

The "defense labor" consisted primarily of physical labor — digging entrenchments, machine gun emplacements, etc., along the front lines. In explaining this work, Hoffmann said, "We could only do this kind of work at night. During the daylight hours the skies were controlled by American fighter planes — mostly American Mustang fighters — and if any of the pilots in these planes spotted sunlight glittering on our picks and shovels, they would immediately attack, strafe and bomb the entire area."

When asked why the Americans had control of the German skies, Hoffmann explained, "Well, by this time — October 1943 — the German Luftwaffe (Air Force) was all but crushed. They had lost the superiority of German skies, and what was left of the "Luftwaffe" was being used to defend the big industrial cities of Essen, in the Ruhr Valley, and Schweinfurt on the Main River."

In August of 1944, Hoffmann — who was then about fourteen years old — was taken from the "Defense Labor Group", and pressed into service with the Luftwaffe Anti - Aircraft Unit in Schweinfurt, Germany.

At this point, Hoffman recalled a visit he had made in 1942 to see his Grandfather, who lived in Schweinfurt. He doesn't recall the exact date, but he said, "I believe it was in August 1942, when the first full scale air attack against the industrial city of Schweinfurt took place. I'll never forget it as long as I live. Wave after wave of American bombers came over the city, and dropped thousands of bombs. The city was well defended, we had big 88 millimeter anti-aircraft guns ringed around the outskirts of the city, and many twin 37mm anti-aircraft guns positioned inside the city —to protect against low-flying aircraft. We also had many German fighter planes—what was left of the "Luftwaffe" had been called to the defense of Schweinfurt from all over Germany."

Hoffmann continued, "Well, to get on to 1944, when I was put in the Luftwaffe Anti-Aircraft Unit—Schweinfurt was still being attacked and bombed regularly. Then early in the spring of 1945 Schweinfurt was all but demolished—the American Forces had already fought their way across the Rhine River, and we were forced to retreat south toward the Bavarian Alps. It was during this retreat that I saw German troops using 88mm anti-aircraft guns as ground anti-tank weapons. You should see what an 88mm gun does to a tank!"

In April of 1945 Hoffmann was taken out of the anti-aircraft unit and along with ex-members of the Luftwaffe, Navy, and all other branches of the service, he was pressed into service with the German "Storm Troops" (Infantry), for the last big defense of the homeland.

He found himself in the Infantry in what could be compared with our concept of a "rifle platoon." Shortly after this transition, Hoffman recalls, "I lost my best friend (he was only 14 years old) when he knocked out the lead tank in a column with a bazooka, and was immediately cut down by machine gun fire." He goes on, "Boy! When those tanks opened up they cut down everything in their wake — we retreated fast and got out of there."

After they had retreated several miles, Hoffmann's group came to a wooded area, and Hoffman and another "man" were sent into the woods to recon the area. Hoffmann explained, "We looked that woods over real good and we didn't see a thing. We made our way back to the platoon and reported that the area was clear. The whole platoon started to move into this area, so we could lay low for the night. Not forty-five minutes had passed since we 'reconed' that area, and we didn't take any precautions because we were in a hurry to get under cover. Well, before we knew what happened, the whole platoon was surrounded by an American Armored Unit." Hoffman added, "We were all too scared to run or do anything, it happened so fast, and before we knew what was happening, we were captured."

When asked what happened after they were captured by the Americans, Hoffmann explained, "They took us to a deserted farm house and held us prisoner there for two days and nights."

The POW's (Prisoners of War) were then taken to Heilbronn, Germany where the Americans had set up a POW Compound. "We were all interrogated by an American Officer, who spoke German," Hoffman said, "and a few hours later we were called again before this American Officer, and he told us that we were being released." Hoffmann went on, "They cut off our trousers at the knees and took away our jackets, and then this American Officer said, 'we want you boys to go on back to your homes, we don't want to fight kids.'"

The fourteen year old, scarred, and thoroughly frightened youth, said he started walking along the railroad tracks, and it took him four days to reach his home in Faurndau, Germany.

The terrifying experience, for this young German youth, had ended!

In December of 1953 he came to the United States. He explained that he had an uncle who had come to America in 1927, and had become an American citizen. "As a matter of fact," Hoffmann said, "my uncle, Max Hoffmann, lived in Baltimore, Md. and had three sons who fought with the U.S. Army throughout World War II. One of his sons even fought against the Germans in the battles in and around Schweinfort, Germany. So, actually I was fighting against my own cousin there during the war."

Then, on the 9th day of December, 1955, Kurt Hoffmann, alien, was drafted into the United States Army.

In July, 1963, Sp4 Hoffmann was assigned to the 2nd MP Company, 2nd Infantry Division at Ft. Benning. The 2nd MP Company is commanded by Capt. Dewitt H. Hudson, Jr. and is Sp4 Hoffman's present unit.

Sp4 Hoffmann became an American citizen in May, 1960. He is married and has a family consisting of two children. His wife and children are presently residing with in-laws in Long Island, N. Y. The thirty-three year old veteran hopes to have his wife and family here with him soon, and they will then reside in Phenix City, Ala.

Why bother to take pictures at all? Why bother to try to improve them? Because that's what the whole thing is. A bother. Cameras and assorted gadgets to go with them are expensive. Film and processing are expensive. Carrying it all around with you and seeing that it isn't lost or stolen is a nuisance. Taking time and effort out of an event in order to record it is a distraction. So why bother? Just about everywhere you go, there are big racks filled with hundreds of picture post cards and color slides of the area. They are all very pretty and colorful and properly exposed and will prove that you were there. Why not just buy a bunch of them and forget trying to take a decent picture of the place yourself? Well, probably because they are so impersonal. They really don't have anything at all to do with YOU, or the time YOU were there, or the friends who were there with YOU. They contain nothing of your own impressions or ideas and they give you no sense of accomplishment by themselves when you see them later. There's the pay-off. Even though you do invest money, time and effort in making your pictures, you get it all back in personal satisfaction and enjoyment.

Last week we mentioned the use of the viewfinder and the fact that it is a device common to all cameras. The proper use of the viewfinder is dependent upon still another device common to all photographic situations. This is the head that holds the eye that looks through the viewfinder. It is in the area of the use of the head that the improvement that finally shows in the pictures first takes place. It becomes a matter of thinking about what you're doing and what you are trying to show. Tricks-of-the-trade, new gadgets and actual experience in various situations are all useful, but there is no really satisfactory substitute for using your head.

Let's see what might happen in a sample situation. Our hero, having finally obtained a three-day pass, a date and some dough all at the same time, redeems his camera from his friendly pawn dealer and journeys to some scenic spot for a little rest and relaxation. His approach to some sample photographic problems might run something like this:

"This girl I'm with is a lot of fun and not half bad looking. Maybe I ought to take a couple of pictures of her to show off later. So okay, where? She looks nice right where she is, just enjoying the view. I'll get a shot like that. Last time I tried this I was too far away, so this time I'll get a little closer. What the heck, why not get a lot closer. That's it! I'll make her portrait and make some separate shots of the view, later. How does she look from here? Not bad. Oops! That trash can back there behind her shoulder doesn't do much for me. No point in taking that one. I'll move around and see how it is from the other side. That's better. Just keep looking over there, Mabel. Just relax, don't mind me. That's it. Hmmmm. Her hair doesn't show too well against that shrub. Maybe if I move just a little more around here. There, thats better. Just plain sky and a few nice clouds for a background. Doesn't take attention away from Mabel. Give her a little head room in the frame. That looks pretty darn nice. CLICK!

If all that seems like its going to take you your whole three-day pass to take one picture, it DOES take longer to stop and look and think before you shoot than it does if you just snap away and never give it a thought. But that's the extra effort you make, the extra time you invest to make your picture better and your later appreciation of them greater. Mabel'll be pleased, too!

Headquarters Company Gets a New Commander

A former enlisted combat veteran who fought with the "Indianhead" Division during the Korean War assumed command of Headquarters Company, 2nd Infantry Division September 13.

Capt. George A. Redd was assistant S-3 officer, 1st Brigade, before receiving his present command and has been stationed here at Fort Benning since November of last year when he arrived from Germany to attend the Officers Advanced Infantry Course.

This is his second stay at Fort Benning; the first having occurred between January and June of 1955 when he attended Officers Candidate School after achieving the rank of sergeant first class as an enlisted man.

Born and raised in Blountstown, Fla., he entered the Army for the first time in 1947 and completed his basic training with the Army Air Corps at Lackland Field, San Antonio, Tex. After serving one year on active duty he received his discharge and waited until 1952 before reenlisting.

CAPT. REDD

After completing basic training for a second time at Fort Jackson, S. C., he was assigned to Company B, 5th Battalion, 39th Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division and fought with that unit through three campaigns in the Korean War. At the signing of the truce in July, 1953, he was stationed on "Outpost Harry" in the central part of the present Demilitarized Zone.

Capt. Redd returned to the States in September of 1953 and attended the Engineer Foreman's School, Fort Belvoir, Va. before being reassigned to Alaska. He entered Officers Candidate School in January 1955 and received his reserve commission as an infantry lieutenant the following June.

Since receiving his commission Capt. Redd has attended the Rotary and Fixed Wing Flight School at Spence Field, Moultrie, Ga. and Fort Rucker, Ala.

After serving as the maintenance officer of the flight detachment at Fort Stewart, Ga., he made his first trip to Europe and served with both the 14th Armored Cavalry and V Corps Headquarters in Germany.

Among his numerous awards and decorations are included the Purple Heart, the Army Commendation Medal, the Good Conduct Medal and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Army Dry Docks Tug Boat Capt.

The youngest sea captain operating in the Gulf Coast is a member of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry. That is to say, he was the youngest until he entered the Army in December, 1961.

At the age of seventeen, Warren P. Billiot, now a PFC, was piloting his tug boat in the Gulf Coast. At the age of nineteen he received his license and for the following four years engaged in sea trade as a tug boat captain.

17th Artillery Promotes 2 EM

By 17th Artillery PIO

Two enlisted men of the 17th Artillery were recently promoted to the grade of Specialist Fourth Class.

Both men are natives of neighboring Florida cities. They are Sp4 Ralph W. Braden Jr., of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Sp4 Franklin R. Roderus of Tampa, Fla.

Sp4 Braden, a member of Battery B, 17th Artillery, has cause to celebrate twice this week. He has recently reenlisted for a period of six years. Before joining the Army in 1961 Sp4 Braden attended Boca Ciega High School in St. Petersburg.

Sp4 Roderus, the battery clerk of Battery C, 17th Artillery, is the 17th Artillery public information clerk in addition to his regular duties. Prior to enlisting in 1960 Sp4 Roderus attended St. Petersburg Junior College, St. Petersburg, Fla.

Eighteenth Century Dated Origin of MP

By G. B. Foster

We have read about them, and possibly a lot of soldiers have worked with them at one time or another during their military career. You could possibly say that they are the backbone of the Army today. The two famous letters "M P" are the identifying marks of this outfit; known to us all as the Military Police.

When did these two letters acquire the meaning as we know them today? Well, back in the eighteenth century, the Army was policed by personnel known as the Marine Protectorate. This is where the letters "M P" originated. At the start of the second world war these letters were redesignated to mean Military Police.

The Army did not have Military Police, as we know them today, during the first world war. During that time each company size unit furnished men to police their respective areas. Not until the start of the second world war did the Army form specific companies known as Military Police units.

Dye and Wendryhoski Anchor Doughboy Defense

Wendryhoski Sells Tickets At Guard Spot

Fort Benning opponents who have ideas about reaching touchdown land by traveling through the center of the Doughboy line had better take their tickets to guard Joe Wendryhoski; he may suggest another route.

Packing 235 pounds into a six-foot, two-inch frame, "Polack" or "Wendy" as his teammates call him, couples up with left guard Pat Dye to give the Doughboys a fearsome one-two punch in the interior of their line.

Wendryhoski, as did Dye, performed in the Canadian Professional Football League before entering the Army where he was a guard and defensive end for the Vancouver (B. C.) Lions.

A four-year letterman as a center and fullback in football at Community High School in Frankfort, Ill., Wendryhoski was selected on the All-State prep 11 in 1954 and 1955.

The University of Illinois offered the big footballer a scholarship upon his graduation from Community in 1956 and off he went to the campus at Urbana.

He started as a center in his freshman year and then in his sophomore season dislocated his shoulder a week before the "Illini" game with UCLA, putting him out for the season.

Wendryhoski was red-shirted (held out for the season) due to the injury and thus had three years remaining of football eligibility. Playing his second full season at Illinois he resolved to becoming a reserve center on the varsity squad.

In his junior year he again remained in the shadows, this time occupying a second team tackle berth behind rugged Joe Rutgens, now a standout with the Washington Redskins of the National Football League.

"My big break came in the spring of 1960 when Illinois head coach Pete Elliott switched me to right guard," said Wendryhoski. "At this new position I found a home," he went on.

The good-natured lineman backed up his statement by becoming the first team offensive guard and defensive end in his senior year, starting every contest.

Selected as an All-Big Ten Conference guard his final season, Wendryhoski was also picked by the Illinois Touchdown Club and the "Illini" Association as a 'player of the month.'

Joe received another outstanding tribute when head coach Bill McPeak of the professional Washington Redskins picked him as one of the top six guards in the country in 1960. In addition to McPeak, representatives from the Green Bay Packers, San Francisco 49'ers and New York Giants talked with Wendryhoski in regards to his future football career.

Wendryhoski received an invitation to play in the annual North-South Shrine Game held in Miami, Fla., and went on as a member of the North squad to participate in a contest that saw the invading Northerners run up the highest score in the history of the game, 43-13, on Dec. 26, 1960.

The following January he received another invitaton, this time to participate in the traditional Senior Bowl held in Mobile, Ala. Again playing for the North team, he watched teammate Norman Snead, now ace quarterback for the Washington Redskins, flip a 60-yard touchdown pass for victory in the waning moments of the game.

Prior to both the North-South and Senior Bowl games Wendryhoski was approached by the scouts of the Vancouver, B. C., professional football team in the Canadian League and was offered a contract. I guess this was the biggest thrill I've ever received," said Joe. "It's sort of something you always think about, but never dream it will happen to you," he continued.

Looking back over his playing experience Wendryhoski pinpoints Joe Rutgens, he former teammate at the University of Illinois as the best player he's ever played with and hard-running fullback Mike Stock as perhaps the best of the lot he's played against. Stock was a gridiron star at Northwestern University.

Javelin Star Is Coached By Experts

MAINZ, Germany (AFPS) — The Army doesn't pamper its PFC's as a rule, but Frances C. Davenport, a WAC javelin thrower, is an exception.

Miss Davenport set the American Women's record for the javelin with a toss of 166 feet, 10¾ inches in the U. S.-Poland meet held in Warsaw.

The Army thinks Frances has an excellent future in international competition so they decided to obtain the best coaching available for her.

In addition to Dr. Wischmann, Hermann Roth, a university sports instructor and West German javelin champion, is helping PFC Davenport improve her style and technique.

Powerful Pensacola Weekend's Opponent

By Dave Braun

If past performances are any indication, the Pensacola (Fla.) "Goshawks" should provide plenty of trouble for Fort Benning's high-riding Doughboys tomorrow night at Kane Stadium.

The Naval Air Station team, playing its 35th straight year of football, has romped over all three of its opponents this season, including a 20-0 shutout of Camp Lejeune, N.C., last Saturday morning on the Marines gridiron.

In their opening encounter the Goshawks upended Corpus Christi (Tex.) University, 27-7, at home and then followed it up with a 27-6 triumph over Fort Belvoir, Va., also at Kane Stadium.

Price at Quarterback

Leading the Pensacola backfield which averages about 180 pounds will be quarterback Charles Price, a five-foot, 11-inch, 171-pounder who played his collegiate days for Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Price will take over for the injured Jim Damron, who suffered a hairline fracture inside his left ankle two weeks ago and is expected to be out for six weeks. Damron quarterbacked the State College of Iowa for three years.

Rounding out the backfield will be halfback Ernie Reese, a five-foot, 11-inch, 175 pounder; Gordon Jefferson, a five-foot seven-inch, 178 - pound wingback, and Fred Riddle, a six-foot, one-inch, 187 - pound fullback.

Reese was an all-conference back for Utah State. Jefferson performed for the University of Wyoming and Riddle played four years at the University of Pittsburgh in addition to participating in the 1961 Blue-Gray post season game.

202 Pound Line

Probable starting ends on the Goshawk line that averages about 202 pounds will be John Conroy, a 190-pounder, and Jim Schwab, a 210-pounder. Conroy played with Navy and Schwab at Penn State.

J. C. Durham, 200 pounds from Oklahoma University, and Dick Fitzgerald, 205 pounds from Navy, head the list of tackles.

At the guards will be four-year Navy standout Vern Von Sydow and Bill Luplow, 188-pounds, former University of Arkansas lineman.

The center position will be manned by six-foot, four-inch, 215-pound, Sam Galloway. Galloway played his collegiate football at Auburn University.

Fort Benning, undefeated in its first two starts this year, will probably go with its first or white team of Marvin Tibbets at quarterback, Ron Quillen and Bobby Towns at the halfbacks, and Brewster Hobby at fullback.

On the line will be ends Dan House and Bruce Roach, tackles Bill Rice and Bob Creviston, guards Pat Dye and Joe Wendryhoski and center Elliott Meseley.

In scouting the game between Pensacola and Camp LeJeune, Doughboy head coach Oren DeHaven reports that the Goshawks are a strong outfit and this week's encounter should be a real test for Fort Benning.

DeHaven, accompanied by assistant coach John O'Grady, former University of Wyoming standout, also scouted the Quantico, Va., and Fort Bragg, N. C., game played Saturday night.

Although Quantico won, 18-6, the coaches remarked that Fort Bragg handed the Marines a couple of touchdowns via fumbles and penalties. Both teams are on the Fort Benning schedule this season.

PAT DYE

All-American From Georgia Beefs-up Line

Whether it be on the bottom of a pileup, pouncing on a loose fumble or intercepting a forward pass, one is likely to find Pat Dye, the Fort Benning Doughboys' "Mr. Everywhere."

An All-American guard at the University of Georgia in 1959 and 1960, the five-foot-11-inch, 205-pounder is an important cog in Fort Benning's football machine, striving for its second straight undefeated season.

Seeing relatively little action in the Doughboys' 28-6 trouncing of the Southwest Florida Athletic Association, their opening tilt, Dye rose to the occasion against the Marines from Camp LeJeune at the North Carolinians' Leversedge Stadium.

Anchoring a Doughboy forward wall that averages nearly 220 pounds per man, Dye made repeated tackles and helped open up holes in the Leatherneck defensive line that sent Fort Benning backs ripping through en route to a 17-0 victory.

While in high school at Richmond Academy, Augusta, Ga., Dye was a starting guard on the football team in his junior and senior years, battling his way to the distinction of being named Georgia high school lineman of the year in 1956.

Entering the University of Georgia at Athens in the fall of 1957, Dye, a year later as a sophomore, became the Bulldog's No. 1 left guard and defensive linebacker.

Dye was a Look Magazine All-American selection in 1959 as Georgia captured the Southeastern Conference title with a 9-1 mark, in addition to downing the University of Missouri, 14-0, in the Orange Bowl classic Jan. 1, 1960, in Miami, Fla.

He repeated in 1960, being selected to the Associated Press, United Press International and several other All-American units.

With his college playing days under his belt, the Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League plucked him out as an offensive end and defensive corner linebacker in 1961.

The Eskimos compiled a 16-6-1 record in 1961, good enough for a second place finish in the final league standings.

He went back north to play an additional year with the Candian professional league team.

This year, 1962, however, their record fell to a mediocre nine wins and nine losses.

Dye, who had been commissioned a second lieutenant upon graduating from Georgia in June, 1962, following the completion of four years of Army ROTC, was assigned to Fort Benning's 58th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, in January, 1963. At the brigade he became a platoon leader.

On July 25, 1963, he joined the Doughboy football squad where, to head coach Oren DeHaven, he was a welcome sight.

Cuartel Quarterback

Miss. State Should Upset Gators in Top SEC Game

Last week wasn't too bad. We picked six of eight games correctly, but didn't North Carolina State make the seers look ignorant? Picked to lose by two touchdowns, State romped on the Maryland Terrapins 26-14.

Action this weekend is again spotlighted on Southern Cal, winner by 14 points over a rugged Colorado eleven. This week they meet powerful Oklahoma who looked great in the second half against heavy 'ole' Clemson. Fresh from their 31-14 win, the Sooners will be gunning for the Big Bears in a battle for the No. 1 national ranking.

Oklahoma over Southern Cal . . . If they play the whole game like they played Clemson in the second half, the Sooners will trip the Bears by 10 points.

Arkansas over Missouri . . . The Razorbacks are rugged. They will follow their 21-0 verdict over Oklahoma State with a three-point win over Missouri.

Mississippi State over Florida . . . As Coach Davis said, "This is the first time in many years that State has had a better record than Ole Miss." The Bulldogs will fight to stay ahead of their Oxford rivals and will upset Florida by a touchdown.

Purdue over Miami (Fla.) . . . Florida State whipped Miami & Co. 24-0. Purdue should manage a 10 point victory.

Ga. Tech over Clemson. . . Clemson is bigger, but Bobby Dodd always manages to find a way to run around what he can't run over. Tech will outlast the Tigers and win going away — by 13 points.

Northwestern over Indiana . . . Tommy Myers is too much for Indiana. Northwestern will clobber them 36-14.

Ohio State over Texas A & M . . . The Aggies aren't up to Big Ten standards this year. State will win by 13 points.

Auburn over Tennessee . . . There is too much depth in the Plainsmen backfield for Mallon Faircloth to overcome. Auburn will win in a real close one. An extra point or field goal will spell the difference.

South Carolina over Maryland . . . After last week we just can't go along with the Terrapins. South Carolina looked good in losing a close one to Duke. They will win by a touchdown.

3A Softball Tournament

Bragg Beats Benning Campbell Is Champ

Fort Benning lost out to runner-up Fort Bragg in the second to last game of the Third Army Softball Tournament at Fort Jackson recently 1-0 to take a third place position.

The game was a pitchers' duel from the beginning as Clinton Jones of Fort Bragg allowed only three hits, walked eight, and Hubert Barksdale of Fort Benning allowed three hits, walked six and struck out three.

The fourth inning was the big frame as Fort Bragg when they scored the only run of the ball game on a single to centerfield by James Fretwell, who stole second and went to Third on an error by the Fort Benning catcher, Pedro Berrios. Fretwell scored on a sacrifice ground to the pitcher Ronald Littlefield.

Louis Ortiz started a rally for Fort Benning in the second inning with a sharply hit triple down the left field line, but was left stranded on third base as Vernal Smith, Fort Benning second Baseman, struck out for the third out of the inning. This was the only serious scoring threat that Fort Benning was able to muster.

This game enabled Fort Bragg to play undefeated Fort Campbell for the championship which saw the "Screaming Eagle" representatives claw their way to victory over the once beaten Fort Bragg nine by 6-5.

The Fort Bragg girls were not so lucky, they won the women's division championship by defeating Fort McClellan 4-1.

Fort Jackson defeated the Fort Benning WAC's 16-3 and eliminated them in the tenth women's game of the tournament.

All-Army Golf Eliminations

Hamby on All-Army Team With Third Place Score

FORT MONMOUTH, N.J.—Fourth place winner during the Third Army Golf Tournament, Joe Hamby, moved up a notch on a higher level recently when he tied for third place during the 1963 All-Army Golf Eliminations at Fort Monmouth, N.J.

This third place tie won Hamby a berth on the All-Army team for the Interservice Golf Championships being played this week at Pensacola Naval Air Station, Fla.

In his last round of the four round tournament, Hamby shot a 70 stroke two-under-par for a final 292 score to jump from sixth place held in the third round to his final qualifying spot.

Winner by one stroke with a birdie on the 18th hole, was Frank James of Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., who carded a 71 in the final round of the 72-hold open medal competition on the Gibbs Hall Course, to edge Orville Moody of Fourth Army.

Moody, stationed at the William Beaumont Hospital in Fort Bliss, Texas, turned in a three-under-par 69 in the final round to give him a final 288.

Tied with Hamby for third place was PFC Dennis Cook, stationed in Frankfurt, Germany. Cook, who was deadlocked with James for the lead after three rounds, shot a four over par for the last 18.

In fifth place and the final qualifying spot for the Pensacola match was PFC John Molenda of Fort Sill, Okla. His closing 71 gave him a 294 and a jump from a seventh place tie.

The best round of the four-day event was posted by Third Army champion, Bob Zimmerman of Fort McPherson, Ga. He had a 67 on the last day to forge from 18th to a tie for the eighth spot for a total score of 298.

The three qualifying places in the Senior Division went to MSgt. Agon Occhialini of Fort Sam Houston, with a 295; SFC Arthur Ettinger of Europe, with 304, and Maj. Carl Knowles of Fort Gordon, Ga., with 310.

Peace Corps Volunteers Get Worldwide Praise

NEW YORK (AFPS) — The U.S. Peace Corps volunteers who are doing such effective work for underprivileged people in many parts of the world have won awards, praise and appreciation from various countries where they are assigned.

Peace Corps volunteers received the 1963 Ramon Magsaysay Award for their services in Asia to the cause of peace and humanity.

Fernandi Belaunde Terry, President of Peru, presided over a ceremony in which the city of Arequipa (second largest in Peru) awarded a Silver Medal to the Peace Corps volunteers working to improve slum conditions.

Presidents Juan Bosch of the Dominican Republic and Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, have singled out the Peace Corps volunteers for tribute.

William Tubman, President of Liberia, called the Peace Corps "an object lesson for all the world to emulate."

A committee representing 16 Asian nations voted unanimously to give members of the Peace Corps a distinguished peace award. This was the first time such an award has ever been given by Asians to non-Asians.

In two short years the U.S. Peace Corps volunteers appear to have proven themselves

Armed Forces Radio Flooded With Mail

NEW YORK (AFPS) — One important job at Armed Forces Radio Service is answering fan mail which comes from all over the world.

This mail doesn't come solely from military personnel, dependents or civilian government employees who are the primary receivers of the Armed Forces Radio shortwave broadcasts. It comes from shortwave operators who tune in AFRS broadcasts and become interested.

Most of the letters are inquiries about reception and requests for program schedules. Many correspondents request information on how to improve reception of Armed Forces Radio's broadcasts.

Letters have come from such countries as Sweden, England, Canada, Finland, Puerto Rico, Costa Rica, Mexico, New Zealand, Ireland, France, Holland, Greece, and Japan.

Interest in the baseball broadcasts runs high. Even in countries where baseball is unknown and the commentary is almost meaningless, there are faithful listeners who cling to every word. Many who do not understand the game ask questions in their letters.

One letter from England inquired if ladies really played the game on "Ladies Day" and whether a road game in America was the same as an "away" in England.

Many of the listeners are youngsters who are eager to learn more about baseball and the United States. One boy from Surinam in South America asked for baseball equipment so he could teach others in his community how to play.

In an average month, more than 100 fan letters from shortwave operators are received. Every letter is answered and all requests are filled if possible.

Armed Forces Use $2.5 Million Daily to Feed 2.6 Million Troops

CHICAGO (AFPS) — Food for the U.S. Armed Forces costs about $2.5 million a day.

This means an average cost of $1.05 a day for each military person.

To feed the 2.6 million men and women in the armed services, Maj. Gen. Thomas B. Evans, head of the Defense Subsistence Supply Center here, operates the largest food buying organization in the United States.

The center has 125 officers attached and employs 1,575 civilians. These people are responsible for running the far-flung food procurement and shipping system.

Contracted U. S. Forces are served through 19 regional offices in the United States, while overseas Armed Forces kitchens are supplied through 20 supply points located close to troop concentrations.

Planning meals at the center begins with a staff of dieticians headed by Marion C. Bollman, a civilian. She says menus are already planned through 1965.

Meals are built around a food value of 4,000 to 4,200 calories a day. Each day's menu must have one highly acceptable meat, such as steak, roast beef or stew. Other fare is offered as alternates at dinner or supper.

Armed services personnel are served steak three times a month, chicken six times, roast beef three times, turkey twice, ham four or five times, pork, loin, chops or roast four or five times.

Veal roast, stew, cutlet or chops are served one or two times a month.

Fish is served weekly and shrimp, oyster and scallop sea food platters appear once a month.

The serviceman is furnished all the milk he can drink. Fresh milk is purchased in those dairy countries nearest military bases, everywhere except Japan and Korea, where nonfat dry milk and butterfat are reconstituted.

Army MSC Chief To Visit Hospital

Col. William A. Hamrick, chief of the Army Medical Service Corps, will visit Martin Army Hospital tomorrow through Monday.

The colonel, who is also executive officer for personnel and training, Office of the Surgeon General, will be guest speaker at a dinner at 6:45 p.m. tomorrow at the Fort Benning Country Club.

Col. Hamrick will speak on "Career Planning for Corps Officers."

Invited to attend are senior Medical and Medical Service Corps officers.

Col. Hamrick will be available for interviews at the hospital Sept. 30.

Col. James F. Clark, executive officer, Office of the Third Army Surgeon, will accompany Col. Hamrick to the post.

Army Won't Reimburse Defectors

WASHINGTON (AFPS) —The Army has denied applications for back pay by Lowell D. Skinner and Albert C. Belhomme, who have come out of Communist China after having defected to the Communists in the Korean Conflict.

The Army cited a 10-year statute of limitations (Title 31 U.S. Code, Section 71A) as the basis for its decision.

The governing date was Aug. 4, 1963, 10 years after the exchange of prisoners began in Korea on Aug. 5, 1953. The Skinner and Belhomme applications were received by the Army on Aug. 12, 1963.

If their claims had been valid Skinner would have had about $1,700 in pay coming and Belhomme $4,894.63.

The Army said it was making no decision at this time on the application of a third defector, still in China, for back pay. He is Scot L. Rush, who had filed an application in 1955. The Army said a decision would have to await verification if and when Rush leaves China.

Sky Soldiers Start Rappelling Course

Men from Company A, 127th Engineer Battalion, 11th Air Assault Division, are setting up a "Rappelling Instructors Training Course" beginning Oct. 15. The week-long course will be conducted in the mornings.

Second Lt. Stuart J. Barmen, platoon leader with Company A, will be in charge of the training. He will be assisted by SFC Charles D. Petrie, Sp5 Edward P. McCormick, and Cpl. Curlee Sansom. Classes will be made up of approximately 20 men.

New 'Sidewalk Cafe' Opened by Brigade

A French sidewalk cafe at Fort Benning?

Well, not actually, but in effect the dining hall of Headquarters Company, 197th Infantry Brigade, has been transformed to resemble one.

The idea for the conversion of the mess hall into a popular - type French establishment came from 1st Lt. Richard H. Carl, the company commander.

Through the use of some $60 of the unit fund, some talented personnel, employment of furnishings already on hand, plus a few more important acquisitions, the dining hall has been turned into a colorful place, one conducive to good eating habits.

Divided Room

The dining hall is divided into two sections, one for enlisted personnel, the other for officers and non-commissioned officers. A simulated brick wall, with two large windows on either side of swinging doors, gives the illusion that the enlisted men are eating on the sidewalk and the officers and NCO's are inside the restaurant. The inside walls are covered with wallpaper depicting gay French scenes.

To further enhance the effectiveness of the project, a red and gray striped awning stretches across the top of the brick wall and a white sign with red lettering, "la salle a'manger," which, roughly translated, means "mess hall."

Two large murals adorn the walls of the dining hall and colorful draperies, tablecloths and artificial and live plants add to the decor.

Another painting, a gourmet scene, blocks off the serving line from the kitchen and serves a dual purpose since orders and memos important to kitchen personnel are posted on the opposite side.

Salad Bar

An eye-catcher in the main dining area is an old cart with large metal wheels, converted to look like a French street vender's cart. It is used as a salad bar.

Wooden lazy susans, which hold salt, pepper, sugar, napkins and ash trays, decorate the tables in the enlisted men's area. The tables are covered alternately with red and gray cloths.

The main section of the "cafe" soon will be painted, the walls a soft shade of green and the ceiling to give a more "outdoors" appearance, according to Lt. Carl and his mess steward, S-Sgt. Bobby C. Hunter.

Lt. Van Newkirk Is Top IGBC Grad

Second Lt. William K. Van Newkirk was named honor graduate of Infantry Officers Basic Course No. 3 in recognition of his overall academic average of 93.8.

Lt. Van Newkirk, a June graduate of Washington and Jefferson College in Washington, Pa., outscored the other 169 officers in his class to achieve this distinction.

Surgeon Says

Mothers Sometimes Bring Problems on Themselves

A mother was recently overheard expressing her frustration and resentment at the fact that her teenage daughter and son were not assuming any responsibility about the house.

They failed to make their beds and clean their rooms, they left their clothes lying about, and they made messes in the kitchen for her to clean. The mother was tired of serving as the family maid and she was hurt by her children's lack of consideration.

In her anger she had tried scolding and threatening them but nothing seemed to be effective. She had even found herself yelling and screaming at them and had later felt guilty about it.

How does a state of affairs like this develop? Very frequently it is because the mother has failed to recognize the child's early interests in doing things for himself and has stepped in and taken over the task herself. The mother may have felt that the child wasn't old enough yet, or perhaps she felt that it would be easier to do the job herself than to see to it that the child completed it. A basic rule for parents had been ignored.

"Don't ask a child to do something unless you are prepared to follow through and see to it that the job is done." Many youngsters are very quick to recognize the inconsistency of the mothers' expectations, and it is little wonder that teenagers often demonstrate a lack of responsibility.

A very real handicap to the mother's efforts to install a sense of responsibility in the children is a husband who has never grown beyond the immature dependency on his own mother. He may expect his wife to pickup after him as his mother did. If the father can't set a good example, how can the children be expected to demonstrate responsibility and consideration for others?

Without training in responsibility in the home, the problem is not just that the mother feels that she is being used as a maid. The son or daughter frequently grows up as an insecure, dependent and unhappy individual who has become a master at foisting responsibilities on to others.

Even more pathetic is the fact that they frequently grow up with resentments against the person who so poorly prepared them to handle responsibilities — the mother, who herself complained about being the maid in the family.

63 Stars Safer Than 50?

COZUMEL, Mex. (AFPS)—A 63-star replica of Old Glory made its debut aboard a highjacked Cuban vessel bringing 91 refugees to freedom here in early September.

The flag, made by women from their own clothes, was flown to protect the boat from searching Cuban patrol aircraft.

The extra stars were explained by its makers, "We thought the more stars we had, the safer we would be." It paid off — they arrived safely.

The escape boat was a 70-ft. naval lighthouse tender, the H-11, which was renamed the motorship Nelson for the youngest member of the refugee crew. The vessel was under the command of Rafael Rodriguez Alfonso, a fisherman.

Upon arrival at Cozumel, the refugees were placed in quarantine, fed and vaccinated. A local Lions Club organized a committee to care for them.

Five Digit Numbers

Computer Adds in Fraction of Second

Fort Benning's Data Processing Section has received a new UNIVAC 1004 Computer.

The section has been selected as the Third Army pilot installation to implement and effect procedures for mechanized stock fund billing by depots on the new machine.

This computer processes data of financial accounting, supply accounting, and military and civilian payrolls. The section's program will be considerably speeded up because the machine reads punch cards at the rate of 400 cards per minute and prints 400 lines with 132 characters per line in a minute. Also, it is capable of adding two five digits numbers in 112 millionths of a second.

The initial and primary application programmed for the computer is The Army Equipment Records Systems (TAERS), to provide the Installation Materiel Readiness Office with statistical and other management data pertaining to Organizational and Field Maintenance of equipment.

Award Ceremonies Honor 17 Employees

Seventeen military personnel and civilian employees were honored in award ceremonies recently.

Col. A. L. Hoebeke, deputy commander of The Infantry Center, presented the awards.

Receiving outstanding job ratings were George E. Heberling, program analysis officer, G-3 Section, who also received a letter of appreciation for a suggestion to improve traffic safety; Clarence J. Hammond, chief of the Supply Control and Storage Section, and John Gause, public information officer, Miss Marjorie V. Cobb, chief of the News Branch and Mrs. Ida C. Evans, reporter, all of the Information Section.

Both outstanding job ratings and sustained superior performance awards were presented to Miss Bobbie A. Prince, a clerk - stenographer at the Combat Developments Infantry Agency, who received $100, and Mrs. G. R. Kobaly, formerly a secretary - stenographer at Martin Army Hospital now employed as an accountant-stenographer at the Chaplains Section, $100, and William A. Paulhamus, a tool stock and parts keeper in the Sand Hill Tank Shop, $100.

Sustained superior performance awards were presented to Edgar M. Byrd Jr., supervisor of the Military Pay Branch, Finance and Accounting Office, $150, Howard E. Goodwin, automotive mechanic, $150, and James A. Ennis Jr., clerk typist, $100, both of the Maintenance Section.

Mrs. David H. Miller, purchasing agent-typist, Supply Control and Storage Section, $100, and Ovie C. Hodges Jr., management technicians, Post Publications Branch, Adjutant General Section, $150.

Awards for work improvement suggestions went to SFC Ernest W. Pennington, a food service supervisor, $75, and Sp4 Milton C. Fox, a clerk-typist in the Driver Testing Group, Transportation Services Division, $50, both of the Services Section, and Roland J. Foulhe, a synthetic flight training instructor at Lawson Army Aviation Command, $100.

Col. Hoebecke presented a Certificate of Achievement to James W. Ray, who recently retired after more than 20 years in Civil Service. He was supervisor of the Procurement Unit of the Supply Control and Storage Section.

Teeth Grinding Often Is Unconscious Habit

By Capt. Robert Cross

Bruxism, or the grinding of teeth, is an interesting phenomenon. Little is known about the effects of grinding teeth when done on a small scale, but much can be told about the effects of continual practice of this habit.

Most people who grind their teeth are unaware of their habit. They often will arise each morning with very sore jaws, as though they spent the night eating a large meal (or chewing bubble gum all night). Many times, the grinding occurs in people who snore.

This is quite disconcerting to other members of the household. First the snoring, pause, then the grinding of teeth. Many grinders, when told of their habit, stop with no treatment.

If the problem persists, various types of splints may work. These splints need be worn only during the night and are effective because anything between the teeth will keep them from rubbing against each other.

Whenever the problem occurs, time should be spent in determining the underlying cause. The incidence of tooth grinding is much higher than most people realize. Often, nervous tension has been adjudged the villain, but closer study would seem to link premature contact of teeth as a main cause. The individual attempts to wear this down and create an even biting surface.

If your house has noises in the night, listen closely. If you have a tooth grinder, get him to a dentist for treatment. He may be doing permanent damage to his teeth.

AT THE Movies

MARY, MARY, starring Debbie Reynolds, Barry Nelson, Diane McBain and Michael Rennie, is all about Mary, Mary and her clever husband, and his slinky fiancee. It's a rollicking comedy in color coming to the screen from the Broadway play "Mary, Mary" which played for three years.

☆ ☆ ☆

THE RUNNING MAN finds a young adventurer who successfully accomplished an insurance fraud and then is forced to desperate measures in order to cover up. His wife is half-reluctant and half-eager to help him with his get-rich-quick scheme until she comes to realize how greatly he has changed. Laurence Harvey and Lee Remick star.

TOP OC GRAD . . . James B. McWilliams (C), honor graduate of the officer candidate course at The Infantry School is pinned with the gold bars of a second lieutenant in graduation exercises recently. He was one of 134 candidates who took the oath of an officer in the Army. Pinning on the bars is Lt. McWilliams' wife. Brig. Gen. John Norton (R), assistant commandant of The Infantry School, was guest speaker at the graduation. The new lieutenant also received a plaque from the Association of the U.S. Army and a certificate of academic achievement.

Interviews To Be Held For Radio

The Army needs about 80 soldiers or WACs for interviews with Hugh Downs, master of ceremonies of the "Today Show."
The interviews are for a series of 39 weekly radio shows which the Department of the Army is preparing to be aired over 100 stations.
The show, entitled "Young Americans in Action," will feature interviews with young American stars of stage, radio, TV, screen and athletics, in addition to young men and women of the Army.
DA officials explained that for the interviews, the Army is primarily interested in young people who have contributed to technical advancement of the Army, shown outstanding demonstrations of leadership, or made noteworthy career achievements through Army schooling.
The interview will be taped on-the-job for authenticity and will not require local funding.
All commands are requested to screen their personnel and information files for suitable interviewees.
List of selected personnel should be sent by Oct. 4 to Publicity Branch, Plans & Programs Office, Office of Personnel Operations, Department of the Army, Washington 25, D.C.

Gen. Rich Tells MOWW About 11th Division Test

Steps to the final recognition of the new air assault concept being tested by the 11th Air Assault Division were discussed last Thursday night at the Main Officers' Open Mess by Maj. Gen. C. W. G. Rich, commanding general of Fort Benning, in his address to the local chapter of the Military Order of World Wars (MOWW).

The more than 70 members and guests at the Fort Benning-Phenix City-Columbus Chapter of MOWW were given a thumbnail sketch of the history, organization and three-phase program the concept will pass through before final evaluation.

"The first phase, now being tested, entails the organization, equipping and training of the division at battalion level," Gen. Rich said.

The 11th presently has, according to Gen. Rich, approximately 5,000 men and 100 aircraft and by the time it reaches phase three it will have better than 15,000 men and 600 aircraft.

Phase two involves expanded organizational activities and both unilateral and joint testing of the new concept on the brigade plane.

"Division level operations with constant tests and evaluation of the expanded concept will occupy the third and final evaluation," he said.

"The old concepts of warfare involved closing with the enemy by fronts. The new assault concept gives the Army greater mobility and more effective positioning of troops," Gen. Rich added.

Infantry Board Joins APG Group For M-113 Test

The Infantry Board and the Development and Proof Services, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., recently joined forces to test modifications to the M-113 armored personnel carrier to determine its suitability as a mortar carrier.

The two elements of the Command made the tests to and fire support capability of the weapon - vehicle combination for use by mechanized Infantry battalions.

Armored personnel carriers modified to accept the mounting of the 4.2-inch mortars have been placed into limited production.

The mortar carrier will accommodate a crew of six men with their individual weapons and equipment and provides storage space for ammunition.

The mortars are mounted on a turntable that permits traverse in any direction to accomplish assigned fire missions.

Standard mortar mounts are carried in the vehicle and if the situation requires, the mortar can be fired from ground locations.

OCS Company Trains in Judo

In preparation for hand to hand combat training 55th Officer Candidate Company has inaugurated a judo class under the direction of 2nd Lt. Mark Enari, tactical officer.

The class, which meets whenever the candidates have free time, is designed to teach basic falls and throws and simple counters.

Lt. Enari learned the art while stationed in Germany. Several candidates participating in the class have had prior experience in hand to hand combat. OC Lawrence Gillespie has been a student of judo for several years.

1,500 Get Raise By Wage Board

A pay increase for approximately 1,500 Wage Board government employees working on post was announced at noon Sept. 18 in Washington, D.C.

T. A. Borefoot, civilian personnel officer, was notified of the pay raise by telephone from Washington.

The increase, approved by the Army-Air Force Wage Board, will show in pay checks for the pay period which begins Oct. 13.

The average increase for the regular non-supervisory pay schedule will be 4.62 cents per hour; for the regular leader schedule, 5 cents per hour; regular supervisory schedule, $131.25 per year of 6.31 cents per hour, and lithographic and printing schedule, from 4 to 5 cents per hour in grades one through 13.

There will be no change in the laundry pay schedule.

BIG PILE

The Defense Medical Supply Center, Brooklyn, N. Y., purchased 263,312,000 aspirin tablets last year. Piled one atop another, they would reach 886 miles into space. The Center is a field activity of the Defense Supply Agency.

Columbus Day Proposed As National Holiday

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Another national holiday has been proposed—Columbus Day, Oct. 12.

Senate Bill 108, whose principal sponsor is Sen. J. Caleb Boggs (R., Del.), proposes to make Columbus Day a legal holiday. Sen. Boggs has been joined by 32 other Senators in sponsoring the Bill.

The landing in the Western Hemisphere by Christopher Columbus is presently commemorated in 44 states and Puerto Rico, according to a spokesman for Senator Boggs.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, headed by Sen. James O. Eastland (D., Miss.), is now studying the bill.

Columbus left Palos, on Aug. 3, 1492, with the vessels the Santa Maria carrying 52 men, and the Pinta and Nina carrying 18 men each.

On Oct. 12, at 2 a.m., Rodrigo de Triana on the Pinta, sighted land. Columbus landed on one of the islands in the Bahamas and named it San Salvador. Columbus also discovered Cuba and what was once called Hispaniola, now Haiti and Santo Domingo.

Other national legal holidays are:

New Year's Day	Jan. 1
Washington's Birthday	Feb. 22
Memorial Day	May 30
Independence Day	July 4
Labor Day	1st Monday of Sept.
Veteran's Day	Nov. 11
Thanksgiving Day	4th Thursday of Nov.
Christmas Day	Dec. 25

He Won Praise in Korea

Maj. Berhane Desta an Ethiopian officer currently attending The Infantry School's career course No. 2, once received a certificate of achievement from a U. S. Army major general.

The certificate, dated June 25, 1955, and signed by Maj. Gen. E. B. Sebree, then commanding general of the 7th Infantry Division, cites Maj. Desta for "outstanding leadership and strength of character" in carrying out his duties as commander of the 2nd Ethiopian Company in Korea.

In March of the same year, Maj. Desta had been cited by the Korean government for his contribution to the defense of that nation against the North Koreans and Red Chinese.

The Chungmu Distinguished Military Service Medal, awarded the major by Won Yil Sohn, who was then South Korea's Minister of National Defense, was presented for extremely meritorious service during the period June 30 to Nov. 15, 1954. He also commanded the 2nd Company during this period.

Maj. Desta entered the Ethiopian Infantry Oct. 15, 1945. During his career he has served as battalion executive officer, and battalion intelligence officer.

When his government chose him for turner training at The Infantry School, he was serving as liaison officer at United Nations headquarters in Leopoldville, The Congo, for the Ground Forces headquarters of the Operations Training Section.

Maj. Desta's native country is located on the hinterland of the African horn. It is almost as large as Alaska and boasts a population of nearly 22 million.

New 'Do It All' Machine Expected Soon at TIC

A machine that can schedule classes, trucks, ammunition and everything else needed for Infantry instruction may well be expected in the not too distant future, 75 members of the Armed Forces Management Association were told last Tuesday.

Maj. Charles E. Welch addressed the association at its first fall meeting conducted at the Black Angus Ranch Restaurant.

Speaking on "Data Processing at The Infantry School," Maj. Welch told of the development of automatic data processing on the post, the present machine set-up and plans for the future.

"A machine that can handle student records, constant changes to programs of instruction, scheduling of more than 4,000 training areas and get the necessary trucks, ammunition and training aids on order may sound like 'Cloud Nine' type thinking," he said. "I can tell you, however, that the new academic building now under construction will have a modern up-to-date digital computer site."

"A study has been made of all data processing at The Infantry School. We have analyzed this material to see if the processes are machine applicable. We have prepared a computer specifications document which defines data processing as we visualize it now. In the near future, equipment manufacturers will submit their proposals to meet our needs," Major Welch continued.

Maj. Welch is chief of the Data Processing Center, a subelement of the Office of the Secretary of The Infantry School.

The center has a Univac 120 punch card computer and is at present installing an even more modern machine.

The center was established in 1961 to grade examinations and study automation possibilities for The Infantry School.

The computer handles processes pertaining to postal locator cards, examinations, rosters, transcripts of credits, and cancellations.

One phase of the data processing facility is the analysis of statistics gleaned from student records. This research acts as a check on the effectiveness of the school program and provides a basis for evaluations and revisions of instructional material and techniques, the speaker said.

"The computer we need for the new Infantry School will make it possible for every student to engage in his own individual war game exercises," Maj. Welch said.

"The student's solution to a school problem will be fed to the computer," he added. "Back will come the results of the student's strategy in terms of casualties and ammunition expended. This type of mechanization can make teaching more highly individualized than ever before."

Army Testing Six Week Basic Training Program

Basic combat trainees entering the Army in the future may face six weeks of basic training rather than the eight-week program currently in force, if a new training concept being studied by the Continental Army Command (CONARC) is deemed successful.

CONARC is considering major revisions to the individual training program within the Army including a six-week basic training program, an eight-week basic training program and changes in the military occupation specialty (MOS) training within the advanced individual training.

Tests of the six-week basic combat training program were initiated at Fort Dix, N. J., July 29 in which 1,100 newly inducted soldiers are testing the pilot program. An additional 900 soldiers continued the test at Fort Jackson, S.C., beginning Aug. 19.

Staff officers at CONARC headquarters at Fort Monroe, Va., head of the Army's largest training and management facility, are carefully studying and evaluating the time-saving system to determine its capabilities of turning out a quality soldier as highly skilled and as well trained as under the longer program. If the final analysis proves that the new system is effective and the 25 percent savings in training hours is in fact a genuine saving of time, manpower and spaces, the program will be expanded to other Army training centers.

The new six-week test program is based upon a new eight-week revised basic combat training program. Squad tactics and training will be cut from the program in favor of increased emphasis on physical fitness, marksmanship, and individual training, with the end result that the recruit will emerge from the basic combat phase looking like a soldier, acting like a soldier and thinking like a soldier. He will be schooled to react automatically in times of stress, thoroughly skilled in the use of those weapons and techniques that he will unquestionably be called upon to use.

CONARC's Deputy Chief of Staff for Individual Training, watchdog of the new program, expects considerable benefits as a result of the time saved in the flow of trainees through the basic combat phase of training. Changes are being made in the advanced individual training to pick up subjects dropped from basic combat training. Our objective is not to subtract two weeks from basic combat training and simply add it to another phase. Before expanding the six-week system to other training facilities, than those at Fort Dix and Fort Jackson, we must make sure that we have achieved our aim — a competent soldier, well trained in the individual arts of soldiering who has been effectively trained.

Gen. MacArthur's Book Is Readied for Printing

NEW YORK (AFPS) — General of the Army Douglas MacArthur has announced the completion of his "My Reminiscenses" — a 220,000 word manuscript covering the highlights of his career.

The general also announced that all book, movie and radio-TV rights had been sold. The book is scheduled for printing early in 1964.

Gen. MacArthur started writing last winter and was half finished before anyone knew he was doing a book.

"These reminiscenses are neither history, biography or a diary," he begins, "although each of these categories. What is presented is far from a complete account even of all the incidents in which I had a part but merely my recollections of events."

He declined, except in a most general way, to touch on the topics in his book. However, he did say that he had treated at length his removal by President Truman and had documented everything of importance in relation to it.

The general's hopes for the book are that it will be "of interest to the general public and some help to the future historian."

Old veterans recognized what might be called the MacArthur touch when he was asked whether he still believed, as he told a joint session of Congress in 1951, that "old soldiers never die, they just fade away."

"I know that I am fading away," he said in a sonorous voice that seemed to belie the words. "I regard every additional day I live as a sort of triumph."

NASA Sends Tracking Equipment to Australia

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Scientists from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) Goddard Space Flight Center are keeping a close watch on a "slow boat" to Australia.

The "boat" is loaded with 15 tons of NASA's newest electronic jewelry designed to keep scientists in touch with both the manned Gemini and unmanned observatory class of satellites.

Destined for NASA's first dual purpose tracking station at Carnarvon, Australia, 600 miles north of Perth the "new breed" tracking gear is on a 54 day voyage aboard the U.S. Lines freighter, Pioneer Reef.

When the equipment arrives at the port of Freemantle and completes its subsequent 600 mile overland journey northwestward to Carnarvon, it will represent a significant step in augmentation of NASA's tracking capability for future manned and unmanned space flight missions.

Australia was chosen for this first dual purpose tracking site because it is located almost directly "opposite" Cape Canaveral on the earth's surface.

Most of the NASA's spacecraft launched from the Atlantic missile range must pass over the island continent on their initial orbit.

This geographic consideration, together with the orbital characteristics of future NASA Australian technical know-how, led to the choice of Carnarvon.

Scientists Plan Study Of Antarctic

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — American and Russian scientists will join forces in the Antarctic sometime this year to study solar cosmic rays bombarding the Earth.

Preparations are being made to construct steel towers up to 190 feet high for this purpose at the South Pole and other United States and Russian stations.

In addition, George H. Mayer, a United States veteran of several Antarctic seasons, will spend a full year at a Russian station studying the microbiology of the area.

A Russian scientist will probably spend the winter at one of the United States stations.

The National Science Foundation said that the cooperative study of cosmic rays is intended to detect distinct solar cosmic ray events and to investigate their variations in energy, time and location.

The research will be part of the United States contribution to the international years of the quiet sun, a period of minimum solar activity.

Data Gathering Pictures of Moon Scheduled by '66

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — An effort to secure topographic data, regarding the moon's surface, for manned missions will be made by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

A project is planned to send a series of five instrumented spacecraft on close-range lunar photographic missions by 1966.

The data is necessary for the selection and confirmation of landing sites for Apollo manned lunar landing missions and will extend scientific understanding of the moon.

Engineer Lieutenant Finishes CBR Class

Second Lt. Benjamin T. Felder, a platoon leader in Company B, 577th Engineer Battalion (Construction), was graduated from the advanced officer CBR course at Fort McClellan, Ala. recently.

During the 30-day course, all phases of CBR doctrine were presented in detail, and many practical exercises and demonstrations were conducted by the student officers.

The '64s from Ford are here: The Year of the Test Drive starts today!

Ford cars have changed. Only a test drive can tell you how much. Races and rallies, economy runs, braking and acceleration tests have bred into our 1964 models the kind of total performance you just can't create on the test track alone. They are hard-muscled, fast-moving, sure-footed. Open competition helped make them that way. They offer you substantially more car than anything at their price. You don't have to take our word for it. We're willing to rest our case on our cars.

Atomic Blast Being Copied By Scientists

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Government scientists hope to duplicate in a laboratory experiment some of the effects of a nuclear explosion.

If they succeed, the United States will find it easier to gain more knowledge on defense against enemy ballistic missiles while still observing the new treaty which bans all nuclear explosions except those underground.

Efforts to develop a device for simulating nuclear explosions were begun before the treaty was signed. The chief purpose was economy.

Actual nuclear explosions would be more expensive than the simulated explosions which Army scientists hope to develop in a laboratory pulse reactor.

A House subcommittee is considering an Army request for $2.1 million to construct the pulse reactor.

Dr. Ed Minor of the Army's ballistic-research laboratory at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md., said that the special reactors were needed to simulate a nuclear-weapon burst accurately.

Biggest Pay Raise in History Signed Into Law by President

The biggest military pay raise in the nation's history passed the House of Representatives this week, and was signed into law by President Kennedy.

The House passed a Senate version of the bill Tuesday, and President Kennedy signed the bill Wednesday.

The raises will go to all uniformed service men and women with more than two years service. The average raise is 14.4 per cent and is costing $1.3 billion.

Fort Benning finance officials said the pay raise would be included in this month's check.

Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman of the House Armed Services Subcommittee which spent months working on the Bill, said it still does not do "justice" to men and women in uniform, according to the Associated Press.

"We have done the best we can" in an economy minded Congress, he said.

The new Bill also provides a $55 a month combat bonus for servicemen exposed to Viet Cong fire in Vietnam.

The bill passed the House by an overwhelming 372 to 5 vote.

