PROUD MOTHER HOLDS '65 BABY
Mrs. Hardy and Daughter

Post's First 1965 Baby Given Royal Treatment

Little Rebecca Hardy, Fort Benning's first baby of 1965, maintained a fast growing family tradition when she put in her appearance at 2:08 a.m. Jan. 1 at Martin Army Hospital.

The daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. Elmer Hardy, Rebecca is the third member of her immediate family to be born at Martin Hospital.

Her six-year-old brother, James, was born during her parents' previous tour on the post, while brother Shon was born here 15 months ago. She has an older brother, Edward, who is 10.

Rebecca weighed five

Gen. Hurlbut Tours Post

Maj. Gen. Oren E. Hurlbut, deputy chief of staff for logistics at the U. S. Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Va., ended a two-day briefing on training activities here Tuesday.

After viewing facilities of The Infantry School building and discussing training programs Tuesday morning, Gen. Hurlbut toured the post in the afternoon.

Monday he visited the commanding general of The Infantry Center, Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, and the 2nd Infantry Division.

DA Extends Application For Loans

Are you parents suffering from a manday known as "college-bill-itus"? If so, it's still not too late to apply for a Army Educational Assistance Loan.

With only a small number of applications received, the Department of the Army has extended the 1965 deadline for applying for a loan until January 29.

Forty non-interest bearing loans for a four-year period are offered annually to eligible depedents of army personnel on full-time active duty. The student may attend the college of his choice so long as it is an accredited

Key Personnel Changes Affect Post's Hierarchy

Four changes in key personnel assignments have been made at Fort Benning.

Col. Sydney E. Sacerdote has assumed the duties of Infantry Center inspector general. Col. Sacerdote was formerly assistant for special studies to the assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

Col. James O. Jones has assumed the duties of director, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department of the school. He was formerly G-1 of The Infantry Center.

Lt. Col. Maurice W. Kendall has been assigned as G-1 to replace Col. Jones. Col. Kendall was formerly chairman of the attack committee, Brigade and Operations Department.

Lt. Col. Ernest John Lansing is the new secretary of the general staff, Infantry Center. He was formerly with the Weapons Department of the school.

Col. Sacerdote, a veteran artilleryman, was chief of the Brigade and Battalion Operations Department associate group from 1960 to 1963 before he departed for a one-year tour in Saudi Arabia. He returned to Fort Benning in the summer of 1964.

Col. Sacerdote brings more than 30 years military experience to his new assignment.

Col. Jones came to Fort Benning from Korea where he commanded the 1st Battle Group, 17th Infantry.

Among his many assignments is a two-year tour as training director for Iranian Armed Forces, World War II duty in the Pacific Theater with the 81st Infantry Division and instructor in logistics at The Infantry

Canadian Black Watch Slate Two Post Shows

The renowned Pipes and Drums, 1st Bn., the Black Watch (Royal Highland Regiment) of Canada, will give performances here at 1:30 and 8 p.m. tomorrow.

The first performance will be at Stilwell Field and the second at the Sand Hill Service Club. The public is invited.

The Highland Dancers will perform with the 36 enlisted men and officer of the Pipes and Drums.

The group recently performed at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas, Tex., and at the Sesquicentennial in New Orleans. They are stopping at Fort Benning on the return to their home station in Camp Cagetown, New Brunswick.

The Black Watch dates to 1725 when certain Scottish leaders formed a special corps from among the people to maintain order after the rebellion of 1715.

Four companies, composed of Highland gentlemen accompanied by their own servants and authorized to carry arms, were formed. They were referred to as the Black Watch, or guard, in comparison with the red coated English regulars.

During World War I, the regiment earned 26 battle honors and in World War II, 211 honors and awards were presented to personnel of the unit.

Your UG Support

It gives me great pleasure to commend all personnel of this installation for their excellent support of the 1965 United Givers fund drive.

As a result of your diligent efforts and personal enthusiasm, Fort Benning surpassed the goal announced for this year's campaign. Without such support, many valuable services rendered to the military community by United Givers agencies would have to be curtailed.

Your generous response to the recently completed fund drive is but another example of the cooperation displayed by Fort Benning personnel in community endeavors. We should all take great pride in this achievement.

Retired EM May Apply For Recall

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Retired Army enlisted personnel who are not disabled may now apply for recall to active duty under a new program announced by the Department of the Army.

Known as the Application for Recall Program, the plan will permit the merging of individual desires to return to active duty with Army requirements for trained personnel in a specific MOS.

Retired enlisted personnel, grade E-5 or above, may apply for recall providing they are under 50 years of age, have less than 27 years of active Federal service, and can meet retention physical standards. A report of current physical examination must accompany the application.

Detailed information pertaining to the program is published in AR 601-250.

INFANTRY Magazine

Ambushes, Street Fighting Among Featured Articles

Current Soviet Army doctrine on combat in built-up areas is outlined by Lt. Col. Charles G. FitzGerald in "Combat in Cities," the featured article of the January-February issue of INFANTRY Magazine.

The article also tells of the basic differences between Soviet doctrine and U.S. doctrine in street fighting. Among the basic differences are the Russian insistence on employment of artillery in a direct fire role and their wider use of available underground routes of advance such as sewers and subways.

FitzGerald's qualifications to write on Soviet doctrine speak for themselves. He has recently been the officer in charge of the Washington-Moscow "hot line"; he was assigned as the assistant Army attache in Moscow; and he served as deputy chief, U.S. Military Liaison Mission to CINC, Group of Soviet Forces in Germany.

Other articles of interest include two by Capt. G. D. Livingston, "The Unconventional Ambush" and "Ambushes Can Be Defeated." These two articles make up a special section on ambush and counter-ambush tactics.

Livingston, currently assigned to the 11th Air Assault Division, is a recent returnee from Viet Nam where the ambush is the order of the day.

Quote of the Week

"Our glory is peace, not war; our greatness is in people, not power. The history of America is a history of outstanding achievements by individuals." — President Johnson at ceremony awarding 30 Presidential Medals of Freedom, Sept. 14, 1964.

Loans

institution and located within the United States.

The amount of the loan is based upon the financial need of the student and as determined by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC). Loans range from a minimum of $250 to a maximum of $1,500 per year. Repayment begins one year after leaving college and is made over an eight - year period.

Students who are dependents of Army military personnel and who have been notified by the NMSC that they are commended students of semi-finalists are eligible to make application for a loan. Applications are available from all Army personnel offices.

Applications should be completed in duplicate with the original forwarded to the NMSC, 99 Grove St., Evanston, Ill., ATTN: U.S. Army Educational Assistance Program, and the duplicate forwarded to the Adjutant General, Department of the Army, ATTN: AGPN-GO, Washington, D.C.

Department of the Army officials emphasized that the completion of a loan application is not a binding commitment. Making application merely establishes eligibility to be considered for a loan. A student can withdraw his application at any time or reject a loan if one is offered.

Also, beginning this year, the Army will sponsor scholarships to all eligible dependent students of Army personnel who are declared finalists in the merit program. Last year only 40 scholarships were awarded out of approximately 117 finalist.

Changes

School from 1946 to 1948.

Col. and Mrs. Jones have three daughters, Cathy, 17, Carol, 16, and Betty, 13.

Col. Kendall is an experienced Infantryman. Initiated to Fort Benning in 1943 with the Officer Candidate School, Class 214, he recently completed more than two years as chairman of the Attack Committee.

During World War II, he participated in the Anzio Campaign, landing in Southern France, and the Colmar Pocket with the 3rd Infantry Division.

Col. and Mrs. Kendall have two children, Karen R., 17, and John M., 15.

Col. Lansing entered the service with the 27th Infantry Division, New York National Guard.

He was graduated from Officer Candidate School in 1942 and served with the 79th and 36th Infantry Divisions in Europe during World War II, and with the 3rd Infantry Division during the Korean War.

Col. Lansing has just completed more than 18 months as chief of the Training Literature and New Developments Section, Weapons Department.

Col. and Mrs. Lansing have two children, John, 13, and Thomas, 6.

Brighter Tax Picture

Sometime during the next few weeks, each of us in the armed forces will receive, along with our pay, a couple of flimsy sheets of paper which will probably cause a certain degree of dismay and consternation for many of us.

These sheets, known as "W-2" forms, or more properly, Witholding Tax Statements, list in cold, hard figures: (a) how much the federal government paid us during 1964, and (b) how much that same government took from our pay for personal income taxes.

Between the time we get the forms and April 15, the tax return deadline, each of us will have to sit down, compare the tax withheld with the tax due according to the tax table, make a few computations, fill in the forms and file our return.

Some of us — the lucky ones — are going to find the government owes us money. Some are going to find the government figured it pretty close and the difference is only a few dollars either way. And some are going to find, for one reason or another, the government hasn't taken enough. We'll be digging hard for that extra money before Spring.

But no matter in which category we fall, some of us are going to complain about the amount we have to pay. Someone with a mathematical mind will figure out that he worked about two months just to pay his income tax.

But, before we get too involved in our grumbling, let's take a look at the bright side of the tax picture.

In the first place, the tax bite on our earning was less last year than in previous years. Laws enacted in 1964 cut the withholding rate at least two per cent for most of us. In 1965, the same laws will chip at least another two per cent from the rate.

The second thing to consider is how the government spends our tax money. More than half the federal budget is alloted to defense expenditures: Income tax supplies a large share of Uncle Sam's spending money.

So you can figure that at least half of your money is being spent to help make your service stronger, more efficient and probably more pleasant as well.

The rest of your tax money also goes for things you can enjoy. The new freeway that cuts hours from your travel time home was financed, in part, by federal tax dollars. The national park you enjoyed on your trip last year couldn't exist long without your tax money. Schools, parks, bridges, monuments — many of the things that make the United States such a wonderful place to live — all are supported by your taxes.

In case you're still not convinced, a glance through the daily paper will show you many countries in which you could not enjoy these things — many countries whose armed forces are pitifully underpaid and underdeveloped. Many of these countries still levy heavy income taxes. How do you think people there feel about taxes? (AFPS)

Your Dental Health

Personal Q's & A's

By Lt. Col. R. Y. Whittemore Jr., DC

February 7 through 13 is the 17th annual National Children's Dental Health Week.

As part of the observance, the Preventive Dentistry Division in cooperation with The BAYONET will begin a question and answer series of articles on information you should know concerning dental health.

Q. My pediatrician says I should take my 3-year-old to the dentist. However, he doesn't seem to have any cavities, so I wonder if this is necessay.

A. Dental authorities agree that the child should make his first visit to the dentist at about 2½ or 3. At this time, he has all of his deciduous (baby) teeth, and the dentist can check early for any minute sign of decay or any malformation which might lead to orthodontic problems when the child is older.

The fact that your child does not "seem to have any cavities" does not mean that some decay may not be present. In fact, the American Dental Association has found that dental patients under 4 years of age HAVE AN AVERAGE OF THREE TEETH NEEDING FILLINGS.

When a child is exposed to routine treatment at an early age, he rarely develops the fear which many adults have so long associated with dental treatment.

The importance of good care for the primary, or "baby" teeth cannot be overemphasized. A child needs his primary teeth, as he does his permanent ones, for chewing, for speaking and for appearance. Also, these first teeth hold the space for the permanent teeth which come later.

Q. My 14-year-old son has been told by his dentist that he has 12 cavities, which the dentist plans to fill. Is there anything my children can do to keep from having so much tooth decay?

A. There are simple rules which, if followed faithfully, can help to reduce decay. These are:

1. Cut down on sweets, especially between-meal snacks.

2. Brush your teeth immediately after eating (snacks as well as regular meals.) When this is not possible, rinse your mouth very thoroughly with water.

3. Have regular dental checkups. This enables the dentist to discover decay and other problems at an early stage. Just as with other diseases, early treatment of dental disease is easier and more likely to be effective.

4. Individuals with a high incidence of tooth decay should have a flouride treatment applied by their dentist or his hygienist each six months for the first three treatments and once a year after that. This can vary with the individual and the dentist can make the recommendation after the second treatment, as to the time between the treatments after that. The individual should brush with a flouride toothpaste to sustain the effect of the treatment over a longer period of time.

Help Fight Cripplers

One of the greatest benefits available to us — as members of the armed forces — is our medical and dental service, free for us and in some instances for our dependents.

There are, however, diseases and afflictions that cannot be cured no matter what amounts are spent.

Servicemen and women, as well as civilian federal employees stationed overseas, have an opportunity to take part in one of the most difficult, continuing battles in the world — the fight against those diseases and crippling afflictions.

In the forefront of this fight are the voluntary National Health Agencies which conduct healthguarding programs of research, information and community services.

None of us is immune to disease or disability. Take cystic fibrosis for example: This year 4,000 to 5,000 children will be born with cystic fibrosis, an inherited disorder affecting the lungs and digestion. This disorder, at present, cannot be detected in the carriers (parents) and thus cannot be contained or controlled until after a child is affected.

A donation to the 1965 National Health Agencies Campaign could "buy" the detector for this affliction and other ailments which are included in the campaign. Besides cystic fibrosis, the agencies are fighting muscular dystrophy, mental illness, retardation, birth defects, multiple sclerosis, blindness, cancer, cerebral palsy, heart disease, arthritis and other crippling diseases.

The 1965 campaign will take place overseas between Jan. 15 and Feb. 15. It will be seeking support for 12 agencies in the U. S. which are desperately trying to give your children, relatives, friends and ourselves, a better, longer lasting life.

When your keyman hands you a contributor's envelope, note that you can pick the agency of your choice or specify a specific amount for several.

Whichever course of action you decide to take, remember that you might very well be helping yourself to a life free of pain and suffering. (AFPS)

'The Point of the Spear'

"We must continue to meet responsibilities; we must continue to have a strong country and a strong alliance and a strong Free World; and to do that we need a strong Army which is the point of the spear."

JOHN F. KENNEDY
35th President

Gen. Johnson Backs Raise, New Housing

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Officer career opportunities are good, a pay raise is needed and better housing is required, according to Army Chief of Staff General Harold K. Johnson.

General Johnson told associate graduates of the Command and General Staff College, "In terms of career satisfaction, I cannot name any field of endeavor that can compare with the opportunity to serve your country."

Officer advancement chances, he said, are better today than during any other period of peacetime. "There are some conflicts in the system since the promotion opportunities can change suddenly," the general said. "Today though, the time in grades for all ranks is probably as short as it ever has been."

Concerning pay, General Johnson said he intends to support a pay raise this fiscal year, explaining that high cost of living in some areas creates a hardship on officers and enlisted alike.

"In high cost of living areas, the dislocation allowance is not enough," he said. "This problem is of course greatly magnified for people in the lower ranks. I believe the details can be worked out, possibly on a clearly defined claim basis, which is more flexible than establishing set allowances for each area."

About housing, General Johnson said "High-priced tarpaper shacks outside some of our camps" are not the answer. "If we are going to move men and their families all over the United States and the world, we should be able to furnish them a decent place to live.

"The BOQ (Bachelor Officers' Quarters) problem is under study and has my personal attention and support," he said.

Contractor's Costs Show A Real Cut

Washington (AFPS) — The Department of Defense and the National Security Industrial Association are jointly sponsoring exhibits and briefings to illustrate their cost reduction ideas and achievements.

The exhibits are intended to provide a cross-fertilization of cost reduction ideas among contractors, to promote cost consciousness and to stimulate additional contributions by government and industry personnel.

Seventy-two companies across the country will participate in the cost reduction exhibits at five regional briefings scheduled to be held during March and April 1965. All of these companies are participants in the Defense Contractor Cost Reduction Program.

A National Contractor Cost Reduction Week is being planned to follow the five regional exhibits.

Surgeon Says

Nuclear Medicine

By Capt. Joe Stubbs

Radioactive drugs have been used at Martin Army Hospital for several years. In fact, several hundred patients each month receive the benefit of these drugs which are used for diagnostic, as well as therapeutic purposes.

Usually called "radioisotopes", radioactive drugs are chemical elements or compounds which are not radioactive in their natural state, but which can be processed into one or more radioactive forms. These drugs are used as research tools and for special studies in animals and man. The most frequent use today for radioactive drugs is in testing the thyroid gland.

The thyroid gland is the body's speed governor and regulates the rate which the cells carry on their activities. When a special isotope containing radioactive iodine is taken, the thyroid glands which has a special attraction for iodine takes it up.

The more active the thyroid gland, the faster it takes up the radioactive iodine.

Twenty-four hours later the patient simply sits or lies for a few moments, while a detector is held several inches from the throat.

Rays from the radioactive iodine now in the thyroid gland which cannot be seen or felt, pass through the neck, and are counted by the detector.

The more active your thyroid gland is, the more radioactive iodine will be picked up, and accordingly more rays will be detected and counted by the detector. This in turn tells the physician the activity of the gland.

Anemia, caused by a vitamin deficiency, can be detected by measuring the urinary excretion of radioactive Vitamin B12 after ingestion in pill form.

The function of the kidneys as well as tumors of the kidneys can be detected. The list of the diagnostic uses of radioisotope is quite long. More are being added rapidly as new forms of radioactive isotopes are discovered.

The safety of radioisotopes lies in the very small dose needed from the fact that modern electronic detectors are so sensitive that only the tiniest amount is needed. The luminous dial on a wrist watch or an alarm clock emits far more radioactivity than the average diagnostic dose. Radioisotopes have a short life span and their radioactivity is used up quickly. In fact, most of them must be rushed to the hospital by air express and given soon after arrival.

Contrary to what many people may have heard, these isotopes do not explode, do not give off heat, and not cause sterility and their radioactivity is not catching.

A radioisotope diagnostic laboratory exists at Martin Army Hospital. Patients are referred there only by other physicians. The physician's clinical impression is of primary importance and the findings of the radioisotope clinic are used to corroborate the clinical diagnosis.

In short, Martin Army Hospital has a modern facility at your service which can quickly provide accurate data, which in many cases could not be obtained in any other way, with a minimum of inconvenience and discomfort and with absolute safety.

KNOW YOUR SENIOR NCOs

Out at TEC Group if you have got a graphic arts problem, you usually wind up in the capable hands of MSgt. John R. Dale.

Although he's an Infantry operations sergeant by trade, his off duty hobbies have given him a rich background for his present job as NCO in charge of TEC Group graphic aids division.

As an artist he paints in oils, water colors, sand cement and putty. He has taught mosaic and ceramic arts in Korea and at the Yongsan Arts and Crafts Center. Before coming to Fort Benning he was working on his own art show in Korea but his assignment to Project TEAM forced him to cancel the show scheduled for May, 1963.

He has combined his artistic talents with woodworking to build his own Hi-Fi stereo equipment cabinet and speakers; a mosaic coffee table, book ends, trays and wall pieces. His most recent artistic accomplishment is an oil on masonite work titled "Four Korean Dancers."

A veteran of over 15 years service in overseas areas, his principal assignments during the last ten years have included operations sergeant in the 22nd Infantry Regiment, 4th Infantry Division; V Corps, Fort Meade, Md.; Eighth U.S. Army G-3 section; 2nd Army Headquarters, Fort Meade; and the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, Republic of Korea Army.

MSGT. DALE

The extensive service Dale has had as an operations sergeant coupled with his talents as an artist, woodworker, cabinet maker and photographer have made him ideally suited for his present job.

His ability to listen to a briefing and visualize in his mind the best type of visual aids to support the briefing and then translate his visualization into graphic aids has made him a great asset to Project TEAM, the Army's test and evaluation of air mobility.

College Students End Gravity Test After Staying in Bed for Six Weeks

LOS ANGELES (AFPS)—Five college students have completed a 42-day stay in bed in an Air Force study used to evaluate the use of artificial gravity to offset effects of weightlessness which will be encountered in space.

The study, pioneering a unique approach to the possible use of artificial gravity in future spacecraft, involved absolute bed rest combined with short rides in a centrifuge.

The successful tests were conducted for the Air Force Systems Command's Space Systems Division by Douglas Missile and Space Systems Division, Santa Monica, Calif. The five students, on temporary leave from UCLA, served as biomedical subjects for the test. They were confined to bed for the entire 42 days of the study; for the last 21 days of the test, they rode the centrifuge four times a day for a total of 30 minutes each day.

The program was arranged because previous tests and weightless flight experience indicated that extended stays in zero - gravity might result in an undesirable degree of body de-conditioning. During extended bed rest when man remains in a horizontal position, the circulatory system does not get a proper workout. On earth, lack of proper exercise can produce this same result. In space the circulatory systems also begin to "loaf" because there is no weight against which to work.

Special precautions were taken to insure that the group remained in a relaxed, horizontal position even while being transferred to and from the centrifuge and while riding in it.

The centrifuge simulated the return of gravity after the space - simulated inactivity and permitted investigators to assess the value of artificial gravity stimulation upon the body deconditioned by inactivity.

Don't Write To College For Facts

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Officials at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., ask officers selected for the Regular Course at the Command and General Staff College not to write for information.

A list of officers selected for the course is usually released in late December or early January. Immediately after the announcement, the new students - to - be flood College and Post administrative offices with requests for information on Fort Leavenworth, the quarters situation, dependent schools, off-post housing, reporting dates, medical facilities and the like.

Most of the students' questions will be answered when they receive the college's advance packet of administrative information.

Officers selected to attend the next Regular Course should receive their advance packets sometime in March, 1965.

West Point Candidates Undergoing Tests Here

Candidates for admission to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y. are undergoing academic, medical and physical aptitude examinations at Fort Benning. Tests end Saturday.

Identical examinations which will determine applicants' qualifications to enter the Academy in July, are being held simultaneously at 14 other Army installations in the United States and overseas.

The local examinations will be conducted by a board of officers of which Col. Walter D. Short, 197th Infantry Bde. commander, is president.

The examinations are limited to those who have already received nominations to the Academy. Nominations can be awarded by U.S. senators and representatives or by the President.

Special appointments are also made to a few enlisted men of the Army and Air Force, sons of deceased veterans whose death resulted from war service disabilities during World War I or II or during the Korean War, sons of enlisted men or officers who are now members of the Regular Army or regular components of the Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard and for honor graduates of certain military schools.

The examinations consist of the college board tests in mathematics, English composition and scholastic aptitude; a series of physical examinations to measure coordination and development, and a thorough medical examination.

Panama Canal's Future Prime Target of Study

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — President Johnson has reported that an intensive review of policy toward present and future use of the Panama Canal has resulted in two major decisions.

On the basis of the review, it was decided that the United States, with Panama and other interested countries, should press forward in plans and preparations for a sea-level canal in Latin America. The second decision was that a proposal be made from this country to the government of Panama for the negotiation of an entirely new treaty on the existing Canal.

The President said the two steps are needed now "For the protection and the promotion of peaceful trade — for the welfare of the hemisphere — in the true interests of the United States — and in fairness and justice to all."

He further explained that the Panama Canal, with its limiting docks and channels, will soon be inadequate to the needs of world commerce. Already more than 300 ships built or in building are too big to go through with full loads. Many of them — like modern U.S. aircraft carriers — cannot go through at all.

The President said there seem to be four possible routes — two in Panama, one in Colombia and one through Nicaragua.

Congress has already authorized $17 million for studies of possible sites and of the other practical problems of a sea level canal.

"These changes," the President stated, "are necessary not because of failure but because of success; not because of backwardness but because of progress."

Insurance Dividends Pushed By President for Veterans

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — President Johnson has instructed Administrator of Veterans Affairs John S. Gleason Jr., to speed up payment of GI insurance dividends to some 4,725,000 veterans.

A White House announcement said the first checks will be in the hands of GI policyholders this month.

Of the $224.5 million 1965 dividends, some $210 million will go to approximately 4,500,000 World War II veterans who hold National Service Life Insurance (NSLI).

The remaining $14.5 million will go to World War I veterans who hold U. S. Government Life Insurance (USGLI) policies.

Korean Conflict veterans hold policies that do not provide regular annual dividends.

Regular dividends, it was noted, are primarily the result of the fact that the policyholders are not dying at the rate expected when the insurance became a law.

The 1964 dividends of $229 million were paid in a record time of eight days. In 1963, the dividend checks were mailed out in 31 days.

The VA reminds policyholders that the preparing and mailing of dividend payments is automatic and no correspondence is required — in fact, such correspondence could delay the dividend distribution process.

Classroom Converted

A & A personnel of the 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf., 197th, converted the battalion's classroom into a classroom-gymnasium.

Since other recreational facilities are not near, the new gymnasium plays an important role in the boosting of morale among the Infantrymen in this area. It gives the men something to do during their leisure time, helps to develop acquired skills and introduces new skills.

The basketball court is marked off to accommodate volleyball players as well as basketball players.

For the Infantrymen that believe in complete physical conditioning, the gym is equipped with weights and barbells, medicine balls, and

Student Brigade Wives Hold Yule Teas, Coffees

By Hazel Lipscombe and Joanne Drouin

"Peace on Earth" was the theme of the December Christmas Tea held by wives of officers in the Infantry Officers Career Course 1, 2nd Bn., The Student Brigade.

Centerpieces of golden angels encircled with evergreen and candles were made by wives of the 3rd platoon, several ladies received the centerpieces as gifts at the close of the tea.

Mrs. Edward E. Rusk attended the affair as honored guest. Following the tea, husbands were invited to join the wives for a social hour; approximately 65 persons attended this event held in the Custer Terrace Officers' Club.

Mrs. Laurence J. Dacunto and Mrs. Carl Massarini hosted a recent luncheon for wives of officers in Detachment 23, Infantry Officers Basic Course 5, 2nd Student Bn.

Highlighting the event, held in the Anzio Room, Main Officers' Open Mess, was a reading presented by Mr. Victor Prophet and Miss Sandra Prophet of the Fort Benning Theatre Guild. The composition was entitled "A Child's Christmas in Wales" and was written by the late Dylan Thomas.

Honored guests included Mrs. Talton W. Long, Mrs. Donald T. Kellett, Mrs. Joseph E. McCluskey and Mrs. Ronald S. McCaul.

Arrangements of evergreen branches interspersed with red and white mums provided colorful centerpieces for the luncheon tables.

Officers and wives of the Infantry School Bn. met for a holiday buffet in the Headquarters Lounge, ISB.

The affair was hosted by Lt. Col. and Mrs. L. G. Simmons. Lt. Col. and Mrs. Claude W. Baker attended as honored guests.

A Christmas Tea was held in the Custer Terrace Officers' Club by wives of officers in the Infantry Officers Career Course II.

The tea tables were decorated with garlands of evergreen, gilded pine cones and silver candelabra. Mrs. Jack E. Morgan and wives of officers in the 3rd platoon hosted the tea.

Wives of officers in the Infantry Officers Basic Course 6 met recently for a follow-up coffee in the Detachment 21 dayroom.

Student wife hostesses included Mesdames George B. Collins, III; Mrs. Jerry W. Ginn and Mrs. Ralph G. Rosenberg. Cadre hostesses were Mrs. Ronald S. McCaul and Mrs. William E. Killoran.

Mrs. Gary M. Kelly, social chairman, spoke to the group concerning plans for their coming luncheon and casserole dinner.

Post-Holiday Dinner Held by 69th Armor

The Non - Commissioned Officers Wives of the 4th Battalion, 69th Armor recently held a post-holiday dinner for their husbands at Victory Lodge.

The tables were decorated with red foil, evergreen, poinsettias, miniature dolls, candles and red and green nut cups.

The punch bowl — which was placed in a setting of pine — was presided over by Mrs. Andrew C. Evans and Mrs. Albert A. Kuser.

Guests of honor at the party were: Lt. Col. and Mrs. Edwin J. McCarren; Major and Mrs. Duane R. Tague; Capt. Delbert DeVaughn, Captain and Mrs. Robert K. Hartley; Captain and Mrs. Ronald E. Craven; and Lt. and Mrs. Robert H. Wilkinson.

Hostesses were Mrs. James Brown and Mrs. William F. Eastman.

Class Schedules Given For Tri-Faith Workshop

A schedule of classes for Fort Benning's Tri-Faith Religious Education Workshop has been announced.

The first workshop session will begin at 8:30 p.m. Monday. There will be two sessions at 7:30 and 8:30 on Tuesday and Wednesday and one class session at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

All Jewish classes will be conducted in Bldg. 1071 (Old Hospital Area), all Catholic classes in Bldg. 2626, and Protestant classes in other buildings of the Religious Education Center on Dixie Road.

The Protestant schedule includes a course in Guiding Young People in Bible Study in Bldg. 2606; Teaching Young Teens in Bldg. 2608; Working with Juniors at Church, Bldg. 2626; Teaching Primaries, Bldg. 2615; Christian Teaching of Kindergarten Children, Bldg. 2618; and Improving Nursery Departments, Bldg. 2610.

There will be a joint closing inspirational meeting at 9 p.m. Thursday in Bldg. 2605.

The workshop is open to both regular religious education workers on the post and any personnel interested in the religious education program.

The first Tri-Faith Religious Education Workshop to be conducted at Fort Benning is under the direction of Mrs. John L. Waldrop, chief of the Infantry Center Chaplain Section's Religious Education Division. The workshop is sponsored by the post chaplain, Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker.

As a preliminary to the workshop, Chap. Decker will be host at a dinner at 6:30 p.m. Monday at the Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess, honoring the regular teaching and administrative staff of the religious education program.

Four Branches of Military Service Celebrate Holidays at Col. Koob's

Three generations of one family, representing four branches of the military service, were together for the first time in uniform to celebrate the holidays at the home of Col. William L. Koob, Jr., of Fort Benning.

Visiting Col. Koob, deputy director of the Weapons Department, The Infantry School, was his father, Col. William L. Koob, Sr., a retired Air Force officer of Tampa, Fla.

Home for the holidays was the eldest son of Col. Koob, Jr., Cadet Pvt. William L. Koob III, a freshman at The Citadel, Charleston, S.C.

Holding down the home front was the youngest son of Col. Koob, Jr., Cadet Sgt. Major Jeffrey C. Koob of the Columbus (Ga.) High School Reserve Officers Training Corps and winner of last year's Military Order of World Wars, First Year Cadet Award.

The senior Col. Koob's military career spans 33 years of service to his country. With a few breaks in service, it began in 1916 where he saw action in the Mexican Border campaign and ended with his retirement from the Air Force in 1956.

He remembers when there were only two of the family in uniform. While stationed with the Air Force on Okinawa, he used to visit Col. Koob, Jr., who was serving with the Army in Japan.

Col. Koob, Jr., was graduated from The Citadel in 1940 and received a commission in the Army. He returned to The Citadel in 1950 and served for two years as assistant professor of military science and tactics.

Cadet Sgt. Major Koob is starting his military career with the ROTC.

Officers' Wives' Club Offers Numerous Activities Which Will Inform, Interest and Stimulate Members

By Dorothy Newsman

Many wives awakened on the morning of January 2nd with the feeling that, suddenly, they had reached the point where they might have a few moments of leisure to pursue their own lines of interest.

The holidays were over, the children were back in school and life had returned to a normal routine — if an army wife ever has a really normal routine.

The Officers' Wives' Club of Fort Benning makes a constant effort to have a vast group of activities which will inform, interest and stimulate its many members. Following is a description of some of these activities.

Great Books

The OWC was founded by a group of wives who wished to meet and discuss good books. This activity, which was the cornerstone of the club, has not faltered in the many years through which the club has continued.

The great books activity has two different segments—one for wives during the day and one for couples during the evening. The wives meet the second and fourth Tuesday of each month at 10 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Charles Wahle, great books chairman.

The group consisting of husbands and wives gather on the 2nd and 4th Wednesday of the month in the homes of the members.

Mrs. Wahle said this is a "canned course" set up by which includes study of the Great Books Foundation the Great Greeks, Machiavelli, The Declaration of Independence, Macbeth and various Russian authors.

Books may be purchased or may be obtained from local libraries. There is no charge for this activity. Persons interested in either of these groups may contact Mrs. Wahle at 545-7815.

Languages

Languages are always interesting to military wives since husbands' assignments may take the entire family to any part of the world. While stationed in another country, knowledge of the language not only makes daily living easier, it promotes good will by giving the impression that one cared enough about the country to learn the native tongue.

German

German is taught by Mrs. William C. Hacker who has much knowledge of the country and has recently returned from a trip there. Mrs. Hacker will teach beginners German and will continue into the intermediate level as the proficiency of the group progresses.

Depending upon the response, there will be day or evening classes beginning on or about Jan. 20 which will be conducted in Bldg. 1221.

Mrs. Hacker instructs students in language and grammar. She also includes information pertaining to the customs of the country. A knowledge of these various customs will contribute a great deal to the comfort with which one enters into life in Germany.

Wives interested in this course may contact Mrs. Hacker at 545-1108.

French

Classes in advanced French are being taught by Mrs. Douglas Babcock. No new classes are being formed.

Spanish

A beginners Spanish class will be conducted by Mrs. Raleigh Meyer on a conversational group basis. This group will begin meeting in mid-January for all those who wish to learn or practice Spanish. Wives interested should contact Mrs. Meyer at 327-7990.

English

A class for foreign - born wives will also be conducted by Mrs. Raleigh Meyer in conversational English. This group will meet to learn and practice everyday English which should prove most helpful to wives with little command of the English language. Those interested should contact Mrs. Meyer at 327-7990.

Fun Mood Permeates 9th Inf Fete

A festive Christmas mood added a special touch to the December coffee of the of the ladies of the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry. Gay holiday name-tags in the shape of a bell were worn by each guest.

The home of Mrs. Charles W. Peer was decorated with a tiny Christmas tree trimmed with small, hand-painted, wooden ornaments from Germany. Assisting Mrs. Peer as co-hostesses for the coffee were Mrs. Schubert D. McPail and Mr. Henry B. Thorpe, Jr.

At the coffee table a formal arrangement of mixed fruit in a beautiful silver bowl made a most elegant centerpiece.

Various homemade cookies and tarts were served with coffee, which was poured by Mrs. Herman L. Goldman.

Mrs. Alfred J. Millard conducted a brief business meeting before an exchange of small gifts among the attending ladies.

Ringer Tourney Titlists Named

Ringer Tournament winners were announced at the recent Ladies Golf Association luncheon at the Country Club.

Winners on the 18 hole Pine Side were, Mrs. William T. Gordon, low gross, and Mrs. Francis E. Mendenhall, low net.

On the Lake Side Mrs. John Kearns won the low gross while Mrs. Fried Kiefer won low net.

In the 9 hole group Mrs. Walter Johnson won low gross and Mrs. Priss Johnson won low net.

WEINER GRADUATES

Lt. Col. Bertram Weiner deputy Provost Marshall here, was one of 55 officers and civilians from the Army and other governmental agencies who have been graduated from the U.S. Army Management School, Fort Belvoir, Va.

197TH PROMOTIONS

John Batura, Romualdas Bliudzius, Thomas Rienstra and Emil J. Schau were promoted to Sp4 recently at Headquarters and Headquarters Co., 197th Infantry Bde. Bernard M. Meyer, Colin V. Singer and David J. Tollis were promoted to PFC.

FY66 Budget For Defense Looked Over

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The FY66 defense budget will be closer to $49 billion than a previous estimate of $50 billion. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has announced.

Secretary McNamara said no predetermined limit is set in building the defense budget. Comparing the gross national product with defense requirements, he said the nation can afford from $45-$70 billion, or whatever is needed.

"We prepare the defense program with just one standard in mind — what does our nation require to be secure," he said, pointing out that he and the Joint Chiefs of Staff agree that FY66 budget "will further increase the military strength of this country and will provide adequate forces for the defense of the nation."

A recent mid-year budget review estimated FY65 expenditures at $49.8 billion.

The secretary said plans are to cut costs by about $500 million in FY66 despite a significant increase in retirement payments and increased compensation costs. Since FY61, retirement payments and salaries have added about $2.8 billion a year, he pointed out.

Savings of about $325 million are expected from closing unnecessary bases and a proposed National Guard-Army Reserve realignment. Ultimate yearly savings are expected to be about $625 million.

Added costs include development of the new C15A cargo transport aircraft. Mr. McNamara said the budget includes $157 million for development of the aircraft.

The secretary said, "We can increase our military strength simultaneously with reducing our budgetary expenditures. We will be doing that in FY66."

Mammoth Air Transport Planned; Expected to Triple C-141 Payloads

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Development of the C-5A, a transport aircraft with three times the payload capacity of the C-141, is expected to begin in FY66, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has announced.

"Congressional authorization for $157 million to begin development is requested in the current Defense budget," Secretary McNamara said. Overall development is expected to amount to about $750 million.

Development and production of the C-5A is tied to long range goals, the Secretary stated. "This will greatly increase our mobility, greatly reduce our reaction time and thereby strengthen our capability to meet crises whenever and wherever they may occur."

The C-5A could lift Army equipment such as M-60 tanks, construction equipment, helicopters, missiles and other items too big for current aircraft.

If used for troop transport, the aircraft could carry about 600 fully equipped soldiers.

Compared with the C-141, currently the largest U. S. military transport, the C-5A has three times more payload capacity, roughly 250,000 pounds. The cost per ton-mile would be about 30-40 percent of that of the C-141.

Maximum speed would be about 550 mph with a short-field takeoff and landing capability. Development calls for the C-5A to land on relatively unimproved fields.

At least three squadrons or some 58 aircraft are planned. The estimated cost was set at about $1 billion, with the aircraft becoming operational by FY69.

Secretary McNamara was asked if other nations have larger transports than the C-5A. He replied, "I know of none."

Successful Test Alert Held at 69th

The 4th Bn., 69th Armor, recently completed a practice alert in testing loading planes and the ability of the unit to move to designated assembly areas with equipment required to sustain the battalion for three days.

Commanded by Lt. Col. Edwin J. McCarren, the entire battalion made the move without incident. Equipment included 63 track vehicles and 73 wheel vehicles.

The men of the 69th leave Monday for Fort Stewart, Ga., where they will undergo their annual tank gunnery firing.

Education Programs

1964 Enrollments Soar For Army Men, Women

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Army participation in the civilian education program, on-duty training, and professional education program for FY64 has been announced.

The Army had 142,000 personnel in the civilian education program; 23,000 completing 55,000 off-duty civilian college-level courses; and 40,000 enrolled in the U.S. Armed Forces Institute (USAFI).

Additionally, 1,500 were enrolled in resident graduate studies; 550 in the degree completion (Bootstrap) program; and 958 studying for master and doctorate degrees.

College degrees were earned by 717 and 41,430 completed high school proficiency tests.

A recent tuition assistance boost provides for greater fiscal year 1965 participation in the civilian education program. The assistance was raised from $13.50 to $14.25 per semester hour last October.

'Dog Platoon' Unique in CONUS

SCOUT DOG AND HANDLER DURING KOREAN WAR

By Dave Kaufelt

The 26th Infantry Plt. (Scout Dog) is unique not only on the reservation, but it is also the only such canine unit in the CONUS Army.

Commanded by 1st Lt. James C. Kopf, the scout dogs are used during Infantry School patrol problems such as the "Escape and Evasion Rangers" problem and in demonstrations for Post visitors.

Twenty - nine enlisted men, six non-commissioned officers and one officer comprise the personnel of the platoon which feed, care and train the 27 dogs in such skills as sentry duty, obedience, negotiation of obstacle courses and ferreting out enemy guerillas.

Two additional dogs are currently being trained in "special scent duty," a new type of jungle warfare training.

Initially activated during World War II as the 26th Quartermaster Platoon, the unit saw action at Luzon the Phillipines.

During the Korean War, the platoon's dogs participated in over 1,000 combat patrols.

The platoon was awarded the Phillipine and Korean Presidential Unit Citations for its combat services.

Inactivated after Korea, the 26th Infantry Scout Dog Plt. was reactivated in 1956 and attached to The Infantry Center.

Reorganized and redesignated the 26th Infantry Plt. (Scout Dog) in 1960, it was attached to the 197th Infantry Bde. in September, 1962.

Realignment Plans Studied For U.S. Reserve Forces

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has announced that he has instructed the Secretary of the Army to prepare plans to realign the Army's Reserve and National Guard forces to improve significantly the early deployment capability and combat readiness of the United States reserve forces.

The realignment is designed to bring the Army's Reserve Component structure into balance with the Contingency War Plans and the related equipment program.

The Secretary said the realignment, in addition to producing increased combat readiness on the part of the units in the Reserve and National Guard, would streamline the management structure of the Army Reserve forces, and would result in cost savings approximating $150,000,000 per year.

The realignment program will involve the transfer of the unit structure of the Army Reserve into the National Guard and the elimination of all units for which there is no military requirement.

The Army Reserve will consist of individuals rather than units and will provide individual trainees for summer camp and mobilization.

Under the plan, the paid drill strength will be 550,000 well-equipped, well - trained officers and men.

New C-130s Take a Bow For Students

Approximately 500 airborne students jumped from C-130 aircraft Wednesday as the plane made its major debut with The Infantry School Airborne Department.

The aircraft, which has been used only to relieve the old C-119's and C-122's, will be put to full use.

According to officials, it is a faster, larger, more reliable craft than those presently used. It can carry 64 jumpers, 11 more than the C-119 and 13 more than the C-123, or 50,000 pounds. The plane also has a maximum range of 1,000 miles with a full load.

Jumping with the class, which utilized three C-130s, were Col. Lamar A. Welch, Airborne Department director; Lt. Col. Verne T. Mergier, deputy director, and Lt. Col. James M. Townsend, chairman, basic airborne training group.

Benningites Commended At Honors

Thirteen military and civilian personnel at Fort Benning received Incentive Awards during recent presentation ceremonies.

Col. Earl F. Holton, deputy post commander, presented the awards, ranging from outstanding ratings and cash awards for superior performance to letters of appreciation and checks for adopted suggestions.

Receiving checks for adopted suggestions were Robert L. Wisor, an employee of the purchasing and contracting section, $15, Wilbur D. Burr, $40, and Miss Virginia H. Field, $15, services section. Leighton D. Garrett, finance and accounting section, $20, and Dow Bozeman, Martin Army Hospital, $20.

SFC Robert E. Johnson, MAH, received a letter of appreciation and a cigarette lighter. Also presented letters of appreciation were 1st Lt. A. R. Guenther, adjutant general section, and Vernon C. Abrams, finance and accounting section.

Presented outstanding ratings and cash awards for sustained superior performance were Mrs. Berta S. Olive, and Mrs. Montyne D. Thompkins, $100 each, both employees at MAH, and Herman Russell, adjutant general section, $150.

Walter E. Bell, Supply Center, and Emile D. Roberts, Third U.S. Army Training Aids Center, both received $100 for sustained superior performance.

Kern Retires

Lt. Col. Harry J. Kern has retired from the Army after more than 20 years of service. Kern also was presented the Army Commendation Medal in ceremonies in the office of Brig. Gen. Robert R. Williams, commander of the Test, Evaluation and Control Group (Project TEAM).

Mortar Committee

Tanks and Today's Pint-Size Artillery Give Infantrymen More 'Punching Power'

Small but powerful mortars and lumbering tanks pack a mighty wallop and frontline riflemen learn quickly to swear by both weapons.

Lt. Col. Neil A. McLean has been closely associated with these weapons, both as instructor and as a combat soldier.

McLean is chairman of the mortar committee in the Weapons Department at The Infantry School. He supervises instruction to officers students on the 81-mm and 4.2-inch mortars, the Infantryman's pint-size artillery.

He learned to use armor as commander of a reconnaissance platoon and a tank company with the 2nd Armored Division during World War II. Before reporting to Korea in 1953 he was with the old tank weapons committee at Fort Benning.

Pound for pound, a mortar is small compared to the bullish bulk of armor. McLean once commanded. But pound for pound it delivers as tremendous an explosive force as any other conventional weapon in the infantryman's arsenal.

McLean's committee of 22 officers and 122 enlisted men found this fact home to the students of 30 infantry officer classes a year.

Instruction ranges from general briefings for career students to extensive training for a solid working knowledge for officer candidates. Training includes directing the fire of mortar teams and forward observation to bring mortar rounds on target.

Candidates also study the variety of highly destructive ammunition and many types of fuzes, and spend long hours perfecting crew drill.

"After they are commissioned," McLean says, "the candidates will be leaders most intimately involved with current standard mortars of the ROAD division. They must know how to control the fires of these weapons or their effectiveness in combat is seriously reduced."

Under the committee's instructional jurisdiction are two other high-angle firing weapon systems; the light and heavy nuclear-capable Davy Crockett. The 2,000 and 4,00 yard ranges gives the Infantryman close atomic support.

Two officers and two noncommissioned officer classes a year receive the battalion mortar - Davy Crockett course, a highly technical, comprehensive program of instruction.

"As good as present mortars are," McLean says, "constant testing goes on for improvements."

He works in close liaison with the Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency here which provides test requirements and the Infantry Board which does the actual testing.

McLean said the board is testing a new 81-mm and 10-mm mortar with greater range and less weight to replace the 4.2-inch mortar.

Col. Short Lauds 58th Infantry's 1st Battalion

The 1st Bn. (Mech.) 58th Infantry, was awarded a Letter of Appreciation recently by Col. Walter D. Short, commander of the 197th Infantry Bde.

The letter was presented to Lt. Col. William E. Boyd for the 58th's participation in the United Givers Fund Drive.

Col. Short conveyed his thanks and appreciation for the cooperation and generous contributions of 58th Infantrymen to the fund drive.

Infantryman's Plea for Lighter Combat Load Studied; The Infantry Board Originally 'Got the Ball Rolling'

At long last the American Infantryman's plea for a lighter combat load has been heard and the Army Combat Developments Command, Army Material Command, and Continental Army Command are coming to his aid.

The aid, in the form of "A Study to Conserve the Energy of the Combat Infantryman," has been prepared by the Infantry Agency assisted by the Infantry Board and The Infantry School. This combination, dedicated to the mutual effort of reducting the Infantryman's combat load, could well be termed "the Infantry team."

Energy Study

The directive for the "Energy Study" was issued by the Combat Developments Command Combined Arms Group, then commanded by Gen. Harold K. Johnson, recently appointed Army Chief of Staff. It is based upon an earlier study to reduce the load of the combat soldier generated by Col. R. C. Williams, Infantry Board president.

The study points out that the capability of an Infantry soldier to fight is directly related to the load he has to carry. It concludes that priority must be directed toward lightweight items — as opposed to an increased degree of protection, durability or functional requirements — if a compromise becomes essential.

(Concerning durability, it is interesting to note that the average time in combat for the Infantryman is 102 days . . . based on figures complied from World War II and Korea.)

Also considered was that Infantry units, whether they ride to combat in a helicopter, armored personnel carrier, truck or airplane, all have the same mission . . . to dismount and fight on foot to destroy the enemy.

The study points out that one of the most obvious methods to conserve energy is to move the soldier as close as possible to his objective by means other than "foot power."

The study then concerns itself with the Infantryman after he has dismounted from his transportation and begins combat operations on foot. It is during this period especially that the soldier's energy must be conserved if he is to accomplish his assigned mission of destroying the enemy.

The study relates that its findings are equally applicable to members of crew-served weapons squads and other front-line soldiers, whose mission is to provide close and continuing support to the combat Infantryman.

Bearing in mind the cost aspects of producing a lightweight load, the study shows that less than eight percent of the total Army strength requires the lighter equipment, and that current standard items could continue to be issued to all other soldiers with missions less demanding in terms of close enemy contact.

A great many scientific experiments and studies have been conducted over the past 100 years to investigate the energy cost of marching at various speeds with various loads in terms of weight. Findings have proven that as the weight of the load or the speed of the march is increased, the expenditure of body energy is definitely increased.

Early Studies

Studies from the days of the Roman Legion to the present have concluded generally that approximately 40 pounds should be the maximum load to be carried by the soldier under the most trying conditions.

Additionally, these studies have shown that the location of the load should be as nearly compatible with the body balance and its natural possible.

Therefore, efforts on the part of the Infantry team to ease the problem of energy expenditure due to load carrying is being directed toward the principles of (1) Reduction of the weight of the load to or below 40 pounds; (2) Proper placement of the load on the body; (3) Provisions for a mechanical load carrying device.

The current loads were reevaluated in the "Energy Study" and resulted in two separate loads - a "fighting load," habitually carried by the individual soldier, and an "existence load," carried by organic vehicles. Neither load is rigidly fixed, but depends upon the situation facing the commander.

Load Carrying Devices

As mentioned above, the study brings out that a desirable solution to the problem of saving the energy of the Infantryman would be to provide him or his unit with some type of battle field, carrying device which could be utilized to resupply his needs for ammunition, food, and water as well as to transport individual items for which there would not be an instantaneous requirement.

The suggested device could be man or mechanically powered or a combination thereof. It would be used primarily by Infantry, airborne Infantry, and air assault rifle companies in limited or general war. It would be especially valuable over snow or mountains and narrow trails encountered in jungle and guerrilla warfare.

Canned Rations: Combat rations are unsatisfactory for use as a battle meal due to their excessive weight, bulk and awkward configuration. To meet future tactical concepts, a significant improvement is required to provide an 8-10 ounce concentrated food package which the soldier can carry on his person.

Protective Mask: The current mask (M17) weighs three pounds with carrier and hood. The study's solution is to develop a small, one pound, expendable mask that would cover the eyes, nose and mouth only and be held in place with simple strap. It would be habitually carried for emergency, short-time use only until the M17 mask could be brought forward.

Lightweight Clothing: Priority research and development must be directed toward obtaining lighter weight and expandable items of individual clothing and equipment.

Command Action: The commander and his staff must make concentrated efforts to eliminate all nonessential loads and activities that would waste the soldier's energy or prevent him from restoring it.

Finalizing their research the Infantry team emphatically predicts that the conservation of the soldier's energy will quickly produce more capable and efficient Infantry combat units.

BY MITCH YAMANAKA
Sports Editor

The 1st Bn., CTC quintet, playing without its high scoring forward Pernell Cole, rolled over a tired 69th Armor five, 83-56, in action Monday night at the Old Post Gym.

In the first scheduled game of the evening, the 577th Engineers moved into the playoff game with CTC played last night, winning their game over The Student Brigade Team 2 by forfeit. The referee gave the game to the 577th when TSB failed to field five players at game time.

The 69th played on even terms with their taller opponents for the first 10 minutes, but the fast breaks and full court press thrown on by CTC proved to be too much and the CTC squad left the floor at half time leading 49-29.

Taking up the scoring slack from Cole was Joe Hicks. Hicks averaging 13 points a game came into his own Monday night as he rippled the cords for 27 points for high point honors.

Hicks was hot all night as he hit on close one-handed jumpers and 15 - foot set shots. He was a little cold from the charity line as he connected on only three of seven attempts.

Wicker Contained

Floyd Wicker, CTC's rangy center, was held to 4 points during the game. Wicker has been averaging 17 points per game, but has been nursing an injury and did not play the entire game.

Moving into the pivot spot from his forward position was Henry Kersman. Kersman hit on five baskets during the first half, all from just under the basket to aid Hicks in the scoring department. He ended the night with 17 points.

As usual the 69th's John Higdon was the outstanding player for the losers. Higdon, one of the smallest players on the floor, hit the nets for six field goals and connected on eight of 10 attempts from the free throw line for 20 points.

First Half

CTC drew first blood in the opening minutes of the game with Kersman scoring the first six points with under the basket shots.

Theodis Coleman, Higdon's backcourt teammate, hit on a one-hander from the free throw line for the 69th's first two pointer.

Both teams battled on even terms for the first 10 minutes, with the CTC five holding the lead all the way. At times CTC would lead by 10 or more points then the 69th would battle back to within three points.

With 10 minutes gone on the clock, the score stood at 33-29. From that point CTC went into its fast breaks and full court press to pull away.

The tough defensive play of the CTC five kept the 69th scoreless in the waning minutes of the first half and they left the floor leading 49-29.

The 69th was cold from the floor in the first half hitting on only 30.5 per cent of their shots. CTC hit on 19 of 51 attempts for a 37.3 average.

Second Half

The second half was just a continuation of the first as the CTC quintet kept their full court press on, stealing the ball on several occasion and driving in for easy layups.

The 69th could not get its plays going and was forced to attempt long shots.

Kersman and Hicks controlled the backboards at both ends of the court for CTC, pulling down most of the rebounds. The 69th's Wilie Smith battled on even terms with the CTC rebounders for the ball, but could not hold the pace during the entire game and was slowly forced out from under the basket.

Again as in other games he has played, Higdon moved in under shots and batted his taller opponents for shots. He was a little cold from the charity line as he connected on only three of seven times with the rebound.

CTC's victory was the eighth in nine games and put them into the championship game played last night with the 577th Engineers for the first half title. Full results and game action will be covered in next week's issue of the BAYONET.

197th Sports Profile

Shortest Man on Hoop Team Is Most Valuable Player

Though PFC James F. Coyle is the shortest man on the 197th Infantry Brigade basketball team, he is one of the two high - scorers on the team.

A native of Gainesville, Ga., Coyle's first love is baseball. He attended Young Harris Junior College on a baseball scholarship and was captain of the baseball team for two years.

While attending Young Harris, where he majored in physical education, the baseball team on which he played competed in the National Junior College Baseball Tournament and played in the finals.

Coyle later went on to Huntington College (Montgomery, Ala.) on a basketball scholarship where he was again captain of the baseball team and played on the varsity basketball team.

Coyle has been playing baseball since he was a little leaguer and while in high school, was a member of the team which won the Georgia State Championship.

He began his basketball career in high school in Gainesville and his team made the state finals during his junior and senior years.

Currently working in the 197th's message center, Coyle is a member of the brigade's Headquarters and Headquarters Company and plans to play on the 197th's baseball team this year.

He entered the Army in January 1964, and intends to return to college at the end of his enlistment.

58th Infantry Welcomes Back All-Army Players

Two All - Army football players were welcomed back into the 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Infantry recently after winning honors on the Fort Benning football team.

First Lt. Patrick Dye, executive officer of Company B, and 2nd Lt. Gregg Orth, platoon leader in Company C, returned to duty after a successful season with the "Doughboys".

Dye was selected as the "Most Valuable Player" in the U. S. Army for 1964 and as a member of the All-Armys first team. He was also selected as Most Valuable Player in the Missile Bowl for 1964.

A former All-American at the University of Georgia in 1959 and 1960, Dye was voted the most valuable lineman in the Southeastern Conference in 1960 and played two years of professional football with the Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian League before entering the Army.

Dye has been with the 58th since March 1963. He is scheduled to leave for Washington, D. C. where he will receive an award from the President of the United States.

Orth, a former star at the University of Indiana, was also selected on the All-Army first team. He was an outstanding tackle for the Doughboys last year and his performance helped carry the Benning team on to victory in the Missile Bowl game against Fort Eustis.

Olympic Winner

Capt. Tommy Pool, a member of the Army Marksmanship Training Unit at Fort Benning and a member of the 1964 Olympic shooting team, is congratulated by President Johnson on winning a Bronze Medal in the smallbore prone rifle match in Tokyo during a recent ceremony at the White House.

Indoor Match

Post Club Slates Shooting Meet For Pistol Men

A .22 Cal. Indoor aggregate pistol tournament will be held by the Post Rifle and Pistol Club this weekend, according to Tom Kirkman, club secretary.

This is the second small caliber indoor match of the season.

Six groups are scheduled to fire during the two-day match with each relay completing its entire 90-shot course before leaving the firing line.

In addition to the individual championship there will be a team match, consisting of four firing members.

Trophies will be awarded to the winning team, first expert team and first sharpshooter team. Marksman teams will be combined with the sharpshooter class for awards.

Class awards will be made on the basis of the number of entries in a class—Master, Expert, Sharpshooter and Marksman.

The Open Pair Event of the National Bridge Tournament brings out the best and sometimes the worst of the better bridge players throughout the country. Today's hand was played during this event in Dallas, Texas on Dec. 6, to both confuse the North-South bidding and reach a makeable part score contract. North made the proper countermove by overcalling 1 No Trump. East was now able to show his long but badly broken heart suit, after which the bidding was passed back to North. North again made the proper bid by making a second take out double. South realized that he must make some bid, despite his poor cards, and therefore chose his normally unbiddable spade suit. West doubled. North passed, indicating adequate support, so, with no better bid available, South let it stand.

West led the singleton heart and declarer studied the dummy. It appeared obvious that both the king of hearts and the king of clubs were offside. Chances of losing 3 diamond tricks appeared all too likely.

With declarer not daring to go down even one trick, for a minus 200 was certain to be a bottom board, the key to the hand was certainly the spade suit.

If West held 5 spades he could not be prevented from getting the setting trick. However, if West held only 4 spades, the greatest danger lay in his obtaining a ruff. Trumps had to be drawn before West could ruff.

Declarer won the first trick with dummy's ace, refusing the finesse and drew one round of trumps, noting the fall of the 10. A small club was led from the board and South again refused to finesse, winning this trick with the ace of clubs.

Declarer led the 9 of spades from his own hand and when West did not cover, successfully finessed it. Declarer now gave up the jack of clubs and the contract was safe.

It is worth noting that had declarer taken the initial finesse in hearts, the contract would have been defeated by West ruffing the good heart ace. Secondly, had declarer finessed the club on the third trick the contract may have been defeated by locking declarer in his hand or on the board. Refusing two finesses, however, made the contract untouchable.

Book Explains Service Customs

A Fort Benning booklet titled "Customs and Courtesies of the Service and Guide to Army Social Life" spells out the protocol for an officer and his wife — and their children.

The 36 - page compendium of the U. S. Army's views on etiquette was prepared by the Leadership Committee of the Company Operations Department.

"Adaptability" First

On page 25, under the heading "Customs," the Army wife is told that her first requirement is "adaptibility."

"Because of her husband's numerous and diverse assignments, there is insufficient time to establish real roots in any community. The service wife must become adept in establishing a homelike atmosphere for her husband and children, then adjust herself to the community as she finds it. As time proceeds she should do her best to improve conditions and help others. Through the women's clubs, coffees or luncheon groups, PTA's, Youth Activity Clubs and other organizations she may become a helpful citizen and leave her mark for betterment of the community.

"Established Ways"

"She must learn much about the Army, its standards and requirements, its codes and opportunities, its established ways, so that she may understand problems faced by her husband. This knowledge will help her to assist her husband to achieve most from his service. In all assignments, she is able to help greatly by inspiration, understanding and - encouragement.

"The Army wife should be a good manager. During the absences of her husband she will assume all manner of family responsibilities and obligations.

She is the social head of the family and will in most cases be the one who receives and replies to social invitations. It is she who plans such social events as purse permits and circumstances require.

"Neighborliness"

"In the Army, neighborliness is of prime importance. The Army wife should be especially considerate of the newcomer. The first impression of a new station is a lasting one. The newcomer should be extended every courtesy and assistance. Little things, such as an early visit, an invitation to share a meal, provide additional transportation, and offer assistance with children, will do much toward making the newcomer truly feel 'at home.' Being a good neighbor is the very cornerstone upon which customs of the service are built."

Paragraph four under "Additional Hints," which follows the chapter "Customs," outlines telephone behavior for the Army officer's wife and child.

"When you make a social telephone call, do not say, 'This is Mrs. Jones calling.' Say instead, 'This is Helen Jones calling.' However, when you answer the telephone, you say, 'Mrs. Jones speaking.' Children and household servants answer the telephone by saying, 'Major Smith's quarters, Billy Smith speaking,' or 'the aid speaking.'"

PROCTER & GAMBLE
In Advertising—Brand Management

- no previous experience needed
- substantial early responsibility; you are a part of our management from the day you start
- on-the-job training by experienced managers who will take a personal interest in your rapid development
- promotion only from within, and only on the basis of merit
- expanding business constantly generates opportunities to move up
- replies welcomed from men up to age 29

This is an unusual opportunity for college graduates who have discharged their military obligation and are now about to begin their civilian lives.

Advertising at Procter & Gamble is business management. You do not write ads or make layouts. Instead, you are concerned with the broad selling strategies that result in the advertising the consumer sees.

As a beginner in Brand Management, you would be trained on the job to take over responsibility for the effectiveness of the overall advertising and promotion of an important nationally advertised product. In effect, within the larger framework of the Company, you would be operating your own business with respect to your brand, with your efforts centering about costs of, preparation of, and results of advertising and promotion. All of this work is done in our General Offices in Cincinnati.

We also have beginning opportunities for men especially interested in copy, media, and merchandising management.

We are seeking aggressive men with leadership ability who like and want responsibility. Imagination, intelligence, and good judgment are other qualifications. These openings are springboards to upper management positions, so think in terms of spending the next thirty-five years of your life with us. We promote only from within, and only on the basis of merit. We do not know of any other organization where there is greater opportunity to advance on the basis of merit alone.

Here are some of the products we make; the promotion of one or more of these might be part of your future:

West Point Grad Makes Field Grade

Thomas D. Brown, a 1953 graduate of the United States Military Academy, Friday moved from company to field grade officer in ceremonies at the 2nd Infantry Division's Indiaphead Lodge.

Replacing the captain's silver tracks on Brown's shoulders with a pair of major's gold leaves was Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, the division commander.

Maj. Brown, 34, joined the division's (G-3) training section after serving on Project TEAM during the test of the 11th Air Assault Division in the Carolinas.

High points of his career, he said, were winning the Air Force's commendation medal for his work as a liaison officer at headquarters of the New York NORAD North American Air Defense) Sector and his service as assistant Inspector General of the 7th Infantry Division in Korea.

AT THE Movies

"FATHER GOOSE"... Starring Cary Grant and Leslie Caron. Cary's role is that of ex-professor of history who has rebelled against the structures of society and escaped to the South Pacific where, in a one-man-operated launch, he roves the tropical waters, errant as the sea zephyrs. His idyll comes to an abrupt end when he is pressed into service as a coast watcher to report movement of enemy planes and ships. In the course of his duties his lonely island outpost is "invaded" by Miss Caron, portraying the war-displaced daughter of a French consular official, and her seven schoolgirl charges.

SIGNPOST TO MURDER... Starring Joanne Woodward and Stuart Whitman. Whitman, a convicted wife killer, escapes from Milhampton Asylum for the criminally insane. He slips into the isolated house of Joanne Woodward whose husband is out of town on business. At the point of a knife he found in the attic, Whitman forces the woman to give him refuge. In a bizarre twist of fate, the body of Woodward's husband has been found, his throat slashed, along the bank of the mill stream. As the police close in, he frantically races against time to put together the puzzle that has set him up as the scapegoat.

YOUNG FURY... Rory Calhoun is coming home to die. Lean, tough, and ruggedly handsome, Calhoun will make his last stand in the town in which he was raised. Gunfighter and renegade, he is being pursued by the Dawson gang, with whom he once rode. Calhoun's son Tige leads a gang of young hellions who terrorize the territory. The inevitible showdown with the Dawsons arrives and Calhoun is joined by his son and his buddies in an action-packed blazing six gun fight to the finish.

'Indianheads' Prepare For Inauguration

BY JOE TREASTER

When President Lyndon B. Johnson takes his oath of office this month in Washington, D. C., 20 noncommissioned officers of the 2nd Division will be braced at attention within 50 feet of him.

Their job: to lend military dignity to the inauguration ceremony and give added protection to the President.

The 2nd Division men will be part of a 500-man honor cordon composed of men from the Army and the four other major services.

Of the 100 men provided by the Army, the largest single group of men will come from the 2nd Division.

"There were 20 spaces allocated to the Third U. S. Army — which includes Fort Benning and most of the southern states," said Maj.

Ribbon Cut at $30,000 Restaurant on Sand Hill

'Renovated Front to Back Door,' Says PX Officer

Free coffee and doughnuts yesterday signalled the reopening of the Sand Hill snack bar and restaurant—vastly improved at a cost of $30,000.

"Renovated from front door to back door" was the language Post Exchange (PX) Food Supervisor Howard Powell used to describe the changes that took place.

Customers will make their own milkshakes on self-vend machines and help themselves to toasty sandwiches from trays under heat lamps. Behind the scenes modernization includes corrugated aluminum walls in the kitchen and new refrigerating units.

Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, cut the ribbon to officially open the facility.

For the next hour, division soldiers were treated to free coffee and doughnuts by the Post Exchange.

The snack bar was overhauled at a cost of some $30,000 by the Fort Benning Post Exchange under the direction of Maj. Charles Crickmore, Exchange officer.

The restaurant now features the widest possible use

SAIGON BOMBINGS RECALLED BY DJ

BY JIM BAKER

The news of another bombing in Saigon has special meaning for one of radio station WGBA's announcers.

As he reads the news over the air he "pauses to remember" his own involvements in Viet Cong terrorist attacks.

Dual Occupation

A supply clerk in Company A, 122nd Signal Battalion, Sp4 Lee Hansen doubles as a part-time announcer at WGBA. Seven months ago he was in Viet Nam, stationed in the capitol, Saigon.

During that time he was bombed twice by the Viet Cong.

On the evening of February 18, 1964, Hansen and three friends sat watching "The List of Adrian Messenger" in the Capitol-Kihndo Theatre in downtown Saigon.

At the climax of the story, Hansen and his friends heard a call from the rear of the theatre, "Everybody down!"

Roof Falls In

Before anyone had a chance to react, an explosion rocked the theatre and in Hansen's words, "the roof fell in."

Hansen and his three comrades from Armed Forces Radio Saigon (AFRS) were seated seven rows from the back of the theatre. The concussion from the blast threw them into the next row forward. All received minor injuries and were treated and released.

Some of the victims of the attack were not so lucky. Two were killed in the "incident" and eight — four of them American dependents—were seriously injured.

One of the persons killed was an Ameri-

Div Directs Hunt for Missing Plane

A 2nd Division - directed force of some 18 planes and helicopters searched a tri-state area through midweek for a light private plane reported missing since last Sunday.

Tri-State Area

They began the aerial search over portions of Georgia, Florida and Alabama late Monday and by

The News' Wednesday deadline had found no trace of the missing plane.

In addition to the military planes, some 10 Civil Air Patrol aircraft combed regions of the three states along broad swaths of the flight pattern filed by the ill-fated craft. They too reported no success.

Last word from the single engine Piper Commanche with four persons aboard came about 10 minutes after take-off Sunday at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Plane's Occupants

The occupants of the plane were identified as: Robert Reynolds, Elkhart, Ind., his wife, Mrs. Brenda Reynolds, 24; their child, David, four; and J. Atkinson, the pilot.

The 2nd Aviation Battalion's Maj. Edward P. Priesendorfer, director of the military effort, said that 10 of the planes in the search came from the 21st Aviation Company at Fort Rucker, Ala.

When first word of the possible disaster came Monday from the Eastern Air Rescue Center at Warner Robins Air Force Base near Macon, Ga., Maj. Priesendorfer ordered five single engine reconnaissance planes into the air.

Choctaws Join Search

The next day he boosted the force to eight with the addition of three Choctaw (H34) helicopters.

Flying Wednesday was limited, he said, by heavy morning fog.

Tuesday, however, the mil-

Officials Announce Yearly Testing For Expert Infantryman's Badge

Division officials this week formally announced the standards the candidates for the Expert Infantryman's Badge (EIB) must meet in order to wear it.

Testing of candidates for the expert's badge will get under way in the division January 18 and will conclude January 30.

800 Men Set

Capt. Basil N. Apostle, G-3 project officer and overall administrator for the test, said some 800 division soldiers were slated to take the test. Of the 350 division soldiers tested last year, only 22 were awarded the EIB.

This year officials have planned that candidates will be tested on three consecutive days.

The first day, candidates will be required to undergo the Combat Physical Proficiency Test and the Bayonet Assault Course.

The Assault course has been described as "an unlovely example of what men can do to make it a tough day if they set their minds to it."

Forced March

On the second day the candidates must undergo a 12-mile forced road march and the day and night compass course.

On the third day the candidate will undergo exams at eight testing stations, all of which he must pass.

The candidate will have to demonstrate a superior knowledge in the fields of mines, demolitions and booby traps, cover and concealment, adjustment and

HOLMES JR., LEONARD M. HURST, LARRY G. JONES, JOSEPH M. MCTAGGART, HARRY PRIESTER, JOHN B. RODEN and KENNETH E. YODER. Battery B: JOSEPH R. ALLISON, DON C. BUGEL, JOHN C. LYELL, NICHOLAS J. GAUDIOSO, JESSE W. WERTMAN, HORACE L. COLEMAN, BERNARD LAPORTA JR., WALTER L. TAYLOR and LARRY E. ZIMMERMAN.

Battery B waves auf wiedersein to SSgt. JAMES C. MCLEOD; guess what country he's going to. (That last sentence was an indication of how really sickeningly cute column writing can be). Hello, Sp4 JOSEPH L. SHIRLEY and PFC WILLIE WASKOM JR. just back from temporary duty at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., says Battery B. (Our "plant" at Battery B, 12th did not give us a clue as to the sequence of those last two events, whether the battery, in fact, first said goodbye and then hello, hello and then goodbye, or both together or what. We'll let our astute readership crack that one.)

Another stringer tells us, in his words, that "Headquarters Battery of the 2nd Division Artillery knew what the boys wanted for Christmas and came through with its presents in the form of promotions." He further relates that while only one man was raised to specialist four, we must list 14 promoted to PFC. So for any readers we might still have left: WEAVER M. BAKER, DARRELL BROWNING, THOMAS J. GREENWOOD, MICHAEL L. SMITH, WILLIAM M. TURNER JR., ANTHONY N. CABEZUT, CHARLES W. CLARK, HAROLD K. CLARK, JAMES L. GAPINSKI, ERNEST F. HUBERT, DONALD G. LAUGHMAN, GENE L. RITZ and JIMMIE L. WALKER; presumably no relation to the late scalawag mayor of New York. (By the way, we just counted the list and that's only 13. The stringer shortchanged us.) To specialist four went ALVIN E. BERRY.

Sgt. JIMMY NEWMAN, training NCO for 1st Brigade Headquarters Company, has reenlisted for Hawaii, although he considers his last assignment "extremely enjoyable." Also at 1st Brigade, two men became specialists and two PFC's. To Specialist Four: WILLIE YOUNG and LARRY KYLE. To PFC: JOHN LOUGHRIE and GARY VARNUM.

Bear with us a bit longer as we tell you that MARTIN J. SWEENEY and JIMMIE WILLIAMS, both of the 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor, were promoted to specialist four.

As the last was hardly a telling blow, we hurry to deliver this crushing itemization: Eight men at the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion are now specialists four: JOSEPH E. ADAMS, and EUGENE A. O'NEIL of Headquarters Company; HERBERT A. BEASLEY and WILLIAM P. CLOUD of Company A; and ARTHUR J. BALLARD, GUMERSINDO GUZMAN, ROBERT HALL and NATHAN RANDOLPH of Company B.

Now, for sagging readers, if any, a closing fillip devoid of news of promotion. "The eyes of every child were aglow," a correspondent informs us, as they confronted "old Santa himself" at a 3rd Brigade Christmas party. The kids saw a movie in the mess hall, next gobbled cookies and ice cream and then spoke into a patch of artificial hair pasted on the face of MSgt. RAYMOND O. DUBE, who rewarded them with candy and a toy.

Inaugural

Gen. John H. Chiles, the division commander. "And the 2nd Division got them all. We consider it a great honor."

Three Alternates

An especially designated selection board determined the 20 men who would represent the division in Washington after screening the records of scores of applicants. Three alternates were also named.

Led by the division sergeant major, Robert L. Brown, the men represent nearly every area of military activity within the unit. Riflemen, engineers, medics and office workers are included in the contingent.

Average height of the soldiers is just over six feet and their average weight is 171 pounds.

They range in age from 22-year-old Sgt. Howard G. Mason of the 4th Squadron, 7th Calvary to 47-year-olds Sgt. Maj. Sherman A. Moore of the 1st Battalion, 12th Artillery and MSgt. Wilson G. Nelson of the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion.

Formal Uniforms

In the inaugural ceremonies the men will wear formal blue uniforms provided by the Army. The uniforms will become a part of the soldiers' personal wardrobes as a token of appreciation for their services, a division spokesman said.

This week tailors have been fitting the uniforms and have indicated they will be ready by the weekend.

Wednesday morning at 8 a.m. the 2nd Division cordon members are scheduled to be the guests on the Rozelle Show on WRBL-TV, Channel Three.

Tentative plans call for the contingent to fly to Washington on next Saturday and spend the next three days preparing for their role in the Wednesday ceremony.

While on the inauguration detail they will be lodged at Fort Myers, Va., in the quarters of the 1st Battalion, 3rd Infantry, the unit which provides guards for the tomb of the unknown soldier.

Restaurant

. . . the latest in self-service equipment to speed the operation, the food supervisor said.

The kitchen and all the facilities that the customer never sees have been completely remodeled; officials said. The walls of the kitchen are now paneled in corrugated aluminum and the refrigeration and dishwashing facilities are all new, they added.

The snack bar will open it. doors after the month of remodeling under the same managerial staff as before. Mrs. Suzanne Clark is the manager of the facility.

As remodeled, the new facility will handle some 75 to 80 persons at a sitting, said supervisor Powell.

Hardy Kinney, assistant to the food supervisor, said he realized division soldiers "have had a rough time of it during the past month." He expressed a hope that the "vastly improved facility" would be compensation for the month-long wait.

The food supervisor said in an interview that the snack bar did not carry a menu of ready-made hot lunches as there had been no demand for it in the past. He said that short order meals would continue to be available as in the past.

The hours for the new facility will be the same, officials said.

Testing

. . . the firing of a mortar, basic signal communications, patrolling, Chemical – Biological – Radiological warfare, first aid, field santitation and military courtesy.

The candidate will also be tested on his ability to throw hand grenades, his follow through and his ability to make use of available cover while throwing the grenades.

Test officials aren't revealing the exact requirements of each of the testing sites, but say they will take even the most proficient infantryman.

One of the requirements for the badge is that the candidate be an infantryman. Clerks, engineers, cooks and artillerymen are not eligible to take the test.

Apostle said the time alloted for testing had been cut in half as compared with last year. He said testing would be as thorough and far reaching as in the past.

Officials hope that the award of the badges can be made as soon after the test is completed as possible.

Hunt

. . . itary planes logged more than 104 air hours in 36 sorties.

Maj. Priesendorfer said that he divided search sectors designated by the Air Rescue Center into two portions. Fort Rucker planes worked the southern regions, he said, while planes from his unit serched to the north.

"The search could easily continue for the rest of the week," he said Wednesday. "We'll keep looking until we've covered every nook and cranny.

"Our planes are working zones within the search area. They fly back and forth in a parallel pattern much as a loom moves in weaving."

Films

. . . tivities of another nature.

Catholics will receive the convocation, led by Father Damien Green, at Chapel Two from 8:50 to 9:45 a.m. Protestants will remain in the theater for a message by CWO Duane Buza, a pilot from the 11th Air Assault Div.

Speaks to All

Richardson will speak to all the troops from 11:00 to 11:30. Protestant men of the Chapel (PMOC) of the 1st and 3rd Brigades will have lunch at the 2nd Division NCO club.

Father Green will lead the Catholic convocation from 1 to 3 p.m. at Chapel Two. Richardson will show a 30-minute film called "Spring Board" at Theater Six from 1 to 2 p.m. and will have a question and answer period.

Music and a final message by CWO Boza will conclude the activities.

All personnel who wish to attend the retreat should register at their orderly room or with their unit chaplain, a spokesman for the retreat said.

Wives Club Sponsors Dancing Classes for Interested Youngsters

The 2nd Infantry Division Officers' Wives Club has announced that it will sponsor a special course in social dancing.

In a joint statement, Mrs. William Conger, president of the club and Mrs. Richard Wood, chairman of the dance school, said the classes would be held under the auspices of the Fort Benning Ballet School.

The special course will begin January 12 and run through March 30.

The statement said children in the seventh grade and up will have the opportunity to learn the waltz, tango, rhumba, polka and some of the latest dance crazes lumped under the term "discotheque dancing."

Club officials emphasized that the classes are open to all children.

Classes will be held in building 1008 in the old hospital area on Tuesday evenings from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Rosie Gilmore, director of the Fort Benning Ballet School will be the instructor. Miss Gilmore has been with the school since 1956.

The statement urged parents to observe the classes and take part in the learning process of the pupils.

The statement went on to say that pupils may register for the classes by contacting Mrs. Wood at 545-4649, Mrs. Stipe at 561-3147 or Miss Gilmore at 323-3072.

Miss Gilmore quoted Lloyd Shaw in "The Round Dance Book:" — "The waltz is the loveliest blossom of our ballroom. It is the most satisfactory dance ever achieved by man."

Shaw, she explained, is noted for having toured the country with his dancers, and for his writings and teachings on the subject of the dance.

Miss Gilmore added that "the students who attend will not only learn the fundamentals of leading and following, but will have the opportunity to learn something of our dancing heritage in America.

Annual Coffee For 15th Ladies

Ladies of the 15th Artillery held their annual Christmas coffee at the home of the hostess, Mrs. William McCurry. Co-hostess for the affair was Mrs. Larry Jones.

Mrs. Samuel H. Fisher, Jr., conducted the business meeting. It was announced that Mrs. George Thompson would assume the duties of Mrs. Kenneth Hinson as hospitality chairman, and Mrs. Thomas McDavid is the new reservations chairman. It was also announced that a turkey had been purchased for a deserving member of the battalion.

Green house-plants were presented to two new mothers of the organization, Mrs. Harry Chambers and Mrs. Ralph Sturges.

After the meeting refreshments were served and novelty gifts exchanged. Mrs. Robert Gabrielli poured coffees.

Cocktail Party Means So-Long

The officers and ladies of the 38th Artillery held a cocktail hour at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The cocktail party was a farewell to Lt. Jan B. Bennett, who is leaving the battalion and the Army to return to civilian life.

Lt. Col. Robert Short presented Lt. Bennett with a miniature cannon as a farewell gift.

DivArty Wives Hold Gathering

The Christmas coffee for the ladies of Headquarters, Division Artillery was held recently at the home of Mrs. Frederick W. Foltz on St. Mary's Road. Mrs. Jerry M. Woodberry was co-hostess.

Three newcomers were welcomed: Mrs. John W. Goldsmith, Mrs. John H. Hesterly and Mrs. Katsuji Shizumura.

Farewells were said to Mrs. Warren M. Schaub and Mrs. Ralph M. Mobley.

The ladies also welcomed two guests: Miss Helen Middlebrooks, sister of Mrs. Woodbery, of Thomaston, Georgia, and Mercer University, and Mrs. Johnny Adams, sister-in-law of Mrs. James R. Adams, from Mannheim, Germany.

The ladies were served a variety of Christmas pastries.

Mrs. Francis E. Mendenhall poured.

Allman Home Scene For Spt Cmnd Coffee

The ladies of Headquarters, Support Command were entertained at coffee recently at the home of Mrs. Bernard Allman.

Assisting were Mrs. Frank Harper and Mrs. Peter La Rosa.

Many delicious confections, prepared by the hostesses, were served.

A seasonal party was discussed during a short business meeting.

Jackson Dinner

The officers and ladies of Headquarters, Support Command, enjoyed a covered-dish dinner given to usher in the holidays at the home of Col. and Mrs. Fred Orr Jackson.

1959 Pamphlet Tells Apparel of North Vietnamese Army

Sneakers, Wooden Helmets Normal Dress for Communist Soldiers

A Department of the Army pamphlet published in October 1959 outlines the uniforms of the (Communist) North Vietnamese People's Army. Pamphlet 30-55 is the latest word on the subject on hand at the 2nd Division Information Office.

The pamphlet states:

"The basic Vietnamese People's Army (PAVN) uniform is the field uniform. It is made of denim - type material and is green in color, although faded khaki and olive drab have been reported."

Field Uniforms

A sub - heading labelled "Field Uniforms" details the specifics of their dress.

"Officers wear the field uniform for field training, maneuvers and combat. This uniform consists of a single-breasted coat with matching trousers, web belt, canvas-top shoes, sandals or, sneakers with rubber soles. Headgear includes beret, service cap and cloth helmet of khaki cotton stretched over a wooden frame with camouflage netting. The cloth helmet is usually worn by all ranks. Woven straw hats and pith helmets are worn when appropriate.

Japanese or captured French helmets are worn by small numbers of PAVN troops. During the hot summer monsoon weather, a khaki or greenish khaki light-weight cotton shirtand trousers are worn. The shirt has two pleated breast pockets with buttoned flaps, buttoned cuffs and is worn open at the neck."

No Variety

Whereas the Communist Vietnamese officer has both a field and dress uniform, the PAVN enlisted man, at the time of the pamphlet's release, was restricted to the field uniform for all occasions.

"This uniform is similar in design to that worn by officers with minor exceptions—the coat has no lower pockets, the trousers have tie - string cuffs and the service cap is worn only on special occasions."

"However, the Vietnamese People's Army uniforms are undergoing a transition toward improvement and standardization," the phamphlet states. "A decree specifying new uniforms for generals and field - grade officers was approved on June 20, 1958."

Following a section on insignia, a brace of paragraphs devoted to awards and decorations completes the account, plus illustrations.

"The known principal decorations awarded to PAVN personnel are as follows, in what is believed to be the accepted order of precedence: Gold Star Medal; Ho Chi Minh Medal; Independence Medal; Resistance Medal; Military Exploit Medal; and Combat Medal."

Exotic Critera

The pamphlet further alludes to newer awards authorized by a decree of February 1958 which bear some rather exotic criteria for presentation.

The Vietnamese Liberation Troop Medal and Decoration, for instance, requires that the soldier has always been faithful to the Revolution and (has) not committed serious errors when (he was) in the Army or when (he) worked outside the Army."

While some of the medals require that no serious errors be committed, others are restricted to those who "have always proved their eagerness during their activities."

Officer Suggests New Year's Resolution That Would Put Dollars in Soldiers' Pockets

The division Inspector General, Lt. Col. James E. Gorman, this week urged "Indianhead" men to adopt a New Year's resolution calculated to fatten their wallets.

His proposed resolution would bring money to soldiers through a reciprocal action.

$1 a Month

"The idea," he said, "is to get every soldier to try to someway to save the Army $1 every month. This may seem like a small amount.

"But multiply $1 times 10,000 soldiers times 12 months and you get $120,000 dollars saved. When the Army can save that kind of money, it will begin costing less tax dollars, resulting in more money in everyone's pockets."

Some obvious ways of saving money, he said, are in conservation of electricity and basic supplies, including toilet tissue and cleansing powder.

In a program designated "Project TRIM," Army officials have indicated a hope to save $1 billion during fiscal year 1965.

An the Army has pegged the success of the project to the individual soldier and his observation at base level.

"The soldier himself is in an especially good position to observe and act in areas where small savings are feasable," one Army official said. "For example, pieces of equipment that are seldom used or that have been laid aside for long periods due to needed repairs, should be reported to superiors.

"These items can be turned in and reissued to units or individuals that have an immediate and continuing need for such equipment to accomplish their mission."

"These suggestions only pinpoint the more obvious. The opportunities for the individual soldier and civilian to contribute to the porgram are infinite."

Pretend Use of Nuclear Weapons Planned for Year's First Exercise

Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, commander of the 2nd Infantry Division, announced plans for a command post exercise in late January to open the 1965 training schedule.

An important part of the maneuver, he said, will be a drill in warning troops of the use of nuclear weapons against the enemy.

Atomics Simulated

"Unless our men know we plan to use a nuclear device," the general said, "we could lose as many of them as we take from the enemy. Of course, all of our nuclear activity will be simulated."

Gen. Chiles indicated that Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, one of the assistant division commanders, will be the exercise director.

He said that the maneuver will be conducted on the Fort Benning Reservation and that it will involve headquarters of all major and subordinate units down to battalion level.

Two Units

In addition, he said, Operational Readiness Tests will be administered to two units: the 26th Chemical Detachment and the 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment.

In a directive initiated in December Gen. Chiles outlined the objectives of the maneuver and told Gen. Coffin to submit an overall plan for the CPX."

Some of the goals of the maneuver, Gen Chiles said, will be to: Exercise command and staff procedures to ascertain and isolate areas requiring revision or further training emphasis and to practice processing and transmitting messages in a minimum time.

Gen Thanks Troops For Fund Drive Job

Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, commander of the 2nd Infantry Division, this week sent a letter of congratulations to his troops for attaining a 100 percent participation record in the United Givers Fund drive.

"Such enthusiastic support of a worthwhile undertaking is evidence of fine unit esprit and dynamic leadership at every level," he wrote.

Gen. Chiles indicated that his letter was prompted by one he received from the commander of the Infantry Center, Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges.

"I extend congratulations and my sincere appreciation to you and members of your organization," Gen. Heintges wrote. "With your voluntary efforts you have surpassed your organization's 'fair share' goal."

Copies of both letters were sent to the troops.

Third Army Inspectors Due Here

An Inspector General team from Third Army will visit the 2nd Division January 18-22 for an annual headquarters inspection.

Col. Dan E. Riggs heads a team of 14 officers and NCOs.

The five days the inspection will require, Monday through Friday, will lead off with a talk between Col. Riggs and Maj. Gen. John U. Chiles, division commander.

At that time, other members of the Third Army team will begin peering into the shape of things at staff, services and supply headquarters.

While combat units such as the infantry and armor are to remain untouched, inspectors will visit the brigade headquarters within whose sphere the infantry battalions operate.

A full list of organizations to be examined can be obtained from the division inspector general on Sand Hill.

Your Tour in Germany Can Be Very Satisfying With Right Attitude; The One Thing to Remember--YOU Are the Foreigner, Tread Softly

By JIM BAKER

"Goodbye son, and don't forget—to send your mother a cuckoo clock and a pair of lederhosen for your cousin."

If you've been lucky enough to have been stationed in Germany, you know that it isn't a land of cuckoo clocks and leather pants. If you're about to be stationed there, then you'll want to enjoy your tour as much as possible. The best way to do it is to abandon that idea of Germany immediately.

A Guide

A Department of Defense publication entitled "A Pocket Guide to Germany" describes the country and gives the soldier a frame of reference in which to meet his foreign allies.

One of the first points the guide makes is the fact that the first time the soldier sets foot on German soil, he becomes a foreigner. The guide also reminds the soldier that no one likes to have foreign troops stationed within their country and reminds the soldier not to "expect the German to be wildly enthusiastic about seeing you arrive."

"In order to understand the Germany of today it is necessary to know something about the Germany of Yesterday," the guide tells us.

For centuries, Germany was a collection of small independent states with sovereign rulers over each. In 1871, Prince Otto von Bismarck, chief minister of Prussia, provoked three quick wars with Denmark, Austria and France to forcibly unite Germany.

The resulting unification abolished the inhibiting trade barriers that existed before 1871. Germany grew rapidly as a military and industrial power. Under the leadership of Bismarck and the powerful "Junkers" of the upper classes of Prussian society, authority in the country was exercised by the Kaiser through a strong army and chancellor with the backing of industrialists.

Post World War I

After the defeat of Germany in World War I, the monarchy of the Kaiser was replaced by the Weimar Republic. It was the first time the country had experienced self-rule.

It was doomed from the start; the prohibitative war penalties levied by Britain and France, the bitterness of defeat, inflation and unemployment added to the difficulties of the new experience of democratic government.

In the 1930's Adolph Hitler and his National Socialist Party offered a blueprint for world conquest. After the disappointments of World War I and in reaction to the obvious vengence of the victors, it is not surprising that the grandiose Nazi scheme would be embraced by a disillusioned people.

Democracy

The events that led to the defeat of Hitler and his Nazi regime are familiar to all. Also familiar is the post-war division of Germany by the occupying allies, the eventual dropping of the Iron Curtain and the erection of the Berlin Wall.

The first nation-wide elections in Germany took place in 1949. The new German republic has attained more stability and wider popular support than the Weimar Republic was able to develop after World War I. It seems much more likely to last.

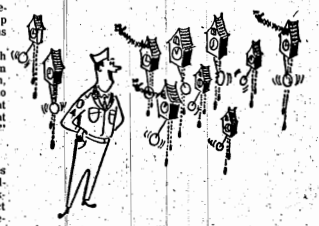
"Bitterly disillusioned with the dictatorship that led them to World War II and ruin, the German people seem to be showing the world—what many people doubted — that they can govern themselves," the pocket guide concludes.

The People

The pocket guide describes the German people as skilled, energetic and hard-working. The people have in fact done a marvelous job of rebuilding their devasted country.

The Germans work longer hours and for less pay. The American will be surprised to see the strict discipline within the social structure of the country.

Germans are usually more formal than we are here in America. This is not a problem, however, as the German has become accustomed to American informality.



Cultured

German contributions to the sciences, the arts and philosophy have been great down through the centuries and the guide reminds us not to think that we are superior to these tradition - minded people.

The guide concludes its informative tour of Germany with the reminder "never to forget that Germany is a host to our Armed Forces and an ally of our country."

"There is much for you to learn and to enjoy, and, in the future, you may look back upon this as one of the most worthwhile and unforgettable periods of your life."

'Highland Fox' Given Command At 3rd Bde; Has Guerrilla Past

By BYRON DUNHAM

Changing commands at two 3rd Brigade companies recently juggled the careers of a trio of captains.

The brigade's renowned "Highland Fox" recently emerged from his long-occupied lair in the unit's S-3 section to command Headquarters Company, 3rd Brigade.

Returns From Viet Nam

Capt. Charles R. Kuder was first assigned to the "Indianhead" Division following his return from Viet Nam in October 1963.

Barely a day after he reported to the 3rd Brigade he was sent to the forests of North Carolina as commander of a guerrilla band which was the centerpiece of the 2nd Divison's field training exercise Highland Fox.

As a result of his work with the civilian population in the maneuver area, Kuder and the entire guerrilla force were made honorary citizens of the city of Denton, N. C.

Guerrilla Force

For his final project while serving as the brigade's S-3 (Air), he wrote the training program and table of organization and equipment for a new 3rd Brigade guerrilla force scheduled to be commanded by Col. John W. Armstrong during maneuvers this year.

Capt. John L. Boles, outgoing commander at the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry's Company C, made a jubilant return to his special field—aviation.

He has accumulated more than 1200 flying hours with the Army in both planes and helicopters.

Now assigned as an airlift platoon leader at Company A, 2nd Aviation Battalion, Capt. Boles arrived at the "Manchu" Battalion in November 1963 from the 3rd Aviation Company in Germany, where he was the personal pilot of Gen. Albert Watson III.

He served the "Manchu's" as adjutant for two months and as "Charlie" Company's commander for nearly a year.

"Charlie" Company's new commander is a former general staff officer.

Capt. Harold J. Cloutier, recent member of the 2nd Division's G-1 section, traded work in a section that composes citations for awards and decorations for leading the men who may possibly become eligible to receive them.

Saigon Bombings

can Military Policeman on duty outside the theatre. He was shot four times as he tried to stop the bombers.

"Everyone in the theatre heard the shots," Hansen said, "but no one thought anything of it as the Vietnamese had been celebrating their lunar new year with fireworks for nearly a week.

Hansen says he has no desire to see how the Adrian Messenger movie ended. "It would only bring back very violent memories," he added.

Hansen arrived in Saigon in August 1963. He was a staff announcer and production manager with AFRS.

Just a month before the theatre bombing, Hansen was seated in the Di Khin Doe night club in Viet Nam when it was bombed, taking the lives of two Vietnamese.

Threat Ends Show

Hansen also was an active member of the amateur Saigon Theatre Guild. He played in "Send Me No Flowers" and was cast in a production of "All My Sons" when it had to be cancelled because of a Viet Cong threat to blow up that theatre.

Hansen was a disc jockey with radio station KNEW, Spokane, Wash. before entering the Army.

He is presently heard daily from 5 to 7 a.m. on WGBA and Sunday mornings and afternoons as well.

He says he will use the money from his part-time job to finance his way through the Ogden School of Radio Operational Engineering and the Northwest Radio and Television University. This will take about a year after he is discharged from active duty, Hansen says.

Among his other talents, he is an amateur ventriloquist. While in Viet Nam, he teamed up with another soldier to tour the battle area with a USO entertainment troupe.

He also has been active in the Fort Benning Little Theatre since his return from Viet Nam. He played in the recent production of "The Tempest."

Clinic Termed 'Way Station for Disturbed People'

By BOB de CAMARA
Editor, The 2nd Division News

The 2nd Division's Mental Hygiene clinic is a sort of way station for disturbed people.

The dilemmas of men most frequently encountered at the clinic are due to marital or financial problems, homesickness or grating personality clashes — taxing but relatively minor in nature.

Those more seriously afflicted are passed on to Martin Army Hospital. If more serious yet, they are transferred from there to Walter Reed in Washington.

Those in less trouble often remain in their units while therapy is in progress.

There are 10 trained staff members at the division clinic whose official title is "2nd Division Mental Hygiene Consultation Service."

One, a psychiatrist, Capt. Henry E. Clare, usually has the final word on disposition of the cases, if the seriousness warrants it.

A rung below on the ladder is the social worker, Lt. James A Walsh. Next are the 4 social work specialists and 4 psychology specialists.

Most of the 8 enlisted men have undergone an eight-week course in their field at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., the Army's medical nucleus.

Mental diseases such as multiple personality, neurasthenia or hysteria (neuroses all) are rare enough to seldom arise.

The psychoses — those mental diseases generally categorized by complete inability to cope with environment and requiring hospitalization — are passed on to Martin.

Spc Ramsey Bartlett, the chief of enlisted men, describes the clinic's mission as "conservation of the fighting strength."

"Social and emotional problems," he says, "that interfere with the functioning of military personnel" are combatted by the application of "sound mental health principles."

The clinic's workers, who are in garrison most of the time, are assigned to the 2nd Medical Battalion.

Hours at the clinic are the regular Army work day, 7:30 to 4:30.

Bad Discharge

While it is the exception, mental abberation can lead to something less than a shining discharge from the Army.

This is often true for those men manifesting sexual disorders.

They appear before a board staffed with officers selected from throughout the division. The board is armed with the evaluation of the case psychiatrist.

They deliberate and make their decision known. It is sometimes a hasty discharge.

Cases of sexual disorder, says Bartlett, seem to occur in waves. He offers no explanation.

Another nasty alternative to discharge or reestablishment is courts-martial. This again is an exception. But it does happen.

For the most part, the men are a common sort, with common problems of a personal nature. Bedeviled, they seek a dose of relief at the clinic. And finding it, they return to their unit to thresh out the normal storms of life in company with their fellows.

New Microwave Measuring Instruments In the Offing at DivArty; Called 'Timesavers'

BY HANK ALLISON

Always the pioneer in technological developments, the Army will issue all artillery headquarters survey sections its new Microwave Distance Measuring Equipment during 1965.

Some method of indirect distance measurement was needed to reptace the time honored "taping" method used since the advent of the science of surveying.

As the Army increasingly narrowed its time limitations, tapping became too time consuming to be practical.

The need for distance measuring equipment was somewhat filled with the introduction of the Tellurometer in 1958.

This instrument, though extremely accurate in measuring distances up to 64,000 meters, was inclined to give ambiguous readings not easily detectable by other than a highly-skilled operator.

The unit consists of a transmitter and receiver and the distance is reckoned by computing the time required for the radio beam to travel from the master unit to the receiver.

The new distance measuring equipment, called DME, works on a microwave principle, thus eliminating the disadvantages of the Tellurometer.

Both units of the new equipment have sending and receiving capabilities, allowing a double check of computations from both ends of the line to be measured throughout the five broadcast channels of the instruments.

The DME is also much more compact with each unit powered by a self-contained 10 lb. nickel cadmium battery. It is completely transistorized and a great improvement over the tellurometer.

Col. Tony F. Perpich, Division Artillery commander, stated that the new device would be "a great timesaver" for all units in Division Artillery.

Wartime Chief Meets Present 'Indianheads'

BY ART CHIEPPA

A two-star general, who led the 2nd Division into battle in Korea, recently encountered a group of his "Indianheads" at sea—and he bubbles with praise for them in a letter to the current division commander.

In a letter to Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles and signed "Dutch," Maj. Gen. (Ret.) Lawrence B. Kaiser tells of his meeting the soldiers bound for Hawaii aboard the troop-ship Patrick.

Outstanding

"They were outstanding in bearing, appearance, neatness of dress and courtesy," wrote Gen. Kaiser, who debarked another vessel at Pusan, Korea at the head of the 2nd Division in 1950.

"You should well be proud to send out such men," the general continued in his note. "I, myself, was proud to introduce myself and felt a special dignity in claiming myself an 'Indianhead.'"

Gen. and Mrs. Kaiser were on a voyage to Manila via the Far East at the time of the encounter.

War Footing

On July 8, 1950, the same day he took command, Gen. Kaiser was alerted to put his 2nd Division on war footing.

By the next month the division was fully assembled in Korea's Pusan Perimeter where U. N. troops held a narrow foothold.

They broke out of there, in combination with an amphibious landing higher up the coast staged by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, and chased the dispirited enemy north.

By November when it looked as if the war might be over by Christmas, the Communist Chinese entered the fray with massive quantities of "volunteers."

"Hold The Door"

The message came to Gen. Kaiser: "Hold the door for the rest of the Eighth Army to withdraw and regroup."

W-2 Forms for Tax Filing Due for Annual Exams

For the second year, W-2 forms used by division soldiers to fill out their tax statements will be systematically examined.

W-2 forms are familiar as the slips listing yearly earnings and deductions — federal tax and social security.

Should examination of 10 per cent of the division's W-2's disclose errors in two per cent of them, then division money chiefs will schedule examination of the other 90 per cent.

In this case, the examinations amount to a double-check on the people who totted up the figures on the form.

Examiners will not seek to determine whether those figures should have been listed on the forms in the first place.

W-2's for all division units will undergo scrutiny January 18-30, and the units themselves will supply examiners.

An officer, warrant officer or NCO in grade E-6 or above is to be furnished to the Military Pay Branch by 8 a.m. by units whose forms are being examined on that day.

Basketballers Start New Slate, Quest for CG's Trophy Renewed

The second round of the division basketball schedule was kicked off Monday night at Kimbro Gymnasium with a pair of lopsided contests.

In the first game, the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion whipped the quintet from the 2nd Administration Company 82-51. The contest kicked off the Apache league schedule and started anew the race for the Commanding General's Trophy.

Scorers

Gerry Charles, Chuck Stewart and Mel Nicol were the scoring leaders for S and T. They scored 14 points apiece. Vernon Plummer of 2nd Admin. Company was the high scorer for the night with 26 points.

Supply and Transport took second place in the Apache league after ending the regular season in a three-way tie with the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantr, and the 37th Artillery. They lost to the 23rd in a sudden death playoff.

Drubbing

In the second rout of the evening, the 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor drubbed the hapless 17th Artillery 91-29. Hayden of the 72nd was the high scorer in the game with 26 points.

The 72nd Armor and the 17th Artillery ended the 1st half season's play in a tie for 4th place. They both had identical two win and five loss records in the Commanche league.

Tuesday night only one game in each league was scheduled. It turned out to be the one game, period, when 122nd Signal Battalion of the Apache league was unable to field a team on short notice.

They had the same day decided to replace Division Headquarters in the Apache League when Div Hqs suddenly pulled out of the basketball season.

Signal does expect to have five men on court on time for the next game, although they had to forfeit the one Tuesday night to the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion.

The game actually played Tuesday evening, in the Cherokee League, saw the 2nd Engineer Battalion walop 12th Artillery, 112 to 74. The engineers were led on their rampage by Robert Cameron with 26 points.

1st Bde Marksmanship Chooses Division-Level Team in Shoot-Off

By JIM LULL

"Marksmanship" is the password at the 1st Brigade Brigade commander, Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow, in accordance with the emphasis placed on good marksmanship at division level, staged a four - day 1st Brigade "shoot-off."

Elimination Matches

The purpose of the competitive firing was to determine the individual and team firers that would represent the 1st Brigade during the Commanding General's Rifle and Pistol Championship matches to be held next week.

Participating in the competition were both battalions under the 1st Brigade — the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry, commanded by Lt. Col. John D. White and the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry, under the command of Lt. Col. Strathmore K. McMurdo — along with the 1st Brigade Headquarters Company, commanded by Capt. William Rosenthal.

All phases of expert marksmanship were covered, as the rifle, pistol and automatic rifle were all used.

Practice Firing

This week, Monday and Tuesday, was used primarily for orientation and practice firing.

Team captains were each briefed Monday. All entrants fired during an organized practice session, and the match range facilities were all completed in preparation for the first day of recorded firing.

On Tuesday, the first three events, all of them practice rounds, were fired. The practice firing included all weapons and target distances that would be used later in the week during the record firing.

All individual firing was completed Wednesday. The first round of time firing was also held Wednesday, with the finalists to compete the following day.

2nd Division SPORTS

Tankers Capture Holiday Basketball Tournament

The "Tankers" of Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor dominated the holiday sporting scene by winning a company-level basketball tourney.

They defeated Battery C of the 37th Artillery in the opening round and never looked back.

John Hendley, captain of the "Tanker" team was the leading scorer for the tournament.

Championship

In the Championship game, Hendley led the Armor quintet to a 70 to 62 win over the "Wheels" of the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion. He scored 28 points in the game.

Melvin Nicol, a stellar performer in regular season play, for S & T was the captain and high scorer of the Company B entry that finished second in the double elimination tournament.

Pleasure

There were 16 entries in the holiday "go-round" sponsored by Special Services. Lt. Gary L. Taylor, special services officer, expressed pleasure with the response to the tournament.

Of the 16 teams entered, five represented the five batteries comprising the 37th Artillery.

The predominance of 37th Artillery entries resulted in Battery C of the 37th taking third place honors in the two week tournament.

The remainder of the entries came from Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry; Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry; C Troop, 7th Cavalry; Company C, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry; Company B, 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry, Support Company, 2nd S and T Battalion; and Troops A and B, 7th Cavalry.

The Aftermath

by Jim Baker

Al Wilmot, the professional at the Sand Hill Golf Course has some bargains and a tip for division golfers.

He says beginners should approach golf the right way from the start. He suggests lessons immediately.

He also has his entire stock of 1964 model golf clubs on sale at cost price. The clubs and the prices looked so good this columnist was tempted to take up the game.

Al is a lean, muscular man who only took up the game nine years ago. His Army job had him stationed at Fort Benning at the time.

Since that time he has pushed his game until he carries a three handicap. He says that he can go the Sand Hill course in par but the course on Main Post presents greater problems.

Upon his return to the United States and Fort Benning, from France, he has only participated in one tournament. He took the consolation prize in the second flight of a Green Island Hills tournament last year.

In 1959, Wilmot was stationed in Orleans, France where he became a member of the special services group there. His handicap at the time was a staggering 18. In two years he dropped it to three and took over as pro at the Orleans course. Shortly before returning to the states he took the club championship.

Al has been active in athletics aside from golf. Two years ago he coached a basketball team to the SHAPE (Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers, Europe) Invitational Tournament championship.

He is a native of Tazewell, Tenn. He lives with his wife Donna and their four children—two boys and two girls—in Columbus.

Al's price for golf lessons is another reason to take up the game—a mere two dollars per half hour.

Lessons will not be given for the next few weeks as the driving range is presently closed. They are scheduled to start within the month.

The fine display of athletic participation staged by the 37th Artillery during the recent Company level Basketball tourney is to be praised. Participation of this sort should be the goal of everyone in the division.

Questions and Answers on INSURANCE!
Question:
"Is Insurance Mandatory In Georgia?"

Floyd Pittman
No . . . and will not be in the near future. Many people have confused our Georgia Financial Responsibility Law to mean that everyone MUST have insurance . . . however it does not. It only states that if you are involved in an accident of over $100, you must (1) make a report to the state and (2) have sufficient liability insurance ($10 20 5) or suffer suspension of tags and driving license . . . no matter what state they were issued in. Also you can lose your tags and license if you are involved in two traffic violations inside a 12 month period. You stand to lose not only your license but your car, home, personal effects, and any other you have saved if you are at fault in an auto accident, and are not sufficiently insured. Our agency is able to offer you quality coverage at fair prices. "YOUR record sets the rate" at

Air Assault Caribous Aid Stricken Areas

By Mike Gershon

A call for emergency relief in the flood stricken northern California - Oregon area was answered Dec. 29 by a unit of the 37th Air Transport Battalion.

Seven CV-2 Caribous from the 17th Aviation Company, commanded by Maj. Thomas G. Zeik, are based at Eureka, Calif. where they obtain supplies and emergency medical equipment.

The Caribous are utilizing the low level extraction (LOLEX) method of dropping the supplies. As the aircraft passes over a drop zone, a parachute is released and the load, secured to a special pallett, is yanked from the rear of the plane.

As of Dec. 31, eight sorties were flown totaling 16 hours, 15 minutes; they carried 18 passengers and have carried over 17 tons of food and support to stricken areas.

One drop, consisting of 5 tons of supplies, was made to the hard hit town of Garberville, Calif.

Continual bad weather has held down flights, but all LOLEX equipment is operational.

Mess facilities, billets and administrative support is scheduled to extend over a 14-day period.

The 37th Air Transport Battalion, an attached unit of the 11th Air Assault Division is commanded by Lt. Col. John Lauterbach and was one of the original units to test the LOLEX technique at Fort Benning.

Headquarters Gets New CO

Maj. John Ferguson, previous S-3 officer for the 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry has been assigned as Headquarters Commandant in the 11th Air Assault Division.

He replaces Maj. Donald Chesnut who has been reassigned to the 2nd Infantry Division.

Maj. Ferguson also served as commanding officer of Troop B, of the 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry for 18 months.

A native of Patterson, N. J., he now resides with his wife, Joan and their five children at 401 D, Bjornstad st Fort Benning.

Aircraft Maintenance Battalion Wins 'Minuteman' Savings Award

In a presentation ceremony held last month on the 197th Brigade parade field, the 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion was awarded the United States Army Minuteman Flag and the Third United States Army Savings Award (Gold Citation) for outstanding participation in the United States Army Savings Bond program.

The entire 611th Battalion, commanded by Lt. Col. Charles W. McQueary, was present for the ceremony. Those participating in the ceremony included Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general, 11th Air Assault Division; Mr. Marvin L. Summers, area representative on the United States Treasury Department in Atlanta; and Lt. Col. McQueary.

Under the provisions of appropriate United States Army and Third Army regulations, all companies of the battalion have been participating in this program throughout the present calender year. Overall participation which was necessary to achieve this award included over 90 per cent participation by a unit of more than 1,000 personnel strength.

The 611th Battalion achieved this goal on June 14, 1964 when the battalion achieved a 92.73 per cent participation with 931 of 1004 personnel actively supporting this Savings program.

In addition to the battalion award, each individual company within the battalion received appropriate Minuteman and Third Army savings certificates for their participation. Headquarters and Headquarters Company, commanded by Capt. Richard F. Repp, had 95.59 per cent participation. Company A, commanded by Maj. Harold T. Campbell had 92.45 per cent participation. Company B, commanded by Maj. Eugene R. Walsh achieved 84.75 per cent participation. Company C, commanded by Maj. Merle E. Bounds had 100 per cent participation. Company D, commanded by Maj. Roger A. Doucette had 94.24 per cent participation.

The Minuteman Flag has been an integral part of the United States Army Savings Bond Program since 1955. Since that time between 250-300 units throughout the Army have achieved this award.

Sky Soldiers See Odd Shapes As Pilots Test New Helicopters

By Mike Gershon

Sky Soldiers of the 11th Air Assault Division may have been noticing two odd shapes whizzing past in the sky in the last month.

Unlike the typical helicopters of the division, the two being tested here are of a new type.

A technical test team from the Aviation Test Board, Ft. Rucker, Ala., has been flying the LOH-5A and LOH-6A helicopters to determine their military potential, prior to the awarding of a contract for the LOH.

Pilots Capt. B. A. Brassfield and Mr. Richard Daniels are presently assigned to the task of subjecting the helicopters to air assault conditions.

Two things being evaluated in the testing are the amount of sand and grass the choppers take in and maneuverability with the other division aircraft.

The team is using Manilla Helipad as their base of operations and has spent a total of about two weeks in operation so far.

Testing is scheduled to run for approximately 250 hours on each helicopter.

The OH-6A, a helicopter produced by the Hughes Corporation is the smaller of the two and resembles an egg with a tail. Its top speed is 128 miles per hour.

A chopper resembling the UH-1 is the Hiller OH-5A which has a top speed of 110 miles per hour. Both ships seat four people.

The pilots seemed confident that the "ships" are

Division Reviews '64

By MSgt. Mike Kukler

Sky Soldiers from the 11th Air Assault Division can look back at 1964 and feel proud of the many achievements they have accomplished in preparation for the New Year of 1965.

In January members from the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion, made the largest mass flight in the United States by using 50 helicopters to assist the Florida National Guard. This flight included take-offs and landings in complete darkness. It covered over 250 miles from Fort Benning to Camp Blanding, Fla.

Also in January Maj Gen Harry W. O. Kinnard, 11th commanding general was guest speaker at the Columbus - Fort Benning Chapter of the Military Order of World Wars at the Main Post Officer Club. Lt Gen Bruce K Holloway, Deputy Commander of Strike Com from McDill Air Force Base, Fla., observed the Sky Soldiers train here at Benning. 228th Reassigns Officers

A large scale reorganization is taking place in the 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion. Maj. Walter B. Russell Jr. is leaving the job of Battalion executive officer to assume the duties of 11th Aviation Group S-3. To take his place in battalion, Maj. Joseph F. Rutkowski will take over the executive officer job leaving his former position of Company "B" commanding officer.

Maj. Rodney W. Spotts will be coming over to the S-3 office and Capt. Lonnie T. Howard will be the new Company "A" commanding officer. Capt. Taylor D. Johnson has the new and difficult task of being Airfield Commander at the new Munsan Heliport.

To fill the open position of Company "B" commanding officer, Capt. Bobby E. Bogard, former executive officer of Company "C," will be transferring to Company "B" to assume this job. Capt. Otto J. Heirholzer and Capt. Donald H. Yenglin will fill the positions of executive officer of "C" and "A" Companies respectively.

Capt. Robert Parker will be leaving the job of Adjutant to go to Company "A" while Cap't. Wayne T. Boles will assume the job of Adjutant. Capt. Richard L. Eakley will take the job of commanding officer in Headquarters and Headquarters Company.

A Woman Who Cares

People and Places Spark Her Life

By Lucille Beard

Helene Wright is a woman who cares. Paramount in the qualities of the wife of the Assistant Division Commander, 24th Air Assault Division, is an exuding of unselfish interest in people, from her two sons and husband, the core of her world, to the welfare of every person in her community.

Helene Tribit met Jack Wright when they were both in the tenth grade in Los Angeles. Having won a scholarship to the University of Southern California, the future general's wife entered the College of Architecture and Fine Arts and became a member of Alpha Chi Omega Sorority. In June, 1940, following June Week and graduation from West Point, the young lieutenant and his bride-to-be returned to Los Angeles and, were married there on June 28th. Shortly thereafter, when leaves were curtailed due to a worsening of the world situation in relation to the war in Europe, Lt. Wright reported to the Coast Artillery School at Ft. Monroe. Having obtained an old car and renewed old acquaintances, the newly weds enjoyed not only the one month at Monroe but also a trip to the Phillipines on an overcrowded troop transport ship, which Mrs. Wright hopes has been safely sunk for the good of mankind. The voyage entailed 34 days, intense heat, and salt water showers. Enroute, assignments were given, and 2nd Lt. Wright was ordered to Corregidor. For the few months between November 1, 1940 and May of 1941, the Wrights lived army life in its finest pre-war manner, occupying well staffed, beautiful quarters. In May, 1941, however, dependents were completely evacuated from Corregidor. Helene returned to the home of her parents in Los Angeles to await the arrival of her son, John MacNair Wright, III, who was born August 12, 1941. In May, 1942, Corregidor fell, and Lt. John Wright was listed as Missing in Action. One and a half years later, Mrs. Wright learned that her husband was a Prisoner of War of the Japanese. During the entire four year period of her husband's interment, the lieutenant's wife received three briefly worded Red Cross postcards, each over six months old when it reached her.

MRS. WRIGHT

In August, 1945, Capt. Wright was released in Korea, returning in October to his wife and the four year old son he had never seen. Until January, 1946, he remained in Los Angeles as an outpatient, following which he visited all five basic branch schools of the U. S. Army as part of a special Prisoner of War Orientation Course. Following this tour Maj. Wright was assigned to the Pentagon. On June 28, 1946, Mrs. Wright joined her husband in Washington for their sixth wedding anniversary, the first they had ever celebrated together. Mrs. Wright remembers Washington as a center of activity, a Mecca of interesting persons and landmarks, but especially as the birthplace of her second son, Richard Kenneth, born at Walter Reed December 16, 1946.

During the period Maj. Wright was assigned to the Pentagon, he transferred to branch infantry. Following his attendance at Strategic Intelligence School, the major became the U. S. Military Attache' to Paraguay. Again the Wrights reached their destination on November 1st, and again Helene's tour was to be ended by evacuation.

The new attache' and his wife could not immediately enter Paraguay because of a revolution (there were six in Paraguay during their brief tour).

Within the next few years, the Wrights became well acquainted with Ft. Benning. After attending the Infantry Officers' Advanced Course and being promoted to lieutenant colonel, Lt. Col. Wright served as a battalion commander in the 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment.

Following the colonel's graduation from Command and General Staff College in 1953, Helene again returned to Los Angeles to live with her sons while her husband served 16 months in Korea. Mrs. Wright continued her active interest in Boy Scouting which had begun when she and her future husband were teenagers. Their first dates had been at Boy Scout functions, and General Wright's early and avid interest in Scouting was contagious. With her husband gone and Rick entering Scouts, Helene carried on with their joint endeavor. Both sons, like their father, are Eagle Scouts, and both went on into Explorer Scouts. Having continuously worked in Scouting for over thirty years, in 1963 Gen. Wright served as Scoutmaster for the selected troop of American Boy Scouts stationed in Europe, participating in the World Scout Jamboree in Athens, Greece.

After the then Lt. Col. Wright's return from Korea and his acquistion of a Master's degree at the University 1956, the Wrights returned to Washington for five years. The chief extra-curricular activity for the entire family was Boy Scout work. Mrs. Wright was able also to garden.

In July, 1961, Mrs. Wright accompanied her husband to Germany where he was Chief of Staff of the 8th Division in Bad Kreuznach. A year later, when Col. Wright was assigned to Headquarters, 7th Corps, the Wrights moved to Kelley Barracks in Stuttgart and again to Patch Barracks, Stuttgart, Headquarters for the 7th Army. Because of his work, the colonel was not able to travel with his wife frequently, although they did have three brief trips together, including an impressive trip to West Berlin and a visit to Col. Wright's brother, who was then Naval Attache' to the Hague.

When General Wright attained his present rank, Fort Benning became home again. With Jack attending the University of Maryland in College Park, Maryland, and Rick a plebe at West Point Helene Wright has gone on with her vital and continuous intgrest in the needs of people around her. Her personal thoughtfulness and concern for honesty and simplicity have earned her the respect and admiration of those with whom she has served. Having consented to work as coordinator between the Officers' Wives' Club, with its wealth of welfare work, and the Community Services Agency, Mrs. Wright is continuing in a concrete way to care for her fellow citizens.

The Way to His Heart...

If the way to a man's heart is really through his stomach, the SKY SOLDIER NEWS is ready to help you ladies win (or keep) that man of yours by adding to its Society Page this series of previously unpublished recipes. To lengthen the life of this weekly column, the editorial staff asks you ladies to dig into the back of that kitchen drawer or in the old cookbook (or where ever ladies save recipes) and send your favorite unpublishd recipes to us at the 17th Air Assault Division Information Office, Fort Benning, so that we might share them with our readers.

OLD FASHIONED POUND CAKE

1 lb. Butter
1 lb. Flour (sifted)
1 lb. Eggs
1 lb. Sugar
1 tsp. Salt

Cream butter, add flour and salt to butter, mix thoroughly. Beat eggs in a separate bowl until light, add sugar and continue beating. Stir egg mixture into butter mixture. Blend well, but do not over-beat. Pour into well greased tube pan. Place in cold oven, set at 325 degrees F. Bake for 1 hour, 30 minutes.

Rak Officer Uses 'Bootstrap' Plan

Capt. Jackie B. Cummings, assistant operations officer for the 1st Air Assault Brigade's 1st Battalion, 187th Airborne Infantry will move out for Omaha, Neb. late in January to begin classes at the University of Omaha the 1st of February under the Army's "Bootstrap" program.

The captain will be TDY to the university for 166 days, at the end of which time he will receive his Bachelor of Science Degree, majoring in Education.

The "Bootstrap" program enables members of the Army who have completed the necessary undergraduate work, to attend a university to complete the necessary work to acquire a degree.

'Natty Bumpo Ball' Rings in New Year

The 11th Air Assault Aviation Group welcomed the new year with a costume ball at the new CV-2 (CARIBOU) hanger at Lawson Army Airfield. Sponsors of the party, the 11th Aviation Group Provisional Pathfinder Company, dubbed it the "natty bumpo ball," a radio call sign used by that unit during AIR ASSAULT II. The festivities began with a unique entry by gentlemen (and some ladies) via a parachute harness attached to a cable which delivered the breathless party goers at a rather rapid rate of descent from the upper floor of the hanger to the "ball room" area.

A special "de-icer" punch was served early in the evening to "get the show on the road" with dancing to music by "The Abstracts."

During the evening a variety of costumes could be seen adding luster to the already glowing event.

The new year was toasted with champagne and a "de-fogging" breakfast was served in the wee hours.

38th Ladies Coffee At 'Lovely Home'

The ladies of the 38th Artillery, had their monthly coffee recently.

Mrs. Robert Short was hostess for the group in her lovely new quarters on Rainbow Avenue.

Battery Receives New Command

On Jan. 4, Headquarters Battery, 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery welcomed a new commander, Capt. Raymond I. Dimmick assumed command from Capt. Richard Sundt. Lt. Col. Robert W. Short, the battalion commander pinned the green tabs of command on Capt. Dimmick and Capt. Sundt passed the guidon to him.

Capt. Dimmick has been in the battalion for nine months. He has served as the Battalion Adjutant with additional duty as Liaison Officer to the 17th Cavalry when the battalion is deployed in the field. His prior service includes 13th Air Force duty during World War II and National Guard duty.

Capt. Sundt has been assigned to the battalion for ten months. He has served as the Headquarters Battery commander since his arrival. Upon graduation from the U. S. Military Academy in 1958, Capt. Sundt attended Airborne School at Fort Benning. A graduate of the Artillery Officer's Career Course, he is now the Battalion Adjutant.

188th Infantry Battalion Joins 'Rappeler' Ranks

On the morning of January 1, 1965, Alpha Company, 1st Battalion, 188th Infantry, under the supervision of the battalion rappelling officer, 2nd Lt. John Langston, lead the "Eagles" to the field to qualify its soldiers as Sky Soldiers by rappelling with equipment from UH-1B helicopters. Then Lt. David E. Hoffman followed suit by supervising and guiding the men of Bravo Company to become rappell qualified. And later Charlie and Delta companies joined the other two "Eagle" units by rappelling their personnel from aircraft on January 5, 1965.

In retrospect, the entire battalion spent the week of December 28 "jumping" the men from the 34-foot tower with and without equipment. The safety personnel stressed quick reaction and emergency procedures. Each student became proficient at proper handling of the rappell ropes, the tying of the various knots, and execution of jump positions. After each man gained confidence with the ropes and rappell harnesses, he was allowed one jump from a hovering helicopter without equipment.

Monday and Tuesday were devoted to jumping the men fully equipped with weapons and web gear onto open fields and later into wooded areas to give a variety of experiences to them. Local news media visited the "Eagle" battalion, inquiring and recording the exact procedures used by the unit in training its members. Noteworthy was the high degree of safety and confidence displayed by the various participants at the training sites.

NCO's Attend Artillery Ball

The noncommissioned officers of Battery A, 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery, headed by 1st Sgt. Austin D. Morrison, recently attended the NCO Artillery Ball at the Sand Hill NCO Club. This 11th Air Assault Division Artillery Formal was held in commemoration of Saint Barbara, the artillery's patron saint.

Tests and Training Fill 38th Schedule Following 'Relaxing' Holiday Season

After a relaxed Christmas-New Year's holiday, Battery C, 5th Battalion 38th Artillery is starting off with an extremely busy schedule. Calibration Firing, Service Practices (which envolves both Forward Observer Training and training of the howitzer crews), Command Management Inspection (CMMI), Battery Annual Training Test, Battalion Annual Training Test, are all on the agenda during the next few months.

Besides these mandantory tests and the annual training, other projects such as M-14 qualification and improving the Day Room facilities are keeping the officers and men busy and providing a chance for those with imagination and initiative to show themselves.

Battery Commander, Capt. William F. Misiak stated that, "The propect of faceing tests and annual training can be a method of providing incentive for getting a job done, and as each phase has been completed, a sense of accomplishment and a certain amount of confidence can be the first rewards".

Sky Soldiers Review '64; Await Action of New Year

tion Day ceremonies and the 11th received the Grover E. Bell award for its pioneering work and research in the helicopter field.

Idea Center Opened

Gen. Kinnard officially opened the new "Idea Center" in the Harmony Church area. Here each Sky Soldier got his chance to submit his idea so that the 11th Air Assault Division could travel further faster and lighter.

A historic Bible that rested on every 11th commanders desk in peace and war was presented to the 11th. The Bible was given to Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, wartime 11th Airborne Division commander by Lt. Col. Luther G. Schliesser in the Philippine Islands during World War II.

Gen. Kinnard became a qualified helicopter pilot in February by learning to fly whenever time permitted. The 11th also held Religious Reflection Day.

Lt. Gen. Alfred Erich Zerbel, West German Army Chief of Staff paid a visit to the 11th Air Assault Division in March. The new Army Secretary Stephen Ailes made a flying trip to Fort Stewart, Ga. Here he observed Sky Soldiers training and watched a mass parachute jump by men from the 1st Air Assault Brigade commanded by Col. George S. Beatty Jr.

First DSC

CWO Keith R. Borek, from the 10th Air Transport Brigade, was the first man to receive the Distinguished Service Cross. He was awarded this nations second highest medal for his heroic actions in Vietnam.

The ladies from the 11th collected clothing for the quake stricken people of Alaska in April. A Caribou transport from the 37th Air Transport Battalion flew the clothing to the quake area.

Brig. Gen. John M. Wright, who served with the Philippine Scouts during World War II, joined the 11th. He was assigned as assistant division commander.

Gen. Paul D. Adams, STRICOM commander made a visit to the 11th Air Assault Division in May. HAWK STAR I began in South Carolina in June 1964.

Lt. Col. John J. Hennessey, who helped form the 1st Battalion, 187th Infantry, was moved to a higher post in July. He became deputy commander of the 1st Brigade. The 11th Air Assault Division took time off from training to celebrate Unit Day activities in July, and SSgt. George R. Robertson's wife Emma had triplets, two girls and one boy.

Gen. Kinnard received a new helicopter that bore his Army serial number — 21990.

In August pilots from the 10th Air Transport Brigade flew three Caribou fixed wing aircraft by way of the Pacific route to Saigon, Vietnam. The pilots broke the old flying record by four days.

The 1st Air Assault Brigade made its first parachute jump on Fryar Field at Fort Benning in August.

Brig. Gen. Richard T. Knowles, who joined the 11th when it was activated was promoted to brigadier general in August. Lt. Col. Harlow G. Clark, became commander of the 1st Battalion, 187th Infantry, and 1,000 men were sent to Vietnam in August.

Sky Soldiers in September began their move to the Carolinas for AIR ASSAULT II. This exercise involved more than 32,000 men in 14 counties of North and South Carolina. The Army's second largest Heliport was officially opened at Kelley Hill area.

During the month of October the Sky Soldiers were busy participating in AIR ASSAULT II.

In November Gen. Kinnard received the Army Aviation Unit of the year award in Washington, D. C. The division held their first division size review and more than 12,000 Sky Soldiers were in the prade in December. Sky Soldiers also rolled up their sleeves and donated more than 725 pints of blood to the Blood Program in December.

In the years final mission seven Caribous from the 37th Air Transport Battalion flew on mercy missions in California.

Basketball Highlights

Off The Backboard

By Lt. Joe Mottola

11th Air Assault Division Battalion Basketball shifts into high gear with games scheduled for Harmony Church and Kelley Hill.

Games for this week start Saturday Jan. 9 at Harmony Church with the 711th Maintenance Battalion "STAGS" versus the "SHOOTERS" of the 15th Artillery at 1:00 p.m. The 42nd Artillery "ROCKETS" meet the 226th "CLAWHAMMERS". Action continues at night with Team No. 2 of the 611th meeting the 38th Infantry followed by the game between the "SIGNALAIRES" of the 511th Signal Battalion and the 228th "WINGED WARRIORS."

Kelly Hill games on the 11th of January pit a strong 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry "KANIENGAHAGRS" quintet against the "WRENCH BENDERS" of the 170th Aircraft Maintenance Battalion. The nitecap finds the "TOTEMS" of the 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry taking the floor against 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion Team No. 2. The 611th will have their hands full in this one.

Over at Harmony Church the "RAKKASANS" of the 187th Airborne Infantry take on the "CHOPPERS" of the 44th Air Transport Battalion in what could be a close one. The second game finds the 408th "PROVIDERS" against the "RAIDERS" of Headquarters Special Troops.

Tuesday night action sees two really big games at Harmony Church. The 187th "RAKKASANS" take on the "CHARGE SEVENS" of the 81st Artillery in the first game and the undefeated 511th Infantry "FALCONS" collide head on with the undefeated "EAGLES" of the 188th Infantry. Either game could go either way as these top notch outfits go against each other.

Kelley Hill activity has the "CARIBOUS" of the 87th Air Transport Battalion playing the 42nd Artillery "ROCKETS." The "ROCKETS" will really have to be on target to knock down the "CARIBOUS." The second game finds the 226th "CLAWHAMMERS" against the "STAGS" of the 711th Maintenance Battalion. Both teams will be looking to improve upon records in this one.

The 13th at Harmony Church again finds the 187th "RAKKASANS" on the floor against the "GREYHOUNDS" of the 26th Artillery. The "GREYHOUNDS" will have to be ready to run against the Paratroopers."

The nitecap has the "CHOPPERS" of the 44th Air Transport Battalion against the fast improving 127th Engineer "BEAVERS".

Action at Kelley Hill will find the 170th "WRENCH BENDERS" against the "SIGNALAIRES" of the 511th Signal Battalion. The Signalmen will be tough in this one. The closing game will have two teams bent on improving their marks as the 228th "WINGED WARRIORS" meet the "STAGS" of the 711th Maintenance Battalion.

Thursday night activity at Harmony Church has the 229th "STACKED DECK" meeting the "CRUSADERS" of the 11th Medical Battalion. The second game will see the high flying 511th "FALCONS" meeting the "GRIFFINS" of the 377th Artillery.

Over at Kelley Hill, the 611th's Team No. 2 meets the 42nd Artillery "ROCKETS" and the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry "MARNE MEN" meet the "CARIBOUS" of the 37th Air Transas these two evenly matched teams fight for second place.

Friday nite, normally, an off-night, will have rescheduled games being played at Kelley Hill as the 15th Artillery "SHOOTERS" meet the "CARIBOUS" of the 37th Air Transport Battalion. The 37th is currently leading their league. The second game has the "MARNE MEN" of the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry taking on the 711th "STAGS". Only one game will be played at Harmony Church as the 226th "CLAWHAMMERS" take on the 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion Team No. 2.

'Clawhammers' Honor Company Mess Steward

On Dec. 5 the Clawhammers of the 226th Aerial Surveillance and Escort Battalion presented Sp5 Collins unit mess steward with a certificate designated the Best Mess in the Army Award. The certificate reads, "From his Comrades in Arms, of Company C, for field mess service above and beyond any previously acclaimed by the undersigned in the US Army; following which each officer and enlisted man in "C" Company affixed his signature.

This is a unique award which was conceived in the ranks of the company and burst out as an expression of appreciation from each man, rather than coming from above as is customary. As an expression from the hearts of his fellow soldiers this award is warmly personalized and expresses the comradship, unity, and spirit of this vigorous company.

Maj. Clifford E. Johnson Jr., departing commander of the Clawhammer Company said, "It all started when every platoon leader in the company sent Sp5 Collins a letter of appreciation. The next thing I knew a man was making a certificate. Sp5 Collins deserves this recognition. He serves very appealing and appetizing foods, he performs wonders with all types of rations, and he never forgets a man even when we work around the clock."

The award was presented prior to a change of command ceremony by Maj Johnson.

Sp5 Collins entered service at Fort Jackson S. C. on June 28, 1962. He hails from Mobile, Ala.

Sp5 Collins typifies the Sky Soldier in his determination to provide the best service available for the unit. His vigorous, aggressive approach to duty and constant striving for exemplary standards in the face of increasing requirements, is in keeping with the outstanding performance given by the men of the Sky Soldier Division and with the finest tradition of US Army.

Chargin' Charlie Again in Action

Charlie Company of the 188th Infantry planned and executed an extensive training program to condition its troops for the rigors of field exercises and to toughen up its men after the long Christmas holidays. First on the schedule was a favorite physical training to strengthen soft muscles followed by tower and helicopter rappelling. Members of "Chargin' Cnarlie" claim great proficiency and to insure such remains true, the unit engaged overwhelming forces who were well dug in by a series of air assaults.

Wednesday the victorious "Sky Soldiers" consolidated the newly acquired real estate, prepared defensive positions, and destroyed the counter attacking forces most successfully. The remainder of the week encompassed insurgency and counter insurgency techniques which were highlighted by counter-guerrilla operations and platoon offensives.

As one can see, the men of Charlie train hard for the common goal of being ready, willing, and able to perform any Air Assault maneuvers to come. It is anticipated that such rigorious exercise will build competent soldiers who will survive and thrive on future battlefields.

Rak Rifle Companies Take Tower Training

A return to the jump towers and the old familiar grind, topped the week for paratroopers of the 1st Assault Brigade's 1st Battalion, 187th Airborne Infantry, as the Rakkasans occupied the tower training area of Mann Field.

Each of the three rifle companies, under the direct supervision of the individual company commander, in conjunction with the battalion S-3 section, went through the paces, refining old techniques, and in many cases, picking up new ones.

For many, the PAE (personnel adjustable equipment) bag was introduced in the 34 foot tower for the first time, when novice paratroopers were required to jump it, a feat not required in basic airborne training.

Overall supervision of the tower project was in the hands of Capt. James L. Allen of the Rakkasan Operations and Training Section, who made all arrangements, and served as instructor during the three days of the tower program.

Prompting this special type of airborne refresher training was Lt. Col. Harlow G. Clark, 187th commander, who desires to eventually have every trooper, regardless of his position, qualified to jump the PAE Bag safely, and efficiently.

In addition to the airborne training project, the battalion put in a full week, meeting a tight schedule, and on the side, underwent the Combat Physical Proficiency Test on Edwards Field.

Also included during the week for all companies were riot control operations, covering squad and platoon formation, and special security classes on the safeguarding of defense information.

Artillery Battery Completes Tests

Battery C, 5th Battalion 38th Artillery completed it's annual Calibration Test this week in a three day period. This was done to implement as nearly perfect as possible, velocity errors of the individual howitzers.

Commanded by Capt. William F. Misiak, the battery operated smoothly and found no problem in completing the calibration as specified.

The Fire Direction Center under 1st Lt. Howard L. Claybrook and the firing battery under 1st Lt. Donald H. Kent, each did it's part with precision and exactness.

Aviators Decorated In Caribou Company

Maj. Thomas G. Ziek, 17th Aviation Company commander, presented decorations to members of the CV-2B (Caribou) Company, December 16, 1964.

Air Medals with Oak Leaf Clusters were presented to the following officers for meritorious achievement while engaged in aerial combat support of ground forces of the Republic of Vietnam: Capt. Jeremy D. Scott, Capt. Allan R. Burroughs, Capt. Clifford Fremstad, Capt. Robert G. Martin, and 1st Lt. John L. McEwan. Capt. John W. Fust was also awarded the Air Medal with V-device for heroism while serving in Vietnam.

The Army Commendation Medal with First Oak Leaf Cluster was presented to CWO Keith W. Glasgow for meritorious service from December 1, 1960 to June 11, 1963 while assigned to Headquarters, U. S. Army, Pacific.

CWO Robert P. Sword was presented a letter of commendation from Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Chief of Staff, U. S. Army, for his outstanding performance of duty during the period August 20-23 in the flight of three CV-2B aircraft from Travis Air Force Base, Cal., to Saigon, Vietnam.

Battery Receives Area Face Lift

Battery B, 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery is starting off the New Year with a new face and the determination that Battery B will be the best in 1965.

The living quarters and offices are being painted and the battery area in general is being brightened to welcome the new year.

New equipment is being bought for the dayroom so the men in Battery B will be able to get full use and enjoyment out of this facility during their off duty hours.

With a full schedule of training to look forward to in the new year the men of Battery B know that 1965 is going to be their best year

Support Platoon Leader Receives Captains Bars

Capt. Charles B. Cooke, Direct Support platoon leader for Company A 611th Aircraft Maintenance & Supply Battalion was recently promoted to his present rank.

Cooke was assigned to Company A on the February 3, 1963 and since has had such positions in the company as Executive Officer, Platoon Leader and Production Control Officer. At present Capt. Cooke has charge of the Direct Support Platoon.

Capt. Cooke upon graduation from high school entered the University of Tennessee where he spent four years and received a Bachelor of Science Degree. Upon graduation from college Capt. Cooke enlisted as a private in the United States Army in September 1955. In February 1957 he attended the Army Aviation Flight School where he graduated as a warrant officer and as a qualified aviator. In 1961 Capt. Cooke applied for and received a direct commission as a 2nd Lieutenant.

Capt. Cooke resides with his wife Sylvia and their two children at 2D Arrowhead Road, Fort Benning.

Dentistry Can Provide Variety of Specialties

By Lt. Col. R. Y Whittemore Jr.

With our attention now directed to the return to school, we would like to present a series of articles on dentistry as a profession and on related health service occupations for the benefit of young people who might be searching for a career.

The field of dentistry is far from being overcrowded. It has made great progress in both research and development and the future should bring even greater progress. Of the two million people engaged in health service occupations, approximately 100,000 are dentists; of which about 4 per cent are recognized as specialists, three per cent are in full-time teaching or research on a full-time basis and about 6 per cent are serving in the Armed Forces or in other government positions. This leaves about 90,000 engaged in the practice of general dentistry.

Many of these devote part of their time to teaching or research, along with their private practice. About half of the specialists are orthodontists (who straighten teeth), and the next largest group is the oral surgeons. The balance of the specialists includes the periodontist (treating the tissues that support the teeth), prosthodontists (replacing missing teeth), pedodontists (children's dentists) and oral pathologists.

These fields are open to both men and women and about 2 per cent of our dentists are women. Dentistry is an excellent field for women and although the percentage is not very high, we find that in Finland before the war, approximately 80 per cent of the dentists were women. Currently in Germany, the graduating classes of dentists are approximately 50 per cent women.

Artillery Sergeants Re-up for Six Each

Three members of the 2nd Battalion (LJ), 42nd Artillery have reenlisted for their own vacancies in the unit organization. They are SSgt. William R. Blair of Battery A, SSgt. Edward Mulrooney of Battery B and Sgt. Ronald M. Smith of Battery C.

SSgt. Blair serves Battery A as Chief of a Little John Firing Section, while SSgt. Mulrooney is assigned as Assistant Chief Fire Direction Computer in Battery B. Sgt. Smith has the job of Little John Section Chief in Battery C.

All three of the men reenlisted for a period of six years.

Veteran of WWII Action in Pacific Concludes Long and Varied Career

SSgt. Malcom Driggers of the 1st Air Assault Brigade's Headquarters Company, a WWII veteran with the 187th Glider Infantry Regiment, retired here Dec. 31, the last day of 1964, during a simple ceremony in the office of the Brigade Commander.

Appropriately, Sgt. Driggers received his retirement certificate, and a certificate of meritorious achievement from the present 187th commander, Lt. Col. Harlow G. Clark acting in behalf of Col. George S. Beatty.

With twenty years, one month and nineteen days of continuous military service, Sgt. Driggers had a varied military career, which included his World War II service in the Pacific with the 187th, and in Korea during the Conflict with the 282nd QM Service Company.

During his tour with the 1st Air Assault Brigade, Sgt. Driggers served as Mess Steward in the 1st Brigade Dining Hall.

Vietnam Service Brings Awards

Four members of the 170th Aircraft Maintenance Battalion recently received awards for outstanding performance of duty in the Republic of Vietnam.

Capt. Leroy Z. Page II, Headquarters Company, was awarded the Air Medal with 1st and 2nd Oak Leaf Clusters. Sp4 Richard T. Allender, Company "A," was awarded the Army Commendation Medal and the 1st, 2nd and 5th Oak Leaf Clusters to the Air Medal. Sp4 Bohdon Metelnicki, also of Company "A," was awarded the Army Commendation Medal. SP6 Charles L. Hadley, Company "B," was awarded the Air Medal with 1st Oak Leaf Cluster for service in Vietnam and for participation in aerial endurance flight while assigned to the 61st Aviation Company at Fort Bragg, N. C. in 1962.

Awards were presented by Maj. Robert C. McCoy, commanding officer, 170th Aircraft Maintenance Battalion, 10th Air Transport Bridage.

AMTU Ladies Slate Coffee

The Noncommissioned Officers Wives of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit will hold their monthly coffee Thursday at the Skeet Club.

Hostesses for the affair will be Mrs. Arthur Ogden, and Mrs. Sam Cosby. The event will begin at 10 a.m. and everyone is invited to attend.

DivArty Sgt Maj To Serve 3 More

Sgt. Maj. Earl T. Rayburn, operations sergeant for 2nd Division Artillery Headquarters, recently raised his hand and agreed to serve three more years in the U. S. Army.

In ceremonies in the office of the commanding officer, Col. Tony F. Perpich, he was sworn in for this new term which will give him when completed a total of twenty three years of service.

Rayburn came to the DivArty this year from the 38th Artillery which is now on duty with the 11th Air Assault Division, He is a native of California and plans to return there upon his retirement.

197TH PATCH PRESENTATION AT MOOM
Col. Welch (L) and Col. Short

Familiar 197th Patch A 'Collectors' Item

Officers, dining in the Main Officers' Open Mess, have recently noticed the appearance of a new, but familiar insignia among the ones lining the coffee shop walls.

Col. Walter D. Short, 197th Infantry Bde. commander, recently added the 197th's patch to MOOM's collection when he presented a wooden replica to Col. Lamar Welch, President of the Board of Governors of MOOM.

The patch was hung next to the "Follow Me" insignia, since the 197th is the demonstration unit for The Infantry School and is officially designated as the "Follow Me" brigade.

The patch was authorized for wear by members of the 197th in 1963, one year after the brigade was organized upon the inactivation of 1st Infantry Bde.

The border of the insignia is blue and white which represents the Infantry, while red, most powerful color of the spectrum, represents the striking power of the unit. Close combat and counterattack abilities are symbolized by the serrated section. The cartridge alludes to the unit's capabilities for destroying the enemy and repelling his assault with fire power.

The patch is worn by the school demonstration units of the 197th which include 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf., 4th Bn., 69th Armor, 2nd Bn. (Comp.), 10th Arty., 72nd Engr. Co., 26th Inf. Plat. (Scout Dog), the 183rd Chem. Plat. and Bde. Headquarters Co.

Post Starts Sweeping Renovation; Old Hospital Buildings Demolished

Dependents Park Area To Be Made

Fort Benning is renovating the old hospital area to include the destruction of approximately 100 worn - out buildings.

Involved in this renovation are 40 acres of land on which the buildings are located. The land will be used for a park for dependent housing and new schools in the area, according to Infantry Center G-4 section officials.

All usable materials, such as doors, radiators and plumbing fixtures, will be salvaged from the buildings and will be available to units.

The buildings involved in the reclamation were built in 1941 as temporary hospital facilities for wartime. They were originally designed to last five years but were used as a hospital until 1958 when Martin Army Hospital, a permanent structure, was completed.

When the hospital facilities were moved to the new building, the temporary wooden structures were used primarily as administrative officers, although some

Soldier Takes 3,000 Mile Journey, Helps Guard Flood-Swept Town

By Dick Minnig and John Dalton

After traveling almost 3,000 miles to Reedsport, Ore., on holiday leave, PFC Duncan B. Pierce of Headquarters & Headquarters Co., TSB, spent Christmas Day with an M-1 rifle standing guard in his flood-ravaged home town.

When he reached home, he found it under martial law in the midst of crippling snow and the biggest flood in Pacific Coast history since 1890.

Ironically, he had taken a southwestern route in order to avoid snow and hazardous driving conditions.

Fortunately his own home, on high ground, was unharmed by the flood waters. The water which caused an estimated $5 million damage had risen as high as five feet in downtown Reedsport.

The Oregon National Guard had been called in after local incidents of looting had been reported.

Pierce went to the commander of the National Guard battery stationed in Reedsport and volunteered to help in any way he could.

On Christmas Day he was called and asked to stand guard in the town.

Pierce served a four-hour tour of guard in the rain, warmed by a fire of wreckage which had floated down the swollen Umpqua River.

He was also warmed by the community's response to the plight of over 300 families driven from their homes by the flood waters. The homeless were taken in by the more fortunate residents of the town.

A Christmas dinner was given in the elementary school gymnasium for those unable to enjoy it in their own homes. Christmas was made brighter for the children by toys donated by

New Pay Bill In the Making For Services

Washington (AFPS) — Representative L. Mendel Rivers (D-S.C.) has restated his views on a military pay increase, noting that he was already drafting a new pay bill.

The new chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, in an exclusive interview with editors of the official Air Force Association publication, said the pay bill passed last year, "was little more than a gesture."

He pointed out, "With a $630-billion gross national product, I say we can afford to give the military a pay raise."

Representative Rivers said housing, pay, food, commissaries and overseas expenses in highly inflated cost areas will be reviewed very carefully. He noted that housing is one of the most vital areas.

The representative also has a report on medical care and believes dependents should have dental care.

"Hospitalization is as much a right for the serviceman and his dependents as a pair of shoes," he asserted. He further explained that everything will be done to give the serviceman a well-rounded set of rights, benefits, prerogatives, privileges and emoluments.

The representative said, "If there is anything the American people want, it is a first-class military man well-dressed, well-housed, well-fed, well-paid, with the best equipment."

Mr. Rivers succeeded Representative Carl Vinson, D-Ga., who has retired after 50 years service in the House of Representatives. The new chairman of the House Armed Services Committee has been a member of the committee since its establishment in 1948.

Army Awards Contracts For Mobile Bridge-Ferry

Fort Belvoir, Va. (ANF) — Contracts totalling more than $4 million have been awarded by the U.S. Army Materiel Command for production of 66 units of the Army's new mobile floating assault bridge-ferry.

The bridge-ferry is designed to surmount inland water obstacles in assault operations and was developed by the U.S. Army Engineer Research and Development Laboratories at Fort Belvoir. It consists essentially of ramp units and interior deck units carried by a basic self-propelled amphibious vehicle. Three-man crews of four vehicles can assemble a four-unit, 60-ton capacity ferry in six minutes. A 400-foot bridge can be built in 20 minutes.

A $3,300,000 contract for 66 basic vehicles has been awarded to the FMC Corporation, San Jose, Calif., one of eight bidders. Consolidated Diesel Electric Corporation of Stamford, Conn., has received a $900,000 contract for fabrication of 44 interior deck units and 22 ramp units.

Delivery of ramp and deck units is scheduled to start in January 1966, and the basic vehicle in April 1966.

Korean Vets

GI Loan Deadline

Washington (ANF) — Veterans of the Korean War face their first GI loan guaranty deadline January 31 when eligibility begins to expire for those with shorter periods of service.

Veterans Administration officials point out that a veteran's loan cannot be guaranteed unless the loan application is received by the VA before the veteran's eligibility expires.

Except for those discharged for service connected disabilities, individual deadline dates are determined by the length of service and the date of discharge.

Since only the VA can make the determination of the deadline date, veterans should contact their local VA regional office to obtain this information if they wish to take advantage of GI loan benefits.

sympathetic residents.

Pierce will never forget this Christmas, highlighted by sights such as the town's drawbridge being opened to allow four uprooted houses to float down the river to the Pacific, and the layers of mud which remained in stores and living rooms after the waters had receded.

And he will never forget standing guard in his hometown.

of the buildings served as classrooms on an interim basis while dependent schooling was built.

The old buildings were, for the most part, evacuated again last May, when the new Infantry School building was completed and since have remained unoccupied.

Tilt-Wing

Hover Test A New First For V-STOL

Dallas (AFPS) — The tri-service XC-142A V-STOL transport has completed its first vertical takeoff and hover flights at the Ling-Temco-Vought plant here. Air Force officials described the flights as highly successful.

The huge transport takes off vertically like a helicopter, yet can fly at speeds of more than 430 m.p.h. The initial flights were intentionally held to altitudes of five feet or less.

The XC-142A is a tilt-wing, deflected slipstream airplane which performs vertical flights by tilting its wing and engines upward while the fuselage remains level. When the desired altitude is reached, the wind and engines are tilted forward and the airplane gains forward speed to operate like a conventional airplane.

Since its first conventional flight in September, 1964, the XC-142A has made a series of flights with the wing in various positions. In one flight with the wing at 40 degrees, it flew as slow as 26 knots (about 30 m.p.h.) in relatively thin air at 10,000 feet. With the wing at 15 degrees it has taken off in less than 500 feet using only 60 percent of its power.

Boy Scout Troop 199 Tours LAAC

Twelve boys and three leaders from Boy Scout Troop 199 in Columbus, toured Lawson Army Air Command Saturday.

PFC W. Earl Taylor, Youth Activity Club scouting coordinator at Fort Benning, led the tour and Sp5 William Byron, senior flight simulator operator, guided the troop members around the airfield.

The tour consisted of the flight plan and operations area, Detachment 10, 16th Air Force Weather Station, radar control section (where they watched an airplane land in heavy weather conditions), the control tower, fire station and flight trainer division.

Byron also explained the types of aircraft in use at Lawson and used actual aircraft to illustrate.

Costa Rica, U.S. Plan Joint Study

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The U.S. Army Medical Research Laboratory at Fort Knox, Ky., will furnish biochemical and pathological assistance to the government of Costa Rica in a research program relating to venomous snake bites.

Major objectives of the joint study is to produce antiserums effective against each of the major species of poisonous snakes found in Costa Rica. The research program is also aimed at developing techniques for improvement of first aid and hospital treatment of snake bites.

New techniques or therapeutic agents to be used will be administered only by Costa Rican medical representatives. U.S. officials will not participte in the treatment of patients.

The program will be headed by U.S. Army Capt. Hershel H. Flowers of the Medical Research Laboratory. He will work with scientists designated by the Costa Rican Ministry of Health. Flowers will be attached to the U.S. Military Group in Costa Rica for one year.

On completion of the one-year program, it is expected a trained staff of Costa Ricans will continue with independent work in the anti-snake serum program.

NEW CO. COMMANDER

Capt. Benjamin B. Powell recently assumed command of Headquarters Co., 4th Bn., 69th Armor, at a change-of-command ceremony in the company area. Capt. Delbert L. Devaughn, former commander, is attending Ranger School.

Library Drive Contributions: Mans Tribute

A number of gifts already have been received by the George C. Marshall Research Library in Lexington, Va., from members of the armed forces as a result of a special campaign carried in The Bayonet several weeks ago to provide furnishings for a portion of the Library.

Officials of the Marshall Foundation, which constructed the library as a tribute to the nation's World War II chief of staff, said the contributions will be added to the approximately $1,000 armed forces personnel already had given in the last few years.

Many of the gifts were accompanied by notes. One, enclosing one dollor, read: "This signifies merely a moment of silence or a hand salute in honor of a great man.

Goal of the current special effort is $11,000. With this, the foundation plans to secure furnishings for the library's main reading room and some adjacent work areas. At present only the museum portion of the library, which was dedicated

Oil Painting Presented To School

Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges accepted in behalf of The Infantry School a large oil painting of the late Brig. Gen. (Ret.) Ephrain G. Peyton.

Gen. Peyton served as chief of the Tactical Department of The Infantry School in 1921-1922. He was an 1899 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy and held the Distinguished Service Medal, Silver Star and Purple Heart. He retired as a colonel in September, 1938, and was appointed a brigadier general in 1940.

The presentation was made by Maj. Gen. (Ret.) George Honnen and Mrs. Honnen, daughter of Gen. Peyton.

Gen. Honnen was an instructor at The Infantry School in 1921 and part of 1922. He was also aide-de-camp to two Infantry School commandants, Maj. Gen. W. H. Gordon in 1922 and Brig. Gen. B. H. Wells in 1932.

Surgeon Says

Fighting Mental Illness

By Capt. Bruce Rottschafer

There is a tendency in our society to view health as a sign of strength and illness as a sign of weakness.

Nowhere is this seen more keenly than in those who suffer from emotional illness. When we have a toothache, we are usually quite prompt in making a visit to our dentist or we will not hesitate to call upon a physician when we injure ourselves.

But when people suffer from an emotional disturbance, they will allow weeks, months or even years to go by without seeking professional help, for they don't want to admit to themselves or others that they have such problems.

Perhaps one of the main reasons for hiding an emotional illness is because there exists in the minds of people the feeling that emotional or mental illness is a disgrace.

In past years, fear and ignorance of emotional illness prompted society to inflict all sorts of pain and punishment on those who tended to reveal its symptoms. They were beaten, imprisoned, locked in chains and often murdered. Many thought these people had "bad blood" or that they were possessed with a devil or evil spirit which was usually the result of some great sin they had committed. Very few people overcame their illness with this harsh treatment.

Today we understand more fully the causes of emotional illness and can effectively treat most cases and do much to prevent its reoccurrence. Yet, with our enlightened information on the subject, the average person has done little to change his inner feelings. The stigma seems to be that when one seeks professional assistance for his emotional difficulties, he has to be insane or incapable of rational thinking. This is completely false.

Much time and effort is spent in convincing a person that he or a member of his family is in need of psychiatric help. The fact that people try to deny or hide their illness can cause great difficulties for themselves and other members of the family. By denying one's problems, or feeling that they will disappear in time, only tends to make matters worse.

Seek early help. The success of treatment depends a great deal on how strongly motivated the patient is to do something constructive about his situation.

Your Good Turn

Jan. 16 through Jan. 23 is Goodwill-Good Turn Week at Fort Benning.

The word "goodwill" pertains to the Goodwill Industries of Columbus which benefits the handicapped.

The words "Good Turn" are derived from the Boy Scouts of America where each Scout should "do a good turn daily."

Fort Benning's scouting units (Cub packs, Boy Scout troops and Explorer posts) will participate in the Goodwill-Good Turn project by distributing collection bags to homes within assigned areas on Jan. 16. On Jan. 23, Scouts will pick up collection bags from their assigned areas for delivery to local Goodwill Industries.

Most of us are happiest when we are doing something for others.

Think for a moment of a time when you were helpful to someone. Chances are it made you feel pretty good. Of course we feel best when we do something for others without being found out.

Help can be a very simple thing. Clothing, electrical appliances, furniture, shoes, toys, and many other useful items that in some small way need repairing offer you an opportunity to help the handicapped. Helping people in these small ways can give real satisfaction.

When we are helpful to others regularly, it soon becomes a habit and gets to be a natural thing.

You also can help our Scouts to establish a habit of learning the true meaning of the Scout slogan "Do a good turn daily," especially during the Goodwill-Good Turn Week.

'The Point of the Spear'

"It's most exciting to meet responsibilities we must continue to have a strong country and a strong alliance and a strong Free World; we do do that we need a strong Army which is the point of the spear."

JOHN F. KENNEDY
35th President

The Judge Says . . .

The obligation of military personnel to file state income tax returns is dependent upon the laws of the states, however, some are under the misconception that they are exempt from all state income taxes, solely by reason of their military service.

Military personnel are not exempt from income taxation imposed by their state of legal residence. This obligation is not modified by the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940. The applicable state law is controlling as to filing requirements, rates, military exemptions, etc.

Generally, persons who are legal residents of a state on the last day of the taxable year are subject to its income tax laws even though they are not physically present therein during the year. An individual has only one legal residence at any given time.

In some cases legal residence is easily determined, in others, the advise of a Soldier's Advocate or legal assistance officer may be required. Generally, legal residence is the place where an individual has made his home and where he intends to remain indefinitely and to which he intends to return whenever he is absent.

The Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940, as amended, provides that a serviceman does not lose a domicile or residence in a state solely by reason of being absent in compliance with military or naval orders. Further, the serviceman does not become a legal resident of a state solely by reason of his residing there in compliance with military or naval orders. This does not mean that a serviceman cannot become a legal resident of a state in which he is stationed.

Military personnel are cautioned as to their activities in the state where stationed if they do not desire to become legal residents of that state. While licensing an automobile and purchasing a home may be justified on the grounds of expediency, voting in state elections and claiming benefits reserved by the state for its residents, such as homestead exemptions and resident hunting and fishing licenses, may indicate an intention to become a legal resident.

Your Dental Health

Questions & Answers

By Lt. Col. R. Y. Whittemore Jr., DC

This is the second in a series of articles on dental health published by the BAYONET in observance of National Children's Dental Health Week, February 7-13.

Q. My husband and I both have had decay problems since early childhood. Now our two children also have many cavities. What causes teeth to decay? Can "soft" teeth be inherited?

A. Sugar is the major cause of tooth decay. Bacteria always present in our mouths act on sugar to produce acids. These acids attack the teeth and eventually cause decay.

Nibbling on sweets throughout the day is especially bad for the teeth. By constant nibbling, you keep your teeth bathed in acid. If you do eat sweets, it is better to eat whatever quantity you want all at one time. Then brush your teeth immediately, to remove as much of the sugar as possible before it is turned to acid.

As to the second part of the question, scientists know that there is some hereditary influence in decay, but it is incorrect to describe teeth as "hard" or "soft."

Much decay occurs on the surfaces between the teeth. In addition, there are areas of the teeth, especially the back teeth, that are particularly prone to decay. These are the pits and grooves which are formed during the development of the teeth.

When a tooth is forming in the jawbone, it begins to calcify at several separate points. These calcifying areas finally meet and fuse, forming the hardened crown. The enamel covering is thickest on the biting surface of the tooth, is thinner in the grooves and sometimes is completely missing in the deep pits. It is in these last, less protected areas that decay is likely to occur. And this is where the calcifying process may well be inherited.

Therefore, in some people these calcifying areas may form a hard enamel covering even in the pits and grooves, while in others the enamel may be thinner. But whatever the enamel formation of the teeth, decay will occur if the teeth are subjected to attacks from acids produced as a result of eating sweets.

Chaplain's Corner

The U.S. We Know

By Chaplain (Col.) Silas Decker

Each of us in the military service took an oath to defend the Constitution of the United States when we received our commissions or when we enlisted.

This impressed us that our military service was both a patriotic and sacred duty. This obligation has been a frequent reminder of our responsibilities as soldiers — citizens of our country.

Our service men and women must frequently serve our country in foreign lands. As a whole, they have been admirable representatives of this nation as good-will ambassadors. In a number of foreign assignments it has been my good fortune and privilege to share this duty with them. If all the deeds of charity and of good-will which they have performed, the space of a large library would be required for the books which could be written.

It is my belief the United States Army is a tremendous peace corps. Our people have built hospitals, schools, orphanages and churches around the world.

The American soldier is a great humanitarian. For the past 29 years the United States Army has been that part of America I has known best. It has been my home and that of my immediate family. The Army has been good to us for it tries sincerely to take care of its own.

However, each of us cannot expect the Army to perform those duties which are ours to discharge. We must continue to give our best of mind, hand and heart to make that part of America we know, the best fighting and peace making force in the world.

Gen. Heintges Emphasizes 'Daily Living' During Tri-Faith Workshop Opening Here

If a teacher fails in 'daily living' then the tools for instruction and methods of application have small value, 290 religious education volunteer workers were told Monday night at a dinner opening the post's first Tri-Faith Religious Education Workshop.

Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, guest speaker at the dinner, said, "The mission of religious education is to train teachers who, in turn, will be able to instruct others. In addition to this specialized training, it is required that each teacher be a good example of religious faith."

"This workshop will emphasize methods of instruction in religion for different age groups of our three major faiths, but it cannot make you a good example of religious faith, for this is the end result of worship, of obedience and love for God," he continued.

The general said that the greatest reward for the sacrificial work of a minister or teacher is the reverence bestowed upon them by the people whose lives they touch.

Recalling his service as a young probationary missionary for the Presbyterian Church in Alaska, Gen. Heintges said, "My greatest reward for teaching 67 youngsters would be when they came running to me, calling me 'Mr. John,' and asking for a story."

"Chaplain Decker, in his introduction listed my awards and decorations. I want to say that the one I prize most is the certificate of successful completion presented to me by my church when my year of duty as a contract missionary ended," he added.

Gen. Heintges paid a tribute to Mrs. John L. Waldrop, chief of the Religious Education Division of The Infantry Center chaplain section, director of the workshop.

To the workshop participants, the general said, "I congratulate you on accepting the call of God to be a are making to my command." teacher of religion and for the worthy contribution you

Eleven religious education leaders of Catholic, Jewish and Protestant faiths will conduct various phases of the workshop through Thursday. The workshop continued

Post Photography Contest Deadline Slated for Feb. 1

Deadline to enter the Fort Benning photography contest, conducted by the Special Services Section, is Feb. 1.

Entries must be submitted to the crafts director, Post Craft Shop, Bldg. 394.

The contest is open to all military personnel on active duty for 90 days or more who are assigned, attached or on duty in the Columbus - Phenix City area.

Those wishing to enter the competition may obtain rules and entry forms at any Craft shop, service club or library on post.

Entries must be either black and white photographs or color transparencies. There will be seven categories of competition in each group: portraits, babies and children, animals and pets, action, scenic, military life and experimental.

Prizes will be awarded to first, second and third place winners in each category of both groups. First place winners will receive $20; second place, $15, and third place, $10.

Winning entries at Fort Benning will be forwarded to the Third U. S. Army contest after being displayed in the Photo Lab of the Craft Shop.

Third Army winners will compete in the Department of the Army contest and those winners will be submitted to the 11th Interservice Photography Contest to be held in July.

Complete black and white photo lab facilities are available on Main Post Craft Shop to all entrants.

For further information, telephone 545-1743.

National Safety Council

Army Cited for Safety; Earns Award of Honor

Washington (ANF) — The Army received the Annual National Safety Council Award of Honor in recognition of its safety record during the past year at a ceremony in the Pentagon.

Assistant Secretary of the Army for Research and Development Willis M. Hawkins, representing Secretary of the Army Stephen Ailes, received the plaque on behalf of the Army from Mr. Howard N. Fyle, President of the National Safety Council.

This year's award marked the 19th time over the past 21 years that the Army has been honored by the Council.

The Award of Honor is an improvement award. To earn it, there must be proof that the recipient has established a better record than the one on which any previous award was based. Accordingly, it becomes progressively difficult to earn the Award of Honor with each passing year since a continued reduction in the various accident and injury rate categories is required.

To earn this year's award, the Army chalked up some outstanding accident prevention achievements.

Army military and civilian personnel went more than a half-million man-hours for each injury reported. Army motor vehicles, worldwide, were driven 115,000 miles for each accident reported. In the continental United States, Army motor vehicles rolled up an amazing 180,000 miles for each accident reported. Army aircraft were flown more than 4,300 hours for each accident reported.

OWC's Gourmet Classes Have Long Waiting Lists; French and Scandinavian Dishes to be Demonstrated

By Dorothy Newman

The list of classes offered by the Officers' Wives' Club is so varied that it seems there is no end to the type of information a member may pursue.

For those wives interested in learning to create different and unusual meals, there is the Gourmet Group. This group meets on Mondays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in various members homes and is taught by a French chef.

There are four different sessions due to the great interest in this field so that each group meets only once a month. During each session, the preparation of a complete French meal is taught. Each student is shown the various steps and is allowed to try her hand at each phase.

Upon conclusion of the preparation, the group sits down to a delightful meal to enjoy the fruit of their labors. There is a waiting list for this activity, however any wife wishing to place her name on the list may call Mrs. Frank L. Stolsits at 545-7128 or Mrs. Roy W. Preston at 689-3321.

On Feb. 1, there will be a demonstration lecture on the art of making delicious and appetizing hors d'oeuvres. This will be held in the Salerno Mess and reservations will be required due to limited space. Reservations must be made by Jan. 29 and may be made with Mrs. Stolsits or Mrs. Preston.

A Scandinavian Gourmet class will be presented on Feb. 15 at the Salerno Mess. This class will also be a demonstration, lecture and will also require reservations which must be made by Feb. 12 with Mrs. Stolsits or Mrs. Preston. Any of these groups will provide stimulating new ideas for meals which will delight your family or guests.

A beginners sewing class began today at 9:30 a.m. Two other classes are offered for those who have completed the beginners class. One will be offered in the mornings from 9:30 to 11:30 and the other will be offered in the evenings from 7:30 to 9:30. The date of classes will be announced later.

Mrs. Marcus Powell includes many items in her classes. Among these are correct procedures for cutting and marking fabrics, cutting to fit, perfection in stitching and pressing, grain perfection and accuracy in preparation. The end result of this class is the ability to attain a quality look with the right trimming detail.

Mrs. Powell demonstrates methods in class so that students may do the actual work at home at their leisure. For further details, contact Mrs. Powell at 545-2220. Each student who completes this class will finish a blouse, skirt and a dress.

Mrs. Powell who conducted a teen class during summer vacation has stated that she will repeat if the demand is great enough.

PWOC Collects Old Eye Glasses For First Project of New Year

Jan. 31 marks the end of a worthy project which has been undertaken by The Student Brigade Protestant Women of the Chapel. This project is the collection of old eyeglasses or eyeglass frames which will be checked and distributed to needy persons.

Mrs. Joseph F. Alutius Jr., project chairman, urges anyone who can donate these items to leave them at one of the following collection points: The Main Post Chapel, Main Post Chapel 3, The Student Brigade Chapel, 197th Chapel, Martin Army Hospital Chapel and the Airborne Chapel.

Mrs. Jerry E. Sheffield hosted a coffee for wives of officers in the Infantry School Battalion, The Student Brigade, Jan. 6.

A snowman in top hat and bright red vest set the pace for "Happy New Year" wishes. Informal arrangements, party hats and favors completed the theme.

During the coffee, held in the Infantry School Battalion Headquarters lounge, Mrs. Donald Whitlock presented a memento to Mrs. L. G. Simmons, wife of the battalion commander, on behalf of the ISB officers' wives.

At the close, each wife received a decorative calendar and best wishes for a prosperous New Year from the hostess.

New Arrivals Are Welcomed During Lunch

The Medical Services Wives Club of Fort Benning met for its monthly luncheon recently at the Custer Terrace Officers Open Mess.

Hostesses were wives from the USAIS, the Department of Hospital Clinics, and TEC Group, with Mrs. Robert M. Hall and Mrs. Stanton P. Fischer as co-chairmen.

Mrs. John P. Canby, club president, welcomed new arrivals Mrs. Anthony Arangio, Mrs. Lillard Belcher, Mrs. John S. Gridley, Jr., Mrs. Taras Nowosiwsky, and Mrs. David Willhoite. Farewell was said to Mrs. A. G. Borth.

Mrs. R. L. Mileham was a guest of Mrs. R. P. Bosworth.

Mrs. Canby announced that the Medical Auxiliary ladies from Columbus will be guests at the February luncheon to be held at the Main Officers Open Mess Feb. 12. A local clothing store will present spring fashions.

NCO Wives' Club Slates Year Full of Activities

The Infantry Center NCO Wives' Club is starting the new year with a full slate of activities.

Charm classes, conducted by Mrs. Mable Bailey, started last week and are to be held each Friday afternoon at the group's clubhouse. Mrs. Peggy Farmer may be contacted for further information at 545-3106.

Bridge classes, with Mrs. Daisy Krelick as instructor, began this past Wednesday and are planned as a morning activity for succeeding Wednesdays. Mrs. Leo Winterburn, 545-4237 may be contacted for further information.

Announcement has also been made of a covered dish luncheon, scheduled for Jan. 27, at 1 p.m. in the new clubhouse.

The NCO Wives' Club continues to welcome new members and requests those who do not already belong, to call Mrs. Phyllis Rosiak, MU 9-6164, for information as to when and how they may join this active organization.

MAH Slates Noon Services

The first of daily midday Protestant devotionals at Fort Benning's Martin Army Hospital Chapel will be conducted at 12:45 p.m. Monday, by Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker, post chaplain.

Col. Hal B. Jennings Jr., hospital commander, will make the opening remarks.

Chaplain (Capt.) Gordon B. Hanson, hospital chaplain, will continue the devotionals at 12:45 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

The service will be broadcast over the hospital's closed circuit station WMAH.

The meek may someday inherit the earth but it is highly doubtful that they will ever consistently win bridge tournaments.

The hands used in the major events of most regional and national tournaments are normally selected from a large group of hands prepared by business machine methods. Nearly every hand selected is chosen to test the players knowledge and use of a bridge playing or bidding principle.

Over 90 per cent of the pairs sitting north-south during the Team of Four Event in the recent national tournament bid 4 hearts. To those who bid and made 4 hearts this hand seemed entirely routine and unexciting. Strangely enough, slightly less than 50 per cent of those north-south pairs bidding 4 hearts were able to make their contract. The truth of the matter was that the north-south pairs were not being tested. The entire hand was dependent upon the east player.

It is an accepted principle in tournament play that in third position after two passes the bidding should be opened "light", or more properly stated, when the player does not really have a hand worthy of an opening bid. Today's hand was selected specifically to test that principle.

At those tables where east opened the bidding in third position by bidding 1 spade, one of two things generally happened; (1) either the opponents did not reach a game contract or, (2) they bid game and went down one. It is worth noting that against the bidding as shown in the box above west does not have a good opening lead. However, once his partner has bid spades, there is no doubt at all that the spade king is the proper lead. After the lead of the spade king north-south cannot make 4 hearts but must lose a spade, a spade ruff, a diamond and a heart.

Those east players who failed to open the bidding in third position were awarded a bottom board for without the key spade call 4 hearts is an easy contract.

Religious Education Workshop Ends Post's First Tri-Faith Study Classes

Approximately 290 Catholic, Protestant and Jewish laymen and women at Fort Benning enrolled in the Tri-Faith Religious Education Workshop conducted on the post during the past week.

Participants were Sunday School teachers, administrative personnel, and leaders of religious groups.

The first tri-faith workshop to be conducted at Fort Benning, the event was directed by the chief of The Infantry Center Chaplain section's Religious Education Division, Mrs. John L. Waldrop.

Eleven clergymen and teachers assisted Mrs. Waldrop in conducting the workshop.

The first session began Monday. Classes of all three faiths met in a joint session Thursday for a resume of the workshop by Chaplain (Col.) Silar E. Decker, post chaplain.

Jewish instruction was given at Bldg. 1071 in the Old Hospital Area. Catholic instruction was conducted in Bldg. 2620 and Protestant courses were held in Bldgs. 2606, 2608, 2626, 2615, 2618 and 2610.

Sunday School teachers and staff members of the religious education programs of the three faiths were guests at a dinner at 6:30 p.m. Monday at the Supper Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Huge Gun Calls Battery E 'Home'

Battery E of the 2nd Bn., (Comp.), 10th Artillery, is composed exclusively of self-propelled artillery weapons.

It is unique in that the largest artillery weapon in Third Army, the 175-mm gun, makes its home at Battery E.

Commanded by Capt. James K. Mawhorr, Battery E also boasts such weapons as two M-108 self-propelled 105-mm howitzers; one self-propelled 155-mm howitzer; one self-propelled 8-inch howitzer; one M-52 self-propelled 105-mm howitzer and two twin 40's.

The two M-108s are among the latest type of self - propelled artillery weapons the Army has developed.

Built with an aluminum hull, they weigh far less than other self-propelled weapons and are highly maneuverable.

With this firepower and mobility, Battery E is a respected member of the 10th Artillery mission of which is to provide artillery support to The Infantry School's program of instruction and to provide static displays for demonstration purposes.

Organized in September, 1964, Battery E has 128 men and six officers assigned to it.

Commanded by Lt. Col. Michael J. Malone, the 2nd Bn. (Comp.), 10th Artillery is a unit of the 197th Infantry Bdg.

The 175-MM

The largest artillery weapon and the only one of its kind in Third Army, resides at Battery E.

From Mob Riot Control to Writing, A Personnel Committee Speciality

Instruction in everything from effective writing to the legal aspects of counter-insurgency is the job of Lt Col. Roy W. Lundquist, chairman of the personnel committee of the Brigade and Battalion Operations Department.

Originally concerned only with personnel subjects company administration, and the duties of the battalion and brigade S-1, the personnel committee has expanded to include military justice, effective writing, The Army information program and instruction in the laws governing mob and riot control.

"We place heavy emphasis on practical exercise," Lundquist said. "In our field this has the same teaching power as the field exercise in tactical instruction — practice makes perfect and perfection is what we're shooting for."

Practice in personnel subjects is a "bug" with Lundquist who feels that many young officers fail to see the importance of company administration, military justice or military writing until they get to their units.

"Communication is a great need today," he emphasized, "it is important for people to understand one another, to lock on to instruction and to hack out the desired results."

Prior to coming to The Infantry School Lundquist earned a Master of Science Degree in Educational Administration and Supervision from the University of Tennessee.

Now he supervises all the instruction given to the leader classes at the school-officer candidates and basic students, career course students and field grade officer refresher students.

"Our objective," he said, "is to make the student proficient in the many aspects of administration and management of personnel." To forge this result, the committee presents over 45 different lectures, conferences and practical exercises.

"To the young vigorous Infantry leader morning reports and duty rosters are dull and routine and it's a real challenge to teach these subjects — but they are the foundation of personnel administration and it is absolutely essential that every officer be firmly rooted in this area," he added.

No matter what the level of instruction, the students are required to work with the actual material in training that they will eventually use at their units or in the field.

"In a class in military justice we will use records of trial and Article 15 proceedings, and the emphasis is always on practical exercise," Lundquist concluded.

197th Know Your Senior NCOs

MSgt. William Fisher of Headquarters and Headquarters Co., 197th Infantry Bde. has been a "bullet man" since he entered the Army in Febrary, 1941.

"Bullet man" is a phrase coined by Fisher meaning ammunition foreman, which is the position he currently holds for the entire 197th.

Accounting for the ammunition used by the 197th daily is Fisher's primary job.

Having served in the Pacific in World War II and in Korea during the Korean War, Fisher has also seen overseas duty in India, New Guinea, Japan and Germany —always as a "bullet man."

Troops Aid Re-Up Film Research

Seven Department of the Army representatives headed by Lt. Col. Guy Groff Jr., Office of Personnel Operations, Washington, D.C., visited Fort Benning recently in connection with the Army re-enlistment program.

The DA team is part of a new publicity support program for increasing first term Army re-enlistments. Information gathered at Fort Benning and other military bases will provide material for producing two new Army re-enlistment films.

Lt. Col. LaVerne H. Dahl, deputy adjutant general for garrison activities, said the DA team interviewed six officers and 24 enlisted men while at Fort Benning. The interviews will provide movie script writers with background of problems associated with the enlistment program.

Included in the interviews were battalion commanders, company commanders, regular Army enlisted men and inductees with at least one year service.

Production of the two new re-enlistment films is programmed to start in March, with a completion date scheduled for August, officials said.

Included on the DA team was Frank Beebas of New York City. Beebas won an Academy Award for his film documentary on the "Hope" hospital ship.

Gen. Norton Challenges OC Class 6

"You must accept the challenges of hard, rigorous training with determination," Brig. Gen. John Norton told 212 students at the opening of Officer Candidate Class 6 last week.

He pointed out that the training would be "tough but fair." "Our job," he said, "is to make you the best possible combat platoon leader—we expect you to spare no effort in your determination to succeed."

Gen. Norton also reminded the students that new equipment and gear is "gushing" into the hands of our troops. "Now," he said, "is the time you must learn how to use it."

He emphasized the importance of knowing about the Army's ever expanding quantity of new equipment by telling students, "when you graduate, you will be expected to teach your men how to use it, maintain it and fight with it."

In his opening address he told the candidates that they were the 602nd class in a long line of patriotic American volunteers dedicated to protecting our way of life and our freedom.

Officer Candidate Class 6 is commanded by Capt. K. R. Johnston. First Sergeant is J. S. Strickland.

U.S. Army 'Copter Platoon Rides 'Shotgun' for Marines

Da Nang, Republic of Viet Nam (AFPS) — "To Dragon from Boat - train — Thanks for a job well done."

Those words are inscribed on a plaque in the orderly room of the U. S. Army's 7th Airlift Platoon here, as an expression of thanks from Marine Helicopter Squadron (HMM) 364—"Boat-train" — to pilots and crews of the Army's armed UH1-B (Huey) helicopters of the 7th Airlift Platoon—"Dragon."

The platoon is the only armed helicopter unit in Viet Nam supporting Marine helicopters. An armed section, divided into two gun-teams of two "Hueys" each, protects troop and cargo-carrying Marine H-34 helicopters from hostile fire. It is under the operational control of Marine Helicopter Squadron (HMM) 365, which has replaced HMM-364 since the plaque was presented to the Army helicopter unit.

Except for flights to relatively secure airfields, the Marine aircraft are always escorted by a gun - team from the 7th, flying below and at both sides of the H-34s.

Rugged mountains of the terrain covered by the squadron present hazards not found in other regions of Viet Nam. Viet Cong troops are often positioned on ridge lines to fire down on helicopters landing in the valleys.

When approaching a landing zone, the armed helicopters go in low with the crews looking for the flash of ground fire. The weapons system is armed and both door - gunners have their machine guns charged. Each gunner holds a smoke grenade — pin pulled — ready to drop to mark a target. Once the target is marked, the nearest Huey strafes it with machine guns and rockets.

The Army's air support is returned by the Marines on the ground. The 7th does not have all the maintenance facilities required to keep its helicopters flying, so most of the sheet metal, plexiglass and electrical work on the Hueys is performed by Marine maintenance men of HMM-365.

Wash Rack Saves Time On Big Jobs

With 56 tanks, two flame-throwers, five target tanks and four tank retrievers in almost constant use in support of USAIS problems, the man of the 4th Bn., 69th Armor spend much time washing track vehicles.

A time-saving solution to this cleaning problem has been devised in the form of a concrete wash rack which saves approximately two and one-half hours of cleaning time on the average vehicle.

Located in the 69th Armor motor pool, the rack is 120 feet long, 35 feet wide and can service five track vehicles simultaneously.

Using a high-pressure water system, mud and dirt collected during problems and demonstrations can be washed off in record time.

A large, aluminum "strainer," which allows excess water to flow into a drainage canal, collects the mud and dirt and must be emptied several times a day.

The wash rack was built under the supervision of Lt. Robert C. Luttrell, and SFC Andrew Collins.

According to 69th track vehicle drivers, the invention has proven itself.

Driver Insurance

To Those Americans 'Too Busy' to Vote

Washington (AFPS) — Air Force SSgt. Carl E. Carr's $1,000 award winning letter in the 1964 Freedoms Foundation letter writing contest, is directed to "Those Americans who are 'too busy' to vote."

"How valid is your share of Freedom if you fail to vote?" he asked. "What is the price tag on your share of liberty?

"Not for sale? Yet you compromise your voting duty as an American, trying to justify that position with 'I have tow work' or 'The poll tax is too high' or a hundred other such illogical, inadequate and downright appalling, open admissions of apathy."

Citing the amount of money an American citizen earns per hour, Carr pointed out that it ". . .is the price tag you place on your share of freedom — IF you fail to vote."

Drawing a similarity between our freedoms and the lack of them in a Communist-dominated government, he pointed out that the sign in a store window "Closed — See You At The Polls" is insurance for being able to display the "Closed — See You in Church" sign in a shop window.

The airman reminded his readers that the American concept of democracy is controlled by the government's operation as dictated by consent of the governed.

"This power of each American is expressed at the voting booth," Carr wrote. "There begins the government — the strength of the Union.

"America is only as strong as the American voter and power exists only where it is exercised," he stated.

Two Post Units Cited for Rating In Recent CMMI

Two Fort Benning units were cited Tuesday for receiving superior ratings in recent Third Army Command Maintenance Management Inspections (CMMI).

They are Battery B, 2nd Bn., 10th Artillery, 197th Infantry Bde., and Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 39th Transportation Bn.

Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges presented the unit commanders, Capt. James K. Mawhorr, Battery E, and 1st Lt. Richard L. Johnston, Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, with citations for superior ratings.

Mobile Army Training Teams Play Vital Assistance Role

Washington (ANF) — U. S. Army Mobile Training Teams (MTTs) are an important part of the Military Assistance Program. These MTTs, composed of highly qualified military and Department of the Army civilians, instruct selected groups of indigenous personnel who will, in turn, train their fellow countrymen.

During FY 65, 155 teams comprised of 768 Army personnel are spending anywhere from one to six months in various countries on special assignments, implementing the Army Military Assistance Training Program.

Training contributed by the teams includes instruction in the maintenance and operations of specialized and complicated equipment furnished under the Military Assistance Program. Assistance is also provided in the establishment or revitalization of maintenance, supply, personnel training and unit management, and operations. Other areas covered include counterinsurgency and civic action activities, such as well-drilling, sanitation, and construction of roads, bridges and schools.

Army Slated To Develop Pay System

Washington (AFPS)— The Army has been named to design, develop and test a centralized, automated pay system which could provide the basis for a uniform military pay system.

All services will participate in a centralized pay system study expected to take four years.

Representatives from the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps met at the Army Finance Center, Indianapolis, Ind., in the first step toward putting the test into operation.

If the centralized system study proves feasible, all services will adopt it.

HAWK Missile Gains Free World Popularity

Redstone Arsenal, Ala. (ANF) — The Army's HAWK air defense weapon has become the Free World's most popular missile system, according to training records at the Army Ordinance Guided Missile School.

Some 50 HAWK maintenance crews have been formed at the school and sent out to support tactical forces in the Army and Marine Corps U. S. and foreign HAWK maintenance units than for any other of the nine missile systems included in the school's twelve year curriculum.

Officials at the school report that they have trained, activated, and deployed more and the armies and air forces of 16 other nations.

"Customers" for the HAWK training, in addition to the U.S. and Canada, include Belgium, Denmark, France, West Germany, Greece, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway and Turkey in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization; Republic of China, Japan and the Republic of Korea in Asia; and three non-aligned nations, Israel, Spain and Sweden.

Under a NATO agreement the HAWK is also manufactured by firms in Belgium, France, West Germany, Italy and the Netherlands for use by European Allies.

Dye Selected by Touchdown Club for Top Grid Honor Will Receive Col. Joseph F. Escude Award at Banquet

PAT DYE IS SELECTED
As Top Armed Forces Grid Player

By DAVE BRAUN

Pat Dye, the Doughboys' star left guard has been selected by the Washington, D. C., Touchdown Club as the Outstanding Armed Forces player of the year for 1964.

Dye, a 5'11", 205-pounder from Blythe, Ga., will receive the Col. Joseph F. Escude Award Saturday at the Touchdown Club's annual banquet in the Sheraton Park Hotel.

The presentation of the award to Dye will be made by Gen. Anthony McAuliffe, hero of the battle of Bastogne during World War II.

The rugged lineman, whose inspiring play during the 1964 gridiron campaign played a key role in Fort Benning's race to the national service football championship, recently was named the "Most Valuable Player" in the U.S. Army for 1964.

On Dec. 5 in Orlando, Fla., he was voted the "Most Valuable Player" in the Missile Bowl as Fort Benning defeated Fort Eustis, Va., 9-3, and at the conclusion of the regular season he was named the "Most Valuable Player" on the Doughboy squad by his teammates.

Dye received his stiffest competition for the all-service award from quarterback Eddie West of Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, and halfback Andy Russell of the VII Corps (Germany) "Jayhawks".

West was perhaps the finest passer in military football this past season as shown by the some 325 yards in the air he amassed against the Doughboys while Russell, a product of the Pittsburgh Steelers once was named to the National Football League "All Rookie" team.

Also expected to be on hand to receive awards at the banquet are such football figures as Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama, voted as "Coach of the Year" and Notre Dame quarterback John Huarte, selected as the outstanding college football player of 1964.

Seldon Leads CTC Over Engineers For First Half Hoop Championship

By MITCH YAMANAKA

Carl Seldon, selected by the players and referees as the game's most valuable player, led the 1st Bn., CTC basketball team to the first half championship of The Infantry Center battalion level basketball league, as CTC dropped the 577th Engineer Bn., 75-63.

Both teams entered the game with 8-1 records for the season.

The 577th outscored CTC from the floor, 52-50, but the margin of victory was gained from the charity lanes. CTC sank 25 out of 37 foul shots to only 11 of 20 for the 577th.

Eighteen of CTC's free throws came in the second half. The 577th managed to net only seven of 13 attempts in the final 20 minutes.

Strong Half

Holding a slim one point margin at the half, 29-28, the CTC five came on strong in the second half. Leading the second half scoring attack for CTC was Seldon. Seldon connected on five long one-handed jumpers during the second half. He ended the night with 19 points.

The Engineers battled back to tie it up, 41-41, with 8:34 left on the clock, and the two teams tossed the lead back and forth 10 times before the CTC quintet gained the advantage. With three minutes remaining, CTC's Richard Craig gave his team a six point edge with two 3-point plays.

From that point on CTC slowly pulled away.

The CTC rebounders, led by Joseph Hicks and Pernell Cole, controlled both backboards and limited the 577th to three offensive rebounds.

Cole, CTC's high scoring forward, was held to eight points during the game, but his outstanding defensive playing sparked CTC to its victory. Cole blocked four 577th field goal attempts, stole the ball on many occasions, and was in on almost every rebound.

Seldon, the shortest man on CTC's starting five at 5'10", battled his taller opponents all the field as TSB managed to connect on only 23 of 82 attempts for a 28 per cent average and the 29th hit on 29 of 90 attempts for an average of 32 per cent.

TSB bucketed 11 out of 20 free shots with the 29th a step ahead hitting 11 of 18.

Second Half Rally Falls Short; 577th Beats 428th, 66-51

A scrappy 428th Medical Bn. five fell short on a last half rally Monday night as they dropped their first game of the second half to the 577th Engineer basketball squad, 66-51.

The 428th held the lead in the first half for 14 minutes, but the taller Engineer quintet, led by Roger Faber and Bobby Pendley, pushed into a one point lead with 5:49 left on the clock.

During the final minutes of the half, the score was tied four times before the Engineers pulled out in front for a five point margin. The 577th held on to its slim lead and left the floor at halftime ahead 27-22.

Bernard Hicks, the 428th's lanky center, fouled out of the game at the start of the second half with more than 18 minutes left on the clock.

With the Medical Battalion's top rebounder out of the game, the Engineers racked up six straight points and took a commanding 11 point lead before the shaky 428th five pulled together and mustered a rally.

The 428th, led by the rebounding of Raul Guerrero and Joe Gragg, chipped away at the lead until with 7:54 left of the clock, they pulled even, 41-41.

The full court press thrown on by the 428th rattled the taller Engineers, but they settled down and took the lead again and never relinquished it for the remainder of the game.

Both teams were cold from the floor. The 428th connected on 21 of 89 attempts for a 23.6 per cent average. The 577th fared a little better hitting 29.9 per cent of their shots.

In the free throw department, the 428th hit 9 of 23 foul shots, while the 577th connected on 20 of 30.

Faber led all scorers for the game with 20 points. Close behind was teammate Pendley with 18. Leading the scoring for the losers was Gragg with 17.

YAC Swimmer Hopes to Win More Trophies

Little George Lean Jr. is a new member of the YAC swimming team to be watched.

A recently arrival to Fort Benning from Hawaii, seven-year-old George has won a number of swimming trophies and medals since he began swimming at age six.

He is the son of Sgt. George Lean Sr., Co. B, 29th Infantry.

Having won 11 first place ribbons, six trophies and a plaque for the pool record (in his age class) in Hawaii, Georgia hopes to add more trophies to his collection.

He lives with his family at 432 McArthur St. in Columbus.

One Point Margin Gives Bunting Indoor Victory

By SSGT. LEE LA COMBE

SFC Tom Bunting of the Army Marksmanship Training Unit, firing on a Saturday relay, posted a four-match total of 882 of a possible 900 to emerge as the winner of the .22 caliber indoor pistol tournament staged by the Post Rifle and Pistol Club.

One point behind was teammate SFC William B. Blankenship Jr.

The Army's Blue entry captured the team event with a four - man total of 1,164 points. Firing on the squad were Blankenship, Sgt. Merryweather Jones, M-Sgt. George Snavely and SFC Ralph O. Thompson.

Sgt. Geza Hajos of the 2nd Division swept honors in the Sharpshooter Class, taking the aggregate with a score of 851. Another member of the Indianhead Division, Felino Ramirez topped the Marksmen entries, winning all five matches but one and the aggregate with a total of 791.

The Second Division Experts were high in that category with 1,104.

Firing on the team were M-Sgt. James Josey, Sgt. Vincent Angus, SFC L. V. Huddleston and Hajos.

The two-day tourney, fired with .22 caliber pistols, drew 42 entries, according to club secretary Tom Kirkman.

Results of the shoot are:

Best Known Sportsman In Brigade

BY DAVE KAUFELT

PFC Bruce Scribner of the 197th Infantry Bde. Headquarters and Headquarters Company is one of the best known sports figures in the unit.

Currently a member of the Brigade basketball team, Scribner was a life-guard this past summer at Carey Pool and for the last two years has participated in the brigade-level touch football championships.

A Flair for Show Biz??

WASHINGTON (ANF)—Army personnel with a penchant for show business can limber up their dancing shoes, dust off their ventriloquist dummies, and polish those old jokes.

This year the new Army Entertainment Contest Program will give them every opportunity to display their best talents in front of the footlights.

Created to develop the Army Entertainment Program as a whole, the contest program will stimulate competition in and among all levels of command.

Commanders are authorized to conduct entertainment contests each year, and more frequently if necessary. The competitions will enable units to gain cumulative points toward the Army Entertainment Program's Irving Berlin Trophy.

The entertainers will be given full exposure on radio and television programs, soldier shows, and in mobile tour units supporting field exercises.

The Army Entertainment Contest Program operates under the provisions of newly revised AR 28 - 10 which will be supplemented by Department of the Army circulars describing contest activities and scoring.

team, on which Scribner was quarterback and co-captain with Jim Short, were post runners-up.

A radio-repairman with the 197th, Scribner played on last year's Brigade troops basketball team which came in second in the post tourney.

Scribner, whose favorite sport is bowling, rolls with the Headquarters team in the handicap league at the Fort Benning Bowling Center and carries a 196 average.

A native of Clinton, Iowa, Scribner attended Clinton Junior College where he was on the basketball team and majored in physical education.

Before entering the Army in 1963, he was a lifeguard in Harbor Heights, Fla., where his family now resides. Scribner has been a senior lifesaver since he was 16.

29th Infantry Bn. Quintet Rolls to Victory Behind Shooting of McPherson, Walstad

The 29th Infantry Bn., opened its quest for the second half title of The Infantry Center battalion level basketball league with a 69-57 victory over Student Brigade Team 2 Monday night.

The 29th quintet took charge from the first and was never threatened.

Behind the deadeye shooting of Earnest McPherson and George Walstad, the 29th held a 17 point lead at intermission, 36-19.

TSB came out fast in the second half, outscoring the 29th, 38-33, but could not overcome the margin built up by the 29th in the initial 20 minutes.

McPherson led the 29th shooters hitting for 17 points. Walstad hit for 14 points and Donald Harnum added his 11 to the total.

The 29th used a two platoon system against the TSB five.

Martin McWay, TSB's high jumping forward, looked good in pulling down rebounds from his taller opponents, but was ejected late in the final half for unsportsman like conduct. He left the game with 6 points.

Both teams were cold from ponents under the basket on even terms and pulled down six rebounds during the game.

During the opening minutes of the game, with CTC trailing 13-6, Floyd Wicker came off the bench for CTC and tied it up with seven straight points.

Bobby Pendley, the 577th's lanky center, kept his team in the game most of the way, leading all scorers for the night with 23 points. Pendley's close - in jump shots were hard to stop as the 6'6" center went over the top of the rim for his two-pointers.

The full court press put on by CTC in the second half rattled the 577th players and they lost the ball eight times without attempting a shot.

CTC hit 36.7 per cent of its shots from the field, while the 577th connected on 26 of 77 attempts for a 33.5 per cent average.

Army Pets Must Be Registered

Pet owners at Fort Benning are reminded of Army regulations regarding the care of pets and domestic animals.

Pet owners are required to register the pet with the post veterinarian, have the animal vaccinated against rabies, and keep it leashed or under voice control at all times.

Registration and vaccination may be accomplished at the Veterinary Clinic in Bldg. 265 on 10th Division Rd.

Brave Pvt Hands Gen Car Ticket

Question of the week:

You are a lowly private and you ticket the commanding general's car. Should you approach Tasmanian authorities about asylum?

Such happened Sunday and military policeman Robert H. Godwin didn't.

Monday his boss received a complimentary letter from Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles; 2nd Division commander—the culprit.

"Rank has no privileges insofar as compliance with traffic regulations is concerned," wrote Gen. Chiles.

Calling PFC Godwin's action "polite but firm," the two-star general later confessed he had been unaware of the regulation he broke: parking within 20 feet of an intersection.

The incident occurred outside a chapel on Sand Hill where the general had hurriedly parked his car to attend services.

Godwin, surrounded by chapel goers, was writing the ticket when Gen. Chiles returned to his car.

What was Godwin's reaction? It "must have been an embarrassing duty," the general commented.

PORTION OF PRESIDENT'S HONOR GUARD (R) Youngest of Group, Sgt. Nason

'Can't Explain How Proud I Am'--Member of Guard

The crowning point of their careers for several 2nd Division sergeants arrives Wednesday when President Lyndon B. Johnson takes his oath of office in Washington, D. C.

All but one of the 20 "Infantryhead" soldiers — Sgt. Maj. Robert L. Brown — will be attending their first presidential inauguration.

As members of a 500 - man military honor cordon they will be charged individually with the responsibility of shielding the President and demonstrating to the world the strength and dignity of the Army.

"It's a great honor," said Sgt. Maj. James A. Scott of the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry. "I can't explain how proud I am to be representing the division and my unit at an event of such magnitude."

SSgt. Bueford L. Carr of the 1st Battalion, 12th Artillery called the assignment

Group of Twenty Emplanes Tomorrow To Represent 2nd Div in Honor Guard

BY JOE TREASTER

A score of sergeants who will represent the 2nd Infantry Division at the inauguration of President Lyndon B. Johnson leave tomorrow morning for the nation's capital.

The first briefing on the role the men will play in the ceremony will come Sunday afternoon at Fort Myer, Va., according to Sgt. Maj. Robert L. Brown, leading the group.

Gigantic Rectangle

The 2nd Division soldiers, along with 480 other men from the five branches of the armed forces, will form a gigantic human rectangle to shield the president and lend military dignity to the inauguration.

Until Wednesday, when the President takes his oath of office, the men will practice at Fort Myer, Va., and in front of the Capitol.

Weather experts have predicted that inauguration day will be one of the coldest Jan. 20ths in history and for comfort, the sergeants have been issued thermal long underwear.

Top Coats Out

The heavy military top coats that members of the honor cordon wore at the last inauguration have been ruled out this year, Sgt. Maj. Brown said.

How long the men will be braced at attention before the President is uncertain.

But Sgt. Maj. Brown, who represented the division at the inauguration of President John F. Kennedy, remembers standing more than four hours at that ceremony.

"We're keeping our fingers crossed that President Johnson will shorten the ceremony," he said. "It snowed the night before President Kennedy's inauguration and a terrific wind whipped us. Whirly - winds of snow blew around us."

Black Watch Charms Listeners at Club Two

A capacity crowd Saturday night watched 36 kilt-clad, bagpipe-playing Canadian Highlanders strut through a half-hour program at Service Club Two on Sand Hill.

At every pause in the music, applause showered the men of the Pipes and Drums, 1st Battalion, the Black Watch (Royal Highland Regiment).

"Marvelous:" Gen. Chiles

Three special guests who said they thought the performance was "marvelous" were the 2nd Infantry Division Commander, Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, his wife and son.

The musicians had played earlier in the day on Main Post at Stillwell Field—the sort of outdoor arena on which they usually perform.

Indoors at the service club, however, the ceiling posed a problem for Drum Major Bill Mackay, who likes to twirl his spear - like baton high into the air when he changes direction of march. Dangerously close at times, the ba-

By-Gone Days of the Nickel Beer

WWI Memoirs Recreate an Era

By BOB de CAMARA
Editor, The 2nd Division News

Editor's Note: As it becomes available, the portion of Herschell Fox's book concerning himself and the 2nd Division in World War I will be serialized in The 2nd Division News.

The first chapter of "Down Memory Lane," an autobiography in progress by a World War I 2nd Division soldier, has been received at the information office.

Nuggets of fascinating lore concerning an Army of a by-gone era are liberally sprinkled throughout Herschell Fox's first offering.

Nice Cold Beer

He likens the uniform of the soldier of that time to tramp's garb and says that a $15 a month salary could buy "a nice cold glass of beer" for a nickel and eggs for 10 cents a dozen.

Fox states in an accompanying letter that reading The 2nd Division News from cover to cover "made me nostolgic (sic) for my Army days."

The first chapter opens with Fox, a high school dropout, joining the National Guard.

"I was senior at High School. I didn't like my teacher, my books, nor anything else about school."

Dad Hoaxed

Too young for the Regular Army, Fox was accepted by the Guard on the basis of a permission slip which Fox's dozing father had signed, thinking it a gym application.

Taken into the Cavalry, Fox immediately made an enemy of the sergeant, "a roughriding ex-regular."

The final alienation between the two, which ended with Fox's transfer to the outfit's veterinary section, occurred over a horse named "Dynamite."

Fox, who weighed about 116 lbs., and was riding a gentle steed named "Betsy," was asked by the ser-

'Commo' Specialist Is a Music Predictor; Guesses the Nation's Listening Preference

BY JIM LULL

"Cashbox listed it number 85 — then it soared to 49. It has a catchy beat, good lyrics and definitely will appeal to the middle teeners."

Each profession has its own language. Twenty-two year-old Spc4 Art Gulick, 1st Brigade communications platoon expert, speaks the tongue of the popular music distributor with a knowledge based on long experience.

"I guess I first seriously became interested in popular music when I was about eleven years old at home in North Plainfield, N. J. I used to listen faithfully to Martin Block's 'Make Believe Ballroom' on a New York City station. Every week I followed the progress of the various top 30 tunes of that time," Gulick remarked.

"I sometimes amazed myself by predicting very closely what each particular record would be the following week," he added.

As a result of his early interest in popular music, Gulick looked for employment involving record sales. "During school I worked for a local record shop for no pay —I just wanted to gain experience and get closer to the business," he said.

Wealth of Knowledge

Gulick has gained a wealth of information about popular music sales.

"It even goes into theory," Gulick said. "For instance, the surfing and hot-rod numbers appeal mainly to boys in the 15-19 year-old age group because they think in terms of ocean fronts and fast, souped-up cars. Also, I've found that the 'well off' group likes this type of music simply because they have the time and money to enjoy some of these fads they hear about on the radio."

"Slow and romantic ballads seem to appeal largely to girls and couples. Girls like to associate themselves with the lyrics of love songs. Couples do too. I'm sure you have heard couples say 'that's our song'."

Gulick continued, "The most unusual popularity is that of the Beatles and similar British groups. Young girls, early teeners especially, like the Beatles. Naturally, boys of the same age and older do not always hold the same feeling because they are in a sense jealous of them. "The girls would rather listen to the Beatles than talk to me' is a major complaint among teenage boys.

He has had a year and a half of college at Stetson University, DeLand, Fla.

COMMANDED BRIGADE PRIOR TO WWII
Brig. Gen. Humphrey Visits

88-Year-Old Former 'Indianhead' Returns

An 88-year-old soldier who commanded the 2nd Infantry Division's 3rd Brigade before World War II returned Wednesday for a visit to his old unit and a chat with the commanding general.

Brig. Gen. (Ret) Charles F. Humphrey, Jr., commanded the brigade between Jul., 1937 and Oct., 1939.

He left the unit just two days before it began a 24-year period of inactivity. The brigade was reactivated in 1963 when the division was reorganized into a different form.

Gen. Humphrey met with the division commander, Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, then toured the division historical center and ended the visit at Gen. Humphrey's old unit.

'Indianhead' Officer Gets Bang Out of Indian Head, Md., School

BY BYRON DUNHAM

An "Indianhead" Division chemical officer recently returned from Indian Head, Md., where he learned how not to blow himself up.

Capt. Max E. Newman, S-3 chemical officer, at Headquarters, 3rd Brigade, graduated from courses at The Joint Armed Forces Explosive Ordnance Disposal (EOD) School at The U.S. Naval Propellant Plant near the town of Indian Head.

The school teaches the disarming of live bombs of all types, both foreign and domestic.

The complete list of weapons studied embraces ordnance from the Civil War, which still turns up in odd, watery crannies in the South, to today's most exotic weapons.

Capt. Newman is the only trained EOD officer in the 2nd Division. The only Army officers eligible to attent the EOD School are Chemical Corps and Ordnanace Corps officers, who meet specified requirements.

A member of the 2nd Division for nearly a year, Capt. Newman is a 1957 graduate of Purdue University in Indiana where he received a Bachelor of Science degree in aeronautical engineering.

A student at the Indiana University Law School for nearly two years, he is a few hours shy of being a bona-fide attorney.

Pursuing engineering since entering the Army, Capt. Newman states that several weapons systems devised by him are presently under consideration by The Combat Developments Command.

Overhauling of Gutted WW Tank Continues at 1st Bn, 72nd Armor

A burned-out World War II tank, destined to be a permanent monument at the 3rd Brigade, is receiving an overhauling by the 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor.

The metal monster, rusted and unable to run under its own power, became the property of the brigade about four months ago. Since that time the tank has been scraped and sanded and is presently under fire by paint spray guns.

Project officers for the restoration, Capt. John Hayes and Lt. Dennis Bugielski, explained that the five-man tank with the 76 mm main gun was of the type used during World War II.