Items included in the Bill are:

—Benefits for retired personnel, widows receiving military pensions, and Reservists on drill-pay status.

—A new "family separation" allowance of $30 per month

Post Commanding General Thanks JCOC Participants

I wish to extend my appreciation and congratulations to all personnel of Fort Benning who participated in the conduct of the Army phase of the 33d Joint Civilian Orientation Conference just completed here.

I am well aware of the vast amount of advance planning, detailed coordination and long hours of preparation required to present a finished performance of this magnitude. Only by the devotion to duty, enthusiasm and concerted effort of each individual could such superior results have been attained.

The many complimentary remarks from members of this distinguished group concerning the appearance of the troops, their esprit de corps and the high state of training were conclusive evidence of the success of the entire operation.

It was most gratifying to observe this highly creditable performance by the members of this command. I am proud to have been associated with your efforts.

Air Assault Test Begins Phase 2

FORT STEWART, Ga. — The initial phase of SKY SOLDIER I drew to a close here this week with military observers and control personnel calling the weeklong test a "great success."

SKY SOLDIER I is a four-phase field test designed to evaluate the Army's new air assault concept and its two principle test units, the 11th Air Assault Division and the 10th Air Transport Brigade.

The air assault concept is believed by the Army to be the next logical step in the constant search for mobility of men, weapons and materiel in battle. The basic idea is to see to what extent ground vehicles and ground-based weapons systems can be replaced by aerial counterparts. The objective is to develop an almost completely air-mobile force practically void of wheeled vehicles and relying mainly on aircraft to implement its movement capability.

The massive test began last week as more than 2,000 troops and 200 aircraft from the 11th Air Asssault Division and 10th Air Transport Brigade departed Fort Benning by air and truck convoy to this eastern Georgia post.

The scope of the exercise is evidenced by the disposition of units in a 60-mile area surrounding Fort Stewart: the 11th Support Command complex and elements of the 10th Air Transport Brigade are set up near the Vidalia Municipal Airfield, the 1st Air Assault Brigade (the task force headquarters), and the 11th Aviation Group are established at Camp Oliver, on the Fort Stewart reservation and the 3d Battalion, 187th Infantry (the basic test unit), and its supporting forces are in position and around the first objective area.

The action during the first phase was conducted in three separate stages: (1) movement of troops and equipment from Fort Benning, and the establishment of staging areas; (1) aerial surveillance and reconnaissance by the 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry, and elements of the 226th Aerial Surveillance and Attack Battalion; and (3) the actual air assault on the objective — Kasserine Range, Fort Stewart — by the 1st Air Assault Brigade composed of the 3d Battalion, 187th Infantry, and elements of the 11th Air Assault Division Artillery and the 127th Engineer Battalion.

The air assault was launched last Wednesday from the staging area near Lyons, Ga. Here in a farmer's cow pasture, twenty Iroquois helicopters from the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion sat with whirling rotor blades as Infantrymen from the 3rd Battalion, 187th Infantry, leaped into them from the bordering woodline to be whisked away to strike an aggressor occupying positions on Kasserine Range. As the initial assault wave was landed into the objective area to help consolidate the positions.

Artillery fire support was immediately available to the

Doughboy 11 Gets 19th Win At Pensacola

The Doughboys are still undefeated. They took their nineteenth consecutive victory last weekend when they edged the Pensacola (Fla.) Navy Goshawks 10-8 on the Floridians' home field.

At Bayonet press time Coach Oren DeHaven reported that the scheduled game with Southwest Florida Athletic Association was still on. There had been speculation that a cancellation might be forthcoming. The Doughboys clobbered this team 88-0 in the season opener at Doughboy Stadium.

(Please see the Bayonet sports page for a complete wrapup of last week's game with Pensacola.)

Secretary Gets New Deputy

Lt. Col. George P. McLendon, commanding officer of The Student Brigade's 5th officer candidate battalion, will become deputy secretary of The Infantry School Monday.

Since Col. McLendon assumed command of the battalion, little more than a year ago, the Infantry Officer candidate program has more than doubled in size.

When he arrived, four Regular Army and two Reserve Component classes were conducted yearly. This year, ten Regular Army and two Reserve Component classes have started the training that leads to a commission.

Prior to Col. McLendon's command, an average of 450 officers per year were graduated from Officer Candidate School. Under current plans, approximately 1,600 second for servicemen whose assignments take them away from their families.

Pay Raise

—An increase in the special allowance for military doctors and dentists who have been on active duty more than six years.

—Provision for higher benefits for military personnel retiring from the service. Those who retired between June 1, 1958, and April 1, 1963, would get a five per cent cost-of-living increase. Those who retired before June 1, 1958, could refigure their benefits on the basis of the new pay scale or take the five per cent, whichever is larger. From here on out servicemen will be eligible for a cost-of-living increase whenever the government's consumer price index rises three per cent.

Air Assault

Infantry troops as Battery A (Aerial Rocket) of the 3rd Battalion, 377th Artillery, furnished close in fire support during the assault. Other artillery units from the 6th Battalion (Composite), 81st Artillery, moved swiftly into new positions from their staging areas in the vicinity of Vidalia, Ga. and quickly set up their weapons in support of the troops occupying the objective area.

As the Infantry and artillery engaged the enemy, the engineers moved into an open field near Brest Range and began to construct a landing strip for Caribou aircraft. Starting with no more than an empty field and some light construction equipment, the engineers soon made the area usable and the first Caribou touched down while the battle was still raging.

As the air assault continued in the objective area, the 11th Medical Battalion started its operation of evacuating the wounded. Front-line ambulances and litter-bearing Army mules were flown in by helicopters to assist. Air ambulances were also pressed into service to evacuate the wounded from the immediate battle area.

For test purposes, several helicopters were designated as damaged, simulated forced landings, and were the objects of air crash rescue operations designed to protect the occupants and to recover the downed aircraft if at all possible.

By mid-afternoon the objective area had taken on a more peaceful appearance with patrols encountering little or no resistance.

The 1st Air Assault Brigade Command Headquarters displaced into the Cap Oliver area in order that it might supervise the actions of the assault troops. Forward support elements of the 11th Air Assault Division Support Command also moved into the area in order to provide front-line resupply and maintenance service.

The airfield at Brest which the engineers had been preparing became a beehive of activity as the large cargo aircraft of the division and the supporting 10th Air Transport Brigade began arriving with the equipment and supplies needed to sustain the assault troops once they had secured a base of operations. The buildup of this base of operations will continue and it will be used throughout the remaining three phases of the test exercise as the central point from which air assault operations will be conducted to expell the aggressors from the Fort Stewart reservation.

The first phase was carefully scrutinized by the controllers and evaluators of the Test Evalcation and Control Group (TEC) also located at Fort Benning. As the controlling agency for SKY SOLDIER I, TEC Group is also responsible for the evaluation of the exercise. Reports from the Controller Headquarters indicate the agency was pleased with the showing made by the Sky. Soldiers.

Deputy

lieutenants will be commissioned yearly.

One reason for the expansion of the program is the new college option plan. Under this plan a college graduate, meeting the requirements, may enlist specifically for OCS and attends the school after completing basic training.

Over 35 per cent of the candidates who began OCS this fiscal year entered under the College Option plan.

Col. McLendon, a World War II combat veteran, entered the service in March, 1942 and was promoted to captain in April, 1945. After his promotion to major, he took command of the Advanced Leadership School at The Infantry Center.

Col. McLendon has seen overseas duty in Europe, Japan, Hawaii and Vietnam and has held various command and staff positions with the 25th, 8th, 5th and 3rd Infantry and the 506th and 187th Airborne RCT's and XVIII Airborne Corps headquarters. In 1957 he graduated from the Command and General Staff College at Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas.

He has been awarded the Silver Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Bronze Star, Purple Heart, French Croix De Guerre, Army Commendation Medal, World War II Victory Medal, American Campaign Medal and the Combat Infantryman Badge.

Col. McLendon and his wife Jane and their four children reside at 500 Yeager Avenue.

5,000 Townspeople Turn Out for Show

VIDALIA, Ga. — More than 5,000 townspeople from the Vidalia - Lyons area accepted a special invitation from Col. Robert C. Shaw, commanding officer of the 11th Air Assault Division Support Command, to an open house celebration Sunday afternoon at the Vidalia Airstrip.

Sky Soldiers stood by with their field gear ready as youngsters and oldsters alike, questioned them on living conditions in the field. World War II and Korean Conflict veterans were amazed. Some remarked how the Army has changed since their time.

The local populace saw the latest weapons which included the Little John rocket, the new experimental model XM - 102 howitzer, the Italian howitzer, the 90-mm anti-tank gun and the M-14 rifle. Sgt. Joseph Rose, operations sergeant for Support Command, had a special blank 7.62-mm round machine gun set up. Youngsters were able to fire the weapon. Special vehicles designed for air assault operations with zoo sounding names were also on display. They included the Sidewinder, the all-terrain vehicle that can go anywhere except in deep water; the totegote, that has proven its worth on the Vidalia Airstrip as a light type motorcycle; and the Desert Rat, another all - terrain, specially designed vehicle that can go anywhere except in deep water.

The 11th Air Assault Division Aviation Group rotary - winged aircraft and fixed-wing aircraft from the 10th Air Transport Brigade were also viewed by the local people. Special guides were on hand to answer questions.

Highlight of the afternoon was a special rappelling exhibition put on by SSgt. James R. Beal, from a hovering Iroquois helicopter.

The Support Command complex at the Vidalia Airstrip furnishes food, clothing, gasoline and oil, ammunition, and most items of equipment. It also provides maintenance support, air ambulance service, and field medical facilities for all the 11th Division units participating in SKY SOLDIER I.

The aim of the get-together was to acquaint the local people with the progress of training of the Army's new bold concept of air assault operations.

5th Battalion Is First Post Unit To Finish Drive

The 5th Battalion of the Student Brigade is the first battalion-sized unit to reach 100 per cent in the Community Activities Association Fund Drive.

Two Fort Benning teams, the Third Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit and the General's Staff, have gone over their 100 per cent fair share participation in the annual fund drive.

Central Post Fund officials reported this week that Maj. James O. Dulce's Third Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit had reached 121 per cent of their fair share under the team captainship of CWO Harold E. Fraker.

The General's staff includes the Commanding General's office, Deputy Commanding General's Office, Chief of Staff Section and Secretary of the General Staff Section; reached two per cent over their 100 per cent goal under their team captain Sgt. Maj. Welborne Callahan, sergeant major of The Infantry Center.

The drive will run through Nov. 15.

New Stamp

Red Cross Birthday Celebrated

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The U.S. Post Office has unveiled the design for a new stamp commemorating the 100th anniversary of the International Red Cross.

Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, president of the American Red Cross, was present at the unveiling ceremony in Washington, D.C.

The new stamp, a five-cent one, will be issued Oct. 26-29, the dates on which the first international conference met in 1863 in Geneva, Switzerland to draft plans for an international Red Cross.

The design calls attention to the work of the American Red Cross in the release of the Bay of Pigs prisoners and refugees from Cuba between Dec., 1962 and July, 1963.

It is an adaptation of a photograph showing a large Red Cross flag flying from the stern of the SS Morning Light, one of the ships lent to the Red Cross to transport refugees from Havana to the United States.

Refugees and workers are silhouetted in the foreground of the design. The stamp is red, white and blue and carries the legend "1863 International Red Cross 1963."

Air Assault Squadron Hunts Down Guerrillas

CAMP OLIVER, Ga. — The 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry, 11th Air Assault Division Aviation Group, the eyes and ears for the men participating in SKY SOLDIER I, flew sortie after sortie last week making aerial surveillance of the area where guerrillas concentrations were suspected.

The 17th Cavalry is under the operation control of the 1st Air Assault Brigade. Their mission and messages are directed from the Intelligence Section of the brigade. The new air mobile cavalry doesn't resemble its old horse-cavalry days.

Today modern aircraft scream in at treetop level and survey the area in a few seconds, where before it took the horse cavalrymen days to even get to the front. They use H-13 Sioux and UH-1B and UH-1D Iroquois helicopters to accomplish their mission.

Mostly, they use harrassment and screaming tactics. They scoot and shoot, cover flanks where ground troops cannot cover. They watch so that the enemy does not sneak through friendly lines. They also scatter the enemy, chase him off any objective, and bottle him up so that the Infantry can kill or capture him.

The air cavalryman also have an Infantry Platoon which can rout any remaining remnants of guerrillas or unfriendly forces. Armed helicopters rake the field clean and make it safe for landing.

Determination Made Columbus Immortal

Today, in the age of the astronaut, the orbital flight and the hydrogen bomb, one could possibly overlook the story of the intrepid Italian navigator who, 471 years ago October 12, heard a look-out call, "Tierra! Tierra!"

This now historic event—the discovery of America—happened as the look-out on the Pinta spotted the island now called San Salvador.

This happy discovery came when the dauntless Christopher Columbus, after 59 days at sea, was almost ready to forsake his determination to find land and yield to the demands of his crew that he turn back and give up his dream.

His dream was not one of conquest—except as one conquers nature—but was a magnificent obsession with the idea that a ship could reach the East by sailing West.

His determination must be rated alongside Perry's at Lake Erie, Washington's at Valley Forge, the Marine Corps' fight through the Korean cold to the sea, and John Paul Jones' while engaging the British ship Serapis with his Bon Homme Richard on the Atlantic Ocean.

It is just this type of determination that keeps America free.

It is the same determination the U. S. Army showed at Anzio, the Air Force on the Ploesti raids, the Navy at Midway and the Marine Corps at Belleau Wood and Iwo Jima.

So as we celebrate Columbus Day 1963, let us resolve with a determination as firm as that of Columbus'—that we remain ready to fight —if need be, for freedom. (AFPS)

Free World's Future In U. S. Army Hands

From its role as expressed by Congress, the Army as a whole derives its basic mission: to conduct sustained ground combat in time of war so as to gain control of the land and impose the will of the nation on the enemy. But, in support of the overall national policy, the Army performs many missions and must be prepared to assume others should the necessity arise.

In recent years, the Army has served in conjunction with the other services and our allies as a creditable deterrent against aggression —a mission of paramount importance to the free world. Combat-ready forces, deployed world-wide, backed by the mobile, flexible Strategic Army Corps (STRAC) in the United States and by Army National Guard and Army Reserve units constitute a force that gives any would-be aggressor pause to consider.

Through advisory groups and missions, the Army provides assistance to 80 per cent of the free world's armies, which in turn bolster our nation's security. Where counterinsurgency assistance is involved, Special Forces personnel may complement the effort. Civic Action programs in under-developed countries utilize the skills of U.S. Army personnel to teach the local military forces to help the people of their nations to effect civic improvements in such fields as sanitation, construction and road building, and education.

In the United States, the Army provides air defense by manning the NIKE batteries that guard our cities. It also has primary responsibility for military support of civil defense and disaster relief operations.

At home or abroad, the Army daily performs a wide variety of tasks, not only to defend the nation by ground combat but also to provide a better and stronger free world.

Capitol Notes

A House Armed Services Committee has approved legislation (HR 384) authorizing "top rank" retirement for enlisted personnel of the Armed Forces.

The legislation, sponsored by Rep. William S. Mailliard (R., Calif.), has been before Congress for several years and was approved by the House in the 87th Congress but never considered by the Senate and Armed Services Committee.

It provides that enlisted personnel, when they retire, can be given the rank and pay of the highest permanent or temporary grade which they have satisfactorily held on active duty in any of the Armed Forces.

About 370 Air Force retirees who received such advancement and pay in the past through what the Comptroller General has labeled "erroneous" action, would be forgiven the "overpayments."

Future costs of the legislation would be about $270,000 annually for the Air Force and not more than $100,000 per year for the Army, Navy and Marine Corps. The bill is expected to win House approval in the current session but may have to wait for Senate action till next year.

The Army faces a monumental task in ridding its bases of old WWII barracks, messhalls and similar structures built with about a five-year life expectancy and utilized already for 20 or more years.

The Judge Says . . .

By Donald L. Reihart

Off-duty employment is a subject which concerns many members of the military service. Some types of off-duty employment are authorized while others are strictly forbidden. Specific regulations have been promulgated on the subject.

By statute, moreover, Congress has specifically prohibited off-duty employment which interferes with the customary employment of local civilians. Department of the Army regulations last prohibit off-duty employment which interferes with the full and proper discharge of military duties. A mere suspicion of interference is enough to render the off-duty employment improper. The regulation referred to is AR 600-50. Aside from the off-duty employment provisions, it contains the conflict of interest principles which govern all members of the service.

A person contemplating additional employment should also consider the legal impact of an injury received in that employment. Would such an injury be considered a line of duty injury? Would it be considered to have been due to misconduct? What effect would it have on retirement benefits? Does it make any difference if this employment is not permitted by statute or regulations? These questions should be answered before accepting any type of additional employment. A person who heedlessly takes 'any job" in addition to his military duties without some preliminary guidance in asking for trouble.

For more information concerning off-duty employment and the standard of conduct required by AR 600-50, make an appointment with the Post Soldiers Advocate Division.

Time--A Measure of Life

By — Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker
Post Chaplain

In my home lives an 82-year-old grandmother whose ancestors contributed in the winning of the west. They helped by opening what now comprises the states of Utah, Nevada and Colorado. They were pioneers.

In addition, she has given sons who fought in wars defending the liberties of our people. Today, she is alert to her community and vitality interested in national and international affairs. She makes friends easily because she has an interest in and enjoys people. Recently she travelled alone by air from San Francisco to Fort Benning.

In the Holy Bible we read that Methuselah lived 969 years. He had sons and daughters. This is the entire record concerning him. The father of that ancient man was Enoch. The record indicates Enoch was a good man, he walked with God.

The really important thing is how we use the life which God has given us. In this we are each a steward of one life, which influences other lives for good or evil.

Most of us in the United States are members of religious denominations advocating very high standards of personal conduct. Those who have no religious affiliation are bound by natural and moral law, the influence of public opinion and the traditions of the Army to be law-abiding citizens.

The motto of West Point, "Duty - Honor - Country" includes ideas of personal integrity essential to military leadership. These are good examples for all of us to follow.

The measurement of life is not how long we live, but how we live. We should be aware of this every conscious hour of our lives.

Evasion Problem Is TIS Favorite

LAST MINUTE PLANS ARE VITAL TO SUCCESS
(L to R) OC's John L. Donovan, Robert A. Connolly, Joseph A. Delsarde, Stephen Coakley

There's no war going on at The Infantry School but students sometimes find themselves battling "enemy" Infantry. Survival isn't always at stake in the literal sense, but students must depend on their reactions against these "enemies" for a good percentage of their grades; thus survival in the course is at stake.

Every few weeks groups of students find themselves six to eight miles from friendly lines with several hundred "enemy" troops blocking their paths.

The students have eight hours to return to their lines. The "enemies" are out to capture them.

The Escape and Evasion problem, the culmination of the Ranger Department's patrolling classes, is given to every officer basic and officer candidate class that comes through the school. Col. John W. Jackson is director of the department and is responsible for this portion of the student's training.

Col. Jackson's team has devised this problem so that it requires all a man's training and ingenuity to get him through successfully. Some do not make it.

Recently the 50th Company, commanded by 1st Lt. Donald Homes, of the Officer Candidate School ran the course on the Southern end of the reservation. Only 66 made it through the course within the time limit, without being captured. Another 47 made it within two hours of the deadline, an accomplishment for which they still receive some credit. Sixteen men failed to complete the course.

Thirty-eight men were captured by the aggressors, some of them two or three times. They wound up in the aggressor stockade.

Running the Escape and Evasion course is an experience seldom forgotten, and many Army officers serving all over the world swap "war stories" about the swamps of Fort Benning.

The problem begins on a Friday afternoon, during the OCS 12th (or bivouac) week. At this time a Code of Conduct briefing is held. For officer basic classes the problem is held near the end of their course.

Then about 6 p.m. a review of escape and evasion techniques, and an administrative briefing on the problem is held.

The students then go outside and get ready for action. This usually consists of camouflaging themselves and studying the terrain on maps provided by the Rangers.

Darkness Falls

When darkness falls, students become soldiers and the problem is tactical. They load on to trucks and head for the drop-off point. The ride takes about 30 minutes, but it seems much longer to young soldiers thinking about the aggressors and wondering if stories about the dogs are true. (Scout dogs are used by aggressors, but most of the stories students hear are not true.)

At the drop-off point the first notable thing is the darkness. And then, like on so many Fort Benning problems, the briars make themselves known.

Here the patrols, usually three to five men, make their final plans and set out for friendly lines. The first hour or so is deceptively easy. The terrain, while no picnic, is gently rolling (the famed hills of Georgia) and the brush is not too thick.

If the soldier is caught along the way, he is loaded into a truck and hauled to the stockade.

Here he is searched and prepared for interrogation. This preparation usually consist of pushups, doubletiming, or sitting on the pole — though the pole is usually saved until after interrogation.

On the Pole

After a few minutes of realistic interrogation, the students are placed on the pole. The student is placed in such a way that his weight locks his legs around it in a harmless but uncomfortable position.

The most welcome sight on the coure is Yankee Road, the finish line. From there on out all that is left is the walk to the pickup point, a short truck trip to a debriefing point, and then the very short ride back to garrison.

MOOM Hosts More Than 2,000 For Women's Club Opening Tea

More than 2,000 women were welcomed to the Fort Benning Women's Club Opening Tea held at the Main Officers' Open Mess Wednesday by Mrs. William R. Lynch.

Mrs. Lynch, the club president, in her brief welcoming address, introduced the ladies to the more than 30 activities slated for the club's 1963-64 season.

In the receiving line were Mrs. C. W. G. Rich, Mrs. Robert R. Williams, Mrs. Harry W. O. Kinnard and Mrs. John Norton.

Also in the receiving line were Mrs. Charles Billingslea, Mrs. Lynch, and Mrs. James O. Jones, first vice president of the club.

New members found not only the hand of friendship extended to them but also a wealth of opportunities through the club.

Colorful exhibits were prepared to inform the women of the club's varied activities. Mrs. Jones, who besides being first vice president is also the activities chairman, worked long hard hours throughout the summer to secure the finest instructors for each class.

This year they include everything from art lessons, cake decorating, flower arranging and reducing lessons to knitting, cooking and horseback riding lessons. Chairmen and instructors of the various groups were on hand to answer any questions.

In addition to the classes, the club sponsors such varied activities as the annual shopping trip to Atlanta, a bowling league for members, the pre-kindergarten school, a monthly coffee hour for patients at Martin Army Hospital, the Thrift Shop, a choral group, the Women's Club School of Dance, and the annual fund raising Distaff dinner and many welfare activities.

Mrs. Jesse L. Morrow, Allied Liaison chairman of the club, escorted and hostessed the Allied wives to the Opening Tea.

This year the ladies of the 11th Air Assault Division were hostesses for the event, Mrs. Harry W. O. Kinnard and Mrs. Robert R. Williams and pretty and very elegant decorations. Other chairmen of hostessing committees were Mrs. Hubert Strange, Mrs. George Beatty, Mrs. Richard Knowles, Mrs. Robert Shaw and Mrs. Delbert Bristol.

Floral arrangements in colors of yellow, brown and green transformed the Officers' Club into visions of fall. Coffee, tea and punch, assorted finger sandwiches, petite-fours and other yummies were served to the guests. Women new to Fort Benning wore leaf - shaped name tags in shades of yellow.

MRS. LYNCH

"Queen of Battle, Her Recipes," the 1963-64 Women's Club Cookbook, went on sale for the first time at the tea. Containing over 700-taste-tested recipes submitted by Army wives at the post, the cookbook covers everything from turkey fricasse to fruitly snow salad to yummy desserts.

The cookbooks sell for on $2. A large quantity of books have been ordered pre-wrapped for Christmas mailing at $2.25. They are dressed up by a bright Christmas seal. All profits made from the sale will be turned over to the Welfare Fund for eventual dispersal to welfare type activities.

Editor and chairman of the cookbook committee is Mrs. Curtis L. Hankins. Mrs. Bea Westenburg is co-editor. Joan Morgan, Jerry Brophy and Yvonne Hawley are other committee members.

Officers of the Women's Club not already mentioned include Mrs. John Cochran, third vice-president; Mrs. James E. Stacy, 3rd vice-president; Mrs. Garmon O. Aure, recording secretary, and Mrs. Joffre L. Gueymard, corresponding secretary.

Lady Golfers Are Invited To Post Course

The Ladies Golf Association of Fort Benning will entertain their counterpart from Maxwell Air Force Base, Montgomery, Ala., at the Main Officers' Open Mess Country Club Friday (Oct. 11).

Tee-off time will be 9:30 a.m. with the entire day's outing costing $3.50. The charge entitles golfers to lunch, trophies and door prizes.

All members of the association and others are invited to attend.

10th Air Brigade Ladies Receive Ceramics Talk

An additional feature at the monthly meeting held by the ladies of the 10th Air Transport Brigade, 11th Air Assault Division, was a highly interesting talk on ceramics, given by Mrs. William Fite.

Table decorations for the luncheon at the Main Officers' Club were highlighed by exquisite pieces of ceramics, in various colors, sizes and forms; all made by Mrs. Fite during their assignment here at Fort Benning.

Mrs. Delbert O. Bristol, wife of Col. Bristol, commanding officer of the 10th Air Transport Brigade, talked to the ladies about various items of distaff business, and welcomed all the newcomers. She announced that the next luncheon will be held at Custer Terrace on Wednesday Oct. 30.

One of the new members, Mrs. John S. Stannard, won the doorprize, a large ceramic ashtray with the 11th Air Assault Division insignia.

Need a change of scenery? If you do, do as Sandy Duke did. Sometime last week, Sandy was standing at her bus stop waiting for the school bus, when a gust of wind blew sand in her eyes. She removed her right contact lens to clear the dirt from it.

Before she replaced the lens in her eye, she put it on her tongue. Just then, Sandy saw two cars heading for each other. She gasped, and at the same time swallowed her lens. I might add that she had quite an expensive breakfast that morning.

Friday night saw anywhere from twenty to thirty girls milling inside the Heekin House; Loyd and Emily had a wonderful slumber party — mattresses and pillows were strewn throughout the entire house.

Friday night's affair was followed by a pizza party given by Sheryl Hartman and Kim Lauderbach. It took place Saturday night at Sheryl's home.

Among the freshmen and sophomores attending were George Johnson, Sue Mitchell, Philip Taft, Sally Scovill, Walt Donaldson, and Kathy Morgan.

There were a couple of novelties along with the eating and dancing. Some forty of the teens tried to "cream" into the small sunporch. Following that episode, the pizza truck stalled for approximately one half hour after delivering the pizzas. I don't imagine his boss believed his story.

As you may already know, Pacelli is the first of the three schools to receive senior rings. I understand that they have a lovely ring ceremony at the end of the students' junior year.

Baker was the next school to receive rings. After their previous contract ran out, the students made plans for changes in the style. The most outstanding feature is the large lettering around the beautiful blue stone. Every letter is distinctly and uniquely engraved.

Finally, Columbus High's rings arrived. C. H. S. seniors felt a little degraded until they got here.

The week ended Sunday with teens participating in the 197th Brigade Chapel's service. A brother and sister team, Lindsay and Jeffrey Koob, did the ushering. JoAnn and Kathy Morgan, and Wanda Hodges read the scripture.

Hennessey Home Hosts Gathering Of 3rd Battalion

The wives of the staff officers of the 3rd Battalion, 187th Infantry, 11th Air Assault Division, were hostesses recently at an afternoon tea in the home of Lt. Col. and Mrs. John J. Hennessey.

Guests at the affair were the officers' wives of the 187th and the ladies of the staff of the 1st Brigade, 11th Air Assault Division.

Serving as hostesses were Mrs. Hennessey, Mrs. Rutland D. Beard Jr., Mrs. Abraham N. Sternfeld, Mrs. Edgar N. Kelley, Mrs. Michael W. Maxwell, Mrs. Lawrence L. Mills, Mrs. James L. Allen and Mrs. George B. Callahan.

The tea table was overlaid with a cloth of pink linen. The centerpiece was a profusion of fresh flowers in shades of pink and green accented by white tube roses.

CDCIA Ladies See Wig Show At Recent Lunch

The ladies of the U. S. Army Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency held a luncheon in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess recently.

Mrs. Patrick B. Watson and Mrs. Edward C. West were hostesses. Mrs. Watson welcomed and introduced the following new members: Mesdames Eugene A. Watts, Kermit B. Blaney, Robert M. Jackson, Donald C. Oswald, Gordon C. Conklin, Roy M. Rich, and William A. Hookway.

After the luncheon, Mrs. George Krohn of Columbus gave a program on Merriwigs of Miami Beach. Models for the wig showing were Mrs. Krohn and Mrs. Harvey Bimbols of Columbus. Mr. Orlando of the Continental Hair Stylists, Columbus, did the hair stylings of the wigs.

The door prize was a gift certificate for a floral arrangement given by Sammy Meyers Gift Shop, Columbus.

46 Years of Army Association Is Still Clear in His Mind

By PFC Tom Luce

A quick smile and a warm "Nice to see you, Sir," plus clear memories of a 46-year association with Army men are the hallmark of one of Fort Benning's most personable and colorful personalities.

The man, Tom Fields, has become almost as much a part of post life as Riverside, the general's quarters, and "Follow Me," motto of The Infantry Center.

Fields, a former Army master sergeant who is now major-domo at the Main Officers' Open Mess, has seen the rise in rank of many of his former commanders during his four decades at Fort Benning.

Fields joined the Army in 1917, when he answered the urgent call for men during the early days of World War I.

"Back in the late 1917's and 1918's the chain of command was a lot stricter than it is now," he said. "Why I had to go to a PFC and request permission to speak to a corporal."

Following a tour of duty which took Fields to the battlefields of France, he was assigned at Camp Benning, now Fort Benning, in the officers' mess section in 1919.

Gen. Marshall

"I remember when I first reported to the mess officer, a man who later became the Army's Chief of Staff, Gen. George C. Marshall, I was literally shaking in my boots," Fields said with a smile.

"Later I found that I wasn't the only man impressed by Gen. Marshall. When he served as assistant secretary of the newly formed Infantry School, he would make all the young officers take afternoon horseback rides for exercise and heaven help the man that was thrown or fell from his horse. Gen. Marshall was always there to make sure they got right back on," he said.

Fields, nattily dressed in a dark serge suit, white shirt and dark tie with a "Follow Me" crest on it, said, "In the old days we didn't have the modern mechanized Army of today. Even the generals had to ride around in an open buckboard. Of course some of them had their own mounts."

Another of the memorable episodes of Fields' early army career was the rapid rise in rank of many of the junior grade officers with whom he served.

Even President

"Many of my former commanders, who were second lieutenants when first knew them, are now active or retired generals," he said. "One, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, even became President."

The former President, a captain at the time he was Fields' battalion commander, also coached the post football team.

"As I recall Ike had a mighty fine football team. His old football stomping grounds use to be where the reproduction (printing) plant is now located," Fields added.

"I found that Gen. Eisenhower was a strict officer, he busted me twice, yet he was one of the finest officers I ever served under," replied Fields.

Fields, who has an acute memory of his Army life of more than 40 years ago recalled that there were about 2,000 enlisted men and officers at Fort Benning when he first arrived.

"One thing Camp Benning was noted for was the knee-deep mud. We had to put chains on our cars just to make the hour and a half trip into Columbus.

"Road conditions were nothing like they are now. All we had in the old days was hope, now we have good macadam roads," he said.

Even the promotion list came under the scrutiny of the knowledgeable Fields.

"In 1919 it seems like an officer had to have grey hair in order to be even considered for promotion to captain," he said. "Nowadays, officers just look a lot younger, but maybe that's because I'm getting older."

How Old?

No one is quite sure just how old Fields is. Reliable sources stated that he is 65 years old.

But Fields says he is 69.

Fields retired from the Army in Nov., 1949, and stayed at Fort Benning with the Main Officers' Open Mess as mess steward.

During the 45 years he has been "looking out" for the Army, Fields has served and known such noteables as former Presidents Harry Truman, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, British Field Marshal Bernard Montgomery, Gen. Earle Wheeler and most of The Infantry Center commanding generals.

When asked if any of the dignitaries had any food peculiarities, he said, "Gen. Marshall and I use to have quite lengthy discussions on the proper way a three and one-half minute egg should be cooked and Gen. Eisenhower always had, without variation, the same breakfast meal: Grapefruit, waffles, bacon and coffee."

Officials at the Main Officers' Open Mess estimate that Fields has met and talked to more than one million guests since he came to Fort Benning.

When asked how long he expects to be at Fort Benning, he replied,

"As long as I can stand by these glass doors and say, 'Nice to see you, sir.'"

RETIRING DIVISION SOLDIERS ADDRESSED BY GEN. BILLINGSLEA

Seven 2nd Division Soldiers Honored at Retirement Rites

By BOB DE CAMARA

Seven soldiers retired at the 2nd Infantry Division last week.

Due to inclement weather, the five able to attend gathered in the division conference room for a short reading of the retirement orders, a letter of appreciation from the Army chief of staff and a few words of thanks from Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, Division CG.

The top-ranking man to depart active duty at last week's program was a major, formerly of the 1st Tank Battalion, 72n1 Armor, Robert C. Culverhouse. The next - ranking retiree, Capt. Raymond D. Wentz of the general staff intelligence section, was on leave away from Columbus and unable to appear at the ceremonies which also honored men from four other units.

They were MSgt. Joseph H. Powers of Company B, 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor; PSgt. Randall E. Earls, Company C, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry; SFC Kenneth E. Sylvester, Company A, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry; SSgt. Charlie White, Company B, 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion; and Sp5 David D. Henry, Company B, 2nd Engineer Battalion, not present for honors.

One hundred and forty-nine years of service to the U. S. Army were represented at the departure. And, as Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, division commander, pointed out before the men adjourned to refreshments, the men shared 27 awards between them and "a history which goes through three combat periods."

Capt. Wentz has served the longest, 26 years. Next was Maj. Culverhouse with 23 years. The rest of the men each had an even 20.

The 2nd Division's adjutant general, Lt. Col. L. H. Dahl, led off the occasion with a reference to the division's rainfated retirements. All ceremonies are originally slated for outdoors and postponed moving inside as long as possible.

He then read orders severing active duty connections and a letter from Gen. Earle Wheeler, Army Chief of Staff, lauding the men's achievements.

As each man's name was read, Gen. Billingslea moved down the line, shaking hands and paying compliments. When this ended, the general said, "If you please, gentlemen, take your seats a moment."

The two-star general who recently celebrated his first anniversary as division leader, then addressed a few remarks to the retirees.

"These are always sad occasions," spoke the general. "Twenty-seven awards are represented here and service in every theater (of operations in World War II and Korea). The history of you people goes through three combat periods. We're sorry to see you leave. Thank you for the service to the 2nd Division."

Gen. Billingslea closed his statement urging the men to maintain contact with the Army and bring to their new communities the same spirit of loyalty and devotion.

When the general concluded his talk, the retirees were swarmed by a throng of well-wishers. Division commanders and sergeants major moved down the line, congratulating each man.

Promotions to the Best . . .

It Really Pays to Be Soldier of the Month

Did you ever stop and think just what could be won by being selected the division soldier of the month? If not, you should ... because the small amount of extra effort it takes to be sharp, both in appearance and knowledge, pays off in lucrative dividends.

Let's take the case of Sp4 John R. Moore III, a survey instrument operator in Headquarters Battery, 7th Battalion, 17th Artillery, who won this coveted title last July.

His journey to "fame, fortune and promotion" began when, as a private first class, his platoon sergeant recommended him to the battalion sergeant major for the unit soldier of the month award. Appearing before a board of non - commissioned officers, Moore won the title and advanced to the next plateau, which is the Division Artillery level.

Here the going got considerably rougher because it involved competition with the artillery "cream of the crop." But a sharp appearance combined with a thorough knowledge of his job and current affairs, both military and national, carried him through victorious.

Now Moore faced the ultimate test. Along with four other selected troopers, he had to appear before six sergeant majors, including Sgt. Maj. Robert L. Brown, the division sergeant major. But after an all-comprehensive questioning period, he emerged number one on the list of contenders for the division title.

Aside from the prestige which accompanies this honor, Moore also received several tangible awards. En route to winning the title he collected two trophies; two letters of commendation; one certificate of achievement, hand written in Old English and signed by Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general, 2nd Infantry Division, a 23-jewel Bulova wrist watch; a check in the amount of $25.00 and a total of three, 3-day passes. Makes you sit up and take notice, doesn't it?

But this wasn't all. The grand prize was awarded to Moore a month later when, as a result of winning the division title, he was promoted to the hard-to-attain rank of specialist fourth class.

Although the honor of the title alone should be enough to motivate the additional effort needed to be extra sharp and soldier-like, the prizes together with the possibility of promotion provide a further incentive.

Sp4 Moore, a native of Baltimore, Md., was graduated from Baltimore City College High School in 1957 and entered the Army on the "Ides of March," 1962, after completing three years of study towards his engineering degree at Johns Hopkins University, located in Baltimore.

Division Awards New Promotions

By Bob de Camara

Promotions made news recently at the 2nd Infantry Division.

The largest group of enlisted men in recent memory to crowd the commanding general's office for stripe-adding sergeants major (the highest enlisted rank), the two first sergeants (the next highest) and two master sergeants.

Each rank carries eight stripes. The sergeant major (and Army super grade) wears a star centered between the stripes. A first sergeant boasts a diamond on his sleeve.

The "Indianhead" Division's old-line 7th Cavalry presented one of the soldiers for sergeant major status, Sgt. Maj. Earl D. Martin. The 2nd Medical Battalion contributed the other man for the top grade. He is Sgt. Maj. James E. Dyer of Headquarters and Support Company.

Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea's office at Division Headquarters was packed on the rainy Saturday morning by division commanders and unit comgeants.

Two artillerymen took the first sergeant raise. They are: 1st Sgt. Donald D. Burright, Battery B of the 15th Artillery, and 1st Sgt. Leonard H. Barnett from Battery B, 17th Artillery.

Walter E. Haralson of Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry and Louis Mojica of Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry became master sergeants.

Commanded to Have Fun. . .

Recreation Is Abundant

DATELINE, LITTLE CREEK, VA. . .They have been "commanded" to have fun.

And so an officer and an enlisted man from the 2nd Division's 2nd Brigade Headquarters have set about seeing that 2,000 2nd Division soldiers (training here to become qualified for amphibious landings) have a good time at it.

Two weeks training will be over this week for soldiers of the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry; 38th Artillery; 2nd Battalion, 72nd Armor; and elements of the 2nd Engineer Battalion, 2nd Medical Battalion, 702nd Maintenance Battalion and Headquarters, 2nd Brigade.

When these men return to Fort Benning after Friday's beach assault, their time will have been spiced with all the amusements and recreation that time and weather would allow.

All recreational facilities at the Navy base have been thrown open to 2nd Division soldiers. These include an expansive base gymnasium, a baseball field, Navy-sponsored tours to Williamsburg, Va., and the Norfolk Navy Base.

Soldiers are also offered a chance to go deep sea fishing, or camping, using Special Services equipment.

Carrying out their commander's order to "have fun," Lt. Guenter J. Tisson, 2nd Brigade assistant adjutant and Sgt. Howard T. Enlow, brigade athletic and recreation non - commissioned officer, have kept 2nd Division forces at Little Creek supplied with more sports and amusements than they could possibly take advantage of in their two weeks here.

Shortly after arrival the soldiers began a company level softball tournament. It included teams from 10 companies. Playing two games each night for 10 nights, the tournament closed Monday in 27-degree weather and 25 MPH ocean winds with Company B, 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry declared the winner.

Sgt. Enlow has set foundations for a volley ball tournament to take the place of softball next week for the second training group from Fort Benning.

Cast onto a base carrying both Navy and Marine personnel, 2nd Division soldiers have come to rely upon inter-service cooperation even in their sports life.

Equipment for tournaments has been loaned by the Navy Special Services Officer.

A special field was marked out by the Navy for division softball games and, with volley ball coming up, the soldiers will move onto courts in the Navy's gym.

According to Sgt. Enlow, a total of 57 division soldiers took advantage of the Navy-sponsored tour to Williamsburg. More tours are planned for the next group, including a trip to view the atomic powered aircraft carrier Enterprise.

Deep sea fishing tours (under excellent fishing conditions) off the shores of Virginia Beach are also in store for the second installment of 2nd Division troops coming next week from Fort Benning for the two week amphibious training course.

3rd Brigade Selects a SOM

By 3rd Brigade PIO

The September Soldier of the Month award for the 3rd Brigade was won by Sp4 Henry M. Hammond, Company C, 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry.

Sp4 Hammond competed with three other 3rd Brigade soldiers for the honor. SSgt. Kenneth A. Dorsey, Headquarters Company, 3rd Brigade; Sp4 Leslie S. Miller, 1st Battalion, 72d Armor; and PFC Roy C. Durmire, 4th Squadron, 7th Cavalry were the other candidates.

Each man was selected from a group of candidates in his respective battalion or squadron. After the battalion competition they entered the brigade level competition.

A soldier of the month board, composed of four senior non-commissioned officers and the Brigade sergeant major, Sgt. Maj. James L. Runyon, evaluated each man. The evaluations were compiled and the man with the highest evaluation was selected. Evaluation scores are tabulated on the standards of uniform, military courtesy, personal appearance, military bearing and knowledge.

First Sergeant Newly Assigned To 7th Cavalry

By 7th Cavalry PIO

First Sergeant Lawrence E. Kennedy has been assigned to Headquarters Troop, 7th Cavalry. His last assignment was with the 67th Armor, at Hawaii.

1st Sgt. Kennedy replaced M-Sgt. Herbert R. Elliot, a platoon sergeant of Troop A, who was temporarily performing the duties of 1st Sgt. MSgt. Elliot has returned to his previous duties with Troop A.

1st. Sgt. Kennedy has served as a 1st Sgt. since 1950, but finds a new experience in his duties here in that this is his first Headquarters Unit.

While stationed at Fort Benning once before 1st Sgt. Kennedy was selected as the Third U. S. Army's representative to model the Army's new green uniform.

A native of Amory, Miss., he entered the service from there in 1940.

Top Graduate Joins the 23rd

By 2nd Bn, 23rd Infantry PIO

Recently, Lt. James L. Litton joined Company A, 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

Lt. Litton is a graduate of Tennessee Tech, Cookeville, Tenn. He was designated a distinguished military graduate in Reserve Officer's Training Corps (ROTC).

SGT. BERNATOVITZ

Company First Sergeant Been 'Top' For a Decade

By 1st Bn, 22nd Infantry PIO

As 1st Sgt. of Company B, 1st Battalion, 22nd Infantry, Charles W. Bernatovitz has seen 27 company commanders, countless platoon sergeants and squad leaders come and go.

In January, 1964, 1st Sgt. Bernatovitz will mark his tenth year with this same unit.

"Top" began his Army career in Scranton, Penn., when he enlisted in 1947. He attended basic training at Fort Dix, after which he was promoted to staff sergeant. His first assignment was as 1st Sgt. of Company A, 85th Recon Battalion.

At the age of 20, Sgt. Bernatovitz was promoted to MSgt. and a year later was transferred to Korea as 1st Sgt., Headquarters Company, 8th Army. He was reassigned then to UNCMAC Support Group. The Support Group was then engaged in Operations Big and Little Switch. Both operations dealt with the exchange of prisoners with the communist forces.

During the ten years with "his" company, 1st Sgt. Bernatovitz has seen the unit redesignated from Company F, 145th Infantry to Company B, 85th Infantry, which "gyroed" to Bamberg, Germany, and then to the 29th Infantry. When the unit returned to Fort Benning it was once again redesignated, this time to the present 1st Bn., 22rd Infantry.

"Top," affectionately known far and wide as "Big Bernie," has not only a military attachment to the company; he also looks upon it in a paternal light. These are his boys.

1st Sgt. Bernatovitz was married in June, 1951. He and his wife, Marilyn Lee; his sons, Charles, 11; Johnny, 8; and his daughter, Virginia, 6, reside at Fort Benning.

Engineers Pillow Pugil Stick Site

By 2nd Engineer Battalion PIO

The next time you take a tumble on the pugil stick training course you can thank the 2nd Engineer Battalion for a soft landing.

It was Company A of the 2nd Engineer Battalion who was assigned the task of removing all of the stumps and trees, and hauling a huge amount of sawdust designed to cushion the fall of a pugil stick trainee. Also constructed by the Engineer company were the four large racks. These racks hold the 144 sets of expensive protective equipment worn by the padded stick gladiators of the 2nd Infantry Division.

So when your unit takes the 2nd Division's Pugil Stick training and you find yourself on the ground thank the 2nd Engineers who cushioned your fall.

Supply Mission At Little Creek

LITTLE CREEK, VA.

A small, hardworking outdoor group involved in the 2nd Infantry Division's amphibious landing training at Little Creek is the command and staff of the 2nd Brigade Shore Party.

Brought together on temporary duty from widely scattered backgrounds are Maj. Joseph K. Westbury, executive officer at the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry; Capt. Charles L. Sherman IV, S-3 (Air) at the 4th Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry; Lt. Gary B. Gilmore, platoon leader at Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor; and SSgt. Howard W. Flora, reconnaissance sergeant at Headquarters, 2nd Engineer Battalion.

The mission of a shore party is to maintain supplies of ammunition, food, medical equipment and fuel for troops which have landed on the beach and established fortified beach perimeters.

These supplies must come from the landing ships which are either cruising or at-anchor near the shore and it is up to the shore party to order them from the ships by radio and issue them to the defenders of the beach.

7th Cavalry Completes Training at Fort Stewart

By 7th Cavalry PIO

The 4th Squadron, 7th Cavalry, under the command of Lt. Col. J. L. Keown, has just completed two weeks training in tank gunnery at Fort Stewart, Ga. A total of men of the "Gary Owen" unit participated in the program.

Tae gunnery program is an annual event for the Cavalry. The exercise included the firing of Tank Tables I through VIII-B. These tables are designed to test and improve the ability of tank crews to detect and take under fire certain targets. These targets are both stationary and moving and are engaged with both sub-caliber weapons and the 90-milimeter main gun. Proficiency in the use of these weapons is the thing that gives armored units its noted fire power.

The firing included both day and night firing. The night firing was aided by the use of searchlight tanks and illuminating rounds furnished by the 15th Artillery battalion. In both day and night firing all three tank weapons were used.

The 7th Cavalry had an unusually high percentage of its tankers to qualify. Of the 23 crews firing, 19 made qualifying scores. It was reported by the Fort Stewart S-3 that the 7th Cavalry had over 40 per cent hits on moving targets on Table V. This high percentage compares favorably to the eight or nine percent of hits normally scored on this table.

The crew having the highest score was commanded by SSgt. James Tolbert. The remainder of the crew included gunner PFC Robert L. Evans, loader PFC Larry L. Price and driver James L. Freeman. This crew scored 1835 points and joined the elite group of experts. This crew is the Headquarters Troop tank section and was the only one to make the expert qualification.

SSgt. James G. Hyatt's crew of the 3rd Platoon, Troop A tank section had the second highest score of 1780 and qualified as sharpshooter. The other members of this crew are gunner Sgt. Eugene Waters, loader PFC Donnie G. Rose and driver PFC Steve A. Yurisich.

The gunnery program concluded a long intense summer training program for the 7th Cavalry. The squadron will continue its training at Fort Benning with selected units completing phase three of the Counter-Insurgency Course.

Army's Electronics Commander Inspects 2nd Division's Display

By Bob de Camara

If the commanding general of the U. S. Army's Electronics Command wanted a firm idea of the point at which esoteric communications theory clashes with communications in actual practice, what would he do?

The chances are good that he'd do the same as Maj. Gen. Frank W. Moorman did, the man who happens to hold that title as top electronics wizard at the Army Signal Center, Fort Monmouth, N. J. He'd visit the 2nd Infantry Division.

This wasn't the first experience for Gen. Moorman with the "Indianhead" Division. On Swift Strike III, the annual unlimbering exercise of many combat-ready Air Force and Army units in the continental United States, Gen. Moorman followed the progress of the division through a series of quick-strike battles and long farflung battle lines which severely tested communications' reliability.

His second look at how the division is implementing its equipment took place under ideally serene circumstances.

Radios powered by hand-cranked generators, radio vans, tanks, artillery pieces, armored personnel carriers and their complement of transmittal gear and more radios of every size, type and description plus component parts were lined up on Wetherby Field this week when the general strode onto the field engulfed by a host of division commanders and officers.

The field, a big one, was blanketed with an orderly array of electronics equipment and familiar articles of land warfare which include, as a part of their ordinary makeup, electronics equipment.

What Gen. Moorman actually saw was an infantry battalion, the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry, with its standard gear and the standard gear of its supporting units which would normally be assigned for training exercises or actual war.

Every division infantry battalion can count on the clockwork support of armor, artillery and air power. To keep the whole stew coordinated and take in orders for fire support, dozens of radios and other gadgets are established from point to crucial point in the network.

The two-star visitor plunged right into the lengthy inspection, beginning with what the smallest force (the squad) uses up to the mammoth complex the battalion he can call on.

At virtually every display, Gen. Moorman was sure to question the officer or noncommissioned officer in charge as to the expert's recommendations for modifying, scrapping or keeping the specific item. He appeared to weigh the individual's decisions carefully and occasionally took notes or asked for clarification.

As Lt. Col. Donald Lanier, the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry's commander, stated during a coffee break, "The general is here with a view towards improving, changing or eliminating equipment."

There are no final hard decisions involved with the general's tour. The inspection on Wetherby Field is a preliminary show to elicit from the men a first-hand reaction to use of the gear.

(L-R) Gen. Billingslea and Gen. Moorman

Besides plunging into a lengthy inspection, Gen. Moorman also plunged into a low-key controversy on the relative merits of "wireless" sets versus stringing ground wire.

MSgt. Joe Camp, a 19-year veteran of the armor, artillery and infantry and presently Division Artillery communications sergeant, made a point for ground wire backed up by Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general of the 2nd Division.

Artillery had no communications problems during Swift Strike III. "At some command posts we had as much as 160 miles of wire laid," said Sgt. Camp.

Earlier in the walk around Wetherby Field, Gen. Moorman had heard from another instructor that a "good wire team can put down three to five miles of wire per hour." The wire is unraveled from spools on the back of jeeps.

Other reasons for communications effectiveness or ineffectiveness brought out in the general's visit were radio sites and the experience of the "commo" team.

A high antenna or one on high ground will, of course, receive better than one hedged in by hills or trees. A general consensus agreed that radio equipment in the hands of an experienced operator will perform better than handled by a novice.

"This equipment depends on men who know the idiosyncracies of the set. You'll get better results from them than from the greenhorn who is told to press a button and talk," testified Col. Lanier.

While Gen. Moorman looked over tanks and armored personnel carriers belonging to the 1st Tank Battalion, 72nd Armor, he was escorted by Lt. Col. Arthur J. Lochrie, tank battalion commander.

The artillery gear on the field was contributed by Division artillery and the 17th Artillery.

Much of the explanation of the 38th Infantry's own radios which sat waiting for the general on tables, in trucks and, mostly, in jeeps was given by the commander of Headquarters Company, Lt. Robert Lawrence, who walked ahead of the general to each piece and pointed out the system with a two-yard long pointer.

An Air Force captain, John Keller, gave his own explanation. In peacetime the 2nd Division maintains three Air Force officers. In wartime, each battalion would alone have two, a sizeable increase.

Capt. Keller stood alongside his jeep with two enlisted men, A-2C Richard Anderson, the radio's operator, and A-1C Keith Schindewolf, maintenance man. All three wore blue scarves of the Tactical Air Command contrasting to the camouflage neckpiece on the infantrymen clustered about Gen. Moorman.

The captain explained and demonstrated on the radio the calling in of air support such as the supersonic swept-wing jet aircraft which in times of trouble would be a boon to the hard-pressed foot soldier.

In essence, the aircraft would do the same job as divisions's own artillery.

And both artillery and air power would be lacking without the radios to call for and direct the strike.

In all, what Gen. Moorman saw this morning in company with Gen. Billingslea, Brig. Gen. John T. Corley and Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, assistant division commanders; Col. William J. Ray, 1st Brigade Commander; Sgt. Maj. Robert L. Brown, division sergeant major; and other high-ranking division officers was a complex, seemingly inexplicable (to the outsider) communications arrangement for directing successful battalion battlefield operations.

The radios that slip on a man's back, the jeep-mounted and truck-mounted radios, the radios in vans and tanks, the switchboards reminiscent of science fiction movies and the hundred other bits of paraphernalia are made by scientists for use by technicians.

A Dog is Lost

BY CARL HALSTEAD

Now, no one has disputed the old adage that a dog is man's best friend. He is a pal, a pet and a guardian. He scratches fleas, chases cats, and is a fond admirer of our national program for the preservation of forests. But, how many have ever heard of a canine reveille bugler? Especially one in the lost and found department.

Well, the 2nd Infantry Division's Company B, 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry has found one that someone lost.

Two weeks ago a dog was found walking the woods near Ruth Range by a 23rd Infantry sergeant. The dog ran up to the sergeant and followed him to the company's bivouac area. There the friendly stranger was turned over to Capt. Gregory P. Dillon, the company commander, and seemed to take to him like a lost friend.

That same evening, during a firing of a "Mad Minute," the dog proved gun-shy and tried to bolt. Capt. Dillon assumes that the dog's owner must have brought him to the rehearsal the previous night and during the firing the dog ran.

The mixture of German Shepherd and Collie blood is well mannered and obeys all commands. He is very gentle with children, well trained and seems accustomed to persons attired in fatigue uniforms.

Since his discovery he has remained with the company. He spends the daytime in the company orderly room and has free run of the building. During the night he is taken home by Capt. Dillon or Lt. Fred L. Hasen, the company executive officer, where he plays with the children in the neighborhood.

However, sharply at six a.m. each morning the dog awakens, and in turn sounds reveille by barking loud and clear. And, if the bedroom door is ajar, he follows up his alarm clock routine by pawing or nudging with his cold nose.

The playful Rin Tin Tin loves to ride in jeeps and has shown only one unfriendly attitude — he doesn't take too kindly to Capt. Dillon's pet cat.

Although the dog adjusts easily it seems to miss its master. Capt. Dillon believes the pet belongs to someone in the military that might be living off the military reservation.

There have been numerous phone calls requesting the dog if the owners are not found. However, it is Capt. Dillon's intention to keep the dog for a company mascot if the owner is not located.

The Shepherd-Collie is very large; about three feet on all fours. It has a thick, black and cream coat of hair, and wears a collar with a 1963 Kern County, California dog license.

The owner of the pet should contact Capt. Dillon by calling 544-3641, and show concrete proof of ownership.

Deciding upon a temporary name for the dog brought out the genius of the Infantrymen. They have named him . . . "LG."

Even Chow Is Different For Little Creek Soldiers

LITTLE CREEK, Va. — The hardest, noisiest and, probably, most argumentative job among those held by members of the 2nd Infantry Division's liaison Site Support Group at Little Creek, went to the division food services chairman.

SFC Porter T. Davis of the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion has his hands full with the over-all responsibility of feeding the two individual groups of more than 4,000 Army troops training at the U.S. Naval Amphibious Training Center.