Bugielski said it has been interesting working on the tank "because it seems to have a history all its own. Old tools and even C-ration cans have been found in it. The inside has been completely burned and still has a scorched smell to it which seems to indicate it might have seen combat."

The tank when completed and positioned will symbolize the 3rd Brigade's speed, mobility and firepower, Maj. James Tomes, the brigade S-1, stated.

The tank is one of three the division received from the Aberdeen Proving Ground in Maryland. The remaining tanks will be used for displays throughout the division area, the G-5 (civil affairs) officer said.

Gen. Mueller To Pentagon

Brig. Gen. Edmund L. Mueller, assistant division commander for support, this week began a six-month assignment at the Pentagon as head of a special study group.

In his absence, Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, assistant division commander for maneuver, will handle many of Gen. Mueller's former duties.

Gen. Coffin recently returned to the division after serving as chief of staff for Project TEAM, the evaluating group in the recent tests of the Army's air mobility concept.

Gen. Coffin was also appointed the division's material readiness officer.

Admin Company's Mess Said Best Place to Dine

Mess No. Two, 2nd Administration Company has been adjudged the place to have eaten in December. A plaque to this effect will be awarded.

While 2nd. Admin was scooping up most of marbles with a score of 86 per cent in the monthly contest, other units were recognized as well.

In fact, the average score of all the units in competition was a respectable 80 per cent.

These other units reached the semi - final plateau to battle Admin for the prize: Headquarters Company, 2nd Division; Company A, 2nd Engineer Battalion; Battery B, 17th Artillery; Company A, 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor; and Headquarters Company, 1st Brigade.

A message listing the contestants and the results was recently distributed by Capt. Stewart W. O'Shell, assistant adjutant general.

The Admin Company mess, under the leadership of SSgt. Ralph Helton, took Support Command honors as Mess of the Month before taking the division award. Col. John W. Armstrong, awarded a plaque.

Helton attributes his success with "Admin Number Two" to the fine work and cooperation of his entire mess staff."

ton never touched the ceiling.

The pipe major, or director of music, Bill Magennis, said the group came to Fort Benning after appearing at the Sasquicentennial in New Orleans. After the service club show they were scheduled to return home to Canada.

At home, Magennis said, the Highlanders will spend the rest of the winter in cold weather maneuvers.

"We're a combat infantry unit and music is just a sideline," he said. "We'll probably start off out in the field in snow-shoe and ski training."

Plans Competition

In March the unit will take up its "sideline" again for annual quartet pipes competition, Magennis said.

The Black Watch dates to 1725 when certain Scottish leaders formed a special corps from among the people to maintain order after the rebellion of 1715.

Four companies, composed of Highland gentlemen accompanied by their own servants and authorized to carry arms were formed. They were referred to as the Black Watch, or guard, in comparison with the red-coated English regulars.

During World War I, the regiment earned 26 battle honors; and in World War II, 211 honors and awards were presented to personnel of the unit.

Capital

Washington duty, Sgt. Maj. Brown said he has held five drill sessions "to get the men operating as a unit."

Wednesday, Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, the division commander, inspected the men in the dress blue uniforms that were given to them to wear at the ceremony.

At noon Wednesday they had lunch with New York Yankee second baseman, Bobby Richardson, at the Sand Hill Noncommissioned Officers' Club.

In addition to Sgt. Maj. Brown, the men selected to represent the division in Washington are:

Sgt. Maj. Edward B. Leavitt, 2nd Engineer Battalion; Sgt. Maj. James A. Scott, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry; Sgt. Maj. Sherman A. Moore, 1st Battalion, 12th Artillery; Sgt. Maj. Earl T. Rayburn, Division Artillery; 1st Sgt. Donald S. McDewell, 2nd Military Police Company; 1st Sgt. Harold W. Rampey, 2nd Medical Battalion; 1st Sgt. Roy E. Purgason, 2nd Engineer Battalion; MSgt. Odis W. Shivers and MSgt. Wilson G. Nelson, 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion; PSgt. James R. Dykes, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry; PSgt. William A. Ferrell, 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry; PSgt. Carl J. Ashworth, 2nd Engineer Battalion; SFC Taylor Bumper, 7th Battalion, 17th Artillery; SFC Charles R. Maass, 122nd Signal Battalion; SFC Frank E. Bryant, 2nd Battalion, 72nd Armor; SSgt. Bueford L. Carr and SSgt. James L. Layton, 1st Battalion 12th Artillery; and Sgt. Howard G. Nason, 4th Squadron 7th Cavalry.

Three alternates who will also make the trip, all first sergeants, are: Eugene Drake, 1st Battalion, 12th Artillery; John E. Miller, 2nd Medical Battalion; and Smith Hersman, 2nd Engineer Battalion.

Proud

"the high point of my career."

The top - ranking noncommissioned officer in the 12th Artillery, Sgt. Maj. Sherman A. Moore, said: "I feel real proud — honored. It's a distinction to be one of 20 men from a unit 15,000 strong."

Even for Sgt. Maj. Brown, who served in the honor cordon at President John F. Kennedy's inauguration, the inaugural assignment lacks no luster.

"I'm all keyed-up and hot to go," said Sgt. Brown, who will be in charge of the sergeants while they are in the nation's capital. "I'm looking forward to doing this inauguration up in the finest second to none style. This duty is a terrific honor."

Youngest Surprised

One of the most surprised to learn that he had been selected for the assignment was 22-year-old Sgt. Howard G. Nason, the youngest man in the group.

"I thought I was just out of luck after I had appeared before the selection board," said Sgt. Nason of the 4th Squadron, 7th Cavalry. Even my wife was surprised when they told me I was going. It's quite an honor."

After five drill sessions with the group, Sgt. Nason said he began to see greater implications in the trip to Washington.

"It's not only a great honor," he said. "But it's a chance for me to become a better soldier by watching the example set by the older men."

Being with the "old" veterans, Sgt. Nason said, makes him feel like a grandson with lots of grandfathers.

"They know everything," he said. "If one doesn't know it, the others do. It's like that coffee ad, 'What Mr. Chase didn't know, Mr. Sanborn did.' I hope some of their glitter rubs off on me."

Memoirs

geant, who weighed in at 200 and was on "Dynamite." to change horses.

"Dynamite" ran away with the inexperienced featherweight and crashed into a trough." "The horse suffered a broken leg and, of course, had to be shot."

The sergeant strongly insinuated at the time that he wished he could have put Fox out of his misery with the coup de grace, rather than the injured horse.

Later, Fox was to have his revenge as a veterinary helper by issuing the sergeant the worst of the new mounts.

Fox tel's of his outfit's transfer to the Mexican border to aid in punishing the bandit Pancho Villa. They saw no action and the chapter ends with Fox's agreeing to his father's offer of college, "or else."

Apparently Fox never got to college, for his letter to the information office promises that the next chapter will deal with the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe, of which the 2nd Division formed a part.

Fox, who lives in New York, has been an officer of 2nd Division Post No. 860 of the American Legion for some 40 years and active in the "Indianhead" Association as well.

Officer Drought Relieved By 6 Arrivals to Med Bn

The acute shortage of officer personnel in the 2nd Medical Battalion has been somewhat reduced with the recent arrival of six new second lieutenants.

Lt. Craig L. Rohrer, who as the battalion adjutant is first to welcome new arrivals, has been busy assigning escort officers to help the recent graduates of the Medical Field Service School at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., get through the problems of adjusting and settling in their new environment.

Welcomed to the battalion were: Lts. Michael A. Durcan from Jacksonville, Fla., a graduate of the University of Notre Dame; James E. Fowler from New Waverly, Tex., a graduate of Sam Houston State Teachers College; Benjamin F. Hardison from Greenville, N. C., a graduate of East Carolina State Teachers College; Herman W. Seefeld III from Laurel, Miss., a graduate of Mississippi State University; William M. Shaw from Grafton, West Va., a graduate of the University of West Virginia; and Charles A. Wynder from Hampton, Va., a graduate of Florida A & M.

DID YOU KNOW

That the basis for the Indianhead shoulder patch, worn by the 2nd Division, was a crude painting on a truck's door done by its World War I driver. Legend says the truck driver believed it enabled him to locate his vehicle in darkness.

Friendliness Characterizes S and T's First Lady; Has Found Army Life to be 'Richly Rewarding'

A Profile
By ALICE WITTER

Jeanne Clobossey Van Lydegraf is an easy person to get to know because of her friendliness, warmth and delight in conversation.

Indeed, the wife of Lt. Col. Dean Van Lydegraf, commander of the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion, suggests the meaning of A and T be changed to "Stop and Talk" as a result of this delight in conversation.

Representative

Perhaps no Army couple is more uniquely representative of the breadth of the United States or more familiar with the diversity of its various regions. Jeanne, a native of Massachusetts, journeyed all the way to the Pacific coast for a vacation and there met "Van", a native of Oregon.

Following World War II when Van served in the 94th Infantry Division in the European theatre, the Van Lydegrafs went to Fort Ord, California, then to a short course at Fort Lee, Va.

In 1948, the Van Lydegrafs went to the Canal Zone, where Jeanne employed her talents gained at Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, Va., by working at the Army Finance and Accounting Office.

School Days

Upon their return in 1950, Capt. Van Lydegraf was assigned to the staff and faculty of the Quartermaster school at Fort Lee.

In 1953, Maj. Van Lydegraf was sent to the Babson Institute in Massachusetts to obtain his Master's degree. During the eighteen months "Van" was in school, Jeanne took the opportunity to spend the maximum time with her relatives living in the area, and to enjoy summer vacations on Cape Cod.

When Maj. Van Lydegraf went to Korea in 1954 for six-teen months, Jeanne and the children, Shelley, now 19, and Leigh (called "Rusty"), now 17, lived at Southern Pines, N.C.

Following his return, the Van Lydegrafs went to Washington, D. C., where they remained for almost four years, and in 1959 went to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, for the Command and General Staff College course.

"Wonderful Tour"

In 1960 the embarked on derful tour of Hawaii. They laxed living, of dress, the beaches and the beautiful climate for three years.

The trip back to the mainland by ship was equally enjoyable. It included a stop at Disneyland, where Jeanne admits she "rode on everything."

The Industrial College of the Armed Forces at Fort McNair, Washington, D. C., was the next assignment. Following his graduation from this course, Lt. Col. Van Lydegraf came to Fort Benning to assume command of the S and T Battalion.

Major Interests

Jeanne's major interests are three-fold — her husband, her son, and her daughter. Rusty is a senior at Baker High School. Shelley is presently "on her own" in Washington, D. C., doing secretarial work and both taking a modelling course and teaching modelling part-time.

Although she claims no great talents of her own — attempting golf at the present, and being an "off-and-on" knitter — Jeanne's talent for talk stands her in good stead with her greatest pleasure, meeting people.

Army Life

She has found Army life richly rewarding, and says if they had it to do over again, she would choose no other life.

Her appraisal of her one great talent, the "gift of gab," is for too modest. With this talent she obviously makes friends readily, puts others quickly at their ease, and shows a sincere interest in people.

If the name of that battalion is ever changed, it will be a fitting tribute to the lady who always has time to "Stop and Talk."

17th Arty Newlyweds Shivareed on Limber

"I thought there had been a traffic accident," said Lt. James L. Hunter.

Both Hunter and his bride of a few weeks Martha, were in for a surprise as they were whisked by and realized what they had assumed to be a traffic jam was a caravan of cars driven by the officers of the 2nd Infantry Division's 17th Artillery.

When they reached the head of the line of cars they found out what was happening. It was an old fashioned "Shivaree", an artillery custom to welcome new couples to the Army post.

Waiting to take the new couple on a tour of the post was a 1902 Limber, a two wheeled vehicle used to transport ammunition in the days of the horse-drawn field artillery.

"This should be an interesting afternoon", said Mrs. Hunter, as she was helped onto the seat of the old artillery vehicle by her husband and 17th Artillery Commander Lt. Col. Glen W. Smith," I'm excited".

Lt. Hunter mounted the Limber and the Horn-honking parade moved off on a short tour of Fort Benning's Main Post area.

The parade ended at the home of Col. and Mrs. Smith, where a party was held in honor of the newly married couple.

After the party, the Hunters and other members of the party drove to the couple's home where Lt. Hunter, in the time-honored tradition, carried his bride across the threshold.

Silver Compote Graces S and T January Coffee

Mrs. Kulman B. Smith and Mrs. Richard M. Truran were hostesses, recently at a morning coffee for the ladies of the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion.

Special guests were Mrs. Paul Smith, mother-in-law of Mrs. K. B. Smith and Mrs. Joseph Santa Maria, mother of Mrs. K. B. Smith.

The table was graced by a large silver compote filled with pastel-colored spun satin balls of graduated sizes.

The February coffee will be hostessed by Mrs. Richard A. Heustess and Mrs. Charles J. Ekvall at the home of Mrs. Heustess.

23rd Ladies Hold January Gathering

The January coffee of the ladies of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry was held at the home of Mrs. David F. Mauck. Mrs. William C. Comee, Jr., served as co-hostess.

Snowflake nametags, "snow" punch and a lovely cake in the shape of a snowman set the theme.

Newcomer Mrs. Joseph R. Freeman was welcomed by the group.

Mrs. Arthur J. Rafferty, who won the door prize, will hostess the February coffee in her home, assisted by Mrs. William O. Child.

DID YOU KNOW

That the 2nd Division has had 54 separate commanders, beginning with Brig. Gen. C. A. Doyen of the U. S. Marines, to the present Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, who served with the division also in World War II and Korea.

Ladies Coffee; Elect Officers

Mrs. James Ward was elected president of the 2nd Engineer Battalion ladies at their December coffee.

Others elected were: Mrs. Calvin Garner, vice president; Mrs. George Tadler, secretary; Mrs. Donald Kahler, treasurer. Mrs. Herbert Lever, Mrs. Allan Tobiason and Mrs. Albert Rushing were elected to the hospitality committee.

The new officers will assume their duties in January and serve for six months.

Mrs. Gurvis Windham and Mrs. Albert Rushing were co-hostesses for the affair, held at the Windham home. A Christmas theme was carried out throughout the house.

Coffee was poured by Mrs. Herbert Lever.

Snowman Greets G-3 Wives at Punch Party

A cheery, carrot-nosed snowman greeted G-3 wives to the lovely home of Mrs. John Gilchrist on a December afternoon. Mrs. Gilchrist and Mrs. Frank Wasco were co-hostesses for a Christmas punch party.

From the snowman to the candy cane cookies, the atmosphere was one of warm friendship and Christmas cheer. An added note was the Christmas gift exchange.

Farewell was said to Mrs. John Hesterly, who follows her husband to Division Artillery.

Mrs. Thomas Brown was welcomed into the group.

Ancient Chinese Musket Requires Two Men to Fire; Relic at 9th Inf

The properties of the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry museum played a part in two separate ceremonies last week.

A Chinese two-man musket, captured during the Boxer Rebellion, led the battalion at a command reveille while the division band played the newly - resurected "Old Ninth Infantry March."

Put to Use

Later the same day, the gun and the march music provided the color for a 3rd Brigade awards ceremony.

The two soldiers who jauntily bore the "Manchu" musket were PFC Vittorio Valente and Pvt. Kalmen Schmauzer of "Charlie" Company. They are designated the permanent honor of carrying the musket, according to Sgt. Maj. Alkcus Stokes.

One of a mere 300 such weapons manufactured by the Chinese during the early seventeenth century, the curio was once described in Ripley's "Believe It Or Not" as requiring two days to fire — one day to load and fire and one day for the firers to recover the recoil.

Hatches Idea

Lt. Col. Alfred J. Millard, battalion commander, hatched the idea for carrying the musket and playing the "Ninth Infantry" march, and declared that both march and musket will be integral parts of all future battalion-size formations and ceremonies.

Said Col. Millard at the command revielle that morning:

"While rummaging through our 'Manchu' Museum recently I opened a box sealed since 1935, which contained, among other stuff, an envelope sealed since 1906, which contained a yellowed piece of sheet music — "The Old Ninth Infantry March."

USO Still Boon to Soldier

USO, the United Services Organization, has since the war years become less meaningful to many of us without any real justification.

The USO has kept up a tradition that during the war years provided servicemen with entertainment and cultural opportunity at every base or port which housed the men defending our nation.

Orchestras and comedians of all sorts unselfishly gave their services during those war years.

Record hops and caravans studded with stars provided entertainment for the men both overseas and stateside.

This without question was one of the best morale building programs that was ever devised for the serviceman. But today most guys think of it as a thing of the past. Very few of the traditional USO opportunities seem to exist during times of peace.

At least this was my feeling until I was sent for temporary duty to New York's Fort Slocum, a tiny post situated on an island.

The entire class of 10 men representing Army, Navy and Air Force were given ample opportunity to derive some of these USO benefits.

The club, located just outside Times Square, was very modest in appearance and featured a bulletin board indicating items of interest for any serviceman.

To name just a few, an abundance of tickets for nearly any Broadway play was available, in addition to activities in Madison Square Garden, the UN Building, Radio City Music Hall and various museums and centers throughout New York.

The bulletin board showed many tickets were available for World Fair activities last fall with indications that many of the same accommodations would also be available this year.

Of course the most important feature is that everything, except certain tickets sold at discount, is free.

One weekend in New York City with the USO club truly reveals that the tradition that seemed to die after the war years has not become less meaningful but rather is continuing to provide the serviceman with interesting entertainment to suit the cultural tastes of all.

P.S. Don't stay in New York or in any other major city without visiting this fine organization, the USO.

Year Free of Serious Car Accidents Laid to Checks

Aa entire year without a serious car accident.

This is the record of Headquarters Battery, 2nd Division Artillery.

While all cars used at Fort Benning must submit to a yearly safety inspection, the men of Headquarters Battery have gone one step farther.

Every 60 days the mechanics from the motor pool, under the supervision of WO Felix E. Tucker and SFC Jeff Bass, give a courtesy inspection to all vehicles.

They check lights, brakes, mufflers, etc. and look for signs of wear in places where a failure could mean an accident.

"Some of the most common deficiencies," said 1st Sgt. John Peropat, "are a burned-out taillight, brakelight or directional signal. Very often a man doesn't realize these lights have stopped working until he either gets a ticket or is involved in an accident."

After checking all safety features, the mechanics recommend the installation of safety belts, if the car does not already have them.

Lt. Turner Takes Reins of Battery

Lt. Samuel H. Turner has assumed command of Headquarters, 17th Artillery.

Turner, with the 17th Artillery since November 1963, was the battalion communications officer prior to assuming command of the battery.

He was commissioned in August 1961 after graduating from Georgia State College. Before entering on active duty, Turner was engaged in graduate studies in Actuarial Science at Georgia State College. He then attended the Officer's Basic Course at Fort Sill, Oklahoma and from Fort Sill was assigned to the 17th Artillery.

Turner resides with his wife Joyce and daughter at Springfield Drive, Columbus.

Best Soldier

PFC. Billy I. Griffith, Headquarters Battery, 12th Artillery is the winner of the battalion's Soldier of the Month Award for January 1965.

Griffith, from Cedar Bluff, Virginia, joined the 12th Artillery in May 1964 after completing Advanced Individual Training AIT in communications at Division Artillery.

Prior to his induction, he graduated from Richlands High School, Richlands, Virginia.

Griffitl is presently assigned to the battalion communication section as a senior switchboard operator.

Generals and Colonels Compete Together In Shooting Match; Coffin Proves 'Top Gun'

Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin proved to be one of the 2nd Division's top guns when he recently blasted his way to victory in a senior officer's shooting match.

Runner-up to the assistant Division commander was Col. Burnside E. Huffman Jr., the division chief of staff.

Other Competitors

Also competing in the match, conducted by the 2nd Division Marksmanship Detachment, were Col. Tony F. Perpich, Division Artillery, Col. Fred O. Jackson, Support Command and 1st and 3rd Brigade commanders, Col. John W. Armstrong and Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow Jr.

Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, 2nd Division commander, was the official referee and officiated in the award ceremony at the end of the match.

The pistol shoot, held at Gill Range, was the first of a planned monthly competition which may include members of the general staff and battalion commanders.

Stresses Importance

Gen. Chiles expressed the importance of marksmanship. "We're getting paid to be ready to shoot the enemy," he said, "so we should strive for the best."

He expressed a desire to compete in future matches. "The idea is to let the GI's know that they're not the only ones that pull the triggers. We senior officers do too."

After the scores were totaled and posted, Gen. Chiles announced the first and second place winners. Gen. Coffin then accepted a trophy from the commanding general marking the close of the first senior officers pistol shoot.

Briefs Shooters

Capt. Burke, Marksmanship Detachment Commander, briefed the shooters on range procedure prior to the match. "The match was conducted under modified national rifle association rules," he said. "They used slow and sustained fire with the caliber .45 pistol."

Capt. Burke said that challenge matches are encouraged. He said that anyone desiring to enter a match should contact the Marksmanship Detachment.

Division Soldiers Grunt, Groan to Prepare For Upcoming Post-Wide EIB Examination

By JIM BAKER

Grunts, groans, sore muscles and long hours are the lot of division infantrymen as they prepare for the upcoming testing of candidates for the Expert Infantryman Badge (EIB).

Individual units are putting troopers through extended training to ready them for the testing.

Forced Marches

Division soldiers are taking forced road marches, day and night compass training, and refresher training in the other phases of their combat specialty to ready themselves for the hard-eyed veterans who will scrutinize their efforts on the test course itself.

For the past week, division engineers have been refurbishing and rebuilding the necessary test stations for the test.

The expert Infantryman's badge came into being as a direct result of the Act of Congress which authorized all members of the army who had been in combat since 1941 to wear the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Need for Recognition

The need for recognition of outstanding infantrymen in peace time brought about the inception of the Expert Infantry man's Badge.

The badge itself is a blue rectangle of tin which depicts a rolling-block musket, the infantryman's weapon of years gone by.

Capt. Basil N. Apostle, G-3 project officer for the EIB testing refused to outline the exact manner for each of the phases of the testing. "That would make it too easy," he said.

Apostle holds the EIB, he says he got his the hard way and he's "not going to make it any easier for the candidates."

197th to Test Also

This year, in addition to testing the soldiers of the division, candidates from the Infantry Center's 197th Brigade will also be tested.

Presently it is planned that each candidate will be tested over a period of four days. On the first day he must achieve a score of 325 on the Combat proficiency test. Later the same day he will be tested in day and night compass procedures.

On the second day the candidate must undergo the 12 mile road march. He must make the march in three hours or less in order to pass.

The third day is taken up with testing in patrolling techniques, cover and concealment, field sanitation, military courtesy, proficiency with the hand grenade, Chemical - Biological - Radiological (CBR) warfare, and adjustment of Artillery fire.

Fourth Day

The fourth day will see candidates tested in the fields of communication, demolitions and booby traps, first aid, and weapons proficiency. The fourth day is scheduled for candidates to run the Bayonet course.

Rules for testing state a candidate is eliminated if he fails three phases of testing. He is allowed to be retested in two of the three areas. They provide for retesting in two of the three areas, however.

In the case of examiners, Apostle has attempted to find soldiers who already "possess the Combat or Expert Infantryman's badge." He says this has been difficult as the division has been committed to other projects such as upcoming field maneuvers.

As Engineers Replace Bridge

Traffic Starts Flow Over Upatoi

BY ART CHIEPPA

Santa Fe road over the Npatoi Creek once again is being used by the many travelers on the Fort Benning reservation.

The bridge on this road, weakened by floods in the past few years, was finally washed out over the Christmas holidays by rain-swollen currents.

As of Thursday a new and stronger structure has risen to take its place. Company D, 2nd Engineer Battalion, under the command of Capt. Frank D. Holley, was given the mission to erect the T6-type bridge.

Santa Fe road is a main thoroughfare for personnel who live at Main Post, Custer Terrace, the Capehart housing area and for those people travelling to and from Martin Army Hospital. It was thus necessary to put in temporary bridging as soon as possible.

The bridge was first built on land and inspected. This phase was completed Monday.

The bridge was then dismantled and construction started again Tuesday for final placement. The bridge was completed Thursday, enabling two-way traffic to flow once again.

2nd Aviation Welcomes Two Experienced Fliers

BY BOB JONES

The 2nd Aviation Battalion's General Support Company, added two new pilots, to its aviator's roster, 1st Lt. Bobby N. Williams and W.O. William C. Hinkle.

Williams, from Birmingham, Ala. joins the battalion from a tour of duty in Viet Nam. Williams, a graduate of Auburn University, was originally assigned to the 69th Armor Battalion of the 2nd Infantry Division. He went to Viet Nam after graduation from flight school at Fort Rucker.

For a year, Williams flew support missions for Special Forces units near the Laotian border from his home station at Pleiku, 180 miles north of Saigon.

Also joining the 2nd Aviation Battalion, is W.O. William C. Hinkle who after 13 and one half years in the Air Force, "decided to give the Army aviation program a try."

For seven years, he was a member of the Strategic Air Command (SAC). He flew as a flight engineer on SAC's B52 bombers.

While with SAC, Hinkle saw many remote parts of the world. During the Suez Canal crisis of 1956, he was stationed in North Africa on standby alert.

A part of Hinkle's Air Force career was spent in the missile field where he aided in the testing and development of the Hound Dog Missile at White Sands, N.M. and the Skybolt Missile at Cape Kennedy, Florida.

When not flying for the Army or the Air Force, Hinkle spends his time as a flight instructor.

Carpenter's Dream at Craft Shop

Lathes, power saws, jig saws — 2nd Division Craft shop Two has them all.

Located behind Division Artillery Headquarters at the top of 14th St., craft shop two has facilities for those who would like to build a model airplane or car, or maybe refinish a piece of furniture.

Run by Special Services, the craft shop furnishes all its equipment free to soldiers. They must pay only for the materials they use.

According to SSgt. Roger J. Gelineau, who runs the shop, almost any type of lumber or plywood can be ordered through Special Services.

The craft shop is open 1 to 5 p.m. and weekdays from 1 to 9 p.m. It is closed Saturday and Sunday from Mondays.

Coker at 3rd Bde As Personnel NCO

Recently the S-1, section, 3rd Brigade increased it's strength by one — SSgt. Charles T. Coker.

He is to become the 3rd Brigade Personnel NCO.

Coker has been with the division for the past three and a half years.

He was in the 2nd Battle Group, 23rd Infantry and the 1st Battalion, 87th Infantry before the division turned ROAD.

After the ROAD Concept was adopted by the 2nd Division, Coker was sent to the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry where he was stationed until he was sent to the brigade.

BRAVE TALK

"You're crackers," they said, "for thinking people will read these lists. They're journalistic poison."

Yes, we thought. You're right, yes. But now we say to them, "Ha!" The column is burgeoning. Names to list like never before pour in daily to the information office, and we wonder how we shall squeeze them in. Does that indicate disinterest? At the start, "Brave Talk's" stomach grumbled on a thin diet of some dozen names a week. And now we have a surfeit of the things. Peppery Irish names and Polish names you can't bite through, bland Anglo-Saxon names and spicy Latin names.

Our appetizer today comes, as usual, from the kitchens of the 12th Artillery. First in a class of 28 at a Chemical-Biological-Radiological school was Lt. ROBERT G. HASTY JR., communications officer . . . Sgt. ERNEST G. PARR, formerly of Battery B, may be a warrant officer soon. He's enrolled in the flight program. . . And the 12th has retired the division Safety Award for 1964, due to its twin successes in the quarterlies last year.

Elsewhere in Division Artillery, JOHN H. HASTINGS of the aviation section has been promoted to first lieutenant.

The 17th Artillery is humming. Battery A reports two raises: CAMILO R. RAYAS to specialist four and JOHN L. BIBLE to private first class. At Battery C JERRY R. WILLIAMS went to Sp4 and the outfit welcomes two men, Sgt. DAVID BLANCHARD and Sp5 OTHO L. CANNON.

If names were money, the 37th Artillery could buy a new howitzer. They submit JAMES D. HINES, EDWARD A. KISIOWSKI, RALEIGH SHEPHERD, WILLIAM H. TOWNEY and RONALD C. DUNN, all promoted to Sp4, while ROY C. WHITLOCK became a PFC.

And on the same thesis, the 2nd Aviation Battalion could hire Liz Taylor for kitchen help. Listen to the rustle of this bankroll: Promoted to major are REGINALD H. CORLISS and DONALD R. DRUMM; to first lieutenant, LAWRENCE M. KIMBROUGH and HOMER R. JORDAN; to CWO-3, WILLIAM T. HARGROVE; and to CWO-2, JAMES B. MELVIN, GARY R. WEATHERHEAD and DORSE C. SHERRILL.

The 1st Brigade submits a potpourri. SSgt. WILBUR ALPHONSE, personnel NCO, "is the proud father of a baby girl born four minutes after midnite Monday," their correspondent writes. . .Brigade Commander Lt. Col. Beverly Snow's new driver is Sp4 LEE HAYNES. . .Chap. (Capt.) JACK BANTON replaces Chap. (Capt.) ROBERT BLASINGAME as the brigade chaplain. BLASINGAME has been elevated to the assistant division chaplain's post . . .The 1st Brigade correspondent, PFC JIM LULL, asks us to note that he performs after duty hours as a disc jockey at radio station WCLS under the alias "Chad Reynolds."

Company B, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry has a new commander. He is Capt. GRAHAM J. AVERA, a paratrooper and Ranger, who was helpful some years ago in establishing the Ethiopian Airborne School. Beginning list readers are advised to not attempt the following. These officers are now first lieutenants; GARY R. KAYLOR, 37th Artillery; JOHN J. PIETROFESA and CHARLES M. BRITTON, 2nd MP Company; PAUL J. MEYER, 2nd Admin Company; GRAYDON A. TUNSTAFF, 7th Cavalry; CHARLES S. STOVALL, 2nd Battalion, 72nd Armor; JOHN M. PLANT JR., 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry; FRANCIS C. LUEDTKE, 17th Artillery; and RANDOLPH E. BOSWELL, 2nd MI Detachment.

2nd Division's Outfit at Fort Stewart Wants Win So Badly in Shooting Matches -- It Does

BY BYRON DUNHAM

Someone at the 3rd Brigade's 2nd Battalion, 72nd Armor is a fortune teller.

Lt. Col. C. O. Shell's tankers from Fort Stewart were so eager to win the 3rd Brigade's pistol and rifle marksmanship elimination matches that — they won!

Long before the shooting spree, held last week at Gill and Darby Ranges, one enthusiastic spokesman, Lt. Franklin W. Price Jr., said:

"Everyone down here is determined that Fort Benning receive a taste of Armor marksmanship. The matches should be very interesting, since small arms are definitely not the principle weapons of Armor."

The purpose of the competitive matches was to determine the individual and team firers that will represent the 3rd Brigade during the Commanding General's Rifle and Pistol Championship matches to be held soon.

Participating in the competition against Col. Shell's men were: a sister unit, the 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor, commanded by Lt. Col. Leonard E. Trost; the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry, under the command of Lt. Col. Alfred J. Millard; and 3rd Brigade Headquarters Company, commanded by Capt. Charles R. Kuder.

Col. John W. Armstrong, 3rd Brigade commander, congratulated the winners before a gathering of his entire command at Theater Six.

Col. Armstrong presented the winning team's unit the 3rd Brigade's huge Commanding Officer's Trophy, which stands nearly four feet tall and is crowned with four brass eagles and studded with figurines.

Two high individual pistol firers were Fort Stewart tankers: SFC Virgil L. Collier, 830 points, and Sp5 Jack Combs, 763 points.

Awards Ceremony Follows 37th's First Inspection

The 2nd Division's 37th Artillery held its first command inspection of the year last Saturday, promoting seven men and awarding eight letters of commendation and the Division Artillery Best Mess award for January in a ceremony which followed the inspection.

Receiving the Best Mess award was Battery B. The mess hall was awarded an engraved plaque.

Letters of commendation for proficiency in their jobs were awarded to two men of the battalion's S-4 (supply and logistics) office and five NCOs of the communications section.

Receiving an award for being bonor graduate of his class at the U. S. Army Engineer School, and also promoted to specialist four was Donald A. Ivanoski. Sp4 Ivanoski achieved an average grade of 94 per cent to graduate first in a class of 33 men.

Cited from the communications section were SFC Charles L. Hickman, SSgt. Bonnie R. McGowan, Sgt. Kenneth E. Barbish, MSgt. Robert H. Gardner and Sgt. Joe Becket.

Receiving awards from the S-4 Section were SFC Carl D. Ailes and Sp4 Fred W. Barrows.

'Interesting Job'

Company C, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry has a new executive officer. The new XO is Lt. Raymond C. Welch.

Welch was commissioned in January 1964 and came on active duty in April.

Since he has been with "Chargin' Charlie," Welch has been very busy, going to civil affairs school at Fort Cordon.

Battle Royal Shapes Early For Apache Loop Leaders

By JIM BAKER

A "battle royal" is shaping up in the Apache division of the 2nd Division's basketball schedule.

Two old rivals are once again serving notice on each other that the second half of the schedule will be a "no-holds-barred-contest" for division honors.

Present Lead

The 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion presently occupies the lead in the division league as a result of lopsided wins over Admin Company and the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry.

The defeat of the Manchus of the 9th Infantry gave the S and T quintet the lead after they took a forfeited game from the 122nd Signal Battalion.

The signal battalion could not produce a team last week, as they have just taken the position in the schedule formerly occupied by the hapless Division Headquarters team.

Leading Scorer

S and T's 84 to 65 win over the 1st of the 9th came in the second half of play behind the scoring of Melvin Nicol.

Nicol netted a total of 47 points as the S and T quintet handed the 9th Infantry its worst drubbing to date.

Improvement

The cliff hanger of Monday evening's play was turned in by a much improved 313th ASA Battalion against first-half winner, the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

Behind the jumpshots of Roger Oyler, the ASA quintet, lost a close one to the 23rd, 94 to 89. The last minutes of the first half of play were what proved to be the clincher for the 1st of the 23rd. They ended the half five points ahead and never bettered that lead.

Jimmie Shedrick of the 23rd was in championship form with a 24 point total for the evening. Teammate, Dallas Miller scored 19 points.

Notice Served

In another close one the 23rd Infantry served notice on the first half runner-up that they were still to be reckoned with. They edged the 37th Artillery 67 to 63.

The 313th ASA Battalion was the loosing party in another cliff-hanger, last Friday. The first Battalion, 9th Infantry defeated the security quintet 61 to 58.

Roger Oyler was once again the high scorer with 27 points for the evening. Moore and Sigler of the 9th netted 14 and 13 points respectively for the 9th.

The Aftermath

by Jim Baker

The 313th ASA Battalion's basketball quintet is vastly improved over the team entered in the division's Apache League for the first half of the schedule.

Chief reason for the ASA success in the second half of the schedule, is the play of Roger Oyler, their six foot, three inch center.

The ASA quintet is winless in their two starts since the resumption of play last week. What is impressive about their play in the last two games is the remarkable closeness of the scores of the games. This is especially true in view of the teams they have played.

Last week they held the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry to a three point win. Even more surprising is the five point margin to which they held the powerful 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

The prime mover in the 313th's sudden rise is the scoring punch provided by Oyler.

Oyler has spent several years perfecting an accurate jump shot from outside the key. A shot from this range is difficult to defend against. He says he uses this shot rather than another because he "feels more comfortable."

He is a native of Springfield, Ill. The 21-year-old hoopster played his last two years of high school ball for the Celins Grove High School in the Pennsylvania town of the same name. In his senior year he was the leading scorer in the league. He averaged 21½ points per game that season.

As a sophomore, he was a member of the Springfield High School State Championship team.

Oyler has played on ASA entries in Division softball and football entries as well as hoopball.

Oyler attributes the ASA's surprise regeneration to the fact that the team is "up a little more than in the first half." He suggested the incentive of a clean slate for the Commanding General's Trophy might also have influenced the team's comeback.

At any rate, Oyler's 43 points against such stars Dallas Miller and Jimmie Shedrick of the 23rd Infantry is no mean task.

Underdogs Assume Lead In 2nd Half Cherokee Play

BY JIM BAKER

Cherokee league play in the past week produced some upsets as the 7th Cavalry and the 72nd Armor, tied for an early lead.

The 72nd Armor, Tuesday night, rolled over the 12th Artillery with a 76 to 64 win.

The Armor quintet was led by a 20 point production from John Hundley. Young turned in a 19 pointer for the 12th Arty.

In Cherokee play, Monday night, the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry defeated the 702nd Maintenance Battalion 112 to 45.

Last Friday, the 7th Cav. edged the 2nd Engineer Battalion by the score of 88 to 85.

Howell was the leading scorer for the Cavalry quintet, scoring 26 points for the evening. Robert Cameron kept the Engineers in the game to the bitter end with his 32 point showing.

The 2nd Medical Battalion, which is presently only a half game out of first place defeated the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry 69 to 56 after a deadlocked first half.

Robinson and Motta of the Medics, turned in 24 and 22 point totals for the evening.

In action last Wednesday, the troopers from the 7th Cavalry posted a 114 to 36 drubbing over the 702nd Maintenance Battalion. Howell of the Cav. turned in the leading scoring performance for the evening with a total of 45.

Questions and Answers on INSURANCE!
Question:
"Does My Insurance Cover If I Borrow A Car?

Floyd Pittman
Most policies provide that they will cover if the car being used is a "temporary Substitute" for your regular insured car. Of course if you insure a '62 Ford and also have a '64 Chevy to drive to work, your Chevy is not insured, as a charge must be made for each car, since there is more exposure to accidents. If you do not own a car, but frequently borrow a car, there is a policy known as "Non-Ownerfulfill" coverage. Our agency is equipped to write most all types coverages, and we would welcome the opportunity to talk with you to see if we can help you on your rates and coverages. "Your record sets your rate" at

AIR ASSAULT 11
THE BAYONET
Sky Soldier News
11th AIR ASSAULT DIVISION
FORT BENNING, GA. FRIDAY, JANUARY 15, 1965 PAGE 25

TO THE UNFORGOTTEN . . . Sgt. Maj. Basil L. Plumley and the non-commissioned officers of the 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry honored the heroes of the Battle of the Bulge in a commemorative parade and ceremony held Jan. 8 at Kelly Hill. All companies of the battalion participated in the ceremonies in memory of the twenty year old battle in which the 23rd Infantry Regiment played a significant role as the "North Shoulder" of the Ardennes.

23rd Infantry

Heroes of Bloody Battle of Bulge Honored By Sergeants' Review

In a non-commissioned officer conducted parade, with the troops fittingly in full combat gear and rifles with fixed bayonets, the 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry, commanded by Lt. Col. Harold G. Moore recently commemorated the twentieth anniversary of the "Battle of the Bulge."

It was in this action between Dec. 13 and 19, 1944, that the 23rd Infantry Regiment formed the crucial "North Shoulder" of the Ardennes, fighting to "an absolute success under the most difficult conditions of pressure and climate." For this and other battles, the regiment earned the right to wear the coveted Belgian Fouragere.

Three Medal of Honor winners, all of the 23rd Infantry Regiment, were singled out for special mention at the commerative ceremony. PFC Jose M. Lopez, a heavy machine gunner at the Battle of the Bulge, was credited with single handedly holding off a German horde of tanks and infantry until his company had effected its retirement, and with alone killing at least 100 of the enemy. Also a hero of the Bulge, PFC Richard E. Coward earned America's highest award for bolding an untenable position against a Royal Tiger Tank, numerous infantrymen, and three machine guns, and with alone covering the withdrawal of his comrades.

Tribute was also paid to SFC Junior D. Edwards, who was awarded the Medal of Honor posthumously for his action near Changbong-ni, Korea, on Jan. 2, 1951. SFC Edwards distinguished himself by twice destroying key enemy machine gun positions alone, enabling his platoon to regain and hold a vital strong point.

188th Infantry Takes to Field To Test Counter-Guerrilla Skills

Last week wrapped up special training and practical field work for the companies of the 1st Battalion, 188th Infantry in preparation for the 3rd Brigade's Hawk Talon VI that took place this week from Jan. 11-15.

Each company deployed its own guerrilla 'irregulars' into large areas and, after a sufficient time lapse, the companies launched an all-out search and destroy operation against the aggressor force.

Company A set out on pursuit of its guerrilla band which was being led by MSgt. John Cox. Contact could not be made until Alpha Company commander, Capt. Charles Ostick took his OH-13 aloft and identified the guerrilla base camp. He then led two Chinooks loaded with troops from the 2nd and 3rd Platoons and guided them into a hammer and anvil tactic which swept the unsuspecting Sgt. Cox and his guerrillas against a stubborn blocking force where they were eventually crushed by the advancing Blue forces.

During the waking hours of Monday, Jan. 11, the 'Bull Eagles' of Company B bounced along in a truck convoy. The 2½ ton trucks lumbered deeper into the uncertainty of what was ahead. The column stretched out on the uphill climb, and as the lead vehicle cleared the crest of the hill, a jolting blast rocked the convoy enveloping the front of the formation with smoke.

Instantaneously, the Bravo 'Bulls' up front laid maximum effective fire into the concealed guerrilla position while the troops in the convoy rear sprang from the vehicles, engaging the aggressor from the flank in a swift well - coordinated mop - up sweeping maneuver.

It was not by chance that the guerrilla ambush was foiled by the aggressive, quick reaction of Company B personnel. Capt. George D. Livingston, commander of Company B, instituted a special counter guerrilla training technique called 'Immediate Action Drill' to his men in preparation for the 3rd Brigade exercise.

The technique, which has been field tested in Vietnam by Capt. Livingston who served there with the Special Forces, has been developed to afford maximum control and positive reaction by friendly forces on foot or

Brigaders Receive Certificate of Merit

Company B of the 1st Air Assault Brigade's 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry received high honors last Wed. afternoon on Esbagger Field when the company was formally presented a Certificate of Merit signed by Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Making the presentation during a battalion review and change of command ceremony, was Col. George S. Beatty, commander of the 1st Brigade, accompanied by the 38th Commander, Lt. Col. Arne H. Eliasson.

The Certificate of Merit, awarded for the unit's high state of combat readiness, was presented to Capt. Gowin P. McLaughlin who accepted the award in behalf of Company B as the outgoing commander.

Company B was awarded the coveted certificate as a result of their superior rating on the Third U. S. army Command Maintenance Management Inspection conducted on Sept. 2, after being recommended by 3rd Army Headquarters.

The certificate was accompanied by a letter from Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard conveying his congratulations on the outstanding achievement, pointing out that the certificate reflected the high degree of professional competence of the unit.

Following the presentation the change of command ceremony took place, with Capt. Julian H. Turner assuming command of Company B. Capt. McLaughlin will serve as 38th Adjutant, the position formerly held by Capt. Turner.

History Makers

228th Tigers Lift NASA Lunar Excursion Module

An Army helicopter crew from Ft. Benning made history Dec. 29 while assisting in the National space effort.

Flying an Army CH-47A Chinook twin-turbine helicopter, the crew transported a two-and-one-half ton simulated section of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Apollo spacecraft from Tulsa, Okla., to Cape Kennedy, Fla.

The 1,000 mile journey across six Southern states to the future moon-launch pad at Cape Kennedy was accomplished in less than 16 hours of flight time. The cargo — a 30 foot high dummy space vehicle section — was the bulkiest known article ever lifted and transported by a helicopter.

Members of the Army Flight crew included Maj. Dwight Lorenz, commanding officer of Company C, 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion, 11th Air Assault Division; Capt. Otto Hierholzer, CWO Clifford Max, CWO William Herron, SP4 Billy Barbee, SP5 Joseph Storey, SP5 Ralph Moseley, Sp5 John Sansing, and SP4 Raymond Saucier.

The test article transported to Florida simulated the weight and shape of the Apollo's Lunar Excursion Module (LEM) adapter, that portion of the spacecraft which serves as a "garage" for the LEM during early stages of the moon journey.

TAKES NEW JOB . . . Maj. Rutland D. Beard, newly assigned assistant chief of staff of the 11th Air Assault Division prepares to go into action after completing a mass parachute assault during AIR ASSAULT II.

Major Beard Becomes Assistant Chief of Staff

Maj. Rutland D. Beard Jr. has been assigned as assistant chief of staff, 11th Air Assault Division.

He replaces Maj. Edgar J. Haugen, who served in that position since Aug. 1963 and is to attend the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va.

Prior to assuming his new duties, Maj. Beard served as executive officer of the 1st Battalion (Airborne), 187th Infantry, 11th Air Assault Division. He held that position since the division's activation in Feb. of 1963.

Fort Benning has been a familiar sight to Maj. Beard, for he also served as assistant G-3 for the 2nd Infantry Division.

During WWI Maj. Beard served with the 102nd Infantry Division.

From 1950-51, he was stationed in Korea with the 32nd Regiment, 7th Infantry Division.

Maj. Beard attended the officer's advanced course at Fort Benning in 1957 and the Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., from 1960-61.

He, his wife Lucille, and their four children—Rutland D. III, David, Jonathan and Kathe reside at 305, 1st Division Road, Ft. Benning.

Artillerymen Practice Unconventional Warfare

With the world situation as it is today, the artillery might find itself fighting in the jungles and rice paddies of countries like Vietnam, Thailand or throughout Southeast Asia. The men of Battery A, 1st Battalion, 15th Artillery feel they must be highly proficient as infantrymen in unconventional warfare tactics, as well as artillerymen.

On Jan. 7, 1965, Battery "A," 1st Battalion, 15th Artillery participated in a full day of guerrilla and counter-guerrilla warfare. The morning started with the members of the battery being ambushed by a small guerrilla band. One ambush was executed against men in trucks and the next against men on foot. The guerrilla band was made up of the Raiders of Battery "A." After the two types of ambushes were conducted, the battery proceeded to the stands where SSgt. Willie J. Johnson instructed the class in the preparation of various types of ambushes and counter ambush training. Several lessons which have been learned by persons having returned from Vietnam were taught. SSgt. Johnson then covered in some detail, raids, harrassing actions, patrol and a reaction force. This concluded the morning instruction.

The afternoon was spent by men of Battery "A" in practical application of reconnaissance and combat patrolling. The Battery was then broken down into four groups and sent to four different starting points, from where they proceeded to two objective areas. Ambushes were setup along the way to the objectives to test the men's reactions. The men of Battery "A" successfully countered the ambushes and took the objectives, although the guerillas were well dug in and initially had the element of surprise.

The day ended with a full scale assault against the guerrillas who were occupying key terrain on an approach to Kelly Hill. By this time the men were much improved in counter guerrilla tactics and expressed a willingness for more of this training in their secondary role of fighting infantrymen.

Battery A Cops Another Trophy

Battery A of the 2nd Battalion (LJ), 42nd Artillery has earned another trophy for its trophy case by finishing first in the battalion in semi-annual Combat Proficiency Test competition.

Compiling an average of 428 points out of a possible 500, Battery A also boasted the person with the highest individual score in the semi-annual physical training test. He is PFC Samuel Whitehead who recorded a near perfect score of 488.

For these accomplishments, Whitehead was awarded a three day pass while Battery A will be awarded a trophy at a later date. Battery A is commanded by Capt. Leroy C. Bell.

Former Civilian Pilot Flying for Div Arty

A former instructor pilot at the Army Primary Helicopter School, is now flying with the 11th Air Assault Division Artillery. Capt. Forrest Hearn, assigned to Battery E, 26th Artillery, is putting into practice what he taught former students at the Army's large training facility at Fort Wolters, Tex. Then a civilian, Capt. Hearn was employed by Southern Airways at the school from July 1961 to July 1963.

Capt. Hearn entered the Army initially in 1952, saw combat action in Korea where he was awarded the Combat Infantryman's Badge, and came out of the war with the rank of sergeant first class. The Holdenville, Okla. native was discharged shortly after returning from Korea in April 1954.

He maintained an active interest in the Army through the Army Reserve program and obtained his commission as a 2nd Lieutenant in the reserve in 1956. It was through the reserves that Capt. Hearn completed both fixed - wing and helicopter flight training. He came back on active duty in July 1963.

Before coming to Fort Benning, Capt. Hearn was with the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) Fort Carson, Colo. where he was the General Support Platoon Leader with Company B, 5th Aviation Battalion.

Prior to instructing at the Primary Helicopter School, Capt. Hearn attended East Central State College in Ada, Okla.

Sgt. Maj. Honored At Battalion Muster

On Dec. 31 1964, the 127th Engineer Battalion assembled in a Muster to pay honor to retiring Battalion Sgt. Maj. William A. Maxwell. Battalion Commander, Lt. Col. Robert J. Malley made the presentation of the Army Commendation Medal, Certificate of Appreciation and Retirement commemorating Sgt. Maj. Maxwell's twenty-one years of active service to his country.

Sgt. Maj. Maxwell entered the Army in Jan., 1943, serving overseas in World War II and the Korean Conflict. He came to the Beavers on Oct. 7, 1963 from his previous assignment in France.

Other awards at the ceremony consisted of the Soldier of the Month Award and the Best Company of the Month Award. PFC Steven D. Low of Headquarters Company was selected to receive the Soldier of the Month Award. The selection is made by a board of senior non - commissioned officers on the basis of appearance, and military knowledge. Company "C" was awarded the Best Company of the Month Award. Receiving the plaque from Col. Malley was 2nd Lt. John C. Crow, Company C platoon leader.

The ceremony was concluded with the playing of "Auld Lang Syne" as honored Sgt. Maj. Maxwell departed. Officers and Senior non - commissioned officers then joined Sgt. Maj. Maxwell for coffee and cake in the battalion Mess Hall.

After completing formal instruction in counter-guerrilla tactics, Company C moved to the field for practical exercises. One platoon set out in chase of a crafty 25-man irregular band. The 2nd and 3rd Platoon joined forces and swiftly captured the aggressors with the aid of UH-1B helicopters.

This week the men of Chargin' Charlie convoyed to the field to participate in the 3rd Brigade's Hawk Talon VI. Capt. William H. Smith, commander of Company C, was confident that his men were well prepared for the exercise as evidenced by the efficient execution of the practical training held previously.

10th Air Brigade Wives Plan January Luncheon

Ladies of the 10th Air Transport Brigade will hold their regularly scheduled luncheon in the Fountain Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess on Wednesday, Jan. 27. Featured at the luncheon will be Mr. Russell Wall of Hinson Galleries, who will speak on the topic: "How Hinson Galleries can be of help to Army personnel" — including tips on interior decoration for Army quarters. He will also have a display of furniture and accessories from his firm.

All ladies of the 10th Air Transport Brigade and their guests are cordially invited, and the chance to win one of several lovely door prizes should serve as further encouragement to attend the luncheon. A seated luncheon will be served at 1:00 p.m.

Please make reservations by noon Monday, January 25, to one of the ladies listed below: Vel Olney, 10th Air Transport Brigade Headquarters, 545-3728; Jo Humes, 72nd Air Traffic Control Company, 689-1782; Jim Barrett, 37th Air Transport Battalion Headquarters, 545-7319; Gwen Pratt, 516th Transport Airplane Company, 544-1430; Jerrye Collins, 50th Transport Airplane Company, 689-1339; Joan Stansel, 1st Aviation Company, 545-1745; Jo Ziek, 17th Aviation Company, 544-1325; Sue Holloway, 187th Transport Airplane Company, 689-7342; Joan Lewis, 689-0313 or Wanda Ecrette, 545-5507, 44th Air Transport Battalion; Iola McCoy, 170th Aircraft Maintenance Battalion, 689-2735.

Artillery Ladies Party Is 'Pink'

The ladies of Battery A, 377 Artillery were hostesses at the monthly coffee held Jan. 12 at the Main Officers Open Mess.

Mrs. Joseph J. Lahnstein, wife of the battery commander, greeted the ladies at the door. She was assisted by Mrs. Charles Eldreth Jr. and Mrs. Roth.

The table held a pink topiary tree flanked by pink candles in handmade holders. Nametags carried out the pink theme with handmade carnations attached to the cards. Mrs. Eldreth was in charge of the decorations.

Mrs. Nelson A. Mahone Jr., wife of the battalion commander, presided at the business meeting.

Farewell was said to Mrs. Lyle H. Hiebrigge, who's husband is retiring.

New Born Babies Given Silver Cups

Officers of the 2nd Battalion (LJ), 42nd Artillery recently presented baby cups to the parents of the two latest additions to the 42nd officers community.

Receiving the cups were Capt. and Mrs. Stephen A. Sheehan and 2nd Lt. and Mrs. Carl A. Hubbard. Both Mrs. Sheehan and Mrs. Hubbard recently gave birth to girls. The Sheehans have named their child Barbara Mary while the Hubbards have named their infant Suzanne Michelle.

Col. and Mrs. Lynch Entertain at Reception

Col. and Mrs. William R. Lynch entertained with a reception at their quarters on Wickersham last Sunday afternoon from 2:00 until 5:00.

The guidons of the 11 companies of the 2nd Brigade lined the walk and were kept at attention by a brisk wind. Mirror-helmeted guards saluted the arriving guests. The colors of the 2nd Brigade, 11th Air Assault Division; 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry and 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry flanked the doorway.

Col. and Mrs. Lynch greeted their company in the entrance before an oil painting and a panorama of "Flying Indians," the Brigade symbol.

The lace-covered dining room table was centered with an arrangement of red carnations and white mums from which streamers of red and blue ran to the edge of the table. The brigade colors were used in floral arrangements throughout the house. Kaniengehaga punch was served from a silver punch bowl and an assortment of sandwiches, hors d'oeuvres, and cakes filled silver appointments in the dining-room. Punch was also served at other bowls throughout the house.

Mrs. Lynch was assisted in serving by Madames Hyram Dallingea, James Nix, Robert Tully, Dewayne Flannigan, William Meehan, Joseph Parlas, and Robert Spiller.

A brief tribute was paid to Capt. and Mrs. Al Fiumano who leave this month for Nebraska and they were presented a brigade saber.

Among the guests were Gen. and Mrs. J. H. Chiles, Gen. and Mrs. Robert E. Coffin, Col. and Mrs. E. B. Roberts, Col. and Mrs. Robert Nett, Col. Lloyd Picou, Mr. Charles Black of the Enquirer, and Mrs. Black and Mrs. Robert L. Brown, Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. C. R. Westervelt, Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. Joseph Chickini, Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. Henry Gris, Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. Frank Trujillo, and Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. George Hamill and the officers of the 2nd Brigade and their wives.

GUESTS ARRIVE . . . Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. Chester R. Westervelt walk between each of the 2nd Brigade's guideons as they arrive at a reception held by Col. and Mrs. William R. Lynch. Sgt. Maj. Westervelt is the 11th Air Assault Division sergeant major.

Cavalry Dinner Bids Farewell

Mrs. Don G. Radcliff was honored Sunday evening with a farewell dinner by ladies of Troop C, 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry. The dinner was held at the Black Angus Restaurant.

Mrs. Radcliff was presented with a corsage and gift. Other ladies leaving the troop are Mrs. Ronald J. Stevens and Mrs. Richard Auth. Maj. and Mrs. Radcliff, Capt. and Mrs. Stevens and Capt. and Mrs. Auth have been assigned to Staff of the 3rd Squadron.

229th's Ladies Gather For Morning Brunch

Wives of the 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion met recently in the Main Officers' Open Mess for a mid-morning brunch. The ladies met in the Anzio Room for social greetings and then adjourned to the Corregidor Room for a brunch of eggs, sausage, biscuits and coffee.

Hostesses for the morning were ladies of Company B under the direction of Mrs. Richard Rodgers, wife of the company commander. The tables were decorated with large papier-mach figures depicting each company call sign. There was a rootin', tootin' cowboy for Company A, a dragon with flaming tongue for Company B, a curling cobra for Company C and a happy tiger for Company D.

Special guests at the brunch were Maj. (Ret.) and Mrs. John Schultz, long-time friends of Lt Col. and Mrs. Earl Buchan. Col. Buchan is the commander of the 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion. The Schultzes were present to share with the ladies an exciting new hobby of liquid roll-on paint which they have found to be a wonderful and creative pastime.

Everyone at the brunch was given a handkerchief size piece of cotton with a design stenciled on it. Each lady then proceeded to choose her own colors to complete a colorful and washable finished product for herself. These paints may be used on fabrics, metal, glass, wood, plastic or tile. This is a wonderful hobby, since the only limitations are those imposed by the users imagination, and the list of gifts one could create is endless. The fascination of this craft was evident from the bowed heads and busy hands of each wife present.

The gathering was concluded following announcements by Mrs. Buchan.

Stocktons Host Holiday Party

What better way to start a New Year than to gather with friends and fellow workers to wish them a Happy New Year.

Officers and wives of the 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry met at the home of Col. and Mrs. John B. Stockton, squadron commander, for the traditional Blackeyed Peas. Also receiving were Maj. and Mrs. Don Radcliff, Squadron executive officer, Capt. and Mrs. Thomas Nevotti, Capt. and Mrs. Clayton Bachman, Maj. and Mrs. Robert Stoverink, Maj. and Mrs. Billy Williams, Maj. and Mrs. Guy Beardsley, and Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. Lawrence Kennedy, senior enlisted member of the 17th Cavalry.

Arty Wives Meet At First '65 Fete

The wives of Battery B, 377th Artillery attended a coffee the morning of Jan. 8 at the home of Mrs. Jack O. Philabaum.

Present were Mesdames John D. Monahan, Westono Van Loon, James R. Rogers, August M. Cianciolo, Jerry T. Steel, George L. Littrain, Joe A. Lenning, Warren T. Trent and Eugene R. Woods.

At the meeting Mrs. Cianciolo and Mrs. Steel were named reservations chairmen and Mrs. Jones in charge of publicity.

The ladies agreed to hold a bridge party on two Thursday nights of each month and battery coffees will be held on the second Wednesday of each month.

GM's LOWEST-PRICED CAR... OPEL KADETT

As Low As $1649.00

What a value! The new Opel Kadett, built and backed by General Motors' 24 Months or 24,000 miles warranty, carries a price tag so low you'll find it hard to believe. Particularly so after you check its worth-more features like bucket seats, 4-speed transmission, big, roomy trunk, smart American-type styling and surprisingly agile performance. It's great as either a first or second car. Take it out. Drive it. See how it handles, rides and performs. Then take a look at that price tag again. You'll wonder how we can do it. Available in 2-door sedan, sport coupe and station wagon.

Battalion CO Pins Major Leaves On 227th Company Commander

Maj. Robert W. Mills, commanding officer of Company A, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion, was promoted to his present rank on December 22. Lt. Col. Jack Crawford, battalion commander, pinned the new major leaves on the veteran of both Korea and Vietnam.

Major Mills, a senior army aviator with over 3,000 flight hours to his credit, entered the service in 1951 and was assigned to the 5th Armored Division, Camp Chaffee, Ark. After completing the Armor Officers' Candidate School at Fort Knox, Ky., in 1952, Maj. Mills joined the 5th Regimental Combat Team at Camp Irwin, Calif.

Maj. Mills went with the 5th Regimental Combat Team to Korea as a tank platoon leader and was with the unit during the Chipo-ri and Punch Bowl battles.

After a three year break in service, Maj. Mills was reassigned to Fort Knox, Ky., where he served as a company commander in the 2nd Training Regiment. In 1957, Maj. Mills attended the Army Fixed and Rotary Wing Schools and was later assigned to the 3rd Armored Division in Germany, where he served as a section commander in the 503rd Aviation Company. Upon completing his European tour, Maj. Mills attended the University of Omaha followed by the Armor Career Course at Fort Knox, Ky., in 1962. He was next assigned to the 1st Armored Division, Fort Hood, Texas, for a year of ground duty where he served as Brigade S-1.

In 1963, Maj. Mills was assigned as a platoon leader in the 114th Air Mobility Company in Viet Nam, where he flew over six hundred hours of combat support missions.

While in Vietnam, Maj. Mills was awarded the Air Medal with 13 Oak Leaf Clusters.

Maj. Mills resides at 1019A Rae Court, Fort Benning, with his wife Joanne and children May Ellen, Patricia and Robert Jr.

227th Selects 'Best Company'

During the weekly retreat formation conducted by the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion, Company B, commanded by Capt. Gene B. Welch, received the battalion plaque for "Best-Company" for the month of December.

The award is presented to the company that compiles the most points based on formal inspections, daily general appearance of the company area and flight line, manner of performance of tactical missions, daily aircraft availability rate, vehicle deadline rate, and the lowest AWOL and indebt rate.

The award was accepted by 1st Sgt. William D. Knick.

Company B Wives Plan Winter Bowl

Ladies of Company B, 226th Aerial Surveillance and Escort Battalion, held their monthly coffee at the home of Mrs. Robert Laudermilk, Friday Jan. 8. Following coffee and a delightful variety of snacks, the ladies initiated plans for the winter bowling league. Ladies of the battalion interested in league bowling should phone Mrs. William Page at 687-2318.

Kentuckians Fill Company Roster

If units had theme songs, the tune in Company A, 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry, 11th Air Assault Division would probably be "My Old Kentucky Home". Fourteen members of the unit come from the "Blue Grass State" led by SFC Jess W. Boyd. Running a close second are the Georgians with 13. In third place are the "Buckeyes" of Ohio with 11. The Company A men represent 26 states and Puerto Rico.

The others in order are: Illinois 10, Tennessee 9, Alabama, Florida and Michigan with 7, South Carolina 6, Texas and Wisconsin with 5, Missouri and Pennsylvania with 4, Delaware and Virginia with 3, California, New York, Utah, North Carolina, Mississippi, Kansas, Connecticut, and Puerto Rico with 2, Maryland, Indiana, Washington, and New Jersey with 1. This unit is commanded by Capt. Harry C. Calvin, who is one of the Texans.

Arty Wives Meet For Plans Session

Fifteen ladies from Headquarters & Headquarters Battery, 11th Air Assault Division Artillery, met in the home of Mrs. Robert G. Custer on Friday, Jan. 8, for their first coffee in the new year. Mrs. Dan A. Hillsman was co-hostess for the coffee.

The serving table was tastefully decorated with a bowl of spring flowers flanked by yellow candles. Mrs. William A. Becker presided at the coffee service.

After refreshments, Mrs. Becker held a short business meeting. Mr. William S. Thomas III, was appointed DivArty Welfare Chairman to replace Mrs. James A. Flanagin.

17th Cav Wives Greet Newcomer

Ladies of Troop B, 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry held their monthly coffee Wednesday, Jan. 13th at the Country Club.

A demonstration was presented by a local cosmetic company representative.

Farewell was said to Mrs. Walter Harmon. The ladies welcomed Mrs. Bill Williams whose husband recently joined the troop.

The hostesses for the coffee were, Mrs. Robert G. Andree, Mrs. Roland K. Davis and Mrs. Lee T. Massey.

Veteran Sky Soldier Is 'Top' Enlisted Man

MSgt. Clarence Linton Jr. a veteran sky soldier in the 1st Air Assault Brigade who has served with the 1st Battalion, 187th Infantry since its activation here in Feb. 1963, became the top enlisted man in Rakkasan Company A last Monday when he was named to the post of unit 1st Sgt.

With over fourteen years of continuous military service, Sgt. Linton is a distinguished veteran of the Korean Conflict, where he served as a platoon sergeant in the 3rd Division's, 7th Infantry, earning the Bronze Star Medal for Valor, and the Purple Heart.

It was during a fierce battle in the Kumwha Valley at Boomerang Hill that the sergeant picked up his first combat decorations after his battalion, the 1st Battalion, 7th Infantry had been run over by the Chinese communists.

Company B, in which Sgt. Linton had the 3rd Platoon was given the mission to counter-attack. This action was successful but costly and was instrumental in halting the enemy attack, causing their eventual withdrawal.

The sergeant's other combat decorations include the Combat Infantry Badge, Presidential Unit Citation, Korean Campaign Medal with three Battle Stars, Korean Presidential Citation, the United Nations Service Medal and the American Defense Service Medal, plus numerous routine awards.

Sgt. Linton last served as a platoon sergeant in Rakkasan Company B, and during 1963, served as 1st Sgt. of Headquarters Company prior to the arrival of 1st Sgt. Alfred A. Daniels.

Veteran From Famed 3rd Ranger Company Executive Officer of 227th Delta Company

Capt. James M. Stamper, executive officer in Company D, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion entered the service in 1947. Basic Training was completed at Ft. Jackson, S. C., and in 1948 Capt. Stamper was assigned to the 505th Parachute Infantry Regiment, Ft. Bragg, N.C.

In 1950 when the Ranger Companies were activated, Capt. Stamper, then a platoon sergeant, was one of the first volunteers. The 3rd Ranger Company was based in the Harmony Church Area at Fort Benning, and their company orderly room was the same one that Delta Company is using today 14 years later. In Nov. 1950, Capt. Stamper attended the Army Cold Weather and Mountain School, Ft. Carson, Colo., and upon completion the entire 3rd Ranger Company was assigned to Korea.

In the spring of 1951, Capt. Stamper's unit spearheaded the famous Imgin River night attack where they advanced over eight miles behind the Chinese main lines. During this attack, over forty men in the hundred man Ranger Company were killed or wounded.

In Aug. 1951, the Ranger Company was deactivated and Capt. Stamper joined the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team in Korea, and remained with the unit as a platoon sergeant until Sept. 1952.

Capt. Stamper returned to Fort Benning in 1953 and was assigned to the 505th Regimental Combat Team as a platoon sergeant. When the 10th Special Forces were organized at Fort Bragg, N.C., Capt. Stamper volunteered and was assigned there as a platoon sergeant until 1953. From Ft. Bragg, Capt. Stamper attended the Artillery Officers Candidate School, Ft. Sill, Okla., and joined the 84th Field Artillery Battalion 9th Infantry Division in Germany as Battery executive officer.

In 1957 Capt. Stamper completed the Army Aviation Fixed Wing School, Camp Gary, Tex., and was assigned to Ft. Rucker, Ala., as an instructor in the department of Tactics. After completing the Artillery Career Course followed by helicopter school, Capt. Stamper was assigned to the 110th Aviation Company in Italy where he served as commanding officer of the American - Italian Long Range Reconnaissance Company. Capt. Stamper joined the 11th Air Assault Division in April, 1964, and was assigned as executive officer in Company D, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion.

Capt. Stamper's decorations include the Combat Infantryman Badge, Master Parachute Wings; Glider Badge, and the Italian Parachute Badge.

Capt. Stamper resides at 3381 Wallace Drive in Columbus, Ga., with his wife Rebecca and children Kim, Lori and Kyle.

Forward Observer Had Interesting Civilian Job

Among several members of Company D (Combat Support), 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry with interesting civilian occupations is SP4 Wayne A. Pape, a forward observer in the Mortar Platoon. Specialist Pape, for over a year prior to entering the Army, commanded an 18 ton tugboat operating in the Gulf of Mexico.

The boat, named the Capt. George Rosing, is a steel-hulled vessel measuring 58 feet in length with a 20 foot beam. She is powered by a "610" diesel engine built by General Motors Corporation, and she draws 6½ feet of water. In addition to SP4 Pape, who commanded and piloted the tug, she carried two deckhands.

Specialist Pape operated the boat for the Bauer Dredging Company of Port Lavaca, Tex., a port city located between Houston and Corpus Christi on the coast of the Gulf of Mexico. His area of operations extended from Brownville, Tex. to points north of New Orleans on the Mississippi River.

The Tug's principal operations involved pulling and pushing barges and dredges from place to place for channel clearing in coastal waterways and around oil rigs. The barges are used for carrying fuel and large parts to the dredges. Specialist Pape stated that the sharp-sterned tugboat could push a barge because his tug is equipped with "pushing knees" that provide two points of contact with the end of a barge.

Pape pointed out that these barges are not used to receive the discharge called "dump" from the dredges, but rather that "dump" is carried ashore in discharge pipes supported by pontoons. Pape's tug was also used to tend and move these pontoons.

Upon discharge from the Army SP4 Pape plans to resume command of his boat.

611th Officer Receives Gold Leaf at Ceremony

Maj. Bentley J. Herbert, executive officer of Company B, 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion, was recently promoted to his present rank in ceremonies held at the residence of his commanding officer, Maj. Eugene R. Walsh, on New Years Day 1965.

Maj. Herbert entered the service from his hometown of Bangor, Me. in Oct., 1952 and attended Infantry OCS at Fort Benning, receiving his commission in Oct. 1953.

During the interval between Oct., 1953 and 1957 he served with the Explosives Ordnance Disposal Branch of the Ordnance Corps earning the EOD Supervisors Badge.

Receiving a branch transfer to the Transportation Corps, Maj. Herbert applied for flight training completing the course of instruction at Fort Rucker, Ala. in Aug., 1957. His next assignment was to Fort Eustis, Va. for attendance at the TC Advance Course from which he graduated in Aug. 1958.

From Nov., 1958 to Dec., 1959 he served with Detachment L, (KMAAG) Korea Military Adviser Group in Korea. Upon return to CONUS in Dec. 1959 Maj. Herbert was assigned to the 93d Transportation Company (Lt Hel) at Fort Devens, Mass. where he remained until Oct. 1961 receiving orders for assignment to the 91st Trans Co (Lt Hel) in Finthen, Germany. In Jan., 1963 Maj. Herbert assumed the duties of battalion maintenance officer of the 41st Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion in Finthen. He remained at this post until his return to CONUS and assignment to the 11th Air Assault Division in July, 1964.

New 'Boss' At Company

Maj. Stewart

Maj. Kendall L. Stewart has recently become the new Company Commander of the 'Clawhammer' company (Company C) of the 226th Aerial Surveillance and escort Battalion.

Since his arrival to Company C, Maj. Stewart has occupied the positions of Operations Officer and Executive Officer. He assumed command of Company C in December 1964.

Maj. Stewart is fixed wing qualified aviator. He entered the Army on August 22, 1950 at Fort Riley, Kan. He attended the University of Wisconsin at Madison, Wis.

Intelligence Sergeant Promises Three More Years Of Service

SFC Claude Vanover, Intelligence Sergeant in the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion, reenlisted for a three year hitch on Dec. 27, 1964.

Sgt. Vanover joined the Ohio National Guard in 1939 and was assigned to Fort Hayes, Ohio. In Sept., 1940, Sgt. Vanover enlisted in the Regular Army and was assigned to Fort Knox, Ky., for basic training. Upon completion of basic training, he remained at Fort Knox and was assigned to the 69th Armored Battalion, 1st Armored Division, where he served as a tank driver.

In 1941 Sgt. Vanover was assigned to Camp Polk, with the 711th Railway Operating Battalion, and went with the unit to Persia in 1942, where they were assigned to the Persian Gulf Service.

Sgt. Vanover spent three years with the 711th supplying the Russian troops in their struggle against the German Army's Middle Eastern campaigns.

In 1945, Sgt. Vanover returned stateside and was assigned to Fort Benning, Ga., where he completed Airborne School. In 1946, he joined the 11th Airborne Division in Hokaido, Japan, where he was a squad leader in the Division Recon Platoon. In 1949, Sgt. Vanover was assigned to the Saitama Military Government in Tokyo where he served as interpreter. In 1950, Sgt. Vanover was assigned to the Japanese Logistical Command in Yokohama, as an interpreter, by an identical assignment with the newly formed 8th U.S. Army.

In June 1951, Sgt. Vanover joined the 187th Regimental Combat Team in Wonju, Korea, and in Jan. 1952, was assigned to the 936th Field Artillery Battalion, also in Korea.

While in Korea, Sgt. Vanover participated in three major campaigns before rotating stateside in 1953. Sgt. Vanover returned to the states and was assigned to the 125th Field Artillery Battalion, Fort Benning, Ga. He completed the Japanese Course at the Army Language School in the Presidio of Monterey, Calif., in 1957, and was assigned to Fort Holabird, Md., where he completed the Interrogation and the Intelligence Analyst Courses.

In 1958, Sgt. Vanover was assigned to the 528th Military Intelligence Company as an interrogator, and the following year was assigned to Fort Bragg, N.C., as an intelligence analyst in the 519th M.I. Battalion.

Sgt. Vanover remained at Fort Bragg until 1963 when he joined the 227th as the battalion's intelligence NCO. Sgt. Vanover will depart the 227th in Feb. for Okinawa where he will be joining the 503rd Airborne Brigade.

Brigaders Form New Song Group

Five Rakkasan paratroopers from the 1st Air Assault Brigade have banded together and made good use of their spare time, forming a singing group that is becoming very much in demand.

The five troopers, all from the 1st Battalion, 187th Airborne Infantry, have been practicing for the past five months, and all this work seemed to pay off last week with the announcement of a civilian engagement in a Columbus Cafe.

Organized under the direction of Sp4 Carl Campbell of Company A, other members of the group include PFC Richard W. Hinkle of Headquarters Company, Sergeants Patrick Sneed and Charles Gains of Company D, and PFC Cecil D. Williams of Company A.

For the past several months, the group has been practicing three nights a week in Service Club No. 3, Harmony Church through the courtesy of the Club Directress, Miss Clara Pou.

Twelve Raised In 511th Infantry

Several members from the 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry were anxious to see the new year come in as they were greeted with new and higher ranking stripes sewed on their sleeves. Promoted to SP4 from Alpha company were Willie J. Coachman, Vincent W. Collins, and Donald Cornwell. Delta company also promoted three of its men to SP4 which included Edward Burriss, Enrique X. Gutierrez, and Jordan E. Forrester. Bravo company and the Headquarters company promoted SP4 Kenneth D. Douse and SP4 Duane J. Laufenberg to their present rank.

PFC stripes were rather scarce as only three members in the Battalion were promoted to this rank. Among these men were Joseph P. Vail, Charlie Company, Robert A. Erskine and Clyde L. Richardson, both of Delta company. Promoted to Sgt. was Robert A. Padilla who is assigned to the 1st platoon of Bravo company.

High Maintenance Award Presented

Company B, 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion, 11th Aviation Group, was presented the Third United States Army Command Maintenance Management Award for a superior rating received during the recent Third Army inspection.

The award was presented to Major Richard W. Rogers, company commander, by Maj. Gen. Harry W. Kinnard.

2nd Brigade Reminices Past Years Big Events

On June 29, 1964, a review was held by those units of the 2nd Infantry Division that were to be attached to the 11th Air Assault Division.

Units participating were: Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Brigade; 1st and 2nd Battalions, 38th Infantry; 1st Battalion, 15th Artillery; 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery; 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry and Company C of the 2nd Medical Battalion.

On June 29, the 2nd Brigade was commanded by Col. William R. Lynch. Under the 2nd Brigade's control was the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry commanded by Lt. Col. Robert B. Tully and the 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry commanded by Lt. Col. Hyrum Dallinga.

On July 20 through July 22, the 2nd Brigade conducted its first exercises as part of the 11th Air Assault Division. It was named HAWK RUSE I.

From the 27th through the 29th of July, the Brigade participated in the FTX HAWK RUSE II. This was the first time the 2nd Brigade worked with aircraft of the division.

From Aug. 11 through the 14th the Brigade again conducted an FTX, HAWK FLASH II. At the conclusion of this exercise, the Brigade prepared to move to the Carolina maneuver area.

On Sept. 14, the 2nd Brigade's advance party proceeded to Flint Hill, S. C. to establish a base camp. On Sept. 17, the main body departed Lawson Airfield by CV-2 Caribou.

From Sept. 22 to Oct. 13, the Brigade participated in HAWK BLADE. This consisted of practice problems in preparation for AIR ASSAULT II.

On Oct. 14 AIR ASSAULT II began and on Nov. 12 the exercise ended with the 2nd Brigade making the final attack against the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg.

On Dec. 4, the 2nd Brigade participated in the giant division review held at Ft. Benning's Sightseeing Field.

Basketball Highlights Off The Backboard

By Lt. Joe Mottola

A review of 11th Air Assault battalion basketball activity in the New Year would start with the upset of the undefeated 26th Artillery "GREYHOUNDS" by the rapidly improving "BEAVERS" of the 127th Engineer Battalion on the fourth of January.

On the fifth of January the "Griffins" of 377th Artillery dealt the "STACKED DECK" team of the 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion another loss by a score of 45-40.

Wednesday, January 6, had the undefeated "CHARGE SEVENS" of the 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery downing the 408th Supply and Service Battalion "PROVIDERS" by a score of 76-52. On the same night, Headquarters Special Troops "RAIDERS" won by forfeit over the 26th Artillery. The following night the 377th "GRIFFINS" knocked off the 227th "TIGERS" 57-43.

On the eighth and ninth of January, make up games were played at Harmony Church. Team No. 2 of the 611th lost to the "WRENCH BENDERS" of the 170th Maintenance Battalion 61-43 and the 228th "WINGED WARRIORS" lost by forfeit to the 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery on Friday. Saturday afternoon the 711th Maintenance Battalion "STAGS" upset the "SHOOTERS" of the 15th Artillery 64-63 as the "STAGS" finally broke into the win column.

The second afternoon game saw the 42nd Artillery "ROCKETS" holding off the "CLAWHAMMERS" of the 226th Aerial Surveilance and Escort Battalion 53-44. That night the "KANIENGAHAGERS" of the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry swamped the 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion Team No. 2 by a score of 64-17. Completing the night's play, the "SIGNALMEN" of the 511th Signal Battalion slaughtered the "WINGED WARRIORS" of the 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion 75-20.

Looking ahead to the coming week's schedule, makeup games are on tap for Saturday, January 16, as the 511th Infantry "FALCONS" meet the "GRIFFINS" of the 377th Artillery at 1:00 p.m. and the 37th Air Transport Battalion "CARIBOUS" should come through with fiving colors.

The rest of the week shapes up as follows:

Rak Paratroopers Begin Years Rugged Schedule

Rakkasan paratroopers of the 1st Air Assault Brigade began the new year in typical fashion last Monday morning, swinging into a rugged training schedule which kept all five companies busy.

Squad and Plaloon attack problems occupied the three rifle companies Monday and Tuesday, and Company A was privileged to have the use of four helicopters with which to conduct their problems.

Handling and use of demolitions, riot control training, tower rappelling, hand - to - hand combat, map and compass courses, and several classes on varied subjects combined to give the 187th a complete workout during the first full training program this year.

The combat support company's Reconnaissance Platoon conducted a particularly good night compass course operation Tuesday night, with the entire platoon participating.

Four Helicopter Aviators Arrive

Three new lieutenants and one warrant officer recently joined the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion and were rapidly familiarized with air assault techniques as they participated in the battalion's mountain training exercise at Fort McClellan, Ala.

1st Lt. Robert J. Swain who recently returned from Korea has been assigned to Alpha Company as a section leader in the second platoon. While in Korea, Lt. Swain was aide-de-camp to the commanding general, 1st Cavalry Division.

Lt. Swain, a 1962 graduate of Texas A & M College, spent a year at Fort Benning prior to attending flight school, and served in the 1st Battle Group, 187th Infantry as a platoon leader.

1st Lt. Kent G. Ellis, another Texas A & M graduate, also recently returned from Korea, where he served as assistant operations officer and brigade section leader with the 15th Aviation Battalion. Lt. Ellis has been assigned to Company B as a section leader in the first platoon. Lt. Ellis resides at 2423 Stuty Street, Columbus, with his wife Sharon.

1st Lt. David E. Cunningham, a 1962 graduate of the University of Miami, is also another recent returnee from Korea where he served in the 7th Aviation Battalion. Upon completing the Infantry Officers Basic Course in 1962, Lt. Cunningham attended the Army Helicopter Schools at Camp Walters, Tex., and Fort Rucker, Ala., and was assigned to the 2nd Infantry Division prior to departing for Korea.

While in Korea, Lt. Cunningham served as 2nd Brigade aviation officer at Camp Kaiser. Lt. Cunningham joined the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion in Jan. and has been assigned to Company C as a section leader in the first platoon.

W. O. Barney L. Measels, rotary wing aviator in Company B, is another returnee from Korea. While in Korea, W. O. Measels served with the 8th Army Aviation Section as a CH-21 aviator.

W. O. Measels resides at 3594 Irwin Way, Columbus, with his wife Theresa and daughters Cynthia, Patricia and Catherine.

Five Officers Involved In Command Changes

Five top Rakkasan officers in the 1st Air Assault Brigade were involved in command and staff assignment changes that went into effect last week with the assignment of long-time Rak Executive Officer, Maj. Rutland D. Beard to Division Headquarters where he will serve as assistant to the Chief of Staff, Col. E. B. Roberts.

Replacing Maj. Beard as executive officer of the 1st Battalion, 187th Airborne Infantry is Maj. Joseph F. Bellochi, former Rak Operations Officer, who served in combat with the 187th during the Korean Conflict.

A senior pilot with dual qualifications, and a master parachutist, Maj. Bellochi is well qualified for his new job, and has served with the 187th since its activation here in Feb., 1963.

Taking the reins in the S-3 shop is Capt. David O. Lamb, former commander of Company A. During 1963, Capt. Lamb served as the battalion S-2 Officer prior to taking command of Company A in Dec. 1963.

Assuming command of Company A was Capt. James L. Allen who was previously serving in the Rak Operations Section. Capt. Allen formerly served as Capt. Lamb's executive officer in Company A before joining the S-3 Air Section.

Also moving out of the 187th Operations Section was Capt. Donald F. Warren who has taken over the logistics for the battalion as Rak S-4 Officer. Capt. Warren was the former executive officer for Company C prior to moving to the S-3 Section in November.

229th Flies Support

The 229th Stacked Deck Assault Helicopter Battalion returned to the field beginning the New Year with a bang. Maximum effort was given with aircraft of the three lift companies during the week of Jan. 4-9, 1965 in support of the 2nd Brigade field maneuver problem in the Fort Benning area. Missions were flown from early in the morning until midnight each day. In addition to exercise here, Company D, the armed helicopter company, participated in firing problems at the Fort Stewart, Ga., range during Jan. 6-9.

227th Helicopter Pilots Fly in Mountain Training

Company "C", 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion, commanded by Capt. Thomas I. McMurray, ended the Christmas Holidays with a bang by departing Fort Benning on Jan. 4 for a three day field exercise in Fort McClellan, Ala., area.

The three day exercise featured cold weather and mountain training, with the emphasis on individual aviator proficiency flying. The unit departed Monday morning, Jan. 4, in its UH-1D helicopters, and participated in project "Red-Dog", a tactical method of controlling large aircraft formations during instrument flying conditions.

Lt. Col. Jack Cranford, commanding officer of the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion, observed and participated in the company's training program which consisted of landing into pinnacles of confined areas, night operations, low level tactical navigation flying, and reconnaissance and selection of mountain landing sites.

Capt. McMurray led the unit back on its return to Fort Benning the afternoon of Jan. 7. During the return trip, the unit again participated in project "Red-Dog."

Artillery Operation Scene of Promotion

Operation Oak Leaf I commenced for Maj. David L. Carson of Battery A, 3rd Battalion, 377 Artillery, Tuesday morning Jan. 5, 1965 when Lt. Col. Nelson A. Mahone Jr. presented him the gold leaves of his present rank. The new major could be seen in the battalion area Tuesday afternoon, wearing a broad smile, shaking many hands and passing out cigars.

Maj. Carson, a senior aviator, served in Korea with the 1st Cavalry Division as a mortar battery commander. After attending the Artillery Officer's Career Course, Maj. Carson became aviation advisor to the Arkansas Army National Guard with duty station at Little Rock, Ark.

Two More Reenlist In Little John Unit

Two more members of the 2d Battalion (LJ), 42d Artillery have reenlisted for their own vacancies with that organization. They are SSgt. Bobby R. McArdle of Battery A and SP5 William C. Dodd, Jr. of Headquarters and Service Battery.

Three Engineer Officers Receive First Silver Bar

On Dec. 13 1964, the 127th Engineer Battalion received orders promoting the three Company "A" platoon leaders to first lieutenants. The trio that received their silver bars were Lt's Gerald G. Crutsinger, David L. Husbands, and William S. O'Connell.

The three entered the Army on same day, attended the Engineers Officers Basic Course at Ft. Belvoir, Va. and were together assigned to the 11th Air Assault Division in Aug. 1963. Continuing the trend, the three found themselves leading platoons in Company A of Lt. Col. Robert J. Malley's beavers. Jump school was the next step for them, and they became airborne qualified together in Dec., 1963. These officers represented Company A in every major field exercise from Sky Soldier I thru AIR ASSAULT II.

Lt. Crutsinger, his wife Carla, and year old son Glenn live in Columbus. He received his degree in Mechanical Engineering in 1962 from the University of Tex.

Lt. Husbands and his wife Katheryn also live in Columbus. Lt. Husbands was graduated from the Citadel in 1962, receiving his degree in Civil Engineering.

Lt. O'Connell, his wife Mary Eleen and two boys Ky and Chris, live in Phenix City. Lt. O'Connell has a degree in Industrial Engineering from Northwestern University.

Lt. Crutsinger now occupies the position of executive officer in Headquarters Company. Lt. Husbands is now a Reconnaissance Officer in the S-2 section. Lt. O'Connell has remained in Company A. John.

Eleven Promoted In 511th Signal

Recent promotions in the 511th Signal Battalion include eight SP4's, and three PFC's. Promoted to SP4 were David L. Davis, John A. Hughes, James R. Hurst, Winford D. Handcock, Donald D. Fiegel, Charles Laughman, David Sappington Jr., and Richard A. Zenefski. Promoted to PFC, were John W. Courtney, Theodore F. Grzeszczak, and Felix R. Whitley.

711th's Adjutant Is Now One Up In Family's Promotion 'Contest'

Capt. Joseph S. Overstreet Jr., Adjutant, 711th Maintenance Battalion, is now one promotion up on his wife, 1st Lt. Frances D. Overstreet, commanding officer of the WAC Detachment at Fort Benning. The Overstrets, who were wed in Nov., following the 11th Air Assault Division's return from Exercise AIR ASSAULT II in the Carolinas, no longer have the family problem of who outranks whom.

Capt. Overstreet, received his new insignia of rank from Lt. Col. Thomas W. Buchanan, 11th Air Assault Division Support Command executive officer, on Friday Jan. 9th. Overstreet, a former member of the 408th Supply and Service Battalion, Support Command, recently assumed his present duties as Adjutant, 711th Maintenance Battalion.

Following his graduation from Norwich University, Northfield, Vt., where he received a Regular Army Commission as a Distinguished Military Graduate in June 1961, Overstreet began an association with Fort Benning, and has served a major portion of his military service at this post. He attended the U.S. Army Infantry School Orientation Course and the Airborne Course in 1961 and was then assigned to Korea. Upon his return to the United States he was assigned to Company A, 29th Infantry Regiment, 197th Infantry Brigade at Fort Benning. In Aug. 1963, following attendance at a course at the Fort Lee, Va., Quartermaster School, he was Commanding Officer of the Fort Benning Military Police Company. Capt. Overstreet joined the 408th Supply and Service Battalion, 11th Air Assault Division in May 1964 and was a member of that unit until his reassignment early this month. Capt. Overstreet was born in Schenectady, N. Y. and now hails from Fairfield, Conn., where his parents reside. His wife, 1st Lt. Frances Overstreet is a native Kansan and called Lawrenceville, Kan. her home. She is a graduate and former Art Major of the University of Kansas. Capt. Overstreet is a short wave radio enthusiast and operated station WIGTK in Fairfield, Conn. The Overstreets make their home in Columbus, Ga., at 176 Torch Hill Road.

1st Rock Alphas Get New First Sergeant

Company A of the 1st Air Assault Brigade's 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry received a new and highly qualified 1st Sgt. last week when Eldon J. Johnson reported in from Washington, after serving as 1st Sgt. of the Presidential Honor Guard.

A highly decorated combat veteran of the Korean Conflict, Sgt. Johnson enlisted in the Army in 1950, and after his initial training, was assigned to the 3rd Division's 7th Infantry in Korea where he served with the 3rd Battalion's Company I.

During his stay in Korea, he earned the Silver Star, three Bronze Stars for Valor and one meritoriously, the Purple Heart, Combat Infantry Badge, Presidential Unit Citation, Korean Presidential Unit Citation, Korean Campaign Medal with two Battle Stars, and the United Nations Service Medal, not to mention a promotion to MSgt.

Upon returning to the States, Sgt. Johnson spent a relatively quiet assignment as a 1st Sgt. at Camp Roberts, Calif., after which he was assigned to the Presidential Honor Guard, stationed at Fort Myers, Va., where he served for four years as 1st Sgt.

During 1961 and 1962, in addition to his duties with the honor guard, the sergeant served as Drill Master for the U. S. Army Drill Team, and was also on the special Presidential Color Guard Team that carried the colors for the late President John F. Kennedy.

15th Artillery Begins News Year's Calibration

The 1st Battalion, 15th Artillery began the new year with calibration firing for all of its howitzers. Results of the calibration will be applied to increase the accuracy of the battalion fire.

The artillerymen conducted the calibration with maximum precision. Survey crews established observation posts to accurately survey the point of impact of each projectile. Care was taken to insure an even powder, temperature. The gun tubes were cleaned with hot soapy water before firing. Careful tests and adjustments were made on each gun as it was brought to the firing point.

The 180th Ordnanace Detachment operated a Sky-screen chronograph to measure the velocity of each projectile. The information gained from the chronograph will provide a check on the results obtained from firing.

When the data is analyzed, it will be possible to determine the inherent errors in each gun which cause it to shoot slightly differently from every other gun. Knowing these errors, corrections can be applied which will improve the accuracy of artillery fire.

227th Fires Quarterly Qualification at Stewart

Pilots and Gunners of the Delta Company "Tigers" departed Manila Heliport on Jan. 4 for their quarterly gunner qualification at Fort Stewart, Ga.

The Delta Company gunners received a real workout on this exercise as Capt. William F. Cressall and Lt. Ronald Windham, gunnery instructor pilots, designed a multiple target course which closely resembles the type targets escort aircraft can expect under actual combat conditions.

Brig. Gen. John M. Wright, assistant division commander, 11th Air Assault Division, Brig. Gen. John Norton, deputy commander, US Army Infantry School, and Colonel George P. Seneff, commanding officer, 11th Aviation Group, fired with Delta Company on Saturday.

Alpha Men Are Proud Of Unit Squad Leader

The Raiders of Alpha Company 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry are proud of Sgt. Robert D. Hamm. His ability as a squad leader is unquestionable as his squad along with the remainder of the squads in the platoon have won numerous inspection awards.

Company Receives New 'Top' in 511th

Members from the Headquarters and Headquarters company 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry were happy to see SFC Lavelle W. Wallace be installed as the 1st Sgt. of the Headquarters Company. Capt. Moses D. Smalls, Headquarters company commanding officer installed SFC Lavelle W. Wallace as 1st Sgt. of the company at a company formation on the Dec. 23, 1964.

SFC Wallace, who is a veteran of 17 years in the military, is indeed no stranger to the company or the battalion. SFC Wallace has been serving as S-4 supply sergeant since Sept. 10, 1963.

Sgt. Hamm was first assigned to Alpha company on Sept. 3, 1963. His first job at Alpha company was squad leader of the 1st Squad, 3rd platoon. During the IG inspection recently completed in the Battalion, Sgt. Hamm's squad along with the remainder of the platoon won the outstanding platoon award of the company. On Jan. 6, 1965 Sgt. Hamm was installed as the company Training NCO along with holding down the job of squad leader.

Upon entering the Army in Nov. of 1960, Sgt. Hamm was assigned to Echo company 1st Battalion, 31st Infantry in Korea.

While in this unit Sgt. Hamm was awarded the Good Driver Medal by his battalion commander for three months straight. His other award includes the Good Conduct Medal. An interesting fact in Sgt. Hamm's military career is that he was in the service only 17 months before he was promoted to 1st Sgt.

New Commander Arrives at Battery

Capt. George H. Thompson, was named the new commander of Battery C by Lt. Col. Lloyd J. Picou, commanding officer, 1st Battalion, 15th Artillery, Dec. 7, 1964.

Shortly after graduation from the University of Georgia in 1957, Capt. Thompson began his Army career by completion of the Officers Basic Course at Fort Sill, Okla. He was then assigned to the 10th Artillery at Fort Benning. Serving with the 10th Artillery from 1957 to 1959, Capt. Thomas performed duties as Battery commander of the old Search Light Battery, assistant executive officer, Platoon commander, Battery D (Honest John Battery), and assistant to S-3.

In Jan. 1960, he attended the Battery Officers Associates Air Defense Course at Fort Bliss, Tex. Upon completion of the course, he was assigned as executive officer for Battery C, 5th Missile Battalion, 1st Artillery. In Aug., 1963, Capt. Thompson attended the Infantry Officers Career Course at Fort Benning.

Prior to his assignment to the 15th Artillery, he became Airborne qualified in June 1964.

After coming to the 15th Artillery, Capt. Thompson was assigned as Liaison Officer. He actively participated in this capacity in AIR ASSAULT II. Capt. Thompson came to Charlie Battery looking forward to a new challenge.

He resides with his wife and three sons at 133A Kesseler Drive, Fort Benning.

Suggestion Ideas Save $5 Million

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army Suggestion Program saved the U. S. Government nearly five million dollars during the first quarter of Fiscal Year 1965.

The multi-million dollar savings resulted from adoption by the Army of more than 5,000 of the roughly 20,000 suggestions submitted during the quarter.

In Fiscal Year 64, savings of $19,150,310 were realized by adoption of some 25,000 suggestions.

During the first quarter of FY 65, civilian employees submitted 14,788 suggestions to improve efficiency or reduce costs; 4,181 of these were adopted. Benefits from these suggestions totaled more than three and a half million dollars.

During this same period military personnel made 3,028 suggestions: 569 were adopted and resulted in savings of $1,126,814.

Foreign nationals employed by the Army also contributed ideas which resulted in savings. From their 2,017 suggestions, 519 were adopted resulting in savings of $150,501.

To emphasize the program and encourage maximum benefits from the Army Suggestion Plan, the Army has undertaken a special suggestion campaign from October 1 1964 through June 30, 1965 under the theme, "A Better Product and Service at Reduced Cost."

228th Battalion Newest Arrival

The 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion has a new officer. He is WO Jesse Hamilton and he has been assigned to the First Platoon of Company B. WO Hamilton has had previous experience as a Pathfinder and comes from an H-21 flying assignment in Korea.

WO Hamilton is scheduled to attend CH-47 ground school at Fort Rucker, Ala. starting Jan. 17. Following this he will start the flying portion of his transition and assume the additional duty of Company "B" Communications Officer.

Rak Trooper Is Honor Graduate

Sgt. Kenneth L. Watson of the 1st Air Assault Brigades Rakkasan Combat Support Company became the top man in the Airborne Department's Jumpmaster School last Thursday, graduating with a score of 91 points to make him the honor graduate.

Last week's class, the largest in recent weeks, began with 41 students last Monday, and finished up Thursday with 35 students graduating. Most of the troopers were from airbone units within the 11th Air Assault Division.

Sgt. Watson has twelve years of military service, and is presently serving as a section leader in Company D's Mortar Platoon.

New Rak Rappeling Instructors Chosen

New rappelling instructors for the rappelling training program within the 1st Air Assault Brigade's 1st Battalion, 187th Infantry started training last week in the 1st Brigade's rappelling tower.

Conducted under the supervision of veteran rappeller, Capt. Donald F. Warren, selected personnel from each of the Rak units underwent the training, and will serve as the principle instructors for their unit during the forthcoming year.

Assisting Capt. Warren during last week's training was SSgt. Thomas E. Tokash and Sgt. Bernard A. McCallister of Company C, both experts who have worked with Capt. Warren for some time.

During the classes, the utmost emphasis was placed on safety with much attention given to the procedures for rigging both the tower and helicopters, and inspection of equipment already rigged.

Signal Equipment Loaded on C-130

On Jan. 4 and 5 1965, selected personnel from the 511th Signal Battalion took part in practical exercises loading and securing vehicles on C-130 aircraft. The training was accomplished with the cooperation of the Military Air Transport Service, which provided a C-130 based out of Norfolk, Va., and maned by a Navy crew.

The exercise was conducted at Lawson Army Air Field, under the supervision of M-Sgt. Kelvin C. Koon, the battalion movements NCO. Special emphasis was given to loading the various signal equipment the battalion uses. Maximum space was used to get four jeeps and four trailers on the aircraft.

This training will be especially helpful in the future, as the Signal Battalion, which provides communications for the 11th Air Assault Division frequently uses C-130s' for transportation to and from manuever areas, as in the recent AIR ASSAULT II exercise, thus enabling a better utilization of aircraft.

Deer Poses A Problem

What to do with over 100 pounds of fresh venison when you live in the barracks is the problem that faced Sp4 Nicholas Verdolino and Sp4 Thomas Young of Headquarters Battery, 1st Battalion 15th Artillery.

It was the first deer he had ever killed and needless to say cleaning the animal was quite a chore. It took Sp4 Verdolino and Sp4 Young from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until seven that evening to prepare the animal. And then he had to face the problem of what to do with it as he could hardly bring it back to his unit. A quick call to the home of SSgt. John Magriplis of Headquarters Battery and the promise of some fresh venison found the deer a place to stay for the night. The next day the deer was prepared for the freezer and given to members of Headquarters Battery who could keep the meat properly.

Reenlistments High In 15th's Battery B

Battery "B", 1st Battalion Artillery, 11th Air Assault Division is proud or its reenlistment program. Under the direction of SSgt. William R. Coggins, who has served ten years, the rate of Bravo Battery reenlistments has been extremely high.

A recent reenlistment in Sgt. Richard D. Howard who has just returned from his thirty day reenlistment leave. Sgt. Howard hails from Clifton Forge, Va. He entered the Army Nov. 14, 1956 and completed his basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C. Before being assigned to the 15th Artillery, Sgt. Howard served with Battery A, 5th Battalion, 83rd Artillery in Baumholder, Germany. Sgt. Howard has served as a gunner since coming to the 15th Artillery in May of 1963. He presently resides in Columbus with his wife Hermine and three daughters.

A Very Special Visit

A special treat was given to children at Martin Army Hospital Monday afternoon as clown Bobby Kay of the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus stopped for a visit.

Kay, who travels about a week ahead of the circus promoting it, amused children in the hospital's pediatric ward with a variety of tricks and took time out to tell a story to four small girls.

The Ringling Brothers Circus is scheduled to appear at Municipal Auditorium Jan. 26 and 27.

"Bobby is one of about 50 clowns in this, the largest show that Ringling Brothers has brought to Columbus in 18 years," said Roscoe W. Compton, a promoter with the circus who accompanied Kay.

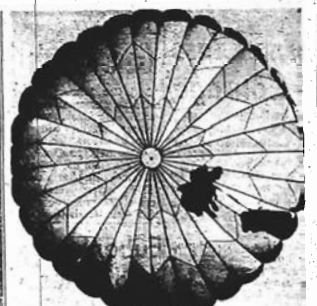
"The show has 40 new European acts making their first appearances in the United States," he added.

The show will arrive in Columbus at noon Jan. 25 in 23 pullman cars from Jacksonville, Fla.

Acts in the three-hour spectacle will range from a lady lion trainer to Siberian royal Bengal tigers and there also will be 18 African elephants.

Performances are scheduled twice daily at 4:15 and 8:15 p.m.

Later this year the circus is slated for a six-week engagement at New York's Madison Square Garden.



Are you ready for the challenge of airborne training? If so, read about your future as an airborne soldier in this week's special feature, "Rough-and-Tough Airborne Class," on Page 2.

Words to the Wise!

It's income tax time again, and the Army will soon be issuing W-2 forms to all personnel. Along with the form goes the wise advice to tuck it away in a safe place until you are ready to file your tax return.

Past experience has shown that a lost or mislaid W-2 leads to the payment of extra taxes and an extra expense for the Army in issuing duplicate forms.

Personnel discharged, retired, or released from active duty during the year are particularly vulnerable to such an oversight.

If you should slip up and lose that slip, put in an immediate request for a duplicate by writing to the Finance Center, U. S. Army, Indianapolis.

There is a widespread misconception regarding the deductibility of the cost of tickets to charity balls, benefits and similar fund raising functions.

Amounts paid for tickets to these functions, as part of a campaign to raise funds for charitable organizations, are considered to be deductible only to the extent that the amounts paid exceed the value of the admission price and other benefits received by the "donor" who must ascertain the deductible contribution which is included in the admission price.

TSB's Airborne Personnel Branch Keeps Tabs on 25,000 Students

By Dick Minnig and John Dalton

In answer to the Army's need to fill a projected 6,800 vacancies in airborne units around the world, stepped-up airborne recruiting has resulted in almost doubling the size of airborne classes at The Infantry School.

The number of students in airborne classes has risen from an average of 450 to over 700.

This increase has placed a heavier workload upon TSB's Basic airborne personnel branch.

The basic airborne branch, a subordinate function of TSB's personnel office, is under the command of CWO Milton E. Dodson. The 53-man branch is responsible for the maintenance of records and administration of payments to all enlisted airborne students.

A tight schedule demands speed and efficiency.

The brevity of the three-week training period brings about a rapid turnover of students. Normally, the branch handles the movement of some 1,100 transient trainees each week.

Maintaining this volume of records is a big job and is complicated by students arriving with incomplete records and lack of qualification for training.

In addition, a near 30 per cent attrition rate for each class gives the branch the task of finding new assignments, at short notice, for a large number of men.

During the in-processing, the branch must give a two-hour orientation, issue a partial pay, and insure, by a thorough check of individual records, that the student is qualified for airborne training.

Pay processing is a tremendous task. Each of the students undergoing airborne training is paid twice during his short stay. To accomplish this the branch maintains close liaison with the 15th Finance Disbursing Section.

The vast number of personnel handled by the branch is indicated by the 25,000 student locator cards kept on file. Mail must be forwarded to airborne graduates all over the globe.

Working closely with the post transportation office, the branch is responsible for shipping airborne graduates to their new units. In addition, it does its own processing for overseas replacement.

Soldiers Teach Civilians Nuclear Self-Protection

A five-man team from The Infantry Center Chemical Section is helping to train civilians within a 75-mile radius in nuclear attack self-protection procedures.

The team presents radiological monitoring courses to members of business firms and other organizations. Since May, 137 people have been trained, most of them in Columbus.

The course, standardized by the Office of Civil Defense in Washington, includes nuclear weapons and the effects of radiation, use of radiation detection devices such as geiger counters and dosimeters (radiation indicator), operation of fallout shelters and decontamination methods for food, water, area and person.

Persons receiving the training my volunteer to be assigned to a local fallout shelter where they will be responsible for its upkeep and operation.

The team, headed by Capt. Ward D. Fagan, post chemical officer, works hand-in-hand with the Columbus-Muscogee County Civil Defense director, Col. (Ret.) C. Virtue.

Other team members are 2nd Lts. John R. Dees and Joseph A. Ariael III, SFC Clyde F. Hancock and SSgt. Leonard K. Welliver.

Weapons Team Of Marine Corps Invited to Post

The Infantry School has invited a Marine Corps presentation team to Fort Benning in mid-February to give school personnel its ideas on small arms requirements.

The Marines were invited by Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, in a letter to Lt. Gen. F. L. Wiessman, coordinator of Marine Corps Landing Force Development Activities at Quantico, Va.

The Army believes its current individual weapons to be excellent ones, but it is looking at several new approaches to obtain major advances in the next generation.

The Army is interested in a weapon which will give the Infantryman the capability of covering both a specific target and a defined area. Such a capability is provided by the so-called special purpose individual weapon (SPIW) which is under study and development by the Army.

Although the school is not responsible for research and development in Army weapons, Infantry leaders keep abreast of all new proposals in this area. One of these is the Marine "Stoner 63" weapons system which will be demonstrated by the Marines.

While at Fort Benning, the demonstration team is expected to visit the new school facilities and witness Infantry training.

Tax Advisers Go to School To Help YOU

Unit income tax advisors at Fort Benning are attending a two-day tax school Jan. 28 and 29 at Theater No. 1, sponsored by The Infantry Center Staff Judge Advocate Section.

To be conducted by personnel of the Internal Revenue Service, Atlanta, the school will be in session from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. each day.

Tax advisers are selected units from among officers and enlisted men who are already experienced in Federal income tax reporting.

Since there have been several changes in tax laws, personnel are advised to get assistance if needed in preparing their Federal tax returns, officials said.

Rough-and-Tough Airborne Class Offers You the 'Badge of Courage'

"An Airborne graduate feels like a personal conqueror," a veteran Airborne NCO replied when asked why so many young men apply for parachutist training.

"The training is a challenge to the individual, and once graduated he can join the most elite and best outfit in the modern Army," the NCO added.

The statement is typical of the deep feeling of personal pride and 'espirt de corps" shared by almost every Airborne solider.

Each year the Airborne School qualfies an average of 10,871 parachutists. To them, the Parachute Badge has become a "Badge of Courage."

Not everyone has the ability to "make it" and it is estimated that 20 per cent of all students who enter the course fail to earn the "Badge."

Anyone wishing to take Airborne training can apply by filling out a 1049 personnel action form under provisions of AR 611-7, which regulates the selection and processing of volunteers for Airborne training and assignment.

Paper work is turned in to your company commander and moves through channels. Final approval comes from CONARC.

Once an applicant gets to the school he can expect to be kept on the go for three rough-and-tough weeks. In the ground training week, the trainee gets plenty of physical training and learns the fundamentals of exit and landing procedures.

In tower training week, the fundamentals are put to use as the trainee begins jumping from towers, including 250-foot free tower which utilizes a parachute for the first time during the training.

Zero hour arrives during the third week and students gain a full appreciation of the arduous and exacting training that they have undergone.

It is then, as he floats slowly to the ground, that he realizes that he has become a conqueror, a victor over personal fears and physical punishment. As he makes his landing, he feels a deep sense of accomplishment and pride.

MRS. SANFORD

Building 4's 'Girl Friday' To Help You

Ready information and a helping hand will practically greet visitors at the door when they arive at the vast new Infantry School building.

Sitting in Room 111 in the lobby of Bldg. 4, just a few steps from the huge glass doors leading into the Army's most modern educational institution, is Mrs. Jack W. Sanford, with the newly appointed duties of official receptionist for The Infantry School.

She will answer questions concerning the building, location of offices, about The Infantry School and Infantry Center, their organization and functions, and perform other courtesies to aid the many visitors who come daily to this center of Fort Benning activity.

Mrs. Sanford, married to Capt. Sanford who is in Viet Nam, is the granddaughter of H. B. French of Columbus.

Eubanks And Jones Earn AMCs

Two members of the 4th Bn., 69th Armor, 197th Inf. Bde. were awarded Army Commendation Medals last week at a presentation ceremony in the battalion area.

Col. Walter D. Short, 197th commander, presented the medals to 1st Lt. Gerald T. Eubanks and to SSgt. Earl Jones, both of Bn. Headquarters Co.

Eubanks received the ACM for meritorious service while assigned to the 73rd Armor in Korea and Jones was awarded the ACM for meritorious service while stationed with the 70th Armor in Germany.

Col. McLendon Receives ACM

Lt. Col. George P. McLendon, deputy secretary of The Infantry School, has been presented an Army Commendation Medal, first oak leaf cluster.

The medal was awarded to Col. McLendon by Brig. Gen. John Norton, assistant commandant of the school, for the colonel's "contribution to the development of the Infantry School" during the past five years.

Look to the Future

Just about everyone dreams of and plans for the day when he can count himself among the "retireds" of this country.

For those of us in the armed forces, this dream can become a reality much sooner than with our civilian counterparts.

Although some servicemen do not actually retire after their 20 years of service, they still are a big jump ahead of men who must wait until they are in their 60's before they can "go fishin'."

While a retired serviceman will probably get a job to supplement his retirement pay, he will receive a monthly check from the government for the rest of his life.

Along with the regular monthly check come other benefits that civilians must pay for out of their own pocket. For example, if a retired serviceman and his family want to take a vacation in Germany they need not worry too much about transportation costs since one of his benefits is an annual trip on Military Sea Transportation Service ships or Military Air Transport Service planes at nominal cost, space available.

Upon retirement, the government lets the retiree pick his own place to live and moves him and his family there free of charge.

If a retiree decides to reside near a military installation he is then able to collect a few more benefits that civilians cannot get. Retired servicemen and their dependents, in most cases, have the privilege of using such base facilities as the commissary and exchange stores, recreational facilities, medical services, club facilities and other low-cost service benefits.

The serviceman who stays in 20 years has the opportunity to increase his retirement pay through promotions and, through off-duty education, to further himself so that when the day for retirement comes he will be better qualified to accept a good civilian position.

Thus, a 20-year investment (at no cost to the individual) can pay off big dividends in retirement. (AFPS)

The Judge Says . . .

One of the easiest methods of incurring a lifetime problem is to fail to pay for items purchased on credit.

Aside from embarrassment, possible discharge by board action or military criminal charges involved (dishonorably failing to pay a just debt is a violation of Article 134 of the UCMJ), a failure to meet one's credit obligations can lead to the loss of property as well as the loss of a good credit rating.

As to the possible loss of property, a creditor has a right to sue a debtor for obligations which are unpaid. If the creditor gets a judgment against the debtor, then, in most states, a sheriff can satisfy this judgment by selling the debtor's property at public auction.

The price that these items bring goes to the creditor and the debtor only gets that amount, if any, which exceeds the amount of the creditor's judgment. Also, where there is a deficiency, the creditor can get a deficiency judgment and proceed against the debtor for the balance, including a reasonable charge for interest.

Before extending credit, a reputable businessman will first secure a report on your credit standing. If you're a poor risk, he usually will not extend credit.

As you can see, it's best to pay your debts and pay them promptly. A reputation of being a good credit risk is a reputation worth many times more than the [illegible] possess, you should not purchase items that you can't afford in the first place.

Surgeon Says

The Invisible Killer

Winter driving holds many hazards, but the most treacherous menace is carbon monoxide poisoning. Inhalation of this gas causes more deaths than all other toxic gases combined, and the death toll is steadily climbing each year.

The perils of carbon monoxide may be ignored here in the South because of the relatively mild winters. Many of us are guilty of keeping our car motors running while waiting for someone. With car windows shut, a death trap is set and a leak in the muffler or manifold will trigger the trap. Before the occupants realize they are in danger, they are overcome by gas fumes.

Remember this, a new car can have a leak in the connections, so don't assume this can happen only to people with older cars.

Pure carbon monoxide is an odorless, colorless, tasteless, non-irritating and most of all, lethal gas. Carbon monoxide is, however, usually mixed with other gases with an irritating odor which warns people of the impending danger. However, when the irritants are absent, there is no warning to the driver or his passengers.

The surgeon asks that you avoid the dangers of carbon monoxide by keeping the exhaust system of your car in good condition and by not following too closely in bumper to bumper traffic. It is wise to keep car windows open a little for ventilation.

If you see a vehicle in a parking lot with the windows up, the motor running and the occupants slumped over, rap on the window immediately, open the doors, remove the occupants and start artificial respiration. Have someone call an ambulance.

All persons who have been partially asphyxiated by carbon monoxide gas should be examined by a doctor.

Our Stake in Viet Nam

Why are several thousand American Servicemen in Viet Nam? What is their mission? What does the United States seek to accomplish by our military and other assistance to the Republic of Viet Nam? What is at stake in the bitter struggle going on there? Why, exactly, are we in Viet Nam?

The Republic of Viet Nam is trying to remain free of communist tyranny and has asked us to help them. It has long been a basic principle of American foreign policy that we will respond to any free nation's call for help when its freedom is in peril from external aggression or subversion.

We believe that the more free nations there are in the world, the better the chances for world peace and individual freedom. In the other direction, whenever a free nation is in danger of passing under communist control, the chances for peace and individual freedom are reduced. This belief is based on the historical fact that self-governing people rarely invade their neighbor's territory or otherwise disturb the international peace, while communist and other dictatorships usually resort to aggression and expansion ultimately. A threat to freedom and peace anywhere in the world is a potential or actual threat to all free men. Thus, the United States has a vested interest in the maintenance of peace and the preservation of freedom.

As they have in many other parts of the world, the communists may try to disguise their action in Viet Nam by calling it a "war of liberation." But the disguise has worn thin; it never was much of a disguise anyhow. If the communist strategy of subversion and guerrilla insurgency were allowed to succeed in Viet Nam, communism would be encouraged to exert similar efforts in other countries of Southeast Asia and eventually in other parts of the world.

By our unflinching support of the Republic of Viet Nam, the United States is demonstrating, to the Communist and Free Worlds alike, that we do not intend to stand aside and let freedom die in Southeast Asia or anywhere else.

Measure of Readiness

Suddenly, in the early hours of the morning, a siren wails. A public address system hums to life. "Attention in the company area, attention in the company area! Condition Fast Pace in effect as of zero four hundred hours. I repeat—Condition Fast Pace in effect as of zero four hundred hours. All personnel be ready to move with your equipment in fifteen minutes."

The company area, silent except for the measured step of the sentries, sprang to life with a roar of activity. Drivers carrying their field gear sprinted through the darkness to the motor pool, warmed up the engines on trucks and personnel carriers and moved the vehicles quickly to their assigned areas. Here the troops quickly loaded their equipment and moved out in the vehicles. Moments later the area was again still, and the sentries resumed their posts.

Miles down the road the leading elements of the company were already occupying their battle positions.

This exercise was just a routine test of the unit's capabilities, but because the company was fully ready, it was able to execute its assigned mission quickly and precisely. This unit was ready because it equipment was properly maintained and its personnel knew their jobs and their mission.

Before the development of the guided missile and the supersonic airplane it was not necessary for the Army to be able to respond to alerts in a matter of minutes as is required of many military organizations today. Because of this urgency and the requirement to maintain forces capable of immediate response, the Army is continuously evaluating its readiness posture by exercises, tests, personnel and materiel inspections, and other means.

Prototype of 1 1/4-Ton Carrier to Undergo Army Evaluation Test

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army has received the first prototype of the 1¼-ton XM-561 Cargo Carrier, designed to answer the need for a vehicle between the ¼-ton jeep and 2½-ton cargo carriers.

The XM-561 consists of two aluminum units, a four-wheeled tractor and a two-wheeled carrier, with an articulation (jointed) system between the two units. The system keeps all six wheels on the ground and driving at all times and reduces body torsional stress.

The XM-561 can traverse off-road terrain that would bog-down a conventional vehicle; it is amphibious, deliverable by parachute and is helicopter transportable.

It can be converted with modification kits for many special purposes, including a weapons carrier, firing platform for missiles or recoilless weapons, ambulance, command post, fire direction center, and mobile communications center.

The new carrier, built at the Michigan Army Missile Plant, near Detroit, is scheduled to begin engineering and service tests at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., by the U. S. Army Test and Evaluation Command. Thirteen more models will be completed by May 1965 by Ling-Temco-Vought, Michigan Division, for the Army and Marine Corps. The other prototypes will be delivered for testing to Fort Benning; Fort Greely, Alaska; Fort Knox, Ky.; Yuma Proving Ground, Ariz.; Fort Eustis, Va.; Fort Sill, Okla., and the Canal Zone.

OWC Features Parisian Luncheon and Fashion Show

By DOROTHY NEWMAN

The Officers' Wives Club is inviting all members to make reservations early for the Parisian Luncheon and Fashion Show which will be presented at MOOM on Wednesday, Feb. 3.

This fashion function will be held in the shadow of the Eiffel Tower and will feature authentically costumed French maidens. The luncheon, consisting of a completely French cuisine, will create the proper mood for viewing fashions from one of the leading shops in Columbus.

Mrs. George R. Theering, fashion consultant, has choosen a vast cross section of clothes to fill the need of any wife attending this event. Whether you need additions for your wardrobe for shopping or school conferences, teas or tours, dinner or dancing or hostess gowns for small social gatherings in your home, you will find the perfect outfit for you in this collection of spring styles.

Hostesses for the afternoon will be ladies of the Student Brigade. Mrs. Donald T. Kellett is the general chairman and Mrs. Ralph J. Viestenz and Mrs. Robert D. Liscombe Jr. are co-chairmen.

The ten models, wives from The Student Brigade, are hard at work practicing proper modeling techniques which they are learning from Ann Roberts, a professional model. They are also being coached in special make-up procedures by Mildred L. Massie, a local make-up consultant.

The deadline for reservations is noon Monday, Feb. 1, however, OWC members are urged to make reservations early since seating space is limited. Off-post members may call Mrs. Letcher Crawford at 323-0889. On - post members may call the following: A thru H, Mrs. Earl W. Buchanan at 545-3617, I thru Q, Mrs. George A. Crowell at 545-2686, R thru Z, Mrs. Jess L. Goodman at 545-3518.

Commentators for the show will be Mrs. Edward E. Rusk and Mrs. John L. Taylor.

Special committee chairman for the luncheon include Mrs. Ronald S. McCaul, flower carts; Mrs. Robert B. Liscombe Jr., leaf sprays; Mrs. Donald E. Drouin and Mrs. Charles F. Grandgeorge, flowers.

Mrs. Karl Sannicks, Anzio Room; Mrs. Ralph J. Viestanz, costumes; Mrs. Walter R. Jegier, gifts; Mrs. John P. Soukup and Mrs. William W. Hunter Sr., menu; Mrs. Dale Y. Freed, transportation; Mrs. Stanley S. Scott, spot lights and Mrs. Donald L. Whitlock, crest construction.

Fort Benning Society Women's News

'My Fair Lady' Inspires Blouse and Shirt Attire

In the mirror of fashion at Fort Benning this season, every woman is a fair and gentle lady. A new softly feminine look shows up in every category of women's wear . . . from sports separates to formal attire.

Illustrating the trend, according to the National Cotton Council, is a collection of cotton blouses and shirts.

Inspired by costumes of the new musical film, "My Fair Lady", styles reflect the gentle fashion mood in vogue at the turn of the century. Now, as then, the look depends on a bit of fashion witchery, carried out in soft design accents, ultra-feminine fabrics, and elegant lady-like colors.

For the "fair lady" look, the cotton blouse group makes a fashion point of portrait necklines, frilly ruffles and floppy tie-bows, tucked and long billowing sleeves. Sleeves on several shirts are real period types, with fullness ending in a long three-button cuff. Other long-sleeved styles have elegant French or flaring wing cuffs.

Fabrics featured in the holiday collection are notable for their air of femininity. Lustrous cotton satin headlines one blouse group, which is crisply patterned in the elegant black and white color scheme of the memorable Ascot scene from "My Fair Lady." The cotton satin styles come in bold stripes or large coin dots, dramatic contrast to their newly soft tailoring.

One of the most romantic fabrics in the collection is all-cotton, embroidered eyelet. Delicate pastel cotton prints also are featured, lending a fragile charm to many simply-cut shirts.

Feminine

Cotton satin takes on black and white stripes in this easy-going long-sleeved blouse with convertible collar and French cuffs.

Perky

Bold polka dots sparkle on white cotton satin in this blouse styled with portrait collar and three-quarter sleeves with wing cuffs. It's included in the "My Fair Lady" blouse collection.

"Partner," said the west voice from across the table, "I never seem to get the cards!"

Following this classic statement the opponents carefully wrapped up the four heart contract by shuffing a spade on North's third good club.

The principle of "opening light" in third position is just as important in party bridge as it is in tournaments. Had West opened the bidding with one spade it would have been almost impossible for North - South to reach a good game contract.

The best that North could have done over the spade opening would have been to double. After a double I would have bid two diamonds and would have certainly continued competing. It is even possible that we would have gotten the contract at two spades for a plus score on our side. Instead we lost the game and the rubber.

Antique Kitchen Decor Sets Mood At CAR Officers' Wives' Brunch

By Hazel Lipscombe and Joanne Drovin

The distinctive air of an antique kitchen was created in the Fountain Room, recently as Infantry Officers Career Course II wives met for a brunch.

Guests dined at tables covered with red and white checked cloths and centered with antique brass, pewter, and cast iron kitchen implements.

Mrs. Robert A. Wolff was the featured speaker. She told the group how the Festival of Epiphany is celebrated in France. Mrs. Wolff also gave the wives recipes for two cakes which are traditionally served during this season.

Mrs. Rudolph Fromm and wives of officers in the 4th Platoon hosted this affair attended by Mrs. Joseph E. McClusky, Mrs. Ronald S. McCaul and Mrs. Edward Rusk, honored guests.

55th OC Wives

Mrs. Jesse James and Mrs. Michael Davis were elected chairman and co-chairman of the 55th OC Co. Wives' Club at a recent coffee. Also elected were Mrs. Kenneth Jones, treasurer; James R. McEvers, publicity; and Mrs. James G. Patzwall, hospitality.

Honored guests attending the affair were Mrs. Robert B. Nett, Mrs. Stanley S. Scott and Mrs. Fred Dilkes.

Following a briefing on the officer candidate program given by Capt. John H. Hayes, the wives were escorted on a tour of the barracks.

Mrs. Daniel Terry, Mrs. William Lamontagne and Mrs. Robert Estes were student wife hostesses. Mesdames John Hayes, Jack Wright, James Coleman and Joseph Hailey served as cadre hostesses.

5th Bn. Coffee

The Gold Bar Club was the scene of a 5th Bn. cadre coffee held Jan. 7.

Mrs. Robert B. Nett welcomed new battalion wives, Mrs. Charles F. Grandgeorge and Mrs. Glenn H. Wilson.

A brief business meeting followed, during which a committee was formed to help make decorations for the February Officers' Wives Club luncheon to be sponsored by TSB.

Mrs. G. P. Cady was appointed to succeeed Mrs. John L. Taylor as project chairman for the presentation of flowers to new 5th Bn. mothers.

West Coast Communities Receive Armed Forces Aid

NEW YORK (AFPS) — Many members of the armed forces celebrated the New Year while conducting rescue and relief operations after floods brought disaster to several communities in California, Oregon and Washington.

At the Sixth Army Emergency Operations Center, Presidio of San Francisco, members of the Army Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard worked around-the-clock to direct the deployment of military personnel, equipment and supplies committed to assist the stricken communities.

Taking a personal hand in the rescue and relief operations was PFC Duncan B. Pierce of Headquarters & Headquarters Co., TSB.

Duncan, home on holiday leave, spent Christmas Day with an M-1 rifle standing guard in his flood-ravaged home town of Reedsport, Ore.

Also assisting in rescue operations were nine Caribou from the 17th Aviation Co., 11th Air Assault Division, under the direction of Maj. Thomas G. Ziek.

Seven of the planes have returned to Fort Benning; two have been assigned permanently to a West Coast unit.

Army helicopters operating out of Rhonerville, Calif., kept a busy schedule, recording over 57 hours of flying time, carrying 81 passengers and more than 14 tons of cargo.

Marine Corps CH-34 helicopters operating from Murray Field, Calif., flew 38 hours, carried 81 passengers, evacuated 48 persons and hauled 63 tons of cargo.

A large number of military aircraft, vehicles, bedding, sandbags and other military equipment were committed to the rescue and relief operations. A major base of operations for the aircraft, mostly helicopters, was the USS Bennington, an anti-submarine warfare carrier. It sailed from Long Beach, Calif., with 32 helicopters from the Marine Corps Air Station, El Toro, Calif. Approximately 10 UH-1B Army helicopters from the Combat Development Command Experimentation Center were flown aboard the carrier as it passed Ft. Ord, Calif.

Members of the 13th Coast Guard District, Seattle, Wash., rescued over 300 people from flooded areas in Oregon. Coast Guard helicopters rescued 139 persons. The remainder were rescued by boats and crews from Coast Guard Stations along the coast and on the Columbia and Williamette Rivers. One evacuation forced a helicopter to hover three feet under high tension wires while a crewmember waded in deep water to a flooded home and removed a woman and four children.

Nine Air Force C-119 and two C-97 aircraft brought in clothing, medical supplies, radio equipment, vehicles and cattle feed. One C-124 Globemaster flew in a 5,000 gallon fuel truck.

The Air Force Communications Region of Hamilton AFB, Calif. and the Third Mobile Communications Group, Tinker ARB, Okla., provided emergency air traffic control communications for Humboldt and Del Norte counties in California.

Two Army Engineer companies from Ft. Lewis, Wash. have been assigned to erect 80-foot Bailey bridges near Cecilville, Calif., to restore land routes to the Klamath River Valley.

Lt. Col. Nett Will Speak To Jaycees

Lt. Col. Robert B. Nett, Medal of Honor holder, and commander of the 5th Bn., Student Brigade, will speak at the winter meeting of the Eighth Region Jaycees at the West Point High School Jan. 27 at 7 p.m.

Nett, who recently returned from duty in Viet Nam, will discuss some of experience there.

Approximately 150 delegates from the Barnesville, Griffin-Spaulding, LaGrange, Union - Coweta, Thomaston, Columbus, Hogansville, Manchester, Taylor County and West Point Jaycee Clubs will be present.

Nett was awarded the Medal of Honor while serving in the Philippines with the 305th Regiment, 77th Infantry Division during World War II. Commanding Co. E, 305th, he led an assault against a reinfoced enemy battalion, killing seven enemy soldiers with his rifle and bayonet in spite of three serious wounds, according to the citation accompanying the medal.

Post Slates More Space For Trailers

A 50-unit trailer court will be built by the Savannah District Army Engineers at Fort Benning at an estimated cost of construction of $75,000.

Bids for contract work will be opened Jan. 28. Contract period is 90 days.

Construction of the trailer park facility will require 4,250 square yards of paving and grading for roads and parking areas, 1,500 cubic yards of grading for trailer pads and patios, 1,800 square yards of paving for walks and patios with an additional 83 square yards for utility pads.

Other work will include constrdcting a utility building with a floor area of 1,200 square feet, installing 50 fuel stands and 50 refuse containers, and providing utilities, water supply, sewer and electrical distribution.

NIXON GETS WARRANT

Loyal L. Nixon has been sworn as a warrant officer in the Army Reserve. Nixon's promotion was accompanied by a concurrent call to active duty. He will continue as an instructor with the command supervisory committee, Mobility Department.

Skeet Club Has Annual Competition

Lt. Col. Edgar S. Burroughs was elected president of the Fort Benning Trap and Skeet Club at the annual meeting Sunday.

In a companion championship competition, Maj. Algin S. Hawkins shot his way to first place in the skeet competition with 49 birds in 50 tries.

William Golden was trap champion, scoring 45 out of a possible 50. Calvin Pierce was winner of the international style skeet championship. He scored a perfect round, breaking 25 out of 25.

Other club officials elected at the meeting were: vice president, Col. H. H. Hardenbergh; secretary, N. D. Dundas; treasurer, Maj. Thomas D. Gillmore, and range officer, MSgt. Max L. Quick.

The clubs' facilities were the site of the 1964 U.S. Olympic Trap and Skeet Team tryouts.

$1.8 Million Spent Weekly During 1964

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The American Red Cross (ARC) last year spent more than $1.8 million a week in carrying out a diversified program of community and world-wide services, according to the organization's 1963-64 annual report.

Services to the armed forces and to veterans made up the greatest single outlay of Red Cross funds — $38,547,185. This amount was up more than $200,000 from the previous year. Broader commitments of United Statse forces in Southeast Asia played a large part in the increase.

Key Officers Briefed Here

The Infantry Agency has presented a series of briefings to officers newly assigned to key positions in The Infantry School and The Infantry Board.

The purpose of the briefings was to provide school and board personnel with a background orientation on the mission, functions, capabilities and recent significant projects conducted by the agency.

Attending the briefings were Colonels James O. Jones, Henry H. Hardenbergh, Thomas G. Ferguson, Joel W. Lawson, N. B. Mabry and W. L. Koob Jr., Lt. Colonels R. B. Nett, James L. Brummer, Robert C. Bailey, R. A. Fielder and Marcus W. Coyle.

Majors Colon R. Britt, Guy M. Covington, Ernest J. Cherney, Robert E. Copeland, Edward R. Vaughn, Robert K. Duer and Walter C. Stanton, Captains Howard P. Blount, C. T. Stevens and Captain J. A. Dennis, Lieutenants William P. Russell and Richard J. Nettles and Mr. Nile Peacher.

Brig. Niazi Visits Post

Brigadier Amir Abdullah Khan Niazi, commandant of the School of Infantry and Tactics, Pakistan, is at Fort Benning for an extended orientation four.

The Pakistani brigadier was commissioned in a Rajput Regiment in 1942. He has served as commandant of the Pakistan School of Infantry and Tactics since November, 1963.

He is scheduled to leave Fort Benning Wednesday.

Multiple Services Offered by 69th Armor In Support of Infantry School Problems

By Dave Kaufelt

Out of the 2,275 commitments performed by the men of the 4th Bn., 69th Armor in 1964, 2,187 were rated as outstanding while the remaining 88 received satisfactory ratings.

All the commitments were performed in support of Infantry School instruction.

Support of The Infantry School with troop and armor equipment is the primary mission of the 69th.

In addition to school support, the mission of the 69th includes fire fighting, light rescue and labor services to the military and civilian community in case of domestic emergency or natural disaster.

In wartime, its mission is being prepared to close with and destroy enemy forces during fire, maneuvers and shock action in coordination with other arms.

Commanded by Lt. Col. Edwin J. McCarren, the battalion possesses 56 tanks, two flame-throwers, five target tanks and four tank retrievers which are in almost constant use in support of school problems.

Reactivated in 1962 under the ROAD concept, the 69th has a history of outstanding service having taken part in five of the eight European campaigns during World War II and also in the Korean War.

Initially activated in 1940 at Fort Knox, Ky., and known as the 69th Armored Regt., the unit was broken up, reorganized and redesignated into five companies called the 69th Tank Bn.

In 1945, the battalion was once again reorganized and redesignated the 69th Amphibian Tractor Bn. and subsequently inactivated in 1946.

The unit was reactivated in 1957 as the Headquarters and Headquarters Co., 4th Medium Tank Bn., 69th Armor and redesignated in June 1958 as Co. D (Patton), 69th Armor as an element of the 1st Inf. Bde. which was later inactivated when the 197th was organized.

DOD Proposes Increase For Damage Settlements

Washington (AFPS) — A legislative proposal has been submitted to Congress requesting a $3,500 increase over the present $6,500 limitation for claims against the United States for damage or loss of personal property.

The legislation would amend the Claims Act of 1964 with respect to the settlement of claims against the U. S. by members of the uniformed services and civilian employees of government agencies.

The proposed $10,000 claims limitation is part of the Defense Department's legislative program for the 89th Congress. For this legislation the Air Force has been designated as the DOD representative.

The proposal asks that the legislation be made retroactive to July 2, 1962, date of the first monetary limitation.

The draft legislation said DOD believes that a monetary limitation of $6,500 is unrealistic and imposes a great hardship on certain claimants who are victims of catastrophes and disasters.

It was noted that the proposed revision would bring the monetary limitation more nearly into conformity with existing federal laws relating to other claims for damage caused by the U. S. which either authorize full payment or referral of the claim or the unpaid balance to Congress.

DOD feels that in cases of extreme hardship the full amount of a claim not in excess of $10,000 should be paid promptly.

New System Increases Flight Time

REDSTONE ARSENAL, Ala. (ANF) — A new ground launch system for the Army's FIREBEE target guided missile promises to triple its payload capability and significantly increase its flight time.

The new system, which will enable the FIREBEE to fly for as long as 3½ hours, has been successfully tested at White Sands Missile Range, N. M.

To increase the FIREBEE's load carrying capacity, a JATO bottle with twice the burning duration of those currently in operational use was adapted. The new 11,000 pound thrust JATO will burn for approximately four seconds.

Additionally, the target's wing tips have been extended to provide greater lift, as a match for the increased payload.

Remote controlled FIREBEE's are used as targets in training the Army's air defense missile crews.

The improved FIREBEE was developed by the Ryan Aeronautical Company under a contract with the Army Missile Command.

29TH PROMOTIONS

Look Before You Lease

"It's like this, Sir: I'm on orders for Germany next month and my landlord thinks he can make me pay on my lease for another six months,"—familiar words to your Legal Assistance Officer.

Military personnel who sign leases for the rental of homes or apartments must protect themselves by providing for cancellation of their lease in the event they receive permanent change of station orders or government quarters become available.

A soldier is not automatically released from a rental contract or lease when he is transferred or housing on post is obtained. For his protection, the serviceman's lease agreement must contain a "military clause."

The Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act does not enable military personnel to cancel lease upon receipt of PCS orders. This statute offers only limited protection in that it permits a soldier to terminate a lease signed before he entered active military service.

Your Legal Assistant Officer is available to review leases or other documents before they are executed. He is also available to draft any clauses which should be added for your protection. Remember, a landlord prepares a lease for his protection, not yours!

197th Company's Unique 'Chaplain's Corner' A Quiet Refuge for Those Seeking Meditation

By Dave Kaufelt

One of the most unique facilities for soldiers' guidance here is the Command Information Room of Headquarters and Headquarters Co., 197th Infantry Bde.

Like most others it contains newsclippings of current events, college and school catalogues, re-enlistment literature and a giant map of the world, but it also has a special "Chaplain's Corner" in which members of the three major religions—Catholicism, Judaism, and Protestantism — can meditate and worship.

Built in 1963 by the late Sgt. Sidney S. Guillory who was drowned last year while on active duty in Brazil, the Chaplains' Corner took three months to complete and features three altars.

On the Catholic altar is a Holy Bible with a rosary surrounding it. There is also a letter of instruction on the altar entitled, "How to Say the Rosary" and a book of prayers. Two candles and a crucifix complete the Catholic section of the Chaplains' Corner.

A Star of David adorns the Jewish altar on which is a skull cap and a prayer shawl. The Old Testament, the Sabbath and Festival Prayer Book, and the High Holiday Prayer Book — all written both in Hebrew and English — are on the altar as well as two candles.

A Holy Bible, a cross and two candles rest upon the Protestant altar.

A table in the center of the room contains literature provided by various church organizations and by the USO.

Chaplains from all over the world — including two Mohammedan priests touring the United States from Borneo — have visited the Chaplain's Corner and have praised it as the best of its kind they have ever seen.

The Command Information Room is open to all enlisted men during the early morning and evening hours for private meditation and counseling.

KNOW YOUR SENIOR NCOs

The men of Co. A, 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. had best watch their reading, riting and 'rithmetic when dealing with their first sergeant, William D. Cochrane, a former principal and teacher.

Cochrane first entered the Army at the beginning of World War II and saw action during several European campaigns.

At the end of the war, Cochrane returned to civilian life and earned a Bachelor of Science and Education degree at the University of Alabama.

From 1950 through 1951, Cochrane was a school principal in Sugar Bend, Ala. Leaving Sugar Bend, he returned to his home town, Guin, Ala., as a classroom teacher from 1951 through 1954.

Cochrane — who has also studied in the graduate schools of the University of Colorado and Peabody College — returned to active duty in May of 1954.

Among his awards and decorations are the Combat Infantryman's Badge, National Distinguished Service Medal and the Army Commendation Medal.

His overseas tours include duty in Germany, Panama and Korea.

Cochrane, his wife, Dorothy, and their three children reside at 132-G Magrath Street.

MAH Doctor Coordinates Scouts' National Meeting

Capt. Carl Marchetti, M.D., of MAH has been appointed program director for a national conference of Boy Scouts and Explorers.

Marchetti has been serving for several years as a member of the National Committee on Order of the Arrow, a part of the Boy Scout program.

Thomas J. Watson Jr., President of the Boy Scouts of America, and Joseph A. Brunton Jr., Chief Scout Executive, named Marchetti to the National Committee while he was serving as resident physician at Fitkin Memorial Hospital, Neptune, N.J.

The Order of the Arrow, a national brotherhood of over 200,000 honor campers in the Boy Scouts, will hold its 50th Anniversary National Conference at Indiana University, August 27-31, 1965. Over 4,000 young men representing all fifty states will gather on the Indiana campus to celebrate the fiftieth year of service to Scouting.

As program director, Marchetti has been asked to coordinate the activities of over 200 people who will be involved in producing several major stage events and an ambitious training program for the delegates.

Dividend Income Rule Aids Some Taxpayers

New York (AFPS)—Low and middle income taxpayers who own stock will benefit from changes the 1964 tax law made in the treatment of dividend income.

According to the Internal Revenue Service, the amount of dividend income that is not taxable has been doubled.

Under the new law, individuals may receive up to $100 in dividends tax free. Previously, only $50 was not subject to tax.

When both husband and wife receive dividends, they may exclude up to $200 of dividend income on a joint return.

Besides doubling the dividend exclusion amount, the 1964 tax law changed the dividend credit provision. This credit drops from four to two per cent for 1964 and is eliminated entirely for 1965 and thereafter.

The dividend credit provison allows taxpayers to take a credit of a percentage of their dividend income against their Federal income tax.

Tax officials said that for most stockholders, the changes in the dividend exclusion and dividend credit provisions will be a tax saving. Taxpayers with large stock holdings will be adversely affected by these changes but this should be more than offset by the general rate reductions provided by the 1964 Revenue Act.

Honor Guard Is Changed At 29th Inf.

Co. B, 1st Bn., 29th Infantry is currently supplying two 63 man platoons to carry on the duties of The Infantry Center Honor Guard while the 29th's Co. C, which normally supplies the Honor Guard, is acting as support unit for Ranger students in North Georgia.

At a recent ceremony, 1st Lt. Stephen Heller, Co. C commander, presented the colors, utilized for honor guard ceremonies, to Capt. Augustine Gomez, Co. B commander.

Present for the ceremony were Col. Walter D. Short, 197th Infantry Bde. commander and Lt. Col. William C. Hacker, 1st Bn., 29th commander.

The men of Co. B, in preparation for a Jan. 26 ceremony requiring the honor guard, are averaging two days practice each week in addition to fulfilling their usual mission of supporting school problems and demonstrations.

Daniel Hill Honor Grad Of OC Class

Commissions as second lieutenants were given to 153 officer candidate graduates Monday at a ceremony in The Infantry School's Marshall Auditorium at Fort Benning.

Honor graduate was Daniel J. Hill who received an engraved plaque, silver bowl and a miniature Infantryman Statue.

Guest speaker Brig. Gen. Charles V. Wilson, director of operations, Plans and Operations Section, U.S. Strike Command, McDill Air Force Base, Fla., told the graduates that their job was a hard and demanding one.

"Nothing is permanent except change," he said. "Evolution changes things and situations quickly, and you, as OCS graduates, must be able to change with equal speed."

This was the first OCS class to graduate in 1965 and the 597th class to graduate since officer candidate training began at The Infantry School in 1941.

February Army Information Digest Illustrates the Versatility of Army

Versatility of the U. S. Army in operations ranging worldwide, from advancing "The Fight for Freedom in Viet Nam" to "Mapping Latin America," is illustrated in the February issue of ARMY INFORMATION DIGEST soon to be distributed.

General W. C. Westmoreland, Commanding General, U. S. Military Assistance Command, Viet Nam, describes the work of U. S. Army advisers in helping the Vietnamese in their struggle for freedom.

A mapping article, by Jean Bailey, Information Officer Latin American Geodetic Survey, is part of a package spotlighting U. S. Army assistance in South and Central America. Other articles include "Have Skills, Will Travel" by Norman H. Garrison, Public Information Officer, U. S. Army Forces Southern Command which details civic action activities; "Armies Can Be Builders" which describes work of the School of the Americas in helping Latin American forces develop their own countries; and "Quick Response in Panama," a case history of U. S. Army civic action support in emergency.

In "Project Revolt," N. A. LaCharite and E. W. Qude report on a study in depth conducted by Special Operations Research Office, American University, on all aspects of revolutionary warfare.

Other major articles depict the workings of the pinpoint method of distributing Army publications; recent advances in Army aviation medicine, and the role of the Assistant Chief of Staff for Force Development in keeping the Army functioning smoothly.

'You Call the Shots and We Deliver' Theme Stressed By Artillerymen During the Infantry Leader Course

Teaching Infantrymen the employment and organization of field and air defense artillery is the job of Lt. Col. James D. Clark, chairman of The Infantry School's artillery committee.

He, six other officers and six enlisted men instruct over 9,000 students annually and present over 35 problems and demonstrations.

"We have artillery today which can deliver a nuclear warhead hundreds of miles or send a missile up the exhaust of an enemy aircraft at three times the speed of sound," Clark said. "Every Infantry leader must be aware of this explosive support which he has virtually at the tips of his fingers."

Clark teaches students in the Infantry leader courses (Infantry officer, basic candidate, Infantry officer, career and Ranger) how to request and adjust murderous artillery fire and now to plan effective artillery support.

"What young leaders must realize is that artillery support should be planned before a mission," Clark emphasized. "When the bullets are flying, it's too late to start planning."

Using a map reconnaissance, the committee teaches students to predict where they will need artillery support and shows them how they can get explosives, smoke of phosphorous when and where they want it by a simple radio message.

"Artillery support is available for all kinds of missions from the patrol to the large scale assault," Clark said, "the trick is to give the artillery liaison officer an idea of what you need before you need it — the reaction time is much faster that way."

Through live fire problems and demonstrations of artillery equipment the students are also shown the powerful weapons which compose the artilleryman's arsenal and develop a firm grasp of the capabilities and limitations of each weapon.

"This kind of instruction is invaluable because it gives the officer a good idea of the kind of planning and machinery behind the gigantic muscle power supporting him," he stated.

The 175-mm gun, a 30-ton cannon firing a 150 pound shell, is taught the students along with the hand-held anti-aircraft missile (the Redeye) still in the experimental stages.

"Today the artilleryman can put a high explosive shell almost literally on a dime, but we've got to know where the dime is. The training we give the Infantry leader is invaluable; he calls the shots and we deliver," Clark concluded.

Your Dental Health

Questions & Answers

By Lt. Col. R. Y. Whittemore Jr., DC

This is the third in a series of five articles on dental health published by The BAYONET in observance of National Children's Dental Health Week, February 7—13.

Q. My son was told by his football coach that he will have to wear a special kind of mouth guard. Why does he need a mouth guard when his football helmet already has a bar across the lower part to protect the month and face? Also, the coach said this was a rule. Is this true?

A. A regulation requiring all high school and most college football players to wear mouth protectors has been in effect since 1962. This regulation was adopted by the National Alliance Football Rules Committee, composed of athletic directors from all the nation's high schools and some junior and senior colleges.

It was found that the bar on the helmet did not prevent all injuries to the jaw and teeth. Many players, despite this protection, had teeth chipped, broken or otherwise injured and received other facial or jaw injuries.

Before the requirement for mouth protectors went into effect, about 50 per cent of all football injuries were to the face and mouth. Since the regulation was adopted, such injuries have been almost eliminated when the guards are worn faithfully.

Mouth guards are made in three ways, although the committee recommended in the wording of the rule two preferable types. One is made by the dentist from a cast of the player's teeth. A second is made by directly impressing the mouth guard to the player's teeth for an impression. The third, a stock type, is similar to the rubber guard worn by boxers.

Many high schools work directly with the local dental society in providing mouth protectors under supervision of a dentist. Service clubs and other agencies have also cooperated with societies, and protectors have been provided on a public service basis.

While we are on the subject of protection from injury to the face and jaw, we might mention another valuable safeguard for the whole family: seat belts in automobiles. Since seat belts act to restrain the body in sudden impact, they are especially helpful in preventing the head and face from hitting the windshield or dashboard of the car.

It is estimated that more than 72 per cent of all auto injuries are to the head and face, and, of course, severe brain damage, loss of eyesight and other serious head injuries are involved.

Make sure that every member of the family, from the youngest to the oldest, is protected in the family car at all times. And do not forget that your son needs protection on the football field as well.

Third Army Sport Program Outlined for Current Year

The 1965 Third U. S. Army sports program has been announced by The Infantry Center's special services section. Tournaments at Fort Benning are usually scheduled 10 to 14 days before each Third Army event.

The post will compete in basketball, volleyball, bowling, tennis, golf, softball and touch football tourneys but will not be represented in the boxing or track and field contests.

The Third Army Boxing Tournament is the first on the year's agenda March 8-10 at Fort Bragg, followed by the basketball tourney (both men and women) March 29-April 3 at Fort Jackson.

March 29 through April 2, the company level Third Army Volleyball Championship will be decided at Fort McClellan, Ala.

From April 21 to 24 the Third Army Track and Field Meet will take place at Fort Campbell with bowling scheduled at Fort Gordon, Ga., May 24-28.

Tennis championship matches are set for July 7-11 at Fort Stewart. The championship Fort Benning golf team will defend its title Aug. 9-13 at Fort Bragg.

The Third Army Softball Tournaments is planned for Sept. 13-17 at Fort Rucker. The Touch Football Tournament will wrap up the 1965 season Nov. 15-19 at Fort Jackson.

In 1964 the post was host to one Third Army meet, the golf classic, and was the site of the All-Army and Inter-service Golf Championships.

First Half Winners

Hot CTC Five Rolls Over Artillery: Three Teams Vie for First Place

By Mitch Yamanaka

A slow starting 1st Bn CTC quintet netted its sixth consecutive victory at the expense of a scrappy but undermanned 10th Artillery five 67-61 Monday night at Briant Wells Field House.

The CTC win placed them in a three-way tie for first place in the second half of The Infantry Center battalion level basketball league. Two weeks ago the team had sewed up the first half championship with a 9-1 record. Four of their six straight wins came in the first half.

The taller CTC squad held the 10th scoreless for the first four minutes of the ball game, leading at one point 8-0, but the Artillerymen fought back and grabbed a 15-14 lead.

The lead changed hands eight times before CTC finally settled down to take command. With 5:34 remaining in the half and the score deadlocked at 21-21, CTC went into a full court press and used its fast breaks to pull ahead.

Led by Carl Seldon's ball hawking, and the rebounding Floyd Wicker, Henry Kersman, Richard Craig and Pernell Cole, the CTC squad scored 22 points to the Artillerymen's five in the closing minutes of the first half to take a 43-26 lead into the dressing rooms.

Eichorn Leads Rally

Duane Eichorn, the 19th's outstanding guard, was their top scorer for the night dumping in 17 points. Eichorn, one of the shortest men on the court, led the 10th's first half rally, with his fine passing and ball handling.

On several plays Eichorn teamed up with Julius Singleton and Walter Burroughs for three-on-one fast break plays, and his fancy behind - the-back passes led to several scores.

CTC took up where it left off as the second half started. With Craig and Seldon hitting for four field goals apiece, the CTC quintet slowly widened its lead.

The taller CTC five controlled the backboards most of the night with Joseph Hicks pulling in 10 rebounds and Craig snagging 12. Kersman added his four points to the total score and pulled down eight rebounds for CTC during the game.

Fouls Mar Half

The second half action was marred by fouls as the 10th Artillery went to the charity line 23 times, sinking 15 foul shots. CTC connected on four of five attempts from the foul line in the second half.

The five CTC starters all hit in the double figures with Seldon the top scorer. Seldon connected on eight field goals, four in the first half and four in the second, and netted his only shot from the free throw lane for his 17 point total.

Hicks and Craig each scored 16 points. Craig hit five field goals and connected on six of eight foul shots. Four of his field goals came in the opening minutes of the second half.

Cole was CTC's top defensive player, blocking several shots and pulling down his share of the rebounds.

Robert Morgan, a lanky center, did not score any points but played an outstanding defensive game.

The 10th Artillery was cold from the floor during the game, connecting on only 21 of 61 attempts. CTC hit a hot 56.7 per cent from the floor, netting 38 out of 67 attempts.

From the foul line it was the same story as the Artillerymen managed only 19 out of 38 charity shots. CTC bucketed 11 of 18 from the free throw line.

Hazel Walker's Basketball Team To Meet CTC Rebounders Jan. 31

If a group of Southern gals had their way a woman's place would be on a basketball court and not in any kitchen.

This attitude is held by an all-female basketball team known as the Arkansas Travelers, scheduled to take on the 1st Bn., CTC quintet Jan. 31 at Briant Wells Field House.

For the last 15 years, the team has been demonstrating to men from coast-to-coast that ability and finesse in the grueling sport of basketball can also belong to the fair sex.

The six - woman team is owned by Miss Hazel Walker, known as "Miss Basketball", who during her career won a spot with the best in sports in America's Athletic Hall of Fame — The Helm's Athletic Foundation of Los Angeles, Calif. Under her management, the "Travelers" play only men's teams, under men's rules and asking no quarter.

Average 200 Games

They play more than 200 games during their season at a back - breaking pace that takes them and their specially built station wagon throughout the country.

Their ball - handling skill and marksmanship is proved by the impressive record they accumulated this past season — 201 wins and only 19 losses.

This season all the girls are from Southern states, including the "stupendous" Frances "Goose" Garroutte, the coach, manager and captain of the team. A 14-year veteran with the group, she averages 30-35 points per game against the best male opponents. Her forte is an exhibition of fancy - ball handling during pre-game warm-ups.

Shenanigans Abound

Toby Rayborn is in her 10th year with the squad and is considered the "play-maker" of the team. She teams up with Goose in setting up shenanigans that baffle opponents as well as draw spectators to their games.

A 6'1" slip of a girl, Jenny McGuffee, is fast and aggressive on both offense and defense and has a fine overhead set shot that is difficult to block.

The other three team members are: Gina Wood, a pert 5'6" gal who has earned the title of the "Darling of the Hardwood"; Lucretia Taylor, who can get off jump shots against the best defenders; and Doris Coleman, a recent addition to the team who scored 4,147 points one season in high school competition.

When these "femmes fatales" meet the CTC team, basketball at its best and zaniest will be on display.

197th Cowboy Wields Rifle For Laurels

A former cowboy who has been shooting a rifle since he put on "long pants," Sgt. Tommy DeMarc of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 197th Inf. Bde., recently copped top prizes in the post rifle matches.

A native of Cortez, Colo., DeMarc won the 200 and 300 yard rapid fire opens in the December matches and placed third in the 600 yard Master Class contest.

Currently 197th small bore team manager, DeMarc coaches the Headquarters and Headquarters small bore team.

DeMarc, entered the Army in June of 1959 and has served in Korea. He came to the 197th last August.

DeMarc is currently finishing his college education through the Army Education Program.

While not on duty or attending classes, DeMarc is a leather craft enthusiast and enjoys fashioning hand-tooled leather goods for himself and his friends.

He plans to make a career of the Army and will attend the Automatic Data Processing School at Fort Benjamin Harrison this spring.

Post Club Hosts '65 Open Sectional-National Match; Firing Is Being Held at Fort Benning's Range Three

BY LEE LA COMBE

The 1965 Open Sectional-National Indoor .22 caliber pistol tournament began yesterday and will continue through Sunday.

Heading the list of nearly 100 entries is current national outdoor pistol champion SFC William B. Blankenship Jr. and Capt. Franklin Green who was a Silver Medal winner at the XVIII Olympics at Tokyo last October.

Blankenship is a member of the Army Marksmanship Training Unit which fielded the team which won this match last year.

Capt. Green is one of the Air Force's top handgunners in both national and international competition.

The Army has won the team title in this match the past two years, but the team record is held by the Air Force.

Their four-man score of 1,180 shot on the Fort Benning range three years ago still stands.

In individual competition SSgt. Hershel Anderson, who has since been transferred overseas, set a new national record last year when he fired an 891 out of 900 over the 90-shot course to capture the crown.

Three members of last year's winning Army Squad are competing in this year's venture. They are MSgt. Richard Stineman, SFC Loyd Burchett and SFC Awbrey Smith.

TSgt. Bernard Stoltman of the Air Force, who was runnerup to Anderson in 1964, is expected to return with the Air Force team.

Team and individual entries have also been received from River Bend Gun Club of Atlanta, Lockheed Gun Club of Marietta, the Third Army and the Second Infantry Division.

Two highly-rated shooters, Edwin Bradley of Savannah and Leonard R. Robinson of Columbus, are also entered. Both hold national records for the gallery course.

Firing will be done in three - hour blocks with each relay shooting the complete 90-shot course as well as the 30-shot team match before leaving the line.

The individual course of fire consists of 20 shots slow fire, 20 shots timed fire, 20 shots rapid fire and the 30-shot National Match Course (10 shots slow, 10 timed and 10 rapid).

The matches are sponsored by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club and sanctioned by the National Rifle Association of America.

Scores fired in this match are automatically forwarded to the NRA where they will be entered in the National Indoor Championship in competition with the 15 other sectional matches authorized in the United States.

All current open and service records for the gallery course have been set at the Fort Benning range and the national winners have come from this sectional match in both team and individual competition every year since 1958.

Three Shooters Blitz Invitational Pistol Meet

MTU pistol shooters made off with the top three places at Sunday's .22 calibre Invitational Gallery Pistol Team Championships at Marietta, Ga.

The MTU Blue No. 1 sparked by an individual 890 of 900 by SFC William Blankenship, cracked out a four-man total of 3515 of a possibl 3600.

Other members of the team were SFC Ralph Thompson, 878, MSgt. George Snavely, 871, and Sgt. Merriweather Jones, 876.

Runnerup spot went to the Blue No. 2 team which was led by SFC Tom Bunting's 878. The four-men compiled a total 3493 points.

Other fivers on the squad were SFC Jack Hamilton, 869, Sfc. John Lingle, 876, and Sgt. Anton Hermann, 870.

The Army Grey entry was third with a 3435. The firing members were Col. Joseph Poet, 867, Capt. Lewis Sharp, 850, MSgt. Leonard Ross, 854, and MSgt. Richard Stineman, 864.

The one-day match drew a total of 40 entires from Georgia and Alabama and was cosponsored by the River Bend Gun Club of Atlanta and the Lockheed Gun Club. The match was fired on the Lockheed range.

What's Your Fancy? Eggs or Flapjacks?

Fried eggs for a flapjacks man? Not any longer for the Seventh Army soldier in Europe, the Seventh Army Sentinel notes in its Jan. 8 issue.

Under a new system in operation since Christmas, soldiers can choose the breakfast they wish.

Most European mess halls are actually several mess halls under one roof, explains a veteran of overseas service. Formerly, each dining room served the same chow.

Under the present system, each dining room presents a separate bill of fare. Thus, by simply redirecting one's footsteps, the Seventh Army soldier may now choose between ham and eggs, bacon and flapjacks, etc.

The menu for each dining room in the mess hall also includes an assortment of juices, muffins, rolls, etc.

"It is an a la carte menu," a food supervisor is quoted as saying in the Sentinel.

It is designed to let the soldier suit his tastes, not eat "what we think he should have," the same spokesman noted.

Reaction of Seventh Army soldiers to the new freedom has been very good," according to the Sentinel's story.

The new system has pointed up the fact that Army planners can't please everyone, the food supervisor said.

Viet Nam

These questions and answers on Viet Nam, Laos and Southeast Asia are excerpted from "Viet Nam— The Stuggle for Freedom," a pamphlet (DoD Gen-8) issued by the Directorate for Armed Forces Information and Education, Department of Defense.)

Q: What are the origins of our commitment in Viet Nam?

A: The United States has provided economic, technical and military assistance to Viet Nam since 1950. After the Geneva accords of 1954 the U. S. Military Assistance Advisory Group (MAAG) became the only outside source of military aid for the Vietnamese armed forces. The assistance is offered, as stated by President Eisenhower in 1954, "to assist the Government of Viet Nam in developing and maintaining a strong viable state, capable of resisting attempted subversion or aggression through military means." The commitment to assist the Republic has been subsequently restated and endorsed.

Inaugural Party Brings Home 'Indelible Memories'

By JOE TREASTER

WASHINGTON, D.C. — With indelible memories of the United States' 45th presidential inauguration, 23 soldiers of the 2nd Infantry Division left here today for their homes at Fort Benning.

The climax of their nearly week-long stay at the nation's capitol, came Wednesday when President Johnson took the oath of office.

As members of the 500-man joint service honor cordon, some of the men stood within inches of the president as he moved through the inaugural ritual.

"I'll never forget it," said Sgt. Maj. Robert L. Brown, who stood at one of the entrances of the capitol when the president entered.

"It was a great experience," said Sgt. Howard G. Nason, 22, the youngest man in the cordon.

Earlier on Monday, Georgia congressmen had treated the soldiers like royalty.

Rep. Howard H. (Bo) Callaway, of Georgia's 3rd Congressional District, met leaders of the group at the division's "flaming sword" memorial monument and went with them to the capitol.

There, he introduced them to Sen. Richard B. Russell chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and personally led them on a tour of the capitol.

Tuesday, Rep. Callaway and the commander of the Army's ceremonial troops, Col. Joseph B. Conmy Jr., ate breakfast with the "Indianhead" men. Both dignitaries heaped praise on the soldiers.

On inaugural day the men awoke before 7:00 a.m. and by 9:00 a.m. they were on the capitol grounds. They moved into their cordon positions about 10 a.m.

After the ceremony many of the men watched the two and half hour inaugural parade.

They spent Thursday sight-seeing and visiting friends in the area.

GUARD BOARDS FOR WASHINGTON "A Great Honor"

It was the only day off the men had had since leaving Fort Benning last Saturday.

They checked into Fort Myer, Va., at the home of the 1st Battalion, 3rd Infantry (Old Guard).

The first in a series of practice and briefings began early Sunday afternoon. From then on the men were busy. When what seemed like a fair moment appeared, they would take up polishing cloths and attack their brass and their shoes.

That's the way it was until late Tuesday afternoon when the final drill period was held. Then there was only anxious waiting for the big day.

'Winter Sun' Set For Next Week

Air Force Will Backstop 2nd Div With Planes, Men

A flock of the world's swiftest fighter planes will backstop 2nd Division forces in the Winter Sun maneuver next week.

The six F4C's, belonging to the U.S. Air Force, are known to fly more than twice the speed of sound, although the exact figure is classified.

Bringing the planes to Fort Benning from MacDill Air Force Base, Fla., are 20 officers and 32 enlisted men of the 836th Air Division, sister to the Army's 2nd Division under an informal training arrangement.

Brig. Gen. Albert W. Schintz heads the visiting body, arriving Monday.

Tuesday morning Schintz and ranking aides will meet Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, 2nd Division commander, at headquarters and leave from there to a field location for the maneuver's start.

Senior 2nd Division officers, including Chiles, are scheduled to hitch rides in the single seat behind the pilot as the supersonic planes pretend to pulverize opposition in the maneuver ending Thursday.

Monday night a cocktail party at the Main Officers Open Mess is to establish fast ties between the Air Force delegation and its hosts.

Throughout Winter Sun, Schintz will operate in the role of one of the assistant 2nd Division commanders, who is on special duty to the Pentagon.

Schintz will take the place of Brig. Gen. Sidney Berry, who will retire from the service.

(See AIR FORCE, Page 21)

Gen. Chiles To School In Kentucky

Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, commander of the 2nd Infantry Division, left Sunday for five days at Fort Knox, Ky., where he attended a senior officer's preventive maintenance course.

In a letter to prospective students, the commandant of the U. S. Army Armor School, which operates the course, said:

"While you are here you will have an opportunity to find the answers to all your maintenance problems."

In addition to information about the care and use of jeeps and trucks, the course will cover command and staff management and the maintenance and inspection of guided missiles, heavy weapons and nuclear devices.

Gen. Chiles is expected to return to Fort Benning early this afternoon.

Division Officials Release Plans for Mock Offensive

January 26th through the 28th has been designated by 2nd Infantry Division officials as the dates for its upcoming Command Post Exercise (CPX).

Named "CPX Winter Sun," officials say the exercise will involve the division in offensive operations. Emphasis will be placed, they say, "on communications, command and staff procedures, and preparations of estimates, plans and orders."

It is also planned that normal divisional support operations be integrated into the problem.

Aggressors

The 7th Cavalry will supply an aggressor force to harrass the division elements as they go through the motions of carrying on a war.

The three days spent in the field will see the division move out into the Fort Benning Reservation to carry on its scaled down maneuver.

For the purpose of the exercise, the division will be a part of a three division corps operating as a task unit of a field army.

The Carolinas

Although the division will be operating over most of North and South Carolina during the play of the problem war, any displacement of divisional elements will take place on the reservation, according to planning spokesmen.

23rd Inf Announces 'Honor Unit'

The 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry recently announced the selection of its Headquarters Company as "Honor Company" for the month of December.

This is the second time in succession that Headquarters Company has won the honor. The company was the November choice as well.

The honor company is chosen on the basis of the condition of their mess halls, motor pool management, records management and general morale indicators, a battalion spokesman said.

Company commander, Capt. William J. Mullen, said it was "doubly difficult for a headquarters company to win such an award because of the larger number of personnel in the company who are constantly engaged in the day to day activity of supporting the battalion in garrison."

Mullen attributed the double win to the "outstanding leadership of 1st Sgt. Robert S. Kaplan and the leadership and cooperation of non-commissioned officers and men of the company."

New Bill Will Pay Soldiers As Much as 3 Days Early

The last weekend of the month of January will be a slim one for division soldiers. The last day of the month falls on a Sunday so they must wait until the following Monday for their pay.

According to a recent Army Times article the Department of Defense has sent a bill to Congress which will end future problems of this nature.

Under the proposed bill soldiers will be paid early when pay day falls on a Saturday, Sunday or holiday.

According to the article the bill to allow pay day to be three days before the end of a pay period.

Retires Trophy Permanently

Battery C-37th Arty's Best Battery

Battery C of the 37th Artillery Battalion — which last year laid overwhelming claim to the Best Battery of the Quarter award, winning it three out of four attempts — recently retired it permanently.

It, in effect, signifies the best battery of the year.

First Sgt. Austin Dorne accepted it for his outfit at a ceremony in Theater Six.

Capt. Kenneth E. Hinson, battery commander, and Lt. Johnson E. Pennywell, former battery commander, jointly accepted the final quarter 1964 award for Battery C.

This award is designed to inspire the men of batteries within the battalion to achieve superior results in all fields of endeavor, a spokesman said.

Points are awarded throughout the quarter for all activities — Command Maintenance Management Inspections, Annual General Inspection, Army Training Test, training security, mess halls and administration.

Delinquency Reports

Delinquency reports and AWOL rates are also considered.

The race for the award is usually a close one with only a few points separating the batteries, the spokesman continued.

The Best Battery ATT, 1964 award goes to the firing battery with the best results on the Annual Training Test. The battery's performance of its primary mission—timely and effective artillery fire — is the sole basis for this award.

SSgt. Eugene Wilson received the award for Battery A.

Top Soldiers

Two Soldier of the Month awards were presented. This award is based on knowledge of the job, military courtesy, appearance and general knowledge.

The Soldier of the Month for December was Sgt. Robert C. Jones of Battery B. The Soldier of the Month for January was Cpl. Harry E. Dulin Jr. of Battery D.

One of the secondary missions of the artillery is to fight as Infantry. The Artillery must always be prepared to defend itself, the spokesman related. Skill with small arms is thus a necessity.

The two outstanding firers in the battalion were honored for their demonstrated ability with the M-14 rifle during recent range firing.

Pfc Ruben Cavazos, Battery B, received the first place award and Sp4 Mathew C. Green, Battery A, was runner-up.

The last award presented was for the Best Mess of the Month.

The mess halls are inspected and receive points for administration, cleanliness, food preparation and other mess hall activity. Winner for January was Battery B.

SSgt. Phillip M. Harner, Battery B mess steward, received the award for his unit.

All awards were presented by Lt. Col. Herbert R. Hill, battalion commander.

Helicopters Hike Air Capability

By ART CHIEPPA

The Second Infantry Division added three aviation sections to its ranks last week.

The 1st and 3rd Brigades and Division Artillery Aviation Sections were activated January 6.

The Brigade Aviation Sections will operate from Knight Field on Sand Hill while the Division Artillery Section will operate from Lawson Field.

Lt. Col. John G. Cleveland, division aviation officer, was assigned responsibility for overall coordination in the activation of the sections. Necessary personnel actions required will be handled by the assistant chief of staff G1.

Reassignment of aircraft, equipment and allocation of facilities will be supervised by G4 (Logistics).

Capt. George F. Powers, commanding officer of the 1st Brigade Aviation Section, was designated as coordinator for facilities established on Knight Field. He will also be responsible for arranging necessary police, guard and support for sections located at the field.

Major Stuart T. Ashton was designated as commander of Division Artillery Aviation Section and Capt. James C. O'Connor of 3rd Brigade.

Six Soldiers Lauded at Nostalgic 3rd Brigade Awards Ceremony

By BYRON DUNHAM

Nostalgia was in evidence at a 3rd Brigade awards ceremony Saturday morning.

At the head of 1,000 men, commanded by Lt. Col. William H. Cox, marched two privates, shouldering the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry's two-man Chinese musket.

Strange Tune

The troops stayed in step to an unfamiliar tune played over and over by the 2nd Division Band — "The Old Ninth Infantry March," composed anonymously at least 59 years ago.

The six honorees, in the words of reviewing officer Col. John W. Armstrong, were "sterling examples of 3rd Brigade excellence in every possible light — valor in combat, academic achievement, efficiency and esprit de corps' in garrison."

Air Medal

Capt. William E. Tower, 3rd Brigade liaison officer, was awarded the Air Medal (11th oak leaf cluster) for meritorious achievement in Vietnam as a crew member of an Army aircraft in at least 25 combat operational or aerial reconnaissance missions in the combat zone or over hostile territory in support of counterinsurgency operations.

SSgt. Joseph R. Somers of Headquarters Company at 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor, was presented the Army Commendation Medal for outstanding performance as a tank commander in "Alpha" Company during the past year and for excellence while serving as training NCO during the unit's amphibious landing training at Little Creek, Va., in the fall of 1963.

Naval Award

Capt. Max E. Newman, brigade chemical officer, was awarded a Certificate of Academic Achievement by the U. S. Naval School at Indian Head, Md., for receiving a grade of 94.68 in the Nuclear Weapons Disposal Course recently, thereby earning designation as the academic leader in his class. The citation was signed by Cmdr. J. C. Peeler, commandant of the school.

Capt. Henry J. O'Conner, brigade aviation officer, was presented a "Second to None" Certificate of Achievement for his accomplishments while assigned as the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry's S-4, which included the unit's participation in the air assault exercise "Triskelion" at Fort Stewart, Ga.

PSgt. Clovie C. Quick of Headquarters Company at 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor, was awarded the annual brigade NCO of the Year Trophy;

Sgt. Kenneth S. Rooker of "Alpha" Company at the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry, was chosen as brigade Soldier of the Year.

Aviation Said Safest Re-Up Spot

The 2nd Aviation Battalion proves to be the safest place in the 2nd Infantry Division to reenlist.

Displayed in the 2nd Aviation battalion's conference room are two new plaques, the Quarterly Safety Award and the Monthly Reenlistment Award, which were recently presented to the battalion by Maj. Gen. Chiles, the commander of the division.

During the division honor ceremony at Marne Field, Sgt. Maj. Henry B. Hannum accepted the safety award. The wooden-based plaque was awarded to the battalion for having the best safety program during the second quarter of the fiscal year of 1965.

The battalion's name was also inscribed to the monthly reenlistment award proving ownership for the month of December. This award was presented to the unit for compiling the most points in their reenlistment program.

Reenlistment sergeant SFC William M. McConnell, who is primarily responsible for the award, said that he was "extremely happy to receive the award on behalf of the battalion" and is determined to "keep it for the next six months."

Big Indianhead Ladies Hear Speaker at Dinner

Wives of the 2nd Infantry Division non - commissioned officers club held their monthly meeting last week at the division NCO club.

"Ladies of the Big Indianhead", as the club is called, get together every second Thursday of the month for dinner, an address by a guest speaker, and a few games of bingo.

Special guest for this meeting was Mrs. Keetah Jones of Columbus, a hand-writing analyst and wife of Reverend Keetah Jones, East Highland Assembly of God Church.

Mrs. Jones has a masters degree in Science and lectures at Columbus and Fort Benning.

Other guests included Mrs. Absher, Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Tucket and Mrs. Payton, all of Fort Benning.

The club has 80 members at present, 50 of them active. NCO wives in the division are encouraged to join the growing club, officials said.

Two door prizes were given at the meeting. Mrs. Lester Leeds and Mrs. Walter Hutchko were the lucky winners.

In addition to the dinner each month, the club holds a business meeting every fourth Thursday of the month.

DivArty Ball Tonight At Main Officers Mess

The 2nd Division Artillery Officers Ball will be held tonight in the main ballroom of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The entrance to the mess will be specially decorated for the event. The door will be framed with artillery pieces from the present DivArty arsenal and several World War I cannons.

Maj. John Hesterly, DivArty adjutant, said the yearly event would "be bigger and better than ever."

He added that all the general officers on the Fort Benning reservation were slated to attend.

Musical entertainment for the evening will be supplied by "The Chiefs." This is a new dance band composed of members of the 2nd Infantry Division band.

They have been supplying music of a dance variety for only a short time, a spokesman said.

DID YOU KNOW

That Brig. Gen. Miller O. Perry twice commanded the 2nd Division for a total period of about three months. He first served from June to July 1958 and again during February 1960. Similar circumstances surrounded Brig. Gen. William L. Hardick's split tenure as division chief. He commanded from February to March 1960 and again from June to July 1961.

So It's A Dog's Life

Another "Charlie"-mascot has joined the ranks of the 2nd Infantry Division.

This "charlie" is a seven-month-old collie, adopted by the men of Battery C, 17th Artillery.

He has already received his "shots" and is being issued dog-tags.

Capt. Roger Q. Young has assigned Sgt. James M. Brown as his drill instructor to "teach him the Army way."

"Charlie" has a white coat and a brown eye-patch. He has been declared "exempt from duty" by battery commander Young and according to reports, is leading "quite a dog's life."

Academic Building Rumored Target

Women's Clubs Said to Plot Attack On Man's World; Invasion Nears

Plans are afoot for the invasion of that man's world, the new Academic Building at Fort Benning.

Members of all the women's clubs in the Fort Benning area are cordially invited to join the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club at Building Four on Feb. 9, 1965 at 2:00 p.m. for a tour of the new Academic Building and a special presentation of "I Am The Infantry."

"I Am the Infantry" is a dramatic presentation usually given for visiting dignitaries.

The presentation of "I Am the Infantry" employs four mute narrators dressed in the military garb of the four main periods of the country's history in war.

The tape recorded chronology of military events plays while each character from the Old West, the Civil War and the two world wars stands bathed in special fluorescent light.

"Wherever brave men fight . . . and die, for freedom, you will find me. I am the bulwark of our nation's defense. I am always ready. . . now, and forever I am the Infantry — Queen of Battle! Follow Me!" is part of the message of the dramatic presentation.

The opportunity to see the dramatization is made possible through the efforts of Mrs. Arne Eliasson, program chairman for the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club.

Mrs. William Conger, president of the club, has announced that invitations have been extended to all the other women's clubs at Fort Benning.

The ladies of the club will meet at the Ballroom of the Main Officers' Open Mess at 12:15 p.m. for a brief sherry hour and luncheon. They will then proceed to Building Four to join their guests for the tour and program.

'Manchu' Ladies Say 'Hi'

At their January coffee, held recently, the ladies of the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry welcomed newcomers Mrs. Thomas N. Britton Jr., wife of the newly appointed battalion executive officer; Mrs. Harold J. Cloutier; Mrs. Roger N. Conner; and Mrs. Erie A. Taylor.

The coffee was held at the residence of Mrs. William W. Wilson. Assisting her as hostesses were Mrs. Edward F. De Christopher II, and Mrs. John Marcy.

Carnations, the January flower of the month, established a fresh and colorful theme. Each lady wore a carnation-styled name tag and Mrs. Britton was presented with a pink and white carnation corsage.

During the business session held by Mrs. Alfred J. Millard, it was announced that Mrs. Edward R. Green will be the new gift chairman and Mrs. Robert W. McClellan will be the chairman of the unit's monthly bridge party.

Cavalry Coffee At McArdle's

The ladies of the 7th Cavalry held their monthly coffee recently at the home of Mrs. John F. McArdle.

For the convenience of the working wives, the coffee was held in the evening.

Mrs. Charles L. Sherman will be leaving "Garry Owen" the first of February. At that time Capt. Sherman will be departing for Korea.

Plans were made for the annual 7th Cavalry Ball to be held on the 29th of January at the County Club.

Mrs. Grayton A. Tunstall Jr., won the prize for remembering more of the Seven Ancient Wonders of the World than anyone else.

Hostesses for the coffee were Mrs. Mc Ardle and Mrs. Charles S. Jayne.

Kell Eases Into Post At Aviation

A qualified Army aviator recently stepped down from his nine-month job as "the old man" at Headquarters Company, 3rd Brigade. Capt. Wallace A. Kell has eased into his star specialty at "Bravo" Company, 2nd Aviation Battalion.

His successor at the brigade was "Highland Fox," Capt. C. R. Kuder.

Kell joined the 3rd Brigade after a three year tour at Giessen, Germany, where he served as aviation officer for the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 92nd Artillery.

Graduated in 1959 from Tennessee Polytechnical Institute at Cookeville, Tenn., he was awarded a Bachelor of Science degree in industrial management, an ROTC commission and played intramural football.

Awards Mark Miniature Review On Marne Field; General Presides

An awards ceremony highlighted a miniature review held on Marne Field by the 2nd Infantry Division last week.

Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, commanding general, presented safety awards, reenlistment awards, a best mess plaque, the commanding general's sports trophy, and certificates, wrist watches and money to soldiers of the month for November and December.

Soldier of the month for November, PFC Drexel D. Swan, Headquarters Battery, 12th Artillery and soldier of the month for December Spc4 Jame E. Tomey, Headquarters Company, 2nd Engineer Battalion, were each awarded a certificate from the commanding general, a wrist watch, from the Warriors Branch of the 2nd Infantry Division Association, and a $25.00 check from Special Services.

The Commanding General's Sports Trophy was awarded to the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry on a permanent basis by virtue of having won the trophy three times consecutively. Sgt. Torise Maae accepted the trophy for the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Strathmore McMurdo.

The battalion quarterly safety award was won by the 2nd Aviation Battalion and was accepted by SMaj. Henry B. Hannum. The company quarterly safety award was won by Headquarters, Company, 1st Brigade and accepted by Capt. Rosenthal.

Headquarters Company, 2nd Infantry Division won the quarterly reenlistment award and was accepted by Lt. Edward Janzen. Sgt. McConnel accepted the monthly reenlistment award for the 2nd Aviation Battalion.

The best mess award for December went to the 2nd Administration Company and Sgt. Helton was present to accept the award for Capt. Donald Edge, company commander.

Division

Albert W. Schintz, commander of the 836th Air Division, will support the division exercise.

They will supply six supersonic F4C's which will operate out of Fort Benning's Lawson Field. The plane is known to travel at better than twice the speed of sound but its exact speed is classified.

Gen. Schinitz will accompany the division general staff to field to actually observe the operation of the infantry division in simulated combat.

An important part of the maneuver will be a drill in warning troops of the use of nuclear weapons against the enemy.

In announcing the planned CPX last week, division commander, Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles said "unless our men know how we plan to use a nuclear device, we could lose as many of them as we take from the enemy."

He added that all the nuclear activity of the command exercise would be simulated.

Because of the stress on the notification of friendly forces in the event of nuclear employment, communications systems within the division will get a thorough workout said a planning communique issued earlier this week.

Air Force

of Brig. Gen. Edmund L. Mueller as Chiles' side.

While only a relatively limited number of F4C's have so far been produced, the Air Force is shooting for an eventual total of 1,200 of the jets, an Air Force officer said.

Retired 'Racehorse' Revisits 3rd Brigade; Commanded Unit More Than 25 Years Ago

By BYRON DUNHAM

An 88-year-old retired general whirligigged among present members of the 3rd Brigade and 2nd Infantry Division headquarters one afternoon last week, keeping everyone at their military sharpest.

Brig. Gen. (ret.) Charles F. Humphrey Jr., commander of the 3rd Brigade more than 25 years ago, appeared on Sand Hill in response to an invitation by Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, division commander.

Gen. Humphrey left the "Racehorse Brigade," as it was then widely known, just two days before it began a 24-year period of inactivity.

The 3rd Brigade was reactivated in 1963 when the division was redesigned under the ROAD concept.

The distinguished visitor was met at the Columbus, Ga. home of his daughter and son-in-law, Col. and Mrs. Dennis Moore, by an official car bearing a brigadier general's standard.

With the car came an aide-de-camp, Lt. J. C. Wheeler, and in it were division G-5 officers Maj. David A. Forsythe and Capt. Jerry Mooney.

Highlight

Highlight of the general's tour at the 2nd Division's newly refurbished historical center was a briefing by Lt. Col. William H. Cox, 3rd Brigade executive officer.

Col. Cox described many objects and photos related to the "Racehorse" days. In turn, Gen. Humphrey delighted his hosts by describing the personal traits and military fates of many faces on the wall.

Pepsong

After the general sang a catchy old pepsong into a tape recorder, Maj. Forsythe and his assistant Capt. Mooney presented him a 2nd Infantry Division license plate.

Later that afternoon the visitor joined Gen. and Mrs. Chiles on Marne Field, where he was guest of honor at a division awards ceremony.

There he was introduced to his current successor at 3rd Brigade, Col. John W. Armstrong. The ceremony was capped by a gathering at Indianhead Lodge.

COMMANDERS PAST AND PRESENT Col. Armstrong (L) and Gen. Humphrey (R)

Fox's Father-in-Law Gives To 3rd Brigade's Museum

Queries about the mushrooming of relics at the 3rd Brigade's growing museum can be laid at the feet of Capt. C. R. Kuder, alias "The Highland Fox."

The mysterious donor of many objects is a secret admirer of the 3rd Brigade, Capt. Kuder's father-in-law, Lt. Col. (ret.) Melvin B. Ingebritsen of Atlanta occasionally journeys down to visit his daughter, but spends a great deal of the day with Capt. Kuder, who commands the brigade's Headquarters Company.

Although never a member of the "Second to None" during his active service, Col. Ingebritsen is a combat veteran of World War I, World War II and the Korean War.

Held All Ranks

Astoundingly, he has served in all enlisted grades from private to first sergeant, all warrant officer grades, W-1 to chief W-4, and all commissioned ranks up to lieutenant colonel.

A 1958 retiree, Col. Ingebritsen pointed out that "we retire on paper but never in our hearts. We like to come back and see what's going on."

Capt. Kuder noticed that while old soldiers are not particularly awed by most of the Army's new equipment, they seem really amazed by the extent of Army aviation particularly the utilization of Caribou planes and the larger types of helicopters, such as the twin-rotored Chinook.

Spoils Donated

The spoils Col. Ingebritsen left upon his latest visit to the 3rd Brigade museum include: a German officer's bayonet which he himself took from its owner in 1918, a "brass knuckles model" bayonet, a citation and medal of the Medaille de Saint - Mihiel awarded to him in 1918 and signed by Clemenceau and John J. Pershing.

Magician Due Here At Club Two

Program exhanging, a new twist for gaining entertainment for 2nd Division soldiers, is being tried by the staff of Service Club Two, Sand Hill.

Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama, has offered Montgomery magician Mercer Holms to the service club, Sunday, Jan. 23.

The exchange program idea came about when Miss Madeline Parks, director of the club, sent a variety show to Maxwell Air Force Base called the "Indianhead Review." The base in return offered a show to the Sand Hill club featuring Helms and Miss Parks accepted.

"The show is scheduled for 8 p.m. Saturday," Miss Guillory said. "It should prove interesting to anyone who has doubts about magic defying the law of gravity."

New Editor Installed As Old Leaves Army

Readers of The 2nd Division News can expect a possible different look in the weekly paper now that personalities have been changed in the key position.

Stepping down as editor last week after six months was Sp5 Robert de Camara, who will leave the service next month.

The new editor is Sp4 James Baker, de Camara's assistant.

De Camara joined the staff of the information office as a reporter in July 1962 and was shortly thereafter involved in the gigantic Swift Strike II maneuver in the Carolinas.

This rapid immersion into large - scale war games resulted in a broken foot for the green journalist when he bungled an escape attempt from hostile paratroopers.

He later served as the 2nd Division's only public information specialist (voice to civilians through local and national news media), earning the Army Commedation Medal for his work.

In July last year, after two years as a reporter, he took over The 2nd Division News.

A graduate of Gettysburg College, de Camara intends to remain in journalism.

Baker served an apprenticeship for his new role as a former student editor of Montreal's Loyola University newspaper.

Navy--Now Army--Pilot Stows Bag at 2nd Aviation

The 2nd Aviation Battalion welcomes to its General Support Company a pilot with a Navy background.

CWO Earl L. Harriman joined the battalion from helicopter school at Fort Rucker, Ala. — but he's not a novice.

Was Navy Pilot

For 10 years, Harriman was a Navy pilot. Although a Navy pilot, a large part of his flying was done with the Air Force's Military Air Transport Service (MATS).

While flying for MATS, Harriman covered most of the world and was sent to such places as Argentina, Saudi Arabia, Greenland, New Zealand and Tripoli.

During the Korean War, he flew evacuation missions from Hawaii to the States.

Has Excavation Business

In 1961, Harriman decided to leave the Navy and start an excavation business.

He worked at this until he heard of Army's need for helicopter pilots.

He then entered the Army in March and was sent to helicopter school, after which he joined the battalion.

From his vast experience, Harriman rates the Army's aviation program as having "an outstanding training program throughout."

He further adds, "I am very happy to be flying for the Army, and they have treated me nothing but the best since I've been here."

Gen. Chiles Hands Out Honors

1st Brigade, DivArty Sweep Division Shoot

BY JIM LULL

Rifles of the men of the 1st Brigade blazed with uncanny accuracy last week, as the combined brigade team walked off with the majority of the honors in the Commanding General's Rifle and Pistol matches.

Awards Ceremony

In an awards ceremony Saturday morning at Theater Six, Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, division commander, said good marksmanship "is the most important part of being a soldier. If you can't shoot, you might as well wear a different uniform."

Victorious

Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow, commander of the victorious 1st Brigade noted the men of the brigade claimed 9 of the 14 main events.

The 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry's rifle team, composed of Sgt. Micky McCoy, Sp4 June McKinny, Sp4 Jerry Carter, PFC John Roche, Sgt. Gordon Eckenrode and team captain Sgt. Jack Capwell, was commended for its outstanding performance and given the runnerup trophy. They were nosed out by Division Artillery in the finals.

The DivArty riflemen tipped the scales the other way by beating the 2nd Battalion 9th Infantry through a higher percentage of perfect bullseyes when the team scores ended in a tie.

Run Away

The 1st Brigade ran away with the automatic rifle competition, taking the first five places.

Two teams from the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry won the first and second place awards with a 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry squad capturing third place.

Two more 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry teams took the fourth and fifth place positions.

In the team pistol competition, the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry took top laurels. They edged DivArty 1115 to 1108.

Lt. Elliot Worthington, Pvt. Douglas Vaughn, Sp5 Jackie Thompson and Cpl. Marvin Smith, coached by Sgt. Bob Hartless proved to be the winning combination.

The division's artillerymen surprised no-one with their second year of outstanding performance in the marksmanship matches. The 2nd place award came to the pistol shooters by a difference of only seven points, giving top honors to the 2nd Battalion 9th Infantry.

Highlight

Individual awards were also passed out Saturday, the highlight being the standard rifle matches.

In the final grand aggregate match, for the rifle championship, Lt. Clark Weaver, Headquarters company, 1st Brigade with 456 points and 20 V's slipped by Sgt. Micky McCoy, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry for the top trophy.

First place individual pistol winner was Sp5 Sam Norvell of the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry. Runnerup was Worthington of the same unit.

MP's Bag Safety Award Despite Most Mileage

For the third time in one year, the 2nd Military Police Company has won the division Safety Award for the most miles driven without an accident.

One big factor in the record of MP Company is the driving program established by Lt. Terry Gill.

BRAVE TALK

There is a trick some writers have when they have nothing to write about. They'll usually start off with a frank admission: "I have nothing to write about. I'm staring at a blank piece of paper and I see an endless void." Finally, after making half a dozen choice revelations and confessions of inadequacy, you will discover that they have filled some paper. Shabby, but a neat trick if you can pull it off.

Neurotic that we are, we now indulge our compulsion to begin once more with news of the 12th Artillery.

"Now that the quité (sic) Christmas-New Year's holiday schedule is over," our man informs us, "the 12th Artillery has started the New Year with a full schedule." (Sturdy prose, n'est-ce pas?) The 12th has weathered several inspections, gratifying its commander, Maj. JOHN R. GRIMES.

First Sgt. ELTON R. BUTLER of the 12th's Battery A raves Jan. 31. PFC KEITH L. BOELK? Why he's the Battery B jeep driver who scored so well on a spot vehicle check that a general said, "Nicely-nicely." "Three men," says a note addressed to us, "were recently honored at the 12th with Good Conduct awards: SFC MARION D. DUNCAN, SFC CHARLES VAN GORDON, 1st Sgt. ERWIN GRAHAM and Sgt. THOMAS HARBIN. (Why, that's four!)

Barbecued steak and chicken, potato salad and beer. Here we sit past dinnertime and slaver as we type the menu used by Company C, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry for a recent social. Maj. RICHARD H. MORLEY, acting battalion commander, was "well pleased" with the efforts of Sgt. HOWARD LAWSON SR., the company's mess sergeant.

At the above battalion, JOHNNY PAYNE of Company C and JOSEPH MARTIN of Company A made sergeant. The final word from the 23rd is that Lt. JAMES I. DAILY has joined Company C.

Here are random notes from DivArty's correspoindent, MSgt. HENRY W. GLINDEMAN SR., leaving soon for Korea, has a "well done" from DivArty boss, Col. TONY F. PERPICH. . .(The last time we heard those two words was in reply to, "How do you like your roast beef, colonel?") DivArty chaplains implore artillerymen to attend services. . ."Hello, Maj. T. Ashton and the rest of the aviation section recently attached to DivArty," says DivArty's reporter.

Bored with the routine?

Military food too predictable?

Barracks too small for dancing?

Break the monotony! Spend a weekend (or a week) in Hawaii. United jets are the way to get there. Stand by with United and you won't have to wait long, either: you can choose from jets throughout the day from Los Angeles or San Francisco.

A native luau is always good for a few surprises—tasty ones, too. By the way, we serve a pretty tasty meal on the way over, too. You'll like it. That's our prediction.

In Hawaii, you can hula your way all along Waikiki Beach (if that's the way you get your kicks.) But maybe you're one of the few who'd rather watch the native girls. Either way, it's fun.

'Christian Purpose of Primary Importance'--Bobby Speaks to 700 of Christianity and His Favorite Sport

By JOE TREASTER

New York Yankee second baseman Bobby Richardson came to the 2nd Infantry Division last week bearing the banner of Christianity and talking of his favorite sport.

He told more than 700 soldiers and civilians at a joint protestant - catholic retreat of his faith in the Lord and how he believed it had enabled him to rise to athletic prominence.

In his first appearance before a predominantly military group, Richardson said he was "impressed" with what he saw.

As a tribute to Richardson, Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, the division commander, made him an honorary member of his unit, and Sgt. Maj. Robert L. Brown pinned an Indianhead crest on the athletes' sportcoat.

During his visit, Richardson presented two color films and told the young men that having a Christian purpose in life is of primary importance.

He recognized the "natural drives and desires of all men," and challenged his audience to find fulfillment by "leading a moral, God-fearing life."

Rev. Thomas E. Blaylock, pastor of the Memorial Presbyterian Church of Columbus, said he talked with several soldiers before and after the retreat.

"Before the program began," he said, "many seemed to be asking themselves, 'What am I doing here?' But later I got the impression that they were very serious in responding to the challenge had been placed before that them."

Rev. Blaylock said he thought it was "refreshing" to see men who are not ministers remind the world Christian life is the abundant life.

"I enjoyed the retreat because it does me good to see people break down the myth that Christ is for sissies, women and children," Rev. Blaylock said. "We ought to have more men who will stand up and be counted among those who believe in God."

Dr. Sidney A. Gates, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, described Richardson as "one of the spiritual giants of our day."

"The impact of his man to man, heart - to - heart message in at the 2nd Division was tremendous," he said. "I'm sure many spiritual batteries were recharged and many religious horizons lifted by his message to the men."

Although Richardson did not arrive from his Sumter, S. C. home until shortly after 10 a.m., the retreat began at 8 a.m. with a color movie of the 1960 World Series in which he has set world records.

In early morning sessions Chief Warrant Officer Duane Bouza outlined for protestants the "Christian life in the military," while the division chaplain, Lt. Col. James C. Carroll and Chap. (Lt.) Ralph Curcio addressed Catholic participants.

At noon, Richardson spoke at a Protestant Men of the Chapel sponsored luncheon in the Sand Hill Noncommissioned Officers Club, recounting numerous incidents in his baseball career.

After an afternoon address at the retreat he paid a visit to several patients at Martin Army Hospital, including Mrs. Jesse Gorman, the mother of the 2nd Division's Inspector General.

Service Club Honors Jan. Birthdays

Soldiers of the 2nd Infantry Division who were born during the month of January were featured at Sand Hill's Service Club Two Sunday.

The birthday party, a monthly affair, honored eight "Indianheads" by having charcoal sketches made of each of them by Miss Pati Andrews, a professional artist.

Miss Andrews, owner and operator of the "Te Pa" gift shop in the Edgewood Shopping Center, works with various categories such as modern art, oil paintings and charcoal sketches.

"The fellows really enjoyed the sketches," said Miss Guillory, the club recreation leader. "They were quite pleased with the results of the finished product."

Miss Guillory went on to say that there were 135 people in attendance and refreshments were served during the evening.

Captain at 12th After Vietnam

Capt. James L. Kelley Jr. has recently joined the 12th Artillery.

Kelley is a native of Cambridge, Mass and a 1954 graduate of Boston College with a bachelor of science degree in history.

Kelley has just returned from a tour of duty in Vietnam. He also served in the 7th Field Artillery Battery in Europe. This was one of the first operational Honest John units.

He has been assigned as the battalion liaison officer.

650 Indianhead Soldiers to Complete EIB Tests

By JIM LULL

During the next two weeks nearly 650 "Indianhead" soldiers will have completed testing for the coveted Expert Infantryman's Badge.

Each candidate must successfully negotiate 15 testing stations.

15 Hours Per Man

"There are a good 15 hours of actual testing," commented Capt. Basil N. Apostle, project officer for the month-long testing period. "The time is spread over an average of four days per man," he added.

One "rehearsal or practice" week preceded the actual testing which began Monday.

This week, the men tested were primarily from the headquarters of the various division outfits. The following two weeks will involve the line companies from both battalions of the 9th Infantry, along with the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

Taking the EIB test along with the division units is Main Post's 197th Infantry Brigade and members of the 2nd Brigade presently assigned to the 11th Air Assault Division.

Capt. Apostle, on temporary assignment for the endurance of the testing, is normally the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry's S-3 (Air).

He is being assisted by one Infantry, one Chemical and one Artillery officer from the division.

The first station is the written map test.

The first physical endurance test is the forced road march — station two.

Demolitions testing is third. Fourth, the Chemical, Biological and Radiological test station. Also included in this station are radiological surveying and monitoring of equipment.

In the weapons proficiency station, the candidates must know their individual weapons, as well as the machine gun and grenade launcher.

A written test, followed by the grenade assault course, is next. Then the military intelligence station, day and night patrolling and field sanitation.

Final Third

As the men proceed into the final third of the test, they meet the first aid station. Next, each candidate demonstrates proper camouflage.

In the basic signal communications area, testing consists of message writing, the phonetic alphabet, infantry radio operation and the operation of field telephone systems.

Military courtesy is the 13th station. The candidates are next quizzed on the adjustment of artillery fire.

The final site is the bayonet assault course.

How Do You Tell a Man?

How do you tell a man? By his rugged profile? His square shoulders?

Some fellows with rugged profiles have slushy insides. Square shoulders can be deceptive.

The Army has a method.

They take an infantryman and put him through muscle-toughening drills. Then they cram such lore into his mind as weapons firing, explosives, medical knowledge, patrolling —and much more.

When the Army believes it has a man of fiber, it sets him loose to be judged in these areas by combat veterans. The examination is capped by a long forced march under heavy pack.

If the soldier completes all this, the Army gives him a slim blue badge, more or less in the shape of a bandaid. A silver rifle occupies the middle of the badge.

Look for one; that's one way to tell a man, even if he doesn't have a rugged profile.

Coberth New CO At Ft. Stewart 72nd Armor's

Editor's Note: This article appeared originally in the Jan. 15 issue of the Stewart Salute.

FORT STEWART, Ga. — Capt. Morris D. Coberth Jr. assumed command of Company B, 2nd Battalion, 72nd Armor recently. Capt. Charles E. Burleson, former commanding officer, is on his way to the Far East with a tour of duty slated in Formosa.

Capt. Coberth has been in the administrative field most of his time. He spent 13 years as an enlisted man, holding a reserve commission during this time.

The captain entered active duty as a first lieutenant in Nov. 1961. He attended the Armor Officers Basic (AOB) course at Fort Knox, Ky., in 1962.

During his 16 years of service, Capt. Coberth has had two tours in Germany, one in France and one tour in Korea.

Admin Pvt's Jeep Wins Him Praise

A member of the 2nd Administration Company was recently commended for his efforts in maintaining his assigned vehicle in top condition.

Pvt. Kenneth R. McConnell, assigned to the Radio and Television Section of the Information Office, was stopped last month at a roadside barrier inspection station and "didn't think too much about it then," he said.

This week he received a letter, through channels, from the assistant division commander, Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, commending him on the fine job he has done in the maintenance of his jeep.

"Your unit and Pvt. McConnell are to be commended for maintaining this vehicle in such an exemplary manner," the letter stated." This report is indicative of good leadership and a sincere interest in maintaining your materiel in the desired state of readiness."

PROCTER & GAMBLE
In Advertising—Brand Management

- no previous experience needed
- substantial early responsibility; you are a part of our management from the day you start
- on-the-job training by experienced managers who will take a personal interest in your rapid development
- promotion only from within, and only on the basis of merit
- expanding business constantly generates opportunities to move up
- replies welcomed from men up to age 29

This is an unusual opportunity for college graduates who have discharged their military obligation and are now about to begin their civilian lives.

Advertising at Procter & Gamble is business management. You do not write ads or make layouts. Instead, you are concerned with the broad selling strategies that result in the advertising the consumer sees.

As a beginner in Brand Management, you would be trained on the job to take over responsibility for the effectiveness of the overall advertising and promotion of an important nationally advertised product. In effect, within the larger framework of the Company, you would be operating your own business with respect to your brand, with your efforts centering about costs of, preparation of, and results of advertising and promotion. All of this work is done in our General Offices in Cincinnati.

We also have beginning opportunities for men especially interested in copy, media, and merchandising management.

We are seeking aggressive men with leadership ability who like and want responsibility. Imagination, intelligence, and good judgment are other qualifications. These openings are springboards to upper management positions, so think in terms of spending the next thirty-five years of your life with us. We promote only from within, and only on the basis of merit. We do not know of any other organization where there is greater opportunity to advance on the basis of merit alone.

Here are some of the products we make; the promotion of one or more of these might be part of your future:

College Degree Yr. of Graduation

The Aftermath

BY TOM KIRWAN

Basketball players were once upon a time, described as tall, slender, and even awkward due to the fact that their feet were so big, that if necessary, they could use their socks as laundry bags.

But that fable went out with the $10,000 pro contracts once offered to top college quarterbacks.

Let's take a look at the participants in our own Apache and Cherokee leagues. There is a lot of beef running up and down court; in very few cases might we attribute this to bar-stool spread. Most of them are just plain put together. The Army has few tall men in its service, therefore, the game of height is given to the small man.

The result. . .a strong, exciting type of basketball, which invites a style sometimes forgotten in the larger leagues. The little man hustles, he shows the art of picking, giving and going, and makes the team work for the ball.

Such individuals as Robinson, Oyler, Young, Vaughn, Cameron, Howell, Hundley, Shedrick, Miller, and Eakins provide greater entertainment for those who will give up the activities offered by such local supper clubs as the "C'est Bon", and "Charlie's".

In basketball, the loudest cheers are still reserved for the player who can whirl through a crease of daylight, and make the basket.

This is not so in the Madison Square Garden of Sand Hill Kimbro Gym. "The garden" on a league night, averages as few as 25 spectators, and the cheers dwindle to nothingness as the game progresses.

It is unfortunate that the fine talented teams, representing major units within the division cannot draw spectators from within their units. It is most certainly to the advantage of each individual to be a member of a unit which excells athletically as well as militarily.

So sportsfans, go to Kimbro Gym, see some exciting competition. Lose yourself in the crowd and cheer and rant and yell as you wish.

Commanders, remind your unit when your ballclub is playing, and go yourself to show the support you are giving to those who are representing your unit.

Remember pride means a great deal to a units. It makes any and all accomplishments possible.

Division Shooting Matches Produce New Crop for Marksmanship Unit

The two outfits which halved the spoils in the recent division - wide firing matches have sent manpower to the Marksmanship Detachment to bolster the 2nd Division in future competition against outsiders.

While Division Artillery contributed a significant seven men, the 1st Brigade let go a staggering 21 men to the detachment.

'Indefinite' Basis

All have been sent on an "indefinite" basis, a brigade spokesman said. It is believed many of them may get to bear the 2nd Division's reputation in the Third Army matches in April.

"They will be given a good chance to prove their worth," said SFC Joe Moreno, Chief NCO of the detachment's rifle section.

"We give them a minimum of 30 days here. Those that show steady improvement and promise are kept. Those that can't quite make the grade are simply sent back to their home units," he explained.

The commanding general's tournament, which established each outfit's firing ability, was a selfish spectacle.

The 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry carried the ball for the 1st Brigade, its parent outfit, as it scored supreme in the pistol match and second in rifle.

Division Artillery had the same record, reversed. The 17th Artillery Battalion of Division Artillery contributed generously.

On Loan. . .

To the Marksmanship Detachment from the 1st Brigade went, for rifle: Lt. Clark Weaver, 1st Brigade Headquarters; Sgt. Jim McMurry, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry; Sgt. Micky McCoy, Sgt. Gordon Eckenrode, Sp4 Jerry Carter, Sp4 June McKinnyand PFC Lester Forst, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry.

For automatic rifle: Walter Kesting, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry; Sp5 Vestal LaRue, Sp4 Larry Thomas, Sp4 Harold Amos, PFC Jim McClean, PFC Bob Anglum and Pvt. Bill Kipen, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

For Pistol. . .

For Pistol: Sp4's Mike Rachael and Ray Roden, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry; Sgt. Charles McManus, Sp5 Jackie Thompson, Sp4 Marvin Roberts, Cpl. Marvin Smith and PFC Arni Nicholas, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry.