Sgt. Davis is predominantly a diplomat because all the "KP's" and a few cooks are Army men, and the dining rooms, galleys, food, recipes and chief cooks are strictly U.S. Navy. The Navy cooks, who are called "galley captains," prepare all the meals, and the Army cooks and KP's serve them to the troops. The Navy word for kitchen police is "mess cooking," which is slightly more dignified but means the same thing.

Sgt. Davis has been division food services chairman for nearly two years. Former headquarters mess steward with the 87th Infantry, his decorations and awards include two Army Commendation Ribbons, the Combat Infantryman's Badge and Good Conduct Medal (4 awards).

2nd of 23rd Shows Prowess At Local JCOC

By 2nd Bn, 23rd Infantry PIO

The excellent showing of the 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry on Operation Swiftstrike III earned the unit an important role in the Joint Civilian Orientation Course held last week.

Personnel from the battalion teamed with other Fort Benning organizations to exhibit the modern Army in today's warfare.

Capt. Gregory P. Dillon, Commanding Officer of Company B, reinforced his company with soldiers from the other companies of the battalion and weapons of other organizations.

His part in the program was divided into three phases of a company in defense. First, the discussion entitled "The Role a Rifle Company Plays in the Battalion Defense Plan" was held. Then, the demonstration of each weapon, their characteristics and fire power, was shown with each weapon fired separately. The final phase was the attack by the aggressor force.

Soldier of The Year Reenlists at Little Creek

LITTLE CREEK, VA.

The open mouth of a Navy landing craft at Little Creek Cove, U.S. Naval Amphibious Base, Norfolk, Va. was the scene of a reenlistment ceremony held recently for a 2nd Infantry Division career soldier.

Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, assistant division commander, looked on as PSgt. Melvin M. Hanson of the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry was sworn to serve for six more years. Also present was Lt. Col. Donald T. Paul, commanding officer at the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry, and Lt. Kerap S. Nalbandian, S-2 officer.

Twice chosen as the "Indianhead" Division Soldier of the Year, Sgt. Hanson is assigned as S-2 operations sergeant, and formerly served with the 6th Infantry Regiment at Berlin, Germany, and in Munich with the 370th Armor Infantry Battalion.

Honor graduate at the Seventh Army Noncommissioned Officer Academy in 1953, Sgt. Hanson was a member of the Reserve Officer Training Corps Instructor Group at the University of Miami, Fla. from 1954 to 1957.

His awards and decorations include the Expert Infantryman's Badge, Good Conduct Medal (three awards), Occupation Ribbon with Berlin Airlift device and the Humane Action Ribbon.

A native of Fargo, N.D., Sgt. Hanson enjoys hunting, fishing and water skiing. He lives with his wife, Ardelle, and son, Ricky, at 132 F Baker Street, Fort Benning.

Hard Working Medics Train for Field Exercise

By Support Comand PIO

This past week the 2nd Medical Battalion's area was a "Bee Hive" of activity as unit members pitched in full co-operation for field exercises and drill competition.

Company B will be replacing Company C for the next two weeks at Little Creek, for amphibious training. The Medics have a dual purpose during the exercise, as it is their responsibility to train and also to provide general medical support of the "Indianhead" Division.

Headquarters and Support Company of the 2nd Medical Battalion also found themselves engaged in field training this week as they left on September 26 for a three day exercise in the Fort Benning area. The purpose of this training was to receive instruction in counter - guerrilla operations. The three day exercise was highlighted by a night problem designed to allow application of the instruction received.

1ST BRIGADE'S DINNER ON THE LAWN IS AN APPETIZING AFFAIR

Sunday Lawn Dinner Conducted at 1st Brigade

PFC Louis Monchamp held up the deep-fried, Southern - style chicken leg and regarded it with an experienced eye. Then he took a bite.

"Man," he announced with the air of finality, "This sure is finger-lickin' good."

The occasion was a dinner-on-the-lawn, held last Sunday morning near Sand Hill's Chapel 3 immediately following the eleven o'clock Protestant service. Sponsored by Headquarters Company, 1st Brigade, the dinner was a resounding success.

The dinner table itself was a veritable cornucopia of edibles. Pies, cakes, chicken, roast beef, salads and hot buttered rolls were the order of the day. Donated by the wives of the officers and enlisted men of the 1st Brigade, the variety and quality of the home - cooked meals were enough to make even the most hardened mess steward gnash his teeth in envy.

Col. William J. Ray, commanding officer of the 1st Brigade, joined with his men in the dinner, which began with a prayer of Thanksgiving offered by Chap. (Capt.) John E. Green. Thereafter, everyone from the very small to the very tall lined up at the buffet-style table with their plates and enjoyed a delicious dinner.

Among those 1st Brigade families donating food for the dinner were: Maj. and Mrs. David A. Forsythe, Capt. and Mrs. Thornton A. Burns Jr., Capt. (Chap.) and Mrs. Duie R. Jernigan, Capt. and Mrs. Douglas R. Harris, Capt. and Mrs. William L. Flynn, Lt. and Mrs. William R. Dydell, Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. Lory Bell, 1st Sgt. annd Mrs. Walter E. Sentell Jr., MSgt. and Mrs. Caswell H. Edwards, Sgt. and Mrs. Thomas O. Finch, and PFC and Mrs. William A. Grant.

Every picture says something to the viewer. In photography, as in all forms of communication, we have more success in transmitting our message if we keep it clear and simple.

This week we are using two photographs to illustrate the difference between a poor solution and a more satisfactory solution to the transmission of the same photographic message.

Let's assume that our intention is to express "This is a particular girl that I know. Isn't she pretty?" The first picture says instead, "This is a scene. It includes a fence and a barrel and a pole and a girl. The fence needs paint. The girl is in some kind of pain. Maybe the handbag is too heavy. Maybe the sun is in her eyes. Maybe she doesn't like the photographer."

The second picture comes closer to our message by saying, "This is a particular girl. She is pretty. She looks friendly, too. Girls are smoother than trees. That's nice."

We fudged just a little in the second picture and used a flash bulb to fill the shade that Mabel was in. This is a technique that we plan to cover in a future column. Mainly, though, all we did was move closer to her.

Let's have your comments, questions or pictures to use in the column.

Send all photographs to the EDITOR, 2nd Infantry Division "Bayonet." Process through your unit PIO. All pictures will be returned if requested.

1st of 38th Drain Pipe Was Literally Littered

By Bradley A. Zachau

It was just like any other Sunday night to the members of the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry —cool, a small breeze coming from the north, and no moon to speak of. There was not a thing to worry about, nor was there anything funny about a small dog going down into the drain pipe for the night.

She was a friendly looking dog that had been around the Battalion area for about three or four weeks. She never bothered anyone, and you could find her sunning herself most every day under the big trees near 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry headquarters.

But, that Sunday night was not just any night for this little lady, because, at sometime during the night the friendly white and brown spotted dog that entered that drain pipe had a litter of five puppies; two white with brown spots; two with black spots, and one black with a white collar.

The puppies were found Monday morning by Sgt. Albert L. Burgin and PFC Andrew W. Wilson of Company C, 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry, while leaving Company C's class room.

Club Work With Organizations Is Nothing New to Mrs. Coe

MRS. COE

By Virginia Freeman

Ladies of the Big Indianhead is an extremely fortunate organization in that many of its actively interested committee chairmen and members bring to the club a wealth of organizational experiences.

Club work as well as work with organizations isn't new to Mrs. Emery R. Coe who has been an active chairman, executive officer, and member of non - commissioned officers wives clubs and an active chairman in the Parent Teachers Association.

A native Californian, having been born and raised in Los Angeles, Mrs. Coe's vocational interest led her into the unique occupation of a long distance telephone operator. "What a factor distance became as we travelled across the United States from Fort Lewis, Wash. to Fort Hamilton, N.Y. to embark on one of two trips to Germany," says Mrs. Coe.

On their first tour of duty the Coe's were stationed in Landshut, later moving to Gelhausen, Germany.

Giessen, Germany was home during their second tour and during their stay Mrs. Coe served a term of office as secretary of the NCO Wives Club.

Here at Fort Benning, serving as Hospitality Chairman of Ladies of the Big Indianhead, she plans the monthly luncheon menus and table decorations, and also prepared something enjoyable for the ladies at the business meetings.

The Coe's called Fort Knox, Ky. home for two years and it was here that Mrs. Coe served in the capacity of Hospitality Chairman for the Parent Teachers Association.

"I'm interested only in faces," states Mrs. Coe concerning a fascinating hobby of drawing.

PSgt. Emery R. Coe, a member of Troop B, 7th Cavalry and Mrs. Coe are parents of three children: Cindy, Robert and Suzette.

"Traveling with my husband until his retirement is what I look forward to now and in the future we plan to live permanently in California."

The Coe's, residents of the Fort Benning community, reside on Arrowhead Road.

S & T Ladies Hold Fall Coffee

Mrs. Alfred Klem and Mrs. J. D. Obrian recently co-hosted the first fall coffee of the ladies of the 2nd Division Supply and Transport Battalion.

The informal coffee featured a buffet table arrangement of finger tip pastries, with a centerpiece of marigolds.

Attending for the first time were Mrs. R. A. Pauley, Mrs. K. B. Smith and Mrs. R. R. Glover.

Farewell was said to Mrs. Obrian, whose husband is being transferred from the unit.

17th Artillery Holds Coffee

The home of co-hostess Mrs. Thomas Collier was the recent scene of the monthly Coffee of the ladies of the 17th Artillery. Mrs. David Stonecipher assisted.

A centerpiece of yellow marigold and red zinnias dressed the table from which Mrs. Joseph Boisvert poured.

Following the coffee a short business meeting was held and Mrs. Shizumura was appointed to serve on the welcoming committee.

Mrs. Biddle Is Honored

Septembers' last week was one of farewell for Mrs. Kenneth Biddle as the ladies of the 37th Artillery honored her at their monthly Coffee.

Hostess for the occasion was Mrs. Charles Wendt.

Mrs. Charles Dunn and Mrs. Gary McCory were welcomed to the group.

New 2nd Division Calendar Aired on 'Rozelle' TV Show

Following considerable research, much worry about the right color to wear, and a strenuous effort to control those last minute butterfly nerves, Mrs. Charles Billingslea and Mrs. Lucien F. Keller made their local TV debut on a recent broadcast of the "At Home With Rozelle Show."

In an effort to keep local Columbus families, military families, and the area's retired military pesonnel informed on the history and most recent activities of the constantly changing "2nd to None" Indianhead Division, the ladies gave a brief talk on the merits of the new 2nd Division Engagement calendar.

Displaying the loose-leaf, 16-month calendar, styled in attractive Infantry Blue, the 2nd Division wives emphasized its convenience (lots of readily available space to note those often forgotten dental appointments, club meetings, and PTA gathering), and the fact that the wealth of historical information within, including the divisions 1958 relocation here at Fort Benning, make the book a genuine area momento. The calendar is ideal as a Christmas gift, an invaluable aid to the busy housewife, and the perfect answer to the questions of the friends and relatives that want to better understand your Army life, its history and traditions.

APPEARS ON TV . . . (L-R) Mrs. Lucien Keller and Mrs. Charles Billingslea research material prior to appearing on the "Rozelle" television program in sponsoring the sale of the new 2nd Division calendars.

Mrs. Billingslea, wife of the division commander, and Mrs. Keller, wife of the division chief of staff, presented Rozelle with an Engagement Calendar on behalf of the ladies of the 2nd Division's Wives Club.

The TV audience was advised that the new calendars may be purchased through Mrs. Burnside Huffman (545-3590), or by contacting any member of the Wives Club.

The books, selling for $1.50, will also be available at a special "Indian Teepee" on October 26 at the 2nd Divisions' Organization Day Parade.

Kingston Trio Fan Is Talented PFC

By 1st Bn., 23rd Infantry PIO

ABC Television has its "Hootenanny" on Saturday night, but the 23rd Infantry has PFC Don Biggs every day. Don reaches for his guitar the moment his duty is through and doesn't put it down until far into the night when the lingering spell of sleep pulls him out of action.

Don has been belting out folk songs since his early days at Boulder High, in Boulder, Colo. There he entertained his friends and classmates at school talent shows, assemblies, athletic rallies, and at mountain beach parties, aptly named "woodsies."

The Kingston Trio (his favorite group) was responsible for the kick-off of a great interest in folk music for Biggs. Don can be heard singing many of the Trio's hits and, for fun, imitating Nick Reynolds. Peter Paul and Mary, and Bob Gibson are also favorites of the young singer.

PFC Biggs won the Kelley Hill Talent Contest in conjunction with the All Army Talent Show; but on the eve of the Post eliminations he was sent to the hospital for an operation on his knees. While recovering from his surgical bout at Martin Army Hospital, Don managed to smuggle in his guitar for a little practice in the Dayroom. Some of the members of the staff heard him singing and asked him to entertain some of the other patients in the hospital. This he did.

Several of the Service Clubs have invited Don to perform at both Fort Benning and Fort Gordon. He has also played at the YMCA, in Columbus.

The young singer and balladeer is presently a clerk with the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry at Kelley Hill. Every night he can be found exercising his talents with his tireless repertoire of folk songs, many of which are products of his own rich imagination.

Don plans to return to Boulder, Colo., to complete the requirements for his BA degree at the University of Colorado, upon completion of is military service.

Capt. Proctor Becomes 1st Brigade Assistant S-3

By 1st Brigade PIO

Capt. William H. Proctor III, formerly the S-2 officer of the 2nd Battalion, 87th Infantry, has recently joined the staff of the 1st Brigade, 2nd Infantry Division.

Capt. Proctor is a 1955 graduate of the University of Alabama, where he majored in history. Receiving his commission through the Reserve Officer Training Corps program, Capt. Proctor spent an additional year at the University studying law before reporting to Fort Benning in June 1957 to attend the Basic Infantry Officers' Course and Airborne School. Later that year, he was assigned as Liaison Officer for the Chief of Staff, 1st Infantry Division, Fort Riley, Kan.

"Gyroscoping" to Europe with the 2nd Battle Group, 28th Infantry in 1958, Capt. Proctor was assigned as Assistant S-1 upon arrival. He later served within the same battle group as a platoon leader in Company B and as executive officer of Headquarters Company.

Assigned to Fort Benning and the 2nd Infantry Division in June 1962, Capt. Proctor served as the executive officer, Company E, 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry, and later as the S-3 (Air) of the same unit. In August 1963 he was assigned to his present position as assistant S-3, 1st Brigade.

Capt. Proctor is a recipient of the Expert Infantryman's Badge and the coveted Parachutist's Badge. His hobbies include skiing and swimming.

Capt. Proctor, his wife, Margot, and their two children, Jean, 7, and Sandra, 5, reside at 347 McCartha Drive, Columbus.

Acting Guerilla Forces Learn During Training

By 1st Bn, 23rd Infantry PIO

The men of Companies B and C, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry, are gaining valuable experience while assisting in the 2nd Division's Counter-Guerilla Reaction Course.

These personnel are acting as "guerilla forces" against other 2nd Division units who are participating in this unique training.

Lt. Richard F. Rockwell of Company C, is the officer in charge of the guerilla activities, and his able assistants include SSgt. Carl E. Kelly, SSgt. Hubert Oliver, Sgt. Jose Landy, Sgt. Albert McMillian, Sgt. Jackie Hunt and Sgt. Daniel Kelly, all from Company C.

Recognizing and obtaining native food and methods of finding water are two important factors covered during the training. A high point of the course comes when members of the class are called upon to kill and clean a small animal.

Mortar Section Ends Training

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Two weeks of training was completed by the mortar section of the 4th Squadron, 7th Cavalry recently at Fort Stewart, Ga. The training consisted of classes, crew drill and live fire exercises that were concluded in the last two days there.

Lt. James B. Johnson of Headquarters Troop was the officer in charge and Sgt. Nehemiah Lewis of Troop C was the non-commissioned officer in charge. Instructors for the classes were the squad leaders from each troop's mortar section.

Escaped Across The Border to Freedom. . .

1st Brigade PFC Lived Through Hungarian Revolution

By Jay R. Sharbutt

"We had gathere din Bem Square, in Budapest," said Adam Szabo. "It was late afternoon then. The State Security Police showed up and told us to go home. We didn't want any trouble, so we went home. It was different the next morning, though."

PFC Adam Szabo was speaking of his native Hungary. Currently with the 1st Brigade, 2nd Infantry Division, PFC Szabo was one of the many students and workers who served with the Freedom Fighters in the Hungarian Revolution of October, 1956.

Born in 1938 in Chakvar, Hungary, Adam Szabo was in his second year of studies at the University of Budapest when the revolution broke out on the morning of October 23, 1956.

"At the time I was on a streetcar, on my way to school," said Szabo, a quiet, mild - mannered soldier who just recently became a U.S. citizen. "Near the university, a crowd of students and workers had stopped two Russian staff cars. There was a lot of shouting. Some of the students pulled up stones from the street and threw them at the cars. The windows were shattered and the crowd was getting pretty rough. But they finally let them go."

That afternoon, there was a large public demonstration, mostly young people who had gathered in front of the statue of General Joszeph Bem, a Pole who had helped the Hungarian revolution against the Hapsburgs in 1848. They carried with them a 16-point freedom manifesto, which called primarily for the freedom of speech, freedom of worship, freedom from slavery, and the abolishment of the hated State Security Police (AVH), nicknamed "Avoc" by the Hungarian people.

Szabo was on his way to take part in the demonstrations when suddenly the Avos opened up with rifle and machine - gun fire upon the crowd. Some of the demonstrators were able to take cover behind the statues in the courtyard. Others were not as fortunate.

Bitter fightings raged for days in the streets and buildings of Budapest. "The Russians brought in tanks at the beginning of the revolution," said Szabo. "At first, they used only their machine-guns on the people sniping from the buildings. Later on, they used their cannons."

Midway through November, Budapest's radio and newspapers, captured by the onset of the revolution, were retaken by Russian forces. Through them, the Hungarians were told their cause was hopeless and to return to their schools and jobs. The city was completely ringed by Russian tanks. Gradually, the fighting died down. The revolution was over.

"I returned to the university," said Szabo. "Everything was quiet for two or three days. Then the police came around and started asking questions. When that happened, my cousin and I decided it might be best for us to leave Hungary."

It was raining the day they left Budapest by train to 'see' Szabo's uncle, who was a college professor living in Gyor, a small town two miles from the Austrian border. Upon reaching Gyor, they were questioned by police, but their papers and answers were correct and they were permitted to continue.

"It was rather difficult after that," said Szabo, in a masterful piece of understatement. "There we were, walking along in the rain at eight o'clock in the evening. We had no food and, more important, no map. We knew we were near the border, but we had no way of knowing how near."

Eventually they came to a river. A hundred yards downstream was a bridge, apparently unguarded. Deciding to chance it, Szabo and his cousin started across. They were stopped by Russian sentries. Taken to a nearby schoolhouse, they were given a warming and train tickets back to Budapest. In the morning, they were put aboard the train by armed guards.

Four miles out of Gyor, however, the two lost their interest in rail travel and jumped from the train as it slowed to round a curve. On their way back to the border, they met a fellow Hungarian who told them he was conducting guided tours to Austria. For a price, would they be interested? They were, and by nightfall were in a little band of ten people on their way to freedom. Or so they thought.

"We walked for approximately five hours with this man," said Szabo. "Finally we came to a white cement pole, which our guide told us was a border marker. We shook hands with him, wished us good luck and left. We felt pretty good then. We lit up cigarettes and started walking. After a while, we came to a bridge."

Szabo grinned ruefully and shook his head. "I don't think our guide was too accurate, to be honest, for that matter. The same Russians who had captured my cousin and I were there."

Taken back to the same schoolhouse where they had spent the previous night, Szabo, his cousin, and the other eight refugees were interrogated by an officer, whose main line of questioning regarded the recent revolution in Budapest. He wanted to know the names of people who had taken part in the uprising. He was notably unsuccessful.

Thrown into a cellar beneath the schoolhouse, Szabo and his cousin found themselves in the mist of forty other Hungarians who had been captured in their attempt at freedom. It was bitter cold that night and they'd had no food for four days. They huddled together for warmth and tried to sleep.

"In the morning, we heard shots," said Szabo. "The cellar door was thrown open and a young Hungarian boy told us to run. We thought at first that it might be a trick. But there were no Russians anywhere, and we ran."

Teaming up with some of his countrymen, Szabo located some bread and found a hiding place in a wooded area near the border. At nightfall, they started moving and walked in a light rain until they came across an open strip of land. Beyond that was a watchtower and barbed wire.

"We'd heard stories of mines and electrificed wire at the borders," said Szabo. "My cousin decided to act as guide. We followed him across the ground at ten-meter intervals. He found the barbed wire was not electrified, so he dug a hole beneath it and crawled under. We followed him."

The refugees walked two hundred yards further, once they were beyond the sight of the guards in the watchtower. They were stopped by an Austrian policeman, who took them to a small village. From there, they were taken to a small farmhouse and given lodgings for the night. It was three o'clock in the morning, December 16, 1956.

"The Red Cross was there," said Szabo, "and they gave me a cup of hot chocolate and doughnuts. I set them down on the table by my bed. But I was so tired, I must have fallen asleep right away. In the morning, though, they were still there, so I had my breakfast in bed. It felt pretty good to be free."

Local Chapels Attendance Up

By 1st Brigade PIO

Sand Hill's Chapel 3 has recently been the scene of increased religious activity. Beginning on Sunday, 15 September, both Catholic and Protestant attendance was more than doubled. Chap. (Capt.) Duie R. Jernigan, 1st Brigade chaplain, said: "The reason for this may be either the recently conducted joint 1st and 3rd Brigade retreat, or the fact that the Brigades and their attached units have just begun sponsoring these religious services." He went on to add that very likely it was a combination of both and that he believed the increased church attendance would continue.

In conclusion, Chap. Jernigan said the other religious activities at Chapel 3 would remain the same, with the exception of a new worship service at 9 a.m. on Sundays. This will be a Protestant service and will be sponsored by the 3rd Brigade.

Carl Halstead's 'After Hours'

Just Ask the Kids About a Soldier

It is the beginning of another day. Housewives clear away the breakfast dishes and the menfolk are back at work. Shopping centers and other business establishments are in full swing, and the bustling noise of life is everywhere.

Suddenly, the sounds similar to gunfire and battle cries ring out, and there edging around trees and over hedges can be seen the barrels of rifles, machine - guns and helmeted soldiers. Then sere hour arrives and a dozen kids charge across the back yard making their verbal sounds of gunships. They race across their imaginary "No Man's Land" fighting for their make-believe Pork Chop Hill.

Part of Growing Up

Back as far as one can remember, children have always played soldier. Boys are generals and the girls are privates. Small red wagons suddenly become Patton Tanks, and tricycles lumber across the battle zones as supply trucks. Toy guns, uniforms and GI lingo is all part of growing up.

To children, playing soldier is as important a childhood trait as cowboys and Indians. They fire a hundred shots from an eight - clip rifle and then stand in the middle of their Omaha Beach and argue over whether or not they were hit.

One of the most important facts that surrounds this child's play seems to be always overlooked. And, that is WHY they play soldier.

Youngsters are eager to idolize a hero. And when they imitate a Roy Rogers or GI Joe they are doing nothing more than expressing their tribute to them. They are admiring and praising someone in the only way they know how — through a child's world of daydreams.

Grownups look upon soldiers a little differently. In time of national crisis and war they are the greatest. A man in uniform is looked-up to and respected. He is the power that will defend and protect the property and rights of the nation's population. And, he always does just that.

Then, when there is no danger, things change. For some reason or another, a soldier doesn't quite have the same respect and acceptance that comes during wartime. To some people he becomes a necessary bother that has to be tolerated. He is a loudmouth, a bum, a person who "can't make it on the outside." All this, simply because he wears a uniform. Yet, he is still the same guy who attended college, worked at the neighborhood drugstore, or shoveled the snow off grandma's porch each winter. He has not changed at all; only in the minds of others.

Slowly but surely today's soldiers are building a reputation that makes them equal to their wartime counterparts. Their behavior and appearance while in towns, and participation in civic functions, are gradually eliminating the erroneous classification tag that for years has been pinned upon them.

It All Takes Time

But, all this takes time. People are still quick to condemn. If a few uniformed soldiers live it up on a Saturday night you can always hear words like: "Look at those soldiers! It's a shame they are allowed on the streets." And yet, charging down the avenues dressed in Ivy League sweaters and singing "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," the same young men would only bring soft chuckles like: "My! My! Isn't that Martha Jones' boy? Why, the little devil!" Yes, it's going to take time.

But, wherever are heard unfounded remarks against a GI, they are quickly forgotten by the sight of children playing soldier. Because to them; once a hero, always a hero. And you know, the world could learn a lot from its children, if it wanted to.

Army Fatigue Uniforms Shakes Up a Navy Base

LITTLE CREEK, Va. . . . There has been some confusion here at the U. S. Navy's amphibious training center about uniforms.

For 2nd Infantry Division soldiers visiting the base for amphibious training, the green army fatigue uniform has been their badge of membership in the Strategic Army Corps. It shows they are ready to be committed at any time to any world crisis.

Frantic telephone calls received at 2nd Division Site Support Unit Headquarters from base officials, however, have shown that the Navy doesn't think this way.

To them, it seems, the fatigue uniform is for "dirty work", and shouldn't be seen just anywhere.

The answer for the 2nd Division has been a compromise. The fatigue uniform has lost some of its prestige and division soldiers consult a detailed list to make sure they won't be "out of uniform" when they move about the base.

Meanwhile, enlisted men of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, generally unfamiliar with distinctions of officer and enlisted men dress between the services, pass daily wondering if perhaps they should have saluted each other.

Donkey! Donkey! Where Is Rocky?

By 1st Bn, 38th Infantry PIO

In the past few weeks I have been asked by a numerous amount of people, "What ever happened to Rocky?"

First of all, for those who do not know who or what Rocky is, Rocky is the mascot of the 38th Infantry. She is a two-year-old donkey that was given to the 38th Infantry by 1st Sgt. Harry L. Dorough's father almost two years ago. (Sgt. Dorough is now in Korea serving with the 8th Army.)

While the 38th was in Germany, Rocky broke her left rear leg going into one of the barracks of the 38th Infantry on Kelley Hill. Rocky is now living on 1st Sgt. Paul M. Kosmiski's farm in Talbotton, Ga., about 20 miles from here. Sgt. Komiski said that he would take care of her until her leg was fully healed.

For those who asked and anyone else who might be interested, Rocky is doing fine. She is eating the flowers, chasing the chickens, and following the children all over the 20-acre farm.

Engineer Capt. Leave for Libya

By 2nd Engineer Battalion PIO

On October 1, 1963; Capt. Eugene J. Randall, who has been with the 2nd Engineer Battalion since October 8, 1962 will depart for his next assignment, located in Libya. While a member of the 2nd Engineers, Capt. Randall has served as company commander of Company C, and as the assistant division engineer of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Meanwhile, on September 23, 1963, the 2nd Engineers received another new officer in the form of Lt. Alan D. Bryant, who will become the executive officer of Headquarters Company. Lt. Bryant is a graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and has attended the Engineer Basic Course at Fort Belvoir prior to his arrival at Fort Benning.

1st Brigade Sgt. Buys the Cigars

By 1st Brigade PIO

The cigar bill of SSgt. Wilbert Alphonse ran higher than expected this month. Promoted to his present rank on September 19, Sgt. Alphonse received a copy of orders authorizing his promotion during a brief afternoon ceremony in the office of Col. William J. Ray, 1st Brigade commanding officer.

A native of Lafayette, La., Sgt. Alphonse entered the Army in October, 1956, and attended Basic and Advanced Infantry Training at Fort Bliss, Texas.

In January, 1957, Sgt. Alphonse joined the 505th AAA Missile Battalion at Fort Totten, N.Y. Transferred to 7th Army Headquarters in Germany later that year, he served in a number of positions, including that of Non-Commissioned Officer in Charge of Classified Repositories.

After returning to the United States in February, 1960, Sgt. Alphonse took a short break in service, then rejoined the Army in September, 1960. Assigned initially to Fort Bragg, N.C., he came to Fort Benning in June, 1961, and was assigned to the personnel section of the now inactivated 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry.

Medics Have Own Little War. . .

Amphibious Training--Aches and Pains

LITTLE CREEK, VA. — A company of soldiers here at the U. S. Navy's amphibious training center is fighting a "war" while taking annual amphibious training alongside 2,000 other members of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Commanded by Lt. Larry E. Eppler, Company C, 2nd Medical Battalion is waging its pains.

Aches and pains attack division soldiers everyday, particularly after training takes them scampering up and down cargo and landing nets preparing for a beach landing on the shores of Camp Pendleton Marine Base, Va.

The majority of division medics here for special training are sharpening their infantry skills. A total of 51 enlisted men and three officers of the division medical battalion are here with the division group. Another medical unit arrived this week to begin their two weeks of training.

The first group brought with them 13 vehicles, including ambulances, jeeps and three - quarter-ton trucks.

They came here on a 750-mile convoy from Fort Benning. The personnel include the Medical Clearing Platoon boasting facilities for modern surgery.

An advance medical element set up a dispensary in the Sheldon area of Little Creek's amphibious training center, and during the first two weeks of training treated more than 450 persons.

This dispensary is run by the medical company's Admissions and Disposition group. It is headed by platoon sergeant SSgt. George F. Wunstell, Jr., whose wife, Betty Jean resides at 43 Munson Drive, Benning Hills, Columbus.

About 40 patients per day are treated at regular sick call by the dispensary.

Doughboys Push Win Skein to 19 With Win Over Navy's Goshawks

By Dave Braun

Fort Benning's unbeaten, unscored on Doughboys racked up 10 points in the first quarter last Saturday night at Pensacola, Fla.'s rain - soaked Kane Stadium and then shut the door on the Naval Air Station team in grabbing victory No. 3 of the season, 10-0.

The win upped the Doughboy's victory skein to 19 straight, only two shy of the record for major post units, set by the Quantico Marines in the mid 1950's.

Failing to make ground following the opening kickoff, the Gohawks's Charles Price punted to Doughboy fullback Brewster Hobby on his own 40 and he returned the ball five yards to the Fort Benning 45.

On first down, Hobby, averaging 14.1 yards per carry before the start of the game, slanted off right tackle for two yards to the 47.

53-Yard TD Pass

Quarterback Marvin Tibbetts then rolled to his right, stopped, and uncorked a 53-yard touchdown pass to the 185 pound Hobby and the Doughboys were in the scoring column. Moments later DeWayne Jeter booted the PAT and with 7:47 remaining in the first quarter Fort Benning led 7-0.

Nearing the end of the initial quarter, the Army squad took over on downs at midfield. On the second play from scrimmage former Syracuse University star Dave Sarette fired an 11-yard pass complete to end Bruce Roach on the Goshawk 39.

Speedster halfback Ken Bolin then scooted to the 26-yard stripe and followed it up by shooting the middle on a trap play to the Pensacola 15.

Halfback Billy Williamson was caught for a yard loss and on second down, Sarette, arched a sideline pass that went incomplete.

With a third down and 11-yards - to - go - situation, Sarette elected to run moving the pigskin to the eight-yard marker. Placement specialist Jeter then came to the rescue with a 25-yard field goal that sailed from the 15 through the uprights 10 yards deep in the end zone.

The Doughboys, who jerked the throttle on a versatile Navy offensive, watched the blue and gold squad make their deepest penetration in the second stanza when Price hit Fred Riddle on a 32-yard pass play to the Fort Benning 27.

Drive Fizzles

The drive fizzled out on a fourth and two situation when Jeter intercepted a Price aerial in the end zone.

Fort Benning — which several times had visions of scoring, only to watch passes thrown to intended receivers in the clear, dropped — made a final effort to increase their margin in the fourth quarter.

When a Pensacola personal foul put the ball on the Goshawk 15, halfback Ron Quillen, picked up two yards to the 13. Quillen then moved for three yards to the 10 and Tibbetts on a keeper picked up a yard to the nine yard line.

Jeter then took a pitchout and darted to the five-yard stripe for a first down after which Bobby Towns bulled to the three.

But on fourth down the Goshawk defensive line jarred the football loose, recovering on the 16 and thus thwarting the drive.

Two Pigskin Powers Return to Prominence

By Ted Williamson

The opening weeks of the 1963 football season have seen the return to prominence of two pigskin powers who have seemingly been in a dormant stage the past few years; We are speaking of the Oklahoma Sooners, once a perrenial power in collegiate ranks, and the Chicago Bears, formerly known as the "Monsters of the Midway" in professional circles.

The Bears stunned the football world in their opening game by upending the defending champion Green Bay Packers 10 to 7. The Bear defense, led by Bill George and skyscraping Doug Atkins, contained the vaunted Packer offense and rookie Bob Jencks kicked the deciding field goal as the Bears emerged the victors in this titanic struggle.

"Pope" Halas' crew followed up their victory over the title-holders with a 28 to 7 win over the up and coming Minnesota Vikings and last Sunday made firm believers out of the Detroit Lions as they staggered the Lions with a 37 to 21 shellacking.

The big difference in the Bears has been the pin-pointing passing of a tall, lanky, slew-footed Texan by the name of Billy Wade. Cast-off by the lowly Los Angeles Rams in favor of Zeke Bratkowski, Wade has found a new home in George Halas' monarchy. Wade's passing in the Bear's first three games has been only slightly less than perfect and has been instrumental in his club's quick getaway.

Wade has been aided by a fine pass-catching corps led by big Mike Ditka and fleet-footed Angie Coia. In Ditka, the Bear's not only have a great pass catcher, but a fine blocker as well. Wade can also depend on flanker-backs Johnny Morris and Jim Dick Bull as reliable targets, and for ground retaliation, he has scatbacks Willie Gallimore and Roosevelt Taylor for speed and fullback Rick Casares for power.

The Bears will face another stiff test Sunday, as the Baltimore Colts move into Wrigley Field, trying to avenge the 56 to 0 trouncing the bears handed them in 1962 in front of their own fans. But for right now, the Bears are resting on top of the heap in the Western Division, with visions of a championship dancing in their heads.

The Oklahoma Sooners vaulted back into the national spotlight last Saturday, as they gave Southern California's defending national champions a very detailed lesson in ball control and dumped the Trojans 17 to 12.

With the temperature on the playing field a scorching 116 degrees, the Sooners guarded the football as though it were a precious hunk of ice, and time after time stubbornly refused to allow the explosive offense of USC to explode.

The powerful running of Sooner backs Joe Don Looney and Jim Grisam and the stiff line play of the Oklahoma line frustrated the Trojans all afternoon, as "Bud" Wilkinsen's eleven played keep away for most of the ball game.

By virtue of their opening win over Clemson, and this week's triumph over Southern Cal, the Sooners are our pick as the No. 1 team in the nation. After last week's first full slate of games, I see the top ten teams as listed below.

1. Oklahoma (2-0)
2. Texas (2-0)
3. Northwestern (2-0)
4. Alabama (2-0)
5. Southern California (1-1)
6. Georgia Tech (2-0)
7. Wisconsin (1-0)
8. Navy (2-0)
9. Mississippi (1-0-1)
10. Air Force (2-0)

I know some of you readers are saying this guy must be nuts, so if you do have a difference of opinion, feel free to drop me a line in care of the Bayonet. Also, if you have any questions, drop us a line and we'll try to dig up an answer and relay it to you through this column.

That big noise you hear from the East is the sound of sportswriters from that area booming Roger Staubach for All-American honors. Staubach is currently in the process of rewriting the Naval Academy record books and quarterbacking the Middies to a possible bowl bid. Competition for honors at this position will be intense, however, as All-American selectors also will have the likes of Tom Myers, Northwestern; Joe Namath, Alabama; Billy Lothridge, Georgia Tech, and Pete Beathard of Southern Cal to select from, just to mention a few.

Our own Doughboys will pick on the Southwestern Florida Athletic Association again tomorrow night at Fort Myers. Having had no trouble with the Floridians in the opening game, the Doughboys can be expected to return home for next Saturday's game with Fort Eustis in fairly good shape. Fort Eustis was national service champs in 1961 and the Doughboys barely edged them last year, 7 to 3, so next weeks game should be a honey.

Halfback Starting Berths Are Towns' and Quillen's

Among Fort Benning's host of fine running halfbacks this season are Ron Quillen and Bobby Towns, who, last year for the Doughboys, scored a combined total of 66 points.

Quillen, a five-foot, nine-inch, 204-pounder has been Fort Benning's bread-and-butter back this year, toting the pigskin 19 times for an average of 4.8 yards per carry.

Named to the All-Ohio Valley Conference in 1959 and 1960 while performing for East Tennessee State College, the hard-running back fell only a percentage point shy of averaging five yards a carry last year for the undefeated Doughboys.

Quillen, who doesn't mind a muddy gridiron and loves to carry the football, will continue his football career with the Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Professional League when he is discharged from active duty.

In 1962 with Edmonton in his first game he scored three touchdowns while operating from the flankerback position and was named Canadian Rookie of the Week.

Last weekend's Pensacola game was Ron's first at full speed, having been hampered by a knee injury the first two games this season.

His running mate in the White or No. 1 team is former University of Georgia star Bobby Towns.

While at Georgia Bobby was a member of the 1960 Orange Bowl Champions and the leading pass receiver in the Southeastern Conference in 1959.

The six-foot, 185-pound halfback also has two years experience with the St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League and the Boston Patriots of the American Football League.

Last season for Fort Benning he tied for the team scoring title with end Fred Murphy with 36 points and this season has picked up 49 yards for an average of four yards per carry.

Venice Raiders Get Second Shot Tomorrow Night

The Fort Benning Doughboys, aiming for their 20th straight victory and their fourth consecutive shutout, head for the Sunshine State again this weekend for a repeat performance Saturday night against the Venice Raiders of Southwest Florida.

On Sept. 7 the Doughboys opened their 1963 football campaign against the same opponent and did a thorough job in rambling to 13 touchdowns and an 88-0 victory.

Thus far this season, over a three game span, the Doughboys have gained 763 total yards on the ground as compared to a meager 74 yards rushing by their opponents.

In the air, the Army team has struck for 231 yards as against 144 for the opposition.

Bolin High

Halfback Ken Bolin, former University of Houston captain his senior year, leads the list of Fort Benning ball carriers with a 12.1 yards average per carry coming on 158 yards in 13 rushes.

Behind Bolin are fullback Brewster Hobby with an average of 9.7 yards per carry coming on 107 yards in 11 carries and speedy halfback Billy Williamson, former Georgia Tech standout, with a 7.4 average on 111 yards in 15 carries.

DeWayne Jeter holds the spotlight in the scoring department with 22 points, included in which are two field goals. Behind Jeter in the scoring parade are quarterback Marvin Tibbetts, another Tech product, with 20 points and Williamson with 18.

Passing Leader

In the passing department the Fort Benning squad has completed 10 of 30 for 144 yards. Tibbets has hit on four of 12 passes for 123 yards and a touchdown, Dave Sarette has connected on five of 19 for 75 yard and one TD, and reserve quarterback Earl Easly has hit the mark on one pass in one attempt for 33 yards. Both Tibbetts and Sarette have had one pass intercepted.

CAPT. DAVIES DONS CRASH HELMET
Post Racer Prepares For Race

Fort Benning Racing Enthusiast Chases Dream Behind the Wheel

By Jerry Stanecki

So you want to drive a race car? Chances are if you are like thousands of other race fans across the country, there could be no greater thrill than to sit behind the wheel of a high speed racing machine reaching almost unbelievable speeds in a race against other men, machines and time.

At least one race fan here at Fort Benning has taken this desire seriously and has done something about it. He's Capt. Richard A. Davis, adjutant of the 2nd Battalion (Composite), 10th Artillery, 197th Infantry Brigade.

Since last November when he purchased a 1958 Porsche Speedster, the racing captain has competed in five major races and has driven through several high compression engines and crankshafts.

Capt. Davis' love affair with the race game started in 1951 when he was a student at Michigan State University. While in school he led a group of fellow students to Indianapolis, Ind., and the famous Memorial Day "500." The ambition to race was born that day, but it was to lay dormant for years.

"There was a good reason for my racing aspirations to sleep for awhile," the captain explained.

"Racing is an expensive sport and at the time and up until last November I couldn't finance it."

In 1960, he received an appointment to the Army Language School at Monterey, Calif., as a prelude to a thirteen month assignment in Saigon, Viet Nam. It was during this assignment that Capt. Davies saved enough money to purchase his first race car.

He bought the car almost immediately after returning stateside to Fort Benning from Capt. Tom Herron, who had raced the car the previous year.

There still remained an unlimited amount of preparation necessary before his 11 year dream could become reality. Training and qualifying as a race driver was step number one.

In February of this year he went to a drivers school in Pensacola, Fla. At this school, sponsored by the Gulf Coast region of the Sports Car Club of America, he learned track safety, driving techniques, track courtesy and had a five hour period of drivers observation. Also during the training period he participated in races with the other students.

He was then ready for action. His first race was at Mansfield, La., where he placed second.

Capt. Davies has reached his goal — at least part of it. He is a race driver, but he still lacks his national license. That he expects to get in a race in Savannah, Ga., next month.

After he gets his national license, he hopes to advance in stock cars and then to the big cars. Then will the racing captain be satisfied? "Hardly, I intend to race at Indianapolis."

Cuartel Quarterback

Ga. Tech Challenged By 'Ever-Tough' LSU

My barracks buddies accused me of having a direct line to Norman, Okla., and Los Angeles after last week's choice of the Sooners over the highly favored Southern California Bears. I don't have a direct line, but with Bud Wilkinson working part-time for JFK how could he miss?

All our picks were close, but the Missouri win over Arkansas and the Miami (Fla.) win over Purdue spoiled the average. We just didn't pick enough upsets.

Next week's picks are all tough. Most of the big teams are playing rugged competition and there aren't many breathers. Of course, Bear Bryant's Crimson Tide meets hapless Vanderbilt. We'll let the readers pick that one. From here there isn't much doubt.

In one of the big games, Georgia Tech faces Louisiana State in an SEC contest. The Jackets are flying high on the arm and toe of All-America candidate Billy Lothridge, but they face a big battle with the Bayou Bengals.

Georgia Tech Over LSU . . . Lothridge will come through. Either his punting or field goals will spell the difference and Tech will emerge a six point victor.

Southern Cal over Michigan State. . .A roaring comeback may be expected from the bruised Bears. They are a sound football team and will edge the Spartans in a free-scoring spectacle . . . final score — 27-29.

Tennessee Over Mississippi State. . .This is the week for the Vols to make their move. They have to prove they're still in the league if they are to maintain their long-standing reputation as one of the nation's finest. Faircloth will lead them to a one touchdown victory.

Northwestern Over Illinois . . .I almost smell an upset here. My hunch isn't quite strong enough to take me out on a limb, so I'll stick with Tommy Myers & Co. They will beat the Illini by ten points.

Georgia Over South Carolina . . .Coach Griffith has good material this year, and they received good instruction in basic football skills two weeks ago from Alabama. They will beat South Carolina simply because the SEC is the tougher league. This is assuming that the Bulldogs are of conference caliber.

Auburn Over Kentucky. . . The Tigers are still shouting WAR EAGLE after last week's come-from-behind blitz of the Tennessee Volunteers. If they can vanquish the Vols, they can wreck the Wildcats. Auburn will win by 15 points.

Purdue Over Notre Dame. . . This is just a hunch. The Boilermakers are usually at their best against the Irish. Purdue by a touchdown.

Minnesota Over Army. . . Coach Dietzel's crew isn't strong enough to whip Minnesota. The Gophers will make it a sad weekend for service football fans. They will win by a touchdown.

Golf Contest To Be Held Oct. 7-30

The annual officers' Fall Handicap Golf Tournament will be conducted at the Fort Benning Country Club Oct. 7 through 30.

Each participant must be a member of the Main Officers' Open Mess and must register in person at the post Country Club no later than Saturday. Entry fee will be $3.

Flights will be arranged on the basis of established handicaps. Entries may have a handicap established on the basis of five scores for 18-holes.

All flights will be posted in the golf pro shop not later than Monday and participants must complete one 18-hole match each week (Monday through Sunday).

United States Golf Association and supplementary rules established by the rules committee will govern play.

Hamby Is Fourth In Interservice Golf Tourney

Joe Hamby, Fort Benning's representative to the Interservice Golf Tournament held last week at the Pensacola (Fla.) Naval Air Station, fell 12 strokes off the winning pace of San Diego's Dick Lytle, and settled for fourth place with a four-round score of 287.

Lytle fired successive rounds of 72-72-72-67 to put the tourney on ice early. His closest competitor was Orville Moody of El Paso, Tex., who was five-strokes behind with a total of 292.

Red Cross Even Helps Employees

FORT JACKSON, S. C. — The Red Cross is widely known for its "giving" to other people. When it gets the chance to give to one of its own, this too is a happy occasion.

Recently at Fort Jackson's Red Cross Headquarters a gift and best wishes were given to Elemily Sandifer, the bride-to-be of William H. Biggs, Red Cross Field Director at Fort Benning. The happy occasion was Oct. 1.

The staff at the Red Cross center surprised her by presenting her with a Sterling silver tray. The gift, the generosity shown by her fellow workers and the popping of flash bulbs by the photographer were completely unexpected. Busy and excited fingers opened the gaily wrapped package. Her first exclamation of joy was: "Oh, it's gorgeous; it's so pretty, and I don't have one!" The shiny silver tray reflected a very happy face.

The future Mrs. Higgs will be transferred to Martin Army Hospital. There she will be serving in her capacity as administrative assistant with Red Cross. She has been with Red Cross at Fort Jackson for thirteen years. Commenting on future plans, she said, "I hope to go overseas with my husband."

Mr. Higgs was Red Cross Director at Fort Jackson from 1958 to 1961. He was then transferred to Fort Benning. He has been with the Red Cross for 22 years. He has also served with Red Cross overseas. He met his future bride while they were both working for the South Eastern Headquarters of Red Cross.

Since the Red Cross tries to keep its married couples together, it arranged the transfer of the future bride close to her husband.

Senate Approves Test Ban

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — It took the United States Senate just ten minutes to vote "yes" and thereby approve the limited nuclear test ban treaty, 80-19.

The vote followed more than two months of intense national debate and received the accolade from President Kennedy that the vote was "a welcome culmination of the effort to lead the world once again to the path of peace."

The President said the vote "is evidence not only that the treaty has wide public support but also of the collective judgment that this instrument is good for the people of the United States and people all over the world."

The historic vote stamped American approval on the treaty which has been hailed as a milestone in the effort to ease Cold-War tensions with a symbolic step toward disarmament.

The short document joins the Austrian State peace treaty of 1955 and the 1959 Antarctica treaty internationalizing that continent as the only documents involving Soviet-American relations approved by the Senate since the Cold War entered its critical phase.

Try Flying a Plane

You Can Go 100 MPH Safely

By PFC Dick Arnold

Speeding down the turnpike at 100 miles per hour and not getting a ticket — it can be done providing you are in an airplane.

The thrills and excitement of flying are available to all military personnel, their dependents (over 16 years of age) and civilian employees at the post's Flying Club.

"It is one of most exciting things I have ever done at Fort Benning," said Maj. Lee B. Philmon as he prepared recently to join the ranks of the 200 privately licensed pilots who have received their flight training at the club over the past four years.

The flying club, which owns five single engine aircraft and two glider planes, can have a new member in the sky and behind the controls for their flight orientation the same day they register. "With the modern advances made in aviation the past several decades, the skills required to navigate and pilot an aircraft, approximate those of driving an automobile," says chief flight instructor Ralph Ingle.

Two full time certified FAA (Federal Aviation Agency) flight instructors are on duty to insure that the high standards of flight training and safety are maintained at all times.

Billy Medeiros, the 16 year old son of CWO and Mrs. William Medeiros, received his students' license after joining the club and then his formal flight training began. After spending 12 hours in the air with one of the instructors learning the basics of flying and safety measures, he was permitted to fly alone. An average 8 to 12 hours are spent in the air with one of the instructors before the necessary requirements are mastered and the student is allowed to fly alone. "I was a little scared," Billy admits. His desire to fly began when he watched a demonstration of the Thunderbirds, the Air Force Acrobatic team, while in Panama. He earned the necessary money to take the lessons by cutting lawns and doing other odd jobs.

From this point on Billy will determine his own rate of progress. Through ground school instruction, local and cross country flights, many students have successfully passed the FAA flight exams with a minimum of 40 hours flight time. This enables them to fly with other passengers in the plane. Billy hopes to take the exam on his 17th birthday which is in March. While a person can get his student license when he is 16, the FAA minimum age for a license is 17.

Marilyn Robeson, wife of club member Capt. Evart E. Robeson, enjoys flying as much as her husband. She claims, "It's much more exciting to go on a trip and fly than it is to drive." The Robeson's recently returned from a trip to South Dakota and Ohio where they traveled approximately 2,700 miles.

Using one of club's planes, the couple spent only three days traveling. Mrs. Robeson plans to become a pilot so she can relieve her husband on long trips.

ONE OF THE PRETTIER STUDENTS
Lannie Bruner Tries Out an Airplane

Sp4 Daniel H. Murphy has combined his two years of flying experience with his military job. Murphy works in the link trainer room at LAAC where he helps to train military pilots.

For those interested in flying as a business, it is possible to obtain a commercial pilot's license with a minimum of 200 flying hours. Many who have done this have gone on to high paying and exciting jobs as commercial pilots.

The Flying Club is able to offer this training at greatly reduced costs because of their affiliation with Fort Benning. The club is organized as a sundry fund activity on a self supporting basis.

The dues for the club and the training is readily transferable from one club to another in the event of a change of station.

Lt. Frances D. Stone, commander of the WAC Company, began her flight training while stationed at Fort McClellan. After she had soloed she was transferred to Fort Benning where her membership was transferred.

The club is open seven days a week from sun-up to sundown. Lessons are given daily from 5 to 6:30 p.m. and from 6:30 to 8 p.m. as well as weekends and holidays.

Anyone who is interested in learning how to fly, or is qualified to fly and wants additional information may call the Flying Club at 545-2949.

NASA to Celebrate Its 5th Anniversary

WASHINGTON (AFPS) —The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) will be five years old in October.

Although NASA is still an infant, its first five years have accounted for over 100 major launches.

It now has a payroll of 30,000 and its four original research centers have grown to ten.

NASA has sent into space weather satellites, deep space probes, communications satellites and manned orbital flights.

Among other things, it has shown people the world over that the world is somewhat pear-shaped rather than a perfect sphere.

The greatest public interest has been in the manned orbital flights of Project Mercury.

Project Mercury, the first of three phases of achieving the nation's objective to reach the moon, was successfully completed with the 22-orbit flight of Astronaut L. Gordon Cooper in May, 1963.

The next two phases of the program to the moon are the Gemini and Apollo projects.

The flight of Mariner II past the planet Venus was another major achievement for NASA. Launched Aug. 27, 1962, it flew by Venus on Dec. 14, 1962, extending the space communication record to 54.7 million miles.

During these first five years NASA has openly shared its information with the world and has cooperative space projects with more than 50 countries, including the U.S.S.R.

AT THE Movies

ISLAND OF LOVE, starring Robert Preston and Tony Randall, is the story of a born wheeler-dealer who talks a New York gangster into backing his film version of Adam and Eve. The movie is a bomb, and he flees to Greece with his script writer to escape the gangster's vengance. At times it looks like our hero is done for after some chasing around, but things straighten themselves out to everyone's satisfaction.

VERTIGO depicts a retired police detective who trails the beautiful wife of an old schoolmate and becomes involved in a series of mysterious and breathtaking adventures that culminate in an exciting surprise climax. James Stewart, Kim Novak and Barbara Bel Geddes star in this Alfred Hitchcock thriller.

HATARI stars John Wayne, Elsa Martinelli and Red Buttons. A devil-may - care game catcher leads an international group of adventures on a safari into East Africa in search of wild game. The always dangerous and sometimes fatal "chase of the rhino" will be breath-taking.

Know Your Senior NCOs

Sgt. Maj. Cecil R. Bedford is now sergeant major of the unit which gave him his basic training in 1935.

Sgt. Bedford recently rejoined the 29th Infantry after four as sergeant major of the 2nd Infantry Division's 1st Brigade. At the 29th, he succeeded 1st Sgt. Junior Cook who had been acting sergeant major.

The 28-year Army veteran was born in Atlanta 47 years ago and attended the public schools there. In 935 he was graduated from Atlanta's old Technical High School.

He entered the Army and was assigned immediately to the 29th which was stationed here.

During his career he has completed tours of duty in Africa, England, France, Holland, Belgium, Germany and most recently in Korea.

During his early Army days the sergeant major was a member of the 29th Infantry baseball team which became post champions. He is still a sports enthusiast, participating in baseball, softball and touch football.

He and his wife, the former Lillian J. Lineberry, have five children: Barbara, 16; Georgia. 14: Robert, 13; Gloria. 12, and Phyllis, 6.

SGT. MAJ. BEDFORD

Know Your Allies

He Led Commando Unit

A graduate of the Saint-Cyr Military Academy near Paris, France, is now a student in The Infantry School's officer career course No. 1. He is Capt. Charles Paul Sebe of the French Infantry

Capt. Sebe was serving as commanding officer of the student detachment of the non - commissioned officer school at Skida, Algeria, when his government chose him for further training at The Infantry School here. He had served in that capacity for six months when he came to the United States in late August.

A highlight of the captain's career was from 1958 to 1962 when he was a platoon leader in a French commando unit.

Among his decorations are the Military Cross for Algeria with two brigade citations and the coveted Croix de la Valeur Militaire (Cross of Military Valor).

Since 1958, the political scene in Capt. Sebe's country has been dominated exclusively by President Charles de Gaulle. Legislative power, under the Fifth French Republic, is vested in the Parliament, composed of the National Assembly, whose members are popularly elected for five years, and the Senate whose members are indirectly elected for nine-year terms. Parliament can meet twice a year for two and one half month sessions.

CAPT. SEBE

France is an industrially advanced country, with more than 30 per cent of the 19 million working population employed in industrial pursuits. Agriculture, however, employs more of the country's population, providing employment for more than 35 per cent.

Your Dental Health

Preventive Dentistry Is Supported by CAA

Fort Benning, since 1957, has had the distinction of being one of the few military posts whose personnel were aided in a far-reaching preventive dentistry program. This was in the form of actual financial support rom an agency, who you in turn. support through a fund drive.

During the past two years we have repeated and repeated and repeated the importance of various forms of fluorides in protecting the teeth against dental decay. For several years, more than just talking has been done. The water supply was fluoridated, but that was not all. Here is some of the story.

The Community Activities Association was approached with a problem and a part of a solution. The problem was that in spite of water fluoridation, many children of military dependents needed further protection against the inroads of dental decay. It was impossible, for numerous reasons, to provide this through existing programs which were limited, by law, to military personnel.

The method was known; cleaning of the teeth and application of a fluoride solution to the teeth, and it could be done by dental hygienists. Could and would the CAA provide funds to hire personnel and buy supplies and equipment or such a program? They could and they would.

Ever since, year after year, some of the money which you have contributed to CAA has gone to support this project. The dollars you have given have actualy saved you money in reduced dental bills for our children. These same dollars have to avoid the unpleasantness of toothache.

Variety of Talent Sparks Post Little Theater Cast

The cast members of "The Lark" have brought to the Fort Benning Playhouse a variety of talent, background and experience which promises four nights of electric theater Oct. 16-19.

Director Peter Tatistcheff says, "The scope and depth of ability in the cast has provided a reservoir of dramatic raw material. To select, refine, blend and enhance the best in each actor is the role of the director. Random scraps of cast biography illustrate that this is a distinct challenge and an enormous responsibility."

Carolyn McGee, who portrays the inspired Joan of Arc, was last seen as the vivacious Nellie Forbush in "South Pacific." Pete Young, who plays a French soldier, last played a Scottish sage. Vicki Morales, with featured roles in five consecutive musicals, promises to be equally charming as the silent lady-in-waiting to the Little Queen.

Mrs. John T. Corley (Joan's mother), who has received plaudits for her productions for the Fort Benning Womens' Club, now makes her debut with the Little Theater. Capt. and Mrs. Richard Barrott (Beaudricourt and Queen Yolande) founded the Schweinfurt Little Theater in Germany. Jerry Murray (Charles, the Dauphin) is theater director of Columbus College.

PFC James Edgren (English soldier) makes his first stage appearance in "The Lark," while PFC Ted Martin (Earl of Warwick) expands his repertoire to more than thirty roles. Gerard McGhee (The Inquisitor) is making his first appearance here, while Wes Carr (Joan's father) will give his eighth performance and become the undisputed veteran of Fort Benning Little Theater. Tom Faulkner and Hunt Maxwell (Judges) confess to so prolonged an absence from the stage that they aren't sure exactly what their credits are.

The experience of PFC David Lile (Cauchon), ranges from Shakespeare to Theater-of-the-Absurd, and 1st Lt. James Marmon, (The Promoter) has toured Europe with "The Boy Friend" and "Kiss Me Kate."

Neighborhood Association Holds Its First Meeting

The first Neighborhood Association Meeting was held at the Girl Scout Little House Sept. 26 at 9:30 a.m.

Girl Scout leaders, co-leaders, service team members and Troop committee members from Main Post, Custer Terrace and NCO Capehart attended.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Elliott H. Smyzer, neighborhood chairman. A Flag Ceremony by Mrs. Smyzer, Mrs. Glenn R. Estep, Mrs. James R. Morrison, and Mrs. Robert B. Gingrich was followed by the singing of the national anthem. Mrs. Donald E. Gelke directed and explained the Flag Ceremony.

Mrs. Smyzer introduced Mrs. Glenn R. Estep, program chairman, who showed a display of handicrafts. It was announced that a craft workshop would be given by Concharty Council in Columbus Oct. 31. Anyone wishing to attend should call Mrs. William P. Trump, at 545-5649.

After the singing of "When 'Ere You Make a Promise," led by Mrs. F. A. Mershon, the minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Gelke, secretary.

Service team members, troop organizers and troop consultants were introduced, after which a film on the work of the troop committee was shown. All leaders and other interested adults were invited to attend the leadership training course to be given at the Girl Scout Little House Oct. 10, 15, and 17. This training will consist of three workshops.

The meeting was closed with the singing of a Brownie song, "The Goodnight Song."

11th Division Unit Going 'Airborne'

A whole company of men from the new 11th Air Assault Division are preparing to go Airborne.

Selected personnel of Company A, 127th Engineer Battalion, began training Saturday. The whole company, commanded by Capt. Leon A. Zolnowski, will eventually be airborne qualified.

Company A was the only engineer unit assigned to the 11th Air Assault Division until recently when the 127th Engineer Battalion itself was activated with Lt. Col. Robert J. Malley as its commander.

The men remaining in Company A have all volunteered for airborne training, as Company A has been designated to provide any and all airborne engineer support required by the division.

24-Hour Duty Ordinary For Post 'Explosive' Unit

By PFC Joe Moore

Three of the eight soldiers of the 89th Ordnance Detachment are available 24-hours a day for the disposal and rendering safe of all types of explosives—from booby trapped pencils to atomic bombs.

Their services also include assisting civil authorities when any type of explosive presents a hazard and giving technical instruction to law enforcement and Civil Defense agencies in identification and detection of items containing explosives.

The 89th has been given the responsibility by the Department of Defense for the disposal of all explosives, commercial or military, within the area extending from southern Mississippi to northwest Florida and including the southern halves of Georgia and Alabama.

According to SFC Jesse G. Springer, explosive disposal supervisor for the detachment, the 89th has handled 79 on-post and 18 civilian requests this year.

"Probably our most frequent on-post job is checking commercial explosive vans which have the seal broken," Sgt. Springer said. "Off post we have investigated a number of bomb scares and have checked war souvenirs for people who have requested it."

Tooth Brush

"Although our job is of a very serious nature," he continued, 'there have been quite a number of humorous incidents.

"We were called to the Transportation Shipping and Receiving Depot on Main Post to check a suspected bomb in a foot locker. Once the ticking had stopped we decided the bomb inside had failed to explode. We opened the locker and found an electric tooth brush which had been making the ticking sound. We'd rather check, though, than take a chance," he added.

To perform its mission the detachment has a stethoscope, tape recorders with special microphones, protective clothing to be used when working around radioactive explosives, special tools and a decontamination shower built by the men in the unit.

In most cases two men work on rendering safe a bomb or other complicate explosive. The men constantly talk to each other about what they are doing. Their conversation is recorded on tape and should the device explode and kill the men, then others who continue with the job listen to their conversation and are sure not to make the same mistake.

Trained for 19-weeks at the Naval Explosive Ordnance Disposal School, Indianhead, Md., all members of the detachment must return to the school every 18 to 24 months for a seven-week refresher course.

The school is one of the Armed Forces' most difficult and usually only about 60 per cent of a class graduates. Officers and enlisted men take the same course.

Once a man is graduated from the school and assigned to a detachment he receives monthly demolition pay. He also gets this pay while attending the school.

Before a soldier is accepted for the school he must be interviewed by the nearest ordnance disposal detachment commander, pass a psychiatric examination, be tested to determine if he is allergic to explosives and have a general mechanics score of 100 or more.

The men of the 89th undergo an almost constant training schedule and each year they must go to Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md. for two weeks to take their annual Army Training Test (ATT.)

Including the 89th, there are nine ordnance detachments in the Third Army area. They are located at Fort Stewart, Ga., Fort Jackson, S.C., Fort Campbell, Ky., Fort McClellan, Ala., Fort Bragg, N. C., Fort McPherson, Ga., Red Stone Arsenal, Ala., and Jacksonville (Fla.) Naval Air Station.

11th Division Puts on Show For Officials

VIDALIA, Ga. —In the Army's continuous program to keep the taxpayer informed on the progress and training of Army units, the 11th Air Assault Division Support Command, under command of Col. Robert C. Shaw, invited four Vidalia officials for a first-hand look at the Army's new air assault division during SKY SOLDIER I, a test exercise being conducted in the Vidalia, Camp Oliver, Fort Stewart area.

The four officials were Mayor Leonard Anderson, City Councilman Norwood Rhodes, Fire Chief Hardie G. Miller, and Police Chief Jule Mosley. The group had dinner in the field with the Sky Soldiers. Later they were treated to a ride in the Army's Iroquois helicopter, the same type used by the Sky Soldiers for their air assault operations. Col. Shaw acted as escort officer.

Mr. Rhodes is a qualified Air Force pilot, but this is the first time he and the other men had ridden in a helicopter. The visit lasted four hours and the men were briefed on all phases of training. They were impressed with the new testing role played by the unique division at Fort Stewart throughout exercise SKY SOLDIER I. The pilot who flew the mayor and his party was Capt. Virgil Mielke, a member of the Air Ambulance Platoon of the 11th Medical Battalion under command of Lt. Col. Joseph Stroud.

Let's face it: it wasn't easy coming up with a worthy successor to our super-successful '63. But we did it, as you can plainly see. Evidence? Trim new styling, with interiors just as clean and handsome as the exterior. A smoother, quieter ride—which is something we seem to deliver every year. Wide-Track for curve-straightening and 389 cubic inches worth of Trophy V-8 power in every model. All in all, every '64 Pontiac looks and feels and acts like competitive cars wish they did and don't. Are we right in assuming you'd rather be down at your dealer's than sitting there reading? We thought so. Be our guest!

Chester R. Davis Named AUSA Vice President

Chester R. Davis, Chicago attorney and banker, has been named vice president of the Association of the United States Army (AUSA), it was announced today by Gen. James M. Gavin, president, AUSA. Mr. Davis will fill the unexpired term of Henry Cabot Lodge who resigned upon being appointed U.S. Ambassador to Vietnam by President Kennedy.

Mr. Davis, retired senior vice president, Chicago Title and Trust Company, was assistant secretary of the army for financial management from 1955 to 1957. He is currently serving as civilian aide-at-large to the Secretary of the Army.

A retired reserve major general, Davis served as a captain in France with the 80th Division during World War I.

He resides with his wife, the former Mead Scoville of Hartington, Neb., at Oakenwald Farm, Wayne, Ind.

In SKY SOLDIER I

Division Liaison Section Necessary to Success

FORT STEWART, Ga. — Troops participating in SKY SOLDIER I in the Vidalia-Camp Oliver-Fort Stewart area have seen the controllers and evaluators of the Test Evaluation and Control Group (TEC) during the test exercise, but few have heard of the 11th Air Assault Division Liaison Section.

This little beehive of activity, headed by Lt. Col. Peter E. Kelley, division G-3, handles all personnel, intelligence, operations and training, logistics and communications problems for the division headquarters. They are located more than twenty miles away from the battle scene but their presence is felt all the time.

When battle-weary Sky Soldiers are on their administrative break, they are invited to attend many on-post activities available here. These activities are arranged for and scheduled by the liaison section. The Fort Stewart Service Club has the latest hometown newspapers plus color television. Books are available at the Post Library and there is a craft shop for the builders, a golf course for the swingers, religious services, bowling alleys and recreation clubs.

Gathering intelligence information, including the latest weather data, is handled by the G-2 section. Here, Maj. Bobby R. Lang has the responsibility of keeping the situation map up to date. This map shows the latest aggressor situations and their locations. Requests by Infantry units for battlefield surveillance are received and acted upon by appropriate surveillance aircraft.

The G-3 Section has the mission of coordinating all subordinate units on any administrative problems that may arise. They observe various phases of SKY SOLDIER I, but the exercise itself is under the direct control of the TEC Group.

Logistics fall under the G-4 of the liaison section. Here is where supply problems are ironed out. Capt. Robert W. Tagge is responsible for coordination between subordinate units and Fort Stewart supply agencies. Coordination of transportation and movement requests are also handled by the logistics liaison section. Observation of logistical activities tested during SKY SOLDIER I is a G-4 responsibility also.

Communications are vital to any commander and especially in the farflung operations of the 11th Air Assault Division during this test. Capt. William T. Fry is the 11th's liaison signal officer. His mission is to keep the lines of communication open at all times. More than 1,000 calls are made every day for the test exercise. Lines of communication extend from Fort Stewart to Vidalia — a distance of 57 road miles.

The success of the test exercise will require not only the Infantrymen with his weapon, the pilot and his aircraft, the engineer with his demolitions, the artilleryman with his fire support, and the general with his strategy. It also is dependent upon the 16 men in the liaison section who represent the division headquarters at Fort Stewart.

ONE LETTERMAN

The only non-letterman on Navy's first football unit when practice opened this fall was Dick Merritt, a junior varsity fullback who was switched to tackle.

Comet Caliente

This is the beginning of a new kind of Comet. Hot, husky, handsome—top series in Comet's robust new lineup. Engines range up to a 4-barrel Cyclone 289 cu. in. V-8 in all 1964 Comets.

"Caliente" means hot...

in Spanish. And this new Comet speaks the language. Notice its bold lines and new, wider, road-gripping stance. It looks hot. And it is! Take your pick from four engines: two V-8's including a big new optional Cyclone 289 cu. in. V-8, most responsive in the compact-price field. Two lively, thrifty "6's" round out the line. And with this hot new engine choice comes a far wider choice of Comets.

Now Comet offers 3 series...

each bold and racy: the top-of-the-line Caliente, and the economical Comet 202 and 404 series. Ten models in all . . . convertibles, sedans, hardtops, wagons, bucket-seaters. Big choice of transmissions, too. Comet has four of the best—both manual and automatic — including a smooth, silent new Multi-Drive Merc-O-Matic like nothing this side of the costliest luxury cars.

Elegance at a compact price

The prime example of Comet elegance is Comet's finest series, the Caliente. It's in a class by itself...with the warm look of walnut on its dash, steering wheel and door panels ...lavish biscuit-pattern upholstery...and unusual spaciousness for a compact-price car.

Power steering... power brakes...

AM-FM radio...air conditioning...every luxury option is available. You can even get . . . but no! There's only one way to learn all about the new Comet. Ask your Mercury dealer. COMET...A Mercury Product.

Jeep Wheel Modification Saves Time and Money

CAMP HOWZE, Korea (ANF) —An enterprising second lieutenant has eliminated a problem that has been baffling Army maintenance men. The enigma was that wet and muddy terrain often made it necessary to pull and repack the wheel bearings on the M-151 jeep.

Recently, 2nd Lt. Leo M. Young, battalion maintenance officer, 1st Battalion, 15th Armor, 1st Cavalry Division, devised a method that would eliminate the repacking of bearings which required a minimum of four hours for an experienced mechanic and driver to do.

Lt. Young presented a plan for modifying the M-151 jeep wheel housing to the 27th Maintenance Battalion and was allowed to use one vehicle for test purposes. The change involved the addition of a grease fitting and a pressure release valve on each housing. The initial testing proved successful.

This improvement will allow drivers to replace the wheel bearings after river crossings and will eliminate costly man-hours, expensive wheel bearings and seal replacement.

Lt. Young has a total of 10 years service and has served from private to sergeant first class, warrant officer, and received a direct commission as a second lieutenant.

New Commander

Company B, 577th Engineer Battalion (Construction) has a new commanding officer. He is 1st Lt. Joel T. Ragen, who formerly, held the Operations Officer post. He replaces 1st Lt. Michael C. Kearney.

3 Officers Assigned To CDCIA

Col. Eugene A. Watts and two other officers have joined the staff of the Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency.

The others are Lt. Col. Donald C. Oswald and Maj. Robert M. Jackson.

Col. Watts, a holder of a masters degree from Texas Christian University, came to the agency from the Seventh Army Support Command in Germany where he served as assistant G-3. Since being commissioned in 1939 upon graduation from The Citadel, he has earned the Bronze Star Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters and the Belgian Croix de Guerre.

Col. Oswald also served in Germany before being assigned to CDCIA. He was G-2 of the allied staff in Berlin. He was graduated in 1945 from The Infantry School's officer candidate course. He is also a graduate of the regular course of the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans. Among his awards and decorations are the Bronze Star Medal, Combat Infantryman's Badge and Purple Heart.

Maj. Jackson has been serving as battalion commander of the 3rd Training Regiment at Fort Dix, N. J. He is a senior Army aviator with more than 6,400 flying hours. He received his commission while serving with the National Guard in 1951. He will be assigned as an Aviation Staff officer in the Doctrine and Organization Division.

General Lemley Gets Briefing On Sky Soldiers

CAMP OLIVER, Ga. — Maj. Gen. Harry J. Lemley, commander of the Army Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., visited the 1st Air Assault Brigade Headquarters this week and received a briefing on the initial phase of SKY SOLDIERS I which officially ended early last Friday.

Also present at the briefing were 11th Air Assault Division commander, Brig. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, and Col. Arthur W. Ries from the Army Materiel Command at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Gen. Lemley, who also heads the Combined Arms Group, Combat Development Command, visited Fort Stewart and the 11th Air Assault Division to observe the latest innovations in air assault artillery. During his stay here, Gen. Lemley has observed the XM-102 105-mm howitzers fired by Battery A, 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery.

Artillermen also put the standard 105-mm howitzer and the experimental Italian 105-mm guns through their paces for the visiting general. Battery A of the 377th Artillery put on a demonstration with the 2.75 inch aerial rocket.

Gen. Lemley and his party departed Camp Oliver at noon today for the return trip to Fort Leavenworth.

Lee Short Gets Episcopal Honor

Lee Short, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Walter D. Short, has been presented an award for outstanding service in connection with Episcopal Youth Council activities at St. Michael's Episcopal Mission.

The award was made by the Rt. Rev. Henry T. Louttit, at services conducted last Sunday at St. Michael's.

At a recent election of officers, Gene Golston, son of Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. Eugene R. Golston, was elected president. Other officers elected were Lee Short, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Short, vice-president; Candance Carter, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. William C. Carter Jr., secretary; Gregg Olney, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Gregory L. Olney, treasurer, and Linda Hacker, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. William C. Hacker, publicity chairman.

Military Can Master 56 Exotic Languages

NEW YORK (AFPS) — Uncle Sam's military, involved as never before in overseas programs and in gathering cold war intelligence, now can learn 56 commonplace and exotic tongues — from Afrikaans, Albanian and Amharic to Urdu, Urkranian and Vietnamese.

So greatly has American foreign policy increased the linguistic demands on U. S. officers, men and their families, that the Pentagon has been obliged to revamp language training in all services under a central Defense Language Institute.

The institute, now three months old, is geared to provide working knowledge of one or more foreign tongues to 6,100 servicemen a year studying full-time plus 15,000 part-time and another 50,000 to 200,000, on a volunteer basis.

The school coordinates previous service programs using the old Army language training facility at Monterey, Calif., as its West Coast branch and the old Navy language training school in Washington as the East Coast branch.

In addition, contracts with Yale Syracuse and Indiana Universities and with seven smaller commercial schools in the District of Columbia give the Defense Department a spectrum of language training unequaled anywhere.

Though expansion of the American military assistance program has been the single most significant factor in establishment of the institute, the one language most heavily enrolled is not spoken to any degree in any aid-receiving country.

That language is Russian. The institute currently is training 1,830 American military and other governmental employees in Russian.

Forecasts Improved By Tiros VI

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Photographs snapped by Tiros VI, the sixth U. S. weather satellite, have provided data for space flights, and picked up various types of storms and aided in furnishing foreign countries with advance storm warnings.

Tiros VI has taken 58,000 useful pictures.

The satellite has photographed sand storms in Saudi Arabia, ice in the Antarctic and Canadian east coast waters, snow over western North America and hurricanes and typhoons far at sea.

Tiros VI spotted Arlene, the first hurricane of 1963. The satellite has seen two hurricanes in the Atlantic, two tropical storms in the eastern Pacific and eight typhoons in the central and western Pacific.

Weather information for the orbital flights of astronauts Walter Schirra and Gordon Cooper was obtained from Tiros VI. Its pictures are being used in briefing air crews for intercontinental flights.

Tiros VI has been in orbit a four course for per-one year, setting a new record for weather satellites.

Modification Of Hercules Underway

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A modified version of the C-130 Hercules aircraft, capable of retrieving astronauts from any spot on earth, is under development.

The HC-130H will have an aerial delivery system that can drop a variety of survival equipment into a small area.

Additional electronic gear will aid in locating and identifying aerospace area and additional internal fuel tanks will give better coverage of remote areas on land or sea.

The HC-130H will be used by the Military Air Transport Service (MATS) Air Rescue Service for all types of rescue missions. The Air Rescue Service has been given added responsibilities in conducting rescue operations for manned space flights.

Cruise speed of the HC-130H will exceed 350 mph with a range of 5,750 miles. This will enable ARS to conduct long over-water rescue missions in minimum time.

GOING TO SCHOOL

Capt. Jessie T. Joiner Jr., adjutant of Martin Army Hospital departed the post Wednesday for Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., where he will attend the officer basic course for personnel management officers at the Adjutant General School.

NASA's Home Nearing Completion in Houston

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The NASA Manned Spacecraft Center at Clear Lake, near Houston, Tex., is 75 per cent completed and the first of its personnel will be moving into it in October.

Complete occupation of the space center is expected by July of next year.

The center is being constructed in three phases. The first phase included site preparation, the digging of water wells and drainage of ditches and the construction of roads.

Phase two includes building the service structures necessary to support the space flight program.

These include a water treatment plant, a 138,000-volt electrical substation, a fire station and a heating and air conditioning plant.

Phase three includes completion of the research and development laboratories, test chambers, technical service shops and administration building.

By mid-September, work in the first phase was completed, phase two was more than 80 per cent finished and phase three was better than 60 per cent complete.

It is estimated that by July 1, 1964, $147 million worth of construction will have been completed or be underway at the center.

Long Line

If the 4,200,000 people transported by the Defense Traffic Management Service, Washington, D. C., in one year traveled by bus, they would require 140,000 buses, or enough to extend bumper-to-bumper from Washington, D. C., to Cape Canaveral, Fla. The service is a field activity of the Defense Supply Agency.

11th Air Assault Test In 2nd Half

Sky Soldiers of the 11th Air Assault Division reached the mid point in exercise SKY SOLDIER I last Sunday as Phase Charlie, the third of the four phase test, began.

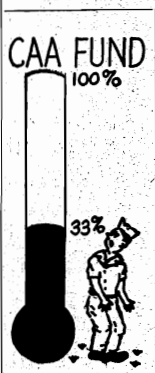
In the second phase, Phase Bravo, the 1st Air Assault Brigade Task Force consisting of a reinforced battalion executed a series of feints and deceptive air assaults to force the aggressor guerrillas to band together for self-protection. Once a large concentration of guerrillas was spotted, the swift-moving Sky Soldiers would strike to destroy the harried enemy, then recover to strike again as new guerrilla forces were located.

These assaults against the aggressor guerrillas freed the defending Stewartland (a hypothetical country established for test purposes) divisions and enabled them to defend successfully against the aggressor regular forces which had been advancing southward from Georgana (the hypothetical aggressor homeland).

An administrative break was declared last Friday morning to allow the controllers and evaluators of the Test, Evaluation and Control Group (TEC) to assess the progress of the test.

Phase Charlie finds an aggressor battalion infiltrating into Stewartland from the Northeast. The air assault task force has the task of conducting a mobile defense against them. Specifically it is to block the high-speed approaches into Stewartland — Highways 144 and 67. After blocking the main aggressor thrust the Sky Soldiers must locate, attack and destroy the rapidly building aggressor forces in the area. In subsequent action the air assault units will execute a rapid series of coordinated company-size attacks, striking at vulnerable elements of the aggressor columns.

At the conclusion of Phase Charlie, the task force will return to the brigade base to re-equip and prepare for the final phase, Phase Delta.



LONG WAY TO GO . . . With only 33 per cent of the post having given its fair share, the Community Activities Association Fund Drive still has a long way to go. Details on page 2.

Gen. Norton Will Speak To MOWW

Brig. Gen. John Norton, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, will be guest speaker at the Wednesday meeting of the Military Order of World Wars (MOWW) at the Main Officer's Open Mess.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. with a social hour, followed by a dinner and Gen. Norton's talk at 8 p.m.

The topic for the general's talk will be "Yugoslavia." From 1953 to 1955, he served as chief of the Army Section, American Military Assistance Staff in Yugoslavia.

Gen. Norton came to Fort Benning in May from Fort Monroe, Va., where he served as chief of the Aviation Division in the office of the deputy chief of staff for unit training and readiness.

Reservations may be made by telephoning Mrs. Capps at 545-5201.

New Housing Reference Service Helps Fort Benning Newcomers

Incoming Fort Benning personnel faced with a housing shortage in the Columbus area may be assisted by a housing reference service which began Wednesday morning at the Black Angus Ranch on Victory Drive.

The reference service is a cooperative endeavor of the Columbus Real Estate Board and the local Home Builders Association to find additional space to accommodate an estimated 1,000 to 1,100 new servicemen expected here by the end of November.

The two organizations earlier said they have asked area homeowners to put space they have available for rent on the rental market in an effort to avert an acute housing shortage.

Speakers Named for Post Retreat

Guest speakers for Fort Benning's Tri-Faith Retreat Oct. 23 include the "World's Strongest Man," a retired Methodist Bishop, a Roman Catholic educator, a Jewish Rabbi and the deputy post commander.

Weight-lifter Paul Anderson and retired Bishop Arthur J. Moore, now an active evangelist, will speak to the Protestant retreat participants.

Guest speaker for the Catholic group will be the Rev. Father Damian Breen while Rabbi Alfred L. Goodman, rabbi of Temple Israel, will address the Jewish group.

Col. Adiran L. Hoebeke, deputy post commander, will address the entire conference at a general assembly at 8 a.m. in Theater No. 1.

Music for the general assembly will be furnished by The Infantry Center Band.

At 8:40 a.m. the conference will adjourn to [illegible] ble by faiths at The Infantry Center Protestant Chapel, Bldg. 101, The Main Post Catholic Chapel, Bldg. 1691, and the Jewish Religious Center, Bldg. 1071.

All three groups will adjourn at noon for lunch at the consolidated mess in The Infantry Center Troop Command.

The meetings will resume at the three locations at 2 p.m. and continue until 4.

The retreat, primarily for military personnel, has been planned to promote a revival of interest in the religious program at Fort Benning, and a rededication of participants to their own faith.

Personnel planning to attend the retreat are requested to register with their unit chaplains between Oct. 5 and 14.

Paul Anderson has been known as the world's strongest man since 1955 when he broke several world records in weight lifting while on a tour of Rus-

Born in Toccoa, Ga., in 1932, Anderson became interested in weight lifting while attending Furman University in Greenville, S. C., on a football scholarship. After a few weeks training, he began to break world records of 30 years standing.

His weight lifting led to a career in which he earned national, world and Olympic titles. He presses 440 pounds, the world record.

Anderson has toured the world as a goodwill ambassador for the State Department and has lifted weights in command performances for heads of state. In Russia, he was called a "wonder of nature."

Throughout his career, Anderson has had as his goal, helping unfortunate young people to become better citizens. He and his wife operate the Paul Anderson Youth Home for teenagers. Some are orphans, some from broken homes and others are youths who might otherwise be sent to penal institutions.

A 1964 Olympic hopeful, Anderson is in constant training. He appears at churches, youth groups, civic clubs and conventions in the interests of the Paul Anderson Youth Home, founded and supported through his efforts.

Bishop Moore

Arthur J. Moore, a native of Argyle, Ga., was admitted to the South Georgia Methodist conference in 1909. His first assignment was as a circuit riding preacher, pastoring seven rural churches. Following that assignment, he studied at Emory University, then Emory College at Oxford, Ga.

Following his years at Emory, Moore served as an evangelist. The young minister was soon known throughout the state as large congregations gathered to hear him. Frequently, after evangelistic campaigns, special trains were run to take enthusiastic worshipers to here him in the next town on his itinery.

As Moore's fame spread throughout the nation, he was invited to conduct interdenominational crusades in many cities.

Following ten years in local pastorates in Texas and Alabama, Moore was the first Bishop elected by the General Conference of the Methodist Church at its 1930 meeting in Dallas. He was given supervision over three overseas areas, China - Japan and Korea in Asia; Poland, Czechslovakia and Belgium in Europe, and the Belgium Congo in Africa.

After seven years as a world ambassador of Methodism, Bishop Moore was assigned to the Georgia - Florida Area, a position he held until he retired in 1960. Since that time he has engaged in evangelistic campaigns.

Bishop Moore has served as president of the Methodist Board of Missions, supervising more than 1,500 missionaries in 52 nations.

The author of five books, Bishop Moore has been active in the fields of radio and television as well. He helped to organize the Protestant Radio and Television Center Atlanta, the only interdenominationally owned production center of its kind in the world.

Father Breen

Father Breen, a native of Kearny, N. J., has devoted most of his life to the Chattahoochee Valley.

Since his ordination 1931, he has spent all but two years of his ministry at Holy Trinity.

He first came to Holy Trinity as a high school student. Later, after graduation from Catholic University in Washington, D. C., he returned to Holy Trinity where he has served as master of novices for seminarians preparing for the Trinitarian Order.

Father Breen is known as a speaker throughout the Georgia - Alabama area. He is frequently called upon to conduct "Days of Recollection" such as the Retreat at Fort Benning.

Rabbi Goodman

Rabbi Goodman was born in Cleveland, Ohio.

He was educated in the public schools of Cleveland, and Western Reserve University of that city. He has completed graduate studies at the Jewish Institute of Religion in New York City.

Rabbi Goodman held a pulpit in Lima, Ohio, before entering the Air Force as a chaplain during World War II. After two years in the Pacific Theater, he returned to Lima for two years. He has filled the pulpit at Temple Israel since 1950.

The rabbi is a past president of the Columbus Area TB Association, Columbus - Phenix City Ministerial alliance, Muscogee County Community Planning Council and Columbus Lodge No. 77, B'Nai B'rith.

He is a member of the Committee on Psychiatry and Religion of the Central Conference of American Rabbis and the Georgia Council on Human Relations.

Rabbi Goodman is chairman of the Spiritual Life Section, Georgia Committee on Children and Youth. He is Jewish chaplain for the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation and serves as an auxiliary chaplain for Fort Benning.

Housing

nel desiring quarters will be among 3,000 new servicemen scheduled for assignment to the 11th Air Assault Division before Dec. 1. The buildup is caused by the opening of the 11th's second phase of its testing program.

Fort Benning's present on-post personnel strength is expected to increase from about 44,000 to 50,000 when the Air Assault Division begins testing on a division level in mid-1964.

Col. J. O. Jones, Infantry Center G-1, at a recent meeting at the Black Angus Ranch along with other post officials and 20 realtors and builders said that post officials are now "advising personnel with families to leave their dependents where they are."

Col. Jones added that the housing situation will be even more critical in the next two years with the big buildup of the 11th Air Assault.

He said the U. S. Government has no immediate plans for building additional housing on the post. Col. Jones stated that The Infantry Center commanding general, Maj. Gen. C. W. G. Rich, will have a detailed report of the housing requirements in his possesson by Oct. 15.

With the new military pay raise in effect this month, Col. Robert M. Williams, commanding officer of the Brigade, expects an even greater amount of participation within the 197th. Col. Williams, the Fund Drive chairman for the post hopes that all units will re-emphasize the importance of reaching its fair share goal before the Drive ends in November.

Fund Drive Hits One-Third Mark

Fort Benning reached 33 per cent of its overall goal for the 1964 Community Activities Drive this week.

Drive officials said the figure is far below expectations. Only one more payday remains during the drive, and officials had hoped to be over 50 per cent at this time.

As of last Friday, the 197th Infantry Brigade was leading the race in the Fund Drive, having collected 59 per cent of its fair share with more donations still flowing into the unit's CAA Drive captains.

According to Chaplain (Capt.) James M. Reaves, brigade drive captain, the 10th Artillery is leading the brigade units with 98 per cent of its fair share already donated.

Joan of Arc to Burn At Stake on Stage

"Everybody Here? Good. Let the trial begin at once. The quicker the judgment and the burning, the better for all of us."

Thus begins the opening of the present production by the Fort Benning Little Theatre. "The Lark," by Jean Anouilth is being directed by Peter Tatistcheff. The play deals with the trial of Joan The Maid and explores the psychological background of Joan's behavior.

The production of "The Lark" is the opening production of the present Fort Benning Little Theatre season. Playing dates for the show are October 16-19 at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are 50c per person and all seats are reserved.

The next production by the Little Theater will be Edward Albee's "The Zoo Story," and will be presented in conjunction with the Third Army One-Act Play Contest. The production will be directed by Peter Nyberg.

Fire Prevention Week Ends on Post Tomorrow

In observing National Fire Prevention Week, the Fort Benning Fire Department held a series of demonstrations, tours and lectures for soldiers, dependents and civilian employees.

Lectures on causes of fires and how to prevent them and exhibits of fire fighting tools and equipment were held at Gowdy Field on Main Post, Stroup Field, Todd Field in the Harmony Church area, and Martin Army Hospital.

Fire fighting tools also were exhibited at all the schools on post and students in grades four through eight were conducted on a tour of The Infantry Center Fire Prevention Museum. A 20-minute film on the causes of fire and their elimination were shown to the children. The younger students were given comic books on fire prevention.

Open house was held at each of the post's fire stations and included scheduled visits by the Fort Benning Boy and Girl Scout troops.

Pamphlets on fire prevention were given to each of the school children. They also were given a fire prevention check sheet, which was returned to the teachers once completed.

Gilbert A. Ward Jr., post fire chief, said a greater emphasis is being placed on youth.

"Children, today, who are 12 years old probably know more about fire prevention than adults did 25 years ago," Ward said.

Slides covering facts on death and property loss and other timely facts were shown at all the performances at four post theaters during the week.

A Department of Army poster, "Stop Fires, Save Lives," picturing two small parentless children, has been placed in all areas of public assembly.

Past Performance Earned Pay Hike

Now that an increase in military pay is a fact, perhaps the time has come to remind ourselves that the additional income was voted to us by the Government because it thought we'd earned it.

And how did we earn it?

Perhaps through the countless hours in a cold dank foxhole in Italy.

The many soggy weary steps up and down the peninsula that is Korea.

The seven day round the clock watch in the many shore stations during the days of crisis.

The grim aftermath of Pacific Island hopping where we bade farewell to comrades that never came home.

The men still encountering the enemy of freedom in the Republic of Vietnam.

All of these contributed to the earning of a military pay raise.

And now, for some of us know only of how this raise was earned through stories told on a father's knee. . .or by oft-told tales from the lips of old soldiers, it is paramount that we use this gain with wisdom.

Maybe now is the time to open a regular savings bank program.

Perhaps that small U.S. Savings bond paid for through the payroll savings plan can be stretched into a larger one.

The extra pay could be marked for higher learning: either night school or a college in the future.

God's Offer to Man

By Chaplain (Capt.) Thomas F. DesChamps

God is a person who is often unknown. It is not that he is hard to find, hard to know, nor is it that He will not respond to man.

It is more the fact that man does not make any adequate response to God's offer. God offers himself — man's response is to accept or not to accept — either "I will" or "I will not."

Few of us would hesitate to bend down to pick up a dollar bill, but how many will bow their head to accept God's offer? We will work our fingers to the bone for a period of years to achieve the benefits of this life, yet are we too indifferent to God to seek him who overrules all of the Almighty.

Many go to any extreme to have a problem solved, but they go as a last resort to God. It is almost the same as saying we will try every potential solution before we try the hand of the Almight.

We seem to forget that all things are under his rule, that nothing happens without his knowledge. We appear to react to God as is well stated by the little saying, "After all else fails, read the directions." Rather than trying various solutions which may or may not work through persons and agencies which may or may not be able to work, would it not be much better to go first to the one who is more than able to solve any problem?

If we do less than making a full response to God's offer of himself by "I will," there is but one remaining, that is, "I will not." We have the freedom and also the responsibility of this choice; we would do well to choose wisely. You see, one day we will be held to account for what choices we have made.

Capitol Notes

Three members of Congress who play vital roles in consideration of military programs and space activities have received the 1963 American Political Science Association awards for distinguished Capitol Hill service.

The awards were given to Senate Space Committee Chairman Clinton P. Anderson (D., N.M.); Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.), ranking Republican on both the Armed Services Committee and the Military Appropriations Subcommittee, and House Defense Appropriations Subcommittee Chairman George D. Mahon (D., Tex.).

Only nine other members of the House and Senate have been similarly honored since the awards were instituted in 1959. One of the first recipients was House Armed Services Committee Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.).

The Senate is going to bat for the Army in an effort to restore $1.5-million in field-exercise funds knocked down for this year's military budget by the House. The House thought the Army could get along without the money until it straightens out some of the problems it is having with maneuver rights.

JCS Chairman Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor disagreed. He said if the funds were not restored it will mean curtailment of some large-scale field exercises, such as the movement of an entire division overseas.

Gen. Taylor said there is an urgent need for repeated rehearsals and maneuvers to establish and maintain a highly mobile force ready for prompt movement into combat.

The Judge Says . . .

By 1st Lt. James Stockdale

One needs only to glance through a local newspaper to realize that federal and local authorities are cracking down on persons guilty of liquor law violations. The more dramatic stories about liquor regulation violators may involve running gun battles between law enforcement authorities and "moonshiners," yet the enforcement of liquor regulations is a day to day concern for all citizens, especially those of us in the military.

The possession and sale of "moonshine" is not only illegal, but its consumption is very dangerous. One of the major reasons the government prohibits the sale of "moonshine" is because it has not been inspected for purity. A "bad batch" of "moonshine" is just as lethal as the strongest poison.

There are also regulations governing the sale, transportation and consumption of alcoholic beverages that are sold to the public. These regulations must be obeyed by the man in uniform as well as by civilians.

Fort Benning is a federal judicial jurisdiction. As such, federal law is applicable on the reservation. Consequently the regulations pertaining to the sale and consumption of alcoholic beverages on the reservation and the regulations of Georgia, and municipal ordinances of Columbus differ.

If a soldier lives on the military reservation, satisfies the requirements of rank and quarters assignment and is 21 years of age, he can purchase intoxicating liquors from a Class VI liquor store. Liquor purchased from an on-post liquor store is not taxed by the State of Georgia. Therefore, if the soldier takes the liquor purchased in an on-post liquor store off the reservation, he is breaking a Georgia law because he is transporting untaxed liquor in the State of Georgia. Such transportation of untaxed liquor in Georgia is a misdemeanor and can be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both. If a person is apprehended transporting untaxed liquor in Georgia he is also subject to having his automobile confiscated. It doesn't pay to take your bottle purchased at Fort Benning off the reservation.

In Georgia it is not unlawful for a person 21 years of age to possess for the purpose of personal consumption 3.2 beer purchased on the reservation.

A Columbus municipal ordinance prohibits any person under the age of 21 from purchasing or possessing intoxicating liquors, beer or ale within the police district of Columbus. Any person convicted of violating this ordinance can be fined or imprisoned, or both.

The Army does not consider 3.2 beer intoxicating and pursuant to post regulations, permits its use and possession on the reservation by any military person over 18½ years of age. The Columbus ordinance places no limitations on the alcoholic content of beer. The ordinance covers the purchase or possession of any malt beverage or intoxicating liquor regardless of the percentage of alcoholic content. This means the possession of 3.2 beer by a person under 21 would be a violation of the Columbus ordinance which could result in the violators being imprisoned or fined, or both.

Regulations governing the sale and consumption of alcoholic beverages are for the protection of the individual. It is up to the individual to see that the regulations are strictly followed. Any member of the military establishment who violates liquor laws is not only subject to civilian punishment, but to military discipline as well.

Record Peacetime Airlift Scheduled During October

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A record peacetime airlift of 16,000 Army and Air Force men to Europe from the United States in a NATO strategic mobility exercise is scheduled this month.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has announced that Exercise Big Lift will initiate at Ft. Hood, Tex., and deploy troops of the combat ready 2nd Armored Division and associated support units to France and Germany.

"The exercise will be the largest transoceanic Army-Air Force deployment ever to be made by air," Secretary McNamara said.

The massive movement will also deploy a composite Air Strike Force of 116 aircraft to European bases.

"Big Lift will provide a dramatic illustration of the U.S. capability for rapid reinforcement of NATO forces," the Secretary said.

"Moreover, it will be the first exercise to link up a major U.S.-based land force with combat materiel positioned overseas ready for pickup and use.

"This capability for rapid reinforcement projects a new magnitude of U.S. military responsiveness," he added.

Air and ground combat forces for Exercise Big Lift will be provided by the U.S. Strike Command. The Military Air Transport Service and the Strategic Air Command (SAC) will support the airlift.

Participating in the field exercise will be the 3rd Armored Division, based in Germany.

During the month of July some eighteen R.O.T.C. boys from colleges and high schools in the Third Army area trained for the rifle team that was to go to Camp Perry, Ohio.

These boys were picked on the basis of their scores on the rifle teams of the various R.O.T.C. programs. Then they were extended an invitation to visit Fort Benning.

AMONG THE EIGHTEEN boys invited was Benning's own Lanny Bassham. At the time, Lanny was at Fort Niagara, N.Y., training for the national matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, so was unable to attend.

From the eighteen boys that had practiced here for approximately one month, eight boys were chosen for the actual firing team and one alternate. I might add that the alternate was Jerry Pullum, a senior at Baker. Because Lanny did not train with the other boys, he sent his scores from Fort Niagara to Fort Benning. His scores, and the fact that he had previously won the National Junior Championship, helped Lanny to make the team of eight boys.

In the latter part of August the Third Army Rifle Team went to Camp Perry. They competed against several different Army areas and West Point Cadets. There were two purposes for attending the mathces in Ohio: for the National Trophy Team Match and for the individual competition.

THE THIRD ARMY RIFLE TEAM won the team competition and therefore, received the "Minute Man Trophy." This trophy has been monopolized by West Point for the past couple of years.

Lanny Bassham participated in the individual competition, and won the "William Randolph Hurst Tropy." He presented the large trophy to the Secretary of the Army, Cyrus R. Vance, on September 15. Lanny kept a miniature of the trophy.

Along with receiving the outstanding trophy, Lanny was awarded a "Leg" or an "Excellence in competition." This goes towards earning the Distinguished Rifleman's Badge.

LANNY BASSHAM will be leaving in less than a month. He will be heading for Texas which is in the Fourth Army area. May the best of luck go with him, even though he will be competing against "our" boys next year.

This past weekend was concluded by the monthly luncheon of J.A.D.A. The guest speakers were a Mrs. Hill and a Mrs. Moore. These two ladies presented a line of cosmetics by giving one of the members a complete facial. Julie Shuck was the lucky one.

Cookbooks Available At Many Post Facilities

By Marge Lennen

Mrs. John H. Cochran, 2nd vice president of the Women's Club, reports that the sale of "Queen of Battle, Her Recipes" is doing exceptionally well.

The 500 cookbooks which were printed for advance sale at the Opening Tea were quickly sold out. A large quantity of the books are now on sale at the post exchange, Book Store and Thrift Shop. Plans are now underway to have books sold at several downtown Columbus locations.

Several hundred cookbooks have been ordered pre-wrapped for mailing in gaily decorated Christmas colors. Just about any aunt, mother-in-law or sister would be tickled pink to find it under her Christmas tree. The non-wrapped books sell for $2 and an additional 25 cents will buy the pre-wrapped editions.

Although the Opening Tea was considered a great success by most of its guests and the women involved with the 30 or so activities, Mrs. Roy L. Inman, membership chairman, noted that more membership cards should have been sold.

Any woman who signed up for an activity must become a participate in any of the groups. Those who forgot to purchase their card. Don't forget to call her at 545-2207. The cost is only $2. Mrs. Inman will also be glad to supply any unit commander's wife with membership cards to sell at unit functions.

Mrs. William Gray announced recently that a new class in teen and adult modeling will begin on Monday in the Women's Club building. An adult class will be held in the evening and the teen class in the afternoon. Anyone interested contact Mrs. Gray at 564-2908. Ann Roberts will teach the group professional hints on just about everything from grooming to posture.

Sgts Major Association Buffet Dance

The Sergeants Major Association of Fort Benning will have a buffet dinner-dance for its members and their wives on Friday, Oct. 18 at the Victory Lodge Non-commissioned Officers Open Mess.

The event will start with a cocktail hour at 7:30 p.m. The buffet, with dinner music, will last until 9:30, followed by dancing to the music of Tom Hipp's band.

Members of the association planning to attend are requested to call Sgt. Maj. Al Spratley, 545-3301, prior to noon Monday, Oct. 14.

WOMAN'S CLUB OPENING TEA . . . Early arrivals are served at the Women's Club Opening Tea. Ladies are seen in the main ballroom of the Main Officers' Open Mess. A mammoth floral display was arranged on the center table. An estimated 1,700 ladies attended the annual event.

Helicopter Wives Hold First Coffee In Anzio Room

The ladies of the 27th Assault Helicopter Battalion met for their first coffee recently with Mrs. Harry W. O. Kinnard as the guest of honor.

The hostesses for this inaugural event in the Anzio Room were the wives of members of Company A. They chose for their theme a "Happy Tiger" in honor of the company mascot and radio call sign. Toy stuffed tigers were used as centerpieces for the tables.

Mrs. Frank L. Henry gave an interesting talk on military etiquette at Fort Benning. Mrs. Robert B. Zion won the door prize, a lovely floral centerpiece.

Cadre Wives Meet For Monthly Coffee At Lissner Home

The monthly coffee for the cadre officer's wives of the 4th Student Battalion, the Student Brigade, was held recently at the home of Mrs. John J. Lissner.

The table was laid with a white cloth and centered with a bowl of red roses. Mrs. Robert Hull poured coffee and tea. Cinnamon cake and sausage rolls were served.

Six Generals See Sky Soldiers In Action at Fort Stewart Test

Six Army generals using Iroquois helicopters as aerial observation posts watched troops from Company C, 3d Battalion, 187th Infantry, 11th Air Assault Division, execute a pincer movement on aggressor forces during the second phase of SKY SOLDIER I, the test exercise of the Army's air assault concept. The enemy was holding three important bridges across the Canoochee River about 15 miles north of Fort Stewart, Ga.

Before the Infantrymen landed, Sioux helicopters from the 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry, commanded by Maj. Dale M. Liggett, scouted the area on a reconnaissance mission. Other helicopters from the 11th Aviation Group, commanded by Col. George P. Seneff, and fixed-wing aircraft from the 10th Air Transport Brigade, commanded by Col. Delbert L. Bristol, flew sortie after sortie in defense of the Sky Soldiers.

Aggressors Fight

The aggressors, with hidden machine guns and M-14 rifles fought back savagely when the aircraft began the attack. But as wave after wave of helicopters and fixed-wing aircraft flew in at tree-top level with guns blazing, the aggressors were forced to give up their positions. Then the Infantrymen swooped in to begin their encircling maneuver.

Capt. Harry N. Ball, commanding officer of Company C, used three platoons to complete the maneuver. The first and second platoons were helicopter-landed near the two small-er outer bridges, while the third platoon rappelled from hovering Iroquois into an area close to the center bridge.

The first and second platoons sent out a force to lure the aggressors into a trap while the third platoon secured the middle bridge and laid in wait for the enemy.

Four Wounded

Aggressors from the 2nd Infantry Division, led by Sgt. Joseph Gibson, put up strong resistance. The Sky Soldiers of the 11th were assessed four simulated wounded.

Three aggressors were captured during the height of the attack.

The six general who watched the operation were Lt. Gen. (Ret.) T. J. H. Trapnell, former Third Army commanding general, Lt. Gen. Dwight E. Beach, commanding general of the Combat Developments Command; Maj. Gen. C. W. G. Rich, commanding general of The Infantry Center and Test Director for SKY SOLDIER I; Maj. Gen. Clifton F. von Kann, commanding general of the Army Aviation Center; Brig. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general of the 11th Air Assault Division, and Brig. Gen. Robert R. Williams, Chief of TEC Group.

Army Magazine Tells Importance of Sleep

Loss of sleep by soldiers and the resultant damage to human abilities such as judgment "can seriously affect the result of nuclear wars," writes Maj. Gen. A. S. Newman in the October issue of ARMY Magazine.

To support his contention, Gen. Newman draws upon personal experiences and cites two famous World War II cases that could possibly be traced to errors in judgment — the Patton soldier face-slapping incident and the premature withdrawal of major Japanese fleet elements from Leyte Gulf during the Leyte Campaign — as probably caused by two famous leader's minds being dulled by loss of sleep.

Gen. Newman, combat leader of the 34th Infantry Regiment in World War II, categorizes the "sleep problem" as not "what is sleep" but "how much does a man need?" Noting that our Army emphasizes the importance of food and water in training, yet neglects the need for sleep in all ranks, is, in his opinion, "because that vital need (sleep) goes largely unrecognized as the basic cause of many human errors failures and weaknesses."

The writer warns that "sleep starvation" not only impairs judgment and perception but seriously affects human memory. Further, it is cumulative and it "creeps up silently." Its danger, he warns, lies within the fact "it does not generate the same inborn desire like the need for food and water."

Guests Praise TIS' Role in JCOC

To paraphrase an old song title, "JCOC Is Over But the Melody Lingers On." Words of praise always make sweet music and scores of letters are being received at Fort Benning from those attending the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference, with just this theme.

FEREBEE BOYD

Typical of the letters The Infantry Center commanding general, Maj. Gen. W. G. Rich, has received, is this one from an attorney, Edward S. Ferebee, who said in part" . . it was the consensus of our entire group that the truly outstanding revelation was the massive amount of firepower now available to Infantry units. We were also most favorably impressed by the high quality of training and the equally high esprit of all individuals and units taking part in the demonstrations . . ."

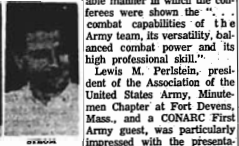
From deep within "Air Force country" came a letter from the Hon. Harry W. Hoth, mayor of Colorado Springs, Colo., home of the Air Force Academy. Mayor Hoth wrote, ". . I though it was a wonderful exhibition. . very interesting and informative. . I have the highest regard for the bravery and capability of the men at the Fort Benning Infantry Center."

Chin Ho, president of an investment company in Hawaii, wrote that the ". . depth and breadth of the research, training and planning of our defense program were effectively displayed. . made a tremendous impact on each and every one. . ."

Recognition of the Infantry soldier as "Man, the ultimate weapon," was cited in a letter from Robert D. Livingston, a CONARC guest from Sixth Army. Mr. Livingston wrote, ". . I came away convinced of the importance of the combat soldier as the essential element of success in battle." Mr. Livingston said further, "I shall endeavor to assist in every way possible in the development of a wider public understanding and a greater support of the Army program."

BIG CHIEF-LOVE

Lee Rich, manager of the Junction City Daily Union newspaper in Junction City, Kansas, wrote that he had been living next door to Fort Riley for 32 years and had seen many demonstrations ". . but none as fine as the ones given last week by those under your command at Fort Benning." Mr. Rich also wrote that he was preparing a feature spread in the Junction City newspaper covering Fort Benning and the Army phase of JCOC.



FERGUSON GIBSON

"Dedication" is desirable in any soldier and at least two of the JCOC conferees lauded the Fort Benning personnel for that particular quality. Lee A. Chilcote of Cleveland, Ohio, wrote, "All of you men at Fort Benning appear to be really dedicated, as well as in top mental and physical condition. All of this is most reassuring to we civilians." He said also that he was impressed with the quality of leadership in our Armed Forces and the ". . . preparedness for almost any eventuality." Stuart Wooster, district sales manager for Pan American World Airways also wrote that he was impressed with the dedication of the men whom he met and their effective hard work.

Maj. Gen. (Ret.) A. Lacy Price, from Jackson, Tenn., a CONARC Third Army guest, addressed the Jackson Exchange Club after returning from the conference and devoted his entire speech to the demonstrations he had witnessed at Fort Benning. His talk was reported in full by the Jackson (Tenn.) Sun. In a personal letter to General Rich, he commented on the admirable manner in which the conferees were shown the ". . combat capabilities of the Army team, its versatility, balanced combat power and its high professional skill."

Lewis M. Perlstein, president of the Association of the United States Army, Minute-men Chapter at Fort Devens, Mass., and a CONARC First Army guest, was particularly impressed with the presentation of "I Am the Infantry" and has requested it be made available for the AUSA Pearl Harbor Day meeting in December.

The several humorous skits which were used in some of the demonstrations to emphasize a point were especially appreciated by Frank A. Strom, executive vice president of the Providence (R. I.) Institution for Savings. He called them the "perfect touch" and commented, "Despite the seriousness of military efforts, the American sense of humor can be badly needed at times." Of special significance was this added comment by Mr. Strom, "In the event the Armed Forces 'management' wonders at the value of these conferences, I can heartily endorse their worth."

The value of the conference to students of the service schools who witnessed the demonstrations here was pointed up in a letter from the Commandant of the Armed Forces Staff College, USAF Maj. Gen. J. Stanley Holtoner, who wrote, "This field trip was a rewarding experience for the students and faculty. The demonstration of the capabilities of the ground combat commander will stimulate them toward imaginative thinking and practical planning in their work here and in future assignments."

Maj. Gen. Andrew R. Lolli, commanding general of the XV Army Corps, the Presidio of San Francisco, in a letter to Gen. Rich, quoted from one he had received which, he said, summed up the attitude of the CONARC Sixth Army guests: "It was inspiring to witness the various problems and the impressive show of firepower. While I was made aware of the staggering combat capability which has been

Know Your Allies

He Served in the Congo

Capt. Henry D. Lucas, a 10-year veteran of Great Britain's Infantry, is among the Allied students enrolled in The Infantry School's career officer course No. 2.

While assigned to the Royal Nigerian Army (from 1960 to 1963), Capt. Lucas served with the United Nations Forces in the Congo.

The captain started his military career in 1953 when he was graduated from the Royal Military Academy in Sandhurst, England. After being commissioned he became a member of the Bedfordshire and Hartfordshire Regiment that same year. He served with the regiment in the Suez Canal Zone until 1954 when he went back to Great Britain.

The next year he went with his unit to Germany where he served until 1958. During this time the Bedfordshire and Hartfordshire Regiment was amalgamated with the Essex Regiment and became the 3rd East Anglican Regiment.

CAPT. LUCAS

The government of Great Britain is a parliamentary democracy. It is a constitutional hereditary monarchy, wherin the sovereign reigns but does not rule. The sovereign heads the government's executive branch, is part of the legislature, heads the judiciary, is temporal head of the Church and is commander-in-chief of the armed forces. However, the constitution requires the sovereign to rule with the approval of Parliament, which means that no royal act is taken without the consent of the ministers. Therefore, in practice, executive power is wielded by the Prime Minister and the Cabinet.

Legislative power is vested in Parliament, composed of the 60 - member House of Commons and the 908-member House of Lords.

PCS Cost Discussed At Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AFPS) —The Defense Department is studying a proposed stateside temporary lodging allowance.

This allowance is to defray the added expenses of hotel or similar transient lodging for personnel on permanent change of station orders.

This would be similar to the type of allowance now authorized in certain overseas areas.

The overseas allowances are paid for up to 10 days to persons departing who surrender their quarters during that period and up to 60 days for arrivals awaiting quaters.

The Per Diem Committee of the Department of Defense has sent questionnaires to thousands of service personnel making PCS moves in an effort to learn more about the extra expenses involved in such movements.

The Per Diem Committee is also making a study of current dislocation allowances to determine whether or not they are adequate.

Seven Men Needed To Fire Little John

CAMP OLIVER, Ga. — It takes a seven man crew from B Battery, 2nd Battalion, 42nd Artillery, to fire the little John rocket, but eleven men are needed to put the missile on its target.

The additional four men perform perhaps the most important task short of the actual firing — they operate the wind measuring set and the accompanying data computer instruments. Without information on wind speed and direction, the rocket would go astray.

When B Battery fires the Little John Missile, tentatively set for Oct. 10 on the Fort Stewart range the success of the mission will hinge on the four men operating the wind set and data computer. Section chief SSgt Thomas Dixon will be banking on Sp4's George L. Gasson, Jose Diaz, Willie A. Lewter and Pvt. Winston M. Fields to put the missile on target.

The wind measuring set in a unique 50-foot high instrument which records the wind velocity and direction and transmits the information to the data computer where it is transposed into the correct caliberation settings for the missile aiming system. The wind set is positioned some 25 yards to the forward left of the rocket launcher and is assembled much like a sectional radio antenna.

In keeping with the air assault principle of light weight air transportable material, the entire Little John complex weighs slightly more than one ton and is completely carried on a M-151 quarter ton truck-trailer set up. The combination jeep-rocket system can usually be air-lifted to forward areas by either the Mohave or Chinook.

The launcher is the heaviest piece of equipment in the complex weighing more than 1,000 pounds. The Little John itself weighs 780 pounds and the wind set and data computer weigh 350.