Division Artillery loaned these individuals for rifle: SSgt. Charles W. Kelley and PFC Wayne Sorenson, Division Artillery Headquarters Battery: Sp4 Raleigh Shepherd, 37th Artillery Battalion; Cpl. Don Loover and PFC Victor E. Palomarez, 17th Artillery Battalion.

2nd Division SPORTS

Cherokees Yield Lead To Determined Medics

Cherokee league play last week, saw recent upstarts in the loop upset by determined efforts on the part of former league leaders.

The 2nd Medical Battalion quintet last week handed the hopefuls from the 72nd Armor a 71 to 61 decision to kill their hopes for first place, at least temporarily.

The 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry Tuesday night defeated the second place hopeful, 7th Cavalry, with a 88 to 67 decision.

In the Medics-Tanker contest, David Robinson was the outstanding player for the Medical Battalion with 41 points for the evening.

The 2nd- Engineer Battalion moved into a second place tie with the Cav and the Armor by defeating the 17th Artillery, 122 to 71. Bob Cameron was the leading scorer with an astounding 52 points for the evening.

The showing by Cameron is the best one-night point total in the basketball season to date.

In last Thursday night's play the 12th Artillery put a game in their win column by trouncing the 702nd Maintenance Battalion 110 to 44.

The division basketball schedule is divided in two.

S & T Lone Apache Leader

Tuesday night's play in the Cherokee league produced a surprising upset as an inspired 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry quintet defeated the previously unbeaten 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

The 80 to 74 decision in favor of the "Manchus" played at Kimbro Gymnasium left the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion in sole possession of first place in the standings.

As a result of the upset the Apache loop is knotted in a three way tie for second place.

Irving Leads

Ed Irving of the Manchu hoopsters led the 1st of the 9th with a total of 34 points for the evening. Teammate Lionel Moore was next to him with 18.

Jimmie Shedrick and Dallas Miller of the 1st of the 23rd tried to stem the 9th onslaught with 31 and 24 points respectively. The 23rd led 42 to 41 going into the second half of play Tuesday night but the 9th jumped off to an early lead and never looked back.

Play last week in the Apache league saw the 2nd Administration Company awarded a decision on account of a forfeit by the 2nd MP Company. The 37th Artillery also added to their win column as a result of another forfeit by the divison's policemen.

The 313th ASA broke into winning ways by defeating the 122nd Signal Battalion 72 to 67. Roger Oyler led the attack for the 313th with 27 points for the evening. Vaughn was the high man for the 122nd Signal with 34 points.

In the final game of the past week's play, the 37th Artillery showed some of its former strength by beating the 2nd Administration Company 72-50.

Weakened

The 37th Arty has been seriously weakened since the 1st half of the schedule when they ended in a three way tie for the Division championship. Their top three scorers have been transferred to Germany.

AIR ASSAULT 11
THE BAYONET
Sky Soldier News
11th AIR ASSAULT DIVISION
FORT BENNING, GA. FRIDAY, JANUARY 22, 1965 PAGE 29

At 229th

Instrument Program Again in Full Swing

A new sight is appearing in the skies over Fort Benning with the familiar "Hueys", the UH-1D helicopters of the 229th "Stacked Deck" Assault Helicopter Battalion.

Upon closer observation you may not sight quite as familiar as it first appears. The low flying "Aces" of the "Stacked Deck" have half of their windshields blocked off as the pilot's instrument program gets into full swing. Under the direction of Capt. Valentino Panzitta, the battalion standardization officer, the intensified program sets sights at qualifying all rated aviators in instrument flying, a feat never before accomplished by a unit of this size, but a typical accepted challenge by the "Stacked" Deck.

Pilots are approaching the rigorous training with enthusiasm. This has been the hall mark of the "Stacked Deck" battalion's professionalism since its activation in May of this year. At present, a ground school is conducted for all aviators who do not hold a current instrument certificate. Four hours a day are devoted to formal classroom instruction followed by two hours of practical application in the cockpit by each pilot. Incidentally a noticeable change found nowadays in the battalion, is the lack of newspapers. The distinct change was brought on as all available have provided the best method for closing off helicopter.

INTO ASSAULT . . . Sky Soldiers rush into action in a scene that will become most common as units of each brigade prepare for Exercise HAWK ARROW I, II, III which will begin late this month. HAWK ARROW will be a counter-insurgency exercise similar to the field tests that were held by the brigades in the summer of 1964.

Sky Soldier's Division Featured In Current 'Army Aviation' Issue

Sky Soldiers from the 11th Air Assault Division are featured in the November - December issue of the Army Aviation Magazine as the "Outstanding Aviation Unit" for 1963-1964.

The booklet is published once a month by Army Aviation Publications Inc. from Westport, Conn. The magazine is 48 pages and the Sky Soldiers are featured in 14 of them. One of the many photographs shows Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general of the 11th accepting the large Army Aviation Trophy in Washington, D. C., on behalf of the division.

The same photograph also pictures Gen. Harold K. Johnston, Army chief of staff and Col. Delbert L. Bristol, commanding officer of the 10th Air Transport Brigade. In addition a CH-47 CHINOOK is shown lifting a 4,800 pound space capsule for NASA. The 11th Information Office has written the publishers of the magazine for more copies. They will be distributed to the major units just as soon as they are available.

The booklet can also be used as a quick reference guide because it also features the major unit commanders and their executive officers. But the main theme of the magazine salutes the Sky Soldiers from the 11th as the outstanding aviation unit for its many accomplishments in this field.

188th Eagles Participate In Exercise Hawk Talon

The 188th Infantry "Eagles" pulled the throttle back again, surging swiftly to the field in participation of the 3rd Brigade's HAWK TALON VI recently. Alpha Company lifted off Clark Field with full combat gear and basic loads enroute to secure a suitable battalion base in a Guerrilla infested backwoods area.

The lead elements touched ground, meeting almost no resistence, at early dawn. Within the next 60-seconds the entire company deployed into cover and concealment, reorganized, and dispatched screening patrols as early warning security measure. Soon there after the "Eagle" Tactical Command Post established itself within the Alpha Company perimeter and commenced to issue orders and process intelligence being received by the other 188th Infantry line companies, advancing by motor vehicle to designated company base operation areas.

All were confident that the Irregular band had not discovered the battalion camp. Capt. Charles Ostick, the Alpha "Swamp Rat" commander nevertheless strengthened security measures towards dusk with the employment of listening posts and establishment of an inner primeter patrol. The extra precautions paid off when a large sized guerilla band attempted to penetate the primeter, around midnight, but were foiled by the quick reaction and positive aggressive measures employed by Alpha Company. The remaining hours of darkness provided little or no comfort for the Aggressor who finally was forced to withdraw after loss of nearly all of its members.

Third Army Cites 229th

Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general, 11th Air Assault Division, presented Company B of the 229th Stacked Deck Battalion with the Third U. S. Army Command Maintenance Management Await for being selected as being a superior managing company.

The award was presented during recent battalion colors ceremonies. Maj. Richard Rogers, Company B commander, received the award with professional pride for having achieved the superior standing prior to participating in the recent AIR ASSAULT II maneuvers.

Brigades Preparing For Field Exercises

By Capt. Wade LaDue

The 11th Air Assault Division's three infantry brigades and supporting elements will conduct controlled field exercises from Jan. 26 through Feb. 13 in an area east of Ft. Benning near Buena Vista, Ga.

The exercises, called Hawk Arrow I, II, III, will be run in three-four day increments with Col. William R. Lynch's 2nd Air Assault Brigade kicking things off on the 26th.

The 1st Brigade, under the command of Col. George S. Beatty will battle Redland aggressors from Feb. 2nd through the 5th while Col. and the 3rd Squadron, 17th Thomas Brown's 3rd Brigade Cavalry. will take to the field on the 9th through the 12th.

The exercises are the first of this size since the division's return from AIR ASSAULT II and will emphasize small unit tactics, security, fire support, operations against air defense units and reduction of reaction times to various missions.

Elements of the 11th, in the hypothetical war-time situation, will be in support of the Republic of Blueland against the aggressor country, Redland. Aggressor forces are to be played by various units from the infantry brigades, division artillery

377th Artillery Fires Armament Qualification

Last week at Fort Stewart, Ga. the 3rd Battalion (Aerial Rocket) 377th Artillery commanded by Lt. Col. Nelson A. Mahone, Jr. conducted its annual 2.75 inch rocket arms qualification firing. This weapon mounted in two pods of twenty-four each on the battalion's UH-1B helicopters is the units main attack weapon. It is fired by the pilot who must act as his own gunner.

According to Capt. Joseph V. Lenoci, project officer for the event, almost six thousand rockets were expended. Firing began on Jan. 12 and was concluded Jan. 15.

Individual qualification was the order of the day for Tuesday through Thursday, Those who had qualified previously fired one load of forty eight rockets to requalify. These were fired in three or four target runs and covered several targets. Pilots who had not yet fired the system were given four loads of forty eight rockets each to complete the initial qualification program.

The main event Friday and the climax of the week's firing was a mass fire shoot by eight aircraft from two batteries. This firing demonstrated the 377th's ability to deliver a massive amount of fire on a target in a very short time. Almost 400 rockets were put on two targets in only five seconds covering them with a blanket of fire.

FIELD ACTION . . . Members of Battery C, 2nd Battalion (Little John), 42nd Artillery load up for movement to a firing point during a recently concluded overnight unit field problem on the Fort Benning reservation. Batteries A and B of the 2-42nd Artillery also participated in similar overnight exercises as a prelude to other battalion operations.

Overnight Field Training Tests Held by Little John Artillerymen

The three firing batteries of the 2nd Battalion (Little John), 42nd Artillery recently concluded overnight field training exercises on the Fort Benning reservation.

Participating in the overnight problems were Battery A commanded by Capt. Leroy C. Bell, Battery B, commanded by Capt. Richard W. Brown and Battery C commanded by Capt. Loyal G. Hightower, Jr.

Unit moves originated from the Harmony Church area with the individual batteries moving by vehicle to Kelley Hill. From there, CH-47 helicopters were utilized for movement to bivouac areas.

After the batteries closed to their positions, perimeters of defense were established and the units embarked on 36 hour periods of realistic combat training. Included in the exercises were reconnaissance of and movement to firing points by OH-13 and CH-47 helicopters; the firing of simulated fire missions by Little John launcher sections; special weapons training; communication drills; aggressor attacks; night moves by helicopter; simulated assembly and check out of nuclear warheads by unit Assembly and Transport sections; and fire direction center drills.

Possessing the "big punch" of the 11th Air Assault Division Artillery, the 2nd Battalion (Little John), 42nd Artillery proved itself a versatile, proficient, combat-ready organization as it provided effective artillery support to the entire division front during AIR ASSAULT II exercises. Commander of the organization is Lt. Col. Charles F. Farber.

Provisional Helicopter Company Celebrates Its First Anniversary

This month the Provisional Helicopter Company (Chinook), 44th Air Transport Battalion, 10th Air Transport Brigade is celebrating its first birthday. While it isn't an activated unit as such, it has completed quite a record.

When it was first organized, it was designated the 189th Transport Helicopter Company in Jan. of last year. Later on it was re-designated as the 94th Transport Helicopter Company and still later it was again re-designated as the Provisional Helicopter Company (Chinook).

The company has been using the CH-47A medium helicopter which is a twin-engine, tandem rotor carrying 33 fully combat equipped troops or can accommodate 24 litter patients plus two attendants.

The company's officer and enlisted men are considered to be above the average for an helicopter company. It has about 85 per cent of Senior Army Aviator's and also about 70 per cent of its warrant officers are in the grade of W-3. The average flying time for aviators of this company is 2500 hours. The average length of service for its enlisted aviation personnel are between ten and fourteen years. A large percentage of the unit is Vietnam returnees with quite a number of various decorations running from Air Medals to Distinguished Service Cross.

During the various field maneuvers, the unit has demonstrated its efficiency by the many comments received AIR ASSAULT II operations, the aircraft flew some 2200 passengers over 100,000 passenger miles in addition to some 350 tons of cargo being flown over some 150,000 ton miles. For the time the unit was in the maneuver it flew about 1000 hours with only an aircraft average availability of six aircraft.

This month has seen the departure of its first commanding officer, Maj. Howard C. Porter Jr., to a new position in the G-3 section of the 11th Air Assault Division. Maj. Porter was replaced by Maj. Berry H. Henderson whose previous assignment was with the 503rd Aviation Battalion at Hanau, Germany.

Last week, Sp4 Gerald A. Clough after making the 44th Air Transport Battalion's Soldier of the Month went on to win the 10th Air Transport Brigade's Soldier of the Month award. Sp4 Clough was presented with a trophy by Col. Delbert L. Bristol, commanding officer, 10th Air Transport Brigade. Sp4 Clough will also be Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard's orderly during the first week of February.

Artillery Promotes

Battery A, 5th Battalion, 38th. Artillery, commanded by Capt. Dave M. Johnson, recently promoted two men.

Sp4 Grover Q. James, senior wireman; and PFC Ora L. Mitchell, ammunition handler.

Difficult Mountain Flying Tested by 229th Pilots

Last week Company B, of Lt. Col. Earl Buchan's 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion spent three days of intensified mountain flying at Ft. McClellan, Ala.

Bravo Company was the first of the two in the battalion to go through this course which included landings, take offs and where to or not to fly.

To the surprise of the "younger" aviators there was much to be learned such as; locating turbulance without flying into it and thus locating it the hard way, the way winds turn in mountains, the distinct lack of power in the machine, and above all how cold it can get up there.

The course also included all of these problems at night supported by the 11th Aviation Group Pathfinders who handled the job of lighting areas and guiding the helicopters through the mountains to the landing zones.

Saturday afternoon, Jan. 16, Company B returned to their home at Leyte Heliport adding another 129 accident free hours to their record.

The Tiger of the year was just named Car of the Year by Motor Trend.

If that isn't enough of a hint, try Quick Wide-Track. (This is their year.) Or Turbo Hydra-Matic, the new transmission you can order that does away with roaring between shifts. Coupled with any of the quicker engines for the '65 Pontiac, it saves the roaring for whenever you need it. When you don't need it, the extra-potent engines let you just loaf along. This loafing gives you the kind of economy you wouldn't expect from a looker like the '65 Pontiac. See your Pontiac dealer. He'll show you all 32 Pontiacs that are the "Car of the Year." 408th Battalion Couples Feted At Dinner-Dance

For the first time since the Carolina Kaper the officers and ladies of the 408th Supply and Service Battalion met as a group to honor new arrivals, additions and departures. The scene was the Super Club of the Main Officers Mess; the date was January 15th.

During the dinner dance, which was sponsored by the Supply Company under the command of Capt. Thomas W. Brasher, two couples received double-header gifts. Capt. and Mrs. Joseph S. Overstreet were given a silver vegetable dish in honor of their recent marriage and since Capt. Overstreet is now in the 711th Ordinance Battalion, they also received a Revere bowl as a farewell memento. The other couple to receive two gifts was 1st Lt. and Mrs. Carter Brandenburg. They received a baby cup and a Revere bowl too. They are retuning to civilian life in February.

Also honored were Capt. and Mrs. Walter S. Scott, who were married during the maneuvers, and WO and Mrs. Robert B. Davidson, who received a baby cup.

Maj. and Mrs. Arthur K. Kinney, who recently joined the 408th from the Aviation Group, were welcomed during the social hour.

Guests of the battalion were Lt. Col. and Mrs. Thomas W. Buchanan. He is Executive Officer of the 11th Support Command.

CBR, Guerrilla Action Faces 15th Artillery Batteries

By 1st Lt. Conrad Schray

"Gas," was the cry heard frequently throughout the 1st Battalion, 15th Artillery this past week as the unit held a two day chemical, biological, radiological and counterguerrilla problem.

All three firing batteries were airlifted by CH-47 Chinook helicopters to the problem area on the morning of the first day of the problem. Immediately upon landing they were met with a full scale guerrilla attack which all of the batteries met with a fierce defense. Headquarters Battery moved to the problem area by ground transportation and was ambushed by a guerrilla band which caught the battery by surprise. A fierce fire fight took place and the guerrillas took to the woods.

Once in position the artillerymen were required to conduct combat patrols, a duty not often assigned to the artillery but one which they must be able to perform efficiently. The batteries proved they were up on their infantry tactics as they managed to capture several of the guerrillas while patrolling.

In addition to the patrolling, fire missions were being received and processed. Most of the afternoon of the first day was spent constructing firm defensive battery positions. This effort payed off during the night as each battery position was attacked at least twice by the guerrillas. Battery A of the battalion disrupted two infiltration attempts by the guerrillas and forced the enemy to resort to a frontal attack which was broken up and sent the attackers fleeing.

Radio electronic counter measures were played throughout the problem and gave the radio operators of the battalion a chance to prove they could be effective even when jammed. Unauthorized stations manned by umpires attempted to enter the battalion's radio nets and disseminate false information but again the effective training of the operators showed as the stations were challenged and denied entrance to the net.

The scenario of events called for the capture of the 15th Artillery's survey team and the battalion reconnaissance and survey oficer, Lt. Agnelo Agliardo, but the survey team proved too elusive for the guerrillas and escaped capture by winning a running fire fight through the woods. Later it was learned the guerrillas had prepared a special form of "torture" for Lt. Agliardo.

The morning of the second day was marked by aggressor heliborne and armor attacks. None of these were able to penetrate the battery position areas. But, of course, by now the units were anticipating the guerrillas every move.

Throughout the problem the men were under chemical, biological, and radiological attacks. The chemical attacks used actual chemical agents and provided the men with a good test of their protective masks, procedures and unit alarm systems.

Capt. Harry Chambers, Battalion S-2, was in charge of the exercise and said the overall objective of the exercise was to apply the classroom training on CBR and guerrilla warfare that the battalion has received in recent weeks. By the end of the problem it was evident that the artillerymen had learned their lessons and knew how to put them to good use.

'Hot Shot' Tops Feat

The machine gunners of the Headquarters Company 2nd Brigade recently attended Werner's range for qualification.

No one had ever conceived the idea that anyone would achieve a perfect score. However the thought entered the mind of Sp4 William E. Koepp. When he expressed this thought everyone called it a fallacy and said it was an almost impossible feat.

With an unbelieveable display of self confidence and good fundamental technique and skill Sp4 Koepp grasped the machine gun and commenced firing when it was his turn to qualify. When the cloud of dust and smoke lifted, Sp4 William E. Koepp had achieved his vision of gradeur.

His feat marked the first ever in the 2nd Brigade Headquarters Company, and with his accomplishments came congratulations from his company commander, Capt. Alfred F. Fiumano Jr.,

Totem Battalion 'Runs Off Holiday Fogginess' As Infantry Companies Pursue Aggressors

At the end of the long holiday break, the 2nd (Totem) Battalion, 23rd Infantry, commanded by Lt. Col. Harold G. Moore, lost no time in continuing its training in the field. In a battalion exercise designed to clear away any holiday fogginess and to strip off any Christmas dinner fat, Jan. 4-6 found the Totem Battalion fighting its way through the training areas of Kelly Hill as the three rifle companies pitted themselves against Company D (C-S), which was acting as an aggressor rifle company. As the exercise began the aggressors were occupying two hilltops on the east end of the Kelly Hill area. Alpha and Bravo rifle companies were given the mission of driving them off these hills, Alfa to take the northernmost objective and Brovo to take the hill on the south.

The quiet before the attack was occasionally pierced by bursts of firing as patrols probed the aggressor combat outpost line. At first light this line was attacked and was skillfully withdrawn so that the attackers were temporarily deceived as to the location of the enemy's main defenses. Soon, however, Bravo Company reached its objective, pushed the aggressors off the hill, and consolidated their defenses; and none too soon, for the aggressors immediately counter attacked but were again forced to withdraw.

Meanwhile, Alfa Company was advancing and soon reached its objective. Once again the attack was successful and once again the enemy counterattacked; but the aggressor force on this hill was now agumented by the platoon which had just defended against Bravo Company. This platoon punched into Alfa Company's flank with everything it had. Finally however, the aggressor force was beaten and withdrew to an assembly area.

All companies sent out reconnaissance patrols that afternoon and evening, and once again the night air was shattered by small-arms fire as patrols located outposts or encountered other patrols.

At dawn the following morning the aggressors launched an all-out attack to recapture their lost ground. This force moved forward quickly and overran the combat outpost line. Ahead of them lay Bravo and Charlie Companies. Bravo defending high ground to the north and Charlie Company to the south. The aggressors slammed into the gap between these companies and wedged into the front lines. At this point Alfa Company, which was now in reserve, was called upon to halt the penetration. The outnumbered aggressor company was no match for this concentration of firepower on its front and flanks, but it put up a violent struggle before it was finally destroyed.

Former Motor Sergeant Receives WO Promotion

WO Richard Ager, former motor pool NCO for the 11th Administration Company, 11th Air Assault Division, received his warrant Jan. 16 at a ceremony held in the company commander's office.

WO Ager, formerly a SSgt., has been with the company since Aug., 1963 and applied for his warrant in the 631A Motor Maintenance Technician field.

Capt. John Q. Adams, commanding officer, 11th Admin Company pinned the W-1 bars on Mr. Ager.

Mr. Ager, who has over 15 years of service with the Army, served in Korea with the 2nd Infantry Division from 1953-54.

In 1956 Mr. Ager was assigned to the 110th Aviation Company in Italy where he remained until 1960.

In 1962 he received orders to return to Korea where he served with the 1st Cavalry Division until 1963.

Mr. Ager will remain with the 11th Admin Company until he receives his forthcoming orders for Germany.

WO Ager, his wife Karley and their four children; Vicki, Richard, Charlotte and David reside at 12 Fox Ave. in Columbus.

Artillery Platoon Leader Has New Rank and Job

Maj. Dewey M. King, formerly Direct Support Platoon Leader of Battery E, 26th Artillery, was recently promoted to his present rank in ceremonies held in the office of Col. William A. Becker, 11th Air Assault Division Artillery commander. Assisting in pinning on the gold leaves were his wife, Sally, and Maj. Benjamin F. Harden, Battery E commander. Also present, and one of the first to offer congratulations, was Lt. Col. Oliver P. Tjossem, Division Artillery executive officer.

Maj. King was assigned to the 11th Air Assault Division in July 1964 following a three year tour in Germany. While serving in Europe, the then Capt. King served as an Artillery Battery Commander and later as a Brigade Aviation Officer in the 4th Armored Division.

Prior aviation assignments for the Senior Army aviator have been with the 24th Infantry Division in Korea and with the XVIII Aorborne Corps Artillery at Fort Bragg, N.C.

Headquarters Unit Chosen 81st 'Best'

Headquarters and Service Battery 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery was recently designated the battalion's Honor Battery for the month of December.

The battery, commanded by Capt. Ronnie J. Renfro, is currently being inspected by Division Artillery in the competition for the Honor Battery of the Division Artillery.

Inspections are conducted on all facets of battery operations, from the mess hall to the motor pool. Each area is given a numerical rating and the battery with the highest overall score is designated honor battery for that month.

36th Artillery 'Watcher' Observes Aerial Rockets

A two day "excursion" to Fort Stewart was part of the cross training received by one of the Forward Observers of Battery C, 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery. Lt. John R. Cavedo was the 38th Artillery's representative to observe Aerial Rocket Fire during annual qualification of the 377th Artillery.

The week commenced with a ride in a UH-1B ("Huey") helicopter to Warner Robbins Air Force Base and then on to Fort Stewart. An observation point was maintained overlooking the range where all maneuvering, firing, and effect on the targets could be observed by the artillery representatives. Listening to the methods of directing the helicopters by radio, the observers were quick to grasp the concept of identifying various targets for the pilots. With binoculars ready, the artillerymen observed the tremendous speed, accuracy, and distructiveness of the aerial rocket. Following the firing exercise, the observers were able to question the pilots themselves as to the feasibility of the rockets in comparison to standard howitzers firing conventional projectiles.

'Tiger Tail' Goes For Maintenance

1st Lt. Leonard W. Cummings, maintenance officer for Bravo Company of the 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion, recently received the Tigers Tail from Lt. Col. Benjamin S. Silvers, commanding officer of the 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion, for having the highest aircraft availability within the 228th Battalion for the month of December.

The Tigers tail is given to the company within the battalion that has the highest aircraft availibility monthly. So far Lt. Commings has monopolized this award. It is because of the outstanding maintenance performed by the personnel under Lt. Cummings that has enabled him to accept this award.

The Tiger Tail originated from the aggressiveness shown by Tiger Company (COMPANY C 228th) while in the activation days. To keep this aggressiveness burning Lt. Col. Silver thought of the unique idea to keep the maintenance personnel within the battalion in a competitive maintenance drive for better and greater availibility.

38th Mortarmen Act as Guerrillas

Heavy weapons infantrymen from the 1st Air Assault Brigade's 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry found themselves in the role of light weapons infantrymen last Monday and Tuesday, providing an enemy for the 2nd Battalion (LJ) of the 42nd Artillery.

Posing as guerilla aggressors against the Redlegs was the Combat Support Company's Mortar Platoon, commanded by 1st Lt. George M. Tapley, to support the artillery during a field training exercise.

The mortarmen did an excellent job in their guerilla role, launching a series of attacks and raids while demonstrating the flexibility of guerilla operations, and giving the Redlegs a host of experience in counter - guerilla warfare.

Both units gained a good deal of experience in this type of specialized training during the two days, conducting both day and night operations.

Commo Platoon Loads C-130's

The men of Headquarters Company Commo Platoon recived a refresher course in the loading and unloading of the C130 Transport planes.

Men from the platoon were given the classes by the NCO's of their section along with the commo platoon leader, Lt. Jerome B. Widerschien and MSgt. Roy G. Organ, platoon sergeant. The classes were conducted at Lawson field, in small size so that individual training could be emphasized.

2nd Brigade's Staffers See Jobs Change Hands

There will be some changes made in the 2nd Brigade Headquarters and Headquarters Company staff this week.

Capt. Alfred F. Fiumano Jr., Headquarters Company commander, will be leaving for the University of Omaha to finish his education through the Army "boot-strap" program. He will receive a bachelor of science degree in military education when he graduates. Capt. Richard R. Browing, assistant adjutant, will succeed Capt. Fiumano as the Company Commander while Capt. James T. McManus will tackle the job of Assistant Adjutant.

Capt. Fiumano came to the 2nd Brigade from Germany where he served as Division Information Officer and platoon leader. His first job at the Brigade was the S-2 Intelligence officer which was followed by the assumption of the command of the Headquarters Company.

Capt. Browning came from the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry where he served as the Adjutant.

He has served in the 2nd Division for two years prior to coming to the 2nd Brigade.

Capt. McManus was a student at the Armour School before coming to the 2nd Brigade.

Civilian Technicians Aid 611th Mechanics

Company B, 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion is blessed with two of the hardest working civilian technical representatives available.

Bill Darling and Joe Micci, of the Lycoming Division of the AVCO corporation, offer a combined total of forty-five years experience in the aircraft industry. Their technical assistance and on-the-job training for engine personnel, on the various T-53 turbine engine models currently installed on OV-1 Mohawks and UH-1 Iroquois aircraft, is knowledgeable, exacting and rewarding for personnel participating.

Although Darling and Micci are primarily assigned to B level aircraft maintenance facilities they also render assistance to organizational units. On call 24 hours a day, they cover an enormous area of responsibility, providing technical knowledge, as well as exhibiting an experience in mechanical ability. They work long hours into the night, on reports and other administrative duties, compiling data for their home office in Stratford, Conn. for improvement or re-design of the T-53 or its components to make it as trouble free as is possible.

Their endeavors in support of the maintenance mission are greatly appreciated by the officers and men of Company B and by its commanding officer, Maj. Eugene R. Walsh.

377th Artillerymen Awarded Air Medals

At an award ceremony held on Jan. 9, 1965, Lt. Col. Nelson A. Mahone Jr. commanding officer 3rd Battalion, 377th Artillery, presented awards to four officers and two enlisted members of the Aerial Rocket Battalion.

Lt. Kent G. Averett received the Air Medal (Twelfth Oak Leaf Cluster) with "V" device for heroism while participating in an aerial flight in Vietnam. Portions of his citation read: "As co-pilot and gunner aboard an armed UH-1B helicopter, Lt. Averett was flying an emergency mission to render support to an ambushed ARVN Ranger Battalion. During the flight over suspected Viet Cong battle positions, his helicopter was struck by gun fire, however he attacked the guerrilla encampment and neutralized it. Throughout the mission he directed accurate machine gun emplacement with a smoke grenade. As the mission drew to a close he and his crew landed to evacuate ARVN casualties in a position less than 100 meters from an active Viet Cong strong point."

Capt. William F. Koehler received the fourth through seventh Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal for action in Vietnam. Capt. Koehler is a senior pilot and is commanding officer of Battery C, 3rd Battalion, 377th Artillery.

Capt. James J. Kelly received the 6th Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal for action in Viet Nam. Capt. Kelly is a senior pilot who served with the 177th Aviation Company at Qui Nhon Vietnam.

Two crew chiefs from the 377th Artillery were also honored. Sp5 Williams received the 5th and 6th Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal and Sp4 David Napier received his 6th and 7th Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal.

Capt. Fransisco Trevino received a Certificate of Achievement frm the 2nd Armored Division for service with the 502d Aviation Battalion.

'Top' Reenlists

1st Sgt. Joseph P. Troy, Company "C", 127th Engineer Battalion, reenlisted for another 3 years on Jan. 12, 1965.

Brigade Masses Strike Forces; Conducts Dual Phased Mission

Soldiers of the 3rd Brigade, 11th Air Assault Division, under the command of Col. Thomas W. Brown, left Mon., Jan. 11 for an FTX in the off post training area and that portion of Fort Benning north of Highway 103. The exercise, dubbed HAWK TALON VI, was conducted in two phases, an operation against active irregular forces and an operation against regular aggressor forces.

The 2nd Battalion, 23d Infantry commanded by Lt. Col. Harold Moore, and the 1st Battalion, 188th Infantry, commanded by Lt. Col. Robert Kellar, participated in the exercise. Supporting the exercise were Company A and Company C, 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion; two teams of 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry; elements of the 226th Aerial Surveillance and Escort Battalion, 473rd Skycane Company, 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion; and the 3rd Forward Support Element.

The Brigade was initially deployed in a sector of BLUELAND, a friendly country, to establish control over a guerrilla infested area. The two Infantry battalions established their bases, and then undertook the task of conducting air assault operations against guerrilla assembly areas, supply points, communications sites and other targets of opportunity discovered by aerial surveillance, or reported through intelligence channels.

By Friday noon, Jan. 15, the REDLAND forces, both regular and irregular, were successfully cleared from BLUELAND by the 3rd Brigade elements, thus terminating HAWK TALON VI.

Command 'Tabs' Passed At Engineers Company B

On Jan. 18, 1965, Company B, 127th Engineer Battalion held a change of command ceremony. Battalion Commander, Lt. Col. Robert J. Malley performed the ceremony of passing the combat engineer Commander's Green Epaulets from Capt. Virl E. Haas to the new company commander, Capt. Mitchell R. Kot.

Capt. Hass has commanded the Bravo Beavers since its activation on May 1, 1964, and ably led the unit through the HAWK FLASH EXERCISES and AIR ASSAULT II in support of the Second Brigade. Capt. Haas will take over the position of Assistant Division Engineer in the Battalion.

Capt. Kot received his captain's bars in a short ceremony on Jan. 1965. He previously occupied the position of assistant S-3 (Training) in the Battalion Headquarters.

Other major command changes also have taken place within Company B. Executive officer, 1st Lt. Daniel S. Brazil, is now the assistant S-3 (Planning) and 1st Lt. William E. Evans has taken over the position of executive officer. 2nd Lt. Kenneth L. Reams has assumed command of Company B's third platoon which was lead by 2nd Lt. Frank D. Wood. Lt. Wood also has moved to the S-3 section with Lt. Brazil and now occupies the position previously held by Capt. Kot.

Field Training With Aggressors Shakes 'Cobwebs' Out of 38th

Shaking out the cobwebs accumulated since Air Assault II in the Carolinas, and over the holidays, the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry conducted a field training exercise Jan. 5 through 8. The FTX's purpose was to observe, conduct, and supervise squad and platoon size operations with or without the aid of helicopters. The event was kept flexible for company commanders' benefit, and live aggressors were used.

Battalion Headquarters coordinated and assigned each platoon an independent night mission including pickup and dropoff by helicopter.

On each of the two and one-half days spent on the problem, part of each day was set aside to enable the battalion to rappell qualify its line companies. The men were in good spirit at the beginning of the exercise, but when it came time to rappel, spirits soared. The battalion used the "Swiss Seat" hookup to lower themselves from as high as 120 feet. Five drops were needed to qualify. During this relatively short period of time, the battalion managed to qualify over 400 more of its men. The 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry Recon Platoon supervised the training and provided the safety and detail personnel.

Wednesday, the 6th, the battalion departed Essenbagger Field on Kelley Hill by helicopter shuttle to predesignated areas. That afternoon rappelling training for some was conducted while the remainder of the battalion worked on which was sent on a battalion designated mission.

Thursday morning and afternoon was spent rappelling and others in the battalion conducted counterguerilla operations and squad tactics. That night two platoon per company were sent on a battalion designated mission and to seize and destroy guerilla the rest worked on night recon, and contact and attack problems.

Friday morning was make-up for rappelling, and attack to seize and destroy guerilla base camps. By noon the battalion was back at Essebagger Field and the rest of the day was spent on equipment maintenance and an FTX critique.

1st Aviation Company Is Nucleus Of 37th Air Transport Battalion

The 1st Aviation Company, (FWMT), of the 37th Air Transport Battalion, commanded by Lt. Col. John W. Lauterbach. has formed the nucleus of the battalion since it was formed as part of the 10th Air Transport Brigade because it was the first Caribou company to be formed in the division and has therefore furnished many qualified and experienced Caribou pilots for the battalion.

Ask any officer of the 1st Aviation Company why he is glad he was assigned to the "First" and he will probably be happy t take up several hours of your time. However, other than the fact that they are proud of the outstanding "firsts" of this, the oldest fixed wing aviation company in the U. S. Army and enjoy piloting the Armys' largest fixed wing aircraft, the Caribou, they will tell you of the possibilities of receiving promotions to higher positions of command responsibility after having served in the 1st Aviation Company. At first this may sound a bit far fetched to those who haven't had the opportunity to serve with the 1st. You need only to look around however, at the other four companies and the battalion headquarters. Here you will find many former members of the 1st who are serving in key positions.

The 1st is presently commanded by Maj. Paul - L. Stansel, himself a former operations officer of the 1st while it served in Viet Nam. Maj. Stansel was preceeded by Maj. William M. Jenkins who became S-3 of the 37th Air Transport Battalion. Another past commander of the 1st, Maj. William G. Hooks, is presently the head of the Caribou transition training at Fort Rucker, Ala. and many of his instructors are also former members of the 1st.

These are just a part of the long list, a list that the present members of the unit would be happy to become a part of.

ated by the Hughes Tool Co. in 1959. It is awarded to the aviation unit that through organized effort has demonstrated outstanding ability to employ aircraft in furtherance of the Army mission. The 11th and the 10th Air Transport Brigade join a list of distinguished units who have won the award.

In 1959 the first award went to the 2nd US Army Missile Command. The following year the 937th Engineers received the award. In 1961 the 45th Transportation Battalion and the 8th; 18th; 57th and 93rd Aviation Companies shared in the award. The next year the US Army Utility Transport Helicopter Company received the trophy as the first armed helicopter company in Viet Nam.

The trophy is a large silver bowl decorated with raised silver images of aircraft and men in action. At the base of the bowl are small placques with the names of the former winners.

Basketball Highlights

Off The Backboard

By Lt. Joe Mottola

"Old Man Upset" who up until now hasn't really figured in 11th Air Assault Division basketball games finally made his presence felt as the 15th Artillery and the 37th Transport Battalion went down to surprising defeats. In addition, three first place teams tumbled from the ranks of the unbeaten as league standings were shaken up!

The ninth of January marked the first stunning reversal as the "STAGS" of the 711th Maintenance Battalion, relinquishing in last place in the Caribou league, gored the "SHOOTERS" of the 15th Artillery 64-63 in an overtime game. In the second game, the 42nd Artillery "ROCKETS" knocked off the "CLAWHAMMERS" of the 226th Aerial Surveillance and Escort Battalion 53-44. That evening the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry contingent kept close to the Chinook league leaders with an easy 64-17 triumph over team No. 261th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion.

In another game that night, the 511th Signal Battalion quintet pulled the switch on the 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion by a score of 75-20.

Over at Kelly Hill, the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry "KANIENGAHAGERS" beat the "WRENCH BENDERS" of the 170th Maintenance Battalion 60-38 and the "TOTEMS" of the 2nd Battalion, 22nd Infantry grew taller as they romped over the 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion Team No. 2 by a score of 84-31.

Tuesday night in a battle for undisputed possession of first place in the Iroquois league, the undefeated 511th Infantry "FALCONS" collided head on with the undefeated 188th Infantry "EAGLES." With big Eddie Washington blocking shots, dominating the boards and handcuffing Claude Williams, the "EAGLES" high scoring center, the "FALCONS" clawed the "EAGLES" 54-45 to rule the roost in the Iroquois league and mar the unblemished record of the 188th Infantry.

On January 13th, the 187th "RAKKASANS" won a forfeited game from the 26th Artillery and the 127th Engineer Battalion "BEAVERS" took the floor against the 44th "CHOPPERS". The rapidly improving "BEAVERS" scored a 57-53 victory. Meanwhile at Kelley Hill the 170th "WRENCH BENDERS" drop one to the 511th Signal Battalion and the 611th AM&S team No. 2 finally broke into the win column with a triumph over the 228th "WINGED WARRIORS" 42-25.

Thursday night the "CRUSADERS" of the 11th Medical Battalion coasted to a 64-46 victory over the 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion. That same night the "MARNE MEN" of the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry stood fast against the "SHOOTERS" of the 15th Artillery in a 55-47 triumph.

Friday night saw the 511th "FALCONS" back in action as they dealt the 229th "STACKED DECK" another loss while romping to an easy 78-29 victory. In the highly important second game, the undefeated 187th "RAKKASANS" took on the undefeated "CHARGE SEVENS" of the 51st Artillery before a packed Fieldhouse with first place in the Mohawk league at stake. The fast-breaking Paratroopers won by a score of 73-68 as they stayed off a strong closing drive by the "CHARGE SEVENS".

League play at Kelley Hill had the 15th Artillery "SHOOTERS" in the upset of the young season. Smarting from two straight losses they bested the high-flying "CARIBOUS" of the 37th Transport Battalion from the heights of the unbeaten by a score of 51-46. In the nitecap the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry was again in action as they hobbled the 711th "STAGS" 61-49. The "MARNE MEN'S" victory coupled with the upset of the "CARIBOUS" tied the teams for first place with identical 4-1 records.

YOU OWE $35,000.00

Statistics show each person eats $10.00 in food weekly. If averaged for a lifetime, with life expectancy of 66 years, this amounts to approximately $35,000.00.
This is by far the largest single expense to be met by any individual. It is especially difficult for the head of the family. If your average food expenditure is $25.00 per week, in 15 years it will amount to $20,000.00.
CONCLUSION: Have Money . . . Quit eating????
This is ridiculous, but what are you doing to reduce your cost of eating?

New Assistant Commandant Named

Gen. George I. Forsythe To Replace Gen. Norton

Brig. Gen. George I. Forsythe, 1939 ROTC graduate of the University of Montana, will arrive at Fort Benning in early March to replace Brig. Gen. John Norton as assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

Now serving as assistant commander of the 25th Infantry Division in Hawaii, Gen. Forsythe has been on active duty since 1940.

Gen. Norton has been assigned to the Army Support Command, Viet Nam.

A World War II veteran of both the Pacific and European theater of operations, Gen. Forsythe received his commission in the Regular Army in 1942 while stationed on Kodiak Island, Alaska.

After attending the Battalion Commanders Course here in 1942, then Maj. Forsythe participated in the Aleutian invasion of Kiska. His second Pacific invasion came after he was transferred to the 7th Inf. Div. prior to the seaborne attack on Kwajalein.

Following reassignment to Headquarters, XIX Corps in England, he participated in the planning of the June, 1944, invasion of Europe.

Following the war's end, he was selected as a member of the War Department General Staff Officer Training Group in Washington.

In July, 1948, he moved to Fort Leavenworth, Kan., where he served on the faculty of the Command and General Staff College for three years. He left the United States in August, 1951, to command the 2nd Bn., 22nd Inf. in Schweinfurt, Germany.

He attended the Armed Forces Staff College in 1953 before spending the next three years in the capital.

On completion of airborne qualification in 1955, then Col. Forsythe was assigned to reactivate and command the 503rd Airborne Inf. of the 101st Airborne Div.

In 1958, after graduation from the Air War College, he was assigned to the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Viet Nam where he

Center Cafeteria Is Re-Decorated, Open to Public

BY IDA EVANS
Staff Writer

The Main Post Cafeteria, newly decorated and ready to double as a steak house, was officially re-opened Wednesday morning.

Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges cut the traditional red velvet ribbon at 10 a.m. allowing 300 Fort Benning personnel to surge through the doors for the first time in nearly six weeks.

The newly renovated cafeteria is located across from Theater 1 and faces Gowdy Field and is part of a complex of community oriented facilities within a two-block area serving Fort Benning personnel and their dependents.

The renovation, which cost $34,000, includes new cherry walnut paneling, full length beige drapes and indirect lighting. Tables and chairs, in lemon yellow fiber glass, will accomodate 288 at one sitting.

The cafeteria will be open from 7 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on Sunday. The facility is expected to serve approximately 2,500 daily.

An added feature of the cafeteria will be doubling as a steak house from 4 to 9 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Steaks will be the specialty of the house but chicken, shrimp and other delicacies will be served.

A facility of the Army-Air Force Exchange, The Main Post Cafeteria was first opened in March, 1943.

Exchange officer is Maj. I. C. Crickmore, Mrs. Hubert D. McNeer will manage the renovated cafeteria.

Joint Drive For Funds Is Scheduled

The kick-off date for a six-week combined fund drive at Fort Benning for the National Health Agencies and the Federal Service Joint Crusade will be Feb. 24.

The seven independent agencies participating in the National Health Agencies campaign are the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation, March of Dimes, National Multiple Sclerosis Society, National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, National Society for the Prevention of Blindness and American Cancer Society.

Incorporated into the Federal Service Joint Crusade are Radio Free Europe, CARE, Project Hope and American - Korean Foundation.

Speaking on the fund raising campaign, President Johnson delivered this message: "These agencies are engaged in the promotion of better health and care among all peoples. The health agencies have contributed greatly to the progress which has been made in the fight for better health and the Joint Service Agencies of the Federal Joint Crusade have strengthened the bonds of international friendship by bringing voluntary aid to those who are hungry and destitute throughout the world. They merit personal

Rangers Slate Action Show

The public is invited to view a "Rangers in Action" demonstration at Victory Pond Wednesday.

The demonstration will start at 3:45 p.m. Those planning to attend should be seated prior to 3:30. Children under six will not be allowed in the area.

AUSA Chapter Elects Officers; Betts Named President for '65

At a meeting of the Columbus-Phenix City - Fort Benning Chapter, Association of the U.S. Army (AUSA) Monday night, members elected 1965 officers headed by Oscar L. Betts Jr., president.

Others elected were: R. L. Hinson, first vice president; Col. William M. Preston, secretary - treasurer (second term); and Lt. Col. Robert E. Pardee, assistant secretary-treasurer.

Named to the board of directors for three years were: Roy Smith, George Hammer, Charles S. Daley, Guy Snavely, Joe E. Flowers Jr., James W. (Billy) Key and Col. Jess W. Walls. Jim Hickey was named to the board for a one year term.

Passed by the membership was an amendment to the by-laws which will extend the term of the new officers until the summer of 1966 after which the annual election will be held each succeeding summer instead of the early part of the year as it has been in the past.

This will align the local chapter with others which

Gen. Messinger Dies Thursday

Lt. Gen. Edwin J. Messinger, 57, deputy commanding general of USCONARC since Feb. 1964, died Thursday at Walter Reed hospital.

A West Point graduate of 1931 he achieved national recognition as an end on the Army football teams of '28 '29 and '30.

During World War II he was assigned to the 17th Airborne Division during War II and, in Korea, with the 2nd and 24th Infantry Divisions. Gen. Messinger was commandant of cadets at West Point from 1954 to 1956.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters and a son.

support from us, both as citizens and as Department of Defense personnel."

Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges urged 100 per cent participation in the form of generous donations.

"To this end I enjoin all personnel at this installation to contribute to this worthwhile cause to help our nation grow physically strong, and to help all mankind live in a world of dignity and honor," he said.

The campaign will be conducted at all Department of the Army installations in the United States, the Panama Canal Zone, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico during approximately the same six weeks.

AUSA

follow the same pattern and bring the time of the annual meeting in Washington at the forepart of the officers' terms instead of at the close.

About 175 members were present at Crain Hall as outgoing president, William Lyman, turned the gavel over to Betts who headed the 1964 membership drive which boosted the local chapter to its position as "largest in the world."

Betts, in accepting the office of president, said he believed the local chapter to be one of the most important of all AUSA chapters, and that palm.

be hopes to keep it in its present prominence.

During his remarks, Lyman cited Betts for his work in the membership campaign and gave due credit to the senior commanders, sergeants major and news media for its success.

Lyman also reviewed the activities of the chapter during 1964, noting the AUSA industrial mobility symposium held here and the chapter's information program.

The outgoing president was recalled to the podium by Betts and presented with a new golf bag from the members, guaranteed to "take at least a couple-of strokes off his score."

Forsythe

served as deputy chief of the Combat Arms Training Organization, and later as the first senior adviser to the Field Command of the Vietnamese Army.

He returned to the United States in 1959 as deputy G-3 and later as deputy chief of staff for Third Army.

Gen. Forsythe was pinned with his first star in August, 1963, three months after assuming duties as ADC of the "Lightning Division."

Among the general's awards are the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal with three oak leaf clusters and both the French and Belgium Croix de Guere with

'66 Defense Expenditures Are Reduced

A cost reduction program, including close attention to Project TRIM here at Fort Benning is partially responsible for a $300 million reduction in FY66 Defense expenditures is the budget estimate President Johnson presented to Congress in his special Defense message.

Spending will level off because "We have achieved many of the needed changes and increases in our military force structure," the President said. He also pointed out, "We are now realizing the benefits of the rigorous cost reduction program introduced into the defense establishment during the past four years."

Reduced expenditures will free an ever-larger share of the national wealth for other vital needs, both public and private, the Commander-in-Chief said.

"Let me be clear, however, to friend and foe alike. So long as I am President, we shall spend whatever is necessary for the security of our people.

"The world's most affluent society can surely afford to spend whatever must be spent for its freedom and security," President Johnson said.

Brigade Awards Ciolkowski ACM

Sp4 Edward L. Ciolkowski of Hq. Co., 5th Student Bn. TSB was recently awarded an Army Commendation Medal.

As battalion draftsman and administrative specialist, he demonstrated "outstanding initiative, sound judgment and tact in the performance of his duties.

During the expansion of Army Officer Candidate School from three to six companies, Ciolkowski's "untiring efforts and devotion to duty" helped solve many problems.

Army Nurses To Celebrate '65 Birthday

Fort Benning's 55 Army nurses mark a proud and long heritage, dating back to George Washington's day, when they celebrate the Army Nurse Corps anniversary Tuesday.

Officially observing Feb. 2, 1901, when the corps was established by an Act of Congress, post nurses will hold a tea from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. in the MAH American Red Cross Recreation Hall.

Invited are wives of general officers, chiefs of sections, hospital staff, "Volunteers" and all future nurse and medical allied clubs of the high schools of Columbus and Phenix City.

A feature of the tea will be a style show of uniforms of the corps. Nurses will model Army green, white dress, blue dress, duty uniform, summer green cord, summer silver taupe and field uniforms.

An anniversary cake will be cut by two nurses, the one with the longest and the one with the shortest service in the corps.

American Army nursing began during the American Revolution when Gen. George Washington asked Congress for a "matron to supervise nurses," and "nurses to attend the sick and obey the matron's orders."

Women were recruited to care for the sick and wounded during the Civil War. They were organized and placed under the supervision of Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell and Dorothea Lynde Dix.

During the Spanish-American War, 1,200 nurses served on a contract basis in the United States and overseas.

Issuance of a nurses' license began in 1903. The first registered nurses to serve in action were those of World War I, who at the end of the conflict, numbered 21,480 on duty.

Originally called the Nurse Corps, the name was changed to Army Nurse Corps between World War I and World War II.

Martin Hospital's Nursing Service is comprised of 55 Army and 47 civilian nurses.

Lt. Col. Muriel Burchfield is chief nurse.

Commissioned in 1940 by a justice of the peace in McCool, Col. Burchfield was ordered to report to the Army Navy General Hospital at Hot Springs, Ark.

One of the things that impressed the young nurse most was instructions to "bring a napkin ring, preferably silver."

"It gave me a feeling of confidence," she said. "I felt that if everything was so nice at Hot Springs that I would need a silver napkin ring, this corps I had joined must really be 'first class'."

"When I reached the Army-Navy Hospital, I truly found a 'first-class' installation," Col. Burchfield continued. "I had been a registered nurse for three years and, as a night supervisor, had been pretty much on my own. Yet, with even that much experience, I was tremendously impressed with the military hospital and the care the patients received."

"That was nearly 25 years ago," she said. "Like everything else, the nursing profession has seen many changes. With all the advances in medicine, a nurse needs to be better prepared than ever before."

To take care of military personnel and their dependents, Fort Benning's Martin Army Hospital is one of the most modern medical facilities in the Army today. Completed in 1958, the eight million dollar, 500-bed hospital serves approximately 80,000 people.

Educational coordinator is Maj. Shirley Timewell, while Lt. Col. Sarah Williford is instructor in a basic operating room course taught at the hospital.

Helping to back up these life-saving facilities are the Army nurses, who continue to write the long and proud history of the corps.

'The Point of the Spear'

"We must continue to meet responsibilities; we must continue to have a strong country and a strong alliance and a strong Free World; and to do that we need a strong Army which is the point of the spear."

JOHN F. KENNEDY
35th President

Editorial

Will You Help?

By Sgt. Maj. William A. Craig

From every walk of life they come; from every race and creed and economic level; Manhattan apartments to Idaho farms.

Who are they?

They are the million and one-third volunteers who serve as Scouting leaders.

What are they? They are Scoutmasters, commissioners, Den mothers, and council presidents. They are committeemen, Cub-Masters, advisors of Explorer posts, finance workers and members of the Armed Forces.

How much are they paid? Quite a lot. No, not in money, but in personal satisfaction earned by hard work with boys and other volunteers.

What do they accomplish? They make scouting happen in the lives of boys.

They do it because they feel that, through helping to shape and strengthen the boy, they are helping to shape and strengthen America.

And they are.

They do it because some eighty-four thousand of America's finest institutions and organizations — religious, labor, veteran, fraternal, rural, business, school, civic — use scouting as their strong right arm in building men.

It is precisely so here at Fort Benning, scouting with its stress upon an active program can make — and is making—a profound impression on our military community. In Cub Scouting, Boy Scouting and Exploring, Scouting reaches the boy and, through him, his parents. Families brought together by scouting are stronger families, and stronger families mean a stronger America.

We (the scout commissioners) ask your help to keep this program alive during '65. The doors are always open for more; more Cubs, more Boy Scouts and more Explorers. Will you help?

Chaplain's Corner

Ten Years From Now

By Chaplain (Col.) Silas Decker

One Sunday, when I was a "teen-ager," I was a guest in the home of a very successful businessman in Evanston, Ill. Nearby was the campus of Northwestern, one of our great church universities. I would soon be going somewhere to college to begin preparation for the Christian ministry. "Young man", he said, "what do you want to be 10 years from now?"

In 10 months I'll begin my retirement, after thirty years Army service as a chaplain. The wisdom inferred will continue to be important when I become a civilian.

Ten years from 1965 there will be breakthroughs in many fields of science. Great advances will accrue to many fields of industry, travel, and communications. Even the light from the stars may provide energy for travel in outer space. Man will discover many now concealed truths concerning our universe.

All of this seems truly amazing. In the realm of the social and moral orders we will not make such rapid progress. The age-old problems will continue among us; peace, war, human relationships, personal responsibilities, poverty and ignorance. Each of us can, even now, help our country by preparing ourselves for 10 years from 1965.

A necessary factor in our preparation is religious faith. From no other source can we obtain the charity, goodwill and understanding which is needed now and in the future years. The truth of centuries which declares we are our brother's keeper will always apply.

Your Dental Health

Questions & Answers

By Lt. Col. R. Y. Whittemore Jr., DC

This series of articles on dental health is published by The BAYONET in observance of National Children's Dental Health Week, February 7 through 13.

Q: My 16-year-old son has swollen gums that are sore to touch. A friend of mine told me that he probably has trench mouth. Can this be true?

A. While it is impossible to make a positive diagnosis without an examination, it would appear that your son may well have Vincent's Disease — commonly called trench mouth. You should immediately seek the advise of your dentist about the disease.

What causes trench mouth? Probably it is not an infectious disease. While poor oral hygiene definitely plays a part, healthy mouths sometimes get the disease too. Dental scientists now believe that one of the causative factors is stress.

When a person is under stress, from tension, worry or fatigue, his resistance is lowered, causing changes in body chemistry which favor certain bacteria. Under such conditions, the bacteria which cause trench mouth take advantage of their opportunity and multiply.

If your child has red, swollen gums and if his mouth is sore, his breath bad and the saliva flow increased, consult your dentist immediately. He will check the condition of the mouth, examine the edges of the gums to see if hidden debris may be a complicating factor, prescribe drugs, treat the gums, and recommend a program of hygienic home care.

Q. My 12-year-old appears to have gums that are receeding. I thought this only happened to adults. Can children get pyorrhea?

A. We know now that gum disease is not uncommon in children, as well as adults. In fact, the American Dental Association estimates that nearly 50 per cent of all youngsters have some form of gum disease.

Today we know that adults lose considerably more teeth because of diseases of the gum than because of decay.

One cause of gum disease is the formation of calculus on the teeth. This is a hard, crust-like material, composed chiefly of minerals from the saliva and of bacteria and other substances normally found in the mouth. Calculus is rough and irritates the gums. Other sources of irritation are worn-out fillings and crowns and the sharp edges of cavities in badly decayed teeth.

Brushing immediately after eating will help reduce the formation of tartar, but only regular cleaning and scaling of the teeth by a dental hygienist will remove it completely. Therefore, regular dental care is the most important factor in controlling gum disease.

The Judge Says . . .

This column is intended to summarize the rights of the serviceman — or any citizen— when arrested by civilian authorities. It is important to understand what your rights are and to secure proper legal assistance to enforce them.

Initially, the fact of arrest and the charge on which it was based should be recorded in the arrest book. If any personal property is taken from the serviceman, he should be given a receipt or list thereof. The serviceman is entitled to:

1. A statement as to why he has been arrested and the charges against him.

2. Immediate release or an opportunity to obtain bail.

3. Communication with a lawyer at once in order to ascertain his legal rights.

4. Contact family or friends by telephone or mail.

5. Contact the unit to avoid an entry of absent from duty or absent without leave.

6. While there is no general limitation to one telephone call, the serviceman arrested cannot disrupt the orderly routine of the police station. The only definite restriction in this area is that he cannot be held "incommunicado."

7. He has the right to refrain from making any statements or submitting to any tests which might tend to incriminate him. Generally, confessions or admissions elicited by coercion or illegal promises are not admissible is a later trial. Further, any promises of leniency made by law enforcement officials are not binding upon them.

Tests which cannot be imposed without the serviceman's consent are: Handwriting samples, modeling requested items of clothing for identification, giving of blood or urine, the lie detector test and the balloon test (drunk-o-meter).

The serviceman must submit to questioning in relation to the alleged offense, to photographing and to taking of fingerprints and measurements, as well as any other identifying marks. Of course, the serviceman may volunteer information or submit to the tests, but he would be well advised to consult an attorney before doing so because such information can be used against him at a later date.

8. The serviceman has a right to be brought before a judge, magistrate or other authorized public official as soon as practicable. The purpose of this arraignment is to ascertain whether there is a reasonable basis for holding the serviceman on the charges brought.

Local law may vary the general precepts enumerated above. In order to insure that the serviceman's civil rights are being observed, he should enlist the assistance of personal counsel or the local Staff Judge Advocate's Office as soon as possible after arrest.

While the Judge Advocate member cannot take part in the court proceeding, he can provide the necessary advice and assistance to protect the serviceman who has been arrested.

OWC Members Will Preview New Spring Styles At Wednesday's 'Parisian' Luncheon and Show

(L TO R) MRS. LIPSCOMBE, KELLETT AND VIESTENZ
Discuss Plans For The OWC Fashion Show.

By Dorothy Newman

French fashions and cuisine will set the motif Wednesday at the "Parisian Luncheon and Fashion Show" of the Officers' Wives' Club.

Members who haven't made reservations yet are asked to do so before the deadline noon this Monday. Off-post members may call Mrs. Letcher Crawford, 322-0889. On-post members may call the following: A thru H, Mrs. Earl W. Buchanan at 545-3617; I thru Q, Mrs. George A. Crowell at 545-2685; R thru Z, Mrs. Jess L. Goodman at 545-3518.

Registration for Classes

Mrs. Jesse L. Morrow Jr., first vice president, will be available prior to the luncheon to answer questions about the various activities and to register wives for the new session of classes.

Mrs. Robert A. Kurek, OWC Membership Chairman, will be on hand to provide new arrivals to the area with OWC membership cards. Mrs. Kurek, who will be leaving in February due to her husband's transfer, has announced that the club has at this time the largest paid membership in its history.

Mrs. W. S. Massie, make-up consultant for the fashion show models, will be available to answer questions regarding make-up procedures or techniques.

Atlanta Trip

Tickets for the Atlanta trip, which will be Tuesday, March 23, include transportation, luncheon, a fashion show and an afternoon tea. Coffee and doughnuts will be served at the Main Officers' Mess from 7 to 7:45 a.m. Information regarding the trip may be obtained from Mrs. Charles Oram, 544-1150, Mrs. David Boivan, 545-3928 or Mrs. Jerry Teague, 545-1995.

Both cookbooks offered by the Club will be available for inspection or purchase. "Queen of Battle; Her Recipes" contains a variety of recipes contributed by wives from the Fort Benning area. All profits from this book go into the OWC Welfare Fund. "Recipes on Parade" is a collection of meat and poultry recipes, collected from military wives all over the world and includes all areas of meat preparation from budget stretching casseroles to gourmet delights.

Toastmistress Club Installs Officers; Awards 'Speaker of the Term' Cup

New officers of the Fort Benning - Columbus Toastmistress Club were installed recently by Mrs. John Passarella, regional International Toastmistress Club Treasurer, at a MOOM banquet.

The club awarded the "Speaker of the Term Cup" during the affair to Mrs. John Smith.

Taking office were: Mrs. David Riley, president; Mrs. John Swift, vice president; Mrs. James Shamblin, secretary; Mrs. Milton Roberts, treasurer; and Mrs. Bill Colins, corresponding secretary. Mrs. Ruth Ingram is club representative to Council meetings of International Toastmistress Clubs from the Southeastern states.

Mrs. Swift first won the Speaker of the Evening rotating cup with her "icebreaker" speech entitled "Just an Ordinary Girl," which was Mrs. Swift's introductory speech about herself to other club members. Winning the rotating cup made Mrs. Swift eligible to compete in the Speaker of the Term speech contest. Three others were also competing for this award.

Mrs. Swift chose the topic, creativity. Her speech entitled "Man's Gift to Man," discussed the creative genius of Beethoven, Michelangelo, da Vinci and Mendelssohn.

The wife of Capt. John Swift, commander, Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, Lawson Army Aviation Command, she has been active in the Fort Benning Nurses Club and Catholic Women's Organization.

The Toastmistress Club will host other Toastmistress Clubs at a council meeting and speech contest here April 24.

Bridge Party Held by CDC

The monthly bridge party of The Infantry Agency was held recently in the Women's Club Building.

Honored guests at the affair were Col. Joel M. Hollis and Dr. Phillip Hayward of the Army Combat Developments Command Institute of Advanced Studies, Carlisle Barracks, Pa. High scorer for the evening was Maj. Joe F. Elliott; second, Mrs. Marcus L. Powell Jr.; and third, Maj. George W. Adamson. Hosts for the occasion were Lt. Col. and Mrs. Herbert O Graeser and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert H. Frequelin.

OC Wives Model Spring Bonnets At 50th Company Luncheon Meet

"Hat Tree"

Guests at 50th OC Co. Wives' luncheon, Mrs. William R. Lenderman (L) and Mrs. Carl Dennis Lane, point out an unusual "hat tree" that served as the centerpiece for the headtable. (Photo by Herbert Cardwell)

By Hasel Lipscombe and Joanne Drouin

A touch of spring prevailed recently as 50th Company Officer Candidates wives met for a luncheon.

A local hat shop provided the spring bonnets modeled by: Mrs. Delbert Rasmussen, Mrs. Hollis Schoolcraft, Mrs. Robert Kruse, Mrs. Mitchell Hitchcock and Mrs. James Murray. Guests, Miss Bonnie Barnes, Miss Donna Cabral and Mrs. William R. Lenderman, also served as models.

An unusual "hat tree" blossoming with tiny handmade hats of felt, wool and silk, served as centerpiece for the head table. Other tables were centered with hats in the new spring shades and fabrics.

Mrs. John Norton, Mrs. Claude Baker, Mrs. Robert Nett, Mrs. Stanley Scott, Mrs. Robert Caldwell, Mrs. Terry Sowers and Mrs. Wesley Moore attended the affair as guests.

CAR I Coffee

Mrs. Edward Rusk was guest of honor at the coffee held by wives of officers enrolled in the CAR I Course, 2nd Student Bn.

Hostesses were wives of officers in the 4th Plt.

A basket overflowing with fruit provided the centerpiece for the serving table. Approximately 30 wives attended.

52nd OC Wives

Wives of officer candidates in 52nd Co., 5th Student Bn., heard a talk entitled "Budgets and Pay Scale" by Lt. Bryant S. Sneed III at a coffee held in the 52nd dayroom.

Mrs. Robert B. Nett attended as the honored guest. Hostesses were Mrs. Charles E. Dewese, Mrs. Vernon A. Campbell and Mrs. Ronald D. Cody.

A basket of fresh fruit, arranged by Mrs. Dewese, served as centerpiece for the tea table.

Orientation Coffee

An orientation coffee was held recently for wives of officers in the Basic Course 7, 2nd Student Bn.

Lt. Col. Joseph E. McCluskey welcomed the ladies and spoke briefly of the course their husbands are attending.

Lt. Col. (Chap.) Arthur J. Estes spoke to the group concerning the post religious education program.

Mrs. McCluskey and Mrs. Dale E. Johnson presented an outline of coming social functions.

Guests included Mrs. John Norton. Mrs. Claude Baker, Mrs. Robert Nett, Mrs. Stanley Scott, Mrs. Robert Caldwell, Mrs. Terry Sowers, Mrs. McCluskey, Mrs. Ronald S. McCaul, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Gary D. Varner served as hostesses.

Calendar Skit Staged At Battalion Luncheon

Ladies of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde. presented an original poetic skit at their monthly luncheon in the Custer Terrace Branch of Main Officers Mess.

Portraying the flying pages of the calendar year, the skit was written by battalion ladies and narrated by Mrs. William C. Hacker, wife of Lt. Col. Hacker, 29th commander.

The program opened with Mrs. M. Jones as "Baby New Year" followed by Mrs. J. Smelzer as George Washington.

Mrs. C. Primm then appeared as a leprechaun, Mrs. C. Hopkins as a playboy bunny and Mrs. C. Vencill as a flower girl strewing petals before the June Bride played by Mrs. J. Mead.

Next on the scene was Mrs. A. Gomez as Fourth of July while Mrs. R. Toboada was the August picnicker. Mrs. C. Cubia was dressed as a school cheerleader, Mrs. C. Lang portrayed the spirit of Halloween and Mrs. H. Foster appeared as a Pilgrim school girl.

Mrs. P. Carr came out next as old Saint Nick and the months were finally all swept away by Father Time, played by Mrs. O. Cunningham.

Coordination and reservations for the luncheon were handled by Mrs. V. Reinstein, assisted by Mrs. L. Joyce, Mrs. J. Tunison and Mrs. A. Slusarchuk.

Birthday Cakes Decorate Table

Birthday cakes appropriately decorated for each month of the year set the scene for officers' wives luncheon.

The event was sposored by the ladies of department headquarters with Mrs. Thomas C. Sweet, chairman.

Mrs. Bob Edwards conducted the business meeting and welcomed two new comers, Mrs. James D. Williams and Mrs. Thomas A. Romano Jr.

Program Lifts Wives' Spirits

The Officer's Wives of the Infantry Board met recently for luncheon at the Main Officers Open Mess.

The theme for the day was "Out of the January Doldrums", and the decorations and program were designed to give feminine spirits a lift.

Miss Lee Revell was the speaker for the day, and gave a make-up demonstration. Mrs. George Griswold made announcements of interest to the group, and took "sign-ups" for Thrift Shop volunteers.

Air Medal for Valor

Sp6 Woodward J. Wright (R) is awarded an Air Medal with six clusters and V device for heroism while participating in aerial flight in Viet Nam. Making the award is Col. Jess W. Walls. Wright was cited for his assistance in the evacuation of a wounded U.S. Army sergeant. Wright volunteered to fly as co-pilot on an armed HU1B helicopter which escorted an unarmed ambulance helicopter to the evacuation area. Wright's helicopter made a series of low strafing maneuvers to draw gunfire away from the unarmed helicopter. During these maneuvers, he strafed the Viet Cong so furiously and accurately that he kept them involved in retaliating to his fire while the unarmed aircraft evacuated the wounded sergeant. Intelligence Gives Vision To U.S. Army in Combat

"The U. S. Army has the best equipment and the most modern firepower but would be blind on the battlefield without Intelligence," states Brig. Gen. John Norton.

It is the job of the chairman of The Infantry School's intelligence committee, Lt. Col. John D. Cunningham and his staff of four officers and one enlisted man, to provide the school's training in battlefield vision.

"The intelligence officer has a tough job," says Cunningham, "because he deals for the most part in elements of a notoriously variable nature; the weather, the enemy and the terrain."

The principal methods of instruction, according to Cunningham, are conference and practical exercise with the emphasis placed on practical exercise.

"The intelligence problems which we put our students through prepare them for dealing with command levels varying from the company to the division and enable them to engage in any tactical situation."

The intelligence committee presents instruction to infantry officer refresher classes, basic classes, officer candidates and career and associate career classes.

The career and associate career students are given one continuous tactical situation during their instruction blocks and have the basic fundamentals of intelligence integrated into the problem.

"This", says Cunningham, "gets away from the every day monotony of the classroom procedure. The student is forced to ask questions in order to solve the problem. In this way we introduce the material while at the same time give the student practical experience."

"Possibly the most interesting and unusual assignment I have ever received was as an Adviser in tactics and drill to King Saud's Royal Guard Regiment in Saudi Arabia."

When he is not supervising his classes he is continually seeking to improve and revise his committee's function.

"We are constantly working on better and more rapid means of making intelligence available to the commander. This is by no means the effort of a single man though. Our committee functions through the combined professional ability of every instructor on the staff," explained Cunningham.

35 Students Complete Instruction, Post Sergeants Among Graduates

Three Fort Benning sergeants are among 35 students graduated during the first two weeks of January by the Department of Nonresident Instruction at The Infantry School.

They are SSgt. Dennis W. Wick, Replacement Detachment sergeant for the 11th Air Assault Division who completed the Infantry officer career course; SSgt. Henry L. Guilbealt, a squad leader of the 3rd Plt., Co. A, 1st Bn., 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Bde., and SFC Billy J. Tippins, first sergeant of Co. C, 1st Bn., 23rd Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division, both of whom completed a precommission course.

An Infantry officer basic course, also included among those completed by the students, provides 160 hours of instruction for company grade officers. Its 18 subcourses cover such subjects as guerilla warfare, operations and Infantry weapons.

The career course, providing requirements for promotion to the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Reserves, is comprised of 42 subcourses. Among the subjects covered are air mobility, counterinsurgence, associate arms, battalion - brigade tactics, and division operations.

The precommission course, comprised of 220 hours of instruction in 19 subcourses, enables a student to meet the academic requirements for application for Reserve commission. Subjects include map reading, platoon tactics, weapons and leadership.

In addition to Sgt. Wick, students completing the career course include Capt. Frederick M. Schweiger; Maj. Arthur D. Koehne; Maj. Gus N. Taylor; Lt. Col. William E. Janosko; Maj. Ralph L. Allison; and Maj. Quentin L. Annan.

Capt. Joe W. Potts; Maj. Carl H. Todd; Capt. Frank M. Stafey Jr.; Lt. Col. James J. Hardy; and Capt. James F. Paul.

Precommission course graduates, in addition to Sgts. Tippins and Guilbealt, include Sp5 William H. Parker; Sgt. Theodore L. Shanklin; PFC Peter T. Warner; PFC Milton T. Wolf; SFC Charles Wright, MSgt. Walter G. Montenegro, SSgt. James A. Wells; Sp4 Edwin L. Fowler; and Sp6 Richard P. Hlumbert.

Sp4 John H. Paxton; Sp4 Richard Mayer; Sgt. James A. Lips; Sp5 Robert B. Tedstone; SFC George C. Twigger; and Sp5 Edward L. Warshaw.

Brig. Niazi Tours 197th

The 197th Infantry Bde. played host Monday to Brigadier Amir Abdullah Khan Niazi, commandant of the School of Infantry and Tactics, Pakistan, as he toured the units of the "Follow Me" brigade.

Col. Walter D. Short, acted as guide for the visit.

First stop on the tour was brigade headquarters where the brigade's mission was outlined.

Brigadier Niazi and his party proceeded to the 1st Bn., 29th Infantry where Lt. Col. William C. Hacker, battalion commander, briefed the brigadier on the mission, organization and capabilities of the 29th.

After a demonstration by the 26th Infantry Platoon (Scout Dog), the brigadier observed Co. A of the 29th in training.

Brigadier Niazi heard a briefing on the organization and mission of the 72nd Engineer Company (Combat) given by Capt. James H. Davis following a visit to the 10th Artillery Gun Park and Battery A of the 10th.

Settlement Is Reached In Claims

CHICAGO, Ill. (ANF) — Settlement has been reached with all but eight landowners who filed claims with the Army for property damages in connection with the U. S. Strike Command Exercise GOLD FIRE I.

The joint Army-Air Force exercise was held October 29 to November 13 over some million acres in south-central Missouri in the vicinity of Fort Leonard Wood.

Governor John M. Dalton of Missouri, said the Army honored its pledge to residents that damages would be fairly and justly compensated "in such a manner as to gain not only the confidence, but the whole-hearted respect of the public."

"Because of this and due to excellent conduct of participating military personnel," the Governor said, "I feel certain that the Army will be welcome in the future."

Awarded ACM

Col. Howard B. St. Clair, (L), former director, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, is congratulated by Brig. Gen. John Norton after being presented the Army Commendation Medal (Second Oak Leaf Cluster). Col. St. Clair was commended for outstanding service from Sept. 19, 1962, to Jan. 10, 1965. The colonel has been assigned to Viet Nam.

'No Man Is Born Great' Course 5 Graduate Told

"No man is born great and few men will attain the greatness of Winston Churchill," said Col. Tyron E. Tisdale, deputy chief, Tactics Group, Brigade and Battalion Operations, as he addressed 188 graduating lieutenants of Infantry Officers Basic Course 5 at George C. Marshall Auditorium.

"But the man who uses his natural endowments to their fullest extent will attain some measure of greatness," he added.

Col. Tisdale said there are three essential characteristics of a successful man, imagination, initiative and dedication — to think, to get started and to stick with it. This is true of the successful solder as well as men in any other walk of life.

The graduates, officers of the Regular Army, National Guard and Reserve, will be sent to 17 different Army posts in the United States and to six foreign countries. Among their number were Allied students from Liberia and Thailand.

Col. Tisdale congratulated distinguished honor graduate 2nd Lt. Charles D. Ebert and presented him with an engraved desk pen set and a letter of recognition signed by Brig. Gen. John Norton.

Army Awards Protective Mask Testing Contract

LOS ANGELES (AFPS)—An $830,000 contract has been awarded to a California firm to improve the Army's protective field mask.

Studies will be conducted on the masks' reliability, comfort and compatability with the soldier's other equipment.

Problems to be investigated by the contractor include the wearing of the mask for extended periods, eating and drinking while masked, leakage around seals and valves, accumulation of carben dioxide and other harmful by-products of normal breathing, fogging of lenses and eyepieces, and adaptability to resuscitation accessories.

Children Watch Dogs in Action During Studies

Some 60 elementary grade school children from Columbus, Ga., recently watched a demonstration of scout dogs and visited the Infantry Museum at Fort Benning as part of their civic and government studies.

The group, representing Rigdon Road and McElhenny Schools and accompanied by a number of teachers, also were taken to Lawson Army Airfield.

The children were told about the training of the animals assigned to the 26th Scout Dog Pl. of the 197th Inf. Bde. and watched them perform.

At the Infantry Museum, the group viewed old weapons and uniforms of the Infantry; medals and other items of history.

After leaving the museum the children went to Lawson Army Airfield where they watched C-119 aircraft and helicopters in action.

VIET NAM

Q. What are the chances of peace in Southeast Asia?

A. At the present they are remote. The North Vietnamese spearheads of aggression are supported by the Communist regime in Peking, which rules over 700 million people. Beyond its objective of conquering the South, North Viet Nam has indicated that it intends to master as much of Southeast Asia as it can. That is evident in Laos, where North Viet Nam supports the Communist Pathet Lao military force with men and equipment. However, the United States has made it clear that a prescription for peace does exist in Laos and Viet Nam. Secretary of State Dean Rusk has said all that is needed to restore peace in Southeast Asia is for the Communists to live up to agreements they have already made, and for them to stop their aggressions, go home and leave their neighbors alone.

Behind the scenes of the TEC Group's extensive briefing efforts on the Army's test and evaluation of air mobility is a well qualified and efficient crew headed by SFC Robert B. Beety.

An instructor in his own right, Sgt. Beety taught at the 8th Infantry Division NCO Academy in Baumholder, Germany in 1962. Prior to that he spent over 14 years in the 26th Infantry Regt., 1st Infantry Division.

After basic training in Marburg, Germany in the spring of 1947, Beety joined the "Big RED ONE". Among his duties with the division he was assigned to the War Crimes Trials at Nurnberg, Germany, while with the 3rd Bn., 26th Infantry Regt., in 1947 and rose to become operations sergeant, 1st Battle Group, 26th Infantry from 1959 to 1961. Of his 18 years of service he has spent 13 years overseas.

Born in 1927 Beety attended the Glyn Dwyr secondary school in Rhyl, North Wales, Great Britain.

During World War II he belonged to the Royal Welsh Fusilier Regiment in the British Army Cadet Corps. In 1946 he volunteered for service in the U. S. Armed Forces at Manchester, England.

He is an honor graduate of the 26th Infantry NCO Academy in Bamberg. He is also a graduate of the U. S. Army Information School at Fort Slocum, N. Y., the Seventh Army NCO Academy, Bad Tolz, Germany and the U. S. Army Europe Hunting Instructors Couse at Berchtesgaden, Germany.

Other members of Beety's family who were in the military service were his father who served in the Royal Canadian Engineers during World War I and his brother who was in the Royal Air Force and later in the U. S. 8th Air Force in Europe during World War II.

Beety is married to the former Muriel A. Brothwell of Sheffield, England. The couple has two children, Norrel, 14, and Malcom 8.

AFMA Group Hears Talk By Dr. Shaw

In teaching, which is the most important business in the world, there is more to do than give instruction, 55 members of the Armed Forces Management Association were told.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting in the Custer Terrace Branch of MOOM was Dr. William Henry Shaw, superintendent of the Muscogee County (Ga.) Schools.

"Parents send their children to us for the greatest portion of their waking hours," the educator said.

Referring to the Infantry School motto, "Follow Me," Dr. Shaw told the story of how Christ used those words when he spoke to fishermen beside the sea of Galilee.

"Our young people are learning from, and following the lead of our teachers," he added. "We are trying to do as fine a job with our young people as The Infantry School is doing with its student."

"The Muscogee County School system is now the second largest single employer in the county, ranking next to Fort Benning," he said.

Upper Volta Officials Slate Visit

Four officers from Upper Volta (Northwest Africa) will arrive at Fort Benning Sunday to observe methods of training employed by The Infantry School.

Under the direction of 1st Lt. Namoano C. Koubidempo, commander of the Infantry Company, Upper Volta, they will see methods of Infantry training, techniques of instructing, training aid handling and production, maintenance of vehicles and weapons, field firing and practical problems.

The visitors are from the newly formed Republic of Upper Volta, which became independent Aug. 5, 1960, after having been a member state of the French Community since Dec. 11, 1958. Upper Volta became a member of the United Nations Sept. 20, 1960.

River Crossing Problem Changed From Pond to Chattahoochee Site

A contradiction in terms was corrected recently when the site of the River Crossing Techniques problem was changed from Victory Pond to the Bradley Landing site on the Chattahoochee River.

The site affords a more realistic background for the problem with its river banks and currents.

The demonstration — in which the 1st Bn (Mech.), 58th Infantry; 4th Bn., 69th Armor; 183rd Chemical Plt. (Smoke Generator); 2nd Bn., (Composite), 10th Artillery; and the 72nd Engineer Co. participate — is put on several times a year for students of The Infantry School.

The three major types of river crossing techniques demonstrated are, hasty or expedient crossing, planned or deliberate crossing and foot bridge crossing.

Means of hasty river crossing include the use of air mattresses, Australian rafts, brush rafts, and a raft made from 55-gallon drums topped with tree trunks. This latter raft is capable of carrying a jeep with a two-man crew.

A final hasty means of crossing is to tow the jeep trailer across the river with a line attached to the preceding jeep.

A deliberate or planned river crossing uses marine type crossing crafts such as the three - man reconnaissance boat, plastic crash assault boats, and armored personnel carriers hidden under a smoke screen (created by two smoke generators mounted on an assault boat).

The men of the 72nd Engineer Co. (Combat) demonstrate foot - bridge crossings by constructing, in five minutes or less, a foot bridge for troop crossings. Pontoons are linked to form a raft with enough displacement to carry a jeep with trailer and crew. The light tactical raft made from larger pontoons can carry a two and one-half ton truck with a towed 155-mm Howitzer gun and crew.

The M4T6 raft is capable of carrying an M-60 tank or a five ton van.

Brigade Hosts Lt. Col. Qatlan During Tour

The 197th Infantry Bde played host Tuesday to Lt. Col. Abdallah Qatlan, commandant of the Airborne School, Saudi Arabia as he toured the 197th's 2nd Bn. (Composite), 10th Artillery.

Lt. Col. John K. Roberts Jr., 197th executive officer, acted as guide for the visit.

First stop on the tour was brigade headquarters where Capt. Dahlan G. Doyen, brigade assistant S-3, outlined the mission of the 197th, which is supoort of instruction at The Infantry Center and School.

'See Here Private Hargrove' Let's Get With the Program

"See here Private Hargrove! Let's get with the program." This familiar phrase isn't taken from the World War II bestseller, "See Here Private Hargrove," but is part of the everyday life of a post soldier.

In one respect, Pvt. Christopher Hargrove merits the connection, frequently made in jest, with the comical, one-man snafu. . .his father is Marion Hargrove, accomplished author of the humorous book based on his own military experiences while stationed at Fort Bragg, N.C.

Before entering the Army, Chris, a native of New York City attended Stanford University. While at the university, he was a part - time broadcast technician with the campus radio station, KZSU. His pursuit of higher education took him to Stanford's branch in Tours, France.

Since becoming a soldier, he has written many letters describing his military life to his father, who is preparing a television scries based on his book. Chris said the letters may be used to provide some ideas for the series.

Assigned to the radio-television section of the Infantry Center public information office at Fort Benning, Chris works as an announcer. Looking to the future, he plans to return to Stanford after leaving the Army, eventually to become a newsman with an assignment abroad.

'There's No Sales Talk' Says TSB Re-Up Sergeant

A large poster of a shapely French woman hangs on the wall of The Student Brigade Reenlistment Office. On it is printed the word FRANCE, evoking visions of Paris and the Seine or the sunny beaches of the Riviera — an attractive picture to any red-blooded American male.

However, according to SSgt. Robert Anderson, one of the office's two reenlistment NCOs, most Army men reenlist for school options or specialty training.

Among major units of The Infantry Center, TSB has netted top honors in reenlistment - rate competition for the first two quarters of Fiscal Year 1965.

The brigade has scored reenlistment rates of 81 per cent in the first quarter and 64 per cent in the second quarter among all those eligible to "re-up."

What's the secret? "There's no sales talk," says Anderson.

"You just tell the man what is available to him if he reenlists." He added, "You'd be surprised to learn how many men are misled on reenlistment opportunities by 'barracks lawyers'".

"Our career counseling objective," said SFC Gene L. Richmond, senior career counselor, "is to retain for the Army a maximum number of highly trained and skilled personnel."

Reenlistment options are determined by the individual's choice and the Army's need.

Therefore close contact is maintained with the Department of the Army, where a listing of current school openings and unit personnel shortages is kept.

Response to requests for openings in Army schools is fast. Normally, an individual can know within two days if he has been accepted and placed in a class of his choice.

Although most EM reenlist for Army schools or specialty training, reenlistment for present duty assignments or placement in overseas units also weigh heavily in re-up decisions.

The office is usually 85 cent successful in securing the choices desired by potential reenlistees.

Reenlistment opportunities are greatest for first term enlistees and draftees, says Anderson.

The office also solves many individual problems concerning qualification training or schools by arranging for retesting or processing of waivers.

Chilean Academy Officers Receive Orientation Tour

Eighteen officers from the Chilean War Academy were given a general briefing by members of The Infantry School staff and taken on an extensive tour of Fort Benning activities during their two-day orientation tour last week.

The schedule was designed to acquaint the visitors with methods of instruction used in the classroom and in the field to produce skilled and efficient combat-ready Infantrymen.

During their stay at the Post, Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges told the Chilean officers, "Your visit here, like that of other groups from South America, including the annual Conference of American Armies, emphasizes the importance which our countries place on mutual understanding and hemispheric solidarity as vital elements in the defense of freedom."

"We have close feelings of relationship with our South American neighbors," the general said. "We feel that we are all in one group with you and we are sincere in this feeling. We are honored that you have taken time to visit with us at The Infantry School."

Gen. Heintges remarked that the visitors should know how we train the best weapon in our Army, "the individual soldier."

"We have a feeling of assurance that no matter how sophisticated our weapons system becomes, the individual soldier, with his two feet on the ground is/the one who we depend on to win wars," the general said.

Bengal Raiders Observe Rangers During Tour

The Bengal Raiders, a student Ranger organization from Louisiana State University Army ROTC program, toured Fort Benning earlier in the week to observe and participate in Ranger training at The Infantry School.

The Bengal Raiders participated in ranger activities in addition to their regular ROTC training.

The majority of the Raiders are in their junior and senior years of college, advanced ROTC, and are involved in a vigorous program of training which include patrolling, map reading, compass reading, hand-to-hand combat, first-and self-aid, and survival.

Six TEC Group Men Presented Army Medals

Three Air Medals and four Army Commendation Medals were presented to personnel of the Test, Evaluation and Control Group (Project TEAM) here last week.

Maj. Odie E. Biggs, was awarded the Air Medal and Army Commendation Medal for his work in Viet Nam.

Capt. Emmett A. Faulk received the 12th Oak Leaf cluster to the Air Medal for valor in Viet Nam and CWO John S. Tulloch earned a first and second oak leaf cluster to his Air Medal for his work in Viet Nam.

SSgt. Donald S. Myers was presented the ACM for the job he turned in while at Fort Campbell, Ky.

Sps Charles P. Brownlee and Charles E. Lewis both received ACMs for their work in Viet Nam.

All awards were presented by Brig. Gen. Robert R. Williams.

'Caesar' Symbolizes 69th Armor Mission Through Its Long History of Loyal Service

Caesar, the 4th Bn., 69th Armor mascot, is an M-3A1 tank which — through its long history of service — symbolizes the mission of the 69th support of Infantry Schools problems and demonstrations.

Though it has never been in actual combat, Caesar has been used for training purposes since it first arrived at Fort Benning during the early 1940's.

Weighing 15 tons and built in the 1930's, Caesar is something of a conversation piece with its 37-mm gun and two 30 caliber guns and tracks which can be reversed when one side wears out.

On the base of the turret, the men of the 69th have painted the World War II and Korean Conflict campaign credits in which the unit participated.

Making its home on a cement base in front of the battalion headquarters at Harmony Church, Caesar is still used during special school problems and in 197th Infantry Bde., of which the 69th is a unit, parades.

Originally assigned to the 3rd Division when that unit was stationed at Fort Benning, Caesar narrowly escaped the salvage yard when the 3rd went overseas.

Interested observers found a place for the tank in The Infantry School Museum where it remained for several years when a lack of display room once again threatened Caesar with annihilation.

Two companies of the 58th Infantry once again saved Caesar from becoming 15 tons of scrap metal, and, put the machine back in action, dubbed it Caesar and adopted it as their mascot.

When these two companies were released from the 58th and formed into the reactivated 4th Bn., 69th Armor, then battalion commander Col. William T. Vanatten requested that Caesar be brought with them.

Caesar has remained with the 69th ever since and has acquired a new nine-cylinder engine which was secured by 1st Lt. Charles W. Ruple from the Anniston Army Depot in Alabama when the old 7 cylinder engine gave out.

Lt. Col. Edwin J. McCarren, current battalion commander, has issued a request that anyone knowing of spare parts for Caesar should contact the battalion sergeant major.

President's Message Cites Increased Manpower; Congress Told Military Is at Top Peacetime Level

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The United States' military might is at its strongest peak in peacetime history, but the challenge to this strength is unceasing, President Johnson told Congress in his defense message.

Citing increases in military manpower and equipment over the past four years, the President also noted that the largest pay increases in our history had taken place during that period.

"To insure that the pay of military personnel, and indeed of all Government employees, retains an appropriate relation to the compensation of other elements of our society, we will review their pay annually. The procedures for this review will be discussed in my budget message," the President stated.

He pointed out that through a rigorous cost reduction program amd many needed changes and increases in our military force structure, he forsees a "leveling off" in military spending in the future.

To meet U. S. military commitments around the world, President Johnson recommended a wide range of actions, including:

A request for more than $300 million to continue a program of extending the life and improving the capabilities of the B-52 strategic bomber; continuing deployment of the SR-71, the world's fastest airplane; development of the C-5A cargo transport; construction of fast-deployment cargo ships; an increase in the number of forward floating depot ships and large-scale procurement of the swept-wing F-111 and the new A-7 Navy attack aircraft.

"We will also begin construction of four new nuclear-powered attack submarines and 10 new destroyer escorts," the President added. "And we will continue to develop a much smaller, more efficient nuclear power plant for possible use in our future aircraft carriers."

Supporting his statement on the strength of U. S. military forces, the President pointed out that:

Strategic nuclear power on alert has increased threefold in four years; tactical nuclear power has been greatly expanded; forces have been made as versatile as the threats to peace are various; ready Army divisions have been increased by 45 percent; the Marine Corps has been increased by 15,000 men; our airlift capacity has been doubled and tactical Air Force firepower has increased 100 percent.

The President also told Congress that the United States now has more than 850 land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles, more than 300 nuclear-armed missiles in Polaris submarines and more than 500 strategic bombers, making our strategic retaliatory forces "superior — in number and in quality — to those of any other nation."

MTU Marksmen Beaten by Air Force Team In Sectional Indoor Pistol Championship

BY LEE LA COMBE

Smallbore rifle records fell like bowling pins last week at the Registered Gallery Rifle Tournament co - sponsored by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club and the U.S. Military Forces International Team Alumni.

In three days of intensive firing, Army, Air Force and Marine Corps shooters set 18 national records and 21 new service standards.

The soldiers accounted for 16 open records and 19 service records.

Capt. John R. Foster won the individual aggregate in a close battle with Olympic champion 1st Lt. Lones Wigger. Both officers are from the Army Marksmanship Training Unit.

The two tied with 5,856 points apiece, but Foster was awarded first place on the basis of a higher off - hand aggregate. His total was 1,671 to 1,669 for Wigger.

Foster participated in eight team matches in which new marks were set and accounted for one new national and one new service record.

Wigger Sets Record

Wigger shot on seven record-setting teams, established one new national record, tied another and set two new service standards.

M.Sgt. William Krilling, MTU, broke a pair of national records, tied another, set a sevice record and shot on four record-setting teams.

Krilling's biggest effort was the Iron Sight aggregate in which he smashed the old record by five points. He compiled a 797 total. The old mark was 792.

Capt. Presley Kendall, MTU, was on five record-setting teams, set one national record and tied another.

The team of Kendall, Wigger, Krilling and Foster accounted for four separate records. All national records automatically became new service records.

The complete list of results with old records in parenthesis:

20 shots, prone and sitting: Kendall, MTU, 200 plus 127 tens (200 plus 76).

20 shots sitting: Wigger, MTU, 200 plus 100 tens (200 plus 63).

30 shots, three-position: Wigger, MTU, 298 (service record 282).

Two-man team, 40-shots, four-position: Sgt. Martin Gunnarsson and Lt. Dennis Diagman, MTU, 792 (788).

Two-man team, 20 shots, three positions: Wigger and Foster, MTU 598 (589).

Two-man team, 40 shots, two-position: Gunnarsson and Foster, MTU, 797 (791).

20-shots, prone and kneeling: M. Sgt. William Krilling, MTU, 200 plus 36 tens (200 plus eight).

20 shots, kneeling: Krilling, MTU, 200 plus 14 tens (200 plus 2).

40 shots, four-position: PFC Dave Kimes, MTU, 388 (387).

20 shots, standing: Krilling and Kendall, MTU, 198 (198).

Four-man team, 40 shots, four-position: Wigger, Kendall, Foster, Krilling, MTU, 1,582 (1,561).

Four-man team, 20 shots, three-position: Wigger, Kendall, Foster, Krilling, MTU, 1,198 (1,177).

Four-man team, 40 shots, two-position: Wigger, Kendall, Foster, Krilling, MTU, 1,584 (1,565).

Four-man team, 20 shots, two-position: Wieger, Kendall, Foster, Krilling, MTU, 1585 (1,573).

Four-man team, 30-shot, three-position: Wigger, Kendall, Foster, Krilling, MTU, 1,194 (1,187).

Two-man team, 30 shots, four-position: Sgt D. I. Boyd and Sgt Ray Green, Marine Corps, and Foster and Wigger, MTU, 795 (794).

30 shots, three position: Boyd, Marine Corps, and Wigger, MTU, 298 (no-service record 296).

20 shots, prone and sitting: Krilling, MTU, 200 plus 133 tens (200 plus 18 old service record).

20 shots, prone and kneeling: Foster, MTU, 200 plus 99 tens (200 plus 61 old service records).

Wins Individual Title

Post Club Sets Pistol Tourney This Weekend

The first outdoor, three-gun tournament of the year will be held by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club this weekend, Thomas Kirkman, club secretary, said this week.

A 900-point aggregate with the .22 caliber, center fire and .45 caliber pistols will be shot Saturday. Firing Sunday will be with the Service Pistol and team matches with all four guns.

Expected to compete in the weekend event are national champion SFC William B. Blankenship Jr., of the Army's Marksmanship Training Unit, and Capt. Sallie Carroll, current women's national champ, who is presently stationed here.

WAC Players Come Out Even After 2 Games

The WAC basketball team came out even after a weekend doubleheader played Saturday and Sunday against the Fort Gordon WAC team.

The first game was won 37-36 by Fort Benning, while Fort Gordon took the second game by 46-42. Earline Surles was high scorer for the post with a total of 33 points for the two games. Fort Gordon's Phyllis Rodrigues tallied 37 points in the series.

The two teams compete again on Feb. 6-7 at Fort Gordon.

'Little Doughboys' Team Challenges Boy's Club

The "Little Doughboys" will clash with a Phenix City Boy's Club basketball quintet at 5:30 p.m. Sunday in Brant Wells Field House.

The game will be a preliminary attraction to the tilt between Hazel Walker's "Arkansas Travelers" and the 1st Bn., CTC team.

Phenix City, in its first outing of the season, goes up against a home team with a 4-2 mark. The "Little Doughboys" have come out on top over Trinity Junior High School (Columbus) twice, the South Columbus Boy's Club "All-Stars" and the Smiths Station Frosh. They suffered two-point defeats at the hands of the Opelika (Ala.) Recreational Center "All-Stars" and the Smiths Station club.

The "Little Doughboys" is an independent team for boys 14 years of age and under, coached by L. E. Plowman and Tom St. Clair. They play against high school freshmen, Boy's Clubs, and Youth Activity Club (YAC) teams from other installations.

The Army has won the team title in this match the past two years, but the team record is held by the Air Force.

The Air Force anchor man, SSgt. Al Merx, was responsible for deciding the team battle. Out of his ten last shots, he needed a perfect score and seven hits in the x-ring.

Merx Decides Match

He fired the perfect score and nestled seven shots within the small circle to give the men in blue the title.

Firing members of the Air Force team were: TSgt. Berrard Stolman, 295-11; Sgt. Herman Crump, 293-11; Sgt. Johnny Mahan, 289-12, and Merx with a 294-13.

Shooting on the runner-up Army team were: SFC Ralph O. Thompson, 297-13; Sgt. Merriweather Jones, 288-8; Blankenship, 296-12, and Snavely, 291-11.

Girls Will Demonstrate Basketball With Finesse

Hazel Walker's Arkansas Travelers, an all-female basketball team, will display its finesse on the courts at 7:30 p.m. Sunday when they take on the 1st Bn., CTC team at Briant Wells Field House.

The team was organized in 1949 with three main objectives — entertainment, showmanship and top-notch basketball. They will display these essentials during the game.

The club thrives on expert basketball but mixes enough shenanigans and trickery to provide plenty of entertainment.

They play only men's teams and under men's rules. During the past season they played a total of 220 games and won 201 of them.

Miss Walker attributes the girls' success to their "tip-top" physical conditions. They have learned the art of relaxing under pressure, a test of true ability," she added.

Although they perform night after night and often in doubleheaders, the Travelers never appear weary. They stage their whirlwind show with enthusiasm and skill for six months a 'year in towns throughout the country.

They produce a brand of basketball not available every day. Don't miss them. Stadium.

Engineers and 29th Inf. Share Lead As CTC Gives 58th Inf. Its 4th Loss

By Frank L. Lombardi

Undaunted by a one point defeat which edged them out of a three-way tie for first place, the 1st Bn., CTC squad retaliated Monday night by handing the 58th Inf. team its fourth straight loss (83-74).

The change in The Infantry Center battalion level basketball league standings occurred last Wednesday night when the 577th Engineers squeaked by with a 67-66 total over CTC.

Up to then, first place in the league was shared by CTC, the 577th and 29th Inf. Now the top-notch is a toss-up between the 577th and the 29th, both with a 3-0 record under their belts.

CTC is still in the race, however, and is in second place with a 3-1 record. Third place honors are being fought over by the 10th Artillery and 428th Med. Bn. teams, both have won two and lost one.

In Monday's game, the superior rebounding talents of CTC was the decisive factor in keeping a fast - shooting 58th team to a low score.

In the first half, CTC's Bob Morgan and Larry Littlejohn netted half of a total 36 rebounds. Hank Kersman also did well under the boards for CTC and ended the game with a total of 21 rebounds and 11 points.

The 58th quintet suffered a height disadvantage and only managed to pull down 9 rebounds in the second half to CTC's 28.

Despite this, the Infantry squad led for the first five minutes of the game and after losing the lead never let CTC get more than a 14 point advantage. CTC's shooters never relinquished their lead throughout the remainder of the game.

Don Sosebee of the Infantrymen was the high - scoring player in the game, netting 23 points, and was backed up by speedy C.B.O. Ralston with 15 points.

High man for CTC was Littlejohn with 14, who outdistanced sharp - shooting Carl Seldon by three points.

In shooting percentages, CTC made 70 attempts and completed 31 for a 44.2 per cent total, while the 58th tried 81 times and bagged 28 for a 34.5 per cent tally.

Both teams committed more than their share of personal fouls, but CTC was more effective from the free—throw line, sinking more than half their charity shots.

Each team in the battalion league plays nine games during each half. CTC sewed up the first half championship with a 9-1 record. The winner of the second half will play CTC for the USAIC championship. If CTC manages to win the second half title, they will automatically get the league honors.

Pantomime Repertoire

The high cost of theater tickets and the remoteness of Broadway won't prevent post personnel from glimpsing New York's top musicals Sunday at Service Club No. 1 when PFC Larry McMahan performs his one-man show entitled, "Our Man on Broadway."

McMahan a clerk - typist with the 1st Bn., 29th Infantry's S-3 section, will begin his hour-long performance in the main ballroom at 7 p.m.

He will dance and mime to songs from original cast recordings of such musicals as "Funny Girl," "High Spirits," "Fade Out, Fade In," "Hello, Dolly" and "Golden Boy."

Assisting McMahan in "Our Man on Broadway" are: Tony Giordano, who will read the narration; Ingo Ortamunder, who will act as head technician, and Victor Prothet, who will be in charge of sound.

NEW "LIGHT" COLONEL
(L to R) Cols. Perpich and Grimes

In Memoriam

It is with deep regret that we of the 2nd Infantry Division learn of the passing of one of the greatest leaders of this century, Winston Churchill.

His unflinching will and genius for leadership were instrumental to allied victory in both the first and second world wars. On both occasions, 2nd Division soldiers fought along side their British counterparts to a victory inspired in large measure by Churchill's example.

We salute this noble and courageous leader.

Grimes Makes Colonel During DivArty FTX

Lt. Col. John R. Grimes, commander of the 1st Battalion, 12th Artillery, was promoted to his present rank during a field exercise last week.

According to Grimes, who commands the 2nd Division's only Honest John rocket Battalion, the promotion came as "quite a surprise".

While moving the 12th into position during the DivArty Field Training Exercise, he received a message by radio to report to headquarters immediately.

When he reached the headquarters tent, he was informed of his promotion and presented with the silver leaves of a lieutenant colonel by artillery Commander Col. Tony F. Perpich.

He left his home in Milledgeville, Ga. to join the Army over 20 years ago. His life since that time reads like a map of the world including

'Most Impressive Show' Label Put on Brigade Do

BY JIM LULL

In what was termed by many as the most impressive show ever staged by a single brigade in the history of the 2nd Divison, the 1st Brigade held a full-sized review and awards ceremony last Friday.

The ceremony began promptly at 2:00 p.m., when Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, assistant division commander arrived at Wetherby Field.

The general was greeted by 1st Brigade commander, an 11-gun salute signalled the start of formalities.

Following the opening, the general and Snow trooped the line.

Highlighting the awards ceremony was the presentation of the Bronze Star Medal to Capt. Donald C. Chunn, assistant brigade adjutant. He was cited for outstanding meritorious service in connection with ground operations against a "hostile force" in Viet Nam from February to June last spring.

The combat veteran next accepted the Air Medal (8th, 9th and 10th Oak Leaf Clusters) for service as part of a sustained aerial flight in support of combat ground forces in Viet Nam from April to June last year.

Commander of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry, Lt. Col. Strathmore K. McMurdo, was given the Army Commendation Medal for "meritorious service" during the period July 1960 to October 1963, while serving in the Office of the Chief of Research and

Fighting Shape Intensified From Equipment Standpoint

Second Division Officials are shouting about combat preparedness in a new drive to promote equipment care.

Views on this subject are contained in a six-page form handed down recently by the Division Adjutant General office.

This and an earlier message demonstrate officials' com's new and keen interest in battle posture.

The normal spearhead of the maintenance program is the junior assistant division commander, Brig. Gen. Edmund L. Mueller. While he is on special assignment in Washington, such chores fall to the senior assistant, Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin.

Material readiness, the name it goes by for the current push, blows hot and cold although it is always a subject of interest.

The stated objective is changeless — to make combat readiness the chief aim in maintenance and supply operations.

The message underlines several areas.

Keep reports up to date, it cautions.

Develop in your soldiers, commanders are told, an interest in their job, machinery, equipment, vehicles, etc. Reward those who excel.

Take materiel readiness into account in all plans, the message urges. Inspect faithfully.

Begin whatever training programs are necessary to raise the condition of your equipment to acceptable standards, is the message's final admonition.

Division AG Gets Major For Assistant

A man recently returned from the war in Vietnam this month became the assistant to 2nd Infantry Division Adjutant General Maj. Thomas M. Leahy.

Maj. Richard G. Beath, 40, spent a year in Southeast Asia as personnel (G-1) ad-

Second Infantry Division men completed a tactical march to garrison late Thursday afternoon, ending the year's first field problem — "Exercise Winter Sun."

Some 3,000 men participated in the command post exercise on the Fort Benning Reservation, directed by Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, assistant division commander.

In the three - day maneuver heavy emphasis was placed on communications and reaction to commands.

Maneuver Scene

Gen. Coffin fictionally placed the scene of the maneuver in North and South Carolina. But controllers allowed decisions of the participating commanders to determine the course of play for Winter Sun.

A covey of six Air Force Phantom II jets laced the ground forces with numerous attacks. And, as a bonus, senior officers, including the commanding general, Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, rode behind the Air Force pilots.

"Proud"

"I wish that everyone had an opportunity to fly in the F4C (Phantom II)," Gen. Chiles said. "It makes you proud of the Air Force."

Gen. Coffin said the heavy air play "impressed" the troops and gave commanders a chance to "see for themselves," the vulnerability of ground forces to aerial attack.

On the second day of the problem orders came to attack and move to a fictitious point placed 40 miles distant and link-up with a division of parachute troops which had dropped behind "enemy" lines.

As the Infantry troops advanced, artillerymen simulated support firing.

Link-up and Exchange

"Before the link-up, we simulated exchanging liaison officers with the airborne unit. Common signs of recognition and link-up points were designated," said Col. William Conges, division operations officer. "After the Exercise Winter Sun produced a varied collection of sights and sounds.

Accolades went to the 2nd Military Police Company and the 2nd Medical Battalion for "excelling" in camouflaging their encampment areas.

Before the maneuver began, one officer, two commissioned officers and a radio operator from each combat battalion and an officer and a noncom from each support battalion spent a day learning how to be controllers.

Gen. Robert E. Coffin, the assistant division commander serving as maneuver director, said he found some problems in traffic control.

"Some bottle necks developed," he said. "There was some evidence of convoys jamming up as they entered their positions of occupation."

Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, the division commander, described communications as "the most important element in field operation."

"S2 (battalion intelligence) S3 (battalion operation) and commo officers must be buddies," he said.

The general recalled an incident during the fighting at the Battle of the Bulge in World War II:

"Our unit maintained it's communications and survived. An adjacent unit

Testing of candidates for the Expert Infantryman's Badge will be completed today. For two weeks now, infantrymen from the 2nd Division and Fort Benning have been going through rigorous testing for the slim blue and silver mark of the expert. Editorial:

The Liveliest Nerve

A five-paragraph message issued here recently by 2nd Division officials touches on the Army's liveliest nerve today — money.

"The Army Cost Reduction Program and related programs continue to receive increasing emphasis at all levels of command in the Army" is the official phraseology.

Why the acute concern? It can be traced exclusively to the man in the White House and behind him, the voter.

Lyndon Baines Johnson assumed the Presidency in November 1963 already committed to a massive social program requiring large sums of money.

To assuage voter unease in the coming election, and partly due to senatorial reflex, Johnson trimmed fat off existing operations.

He has now launched a crusade against the ancient social demons on an even grander scope than his predecessor. To finance his ventures, Johnson will reduce spending in other areas rather than gag the taxpayer on a budget he can't swallow.

Hard-eyed Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, whose department accounts for half of the budget, believes he can aid his chief by disciplining his sometimes fiscally unruly children, the Army included.

Some men look at a steer grazing in a field and see sirloin steak. Johnson and McNamara view waste in the Defense Department as potential textbooks, hospitals, cultural centers, etc.

Returning to the letter distributed here over the 2nd Division chief of staff's signature, it boils down to this:

Cost cutting is popular now and getting more so.

The Army Cost Reduction Program, the formal name, is particularly applicable to the 2nd Division in the area "related to operations."

The G-4, as the local savings program chief, has the task of keeping spending records and reporting to "higher headquarters."

The guide to savings directs the Army to kill unnecessary jobs, make better use of resources, instill in soldiers the need for nursing their equipment and return extra supplies and equipment.

Commanders and troopers alike are urged to give full cooperation to the War on Waste. The chief of staff asks "Indianheads" to show "initiative and ingenuity" in devising ways to cut cost without undermining the 2nd Division's strength.

Chaplain's Assistant Agrees to New Hitch

"I, Ernest Nicodemus Colden, do hereby acknowledge to have voluntarily enlisted. . ."

In this formal language Sp6 Colden of the 2nd Division chaplain's section took the oath to begin his 16th year of Army service.

Colden was reenlisted by the division chaplain, (Lt Col.) James C. Carroll, whose new orders send him to the select Army War College in July.

Colden's wife, Catherine, and stepdaughter, Mrs. Virginia Pruitt, watched as the chaplain's assistant raised his right hand to repeat the brief oath.

Colden began his Army career in 1949, although he had not decided it was a career until 1953 when he attended the Army chaplains school.

As a civilian active in the church, Colden had wanted to "see the world" as a pullman porter.

"Ernie is first in the office in the morning and the last one home at night," Father Carroll commented to the small group before the ceremony. "He gives 100 per cent to the Army, and I'm proud to reenlist him."

Afterwards, Colden expressed his regards for the chaplains and work he will leave in March for an assignment with the Seventh Army in Europe.

He came to the 2nd Division, his first time with such an organization, in June, 1961. Before that he had been a chaplain's assistant in the Artillery and Ordnance branches.

Big Guns Boom As Arty Drills

The massed might of the 2nd Infantry Division's artillery moved to the field last week on a three-day training exercise.

The men of DivArtry, almost 1600 in number, were sharpening their skill with the "big guns" as they went through the three-day live five exercise.

One spokesman said that almost all the elements of the heavy weapons units went to the field. They took with them all their armaments including the eight-inch howitzers and Honest John rockets, the largest artillery weapons the Army has today.

Actual Combat

The exercise required the men to erect a camouflaged "Tent City." From here operated scores of radios, telephones, typewriters and computers as fire missions were taken, computed and logged with all the realism of actual combat.

Time was taken from the three-day practice war to promote Maj. John R. Grimes to lieutenant colonel.

Col. Tony Perpich, DivArtry commander, pinned the silver leafed rank insignia on the commander of the 12th Artillery Battalion in a surprise ceremony outside his command tent.

Most of the Artillery officers were present at the ceremony.

Says Best Mess Found at B, Engrs

It was announcer Friday that Company B of the 2nd Engineer Battalion has the 2nd Infantry Division's best mess for the month of January.

In winning the honor the company compiled a score of 89 percent, four points above the average of the six competing mess halls.

Headquarters and Company A of the 702nd Maintenance Battalion was runner-up in the best mess competition.

The other mess halls considered in the final judging belonged to Battery B, 37th Artillery, Headquarters Company, 1st Brigade, Headquarters Company, 2nd Infantry Division, and Company B, 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry.

DID YOU KNOW

That the 2nd Infantry Division's 122nd Signal Battalion shares the honor of holding the most campaign streamers and decorations? The 122nd Signal Battalion and the 123rd Signal Battalion of the 3rd Infantry Division, both hold 33 campaign streamers and decorations.

Numbers May Strain Wetherby's Capacity as 3rd Brigade Marches

By BYRON DUNHAM

The vast empty field labelled "Wetherby Field" will barely contain celebrants and spectators witnessing the 3rd Brigade's birthday review, to be held next Friday at 3 p.m.

Staged by the brigade's NCO's, the gigantic public spectacle heralds the unit's second anniversary since ROAD brought an end to its 24-year disappearing act.

Six colorful events include the massing of colors, formation of troops, presentation of the command, inspection of the command, presentation of awards, and march in review climaxed by a flyover by two L-19 airplanes and two OH-13 helicopters.

"Officers"

"Reviewing officers" are Sgt. Maj. Robert L. Brown, 2nd Infantry Division sergeant major, and Sgt. Maj. James L. Runyon, 3rd Brigade sergeant sergeant major.

Commander of troops is Sgt. Maj. Barnard E. Bentfield of the 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor.

With unsheathed bayonets fixed to shouldered rifles, the troops will be clad in woolen "OG's," camouflaged helmets and branch scarves of blue, yellow red, and black.

March Units

Participating units include: Headquarters Company, 3rd Brigade; 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry; 1st and 2nd Battalions, 72nd Armor; 7th Battalion, 17th Artillery; Company C, 2nd Engineer Battalion; and 2nd Infantry Division Band.

The 3rd Brigade is the only brigade in the 2nd Division to serve during World War I, at which time it was widely known as "The Racehorse Brigade."

Reactivated in 1963 under Col. Lucien F. Keller, the 3rd Brigade's modern motto is "Tried, Tough, Tenacious," and its symbol is the fox, related to the unit's starring role in widely publicized 2nd Division counterguerilla manuevers Swamp Fox, at Fort Stewart, Ga., and Highland Fox in North Carolina.

First Birthday

Celebrating its first birthday under Col. John K. Walker, the brigade is presently commanded by Col. John W. Armstrong.

A spokesman, SFC Bobby Forester, stated that this is the first review since the brigade's reactivation entirely written and staged by the NCO's, unassisted by the officers.

The public is cordially invited to attend. Refreshments will be served on the field following the aerial flyover.

FOR YEARS OF SERVICE—"THANKS" Gen. Coffin (L) and SFC Irizarry (R)

Capsule Review Terminates Army Careers of Nine Men

BY ART CHIEPPA

A miniature review at Marne Field, Sand Hill, climaxed retirement ceremonies and brought to a close the military careers of nine 2nd Division soldiers Friday.

Brig. Gen Robert E. Coffin, acting division commander in the absence of Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, thanked the men for their services and congratulated them for their achievements.

"The 2nd Division thanks you collectively and individually," he said. "You've left a proud division and you've left it proudly."

Heading the list of retirees were 1st Sgt. Elton E. Butler, Battery A, 12th Artillery, 1st Sgt. Thomas L. Russell, Battery A, 17th Artillery and SFC Murray U. Collins of Company D, 2nd Engineer Battalion.

Others honored were SFC Connie G. Faukner, Battery B, 37th Artillery, SFC Luther A. Gunter, Battery A, 37th Artillery, SFC Miguel A. Irizarry, Company A, 23rd Infantry, SSgt. Earnest J. Breeden, Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry, SSgt. James F. Meurer, Battery C, 17th Artillery and SSgt. Edward C. Wilson, Company A, 2nd Engineer Battalion.

The men, who officially leave the service Sunday, have all completed over 20 years of service.

"I join all the members of the 2nd Division in thanking this outstanding group for a wonderful job," the general said.

Maj. Thomas M. Leahy, division adjutant general, read aloud the retirement certificate at the ceremony as Gen. Coffin went down the ranks, personally congratulating each man.

S-2 Cited For Vietnam At Aviation

Capt. Eugene S. Capps, intelligence officer (S2) of the 2nd Infantry Division's 2nd Aviation Battalion, was cited recently for service in Vietnam.

He received an Oak Leaf Cluster to his Army Commendation at a meeting of the division's intelligence officers. Lt. Col. Earl Ingram, head of the division's intelligence force, made the presentation.

The medal went to Capps for tasks he performed in South East Asia between January and November of 1963, Col. Ingram said.

"For the performance of exceptionally meritorious service in support of the United States objectives in the counterinsurgency effort in the Republic of Vietnam," the citation read.

According to the citation, "he set an example that inspired his associates to strive for maximum achievement."

At the close of the intelligence briefing, Col. Ingram had the captain stand at attention in front of the group. The surprised captain listened to the citation and as Col. Ingram pinned the medal to his lapel, he commented, "this citation was written by a professional for a professional.

Capps is from Clayton, N. C.

New Exec For Support Christened

Exercise Winter Sun served as a 2nd Infantry Division christening for Lt. Col. John A. Hemphill.

He became Support Command's executive officer this week and immediately plunged into the command post exercise with the unit commander, Col. Fred O. Jackson.

Col. Hemphill came to the division from the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va., as a replacement for Lt. Col. Lloyd R. Cain who was ordered to Vietnam.

Before going to the staff college Hemphill served in the plans and operations section and, briefly, in the personnel section, of the joint services command in Alaska.

The 1951 West Point graduate served in Korea and wears several medals, including the bronze star, the distinguished service cross and purple heart.

He is ranger-trained and wears a senior parachutist's badge. In addition to the basic and advanced course for infantry officers, he has also attended the Air Command and Staff college at Maxwell Air Force Base.

Col. Hemphill is married and has five daughters.

Septuagenarian Returns to Outfit

A 70-year-old former member of the 12th Artillery returned last week for a visit.

Capt. Pell W. Foster Jr., commanded Battery B of the 12th Artillery in 1918, and stayed with the battery until its return to the U. S. in 1919.

Foster met with division commander Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles and division artillery commander Col. Tony F. Perpich.

He was given a tour of the 12th area and spent considerable time in the unit's museum. Later, the men of Battery B demonstrated the present armament, the Honest John Rocket.

Foster commented "If only we would have had that in 1918."

Assistant

visor to the South Vietnamese 5th Infantry.

"As far as U.S. personnel, I ran into some of the finest enlisted men and officers that I've ever had the good fortune to run into," he said. "Everyone is trying hard."

After service in World War II as a sergeant, Maj. Booth returned to West Virginia to become manager of a coal Mine. Then in 1948 he received a direct appointment and became a 2nd lieutenant in the infantry.

As an officer during the war in Korea he served in the adjutant general section of 8th Army headquarters and was on the staff of the United Nations peace delegation.

He has been awarded the bronze star and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Maj. Booth is married and is the father of two sons.

'Best Ball Ever,' Say Div Artillery Officers

The Artillery Officers of Fort Benning held their annual ball last Friday night at the Main Officers Open Mess.

Swelling the numbers at the MOOM last Friday night was the considerable contribution of the 2nd Infantry Division Artillery.

The entrance to the mess framed by artillery weapons of past and present and its interior decorated with artillery insignia, the officers club saw what was described by many as the "best artillery ball ever".

All general officers on Fort Benning were present and the highlight of the affair was the presentation of humourous certificates to Fort Benning commander Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges and 2nd Infantry Division Commander Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles.

The certificates making the generals "Honorary Stone Hurlers and Catapulters" (Artillerymen) were signed by "Chief Stone Hurler" Col. Tony F. Perpich, divarty commander, and presented after the dinner.

Entertainment after dinner was supplied by officers and their wives and dancing to the music of "The Chiefs", a dance band composed of members of the 2nd Infantry Division Marching Band rounded out the evening.

Slaine Gathers Ladies at Home

At their January coffee held recently, the ladies of the 12th Artillery were entertained by Mrs. Thomas Slaine.

Assisting her as hostess was Mrs. Robert Hasty. Delightful refreshments were served to about twelve ladies.

Welcomed into the 12th as newcomers were Mrs. Donald H. Noakly, Mrs. Warren M. Schaub and Mrs. Gregory Floyd.

Mrs. Thomas Ashe, who will be departing soon, was presented with a silver dish.

For the convenience of the working wives, the coffee was held in the evening.

Impressive

Cited as outstanding 1st Brigade Soldier of the Month was Sp4 Charles L. Gray, Company A, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry.

Along with the brigade certificate for January, Gray pocketed a ten-dollar check.

Marksmanship

The first place award for the outstanding rifle team in the brigade marksmanship competition was given to the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry.

Sgt. Gordon Eckenrode accepted a trophy on behalf of the team that was nosed out by Division Artillery for the division championship.

The trophy for first place in the brigade pistol team shootoff was given to Team One, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry, the same team that won the divison honors.

Sp4 Harold Amos next accepted the trophy for brigade winner in the automatic rifle team competition on behalf of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

Individual awards in the rifle, pistol and automatic rifle competition went to Sgt. Mickey McCoy, 2nd Bn., 9th Inf., SSgt. Charles Reese, Hq. Co. 1st Bde, and Sp4 Harold Amos and Pvt. Bill Kifen, 1st Bn. 23rd Inf., respectively.

In the unit and specialty awards, Gen. Coffin presented a plaque to Sgt. Maj. Jesse Easterwood of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry. The battalion was named the outstanding unit in the 1st Brigade for the month of December.

Engineer Ladies Meet at Pugh

The ladies of the 2nd Engineer Battalion held their January coffee at the home of Mrs. Joel Pugh, recently.

Mrs. Lon Denison and Mrs. Ulyss Hughes were co-hostesses.

A silver tray was presented as a farewell gift to Mrs. Ronald Hawley.

The door prize of a lovely tablecloth was won by Mrs. Albert Rushing.

Aviation Gets New S-2 Sergeant

Hard at work amid a cloud of pipe smoke and a cup of coffee is the 2nd Aviation Battalion's new intelligence sergeant, SSgt. Gilbert McCollough. Working in the S-2 section, McCollough is kept busy with the maps and security work of the battalion.

Before joining the aviation unit, McCollough spent 13 years in communications. Five of these years were spent in the 2nd Division, with the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry and the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

To further his Army career, he went to Flight Operations School at Fort Rucker, Ala. From there he joined the 2nd Aviation Battalion.

McCollough, the father of four, has had duty in both Germany and Okinawa.

Mrs. McKiernan's Serenity, Calm Reflected in 'Comfort' of Quarters

By ALICE WITTER

A lady whose serenity and calm are reflected in the pleasant comfort of her quarters is Mrs. Frederick A. McKiernan, wife of the commander of the 122nd Signal Battalion.

Arlene Clark and Frederick A. McKiernan met at Fort Riley, Kansas when she was visiting from Kansas City and he was an instructor at the Cavalry School.

Following their marriage in 1943, they were assigned to Camp Gruber, Oklahoma, where their daughter Sheila was born in 1944. They then returned again to Fort Riley.

In 1945, when "Mac" served in the Pacific theater of the war, Arlene remained with her parents in Kansas City. Their son Dick was born there while his father was overseas.

Following the war, the McKiernans returned again to Fort Riley, until 1947 when orders came for the Army of occupation in Germany.

After three years in Germany, they returned to the States and an assignment at Fort Hood, Texas, where Capt. McKiernan was detailed to the Signal Corps and served as Assistant Division Signal Officer of the 1st Armored Divisicn.

An assignment to the Signal Advanced Course at Fort Monmouth, N. J., came during '52-'53, followed by an assignment as an instructor in the Communications Department of the Armored School at Fort Knox, Ky.

After three years at Ft. Knox, another overseas assignment came with orders to a Military Assistance Advisory Group in Taiwan as a Signal officer. It was at this point that Maj. McKiernan received a branch - transfer to the Signal Corps.

When the McKiernans returned to the States in 1958, it was for a three-year tour in Washington, D. C., an assignment which Arlene considers to be her stateside favorite.

In 1961, it was another overseas tour — this time as part of the Army Mission to Uruguay. The three years in Uruguay were especially worthwhile in several respects. Coming into close contact with the people made Arlene feel that what they were doing was important. In addition, the small size of the Uruguayan army enabled them to know most of the officers and their families. As a result, the McKiernans now enjoy reunions with Uruguayan officers who come to Fort Benning to visit or to attend courses.

Arlene says she learned from the Uruguayan women the art of relaxed living. She smilingly says she has finally realized that a "party won't flop without her."

In August of 1964, the McKiernans came to Fort Benning and Lt. Col. McKiernan assumed command of the Signal Battalion.

After many years of participating in such activities as Scouting and PTA, Mrs. McKiernan now feels free to do the things she enjoys doing around the house. Daughter Sheila is now married and is living in Philadelphia, Pa., and son Dick, planning an Army career, is studying Russian at the Language School in Monterey, California.

Mrs. McKiernan says she and her husband devote their time mostly to each other. They both enjoy hunting, and refinishing furniture, with Arlene specializing in gold-leaf work.

Mrs. McKiernan enjoys most of all the battalion activities. But she confesses to having a bit of the hermit in her—she enjoys staying home and being alone occasionally, although their little white poodle, Salli, is always there for company.

DivArty Ladies At Monthly Coffee

The ladies of Headquarters, Division Artillery, held their monthly coffee recently at the home of Mrs. Joseph F. Cobis. Mrs. James R. Adams was co-hostess.

Those attending the coffee for the first time were Mrs. John F. Behneman, Mrs. Robert H. Kamstra, and Mrs. Donald B. Hunnicutt.

Mrs. Tony F. Perpich poured from the china tea service.

38th Get-Together Happens at MOOM

Mrs. Billy L. Whorton and Mrs. Curtis A. Laird were hostesses for the monthly coffee of the ladies of the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry, held January 20 at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Mrs. Arne Eliasson presided over the business meeting. A thank-you note from the Family Service Center for the contribution of kitchen utensils for the Lending Closet was read to the ladies.

Farewells were said to Mrs. Curtis A. Laird and Mrs. Donald L. Zechman. Mrs. Peter Turner was welcomed to the group.

COLONEL GIVEN COMMENDATION MEDAL
(L-R) Col. Jackson, Gen. Chiles

Support Chief ACM Winner

An Army Commendation Medal went to Support Command leader, Col. Fred O. Jackson, in recent ceremonies at 2nd Infantry Division Headquarters.

Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, the division commander, pinned the medal to the colonel's chest.

The medal was in recognition of Col. Jackson's service as chief of the weapons division, directorate of materiel, at the Army's Combat Development Command, Fort Belvoir, Va.

His competency in the management of the command's program for the development of cannon artillery, combat vehicles, small arms and infantry weapons for the Army of the future was described as "outstanding."

Magician Makes 'Miracle Escape'

By ART CHIEPPA

Better than one hundred spectators gaped in awe as Mercer Helms charmed them with magical feats at Service Club Two Saturday night.

Helms, with the aid of his wife, Judith, started with the usual tricks one expects a magician to perform. Card tricks, pulling dozens of scarves from a metal container and the old circular ring (Chinese) trick brought loud applause from the audience.

The finale, called Houdini's Miracle Escape, was talked about for days by this reporter and many others.

"Houdini's act was similar to this," said Helms. "Only about five or six magicians in the whole country do this trick."

With the help of PFC Roy C. Whitlock, Headquarters Battery, 37th Artillery, Helms showed the audience the wooden chest, a cloth sack and a canvas covering, similar to those used to cover suitcases or trunks.

After Whitlock, and others selected from the audience, were convinced the materials were not "fixed", Helms continued to baffle the spectators.

Judith stepped into the cloth sack, a helper tied the end. Helms then picked up the sack and placed it in the wooden chest. The lid was put in place and six padlocks were clamped shut for final securing. The canvas covering was put over the chest and laced up tight by Whitlock.

Helms placed a screen around the chest, stepped inside and showed only his head. Within seconds, after a count of three, Judith's head appeared, Helms had vanished.

Judith Helms then asked for Whitlock's aid.

He unlaced the cover, unlocked the locks, removed the lid, untied the sack and low - and - behold, Mercer Helms emerged from the sack.

"This last act was real good," commented Whitlock "I've no idea how she got out of the box, everything was tied down when I checked it."

"We had to work on this act from three to four months before we showed it," said Helms.

Mercer Helms began his magical career at age nine, performing before friends and school companions in Central Florida. At age ten, he gave his first paid performance before a civic club, and went on to become much in demand before local groups, appearing at parties, clubs and church groups.

Military service in Alaska, 1952-1955 found him entertaining at service clubs, military affairs, and occasional civilian functions. In 1962, he was married to Judith, his present assistant.

"We loved putting on the show for the boys and we had a wonderful time performing," said the magician.

This was the first time we have performed at an Army service club, we received a wonderful reception."

Miss Peggy Wise, club director at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama, who accompanied the show commented, "It was fabulous, I don't see how he does it."

"We are looking forward to the next program from Fort Benning," Miss Wise said. "We're going to try to incorporate 16 air bases and Army posts throughout the Georgia, Alabama and Florida area into the exchange program."

Service Club Two director, Miss Madeline Parks said, "It was a magnificent show, the magical feats were just great. We are scheduling another show for Maxwell Air Base in February."

Mercer and Judith Helms make their home in Montgomery, Alabama.

The commanding general said the two things stuck in his mind after the flight in the Air Force jets:

two units met, all airborne personnel fell under the control of the 2nd Division commander."

Later men of the 2nd Engineer Battalion were faced with the problem of crossing a river referred to as the Pee Dee, which in truth, runs through the Carolinas.

"But the river crossing wasn't only an engineer problem," one controller said. "Nearly every element in the division got into the action. You've got to remember the problems of a combat river crossing are many.

"Intelligence people — including pilots from the 2nd Aviation Battalion and photo specialists from the 122nd Signal Battalion — had to report on the situation at the bridge site. Riflemen established protective fire zones.

APC's Swim

"Also in crossing the river, sites had to be determined where APCs (armored personnel carriers) could swim across."

Gen. Chiles told Air Force Brig. Gen. Albert W. Schinz of MacDill Air Force Base in Florida, where the Phantom flew from:

"Your planes are instrumental in providing cover fire and softening terrain out of range. River crossing sites are in high priority for air-planners."

The use of simulated nuclear devices that had been expected never came into play.

Gen. Chiles said the maneuver was characterized by "reality," and said he was generally happy with the performance he saw.

Liscum Bowl Sneaks to Atlanta For Repairs--A Victim of History?

By BYRON DUNHAM

The precious Liscum Bowl, which was cracking under its own weight, has returned to its place of honor at the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry's "Manchu" museum.

More splendid than ever, the solid silver relic of the Boxer Rebellion had recently been spirited away to Atlanta for a three-day $1,105 "face-lift."

Unarmed Guards

Two unarmed guards and the driver of a three-quarter-ton Army truck brought the bowl to Simmons Plating Works Inc. in Atlanta where it was dismembered and meticulously repaired.

Attached to the bowl and its 82 cups is an abundance of history about the 9th Infantry's warriors — both on and off the battlefield.

The 90-pound bowl is named for Col. Emerson H. Liscum, the 9th's commander who was killed in a charge against the walls of Tientsein, China, on July 13, 1900.

Young Ladies

Young ladies have been known to take champagne baths in the 14-gallon bowl—now insured for $150,000 — during regimental parties.

The base was cracking and the bowl was in need of a general cleanup when the 9th Infantry moved from Alaska to Fort Benning in 1963.

While in Atlanta the three soldiers — Sgt. Kenneth Rooker, "Alpha" Company, Sp4 Dennis Friday and PFC Rick Casey, Headquarters Company — didn't let the Liscum Bowl out of their sight, except to turn it over to the Third Army Provost Marshal at Fort McPherson for safekeeping at night.

Pound Out The Dents

According to Casey it took the Simmons people nearly a whole day to pound out all the small dents — attributed by some to the champagne baths.

Friday added, "One dragon got a new whisker. They made it out of a strand of silver."

The 9th was awarded silver for the bowl and 32 cups by the Chinese for salvaging $376,000 in silver bars from the enemy on July 15, 1900. Names of 9th Infantry officers are inscribed on the cups and it has been necessary to add 30. The original cups were fashioned by silversmiths in Peking and the bowl was crafted in Yokohama, Japan.

The bowl is still used for drinking at special ceremonies and can be seen by the public at the "Manchu" Museum from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

Call Halts Chaplain; Good News

A last minute phone call from Washington succeeded in collaring the 2nd Division chaplain on the eve of his departure for Okinawa.

The phone call from a Department of Army official was to inform Chap. (Lt. Col.) James C. Carroll that he has been chosen as one of the few chaplains who ever attend the select Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Each 10 month class usually includes only one chaplain of the rank of lieutenant colonel or above.

The War College is the most highly rated in the Army's echelon of military schools.

The next class, beginning in July, will include an additional one, Chap. Carroll, bringing the total to two for the 10 months.

Division 'Agent' Awarded ACM

CWO Toshio Kawasaki was recently presented the Army Commendation Medal.

Kawasaki, a member of the 2nd Division's Military Intelligence Detachment, was presented the award by Capt. Forrest C. Wood, detachment commander.

The award cited Kowasaki's "meritorious service during the period between June 1960 and May 1964," while serving with the 526th Intelligence Corps Detachment in the Ryuku Islands. He was further cited for "his unselfish devotion to duty, perserverence and superlative organizational ability which contributed materially to the successful accomplishment of his units mission."

Pay Branch, Finance Will Merge Monday; Errors Seen Reduced

By TOM KIRWAN

The 2nd Infantry Division's Military Pay Branch is being consolidated with the Division Finance Office. This is the latest word from division finance officer, Maj. Wayne Cambell.

The merger — an attempt to improve the pay service to division soldiers — will go into effect on Monday.

"It is the result of applying new management techniques to the problems of the finance office, which will in the end reduce errors," said Cambell.

Present Method

Under the method presently in use, a soldier's pay action requires the processing of his paperwork first through the Military Pay Branch and then again through the Finance Office. "It was a big problem—having two separate offices working on the same problem. This—arrangement led to a division of responsibility," Cambell stated.

Formerly the Military Pay Branch was under the control of the division Adjutant General.

"We will have a one-stop payment service," Cambell claimed.

He explained the consolidation would eliminate the double processing of paper work and allow the new office to be divided into department sections.

Specialization

It was further explained that each section would be concerned with one phase of the payment process. They would deal in such individual areas as partial pay, re-enlistment pay, allotments or travel pay.

The finance officer stated that the clerks dealing with these sections would become experts in a single phase of the finance operation.

Among the innovations to the new system is the provision for a section whose duty it is to review records for errors.

"It will be necessary for unit commanders to submit an extra copy of the morning report which will be annotated "For Finance Office," Capt. Rose, the assistant Finance Officer said. "One of the most critical areas will be in the submission of this report so that it will reflect correctly any pay action of personnel within the unit."

Accurate Pay System

Cambell noted that the new single agency will result in a more accurate pay system, which will be time saving for the individual and which will allow the pinpointing of any mistakes that might occur.

Ruffner's Platoon Possesses Latest Anti-Tank Devices--S-58, ENTAC

Lt. Clifford Ruffner and his men aren't snobs, but they like to brag that they own a $6,000 S-58 simulator and an ENTAC to throw at it.

An S-58 simulator? That's the target at which anti-tank gunners hurl their solid fuel ENTAC missiles.

One of Few

Ruffner's anti - tank platoon is one of the few 2nd Division outfits to possess the training marvel.

He and his men belong to Headquarters Company of the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry.

The electrical simulator partially accounts for Ruffner's platoon's proficiency with the ENTAC missile, a spokesman said.

ENTAC is a squat 31 inches crammed with explosive and mechanism. It weighs a tub-by 27 pounds.

Its metal housing serves both as shell and launching pad. The gunner guides its flight by means of a "joy stick" mounted on a control base.

A cable of lengths up to 100 feet connects the control base with the missile.

The long cable enables the gunner to place a missile far enough away from himself to avoid detection by enemy tanks even after firing.

The ENTAC travels at 180 mph and is connected to its launching container by two thin copper cables that travel behind it as it streaks down range.

Range of the ENTAC is 2,000 meters, and it mounts a 130mm charge warhead capable of pentrating any known armor.

"Manchu" anti - tankers fired 12 ENTAC rounds at targets up to 2,000 meters during a firing demonstration at Fort Stewart, Ga. last year and amazed spectators by scoring nine hits.

Lt. Ruffner's band includes PSgt. Hassel Smith and SSgt. Rodolfo Rios, platoon sergeants; Sgts. Charles Handy and Emmit Estes, Sp4's Larry Royal and Leslie Scrouse, squad leaders; PFC Feris Leslie, radio - telephone operator; Sp4 Freddie Jackson, PFC's Richard Jefferies and Kyle Eddy, gunners; Sp4 Jesse Davis, PFC's Randall Stanley, Hugh Reid, and Clinton Price, "ammo" men; PFC's Paul Martell, Vernon Conway, and Alfonzo Martinez, heavy truck drivers.

PROPOSED SAFETY DEVICE FOR RADIO ANTENNAS
(L to R) Gonzalez and Camp

Invents Safety Device To Thwart Injuries

A new safety device has been developed by the 2nd Division Artillery.

The device, which will soon be taken under study by Department of Army officials, was developed as a result of a recent death.

During Air Assault II, a young 11th Air Assault Division officer was killed when a tied down radio antenna pierced his eye.

The attachment, the product of the collective inventiveness of MSgt Joe R. Camp and Maj. Americo Gonzales-Garcia of the Division Artillery Communications section, and Division Artillery commanding officer Col. Tony F. Perpich, is a cone shaped piece of wood approximately 4 inches in length which is attached to the end of the "whip" antennas used with so many of the Army's mobile radio sets.

After trying small wooden balls, styrofoam and other materials the Communications men brought their problem to Col. Perpich who suggested that they use some sort of a conical attachment.

The wooden cones are painted white and this easily visible color is continued down the length of the antenna for a distance of 6 inches.

New Reg Spells Out Today's Recall Policy

Just recently the Army published a regulation which spells out the channels through which a retired soldier can apply for recall to active duty.

"A significant number of nondisabled enlisted personnel . . . experience difficulty in adjusting to civilian life and quite frequently request permission to reenlist," the regulation says.

No existing regulation provide for such a recall the regulation points out.

Eligibility criteria require that those wishing to be recalled be less than 50 years old, be in grade E-5 or above, and have less than 27 years of service completed.

Retirees must also meet the retention physical standards existing at the time of application for recall.

Army Regulation 601-250 spells out the channels through which the veteran must submit his application.

The regulation also states the purpose of the regulation is to allow retired soldiers with short or critically short Military Occupation Specialties (MOS) to take some of the strain off the Army Personnel procurement system.

In keeping with the U. S. Army's stringent new economy measures, this column in the future will forego all frills. We intend to hit to the heart of the news without spending extra words. This should serve two fiscal purposes: first, it will save a possible three sheets of bond paper yearly; second, the tougher budgeting of our time will allow us more sacrifice per workday. Okay, then, get on with it and quit your lollygagging. . .

From the 12th Artillery, our traditional leadoff unit, comes word that Lt. THOMAS F. ASHE leaves the Army Sunday. He is being replaced as assistant S-3 by Lt. LARRY J. VAN FOSSEN, who leaves a vacuum at the Battery A executive officer slot to be filled by Lt. THOMAS A. SLANE. Other news from the 12th involves a job trade between Capt. JOSEPH L. PITTS, JR., Headquarters Battery commander, and Capt. LEO J. KELLEY JR., liaison officer. Finally from the 12th, Battery A first sergeant ERWIN GRAHAM said "yes" when asked to reenlist.

After four or five rounds, a Battery C, 17th Artillery spokesman relates, the 17th's Collie dog mascot went to sleep. The rounds were served up by howitzers, not a bartender, to accustom recently-acquired CHARLIE to his new environment.

There'll be open space in the ranks on the old parade grounds, fellas. Goodbye SSgt. JAMES H. MEUREB, you who retire after 20 years. The 17th has one more disclosure: Capt. VERNON M. FLYNN JR. has taken command of Headquarters and Service Battery.

How about that reenlistment sergeant at the 2nd Aviation Battalion. SFC WILLIAM C. MCCONNELL swallowed his own patter and reupped for six years.

Six copies of BOBBY E. BARROW'S orders, promoting him to private first class, arrived from the 2nd MP Company.

Lt. JOHN MARCY of Company A, 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry recently returned from airborne training and a honeymoon. "His next goal" is the Expert Infantryman's Badge, a spokesman says. Then there are PSgt. JAMES E. BARKDULL and Sp4 HUEY L. DEVILLE of Company C, 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor, who reenlisted. BARKDULL already had 19 years in; DEVILLE only two.

"Cpl. RONALD D. JONES of Battery A, 17th Artillery, your wife was recently delivered of a baby girl, weighing 122 ounces," proclaims Omniscient Mind. (Sentences like that are actually scary; one fears for one's sanity. It's a curious fact that the edges of reality tend to fray after endless hours on a typewriter. We will now pour imaginary ice water over our head.) Battery C of the 17th welcomes Sgt. THOMAS M. WILLIAMS.

Battery B of the 37th Artillery and its mess steward SSgt. PHILIP M. HARNER, cooked the best meals last months, a plaque attests. The 37th had much more news, but alas! It was submitted in such a garbled state that it would take too long to translate for this column or rewrite.

SFC STANLEY D. MCNEIL of the 2nd Medical Battalion has reenlisted, his fourth time.

At the 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment RANDOLPH E. BOSWELL struck the mother lode, becoming a father and gaining promotion to first lieutenant.

S and T Quintet Romps Through Apache League

The 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion jumped into a commanding lead in the Apache league Tuesday night when it dealt the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry its worst drubbing of the season.

The 104-56 trouncing handed the 23rd gave S and T a two game lead in the Apache standings.

The game was close into the first half with the score see-sawing back and forth. A quick flurry by S and T minutes before the first half ended, gave them a five point lead, 40 to 35.

In the second half, S and T, behind the sharpshooting of Mel Nicol and Joe White, demoralized the crumbling 23rd's defense.

Nicol had 27 points to show for the evening and White had 25. Dallas Miller and Jimmie Shedrick scored 18 points apiece.

The MP Company has withdrawn from competition and each Apache team will be credited with a win according to Special Services spokesmen.

In Apache play last Friday night, the 37th Artillery almost pulled the upset of the year when they came dangerously close to beating the top-ranked S and T quintet.

At the end of four quarters of hoopball the score was tied 77 to 77.

S and T led the Artillery 37 to 32 at the half.

In one overtime period, the hoopsters from the division supply battalion managed to make their foul shots count heavily to win the contest 91 to 88.

Mel Nicol once again led the scoring with 30 points for the night. His accuracy from the foul line was unerring as he sank 12 out of 15 tries.

Fouls shots made the difference in the game as both teams had almost equal opportunities from the line but S and T made their shots count.

Play throughout the rest of the week was devoted to forfeited games as both the MPs and Administration company handed free wins to the 1st of the 23rd and the 313th ASA respectively.

The Aftermath

BY TOM KIRWAN

On the corner of Scott Ave. and 3rd St. is one of Sand Hill's largest sand piles.

Upon this worn mass of disintegrated rock lies Kimbro Gym, but more than this the headquarters for the master-minds of physical competition—Special Services.

One after another, green - suited individuals move in and out of the gym and all seem to have one thing in common — they carry with them the tools necessary for physical fitness.

The business end of the gym is confined to a large office, the walls of which are covered with charts showing the latest standings in the Commanding Generals Trophy race as well as the Apache and Cherokee leagues.

Volumes concerned with athletic prose are scattered around the room. Those who frequent the office are usually a few refugees from the basketball court in short pants and sweat soaked shirts, and spectators studying the charts to see how their favorite teams are doing in the leagues.

Again and again the words can be heard, "What can we do to improve our program?" Some who ask are directors of the program. All are interested participants, who are not bothered or even aware of those who would say, athletics are too time consuming and should be buried and forgotten.

The Special Services group led by Lt. Gary Taylor is trying to set up new leagues in those sports where an interest has been expressed.

Hard ball, golf, bowling and boxing top the new program list.

Engineers-Medics Provide Cherokees With High-Jinx

Tuesday night, the 2nd Engineer Battalion kept alive its playoff hopes by defeating the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry 94 to 82.

The game was tied at half-time — 45 to 45.

Behind the steady shooting of Bob Cameron the Engineers wore down the Infantry defense to put them within a game and a half of the league-leading 2nd Medical Battalion. Cameron lead the scoring with 38 points. Teammate Lou Menter followed with 20.

In other Cherokee League play, the 12th artillery surprised division basketball fans by holding the high-flying 7th Cavalry to an eight-point lead, as they went down to a 97 to 89 defeat.

Jacob Young of the 12th Arty was the leading scorer with 40 points. Jim Wilson of the Cavalry scored 35 on the evening. Dick Jason of the 12th scored 25 and Emmett Howell of the Cav scored 25 to keep his average in the high twenties.

Last Friday night Bob Cameron, the Engineer sharpshooter was held to the grand total of seven points for the evening as the 2nd Medical Battalion moved further into the Cherokee lead by edging the Engineers 59 to 56.

Cameron's showing was considerably lessened from his 52-point evening of the previous week. Cosgrove of the Medics was the leading scorer for the evening with 19 points.

11th AIR ASSAULT DIVISION

FORT BENNING, GA. FRIDAY, JANUARY 29, 1965 PAGE 29

Another First at 228th

CH-47 Chinook Goes Amphibious

AMPHIBIOUS CHINOOK . . . A CH-47 Chinook, piloted by Lt. Col. Benjamin S. Silver, commanding officer, 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion, 11th Air Assault Division taxies off Ft. Benning's Victory Pond to test the helicopter's "float-ability."

By Mike Gersbon

Another first was racked up by a unit of the 11th Air Assault Division Jan. 22 as a CH-47 Chinook, piloted by Lt. Col. Benjamin S. Silver, commanding officer, 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion, and CWO Denver Kidd left Kelley Hill Helipad, and landed on Victory Pond without the aid of special equipment.

The giant helicopter gently settled on the water and the pilots began putting the "ship" through taxiing maneuvers which presented an odd sight for passing spectators.

The bottom tail gate remained closed, but the top part stayed open so the crew chief could judge the water level in the rear.

Several combinations of pedal and "stick" movements were practiced in the turning of the helicopter to determine the easiest method of taxiing.

The test, which is the first to be executed by an actual Army Chinook Battalion, was run several times to allow the pilots and observers to gain maximum information.

At one point in the "boat" water seeped in through the tail gate. The craft was taken into the air to allow drainage and actually caused no real danger.

A ground observer, in constant radio contact with the pilots, reported the amount of water which drained after the ascent.

The main difficulty in landing the huge helicoper on water, making it a "flying boat," was the tendency to lower the tail end first. To prevent flooding of the interior, the pilot had to level off in mid air and gently land on the surface.

Following the flight Col. Silver seemed extremely confident in the Chinook's versatility and ease of handling on water.

He also stated that he plans to run every Chinook pilot in the battalion through this unique amphibious training in the very near future.

PHASE I

2nd Brigade Opens Hawk Arrow Action

Elements from the 2nd Brigade commanded by Col. William R. Lynch, moved to the field near Buena Vista, Ga., early this morning under cloudy and rainy skies to participate in HAWK ARROW I, a brigade - size exercises that will involve every major unit in the 11th Air Assault Division, the training will be held from January 26 to February 13 near Buena Vista, Ga.

Artillerymen from the 1st Battalion, 15th Artillery and infantrymen from the 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry and the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry, made the first move. This is the first major exercise since the 11th Air Assault Division returned from AIR ASSAULT II in the Carolinas last year.

The aggressor role will be played by the 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry and the 1st Battalion, 188th Infantry. The objective of the field problem is to place emphasis on small unit tactics. Rapid deployment of command and logistics will also play a key role in the maneuvers. The units ability to react swiftly with flexability to both changes in planned missions to new missions will also play an important part.

The exercises are called HAWK ARROW I, II and III. Each phase will last four days. Elements from the 1st Brigade Task Force commanded by Col. George S. Beatty, will be engaged in HAWK ARROW II which begins Feb. 2 and ends Feb. 5. Elements from the 3rd Brigade Task Force commanded by Col. Thomas W. Brown, will go to the field Feb. 9, and participate in HAWK ARROW III until Feb. 12.

The Flying Crane Lifts 19,800 Lbs

The CH-54A Flying Crane, in a test recently conducted at Fort Benning, demonstrated its' ability as the Army's newest heavy lift aircraft.

The huge craft airlifted six rubber fuel bags whose total weight came to 19,800 pounds. This lift was significant because of the bulk weight of the lift and because the Crane's load consisted of six rather than the usual five rubber fuel containers.

The Flying Crane is built by Sikorsky Aircraft and is designed as a heavy lift, short range helicopter.

Two Chinooks Fly to California --- For Flood Relief Missions

On the night of the 21st of Jan. 1965, a phone call was received which started a series of events to the Provisional Helicopter Company (Chinook), 44th Air Transport Battalion which resulted in two CH-47A helicopters departing for Eureka, Calif., for flood relief.

The call was received by the battalion duty officer about 7 p.m. and by 12 p.m. that same night the aircraft and crews were ready to go. Within five hours, the maintenance section had completely performed intermediate inspections on both aircraft, double crews were alerted, aircraft replacement parts were gathered, cross-country and water survivor kits were made up, rations were drawn and orders for TDY for an indefinite period of time were cut and distributed to the crews.

All personnel in the unit were proud of the fact that their unit was selected by the Department of the Army for this mission and showed it by the speed in which the aircraft and personnel were ready to leave.

The mission, reported to Col. James H. Lee, Sixth Army Aviation Officer at Rohnervile Airfield, Eureka, Calif., for assistance in flood control and relief.

The names of the crews were as follows; Capt. Mark C. Kendall (Mission Leader) Capt. Thomas R. Messick, 1st Lt. Philip B. Kimak, CWO's Floyd M. Byers, Clifford B. Harry, Charles E. Kanode, Richard L. Stroud, Robert L. Watts, Sgt. Albert P. Waley (NCOIC); Specialist's Sixth Class David C. Everette, W. P. Fowler, Harold E. Rains, Paul H. Willard; Specialist's Fifth Class Daniel J. Chavez and James L. Shirley; Specialists Fourth Class Ronald C. Firman, John E. Medau, Jack E. Tranter in addition to four enlisted men from Company A, 170th Aircraft Maintenance Battalion.

'Red Dog' Programs Supported by 229th

"Red Dog," a concept developed specifically for controlling rotary wing instrument flight into forward battle areas during adverse weather, is receiving much interest, support and participation from the 229th 'Stacked Deck' Assault Helicopter Battalion. "Red Dog" Project Officer, Maj. Chester R. Mead, formerally Assistant Signal Officer for the 11th Air Assault Division and now assigned to the 11th Aviation Group has acknowledged 229th promotion and assistance.

Project "Red Dog" is a fundamental plan which uses only the basic blind flying techniques of rotary wing pilots and the now existing instrument equipment present in Army helicopters. Experimentation and testing of the plan is geared at investigation and development of present and imaginative technological concepts. These concepts attempt to increase aircraft density and to minimize take-off and landing time in forward battle area pick-up and landing zones. The 229th Battalion, as directed by Maj. Mead, has established standard practice "Red Dog" patterns and experimental procedures. Each battalion aviator has or is

Colonel Seneff To Give Speech At West Point

Col. George P. Seneff, commanding officer of the 11th Air Assault Division Aviation Group, who was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1941 is returning to his old Alma Mater on Jan. 27 to speak on the accomplishments of the Sky Soldier division.

The one-hour presentation will include a short film on the future role of air assault concept and the composition of the division will also be discussed. A four man panel will give the one hour presentation including Col. W. R. Lynch, commanding officer of the 2nd Brigade; Capt. David Horton, 229th Aerial Surveillance and Escort Battalion and Capt. John Herron, commanding officer of Company B, 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

Col. Seneff joined the Sky Soldiers when the 11th was activated in February 1943. Prior to coming to the 11th he served as a Delegate with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Paris, France.

big NEWS on the lighter side

Service Club Director Seeks YOUR Support

Miss Clara Pou, director for Service Club 3, in the Harmony Church area has inaugurated a plan to increase attendance and show the Sky Soldiers what is available for their entertainment during their off-duty hours. Sergeants Major from the 11th Air Assault Division and the 58th Infantry, attended the first meeting.

The plan was initiated Saturday, Jan. 23, coffee and refreshments were also served. Miss Pou spoke briefly and outlined her plans. She stated that, "The main purpose of this meeting is to show the Sergeants Major our facilities and what is available to your men, then you can go back to our units and tell them."

Division Sergeant Major Chester R. Westervelt, next suggested the scheduling of bus transportation to make regular runs to the Service Club. 1st Lt. Joseph Mottola, 11th Special Service Officer and his assistant MSgt. Lee Jordan, said they will look into that possibility.

Others in attendance included: Sgt. Maj. Lawrence Kennedy, 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry; Sgt. Maj. Henry Gris, 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry; Sgt. Maj. John R. Green, G-3 11th; Sgt. Maj. Lawrence Hoststetter, 58th Infantry; and MSgt. Jams E. McClure, 511th Signal Battalion. Miss Marijane Bottomley, Service Club Director for Fort Benning also was present.

Before the session ended they all agreed to hold further meetings to beef - up attendance. Miss Pou also outlined her plan to invite major unit commanders for friendly get-togethers.

Service Club 3 is located in building 4410 and the Library is located in the same building. In addition a Service Club Annex is located on 8th Division Road in building both clubs are from 1:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. daily.

Aviation Company Hosts Tour For Boy Scouts Troop

The 1st Aviation Company was host Jan. 23 as 17 Boy Scouts and their scoutmaster, Mr. Derward Terry, of Troop 1, St. Paul Methodist Church of Columbus, toured Lawson Army Airfield.

The Boy Scouts arrived at the operations building of the 1st about 10 o'clock Saturday morning and were greeted by Capt. George R. Nelson and SFC Bill E. McMillan of the 1st. The boys were then taken to the classroom for a movie entitled "Introduction to Army Aviation", which shows the different types of aircraft in the Army inventory. During the movie, the mess sergeant of the 1st, SFC Woodly H. Jones, arrived with cookies and chocolate milk, so shortly after the movie ended the boys made their way to the refreshments.

After the refreshments the scouts met the commander of the 1st Aviation Company Maj. Paul L. Stansel, who welcomed them to Fort Benning and the Company. When Maj. Stansel asked if there were any volunteers for flight school, the response was unanimous.

After leaving the classroom the scouts were taken out to one of the units' Caribou's for a closer examination of the Army's largest fixed wing aircraft. It was here that the boys began their questioning of Capt. Nelson about the big plane. The questions continued on to the maintenance hanger where they saw several Caribou's and a UH-1B "Huey" helicopter in various stages of repair. Later, a walk across the parking ramp to another hanger produced other helicopters for viewing, the CH-37 Mojave and the CH-47 Chinook, however, the weather prevented a close look at the CH-54 Flying Crane because it was then that the rain really began to fall.

This then is where the tour stopped because the scouts had seen all the different types of aircraft organic to the 10th Air Transport Brigade, which is the workhorse prime mover of the elite 11th Air Assault Division.

DURING TOUR . . . Capt. George Nelson (center) and three Scouts from Troop 1 stand in the doorway of a CV-2 Caribou from the 1st Aviation Company.

GIVING IT UP . . . Scouts from Troop 1, St. Pauls Methodist Church, Columbus, listen to Capt. George Nelson explain the engine of the CV-2 Caribou during their recent visit.

CMMI Records Are Praised at 81st Artillery

Battery B Airborne, 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery, has compiled a brief, but meritorious record of performance during CMMI's since its assignment to the 11th Air Assault Division. The battery, commanded by Capt. Eugene O. Roverse, received scores of 97 per cent for Material Maintenance and 93 per cent for Maintenance Operations during last years CMMI. This year, on January 19, the battery even surpassed last years scores by receiving a rating of 97 per cent for Material Maintenance and 100 per cent for Maintenance Operations.

11th Band Scheduled For College Concert

The 11th Air Assault Division Band has scheduled a concert to be given at Tuskegee Institute's Logan Hall in Tuskegee, Ala., on Sunday January 31 at 8 p.m. The band, under the direction of CWO William J. James, has a very fine concert group who perform a variety of Pop, Classical and Jazz selections. In addition all band members lay down their instruments and perform as a chorous during part of their concert.

The Band has been invited to give this concert at Tuskegee as part of Tuskegee Institutes cultural program which brings a variety of entertainment to the college faculty and student body.

Program highlights will include compositions by Stravinsky, Gustafe Holst, Brahms, Joshua Missal, and Haydn. The Chorus will sing "I Left My Heart in San Francisco", the Allen Sherman version of the "Mexican Hat Dance" and "Army Blue". Other features on the program include a piano solo by Sp4 Robert J. DeCeunynck and a woodwind quintet composed of Sgt Donl S. Rogers, Oboe; Sp4 Larry J. DuBose, French Horn; PFC John H. Barrett, Baritone Saxaphone; PFC William R. Hruschka, Clarinet; and PFC Mark J. Pawlowski, Flute. The quintet will perform Haydn's Divertimento No. 1 in B-Flat.

377th Artillery Battery Trades Senior Non-Coms

Battery C., 3rd Battalion, and 377th Artillery has had a change of senior non-coms in the person of 1st Sgt. Merle A. Landress. Sgt. Landress has taken the position of the Battalion Sgt. Maj. on the retirement of Sgt. Maj. Basil Linville. Sfc. Louie B. Rogers has moved into the opening left in Charlie Battery and is now reigning 1st Sgt.

Sgt. Rogers started his army career in the early years of the 2nd World War. Born in Tuscaloosa, Ala. in 1921, he finished school there and went on to play professional baseball for Thomasville, Ga., a class B Ball Club and later with Newport News, Va. in a Class A Ball Club. In Sept. of 1942 Sgt. Rogers joined the Army and spent from 1942 to 1946 in North Africa.

During the period from 1946 to 1950 he worked for Monsanto Chemical Company in Anniston, Ala. In 1950 during the Korean conflict Sgt. Rogers was recalled by the Army and now has 17 years of service.

Battery E Flyers Total 155 Years

The twenty four aviators assigned to Battery E, 26th Artillery, have a combined total of over 155 years of flying experience and have logged over 43,300 hours in the air. The totals include time flown by three officer aviators in the 11th Air Assault Division Artillery Headquarters who fly with Battery E.

No claim is being made that this is a record — but it is a pretty good average!

programed to fly test flights. Further assistance has been furnished to Maj. Mead by the Federal Aviation Agency at its National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center located at Atlantic City, N. J. There, ulitization of the agency's special electronic device, the only one in the world, has been granted for experimentation and evaluation. This device enables simulation and control of up to 50 aircraft targets be placed on scopes for visual display.

Rak's New Day Room Now Open for Business

Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general of the 11th Air Assault Division officially opened a new Rakkasan Lounge and Day Room in the 1st Brigade last Saturday morning, a facility capable of accommodating all personnel of the 1st Battalion, 187th Airborne Infantry.

Accompanied by 1st Brigade Commander, Col. George S. Beatty, and the Rak Commander, Lt. Col. Harlow G. Clark, Gen. Kinnard cut the ribbon shortly after 10:00 a.m., and afterward addressed members of the battalion, congratulating them on their achievement.

Demonstratng the highest degree of initiative and resourcefulness, the lounge and dayroom is the product of brains, imagination and free time on the part of several Rakkasans who made maximum use of salvageable materials to convert Fredericksburg Hall into a large modern and comfortable building in which the Raks may spend their off-duty time.

All of the lumber and construction materials used were from a burned out building in the Harmony Church area, while local talent provided the decorations, typically airborne by nature, including shields and crests depicting the various parachute units and the airborne mission.

Facilities presently in the lounge include ping - pong tables, two television sets (to settle arguments), soft drink and candy machines, newspapers and magazines, and plans are in the mill to procure four pool tables.

Initiated by Col. Clark late in November, the project was handled by Rak volunteers under the supervision of Capt. Donld F. Warren, Rak S-4 Officer, and SSgt. Carlos Colburn of Headquarters Company.

Marine Corps Veteran Is Now 227th Ops Sergeant

SP5 James R. Hooper, who served with the 1st Marine Regiment during the Korean War, is now assigned as operations sergeant in Company D, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion.

SP5 Hooper joined the US Marine Corps in February 1948 and was assigned to the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, Cal. where he completed "Boot Camp". His first assignment after "Boot Camp" was with the Marine Detachment stationed aboard the Navy Carrier, the USS Tafawa. While aboard this carrier, SP5 Hooper visited the ports of Pearl Harbor, Stingtow in China, Hong Kong, Singapore, Ceylon, Arabia, Gibralter, and Greece, before returning to Norfolk, Va. in 1949.

Upon his return stateside, SP5 Hooper was assigned to the 22nd Marine Regiment at Quantico, Va., followed by an assignment with the Post Military Police Detachment.

In 1950, SP5 Hooper was assigned to Company E, 2nd Battalion, 1st Marine Regiment at Camp Pendleton, Cal., where tne unit joined the 1st Marine Division and sailed for Korea. Upon arriving in Korea, the 1st Marine Regiment was assigned to the Punch Bowl area, and in the bitter fighting against the Chinese Army, SP5 Hooper was seriously wounded when hit by mortar shrapnel. Returning to action after a short medical evacuation, he was wounded a second time when a Chinese mortar scored a direct hit on his bunker.

In 1952, SP5 Hooper returned stateside with the 1st Marine Regiment, and was stationed at Camp Pendleton, Cal. where he served as battalion motor sergeant. In 1956, SP5 Hooper was assigned to the Marine Air Station, El Torro, Cal., as a jet aircraft mechanic, and served there until 1962 when he was discharged from the Marines as a staff sergeant.

SP5 Hooper reenlisted in the US Army in 1962, and was assigned to Fort Rucker, Ala., where he served in the airfield command section at Lowe Field. SP5 Hooper joined the 227th in December 1963 and was assigned to Delta Company in the operations section.

SP5 Hooper's decorations include the Good Conduct Medal with 4 loops, Purple Heart, Korean Service Medal with 3 Battle Stars, Presidential Unit Citation, and the China Service Medal.

11th Medical Battalion Sergeants Host Award Presentation Review

Dickman Field was the site where the NCO's of the 11th Medical Battalion, 11th Air Assault Division held their first NCO review on a chilly afternoon, Jan. 15.

The reviewing NCO was Sgt. Maj. Loyde M. Daniel while 1st Sgt. John Thompson of Company A was the Commander of Troops.

Cavalry Life Not All 'Air' Glamor

By CWO A. P. Schanzenbach

Life in the 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry isn't all glamor in the air. Each Air Cavalry Troop contains a rifle platoon whose only connection with flying is confined to riding in helicopters to their areas of operation. From then on, their work is done strictly on foot.

The rifle platoon is organized with a platoon headquarters and four rifle squads.

The headquarters detachment contains the platoon commander, a captain, the platoon sergeant and five warrant officer pilots. Five UH-1D helicopters provide the organic platoon transportation.

The rifle squad is made up of a squad leader, two team leaders, two grenadiers, and two riflemen. This squad carries a small arsenal consisting of two .45 cal. pistols, two M - 79 grenade launchers, five M- 14 rifles and one M-60 machine gun.

The mission of the rifle platoon is to extend the reconnaissance and security capability of the air cavalry troop by means of long - range round combat patrolling.

Examples of rifle platoon operations are: conducting limited ground attacks of a hit-and-run nature, supply line harassment and raids on enemy command posts.

The rifle platoons also provide security for troop command posts, larger areas, refueling points, 'hide outs', landing and pickup zones. This is accomplished by establishing and manning observation and listening posts and road blocks.

Since returning from the Carolina maneuvers, the rifle platoon training in the 17th Cavalry has been directed specifically toward counter-insurgency with special emphasis on guerrilla and counterguerrilla operations. This training has consisted of re-qualification in all small arms and day and night patrolling techniques on both squad and platoon level. To further add to their effectiveness, all members of the rifle platoons have successfully completed rappelling training. Members of each rifle squad have been cross trained to provide demolition and pathfinder capabilities.

Another facet of the rifle platoon's versatility is its ability to communicate. One man in each squad carries a PRC-25 radio and all members of the squad are trained in its use and maintenance. This coupled with the PRC-25 radio carried by the platoon commander gives the rifle platoon the capability to operate deep within enemy territory on a scale approaching fifty miles without loss of communications.

Varied Honors Awarded During Dual-Role Review

On Saturday January 23 the 3rd Battalon (Aerial Rocket), 377th Artillery held a combined retirement and awards review on Stroup Field. Brig. Gen. Richard T. Knowles, assistant division commander, was the reviewing officer. Also on the reviewing stand were Lt. Col. Nelson A. Mahone Jr., commanding officer of the 377th, and Capt. and Mrs. Lyle H. Niebruegge, the retiring officer and his wife. Maj. Joseph J. Lahnstein was the Commander of Troops.

After the presentation of the command to the reviewing officer, Capt. Niebruegge's retirement orders were read. Gen. Knowles then pinned the Army Commendation Medal on Capt. Niebruegge and gave him a Department of Army Certificate of Achievement.

The persons to be decorated and the colors came forward, the national anthem was played, and General Knowles made the presentation of awards.

Capt. William F. Koehler received the Distinguished Flying Cross for action on August 13, 1963 in Vietnam while flying a UH-1B helicopter on a medical evacuation mission. In extremely bad weather he made two trips to rescue wounded and surrounded troops. He completed the mission even though under severe small arms fire on the second landing in the forward area.

Capt. Koehler was also awarded the Bronze Star Medal for distinguished service in Vietnam from May 1963 to April 1964. Capt. Koehler is currently assigned as Battery Commander of Battery C.

The Vietnamese Cross of Valor went to Captain Calvin H. Carr for heroism in action from April 27, 1964 to May 3, 1964. The citation came from the Commanding General, 2nd Corps Army of Vietnam. Capt. Carr was assigned to the 119th Aviation Company at the time of the action.

Battery B received the Third U. S. Army Certificate of Proficiency for an exceptionally high score on the CMMI inspection held last year. Maj. Jack O. Phillabaum, commanding officer of Battery B, accepted the award.

The battalion then passed in review to music furnished by the division band. As the last unit passed down the field nine aircraft, three from each battery, came over in a very impressive flyby which was made considerably more difficult than usual by the high winds.

Basketball Highlights

Off The Backboard

By Lt. Joe Mottola

Leading teams in the 11th Air Assault Division's Battalion Basketball Leagues saw plenty of action this past week at Harmony Church and Kelley Hill.

On January 18 the 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery put their unblemished 5-0 record on the line against the 511th Signal Battalion. The "CANNONEERS" rose to the occasion and short-circuited the Signalmen 65-62 despite Wendell Batchman's 34 point effort. Oliver's 21 points were tops for the winners as they held on to their share of first place in the Chinook league.

The nitecap had the Chinook league co-leader, the 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry "TOTEMS" at 4-0 also in action as they took on the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry "KANIEN GAHAGERS" entrenched in second place with a 4-1 record. The "TOTEMS" were down at the half by 4 points but rallied in the second half to eke out a hard fought 53-48 victory.

Tuesday night the 37th Air Transport Battalion, Caribou League leaders at 5-1 had little trouble with the 226th Aerial Surveillance and Escort Battalion as they romped to an easy 58-30 victory. Joe Turner's 22 points for the 37th topped all scorers while Jerome Pikop tallied 16 points for the losers.

Kelley Hill on Wednesday night was packed as the undefeated 23rd Infantry "TOTEMS" clashed head on with the undefeated 38th artillery "CANNONEERS" in the game of the week. To the winner would go undisputed possession of first place in the Chinook league! It was fairly close at half-time but the tall "TOTEMS" really poured it on in the second half as they started clearing the boards and could manage only 13 points in the second half as the "TOTEMS" won going away by a score of 68-41.

This weekend the 611th Aircraft maintenance and Supply Battalion team No. 2 will meet the 42nd Artillery "ROCKETS" on the 29th and the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry "MARNE MEN" on the 30th. These games will determine possession of second place in the Caribou league. During the week, the 23rd Infantry "TOTEMS" will take on the "KANIENGAHAGERS" of the 38th Infantry. The Infantrymen are still within striking distance of the two top spots. Other teams which are breathing down the necks of the league leaders will see action this week as the 127th Engineer "BEAVERS", the Headquarters Special Troops "RAIDERS" and the 15th Artillery "SHOOTERS" will take the court in key games.

Support Command Honor Review Cites Achievement of Nine Men

Nine officers and enlisted men of the 11th Air Assault Division Support Command were presented with medals and certificates of achievement at a retreat ceremony held on Dickman Field. Lt. Col. Thomas W. Buchanan, Support Command executive officer acted as Commander of Troops at the retreat and made the presentations.

Honored were Capt. William R. McKenney, 11th Medical Battalion who received the 10th and 12th Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal and Capt. Jerome J. Sullivan, 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion; SFC Jack D. Erwin, Headquarters Headquarters Company and Band, Support Command; and MSgt Robert C. Tijerina, 408th Supply and Service Battalion.

Capt. Carl O. Johnson, 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion received the USAREUR Certificate of Achievement and the Seventh Army Certificate of Achievement was presented to Maj. John C. Haley, Support Command Transportation Section.

Music for the retreat ceremony was provided by the 11th Air Assault Division Band. The band, under the direction of CWO William J. James, is noted in this area for its impromptu pop concerts and its jazz selections. This organization, started in August 1964, has provided music for all 11th Air Assault Division occasions of military ceremony.

FOR FOREIGN SERVICE . . . SFC Wilkie J. Stewart, 408th Supply and Service Battalion, is presented with the Joint Services Commendation Medal awarded because of his outstanding services while a member of the Joint United States Military Mission for aid to Turkey. The medal is awarded by Lt. Col. Thomas W. Buchanan, executive officer Support Command.

Maj. Dwight L. Lorenz, commanding officer of Company "C", 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion, recently took two of his company's CH-47A Chinook helicopters to Tulsa, Okla. to transport a second Lunar Excursion Module (LEM) Adapter to Huntsville, Ala.

The Army Chinook helicopter, a large twin engine aircraft, carried the LEM adapter, weighing 4400 pounds and 50 feet high, slung below the large helicopter on the extensive flight. The LEM adapter is the outer protective covering for the moon landing vehicle in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Apollo Project.

Helicopters Fly Support For Infantry Brigade

Warming up for the field exercises which commenced January 25, the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion spent the past week in support of the 1st Infantry Brigade. The exercise provided an excellent opportunity for the 227th aviators to further develop and maintain the high degree of professionalism that is characteristic of this pioneer aviation unit.

The overall brigade objectives were to develop and maintain proficiency in counter guerilla operations, counter intelligence, and anti-airborne operations, and these objectives blended perfectly with the rapid response and support given by the "Pouvoir" pilots.

The Charlie Company "Loaders" commanded by Capt. Thomas I. McMurray supported the 38th Infantry, throughout the exercise, which was highlighted by a night air assault mission. During the remainder of the week, Charlie Company was constantly on the go in order to fulfill the mobility and resupply mission for the supported infantry units.

Alpha Company, commanded by Maj. Robert W. Mills, highlighted their portion of the exercise in conducting counter guerrilla operations in support of the 1st battalion, 187th Airborne Infantry. First light missions in conjunction with low-level navigation caught roving guerrilla bands completely by surprise, and the well coordinated infantry-aviation maneuvers were the result of perfect coordination between all units involved.

Upon returning to garrison on Friday, the battalion began preparing for the actual exercises which got underway on January 25.

County School Policy Affects Post Children

Post military dependents will be permitted to apply for attendance at the high school of their choice in Muscogee County this fall under the county's recently announced desegregation plan, post officials have been advised.

This change follows an announcement of a resolution passed Dec. 28 by the Muscogee County Board of Education, Muscogee County School District, expressing a desire "to complete the desegregation of its school system as soon as reasonably possible."

Instructions to parents and forms to be used to indicate the high school of preference were given to all eighth grade students on the post and in Muscogee County Jan. 29.

Students already attending Muscogee County public high schools will be permitted to apply for transfer to another school if they want to make a change. Forms for requesting transfer may be obtained at local high schools.

All eighth grade students have been requested to turn in completed forms even though they now know they will not be here to attend a Muscogee County school in the fall. This requirement will enable school officials to insure that parents have been made aware of the opportunity to apply for the high school of their choice. Parents of eighth grade students who know they will not be here in September are instructed to make a note of that fact across the top of the form.

Forms completed by parents of eighth grade students in Faith School must be returned to classroom teachers by 8:30 a.m. Feb. 11. Forms requesting transfer to another high school by currently enrolled 9th, 10th and 11th grade students should be returned to teachers between Feb. 1 and 15. The Dec. 28 resolution provides "that in any case where the capacity of any school is not sufficient to enroll all pupils applying for attendance at such school, those pupils residing nearest the school will be enrolled and the remainder of such pupils will be assigned to other schools."

The original desegregation

Post Scout Is Honored For Essay

A Fort Benning Cub Scout was one of 950 who have been judged winners of the Nathan Hale Essay Contest.

The annual contest is sponsored jointly by the Freedoms Foundation and the Boy Scouts of America.

Steven Montgomery, Den 3, Cub Pack 37, son of Sgt. and Mrs. Alfred B. Montgomery of 809A Terry Drive, was one of 36,000 Scouts who entered the contest with a letter on "Why I Love America."

Cub Scout Montgomery's winning letter read as follows: "My father is a sergeant in the United States Army. Recently we returned from a three year tour in Berlin, Germany. I saw the Berlin wall which divides the city in half. Over there the people don't know the feeling of freedom like we have it here. Some people in America so often take our freedom for granted. If those people could see the Berlin wall then they will understand what it means to be free and appreciate it more."

Adding the official plaudits of Fort Benning to those of the Freedoms Foundation, Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, in ceremonies in his office Wednesday, made Scout Montgomery an "Honorary Doughboy."

Army Personnel Experts Schedule Five Briefings

Five personnel briefings scheduled at Fort Benning Tuesday and Wednesday are designed to implement the Army Chief of Staff's desire to "put PERSONAL back into personnel".

Brig. Gen. Melvin Zais, deputy director of enlisted personnel of the Office of Personnel Operations (OPO) and Lt. Col. Karl W. Volk, chief of the plans office, OPO, will back up the Chief's words with action.

Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army Chief of Staff, has been quoted as having an immediate, direct, and strong desire to return the personal touch to the Army's personnel actions.

The current swing into the Third Army area by the personnel experts will include Forts Jackson, Rucker, and Gordon along with the two-day stay at The Infantry Center.

Gen. Zais will conduct two briefings, both at Marshall Auditorium in The Infantry School Building.

The first, scheduled for 9 a.m. Tuesday, is planned for all general and field grade officers of The Center, The School, the 2nd Infantry and 11th Air Assault Division, and all Third Army and US-CONARC units stationed at Fort Benning.

The second of Gen. Zais' briefings, planned for 11 a.m. Wednesday has been scheduled primarily for officer students of the Infantry Career Course and those general and field grade officers who were unable to attend the Tuesday session.

Lt. Col. Volk plans three orientation briefings all designed for captains, lieutenants serving in captain's positions, personnel officers and senior enlisted personnel (grades E 7 - E 9) and for E - 6 personnel serving in a higher rated slot.

At Post Theater

The first class will be at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in the Main Post Theater for The Center, The School, Third

Patterson Memorial Presentation Will Draw Ranking Military Men

On Feb. 12, scores of high-ranking military men and a number of dignitaries will gather at the 7th Regiment Armory, 643 Park Avenue New York, N. Y. to witness the presentation of the 13th annual Robert P. Patterson Memorial Award to the outstanding graduate of the Army's Infantry Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning.

Department of the Army announced in a message received Wednesday, that 2nd Lt. Robert L. Brandkavp, assigned to Fort Rucker, Ala., has been selected to be the recipient of the 1964 Robert P. Patterson Memorial Award.

The Patterson Memorial Award was established in 1952 in commemoration of of the late Secretary of War and Judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. It is awarded annually to the OCS graduate who has demonstrated the most outstanding capacity for leadership, academic efficiency, aptitude and character.

The numerous friends of the late Judge Patterson, headed by Mr. Winthrop Rockefeller and the late Gen. Julius Ochs Adler, created in the New York Community Trust, a fund from which yearly memorial awards are made.

The award consists of a .45 caliber service pistol, appropriately inscribed, a monetary award, and an appropriate certificate.

Welcoming remarks at this year's colorful ceremony will be delivered by Lt. Gen. Robert W. Porter Jr., First U. S. Army commanding general. Gen. Porter will also introduce Mr. Arthur W. Allen Jr., Under Secretary of the Army, who will present the award; Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, widow of the late Secretary of War; and previous recipients of the Patterson award.

This is the first time the Patterson Memorial Award ceremonies will be held in New York City. In previous years they have been held at the Pentagon and Fort Bennine.

It is especially fitting that this honor to a leader be presented in the memory of the Honorable Robert P. Patterson, himself a leader, and a soldier for whom his men willingly risked their lives.

He first saw action on the Mexican border as a private in 1916 and rose to the rank

National Theme of Boy Scout Week Is 'Strengthen America's Heritage'

By William A. Craig

The story of scouting here in The Fort Benning District in 1964 and the ensuing year of 1965, as in any year, is the continued story of translating program into strength—strength in body, in mind, in purpose.

In Cub Scouting it was the story of home-centered fun and achievement. The story of more eight, nine and ten year olds than ever before belonging to the boy-sized democracy called a Cub Scout Den.

The story of their packs traveled through program and theme to fascinating worlds of adventure and learning new skills. Of boys meeting for the first time the challenge of getting along in a group. And of parents coming, through Cub Scouting, to a closer understanding of the delightful riddles who are their sons.

In Boy Scouting it was the story of boys stepping into a larger and more demanding role, which required of them that they learn new and harder skills in order to meet the challenge of the wilderness. It was the story of a new army of eleven year olds taking the old and wonderful oath and of boys learning with surprise that good turns can actually be fun. It was the story of boys moving up a trail' 55 years old, toward a mountain-top called eagle, and the story of boys reaching other heights called self-reliance, decency and citizenship.

In Exploring, the story took on new dimensions, for it was the story of boys entering a world closer still to manhood. It was a world of young men probing at their futures with new curiosity and purpose—of explorations in careers; in social living; in service; in high adventure; and in self-government. It was the story of young

Army Retirees To Hear Skinner

Columbus city commissioner Richard Skinner will be guest speaker at a meeting for retired military personnel Tuesday at the Sports Arena, 1028 Front St.

The meeting, beginning at 8 p.m. will start an organization for retired military personnel in the area.

Further information may be obtained by calling Capt. (Ret.) L. T. Pitts at 561-4439 or FA 2-0358 — or by contacting MSgt. (Ret.) John Nelson at FA 2-6495 or MU 9-7394.

Social Security

Number Must Be Included In Tax Return

Fort Benning military and civilian personnel are reminded that their Social Security number must be included in Federal income tax returns. A $5 penalty may be assessed for each failure to include the Social Security number on a return unless a reasonable cause can be shown for not including it.

An Internal Revenue Service spokesman said Social Security numbers are being omitted on some returns. Taxpayers should double check to make sure that Social Security numbers are complete and accurate. Omission of that number delays processing of the return.

If both husband and wife have income, both should list their numbers on a joint return. If only one has income only his number is required.

Scout

men in a hurry—and marking time.

Year after year these programs make a diference in the lives of boys. Year after year they open doors to new sills in doing, living, helping; new horizons of mind; new strength and new purpose. Surely these opening doors today will make a difference in America tomorrow.

This is our challenge, as volunteer leaders, here at Fort Benning, in re-dedicating ourselves that scouting can make the difference; in helping a boy become a better member of his family.

In helping a boy be more faithful in his religious life.

In helping him be physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight.

In helping him to be a loyal and participating citizen of his country.

Army

Army and CONARC unit personnel.

The second will be at Kimbrough Gymnasium in Sand Hill at 1:30 p.m. also Tuesday for the 2nd Division.

The final presentation by Col. Volk will be in Theater 11, Harmony Church, at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday for the 11th Air Assault Division and TEC group.

All personnel attending these briefings are requested to be seated at least 10 minutes before the briefing is slated to get underway.

The conferences, in line with the directive of the Chief, are designed to promote a better understanding of the enlisted personnel management system and to solicit recommendations for improvement of the program.

Gen. Zais

Gen. Zais, born May 8, 1916 in Fall River, Mass., was graduated from the University of New Hampshire in 1937.

He served in the European Theater during World War II as a member of the original Parachute Battalion in the United States Army. He later commanded a parachute battalion and was executive officer of a separate parachute combat team attached to the famous 82d Airborne Division.

Following World War II, he was G3 of the 82d Airborne Division and later was an instructor and chief of the Airborne Department at the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

In 1952-1953, he served in Turkey where he was adviser to a Turkish brigade which he accompanied to Korea.

Upon his return from Turkey, he commanded the 505th Airborne Infantry Regiment, 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg.

He served in the Pentagon as Chief of the Doctrines and Combat Developments Division in G3.

When the 101st Airborne Division was organized under the pentomic concept, he was assigned as Chief of Staff and then as Commander of the 187th Airborne Battle Group which was the test unit for the Battle Group concept.

He returned to Europe as G3 of the Seventh Army for three years.

Upon returning from Europe, he served as Deputy to the J5 (Chief of the Plans Directorate), Headquarters, United States Strike Command, MacDill AFB, Florida.

Following promotion to Brigadier General on June 1, 1964, he was assigned as Director of Enlisted Personnel, Office of Personnel Operations, Department of the Army.

Brig. Gen. Zais, a master parachutist, is a graduate of the short course and the regular course at the Command and General Staff College, the Armed Forces Staff College, the National War College, and the Advanced Management Program at Harvard School of Business Administration.

He has been awarded the Silver Star, Legion of Merit Bronze Star Medal, Army Commendation Medal w-Oak Leaf Cluster, the Purple Heart and Combat Infantryman Badge.

Col. Volk

Lt. Col. Volk was commissioned from Infantry Officer Candidate School in March 1943. He served during World War II with the 17th Airborne Division and the 99th Infantry Division in the European Theater.

He left the service September 1945 and in 1947 received a regular commission and was then stationed in Hawaii until 1950, going to Korea in July 1950 with the 5th Regimental Combat Team.

Subsequent assignments were at Department of the Army (G3) and as a student at the Command and General Staff College, USAREUR, and the 2nd Infantry Division, and 1st Cavalry Division in Korea. Upon return from Korea, he was assigned as Chief, Plans Office, Enlisted Personnel Directorate, Office of Personnel Operations.

He holds the Bronze Star Medal w-Two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Purple Heart w-One Oak Leaf Cluster and the Combat Infantryman Badge w-Star.

Col. Milton G. Schneider, USAIC Adjutant General, and Lt. Col. L. H. Dahl, deputy AG and project officer for the conferences, will meet Gen. Zais and Col. Volk at Muscogee County airport Feb. 8 on their arrival here, the first stop on the four-Fort four.

Both Pentagon officers are scheduled to depart by military aircraft for Fort Rucker at 1 p.m. Wednesday.

Patterson

of major in World War I. During his military career he was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, for extraordinary heroism, the Silver Star, for gallantry in action, and the Purple Heart. Following the first World War he became a highly successful attorney and in 1930 was appointed to the Federal bench. As World War II approached he resigned as a Federal judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals to become Assistant Secretary of War and was then promoted to Under Secretary the same year. Throughout the war he served in this capacity until 1945, when he rose to the highest position then existing with the armed forces, Secretary of War.

Policy

plan for Muscogee County schools was adopted in September, 1963, and implemented in September, 1964. The plan provided for a "grade a year" desegregation, beginning with the 12th grade.

The plan has now been amended, adding three more grades and completing desegregation of the high schools in two years, rather than four.

In a letter Dec. 31 to Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, William Henry Shaw, Muscogee County superintendent of schools, expressed appreciation for the cooperation of post personnel in the desegregation of the schools.

Col. Marlowe Is Awarded JSC Medal

Col. Lon D. Marlowe Jr., Test Evaluation and Control Group here recently received the Joint Service Commendation Medal.

The medal was awarded to Col. Marlowe for his work during a four year period from June 29, 1959 to June 15, 1963 while serving as deputy, Target Intelligence Branch, Intelligence Division, Staff, Commander-in-Chief, Pacific.

As one of the original members of the Target Branch, Col. Marlowe was "directly responsible for the basic concepts under which the Branch was staffed and organized."

The award was presented to Col. Marlowe by Brig. Gen. Robert R. Williams.

'Creativity' Workshop Scheduled For Dependent School Teachers

A workshop on "Creativity" will be conducted here Monday through Wednesday for the staff and teachers of the dependent schools.

Dr. Rodney Tillman, assistant superintendent in charge of elementary education in the Minneapolis Public Schools, will be workshop consultant.

He will be the guest speaker at the Fort Benning PTA meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday, in the Faith School auditorium.

Sponsored by the PTA, the workshop will feature five sessions for teachers of specific grades, followed by a general session for all teachers.

At 9 a.m. Monday, there will be a planning session for the steering committee for the workshop. Dr. Joseph T. Conforti, assistant superintendent for instruction of the Children's Schools and coordinator for the workshop, will preside.

The first group session will be conducted from 9:45 to 11:45 a.m. in the Patch School auditorium with kindergarten, first grade and special area teachers participating.

Second and third grade teachers will attend the workshop from 1:15 to 3:15 p.m. in the library of Wilbur School.

At 3:45 p.m., the Benning Education Association will entertain workshop participants at a tea in the Faith School cafeteria.

The program Tuesday includes a conference from 8:15 to 9:15 a.m. between workshop officials and Col. Maurice C. Holden, PTA president.

There will be a session from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. in the Loyd School library for fourth and fifth grade and special area teachers and another from 1:45 to 3:10 p.m. in the art room of Faith School for some of the sixth, seventh and eighth grade and special area teachers.

At 8 p.m., workshop participants will attend PTA.

On Wednesday, the last group session will be conducted from 9:30 to 11:20 a.m. in the art room with the remainder of the sixth, seventh and eighth grade and special area teachers participating.

The general session will be held from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Faith School auditorium. With Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, superintendent of the Fort Benning Children's Schools, presiding, there will be a report of each group session of the workshop.

Marine, Army OCS Compared

Col. Arthur H. Haake, commanding officer of the Marine Corps OCS, and two members of his staff visited the Infantry Officer Candidate School here last week in order to obtain a working level comparison of the two schools.

"The Infantry Officer Candidate Program is outstanding in every respect and the personnel I came in contact with were of the highest caliber," remarked Col. Haake upon his departure.

'On My Honor. . .'

"On my honor I will do my best:
To do my duty to God and my country. . ."
You may recognize the above words as the beginning of the Scout Oath of the Boy Scouts of America, but the same beginning could serve as well for the oath of the American serviceman, or the oath of any American.

Compare it with the words of the late General of the Army Douglas MacArthur in his farewell address to the graduating class at West Point in 1962. General MacArthur, who remains in the minds of many as perhaps America's greatest military leader, began his speech with the words:

"Duty, Honor, Country . . ."

The Boy Scouts of America celebrates its 55th anniversary Feb. 7-13. Theme of the anniversary program is "Strengthen America's Heritage."

It is not a new program for the Scouts. For 55 years they have strengthened the heritage of this nation. The creed of the Boy Scout, from Cub to Explorer, encourages reverent, resolute and responsible patriotism. A good Scout can explain to anyone what he believes is his heritage, who created it, who preserved it, who defended it, and how.

No person can fully estimate the influence of the Scout's character-building, citizenship training and physical fitness programs. By training boys aged 8 to 17 to keep themselves "physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight," the Boy Scouts of America has constantly supplied this country with men who are prepared to be its leaders.

Many former Boy Scouts are now U. S. servicemen stationed in Viet Nam, Laos or other "hot spots," making full use of the vigorous training they received in the Scouts. Former Scouts are well represented on America's Mercury astronaut team. Many of these men still participate actively in the Scouting program because they know the great value the country will receive from these future leaders.

On its 55th birthday, the Boy Scouts of America and its 5.5 million members deserve the gratitude of the nation and a sincere wish for an equally productive future. (AFPS)

Drinking and Driving

Each year for the past ten years, an average of 500 soldiers have been killed and another 4,000 injured in traffic accidents while operating their own automobiles.

In addition to the personal tragedy connected with their loses, there is a damaging effect on the Army's readiness capability. Also, these accidents cost the Army in excess of $21 million annually. This amount represents actual cost; the indirect or hidden costs are many times as great.

Last year 43,600 Americans died in traffic accidents. Half of these fatal accidents are reported to have been influenced by alcohol, if not directly caused by it. In one state, for example, blood samples of drivers killed in accidents revealed that 48.6 per cent were under the influence of alcohol. In another state, a similar study showed that 74 per cent of drivers killed in collisions had some alcohol in their systems.

Most Army personnel have heard such admonitions as "If you drink, don't drive" and "Drinking and driving don't mix." But it is apparent that the "sloganeering" approach in controlling the drinking - driving problem has not been entirely successful. Therefore, meaningful and definitive information concerning drinking-driving is necessary if commanders are to be successful in reducing the accident rate among Army personnel.

Many suggestions have been proposed for the drinking - driving problem. A reasonable approach to the problem lies in convincing the driver of the hazards and penalties that may result from drinking and driving.

Why We Are There

Why are several thousand American servicemen in Viet Nam? What is their mission? What does the United States seek to accomplish by our military and other assistance to the Republic of Viet Nam? What is at stake in the bitter struggle going on there? Why, exactly, are we in Viet Nam?

The Republic of Viet Nam is trying to remain free of communist tyranny and has asked us to help them. It has long been a basic principle of American foreign policy that we will respond to any free nation's call for help when its freedom is in peril from external aggression or subversion.

We believe that the more free nations there are in the world, the better the chances for world peace and individual freedom. In the other direction, whenever a free nation is in danger of passing under communist control, the chances for peace and individual freedom are reduced. This belief is based on the historical fact that self-governing people rarely invade their neighbor's territory or otherwise disturb the international peace, while communist and other dictatorships usually resort to aggression and expansion ultimately. A threat to freedom and peace anywhere in the world is a potential or actual threat to all free men. Thus, the United States has a vested interest in the maintenance of peace and the preservation of freedom.

As they have in many other parts of the world, the communists may try to disguise their action in Viet Nam by calling it a "war of liberation." But the disguise has worn thin; it never was much of a disguise anyhow. If the communist strategy of subversion and guerrilla insurgency were allowed to succeed in Viet Nam, communism would be encouraged to exert similar efforts in other countries of Southeast Asia and eventually in other parts of the world.

By our unflinching support of the Republic of Viet Nam, the United States is demonstrating, to the Communist and Free Worlds alike, that we do not intend to stand aside and let freedom die in Southeast Asia or anywhere else.

Our objective is to help the people and the Government of the Republic of Viet Nam defeat the communist insurgency in that country, which is directed and supported by the communist regime in Hanoi.

Brain Stimulation

By Chaplain (Capt.) Ralph Spear

In a recent article in Science and Mechanics (Feb. 1965), James R. Berry points out that scientists are able to practice electronic manipulation of an animal mind. This he calls Electronic Stimulation of the Brain (ESB). He mentions that ESB has also been used experimentally to treat mental patients.

At Tulane University in Louisiana, a select group of chronic mental cases were equipped with self-stimulators. Buttons on a special belt activated electrodes in their brains. Whenever a patient felt depressed, he pushed the button.

ESB washed away anxiety, and helped restore a more cheerful mood. In cases where patients had severe psychotic seizures, ESB turned uncontrollable rage into euphoria. In other cases, electrodes were placed in pleasure centers of the brain of people with terminal cancer.

Using Chemical Stimulation of the Brain, (CSB), pain was replaced with rapture — a tingling sensation throughout the body accompanied by emotional contentment.

The growing lack of concern for seeking and following the will of God, as we learn His will from the Bible and in our many opportunities to worship, reminds us of the importance of making our lives reflect God's love.

As we approach the Lenten Season of the Christian Church year, and as those of the Jewish faith seek continued growth in Godliness, may we become rededicated in our efforts to know and to do God's will.

Jesus summed it up very well as recorded in Matthew 16:24, "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me. . . For what will it profit a man, if he gains the whole world and forfeits his soul?"

Your Dental Health

Questions & Answers

By Lt. Col. R. Y. Whittemore Jr., DC

This is the final article in a series of five articles on dental health published by THE BAYONET in observance of National Children's Dental Health Week, Feb. 7-13.

Why do we observe National Children's Dental Health Week? This is the 17th annual observance sponsored by the American Dental Association in an effort to improve the dental health of our children. At age five we find that two out of three of our children have tooth decay.

To this your comment might be, "But these are baby teeth and will be replaced, why bother with them?" We recently discussed the value of these first teeth, for chewing and for growth and development of the jaws.

The point now is that habits started early are hard to change and neglected primary teeth just do not lead to good dental health in the years to come. When these children reach the 15 to 19 year old group, we find that five of every six have tooth decay and one in four of these have eight or more cavities. So they are not as well off as they were at age five.

This then is the picture of the dental health of the young men coming into the military service. We find that only a little over one-fourth of our population is motivated to seek all the dentistry they need, and a little over one-half of our population seek dentistry only when in pain and just that required for the relief of that pain.

In order to improve the dental health of our population, we need to stress the value of a good program of home care of the teeth, proper brushing after eating, the value of regular visits to the dentist, not just for treatment, but also for instruction on how we can prevent dental disease.

Over 400 Women Attend 'Parisian' Affair Given by OWC; Fashion Show Featured

Fort Benning Society Women's News

By Dorothy Newman

Over 400 women gathered in the Main Officers' Open Mess for the annual OWC spring fashion show and luncheon Wednesday.

The event was conducted with a Parisian theme. In the Anzio Room, a French Kiosk (news stand) with red and white canopy was on display, complete with French newspapers and magazines.

The Eiffel Tower, bathed in amber light and surrounded by refreshment tables, stood in the middle of the Main Ball Room. Clay flowerpots, filled with hand-made pink and white carnations, decorated the base of the Tower. Hostesses at the tables, wives from TSB, wore chic, black and white French maid costumes.

Spring Atmosphere

A "Paris in the Spring" atmosphere was created by adorning the tables with pink and white carnations, green leaf sprays and sprigs in varying shades of pink. The head tables were decorated with black wire mannequins, festooned with crepe paper, American Beauty Roses and pink and white carnations.

A completely French cuisine was served for the luncheon against this decor.

The fashion show models wore the latest in spring fashions from a collection chosen by Victor Kiralfy and his fashion consultant, Mrs. George R. Theeringer.

Guests

Guests included Mrs. B. Ed Johnson, wife of the Mayor of Columbus, Mrs. William E. Conger Jr., 2nd Division Officers' Wives'- Club president and Mrs. William McKinney, 2nd Division NCO Wives' Club president.

Seated at the head table were Mrs. John Heintges, honorary OWC president; and honorary OWC Board members, Mrs. Harry W. O. Kinnard, Mrs. John Norton, Mrs. Robert R. Williams, Mrs. John Wright, Mrs. John Chiles, Mrs. Robert E. Coffin and Mrs. Richard T. Knowles. Mrs. Robert M. Williams, OWC president, presided at the luncheon.

Mrs. Donald T. Kellett was general chairman. Co-chairmen were Mrs. Ralph J. Viestenz and Mrs. Robert D. Liscombe Jr.

Models

The ten models, wives from TSB, included Mrs. William E. Tower, Mrs. Gary M. McCrite, Mrs. Robert H. Hager, Mrs. Jack H. Griffith Jr., Mrs. John P. Soukup, Mrs. Paul S. Hodges, Mrs. Linwood P. Knight, Mrs. Robert S. Fiero, Mrs. P. C. Serff and Mrs. Richard Renfro.

Mrs. Frank Roberts coached the models and Mrs. W. S. Massie, a local make - up consultant, instructed them in make-up procedures.

Wives acting as French Maid hostesses included Mrs. Edwin M. Frazier, Mrs. Leroy Felde, Mrs. Lawrence J. Dacunto, Mrs. Ralph C. Clark, Mrs. John H. Crittenden, Mrs. James C. Yarborough, Mrs. John R. Dyer, III, and Mrs. Gary D. Varner.

Commentators for the show were Mrs. Edward E. Rusk and Mrs. John L. Taylor. Music for the models during the show was provided by Mr. Donald Barry.

Committee Chairmen

Special committee chairmen for the luncheon included: Mrs. Ronald S. McCaul, flower carts; Mrs. Robert B. Liscombe Jr., leaf sprays; Mrs. Donald E. Drouin and Mrs. Charles F. Grandgeorge, flowers; Mrs. Karl Sannicks, Anzio Room; Mrs. Ralph J. Viestenz, costumes; Mrs. Walter R. Jegier, gifts; Mrs. John P. Soukup and Mrs. William W. Hunter, Sr., menu; Mrs. Dale Y. Freed, transportation; Mrs. Stanley S. Scott, spotlights and Mrs. Donald L. Whitlock, crest construction.

MRS. KUREK

OWC's 1,700 Members Compose Largest Club

Mrs. Robert A. Kurek, membership chairman of the Officers' Wives' Club, announced this week that the group's current membership has reached an all time high of 1,700 women, thereby ranking it the largest women's club of its kind in the world.

The club has gained 100 members since last year due primarily to the increase in post personnel.

Mrs. Kurek will be replaced next week as membership chairman by Mrs. Ronald S. McCaul.

The Kureks are leaving for the Army Language School in Monterey, Calif., where Maj. Kurek will attend a three-month course in Vietnamese. Upon completion of this course, Kurek will leave for Viet Nam. His wife and three-year old son will stay with their families in Decatur, Ill.

A Big Job

As membership chairman, Mrs. Kurek kept an alphabetical file of all 1,700 members and frequently contacted each unit commander's wife or activity chairman for listing of new members. Several members are added weekly, and records are maintained primarily to ensure that members who have lost or misplaced their cards may still partake in the club's various activities.

An "old hand" at club work, Mrs. Kurek was 2nd vice-president of the 24th Division Wives' Club in Munich and also served as its reservations chairman. While in Munich, she used her fashion knowledge in a weekly AFN radio program, "Fashion Forecast."

She was a professional model in Houston, Tex., and since then has modeled frequently for wives' clubs shows.

36 Activities

Membership in the OWC costs $2 per year and entitles card holders to participate in any or all of its 36 activities, including art, cake decorating, slipcovering, horseback riding or cooking. Any officer's wife, retired or active, may become a member.

Money received for membership is put into the general fund for operating expenses such as, taxes, heat, light, janitorial service and salaries for the club's forty employees.

Cards are available from unit commanders' wives, OWC activities chairmen, at all club functions and from CAR and ACAR coffees. Honorary membership is extended to all general officers' wives and allied wives on post.

OWC members and its board salute Mrs. Kurek for a job well done.

NCO Wives Plan Tea Friday at Crain Hall

The annual membership tea for the NCO Wives Club is scheduled for next Friday from 1 to 3 p.m. at Crain Hall.

All non-commissioned officers' wives are invited. For information contact Mrs. Paul Moorehead, chairman, at 687-3543.

Activities for the new year include a Latin American Study Group, headed by Mrs. John D. Amos.

Square dancing will be taught by 1st Sgt. and Mrs. James Isom. Additional information may be obtained by telephoning Mrs. Raymond Field. 561-2076.

There also will be classes in international cooking with Chef Marcel Carles giving the lectures. A cookbook will be made by the exchanging of favorite recipes among members. For those interested in this class, contact Mrs. Walter Smith, telephone 561-1678.

For those interested in card skill, duplicate bridge lessons have begun for beginners. The advanced duplicate bridge lessons will be taught at a later date.

A ceramic class for beginners is held the second and fourth Tuesday of each month. For additional information of bridge and ceramic classes, telephone Mrs. Leo Winterburn, 545-4237.

Nursery care for children will be furnished free for the membership tea.

Concerts Inaugurated At Columbus Museum

A "Salon Series" of chamber music concerts is being inaugurated Sunday by the Woman's Guild of Columbus Museum and the Orpheus Club of Columbus.

The first concert in the series will be presented by the Emory Piano Quartet at 3:30 p.m. at the Columbus Museum auditorium.

Tickets cost $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students and are on sale at the door.

Proceeds from the concerts will be used for the "Piano Fund" of the museum and the scholarship fund of the Orpheus Club.

The Emory Quartet, which was organized by Emory University, will play music by Mozart, Turina and Brahms. Robert Harrison will play violin, Chappel White, viola, Priscilla Loemker, cello, and Donald Pease, piano.

BOWLERS NEEDED

The OWC Bowling League is in need of additional bowlers to finish the year. If you are interested in a morning of fun and exercise, call Mrs. Cloyle Emery at 689-5380 or Mrs. Charles Badgett at 689-2903.

Girl Scouts Need Help

Several Girl Scout troops on post face deactivation if leaders and assistants can not be found. Mrs. E. C. Radcliff, neighborhood chairlady for the Girl Scouts, has asked for volunteers who can spare a few hours each week. Consultants, organizers and a publicity chairman are also needed. Interested parties are asked to call Mrs. Radcliff at 545-2909.

Candlemaking Art Demonstrated

By Hazel Lipscombe And Joanne Drouin

The art of candlemaking was demonstrated recently by Mrs. Dale Burt, featured speaker at a meeting of Infantry officers' wives, ACAR II, at a luncheon.

Snow - covered driftwood and snowmen dressed in pink decorated the dining tables, while the head table was centered with an arrangement of pink carnations and white mums.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. Victory Moya, Mrs. Kent O'Connor, Mrs. W. Pecks, Mrs. Thomas Olsen, Mrs. Donald Nave, Mrs. James Walker, Mrs. Virgil Ogles- by and Mrs. Barry O'Shields.

Guests included Mrs. John A. Heintges, Mrs. John Norton, Mrs. Donald T. Kellett, Mrs. Arthur J. Estes, Mrs. Joseph E. McCluskey, Mrs. Ronald S. McCaul and Mrs. Gordon DeRoos.

TSB Wives

Mrs. Robert B. Nett and Mrs. Guy A. Modica were welcomed as new members of the Headquarters Wives' Club, TSB, at a dessert coffee held last week.

During the coffee, farewells were said to Mrs. Dale Y. Freed who received a bonbon dish as a memento from Headquarters wives.

Mrs. John J. Lissner and Mrs. Joseph E. McCluskey hosted the affair.

54th UC Wives

A centerpiece of crossed Confederate flags and assorted flowers commemorated the birthday of Robert E. Lee at a recent coffee held by wives of officer candidates in 54th Co., 5th Student Bn.