Representing one of the most versatile weapons in the 11th Air Assault Division arsenal, the Little John has a range of more than 15 miles and can pack a conventional or nuclear punch.

Third Army Commander Visits 'Indianhead' Division

38th Artillerymen First Division Unit To Reach 100% Goal

BY BOB DE CAMARA

The first 2nd Infantry Division unit to reach a 100 per cent donations total in the current Community Activities Association Fund (CAAF) Drive turned over a check for more than $1,000 to the division's commanding general Saturday morning.

The 38th Artillery's accomplishment was even more remarkable than usual for the speed with which the money was collected.

On Wednesday, October 2, the artillery battalion returned from Little Creek, Va., where the men had undergone a rigorous two-weeks course in amphibious assaults. On Thursday, October 3, the men were paid. By last Friday, October 4, the unit had reached 100 per cent, and Saturday morning in front of Division Headquarters, Sgt. Maj. Joseph Chickini handed over a check for $1,081.50 to Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general of the 2nd Division.

The commanders and first sergeants of all the 38th's batteries were grouped about the scene.

Members of the 2nd Division still have one more payday to make their "fair share" contribution.

Gen. Billingslea kicked off the fund drive late last month by giving his personal check to the key man for the command group, CWO Frank H. Fallis.

The money accepted from the 38th Artillery has been turned over to Maj. Robert E. Pardee, division chemical officer who is acting as project officer for the drive, to add to the monies already collected.

Several smaller units have also completed donating to capacity.

The CAAF underwrites the operations of three prominent Fort Benning welfare agencies as well as working hand-in-glove with the Muscogee and Russell Counties United Givers Fund Drive.

At Fort Benning the two drives are combined into one and an appropriate share of the collections diverted to United Givers to help support national and Columbus area relief agencies.

On post, the Youth Activities Club, the Visiting Nurses Program and the Preventive Dental Health Program are the heirs of the CAAF Drive.

The drive at Fort Benning officially started on the September payday and will continue through payday this month, giving soldiers the advantage of contributing either of the two paydays or both.

ANOTHER ERNIE PYLE . . . Gen. Corley (L) and Gen. Coffin (R) check the fit of reporter Charles Black's new 'tanker' jacket.

2nd Division's 'Ernie Pyle' Wears GI Tanker Jacket

By Bob de Camara

In the rear of a shed at the 2nd Infantry Division's Counter - Guerrilla Reaction Course, a man in battered khaki shirt and trousers sat taking notes.

The day, at mid-morning, already loomed stiflingly hot. A class in progress touched on the finer points of aerial resupply.

At the front of the open room, on a raised platform, the instructor paused in his talk for a moment and looked over each man carefully until the class came to a hush. "Even as I'm telling you this," he said finally, "you are being watched by guerrillas."

As this startling thought sank in, the men turned in pairs to stare quizzically at the note taker.

His clothes seemed ragged enough. His shirt, perhaps, has lost an argument with a thorn bush and his trousers had once had a run-in with battery acid. His hair was neither slicked down or showed signs of undue combing. His face bore deep lines and his shoes equal mileage.

But the thought that was running through each man's mind was wide of the mark. For they were questioningly eyeing a Columbus Enquirer reporter, Charles Black, who probably put one or more rips in his shirt from a thorn thicket and stained his trousers with salt water at Little Creek, Va.

Last week at 2nd Division Headquarters to clear up some of the mystery surrounding the man who seems to be everywhere, two assistant division commanders, Brig. Gen. John T. Corley and Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, welcomed Charles Black to the division again and returned to him his tankers jacket with a bold new name-tag and Indianhead shoulder patch.

Gen. Corley, a man who's seen a good bit of action himself at such places as Omaha Beach and Pusan, has this to say about the reporter:

"For a newspaper man Charles Black is an unusual individual. By background and training, he is a professional newspaper man; by avocation, he is an adventurer."

"Where the action is, there you will find Mr. Black. He has a habit of appearing in the most unusual places. He seeks the opinion of the action people who make every operation go. He is the 'Ernie Pyle' of the 2nd Infantry Division."

Black comes by his present military finesse after a tough bit of experience. Tulagi, Guadalcanal, New Georgia and Tarawa are four islands he knew as a sergeant with the 4th Battalion of Edson's Marine Raiders and the 2nd Marine Division's Scout and Sniper Platoon in World War II.

Called back to active duty for the Korean War, Black landed at Inchon and Wonsan with the 1st Marine Division and took part in the rout of seven Chinese Communist divisions on the march from Hagaru to Hamhung.

With the 2nd Infantry Division, Black has seen the suburborn side of South Carolina in Swift Strike III. At Little Creek where "Indianhead" foot soldiers trained in amphibious assaults, Black charged through a pounding surf under simulated combat conditions to hit the beach with a squad of men.

At the Counter - Guerrilla Course in the Fort Benning wilds, Black patiently waited with guerrillas to mount an ambush and a short while later joined the other side for a counter-attack.

He's a friend to the common soldier (although he does not like to hear them called "common") and will stick with a source through whatever training contortions any given day can dish up.

And since he's been riding literary herd on the 2nd Infantry Division, he's come upon a few twists which have breached a span of 20 years and the odds that sometimes crop up between Marines and Army soldiers.

At Little Creek in 1963, Black rediscovered the U.S.S. Monrovia, the troopship he took to the invasion of Tarawa in 1943.

Black delightedly sought out his old bunk and struck up a friendship with a bosun's mate who claims to have been aboard for Tarawa.

What Black got out of it was an engraved cigarette lighter and an acute dose of nostalgia. The 2nd Infantry Division got some fine on-the-spot reporting. And that's a fair enough trade.

The three-star commanding general of the Third U.S. Army flew into 2nd Division Headquarters last week to hear how his inspectors rate division staff sections after a week of thorough researching.

Altogether, 15 Army officers, 4 enlisted men and 4 civilians carried out a scrutiny of general and special staff offices and selected division units that left few stones unturned.

Immediately upon arrival at the 2nd Infantry Division, the visiting general had been greeted by Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, 2nd Division commander, and had spoken briefly with Gen. Billingslea in his office before descending to the conference room.

Lt. Gen. Albert Watson II sat in the conference room with his touring team and listened along with division commanders and officers to Col. Linwood Griffin Jr., Third U. S. Army Inspector General, comment on what he had seen.

When that meeting adjourned, Gen. Watson, accompanied by Gen. Billingslea and by Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin assistant division commander, drove to the area of Support Command for a look at the Preventive Maintenance Indicators (PMI) course.

The course suggests basically that nine simple factors, such as leaks, noises, cleanliness and lubrication, can be used to indicate the condition of a piece of equipment.

There is perennially a great deal of interest in the division, and in Third Army, in materiel readiness, which translates roughly "combat readiness," of battle gear.

Gen. Coffin has the title of division materiel officer and makes a habit of speaking to each incoming class. The course is administered by Maj. Herbert L. Bergen, division ammunition officer, who dubbed the main classroom building the "big top" and says "we try to maintain a carnival atmosphere" in order to keep what they're learning.

Gen. Watson received almost a student's - eye view as he trooped briskly to every one of the 16 classroom stations and sat through a detailed briefing.

One happy note was struck by the discovery of a "perfect" truck and the soldier who keeps it that way. Gen. Watson spoke eagerly with Sp4 Orlando Pratt of Company B, 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion.

The specialist fourth class veteran of 20 months Army service, shook hands with the general and responded to the general's congratulations. Pratt later noted laconically that before scoring a "perfect" on his truck, something of a rarity, "they went through it pretty good."

(Pratt, by the way, at the time of his meeting with Gen. Watson was a private first class. He received an almost on-the-spot promotion.)

Gen. Coffin Stresses Urgency In Readying Deadlined Gear

By Support Command PIO

Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, assistant division commander, addressed officers representing all units throughout the division October 3 on the new material readiness program now being put into effect.

Under the "Big Top," located in the Support Command Preventive Maintenance Indicator Course, he stated that, "We must all show a sense of urgency to get deadlined equipment combat operational." As a part of the vertical chain of command, he pointed out that each officer in the class is his commander's principal assistant for equipment material readiness.

Gen. Coffin called attention to the course that is now in progress and charged the class to go back to their units and start similar schools to improve the equipment maintenance in the division. He also pointed out that the maintenance program must fit in with the division training program for the 2nd quarter and further stated that the big push on maintenance is "Right from the top."

Gen. Coffin described in detail the new Equipment Serviceability Test and called attention to Army Regulation (AR) 750-10, which is the basis for new reports on equipment combat status.

Selected items of equipment are listed in the new AR which require many serviceability tests. These tests will demonstrate to the commanders their equipment capability for combat. He stressed that for a unit to move, shoot and communicate, its equipment must be well maintained. He stated that the equipment serviceability test is not a technical inspection nor a substitute for one.

During the forthcoming months personnel of the "Indianhead" Division can expect to witness more equipment inspections from higher headquarters, and especially more frequent command maintenance readiness inspections.

Gen. Coffin concluded his talk by stating, "You can have good preventive maintenance when you understand the new system and implement it. Read the new publications. Study them and start your own schools; everybody is in this together. Did you know that if you totaled the radios, vehicles and crew served weapons in the division that every soldier would have the responsibility for at least one of the items of equipment. Our task is clear. We must attack it vigorously."

Lost Dog Found

Thanks to a human interest story appearing in last week's issue of the Bayonet, a forlorn canine was reunited with its worried master. The dog, an obedient and gentle, three foot tall mixture of German Shepherd and Collie, was found wandering in the woods three weeks ago by a sergeant of Company B, 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry, which was bivouaced near Ruth Range.

The company commander, Capt. Gregory P. Dillon, brought it back to the company and informed the local authorities and the division Information Office of his find.

The friendly animal took instantly to personnel in fatigues and enjoyed riding in military vehicles, which led Capt. Dillon to assume that it belonged to someone in the military.

His assumption proved correct when, just several hours after last week's issue of the Bayonet appeared, the homesick animal was claimed by Capt. Keith F. Van Sant, Headquarters, 197th Brigade.

Capt. Dillon viewed the reunion with mixed emotions. "Although the men of the company became very attached to the animal, I am very glad we were able to locate its master because he (the dog) seemed to miss him very much." And then he added, "But he would have made a terrific company mascot."

Shanghai Born Major New 1st of 23rd 'Exec'

By 1st Bn., 23rd Infantry PIO

From Shanghai, China, to Fort Benning, Ga. is a great distance, but the new executive officer of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry has traveled this route through life.

Maj. Mial D. Stafford was born in Shanghai some 44 years ago. His father was assigned to China as Treasurer of the Baptist Foreign Mission Board there. Maj. Stafford returned to the states as a youth, grew up in Beria, Ky., and graduated from Yale University in 1940. He enlisted in the Connecticut National Guard in January, 1941 and upon that unit's federalization came on active duty with the 43rd Infantry Division. He completed basic training at Camp Blanding, Fla., earned the rank of sergeant and served as a rifle squad leader with the 102nd Infantry Regiment during the early stages of the war in the South Pacific.

Qualifying for Officer Candidate School in January 1943, he was sent to Fort Benning for training. He completed the course and was commissioned a second lieutenant of Infantry in April, 1943.

After serving a short tour with the 8th Armored Division at Camp Polk, La., and a year as an instructor at the Infantry School, he was assigned to the European Theater and duty with the 168th Infantry Regiment, 34th Infantry Division in Italy as a platoon leader.

At the end of World War II, he returned to civilian life only to answer the call to arms once again during the Korean War. He came on active duty in October, 1951 and was assigned to the Staff Department of the Infantry School.

The major served as Adjutant of the United States Army School, Europe at Oberammergau and later as an instructor in the school's Para Military Actions Department during his tour in USAREUR. He returned to the state and his present duties in September 1963.

Pride in Uniform

Have you ever heard a sportscaster say, "He looks like a ball player!"

Of course you have and nine times out of ten the athlete being singled out is as preficient at his trade as he looks. Who ever saw a sloppy Stan Musial, and unkempt Willie Mays, or a ruffled Mickey Mantle?

These men in uniform exude confidence by their very appearance and put the opposition on notice instantly that their foe is formidable. Even if a pitcher was not acquainted with the records of these three greats, he would be somewhat leery about facing them.

In much the same way, the appearance of a soldier, particularly a 2nd Division soldier, is indicative of his worth.

No, the uniform doesn't make the man. Hardly! But few will argue that the troop who "stands tall" is generally a competent soldier. Much as we all feel infinitely better after a hot shower, a soldier with pride in his uniform and in his general appearance is a man able to look the world squarely in the eye.

Whether you are a young business executive, a ball player or a member of the U. S. Army, a properly dressed person commands attention. That, coupled with pride in the job we do, generates the self confidence that can produce innumerable personal benefits.

Because we are in service our appearance is a good deal more important than that of most. The populace which employs us has a critical eye. For many, meeting us on the street is their only contact with the military. We may go unrecognized for being the sharp soldiers we should be. But if we are not, it will not go unnoticed. We are indeed fortunate to have such stylish uniforms. Compare them for a moment with those worn by our predecessors. It should be an easy and pleasant task to keep it straight and wear it with pride.

The sergeants major of the "Indianhead" Division are as one in agreeing that they would not be where they are today were it not for the constant emphasis placed on looking like a soldier. A man cannot possibly face up to the many responsibilities of this modern Army unless he looks and feels his best.

Our appearance should convince even those who don't know us that we are ready for anything.

Ranger Named 23rd Infantry Platoon Sgt.

By 2nd Bn., 23rd Infantry PIO

Six-foot, 220-pound MSgt. Walker M. Goad is an awesome sight to the men of Company C, 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry and his hulking appearance doesn't tell half the story.

Sgt. Goad, who has been assigned as platoon sergeant for the 2nd Platoon, brings with him a 22-year background in the Army including service with the Rangers. Before joining the 2nd Infantry Division he was with the 1st Ranger Company at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. The company handles Ranger swamp training.

Athletics Consume 'Indianheads' Spare Time at Little Creek, Va.

LITTLE CREEK, VA.

Although amphibious training at Little Creek, Va. takes a lot of time, Company A of the 2nd Engineer Battalion finds time for an enthusiastic athletic program.

Recently they challenged Company D, 2nd Engineer Battalion, to a "grudge" football game, and a large crowd from both companies was on hand. Alpha Company started the game off fast by intercepting a pass on the first play from scrimmage, then they scored a 25 yard pass play.

They scored two more times before Company D could get started, then the two teams battled on even terms for three quarters. In the fourth quarter Company D scored twice, closing the gap to only six points, but Company A iced the game away by scoring a surprise 30 yard pass play. The final score was 24 to 12 in favor of Company A.

In the 2nd Brigade volleyball tournament, which is just getting underway, Company A and Company D were matched in first round competition. In the best two of three series Alpha Company won by the narrow margins of 15 to 11 and 15 to 9. The next night, A and D companies met head-on, and in the first game Company A jumped off to a large lead but allowed it to dwindle to four points at the end of the game. They easily won the second game, however, which not only gave the match to Company A, but also a position in the next rounds of the tournament.

Gen. Coffin Honored At Promotion Review

The Army and the public witnessed the laying on of honors last week at the 2nd Infantry Division's Marne Field.

Recipient of the tribute was Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, as assistant 2nd Division commander, promoted to general rank in the midst of Joint Exercise SWIFT STRIKE III but never formally honored.

Artillerymen fired salutes for him and the marching band played music for him as high - level commanders and noncommissioned officers representing all the "Indianhead" units either watched or took part in the ceremony.

This type of tribute was impossible to accomplish during SWIFT STRIKE when both the Red and Blue sides were operating at maximum security to guard secrets from each other.

Now two months a general, Gen. Coffin came to the 2nd Division in June, a brigadier general-nominate.

Gen. Coffin is a 1939 graduate of Stanford University.

Division Flag Football Gets Under Way Monday

Action in the annual 2nd Division Flag Football Tournament is scheduled to get under way Monday with some 20 units expected to field teams.

Games are slated for Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings with two nightly contests to be played at Sand Hill's Bennett Field and one at Essebagger Field at Kelley Hill. Game times and team matchings are expected to be announced by the end of this week.

A maximum of 23 teams has been planned for by Special Services. They will be broken down into three leagues and play a single round-robin schedule. League champions and their runners-up will then engage in a double elimination tourney with the championship game scheduled for November 29th.

Two of the top teams in the tournament will battle it out at 3 p.m. October 26th at Bennett Field as part of the "Indianhead" Division's Organization Day activities. A cross-country run at 1 p.m. is also on the anniversary day agenda.

Units invited to enter are the 1st and 2nd Battalions, 9th Infantry; 1st and 2nd Battalions, 23rd Infantry; 1st and 2nd Battalions, 38th Infantry; 2nd Aviation Battalion; 2nd Engineer Battalion; 2nd Medical Battalion; 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion; 2nd Admin. Company; 4th Squadron, 7th Cavalry; 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor; 122nd Signal Battalion; 702nd Maintenance Battalion; Headquarters, Division Artillery; 12th, 15th, 17th, 57th and 38th Artillery Battalions; 303rd Army Security Agency (ASA) Battalion; and a composite team drawing personnel from Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Military Police Company, 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment, 184th Chemical Platoon, 26th Chemical Detachment, and Headquarters Support Command and band.

The tournament's organizational meeting will be held today at 2 p.m. at Service Club 2 on Sand Hill.

A New First Sergeant Assigned to 1st Brigade

By 1st Brigade PIO

1st Sgt. Walter E. Sentell Jr. recently became the new top-kick of Headquarters Company, 1st Brigade, replacing MSgt. William P. Bibb, who was reassigned to Main Post in a teaching capacity with the Infantry School.

A native of Ashville, N.C., Sgt. Sentell entered the Army in May, 1943, and took basic training at Camp Phillips, Kan. Sent to England with the 276th Field Artillery, Sgt. Sentell transferred to the 26th Infantry Division, which hit Utah Beach in Normandy on D-Day plus 8. Wounded in the Battle of Hurtgen Forest in Belgium, he was sent to a rear area to recuperate, but later rejoined the 26th in its campaign through Germany to Prague, Czechoslovakia.

Returning to the United States in 1946, Sgt. Sentell took a break in service, then reentered the Army in July, 1947. He attended the Army Security Agency School in Vinthill Farms, Va., and later served with the 71st Signal Battalion in Japan. With the 1st Cavalry Division in the Korean War, Sgt. Sentell was later assigned to recruiting duty in Pennsylvania.

In 1956 he came to Fort Benning and served with the 3rd Infantry Division. When the division "Gyroscoped" to Europe, he remained behind and went to Main Post with the 14th Infantry.

Sgt. Sentell served as S-3 operations sergeant for the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry before being assigned to his present position with the 1st Brigade.

Sgt. Sentell, his wife, Reva, and their son, Robert, 9, reside at 1408 Gardinier Drive, Columbus.

MSgt. Mojica Promoted At Division Ceremonies

When Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, 2nd Infantry Division commander, promoted a group of senior NCOs recently, one of the men appearing before him for elevation to the grade of E-8 was a member of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry known among his fellow soldiers as "Mo." MSgt. Louis Mojica reached toward the tip of the enlisted ladder entering his 16th year of military service.

The man whose booming voice was once described as that of "a terrified chinese coolie being chased by a tiger in a snow storm," is a native of the Bronx, New York. He enlisted in the Army in March 1923. He fought hi sway across Europe with the 47th Infantry Regiment of the 9th Infantry Division. At the end of World War II, he left the service but returned to the Army in May 1949.

He completed Military Police School and was assigned to the 5th Regimental Combat Team in Korea in July 1950. After suffering two wounds in Korea he returned to the States and after recovering his health was assigned to Fort Knox, Ky, as NCOIC of that post's meat cutting plant. Requesting overseas duty in 1951, he was assigned to the 26th Infantry Regiment in Bamberg, Germany and remained with that unit until 1963 with the exception of a year at City College of New York as a Reserve Officer Training Corps instructor.

During his more than ten years as a member of the 26th Infantry, he traveled with that unit from Fort Riley, Kan. to Baumholder, Germany on Operation Gyroscope and came to the 2nd Infantry Division on Rotaplan in 1962. He has most recently served as Intelligence NCO in the battalion S-2 Section and just graduated from the Army's Intelligence School at Fort Holibird, Md.

THEN THE CHIEF SAID . . . Lt. Col. R. O. Stewart, division G-2, gets the latest dope from Che-il, Chingu (Korean for Number One Friend). The cute Poodle, belonging to Col. Lucien Keller, division chief of staff, helps keep the G-2 informed. (L-R) Che-il Chingu and Col. Stewart.

Sp4 Lafleur Battalion CO for JCOC Exhibit

By 2nd Bn, 23rd Infantry PIO

As the attacking rifleman charged across the hilltop and disappeared from view, a helicopter could be heard approaching from the south. The occasional firing and explosion of supporting artillery rounds subsided as the helicopter approached the hilltop. Dust swirled up in a huge reddish brown cloud as the chopper slowly settled to the ground.

Running from the aircraft, a figure seemed to appear like a genie from the cloud. First partially visable, then obscured, then fully visible, the figure slowly moved to meet another man as the narrator told 2,200 eager watchers that the. . ."Battalion commander arrives on Hill 2 to confer with the commander of Team Alfa."

This was one important phase of the Firepower and Air-Mobile Assault demonstration put on for the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference. The "battalion commander" in this case was SP4 Alfred G. (DeGaulle) Lafleur, a member of Company C, 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

Challenging Family Trip Great Military Experience

MRS. LOCHRIE

The Distaff Profile this week honors Mrs. Arthur James Lochrie, wife of Lt. Col. Lochrie, commander of the Second Division's 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor. The Lochrie family, six in number, resides at 309-B First Division Road.

The daughter of Mrs. Willis Johnson, christened Carma Rae was born and raised in Butte, Mont. After graduating from Butte High School, Cirma went on to major in journalism at the University of Montana. While in college she became a member of Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority. Carma was later elected to the Mortar Board Senior Womans Society and became a member of the Journalism Honor Society, Theta Sigma Phi. During her senior year she was editor of the college paper and an honorary member of the Student Council.

Mrs. Lochrie particularly enjoyed the Junior and Senior summers for it was during these months that her journalism was put into first use. Her Sophomore summer was spent on the staff of the Anaconda Standard. Enthusiastically interested in real life newspaper work, the following summer found Carmra on the staff of the Butte Daily Post, covering police and district court proceedings and a variety of board meetings.

After receiving her Bachelor of Science degree, Carma ambitiously set out for Chicago looking for a job. Shortly thereafter she accepted a position as an assistant editor for the Trade Publication of National Furniture Review. A little over two years later Miss Johnson left Chicago to take a job with Steve Hannigan Associates of New York City. Writing the Women's View on new home appliances was now her job, but Carma Johnson was also writing regularly to one Lt. Arthur James Lochrie, a recent graduate of West Point, United States Military Academy. Lt. Lochrie was then stationed in Austria. Returning to the states in 1950, Lt. Lochrie had a short visit with Carma in New York City and then went on to Fort Benning, Georgia. Almost immediately he was assigned to a 10 month hardship tour in Korea.

Promoted to captain during his Korean tour, Capt. Lochrie was sent back to the United States to take the Advanced Course at Fort Knox, Ky. It was here in December, 1951, that Carma Johnson became Mrs. Arthur J. Lochrie.

In 1953, six weeks after the birth of Jane, their first daughter, Capt. Lochrie was sent to Georgia Technical Institute to obtain his masters degree. A second daughter, Cama was born in Atlanta on January 1, 1955. Upon receiving his degree, Capt. Lochrie was ordered to Fort Knox, Ky., for a three year tour as an instructor in the Automotive Department of the Armor School. Mrs. Lochrie was busily occupied with the baby girls and the arrival of her first son, Jim.

In January of 1958, the Lochrie family moved to Leavenworth, Kansas, where Capt. Lochrie attended the Command and Staff College. At Leavenworth the Capt. was promoted to major and then received orders for Heidleburg, Germany, and the family began its most hectic and hilarious move to date.

First they traveled from Leavenworth, Kansas, to Butte, Montana, to visit their families. From Butte they drove to New York City's Fort Hamilton. Mrs. Lochrie recalls the long trip with three children as one of the most challenging experiences of her military life. This was only the beginning. At Fort Hamilton they boarded buses for International Airport and no sooner than they were started than the bus became involved in a minor traffic mishap. Finally in the air the plane stopped to refuel in Gander, Newfoun land, only to be delayed with mechanical difficulties. Two year old Jim refused to close his eyes the whole night through. To add to the confusion, the plane was not prepared for the overnight delay and the passengers ran out of both food and water long before reaching Frankfort's Rhine Mainz. Red-eyed, but still smiling, they arrived in Germany and Little Jim promptly got lost in the crowd. After retrieving his son and the Major's uniform-bag, they found lodgings for the night. Mrs. Lochrie settled the children and then proceeded to open the uniform bag and was amazed to find everything four sizes too small for her six-foot husband.

Though the trip over was most hectic, the Lochrie family thoroughly enjoyed their tour in Heidelburg, Germany.

The Lochries returned to the United States in 1962 and settled in Norfolk, Va., where Maj. Lochrie attended the Armed Forces Staff College. In January of 1963 Maj. Lochrie was assigned as executive officer of the 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor at Fort Benning. The family drove down from Norfolk, Va., bringing with them their second son, Daniel, who was born just before their departure from Germany.

In April of this year, Maj. Lochrie assumed command of the 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor. He was promoted to lieutenant colonel in May of this year.

Mrs. Lochrie gives Fort Benning, as her favorite post and is active here in the Fort Benning Officers' Wives Club.

2nd of 38th Coffee Hosted By Mrs. Ramsey

The monthly coffee for the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry was held recently at the home of Mrs. Cecil Ramsey. Mrs. Ramsey and Mrs. James Dillard were co-hostesses for the coffee.

The table was attractively decorated with a centerpiece of mixed summer flowers and complimented by a silver tea service. Assorted sandwiches, pastry and cheese biscuits were served the ladies. Mrs. James Thacker poured.

Talented Military Writers Make Up 'Sword and Pen'

By Dorothy Young Smith

One of our country's more famous writers has recently confessed: "Many of my friends were more talented than I. But I wrote and they didn't."

As every writer knows, success comes only from hours and hours of toil and concentration. Persons who share your interests and stir your ideas are a stimulating asset, like the frosting on a cake.

From the need of one writer for another, the Armed Forces Writers' League was formed in 1954 by a group of service personnel in Hawaii. Since then it has become international in scope with over three thousand members. There are branches in many parts of the United States and at several overseas locations. Many AFWL members are among the top professionals in the business.

The AFWL is an incorporated, non-profit, educational and reciprocal self-help organization, service connected and patriotic in nature. Its main purpose is to bring together writers for mutual benefit. Members exchange ideas, market information, and conduct workshops to advance their knowledge of writing and to improve their techniques.

Services offered by AFWL are: press card accreditation for professional members, information service and bulletins, discounts on writers' magazines and books, market news, assistance in setting up AFWL branches, writing courses, and fellowships. In addition, the League annually sponsors writing and art contests, provides the services of a literary agent at reduced rates, and publishes the Armed Forces Writer, an up-dated writers' magazine.

When the Sword and Pen, the Fort Benning Chapter of the Armed Forces Writers' League, was formed, sometime in the early fall of 1960, it drew some fifty or sixty interested persons, twenty-four of whom joined at once.

Many Sword and Pen members have proven that they have the necessary talent and determination to prove their ability in the fields of fiction, feature and technical writing, poetry, and book reviewing. Four have published books to their credit, five are writing books, and two have written informative pamphlets.

The local Sword and Pen is headed by Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith, president; Maj. (ret.) Joseph Stoffel, vice president; Mrs. William Luther, secretary and treasurer; and, SFC Lawrence W. Smith, Historian.

Engineer Wives Club Plans for Bridge Party

Mrs. Larry A. Lindsay and Mrs. William Casey sponsored the monthly coffee of the 2nd Engineer Battalion Officers' Wives Club at the home of Mrs. Casey.

Coffee was poured from a buffet decorated in a Halloween theme.

Mrs. Geoffrey Fosbrock, President, and Mrs. Beverly C. Snow Jr. conducted a business meeting.

Plans were made for a bridge party on October 16th at the home of Mrs. Ronald B. Snyder. A hospitality committee was appointed, with Mrs. Larry Philpott in charge.

Mrs. Alan Bryant, from Danville, Virginia, was the only new member welcomed.

Monthly Coffee Held Recently By 2nd of 9th

Officers' Wives of the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry recently held their monthly coffee at the home of Mrs. George D. Crosby.

Special guest, Mrs. Dwight B. Dickson, wife of the 2nd Brigade Commander, poured for the ladies. The serving table was covered in white linen and held a centerpiece of white and yellow mums.

A short business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Crosby. Farewell was bade to Mrs. Wallace M. Evans.

MRS. KELLER SPEAKS AT RECENT SOCIAL GATHERING

First Formal Gathering Held by the 2nd of 38th

The officers and ladies of the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry recently gathered for cocktails and a formal dinner in the Corregidor Room at the Main Officer's Open Mess.

The occasion marked the first formal gathering held by the battalion since it was reorganized in May. During the dinner, Lt. Col. Donald H. Lanier, commander of the battalion, presented Maj. Sherman W. Hardman with a plaque recognizing his service while serving as battalion executive officer. Maj. Hardman retires this month.

Among the honored guests attending were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Charles Billingslea, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. John T. Corley, Col. and Mrs. Lucien F. Keller and Col. and Mrs. William J. Ray.

In the receiving line greeting the officers and ladies of the battalion were Gen. and Mrs. Billingslea, Col. and Mrs. Ray and Col. and Mrs. Lanier.

October Coffee Held at MOOM

Officers' Wives of Second Division Headquarters held their October coffee in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess. Hostess for the event was Mrs. John H. Cochran Jr., wife of the 2nd Division G-3, and the Officers' Ladies of that section.

Pouring coffee and tea for the ladies were Mrs. Charles Billingslea, Mrs. John Corley, Mrs. Robert E. Coffin, Mrs. Lucien F. Keller and Mrs. Cochran.

Mrs. Keller held a brief business meeting and welcomed new arrivals.

Air Medal Presented At Award Ceremony

By 1st Bn, 9th Infantry PIO

At the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry's monthly award presentation ceremonies held at Sand Hill's theater 7, Lt. Col. Donald T. Paul, the battalion commander, briefed his officers and men on future training and presented, along with three special awards, the regular monthly awards.

For distinguishing himself meritoriously while engaged in aerial combat support of ground forces over the Republic of Viet Nam, Capt. Henry J. O'Connor was awarded the Air Medal (Second Oak Leaf Cluster).

Capt. O'Connor actively participated as a crew member of an army aircraft in at least twenty-five combat or aerial reconnaisance missions over hostile territory in support of counterinsurgency operations. On various occasions his aircraft was the target of Viet Cong small arms and automatic weapons fire.

Capt. George M. Font was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for his meritorious service as a Military Intelligence and Counter Insurgency Operation Instructor with the Counter Insurgency Section at Fort Gullick, Panama Canal Zone.

Capt. Font was responsible for research, preparation, and presentation of a wide variety of subjects in the field of military intelligence and counter insurgency operations. He was primarily responsible for changes in the concept of field exercise instruction which resulted in marked improvement of the instruction. He also persented instruction in Spanish to Latin American personnel of all grades.

SFC Frank J. Harrell, now with the battalion's scout platoon, was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious and faithful service as an instructor and operations sergeant with the 1st (Provisional) Battalion, 5th Training Regiment located at Fort Dix, N.J.

The first of the battalion's awards was a trophy for the Soldier of the Month (SOM) which went to Sp4 Henry M. Hammond. Hammond was also chosen as the 3rd Brigade SOM and was a very strong contender for the division title.

The Best Mess award was presented to Headquarters Company mess hall. The Headquarters Company mess was chosen for the manner in which it consistantly served good wholesome food and its overall cleanliness.

A trophy for the battalion Driver of the Month was presented to PFC Paul Silvers. He was chosen for his past driving record and the manner in which he kept his vehicle and its records.

Two Promotions Held at 1st of 9th

By 1st Bn, 9th Infantry PIO

Lt. Joseph B. Egan III and Lt. John H. Blalock were promoted to their present rank recently in ceremonies held in the office of Lt. Col. Donald T. Paul, the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry's commanding officer.

Lt. Egan, the assistant adjutant, is a 1961 graduate of Spring Hill College in Mobile, Ala. where he participated in the Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) program. He has attended the N.S. Army Infantry Center (USAIC) Chemical Biological Nuclear School, the Landing Force Task Unit Embarkation School at Little Creek, Va., and the Civil Affairs School, Ft. Gordon, Ga.

Lt. Blalock received his Bachelor of Arts Degree in Political Science from the University of Alabama in 1961 and entered the Army in March, 1962. After completing the Basic Infantry Officers Orientation Course at Ft. Benning, he was assigned to the 2nd Infantry Division's 23rd Infantry as a platoon leader.

October Coffee For 1st of 9th

Mrs. Stanley Poore recently hostessed the October coffee for the ladies of the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry. An informal table grouping of coffee and pastries were arranged for the wives.

Mrs. Donald T. Paul, wife of the battalion commander, held a business meeting at which the following committees were formed: Mrs. Poore and Mrs. Hiram Ballou; Farewell Committee, Mrs. Jim Childress and Mrs. Herman Goldman; Bridge Committee, Mrs. Roy Douglas.

Mrs. James O'Conner and Mrs. Kerop Nalbandain attended as newcomers.

Holder of Navy Cross Was a UDT Frogman. . .

2nd Division Sergeant Swam 12 Invasions

BY CARL HALSTEAD

First, he's an ex - Navy frogman. Second, he is the holder of the coveted Navy Cross. Third, he went ashore on D-Day five hours before anyone else. If that isn't enough, he also holds two Silver Star Medals, two Bronze Star Medals, the Air Medal and four Purple Hearts. And, under cover of darkness, he swam to 12 different enemy shores to clear the way for a dozen major invasions.

Recently promoted to staff sergeant, Lester M. Koon of Company C, 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry is one of the most decorated men in the 2nd Infantry Division, and a modest man to say the least. As he puts it, "I can't see what you want to do a story on me for. I'm not important news of any kind."

Routine Stuff

Sgt. Koon began his military career in 1943 by joining the Navy. His initial taste of war came aboard a Mine Sweeper, which, according to him, "was just routine stuff."

Young, eager, and looking for excitement, he quickly transferred to the Navy's famous Underwater Demolition Team (UDT) and began what was a most amazing wartime career.

One of his first harrowing experiences as a frogman began at 0100 hours on June 6, 1944 when he and other UDT men slipped ashore in pre-dawn darkness to become the first of the Normandy invading force to step foot on Omaha Beach. It was to be their task to clear the beaches for the invasion assault boats which were to come some five hours later.

After completing their job, Sgt. Koon and the other frogmen waited for the landing of the Normandy task force. And during the actual invasion he found himself pinned down by the bloody German defense. Along with thousands of soldiers, who had come ashore through the openings he and other frogmen had cleared for them, he found himself also digging for shelter on the bloodstained beach. It was then that he recalled the man with the cane.

"Just like all the rest of the guys, I was ducking bullets. Then I saw Gen. Theodore Roosevelt. He was walking right down the middle of that beach flashing his cane and yelling for the men to get moving. And, we moved!"

Headed For The Pacific

It was two days later that the cane-swinging oldest son of the President died of a heart attack walking along a road.

After the Normandy beach landing was over, Sgt. Koon and his team boarded their ship again and headed for the war with the Japanese. Their job at Omaha Beach was finished.

It was in the Pacific that Lester M. Koon, USN, fulfilled his youthful search for excitement. He swam ashore in many pre-dawns over the next year as he and his team of frogmen cleared the beaches for the invasions of such places as Iwo Jima, Guam, Okinawa, Eniwetok, The Philippines, and many others. It was during these combat missions that earned him many decorations for heroism. He personally destroyed enemy radar installations,and once drew Japanese fire upon himself so his team could get to safety.

But, it was the invasion of Guam that Sgt. Koon remembers with a grin. For it was here that the UDT left their now-famous welcome to the invading Marines.

During the lonely wait for the coming invasion, the UDT men fashioned a sign and placed it in the sand where the Marines would be certain to see it when they landed.

As the assaulting Marine force splashed ashore at Guam at daylight, there staring them in the face was the sign: USO, TWO BLOCKS THIS WAY. COMPLIMENTS OF THE UDT. It is believed that nothing ever infuriated the Marine Corps more than that much publicized act. And, it is said, the sign still stands to this day on the sunny Guam beach.

Some months later, three days prior to the invasion of Okinawa, frogman Koon was aboard the ship that sailed into the maze of enemy fire to clear an invasion path. For this deed, the Navy ship, and every man of her crew, was decorated for heroism. The ship itself was awarded the Bronze Star.

Casualty Rate High

The wartime casualty rate among UDT teams was tremendous. It ranged from 75 to 90 per cent for each mission the frogmen went on. And when asked if he thought taking part in 12 such invasion jobs was pressing his luck, Sgt. Koon remarked: "I guess I was lucky. I was young and full of vinegar."

The experiences of the modest ex-frogman are so abundant it would be nearly impossible to list them all. Such hair-raising times — as the numerous occasons when enemy fire was too great for the pickup boats to come back for the stranded swimming men, and they had to tread water for hours waiting for a submarine to rescue them; there was the time one of Sgt. Koon's men became tangled in seaweed on the ocean floor, while the demolition charge he had ignited continued to burn, and Sgt. Koon went back and rescued him; there was the many, nervous, lonely hours hiding on the enemy's shores waiting for help; there was the time during the Korean War when frogman Koon's ship was shot out from under him and he had to wade ashore at Inchon hours before the famous Inchon invasion even took place; there was also the time he became a gunner on a B-24 bomber and won the Air Medal; and, undoubtedly many more tales linger in the memory of SSgt. Lester M. Koon, now a U. S. Army squad leader. But, he, his wife and five children, think of more pleasant things today.

This is how it was for this 2nd Division sergeant. A mild-mannered man who said, "I can't see what you want to do a story on me for. I'm not important news of any kind."

37th Artillery to Train At Gordon With Big Guns

By 37th Artillery PIO

The 6th Battalion, 37th Artillery left for Fort Gordon, Ga., Wednesday for the annual battery Army Training Test.

The unit will remain at Fort Gordon until October 24.

The battalion, consisting of a service battery, headquarters battery, three 155mm howitzer batteries with six howitzers each, and an 8" howitzer battery with four howitzers, is the most powerful conventional artillery unit in the 2nd Infantry Division.

The 37th Artillery played a large role on the side of the Red forces during this summer's U.S. Strike Command Joint Exercise SWIFT STRIKE III held in North and South Carolina.

The 6th Battalion will be the first battalion with 155mm and 8" howitzers to train and fire at the Fort Gordon Military Reservation.

The battalion is commanded by Lt. Col. Francis E. Mendenhall.

Carl Halstead's 'After Hours'

Home Is Where the Monsters Are

For centuries the only hereditary fear man has had related to the female race. But, the past decade has brought another element into existence that terrifies most men. Appliances!

Over the past ten years modern science has overwhelmed the male specie with all kinds of electric and mechanical gadgets. And, trying to keep up with the rudiments and mechanics of each and every new miniature Frankenstein (which is a natural male instinct anyhow) has greatly increased the spawning ground for ulcers.

Not one day passes where a strong, muscular man doesn't do battle with an appliance of some sort. Sunrise brings the clock-radio to life, giving off an eerie buzz like a bumble bee in mortal pain, and automatically blares forth the six a.m. newscast on hog prices.

Stumbling into the bathroom, he apprehensively plugs in his electric razor. And if you've ever had one stop working while firmly at grasp with tender whiskers, then this doesn't need to be explained.

There are toasters that just will not work right and television sets that don't need a repairman with a household Einstein around. There are electric saws, electric screwdrivers, electric typewriters, electric can openers and electric chairs. And every man refuses to submit to the fact that he is incapable of thoroughly understanding each and every one of them.

And when one does join the "Outer Limit" class he has his ego deflated by the experienced repairman. He stands aside, embarrassed, smoking cigarettes and pacing the floor like an expectant father. He pokes his nose into the task and immediately irritates the man at work, and probably, the machine.

There is no question in the mind of man but what the machine age will destroy him. Power mowers threaten his life, fuse boxes smile inwardly each time his little "pinky" comes in view, and gas stoves hiss and dare him to light a match.

New automobiles have so many buttons and dials that a man has to spend a good ten minutes in deep concentration and prayer before he turns the key on, hoping the car will start and not the radio. He shies completely away from women's hair dryers, egg beaters and ovens, yet brazenly places himself in the clutches of automatic weight reducing equipment which constantly try to either shake, beat or strangle him.

After a hard day at work, man comes home and tries to relax. But, either one of his kid's modern electric toys (which would have been classified as deadly weapons years before) or some appliance always goes on the blink, and smiling Joe Fix-it walks in where angels fear to tread.

Automatic shoeshine machines fascinate him and he'll put a coin in anything just to pull the handle and see what happens. And yet, it is man himself who invents all these little darlings. Some psychiatrists attribute this fact to man's unconscious desire to be able to make up for his deficiency, compared to the female, in giving birth.

No matter how hard he tries, modern day appliances are just too much for him. They defeat him at every turn. During a period of one year he will use five packages of Band Aids, two large economy jars of liniment, absorb a sum total of around 1,000 volts of electricity, and have his life expectancy shortened from fright.

Even a stroll around the block, just to get away from it all, doesn't help. Invariably he will stick a cigarette in his mouth, pull out his brand new butane lighter and proceed to singe the hair off his nose.

7th Cavalry Team Score Expert at Field Exercise

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Scoring 1,835 points out of a possible 2,000, the tank crew of SSgt. James Tolbert, 7th Cavalry, qualified as "expert" recently at annual firing exercises at Fort Gordon, Ga.

Sgt. Tolbert, a 20-year Army veteran, attributed his team's high score to its high degree of teamwork and "some of it to the new equipment, too."

Born in Evergreen, Ala., a little town about 90 miles south of Montgomery, Sgt. Tolbert attended Wiggins School near McKenzie, Ala. He entered the service in December, 1942 and was discharged in 1945. He then farmed for eight months before reentering the Army.

His hobbies are hunting and fishing. He particularly enjoys all-night fishing trips for catfish on the Chattahoochee.

Sgt. Tolbert, his wife Charlotte, and the couple's four children live at 3318 Victory Drive, Columbus.

LITTLE CREEK, VA.

Capt. Alfred E. Klemm, commanding officer at Company B, 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion, recently returned to Fort Benning after four weeks of temporary duty at the U. S. Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek, Va., where two groups of 2,000 troops each have been training for amphibious landings since the middle of September. He served as executive officer and adjutant for the 2nd Infantry Division's Site Support Group, which performs liaison between the Atlantic Fleet's Amphibious Training Command and Headquarters, 2nd Brigade.

New 'Exec' Assigned To Division Artillery

By Hq. Btry, DivArty PIO

Lt. Col. Charles H. Dornacker recently arrived at Fort Benning to assume the position of executive officer of the 2nd Infantry Division Artillery. He replaces Lt. Col. Floyd L. Johnson, who left to assume duties in Heidelberg, Germany.

Lt. Col. Dornacker arrived at Fort Benning from Fort McNair, Washington, D.C., where he attended the 1962-63 class of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces. Previously he was doctrine developments officer of the Division of Combat Development with the Command and General Staff College (CGSC) at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

A native of Tuttle, N.C., he graduated from Infantry Officer Candidate School and received a reserve commission in 1942. He made a branch transfer to artillery in 1946 and took a Regular Army obligation.

While in the Infantry he served in the African and Italian Theaters in World War II, participating in the Po Valley, Apennines, and Rome - Arno campaigns. He was awarded the Combat Infantryman's Badge, the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, and the Purple Heart.

He completed the Advanced Artillery Course at Fort Still, Okla., in 1949, then was assigned to the European Command until 1952. In 1954 he completed the regular course at the CGSC. From 1954 until 1958, he served as staff officer, Office of the Department of the Chief of Staff for Logistics, Washington, D. C. From 1958, until going to his assignment at Fort Leavenworth in 1959, he served with the U. S. Army of the Pacific in Korea. The Army Commendation Ribbon with Medal Pendant was awarded to him in 1958.

Lt. Col. Dornacker, his wife Elizabeth, and their five children presently reside at 225 Austin Loop, Fort Benning.

THE DOUGHBOYS HAVE A MIGHTY BIG BACKFIELD—THE LINE IS BIGGER THAN IT LOOKS

Fort Eustis Wheels Roll Into Fort Benning Saturday; Doughboys Aim for Their 20th Consecutive Victory

By Dave Braun

The once-beaten Fort Eustis, Va., "Wheels" roll into Fort Benning this weekend for a Saturday night clash with the undefeated Doughboys, presently riding the crest of a 19-game winning steak.

Fort Eustis, handed a 40-6 setback in their opening encounter against North Carolina A & T, caught fire in their next game in whipping Fort Dix, N. J., 34-7 and then last Saturday upended Lackland Air Force Base, 14-6.

19 Straight

Fort Benning breezed to its 19th consecutive victory over the weekend with an 86-0 whitewash job of the Venice, Fla., Raiders in Southwest Florida.

The Doughboys present victory skein of 19 straight, 13 in a row over military opposition, is steadily approaching a record 21 straight over service football teams set by the Quantico, Va., Marines between 1959 and 1961.

However during this span the Leathernecks suffered defeat at the hands of non-military teams.

Quantico started their long win streak over service competition in the second game of the 1959 season with 34-7 triumph over Fort Lee, Va., and then watched it grow before finally bowing out in the second to last encounter of 1961 to Camp LeJeune, N.C., 9-0.

No Service Losses

Fort Benning has not lost a service football tilt since handed a 12-6 setback by the Pensacola, Fla., Naval Goshawks in 1961.

Probable starting lineup for Fort Eustis on Saturday night will be Clint Atkinson, a six-foot, two-inch, 197-pounder at left end and six-foot, 204-pound Charles Robinson at right end.

The tackle positions will be manned by six-foot, three-inch, 200-pound Harlan Hess from Kansas State Teachers College at right tackle and service ball veteran six-foot, 238-pound Sam Gosier at left tackle.

Beefing up the middle of the Wheels forward wall will be former University of New Hampshire standout Paul Lindquist, a six-foot, two inch, 260-pound right guard and Ken Kraus, a six-foot, two-inch, 225-pound left guard who played his collegiate days at Purdue University.

Eustis Center

The center position will be handled by James Mackey, a six-foot, two-inch, 200-pounder who also performed for the Boilermakers of Purdue.

In the Wheel's backfield will be alternating quarterbacks Calvin Cox, a product of William and Mary College and Ben Charles who played his collegiate football for the Trojans of Southern California.

Former Little All-American at Lincoln University, Mo., Lewis Heffner will be the starting left halfback while Joe Gray, formerly of the University of San Diego State College, Calif., will be running at right halfback. The fullback slot will be manned by service football veteran Gene Bell.

Doughboy officials who scouted the Fort Eustis game with Lackland A.F.B., Tex., last weekend report that the Wheels operate about 50 per cent of the time from a Wing-T formation and the other half from the I formation.

Fundamental Offense

The Fort Eustis squad sticks primarily to a fundamental type of offense, shooting most of their running plays off tackle and through the middle of the line and goes to the air on about 30 per cent of their plays the officials reported.

The Wheels were dealt a severe blow this season when team captain Willie Branch, a lineman was injured and will miss the Fort Benning game.

On the other side of the ledger Doughboy head Coach Oren DeHaven reports that the Doughboys will probably go with their "Blue" team this Saturday. The Blue unit is an alternating 11 with the "White" team, both seeing about the same amount of action.

Probable starters on the Blue offensive team will be George Walstad and Fred Murphy at the ends; Wayne Peters and Bob Creviston or Bill Nance at the tackles.

The guards will be former Georgia Tech footballer Hal Erickson and Don Schade, and the center position will be manned by Carlton Waskey, another former Tech player.

Contributions Will Be Sought At Football Bout

A voluntary collection of contributions to support the 1964 Olympic Games will be made at Doughboy Stadium Saturday night during the football clash between Fort Benning and Fort Eustis, Va.

For many years the U.S. Army has supported the U. S. Olympic Committee in an effort to select the best individuals possible to represent the United States at the Pan American and Olympic Games.

In the past year the Army has been represented on these teams. In addition to personal support, members of the Army have contributed substantial monetary support through voluntary contributions.

The Olympic Team of 1956 consisted of 51 Army personnel and in 1960 the Army had 54 men on the team.

The 1964 XVIII Olympic Games are set for Tokyo Oct. 10 through 25, and the IX Olympic Winter Games are to be conducted in Innsbruck, Austria, Jan. 29 through Feb. 9, 1964.

Army personnel also contributed to the 1963 Pan American Games held in Sao Paulo, Brazil, April 20 through May 5.

Doughboys Tally 13 Touchdowns; Hold Venice Raiders Scoreless

The Fort Benning Doughboys combined an effective passing attack with devastating ground power last Saturday night at Fort Myers, Fla., crushing the Venice Raiders, 86-0, for the second time in five weeks.

Rolling to 265 yards on the ground, the Doughboy aerial show covered an additinal 309 yards resulting in six of the 13 tallies.

Fort Benning held the hapless Raiders to a minus 15 yards rushing and only two first downs. In the air the Raiders managed to get only six yards.

While the Army team was having a field night running all over the gridiron, the Southwest Florida chargers were never able to scrape up enough of a threat to cross the 50-yard line.

The Doughboys got the show rolling in the first quarter with 33 points and then struck for 20 more in the second stanza to take a 53-0 lead at halftime.

Closing out the third period with only 13 points the undefeated Army team zipped for 20 more points in the final period.

The first TD came on a 10-yard pass from Dave Sarette to Billy Williamson. Sarette found Fred Murphy with a 31-yard aerial for the second tally.

Still in the first quarter halfback Ron Quillen raced 12 yards for a TD. Bobby Towns recovered the subsequent kickoff in the Raiders' end zone for the fourth tally, and Marvin Tibbetts hit fullback Brewster Hobby with a 65-yard TD pass play to round out the scoring.

Touchdown No. 6 came on a 48-yard TD pass complete to end Anthony Schowell. Speedy Elroy Foley shot off right tackle for five yards and TD No. 7. Richmond Pitts wrapped up the first half scoring with a nine-yard TD sprint around right end.

Billy Williamson upped his season's point total to 36 in the opening minutes of the second half with two touchdowns, the first coming on a three-yard slant and the second from five yards out.

Fort Benning's 11th TD came when Tibbetts on a rollout pitched to Hobby and the former Oklahoma standout darted for 11 yards to paydirt.

Third string quarterback Gary Stutman clicked his second TD pass to John Greene for the 12th touchdown and followed it up with another scoring aerial.

Fish and Game Association

The Fish and Game Association of Fort Benning will hold its annual meeting tonight at the Victory Pond Lodge beginning at 7 p.m.

After the refreshments, which will be served following the business meeting, a film will be shown covering all hunting and fishing projects on the Fort Benning reservation. All members are invited to attend.

Between the Sidelines

By Ted Williamson

One of the nation's most famous state songs, "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You," might well be reversed this Saturday, as the eyes of the whole country will be focused upon Dallas, Tex., where the highly ranked Texas Longhorns meet head-on with number one ranked Oklahoma.

The Texas line, spearheaded by All-America candidate Scott Appleton, will have its work cut out to stop the Sooner's big backs, Joe Don Looney and Jim Grisham, and stop Oklahoma from playing its ball-control game. By the same token, the Oklahoma defense, which held offensive-minded Southern Cal to twelve points two weeks ago, will once again be faced with the task of holding down a high-powered attack.

Last year's game may give some indication of the importance of defense in this one; the Longhorns eked out a 9 to 6 victory over Oklahoma.

Oklahoma will probably go into the game a slight favorite, however the game is still rated a toss-up. The Sooners were idle last week while Texas fattened up on Oklahoma State to the tune of 34 to 7.

Other important games will be played around the country as the season swings into its fourth week. In the East, highriding and undefeated Penn State entertains once-beaten Army as the Black Knights will be on the rebound from a 24 to 7 beating at the hands of Minnesota. Roger Staubach and Navy will invade the Lone Star state Saturday night to do battle with Southern Methodist, Undoers of the Air Force last week.

In the South, another Saturday night affair, this one pitting Louisiana State and Miami, Fla., shapes up to be the big battle of the day. The Bayou Bengals will be fresh from last weeks victory over Georgia Tech and Miami is still recovering from that 24 to 0 insult inflicted by Florida State.

Illinois' Fightin' Illini are kicking up their heels after last week's upset of Northwestern and clash head on with Ohio State. This one should be a dilly. The Buckeyes ran roughshod over the Illini last year 51 to 5, but it could be a slightly different story this time.

Farther west, Nebraska, regarded as the only team between Oklahoma and another Big Eight title, will try to kick the Air Force while it's down. However, the Falcon's Terry Isaacson may have different ideas. Arkansas, waiting in the wings for a shot at Texas next week, sharpens up on Baylor, and Texas Tech meets TCU in two important Southwestern Conference battles.

Once again we are putting Oklahoma at the top of the heap in our weekly ratings. After tomorrow, it might be a different story. Here's this week's top ten as we see it.

1. Oklahoma (2-0)
2. Texas (3-0)
3. Southern California (2-1)
4. Alabama (3-0)
5. Navy (3-0)
6. Wisconsin (2-0)
7. Northwestern (2-1)
8. Mississippi (2-0-1)
9. Pittsburgh (3-0)
10. Penn State (3-0)

CTC Cagers Open Season

Headquarters Company of the 577th Engineer Battalion opened the Center Troop Command's basketball season by knocking off the Company B, 1st Battalion, team 32-22, while Company D of the 1st Battalion upended its neighboring C Company five 40-26 in the only other game of the night.

Col. Earl F. Holton, CTC commander, set the league into motion in the first game by tossing up the first ball.

After the tap the game went nip-and-tuck till the final five minutes when the Engineers pulled ahead by 10 points. At the half D Company was ahead 22-8. C Company came bustling back in the second period but the point spread was a little too much with D Company taking its first win.

SKELETON IN THE CLOSET
SFC Green Inspects One Of Props Used In Demonstration

29th Infantry Medical Men Inject Realism

Simulated blood, bandages, and amputated legs are the everyday tools of the trade for SFC James L. Green and the men of the medical platoon of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade.

Under the supervision of senior aid man Sgt. Green, the men of this platoon perform their duties in a most theatrical style.

Each week they are involved in problem 7621, a combat first aid demonstration held at Theatre No. 8, and presented to associate Infantry career officers, OCS students, and other such classes. The students in these classes develop an understanding of the broad concepts and principal requirements for first aid and self care under conditions of modern warfare.

The props used in this demonstration are hard to distinguish from the real thing. Even an amputated leg squirts blood from a rubber syringe to add to the realism of the demonstration. Most of the props are made from a soft rubber substance, and the makeup for head wound casualties is provided by SFC George Polachek who is very adept with the use of theatrical greasepaint.

Capt. Dale E. Wagner, a medical officer, conducts the the demonstration.

Cuartel Quarterback

Longhorns Get Edge In Week's Top Game

We hit four out of seven tough games last week. The miss that hurt most was the Illinois upset of Northwestern. That's the one we "smelled." From now on the "Cuartel Quarterback" will put more trust in the "nostrils," regardless of who the teams are.