During the affair, student's wives and guests, Mrs. Stanley S. Scott and Mrs. Robert A. West, heard a briefing by Lt. John Dyer on the 54th Co. Senior Status Review.

Mrs. Patrick Greiner, Mrs. Maynard Malebey, Mrs. John Class and Mrs. Horace Mecomber were student wife hostesses. Mrs. Clifford W. Cross and Mrs. John L. Taylor served as cadre hostesses.

Orientation

Mrs. William J. Koob Jr. and Mrs. William C. Carter Jr. were guests at a 4th Student Bn. Airborne - Ranger orientation.

Lt. Col. John J. Lissner opened the program by welcoming the wives of husbands undergoing airborne and ranger training.

Lt. Richard Jones presented a brief history of ranger units after which a film of ranger training was shown. Capt. Dean Potter continued the program by highlighting the history of airborne training units.

A social hour followed the orientation which was attended by approximately 35.

Follow-up Coffee

A follow-up coffee was held recently for wives of officers attending the Infantry Officers Basic Course 7, 2nd Student Bn. The coffee was hosted by Mrs. Ronald S. McCaul, Mrs. Dale E. Johnson and Mrs. Gary D. Varner.

During the affair, Mrs. McCaul spoke to the wives on military customs and courtesies. Miss Jan James, book store representative, offered information concerning post book store facilities. Mrs. Jerry Liston, social chairman for the wives' group, concluded the program with an outline of social activities planned for the next few weeks.

Chat at Luncheon

Guests at luncheon given for wives of students in the OC Basic No. 6 class chat with a student's wife. (L to R) Mrs. John A. Heintges, Mrs. Gary Kelley and Mrs. Maurice C. Holden.

CHAP. (CAPT) WORKMAN DISPLAYS ROCKS . . . Gathered from Around the World

To Appreciate God's Creativity

Theology and Speleology Mixed By TSB's 'Rock Hound' Chaplain

BY RICHARD MINNIG

Most people's interest in stones and minerals is a passing one, restricted to sending a stone into the air with a well-aimed kick or admiring the "rock' on a young woman's finger. However there are men called "rock hounds" whose interest is more than passing.

A "rock hound" is a man who collects rocks and other related inorganic matter such as gems, crystals and fossils. When free from his duties as a Student Brigade chaplain, Capt. Ralph C. Workman is a rock hound.

Rock collecting began as a boyhood hobby for this Seventh-Day Adventist minister. While serving as a pastor in the Ozark Mountains of Missouri, this early interest received a boost.

Fascinated by the many caves in the area, he began exploring and photographing. Among his first collector's items were stalactites and stalagmites usually found in such caverns. They are cone-shaped carbonates of lime built up by dripping water which has a high lime content.

Mixing theology and speleology, the art of exploring caves, Chaplain Workman says he is "better able to observe and appreciate God's creative work".

Through books' periodicals and mineral and gem societies, Chaplain Workman has gained a working knowledge of his hobby and has familiarized himself with hundreds of different stones and minerals.

Fluorescent Stones

Among the more interesting items in his collecton are several fluorescent stones which glow when exposed to ultra-violet light.

Although his collection consists mostly of stones and minerals, Chaplain Workman plans to collect and study fossils more extensively in the future. His collection now includes fossils of plants and a prehistoric fish as well as fossilized shark's teeth.

During his Army travels, Chaplain Workman has enriched his collection with specimens from Thailand, Korea and Japan.

"The simplest way to learn about collecting is to know someone who is a collector," says Chaplain Workman. "Both publications and the numerous mineral and gem societies in the United States are also helpful," he added.

Chaplain Workman's military career has been a varied one. Not always a chaplain or an officer, he was once an enlisted member of the 82nd Airborne Div.

While in Georgia, he plans to explore the Big Barrel Mine near LaGrange and hunt for fossils and petrified wood on Jekyll Island.

Don't Let 'Star Dust' Blind You--Gen. Johnson Urges Officers

"Chances for advancement in the Army are better today than they have ever been", and "I intend to support a pay raise during this fiscal year." These quotes from a recent address by the Army's Chief of Staff, Gen. Harold K. Johnson, are contained in an article, "Promotion, Cost of Living, Pay and Housing" in the February issue of ARMY magazine.

In his address, Gen. Johnson compared promotion possibilities of the '50s with those today. "From about 1961 to the present," he said, "it has required four years in grade as a major to be eligible for lieutenant colonel, but in 1958 and 1959 it required about eight years." The general observed that "every officer should be able to see a star at the end of the road," but cautioned, "Do not let your aspirations for a star influence your attitude toward your people or your obligation to your country. In other words, do not be blinded by star dust."

On the subject of the cost of living, the general noted that there are areas where the cost of living allows you to live easily on your pay . . . but in other areas, such as Washington, D. C., and other large cities, it really stretches the budget."

In answer to the high cost of living in such areas and inadequate allowances for cost of moving expenses, the general stated that possibly a clearly defined claim basis, more flexible than established sets of allowances for each area can be worked out.

In addition to his statement that he intended to support a pay raise during this fiscal year, Gen. Johnson covered housing, both for dependents and bachelor officers. "To retain the type of people we want and must have in the Army, we have to have more housing. - a decent place to live," he said. "High priced tar paper shacks outside some of our camps are not the answer."

Infantry School's 'Really Big Show' at Greenwood Hill Leaves Students Wondering If It's Not the McCoy

By David N. Scott

So you think Ed Sullivan has a "really big show!"

Well, there's a bigger show right here. Performances are held daily and no admission is charged. The props are all real and the action is fast and furious.

The setting of this extravaganza is Greenwood Hill. The show is directed by Lt. Col. William C. Carter Jr., and cast by his crew of eight officers and six NCO's.

Carter is the chairman of the engineer committee at The Infantry School. He controls a cast of over 8,000 student Infantry officers a year on a budget that he is continually trying to slash.

The unusual aspect is that Carter is actually accomplishing more with less.

In one instance he had a special bunker constructed for the purpose of installing a television camera during a demolition demonstration. The television tape may be used again and again thus eliminating the hazard of falling debris and saving valuable instruction and student time.

Before the television tape was initiated the students were forced to sit over 1,000 feet from the explosion and then walk to the demolished site to see the results. Now he can view the actual charge closeup on television and see the results immediately.

This technique saved two hours of the students time and one hour of instruction time. But in no instance would Carter substitute television for an actual field demonstration if the student's reaction to the demonstration was more favorable.

"We are always experimenting with more advantageous means of getting our point across to the student," explained Carter. "If the student reacts better to the television than to the live demonstration, then the television will be used or vice versa."

When Carter was assigned here in Sept. 1963, he immediately began construction of a new engineering training area. The result was Greenwood Hill.

In building this training area the colonel managed to save valuable time, eliminate unnecessary costs and provide better training. He completely eliminated the old training area which included Eiler Hall, the large old engineer classroom and auditorium, and replaced it with a 20 foot by 30 foot building in Greenwood Hill. Eiler Hall is now being used by track and field maintenance classes.

A stickler for realism, Carter holds 89 per cent of his classes in the field with the remaining 11 per cent in the classroom.

A visitor to Greenwood Hill would constantly be dodging rumbling bulldozers, falling in camouflaged foxholes, tripping over antitank obstacles and standing in awe at the demolition demonstrations and simulated river crossings. The battered sightseer would probably return with tales of fantastic bridges made of rope, hay, wood pulp and wonder if steel was still the ultimate in bridge building.

If there is a crevice in the terrain at Greenwood Hill, Carter and his staff have slapped a bridge over it and if there isn t a hole they'll dig one and convert it into a machine gun implacement or a foxhole.

Not satisfied with old river crossing sites, "they were too small and didn't provide the realism," the colonel decided to use the Chattahoochee River, and accomplished the first crossing Jan. 21. One crossing a month will be staged from now on.

Weather is no obstacle. "If the river floods, we have the crossings on tape," said Carter. The engineers were the first committee in the Brigade and Battalion Operations Department to use television as a means of instruction. "My objective is to keep our training centralized in order to save time and money, provide better supervision and more efficient operation," explained Carter.

Before his assignment to The Infantry School he was an engineer battalion commander and division engineer with the 2nd Inf Div. His other assignments include division engineer of the 3rd Armored Div., and assistant division engineer of the 1st Armored Div.

During World War II Carter saw action in the China-Burma-India Theatre as the commanding officer of an engineering company. He also participated in the Korean War.

"My proudest achievement," said Carter, "is the construction of the Libby bridge over the Imjin River in Korea." The bridge was built only 4000 meters from the enemy.

"They were watching us and we were watching them," said Carter. Fourteen generals were at the dedication ceremonies and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, then commanding general of the Eighth U. S. Army, cut the ribbon opening the bridge.

'Hospitality Sundays' Organized for Allies

The initial project of a planned series of "Hospitality Sundays" met with great success Jan. 31 as 41 allied officers of 17 different nations were invited into the churches and homes of Columbus Baptists.

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Arthur J. Estes, TSB Chaplain, said in explaining the new military - civilian program, "If the Allied students here are to really know our country, they have to see the basis of our faith in God upon which our country is founded. They must see our people at worship and at home."

Baptist Hospitality Sunday will serve as the pilot project for the program which will eventually include all the religious faiths in the Columbus area. It is the first systematized program of its kind at Fort Benning.

The Baptist denomination was selected for the initial project because they are the most numerous and best organized of the faiths here. There are 26,000 Baptists of 46 churches in the Columbus area.

Dr. Leslie S. Williams, superintendent of Missions for the Columbus Baptist Association, who organized the project with Chaplain Estes and the Rev. Sidney L. Watterhouse, pastor of the Benning Hills Baptist Church, said "This is a two-sided project. These allied officers can teach and help us if we show them courtesy and attention during their stay here."

Dr. Williams remarked that friendships and correspondences have sprung up between allied officers and American families when similar invitations were extended in the past.

In inviting allied officers to the churches, Chaplain Estes said that he realized a large number of them were not Christians. He said "The invitation was extended to them not as worshippers but as observers in order to help them get a truer picture of American life."

The results of Baptist Hospitality Sunday will be reported to the Columbus Ministerial Alliance and plans will be laid to bring other faiths into the program.

Questionnaires will be issued to all families volunteering for the program and recommendations will be made to them on how to make the allied students feel more comfortable.

Terming Sunday's results as highly favorable, Chaplain Estes said that in the past "the people of Columbus have always shown an eagerness to cooperate with Fort Benning."

He also noted that allied students have often been invited by Columbus religious and civic organizations to speak about their homelands.

Reaction Course Record Broken By OC Class 5

A record accomplishment was set by Officer Candidate Class 5-65, while taking Leaders' Reaction Course.

Candidates of Team Alpha of Group 6, Richard Robinson, Bryan Sutherland, Isiah Simmons, Richard Schneider, and Ross Thomas, completed five accomplishments out of five attempts to set a new record.

In addition, Group II of OC 5, by completing 46 per cent of all assigned tasks, set the highest percentage of completions for any one day running of the course.

In recognition of this feat, the leadership committee, Company Tactics Department, presented a certificate of recognition to OC 5.

Maj. Ernest J. Cherney, deputy chairman, presented the citation to Capt. John H. Hayes, commanding officer of the 55th Co. (OC).

Viet Nam

(These questions and answers on Viet Nam, Laos and Southeast Asia are excerpted from "Viet Nam — The Struggle for Freedom," a pamphlet (DoD Gen-8) issued by the Directorate for Armed Forces Information and Education, Department of Defense.)

Q: What has brought about the present crisis in Viet Nam?.

A: After the Geneva agreements of 1954, it was hoped that South Viet Nam would have an opportunity to build a free nation in peace. The country faced staggering problems, including 900,000 refugees who had fled from the North to escape Communist rule at the time of partition. With the aid supplied by the United States, Viet Nam began to grow and develop. This confounded the expectations of the Communists in Hanoi, who has expected South Viet Nam to collapse and fall under their control. In 1957 they began an attempt to bring about the collapse of the South through terrorism and sabotage. Then, in 1959, Hanoi announced a campaign of "national liberation" and launched an aggressive program of wholesale violations of the Geneva agreements. By 1961 it was apparent that the International Control Commission could not restore peace and that the only effective course would be to help the Vietnamese government resist aggression. At their urgent request U. S. military and economic assistance was substantially increased.

Receives Commendation Medal

MSgt. Antonio Morales - Prospper, supply sergeant for AMTU, is congratulated by his commanding officer, Maj. James O. Duke (L), after being awarded the Army Commendation Medal. Sgt. Morales-Prospper received the medal for dedication to duty and exemplary leadership while supply sergeant for the 2nd Howitzer Bn., 37th Artillery, Germany June, 1958—Apr., 1964.

Officer Candidates Told 'You Must Sell Yourself'

"Your NCO is the man you deal with 24 hours a day, every day of the week, and 52 weeks a year. He is the man you have to understand, and he has to understand you."

This was the kind of advice given by Sgt. Maj. Joseph J. Bettin, Sergeant Major of The Infantry School, while speaking recently to members of Officer Candidate Class No. 4 at Wigle Hall.

Addressing the candidates on officer - non commissioned officer relations, Sgt. Maj. Bettin said, "You must sell yourself to your NCOs. The character traits that will command their respect are the same ones that have served to establish the inspiring reputation of OCS graduates. They are: courage, initiative, will-power, and knowledge."

In advising the future officers on their first meeting with their platoon sergeant, Sgt. Maj. Bettin said, "Remember he knows his job. In many cases he has run a platoon a long time without a platoon leader and has done a fine job. He thinks he has the best unit in the Army and will help to keep it that way."

The Sergeant Major further added, "Your platoon sergeant is your right-hand man. Keep him abreast of what you expect. If the end product is not what you desire, let him know.

"Don't start off by changing things or setting policies", Bettin said, advising the candidates on their first command assignments, "there may be good reasons why things are the way they are.

"There is plenty of time to introduce your ideas and changes after you have observed the operations of the platoon."

Reiterating, he said, "Keep your relationship with your NCOs strictly on an officer-NCO relationship. Always address them by their rank. Your men will respect you for it, and the combat readiness of the platoon will show it."

Sgt. Maj. Bettin later added, "When you have sold yourself to your subordinates, you need not tell any superior about it. They too, can see it in the eyes of the men you lead, in their faces, in their actions, in the barracks, in the field, and in battle.

"When the chips are really down and you must be ruthlessly demanding — demanding the last measure of sacrifice, if necessary — these men will rise as ONE to do your bidding."

Fort Benning Children's Schools Will Observe Dental Health Week

National Children's Dental Health Week will be observed next week in the Fort Benning Children's Schools with a poster contest, displays, films and visits to classrooms by dental officers.

Adding special emphasis to the care of the teeth during the week, the 17th national observance sponsored by the American Dental Association, is a continuation of a year-long dental health program.

Students in the third through eighth grades may prepare posters for the dental health contest. There are no rules as to size nor materials to be used. The emphasis is on originality, officials said. All entries must be in by today.

At each school, three posters will be selected from each grade to be entered in the finals of the contest.

Posters will be judged by the Post Dental Section. First prizes will be electric toothbrushes, donated by the Dental Section. Runners-up will be given dental health emblems. Each child in the school system will receive a dental health kit.

The Dental Section has furnished the schools training aids and charts to use in teaching dental health.

During the week, preventive dentistry officers will visit classrooms to participate in dental health activities planned by the teachers.

Mason Cited For Service

Sp4 Richard S. Mason, of Hq. Co., 1st Bn. (Mech.) 58th Inf., recently received an Army Commendation Medal.

Mason, who has been in the Army 23 months, was presented the AMC for meritorius achievement and outstanding service while serving the the 58th as S-1 clerk from Aug. 1963 to Jan. 1965.

WAC Lieutenant Praised

WAC 1st Lt. Andrea R. Dyroff, left Fort Benning and the military service recently, but took with her high praise for her performance of duty with the Infantry Center's Adjutant General Section.

In a Certificate of Achievement signed by Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, Lt. Dyroff was cited particularly for her duties as Army Emergency Relief officer and voting officer.

The citation read in part, "As Army Emergency Relief Officer, she administered the funds of the Army Emergency Relief and Army Relief Society with notable success. Because of her energy and enthusiasm, the voter participation in the recent general election was greatly increased."

Lt. Dyroff, who has been succeeded as assistant chief of AG's Personal Affairs Division by Capt. Monica A. Heffren, plans a March vacation with her husband who will be returning from Viet Nam at that time.

COL. TISDALE

Col. Tisdale Will Address Civitan Club

Col. Tyron E. Tisdale, deputy chief, tactics group, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department and project officer for The Infantry School's "Win in VietNam," program, will address the Phenix City Civitan Club Tuesday.

Col. Tisdale, who has seen duty on two occasions in Viet Nam, will discuss "Viet Nam: The Country and the War," at the 7:30 p.m. dinner meeting in Kemp's Restaurant.

The colonel was senior adviser Vietnamese Army School Center, Military Assistance Advisory Group (MAAG), Viet Nam, from March, 1960, to March, 1961, and regimental and senior division adviser, 22nd Inf. Div. (Vietnamese) from Aug. 1963, to Aug., 1964.

Col. Tisdale entered active military service in September, 1940, at Brunswick, Ga. He was commissioned at Fort Benning May 5, 1942.

EIB Given To Eleven Of 197th

Eleven members of the 197th Inf. Bde. were awarded Expert Infantryman Badges this week after having successfully completed the four day EIB test given under the auspices of the 2nd Inf. Div.

Maj. Gen. John Chiles presented the famed blue badges which distinguish an expert Infantryman at a ceremony on Tuesday at Theater No. 6.

Of the 11 men from the 197th completing the course, seven are assigned to the 1st Bn. (Mechanized), 58th Inf. They are 2nd Lts. Jack F. Shake and Sam Daniels, and Sgt. Terry Henning of Co. A, 2nd Lts. Jack L. Edwards and Francis H. Wolfla, and Sgt. Miriam Calbert of Co. C; and Sp5 Robert H. Sarnowski of Co. B.

Four members of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf. who received badges were Capt. Augustine Gomez, Co. B, 2nd Lt. Melvin D. Jones, Sgt. James E. Mathias of Co. C, and SSgt. Terry McLean of Co. D.

The EIB is a symbol of the recognition of outstanding infantrymen in peacetime.

1st Place League Deadlock Broken by 29th Inf. Team After Engineers Squad Is Upset by Brigade Troops

By Frank L. Lombardi

A neck-and-neck race for first - place standing in the Infantry Center battalion level basketball league finally produced a leader last week.

The 29th Inf. team gained a precarious one game margin on Thursday night by whipping the 10th Artillery squad 84-54. The Infantrymen have won all four games that they have played in the second half of the league.

They had shared first place honors with the 577th Engr. Bn. up to last Tuesday, when the Engineers were upset by fourth-ranked 197th Bde. Troops by a 75-73 margin.

577th Ties Second Place

The 577th played again Monday night and beat TSB No. 1 by 64-48, which placed them in a tie for second place with the 1st Bn., CTC, quintet. Both teams have a 4-1 record.

The Brigade Troops have come up into third place standing as a result of their unexpected victory over the Engineers and by downing the 58th Inf. (89-66) two nights later. They now have a 3-1 record and were scheduled to take on CTC Monday.

The league - leading 29th was scheduled to compete with the 577th on Wednesday night.

Both the CTC game and the Engineers' could result in stabilizing second place standing in the league.

Easy Win

In the game between the Engineers and TSB No. 1 on Monday night, the 577th team, coached by Shel Reyher, won easily over the poorly organized TSB entry.

Early in the game TSB managed to tie the score twice, but after that the Engineers stayed comfortably ahead throughout the last three quarters of play.

Top scorer of the night, Roger Faber of the 577th, bagged 33 points, almost half his team's total. He also led in rebounds and in free throws.

TSB's player-coach, Gabby Naples, set up most of the plays for his team and sank 11 points. Backing him up were Gary Kassel and Charlie Tisdale. Both pulled down rebounds despite the severe height advantage held by 577th's Faber and Bobby Pendley.

The well - groomed Engineers forced the TSB shooters to stick with long shots and then captured most of the rebounds.

Jimmy Blair of TSB was the high scorer for his team, completing seven baskets and five charity shots for 19 points.

Medics Down Armor

The 428th Med. Bn. took on the 69th Armor team also on Monday night and beat them by 30 points (66-36). Otha Brackens and John Costello of the Medics scored 13 and 10 points respectively, while the 69th had John Higdon, with 13 points, and Bruce Sering, with 10, as high scorers.

Standings as of Monday:

Jim Coyle's Crucial Last-Minute Basket Gives 197th Troops an Upset Victory

By Tom Reinstra

A league leader came tumbling down as the 197th Bde. Troops basketball team tripped the 577th Engineers 75-73 in a come - from - behind cliffhanger.

Jim Coyle, high man for the Troops, put in the crucial basket to pull out the win and round out the night with 20 points.

The 577th built up an early lead and was ahead by 16 points with only 9 minutes left in the second half. At this point, the 197th staged a rally to close the gap and set up Coyle's winning shot.

Troops Hold Off 58th

Two nights later, the Troops held off the 58th Inf. for the first half and then coasted to win 89-66.

The 58th was able to stay close to the taller 197th team all through the first period, but could not buy a basket through nearly the first ten minutes of the second half. In the meantime the 197th built their lead.

Howard Keene was high man for the Troops with 28 points, while C. B. Ralston scored 19 for the 58th.

The 197th is now tied in third place in the USAIC battalion level basketball league with a 3-1 record.

The pace - setting 29th Inf. secured the league lead with an 84-54 win over the 10th Artillery.

Walstad led the 29th in scoring with 19 points, followed by Ernest McPherson with 16. Duane Eichorn was high for the 10th with 20 points.

Young Bowler Averages 198

A professional bowler, PFC Martin Camarata of the 1st Bn., 29th Infantry's Hq. Co., has bowled in tournaments throughout the United States and maintains an average of 198.

A native of Rochester, N.Y., Camarata began bowling when he was 12 years old and a pin-setter at a local bowling alley.

He participated in his first league at 14 with a 145 average and at 16 won his first trophy for a high series average of 167 in the Rochester Junior All-Stars tourney.

Camarata became a professional bowler at the age of 19 when he joined the Professional Bowler's Association (PBA) with a game average of 198.

The PBA sanctions pro bowlers with a two-year average of 195 or better. Fees for entering each tourney can cost up to $300.

He has won over $1,000 since he began playing in professional tournaments in New York, California and Texas.

He holds a 280 score for his best single game and a high series of 789.

'Little Doughboys' Win Over Phenix City Club

The "Little Doughboys" defeated a Phenix City Boys Club basketball team, 42-23, Sunday night at Briant Wells Field House.

Played as an added attraction to the Hazel Walker's "Arkansas Travelers" — 1st Bn., CTC contest, the victory gave the team its fifth win against two defeats this season.

Rex Sanders of the Phenix City club captured scoring honors with 13 points. The Doughboys opened quickly and pushed steadily ahead, moving to a seven-point advantage at the end of the first half, leading 19-12.

Tying for the Doughboys' high score, with eight points each, were Craig Plowman, Bob Noland and Joe Smith. They combined for 11 of the "Little Doughboys," 23 points in the second half.

Phenix City collected 11 points against the tight Fort Benning defense before the game ended.

The Little Doughboys go to Macon, Ga., this weekend to play a game with the "All-Stars" at Warner Robins Air Force Base.

Blankenship Earns Championship At Season's First Outdoor Match

BLANKENSHIP

SFC William Blankenship, Jr. of the Army's MTU wrapped up his first individual championship of the new outdoor season last Sunday with a 2,853 effort out of a possible 2,700 points.

He also took the .45 caliber aggregate for a clean sweep. He had previously won the .22 caliber and center fire aggregates.

SFC Ralph O. Thompson, also of the MTU, broke Blankenship's streak by winning the service pistol title with an 880 and 43 shots in the x-ring, a smaller circle within the bulls-eye used to break ties.

His margin of victory was a narrow one as Blankenship also finished with an 880 and pumped 40 shots into the deciding x-ring.

The MTU's Blue No. 1 squad dominated the team matches, capturing all four fired events.

They had a safe margin in three of them but barely nipped the MTU's Blue No. 2 team in the Center Fire when both fourman squads posted scores of 1,172. The ultimate winner had 59 x-ring shots to 49 for the runnersup.

Blankenship and Thompson fired on all four winning teams. Joining them in the .22 caliber match were Sgt. Merriweather Jones and SFC Lloyd Burchett. They had a total of 1,170-60.

M. Sgt. George Snavely replaced Jones in the Center Fire match.

Jones rejoined the squad for the .45 caliber match and M. Sgt. Richard Stineman was the fourth man. The foursome had a winning total of 1,176-60.

Sgt. Anton Hermann took Stineman's place as the team took the Service Pistol title with an 1,158-47.

Thompson was runnerup to Blankenship in the individual aggregate with a 2,641 total in the three-gun match.

High Master honors went to Col. Joseph J. Peot, commanding officer of the MTU, with a 2,509-91.

James Williams took Expert Class honors with 2,500-48; Martin Monohan of Fort Gordon topped the Sharpshooters with 2,557-76; and Gordon's James Duncan won the Marksman Class with 2,309-34.

COLUMBIA PICTURES presents STEVE McQUEEN LEE REMICK DON MURRAY PAULA MULLIGAN'S production of Baby the rain must fall

Mobile Show Premiers; Tours Third Army Area

"Merrily We Roll Along," a spectacular musical variety tour of the United States, began rolling throughout the Third U. S. Army area after a premiere showing yesterday at Fort McPherson, Ga.

The Third Army Showmobile production will feature songs from each of the 50 states in a two-hour program embodying a new concept in background scenery.

For the first time in army showmobile production, and possibly for the first time in any amateur organization, the Nagy Multiscreen Scenery Projection System will be used to provide appropriate backgrounds for each of the different songs. The Nagy System uses color slide projectors stationed in the theatre wings to project scenery on stage.

The two month tour will cover Army, Navy and Air Force stations in the Third Army area.

from the playhouse

The three act drama, "The Visit," will be staged by the Little Theater March 2-6.

The play revolves around the once prosperous town of Gullen, which over the years has been beset by a mysterious blight causing famine and hardship on its once proud citizens.

Salvation depends on the world's richest woman, Madame Claire Zachanassian. Anton Schill had once betrayed Claire and denied that he had fathered her child. The citizens now asks Anton to convince Claire to save the town.

Claire, responsible for the mysterious blight, has returned after 25 years to seek revenge by offering one billion marks for Anton's life.

Overcoming fear, persecution and torment, Anton Schill resigns himself to stay and face whatever his fellow citizens choose to do about the injustice suffered by Claire.

The cast includes: Betty Britto - Cliare; Mich McMaster - Anton; Jay Ronneberg - the Burgomaster; Sylvia Cook - Frau Schill; John Newbolt - pastor; Les Muchmore - teacher; Doug Macy - doctor; Jerry Eubank - policemen; and Tom Largy - painter.

Also: Michael Lamp - Karl (the son); Susan Gingrich - Ottilie (the daughter); John Richards - Bobby; Tom Pearl - Pedro; Don Meeker - first blind man; Carl Andrews - second blind man; Judy Muchmore - the first woman, and Paula Greene - the second woman.

General Calls Winners 'The Best of the Best'

By JOE TREASTER

The commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division this week presented 46 Expert Infantryman Badges to men in his unit and called them "the best of the best."

The badge winners represented 10.6 per cent of the 422 men paced through the rigorous 15-phase test of soldiering skills. They ranged in rank from captains to privates first class.

Individual high scorer was Lt. John A. Fesmire, intelligence officer (S-2) of the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry. He amassed 1,364 points out of a possible 1,500.

Headquarters Company of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry fielded nine badge winners to take the high-scoring company award.

In a brief address Tuesday at Theater Six, Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, the division commander, talked of the competitive spirit in America and described competition for the EIB as "one of the finest things in the peacetime Army."

"In a competitive nation like America, people can feel good when they emerge 'the best of the best' as you EIB winners have," he said. "One of the real privileges of life is to live long enough to be able to award things to 'the best of the best.'"

Thirty-five of the badge winners were officers, tabulations show.

"That's the way it should be," Gen. Chiles said. "People with commissions have had a little more chance, he said.

'Operation Switcheroo' Is Name Given Maneuver by Visiting Air Force General

A stocky, cigar - smoking Air Force general got down to earth last week with 2nd Infantry Division soldiers in what he called "Operation Switcheroo."

During Exercise Winter Sun, Brig. Gen. Albert W. Schinz and several other Air Force officers switched places with senior officers of the 2nd Division.

The Air Force men went into the fields with the troops and Indianhead men, led by Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, the commanding general, took to the air.

Riding behind Air Force pilots in supersonic jet fighter planes, the 2nd Division men "attacked" their own command posts. They saw the effects of camouflaging as seen by the enemy.

And what some of them saw, Gen. Chiles in particular, called for some changes.

"The first day of our strafing runs the targets were easy to find," said one pilot. "But after Gen. Chiles had a look, things changed."

On the ground, the Air Force men talked with unit commanders and watched their planes in action.

"The aerial attacks weren't perfect," one of the officers on the ground said. "But perfection was not the mission. We want-

'Dream Assignment' Falls to Lt. Col. Snow

Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow, Jr., commander of the 1st Brigade, learned this week of a "dream assignment" that will take him away from the 2nd Infantry Division in early summer.

The colonel said he has received orders indicating he will become district engineer for the Army Corps of Engineers at Wilmington, N. C.

It is a post once held by Col. Snow's father, a career Army engineer now retired.

"The Wilmington assignment is the kind that every engineer officer dreams of. I'm very pleased," he said. "But I regret leaving the 2nd Division.

"This job is the most satisfying I've ever had. As long as I'm in the Army I'll never have one that's more satisfying."

Col. Snow, 41, took command of the 1st Brigade in December when illness forced the reassignment of Col. C. C. DeReus to Walter Reed Hospital. He had served as Col. DeReus' executive officer for six months.

When he joined the division in 1963 — after attending the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., — Col. Snow became commander of the 2nd Engineer Battalion.

Division-Airmen Trade Honors

The peaceful meeting of two tribes of professional warriors — The 2nd Infantry Division and the 838th Air Division (Tactical Command) — provoked a ritualistic exchange of symbolic mementos.

Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, commander of the 2nd Division, made each of the Air Force men honorary members of the division and gave them miniatures of the division crest. Engraved certificates proclaimed their membership in the "Second-to-None" division.

The Indianhead men who flew through the sound barrier in Phantom II (F4c) jets, were proclaimed "Mach Busters."

High Man in Badge Tests Laments Lack of Planning

After an inside look at the 2nd Infantry Division's Expert Infantryman Badge competiton — in which he was the high scorer — Lt. John A. Fesmire had two suggestions:

"More time should be spent on evaluation and planning of the tests," he said, "And specialized training should be provided on a unit level."

The 25-year-old ranger and airborne - trained career officer qualified his remarks, however, by describing the 15-phase test as "basically good."

In apparent accord with Lt. Fesmire was EIB project officer Capt. Basil N. Apostle.

"I plan to include similar suggestions in my after action report," Capt. Apostle said.

He said that condensing the preparation and testing period from seven to 5 four weeks proved unsatisfactory.

"We had only two weeks for preparation and two weeks for testing," he said. "We were forced to make corrections during the actual testing."

Lt. Fesmire said that at least a month of special EIB training in the units is necessary "if you want people to earn the badge. The tests are especially difficult for

1st Brigade Stars In Badge Awards

First Brigade captured center stage for the award of Expert Infantryman's Badges Tuesday in Theater Six.

Altogether, 36 out of the Division-wide total of 46 went to members of 1st Brigade's subordinate units.

The 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry was undisputed leader with 24 of the badges alone. Next came the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry with a dozen.

Both are under the 1st Brigade.

of Engineers when he graduated from West Point in 1944, Col. Snow has spent most of his service time in that area.

Company Commander

During World War II he served as a platoon leader and as a company commander of a combat engineer battalion in the Philippines. After the war he stayed on in Manila in the office of the chief engineer.

Later in his career he served for two years in the Office of the British Army Engineer-in-Chief in London and for a time he was assigned to the Far East Engineer District, administering and inspecting military construction in Korea and Japan.

Before attending the War College he commanded the engineer detachment at the U. S. Military Academy and was the senior engineer instructor there.

Col. Snow is a graduate of the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kans., the engineer school at Fort Belvoir and holds a master of science degree in civil engineering from the University of Illinois.

successful candidates in the recent badge tests here. The silver rifles on narrow blue fields signify excellence in the skills of the peaceetime infantry.

These two units were the only ones to qualify a substantial number of men.

Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, division commander, presented the badges.

He said "There is no finer mark for an infantryman than to win this badge." "I am extremely proud of all these men."

Of all men tested this past month, a percentage of only 10.6 were given the badge. Chiles explained that that percentage is not meager, rather a fine percentage passing the difficult test.

Further exemplifying the accomplishments of the 1st Brigade was the naming of Lt. John A. Fesmire, Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry, as the outstanding individual tested.

The outstanding company, walking off the stage with nine badges, was Headquarters company, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry, commanded by Capt. William J. Mullin III.

General

generally speaking, to compete and get ahead.

"When I was a lieutenant you didn't get a good efficiency rating if you weren't expert with your equipment."

Preparation, he said, is an important part of any victory.

"When I was a private in the Missouri National Guard and wanted to go to West Point I had to work hard," he said. "I studied 18 hours a day, six days a week for eight months before I got there."

The EIB winner with apparently the least time in service, Henry T. Luna, 24, who was recently promoted to private first class, said he studied "for about a month on my own."

He, like high - scoring Lt. Fesmire, found the demolitions and communications sections the toughest parts of the test.

"When the tests began," said PFC Luna, a 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry truck driver, "I never thought I'd win the badge. But toward the end — especially after the bayonet course — I felt I'd made it."

The tests began in mid-January and ran for two weeks.

In addition to 2nd Division soldiers, 220 men from the 197th Infantry Brigade and elements of the 11th Air Assault Division took the tests. Of that group, 24 won badges.

The following were presented with Expert Infantryman's Badges:

1-9th INFANTRY

Company A — Capt. Horace G. Taylor, Lt. John Martin, Lt. George Jenkins, Lt. Jared G. East.
Company B — Lt. Robert W. McClellan.

2-9TH INFANTRY

Company A — Capt. Bruce D. McDonough, Sgt. James P. O'Donnell.
Company B — Lt. Robert D. Sweeney, Lt. Donald C. Cornett, Lt. Gene R. Brown.
Company C — Lt. William M. McClure.

men with limited service experience."

Recommended

Recommended by Capt. Apostle is a minimum of 80 hours of specialized training at battalion level, culminated by a week long round - robin type tournament on EIB subjects.

"Only the best people would get through the local tournaments to the final division competition, Capt. Apostle said. "We could make the test tougher and still have more badge winners."

Lt. Fesmire said that for him, the toughest parts of the test were those that dealt with demolitions, mines and booby traps.

"It's tricky work," he said. "And I just wasn't too well prepared."

Win Admiration

The demolitions section scorers and the men grading EIB candidates on military courtesy and discipline won Lt. Fesmires admiration. "There was no fooling around with those guys. You either knew the answer or you didn't."

Lt. Fesmire, a 1959 graduate of Officers Candidate School, said he and another lieutenant spent five nights "cramming" for the tests.

Lt. Fesmire said that before the heavy study sessions, his only preparation for the test was a "practice" 12-mile march which didn't seem to help much. Both times — before and during the test — it took me about two hours and 40 minutes."

Did winning the EIB look like a snap to the 6'1", 205-pounder?

"I had plenty of doubts about how I'd do," he said. "It was my first attempt and I basically didn't feel I was prepared."

Operation

ed to show the Army officers how we work and we didn't want to shake them up too much."

In a critique period during Winter Sun, Gen. Schinz said he had seen a "tremendous improvement" in passive air defense in a time frame of two days. He especially noted the 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor.

"Even with a forward air controller directing the strikes from the ground it took two passes to find the armored unit," he said.

Advising division leaders on what to do in case of an air attack Gen. Schinz said: "scatter like quail."

"The most vulnerable time is when forces are lined - up on a road or in an encampment area," he said. "The troops and equipment remain sitting ducks until they disperse. If there are ditches along the road, the equipment should be run into them. Troops should dismount and take cover behind trees."

He said that once under attack the best position for the soldier is "spread - eagle; flat on his face and close to the ground."

"The shadow cast by a standing figure is a tell-tale sign," he said.

Caron

for me," Caron stated in an interview.

Several areas of mess hall work are taken into account before deciding on the winner of the plaque, kitchen cleanliness, records and food appeal, among others.

Col. Fred O. Jackson, Support Command's boss, made the January award to Caron.

With the 2nd Infantry Division since October 1963, his home is Fort Fairfield, Me. Caron is married and is the father of four children.

Division Colors Return From New Orleans

Battle streamers and colors of the 2nd Infantry Division came home this week in the hands of a 702nd Maintenance Battalion sergeant.

They had spent a week in New Orleans, La., for the retirement ceremonies of an Indianhead warrior who served with the division in the Korean War.

Carrying the colors was Sgt. Willie R. Findley of Headquarters and Company A of the Maintenance unit.

Records show that retiring Col. Arthur J. Cornelson, commander of the U.S. Army Terminal Command, New Orleans, La., wore the Indianhead patch in 1951 and 1952.

During that time, the records indicate, he served as assistant deputy division commander, chief of staff, division administration officer (G-1) and division operations officer (G-3).

Victors Emerge In Chess Tourney

Three privates and a specialist four emerged victors in the first round of the 2nd Infantry Division chess tournament currently being contested at Service Club Two.

Miss Nellie Guillory, club recreation leader, said that two more rounds remain to be played.

"The winners of the final round, to be played Feb. 14th, will go to Montgomery (Ala.) to meet the champion chess players of Maxwell Air Force Base," she said.

She listed the four top players at the end of the first round as: Pvt. Robert C. Proulx, Headquarters Company, 122nd Signal Battalion; Pvt. Gerald F. Walton, Company C, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry; Pvt. Tobias R. Griego, Company A, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry and SP4 Raymond J. Thielen, headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry.

Bad Mouth Means Good News at 17th

It is an Army tradition not to reprimand a man in front of his subordinates.

Lt. Col. Glen W. Smith, commander of the 17th Artillery, seemed to have forgotten this maxim as he assembled the men of Battery B, 17th Artillery and proceeded to berate Lt. Francis C. Luedtke for allowing the men to train without an officer being present. This was somewhat of a surprise to Lt. Luedtke as he hadn't known of any class planned.

Col. Smith next asked the young officer when he had last shined his second Lieutenant's bar, and receiving an apparently unsatisfactory answer, reprimanded him again for not taking care of his equipment.

After ordering him to remove the bar, Col. Smith summoned the adjutant and, ordering him to "Post the orders," promoted the amazed junior officer to first lieutenant.

He then summoned "the real commander of this outfit", Luedtkes' wife Mary Ann. She is known to many Columbus residents for her appearances in commercials on local television. She pinned new silver bars on her still astonished husband.

After they were dismissed the men crowded around to congratulate the "new" lieutenant on his promotion.

2nd Med Bn Tells Of Schools for 2

Further specialized training has recently been announced by 2nd Medical Battalion officials for two "medics."

Sp5 Jackson Berry and PFC. John Armstrong will attend the Advanced Medical Non-commissioned Officers School and the Laboratory Specialist School respectively.

The advanced medical school for NCO's which Berry will attend is located at Fort Sam Houston, Tex. It deals primarily with the administration of the Army's medical facilities and program. Berry is slated to return to the division upon completion of the 12-week course.

The laboratory specialist course Armstrong will attend is located at Fort McPherson, Ga.

Departures Mean Changes In 3rd Brigade Staff

Two 3rd Brigade staff officers soon bound for Saigon depart the "Second to None" next week for an extra charge of special training.

Headed for the U. S. Military Assistance Command, Vietnam (MACV) are Maj. James F. Rast and Maj. Norris F. Dendy.

Former S-3 (operations) and S-4 (logistics) officers at 3rd Brigade, their simultaneous departure stirred a staff hornet's nest.

New S-3 and S-4 are Maj. Edwin G. Davis and Maj. Ralph C. Cooper.

Capt. John A. Bond replaced Maj. Davis as S-2 (intelligence officer.

Maj. Dendy first will complete a 12-week special Vietnamese language course at the Presidio of Monterey, Calif.

Maj. Rast will attend schools enroute at Fort Gordon, Ga. and Fort Bragg, N. C.

Arriving at 3rd Brigade in June, 1963, Maj. Rast and his wife Elsie, who was recently crowned "Egg-Cooking Queen of Georgia," came from their station in France with Headquarters, U. S. Army Communications Zone, Europe.

Awarded a Bachelor of Science degree from Davidson College (N. C.) in 1949, he comes from Swansea, S. C.

Maj. Dendy joined the brigade in September, 1963 upon his return from Thailand, where he was assigned with the Joint U. S. Military Advisory Group.

Awarded a BS degree from The Agricultural and Technical College of North Carolina (Greensboro) in 1953, he is a native of Clinton, S. C.

Two 12th Arty Soldiers Lauded For Up-Keep

Members of the 12th Artillery are doing their share in the divisions maintenance program, according to battalion officials.

Letters from Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, assistant division commander have gone to two privates of the 12th commending the superior maintenance of their vehicles.

PFC. Kieth Bolek of Battery B and Pvt. Theodore Thompson of Battery A were given maintenance scores "far below the division standard," according to a 12th Artillery spokesman.

This was the second time in less than a month that Bolek has received a letter from the assistant division commander, responsible for maintenance throughout the division.

Division vehicles are stopped at roadside inspection points and inspected by maintenance experts to determine unit readiness. Inspections are carried out on a "spot check basis."

The Camera Recounts the Division's 1st Month in '65

Inaugural Chill

"It's Cold Up Here," says 1st Sgt. Donald McDewell of the 2nd Military Police Company. He was one of 20 non-commissioned officers from the division selected to form a part of President Johnson's inaugural cordon.

'Ready, Aim. . .'

Division marksmen fought it out last month to determine the division's best in the command ing general's matches.

Winter Sun

The division's Chief of Staff, Col. Burnside Huffman "hooks" a ride in the rumble seat of the Air Force's latest supersonic aircraft. During the exercise, division officials got to see what war was like at better than the speed of sound. Air Force representatives got a look at the exercise from the ground. Below, division soldiers keep their rifle sights on one of the low-flying fighters (arrow).

Winter Sun

Sights and Sounds

Sights and sounds from "Operation — Switcheroo," the combined efforts of Air Force and 2nd Infantry Division men in Exercise Winter Sun:

"It's been a real good exercise. I hope we can work with you all again," Col. Burnside E. Huffman Jr., the division chief of staff told the Air Force officers.

Air Force Col. E. H. Connor, on his first visit to the division, drove a tank and an armored personnel carrier.

"After driving the tank my kids will think I'm the greatest," he said. "When I told them I was flying the Ai Force's fastest jet they were unimpressed. But this tank experience will do it. For some reason they're Army oriented."

Lt. Col. Alfred L. Millard, commander of the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry, made Col. Connor an honorary member of his unit.

Lt. Col. J. A. Robinson, Air Force, commenting on Operation Switcheroo: "It was educational and enjoyable. It did get kind of cold out there in those tents, though. After living at MacDill (near Tampa, Fla.) we're not acclimated to this kind of cold weather."

Pilot J. L. Robertson, a captain, said he noticed that division officers were surpised that effective aerial surveillance was possible from a supersonic air plane.

"They didn't expect to see much at the high speeds we were traveling," Capt. Robertson said. "But at 450 mph you can get a fairly accurate vehicle count. It takes a good cover-up job to hide from our eyes at 200 feet."

Air Force Col. Robinson said that one of his passengers, Col. Tony F. Perpich, commander of Division Artillery, spotted several of his cooks running around the encampment area. "Their white suits showed up like beacons," Col. Robinson said.

"It was a real smooth operation. We had real good basic support." These were the words of Lt. Col. J. M. Hollingsworth, Air Force.

Apaches Near Conclusion; S and T Has Strangle Hold

The 2nd Supply and Transportation Battalion has veritably clinched the Apache league tilt as a result of the past week's play.

Although idle, the supply unit's quintet took a forfeiture from the 2nd MP Company, giving them a full game and a half over their nearest competitor, the 1st Battalion 9th Infantry.

S and T has only one game left to play against the much-improved 313th ASA Battalion entry.

The Apache League shapes into a battle for the second and third palce berth in the final standings.

The 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry took a free win from the 122nd Signal Battalion in their only scheduled action in the past week. The 23rd is a half game out of second place.

In play last Wednesday, the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry, overcame a 29 to 37 halftime score to win the contest 73 to 68.

Lionel Moore led the evening's scoring with 33 points.

Thursday, the 2nd Administration Company handed the 122nd Signal Battalion a 60 to 44 decision. Ronald White and Dan Sweeney led the Admin point scoring.

Friday, the 1st of the 9th again took the Signal quintet to task, walloping them 102-58. Lionel Moore was the leading scorer with 30 points.

'Racers' Set Up Unique League For Bowlers

Leaders were recently chosen by the 3rd Brigade's officer and NCO bowling league, a unique organization in the "Second to None."

While each Brigade unit has two teams—one for officers and one for NCO's—competition is "intermural."

Team captains and their respective units are: CWO Ellsworth R. Merrick and SSgt. Charles T. Coker of Headquarters, 3rd Brigade; Lt. Edward C. Prykto and Sgt. Hayes W. Moody of 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry; Lt. Dennis Bugielski and SSgt. Hugh B. Kennedy of 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor.

Elected president, vice president and secretary-treasurer of the bowlers were Merrick, Kennedy and Coker.

"Guardian angel" and advisor of the league is Capt. Max E. Newman, brigade chemical officer, who pioneered it last year.

The Aftermath

BY TOM KIRWAN

There is presently at Fort Benning a modern day Pied Piper, he is a stout, 200-pound, pipe-smoking individual, with a Kris Kringle smile and a modified Yul Brynner haircut—his name is Max Spurlin.

Max is the man most of your youngsters have the greatest praise for, and is blamed for their late arrival at home. He is the athletic director of the Youth Activity Club (YAC).

Max is quite a remarkable man. He has been working here on the post for the last ten years. He has seen most of you arrive, leave and return once more, and during this decade he has probably touched the lives of some twenty-thousand boys and girls either directly or through his YAC athletic program.

"YAC comes close to being a good program, explained Max. Right now there are 12 girls and 24 boys baketball team, a bowling league, boring and even judo.

"The one thing lacking to make this a completely successful program is more interested archery available for the members of YAC, but the necessary instruction is not. In the boys bitty basketball league there are presently three teams that are without a coach, the kids can't understand why someone doesn't show up to help them, they are there and the equipment is there.

Just as an example of how hungry these clay molds of adulthood are—There was a woman on post who was interested in bird watching. She approached Spurlin with the idea of starting a club, he agreed, and the Benning Bird Watchers were on their way.

Max explained the situation this way, "There are close to three-thousand youths who are affected by YAC, if an individual comes along who has a bit of talent, and wishes to share this gift, there are kids who will sap this knowledge and talent for all it is worth."

The program, he says, is open to any suggestions and help that will make it a success.

Many of you at this time are asking, "If Max is so interesed in the lack of coaches and leader for our children, why isn't he coaching just one of the teams himself?

The reason he isn't coaching—"just one of the teams—is because he is the organizer and coach of the 12 girls teams.

THE LONG REACH
Dallas Miller Goes Up For Two

Competition in the Cherokee League stiffened during the past week as the 2nd Medical Battalion basketball entry took its first defeat since the present schedule opened in early January.

The 7th Cavalry started from a deadlocked half time score and built a 12 point lead to beat the "medics" 62 to 50 last Wednesday night.

Thursday, the 12th Artillery, led by a 30 pointer from Jacob Young, defeated the 17th Artillery 78 to 71. The 12th trailed at half-time on the bottom end of a 41-38 score but went ahead early in the 3rd stanza.

The 72nd Armor kept alive its hopes for a first—place finish by trouncing the hapless 702nd Maintenance Battalion 96 to 41. Charles Haynes led the scoring for the Tankers with 31 points on the evening.

The Armor- managed the losing end of a 79-76 decision the following Monday, however. The 2nd Engineer Battalion came from behind at half time in one of the hardest fought games in the schedule to date.

BRAVE TALK

It does our heart good, us being so short now, to realize that there will be no letup by the 12th Artillery in their feeding ammunition to this column. An unspoken bond has almost seemed to spring up between us. Each week we appear brighteyed and eager at our desk. And just as regularly, in comes the stuff from the 12th Artillery which we always use to start off here. This week the 12th clobbered opposition in a strictly no contest duel. From the 12th, five items. From the rest, one.

The whole division, one. And the 12th got touched, too, that there'll be no erosion of our partnership as we finish our Army career. By the by, we'll be editing a small paper in Maryland which we hope to remake eventually into THE offset weekly newspaper. If you've got some change and think you might miss our brand of acid, drop around. Meanwhile.

Headquarters Battery of the 12th is "loosing" its first cook, one of the items notes. Sp5 WILLIAM W. FOWLER retires after 22 years. Battery A has received a man from Korea, Sgt. KENNETH L. PARSIO. Battery B's Sgt. ERNEST G. PARR has reenlisted for six years as has a private first class in Headquarters Battery, ARTHUR L. INGRAM. (Are you sure that's not "Arthur.") Apropos of nothing but merely because we just finished reading the book, get your hands on "Candy." If you like strong satire, laced heavily with Social Significance and Sex, read this mocking work. Now back to the core of this column and a final message from the 12th. Six Battery A men have added stripe one to heretofore slick sleeves. The new PFC's are LEO D. DALEY, DANIEL F. DENNEHY, JAMES L. LOWERY and RICHARD R. HOWELL.

The single other puny offering apart from the 12th, well, it's not really puny, is from the 122nd Signal Battalion to alert the rest of division to the fact that Capt. DAVID R. COATES JR. has recently arrived here to be signal officer from Fort Monmouth, N. J.

DivArty Officers Given Commendation Medals

At a recent ceremony at 2nd Division Artillery headquarters two officers were given Army Commendation Medals by DivArty commander, Col. Tony F. Perpich.

Receiving Army Commendation Medals were Capts. James J. Brenner and Ralph M. Mobley, both leaving the division for new assignments.

Capt. Mobley, who leaves for a new assignment in Viet Nam, was cited for his "professional knowledge" in the performance of his duties as assistant fire support coordinator for Division Artillery.

As senior artillery fire support officer during exercise Swift Strike III, he was commented by many of the officers who worked with him including the division general staff officer.

Capt. Brenner was cited for his "knowledge, attention to detail and fairness while serving as fire direction impire during the Army Training Tests for all Div-Arty units.

Brenner leaves the division for assignment in Colombia. Enroute, he will attend the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Both men were commended by Col. Perpich for the "zeal they displayed in winning the awards."

3 Division Units Thanked by PTA

Three units of the 2nd Infantry Division were given high praise for assisting the Fort Benning elementary schools by PTA president, Col. Maurice C. Holden.

"We owe our gratitude to those units of the 2nd Infantry Division that provided Christmas trees for each of the classrooms of the six post schools. We consider the Second our reliable standby because they always come through," said Holden.

Units that volunteered to cut trees and prepare them for the classrooms were the 2nd Engineer Battalion, 3rd Brigade, 12th Artillery and Company B, 127th Engineer Battalion, 11th Air Assault Division.

DivArty Officer Enjoys Projected Tour in Libya

Capt. James J. Brenner, adjutant at 2nd Division Artillery headquarters, will spend his next two years with the Army stationed in Benghazi, Libya and he likes the idea.

Brenner, formerly on orders to Korea, expressed great pleasure with his new assignment as one of a seven man MAAG (Military Assistance Advisory Group) team to be commanded by Col. James D. Moore.

Brenner said that he had talked to Col. Moore, who is presently at Fort Bragg, N. C. He said all aspects of the assignment seemed "highly interesting." He expressed pleasure that his family will be able to accompany him to his duty station.

The seven officers on the team will be the only U. S. Army personnel in Libya and will have to draw on American civilian medical facilities for themselves and families.

Commissary supplies will be obtained through a monthly air trip to Tripoli 650 miles away, said Brenner.

He said he believes the assignment will be an interesting one, allowing him to work with a new type of people in entirely different surroundings.

Promised Since Reorganization in Early 1963

Helicopters to Add 'Fighting Punch' to Several Outfits

By JIM LULL

The 2nd Infantry Division major commands, the brigades and Division Artillery got an extra fighting punch recently when it was announced aviation detachments would be activated.

Helicopters have been part of the "book" strength of a brigade since the reorganization in 1963. This is the first time they have been physically present in the division.

"Air Service"

"It provides immediate air service to lower division elements," remarked Capt. George Powers, section leader of the 1st Brigade aviation detachment commenting on the importance of his recently activated unit.

Powers and company head up the avaition team that supports five OH13G "Sioux" helicopters.

As explained by Powers, the brigades have been authorized an aviation detachment since the reorganization of the division, nearly two years ago.

"Due to the material requirements to support the 11th Air Assault Division test, the 2nd Division has delayed activating the section,' Powers said.

Fills A Gap

Powers explains that the aviation detachment, organized January 6th of this year, fills a gap in previous brigade operations.

He listed six major services of the detachment: a controlled communications system for brigade commanders, making them more mobile in time of combat field operations; an aerial radio relay station, allowing radio signals to be sent further distances than before; an air courier service, delivering orders rapidly; a means of laying telephone wire over hazardous geographic areas, not penetrable by foot; a radiological survey service in time of nuclear warfare. With aircraft immediately available, the radiation count can be metered from altitudes even under 100 feet; a quick medical evacuation system.

"The aircraft presently being utilized, although not the latest in aviation development, could readily be armed with two M-60 machine guns and would be fired by the pilot," Powers noted.

"Certainly this aviation service is needed in a STRAC brigade," Powers said. "We are immediately responsive to the commander."

Formerly, if a brigade commander was desirous of air support, he would have to request it through the division aviation battalion. The operation would take many times longer to initiate.

Still Needed

Under the present arrangement, the aviation battalion would still be needed by units that do not have aircraft organic to them, as well as necessary backup for those units that do have their own aircraft.

"The concept is that a minimum of six observation helicopters are needed by a brigade in combat operations daily," Powers remarked.

The detachment presently operates with the section chief, two additional pilots, a maintenance supervisor and five crew chiefs or mechanics.

"The job of the maintenance men is a large one," Powers said, "they must keep up the aircraft, radios, tool sets, generators, air compressors and we are going to receive two wheeled vehicles."

"Those boys very seldomly have to look for something he said.

The 1st Brigade Aviation Detachment is presently operating from temporary facilities at Knight Field on Sand Hill.

Plans For Future

Plans are underway to build a heliport, but construction of such does not seem to be in the immediate future.

Currently the aviation men work out of an operations tent and maintenance tent, with the aircraft covered by canvas and remaining outside on the field.

"The conditions here however are much better than if we were set up at Lawson Field, due to the proximity," Powers stated.

The 1st Brigade aviation section chief keeps himself well informed on the training development of the brigade, as a good deal of time is spent in the brigade training and operations (S-3) section.

He is commissioned in the infantry and entered the Army under the ROTC program in June, 1954, from Auburn University, Auburn, Ala. Milledgeville, Ga., is his home.

Chief Warrant Officer George Weckerle, recently returned from Korea, and Warrant Officer Bernie Estes are the other two pilots.

Curators Switched; Walden Commended

The 2nd Division Historical Center recently lost its curator to the division's Special Services section.

MSgt. Robert G. Walden, curator since June 1963, became chief clerk of Special Services.

Walden was praised for his duty as curator by Maj. David A. Forsythe, assistant chief of staff (G-5), and presented with a letter of commendation.

"As curator you were responsible for accounting, preserving, and displaying the thousands of items in the division's historical collection," the commendation read. "This, along with your superior knowledge of the division's history, evidence a devotion to duty that set an example for your contemporaries."

Under Walden's supervision, the historical property was transferred from the old museum to the new historical center with a minimum of effort and difficulty.

An endorsement from Col. Burnside E. Huffman Jr., chief of staff, added: "My sincere thanks for a job well done, the personal characteristics and devotion to duty is truly a credit to you."

Walden was replaced by MSgt. William H. Lindley.

"Doing the job as curator is a good challenge in something I've never done before," Lindley said. "Working in the historical center is one of the most interesting jobs that I've had since I've been in the Army."

According to Lindley, he will be visiting museums throughout the Georgia-Alabama area in the near future to see their displays to get new ideas for the division museum.

Ingenious New Sergeant Major Takes Post at Support Command

BY CHUCK MCCOWEN

The promotion Wednesday of a master sergeant to sergeant major gave the 2nd Infantry Division's Support Command a veteran of two wars and an inventor of note.

Sgt. Maj. Joe R. Camp was an operations sergeant at division artillery until his promotion when he moved into the sergeant major's vacancy at Support Command.

Designs Antenna

Camp has designed a clamp to hold the handset cords for army radios also an antenna for FM radios that is launched and held aloft by a balloon. The antenna has been adopted by the armed forces and is currently in use in the Republic of Viet-Nam.

Currently in the study stage by the Army is the idea of the Camp and two others, an attachment for the end of the "whip" antennas used on mobile radios mounted in vehicles. This invention was prompted by the death of an 11th Air Assault Division officer when he was pierced in the eye by a tied down antenna.

Camps' combat experience spans World War II and the Korean War with service in the liberation of the Philippines and on the front lines during the U.N. "Police Action" in Korea.

It was during the Korean conflict that one of his "most interesting" experiences occurred.

Rescue

"On July 16, 1950, my tank platoon (1st Cavalry) was cut off". As the "tankers" were maneuvering to rejoin the rest of their unit they saw two both 2nd Lieutenants, and a colonel, pinned down by hostile fire in a ditch on the front lines.

"We pulled our tanks around to block the enemy fire" said Camp.

Of the rescue, Camp said, "I put one of them inside the tank and one of them in with the assistant driver, I told the one with the assistant driver that he would have to pull in his legs when the turret came arond or they would be cut off. We were still fighting, and wounded or not he would have to stay alert.

"He made out all right and we delivered the three men to the aid station in pretty good shape. When we turned them over to the medics we found the lieutenant was wounded and the colonel had a broken leg."

Identity Learned

Combat brings many men together who may never meet again, but the new sergeant major recently learned the identity of the men he and his platoon rescued that day. The wounded lieutenant was Lt. Col. John R. Grimes, commanding officer of the 12th Artillery.

Camp was assigned to Division Artillery in November 1962 and is now being reassigned to Support Command as operations sergeant.

Sgt. Maj. Camp resides at Fort Benning with his wife Florence, a daughter, Cathy age, 14, and a son Dennis, age 7.

Schinz Praises Div's AF Group

During his visit here last week, Air Force Brig. Gen. Albert W. Schinz, commander of the 836th Air Division (Tactical Air Command), spoke highly of the Air Force men attached to the 2nd Infantry Division.

Referring to the eight enlisted men and two captains serving under Maj. Dana T. Moore, the division's air liason officer, Gen. Schinz said: "they're the key to successful air strikes."

Known as "Forward Air Controller," the two captains J. R. Gilchrist and A. L. Terpenings, direct from the ground the air strikes made during division maneuvers.

Gen. Schinz said the Air Force has adopted a policy of ground hugging in flying combat missions.

"The idea is to expose as little as possible," the general said. "We hope to make just one raise to get into position. The pilot depends on what the FAC tells him."

'1st Shirt' Back To Re-Up With 2nd

A "First Shirt" from Company C of the 2nd Medical Battalion returned to the 2nd Division from his duty with the 11th Air Assault Division long enough to re-enlist last week.

The setting for the first minutes of 1st Sgt. Joseph Tavolo's next three years in the U.S. Army was the Medical Battalion's conference Room.

Connie Trost Is Pure 'Domesticity'

BY ALICE WITTER

A picture of domesticity awaited me on the morning of an interview with Connie Trost, wife of the commander of the 1st Battalion, 72d Armor, Lt. Col. Leonard E. Trost. She was finishing the remaining sleeve of a lovely, intricately - patterned sweater of beige Fisherman's wool which she has knitted for her husband.

Over coffee and huge pieces of freshly-baked apple kuchen (which both interviewee and interviewer admitted to—each—other they should do without) we talked.

Constance Bush and Len Trost were both born in Lawrence, Mass., and though their parents were acquainted, it wasn't until the families moved to different places and returned to Cape Cod for vacations that the two young people became acquainted.

In November 1945, a few years after Len's graduation from Norwich University in Vermont, he returned to his R.O.T.C. assignment at Oklahoma Military Academy with his young bride.

The academy, located at Claremore, Oklahoma was a pleasant assignment for a young couple — with its "old cavalry" horses. Connie says her husband tried to teach her to ride, but "without much success." He fared a little better in teaching her to shoot.

In August, 1946, when Len went to Japan, Connie returned home to her parents, where she waited fourteen months to join him.

After almost two years in Tokyo, they returned to the States in August 1949, and after a lengthy leave, went to their assignment at Fort Knox, Ky.

A year later, Len was chosen to be administrative assistant to Gen. Riley F. Ennis, and consequently Len and Connie went to Ft. Monroe, Va. After eight months, Gen. Ennis was sent to Japan, and Len accompanied him, while Connie returned to Massachusetts and bought a house on Cape Cod.

After a ten-month wait, quarters became available in Japan and Connie again left to join him.

Remaining in the Far East until January 1954, they returned with Gen. and Mrs. Ennis, and stopped for a pleasant week in Hawaii. The stateside destination was Fort Jackson, S.C., where they remained until the summer of 1954. When Capt. Trost went to the advanced course for officers at Fort Knox, Connie remained at For Jackson. Upon his return at Christmastime, he assumed command of a company at Jackson.

In November of 1955, the Trosts headed for their first assignenmt at the Pentagon in Washington, D. C. Although a wonderful city to be assigned to, Washington was not a favorite tour for Connie, since the irregularity of her husband's work schedule made any kind of personal planning impossible. In fact, she says she "hasn't been the same since" — whereas she was once able to organize her daily routine, she lost the ability in Washington and has never regained it.

In July, 1959, the Trosts proceeded to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, for the Command and General Staff College associate course; then went on to a tank battalion at Fort Irwin in California, "in the middle of the Mojave Desert."

When Len left for Korea in April of 1961, Connie remained in Barstow, the city near Fort Irwin. There she did drafting for a civil engineer, utilizing experience which she had had before her marriage when she was a "draftsman" for a tool manufacturing concern.

When Maj. Trost returned from Korea in April, 1962, the Trosts were off to the Pentagon again for two more years of exacting work and irregular hours.

In July of 1964, the unexpected but very welcome assignment to Fort Benning came. Lt. Col. Trost, who had enjoyed his troop assignments at Fort Irwin and in Korea, is very happy to be with the troops again. And Mrs. Trost, in spite of her initial fears about no longer being a good "organizer", is delighted with her own duties on the distaff side of battalion activities.

She has always enjoyed entertaining, so she welcomes the opportunity to do so much of it here.

A friend's urging led her to try bowling and she now bowls with the 2d Division Officers' Wives League, but admits she is not exactly a star bowler.

At home she enjoys knitting, sewing, and listening to her record collection, particularly classical music and "light jazz".

Mrs. Trost with her lovely silvery - peppered hair framing a pretty face and the most glowing complexion, has such a sincere, sweet charm that, once met, is not readily forgotten.

Medical Battalion Ladies Sponsor MOOM Affair

The 2nd Medical Battalion ladies sponsored a coffee, recently at the Main Officers' Open Mess, for the ladies of Support Command. The hostesses were Mrs. John C. Walsh and Mrs. James A. Hamilton.

Mrs. Margaret Matthews, of the Margaret Moran Beauty Salon in the Cliatt Shopping Center, demonstrated a haircut for the newest in spring hair fashions. Mrs. Hugh W. Gracey volunteered as model for Mrs. Matthew's skill with the shears. Mrs. Matthews then answered questions concerning the latest in hair styles.

The table was graced with a floral centerpiece of gladioli, carnations, pussy willows, and heather. The centerpiece was created by Mrs. Walsh.

The 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion ladies presented Mrs. Joseph Santa Maria, Mrs. Paul Smith, and Mrs. Robert Witter as their guests.

Mrs. William M. Shaw, Mrs. Benjamin F. Hardison, newcomers to the 2nd Medical Battalion.

Mrs. J. W. Hallom and Mrs. Jeffrey Shuckman are the newest arrivals to the 702nd Maintenance Battalion.

Leahy Home Coffee Scene

The ladies of the G-1 section met recently for their bimonthly coffee at the home of Mrs. Thomas M. Leahy. The hostesses were the ladies of the A. G. section.

The table was gaily decorated with a red and white checked tablecloth and a lovely bowl of fruit. Coffee cake and sweet rolls were served with coffee and tea.

Feb Luncheon This Tuesday

The February luncheon for the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club will be Tuesday, February 9 at the Main Officers' Open Mess, with sherry hour beginning at 12:15.

After a short luncheon, everyone will journey to the new Academic Building (Building 4) at Fort Benning for a guided tour and a presentation of "I Am the Infantry" in the Marshall Auditorium.

All ladies who are interested may join club members at Building 4 at 2:00 p.m.

Ladies of 72nd Armor Meet At Home of Mrs. J. Hammet

The ladies of the 72nd Armored Battalion were entertained at the new home of Mrs. James Hammet one evening recently.

Mrs. Hammet was assisted by Mrs. Calvin Bean, Mrs. Richard Volland and Mrs Charles Vernon.

Mrs. Leonard Trost called the business meeting to order. Mrs. James Sinclair accepted the position of division luncheon committee member. Mrs. Bernard Karpers, the outgoing member was thanked for her services during the past year.

Mrs. Charles Vernon became the new flower fund chairman succeeding Mrs. Joseph Cunningham. Lt. and Mrs. Cunningham will be leaving the battalion soon to return to civilian life in their hometown of Fayetteville, Tenn.

Plans were made for an evening pot-luck supper for both husbands, and wives, with Mrs. Hayes as chairman.

A welcome was extended to Mrs. Dan H. Honeywell.

Mrs. Vernon poured at a table laid with a white tablecloth accented with bright pastel napkins and centered with an arrangement of pink snapdragons and white carnations.

Sky Soldier News

11th AIR ASSAULT DIVISION

FORT BENNING, GA. FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1965 Page 27

MOVE OUT . . . Sky Soldiers quickly unload from a UH-1D helicopter in hot pursuit of elusive aggressor forces during action which has taken place during the current brigade exercise HAWK ARROW.

In HAWK ARROW Action

188th Guerrilla Forces Vex Brigade Defenses

By Lt. R. Talmadge

The 2nd Brigade "Sky Soldiers" are still smarting from the tar and feathering given them by 2nd Lt. Billy R. Onstott's Recon "Red Villain' Platoon of Delta Company, 188th Infantry during that brigade's maneuvers last week. After having been fully briefed by Lt. Col. Robert S. Kellar, the "Eagle" battalion commander, and by Capt. Norman C. Propes, the battalion S-3, Lt. Onstott organized his men into three raiding parties, each with separate objectives.

At about midnight the raiding parties trucked to designated rendezvous points, detrucked, and vanished into the swamps surrounding unsuspecting 2nd Brigade units. The third raiding party, led by Sgt. John Black, pushed through 2,500 meters of swamp and undergrowth to reach the snoozing artillery area of the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry. The infantry group slithered past the perimeter defenses and immediately took the initiative away from the resting artillery by butchering them in their sleeping bags, blasting their vehicles apart, and eliminating the food stuffs, and sabotaging two helicopters and the landing pad.

The "Eagles" then vanished into the night as the 38th Infantrymen fumbled and groped in the dark, attempting to grasp the significance of the onslaught.

At the very same time the second raiding party under the command of SSgt. Glenn Gutting crawled forward into the mist of the 2nd Brigade Command Post and, while the headquarters personnel enjoyed their false sense of security, the "Red Villians" playfully cut down and burned the tents, slaughter

NOMINATION ANNOUNCED . . . Col. George P. Seneff, commanding officer, 11th Aviation Group, has been nominated for the rank of brigadier general. The colonel is a 1941 graduate of West Point and has been with the division since its activation. Prior to coming to the 11th, Col. Seneff served with the U.S. Delegation to NATO in Paris.

Heroism and Service Are Cited At 10th Brigade's Ceremonies

In an impressive review last Thursday, Jan. 27, the 10th Air Transport Brigade gave full honors to seven of its men before a gathering of distinguished guests and families of the men to be honored.

Col. Delbert L. Bristol presented the Distinguished Flying Cross to Capt. John W. Houser, 17th Aviation Company for meritorious achievement on Aug. 27, 1963 in the Republic of Vietnam. On that date, major damage was inflicted on a CV-2B aircraft he was flying, forcing it to land in a hostile controlled area. Despite numerous critical damage to the aircraft coupled with the hazards of a Veit Cong attack and the requirements of a low altitude flight over hostile territory within range of small arms fire, Capt. Houser elected to fly the ship out of the area and through a combination of outstanding professional ability and sound judgement succeeded in doing so.

The Bronze Star Medal with "V" Device was presented to CWO Charles A. Yarbourough, Company A, 170th Aircraft Maintenance Battalion, for his heroic action on Oct. 19, 1963 in the Republic of Vietnam while serving as the co-pilot of a CH-21 helicopter. The lead aircraft upon landing in an assault area suffered severe damage causing it to crash. CWO Yarbourough immediately maneuvered his craft into position between the stricken aircraft and the source of hostile fire to protect the crew of the demolished helicopter. His aircraft drew heavy enemy fire but he stood his ground until a medical helicopter could arrive to evacuate the injured crew. His actions were responsible for saving the lives of the helicopter crew.

The Bronze Star Medal was presented to both Capt. George A. Brown, Company C, 170th Aircraft Maintenance Battalion, for meritorious service in connection with ground operations against a hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam during the period Dec. 1962 to Dec. 1963 and to CWO Morton R. Fine, Company A, 170th Aircraft Maintenance Battalion, for meritorious service in connection with ground operations against a hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam during the period Nov. 1962 to July, 1963. The citations read that they were quick to grasp the implications of new problems with which they were faced as a result of the ever changing situations inherent in a counterinsurgency operation and to find ways and means to solve those problems.

The energetic application of their extensive knowledge has materially contributed to the efforts of the United States mission to the Republic of Vietnam to assist that country in ridding itself of the communist threat to its freedom.

Sgt. Maj. Eugene R. Golston, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 170th Aircraft Maintenance Battalion, was awarded the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Army Commendation Medal for outstanding performance of duty as battalion sergeant major of the 170th Aircraft Maintenance Battalion.

Sky Soldiers Topple Blood Donation Quota

DOING HIS PART . . . A Sky Soldier goes his part to put the 11th Air Assault Division over the top of projected goals as a Red Cross nurse receives his blood donation.

Sky Soldiers from the 11th Air Assault Division received a "Letter of Appreciation" from the American Red Cross for having the best average in the Blood Donor Program at Fort Benning, Ga., for the calendar year 1964. Mr. W. H. Higgs, Red Cross Director for Fort Benning sent the letter to Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general of the 11th Air Assault Division.

In the letter, Mr. Higgs stated, "The record achieved by the 11th Air Assault Division represents the best average contribution by any major command at Fort Benning."

During the calendar year 1964 the Sky Soldiers were host to three Blood Mobile operations. A total of 2,186 Sky Soldiers rolled - up their sleeves and contributed for an average visit of 728 units of blood per visit. Gen. Kinnard, conveyed Mr. Higgs' letter and his own message of appreciation to the Sky Soldiers.

Gen. Kinnard stated, "I wish to add my personal thanks to all Sky Soldiers who contributed to the Fort Benning Blood Program. Our record of participation and support of this program reflects great credit upon all who participated."

'Tips for Decorating' Is Theme For 10th ATB Ladies Luncheon

BY JUDITH CHAPIN

"Tips for Decorating Army Quarters" was the theme for the 10th Air Transport Brigade Ladies' luncheon held Wednesday, January 29.

Centerpieces for the luncheon tables in the Fountain Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess were arrangements of decorator accessories for various rooms of the home.

Mr. Russell Wall, guest speaker from Hinson Galleries, gave special notice to Mrs. Ted Holloway and her decorations committee for the artful table arrangements. In addition to his talk on Interior Decorating, Mr. Wall brought displays of furniture and accessories from his firm.

Special guests at the luncheon were Mrs. Harry W. O. Kinnard, wife of the commanding general of the 11th Air Assault Division; Mrs. John M. Wright; and Mrs. Richard T. Knowles.

Complimentary pre-luncheon sherry and table wine was served by representatives of a local Columbus distributing company.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. John W. Lauterbach and the ladies of the 37th Air Transport Battalion.

'Hard Luck' Luncheon Leads Fashion Astray

Attired in the worst garments their imaginations could conceive, the ladies of the 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry met for a 99c "hard luck" luncheon, Wed., Jan. 27th, in the Anzio Room at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Hostesses for the affair were the Troop D wives, under the direction of Mrs. S. Guy Beardsley, Jr. and Mrs. John D. Floyd.

A hobo theme was used for decorations throughout the room, with the U-arranged tables being covered with newspaper "tablecloths". Dried weed arrangements in tin cans and miniature knapsack place favors, plus several large knapsacks, decorated the tables. In front of the head table a lifelike hobo lay on a park bench, with a gas lamp nearby. A large and rusty stove decorated the sherry bar area.

Mrs. John B. Stockton, wife of the Squadron Commander, introduced the guest, Mrs. James H. Nix and Mrs. Donald D. Slauson, recent bride.

Mrs. Nix and Mrs. Slauson, along with Mrs. Randy B. Clapp, Mrs. Beardsley and Mrs. Floyd, served as judges for the "shabbiest costume" contest. Providing the musical accompaniment of "Hello, Dolly" for the costume parade around the judges' tables were Mrs. Ronald J. Piche, at the piano, and Mrs. David J. Allen, soloist.

Mrs. Piche won the contest prize, a leather handbag, donated by a local ladies dress shop. Winners of honorable mention prizes were Mrs. Charles B. Knowlen and Mrs. Allen.

Winners of the door prizes, UNICEF engagement calendars and United Nations note cards, were Mrs. Clayton J. Bachman, Jr., Mrs. Thomas E. Nevotti, Mrs. Robert H. Garrett and Mrs. Nix.

Retired Officer Cited At Dinner Given By 377th

Capt. and Mrs. Lyle H. Niebruegge were honored by the officers and ladies of the 3rd Battalion, (Aerial Rocket), 37th Artillery at an afternoon party January 30th at the Black Angus restaurant. Capt. Niebruegge retired February 1 after more than twenty years active service.

Lt. Col. Nelson A. Mahone Jr. commander of the 377th presented Capt. Niebruegge, an Armor officer, with a framed certificate making him an honorary artillery man in recognition of his outstanding contribution to the development of the aerial rocket within the 11th Air Assault.

Mrs. Mahone presented Mrs. Niebruegge with a silver Revere bowl as a token of appreciation for the many fine things she did in behalf of the ladies of the unit.

Special guests included Mr. and Mrs. Marion J. Fortner, guests of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Mahone and Lt. Col. (Ret.) and Mrs. James G. Kleese and Miss Joyce Kleese.

Capt. James J. Kelly was in charge of arrangements for the party.

187 TAC Ladies Hold Jan. Meeting

The Ladies of the 187th Transport Airplance Company held their regular coffee January 20th, in the Anzio Room of Main Officers' Club.

Special guest was Mrs. Delbert Bristol. The girls welcomed newcomers Shiela Henderson, Marjorie Hurst and Judy Chapin.

After a short business meeting, the girls had another cup of coffee. Hostesses for this month are Carolyn Nix, Marilyn Morton and Betsy Tilman.

Jan. Bridge Party Hosted For 377th

Ladies of the 3rd Battalion, 377th Artillery held their bridge party January 27th at the home of Mrs. William F. Koehler. There were twenty ladies present. Prizes went to Mrs. James R. Spears, high score; Mrs. Joseph L. Beverly, second high and traveling prize; and Mrs. Wilbur R. Pierce, low score.

General Staff Sections Gather At Anzio Room

The GI and G2 sections of the 11th Air Assault Division gathered recently at the Anzio Room for a cocktail party.

Lt. Col. Robert McDade and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Frederic Ackerson welcomed the special guests for the evening, Brig. General and Mrs. John Wright, Lt. Colonel and Mrs. Robert Shoemaker, and newly promoted Lt. Col. Dale Liggett and Maj. Hugh West and wives. Lt. and Mrs. William A. Williams, III, were introduced to the group as new arrivals to the 11th MI Detachment.

Special momentos were given to Col. Liggett who will be departing this month for a new assignment at Sandia Base, New Mexico.

An original sky soldier, Col. Liggett has served as commander, Troop B, 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry and as G2 Air since November 1963. Captains Nevin Phillips, John Ragsdale and Glen Stephens arranged the party and the program.

Mrs. Charles Callahan, wife of the commander of the 11th MI Detachment, was hostess for the January G2-MI Coffee at her quarters in Custer Terrace. A silver card tray was presented to Mrs. Dale Liggett and plans were made for the G2 sponsored Division Headquarters coffee in February. Mrs. Liggett's mother, Mrs. Glen Cummings, was welcomed at the morning meeting.

Battalion Colors Received at 229th

By Capt. Paul Winkle

Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general, 11th Air Assault Division, presented the newly made colors to the young 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion, Col. George Seneff, commanding officer of the 11th Aviation Group, received the colors from Gen. Kinnard and presenting them to Lt. Col. Earl K. Buchan, the battalion commander.

The 229th Battalion, well known as the "Stacked Deck," finally received her white-fringed Army green emblem and colors. The 229th was activated in May of last year and is one of the newest and most recently activated units in the 11th Air Assault Division. In the few months before AIR ASSAULT II test maneuvers, the "Stacked Deck" finally received official notification that she really did, in fact, exist as an entity.

Normally, the colors of a newly activated come immediately upon activation or inherits it from some previous organization. Too much to do, to much to accomplish, too much at stake to wait for colors. The 229th rolled — she started with a blast, a burst of startling energy! She strongly surged with teamwork and professionalism. Teamwork between pilots and crews, maintenance men and logisticians, and aviators and infantrymen — especially this; for coordination between Air Assault Aviation and the Infantry proved professionalism at its best.

With such professionalism, 229th recognition came early. When the Colors did arrive, she had received her status as a top-notch combat-ready fighting unit far in advance of receiving her official status as a fighting organization.

Professionalism continues. Even now she is running rugged terrain and cold weather training in the mountains arround Fort McClellan, Ala.; anti-guerrilla field training in conjunction with the Infantry around the Fort Benning reservation; aircraft loading techniques with the U. S. Air Force at Lawson Army Air Field; and rotary winged instrument qualification training for her pilots here in garrison.

She is complementing her professionalism still further by heavily emphasizing individual academic education at the Education Center.

Cav Completes Intensive Mountain Air Training

Troop B, 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry commanded by Maj. Robert I. Stoverink, recently completed an intensive mountain flying training program conducted in the vicinity of Fort McClellan, Ala.

On the 22nd of Jan. the aviators of Troop B received detailed classes on the theory of mountain flying, characteristics of mountainous terrain, cold weather operations and wind effects on aircraft. Early on the 25th, Capt. Lee T. Massey moved his Scout Platoon to Reilly Army Airfield at Fort McClellan where they immediately started flying in the mountainous terrain, landing on pinnacles and in confined areas. During the afternoon a low level navigation problem was conducted and the day's training ended with night pinnacle approaches. The cycle was then repeated by Capt. Robert M. Stockwell's Weapons Platoon and Capt. Clarence K. Knight's Rifle Platoon. The Troop then returned to Fort Benning to prepare for HAWK ARROW II.

The remaining Troops of the Squadron will be engaged in this same program in the coming weeks to insure that the entire Squadron remains at the high level of readiness all have worked so hard to attain.

tered the drozy occupants, gutted four parked helicopters and several trucks, and ripped out the communications equipment to include a teletype switchboard. Then, after having discovered there remained nothing further to destroy, the band happily danced off into swamp cover.

While the other raiding parties busied themselves, SSgt. Francis Ford's first raiding group roamed over the entire 2nd Brigade Command Post perimeter poaching on Observation Posts, security patrols, sleeping guards, and road blocks. No one could rest under the pressure of Ford's men who continued their harrassment until dawn.

At daybreak, Lt. Onstott summoned his three parties into the security of the swamps to rest, regroup, and plan further mischief for Col. William R. Lynch's 2nd Brigade. That entire day the 2nd Brigade Infantrymen tried but failed to locate the "Villian" band.

That evening the band ate, coordinated last minute plans, and stole out from their marshy hideout enroute to the 2nd Brigade Command Post. The band negotiated three early warning outposts without being discovered, split into three small units, and blended into the brigade CP area. One party procured the current password and, after convincing a Military Policeman that they, the raiders, were friendly, moved about freely within the CP surroundings, placing demolitions in sensitive areas, marking the throats of helicopter pilots with red lipstick, and sabotaging equipment. The other raiding parties were likewise successful in disrupting the peace in other corners of the CP.

Col. Kellar sat impatiently in the battalion operations tent monitoring every activity on the command net radio. Col. Kellar, a veteran of World War II and the Korean conflict, wanted to join the actor and not listen to it. He sprang to his feet, dashed out the tent, cranked up his HUEY helicopter, and, pushing the throttle forward, surged up into the sky enroute to the 2nd Brigade CP. After establishing radio contact and issuing a frag order, the colonel sat down briefly, picked up four raiders, and lifted off again only to land once more, but at the 2nd Brigade's forward refueling point. The helicopter seemed innocent enough and the refueling attendants merely disregarded it as having no threatening potential. All was peaceful and quiet, as the men crawled out of the aircraft and assumed a prone position near the helicopter. Col. Kellar signaled an "OK" to the men and maneuvered the HUEY away from the refueling point. The raiders bolted from the ground, silenced the attendants, ignored the fuel which exploded a ball of fire over the entire Maintenance Section, killing and destroying the men and equipment. Before the four raiders departed, they tore up the mess hall and wrecked the medical supply point.

The "Villains" then planned their last thrust into the 2nd Brigade CP with the intention of capturing Col. Lynch, but just after they had made prisoner of several officers, the band was ordered out of the area. And as fast and silently as they came, the raiders faded away.

Cavalry Executive Officer Has Colorful Army Service History

The new executive officer of the 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry is no newcomer to the Cavalry. Maj. Don C. Radcliff enlisted in the U.S. Army on Feb. 13, 1946 and was graduated on Oct. 16, 1946 in the last OCS class to commission its graduates 2nd Lt., Cavalry. Another distinction is the fact that he was only 18 years old when he received his gold bar and spurs.

His first assignment was on the 12th Cavalry Regiment (now deactivated), 1st Cavalry Division, Camp McGill, Japan. The 12th Cavalry Regiment maintained a stable of pure-bred Japanese horses and traditionally, the Troop officers inspected their troop areas every Sunday afternoon on horseback. Following occupation duty in Japan, Maj. Radcliff was released from active duty in Feb. 1948 and returned to his home in Denver, Colo., to attend the University of Colorado.

During the Korean Conflict, he was recalled to active duty in March, 1951. After garrison duty at Fort Knox, Ky., Maj. Radcliff joined the 89th Tank Battalion, 25th Infantry Division as a Tank Platoon Leader, serving in the operations of "Heartbreak Ridge", "Sandbag Castle" and "Punch Bowl". In Aug., 1953, he was assigned as Assistant to the Secretary General Staff, American Forces Far East, 8th U. S. Army, and in Nov., 1953, he became the Aide-de-Camp to Gen. Lemnitzer, then AFFE, 8th U.S. Army Commanding General and later Commander - in-Chief, Far East Command.

After five years in the Far East, Maj. Radcliff reported to Gary Air Force Base, San Marchs, Tex. to begin flight training. He received his Army Aviation wings in Dec. 1956 and served as a Regimental Aviation officer with the 9th Infantry Division at Fort Carson, Colo., for a year before returning to Fort Knox, Ky. for garrison duty and the Armor Officer's Career Course. Following a two year tour as Aviation Staff Officer, 6th U. S. Army, Maj. Radcliff was detailed as Commanding Officer, Company D, 67th Armor, Furth, Germany. His next assignment took him to Heidelberg, Germany, where he served as Executive Officer, U. S. Army Flight Operations Facility.

Maj. Radcliff returned to the States in May, 1964 to assume command of Troop C, 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry. Under his leadership, Troop C not only helped to write the 3rd Squadron's exciting page of Cavalry history during the Carolina Manuevers, but also provided the Squadron's now famous mascot, "Maggie the Mule".

Promotion and Award Highlighted in Battalion

PFC Eric W. Ewald received a promotion to SP4 in a parade and ceremonies honoring his accomplishment of becoming the 11th Air Assault Division "Soldier of the Month" for Jan. After "trooping the line" with the commanding officer of the 2d Battalion, 35th Infantry, Ewald had his new eagles pinned on by Lt. Col. Robert B. Tully, Battalion commander, who congratulated him on his bringing this honor to the battalion.

Specialist Ewald, of Headquarters Company, was selected for this honor for his outstanding knowledge and exceptional ability as a soldier. This is quite an accomplishment, as he had to first be selected as soldier of the month for he battalion, and then the brigade, in order to be eligible for the division honors.

Also honored were the battalion's high firers on the Battalion's annual qualification. Sgt. Lee V. Campbell Jr., of Company A fired an 82 out of a possible 84 with the M-14 rifle, and PFC Ronald Harrison fired a 390 out of a possible 400 with the .45 cal pistol.

227th Instrument Examiner Veteran of Three Wars

CWO Roy C. Adams, a veteran of World War II, Korea, and Viet Nam, is presently serving as Instrument Examiner and Instructor in the 227th Battalion Instrument School.

CWO Adams entered the service in February 1945 and after a short basic training course at Camp Maxey, Tex., he joined the 63rd Infantry Regiment, 6th Infantry Division, in the Philippines. While serving with the 63rd Infantry Regiment, CWO Adams was a squad leader in an anti-tank company. When the war ended, he was assigned to Kunson, Korea, where the 63rd Infantry Regiment controlled the movement of Japanese prisoners back to Japan.

In 1946, CWO Adams was assigned to Fort Lee, Va., where he served in the Recruiting Caravan in the former 7th US Army area. In 1947, he served in Headquarters Company in the Mediterranean Theater of Operations Headquarters, Leghorn, Italy.

CWO Adams was assigned to Fort Benning, Ga., in 1948, and after completing airborne school, served as supply sergeant with the Airborne Department. In 1951 he received his warrent and was assigned to the 508th Regimental Combat Team at Fort Benning, as unit administrator.

In 1952, CWO Adams was sent to Korea where he joined the 2nd Logistical Command as supply officer. When the Korean War ended in 1953, he joined the Parachute Packing and Maintenance Company at Fort Lee, Va. Later in 1953, CWO Adams was assigned to the 82nd Quartermaster Company, Fort Bragg, N. C., where he served as parachute supply officer.

In 1955, CWO Adams completed the Army Aviation Rotary Wing School and was assigned to the 3rd Helicopter Company, Fort Belvoir, Va., where he served as company supply officer. In 1959, CWO Adams was assigned to the 8th US Army Maintenance Center, Ascom, Korea, where he served as rotary wing maintenance officer. Returning stateside in 1960, CWO Adams was assigned to Fort Rucker, Ala., where he served in the deparment of rotary wing instruction as an instrument instructor and examiner.

In November 1962, CWO Adams was assigned to the 120th Aviation Company, Vietnam, where in addition to flying combat support missions, he served as company instructor pilot and instrument examiner. In November 1963, he joined Company A, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion.

CWO Adams' decorations include the Senior Aviator Badge with over 3,000 flying hours, Senior Parachute Badge, Distinguished Flying Cross, Bronze Star with "V" Device, Air Medal with six Oak Leaf Clusters, Good Conduct Medal, Asiatic-Pacific Medal, World War II Victory Medal, Korean Service Medal with three Battle Stars, United Nations Medal, and the National Defense Medal.

'Combat Ready' Prompts 38th's Service Practice

All the recent emphasis on "Combat Readiness" has prompted Capt. Ollie L. Langford, commanding officer, of Battery B 5th Battalion 38th Artillery to take this unit out for a service practice. With the annual Battery Test scheduled in the near future this live fire exercise was put to good use.

Although Battery B is an Air Assault unit. 2½ ton trucks were used for the move to the firing point instead of the usual CH-47 "Chinook" helicopters. The battery was led into the firing position by its executive officer, Lt. Conrad D. Marechal. The Chief of firing battery, SFC Allen W. Dunn, commenced to lay the battery and see that all was in order prior to firing.

Since one of the prime reasons for the practice was to select the Forward Observer to call fire on the Battery A.T.T., Capt. Langford took to the hill. Accompanying him was Lt. Virgil Marlowe, one of the Battery's Forward Observer.

The first mission to be sent to the Fire Direction Center was given the usual prompt attention as all other missions. Less than two minutes later the first rounds landed in the impact area. Minutes later an end of mission was heard as the agressors were dispersed.

Although only five missions were shot much information and training were gained from this practice. Battery B will again take to the field in the forthcoming weeks to make sure they are truely combat ready.

Fire Marking Team Kept on the Move

During the recent HA ARROW I exercise Battery B, 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery's fire marking team was kept on the go. The team headed by Lt. John A. Maxheimer rode through the entire Fort Benning maneuver area placing artillery simulaters and smoke bombs at the impact of indirect weapons.

SP4 Louis S. Gutierrez and PFC William J. Sisk assisted Lt. Maxheimer in determining the location of most direct route to the impact area.

Maintenance Battalion Inspection Praised

Company A, 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion received its Annual General Inspection on Jan. 19. This was the culmination of many months of hard work and hours of last minute touching up by the officers and men of the unit under the guidance of Maj. Harold T. Campbell, the unit commander.

According to oldtimers the unit morale during preparation for the inspection was the highest it has ever been in the history of Company A. This fact is born out by the special note taken by the Inspector General of the outstanding appearance of the men during the inspection. Not one man in the company was in need of a haircut and the appearance of the footwear was a most pleasing sight to behold, according to the Inspector General. The condition of TO&E equipment was also cited as an outstanding area.

The highlight of the day came as the Inspector General began his inspection of the off-post personnel display at the company hangar. "This is the most outstanding clothing display that I have seen in all my years in the service," stated the Inspector General. In charge, was Sp6 Richard J. Skadowski who had primary responsibility for the display and dictating layout conformity by the men displaying in the hangar.

During his critique of the inspection, the Inspector General commended Company A for a job well done by the officers and men of the unit. He voiced his personal pleasure in inspecting a unit staffed with high quality leadership as found in the company among the officers and NCO's of the unit. He made special mention of Sp6 Skadowski, for his part in the inspection, Captains Harmon and Lewis for the technical knowledge displayed during the inspection, and CWO Kirkpatrick for the impressive display and operation in the Motor Pool.

PRECISION . . . The off-post personnel of Company A, 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion become a picture of precision as they stand before displays of their personal equipment that they have prepared for a recent inspection by the division Inspector General.

Purple Heart Holder Joins Helicopter Unit

SP4 William R. Newton, recent returnee from Viet Nam has been assigned to Company D, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion where he is serving as a Crew Chief.

SP4 Newton, a native of Chicago, Ill., entered the service in 1963 after completing a year at Mayfair Junior College. Basic training was completed at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., and SP4 Newton was assigned to Fort Rucker, Ala., where he graduated from the Rotary Wing Aircraft Maintenance School.

In October 1963, SP4 Newton joined the U.T.T. Helicopter Company, Vietnam and flew over 650 combat missions. During one operation, SP4 Newton was wounded by small arms fire and was awarded the Purple Heart. In addition to the Purple Heart, SP4 Newton has been awarded the Air Medal with 15 Oak Leaf Clusters and the Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal.

Gold Leaves Go To Commander

In a brief ceremony held recently at Fort Stewart, Ga., Brig. Gen. Richard T. Knowles, assistant division commander 11th Air Assault Division, pinned gold leaves on Maj. Jack O. Phillabaum.

Maj. Phillabaum is the battery commander of Battery B, 3rd Battalion (Aerial Rocket) 37th Artillery.

Maj. Phillabaum began his service career when he enlisted in the Medical Corps on July 26 at Springfield, Mo. He received his basic training at Camp Polk, La. He was assigned in Tokyo, Japan from June 1949 to June 1950 when he went to Korea where he served until Oct. 1951.

Maj. Phillabaum received his commission as a 2nd Lt. upon his graduation from the Artillery Officer Candidate School at Fort Sill, Okla. on Nov. 3, 1953. He then attended flight school which he completed in Nov. 1954. Since then his assignments have included Ft. Bragg, N. C., Hawaii, Ft. Rucker, Ala., and Vietnam.

Maj. Phillabaum was awarded the Air Medal with 4 Oak Leaf clusters for his service in Viet Nam.

Maj. Phillabaum presently lives in Columbus with his wife, Mary and five children.

Little John Supplies 11th DivArty SOM

For his second time in two attempts, SP4 Donald C. Fleming of the 2nd Battalion (Little John), 42nd Artillery has been chosen as the 11th Air Assault Division Artillery Soldier of the Month.

In copping Division Artillery Soldier of the Month laurels for January, SP4 Fleming maintained his perfect record in this competition. He had previously won the same honor in July 1964, the only other time he participated in this highly competitive monthly event.

A Fire Direction Center computer in Battery B of the 42nd Artillery, SP4 Fleming will receive an engraved plaque and a three day pass from Division Artillery for this accomplishment. He has already received an engraved cigarette lighter and three day pass from the Battalion Commander, Lt. Col. Charles F. Parber, for earning Battalion Soldier of the Month honors prior to the Division Artillery competition.

Chinook's Range Vastly Extended During Fuel Test

The Provisional Helicopter Company (Chinook), 44th Air Transport Battalion is at present conducting a series of tests to extend the range of the Army's CH-47A type helicopter three fold.

Normal range of the aircraft is about 180 nautical miles non-stop. The aim of the project is to extend the range to 623 nautical miles. This is being accomplished by use of a UH-1D auxiliary tank plus two five hundred gallon fuel bags.

The route for the non-stop trip began at Fort Benning and headed west flying over Macon and Savanna, Ga., then south down the coast to Miami, Fla.

During the flight the Chinook burned 11,400 pounds of fuel. This amounts to 1,900 gallons.

The crew for this project are CWO's Keith R. Borck, Alfred J. Cargen, Bobby R. Quearry, Sgt. Thomas P. Flippin and Sp5 Raul McGinnis. The qualification of this crew can be seen by the total of some 11,000 flying hours and thirty years of flying experience among the three pilots.

Eagle Executive Officer Departs for Washington

In a brief farewell ceremony at headquarters, 1st Battalion, 188th Infantry, Maj. Paul R. Lunsford was honored by Lt. Col. Robert S. Kellar, "Eagle" commander, as well as by all the unit staff members, company commanders, and first sergeants. Maj. Lunsford was presented the second oak leaf cluster to the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious service as battalion Executive Officer from September 1963 to December 1964.

Maj. Lunsford joined the battalion from an assignment in Saudi Arabia. He has had numerous interesting and challenging assignments to include serving as Mortar Platoon Leader during the Korean conflict for which he was awarded the Bronze Star and the Combat Infantryman's Badge. He is Airborne qualified and holds the Joint Service Commendation Medal. The Ranger Department remembers Maj. Lunsford where he instructed here at Fort Benning.

Upon his departure Maj. Lunsford took time to award the battalion's traditional "short - timers" walking cane to the officer most likely to depart next. The treasured symbol was presented to Capt. John V. Gordon who it is believed is on orders for an overseas assignment.

Maj. Lunsford is due to attend a special course in the Italian language at the Army Language School in Washington, D. C. His wife Jackie and his two sons will accompany him to the school.

Tears, Coughing Evident In 2nd Brigade Company

The men of the Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Brigade, have recently been exposed to elements of Tear and Chlorine Gas.

In the dark of dawn, the men scheduled to be tested that day, drew their masks and lined up in formation to await further orders by the Training Officer, Lt. Jerome B. Widershien, and the CBR NCO, Sgt. Jacques Gowen. At 8:15 the men marched to the CBR Field on Kelley Hill that was being run by the 2nd Battalion 38th Infantry.

Once there they were briefed and given several practice runs in properly masking. Next the group was divided into three groups.

The refresher couse was divided into four portions: two in the Tear Gas Chamber and two in the Chlorine annex.

Apprehension could be observed as the men went about the business at hand, but when the "Flying Indians" exited in the chambers and walked back towards their comrades already completed, a broad smile and an expression of "I did it!" could be seen through the tears and coughing on their faces.

Rak Paratrooper Loves His 'Chute

SFC Julian P. Soto, paratroop supply sergeant for the 1st Air Assault Brigade's Rakkasan Company B really appreciates a parachute, at least that seemed to be the story last Tuesday morning when he returned from leave.

Flying out of Kennedy International the night before at 6:00 p.m., Soto was a passenger on a four-engine DC-6, making one of those rare flights a paratrooper makes without a chute, and really enjoying it.

Everything went well at first, but when about twenty minutes out, the large airliner developed engine trouble, and the pilot notified passengers of an emergency condition which would force their return to Kennedy.

After dumping fuel over the Atlantic, the craft began circling back toward New York, with two engines pouring out smoke, and ground crews at Kennedy readying emergency rescue vehicles.

After what seemed an eternity, the huge DC-6 landed safetly on two engines. The passengers, including Sgt. Soto, were placed on a similiar craft, again without parachutes much to one man's dismay, and began the journey for Atlanta, which was completed without further incident.

Foreign Service Is Cited at 81st

Friday afternoon Jan. 8 at a Battalion Retreat formation, Lt. Col. Francis J. Bush, 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery commander presented SSgt. Herman S. Watson of Battery "C" the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious duty while station ed in Korea from Feb 13 1963 until Jan. 6, 1964.

While in Korea Sgt. Watson was with Battery C, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 8th Artillery, 7th Infantry Division. He held the position of Chief of Firing Battery. When Sgt. Watson got to this unit it had not been formed and Sgt. Watson was a key member in forming this unit. He brought the unit to a high degree of proficiency as they took a CMMI, IG, and Battery ATT 45 days after forming. This is indicitive of Sgt. Watson's professional competence and initiative as this was a position that Sgt. Watson had no experience in.

Sgt. Watson is a Chief of Section in Charlie Battery. He calls home Fitchburg, Mass.

Artillerymen Cited For Good Conduct

Two members of the 2nd Battalion (Little John), 42nd Artillery have been awarded the Good Conduct Medal. They are Sp5s William C. Dodd, Jr. and Vernon W. Kennedy of Headquarters and Service Battery.

The award was the first for SP5 Dodd and the second for SP5 Kennedy and covered the period January 20, 1962 to January 19, 1965 for both men.

SP5 Dodd is a Meteorological Computer in Headquarters and Service Battery while SP5 Kennedy performs duties as a Survey Computer in the same organization.

Chevrons Given Within 611th

In a ceremony in the commanders office on Monday, Jan. 25th, SP5's Alfred Roberts and Antonio Ramirez were promoted to staff sergeant at Company C of the 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion. The Commanding Officer of Company C, Maj. Merle E. Bounds, presented the two new sergeants with their chevrons.