LSU edged Tech in the top game, but that wasn't too surprising. Billy Lothridge did his share, kicking two field goals to account for Tech's six points, but his offensive attack didn't support him enough to produce a touchdown. LSU doesn't lose often in the Sugar Bowl.

We also missed the Mississippi State-Tennessee game. State is moving rapidly into the upper SEC echelons. They can beat anyone on a given day.

This week's top game pits the top-ranked Oklahoma Sooners and the Texas Longhorns. Coach Darrell Royal has bested the Sooners regularly since taking over at Texas, but never has Oklahoma been so powerful. It'll be a hard-nosed ballgame and won't be decided until late in the final quarter. We'll let it be our "cliff-hanger" of the week.

TEXAS OVER OKLAHOMA . . .The Sooners will fall late in the game to Texas' talent and determination. They won't lose by more than six points.

ALABAMA OVER FLORIDA . . .This will be the Tide's toughest game of the season. They must gallop past the Gators if they are to retain their high national rating. Joe Namath will lead them to a 17-7 win over Ray Graves' rugged Gators.

WISCONSIN OVER PURDUE . . .Purdue had their glory last week when they edged the Irish of Notre Dame. Wisconsin is a touchdown better.

GEORGIA OVER CLEMSON . . .Oklahoma and Georgia Tech manhandled Frank Howard's country boys. Georgia will sneak by on several Larry Rakestraw 'homerun passes.'

PENN STATE OVER ARMY . . .The Nittany Lions are among the best in the East. Army is still a year away from being a real good football team. State will win by ten points.

GEORGIA TECH OVER TENNESSEE . . . The Yellow Jackets are a touchdown better than the Volunteers. They might clobber Faircloth & Co. badly if they bounce back from their loss to LSU.

MISSISSIPPI STATE OVER TULANE. . .This is Mississippi State's year. Barring an emotional letdown, they will trample the poor Greenies by 21 points.

KUUIPO WEARS SARONG
Dons This Costume For Gourd Dance

Hula Instructor Dances for EM

Grass skirts, gourds, sarongs, leis and sways are but a few of the tools of the trade of Kuuipo.

Kuuipo, which means "My Sweetheart" in Hawaiian, is a relative newcomer to Fort Benning society although her name is steadily becoming well known in hula circles.

Betty Dobbe, who picked up her Hawaiian tag, Kuuipo, while dancing with Lani Hinniker's "Hanaleis" in California, is a dependent stationed here at the post with her husband.

She first became interested in the hula dance at 8 and has since worked throughout the Hawaiian Islands and California with such notables as the "Hanaleis" and George Kainapau, "song bird of Hawaii."

She started her public appearances as a very young girl dancing before wounded servicemen in Honolulu hospitals during World War II.

She was seen recently on post at a "Luau" held at the Main Officers' Open Mess and will be seen Sunday at the Enlisted Men's Club at Sand Hill dancing to the music of the Vikings.

Kuuipo, who is very interested in getting a hula dance class started, says the distinctions in the types of dances commonly referred to as hula are numerous.

The dancing starts from a slow type of Hawaiian hula, which includes split bamboo and slow hula, to the gourd dancing, comical hula and Mauri dancing which features a sort of bop step. The very fast dances, where the famous backfield-in-motion idea of the hula comes in, comes from the Tahitian dances which includes the Bora-Bora, which Mrs. Dobbe calls her real fast number.

Her program for this weekend's performance includes the gourd dance, the Kuuipo dance and as a finale, the Bora-Bora dance.

'The Zoo Story' Will Be Featured Le Play Contest

First Lt. James Marmon, president of the board of directors of the Fort Benning Little Theater, has announced that Fort Benning's entry for the Third Army "One-Act Play Contest" will be a special Little Theater production of "The Zoo Story," by Edward Albee.

First produced less than five years ago, "The Zoo Story" has become a classic of modern theater and has established Albee as a playwrite of the first-rank.

The board of directors has selected PFC Peter Nieberg to direct. The performance date for "The Zoo Story" will be Nov. 19. There will be no admission charged at this special production at the Playhouse, Bldg. No. 4500.

YAC Footballers Play Six Games In Two Leagues

Two of the three YAC football leagues started game play last week.

The Biddy League composed of boys 8 thru 10 years old and the Doughboy League, 10 thru 13 year olds, will play six games every week on Wednesday and Thursday at 5 p.m. at Blue Field through November 27.

The Wednesday night Biddy League games saw the Blue Devils beat Team 8, 21 to 0, the Cavaliers beat the Tankers, 6 to 0. Team 3 defeated the Green Bay Packers 13 to 0, and the Wildcats defeated Team 5, 13 to 21.

Thursday, Doughboy Team 4 beat Team 3, 26 to 0, while Teams 1 and 2 tied 0 to 0.

The Intermediate League boys, 14 thru 15, have not scheduled their games as yet.

Other activities scheduled at YAC are the Judo classes Monday at 7 p.m. and Saturday at 2 p.m. in Briant Wells Field house. Girls are more than welcome to join in this activity which so far has been composed exclusively of boys. Archery lessons will start around Oct. 15 and the Rifle Club is just getting started for this season.

Forty Army Merit Scholarships Available Annually to Dependents

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Forty four-year Army Merit Scholarships and 40 four-year individual loans will be made available annually to qualifying dependents of active duty Army personnel for the purpose of attending the college of their choice.

The program is the result of an agreement between The Adjutant General, Department of the Army, and the National Merit Scholarship Corporation and will be financed at no cost to the Government.

The dependents must be currently enrolled in high school and must select a college which is accredited, located within the United States and the recipient's program of study must lead to a baccalaureate degree.

The scholarships and loans will be offered to students selected by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation and approved by the Department of the Army. Selections will be based on the student's ability to benefit from a college education, leadership and good citizenship, as determined by testing and other standard procedures.

The amount of the scholarships and loans will be determined by the financial need of the student, but will usually be for a minimum of $250 per year and a maximum of $1,500 per year.

Loans will be without interest and must be repaid within eight years beginning one year after the student graduates from or leaves college.

Eligible students who wish to receive consideration for Army merit scholarships or Army Educational Assistance Loans, must take the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (NMSQT) in the calendar year prior to completion of high school and entry into college. The test is usually given in high schools throughout the country and in oversea areas in March of each year. Since the NMOT constitutes a request for consideration, no other application is necessary until the student receives notification that he has been selected for consideration. At the time the student is notified of his status, he should complete an Application for Army Loan Assistance, available from personnel officers, and other required forms if he wishes to be considered for a loan.

The first loans and scholarships will be made to eligible students who complete high school and enter college in 1964.

Since the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test has already been administered for those entering college in 1964, special testing provisions are being made for students who will complete high school in 1964 and wish to be considered for the scholarships or loans. Students who did not take the test and wish to be considered should write to the National Merit cholarship Corporation, ATTN: U. S. Army Educational Assistance Program, 1580 Sherman Avenue, Evanston, Ill., requesting special consideration for the U.S. Army program. Such requests must reach the MSC by November 1, 1963.

Detailed procedures governing this program will be published in AR 350-16 to be distributeil in the near future.

Thirty Officers Are Welcomed

Thirty Allied officers, including seven generals, last Thursday were officially welcomed to the post by Maj. Gen. C.W.G. Rich, commandant of The Infantry School.

In brief remarks to the officers, who represent Ethiopia, Indonesia, Jordan, Pakistan, Saudi Arabia and Vietnam, Gen. Rich said The Infantry School was in the business of training Infantrymen and that "we are proud of our product."

187th Thwarts Aggressor Action By Utilizing Air Assault Concept

FORT STEWART, Ga.—During an aggressor probing action last week Company B, 3d Battalion, 187th Infantry, commanded by Capt. Everett M. Yon Jr. was credited with capturing or killing 62 guerrillas about ten miles southeast of Pembroke, Ga., on the Fort Stewart reservation during phase Bravo of Sky Soldier I, a test exercise of the 11th Air Assault Division.

Large concentrations of enemy forces were spotted by reconnaissance aircraft flown by pilots from the 11th Aviation Group. The 1st Air Assault Brigade, under the command of Col. George D. Beatty Jr. immediately went into action. Company B rushed to twenty waiting Iroquois helicopters and was soon airborne and flying at tree-top level toward the aggressor - infested territory.

The first platoon rappelled into the area while the third platoon landed nearby. The second platoon was held in reserve until the other two platoons made enemy contact.

MSgt Clarence Linton Jr. a platoon sergeant; SFC William Lugar, a squad leader; Pvt. Kenneth L. Stephens, and Spt Francis W. Colbert and Spt Delbert N. Knisley; all M-14 riflemen with Company B, made the first contact with the guerrilla forces. After a fierce fire fight, 31 aggressors were taken prisoner and were airlifted back to Camp Oliver, Ga.

Most of the fighting during Sky Soldier I has been done by line Infantry troops. At midnight last night however, aggressor forces raided the 3d Battalion command post and headquarters personnel found themselves in the thick of a battle with aggressor guerrillas.

The raid did not succeed in catching the CP group off guard and in the ensuing fight five aggressors were taken prisoner. The battle lasted until 2:30 a.m. last Friday with clerks, radio operators and supply personnel taking up battle positions as line troops.

Spt Henry L. Payne, personnel clerk with headquarters, was credited with capturing one aggressor. Spt John G. Louder, a radio operator, PFC Ervin V. York, a messenger center clerk, and PFC Robert L. Peel, a supply clerk, accounted for the other four aggressors captured.

Ten-man patrols were sent out to try to locate the aggressors. The men searched the area thoroughly, but the enemy had vanished in the darkness.

That morning all units of the 3d Battalion, commanded by Lt. Col. John J. Hennessey, were airlifted back to a rest area to Camp Oliver. Simulated units from the 1st Battalion of the 511th and 188th Infantrys took over their battle positions. The 3d Battalion was placed in ready reserve and an administrative break was declared.

In earlier action, men of Company A, 3rd Battalion, 187th Infantry, commanded by Capt. Joseph Bellochi, dramatically illustrated the air assault concept.

Immediately afterward, aircraft from the 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry, has spotted aggressor forces about 12 miles southeast of Pembroke, on the Fort Stewart reservation.

Vets' Effect 'Enormous' In Georgia

ATLANTA — Veterans' programs have touched the lives of hundreds of thousands in Georgia, a state leader said today as he accepted the appointment as state chairman of the annual Veterans Day observance.

Monday, Nov. 11 has been designated Veterans Day nationally, Mr. Pete Wheeler, Director of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service, said.

Coupled with the statewide observance will be ceremonies sponsored locally by veterans' organizations, the chairman said.

"The extent veterans' programs have affected the social and economic welfare of the people of our state is enormous," Mr. Wheeler said.

A portion of the Veterans day observance must well be a review of this program, initiated for the most part after World War II, Mr. Wheeler said.

He cited these figures:

—58,481 Georgia veterans or their dependents receive compensation and pension. More are added each month.

—28,654 receive compensation or pension for the service-connected deaths of Georgians.

—12,227 dependents of veterans are under guardianship of the Veterans Administration.

—117,527 Georgia homes have been financed directly, or insured, by the Veterans Administration.

—19,385 patients per day, average, at Georgia VA hospitals, domiciliaries, contract hospitals, and state home.

Total amount spent by the VA in Georgia annually in benefits and services is more than $155 million, Mr. Wheeler said.

USAF General Receives VFW's Aviation Award

WASHINGTON, (AFPS)—Gen. B. A. Schriever has been named by the Veterans of Foreign Wars as the U. S. citizen who has made the greatest contribution in the field of aviation.

Gen. Schriever, commander of the Air Force Systems Command, was awarded the Gen. Henry H. "Hap" Arnold Aviation Gold Medal Award at the VFW's 64th national convention in Seattle, Wash.

Gen. Schriever reminisced that when he received his first assignment as a lieutenant, at the beginning of his military career, "Hap" Arnold was his commanding officer.

The original award was presented posthumously to Gen. Arnold.

Others who have received the award are Gens. James H. Doolittle and Curtis E. Lemay, Harry F. Guggenheim, Sen. W. Stuart Symington, and Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker.

The award is presented annually.

Tooth Protection Has Advanced For Athletes Say Post Dentists

With the football season now underway, it might be well to talk about the great advances for tooth preservation in athletics.

A few years ago, almost anyone who participated regularly in football could expect to lose some front teeth. Even as late as 1957, the results of tooth loss could still be seen. Then the face mask came on the scene. These often wreaked havoc, as the single bar would often catch another individual in the mouth.

Mouthguards also were used, but the earlier attempts were almost as dangerous as the good they accomplished. They were not well fitted, and tended to dislodge, and the player could easily choke on them. Talking was difficult, as they were also bulky.

Finally, due to modifications and improvements, a suitable face mask was developed. The nose and mouth are very well protected at present. But, the teeth can still be broken by the jarring of teeth together, so there is still good reason for having a mouthguard. Try to stay away from the self-made guard; there is too much chance for error. The best one is the dentist-made one, and it is most suitable if made from a model and not in the mouth.

The new vinyls are a fine material for mouthguards. Vinyl is very flexible, yet very tough and you will find that is nearly impossible to chew through. The material is also so dense as to prevent the odor buildup common to the rubber mouthguard. The dentist can fabricate this material from a cast of your mouth in a short time.

These mouthguards give exceptional protection. They are not a nuisance by any means; the ability to talk is virtually unchanged. It is also nearly impossible to tell a mouthguard is present.

Eyeglasses For Needy Are Sought

Old eyeglasses, watches, jewelry and damaged silverware will be collected at Fort Benning to help provide eyeglasses for needy people.

The project is sponsored by the Student Brigade Protestant Women-of-the-Chapel.

Baskets have been placed in the Main Post, Student Brigade, Main Post No. 2, 197th Infantry Brigade and St. Michael's Episcopal Chapels and at the Religious Education Center, Bldg. 2026.

Donations will be shipped to New Eyes for the Needy, Inc., Short Hills, N. J., a volunteer social service. The used metal framed eyeglasses and scrap gold will be sold by the concern to a refinery and the money used to buy new prescription glasses for indigent people in the United States.

NASA to Launch Nimbus Satellite

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Late this year the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) will launch a Nimbus weather satellite from the Pacific Missile Range, Calif.

The Nimbus will televise photographs of the earth's cloud cover to stations on Earth to be used in predicting weather. It will always be looking toward the Earth and will continuously transmit pictures of the Earth's sunlit areas.

Detailed views of present cloud patterns over an area up to one-third the size of the United States will be transmitted by the satellite.

Eighteen U. S. Air Force bases throughout the world will receive automatic picture-taking subsystems to receive the photographs which will be combined and compared with other weather observations.

Student Nurses Are Given Tour Of Martin Army

Fourteen prospective Army nurses arrived at Fort Benning's Lawson Army Airfield at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday to take a quick look at life in the Army Nurse Corps.

Students at Florida State University in Tallahassee, the visitors received an orientation on Army nursing and toured Martin Army Hospital.

A briefing by Col. William A. Todd Jr., hospital commander, was held in the staff briefing room.

$1 Billion Savings Announced by DOD

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Actions speak louder than words. The Department of Defense's announcement of savings in excess of $1 billion during FY 63 gives concrete evidence of the effectiveness of the Department's Cost reduction program.

The savings were realized by putting into practice the principles of:

BUYING ONLY WHAT IS NEEDED

BUYING AT THE LOWEST SOUND PRICE

REDUCING OPERATING COST THEOUGH INTEGRATION AND STANDIZATION

More specifically, under Buying Only What Is Needed comes:

. . .Refining requirements calculations

. . .Increase use of inventory

. . .Inventory item reduction

Under Buying at the Lowest Sound Price:

. . .Shifting from non-competitive to competitive procurement

. . .Shifting from cost-plus to fixed-price or incentive contracts

Finally, under Reducing Operating Cost:

. . .Terminating unnecessary operations

. . .Standardizing and simplifying procedures

. . .Consolidating and increasing efficiency of operations

In announcing the saving during the First Annual Progress Report on the Program, Secretary of Defense, Robert S. McNamara, noted that the savings did not in any way hamper national security. Mr. McNamara said: "Indeed during the past twenty-four months we have achieved:

"A 100 per cent increase in the number of nuclear warheads in the strategic alert forces.

"A 60 per cent increase in the tactical nuclear forces deployed in Western Europe.

"A 45 per cent increase in the number of combat-ready Army divisions.

"A 30 per cent increase in the number of tactical air squadrons.

"A 60 per cent increase in airlift capability.

"A 10 per cent increase in strip construction and conversion to modernize the Fleet.

"A 200 per cent increase in the Special Forces, trained to deal with counterinsurgency threats."

According to the present trend in the cost reduction program, savings by the year 1967 will be in the realm of 4 billion dollars.

Civil Emergency Action Discussed by National Industrial Leaders

FT. MONROE, Va. (AFPS) —In the event of declared war or other serious national emergency, 'what happens to such things as vital public utilities, industries and transportation systems?

These and similar questions were discussed by representatives to the Industrial Defense Program conference held at Continental Army Headquarters here.

The program, under direction of the Department of Defense, was created because of valuable lessons learned in both World Wars.

It is aimed at replanning effective non-military measures to insure the uninterrupted operation of communications, transportation, public utilities and other needed industries in the event of damage by sabotage or serious natural disaster.

Among the areas discussed during the conference were industrial defense responsibilities, mobilization plans, industrial defense education, civil defense, programming and surveys and listing of key industrial facilities.

The conference emphasizes that in times of war or other national emergency there is more to be considered than the battlefield.

Sudden loss of electric power can grind industrial production to a virtual halt. Contaminated water can start widespread disease epidemics. Washed out or destroyed bridges can delay important rail and highway shipments. The list of possible troubles is almost endless.

It was pointed out that the Department of Defense is anxious to assist industry in planning for emergency situations. Plans of the Industrial Defense Program will be made available to key industry leaders throughout the country to help them map a course of action for emergencies.

New Typewriter Is 'Trained' In Chemistry

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army has developed a new chemical typewriter — the first machine to directly encode conventional chemical structures.

The new development is high-speed automation is expected to result in man-hour and dollar savings to the Army, government agencies and industrial firms. An operator can be trained in a matter of days to operate the machine whereas before, trained chemists had to write formulas by hand.

In addition, it will promote universality of formulas and a quick and ready access by researchers to needed formula information.

5,000 Gals. a Day Move Sky Soldiers

More than 5,000 gallons of gasoline are being dispensed daily to keep the sky soldiers moving. The non-commissioned officer in charge of the POL Depot is SFC Jesus D. Oliva.

There are 11 huge rubber tanks measuring about 20 feet long and eight feet wide that can hold 10,000 gallons of gasoline each.

Nearby is a large pump that can be operated by a generator. This pump is on wheels and can be rolled into position and pump 350 gallons of gasoline per minute.

In addition 176 smaller 500-gallon rubber tanks are loaded on dollies that can be rolled into a waiting Caribou or a Mohawk aircraft. They also can be slingloaded by most of the division's helicopters and carried where they are needed.

No time is lost at the POL Depot. Whether a three-quarter ton jeep, a five-ton fork-lift, a helicopter, or one of the Army's largest aircraft, the Caribou, is hungry for fuel, men from the 498th have the means to fill the bill in a few minutes.

DESERT DEBUT . . . The U. S. Army's Pershing missile stands silhouetted against the desert sky prior to launching on a test flight from Hueco Range, Tex., to White Sands Missile Range, N.M. All previous firings of the Pershing have been from Cape Canaveral. The long-range missile is being groomed to replace the Army's Redstone.

BIG RUG CLEANER? . . . The vacuum cleaner looking devise displaying by Pvt. John D. McLaurin is the Army's new mine detector, designed to locate both metallic and non-metallic land mines. The new device is being tested by the Infantry Board here and by test units at Fort Knox, Ky. It was developed by the U. S. Army, Engineer Research and Development Laboratories at Fort Belvoir, Va.

'Koffee Klatch' Becomes Big Business in Army Offices

NEW YORK (AFPS) — Hospitality in the Army begins, usually, with the word, "How about a cup of coffee?" Hardly any Army command post is without its coffee pot.

In Korea, soldiers fought the bitter cold with hot, black coffee in canteens. No one has recorded whether they had coffee at Valley Forge, but it seems probable.

This love of coffee isn't just the prerogative of the military. According to a survey conducted by the Pan-American Coffee Bureau, all Americans ten years of age and over drink an average of 3.01 cups of coffee per person per day.

Of the 3.01 cups per day some 2.45 cups are regular coffee, .65 are instant, and .09 are decaffeinated.

The amount of coffee you drink depends on where you work, says the report.

Factory workers drink 3.70 cups daily, office workers 3.86, store workers 3.67, and housewives 3.70. The coffee people made no specific military breakdown but most military people always know where the next cup is coming from.

If you fall in the age bracket 30 to 39, you drink the most coffee, some 4.38 cups a day. A few of the other age groups are: 20-24, 2.70 cups; 25-29, 3.75 cups; 40-49, 4.27; and 50-59, 3.75.

Of the 3.01 cup average, about .96 cup was consumed on coffee breaks.

Once again we hear the coffee call and off we go for the rest of our .96 cup before it is too late.

Letters

developed, I came away convinced of the importance of the combat soldier as the essential element of success in battle."

In other random excerpts from letters Gen. Rich has received, Walter B. Levring of New York called the two days at Fort Benning "unforgettable"..and said the excellence of the officers and training programs was "a thrill to witness," while La Fayette Funk of Funk Bros. Seed Co. in Illinois, described his trip here as "the most enjoyable days of my life."

Letters such as these should be a source of great personal pride to everyone who took part in presenting the Army phase of the 33rd Joint Civilian Orientation Conference at Fort Benning. Only team effort made it a success. Whether that effort was active participation in one of the many aspects of logistic support, it was a necessary element of the overall project. As Gen. Rich said in a message last week, "Only by the devotion and dedication of each individual could such superior results have been attained."

Military guests at the JCOC demonstrations were evidently just as impressed as were the civilians. Gen. John K. Waters, CONARC commanding general, wrote in a letter to Gen. Rich, "It is my impression that the Army, through the devotion, effectiveness and outstanding execution by all ranks at Fort Benning, conveyed . . a true picture of our Army's fine strength and sound character."

Lt. Gen. Albert Watson, II, commanding general of the Third Army, was equally laudatory. In a note of congratulations to Gen. Rich and his staff he cited the Fort Benning effort as an "outstanding job" and said, "I am sure our distinguished guests were very much impressed with the fine demonstrations and . . hospitality."

Army Hospital Provides Help For All Nations

SAN ANTONIO (AFPS)—Horribly burned people from all over the world come to the Surgical Research Unit at Brooke Army Medical Center here looking for a miracle. Sometimes they find one.

The miracle is that the Surgical Research Unit helps save the lives of people who, according to statistics, have no choice.

Twenty years ago a burn over one-third of the body's surface was considered fatal. But patients with burns over 70 per cent of their bodies have walked out of the Center after intensive treatment.

Recoveries such as these are rare, but they give the center's doctors, nurses and technicians hope that they one day will be able to save a significant percentage of the patients they treat for critically severe burns.

577TH COMPLETES RUNWAY AT MCKENNA
Unit Commander (L, Insert) Shows Col. Earl Holton New Material

577th Engineers Finish Unique Airstrip Runway

The 577th Engineers have completed a unique runway at McKenna Airstrip.

It is a 2,400 by 50 feet runway designed for use by large Army aircraft such as the Caribou or Mohawk. Most of the preliminary work was completed by the now deactivated 806th Engineer Battalion. They were responsible for most of the earth work. The 577th completed the final filling, compacting and finish. Lt. Col. William K. Jordan commands the 577th.

The strip is unique in that it is membrane-covered. This film is composed of a nylon mesh fabric base, surfaced on both sides with either vinyl of polyethelene.

Actually half of the runway is covered with the vinyl fabric, and the other half with polyethelene fabric. Both materials weigh approximately 0.11 pounds per square foot, are manufactured in sections 606 by 56 feet, weighing over two tons.

The surfaces are impervious to oil, gasoline and jet fuel. Steady application of heat will cause the membrane to melt, but it will not burn as such. It may be readily cut with a sharp instrument, but is virtually impossible to tear.

Both materials were developed in conjunction with a program to find a method of establishing hasty airfields in foward areas which permit extended use by the Caribou and Mohawk.

Initial preparation time under average working conditions is 10 hours. Only two and one-half hours is necessary to install the surface, which is designed to withstand 22,000 landings. Actual usable life is expected to vary between 6 months and 2 years.

Aircraft from using elements of the 11th Air Assault Division (Test) officially opened the strip Wednesday during a brief ceremony held on Mc Kenna Hill. Use of the runway will be limited for some time to come, pending completion of the new required support facilities.

'Winter Green' Abounds on Post

Fort Benning turns green Monday.

Or at least the uniforms of post personnel will be green, instead of khaki.

Another sure sign of the times: the heating season began last Wednesday.

The fatigue uniform will still be regulation throughout the winter, but the khakis can be put away until April.

Gridders Set For Charge From Fort Bragg

The Fort Benning gridders run head-on with the Fort Bragg Dragons this Saturday in what shapes up to be one of the biggest games to date, Doughboy scouts report.

Doughboy Coach Oren DeHaven has decided to go with his "White Team" at the opening kick-off, holding his alternating "Blue Team" in reserve.

11th Troops Finish Test At Stewart

By Sp4 Chuck Lowenhagen

The first formal test of the Army's bold, new concept of tactical mobility, the air assault concept, came to a close this week as approximately 4,000 Sky Soldiers and 175 aircraft came home after an absence of almost a month.

The tested units, which were formed here in mid-February, were the 11th Air Assault Division (Test), commanded by Brig. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, and the 10th Air Transport Brigade (Test), an attached unit commanded by Col. Delbert L. Bristol.

Called SKY SOLDIER I, the test, which started on Sept. 2, and was terminated on Oct. 15, took place in the vicinity of Vidalia, Camp Oliver and Fort Stewart, Ga. It was divided into four phases —Alpha, Bravo, Charlie and Delta — with an administrative break between each phase to allow necessary changes to the tactical situation and to permit the evaluators time to record their findings while the action was still fresh in their minds.

Test Director

Maj. Gen. C. W. G. Rich, commanding general of the U.S. Army Infantry Center, was the Test Director. Controllers, data collectors, and evaluators were supervised by the Test, Evaluation and Control (TEC) Group, headed by Brig. Gen. Robert R. Williams.

The exercise setting was established when the Department of Defense, in response to a request for aid from Stewartland (a hypothetical

Tri-Faith Retreat

Col. A. L. Hoebeke To Open Conference

A post-wide Tri-Faith Religious Retreat, to be conducted by The Infantry Center Chaplain Section, is scheduled to open at 8 a.m. Oct. 2.

A 15-minute concert by The Infantry Center Band, directed by CWO Clyde W. White, will open the retreat at Theater No. 1.

Col. Adrian L. Hoebeke, deputy post commander, will deliver the opening address.

At 8:40 a.m. the assembly will divide into three retreats by religious faiths, Catholic, Protestant and Jewish.

RABBI GOODMAN

The Protestant retreat, to be conducted at the Protestant Chapel, will open with a devotional at 9 a.m. by Chaplain (Maj.) Frank E. Deese.

Retired Bishop Arthur J. Moore of Atlanta, an active Methodist evangelist, will give an inspirational message at 9:15 a.m.

Paul Anderson of Vidalia, Ga., once billed as the "World's Strongest Man," will speak at 10:35 a.m. He is a weightlifter who has earned national, world and Olympic titles. Chaplain (Lt. Col.) James B. Blunk will introduce Anderson.

There will be a period of private devotion from 11:25 until noon, under the guidance of Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Raymond M. Rowland.

At 2 p.m. Anderson will again address the retreat, followed by a meditation conducted by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Arthur J. Estes.

Taking part in a panel discussion at 3 p.m. will be Chaplain Blunk, Chaplain Rowland and Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Roy D. Hidy.

The Protestant phase of the retreat will close with a devotion and service of dedication conducted by Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker, post chaplain.

Jewish personnel will gather at the Post Jewish Center, Bldg. 1071, following the opening exercises in Theater No. 1.

Chaplain (1st Lt.) Alfred B. Landsberg, post Jewish chaplain, will conduct a devotional service at 9 a.m.

The keynote address will be given by Rabbi Alfred Goodman, rabbi of Temple Israel. There will be a 15-minute question and answer period after the address.

At 10:15 a.m., the congregation will be divided into committees to explore vital areas of group interest and findings of the committees will be presented to the assembled congregation at 11 p.m.

There will be a panel discussion at 2 p.m. and the panel will include Maj. R. B. Thomas, psychiatrist, and Maj. George J. Schonholtz, physician, both of Martin

Army Hospital, and Capt. Stephen V. Dubin, a lawyer from the Staff Judge Advocate Section.

Rabbi Goodman will moderate the panel, assisted by Chaplain Landsberg, and a 45-minute question and answer period will follow the panel discussion.

The day-long conference will be summarized at 3:45 p.m. The closing prayer will be offered at 4 p.m.

The Catholic portion of the retreat, a "Day of Recollection," will open at 9 a.m. at the Main Post Catholic Chapel.

The Rev. Father Damian Breen of Holy Trinity, Ala., will officiate at the conference, assisted by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Thomas Daley, post Catholic chaplain, and other Catholic chaplains on the post.

The day will include conferences, meditation, spiritual reading the Rosary, Station of the Cross, private prayer, and a question box period.

Father Breen will celebrate Mass at 11 a.m. The Benediction of the most Blessed Sacrament will be said at 3:45 p.m.

Participants in all three phases of the retreat will have lunch at noon at the consolidated mess in The Infantry Center Troop Command.

Arrangements to attend the retreat should be made through unit chaplains.

Sky Soldiers republic situated in the Eastern part of the state of Georgia for SKY SOLDIER I purposes), announced that it had ordered the Army's newest unit, the 11th Air Assault Division, to deploy a brigade-size task force to aid the besieged republic in fighting and expelling aggressors from Georgana (another hypothetical country).

Chosen Unit

The unit chosen was the 1st Air Assault Brigade, commanded by Col. George S. Beatty Jr. Its first mission was to seize a base area in Stewartland, establish it as a battalion base and then build of it into a brigade base from which to conduct future operations. Attached to the 1st Air Assault Brigade to form the task force were: the 3rd Battalion, 187th Infantry; 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery; forward support elements of the 11th Support Command: Company A, 511th Signal Battalion; and Company A, 127th Engineer Battalion.

The 11th Aviation Group provided the helicopters used to carry the Sky Soldiers on their assaults plus other organic aviation support. The 10th Air Transport Brigade established and maintained an air line of communications and carried supplies needed to support the dispersed units. To round out the brigade force two simulated Infantry battalions were attached, the 1st Battalion, 183th Infantry and the 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry.

Phase Alpha

The action in Phase Alpha was conducted in three separate stages: (1) movement of troops from Fort Benning and the establishment of a staging area at Vidalia, Ga.; (2) aerial surveillance and reconnaissance of the objective area by the 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry, and elements of the 226th Aerial Surveillance and Attack Battalion; and (3) the actual air assault on the objective, Kasserine Range, Fort Stewart.

The air assault was launched on Sept. 25 from a marshalling area near Lyons, Ga. Men from the 3rd Battalion, 187th Infantry, were whisked away by Iroquois helicopters to strike an aggressor force occupying enemy positions on Kasserine Range. At the same time as the air assault was taking place, engineers moved into an open field near Brest Range and began preparations to construct a landing strip for CV-2 Caribou aircraft. Using only light-construction equipment, the engineers made the field usable and the first aircraft touched down, while the battle was still raging.

As the air assault continued in the objective area, the 11th Medical Battalion started its operation of evacuating the wounded. Front-line ambulances and litter - bearing Army mules were flown in by helicopters to assist. Air ambulances were also pressed into service to evacuate the wounded from the immediate battle area.

By mid afternoon the objective area had taken on a more peaceful appearance with patrols encountering little or no resistance. The 1st Air Assault Brigade Command Headquarters displaced into the Camp Oliver area in order that it might more closely supervise the actions of the assault troops. Forward support elements of the 11th Air Assault Division Support Command also moved into the area in order to provide frontline re-supply and maintenance service.

Beehive Base

The airfield at Brest which the engineers had been preparing became a beehive of activity as the large cargo aircraft of the division and the supporting 10th Air Transport Brigade began arriving with the equipment and supplies needed to sustain the assault troops once they had secured a base of operations.

The buildup of the base of operations at Camp Oliver continued and was used throughout the remaining three phases of the test exercises as the central point from which air assault operations were conducted.

Phase Alpha ended on Sept. 27 with the battalion task force reverting to brigade reserve after being relieved by the simulated battalions.

In Phase Bravo the 1st Air Assault Brigade, employing the reinforced 3rd Battalion, 187th Infantry as a task force, executed a series of feints and deceptive air assaults designed to force aggressor guerrillas to band together for self-protection. Once a large concentration of guerrillas was spotted, the swift-moving Sky Soldiers struck to destroy the harried enemy, then recovered to strike again as new guerrilla forces were located.

Guerrilla Assaults

These assaults against the aggressor guerrillas freed the beleaguered Stewartland divisions and enabled them to defend successfully against the aggressor regular forces which had been advancing southward in Georgana.

Phase Charlie found an aggressor battalion infiltrating into Stewartland from the northeast. The air assault task force had the mission of conducting a mobile defense against them, specifically to block the high-speed approaches into Stewartland — Highways 144 and 67. After blocking the main aggressor thrust the Sky Soldiers had to locate, attack and destroy the rapidly - building aggressor forces in the area. In subsequent actions the air assault units executed a rapid series of coordinated company-size attacks, striking at vulnerable elements of the aggressor columns.

At the conclusion of Phase Charlie, the task force returned to the brigade base to re-equip and prepare for the fi-

Army Vice Chief of Staff Here Today

FORT BENNING, Ga. — Gen. Barksdale Hamlett, vice chief of staff of the U.S. Army is scheduled to arrive at Lawson Field at 9:45 a.m. today to visit the 11th Air Assault Division.

The purpose of the visit is to view an artillery shoot of the XM 102 artillery system. The general will view the firing from Box Springs Road and Highway 103. He also will observe the firing of the Italian howitzer and a M-101A1 howitzer.

Following the demonstrations, Gen. Hamlett will receive an orientation on the XM-3 rocket system and then move by helicopter to Concord Observation Post for its firing.

Gen. Hamlett and his party will have lunch with Brig. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general of the 11th Air Assault Division, at the general's mess.

Accompanying the vice chief of staff will be Lt. Gen. D. E. Beach Jr., chief, Research and Development, Department of the Army; Brig. Gen. W. G. Merriam, chief, Development Division, Army Material Command and Brig. Gen. W. B. Richardson, director, Weapons Systems, Office of Assistant Chief of Staff, Force Development.

Gen. Hamlett and his party are slated to leave Fort Benning at 1:30 p.m.

Lt. Col. Simmons Takes Command Of TSB Battalion

Lt. Col. Leon G. Simmons has assumed command of the Infantry School Battalion of The Student Brigade. Col. Simmons has been assigned to the Weapon's Department of The Infantry School since July, 1959.

He is succeeding Maj. James J. Wallace who is retiring in January.

The change of command took place during a battalion review recently with TSB commander Col. Walter D. Short and 5th Student Battalion commander Lt. Col. Ned B. Mabry in attendance.

The new commander entered the service in 1939 as an enlisted man. His commission came in January, 1944 on a World War II European battlefield. During the war he saw combat with the 30th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Infantry Division in Europe, Africa, Sicily and Italy. After the war the colonel left the service with the rank of captain.

He was recalled to active duty during the Korean Conflict and was assigned as a company commander and adjutant at Schofield Barracks in Hawaii.

STRICOM Chief Sees 11th AAD Exercise

FORT STEWART, Ga. — The Commander in Chief of the U. S. Strike Command, Gen. Paul D. Adams, observed the 11th Air Assault Division as it went into the final stages of the test exercise, SKY SOLDIER I, last Friday and Saturday.

Gen. Adams will be in charge of putting the Sky Soldiers, through a Army-U.S. Air Force exercise designed to test the joint aspects of the air assault concept during the division's Phase II Field Evaluation Test in August-September 1964.

Soon after arriving at Liberty Field, the party was briefed on the air assault concept, the mission of the 11th Air Assault Division, and test exercise SKY SOLDIER I. Following the briefing they departed for Vidalia, Ga., to visit support elements of the division.

At Vidalia, the officers observed a CV-2 Caribou training in cargo extracting techniques, then toured logistics installations of the 11th Support Command and the reconnaissance and surveillance vans belonging to the 226th Aerial Surveillance and Attack Battalion.

From Vidalia, the group traveled to Camp Oliver where they visited the tactical control center of the 1st Air Assault Brigade located there. Upon completion of that visit they returned to Fort Stewart where Gen. Adams was honored at a dinner at the Fort Stewart Officers' Open Mess.

Early Saturday morning the Strike Command party Division Artillery make an air landing and prepare to fire a simulated mission. After returning to Fort Stewart for breakfast, the party again moved to the field to observe the hard-hitting troops of the 3rd Battalion, 187th Infantry, as they made an air assault on an objective area defended by aggressor forces.

Following the assault the general and his group traveled to a nearby landing area where refueling operations of UH-1B and UH-1D Iroquois helicopters were observed. After the choppers were refueled, the party once more travelled to the objective area to watch artillery units move in and CV-2 Caribou unload their cargo.

The Judge Says . . .

By Capt. Stephen Dubin

As part of its preventive law program, the Staff Judge Advocate Section has undertaken a detailed study of AWOL cases in the command. We have come to the conclusion that to a great degree the problems causing these absences could have been solved without dishonorably running away if only the individual had used some common sense.

Most of the reasons given for AWOL's are personal in nature. Domestic problems, possible paternity involvement, and the need to do outside work to support one's family are the leading reasons given for unauthorized absences. Perhaps these problems could have been satisfactorily resolved without going "over the hill" if the individual involved had taken the time to see his Soldiers Advocate.

This qualified lawyer in the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate has only one duty: To help the soldier and his dependents in the successful solution of their legal problems, whether they be civil or criminal in nature. He is ready to expend his knowledge, time and effort to give you the aid you need. If he feels that your problem is outside his field, he will insure that you are properly referred to the agency or person who can help you.

If you are ever confronted by a personal problem which you feel requires "immediate action" on your part, just STOP AND THINK for a moment. Then go to see your Soldiers Advocate before making a hasty decision to absent yourself without authority, for this is a decision that, in the long run, you will surely regret.

Chaplain's Corner

Who Is Your God?

Who is your God? Or perhaps the more appropriate question is, "What is your God?" Most of us profess belief in a supreme Being, One who has created and sustains the world.

Yet very few of us are able to proclaim our supreme allegiance to this Creator. More often we find other things, other interests vieing for our first attention. For some of us this god is the mighty dollar. We are willing to profess faith in God as long as it doesn't cost us anything.

But we will go to any ends to protect our dollar. Dollar is most important.

Others find their loyalty centered in their own prestige. This is far more important to them than any profession of faith which may cause them to stand apart from the crowd and be counted as different. Their god is self-esteem.

Still others find their attentions directed toward seeking pleasures. They devote their lives to the pursuit of physical comfort. The list goes on and on.

You see, there are many, many things to which a man can attach supreme importance; many things to which he can dedicate himself. These things are his gods. He worships them!

Who is your God? Whoever or whatever he is, the fact still remains that there is one God who stands above every god. Despite all our other loyalties, He calls for our first loyalty. Worship Him.

Did You Lose Pro Pay?

There are some happy soldiers at Fort Benning this week. Most post personnel who had been receiving proficiency pay in non-technical, non-combat MOS's, had resigned themselves that their September pay check would be their last fattened by the extra $30 for skill.

Under the Defense Department's new Pro Pay Program, only the top five per cent in each MOS would continue to receive the extra pay.

This week DOD announced that those receiving pro pay will not be cut off until the 12-month period for which they had previously qualified has been completed. The announcement also revealed that the monthly rate of superior performance pay would be increased from $25 to $30.

This is good news to go along with the pay raise.

United Nations Called 'Hope of the World'

October 24, 1963, is United Nations Day.

The United Nations is now 18 years old, and, very much like a "teen-ager," it shows signs of approaching maturity. Not quite yet the man, but no longer the infant.

While much publicity has been given to some of the less successful actions of the United Nations, its many positive achievements and its vast potential for good frequently get lost in the "hot" debate on the Assembly floor. However, it has been said by many world statesmen that "The United Nations is the hope of the world."

The UN's Atomic Agency aims to promote the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Its International Labor Organization aims to promote social justice, improve labor conditions and living standards, and promote economic stability.

Its Farm and Agriculture Organization aims to raise nutrition levels and living standards and improve production and distribution of food and agriculture products.

Its Education, Health and Aviation Organizations have equally high aims for improving world conditions.

Most of these organizations are accomplishing their purposes without fanfare.

And perhaps, primarily for providing these humanitarian organizations, as well as providing the chance for friends and potential enemies to meet face-to-face, the United Nations must be judged a success.

So it is up to the world, and we in the military are a most vital part of the world, to encourage the hope for peace and the "hope of the world" — the United Nations. (AFPS)

Secretary of Defense Cites Housing Need

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has told members of the Senate Armed Services Committee that decent housing for the wives and children of military men is a major concern.

Testifying on the Fiscal Year 1964 Military Family Housing Program, Secretary McNamara stated that, "Chronic (housing) shortages still exist in many localities, both in the United States and overseas near military bases which are of critical importance to our military missions."

Married men constitute the bulk of our career personnel, Mr. McNamara declared, and these are the men who occupy the key positions and who possess the essential professional, leadership, and technical skills.

The Secretary presented a projected five-year military family housing requirement.

He requested funds to build 12,100 units this fiscal year and 12,500 during each of the next four years.

There are also plans for construction of 2,000 more trailer spaces. Also proposed is construction of 1,300 trailer spaces for military families who are not otherwise eligible for Government housing.

"Even today, all around the world, American servicemen are risking, and all too often losing, their lives in the service of their country," the Defense Secretary told senators.

"For this unique hazard of the military profession we cannot compensate them. But we can and we should see to it that they at least share with the civilian population the rising American standard of living."

Medical Costs Are Boosted For Civilians

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Army, Navy and Air Force overseas hospitals and dispensaries will increase their inpatient and outpatient care rates for civilians beginning Jan. 1.

The new rates will not apply to military dependents.

The service hospitals will charge new rates of $37 daily for inpatient care and $8 for outpatients. They now charge $5 for inpatients and $1 for outpatients.

The inpatient rate for employes and their dependents who are not citizens of the United States will continue to be $5. For all others, including U.S. citizens and their dependents, the rate will be increased to $37.

New Liaison Officer Is 44-Jump Veteran

A veteran French Army paratrooper, Lt. Col. Robert H. Frequelin, recently succeeded Lt. Col. Paul L. Aussaresses as French liaison officer at The Infantry School.

The Allied officer, who has made 44 jumps, has been an airborne enthusiast since he received paratrooper training in Saigon, Vietnam in 1948.

He was executive officer of the 8th Airborne Regiment in Nancy, France, before his assignment here.

After being graduated from the Military Academy of Saint Cyr in 1940, he was commissioned as a second lieutenant and until 1941 served as a platoon leader during the Campaign of France.

During the remainder of World War II, he was assigned along the Chinese border in the northern part of Indo-China.

Six months before the fall of Japan, the new liaison officer was captured by the Japanese during a border conflict and held as a prisoner of war until September, 1945.

At the conclusion of World War II, Col. Frequelin was assigned as a reconnaissance company executive officer in the RCCC (Tank Destroyer) Armor Regiment in Germany until 1947.

From 1947 until 1951 he served in Indo-China with the French Intelligence Branch.

In 1952 the French paratroopers was sent to the French Embassy in Rangoon, Burma, and served as military attache until 1955.

During the next two years he was operations officer of the Third French Airborne Regiment, a reserve strike regiment which was stationed in Algeria during the height of the conflict.

After a tour of duty which took the colonel to West Africa, he was assigned as assistant commandant of the First Airborne Regiment Training Center in Bayonee, France.

Among Col. Frequelin's military awards and decorations are the Legion of Honor, Croix le Juerre, Croix de la Valeur, Overseas Medal and campaign medals from France, the Far East, Algeria and Middle East.

The French colonel and his wife, Lucienne, have three sons, Alain, 16, Patrick, 15, and Jean-Marc, 5.

Post Unit to Depart Tuesday for Germany

The 515th, under the command of 1st Lt. Rene J. Emond, will join forces with the 2nd Armored Division Fort Hood, Tex., and other U.S.-based units and companies in the 14,000-man European airlift.

"Our mission during 'Big Lift' will be to provide motor transportation for the movement of troops and supplies during an eight-day field training exercise," Lt. Emond said.

More than 60,000 Army and Air Force men will carry out the action phase of the exercise along the Main River in the Hanau-Budingen area.

"In addition to the training the men will receive under field conditions, they also will learn important lessons in the mobility, flexibility and logistical support of the transportation company," the lieutenant said.

The 515th will join other transport companies from Fort Campbell, Ky., and Fort Bragg, N.C., and along with the 6th Transportation Battalion (Truck) of Fort Eustis, Va., and two artillery battalions from Fort Sill, Okla., will combine forces with the 2nd Armored Division.

The men of the 515th will take only personal equipment and alert kits with them for the exercise. Heavy equipment will be supplied at European depots where equipment has been pre-positioned for their use.

The Fort Benning company has been issued such unusual items as cold weather parkas, heavy socks, frost-proof face masks, sunglasses and heavy mittens in preparation for the exercise.

PFC John Stubbs, a member of the 515th, summed up the men's feelings by saying, "Most of us are looking forward to 'Big Lift.' For many of us it will be our first trip to Europe."

The 515th is scheduled to return to Fort Benning in late November.

'Flying Crane' Makes Its Debut In Sky Soldier I

CAMP OLIVER, Ga. — The giant Sikorsky "flying crane" made its debut here last week when it airlifted a 16,000 pound bulldozer to the battle area where troops of the 11th Air Assault Division were undergoing their first phase test, SKY SOLDIER I.

The "flying crane" can carry between eight and ten tons of cargo to a 50 mile radius of action. It has two detachable pods which can be arranged internally for carrying troops or cargo. It could contain a field hospital complete with doctors and medical technicians, a command post, communications center or a dozen other facilities.

The crane carries the pod to a designated place, sets it down, releases it and flies off to other missions.

Women's Club Chatter

Ladies Culinary Group Boasts Big Membership

By Marge Lennon

Mrs. James O. Jones and Mrs. Jonathan E. Adams Jr., were talking one morning last month and thought it would be a nice idea to have a small group of women get together weekly in each other's homes and trade culinary secrets. . .a sort of cooking class for experienced cooks, they thought.

They decided to set up a table at the Opening Tea and register any other interested women in such an activity, assuming they would receive 10 or 12 applicants. You can well imagine their surprise when they counted the names at the end of the Tea and found 98 signatures. Everyone was flabbergasted. . . especially Mrs. Adams. Someone was overheard saying, "Where are they going to put us, Yankee Stadium?"

After the dust cleared, Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Adams put their heads together and the classes are now being conducted in Salerno Mess. All the women involved seem to be quite glad they are part of the group. Some mighty tasty dishes will be cooked all over the post tonight — thanks to "Gourmet Cooking Class."

Several additional women are needed for Mrs. Elizabeth Westall's advanced and beginner sewing class, which will begin early in November. Call Mrs. Westall at 687-0701 or Mrs. Francis Mead at 689-9754 to register.

Also still needed are a few adults (male and female) for the Wednesday night adult dancing class taught by Mrs. Margaret LaForest. This group was formed for adults mainly interested in ballet exercises and not necessarily the dancing. Further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Jean K. Woodyard at 545-5628.

The Women's Club seems to have an activity group for everyone's individual need, and ceramics is no exception. The club now offers a ceramics class taught in both English and Spanish. Over 250 women constantly flow in and out of the Women's Club ceramics building.

Mrs. James O. Jones said recently that her activities groups are in need of chairs — and shape or size. Anyone who desires to donate any type of chair to the group may call her at 545-1506.

Mrs. John H. Cochran proudly announced that the sale of cookbooks is doing extremely well. A large quantity of the books are now on sale at the PX, Thrift Shop and Book Store. In Columbus you may purchase the cookbook at White's, Milton Carroll Furniture Store and the Dixie Ceramic Supply on Lumpkin Road. Perfect for that extra something as a Christmas gift, an additional 25 cents will buy a pre-wrapped edition in Christmas colors ready for mailing. There are very few gifts you could buy for $2 which would be appreciated as much as "Queen of Battle, Her Recipes."

Don't forget to renew your membership Card. Contact Mrs. Roy Inman at 545-2207.

Airborne Wives Hold Meeting

Officer's wives of the Airborne-Air Mobility Department held their October coffee recently in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers Open Mess.

The table was appropriately decorated using the Halloween theme. Mrs. Albert S. Madding poured for the ladies.

A short business meeting was held and new arrivals, Mrs. Ralph Salucci and Mrs. James J. Barber, were welcomed to the group.

Hostesses for the event were Mrs. Fred C. Berry, Mrs. A. J. Baker and Mrs. Richard E. Bicknell.

MCCRARY ASSIGNED

CWO Howard C. McCray has been assigned as the new personnel officer at the 577th Engineer Battalion (Construction). He held the same position in the 80th Engineers prior to its inactivation.

Talk about contrast—in the past three weeks the Fort Benning girls have seen the worst and the best of their appearances.

Maybe you noticed the awful sight of those nine girls pledging for the Sigma Delta Beta sorority. The girls that wore the same revolting clothes for two solid weeks were Lin Coffin, Reca Spencer, Bev Taylor, Sandy Loper, Joannie Mellilo, Jan Nelson, Tibby Lynch, Terry Stacey and Christie Elstad.

The girls were rushed on Thursday evening (Oct. 3). Among the girls was Pat Paulick. Because Pat was leaving the following morning she was rushed and inducted the same night. The rest of the girls were inducted Sunday at the Main Post Protestant Chapel.

Now, to the attractive side of the female. Saturday afternoon approximately 30 girls gathered in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess for the purpose of trying out for modeling. The modeling is for the J.A.D.A. November luncheon. The sixteen girls selected were Sheri Pruett, Joan Gilroy, Cheryl Riley, Karen Price, Terri Fisk, Gwen Forehand, Johnette Brickhouse, Katie Hennessey, Betty Boisvert, Nonnie Walker, Lee Vassar, Myra Phifer, Kathy Knowles, Lloyd Keekin, Julie Fielder, and myself.

The chairman of the fashion show is Anita Braun. Her assistants are Cathy Jones and Sharon Silver. Those girls who wish to make reservations should call Terri Setaro.

Another of J.A.D.A's. forthcoming events is the halloween party on Saturday (Oct. 26). The party will be at the Women's Club from 8-12 p.m. It is requested that all participants wear costumes suitable to the occasion.

There will be a charge of 75 cents a couple. Myra Phifer is selling the tickets at Pacelli, Sandra Keith at Baker and Lee Short at Columbus.

I received a letter from Sara Walters this past week. Those of you who knew Sara may like to hear that she is a cheerleader for her school in Puerto Rico. Along with that she writes for her school paper, "Pirates Pages."

Let's hear from a few of you boys, now. You must be doing something. After all, they say this is a man's world.

Grooming Hints Focalize CTC Ladies Luncheon

Fashionable make-up application and proper skin care accented the monthly luncheon of the ladies of The Infantry Center Troop Command recently in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officer's Open Mess.

The officer's wives of the 39th Transportation Battalion were in charge of the arrangements with Mrs. Harry F. Boyle as co-ordinator.

The program featured Mrs. Le Revell of Kayser-Lilienthal, Inc., who gave the latest views on skin care and demonstrated the proper application of make-up with Mrs. John K. Roberts Jr., as model.

The luncheon table was the center of the unique decorations highlighting the special feature.

Guests present were Mrs. Mary Beckett, Miss Carol Nichols, and Mrs. Florence Stretch.

Fort Sill Soldiers Learn About Life in a Compound

FORT SILL, Okla. (ANF)—Name, rank, serial number, date of birth. Name, rank, serial number, date of birth. Over and over, again and again.

Ignoring offers of fancy meals and freedom, 19 tired, hungry officers and senior NCOs of Fort Sill's 214th Artillery Group continued to utter "name, rank, serial number and date of birth," much to the displeasure of their captors.

The Combat Survival course, the first of its kind to be held at the Artillery and Missile Center, spanned four days of rugged training in the desolate northwest section of the Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge.

During the training, the men were schooled in survival, escape and evasion plus what to expect when captured by unfriendly forces.

For the first day and a half, the course proceeded with classroom lectures on a regular schedule with little hint of what was to follow. Then on noon of the second day the students were loaded into trucks and taken to the refuge.

At a campsite, the men were instructed on preparation of wildlife for food. Each pair of men was given one rabbit and two quail to fix for their own evening meal. The instructors also demonstrated how to build shelters and make and set traps for animals.

At 2:30 a.m., the men were roused from their pup tents, stripped of personal belongings and loaded onto the trucks again. They were taken to a more remote area of the wildlife refuge.

The students were told that they had escaped from an enemy prison and were to find their way home to Fort Sill. Ten hours and 15 minutes later the last of the four-man groups were reported recaptured by blue-clad aggressors.

From the points of ambush, the prisoners were escorted to a barbed-wire compound, their home for the remainder of the course.

The prisoners were periodically interrogated. If they refused to divulge information about their unit and mission, they were subjected to physical and mental pressures closely paralleling methods which might be used by a real enemy to obtain intelligence information. Even promises of luxury meals following long periods of hunger failed to shake any information from the prisoners.

By the end of the fourth day, the enemy gave up. The only information he had acquired was name, rank, serial number, date of birth.

The soldiers of the 214th had lived up to the Code of Conduct.

7-Year High Is Reached By OC Grad

Second Lt. Robert L. Brandkamp was graduated Oct. 9 from The Infantry School's Officer Candidate Class No. 5 with what is believed to be the highest academic score since 1956.

Lt. Brandkamp, who graduated along with 110 other men from the 23-week course, finished with a 97.6 average.

Brig. Gen. Lester L. Wheeler, deputy chief of staff, Third U. S. Army, Fort McPherson, addressed the class and presented Lt. Brandkamp with the Honor and Distinguished Graduate Award and the Association of the United States Army AUSA) Award.

Lt. Brandkamp entered active service in November 1959, at Fort Hood, Tex. Before entering OCS, he attended the Third Army Non-Commissioned Academy, the 8th Division Non - commissioned School and the 8th Division Air Transportability School.

He has been awarded the Expert Infantryman Badge and the Good Conduct Medal.

Upon graduation, Brandkamp requested to be assigned to the Officer Candidate School as a tactical officer.

Red Cross Aid Is Explained In New Booklet

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The question is often asked, "How does the Red Cross aid the serviceman and his family?"

The answers appear in a newly published pamphlet available at all Red Cross offices.

It describes the services offered by the Red Cross to military personnel and their families and tells how these services are provided.

UNITED STATES ARMY STRIKE READY FORCE

Fort Benning, Ga. FRIDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1963

Big Allocation Is Strictly For the Birds

October is bringing smiles to the faces of 385 men in the 2nd Infantry Division. This is the number of allocations received this month for promotions to the grade of E-4.

After a long dry spell in Sp4 promotions, the "Indianhead" Division obtained a bounty allocation and the golden bird will be popping out all over uniform sleeves.

Individual units have been ceremony-ing for the past week as well-deserved enlisted men have been upped in grade.

Receipt of the hard-to-get promotion allocation has sent many commanders toiling into the night screening elegible men and making certain the "bird" flies to the right man; the best man.

Barrack's chatter concerning the new stripes has been constant for the past few weeks. In fact, and it never ceases to amaze, rumors of the exact number was flying around the division long before they came. How it is known, no one can understand. Mental telepathy or a pipeline with DA is the only explanation.

Nevertheless, the favorite tune that 385 Second Division men are whistling this week, is "The Lullaby of Birdland."

2nd Division's

46th Birthday Next Week

BY BOB DE CAMARA

Plans are forging ahead at the 2nd Infantry Division to make the birthday celebration this year one of note.

The "Indianhead" Division will be 46 years old Saturday, October 26, and a full day of festivities are planned with the public invited to attend and take part.

Invitations to civic leaders in Columbus and surrounding areas have already gone out as well as welcomes to active and retired Army officers.

The day will begin with a massive division review in which one company of every battalion will march, vying for best-drilled company.

Among the informal activities, units will throw their areas open to families and guests.

In the evening, Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general of the 2nd Division who recently celebrated his first year in that command, is hosting a reception for division officers and wives and distinguished visitors.

Mayor Steve Knight of Columbus has been invited along with the mayor of Phenix City, John W. Barbee, and their wives. A score of other prominent individuals are expected to make the reception.

The birthday evening will be capped by an officers' dance at the Main Officers' Open Mess, scene of the reception and dinner party.

Meanwhile, the 2nd Division's noncommissioned officers led by Sgt. Maj. Robert L. Brown, division sergeant major, will stage a dinner-dance at the Harmony Church Field House.

Similar to the functions sponsored by the division officers, the sergeants will be accompanied by their own host of important visitors and honored guests, including the sergeant major of Fort Benning, Sgt. Maj. Welborne A. Callahan.

On October 26, 1917 when the 2nd Infantry Division was organized as the 2nd Division in Bourmont, France, Marine, as well as Army, units went into making up the division.

The commander and sergeant major of the 6th Marine Regiment, now stationed at Camp Lejune, N. C., will be on hand for division celebrations.

On the reviewing stand at Wetherby Field, along with Gen. Billingslea and guests, will be the Soldier-of-the-Year for 1963, PSgt. Melvin Hanson of the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry.

During the parade on Wetherby Field, the Soldier-of-the-Year for 1964 will be announced and take his place on the reviewing stand.

The ceremonies on the field will wind up with a cake cutting.

Last year's Organization Day festivities were cancelled when the division went on readiness alert due to the Cuban situation.

The 2nd Infantry Division has been through three major wars and seen garrison duty in peacetime at a series of stateside posts. For a long time, Fort Sam Houston, Tex., was considered the home of the "Second to None."

The division was in training at Fort Lewis, Washington in July 1950 when the word went out to ready the division for Korea.

The division was originally formed in World War I overseas of Army and Marine units, including the 9th and 23rd Infantries and the 5th and 6th Marine Regiments. It also included artillery batteries, which it has to this day, and supporting elements.

The 2nd Division came back from World War I as the most decorated division of the American Expeditionary Forces. It had captured one-fourth of the prisoners taken by the AEF and suffered one-tenth of the casualties.

It had gone into battle in a big way for the first time at Chateau-Thierry and stood like a rock at the Marne. In

MPs Celebrate Birthday and Promotions

A ceremony with dual significance for members of the 2nd Infantry Division's 2nd Military Police Company was observed last week.

The unit celebrated its 46th anniversary, 15 days before the entire 2nd Division will mark the same birthday, and promoted eight MP's at the same time, a first for the unit.

In fact, since the 2nd Military Police Company's organization on October 11, 1917 in Chickamauga Park, Ga., as the 2nd Train Headquarters and Military Police, the unit has been stringing up a list of firsts or unique accomplishments.

The 2nd Military Police Company is believed to be one of the few, if not the only, MP companies authorized a unit crest, the emblem worn on caps and epaulets. In three wars, the "2nd's" policemen have trudged through 21 campaigns from Lorraine 1918 to Korea, Summer 1953.

Their battle flag is heavy with streamers and decorations. They have distinguished and meritorious unit citations, several French Croix de Guerres, fourrageres (the "rope" worn about the shoulder) and have been cited twice by the Belgian Army in the orders of the day.

For the anniversary party last week, the men of Capt. Dewitt Hudson's company had as guests Lt. Col. Frank Hearn, Jr., 2nd Division Provost Marshal; his assistant, Maj. John F. Riley; and the 2nd division Headquarters Commandant, Maj. Sherman W. Ensley.

An anniversary cake was cut that read "Organization Day, 2nd Military Police Company." And the eight privates first class were jumped in rank to specialist fourth class, an unprecedented number for the company.

Those promoted were Joseph B. Hottenstein, Robert B. Moore Jr., George P. Davie III, Leslie C. Smith, Alphonse A. Buffalari, James D. Mitchell, Gary R. Goodner and Jerry E. Eastlick.

The 2nd Military Police Company has also received an impressive looking document signed by Secretary of the Army Cyrus Vance noting the date October 11 as a day of "significance" in the history of the unit.

By 15 days, the group organized at Chickamauga Park predated the organiza-

Little Creek Over; Units Back Home

The annual amphibious training of the 2nd Infantry Division was concluded last week when almost 2,000 of it's combat ready troops hit the beach at Camp Pendleton, Va, with a realistically simulated full-scale assault.

Camp Pendleton is a Marine base located next door to the Navy-controlled Amphibious Training Center at Little Creek where, for the past five weeks, nearly 5,000 men of the "Indianhead" Division have undergone rigorous training in practical and classroom work ranging from Navy slang to clearing the beach of enemy obstacles.

This second and final landing force of the cycle consisted of almost 2,000 soldiers from four division units: the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry; the 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor; the 15th Artillery, and Companies A and D, 2nd Engineer Battalion.

Group I, which was made up of members of the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry; 2nd Battalion, 72nd Armor (a division unit from Fort Stewart, Ga.); the 38th Artillery; and Company C, 2nd Engineer Battalion carried out their amphibious "invasion" September 27.

Both "wet exercises" were carried out in an identical manner. When H-Hour arrived on D-Day the troops, laden down with battle gear and wielding M-14 rifles, made their way from Navy ships by means of cargo nets into smaller craft for the trip to shore.

After washing through the pounding surf and getting their feet on dry land the green clad troopers wearing the 46 year old "Indianhead" patch were greeted with all the obstacles and harassment of the "real thing." TNT blasts simulating enemy artillery barrages exploded on all sides and unfriendly barriers confronted them. In addition to these problems the invading forces had to land tons of simulated cargo for supply points, tanks, vehicles, artillery pieces and various types of other heavy equipment.

Once these difficulties were overcome and a successful beachhead was established, the troops carried out an inland drive which signalled an end to the amphibious operation.

On hand to witness the final aqua - land spectacular was Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general, 2nd Infantry Division, who flew to Little Creek especially for the occasion.

Immediately following this excellent display of determination, stamina and ability,

The 2nd Infantry Division is in the market again for a Career Soldier of the Year.

To date, boards of selectors have been shopping around the "Indianhead" Division's three brigades, Division Artillery, separate battalions and the rest of the units.

While the list of possible candidates is being narrowed down, division leaders are not speaking about the possible identity of the soldier who will replace PSgt. Melvin Hanson at the anniversary day parade October 26.

And any conclusions this early in the game are mere speculation. The final announcement will be made on Wetherby Field during the "Indianhead" Division's 46th birthday celebration.

The final test in the drawn-out process of selecting a Career Soldier of the Year 1964 did not even take place until yesterday. On that date a selection board consisting of an assistant division commander as president and the inspector general and sergeants major of the division and the general staff sections as members began the wind-up choosing.

Before that, all candidates took a strenuous physical combat proficiency test, faced a critical classroom in an evaluation of instructional techniques and sat down to a thorough written examination.

Appearance and military bearing play a major role in selection as does the candidate's overall record of military service.

The division has in store for

Division-wide festivities are planned this year, starting with a massive review at 9:30 a.m., and the public has been invited to attend. Units throughout the division, including the 2nd Military Police, will throw their areas open to visitors and displays will be set up.

the assault forces together with the site support personnel began initial preparations for their anticipated return to Fort Benning.

The site support personnel was composed of Company B, 2nd Engineer Battalion; Company C, 2nd Medical Battalion; a detachment from the Supply and Transport Battalion; and 2nd Brigade Headquarters, the control unit for the entire cycle of training.

The last of the troops, pleased with their performance during the first amphibious training carried out since the division was reorganized under the ROAD concept earlier this year, completed the trip back to their Georgia home this week.

the winner of the competition a $100 savings bond plus other souvenirs and, most important, the prestige that goes along with the title of Career Soldier of the Year.

At Wetherby Field in the reviewing stand will be Sgt. Hanson, a member of the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry. At an appropriate time in the ceremonies, the replacement for Sgt. Hanson (who is not eligible this year) will be announced and honored.

The public has been invited to attend the activities on Wetherby Field and elsewhere throughout the division on Organization Day.

For the past several weeks, soldiers in the running for the title have been boning up on 2nd Division history and customs and traditions of the Army. The testing before final selection is comprehensive and exhaustive.

SFC McCarthy Takes Big Oath

The reenlistment oath was administered by Capt. Walter M. Wall to SFC Richard L. McCarthy last week. SFC McCarthy is the weapons platoon sergeant for Company A, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

This present reenlistment will bring SFC McCarthy's service time just over the 20 year mark.

He and his wife, Ruth, and their daughters, Elizabeth, 13; and Deborah, 11, reside at 5004 Kingston Drive, Columbus.

SGT. MAJ. NOWELL RECEIVES ACM
(L-R) Gen. Corley and Sgt. Maj. Nowell

G-1 Sergeant Major Presented the ACM

Sgt. Maj. Nowell, G-1 sergeant major, is leaving.

Since the Korean War, Sgt. Maj. Bilbo Nowell has labored tediously for the same unit and last Saturday he was recognized for his efforts.

His recognition came in the form of an Army Commendation Medal presented to him by Acting 2nd Division Commanding General, Brig. Gen. John T. Corley.

Sgt. Maj. Nowell was cited specifically for his work in G-1 starting on May 15, 1959. He was praised for his contributions "to the successful accomplishment of the many and varied missions of the 2nd Infantry Division by making sound recommendations that had direct bearing on the morale and welfare of the enlisted men and their dependents. This was particularly noteworthy during the critical periods of planning or the division's participation in Rotaplan, and the several joint-service training exercises," the citation read.

The sergeant major will be leaving here on November 1 to join the 1st Cavalry Division in Korea.

Lt. Col. Lewington S. Ponder, G-1 assistant chief of staff, praised Sgt. Maj. Nowell's performance during various crisis and said, "The citation spells out what we've known for a long time.

"Sgt. Nowell has broken in and trained many G-1's," Col. Ponder said, "and a great deal of the burden on the G-1 section fell on Sgt. Nowell."

Sgt. Maj. Nowell was nearly speechless. "I don't like to go and I am going to try to get back to it (the 2nd division)," he said.

The sergeant major began his 10 years with this division in 1953 when it was the 37th Infantry Division at Camp Polk, now Fort Polk, La., as first sergeant of the 145th Infantry. In 1954, the division was moved to Fort Riley, Kan., renamed the 10th Division and the 145th was redesignated the 5th Infantry with Sgt. Nowell its sergeant major.

The following year the 10th gyroed to Europe and Sgt. Maj. Nowell's unit was renamed to 29th Infantry. The 10th came to Fort Benning, with Sgt. Maj. Nowell, in 1958 and was redesignated the 2nd Infantry Division. The 29th Infantry became the 23rd Infantry. He had been with three division and four infantry units in five years.

Three Support Command NCO's Selected

By Support Command PIO

The 2nd Infantry Division Support Command's conference room was filled with excitement recently when seven top NCO's were interviewed for Support Command's "Soldier of the Year".

All seven men appeared before a board composed of one officer, who served as president of the board, and four NCO's from Support Command headquarters. They were questioned by the members of the board about their speciality, which included supply, transportation and administration. Other questions centered around military history, current events and their personal military career.

The three men selected to represent Support Command in the division's "Soldier of the Year" competition were; SSgt. Asuncion Candelario, Company C, 2nd Medical Battalion; SSgt. William A. Gant, 2nd Administration Company; and SFC Donald R. Moore, Headquarters Company, 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion.

The other four men who were all selected by their separate battalions as outstanding soldiers are: SSgt. W. A. Baker, Headquarters and Company A, 702nd Maintenance Battalion; Sgt. J. A. Sears, Headquarters and Support Company, 2nd Medical Battalion; Sgt. W. L. Sharpton, Company A, 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion; and Sp5 M. E. Weaver, Company E, 702nd Maintenance Battalion.

50 of 15th Arty Tour Destroyer At Norfolk, Va.

LITTLE CREEK, VA.

A diversion from amphibious training provided for 50 members of the 1st Battalion, 15th Artillery by the U. S. Navy was a tour of the U. S. S. Canberra at her berth in Norfolk, Va.

The Canberra, a cruiser-destroyer, was launched in 1943, and was the first U. S. Navy ship named in honor of a foreign ship. She was named for the Australian ship Canberra which was lost in the first battle of Savo Island in 1942. The present-day Canberra serves as the flagship of Cruiser-Destroyer Flotilla 12, commanded by Rear Adm. Frank Pinney.

The Canberra, first U. S. Navy guided missile craft, is equipped with Terrier missiles. The 673 foot ship can reach a speed of more than 30 knots and has a cruising range of 45 days.

Fifteenth Artillerymen were most interested in the Canberra's communication facilities and twin missile batteries, and in their sea-going fellow artillerymen who man the ship.

By 2nd Bn, 38th Infantry PIO

Platoon Sergeant Willie A. Walker, Company C, 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry was promoted to his present rank in ceremonies at Theater 7 last week. Lt. Col. Donald H. Lanier, the battalion commander presented Sgt. Walker with his promotion orders before the assembled battalion, with Mrs. Walker in attendance.

Sgt. Walker is platoon sergeant of C Company's 2nd platoon and is a veteran of over 15 years service. Sgt. Walker entered the Army in 1948 at Fort Dix, N. J. Since then, Sgt. Walker has seen service at Fort Riley, Fort Polk, and Fort Meade. Sgt. Walker has also served three times in Germany, including six months on Rotaplan.

Sgt. Walker and his wife, Dorothy, live at 15B, McGrath Street, and are the parents of five children.

Capt. Coast resides at 102 B, Galt Court, Ft. Benning, with his wife, Murrell, and his two children.

Capt. A.F. Coast Assigned as CO For Company C

By 1st Bn 23rd Infantry PIO

Company C, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry has a new company commander. Capt. Albert F. Coast has assumed the command upon the departure of Lt. Thomas E. Leverette.

Capt. Coast has attended the Infantry Officer's Career Course, Ranger School, and Air-Ground School.

As a member of the 23rd Infantry, Capt. Coast was with the unit during the Rotaplan tour to Germany where he was Battalion S-3.

New Sgt Maj At Support Cmd

Sgt. Maj. Laurence H. Berger is the new Sgt. Maj. for Support Command.

Sgt. Maj. Berger comes to the division from the 3rd Medium Tank Battalion, 40th Armor, 1st Calvary Division in Korea.

The 26-year veteran has seen action in World War II and Korea. During the Second World War he served with the 632 Tank Destroyer Battalion of the 37th Division in the Philippines and during the Korean War he was with the "Second to None" as a gunner in the 15th Artillery.

Sgt. Maj. Berger has served as an advisor for National Guard units and an Instructor for the Armor School at Ft. Knox. He also spent seven and a half years with the 2nd Armored Division.

Sgt. Maj. Berger and his wife, Dorothy, and their children Laurence, Jr. and Victoria now make their home in the Capehart section of Fort Benning.

Sgt. J. Feeback One of the Three DivArty Choices

By 38th Artillery PIO

Sgt. James C. Feeback at Battery B, 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery, was one of three men chosen to represent Division Artillery for the 2nd Infantry Division, Soldier-of-the-Year award. Col. Huffman congratulated Sgt. Feeback and presented him with a trophy. Sgt. Feeback was chosen Soldier-of-the-Month for August 1963, and participated on October 17, for the 2nd Infantry Division Soldier-of-the-year award.

Sgt. Feeback is serving as a Chief of Section on one of the Battery's 105mm howitzers and since entering the Army in April, 1961 has seen duty in many phases of artillery maneuvers, including battery and battalion Alt's, joint exercise Swift Strike III, and amphibious training at Little Creek, Va.

Capt. Comer Is Assigned To 1st Brigade as S-2

By 1st Brigade PIO

Capt. Ralph L. Comer recently became the S-2 officer for the 1st Brigade, replacing Maj. David A. Forsythe, who was assigned to the post of G-5, 2nd Infantry Division.

A native of Highpoint, N.C., Capt. Comer is a 1953 graduate of North Carolina State College, where he received his commission through the ROTC program. In October of that year he attended the Basic Infantry Officer's Course at Fort Benning.

Assigned initally to Fort Jackson, S.C., where he was an instructor in Leadership for Advanced Infantry Training classes, Capt. Comer later served a tour of duty on Okinawa. Returning to Fort Benning in March, 1959, Capt. Comer was a tactical officer for the Officer Candidate School prior to attending the Advanced Officer's Infantry Course.

In 1960, Capt. Comer served as assistant S-3 and motor officer for the 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry. He was later assigned in February, 1962, to the Military Aid and Advisory Group in Viet Nam, where he was the G-4 advisor to the 2nd Vietnamese Infantry Division. Upon returning to the United States in May, 1963, he was assigned to the 1st Brigade, 2nd Infantry Division.

Among Capt. Comer's decorations are: the Army Commendation Medal with one Oak Leaf Cluster, the Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal, and the National Defense Service Medal. His hobbies include cabinetmaking and fishing.

72nd Armor to be 20 Years Old Tomorrow

By 72nd Armor PIO

Battalion Organization Day for the combat ready 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor will be celebrated on October 19, 1963.

The ceremony will begin at nine a.m. with a band concert by the famous 2nd Infantry Division Band. At 9:15 a.m. Lt. Col. Arthur J. Lochrie, Battalion commander of the 72nd Armor, will read an introduction and brief history of the 72nd Armor.

At 9:25 a.m. there will be a mounted review. This type of review is an event that is rarely seen on the Fort Benning Reservation. The review will feature the M48A1 Patton Tank. Other vehicles in the review will be Armored Personnel Carriers, the famous ¼-ton "Jeep," the new Davy Crockett Missile Launch Vehicle, and the gigantic M88 Tank Recovery Vehicle. The powerful vehicles displayed in the review are just one of the reasons that the 72nd Armor is considered the Division's Mailed Fist.

At ten a.m. a tank demonstration will take place. This display will show the muscle behind the tanks "power-punch". Also at this time rides will be given to visitors. These rides will be on the M48A Tank and the Jeeps.

Military Stakes will be at 10:15 a.m. This highly competitive event will test the individual, and the individual tank crews on general knowledge of assigned vehicles and weapons, timed assembly and disassembly of weapons; to include the .45 cal pistol, the M14 Rifle, the .30 and .50 cal machine gun, changing tires, breaking and reassembly of track. Each person entered in this contest is eager to win this coveted trophy for his company.

At 12:30 p.m. the awards for the preceding event will be given.

The Officers will celebrate Organization Day with a cocktail party in the Anzio Room of the Main Officer's Open Mess.

This Organization Day will be the 20th Birthday of the 2nd Infantry Division's "Combat Arm of Decision".

Top Combat Artillerymen Drill as Well

By 38th Artillery PIO

Shoot; Move; and Communicate! This is the mission normally assigned the men of Battery C, 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery, and they can do it well. However, on October 10, 1963, these men proved to the other batteries in the battalion that they were proficient in other matters as well; namely, close order drill.

The 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery, held squad competition to decide who would represent the battalion in Division Artillery competition for the best drilled platoon. Taking first place honors was Sgt. Roosevelt Givens' squad and second place honors went to Sgt. Lester L. Winegar and his squad. These squads will form part of one of the platoons to represent the Division Artillery in the Division Organization Day Parade, October 26, 1963.

The men of these two squads are to be commended for their excellent perseverence and duty.

Sgt Maj Martin To 7th Cavalry

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Sgt. Maj. Earl D. Martin recently succeeded Sgt. Maj. Willie G. Anderson at 7th Cavalry headquarters.

Sgt. Maj. Martin comes to 7th Cavalry from the 72nd Armor where he was first sergeant of Company C. Sgt. Maj. Anderson has been assigned to Headquarters, 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 4th Cavalry in Hawaii.

Sgt. Maj. Martin holds the Silver Star, Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Army Commendation Medal, Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster, and Good Conduct Medal.

A native of La Follehe, Tenn., Sgt. Maj. Martin entered service in December 1942. He has served as a first sergeant for the past ten years.

Sgt. Maj. Martin resides with his wife Mildred and the couple's two children, Sonny and Ronnie, at 118C Baker St., Fort Benning.

Headquarters Company New Exec Interested in Sky Diving and Flying

With only three years on active duty, Lt. J. S. Brigham Jr. brings a pretty broad background to his new job as executive officer of Headquarters Company.

The 29-year old officer is a graduate of the Airborne School at Fort Campbell, Ky.; Jungle Warfare School, Panama Canal Zone; Parachute Pack Maintenance and Aerial Delivery School, Fort Lee, Va., Officers Candidate School, Fort Benning; and the Infantry Officers Basic Course, Fort Benning.

A native of Shawnee, Okla., Lt. Brigham enlisted in the Army in 1954 and served three years with the 11th Airborne Division at Fort Campbell and in Germany. After his discharge in 1957, Lt. Brigham stayed in the U. S. Army Reserve and attended OCS here during the summer of 1961. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Reserve in January 1962.

Lt. Brigham has a keen interest in flying and is applying for flight school.

His personal interests include sky-diving, fishing and hunting.

He joined Headquarters Company last month.

7th Cavalry Sgt Promoted to SFC

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Sergeant First Class William P. Byron, operations sergeant of Troop D Air Cavalry Troop, 4th Squadron, 7th Cavalry has been promoted to the grade of SFC. Sgt. Byron enlisted in the Army in May 1946.

Before coming to Fort Benning and the 7th Cavalry, he served with the 3rd Infantry Division in Europe. He arrived at Fort Benning in 1960, and his assignments were as platoon sergeant in Troop C, 4th Squadron, 7th Cavalry, and squadron assistant operations sergeant.

SFC Byron, his wife Maria, and their children, Bill and Carol, are now residing at 4306 Empire Street, Columbus.

Maintenance Easier Now

By 2nd Bn, 23rd Infantry PIO

The 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry has finally turned mechanized in every sense of the word.

This new system includes a checklist and guide which explains just how to check every part of the Armored Personnel Carriers (APC). The ability of the battalion to adapt itself to any given situation, and stay flexible, will be greatly enhanced by the emphasis placed on preventive maintenance.

Six Men Upped At 38th Artillery

By 38th Artillery PIO

On October 9, 1963, six men of Battery C, 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery, were told of their promotions to higher grades by Lt. Benson F. Landrum, Battery C commander.

Jess A. Cole, Jr., and Lincoln J. Mitchell were appointed to be corporal; Phil Grubb, Vernon Low, and Richard L. Smith were appointed to be Specialists (E4); and Richard C. Kodanko was appointed to be Private First Class.

The personnel of Battery C extend their congratulations to all these men and wish them the best.

Camera Was Best Friend While Stationed Overseas

MRS. PERVINICH

One of the better known inanimate traveling companions of most service personnel, especially for those stationed overseas, is the still camera.

Mrs. Fabian Pervinich, the wife of Sgt. Maj. Fabian Pervinich, 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion, highly prizes as a collection of slides taken in Europe which depict places of interest with centuries of sacred and secular history and folk lore.

After several Stateside tours of duty, including the good fortune of being stationed in their hometown of Chicago, Sgt. Pervinich was reassigned to Orleans, France, and it was from here that they periodically set out on trips to points of international interest.

"Since we were stationed in France we could not afford to miss seeing Paris and in particular the Eiffel Tower, the Cathedral of Notre Dame and the famous Wax Museum."

On a trip to Holland in 1958 the Pervinich's visited the World's Fair Grounds. "Madurodom, known widely as the "Miniature Village," in the Hague was certainly something memorable to see. Who hasn't come upon the Zieder Zee at some point in studying about the history of the Dutch. The people of Valendom, a port city, carry on their daily activities in the dress of their forefathers."

"More often than not we take the beauty of flowers for granted," states Mrs. Pervinich, "but I believe most people would find the beauty of a sea of multi-colored Tulips during the famed Tulip Festival breathtaking."

Other cities of interest visited outside of France included Kaiserlautern and Heidelberg, Germany and San Sebastian, Spain. Sandwiched in between these wonderful trips on the European continent Mrs. Pervinich was active in the Orleans Non-Commissioned Officers' Wives Club.

"While visiting Lourdes, the great religious shrine in France, we entered the Grotto, an underground chapel which can accommodate 20,000 people."

Together with visiting Rowen, where Joan of Arc was burned at the stake, the Pervinich's also managed to see Chartres and it's famous Rheims Cathedral, known for it's magnificent stained glass windows. Another enjoyable highlight of their tour in France was a visit to the Palace of Versailles.

Mrs. Pervinich says she has no specific hobby but enjoys sewing and reading very much.

After her husband's retirement, set for October 31, the Pervinich family, which includes three daughters, Carol, June and Nancy, will settle in Springfield, Ill.

Mrs. Pervinich, along with her family, will have a treasure house of unforgettable experiences.

Cook of the Week

"What's Cooking at Fort Benning," recently compiled cookbook by Ladies of the Big Indianhead, offers along with recipes an excellent glossary.

Since it is nearing the time when many taste-tempting pastries, cakes, and cookies will be baked, The Cook of the Week column suggests this table that can be used for measuring fruits and nuts.

1 pound dates about 2 cups

1 pound raisins, prunes, dried apricots, dried peaches, dried pears or dried figs measures about 3¼ to 3½ cups

1 pound dried apples measure about 5 cups

1 pound cut up candied fruit peel measures about 3 cups

1 pound shelled almonds or Brazil nuts measure about 3 cups

1 pound shelled walnuts or pecans measure about 4 cups

Hospitality Her New Specialty

At the October meeting of the 2nd Infantry Division Officers' Wives Club, Mrs. Lewington S. Ponder was selected to head the newly established Division Hospitality Committee.

Mrs. Ponder, the wife of Lt. Col. Ponder, division G-1 officer, has been an active member of the 2nd Division Wives Club and is a member of the Main Post Protestant Choir. She is also a Grey Lady.

Positioned as Division Hospitality Coordinator, Mrs. Ponder will be working with the established hospitality chairwomen of the various brigades and battalions within the 2nd Division.

Through this organization all incoming officers' wives will be personally welcomed to the division and will receive listings of the activities and facilities available to them here at Fort Benning.

New Parents Honored At 38th Artillery Social

By 38th Artillery PIO

Guests of the 38th Artillery at it's monthly social were Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Robert E. Coffin and Col. and Mrs. Burnside E. Huffman. Gen. Coffin, an assistant division commander and Col. Huffman, the Division Artillery commander, listened on as the party, held last Saturday evening, was highlighted by the presentation of baby cups and cannons to several members of the unit.

Baby cups were presented in honor of "new arrivals" to Lt. Col. and Mrs. Frank A. Chance, Jr., commanding officer of the 38th Artillery; Capt. and Mrs. William F. Doherty and Capt. and Mrs. Dudly Tademy. Col. Chance is the proud father of a baby girl while both Mrs. Doherty and Mrs. Tademy presented their husbands with sons.

Three members of the unit who received cannons in recognition of their departure were Capt. Paul S. Bloxom, Capt. Doherty, and Lt. Benson F. Landrum.

After the Cocktail hour, held in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers Open Mess, the party moved to the supper club to complete the evening with dining and dancing.

Ladies of 72nd Armor Have Monthly Coffee

The monthly coffee for the officers' wives of the 72nd Armor Battalion was held recently at the home of Mrs. Richard W. McKee. Assisting Mrs. McKee as hostesses were Mrs. Thomas J. McKitrick and Mrs. Robert J. Thompson.

A door prize of beautifully boxed stationery went to Mrs. Jerome J. Jurek for having a birthday during the month that was drawn from the hat.

During the business meeting, it was announced that the wives were to help sponsor the November luncheon for the 2nd Infantry Division Wives' Club. Mrs. McKee announced the beginning of new classes for Grey Ladies, Nurses' Aides and Staff Aides, which she will be teaching.

This was the last battalion coffee for Mrs. William A. Rusher. Our farewells, best wishes and thanks went to her for all the help she has given to the wives' group. After four years in the battalion, Capt. Rusher is being reassigned to the Division G-4 Section.

Mrs. Grady R. Leeman, a recent arrival, was welcomed by all the wives. She and Lt. Leeman came here from Fort Knox, Ky.

Anti-Tank Platoon Sgt. Promoted at 1st of 23rd

By 1st Bn., 23rd Infantry PIO

Promoted to his present rank recently was PSgt. Ecolia A. Dunn, Anti-Tank platoon sergeant. He is a member of Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

Ecolia Dunn, a native of Zebulon, N.C., and a graduate of North Carolina A & T College, entered the service in 1951 as a lieutenant after completion of Reserve Officer's Training. He then attended the Basic Infantry Officer's Course at Fort Benning.

The first assignment for Lt. Dunn was as training officer at Fort Jackson, S. C. In 1952 he joined the 24th Division in Japan as a Heavy Weapons platoon leader.

From 1953 to 1954, Lt. Dunn was the platoon leader for the 4.2 Mortar platoon with the 4th Infantry in Korea. The unit was, at that time, designated as a "back-up" force for the line troops prior to the end of the Korean War.

Dunn returned to the States and to Fort Jackson to take an administrative position as assistant S-3 officer.

He was discharged upon his ETS in August, 1954.

Ecolia A. Dunn reenlisted in the Army in 1955. This time as an enlisted man holding the rank of corporal. He was then assigned to Company H, 9th Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division in Fort Lewis, Wash.

From Fort Lewis he traveled to Fort Benning to attend Airborne Training. Upon completion of jump school he was assigned to Fort Bragg and Company D, 325th Airborne Infantry Division as section sergeant.

Korea was his next stop. He joined the 2nd Battle Group, 3rd Infantry, 7th Division, again as section sergeant.

One year later he was transferred to Fort Knox Training Center as a Trainfire Instructor. He remained at Fort Knox until he was sent to Baumholder, Germany as Chief of Survey with the Combat unit of the 16th Infantry.

In 1962 Dunn transferred to the 26th Infantry to return back to the States. When the "Blue Spaders" deactivated, he went to the 7th Infantry. He then transferred to the 23rd Infantry when the former unit moved to Germany this year.

PSgt. Dunn and his wife, Hattie Louise live at 58-A Arrowhead Road with their four children; Haskell, 15; Michael, 7; Melba, 6; and Cheryl, 4.

New Doctor For Hq. Co.

He is Capt. George Warren III. He joined the 2nd Infantry Division on September 14 after completing Army Medical Service School at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., on July 23.

Capt. Warren did his undergraduate work at Clemson (S. C.) University where he was graduated in 1958. He then attended the Medical College of South Carolina, Charleston, S. C., earning his degree last year. He interned at the Memphis (Tenn.) Baptist Memorial Hospital.

A general practitioner, he hopes to specialize in cardiology.

Both his father and late grandfather took up law, his grandfather having served in the South Carolina State Senate and his father in the State House of Representatives.

Capt. Warren's primary hobby is golf and he has had some success. While in high school in 1953, he was runner-up in the U. S. Golf Association's Junior Tournament at Tulsa, Okla. At Clemson in 1957, Capt. Warren was State Collegiate Champion.

17th Artillery Supply Sgt Reenlists for Another '3'

A participant of General of the Army Douglas MacArthur's daring Inchon Invasion and a first-hand witness of the Chinese Communist Forces intervention during the bitter Korean winter of 1950 volunteered his services to the Army for another three years on October 12.

SFC James J. Reeson, the supply sergeant in Headquarters Battery, 17th Artillery, was the first member of the battery to be reenlisted by it's recently promoted commanding officer, Lt. Hoyt D. Lofton, during a brief ceremony in the battery dayroom. On hand to witness the event was Sgt. Reeson's wife Marcella and their three children: Suzanne, 17; James, 15; and Cathy, 11.

A native of Dodgeville, Wis. he first entered the Army in August of 1941 and after completing his basic training at Camp Callen, Calif. was assigned to the 28th Field Artillery in Hawaii. During the next 41 months he served on the Pacific Islands of Chirstmas, Canton and Guam.

In May, 1945 he received his discharge from service following his return to the States. But three years later he returned to active duty at Fort Knox, Ky.

Shortly after the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, Sgt. Reesmon was assigned to the 17th Infantry Regiment, 7th Infantry Division and took an active part in the invasion at Inchon Harbor, located some 20 miles West of Seoul, in September, 1950.

Two months later the members of the 17th, along with Sgt. Reesmon, were sitting on the banks of the Yalu River looking into Manchuria, enjoying Thanksgiving dinner and thinking the war would shortly come to a close when everything broke loose.

Due to the overwhelming number of Chinese Communist forces, the 17th along with other Army and Marine units were forced to withdraw to Hungnam, located on the East coast of the hilly peninsula, and were evacuated by Navy transport ships back to Pusan.

The following month, after returning to the main line of resistance, Sgt. Reesmon was wounded and evacuated to Yokohama, Japan.

Since that time he has served a three year tour in Germany with the 43rd Armored Infantry Battalion, 2nd Armored Division and a second tour in Korea with the 7th Division in addition to various Stateside assignments.

He came to the "Indianhead" Division from Korea in March of 1960 and served with the 87th Infantry before being assigned to his present unit in November of that year.

Included among his service awards and decorations are the Purple Heart, the Good Conduct Medal and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Presently on orders for reassignment to Germany, Sgt. Reeson lives with his family at 2923 Tip Top Drive, Columbus.

'The Lark' Displays 2nd Division Talent

SP5 PETER TATISTCHEFF
Director for the production of "The Lark"

A small 2nd Infantry Division flag is placed outside the front door of the Fort Benning Little Theater recognizing the support and cooperation officers and men of this division have given the theater group's current production of "The Lark."

Jean Anouilh's drama about Joan of Arc opened at the Little Theater to capacity crowds Wednesday and performances are scheduled through Saturday night. Nine 2nd Division soldiers and the wife of the division's assistant commanding general occupy key roles in both the cast and production crew of Fort Benning's latest live theater attraction.

Mrs. John T. Corley, wife of assistant division commander Brig. Gen. Corley, is seen as the mother of Joan of Arc in the play which is set in 15th century France.

Directing the production is Sp5 Peter Tatistcheff, a member of the 2nd Division's Information Office.

The show's special lighting has been designed by PFC Peter G. Nyberg, who is an information specialist with the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry. His assistant, PFC Ken Goodman, is assigned to the same unit.

Six-Month Old Gray Fox Is Problem for 3rd Bde

By 3rd Brigade PIO

A matter for the 3rd Brigade S-2 Section was recently brought to the attention of Maj. Robert H. Hight, brigade S-2. The color was gray, the age was six months and the type, animal; he called it a gray fox.

Acquired from the Fish and Game Commission, the fox was snared in a steel trap near highway 103 on the Fort Benning Reservation. As no bones were broken, the commission kept the fox.

Maj. Hight, an expert on fox lore, accepted custody of the yellow-legged gray for safe conduct to the 3rd Brigade area. However, the problem of finding the fox a home at the brigade headquarters soon developed.

Maj. Hight turned the animal over to the care of the S-3 assistant, Capt. Clifton D. Lollar, and MSgt. Lawrence V. Hubbard for an immediate training program. Sgt. Hubbard accepted the young fox as soon as he learned it had been vaccinated for rabies and began a training program guaranteed to find success in young animals.

However, it wasn't until they gave up on the house breaking problem that they discovered the small, gray animal wouldn't eat. So what does one do with a young, gray fox?

NCO Reenlists For Six Years At Little Creek

While most of the staff was aboard the U.S.S. Monrovia, the nearly deserted Site Support Group and 2nd Brigade headquarters at Little Creek was the scene of the reenlistment of a 72nd Armor noncommissioned officer.

SFC Charles R. Greene, motor sergeant at Company A, 1st Battalion, was sworn to serve six more years by Maj. Ross E. Leety, commanding officer at Site Support Group. Also present at the informal ceremony were Maj. Charles O. Chisley II, Site Support S-4, and Sgt. Maj. James G. White.

Command Posts Change In the 38th's Company C

By 2nd Bn, 38th Infantry PIO

Since returning from the joint exercise, Swift Strike III, last August, the command structure of Company C, 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry has undergone a complete change.

Capt. John F. Santulli has taken command of the unit, replacing Lt. Roderick C. Martin who has moved to the battalion staff pending reassignment to the Panama Canal Zone.

The duties of company executive officer have passed from Lt. Hubert T. Fincher to Lt. J. D. Coleman. Lt. Fincher is now handling the battalion S-1 chores. .

The coming retirement of 1st Sgt. Charles Coxon brought a new "top kick" to "Charlie" Company. He is 1st Sgt. Lesco G. Loper; just returned from a tour of duty in Korea.

Capt. Santulli, also a recent returnee from the "Land of the Morning Calm," received his reserve commission in 1955 after graduation from St. Norbert College in Green Bay, Wis. His first assignment was in Germany as a platoon leader in the 66th Tank Battalion, 2nd Armored Division.

Following his return to the States he qualified as Army Aviator in both rotary and fixed wing aircraft and in 1961 attended the Infantry Officers Career Course here at Fort Benning. It was during this time Capt. Santulli received his Regular Army commission.

Lt. Coleman joined Company C just prior to Swift Strike III after his voluntary recall to active duty. A 1956 graduate of the University of Montana, he worked as a newspaper and radio news reporter and editorial writer before the resumption of his Army career.

He spent 10 years in the Army Reserve after serving a Regular Army tour between 1948 and 1952. During the Korean War he served with the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, making two combat jumps. Lt. Coleman was given a direct commission in 1958 while still a member of the Army Reserve.

Sgt. Coxon began his Army career in 1940, serving with the 149th Combat Engineers in World War II. During the Korean War he fought with the 25th Infantry Division and added the Combat Infantryman's Badge to his Purple Heart, Good Conduct Medal and theater service ribbons accumulated during two wars over a period of 21 years of active duty.

Entering the Army in 1942, Sgt. Loper first served with the 75th Coast Artillery in Alaska and later with the 489th and 103rd Infantry Divisions in Europe during World War II.

After a three year break in service, he reenlisted in 1948 and began a period of service with airborne units that was eventually to include the 11th, 2nd and 101st Divisions.

During the Korean War he also saw action with the 17th Airborne Regimental combat Team and made one combat jump.

Hq Battery Tops In 5th of 38th

By 38th Artillery PIO

The battery also ranks highest in the battalion in the Savings Bond Campaign.

Guard Duty Preparation Pays Off for W. Brown

By 38th Artillery PIO

Sp4 Willie Brown, senior switchboard operator for Battery A, 38th Artillery has been in the Army for two years. During this two years he has made supernumerary 16 times at Division Artillery guard mounts, the last five being in a row.

Sp4 Brown, from Wrens, Ga., has served with the 38th since he has been in the Army and considers it a real honor to make supernumerary, also he likes the idea of having a three-day pass and not having to walk guard when he wins.

Brown says there is no real secret for his successful guard mounts although self confidence is a big factor, not to mention that he spends about four hours preparing for guard. This entails spit shining his boots from top to bottom and having the rest of his uniform in perfect shape. He reviews the chain of command, code of conduct, and general orders. Brown never goes to guard mount without pencil and paper.

One of his honors and proudest moments is the letter of commendation from Division Artillery headquarters for making supernumerary so many times. Yes, Willie Brown is a sharp soldier.

PSgt. Kennedy Is First in NCO General Exams

By 2nd Bn, 22rd Infantry PIO

PSgt. Glenn A. Kennedy, Company C, 2nd Battalion, 22rd Infantry, was top man in the battalion on a recently conducted examination.

The examination, known as the Non-Commissioned Officer General Subjects Examination, covered maintenance, mines, communications, defensive tactics, map reading, leadership, weapons, Chemical, Biological and Radiological Warfare (CBR), military justice, field sanitation, offensive tactics and courtesy and customs of the service.

PSgt. Kennedy entered the Army after graduating from Mendenhall High School, Mendenhall, Miss., in 1953. A son of Mr. Richard A. Kennedy, he has been awarded the Good Conduct Medal, the Expert Infantryman's Badge, and the National Defense Medal.

He presently resides in Columbus Trailer Park with his wife, Elizabeth.

Best Mess Halls Receive Awards

The Best Mess Awards for the month of September at Sand Hill and Kelley Hill were made last week.

Winning the prize for the Sand Hill area was the Company C, 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor mess hall with a 95 percent rating. The mess halls of Headquarters Company, 3rd Brigade and 2nd Administration Company's Transient Mess tied for second with 90 percent.

At Kelley Hill, Headquarters Company, 2nd Aviation Battalion captured the award with 94 percent. It was followed closely by Headquarters Battery, 15th Artillery.

Veteran Intelligence Sgt Is Awarded 6th Chevron

By 1st Bn., 23rd Infantry IO

The chevrons of MSgt. were pinned on the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry Intelligence Sergeant in a promotion ceremony recently at the 2nd Division Headquarters.

Receiving the stripes w a s Walter E. Haralson. a native of Barnesville, Ga.

MSgt. Haralson enlisted in the Army in 1948 and reported to Fort Jackson for Basic Training. He was retained there after his training to act as cadre with the 11th Infantry Regiment.

In 1950 he shipped out to Korea, via Fort Lewis, Wash., and was a squad leader there for the following two years.

Upon completion of his Eastern tour, Haralson returned to the States and to Fort Jackson, once again, as cadre and small arms instructor.

1952 found the sergeant ordered to France to work with the Quartermaster Security unit. He subsequently moved to Frankfurt, Germany, and the 22nd Infantry Regiment, 4th Infantry Division.

Friedberg, Germany was his next stop, in 1954, and his assignment was with the 8th Infantry Regiment as platoon sergeant.

When the 3rd Infantry Division "Gyroed" to Europe, Sgt. Haralson was with them. In 1958 he joined the 2nd Battle group, 38th Infantry as Intelligence Sergeant. After this he returned to Germany to serve two years before rotating back to Fort Benning and the 23rd Infantry. He has been with the 1st Battalion for three years.

Doughboys Add Fort Eustis 'Wheels' to Shutout Roster

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Fort Bragg 'All-Americans' Are Saturday Night's Target

String of 5 Shutouts Highlights 20 Wins

Fort Benning's unbeaten Doughboys fought off an inspired Fort Eustis, Va., eleven in the first quarter Saturday night at Doughboy Stadium and then turned on the steam in romping to a 42-0 victory before 1,000 fans.

The Virginia team held the explosive Doughboys to a single tally in the first period coming on a blocked punt recovered in the Wheel end zone.

In copping its fifth consecutive shutout of the season and 20th victory in a row dating back to 1961, the blue and white clad Benning squad grabbed 46 yards in total yardage as compared to 24 for the once-beaten wheels.

Fort Benning took the lead early in the initial period when Wheel quarterback Ben Charles had an attempted punt blocked and recovered in the Eustis end zone by Doughboy center Carlton Waskey.

DeWayne Jeter then booted his first of six extra points and Fort Benning had a 7-0 lead.

With 6:10 remaining on the clock in the second quarter, an alert Doughboy defense recovered a Wheel fumble on the Fort Eustis 44-yard marker.

On the next play from scrimmage halfback Bobby Towns took off around left end, cut in and rambled all the way to paydirt.

With slightly more than two minutes remaining in the first half, Wheel quarterback Calvin Cox fired a pass down the middle which was intercepted by Pat Dye on the Doughboy 20 and returned 10 yards to the 30.

Workhorse Ron Quillen shot off right tackle, shook off two would-be-tacklers and galloped to the Eustis 22 where he was hauled down from the rear.

On the next play Hobby took a Tibbetts pitchout and dashed 22 yards for the score.

In the third stanza Charles lifted a punt to speedy Benning halfback Billy Williamson on the Eustis 41 and the 160-pounder returned it to the Wheel 32.

Three plays later "Blue" team quarterback Dave Sarette fired a strike to end Fred Murphy for a first down on the Eustis 16. Williamson then upped his seasons point production to 42 by shooting off tackle for the six pointer with 9:42 remaining on the scoreboard clock in the quarter.

The crowd got its biggest thrill late in the third period when Eustis took over on the Doughboy one-yard line with a first and goal situation following a pass interference play called in the end zone.

Benning's big defensive wall held for three downs however and on fourth down a Cox aerial was intercepted by Tibbetts four yards deep in the end zone.

The former Georgia Tech signal caller tucked the pigskin away and raced all the way to the Fort Eustis seven-yard stripe before he slipped and fell.

3-1 Record Holders 'Strong' Scouts Say

By Dave Braun

Fresh from a blazing 53-0 triumph over Fort Lee (Va.) last weekend, the Fort Bragg (N.C.) "Dragons" will be breathing fire Saturday when they invade Doughboy Stadium for an 8 p.m. tussle with Fort Benning's unbeaten Doughboys.

Downed only once this season, 18-6, by the Quantico (Va.) Marines in a game in which the Dragons committed three costly mistakes, the North Carolina team owns wins over Fort Devens (Mass.) and Fort Leonard Wood (Mo.) in addition to Fort Lee.

Fort Benning assistant coach, John O'Grady, a former University of Wyoming standout was on hand for the Bragg-Lee game at the 82nd Airborne Division last weekend and reports that the "All-Americans" "are in top condition."

"Fort Bragg, operating out of a winged-T with an unbalanced line rattled off 74 rushing and 24 passing plays against Fort Lee," said O'Grady. "This is a lot of plays from scrimmage for any team in a single game," he added.

The Fort Benning coach touts six-foot, 200-pound tailback Cary Rivers as the most feared of the Bragg backs. Rivers, a 21-year-old speedster, raced to three touchdowns against Fort Lee and added a single six pointer against Quantico in addition to having one TD called back.

Along with Rivers on the Dragon's probable starting lineup are Paul Flint, a quarterback with nine years service football experience and two years play at Penn State. He is six-foot and weighs 190.

Also in the backfield are expected starters slotback Chanks Thomas, a five-foot, 11-inch, 198-pounder with two years service ball experience and Al Rushatz, a five-foot, 11-inch, 200-pound fullback.

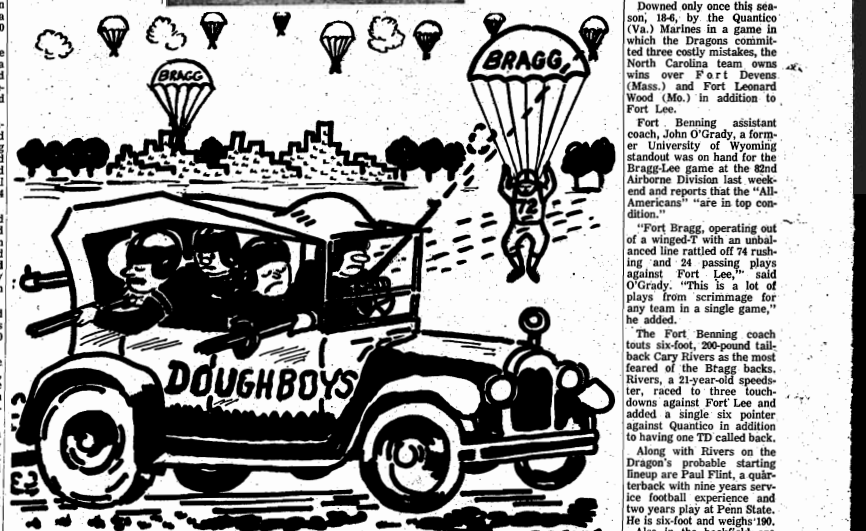
Rushatz, a 1962 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, was selected to the All-East squad and received honorable mention All-America by the Associated Press, United Press International and the coaches while playing for Army.

The Bragg ends shape up to be Billy Sims, a six-foot, three-inch, 195-pounder and Melvin Johnson at six-foot, five inches and 209 pounds. Sims is a former standout at Florida A&M where he won All-SIAC honors in 1959 while Johnson also played his collegiate football at Florida A&M.

Six-foot, two-inch, 220-pound Deroy Ferguson and six-foot, one-inch John F. Sinkovitz, head the list of tackles. Both are rugged competitors.

At the guard slots are slated John Godbolt, a five-foot, 11-inch, 205-pounder and Mike Casp. Godbolt, who has been a standout both offensively and defensively for the Dragons, is a 1960 graduate of Morris Brown College.

The center position will be manned by Tony Hudock, a six-foot, two-inch, 200-pounder from Bayen College. Hudock is playing his second season of military football.



'Untouchables' Gunning for Bragg

Longhorns Get the Edge Over Razorbacks; Southern Cal To Shade Ohio State By TD

By Cuartel Quarterback

Even Grantland Rice wouldn't have fared well had he tried to foresee last week's rash of upsets. We can at least claim some credit for being among the few to choose the Longhorns of Texas to derail the Oklahoma Sooner's "Title Town Express."

The real shocker was Florida's upset over high-ranked Alabama in a game that was more one-sided than the 10-6 score indicates. Army has credit due for its win over the rugged Penn State Nittany Lions. That one might mean that Paul Dietzel has began to fulfill his promise to the Knights of the Hudson.

This week's headliner has to be the unbeaten Texas Longhorn's battle with much maligned Arkansas. The Razorbacks apparently are not up to their usual par, but they can be counted on to play on even terms with any team in the nation. Texas is powerful. Arkansas is hungry. It will be a real battle.

TEXAS OVER ARKANSAS . . .The Longhorn's aren't about to let up after showing the nation their power last week with an ultra-impressive 28-7 shellacking of top-ranked Oklahoma. They will win but not in a run-away. Final score — 23-14.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA OVER OHIO STATE. . .The Trojans weren't picked to be national champions for no reason. They are capable and anxious. They will win by a touchdown.

GEORGIA TECH OVER AUBURN. . .This one is shaky. The Tigers have the SEC's best backfield, but Billy Lothridge rates a slight edge over Jimmy Sidle as a money-quarterback. Both are potential All - America candidates. Tech may break loose and beat the Tigers badly, but from here it looks like a 9-7 ball game.

PENN STATE OVER SYRACUSE. . .This is hope more than anything else. The Lions are too good to play dead after last week's loss to Army. They should come up fighting and prove against Syracuse that they have one of the nation's finest teams.

Pete Dawkins to Start for Bragg

In a late report from The Infantry Center Special Services Office the name Pete Dawkins has been added to the Fort Bragg starting lineup for Saturday night's clash at Doughboy Stadium.

Dawkins was winner of the Heisman Trophy during his senior year at the military academy where he captained the "Black Knights" to their win over the Naval Academy middiies.

In that same year Dawkin's was picked as everybody's All-America halfback choice.

His athletic prowess not only runs along the football lines as he showed during his stay in England as a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford by becoming one of the top Rugby players at the School.

WASHINGTON OVER STANFORD. . .The Indians can't keep up with this year's fast edition of the Huskies. Washington will win by 15.

MINNESOTA OVER ILLINOIS. . .The Illini have been playing over their heads this season. They'll get their comeuppance against the Gophers. Look for a high-scoring ballgame.

MISSISSIPPI STATE OVER HOUSTON. . .State's Bulldogs are enjoying a banner year. They won't let Houston spoil the fun. They should win by ten points.

The outcome of other games should be as follows:

Alabama over Tennessee
Clemson over Duke
LSU over Kentucky
Air Force over Maryland
Florida over Vanderbilt
Pittsburgh over West Virginia
Miami (Fla.) over Georgia
Northwestern over Miami (Ohio)
Nebraska over Kansas State
Army over Wake Forest
Michigan over Purdue

Between the Sidelines

By Ted Williamson

If upsets are what make football the great sport it is, then last Saturday was one of football's finest days, as upsets proved to be the rule rather than the exception.

No section of the country escaped from the unexpected victories, and the only team that seemed to be safe from upset going into late Saturday afternoon was Pitt's Panthers, who were idle.

Perhaps the biggest of all the upsets was Florida's 10 to 6 win over Alabama. The Gator's showed little respect for the Crimson Tide's number 3 ranked machine, and even less for Joe Namath's passing, snatching several of the 'Bama quarterback's aerials and thus containing Alabama's offense.

Elsewhere around the country, high ranked teams bit the dust with amazing regularity. Unheralded Southern Methodist got the show started Friday night as they dumped Navy from the ranks of the unbeaten. This was the same team that inflicted Air Force's first loss last week.

Saturday's first bomb was dropped in the East, where Army upended Penn State, 10 to 7. Another mild upset saw Yale drop Columbia in an Ivy League contest, 19 to 7.

In the Midwest, Notre Dame's Fightin' Irish supplied the big upset, sending Southern Cal's defending NCAA champions down to their second loss of the season, 17 to 14. Illinois and Michigan, who have been shoved around quite a bit in the past few seasons, tied Ohio State and Michigan State respectively to add confusion to the '63 Big Ten race.

Iowa State's win over Kansas also came as a surprise, as did the Air Force's 17 to 13 victory over highly regarded Nebraska, however, the Cornhuskers figured to have more than their hands full.

The game of the week in Dallas was won by Texas, 28 to 7 over Oklahoma, but only the margin of victory came as a surprise, as the two teams were rated about even going into that game.

And on the West Coast, California's Bears, led by junior quarterback Craig Morton, surprised Duke's previously unbeaten Blue Devils with a 22 to 22 tie.

Last week, after nominating Oklahoma for the number one spot in our weekly rating, I left myself a loophole by saying that things could be different after Saturday, and they certainly are. By virtue of their most convincing victory over Oklahoma, Texas must certainly be ranked number one. The rest trail along as follows.

1. Texas (4-0)
2. Wisconsin (3-0)
3. Pittsburgh (3-0)
4. Northwestern (3 - 1)
5. Oklahoma (2-1)
6. Mississippi (2 - 0 -1)
7. Navy (3-1)
8. Louisiana State (3 -1)
9. North Carolina State (4 - 0)
10. Alabama (3-1)

Next week's card will once again be filled with some prospective barn-burners. In the East, Penn State takes on Syracuse at Syracuse, while Pittsburgh returns to action against West Virginia.

Down along the Atlantic coast and across in to the heart of Dixie, North Carolina vs. North Carolina State, Duke vs. Clemson and Georgia Tech against Auburn shape up to be the games to watch.

Fall Horse Show

Marne Rd. Hunt Club To Host Equestrians

Both Western and English-style horsemanship will be seen during the Fall Horse Show at the Fort Benning Hunt Club Sunday (Oct. 27).

Some 16 classes are programmed in the english and Western-style for the day long event which commences at 9:30 a.m. at the Marne Road equestrian center.

Col. George S. Beatty Jr. will judge the English style events with SFC Oscar Milton the western judge.

Returning champions include Edith Ann Landrum, winner of the Divided English Pleasure, Equitation and Bareback Open and Jim Wood, winner of the Western Pleasure, Pole Bending and Barrel Race events.

Sue Holbrook, who will be equally prominent in the English equitation and jump events, will be defending her crown in the first half of the Divided English Pleasure Open along with Donna Davis who holds the championship in the Advanced Jumping Open.

In the 12 and under category Sara Bussy, winner of the Children's Pony Class; John Woods, Western Pleasure winner, and Eleanor Bussy, English Pleasure winner; will be returning to the fold. Two newcomers to Fort Benning horsemanship are Gregg Franklin who will be riding a new thoroughbred and Randy Rude bringing the highest steed to the competition, 17 hands high.

Both civilian and military personnel are invited to take part in the competition and entry blanks may be obtained by mailing a card to Entries Secretary, Fort Benning Hunt Club, P. O. Box 1928, Fort Benning, Ga.

Spectators are cordially invited and ample parking and seating space will be available.

Scheduled events include competition in Lead Line for 5-year-olds and under, Hunting Seat Horsemanship for 8-year-olds and under, Horsemanship for 10-year-olds and under, Western Horsemanship for 13-year-olds and under, Junior Hunter under Saddle for 17-year-olds and under, Junior Working Hunter for 17-year-olds and under, and Hunting Seat Horsemanship for 14-17-year-olds.

Western Horsemanship for all, Regular Hunter Under Saddle, Regular Working Hunter for 17-year-olds and under, and Hunting Seat Horsemanship for 14-17-year-olds.

PISTOL SHOOT

The Fort Benning Pistol Club will resume its monthly shoots next weekend.

A three-gun aggregate plus a 90-shot match with the 90-shot match with the service pistol and four team events will be held Saturday and Sunday (Oct. 26 and 27) according to Mr. Tom Kirkman, club secretary.

Boxing Smoker Set for Oct. 25 At Briant Wells

The Briant Wells Field House will host a post-wide boxing smoker next Friday at 7:30 p.m., with 10 bouts carded.

Largest participation is expected from the 197th Infantry Brigade and the 4th Student Battalion which has been holding weekly smokers for the past two months.

SANDY KOUFAX

Richardson Trains 16 For Games

Biathlon is a combination of skiing and shooting in which a competitor races on cross-country skis over a 20 kilometer (12½ mile) course, stopping at intervals to fire five rounds of ammunition at each of four targets varying in range from 100 to 250 meters.

The men are currently undergoing a series of strenuous physical fitness tests and an extensive shooting program in preparation for the Olympic tryouts. They will first compete in local meets, with the winners of these events proceeding to the Biathlon Training Clinic at Red Lodge, Mont., for the final Olympic tryouts in December.

Surgeon Says

Protect Yourself From Influenza

By Capt. J. M. Leahey, MC

Influenza is a debilitating disease that frequently leaves the affected individual vulnerable to serious secondary infection, usually pneumonia.

We are approaching the season in which influenza and pneumonia take their heaviest toll (November through March). Approximately 80 per cent of the influenza and pneumonia deaths usually occur during this five month period. There is a great deal of evidence accumulated in support of the statement that immunization against influenza can materially reduce the incidence of influenza cases and thereby reduce both influenza and pneumonia deaths.

In accordance with AR 40-562, polyvalent influenza vaccine will be administered during October to all military personnel on active duty with the exception of those who have had this immunization during the previous eleven months, or who have a well documented history of allergy to eggs or chickens. In addition the vaccine will be made available to all military dependents above the age of six years on a voluntary basis. All military personnel will receive their immunization through their regular dispensaries. Dependents may receive the vaccine at the Dependents' Immunization Clinic in Building 323 during October on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 8 to 10 a.m. and from to 3 p.m.

On Monday and Wednesday the hours are from 8 to 10 a.m. and from 1 to 4:30 p.m.

Although information from the U. S. Public Health officials in Atlanta indicates that they do not expect any severe epidemic of influenza in Georgia this year, it is important to note that the nature of the disease is such that immunization, if it is to be all effective, must be received in advance of an epidemic situation. Once an epidemic is established the influenza vaccine will not be of significant value.

Therefore, in addition to reminding all military personnel on active duty of the requirement which they have to receive the influenza vaccine, we also wish to point out the definite benefit which they receive by doing so. We would also recommend that all military dependents in the following categories receive routine immunization:

Persons who suffer from any of the following conditions:

1) Heart disease
2) High blood pressure
3) Lung conditions such as asthma and tuberculosis
4) Sugar diabetes
b. Pregnant women.

All eligible dependents above age six who do not fit any of the above categories, but who would still desire the "flu" vaccine, may receive it on a voluntary basis by reporting to the Dependents' Immunization Clinic during the previously mentioned hours.

Greek Korean War Vet Was Attached to 3rd Div.

In 1953, the young career Infantry officer was part of the Greek Expeditionary Force which guarded in main Seoul-Pyengyang highway in Korea's famous Kaesong Corridor, the traditional invasion route into South Korea for centuries.

After being commissioned in the 1950, the captain attended the Greek Infantry School for a year and in 1951 was assigned as a platoon leader and commanding officer in the 567th Infantry Battalion.

After his return from Korea in 1955, he served successively as mobilization officer of the 424th Mobilization Center and as platoon leader in the 511th Infantry Battalion.

When he was chosen by his government for further training at The Infantry School, Capt. Paraskewopoluos was serving as a company commander in the 616th Infantry Battalion.

Journey to South Pole Begins for 7 Soldiers

FORT EUSTIS, Va. (ANF') — "Antarctica here we come," was the byword of 14 Army officers and enlisted men from Fort Eustis, Va., as they began the first leg of a long journey to the South Polar regions.

This year's trip marks the eighth successive season that Army men from Fort Eustis have traveled to the southernmost point of the earth.

Returning with them will be the three UH-1B Iroquois helicopters that made Army and aviation history last February as the first rotary-winged aircraft to land at the South Pole.

"This year we will continue our support of the Navy Operation DEEP FREEZE and the National Science Foundation projects," said Maj. P. M. Cagle, commanding officer of the group.

There will be 64 scientific projects under study in Antarctica this year ranging from a joint United States-Soviet cosmic ray study to the physiology of the Weddel seal. The Fort Eustis men and the three helicopters will be used mostly for support of aerial mapping surveys and geological studies.

Your Dental Health

Bright Future Ahead For Oral Specialists

By Capt. Robert Cross

Let's look into the future of dentistry and make some guesses about what the years ahead will offer.

Certainly, the not too distant future will see the end of dental decay, at least for those people interested enough to practice known preventative procedures. Tooth decay will then be treated as most all diseases are treated now, will undoubtedly change a great deal, with the consumption of artificial foods being more common.

Most people will buy an insurance policy for dentistry, as they now do for medical problems. This will bring new horizons into the practice of dentistry, and the specialists in the field will increase in percentage. Orthodontics, or tooth straightening, and periodontics, or the elimination of pyorrhea, will be the most common specialists.

Oral surgeons will still be needed to correct congenital abnormalities, and undoubtedly will still take out teeth due to crowding conditions and to and to treat injuries.

What about the "family dentist" of today? His main job will be, as it should be now, to educate his patients in prevention of disease. He will be able to determine, in many instances, whether a child will be a candidate for orthodontics, and again, in many instances, can institute early treatment to prevent maximum treatment.

The X-ray will become an even more important weapon in treating the patient, for the examining family dentist will need them to determine bone growth, tooth placement and increased study will allow the dentist to gain more knowledge from each picture. We will be able to stop looking for cavities, and pay more attention to other conditions.

More and more money will be spent on esthetic dentistry, and the family dentist will provide the patient with more crown and bridge appliances. All in all, the many aspects of today's dentistry will change most in the direction of increased patient education. Our patients will be wiser in the ways of dentistry, and will preserve their mouths for an anticipated long life.

TOPS AT 10th . . . Lt. Col. Patrick M. Neilond (L), commanding officer of the 2nd Battalion (Composite), 10th Artillery, 197th Infantry Brigade, presents a three day pass to Sp4 Richard M. Lund, a member of Battery D, the battalion Soldier-of-the-Month. Lund was selected by a board comprised of the battalion sergeants major and first sergeants. He gained the title because of his military appearance, military bearing, and general knowledge of current and military events.

Absentee Voting Record Praised

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Military District of Washington (MDW) received an American Heritage Foundation Award for its outstanding record of encouraging absentee voting by its soldiers during 1962.

Seventy percent of those eligible voted, topping all Army major commands.

Maj. Gen. Phillip C. Wehle, MDW's commanding general, received the award.

Lt. Col. McCarren Takes Over at 69th

Lt. Col. Edwin Joseph McCarren is the new 4th Battalion, 69th Armor commander.

He succeeds Lt. Col. William T. Van Atten, who is now assigned in the G-1 Section of the Central Army Group (CENTAG) in Germany.

Col. McCarren comes to Fort Benning from Korea where he was assigned in the G-3 Section, I Corps Group. A native of Kittanning, Pa., he first reported to The Infantry Center in 1944 to attend OCS. A graduate of Bryant College of Rhode Island, he brings 21 years of military experience to the tankers.

In his opening remarks at the change of command ceremonies, he stressed the importance of The Infantry School's job. As Armormen, he said he realized the challenge the men of the 69th have in providing support for the accomplishment of this mission. He noted that the 69th contacts not only personnel of other branches of the Army but also personnel of other free world armies.

Col. McCarren remarked that only a little over a year ago the battalion was organized and became a member of the 197th Infantry Brigade. From zero strength, a fully organized and outfitted tank battalion has materialized.

After the formal ceremonies, guests were ready to enjoy refreshments. Yet, more action was to come. The 1st Battalion of the 58th Infantry (Mechanical) had decided to stage a show of their own. After the last note of the tankers' official ceremony had ended, the Infantry unit trigered into action a skit they had prepared as a good-bye memento for Col. Van Atten. Four armored personnel carriers came roaring up to the reviewing stand. Each bore a placard saying, "Van Attens we of the 58th Inf salute you."

The final note was provided when an Indian came running from an APC chasing what appeared to be one of Custer's Calvarymen from the battle of the "Little Big Horn."

The two units are neighbors in the Harmony Church area.

In recognition for his outstanding performance of duty Col. Van Atten received a Certificate of Achievement. The award, signed by the post commander, Maj. Gen. C.W. G. Rich, cited his organizational and command ability in bringing the tank battalion to its present day status.

"Vitesse et Puissance" (speed and power) is the unit motto.

Astronauts Presented Top Award

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The annual Robert J. Collier Trophy for achievement in aeronautics and astronautics goes this year to the original seven-man team of U.S. astronauts.

The 1963 trophy is scheduled for presentation to the group by President Kennedy at the White House.

The Collier Trophy was originated in 1912 and is permanently displayed in the Smithsonian Institute.

The first winner of the trophy was Glenn H. Curtis for his work in developing the hydroplane.

Last year the four principal X-15 test pilots received the award.

Columbus High Sets First PTA Meeting

At 7:30 p.m. Monday, the Columbus High School P.T.A. will hold the first meeting of the school year.

This meeting is for the parents of sophomores, juniors and seniors. A separate meeting at the Freshman Center will be held Oct. 8th.

W. Herman Dollar, the principal, will address the group and explain the Back-to-School schedule. Refreshments will be served by the Quarterback Club.

There will be an opportunity to join the P.T.A.

OC McClintock's Travels Boast Unusual Settings

BY PVT. HERBERT KATZ

There seems to be little connection between Helsinki, Finland, during World War II; Vietnam during the fall of Dien Bien Phu; Cairo, Egypt, at the time King Farouk was deposed, and underwater archaeology off the coast of Lebanon.

Yet all these events and places form the unique background of Candidate John McClintock of 53rd Officer Candidate Company.

OC McClintock's travels stem from the work of his father, a state department diplomat, currently U. S. Ambassador to Argentina.

McClintock was born 22 years ago in Helsinki, Finland, during the Russo-Finnish War. According to the candidate, Russian bombings of Helsinki were a frequent occurrence. During World War II the U. S. legation in Helsinki was the only American legation in Hitler's Europe.

In subsequent years Mc-Clintock accompanied his father on various assignments throughout the world. He was in Cairo, Egypt, when a then obscure Egyptian colonel named Nasser took control of the country.

Southeast Asia, one of today's strife torn areas, contributed its share of experiences for McClintock. On a hunting trip to Northern Cambodia, he killed a Gaur, better known as a water buffalo, one of the largest and deadliest game animals in the world.

Prior to returning to the United States for schooling at St. Pauls Prep School, Concord, N. H., McClintock was in Lebanon, where his father was American Ambassador.

He became interested in archeological work in that area, the cradle of western civilization. Almost all archeological work there has been on or beneath the earth's surface.

On the coast of Lebanon, in the eastern Mediterranean, are the ports of Tyre, Sidon and Byblos. These ancient harbors served both the Phoenicians and the Romans. The latter using them to export grain to their empire.

Ship Wrecks

McClintock believed that after 6,000 years of shipping had passed through the treacherous waters, numerous wrecks would be strewn on the sea's bottom. It is common for persons to pick up gold and silver coins that washed up in the surf.

Air Assault Troops Eat Like 'Kings'

CAMP OLIVER, Ga. — Proving that the American soldier belongs to the best-fed Army in the world, the approximately 1,000 Sky Soldiers of the 11th Air Assault Division who participated in test exercise SKY SOLDIER I here consumed more than 280 pounds of bread, 290 pounds of meat and 690 pounds of chicken in one day during a recent administrative break.

When the Sky Soldiers were out beating the bush for aggressors or are mounting an air assault against enemy positions, they carry and eat C-rations. During their administrative breaks, though they came back to camp and were fed hot meals in one of the six mess halls operated in the Camp Oliver area. A typical menu in camp read like this:

BREAKFAST: Chilled orange juice, hot oat meal or dry cereal, eggs to order, bacon, coffee cake, toast, butter, jelly, hot tea, coffee, and fresh milk.

DINNER: Pea soup, crackers, beef pot roast, meat loaf, mashed potatoes, beets, French fried egg plant, lettuce and endive salad with French dressing, bread, butter, ice cream with scotch sauce, iced tea, coffee, and fresh milk.

Action took place during Exercise SKY SOLDIER I.

Magicians To Appear At Hospital

Approximately 17 members and guests of the Georgia Magic Club, Ring 9 of the International Brotherhood of Magicians, will visit Fort Benning today.

Plans for the group include bedside magic tricks for Martin Army Hospital patients during the afternoon, an appearance at Service Club No. 1 at 7:30 p.m., and the Supper Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess at 10 p.m.

Among the magicians is Arnold Drennen, an attorney from Birmingham, Ala., president of the International Brotherhood.

Other members include Greystroke, a retired magician who lives in Phenix City, "Granny" Harris of Atlanta, a magician and retired WAC, and Calvin Toole, of Doraville, Ga., president of the Georgia Magic Club and an instructor at Georgia Institute of Technology in Atlanta.

Host for the visitors will be Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Arthur J. Estes, vice president of the Georgia Magic Club.

From the King's Household To Fort Benning Is A Long Way

By SSgt. Betty Farmer

The 515th Transportation Company (Light Truck) at Fort Benning has a first sergeant who has guarded the King's household in Great Britain, helped to defend England's east coast in 1940, and served as body guard to the Duke of Windsor.

First Sgt. Francis H. Norgrove entered the U. S. Army Aug. 16, 1948 at West Palm Beach, Fla., but Army life was nothing new.

Born in Condover, Shrewsbury, Salop, England, he served in the British armed forces from 1939 to 1947.

As a member of the Brigade of Guards, Household Cavalry, Norgrove carried out assignments at Buckingham Palace. As a company sergeant, he trained British troops in the field several months of each year. After the training, the troops became guards for the Royal Family.

World War II found him in the first line of defense of his country's eastern coastline, threatened with invasion by Germany.

At the end of the war, he was assigned to duty with Field Marshal Lord Maitland Wilson. This assignment gave him his first look at the United States.

Lord Wilson was British representative on the combined Chiefs of Staff in Washington. Norgrove served as a member of the field marshal's staff from 1945 until Lord Wilson retired in 1947.

Norgrove left the British armed forces to become personal body guard and head chauffeur for the Duke and Duckess of Windsor.

Lord Wilson, who had been an instructor to the Duke while still the Prince of Wales, introduced Norgrove to Windsor.

Working for the Duke and Duchess meant living at the Waldorf Astoria in New York City, managing a fleet of 10 automobiles and traveling throughout the world.

Norgrove worked for the Windsors until 1948. After a brief attempt to settle down to civilian life, he joined the U.S. Army.

Basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C., was followed by duty with the VIP (Very Important Person) Motor Pool at Frankfurt, Germany.

Accustomed to driving royalty, he became chauffeur for Gen. Lucius D. Clay and often substituted as driver for visiting dignitaries.

His next assignment was with the State Department and he became driver and enlisted aide to the U.S. high commissioner to Germany. In this capacity he worked, in turn, for Commissioners John J. McCloy, Walter Donelly and Dr. James D. Conant.

Norgrove advanced in rank from private first class to master sergeant while in this position.

Sgt. Norgrove came to Fort Benning from Germany and serves as first sergeant of the 666th Transportation Company. After a tour of duty in Korea in 1962, he returned to post and his present assignment.

Sgt. and Mrs. Norgrove have two daughters, Annamary, 19, and Lorraine, 5.

Freedom Letter Contest Deadline Drawing Near

NEW YORK (AFPS)—The vice president in charge of awards administration of the 1963 Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge letter writing contest, Ken Wells II, advises potential entrants that the deadline for the contest is Nov. 1, 1963.

Wells, who expects the number of military letter writers to top last year's approximately 10,000, reminded that the 1963 theme is "What Can I Do For Freedom?"

In addition to the competition limited to the military, the Foundation will give awards in categories that include: Advertising, Books, Cartoons, Community Programs, Economic Education, Editorials and Essays.

Also in Letters-to-Editors, Motion Pictures, Nonprofit Publications, Photographs with Captions, Public Addresses and Radio Programs.

Other categories include: Sermons, Television Programs, Youth Campfire Programs, Youth Essays, Photographs and General Americana.

The George Washington Award will be made to the most outstanding individual contribution during 1963 toward the understanding and propagation of the American way of life.

$100 Reward Offered For the 'Alligator Man'

Aggressor forces participating in test exercise SKY SOLDIER I, the first in a series of tests scheduled for the 11th Air Assault Division, offered a $100 for the capture of the commander of one of the Infantry companies of the 1st Air Assault Brigade's task force.

Capt. Harry N. Ball, commanding officer of Co. C, 3d Battalion, 187th Infantry, made himself quite unpopular with the aggressors during the first phases of the exercise.

Called the "alligator man" because of his extensive knowledge of and capability in handling reptiles, Capt. Ball, when informed of the price on his head said, "Well, I don't know about me, but Co. C is sure worth a hundred bucks — that is if they can get close to us."

However, for many aggressors, it can be said that they perhaps were too close to the Infantrymen of Co. C. Since SKY SOLDIER I began some six weeks ago, Capt. Ball and his men played havoc with the aggressor forces. Dropping from the sky in helicopters or rappeling behind enemy positions from choppers hovering a hundred feet above the ground, the men of Co. C were a constant thorn in the side of the enemy.

According to squad leader Sgt. Warner J. Johnson, "About the only way any aggressor will collect that $100 is to lure the captain away with a couple of alligators."

Capt. Ball's only other comment was, "We're looking forward to even closer contact with the enemy as the exercise progresses and they're welcome to try anything . . . once."

Sky Soldier I Seen By Gen. Sweeney

FORT STEWART, Ga. — Gen. Walter Sweeney, commanding general of the Tactical Air Command, Langley Air Force Base, Va., watched troops from the 3rd Battalion, 187th Infantry makes an air assault on an aggressor force six miles northeast of here today during Phase Delta, the last phase of test exercise SKY SOLDIER I, being conducted by the 11th Air Assault Division.

Gen. Sweeney also watched the Army's largest aircraft, the Caribou, make landings on a hastily-prepared landing strip. This aircraft is capable of staying in the field with the combat troops and can land and take off from very short, unimproved landing fields.

Six Caribous from the 10th Air Transport Brigade brought in Company B to reinforce Companies A, C and D which had landed 30 minutes earlier in UH-1B Iroquois, CH-47 Chinooks, and CH-37 Mojave helicopters, two miles east of the airstrip.

Pathfinders Sgt. Seferino L. Hernandez and PFC Larry G. Young of Headquarters Company, 11th Aviation Group, headed by 2d Lt. Robert E. Duncan, prepared a landing strip for the Caribous as they touched down. The first four men who left each aircraft formed a perimeter to protect the others as they double-timed into the heavily-wooded area. The Sky Soldiers began digging in after securing the area from the aggressors.

Accompanying the four-star Air Force general were Maj. Gen. C. W. G. Rich, test director and commanding general of The Infantry Center, Brig. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general of the 11th Air Assault Division, Brig. Gen. Robert R. Williams, chief of the Test Evaluation Control (TEC) Group, Col. George P. Seneff, commanding officer of the 11th Aviation Group, Col. Delbert L. Bristol, commanding officer of the 10th Air Transport Brigade, Lt. Col. Peter E. Kelley, operations officer for the 11th Air Assault Division and Lt. Col. John B. Stockton, commanding officer of the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion.

Army Helping To Train Civil Defense Units

WASHINGTON (ANF) — U.S. Army instructors are currently training civil defense personnel to monitor for radiation within public fallout shelters and at fallout monitoring stations in the event of nuclear emergency.

The U.S. Continental Army Command (USCONARC) in cooperation with the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Civil Defense, will train at least 20,000 monitors and the expanding program may eventually include some 100,000.

Army instructors are working toward the ultimate goal of having four trained monitors for each of the planned 270,000 public shelter areas and 150,000 monitoring stations. Approximately 115 Army members have been graduated from radiological monitoring instructor's courses given at civil defense schools, and are now conducting the eight-hour monitoring course in various areas of the country during off-duty time.

USCONARC will remain in charge of the program, cooperating with local, state, regional, and national organizations, until enough civilian instructors are trained to take over.

11th AAD To Go Airborne In November

Selected personnel from the 11th Air Assault Division will be using 30-foot nylon parachutes to go along with their 120-foot lengths of nylon rappelling ropes when they start airborne training at The Infantry School Airborne Department Nov. 1.

The Sky Soldiers who are now scheduled to attend jump school are engaged in a rigorous physical training program and will take physical fitness tests Oct. 21 - 31.

Each week, beginning Nov. 1, 100 men from the division will attend jump training.

The 3rd Battalion, 187th Infantry; Battery B, 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery; and Company A, 127th Engineer Battalion are expected to be fully airborne qualified by the middle of December. Persons who are dis-qualified will be re-assigned to other units within the division.

Pathfinder Teams, signal communications men, and brigade and division headquarters personnel will also attend the school in November. More than 1,000 qualified airborne spaces will be filled before Christmas.

Once this training has been completed, the division will be capable of either air landings or parachute landings or a combination of the two.

Retirement

TIC Honors Deputy Chief, Comptroller

The Infantry Center will bid farewell to two colonels Monday during a retirement ceremony to be held on Chapel Field at 4 p.m.

Col. Adrian L. Hoebeke deputy post commander of The Infantry Center, and Col. John Bisbing, comptroller for The Center, will watch the honor guard from Company A, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, march in revue while The Infantry Center Band provides the music.

Col. Hoebeke, a 1933 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, came to Fort Benning in April, 1963, after serving as chief of staff, U. S. Army, Hawaii. Before assuming his present assignment in September, he served as com-

The 515th Transportation Company (Light Truck) winged its way to Germany Tuesday as part of the mammoth operation "Big Lift."

The unit left Lawson Field aboard three DC-6 transport planes at two hour intervals, the first group leaving at 7 a.m., the second at 9 and the last at 11 a.m.

Wives, families and sweethearts of the approximately 155 men of the 515th were at Lawson to have coffee and doughnuts with the troops before bidding them farewell, as were Lt. Col. Harry F. Boyle, commander of the 39th Transportation Battalion, parent unit of the Germany-bound group, and his staff.

To add military color to the festivities, The Infantry Center Band was on hand to play for the departing soldiers, its main selection being "Auf Wiedersehen."

The 515th, commanded by 1st Lt. Rene J. Emond, will join forces with the 2nd Armored Division from Fort Hood, Tex., and other U.S.-based units in the 14,000-man airlift to Europe, which Need Quarters?

A new "Military Housing" section has been added to the classified ad section of the Bayonet this week. It should be of benefit to military personnel seeking quarters. Readers are encouraged to list rental property in this section.

PRACTICE JUMPS . . . Three riders who will be participating in this week-end's Fall Horse Show at the Marne Road Hunt Club demonstrate some of the styles which can be seen at the free admission event. Sue Holbrook (L) riding Sinjohn, a 6-year-old hunter; Nancy Guernsey (C) up on Sinjohn, clear their bar spreads. The Sunup on Chakhari, and Mickey Greenwell on Sinjohn, clear their bar spreads. The Sunday show begins at 9:30 a.m. There will be adequate seating, plenty of refreshments, parking space and a chance for personnel of Fort Benning and guests from the Columbus area to see high standard horsemanship.

Best Woman Shooter Joins USAMTU Here

The Army's best woman shooter has been assigned to the Marksmanship Training Unit.

Spc Barbara Hile, who won her third straight national title at the high power matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, in August, has been transferred to USAMTU from the Sixth Army Rifle Team at Fort Ord, Calif.

Barbara created a stir in military shooting circles three years ago when she appeared at the All-Army Rifle championships as a competitor.

Her fellow-shooters soon discovered that she was extremely serious about the shooting game.

She listened intently to the Army's finest marksmen, practiced like a 'Trojan' and steadfastly pursued her personal goal of becoming a top-notch rifle shot.

Her scores in those early matches were respectable and brought her the U.S. Woman's championship in 1961. She improved enough the following year to retain her crown and be accepted by the Sixth Army team as a firing member.

Her perseverance payed dividends this summer when she joined the elite circle of the "250 Club" and earned her final points toward the Distinguished Rifle Shot Badge, highest individual honor a shooter can obtain in the United States. Thus becoming the first woman in the Army to obtain this distinction and the second in the United States.

In 1962, she again took the national title with a score of 775 out of a possible 800 points, breaking her own record of 770 points.

She earned her membership in the exclusive "250 Club" at Fort Niagara, N.Y., while training for the National Matches with the U.S. National Trophy Rifle Group. The Club is composed of shooters who have fired a perfect score of 250 over the National Match Course for rifle.

This exacting course of fire consists of ten shots, standing at 200 yards; 10 shots rapid fire, standing to sitting or kneeling, 200 yards; 10 shots rapid fire standing to prone at 300 yards, and 20 shots at 600 yards.

The off-hand and 600-yard stages have a one minute per round time limit. The other stages consist of 10 rounds in 50 seconds at 200 yards and 60 seconds at 300.

Barbara entered the Women's Army Corps in October, 1955. She took her basic training at Fort McClellan, Ala., and following a year of overseas duty, was assigned to Fort Mason, Calif., where she remained as a supply clerk until her assignment to the Sixth Army Marksmanship Detachment.

Recognition of her outstanding accomplishments was emphasized by an on-the-spot promotion to specialist five by the commanding general of the U.S. Continental Army Command, Gen. John K. Waters — at the awards ceremony at Camp Perry.

U.N. Day Proclamation Issued by the President

WHEREAS the United Nations symbolizes man's eternal quest for enduring peace with justice, and provides us with our most promising means for achieving that high purpose; and

WHEREAS the United Nations has, on numerous occasions during its brief life, clearly and forcefully demonstrated its value as a vital diplomatic forum in times of international crises; and

WHEREAS the United Nations, through its participation in programs for social and economic development, has provided significant material assistance and leadership throughout the world in efforts to raise standards of life; and

WHEREAS the United Nations actively sponsors and advances the cause of human rights; and

WHEREAS the United Nations serves the interests of this Nation by promoting humanitarian principles which we share; and

WHEREAS citizens of the United States should recognize the aims and accomplishments of the United Nations; and

WHEREAS the General Assembly of the United Nations has resolved that October twenty - four, the anniversary of the coming into force of the United Nations Charter, should be dedicated each year to making known the purposes, principles, and accomplishments of the United Nations;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, JOHN F. KENNEDY, President of the United States of America, do hereby urge the citizens of this Nation to observe Thursday, October 24, 1963, as United Nations Day by means of community programs which will demonstrate their faith in the United Nations and contribute to a better understanding of its aims, problems, and accomplishments.

I also call upon the officials of the Federal and State Governments and upon local officials to encourage citizen groups and agencies of the press, radio, television, and motion pictures to engage in appropriate observance of United Nations Day throughout the land in cooperation with the United States Committee for the United Nations and other organizations.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington this twentieth day of April in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and sixty-three, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and eighty-seventh.

is designed to see how quickly a large armored force can move from the United States to combat readiness in Europe.

Upon arrival in Germany, the 515th, like all other units involved in the exercise, moved from the airfields to huge Army depots to pick up equipment already pre - positioned for its use.

The unit is expected to return in late November.

Housing Shortage Is Revealed by Survey

Post officials have released results of a partial housing survey which shows an increase of 1,846 military families since February with an attendant increase of only 81 adequate housing units.

The figures are based on a comparison of the recent survey (as of Sept. 30) and a similar survey conducted in February, 1963, the month that the new 11th Air Assault Division was formed.

The survey also shows that approximately 5,900 military families are living in units considered "inadequate" by Army criteria. This is an increase of some 1,100 units over the February survey.

Why Inadequate

In determining adequacy of housing, the Army considers such points as distance from the post, rental costs in relation to housing allowances, overall construction and design, and acceptability of the residential area in which the unit is located.

Officials point out, however, that some military families elect to live in houses considered "inadequate" by Army standards. They also emphasize that figures reflected in the survey cannot be accepted as conclusive, but serve instead as a general guide to the overall seriousness of the housing shortage.

The need for adequate housing for incoming military families has been felt since the buildup of the 11th Air Assault Division began last spring. Recently, Columbus realtors established a central reference office for off - post housing as an emergency step to meet the needs of some 800-1,000 families due to arrive in Columbus within the next few weeks.

The impact of these incoming families on the housing situation is not reflected in the Sept. 30 survey.

Already, this newly-formed office has placed more than 100 families.

Other figures revealed in the survey follow:

With a strength of 42,589 military personnel, Fort Benning has 18,995 families, 13,114 of which live in adequate housing units; 2,984 of which are on-post, and 10,130 off-post.

Fort Benning military personnel rent 5,098 housing units and own 2,910. Of the 10,130 families living off-post, 2,122 live out of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning area and do not desire to move.

The adequate housing deficit then amounts to 5,881 family units, which includes 928 units out of the area and which have occupants who desire to move to the Fort Benning area; 353 inadequate military units, 3,405 inadequate units now being rented, and 1,105 inadequate units owned by military personnel.

18 Years Ago--World Grew Weary of War

Oct. 24, 1945—the world was weary of war. An almost unanimous feeling swept the world —something must be done to prevent another great holocaust. The United Nations was formed.

Two years later the General Assembly of that body passed a resolution which recommended that the anniversary of that day "be devoted to making known to the people of the world the aims and achievements of the United Nations. U. N. Day was born.

It is fitting on this day for each of us to reflect on the achievements of this organization which was formed in hope 18 years ago. Since that time there has been no other great world war. The U. N. has worked to find solutions to political problems throughout the world.

It is not necessary to rehash each instance, rather it seems sufficient to point out that the greatest recommendation for the organization is that it seeks to correct the cause for political turmoil. That cause is hunger, want, oppression — or in a single word — dissatisfaction.

The U. N. seeks to feed the hungry, to teach the ignorant and to take pressure off the oppressed. In some cases success is evident. In some cases failure seems to prevail, but the great point remains that the U. N. is working. It works for US. The world is still weary of war. Editor

About Communism

Russian Religion Is An Affair of the State

QUESTION—What is the status of priests in Soviet Russia?

ANSWER—Priests of the Russian Orthodox Church, in limited numbers, are permitted to perform religious services, but they are required to support the government's policies and programs.

Metropolitan Sergii, head of the Orthodox Church, announced his Church's complete loyalty to the Soviet Government and hailed Stalin, the author of many bloody purges, as a "divinely appointed leader."

An Orthodox priest is handicapped in his religious duties by the fact that his parish may be vacated at the whim of the local soviet (council).

In order to secure a place of worship, at least 20 parishioners must organize as a "religious association" and register with the local soviet, which may then grant them a contract to establish a church. But as these contracts have to be renewed from time to time, they may be dropped at the option of the local soviet.

Besides the clergy of the Russian Orthodox Church, spiritual leaders of other religious organizations — including Muslims, Jews, and non-Orthodox Christian sects — continue to perform religious rites in the Soviet Union.

They are, however, few in number, and in performing their duties they must avoid even the slightest criticism of the Soviet regime's actions.

The Judge Says . . .

By 1st Lt. Donald L. Rethart

Few people can continually measure up to the required legal standards when driving an automobile. If damage is caused to another while a person is acting other than as a "reasonable and prudent man" would act, he will be held pecuniarily liable. The result can be financial ruin — for a lifetime.

Perhaps never again, will such a person be able to own a car, a house or possess a license to drive. All present and future savings may be taken to pay for such damages. To avoid these unfortunate possibilities it is especially important for everyone to have adequate and reliable automobile insurance.

Standard insurance policies usually provide coverage for bodily injury liability, property damage liability, medical payments, comprehensive damage, collision damage and uninsured motorist damage.

Collision and comprehensive coverage, while affording protection to the owner's investment in his car, does not protect him from the claims of third parties or from him from of the financial responsibility laws. If a person must choose between collision and-or comprehensive coverage and bodily injury and property damage liability coverage, the wisest chise is ALWAYS bodily injury and property damage liability coverage.

This statement is not made out of charitable motives. If a person's car is wrecked, lost or stolen, the most he can lose is his investment in that car. But if a person through negligence kills or seriously injures another with his car, he can become subject to a claim of 25, 50 or even $100,000.

If this claim cannot be paid out of his insurance, then such person, aside from the fact that he'll never be able to own unencumbered property again, may lose his driver's license permanently, and may also lose every bit of property he owns, to satisfy the judgment against him.

Most financial responsibility laws are satisfied with a policy which contains the following limits: Bodily injury — $10,000 each person; $20,000 each occurrence and property damage—$5,000. However, this should be considered a minimum for any serviceman. Court awards are often much higher. Therefore, especially since there is usually very little difference in premium payments, a policy with $25,000 —$50,000 or $100,000 bodily injury liability coverage is recommended

The Soldiers Advocate Division is available to advise or counsel on insurance selection.

'Charity Is for Squares'

By Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Arthur J. Estes

"Charity, That's for squares!"

Frankly, that quote (which you have probably heard) is a "hook" to catch your attention until I have time to give you my pitch. Evidently it served its purpose for you are still with me. Come on now. Give me five more brief paragraphs before you quit reading.

Fort Benning, along with civilian and other military communities all over the country, is currently engaged in a charity fund drive which is designed to furnish financial help and assistance to a large and varied number of helping organizations. At the same time its intent is to place a minimum and fair burden on those of us who want to give, from our limited means, to those organizations which are doing what we should like to do by ourselves if we were able.

Fort Benning's effort is called "Community Activities Association Fund Drive" and is planned to help both on and off-post persons (military and civilian) who are temporarily in need of financial aid or professional guidance. The end goal is to assist them to obtain or regain their rightful positions as independent members of the community. Such help to persons residing off-post is undertaken in cooperation with the local civilian "United Givers" organization.

Missions or tasks such as this are commonly called "charity," which is one of the many misunderstood and mis-used words in our language. Although it derives from a distinguished source it has come to be used almost in derision. So that some persons in need say, "I don't need charity. I don't want charity. Don't bother me!

Again, these and others feel (although they may not say it aloud) that, "The guy that gets caught up in the charity racket is a sucker! Only squares give anything unless they have to." I dare you to think with me as to the true meaning of 'charity" and why it is one of the more important words in our Judeo-Christian vocabulary.

"Webster's New World Dictionary of the American Language" gives as its number one definition of this word, ". . ., the love of God for man or of man for his fellow men." Actually, you see, charity is not the act of giving at all. It is the reason why men and women do give. I give to others what I could very well use for myself and my family. Why? Because God loves me and has shown His love to me in ways multiplied beyond my ability to count or even to know. When I give I am merely reflecting on to or sharing with others the love of God. In fact, the only way I can really attempt to repay God for His "charity" shown toward me is by showing "charity" to others.

Therefore, it seems to me that you and I have a very basic responsibility to give body, substance, flesh and bones to "charity". My opportunity to give is at hand in the CAA Fund Drive. I'll proudly wear my UG pin and humbly thank God for the opportunity.

IOBC No. 4 received the award the previous day.

The emphasis is on college. This past weekend, Fort Benning enjoyed having a few of its Army Brats return for a visit from college.

Jim Stacey, a graduate of Columbus High, came back for the weekend from The Citadel. A very good friend of his, Richard Hodges, returned for his first visit from the University of Alabama. Richard also was graduated from Columbus.

Taking Alabama's rival, the University of Georgia is honored with a Benningite — John Swearengin. He brought his "Big Brother" and a girl with him.

Going way down south, we see that Nancy Williams came back from Florida State University. We enjoyed seeing all of these old friends.

This is the time when all of the seniors are filling out their applications for business schools, colleges, and universities.

Before choosing "the" school, many students visit the campus's of various institutions. Not long ago, Cathy Jones and Anita Braun visited Florida State. Cathy seems to be very impressed with what she saw.

Thursday, Kathy Aure left for Virginia. Her plans are for visiting Mary Baldwin and Roanoke College, along with a few all-male colleges on the side-line. She expects to be back on Sunday.

Speaking of Kathy Aure, last Friday, she spent the day as the managing editor for the "Columbus Ledger." As you may know, last week was National Newspaper Week. Two other 'Benningites' represented were: Jack Guernsey, sports editor; Sandy Partain, city editor.

Thursday and Friday nights found many a teen-ager at "The Lark", a production by the "Little Theater Group" on post. Among them were: Linda Taft, Terri Setaro, Kathy Gueymard, and Kathy Aure.

Saturday night I was quite surprised to see so many Baker and Pacelli students at the Columbus-Valdosta football game. Even Paul Ferguson, an excellent quarterback for Baker was there.

After the game, the "mixed crowd" swamped over to Columbus High for the Open-House. Bonnie Nelson and her date made quite a hit with the Columbusites in the dance they did. It was quite difficult, but performed very nicely. A lot of credit should be given to the "Army Brats" when they adjust themselves to fit in their new surroundings.

Let me remind you again that the J.A.D.A. Halloween Dance is tomorrow night. This is your chance boys, for the girls to pay the way instead of you. So if you haven't been asked, put on that gift of charm you were given and "hook" some poor defenseless girl into asking you to the party.

Plans Are Underway For Distaff Dance

Plans are now underway for an annual event at Fort Benning — the Distaff dinner dance. All proceeds from the dance are donated to the Foundation Fellowship Assistance Fund of the Army Distaff Home in Washington, D. C., which houses widows and dependents of deceased Army officers.

Chairman of this year's dance, "The Playboy Ball," is Mrs. John Norton. The affair is scheduled for Nov. 15 at the Main Officers' Open Mess and is one formal dance even the men will enjoy! There will be real live "Bunnies" and even livlier dancing to popular Bob DeMarco's band. Entertainment has been planned by Mrs. John Coriey.

Special tickets are available at one dollar each for a mink stole to be given away to some very lucky person the night of the dance. (The winner, however, does not have to be present to win.) Many valuable door prizes, donated by local merchants, will be given away to those present at the dance.

Tickets in the shape of a key may be purchased from Mrs. Ralph Dalton (545-1008), Mrs. George Beatty (545-2806) or from Mrs. R. C. Shaw (545-2900). Cost of the tickets is only $3 per person and since a limited number are available, an early purchase is suggested to insure admittance. A large quantity of tickets have already been sold.

Unit Members Organize Club

The organization of a new addition to one of the 11th Air Assault Division's attached units, the 10th Air Transport Brigade, has brought still another organization.

This new addition is the 44th Air Transport Battalion Headquarters and a result of its birth is the organization of a monthly coffee brought into existence by the wives of the officers in this battalion.

Plans for these meetings were made at a recent meeting in the home of Mrs. Frank L. Shaw, wife of the battalion commander. Coffee was served and the ladies scheduled a regular monthly coffee to be held on the first Tuesday of each month in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The battalion wives will hold their first meeting Oct. 1 with Mrs. Carl C. Tidmore, Mrs. William M. Lewis, and Mrs. Robert A. Price acting as hostesses.

TEC GROUP WIVES TALK IT OVER Discussing Their Next Meeting Are (L to R) Mrs. J. E. Townes Jr., Mrs. Strange And Mrs. Williams.

TEC Group Wives Club Holds Meet

The wives of officers assigned to the Test Evaluation and Control Group (TEC) met for coffee recently in the Supper Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Mrs. Robert R. Williams, wife of Brig. Gen Williams, chief of the TEC group, welcomed the ladies including many newcomers who arrived since the group's organization early this year.

Mrs. Williams introduced Mrs. Hubert E. Strange and Mrs. Ralph L. Dalton. On behalf of all the ladies present Mrs. Williams thanked Mrs. William R. Tuck for supervising arrangements for the coffee.

Among the ladies present at the coffee table, which was decorated with an arrangement of fall flowers, were Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Strange, Mrs. Tuck and Mrs. Dalton.

Layettes to be completed by volunteer seamstresses for distribution to new mothers at Martin Army Hospital were passed out to many ladies.

The next TEC group coffee is scheduled for January, with individual group coffees planned for the intervening months.

Three Infantry Center Soldiers Take on Gigantic Cleaning Job

By PFC Joseph Moore

Three soldiers of the Infantry Center's Maintenance Section are engaged in the annual cleaning of Fort Benning's gasoline tankers.

MSgt. Edward E. Sanderson, non-commissioned officer in charge of the operation, is assisted by Sp5 Sidney O. Williamson and Pvt. Daniel L. Thompson.

By doing the work themselves, Sgt. Sanderson estimates the three are saving the Army about $40-$45 per tanker. Under civilian contract, the cost for cleaning a tanker is $50.

Another advantage in having Fort Benning personnel do the job is that it can be done the same day it is requested. This could not be done with off-post contractors who must bid for the work. Also there would be a minimum 20-day waiting period.

The large savings is realized because the three soldiers have regular duty assignments and were trained on the job by Sgt. Sanderson, who has had more than 15 years of experience in this type of work.

"Safety must be the keynote," Sgt. Sanderson said. "A recently emptied tanker is more dangerous than a full one because of fumes left in the tank."

"We always begin by electrically grounding the vehicles we are working with. Then we take a reading with the Explosometer, a device which measures the gas density in the area."

In stressing the safety aspect, the three-man crew has a hand cranked mine respirator and masks to be used inside the tanker. The men wear rubber boots and gloves and the tools they work with have bronze facings which reduce the chance of producing sparks.

When working inside the 5,000-gallon tankers, the men wear leather harnesses with attached rescue ropes similar to those used in mine operations.

"If the men did not wear rubber gloves," Sgt. Sanderson explained, "They could easily get blistered by the high octane fuel mixtures." The rubber boots also reduce the chance of creating a spark.

The actual cleaning operation involves scrubbing the interior of the tank with a cleaning solvent and flushing it out with kerosene or some other combustible liquid. At times steam, hot and cold water and a scouring compound are used, depending on how clean the tank must be.

A tanker which has been hauling regular motor vehicle gasoline and is being switched to carry high octane aviation fuel must be thoroughly cleaned and inspected before it can be used.

When transferring from aviation fuel to regular gasoline the cleaning process need not be so complete.

Once a tanker is discovered to have chipped or cracked paint inside the tank, it is usually sent to Ordnance Depot at Anniston, Ala., where it is sand blasted and repainted with a highly stable gasoline resistant paint.

Space 'Jerks' May Help 'Bubble Colony Beasts'

SAN DIEGO (AFPS) — NASA has a 190 - page book entitled "Apollo Terminology," for the squares who aren't hep to space language.

A sample of the space talk follows:

Blowoff — Not a loudmouth, but a separation of a missile part by explosive force for recovery purposes.

Bubble Colony — This is not a colony of bubbles, but a colony of persons placed on the moon or other spatial bodies provided with individual or group capsules to protect them from "hostile" environments in space.

Doghouse — Not what you are thinking at all. It's a blister that houses an instrument on the otherwise smooth skin of a rocket.

Huge Birthday Party Tomorrow For Famous 'Indianhead' Division

46th Year Celebration

The most auspicious event on the 2nd Infantry Division's 46th birthday anniversary celebration tomorow is a review for the entire division and the public, scheduled to be held at 9:30 a.m. on Wetherby Field, named for World War II Medal of Honor winner John C. Wetherby.

Sheer pageantry is the best description for the scene Saturday morning as one company in each "Second to None" battalion will march, making a total of 3,000 men on the field. The best-drilling company in the Division will also participate in Saturday's review.

During this review the biggest secret at division headquarters will be exploded, for announcement will be made of the newly chosen Career Soldier of the Year for 1964. The new Soldier of the Year will succeed PSgt. Melvin M. Hanson, S-2 operations sergeant at Headquarters, 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry, who has held the honor twice.

On hand with the three "Indianhead" generals, Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, Brig. Gen. John T. Corley and Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, and their wives, will be a cluster of distinguished visitors, both military and civilian.

Among guests of honor will be Mr. Bill Creech from San Antonio, Tex., who was recently elected national president of the 2nd Division Association. Also sitting on the reviewing stand will be the colonel of the 6th Marine Regiment from Camp LeJune, N.C., which was part of the 2nd Division when it was constiuted in 1917 at Bourmont, France.

Following the elaborate review on Wetherby Field, all "Second to None" units will open their doors, hatches and tent flaps for exploration by families, guests and the public at large. Displays of division might will appear at individual division companies.

The long list of other Organization Day festivities include: a flag football game on Knight Field at 3 p.m.; the commanding general's reception at the Main Officer's Open Mess at 5:30 p.m., followed by a dinner and dance; and the noncommissioned officer's dinner dance in the Harmony Church Field House at 9 p.m.

We Stand Together

UNSURPASSED RECORD

On this 26th Day of October, we of the 2d Infantry Division celebrate our 46th Anniversary. We reflect together on the past record of this great Division; from the bitter trench warfare of World War I characterized by the battle of Belleau Woods; to the amphibious landings on the beach of St. Laurent-Sur-Mer, France in World War II with the ensuing battle of the Hedge rows; and finally, the valiant defense of the Naktong River line, and the epic battles of Kuna-Ri, Chipyong and Wonju in Korea.

We stand together today with an immense feeling of pride in our achievements over the past year; the frequent alerts, the Cuban Crisis, ROTAPLAN, reorganization to ROAD, and SWIFT STRIKE III, all add up to a record of activity unsurpassed by any Army Division today.

I want to congratulate each member of the 2d for a job well done over the past year.

We look to the future confident that — We are ready to answer any call, accomplish any mission and meet any challenge — "SECOND TO NONE".

2nd Med Bn Marks 46th Anniversary

By 2d Medical Bn. PIO

The 2d Medical Battalion celebrated its 46th birthday on October 19, as the families and guests of its members gathered for an afternoon of fun and festivities in the Fort Benning area. This day had been set aside to pay respect to the creation of this unit. A brief view into the history of the 2d Medical Battalion will illustrate why the men feel a great deal of pride for their unit.

Although organized in 1917, the 2nd Medical Battalion was then called the 2nd Sanitary Trains and was located at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. In 1921, the unit was designated the 2nd Medical Battalion has received numerous awards and campaign streamers for action in both global wars as well as for action in Korea. Today, the battalion functions within Support Command and provides medical service to the 2nd Infantry Division.

Beginning at eight o'clock Saturday morning, the more energetic men kicked off the day with inter-company athletics. By eleven o'clock, with some of their energy expanded, and with a definite appetite developed, time out was taken to allow everyone to collect his family or guest and proceed to the picnic area. Here, an enjoyable buffet style lunch was prepared and served by the mess personnel of Headquarters and Support Company under the supervision of Mess Sgt. Lyle. Steaks, chicken, hotdogs and hamburgers provided enough selections so that no one could be guilty of complaint.

The guests for dinner included such noted division personnel as the assistant division commanders, Brig. Gen. John T. Corley and Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin; and Col. W. D. Dice, the division surgeon.

Upon completion of the dinner meal, a cartoon carnival was held for the kids as the inter-company athletic competition continued with a fine trophy awaiting the winner. Feeding and wheelbarrow races along with volleyball games built up the rivalry so that the competition was hot and heavy as the last event started. In that event, consisting of company skits, Company "C" outshone its rivals with their impressions of a day at battalion headquarters. This extra spurt of energy allowed them to win the necessary points to obtain the trophy.

The afternoon was also highlighted by a surprise announcement of the promotion of Sgt. Milton R. Marlow, Company A, to E-7.

The day's activities came to a close around five o'clock as a weary but happy group of people made their way home. Although not a spectacular celebration, the 2d Medical Battalion's organization day was a definite success with an air of congeniality and well meaning dominating the scene.

1964 Career Soldier To Be Named Tomorrow

The 1964 "Career Soldier of the Year" will be announced tomorrow at the Organization Day review.

The new 2nd Infantry Division's "best" will succeed P. Sgt. Melvin M. Hanson, the 1963 winner.

The "Career Soldier of the Year" is selected by a division-level board from candidates representing each major unit and the general and special staff sections. The board is composed of an assistant division commander, the inspector general, the division sergeant major and sergeants major from the G-1, G-2, G-3, and G-4 sections.

Criteria for selection includes record of service, education, decoration and awards, appearance and military bearing, instructional ability, physical fitness, knowledge of customs and traditions of the Army, general military subjects and the history of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Celebration Visitors Will Be Well Fed

Who says visitors at the 2nd Infantry Division's birthday review tomorrow won't be well fed?

A turkey dinner with all the trimmings, dressing, giblet gravy, mashed potatoes, buttered green beans, crisp relish tray, hot rolls, butter, coffee, tea, milk and chilled peaches, can be had at any "Indianhead" Division mess hall for 65 cents — if you're a guest of a division soldier for the celebration.

Families and friends will be invited by units to dine at the mess halls on this ordinary Army fare between noon and 2 p.m.

For kiddies, the price of a turkey dinner drops almost by a half to 35 cents.

In 1917, when the 2nd was organized and thrown into the bitter trench warfare of World War I, such elegant meals were unobtainable, although the American Army has always put forth an honest effort to keep the troops well victualed on holidays even under the most trying circumstances.

Front line troops of the Korean War and World War II could usually expect a turkey meal for Christmas and Thanksgiving even if gobbled cold between bursting shellfire.

On October 26 the "Indianhead" Division brings to the table turkey, and peace and quiet.

Transportation Scheduled For 2nd Division Birthday

Express transportation to the 2nd Infantry Division's 46th anniversary celebration at Fort Benning tomorrow will be supplied by the Howard Bus Lines with two special runs.

The first leaves the main station in Columbus, the Howard Bus Terminal, making one stop at Baker Village Shopping Center before arrival at Wetherby Field, scene of the ceremonies.

The special bus will make the trip every 20 minutes from 8 a.m. to noon. The fare is the normal 25 cents.

The other newly-scheduled bus departs the main post bus terminal at Fort Benning every 15 minutes for Wetherby Field, stopping once at the Custer Terrace Post Exchange, 10 minutes from the depot.

The fare on this route is 15 cents from 8 a.m. till noon.

Wetherby Field, where the "Indianhead" Division will be marking its birthday with a massive review, is located at the juncture of Custer and Cossets Roads on the reservation.

The public is invited to attend the activities on the parade field.

NCO's Celebrate 46th Birthday With Big Dance

By Bob de Camara

A dinner-dance for noncommissioned officers of the 2nd Infantry Division celebrating the division's 46th birthday on October 26 will be held at the Harmony Church Field House.

All division soldiers holding the rank E-5 or higher are invited to attend. The dinner-dance is being held in conjunction with a similar activity for officers at the Main Officers Open Mess.

NCO's at Harmony Church will have their own set of very important people as guests at the affair. The sergeant major of Fort Benning, Sgt. Maj. Welborne Callahan, has been welcomed.

From Camp LeJeune, N. C., the sergeant major of the 6th Marine Regiment, one of the two Marine units that went into making up the 2nd Division in World War I, will be at Fort Benning for the morning's review and, later, the dinner-dance.

On October 26, 1917 in Bourmont, France, the "Indianhead" Division was formed of Marine and Army units. In addition to the 5th and 6th Marine Regiments, the Army contributed the 9th and 23rd Infantries, artillery battalions, support elements and separate battalions such as the division's famed 2nd Engineers.

A set of guests are expected to stop by the NCO banquet from the officers club where they will be dining as guests of the commanding general of the 2nd Division, Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea, and the assistant division commanders, Brig. Gen. John T. Corley and Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin.

Mr. Bill Creech president of the division's "Indianhead" Association, is another expected guest. Mr. Creech was recently elected to head the association at the division reunion in San Antonio, Tex.

Dress for the occasion will be the blue uniform or "class A" green uniform. The party will also be for the ladies. Seating arrangements are by unit.

The affair will lead off with a social hour, followed by dinner and a dance. The evening is sponsored by the Noncommissioned Officers Open Mess and by the division sergeants major.

The social hour is set from 7 to 8 p.m. The dance will end at 1 a.m.

'Crusaders' Birthday Held Last Saturday

While preparations have been under way for tomorrow's Organization Day celebration for the 2nd "Indianhead" Division, several of the units making up the division have been holding prior observances of their own.

One such unit is the 1st Tank Battalion, 72nd Armor which traces its history under the present name back to October 15, 1948, although scrutiny of the armor's history discloses its parent unit was formed on January 14, 1943.

Last Saturday on Knight Field, armormen of the 72nd, introduced to the field by the "Second to None's" marching band, passed in mounted review, a somewhat rare occurrence. Before the stands of high-ranking officers, the 72nd's Patton tanks rumbled by for close inspection.

The relationship of Lt. Col. Arthur J. Lochrie's armor battalion to the 2nd Division proved a good business deal in the Korean War, the battalion's first combat action with the "Second to None."

Battle Record

During World War I the 2nd Military Police Co. distinguished itself during combat in Lorraine, Aisne, Lle de France, Aisne-Marne, St. Michiel and Meuse-Argonne.

A Source of Pride TO YOUR DIVISION

On the occasion of the 2nd Infantry Division Organization Day I want to extend congratulations and best wishes on behalf of all personnel of the United States Army Infantry Center and the United States Army Infantry School.

The illustrious service the 2nd Infantry Division has rendered throughout its history is typified by the division's outstanding day to day performance. The readiness and combat proficiency of the "Second to None" Division were evident in the recent Swift Strike Exercise. The officers and men of the 2nd Division are a credit and a source of pride to the entire Army.

I am confident that the inevitable record of the 2nd Infantry Division will be sustained in its future endeavors.

C. W. G. RICH

2ND DIVISION MONUMENT . . . Four wreaths honoring the dead of three wars from the 2nd Infantry Division lie at the base of the "Flaming Sword" monument in Washington, D.C. The wreaths represent the dead from World War I, World War II, the Korean War and members of French, Netherlands and Thai units who gave their lives while fighting in Korea as part of the "Indianhead" Division.