Sgt. Roberts entered the Army in 1950 and served with the 25th Infantry Division during the Korean conflict. His most recent assignment before joining the 11th was at the U. S. Army Transportation School, Ft. Eustis, Va. He and his wife currently make their home in Columbus.

Sgt. Ramirez, a veteran of 22 years active Army service, is one of the original members of the 11th Air Assault Division.

Engineers Construct New C-130 Airstrip

A new airstrip on Fort Benning has been completed. The Airborne Beavers of Company A, 127th Engineer Battalion were called on to prepare a Phase II Air Force C-130 strip on here for experimentation with the techniques of Sodium Chloride soil stabilization.

A site near Mobley's Pond in the northeast corner of the reservation was selected by the battalion S-3 section. The site is 32 miles by ground vehicle from Harmony Church due to the normally impassable "hot" areas of the post.

Capt. Robert L. Manning, commander of Company A, assigned 1st Lt. William S. O'Connell as project officer.

The job involved cutting hundreds of trees up to three feet in diameter. Sgt. Arlen C. Tuttle is project NCO and he found it necessary to ask for additional chain saw help, which was promptly supplied by Capt. Clarence C. Richardson's Company C.

It was necessary to blast about two dozen hardwood trees from the runways to insure their massive root structures would not be in the way.

Headquarters Company has provided the engineer construction equipment and the 2290 foot runway is nearing completion. Sgt. Orin Fowler of Headquarters Company is supervising almost two dozen pieces of heavy equipment. The grader and dozer operators are displaying skills developed in their building of approximately a dozen airstrips in the past year.

The first CV-2's landed on Wednesday, January 27, in conjunction with the HAWK ARROW Brigade exercises.

The strip has been designed with the Air Force C-130 aircraft in mind, and it is possible that the Air Force will use the strip after the Sodium Chloride is applied in February for assault landing training.

Chinook Shown At Quad-A Meet

Capt. Thomas K. Phifer and CWO Donald W. Yockey, along with Sp6 George R. Mayer and Sp5 Kenneth W. Ronig, all of Tiger Company, 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion, participated in the annual Army Aviation Association of America convention held at Fort Bragg, N. C. on the 22nd of January, 1965. The crew flying chinook number 63-7921, the forty-eighth and last CH-47 to be received at making 228th Battalion, participated in a static display for the aviation gathering. The large display of Army Aircraft afforded Fort Bragg personnel an opportunity to see the Army's newest aircraft, which are found nearly exclusively at Fort Benning, Ga., in the 11th Air Assault "Sky Soldier" Division.

11th Air Assault Division Band Shows Self as Versatile Show Unit

By MSgt R. D. Paquette

The 11th Air Assault Division has a band. Of this fact there has been no doubt for several months now as the band has been demonstrating its ability by playing for many ceremonies held throughout the division. But, what is not generally known is that the 11th Air Assault Division band is also a very versatile entertainment unit capable of providing orchestral concerts and a brilliantly varied musical banquet of the highest caliber. This fact was proven last Sunday evening when the band went to Tuskegee, Ala. and gave a two hour concert for Tuskegee Institute.

Accepting an invitation from Maj. Reginald E. Crocker, professor of Military Science and head of the Army's ROTC Program at the Tuskegee Institute, Bandmaster CWO William J. James prepared and directed a concert which proved as modern as today and as pulse stirring as the music of John Philips Sousa. The variety of musical fare included marches, symphonic movements, a woodwind quintet, a classical piano solo and a chorus.

The band opened its concert with the national anthem and then proceeded to set feet tapping with a modern march. In quick changes of pace, which was typical of the fast moving concert, they then played Gordon Jacob's "Prelude to Revelry", an interesting selection based on old English drinking songs, and the Berceuse from the Igor Stravinksy "Firebird Suite."

One of the highlights of this concert was Sp4 Robert J. DeCeunynck's rendition of Brahms "Ithapsody in G Minor, Opus 79". DeCeunyck, born in Belgium, has studied piano and music in his native country, in Canada and in the United States.

With musical versatility a keynote at this concert, band members provided other musical surprises one of which was the performance by a Woodwind Quintet of Haydn's "Divertimento No. 1 in B-Flat". The quintet has Sgt. Don S. Rogers on Oboe, Sp4 Larry J. DuBose on the french horn, PFC John H. Barrett, baritone saxaphone, PFC William R. Hruschka, clarinet, and PFC Mark J. Pawlowski, flute. This group is one of many small combinations into which band musicians form and play.

To provide what Bandmaster James calls an "Instrument Break" the band regroups into a chorous and sings the romantic "I Left My Heart in San Francisco"; the amusing Allen Sherman Version of "The Mexican Hat Dance"; and the traditional "Army Blue". It is unusual for musicians to adapt to choral work but CWO James has in his band chorus an exception to the rule that musicians can not be singers.

The band continued with a jazz march and then played the first movement from Hayden's "London Symphony". Final selections of the evening included a folk song overture as arranged for the Kingston Trio and the dazzlubg finale, a concert march, James Christensen's "With Bells On."

The Tuskegee Institute ROTC sponsored concert filled Logan Hall almost to capacity. Band members and guests were received at a reception provided by the ROTC's Scabbard and Blade following the concert.

SETS EXAMPLE . . . SP4 Emile L. Vernazzaro, Company C, 127th Engineer Battalion has lead the way for other members of the battalion by being selected nine consecutive times as the Battalion Commander's Orderly.

408th Soldier Cited For Vietnam Duties

At a recent 408th Supply & Service Battalion formation, Lt. Col. George L. Freeman, battalion commander, presented a Certificate of Achievement from U. S. Army Support Command, Vietnam, to SP4 Franklin D. Spivey of the 408th's Supply Company.

SP4 Spivey was cited for the period July 20, 1963 to June 20, 1964 as aviation ordnance specialist with the 23rd Special Warfare Aviation Detachment.

Also honored at this formation were MSgt. Robert C. Tijerina and Sgt. William P. Barber, both of whom retired after more than 20 years service and PFC Carlos L. Harris, Headquarters Detachment, who was designated "Providere" Soldier of the Month for Jan. Lt. Col. Freeman presented him with an engraved cigarette lighter bearing the "Providere" crest. He had previously won the honor in Nov. 1964, the first month of the competition.

26th Welcomes 'Ops' Sergeant

SFC Richard W. Bingham was recently transferred to Battery E, 26th Artillery to become the new Operations Sergeant. He was previously assigned to the 11th Air Assault Division Artillery aviation section.

Sgt. Bingham has been with the Sky Soldier Division since October 1963.

Little John Selects Month's Top Soldier

SP4 Donald C. Fleming of Battery B has been chosen as Soldier of the Month for January 1965 by the 2nd Battalion (LJ), 42nd Artillery.

For this achievement SP4 Fleming was presented an engraved cigarette lighter and a three day pass by the Battalion Commander, Lt. Col. Charles F. Farber. He will also represent the 42nd Artillery in 11th Air Assault Division Artillery Soldier of the Month competition for January.

This is the second time SP4 Fleming has been selected as the 42nd Artillery Soldier of the Month. Last time, he went on to cop Division Artillery Soldier of the Month honors as well.

SP4 Fleming is a Fire Direction Center computer in Battery B.

You'd be proud, too...if your name was Spitfire.

You can't blame a Spitfire for feeling exuberant. It simply outclasses everything in its price league.

Start one up. You're doing 50 in 12 swift seconds. Top speed is well over 90.

Rack-and-pinion steering and the shortest turning radius (24 ft.) of any four-wheeled vehicle let the Spitfire outmaneuver any car.

And it's longer, lower, wider...and faster than the competition! More comfortable, too.

You'll pay a lot more than $2199* before you find another sports car with roll-up windows, disc brakes, and all round independent suspension.

And nothing, but nothing looks like the Spitfire... except maybe that plane.

Basketball Highlights

Off The Backboard

By Lt. Joe Mottola

"Old Man Upset rode again through the Air Assault Division cutting a wide swath through the Battalion Basketball leagues.

On Monday night, Jan. 25, the undefeated 187th Airborne Infantry "RAKKASANS" ran up against the eager "BEAVERS" of the 127th Engineer Battalion with a so-so record and came off second best. The Engineers had four men in double figures as they displayed a well balanced attack. The 59-50 win kept the "BEAVERS" within striking distance of the top spots in the Mohawk league.

Over at Kelley Hill, the 23rd Infantry "TOTEMS" clashed with the "CANNONEERS" of the 38th Artillery. In a previous meeting, the "TOTEMS with first place at stake, downed the 38th. In the rematch, the "CANNONEERS" were close at half-time but misfired in the second half as the tough "TOTEMS pulled away to an easy 56-46 win.

In crucial meetings in the Caribou league, the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry "MARNE MEN" played the 611th Aircraft Maintenance & Supply Battalions top team on the 28th and the 30th. In the first encounter the 611th came off on the long end of a 61-52 score.

In the second game, it was a different story as the "MARNE MEN" won a nip and tuck battle 52-50, despite Masseys 22 point effort for the 611th. Thus both teams remain in contention for the top two positions in the Caribou league.

After a weekend break, the 38th Infantry "KANIENGAHAGAS" team met the undefeated 23rd Infantry "TOTEMS." The first meeting between these teams resulted in a victory for the 23rd but in the rematch the big "KANIENGAHAGAS" quintet knocked down the "TOTEM" pole in a stunning 46-43 upset and dropped the "TOTEMS" from the ranks of the unbeaten.

Over at Harmony Church in another surprising reversal, the 44th "CHOPPERS" languishing in next to last place upended the 187th "RAKKASANS" 51-47 and dropped them into second place behind the 81st Artillery thus setting the stage for their decisive meeting on February 10th!

The nightcap had the Headquarters Special loss to trounce the 408th "PROVIDERS" 81-40 as Traylor, Smith and Couture combined for 60 points.

All of the leading teams will see action this coming week as the league races go down to the wire.

TRIUMPH TR-4

For the kick of a real sports car, take the wheel of a TR-4. Then, move out in style.

Triumph's tremendous torque snaps you to 60 mph in 10½ seconds. Takes you up to 110.

Head into a curve. The rack-and-pinion steering responds instantly...accurately. Goes right where you aim it.

The independent suspension and low center of gravity let you corner faster, flatter, safer than you ever thought possible.

Downshift. All four forward gears are synchromesh. Smooth as silk.

Now hit those big disc brakes. No fade...no pull. You can't stop faster or straighter.

You'll discover the great feeling that comes when you know you're master of a superb machine. (TR-4 was National Class E Winner of '62—National Class D Winner of '63.)

Check the price . . . for the finest engineering Britain has to offer (and the most popular sports car in the U.S.).

Try any of those so-called "sporty" compacts... then drive the TR-4. You'll feel the difference.

'Totem' Infantryman Hangs on for Three

In one of the strangest stunts of the 11th Air Assault Division history, SSgt. Southern W. Hewitt Jr., of Company A, 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry, commanded by Lt. Col. Harold G. Moore, was sworn in for three more years of duty while hanging from a hovering Huey helicopter. The event, which was symbolic of the significant role the Totem Battalion has played in testing the Air Assault concept, took place Jan. 13, during a recent five day field problem near Fort Benning.

Capt. Walter D. Everhart, Alpha Company commander, took the oath from SSgt. Hewitt in "informal" ceremonies conducted fifty feet above the ground amid the roar of rotor blades and wind-whipped debris. In the first attempt, the two men's lines got tangled, and they were set to spinning around each other. The second attempt was more successful, and, joined by what may be the longest re-up handshake in history, SSgt. Hewitt was sworn in.

"It was extremely noisy up there," said Capt. Everhart after he was once more on solid ground, "We hung together on the ropes and shouted to each other."

Despite the novelty of the ceremony, SSgt. Hewitt's reenlistment was no "gimmick," as he came "very highly recommended" for further service. A graduate of a total of nine Army schools, including atomic warheads, Honest John, Airborne, and Pathfinder courses, SSgt. Hewitt is presently squad leader of Alpha's 2nd Squad, 3rd Platoon.

'Cougars' Return From Field Test

Charlie Company's Cougars return from a very successful dive day field problem, another in a series to make the Sky Soldiers an even more effective team.

The problem which was most interesting was the night problem that took place on Tuesday, January 12. A guerilla band was reported to have been assembling near a crossroads about 1,000 meters north of Carmouche Rage.

Charlie Company was given the mission of mopping up this band with the assistance of Company A. The Pathfinder Team went into nightfall and set up the air strip.

At 8:40, Charlie Company lifted off and proceeded to the objective area where they surrounded the band of guerillas, estimated to be about thirty strong.

The movement to and from the objective went smoothly. The aggressors were surrounded and completely annihilated before they could retaliate with any force.

511th Signal Plans New 'Commo' Sets

A teletypwriter system, a switchboard system and a double terminal VHF system, all of which were developed by members of the 511th Signal Battalion commanded by Lt. Col. Tom M. Nicholson, are now at Tobyhanna Signal Depot undergoing evaluation by army signal technicians in view of possible inclusion in the Army Signal inventory. These mobil, light weight communications systems were tested during AIR ASSAULT II in the Carolinas and proved extremely effective for Air Assault operations.

Accompanying the new systems to assist in possible final modifications and improvements are — Capt. Donald A. L. Brice, Sgt. Tommy R. Nichols, Sgt. James R. Thomas, and SP5 Huey F. Koon from the 511th Signal Battalion of the 11th Air Assault Division.

23rd Infantry Battalion Gets Close Look During Inspection By Brigade Commander

On Friday, Jan. 22, Col. Thomas W. Brown, commanding officer, 3rd Brigade conducted a detailed command inspection of the 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry. He and his inspection team spent the entire day checking every aspect of the battalion. The inspection was conducted as part of a program which also saw the other battalion of the brigade, the 1st Battalion, 188th Infantry, and the brigade Headquarters and Headquarters Company thoroughly scrutinized.

Activities in preparation for the inspection commenced at the 2nd Battalion 23rd Infantry in late Nov. 1964. Immediately upon return from the Carolina test, Lt. Col. Moore, commanding officer of the battalion, prescribed a schedule of activities designed to bring all assets of the combat-ready battalion up to the high calibre of it's field capabilities.

During the brigade inspection, Col. Brown inspected all companies in ranks; then moved into the barracks where he conducted a standby - inspection of all field gear, living quarters, weapons, and T-O and E equipment. During the inspection in ranks, Col. Brown questioned each soldier on such items as the chain of command; the General Orders of a sentinel and their duties, off-duty interests and background. He placed special emphasis on questioning squad leaders and fire team leaders in detail on the background, age and off-duty interests of the men. A frequent question was "What does he do in his spare time"?

While Col. Brown was conducting his inspection, each of the brigade staff sections was checking in great detail personnel, administrative, mess, security, intelligence, operations, training, signal, supply, motor pool, CBR and other activities of all companies and the battalion headquarters. Personnel of the 711th Maintenace Battalion assisted in these inspections. Weapons, vehicles, and signal equipment received particularly close attention. A unique feature of the inspection was a written test on general military subjects given to 25 men of each company.

When the inspection was completed, Col. Brown and his staff critiqued the results to all officers and key noncommissioned offices of the battalion. Areas which received special praise were weapons maintenance, and the condition of the vehicles and signal equipment. The Company A jeep, driven and maintained by PFC Dunlow was described by Maj. Semerling, Brigade S-4, as the best in the motor pool. SSgt Jose Taitano, the Ammo and Motor Sergeant was also singled out for special praise and attention to duty. The Company A and Company B communications equipment and radios were described by the Brigade Commo Officer, Maj. Blackburn as being the best in the battalion. This was music to the ears of Capt. Everhart, commanding officer, Company A and Capt. Herren, commanding officer, Company B and to their Commo Sergeants, Sgt. Caleb Bolick, Company A and Sgt. Harold Saul, Company B.

After certain minor shortcomings and other particularly good areas were described, Col. Brown summarized and stated that he considered the rtsults to be outstanding, and directed that all men of the battalion be so informed.

511th Infantrymen Earn New Stripes

SP4 Donald K. Cowdery of Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry was recently promoted to his present rank for outstanding achievement throughout his assignment with the Headquarters Company.

Aside from being chosen Battalion Soldier of the Month for the month of December 1964 he was sighted out in the recent IG inspection as the most outstanding member of the company.

Sgt. James C. Garrett of the Headquarters Company was also promoted to his rank within the past week.

VOL. 23, NO. 23 — FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1965 — 40 Pages—5c

Silver Star Awarded

The Silver Star is awarded posthumously to SSgt. Eddie L. Smith and is accepted by his children in a special ceremony Tuesday. Smith was killed in Viet Nam Oct. 4, 1964. Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges shows the medal to Dorethia, Smith's daughter, while Eddie L. Smith Jr., and Mrs. Myra Holt, grandmother of the children look on. The children's mother is also deceased.

Honor Ceremony Scheduled Today For 16 Officers

Fort Benning's York Field will be the scene of a mass honor ceremony at 4 p.m. today when 19 awards for heroism or meritorious service will be presented to 16 officers. Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, will present the awards.

Participating will be The Infantry Center Color Guard and Honor Guard Company formed from Co. C, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde.

Music will be provided by The Center Band.

In case of inclement weather, the ceremony will be staged in Marshall Auditorium, Bldg. 4.

Recipients are Maj. George R. Henderson, a member of Special Projects Division, G-3 (Plans and Operations Section), who will receive a Bronze Star Medal and Air Medal; Maj. Forest S. Rittgers Jr., project officer, Doctrine and Organization Division, Infantry Agency, Bronze Star Medal; Capt. Franklin D. Hicks, executive officer, Advanced Airborne Training Group, Airborne Department, Bronze Star and Air Medal; Capt. James J. Waldeck, Bronze Star Medal with V Device and Air Medal; and Capt. William W. Ferguson, a Bronze Star Medal, both instructors on the company tactics committee of the Company Tactics Department.

Capt. James I. O'Brien, an instructor on the small arms committee, Weapons Department, Bronze Star Medal; Capt. Fred A. Dilkes, instructor on the defense committee, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, Bronze Star Medal with V Device; 1st Lt. Tonu Toomepuu, instructor on the platoon tactics committee, Company Tactics Department, Bronze Star Medal; Lt. Col. Marcus W. Coyle, test officer, Combat Conditions Test Division, U. S. Army Infantry Board, Air Medal, First oak leaf cluster; and Capt. Martin L. Ganderson, assistant operations officer, Communications -Electronics Department, Air Medal, all for service in Viet Nam.

A Joint Service Commendation Medal will be presented to Lt. Col. Charles T. Caprino, a member of the Combat Materiel Division, CDCIA, for meritorious service in India.

The first oak leaf cluster to the Army Commendation Medal will be presented to Maj. Fred K. Clark, chairman of the patrolling committee, Ranger Department, for meritorious service at Fort Gordon, Ga., and Capt. John A. Redder, supply officer, Mobility Department, for meritorious service in Germany.

Army Commendation Medals will be presented to Capt. Thomas M. Johnson, an instructor on the small arms committee, Weapons Department, for service in Europe, Capt. James M. Trussell, for service in Korea, and CWO Clayton Arnett, repair officer, Communications - Electronics Department, for service in Viet Nam.

Children Presented Silver Star Awarded Posthumously to Father

The two-year-old son of a Columbus, Ga., soldier was presented his father's Silver Star in a posthumous award ceremony Tuesday.

Little Eddie L. Smith Jr., received the medal for SSgt. Eddie Smith who was killed in Viet Nam Oct. 4, 1964.

Making the presentation was Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges.

The citation with the medal stated that Smith was accompanying friendly forces back to their home station when they were suddenly ambushed and greatly outnumbered by an enemy element.

Although Sgt. Smith was wounded, he disregarded his own personal safety by moving from position to position among the friendly troops to organize their defense operations, the citation continued.

"Despite the overwhelming onslaught, he displayed fortitude, courage and determination, and continued his advisory efforts until mortally wounded," it added.

Also present at the ceremony in Gen. Heintge's office were Mrs. Myra Holt of Columbus, the grandmother of Eddie Jr., and his sister Dorethia.

The little boy was presented the Purple Heart on behalf of his late father in a previous ceremony at Fort Benning.

Construction Bill Provides Post With 300 Family Units

The new military construction authorization bill provides for 300 units of family housing at Fort Benning plus $5,325,000 for other post construction.

Included in the $5 million-plus construction figure will be funds for bachelor officers' quarters conversion, a tactical equipment shop and sewage treatment plant, according to Sen. Richard B. Russell, (Ga.)

In addition, the Savannah District Army Engineers plan to invite bids on a $4,000,000 improvement contract on Lawson Army Air Field.

Specific work to be accomplished will be the construction of runway and taxiway extension, aircraft parking apron, and the strengthening of existing runway and taxiway paving.

A new instrument landing system facility will be constructed including flight control tower, operations building, and small access service roads. Runway, taxiway, and approach lighting will be provided to serve the new facility.

The Engineers said that the contract time will be about 330 calendar days.

Sirens Test At Noon

A functional test of all sirens on the reservation will be held at 12 noon today. They will be blown for one minute.

Thereafter, the sirens will be tested at 12 noon on the first Friday of each month.

TSB Schedules Farewell Review For Gen. Norton

A farewell review for Brig. Gen. John Norton will be conducted by The Student Brigade on York Field, at 5:20 p.m., Feb. 19.

Participating units include Hq. & Hq. Co. and 15th Finance Disbursing Section, TSB; ISB; 2nd, 4th, and 5th Student Bns; massed bands from the Infantry Center; 2nd Inf. Div. and 11th Air Assault Div. Battery C 17th Artillery; 2nd Inf. Div. Salute Battery; and an aircraft flyby of personnel and aircraft of the 11th Air Assault.

Gen. Norton will depart Fort Benning March 6, for an assignment in Saigon and Viet Nam.

General Congratulates Boy Scouts of America

As the Boy Scouts of America set aside this week, Feb. 7-13, for their 55th annual rededication ceremonies, I would like to extend to them congratulations and best wishes from the entire command.

It is particularly appropriate that we of the military salute these young men who are aggressively pursuing a program of individual development in preparation for the day when they must accept their heritage of responsibility and leadership.

Let us join these stalwart, future citizens and rededicate ourselves also, to do our best . . . to do our duty to God and country . . . to help others . . . and to keep ourselves "Physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight."

338 Years of Army Service Represented at Retirement

Military careers, ranging from 20 to more than 30 years, ended for four officers and 11 enlisted men who retired recently in a mass ceremony on Chapel Field.

Retiring with more than 30 years of service were CWO Oscar K. Weinmeister and MSgt. Charlie Hayes.

They were presented an Army Commendation Medal for meritorious service.

Also retiring and receiving Commendation Medals were WAC Maj. Edith M. Hobson, 21 years of service; Maj. Charles E. Welch, 20 years; MSgt. James L. Grier, 29 years, and MSgt. Louis M. Buckner, 20 years.

SFC Eugene D. Jourdan, 20 years; SFC John A. Dakota, 21 years; SSgt. Theodore M. Haught, 21 years; Sp5 John E. Sparks, 21 years, and Sp5 Dewey L. Stegall, 20 years.

Receiving a fourth oak leaf cluster to the ACM upon retiring after 22 years was CWO Emilio Rodriguez.

Awarded the first oak leaf cluster after 23 years of service was MSgt. John J. Wolfe Jr.

Army Accepts Two XV-5As For Testing

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Army acceptance of two XV-5As, research aircraft that blend helicopter mobility with jet aircraft performance, has been announced by the Department of Defense.

The XV-5A resembles a conventional two-wing aircraft, rather than a rotor-blade helicopter type.

Powered by two turbojet engines, the aircraft has three lift fans, one in the nose and one in each wing. Engines deliver thrust to tailpipes for forward jet-powered flight and to the lift fans for vertical flight.

A six-month Army flight evaluation is planned at Edwards AFB, Calif. Flight testing is for further vertical short take-off and landing (V-STOL) research and evaluation of the lift fan propulsion concept.

Medal of Honor Winner

Lt. Col. Nett Tells Cadre Officers 'There Is a Need for Us to Remain'

Speaking to cadre officers of TSB recently, Lt. Col. Robert B. Nett, commander of the 5th Student (Officer Candidate) Battalion, recounted the stirring history of Viet Nam from the time before Christ, through French colonialism, to its position when he left the country in January 1964.

In his opening remarks, he said, "As we cover the background and history of this country, we will find that there is a need for us to remain this geographical area as well as a need for support of the free people of the area to continue to remain free."

Holder of the Medal of Honor, Nett served as deputy senior advisor to the 2nd Inf. Div., 1 Corps, Army of the Republic of Viet Nam from February 1963 to January 1964.

"We find that the history of Viet Nam goes back to the days before Christ and that the countrys heritage was one of courageous struggle for freedom."

Twice Invaded

He related how the early "Viets", as they were called over 2,000 years ago, were twice invaded, conquered and controlled by the Chinese, and how, in 1284, the "pacified country to the South" fought Kublai Kahn and his Mongolian hordes.

"Like most little countries, expansion became a desire and the Vietnames moved south and conquered tribex of the "Champa" and forced still further south, the tribes of the 'Kamers' (Cambodians) to their present jungle boundaries.

"Champa tribesmen to this day have not assimilated to the Vietnamese way of life," he added, "and such groups as this will help us understand some of the difficulties this country is having with its internal political problems."

Rise of Ho Chi Minn

After describing the rise of Ho Chi Minn and his 1944 entry into North Viet Nam with an expatriate anti - French Vietnamese army during the Japanese occupation, Nett said, "There was much turmoil from the end of the war with Japan and the time but soon the Vietnamese realized that he was a communist and received his orders from Red China. The rank and file of freedom loving soldiers joined the French in an effort to expel the communists."

Pausing briefly, he spoke of the country's geography and physical make-up. Using color slides of pictures he had personally taken while in Vietnam, he contrasted the large modern cities with scattered villages and farms, dense jungle which has only a few trails and practically roads, with the nice, sandy beaches on the countrys east coast.

With aerial pictures of narrow roads twisting through mountainous and jungle terrain, Nett pointed out the relative ease Viet Cong have in ambushing convoys and patrols and escaping into thick foliage.

Dutch Cavalry Enlisted Man Asks Your Help

(Editor's Note: This letter from Wachtmeester (Sgt.) Martens was received by The Infantry Center Information Office and is being passed on for those who wish to assist the Dutch Cavalry enlisted man in adding to his collection.)

"Dear Sir,

Before I go on writing you I will tell you who I am. My name is Martens and I am sergeant in the Dutch Cavalry. I am collecting patches and insignia's of the NATO countries. Some time ago I staerted with the U.S. Army and I bought "The Army Almanac."

In that book I found your address. Would you help me in collecting by sending the badges and insignia's of the units who are serving in your camp.

Sincerely,
Watchtower Martens

P.S. In Holland a sergeant of cavalry is called Wachtmeester."

Short Term Extensions For Officers

Reserve officers at Fort Benning whose obligated service agreement expires before June 30, are reminded that they may extend their service agreement by a short term extension for any additional period of time up to one year.

Short term extensions may be submitted even though the officer has previously signed a statement indicating that he does not desire to remain on active duty.

Unsigned Tax Returns Delay Repayments

New York (AFPS) — A Federal income tax return is not complete until it has been signed, an Internal Revenue Service (IRS) official reminds taxpayers.

Many Federal returns are being sent to IRS offices unsigned.

While tax officials assume that the failure to sign is an oversight on the taxpayer's part, they cannot process such returns and must put them aside for special handling. This is especially disadvantageous to the taxpayer who expects a refund or savings bond.

Taxpayers are urged to doublecheck their returns for signatures before mailing. One signature is required for a single person; two for a married couple filing jointly. The signature should be written in the same way that the name is printed at the top of the return or, as they put it, "Print at the top, sign at the bottom."

The Surgeon Says

Have a Hobby

Maj. Arvilla L. Dyer, MSC

Activities and interests outside of one's normal duties are of prime importance to one's physical and mental well-being. This fact is well known to members of the medical professions, but not so well known to the general public.

At one hospital it was found that of the fifteen or twenty men being treated for ulcers, not a single one had any hobbies or interests in which he could immerse himself, in order to relax after a hard day's work. Many housewives find that when their husbands are away, on business trips or maneuvers, and the children are in school, the days seem endless and physical and mental problems seem larger and more extreme.

Mental or physical activity also aids the ill person toward a more rapid recovery. With this in mind most large hospitals, including Martin Army Hospital, have established programs to arouse the patient's interest in some type of handicraft, or other activity, outside of himself and his problems.

It does not matter whether one is helping with a Little League ball team, playing a horn in the neighborhood band, building a table at the post craft shop, tying fish flies on the kitchen table, learning to make slip covers at evening school, or knitting a sweater for one of the grandchildren. The important thing is to find a hobby or activity which will hold one's attention so completely that the anxieties and tensions of the daily work, physical aches and pains, and even the time of day are entirely forgotten.

Doctors and modern medications can go only so far. The rest is up to the individual. Be responsible for your own preventive medicine. Find some socially acceptable activity in which you can become wholeheartedly interested and relieve yourself of tensions and pains.

The Judge Says . . .

Education can help a blank mind, almost nothing can help you if you sign a blank contract. Read on, and fill some possible blanks in your mind.

In order to avoid being misled, read and become familiar with all the terms of any contract before you sign it, especially conditional sales, chattel mortgage, or other types of time payment contracts.

Under no circumstances should you sign a contract containing blanks that are not filled in. Be sure that you receive a copy of the signed contracts, if all the terms are not in writing on the contract before you sign it, they are not binding on the company.

If the salesman agrees to some term not in the contract, you are entitled to write it in yourself before you sign. Do not be taken in by his assertions that he will take care of everything if you sign on the dotted line. No legitimate salesman should have any objection to any of the foregoing.

If you have any doubt, do not sign the contract, since it is normally too late to cure defects once you sign.

In buying a car or other item of personal property on time, it is important to note two things. When you trade in a used car or appliance on a new one, be sure the holdier of the mortgage is notified, or paid off. Most contracts prohibit the moving of purchased items outside the boundaries of the state, and sometime the county, without the written permission of the vender or mortgagee.

Therefore, in preparing to move, it is advisable to have the written consent of the vendor or mortgagee to move the financed item out of the state or the county, even if the contract does not require that it be in writing.

Defensive Driving

Almost everyone likes to discuss his troubles. Complaining, without a doubt, is one of mankinds oldest hobbies. Either it's "too hot" or "too cold." I have the hardest job in the world. "I'm overworked and underpaid." "My work ain't appreciated", etc., are some of the common expressions heard.

As troubles, they are small in comparison to the problem you have when you become involved in a serious or fatal vehicle accident. In approximately one second, such an accident could completely alter the course of your life. The sequence of a typical collision is frantic reaction and violent brake application, panic — drivers and passengers, impact of vehicles, destruction of vehicles and violent motion of driver and passengers.

What can you do about preventing such an accident? Continue what you've been doing right along, if you practice Defensive Driving. In Driving Defensively, you must keep alert, keep your eyes open, and use good judgment at all times.

The drivers who bend the rules of the road "just a little," who usually get by with poor driving, or who don't like to be bothered with safety are the ones to be concerned about. They generally are the loudest complainers about traffic conditions and their accidents will always be the other fellow's fault.

How's it with you? Do you practice Defensive Driving to protect you and the people riding with you from the unsafe acts of the drivers just described? Play it safe by Driving Defensively — Accept it as a Way of Life.

Symbol of Freedom

The Washington Monument will be 80 years old Feb. 21.

On that day in 1885, the impressive structure which is the focal point among the many monuments in the nation's capital, was formally dedicated to the first President of the United States, for his leadership and deep desire for freedom.

Just as George Washington and the revolutionaries had to fight for the freedom of the United States, the Washington National Monument Society, formed in 1832, had a difficult struggle in building the monument.

Although the cornerstone for the Washington Monument was laid in 1848, some unusual circumstances delayed its completion until December 1884. The monument society sent requests to states, organizations, and other nations to donate memorial stones to be in layed in the inner walls of the monument. Among the stones they received was a block of marble presented by Pope Pius IX from the Temple of Concord in Rome.

The marble block was stolen and supposedly thrown into the Potomac River by a group believed to be members of the American Party. This party was a secret society that protested against immigration and the election or appointment of foreigh-born persons to official office.

The robbery was such a shock to the public that contributions all but stopped. The monument society, realizing they had no chance of defeating the American Party alone, appealed to Congress for aid. Congress agreed to furnish them funds, but the night before the funds were to be given, members of the secret society struck again. They broke into the offices of the monument society and declared themselves in possession of the monument. As a result of the publicity, Congress abandoned any attempt to help the society until 1876, when it voted to finish the monument at government expense.

Today, standing 555 feet, 5⅛ inches, the structure is a symbol of the courage and spirit of George Washington and of the country he helped create. About one million people visit the monument annually to pay respect to the Father of our Country. (AFPS)

Chaplain's Corner

Family Comes First

By Chaplain (Capt.) Michael J. Rogers

"The happiest moments of my life have been the few which I have passed at home with my family.

How wonderful if everyone could truthfully and sincerely repeat that sentiment expressed by Thomas Jefferson in 1790, near the close of his life.

"It is within the power of each person to make the family the center of joy, comfort, and inspiration that God intended it should be.

Although military life frequently separates the family, the opportunities of being together should be used to the maximum to develop a congenial home with happy, well-behaved children.

Every effort to strengthen and sanctify the bond between parents and children pays rich dividends.

Members of a happy household not only encourage and stimulate each other but radiate into a cold world the love it desperately needs.

Remind as many as you can that the role of the family is more sacred than the state, with rights and duties of its own. It begets and prepares citizens for time and for eternity.

"Children's children are the crown of old men; and the glory of children are their fathers." (Proverbs 17:6)

18,000 Airborne Students a Year

Maj. Dowie's Committee Upholds Proud Tradition

"GERONIMO!" the battle cry of the airborne soldier was first used by a private Eberhart of the 501st Bn., in 1941 to prove to a friend that he had full possession of his faculties as he jumped from a plane in flight.

From the first cry of "Geronimo!" in the early forties to the present, "the airborne has reached a magnitude far beyond the expectations of the father of the airborne Army, Maj. Gen. William C. Lee."

It is the job of Maj. Donald D. Dowie, committee chief of the jump committee, Airborne Department, TJS, to qualify the students of the airborne course as military parachutists and uphold a proud tradition.

18,000 a Year

Dowie and his staff of three officers and 51 enlisted men train over 18,000 students a year. A far cry from the 28 men who volunteered for the first airborne class in June 1940.

The three week training period of the airborne soldier is climaxed in the third and final week when Dowie and his staff take over and prepare the student for his first jump from a plane in flight.

In order to qualify the student as a military parachutist the jump committee has devised a thorough training program which is completed after each student has successfully completed five actual jumps.

From the time the trainee arrives at the jump committee classroom until he "bites the dust" he is constantly being trained, inspected and briefed.

Final Phase

When the soldier arrives for his final phase of training he is guided through a series of steps that will qualify him as the "best airborne soldier in the world," and insure his safety. "The safety of the student is of the utmost importance", explained Dowie. "Each instructor on the jump committee is an expert. They know what they are looking for when it comes to safety and they know how to correct a mistake and insure it will not be repeated."

After refreshing the student on what he has learned during his first two weeks of training the jump committee staff then instruct him on the layout of the parachute, the rigging procedures, in-flight emergency procedures and the different types of aircraft he will be expected to jump from.

The most exciting moment of the training comes when the student hears the jump master shout "get ready". He realizes that soon he will be floating through the air, far away from the security of the classroom and the instructor.

Tap on Shoulder

A tap on the shoulder and the command "go" sends the airborne trooper plunging into empty space for the first time. After the chute opens and he begins drifting toward the earth a booming voice begins shouting commands once again.

Dowie has one instructor for every two jumpers placed in towers on the drop zone. They guide the student down by means of a sound system that is capable of being heard at an altitude of 1,250 feet. "It is the loudest sound system at Fort Benning and can be heard over the roar of the aircraft engines", stated Dowie.

Once the novice jumper has landed he is then instructed on what to do with the parachute.

"There are actually four types of jumps. During the first two jumps each student is tapped and only jumps when he is tapped. On the third jump only the first one is tapped and the others follow after. The fourth jump is executed with full field gear and the fifth while the planes are in formation. When the student leaves here he is a fully qualified airborne soldier.'

From 1948-52 Dowie was an enlisted man serving as an instructor with the jump committee. He is now the head of the jump committee.

He has also served as chief of the physical conditioning and motivation committee and training officer of the air movement committee of the Airborne Department.

During World War II Dowie served for seven years in the British Army as a tank commander with the "Desert Rats". He spent three years as a prisoner of war in Africa, Italy, Germany, Poland and Russia.

DOD to Receive Syncom II, III

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Operational transfer of the communication satellites Syncom II and III from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) to the Defense Department (DOD) is underway.

The transfer is scheduled for completion by March 31.

An announcement by NASA said the civilian space agency has completed its experimental research and development program with the two satellites.

For the past two year DOD has furnished the communications ground stations used to relay transmission by the two Syncoms.

Also being transferred to DOD are telemetry and command stations and range-rate equipment operated by NASA for its Syncom program.

However, DOD will provide NASA with certain telemetry and ranging data of scientific and engineering interest.

Syncom II was launched from Capt Kennedy, Fla., July 26, 1963, and Syncom III, Aug. 19, 1964. Both are orbiting at altitudes of about 22,300 miles.

Ballet and Jazz Program Featured At Luncheon Given by OC Wives

By Hazel Lipscombe and Joanne Drouin

A program of "Ballet and Jazz" was presented at a recent luncheon for wives of officers attending the Infantry Officers Basic Class No. 6, 2nd Student Bn., TSB.

The program was offered by students of a local school of dance under the direction of Mrs. Frances Berry. Dance sequences from the "Nutcracker Suite" and an interpretive jazz ballet entitled "Cherry" were performed.

"The Swan Queen" was danced by Miss Marie Berry.

Valentine's Day set the theme for the luncheon decor. A delicate tree of hearts graced the head table.

Student wife hostesses were: Mrs. Gary M. Kelly, Mrs. David H. Smith, Mrs. Raymond F. Kells, Mrs. Eugene Pinheiro, Mrs. William Tingley, Mrs. Kenneth E. Weaver, Mrs. Robert August, Mrs. Stephen R. Davies, Mrs. Wayne R. Clodfelter and Mrs. Leroy Burgess.

Mrs. John A. Heintges, Mrs. Maurice C. Holden, Mrs. Donald T. Kellett, Mrs. Arthur J. Estes, Mrs. Joseph E. McCluskey, Mrs. Ronald S. McCaul and Mrs. Charles E. Johnson attended the luncheon as guests.

Get-Acquainted Coffee

Wives of officer candidates in 51st Co., 5th Student Bn., attended a get-acquainted coffee in the company dayroom.

Lt. Col. (Chap.) Arthur J. Estes was the featured speaker. Guests also were briefed on military customs and coming social events by Mrs. C. Grandgeorge and Mrs. Linwood P. Knight, Jr.

Mrs. Robert B. Nett and Mrs. Stanley S. Scott were guests at this affair hosted by Mrs. Kenneth Johnston, Mrs. Grandgeorge, Mrs. George P. Cady, Mrs. James T. Curry, Mrs. L. P. Knight, Mrs. Jerry L. Baldwin and Mrs. Allen Tahyer.

A white gladiola and fern arrangement provided the centerpiece for the serving table.

OWC Models

The latest spring fashions and accessories are modeled at a recent OWC luncheon and fashion show by (L to R) Mrs. Richard Renfro, Mrs. John P. Soukup, Mrs. Robert S. Fiero and Mrs. Linwood P. Knight. The event was conducted with a Parisian theme and was attended by more than 400 women.

DAR Presents History Medals

Three teenagers were presented American History Medals by the Oglethorpe Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, recently at the Columbus Women's Club.

Winners included: Joseph S. Lahnstein of Fort Benning, a student at Baker High School; Donald C. Fournier, also from the post, a student at Pacelli High School, and Gloria Kilpatrick, of Jordan High School.

Mrs. J. R. Estes, chairman of the program, presented the awards. Teachers and parents of the winners were honored at a tea following the short business meeting conducted by Mrs. Ralph A. Sayers, regent of the DAR. Hostesses were: Mrs. K. S. Olson, Mrs. W. E. Ogletree, Mrs. Robert E. O'Neal and Mrs. Louise Patterson.

Discuss Communion Plans

Plans for a Corporate Communion Sunday and monthly meeting of the Main Post Holy Name Society are discussed by Holy Name members R. Frankoski (L) and M. Newton (R). The events will be held Sunday and Monday.

Holy Name Holds Communion

The Holy Name Society of Main Post is sponsoring a Corporate Communion at the 7:30 a.m. Mass at the Main Post Catholic Chapel Sunday.

All interested personnel as well as present members are urged to attend and offer the Blessings of Mass and Holy Communion as a valentine for their loved ones.

There will be a regular monthly meeting of the Holy Name at the 197th Brigade Chapel on Monday at 7:30 a.m. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament will precede the meeting. Father Xavier J. Gigliello will be the featured speaker of the meeting.

A Wedding 'Shower'

A traditional arch of sabers greet Lt. and Mrs. Anthony J. Zeppetella as they leave the Main Post Catholic Chapel following their wedding Saturday. The bride is the former Therese P. Morley, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Harrison A. Morley Jr. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Zeppetella of Collinsville, Ill. The officers holding the sabers are members of the "Doughboy" football team on which Lt. Zeppetella also played.

Coffee Scheduled By TEC Wives

Officers wives of the Test, Evaluation and Control Group will hold a coffee Thursday at the Main Officers Mess beginning at 10 a.m.

Reservations and cancellations can be made by calling Mrs. Durell B. Hartman, (545-7046) or Mrs. Alvin O'Neal (545-7500).

Hostesses for the coffee will be ladies of the Support Directorate with Mrs. James Hays and Mrs. O'Neal co-chairmen.

Theatrical Artisans Recieve Awards

The Third Army equivalent of Broadway's "Tony" awards were presented to 11 theatrical artisans from Fort Benning last Thursday evening at the Third Army Theatre Awards banquet at the post's Country Club.

The awards were presented to winners in the second annual Third Army Play Contest held in November in which the post's Little Theatre won the Best Production Award of $1,000 for Harold Pinter's "The Caretaker."

Gold statuettes were presented to: Barbara Peterson, house manager; Jerry Kasco, art work; William Smith, photography; Debbie Fay, publicity; Tom Largy, property crew chief; Peter Hajduk, lighting; Ingo Orlamunder, stage manager; Jay Ronnelberg, actor; Mic McMasters, actor; Rod Price, actor, and Dwight Carr, director and set designer.

Fort McClellan, Ala., was awarded $500 for second place production and Fort Campbell, Ky., received $250 for third place.

Top honors were also given to Fort Benning's Rod Price for best actor and Dwight Carr for best set design.

Lt. Col. Lexy Ford, chief, Special Services Division Third Army, was guest speaker and discussed the importance of the theatre in coming times.

Col. Earl F. Holton, deputy post commander, presented the awards.

Explorer Post 99

Scouting Techniques are Demonstrated During Overnight 10-Mile Hike, Camp-Out

ROSS (R) HOLDS ROPE STEADY
. . . Johnston Attempts Climb

BY VICTOR L. ROSS

Explorer Post 99, sponsored by the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, unleashed scouting skills and hiking and rapelling techniques during a recent overnight hike and camp-out in conjunction with National Boy Scout week, Feb. 7-13.

Jumping off in the vicinity of Kings Pond, members with full packs hiked through dense ground fog and 30-degree temperatures to Camp Pine Knot, a distance of about 10 miles.

By 1 p.m. camp was set up. The location provided ample opportunity for short excursions over a fallen tree across the swollen Pine Knot Creek to a nearby cliff. Ropes were used in crossing the swift creek, and everyone was able to display rappelling techniques on a precipice overhanging another swollen creek, the Upatoi.

Darkness, a big camp fire and congenial comradeship wrapped up the day's activities.

Heavy ground fog limited the activities on the next day until noon. The afternoon was spent on an excursion to a nearby explorer lodge. By 4 p.m. camp was struck and the explorers headed home.

Future hikes and explorations are planned, including a trip to Florida in the spring.

Main emphasis of the Post's activities is on marksmanship, Post 99's specialty, and the members have received instruction on all its phases and done considerable shooting.

'The Kilotones' Highlight Instruction Of The School's Artillery Committee

BY MARGE LENNON

If a visitor to The Infantry should happen to hear the melodious strains of "Caissons Go Rolling Along" as he passes by a classroom, chances are that the sounds are coming from the Artillery committee's recently formed jazz band, "The Kilotones".

Originally devised as a "gain attention step" for one of their Infantry leader courses, the group has now become so popular that they have expanded their original repertoire from one to eight selections. Although highly unprofessional, they are in constant demand for both military and social functions.

The Infantry School's Artillery committee, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, instructs over 9,000 students annually and conducts over 35 problems and demonstrations. Their students include men in the career, associate career, ranger, officer candidate, basic and refresher courses. The job of this 8 - man committee is to teach Infantry men the employment and organization of field and air defense artillery.

"Learning these lessons can be made easier for the chairman Lt. Col. James D. Clar, "if the actual noise and clamor of the battlefield can be brought into the classroom. After we play our music, the students are usually more alert and receptive to what we have to teach them. It has been extremely successful."

Also adding to the success of the band has been the backing of Col. Thomas G. Ferguson, head of the Combat Support Group. Several cases of "stage fright" have been overcome by the knowledge of his approval and support.

Of the five Kilotones members, only two have had any musical training, Capt. Curtis Hoglan and Capt. Dick Champagne. Hoglan plays the trumpet, among several other instruments, and generally acts as coordinator for the group. He also writes all arrangements.

Champagne, on loan from the Combat Support Group's Chemical Committee, provides a realistic crash of guns and thunder of artillery as the Kiltones drummer. Blending his talents on the banjo is Capt. Roger C. Laudati and Maj. James J. Lennon chimes in with his triangle.

Lt. Col. Clark proudly plays a recently renovated bass viol. The base is painted bright "Artillery Red" and features several large gold paintings of the Artillery insignia. Whenever the occasion permits, Mrs. Clark joins the group as its pianist. It is then known as "The Ruth Clark Five."

.30 Caliber Machine Gun Replaced In Rifle Assault Demonstrations

Veteran Machine Gun Replaced

The veteran .30 caliber machine gun has been replaced by the 7.62 mm, M 60 machine gun in rifle squad and rifle platoon demonstrations. Sgt. Grady Deen, an assistant instructor with The Infantry School's small arms committee, Weapons Department, operates the M-60 machine gun at Wagner Range.

The old .30 caliber machine gun is being replaced by the newer 7.62-mm, M-60 machine gun in The Infantry School's rifle squad and platoon assault demonstration here.

Although the 7.62 machine gun has been in the hands of troops since the summer of 1961, sufficient testing of the weapon and the ammunition had not been conducted to permit its use for overhead and flanking fire until just recently. Now with adequate testing and revised safety regulations the 7.62 machine gun can replace the old .30 caliber (water cooled) weapon in the demonstration, officials of the platoon tactics committee, Company Tactics Department, said.

The 7.62 machine gun is approximately 10 pounds lighter than the .30 caliber weapon and it uses the standard North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) ammunition. It is also more effective in assault fire when removed from the tripod mount and fired from the shoulder, under arm, or from the hip than the old .30 caliber weapon.

Operation of the 7.62 machine gun in the overhead fire demonstration instills a feeling of confidence for the weapon in those individuals who are associated with it. This weapon is the first U.S. machine gun with a barrel that can be changed in a few seconds and does not require adjustments before resuming fire, officials said.

The rifle squad and rifle platoon assault demonstration is presented to provide the associate Infantry career and career course students with a working knowledge of current and correct methods of Infantry assault.

Maj. Edward R. Vaughn Jr., who has charge of the two-hour demonstration said, "No phase is more critical to an attack's success than that of the final assault."

In fact, as one commander has said, "the last 100-150 meters is pay dirt," he added.

Vaughn pointed out that more attacks bog down and result in large number of casualties during the last few 100 meters to the objective than anywhere else. The key to success is to seize important terrain in the final assault with as few casualties as possible, he said.

Rifle Company in the Attack Moves to North Ruth Range

Fort Benning's North Ruth Range became the new site of the company tactics committee's "Rifle Company in the Attack" demonstration last week.

The committee, a part of the Company Tactics Department, formerly used Buma Hill to demonstrate the attack problem.

The demonstration, which is presented to all leadership classes at the school, has been moved to the new site in order to take advantage of the increased maneuver area available.

"The maneuver area at Buma Hill limited the demonstration of our problem", explained Capt. Herbert N. Meininger, an instructor on the company tactics committee.

"Not only do we have more maneuver area in the new location, but the move has enabled us to expand the problem from one hour to two hours," stated Meininger. "The larger training area has also allowed our committee to incorporate tactical air support, increased surveillance and target aquisition capabilities, and permit the demonstration, over all, to proceed on a much larger scale."

Viet Nam

(These questions and answers on Viet Nam, Laos, and Southeast Asia are excerpted from "Viet Nam: The Struggle for Freedom," a pamphlet (DoD Gen-6) issued by the Directorate for Armed Forces Information and Education, Department of Defense.)

Q. What is our goal in South Viet Nam?

A: In helping the Republic of Viet Nam to resist the attack mounted against it, the United States has these goals:

An end to the fighting and terror in South Viet Nam; preservation of the freedom of the South Vietnamese people to develop according to their own desires, without outside interference and without serving the policy of any other nation, and establishment of the authority of the government in Saigon over all territory south of the 17th parallel.

The Communists charge that the United States seeks to establish a military base in South Viet Nam. This is false. We have no colonial or territorial aims anywhere in Southeast Asia, nor do we seek any national military advantage such as the establishment of bases.

KNOW YOUR SENIOR NCO's

A World War II veteran who saw action with the 335th Inf. Regiment, 84th Inf. Div. is the senior NCO in the TEC Group's Evaluation Directorate. He is MSgt. Aubrey O. Spurlock.

Born in Tuckerman, Ark., in 1921 he was graduated from Dixie High School in Lake City, Ark.

After a break in service following World War II, Spurlock came back on active duty at Jonesboro, Ark. in June, 1948. On July 6, 1950 he was with the 34th Inf. Regiment in Korea. He served with that unit and later with the 21st Inf. Regiment both of the 24th Div. through mid July, 1951 during the early days of the Korean conflict. He has served over 73 months in overseas areas.

Among his assignments during the past ten years he has served as operations sergeant, 326th Airborne Inf. Bn., Fort Knox, Ky. from November, 1955 to November, 1956; operations and intelligence NCO, operations and intelligence section, Instruction Division LFTU, Atlantic, Little Creek, Va. from December, 1956 to December, 1959 and operations sergeant J-3 Division, United Nations Command, USFK, Korea from December 1960 to March, 1962.

This is Spurlock's second tour at Fort Benning having served here from December, 1959 to November, 1960 as intelligence sergeant of the 23rd and 11th Inf. respectively.

Among his awards and decorations the sergeant holds the Bronze Star Medal, the Purple Heart and the Combat Infantryman's Badge with one star.

Officer Candidates Hear Address By School's Educational Adviser

"We are living in the Atomic Age. An individual can't begin to cope with the many problems of this technological era unless he gets all the training and education he can," said Dr. Harold S. Tate.

Speaking recently on educational opportunities for officers to officer candidates of The Student Brigade's 5th Student Bn., he added, "The Army realizes the importance of education and is spending millions of dollars to educate its officers and men."

Dr. Tate said that the Army believes educational services are tools in developing leadership. If the Army is to remain creative and dynamic in the future, it must give its potential leaders as much training as possible.

"If we took the combined area of all the educational facilities operated by the Department of Defense, they would fill three of the nation's largest cities, New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

"The main goal of all these facilities is to bring Army personnel to their maximum potential," he added.

Dr. Tate pointed out that a soldier can earn his bachelor's degree at Fort Benning through the American University and can even study on the graduate level.

Urging the candidates to use every available opportunity to continue their learning, he said, "the responsibility to get an education is yours and not the Army's.

"Your greatest difficulty will be your own lack of interest," he contiqued. "You are finishing a course that is considered one of the toughest and best in the Army. Many of you will fill a most significant post, that of a platoon leader, and will go on to other important positions. You must make yourself get the training you cannot do without."

Dr. Tate's talk was one of a series of addresses sponsored by 53rd Co. 5th Student Bn.

Physical Fitness Emphasized

Basic Class 8 Officers Hear Gen. Norton Speak

Basic Infantry Officer's Class 8 was officially opened last week by Brig. Gen. John Norton.

During a talk to the student officers Gen. Norton emphasized physical fitness, the advantages of being qualified in Ranger and airborne training, and the importance of being familiar with the Army's new equipment and gear.

"The officer who aims himself toward the toughest targets will become the versatile officer today's Army needs," stated Gen. Norton.

He explained that the students must be familiar with their equipment and jobs in order to advance and win in any type of warfare.

In winding up his talk he spoke on the importance of maintaining and knowing the functions of the Army's equipment. "Maintenance and knowledge of your gear is most important to your assignment."

The new company is commanded by 1st Lt. Scott W. Kester. Tactical officer for the company is 2nd Lt. John P. Wallace.

USC Receives Army Certificate

The U. S. Army thinks highly of the University of South Carolina, especially its computers and the men who make them function.

Today the Army presented a certificate of appreciation to the USC Data Processing Center" in recognition of outstanding support rendered to the application of automatic data processing procedures in the field test of the Army Air Mobility Concept (Air Assault II)" during the period Sept. 7 - Dec. 15.

Dr. J. Hubert Noland accepted the certificate for the USC Computer Center during an informal meeting in the office of Dean of Administration Harold Brunton Jr.

Maj. Charles D. W. Canham, representing Brig. Gen. Robert Williams who commands the Test, Evaluation and Control Group, made the presentation.

Five Given Certificates At Review

Five members of the 4th Bn., 69th Armor received 197th Inf. Bde. certificates of achievement during an awards ceremony and miniature review at Panther Field on Monday.

Lt. Col. Edwin J. McCarren, battalion commander presented the awards after reviewing the troops from an armored personnel carrier.

Receiving the awards were 1st Lt. Elmo L. Torbert Jr. of Co. B, for meritorious service as platoon leader and assistant S-3 officer, 1st Lt. John W. Thompson of Co. B, for meritorious service as platoon leader, company executive officer and battalion maintenance officer, and 1st Lt. Richard W. Carr of Co. C for meritorious service, as platoon leader and company executive officer.

Also receiving certificates of achievement were: Sgt. Carl R. Harsh of Co. B for performing in an outstanding manner with the 197th Pistol Team, and Sp5 Marvin E. Warren of Co. C for his performance with the 197th Rifle Team.

Army Floating Nuclear Power Plant Can Supply City of 20,000 Persons

Washington (ANF) — The Army has announced that its floating nuclear power plant is more than 60 per cent completed. It is expected to be the first of its kind in the world when it becomes operational late this year.

The announcement, from the Office of the Chief of Engineers, reports that the nuclear reactor will produce 10,000 kilowatts of electricity to support military forces operating in port, on shore, or in waterways. In time of civilian disaster, the unit will be capable of supplying power to a community of 20,000 persons.

The reactor itself will be housed in a modified Liberty Ship which has been given a new inner hull to guard against collision damage, deck - mounted transmission-line towers, and a pilot house. The ship's engines have been removed to provide added living space for the permanent crew of 10 and an operating crew of 48. The vessel will be towed from place to place.

The power plant is the newest in a family of such units developed by the Army's Nuclear Power Program, in coordination with the Atomic Energy Commission.

Early versions of the floating power concept, using oil-fired generators, were built by the Navy during World War II.

The Martin Company is building the nuclear plant at Mobile, Ala. This summer it will be towed to a special site at Fort Belvoir, Va., for six months of testing.

Hand Returns From Hospital

Sgt. Maj. Henry J. Hand of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit is on convalescent leave at Fort Benning from Walter Reed General Hospital, where he is recuperating from an accident.

Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. Hand wish to express their deep appreciation to all of their friends and acquaintances at Fort Benning and in Columbus who assisted them during this trying period.

Afghanistan

Capt. Ahamd Mangal of the Afghanistan Army is attending the Infantry Officer's Career Course. The Allied officer graduated from the Afghanistan Military Academy in 1957 and has served as an instructor in psychology at the academy since graduating. He was selected to attend the Career Course after passing a number of tests, including an English test.

First Lt. Zabihullah Bayat of the Afghanistan Army is attending the Infantry Officer's Career Course as a classmate of Capt. Ahmd Mangal. Lt. Bayat graduated from the Afghanistan Military Academy in 1961. After serving with the Kandaham Forces as a unit leader for two years, Lt. Bayat was assigned to the Organization Branch, Department of Defense Ministry of the Afghanistan Army.

Brazil

Capt. Braumari Antonio Da Silva, a Brazilian Army officer in the Infantry Officer's Career Course, has held a variety of duties in his 20 years of military service. He graduated the "Academia Militar Das Agulhas Negras" (Academy of the Black Needles) in 1950 and later served as a company commander, aide to a general, and company commander for a unit on the Bolivian frontier.

Capt. Pedro Luiz Da Silva Osorio, also of Brazil, was born in Rio de Janeiro and has been in his country's army for 19 years. Besides graduating from the same military academy as Capt. Da Silva, Capt. Osorio holds a degree in geography and history from "Faculdade Estadual De Ponta Grossa" equivalent to a state university in this country.

Tan Son Nhut, Viet Nam—"Truly one of the most outstanding young officers to have served in Viet Nam. A real American."

These were the words of Capt. John A. Islin of the 148th Aviation Co., U. S. Army Support Command, Viet Nam, about one of the former aviators assigned to that unit.

Capt. Islin was speaking of 2nd Lt. John N. Daily, who was recently re-assigned to Lawson Air Command, Fort Benning.

While station in Viet Nam, Daily served as an Army Aviator on armed UH-1B the Army has formed air helicopters.

The primary job of Army helicopters in Viet Nam is to provide air mobility for Vietnamese ground forces.

To perform this mission, mobile helicopter companies consisting of 25 UH-1B helicopters. Each company has 17 "slicks" or unarmed helicopters for transporting the ground soldier to locations of known or suspected enemy forces.

The eight remaining helicopters are armed with machine guns and rockets, and fly along side the "slicks" as protection, during the landing and off-loading of the Vietnamese soldiers.

The armed "Huey" was the type of chopper Daily flown in Viet Nam. He complied an impressive total of over 1,100 combat support hours during his 12 months in Viet Nam.

He has the distinction of being the first Army Aviator awarded the Vietnamese Distinguished Flying Medal with Gold Wings. In addition, he was awarded 10 Air Medals, and the Purple Heart for wounds received in action.

'Bugs' Add to Radio Maintenance Students Problems During Difficult 476-Hour Course of Instruction

A stranger passing by radio maintenance classrooms in the new academic building may overhear students heatedly discussing bugs they encountered during their last period of radio maintenance instruction in the new 10 million dollar building? In a manner of speaking radio classes do have a large number of "insects."

"Bug" is a term used to describe defects purposely installed in radio sets to test a student's repair ability.

Examples of "insects" are wires deep in a set that have been cut, or burned-out tubes or resistors that look normal but don't function properly.

Installing these troublesome bugs is the job of radio mechanics in the support section of the electronics committee, Communications - Electronics Department.

Yet, this is only a small part of the section's primary job of mainting 2,500 items of radio equipment to support students in the radio maintenance course.

Course is Difficult

This course is a difficult 476-hour block of instruction emphasizing the student's ability to fix and maintain intricate electronic equipment. Graduates of the 12-week program are the specialists who will eventually repair and maintain the radios in airborne, air mobile, mechanized and regular Infantry units.

Many of the support section's repairmen are honor graduates of the course they now support. After graduating and working in status, they become fully qualified repair technicians.

Their high caliber abilities are necessary for meeting the school's standards in supplying reliable equipment to radio mechanic students.

SP4 DONALD DOUYOTAS CALIBRATES . . . Teletype Machine

Infantry School Report

A compliment to their competence and professional qualities are the many calls they receive from other units and radio shops at Fort Benning for technical assistance and advice.

Tremendous Cost

A visitor walking into the support section for the first time would probably get the impression that the stacks upon stacks of radios must represent a tremendous cost.

The impression would be correct, for the equipment is valued at one and a half million dollars, and supports the instruction of over 800 students annually.

Maintaining this load of hardware requires the full-time duty of SSgt. James Lovvorn and a staff of 14 repairmen, all of whom hold a 311 or 296 Military Occupation Specialty, authorizing them to perform direct support maintenance on all the radios.

There are 16 work bench positions where the repairmen assigned specialize in a particular set.

In addition to maintenance responsibilities, repairmen are constantly training on new sets developed by the Army. An example would be the AN-VRC-47, a new radio for mechanized units, which has an increased channel capacity and a higher frequency than other sets.

Cross training is a constant activity for keeping the repairmen up to date on the Army's ever - expanding inventory of electronic gear.

Experimentation

Two of the 16 work benches are set aside for general testing and experimentation. This provides the mechanics an opportunity to develop special projects.

An example of what can result from this type of "fiddling" is a power cable developed by Lovvorn. The cable is now being used by all radio maintenance students during instruction on special radios used in mechanical units. This cable enables the student to take a faster reading on a radio to the equipment.

Besides the radios the shop maintains Philco trainers. These are metal frames on which the students add modules during their first six weeks of training. Modules are components of a set which help teach the fundamentals of radio operation and are later used in actual sets.

Backing up all the equipment is a supply area which handles the parts to keep the radios operating. Over 270 parts requisitions a month in addition to mounds of batteries and test equipment are necessary to keep the classes supplied.

Communications specialists have to be masters of the systems that make the will of the commander known. It is this mastery that the Communications-Electronics Department trains its students for.

Statue Presented To Gen. Ware

Maj. Gen. C. B. Ware, commandant, Canadian National Defence College, was presented a miniature Infantryman Statue by Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges during ceremonies held recently at the Fort Benning Main Officers' Open Mess.

On behalf of his group from the Canadian College, Gen. Ware said the memento would always remind him of the courtesy and hospitality shown them while visiting Fort Benning.

Following the presentation, a reception honoring Gen. Ware was held in the ballroom.

Top League Contenders Square Off In Fight for Second Half Honors

The second half of The Infantry Center battalion level basketball league moved rapidly toward a conclusion during the week and cleared the court for a crucial contest between the two top contenders.

The undefeated league leader, 29th Inf. team, was scheduled to take on second-ranked 1st Bn., CTC squad last night. A victory for the Infantrymen would virtually assure them the second half title.

Coached by Paul Breski, CTC won the first half championship with a 9-1 record. The 29th squad had an 8-2 record and tied for second place with the 577th Engr. Bn. during the first half.

In a game played last Wednesday, the Infantrymen helped to knock the Engineers out of second place competition by beating them 72-63. Up to then, CTC and the 577th were deadlocked in the runner-up position.

CTC, now holding a 6-1 record, went on to consolidate its standing by an eight point victory (72-64) over the 197th Brigade Troops. This left the way open for the league fight last night.

At stake for the 29th was the second - half championship. The Infantrymen have three more games left but they pose no threat to their position.

CTC went into last night's game hoping to tie for first place. This would result in a one game play off to determine the champion team for the second half of the league.

In case of a CTC victory in the play off, the team would automatically become over-all champs for both halves and receive The Infantry Center battalion level trophy.

On the other hand, the Infantrymen could retain their lead and force CTC to a two game-out-of-three contest to determine The Center champs. Such a series would be played on Feb. 19, 20 and 22 if necessary.

CTC's Drive to Break 100 Fails In Game Against TSB No. 1 Squad

A last minute drive by the 1st Bn., CTC basketball squad to break the 100 mark failed Monday night although the team won easily over a TSB No. 1 entry by 98-61.

With 43 seconds remaining in the battalion league game, CTC went all out to sink one more basket which would have given them a neat 100 points. TSB, although trailing by 35 points, was just as determined to prevent CTC from making it.

The second place CTC players pressed hard down court only to have possession of the ball taken away by Gary Kassel of TSB. The buzzer ended the spirited last minute struggle for the ball.

Coach Paul Breski's CTC squad led throughout the game and maintained a sizeable advantage until the second quarter. TSB then retaliated and cut a 16 point lead to end the half at 47-39.

Led by Larry Littlejohn and Roger Reynolds, CTC easily outdistanced TSB in the second half. Each player tallied 24 points.

Player - coach Gabby Naples of TSB was high man on his squad with 19 points. Backing him up were Kassel and Jimmy Blair with 12 points each.

CTC attempted 81 shots and sank 49 for a 60.4 per cent average from the floor. TSB ended up with a 34.9 per cent average by sinking 29 out of 83 tries.

Top rebounder for CTC was Reynolds, while Blair made most of the recoveries for TSB.

WAC Ball Team Wins 2 Games At Fort Gordon

The Fort Benning WAC basketball team took a doubleheader from Fort Gordon. WAC quintet over the weekend to wind up a four game series with a 3-1 record.

Both games were played Fort Gordon. The first contest was a run-away victory for Fort Benning 31-9. Dane Weddle was high scorer for the post team with 12 points, while Fort Gordon's Donna Murtz led her team in scoring with 5 points.

The second game ended in a 2 points win for the post at 20-18. Earline Surles of Fort Benning tallied 11 points, while high scorer for Fort Gordon was Barbara West with 5 points.

Basketball Tourney

A double elimination tournament to determine the post's 1965 champion battalion basketball team will be held March 2-6.

Playing in the tournament will be regular season winner and runner-up teams from The Infantry Center league, the 2nd Inf. Div. league and the 11th Air Assault Div. league.

Each squad may have up to 12 players, a coach and a trainer. Players are eligible only if they have played three or more league games. A roster of players, coaches and trainers participating must be submitted to The Infantry Center sports officer by Feb. 26.

29th Inf. Team Beats 58th Inf.

The unbeaten 29th Inf. unleashed another savage assault on the opposition Tuesday night at Briant Wells Field House, rolling over the 58th Inf. 92-55, in The Infantry Center battalion-level basketball league.

Big guns for the 29th were forward George Walstad, who poured in 23 points while center Monte Clausen chimed in with 17.

The victory was No. 6 of the second half of play for coach Lt. Col. William Hacker, and set the stage for a crucial game last night with once-beaten 1st Bn., CTC, in second place with a 6-1 mark.

Two Top Lady Golfers to Swing at Exhibition Match

Two young ladies who have moved into the top ranks of women golfers the past couple of years will display their winning form at the Officers Country Club this month, pro Howard Holbrook announced.

Kathy Whitworth and Carol Mann will be at the post Feb. 27 for an hour clinic and a nine-hole exhibition match with Benning swingers.

The two women professionals will clash with Mrs. Betty Gordon and Mrs. Doris Sampson in the exhibition following the clinic from 2 until 3 p.m.

Both Mrs. Gordon and Mrs. Sampson are familiar figures at the Benning Country Club.

Improved Player

Miss Whitworth, who has been on the pro tour six years, has blossomed into one of the top players on the circuit.

In her first three years on the circuit, she played mediocre golf, winning but a little over $10,000 during the period.

But she was named the most improved pro in 1960 and since that time has been moving up. In 1962, she won two tournaments, finished second eight times for a payoff of more than $17,000 and second in the LPGA official cash chase. She was again named the most improved.

And in 1963, Miss Whitworth started even more spectacularly, winning eight tourneys, finishing second five times and picking up money in all 32 LPGA events. She was second in money winnings this year also, collecting nearly $27,000.

This past season, Miss Whitworth slipped a bit, but still finished third in money earned with more than $20,000. She managed to get into the winner's circle once, waiting until Nov. 15 for her lone victory. However, on four occasions she finished in the runner-up slot and tied for second once. She also picked up four third-place checks and twice tied for third.

Miss Mann, who failed to chalk up a victory in her first three years on the circuit, finally began rolling in 1964 with a triumph in the opening LPGA event in the Womens Western Open.

Although she did not register another win during the year, the Buffalo, N. Y. native tied for second in the Lady Carling Open.

IT'S A MAD, MAD, MAD, MAD WORLD . . . The top comedians in the entertainment field join forces to present one of the funniest films to come out of Hollywood. It is the story of how a dozen seemingly normal people become involved in a frenzied chase for some buried money. It blends slapstick with the nonsense of the comedies made famous in the Thirties. Spencer Tracy, Milton Berle, Buddy Hackett, Terry Thomas and Jimmy Durante have leading roles.

UNITED STATES ARMY STRIKE READY FORCE

FORT BENNING, GA FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1965 PAGE 15

Coffin Picked For European Duty

Topical

A condensation of a recent account of a Montangard uprising may be found on Page 16. It appeared in the National Geographic Magazine and gives readers an idea of some of the problems that can develop from the political situation in strife-torn Viet Nam.

Youngish Assistant Says 'Tour Personally Valuable'

By JOE TREASTER

With orders for a new assignment in hand, the 2nd Infantry Division's youngish - looking assistant division commander paused for reflection on his tour here.

Using the precise diction and meaningful gesticulations of a seasoned public speaker, Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin described his tour as "very valuable for me."

"The assignment here came between two important tours in European offices," he said. "It was a wonderful opportunity for me to get back and serve with the men of the Army who were in the divisions."

Swift Strike III

When Gen. Coffin came to Fort Benning in the summer of 1963 the division was preparing for Swift Strike III, a gigantic mock war in the Carolinas.

Under Maj. Gen. Charles Billingslea the division leapfrogged across the Carolinas, throwing a surprising defeat in the face of a division - size aggressor force, heavily manned with paratroopers.

It was during a pause in Swift Strike III that Gen. Coffin was promoted from full-colonel.

"It was a tremendously exciting and interesting time for me," he said.

Parachute Badge

Shortly after returning to garrison from the Carolinas, Gen. Coffin moved across Fort Benning for three weeks to earn his parachute badge.

As chief of staff of Project TEAM during the tests of the 11th Air Assault concept, Gen. Coffin became somewhat of an expert on hit-and-run warfare.

He indicated the best defense in battling an air assault force is a good offense, (See YOUNG, Page 17)

Fund Drive Will Start On the 24th

A message issued from the office of 2nd Division commander Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles has set the dates for the 1965 Joint Fund Raising Campaigns for national health agencies and the federal service joint crusade.

The dates Feb. 24 through Apr. 7 coincide with the Fort Benning — wide drive initiated by Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, post commander in an earlier message.

The Chiles message stated there was no dollar goal or quota assigned to the individual but urged each "to consider personal assets and advantages over those less fortunate."

The message "enjoined each soldier to give his wholehearted support to this worthy campaign."

A spokesman from G-1—the office with overall responsibility for the fund raising campaign — listed the charities covered by the Armstrong.

DEPARTING Gen. Coffin

Pakastanis Hosted by Gen.

Five officers of the Pakistan Army will get VIP treatment as they visit the 2nd Infantry Division today. Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, the division commander, will be their host.

The officers, all majors, currently studying in the Allied Officers class at the Infantry Center, will ride to division headquarters in military limousines.

The general said that after an informal chat in his office at about 3 p.m., he and the visitors will go to the division's historical center.

Then, after viewing a ceremony at Marine Field, the Pakistanis will be guests at the regular Friday afternoon refreshment hour held by division officers at the Indianhead Lodge.

Army Names ADC To SHAPE Post

Assistant 2nd Division commander for the past 21 months, Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, this week received orders sending him to Europe.

According to the orders he will become chief of the nuclear actions section of SHAPE (Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers, Europe) in Paris.

He and his family are expected to leave Fort Benning March 6. No replacement has yet been named.

"This has been a very valuable tour for me," Gen. Coffin said of his days with the division. "It was a chance for me to get back with troops. Soldiers are always the same, but they are always different."

The 47-year - old general came to the 2nd Division from Army headquarters in Europe as a colonel. In that job, and the one he is moving into, there is no direct contact with soldiers.

When he first joined the division Gen. Coffin was mainly responsible for logistics and supply, but in recent months he has been in charge of division training.

Just last month he served as director of the division's year - opening field problem, Exercise Winter Haze. He called the three - day command post exercise a good training. All the commanders enjoyed the play."

In his new job, Gen. Coffin will be calling upon a wide of experiences which began in 1955 when he was assigned to the Army's atomic and missile divisions.

He later became chief of the divisions with the responsibility for launching the Jupiter satelite missile, the United States first success in space in January 19

For several months during the summer he was away from the division, having a temporary assignment as chief of staff of Project TEAM, the evaluation group for the final tests of the 11th Air Assault Division.

Gen. Coffin is a veteran of World War II and the Korean War and has won among other citations, the Legion of Merit and the Bronze Star Medal.

He was commissioned in the artillery after graduation from Stanford University in 1939 and later attended the Field Artillery School, the Command and General Staff College, the Armed Forces Staff College and the National War College.

3rd Brigade's NCO's Hold Birthday Review

By Byron Dunham

The NCO's of the 3rd Brigade turned a drab afternoon and an empty field into a colorful event for spectators witnessing the brigade's birthday review, held on Weiherby Field last Friday.

Staged by the NCO's, the spectacle heralded the unit's second anniversary since ROAD brought an end to its 24-year inactivity.

"Reviewing officer was Sgt. Maj. James L. Runyon, brigade sergeant major.

Commander of troops was Sgt. Maj. Bernard E. Bentfield, 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor.

Fixed Bayonets

With unsheathed bayonets fixed to shouldered rifles, the troops were clad in woolen "OG's," camouflaged helmets and branch scarves of blue, yellow and red.

Participating units included: Headquarters Company, 3rd Brigade; 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry; 1st and 2nd Battalions, 72nd Armor; 7th Battalion, 17th Artillery; Company C, Engineer Battalion; and 2nd Infantry Division Band.

The 3rd Brigade is the only brigade in the 2nd Division to serve during World War I, at which time it was widely known as "The Racehorse Brigade."

Reactivated in 1963 under Col. Lucien F. Keller, the 3rd Brigade's modern motto is "Tried, Tough, Tenacious," and its symbol is the fox, related to the unit's starring role in widely publicized 2nd Division counterguerrilla maneuvers Swamp Fox, at Fort Stewart, Ga., and Highland Fox in North Carolina.

Col. Armstrong

Celebrating its first birthday under Col. John K. Walker, the brigade is presently commanded by Col. John W. Armstrong.

Maintenance Management

'Here to Stay-Learn It-Pass It On'

By DON DUDICK

"This system is here to stay. . . you have to learn it. . . and pass it on," emphasizes Gen. Coffin as he gives his daily introduction to the Material Readiness Records and Management Course.

The course, being conducted during February, is being presented to command elements of every unit in the division. It was established to provide instruction designed to orient personnel of the division in their duties and responsibilities toward the proper maintenance of log books, Third Army Equipment Records System (TAERS) forms, and Prescribed Load Lists (PLL).

Heart of Course

Reorientation and re-emphasis on command responsibility compose the heart of the course. It is intended to remotivate commanders, staff officers and unit commanders at all levels on the importance of keeping sound maintenance records.

Command emphasis begins at the top (General Chiles recently completed a senior officer's preventive maintenance course at Fort Knox) and extends down to squad leaders and crew chiefs.

Capt. William H. McGondel, of the Preventive Maintenance Indicators Course, explained that the ability to prepare proper records and a working knowledge at all levels of TAERS will provide a workable "scale to measure needs." McGondel said that this will provide records which "will establish workable and accurate standards at all levels, provide a running material readiness report for the unit commander, and make monetary recommendations more easily justifiable.

Weak Link

"The weak link in the chain (prior to the new course) was that two-thirds of the commanding officers did not use proper command emphasis on maintenance

Magazine Recounts Solution to Mountain Revolt

Editor's note: This is the condensation of the article by Howard Sochurek which appeared in "National Geographic" magazine (January 1965). A special edition of the magazine is presently being circulated by the Department of the Army as an Information Topic.

Last September 19 two men were sitting on a sandbagged bunker that protected an 81-mm mortar site deep within Vietnam's central highlands when a flare arched into the night sky from the summit of a nearby mountain.

U. S. Army Special Forces Capt. Vernon Gillespie watched the flare, and the two that followed, and pointed them out to me: "this is trouble."

Big trouble, as it turned out, for the flares signaled the beginning of a revolt against the Republic of Vietnam by more than 3,000 mountain tribesmen, the montagnards, that could have delivered half the country to the Communists.

The montagnards had been trained and armed by members of the U. S. Army Special Forces, such as Gillespie's 12-man team at Buon Brieng, to harry Communists traveling the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

But longtime resentment among the montagnards of the Vietnamese government now boiled to a new high. As Capt. Gillespie put it, "The mountain people just don't get on with the lowland Vietnamese."

The forces at Buon Brieng, besides the U. S. advisers, included a montagnard battalion of 700 and a Vietnamese Special forces team of 12. Four similar highland camps had like forces and missions.

Watching the flares, Capt. Gillespie didn't know exactly what they signified; but an earlier message had warned Special Forces teams to expect demonstrations by the Vietnamese government. Gillespie called an alert that night to keep his montagnard unit occupied with the Viet Cong.

Radio Message

At 8:40 the following morning a radio message came from Ban Me Thuot, the provincial capital to the south. The montagnard rebellion had started. During the night, montagnard troops had marched on the city and taken the radio station on its outskirts.

Immediately, Capt. Gillespie swung into action. U. S. and Vietnamese Special Forces advisers were rounded up and Y Jhon Nie, the montagnard battalion commander, and his company commanders were summoned to a meeting in the mess hall where Gillespie announced:

"I am taking command of this camp. A montagnard revolt has started. Y John, do not move against the Vietnamese here. They are under my protection. To kill them you'll have to kill me first."

After dismissing the group, Gillespie accompanied Y Jhon out of the mess hall and told him in private, "I want no troops moved out of this camp until I say so."

During lunch Y Jhon received a radio message from his commander at Ban Don to the southwest. The commander ordered Y Jhon to join the rebellion and to march on the provincial capital. YJhon refused.

Y Jhon then assembled his troops and frankly explained the details of the rebellion. None disputed his decision.

See Firsthand

Gillespie then told Y Jhon that he was going by helicopter to the provincial capital to see the rebellion at firsthand. "I'd like you to come with me, Y Jhon," he said. With obvious reluctance, Y Jhon agreed to go.

Maj. Edwin E. Brooks, over-all commander of the United States Special Forces in the area, met them at the grass auxiliary airstrip at Ban Me Thuot. He briefed them immediately: "Rebel troops are at the radio station on the outskirts of town. I'm going down there now. We've got to get them turned around."

At the radio station, Brooks vaulted from the jeep Rebel troops had dug in along the fence surrounding the two-story cement building. They trained their automatic weapons on the newcomers.

Alone, Maj. Brooks strode to the center of the rebel perimeter. He could have been shot at any moment. But not a man moved. Brooks motioned Y Jhon to join him.

Y Jhon Interprets

He summoned the rebel platoon leaders and explained, as Y Jhon interpreted, that the revolt was over. They were to return to their camps. Then he raised his right arm over his head in the military signal, "Follow me."

Like the Pied Piper of Hamelin, Brooks headed down the road that led out of the station, the rebellious troops following him.

At the station gate Brooks ordered Gillespie to get trucks for the troops from wherever he could, as soon as he could. He knew that if he could keep these troops moving, the revolt would end.

As he marched, he signaled to other units dug in along the roadside. They fell in behind him.

Soon a jeep carrying other Special Forces officers skidded to a halt. They told Brooks that the rebels had set up a command post six miles down the road.

Leaving these officers to direct the exodus he had started, Brooks drove to the rebel command post. The rebel leaders had moved here the night before to launch the attack on the provincial capital. Hundreds of grim montagnards with their heavy weapons surrounded the post.

Efforts Fruitless

Efforts to communicate with the rebel leaders were fruitless. The stalemate continued until the next morning when the rebels issued an ultimatum. They threatened to resume the attack on the capital unless all Vietnamese leave the highlands.

Col. John F. Freund, Deputy Senior Adviser of the Second Corps Tactical Zone, entered the rebel command post, mounted the ladder at the center of the balcony of the rebel leaders' quarters and addressed the troops in fluent French.

Col. Freund spoke of the United States friendship with the montagnards. "Who will now continue this role?" he asked. He pointed at the leaders, asking them, "Who of you will be responsible for the blood of these men?"

At this instant, two Vietnamese fighter planes roared over the compound at treetop, as if on prearranged cue.

Finally, Freund made a face-saving offer. He would return to the rebels' Bon Sar Pa camp with them to prevent reprisals by the Vietnamese. This proved to be the deciding gesture.

In minutes, 400 men struck camp and piled into trucks. The leaders made no effort to resist. They stood glumly on the balcony, watching their plot collapse.

Capitulation

A week of delicate negotiations ended with the capitulation of the montagnards. Col. Freund and other Special Forces hostages returned by helicopter to the airstrip at Ban Me Thuot, their ordeal successfully ended.

This handful of dedicated Americans, with an awesome display of personal courage, had managed to halt the revolt—a revolt that could have drenched the central highlands in blood and perhaps delivered this vital area to the Communist Viet Cong.

Within a few days, men of the Special Forces were back at their posts in the mountains, fighting their lonely, bitter war.

Project For TRIM?

The good book says that patience is a virtue and for those of you who feel yourselves to be virtuous, I can recommend a true test that will either affirm or deny your own convictions.

It comes in the form of a combination of a state law requiring that all Georgia registered vehicles be officially inspected; the second part is the formality of acquiring post tags.

Neither task is in itself a major problem but the regulations require that all vehicles be inspected before any issuance of post tags can be effected and this is when the patience can be tried.

The routine is simple enough and begins usually at the Provost Marshal's Office. At this point you come to the realization that an inspection sticker is required before you can register your automobile.

After being advised that this may be accomplished at any recognized state inspection station you depart the lot to find some easily recognizable signs denoting an official inspection station for civilian vehicles. Rather than being inconvenienced by going down town, the driver decides to take advantage of this opportunity right on the reservation and get this formality out of the way.

Problem number 1—there are ten other cars ahead of you getting this formality out of the way also.

At this point the driver must resign himself to a waste of at least an hour waiting his turn. Should he decide to accomplish this task off post, he is faced with the problem of a half hour's accumulated driving time and a wait for two or three cars ahead of him making it impossible to win either way.

Once you have reached the car rack you learn much to your dismay that there is some minor deficiency that must be corrected before you can pass the inspection.

Once this deficiency has been corrected it must be re-checked and another subsequent wait in line must be accomplished before the sticker may be granted.

After certifying adequate proper state registration at the Provost Marshal's office, the last step in the procedure is carried out at the book store where the exhausted, irate motorist is finally able to attain the jeweled, seemingly untenable charm — a post sticker.

There are solutions I am sure to this problem area and one might be to install more inspection points throughout the post.

The only time a soldier can get his post tags is during duty hours and the hours spent trying to accomplish this task would be an interesting study for the Army's Project TRIM.

Logistics Clerk in 9th Infantry Is Karate Belt Holder; Says Mental Attitudes Essential to Oriental Killing Art

By Byron Dunham

"Army life can constructively influence the traits and avocations of the citizen-soldier," says a 'Manchu' of the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry.

He has developed a fearsome pastime while in the Army that fits his oriental unit nickname.

"Graaaaaaaaaaaa aa aaa!" screams Sp4 Dennis C. Webb, former grocery stock boy from Portsmouth, Va., when he delivers a flying, kicking karate attack at barefoot, white - clad opponents.

Now an S-4 (logistics) clerk at the "Manchu's" Headquarters Company, he is rarely suspected of being a wolf in lamb's clothing, — he holds the "Black Belt."

Karate, ancient oriental method of killing swiftly and efficiently with the bare hands and feet, inserted itself into Dennis Webb's life during his 19-month tour at Inchon, Korea.

Though his curiosity about the fierce sport was aroused by a basic training companion from Hawaii, the 21-year-old soldier did little more than think about karate until his arrival at Inchon.

Posted as a permanent orderly in one of the 2nd Transportation Command's BOQ's (bachelor officers' quarters), Webb after a little sleuthing found the "Central Chief" Karate Hall at nearby Sang Moo, presided over by Moon Wha Ryong, a fifth degree (Godan) black belt, considered to be the best karate instructor in Korea.

Definitely the best "lean man" and "free fighter" in the Inchon area, Moon welcomed Webb as his only American student.

Now wearer of a fourth degree (Yodan) black belt, he struggled and studied his way up through two degrees of the white belt, three degrees of the green belt, four degrees of the red belt, and the first four degrees of the black belt.

Webb describes karate as a sport — a non - contact sport, because all the chops and punches of the sport stop short of their mark. If the blows actually struck home, karate meets would be nothing less than murder.

At its most basic, Webb explains, karate consists of a series of "forms" or motions and positions. All are methods of blocking an opponent's blow or striking one of your own to a sensitive point such as the throat, temple, eyes, groin or armpit.

These forms fall into three levels of difficulty with some 20 individual forms in each level, all of which must be learned by the advanced student of karate.

Learning karate is largely a matter of learning these forms and becoming proficient at them. A karate lesson has much in common with a ballet lesson, and it is just as graceful. While the instructor counts off the number of the forms, the students demonstrate the intricate maneuvers like going through ballet positions.

Progress is rewarded by the granting of various colored belts and degrees of belts, culminated by the tenth degree black belt.

A serious student, Webb pointed out that the worst thing to overcome once reaching the black belt is delusions of being a "big hero, invincible karate master, etc." He himself has never stopped practicing the basic forms and kicks over and over.

For someone seriously involved, he says, absolutely essential is respect for the mental principles and attitudes of karate as well as the physical ones.

Three Levels

The sport itself falls into three levels of comprehension; "karate show," or show -off, spectacular physical skills such as breaking bricks or boards with a bare fist or foot, or killing dogs, etc.; jui-jitsu karate, like "judo," merely a wrestling technique; and the serious Zen-like karate Webb describes, built on "harmony of mind and body, linked with the creative and regenerative forces of life."

The "Manchu's" karate master has acquired a great deal of knowledge and odd facts about the lethal art of self defense, and offense for that matter.

with maximum use of camouflage.

"The 82nd Airborne Division became masters of camouflage," he said, "Individuals and equipment just disappeared. They were a tough opponent for the air assault men."

Displaying his prowess as a military scientist, Gen. Coffin talked of classic battlefield situations from the Civil War to recent years. As he talked, quick fingers traced tactical moves.

He has been involved in numerous Army innovations and was a key figure in the launching of the United States' Jupiter satellite missile.

A progressive attitutude is still a part of the general.

"I'm delighted to see a constant emphasis on combat developments," he said. "I'm especially happy that no one says 'what we have now is good enough.'" nance, and that most new junior officers failed to learn the new records system," he continued. He explained this system has been in existence for over three years and will continue to remain, thereby relieving any fear that a man could spend a lot of time studying a system just to have it changed when he became proficient.

McGondel said "TM 38-750 has gone from a nice-to-know item to a need-to-know item for commanders at all echelons of the Second Infantry Division."

The commanding officer of Support Command is responsible for the establishment and operation of the course and utilizes its personnel and facilities. The assistant chief of staff G-4 has the responsibility for overall supervision, control and coordination required for the course.

The Material Readiness Records and Management Course is mandatory for all commanders of assigned and attached units and the material readiness officers of S-4's.

MRS. ROBERT A. WITTER, Publicity Chairman, Officers' Wives Club — Publicity Chairman, Ladies of The Big Indianhead

Distaff Side's Week

Women's Clubs Hold Luncheons

Luncheons were the order of the week as both the Officers Wives Club and the Ladies of the Big Indianhead — the wives of the division's non-commissioned officers — held mid-day get togethers.

The wives club luncheon was held at the Main Officers Open Mess Tuesday and featured a presentation of "I am the Infantry" in Building Number Four's Marshall Auditorium afterward.

The ladies of the Big Indianhead held their luncheon Thursday at the 2nd Infantry Division NCO Club on Sand Hill. The noontime affair was in the form of a "Tacky Party".

The MOON Luncheon guests saw Mrs. Robert Coffin, wife of departing Brig. Gen. Robert Coffin, assistant division commander, presented with a farewell gift.

Also featured was a short entertainment presentation of a distaff version of "I am the Infantry" before the move to Marshall Auditorium for the official presentation.

'Come As You Were' Party

The quarters of Mrs. Leon McCall were the scene recently of a most unusual coffee for the ladies of the 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry. This was a "come as you were when invited" affair, with nightgowns, robes and slacks being the most common attire. The "best - dressed" lady was Mrs. Billy Lord, to whom a box of candy was presented.

The table was decorated in a St. Valentine's Day theme, with a "Miss Valentine" centerpiece — a little lady gowned in crepe paper decorated with lace and red hearts.

In addition to an assortment of coffee cakes and cookies, Mrs. McCall's specialty, quiche Lorraine, was served with both coffee and French chocolate.

Mrs. McCall was assisted by co-hostesses Mrs. Gregory Dillon and Mrs. Richard Merchant.

Business, Then Pleasure for 38th

Mrs. Robert J. Ross and Mrs. George L. Long were co-hostesses for the February coffee of the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry recently.

Mrs. Robert B. Tully conducted a brief business meeting and welcomed Mrs. William A. Davies, Mrs. Walter Stoele, Mrs. Anthony Pattarozzi, and Mrs. Al Conetto.

The ladies enjoyed refreshments following the business meeting.

'Supply and Transport' Ladies Meet at Coffee

Mrs. Richard A. Heustess and Mrs. Charles J. Ekvall hostessed a coffee, February 4, for the ladies of the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion. The scene of the coffee was the home of Mrs. Heustess.

The table combined the themes of Valentine's Day and Washington's birthday. A red linen cloth covered the table. A crystal compote filled with sugared grapes and apples was surrounded with tiny, white felt hearts pierced with arrows. There was also a shadow portrait, in felt, of George and Martha Washington framed in white felt hearts.

Mrs. Dean Van Lydegraf held a stimulating and informative discussion of Army social customs. She answered the ever-ponderable questions concerning calling cards, receiving lines, invitations, and table arrangements. Mrs. Van Lydegraf's warmth and humor made the sometimes formidable subject of etiquette most interesting and enjoyable.

7th Cavalry Holds Formal At Country Club

The officers and ladies of the 7th Cavalry recently held a formal dance at the Fort Benning Country Club.

The party bid farewell to Capt. and Mrs. Charles L. Sherman and officially welcomed Lt. Gary D. Lawson and CWO James E. Hemphill.

Sherman, former S-4 officer, is being reassigned to the 7th Infantry Division in Korea. He also had served as commanding officer of Troop A.

Lawson is a platoon leader in Troop B. Hemphill is the Squadron Automotive Maintenance Technician.

Guests at the formal were Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Robert E. Coffin, and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Leonard E. Trost. Coffin is the assistant division commander while Trost is the commanding officer of the 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor. Lt. Col. and Mrs. John F. McArdle, commanding officer and first lady of the 7th Cavalry, hosted the party.

Child Is Hostess For 23rd Coffee

A red and white St. Valentine's Day theme was carried out in both decorations and refreshments at the February coffee of the ladies of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry, held recently.

Mrs. William O. Child was hostess in her home, assisted by Mrs. Walter G. Robertson, co-hostess.

The door prize was won by Mrs. Roger E. Popham.

In March, the usual coffee will be superseded by a battalion luncheon to be held at the Martinique. Hostesses will be Mrs. Raymond C. Welch and Mrs. Joseph Sebes.

Headqarters Ladies Hold Coffee-Klatch

The bi - monthly coffee for the ladies of 2nd Division Headquarters was held Thursday, February 4, at the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Hostesses for the event were the ladies of the Chief of Staff Section.

Mrs. John Stoecker poured at a table decorated in a Valentine theme with a red azalea plant centerpiece.

Farewells were said to Mrs. Robert E. Coffin, who was presented with the table centerpiece.

Special guests welcomed were Mrs. E. C. Seaman, mother of Lt. Col. Robert W. Seaman; and Mrs. H. G. Truesdell, mother of Mrs. John G. Cleveland.

'Manchu' Ladies Get Punch Option

The ladies of the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry, met recently for their February coffee at the home of Mrs. Oren R. Brown, Jr. Acting as cohostess was Mrs. William M. McClure.

The table, covered with a white linen tablecloth, was centered with an arrangement of red and white carnations. An assortment of sweets and finger sandwiches was served with coffee and punch, poured by Mrs. McClure.

Following the coffee, a short business meeting was held by Mrs. John D. White. She welcomed Mrs. Robert A. Gwaltney as a new member to the group and presented her with a green plant bearing the 9th Infantry crest.

Mrs. Gwaltney also won the door prize, which was the floral arrangement from the table.

Heath Home Used For 702nd Coffee

The ladies of the 702nd Maintenance Battalion enjoyed their monthly coffee at the home of Mrs. Arthur Heath. Mrs. Hugh Gracey was co-hostess.

Mrs. Gephart, who presided over the business meeting, welcomed a newcomer, Mrs. Byron W. Wamble. Farewells were said to Mrs. Jerrod Howard, Mrs. Howard, Mrs. Charles Johnson and Mrs. Paschal Zurlo.

Coffee was poured by Mrs. William Johnston.

3RD BRIGADE BIRTHDAY TEA
Mrs. Armstrong (L) and Mrs. Kuder (R)

3rd Brigade Ladies Coffee To Honor 2nd Unit Birthday

Ladies of Headquarters Company, 3rd Brigade recently celebrated their unit's second birthday at 4307 Ridgefield Court, home of Mrs. James B. Tomes.

Mrs. John W. Armstrong poured coffee at a serving table decorated with a centerpiece of pink and white chrysanthemums.

Highlight of the party was a fantastic birthday morsel served by Mrs. Charles R. Kuder — a red, heart-shaped cake adorned with a huge licorice Indianhead patch.

Big Indianhead Ladies Announce Dinner-Dance

The Ladies of the Big Indianhead have finalized plans for their quarterly dinner dance to be held Friday, Feb. 19 at the 2nd Division NCO Club.

Military Police Establish 'Staggering' Record of Vehicle Safety for Large Number of Miles They Have Driven

By BYRON DUNHAM

Careful? You betcha.

The 2nd Military Police Company at last count racked up a staggering total of 430,162 miles of driving military vehicles without an accident.

Capturing the 2nd Division's coveted Safety Award for Company-Size Units last month, the MPs received special praise from the division commander.

Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles said:

"It is especially noteworthy that the MP's took home this trophy.

"As principle arbiters of law enforcement and safety control and guidance on a military post themselves, they can be proud to have set the outstanding example."

Moreover, military police jeeps clock up more mileage per day than the military vehicles of any other company - size unit in the division — 1,000 during a normal day, and frequently more than 5,000 daily while supporting special maneuvers and convoys.

The source of the MP's success is no secret.

Capt. DeWitt Hudson, company commander, more than a year ago initiated a stepped-up instruction program regarding the driving soldier's familiarization with the spunky new M-151 jeep and its tricks.

Responsible for the company's special brand of constant safety guidance now is a young officer who hails from Chicago.

Lt. Terrence R. Gill, company motor officer, feels that any individual's "common sense" can be fortified by reviewing of the elements of safe driving. Because of the importance of the M-151 jeep dilemma, Gill stresses constant study of the vehicles suspension, steering, speed, and gear-shifting techniques.

Prior to any field maneuver of major holiday period the MP's review all possible driving situations: rough terrain, convoy, blackout, open highway, town, garrison.

Aside from his special task as the company safety guardian, Gill has the major charge of maintaining possibly the most mechanically sound, spit - and polish group of vehicles in the "Second to None."

Guaged by their own motto, "Of the Troops, For the Troops," in order to gain a certain amount of respect from everyone the MP's must set an example not only in personal appearance, attitude, and safety habits, but also in the huge area of vehicle maintenance.

Gill likes his job as motor officer, and asserts that "all this attention to detail is justified by the importance of the Military Police Corps."

Graduated from Marquette University (Ill.), he was awarded a Bachelor of Arts degree in history and an ROTC commission.

A member of Delta Sigma Pi Fraternity, he married at Fort Benning recently.

Bronze Star Winner

Captain Talks of Days in Vietnam

By JOE TREASTER

Capt. Jack A. Lucido, assistant signal officer for the 2nd Infantry Division, talked this week of experiences in Southeast Asia as an advisor to a South Viet Nam battalion.

While there he won the Bronze Star, an Air Medal and two letters of commendation.

"It was an interesting tour. The work was hard and we spent most of the time in the field," he said. "I was lucky and wasn't hurt. A lot of people I knew were."

Capt. Lucido said that frequent hops into villages and hamlets put him dangerously near ambushes where all lives were lost.

"Lucky"

"All I can say is that I was lucky,' he said. "We never knew when they (the Viet Cong) were going to hit. Fortunately for me, I was never around when they pulled an ambush. Sometimes only a few minutes separated me from the massacres."

Twice snipers fired at the Jeep he was riding in, Capt. Lucido said. And once the helicopter carrying him drew rifle fire.

"But that was nothing compared with what some of the guys got," he said. "I was never in any heavy fire."

A sudden burst of automatic rifle fire through a bivouac area early one morning took the life of one of Capt. Lucido's close friends. Said Capt. Lucido: "You never knew when it would come."

Dysentery and Diarrhea were problems for Capt. Lucido most of the time he was in Southeast Asia he said.

Meals

"We ate most meals in the Viet Nam mess," he said. "We had rice with everything — three times a day. When we ate breakfast, hot soup was usually served. I've eaten pigeon head, duck head, goat and dog meat.

"Well, they told me I was eating dog once, but I didn't believe them. I don't know what it was."

For a time, Capt. Lucido's immediate superior was Medal of Honor winner, Lt. Col. Robert Nett, a former executive officer of a 2nd Division battalion.

"We got along fine," Capt. Lucido said. "He was a good man to work for."

Communications

Capt. Lucido's Bronze Star award was based on the work he did in improving the communications system of South Viet Nam's 2nd Infantry Division.

"When I got there they didn't have much of a system," he said. "I helped set up a Very High Frequency system, helped them establish voice communications between the command post and regimental headquarters and advised them on how and where to locate radio sets and equipment."

Capt. Lucido said he worked in establishing a radio network between the military post and several hamlets and villages.

"At first, when a hamlet was raided the people had no way to communicate with the Army and call for help," he said. "We visited each of the communities in the area and looked into the problems of putting them on the air."

The Air Medal, he said, came as a result of the numerous helicopter and light plane trips required in his role as advisor.

Letters of commendation came from both the senior U. S. advisor in his area and the commanding general of the Viet Nam division.

DID YOU KNOW

That the 2nd Infantry Division's 122nd Signal Battalion has more decorations (11) than any other active divisional signal battalion?

Lucido

New Photo Officer Commands Section

The 2nd Infantry Division has a new Photo Officer. Lt. Jon C. Blackstone, of the 122nd Signal Battalion, has just taken command of the section. Blackstone has been a member of the 122nd Signal Battalion for 14 months and has held positions as platoon leader of a Forward Area Signal Center Platoon and as battalion motor officer.

The departing photo officer, Lt. Henry T. Weeks, has been assigned as Assistant Communications Officer for the Third Brigade.

Record Set Last Year for Number Of Men Using Education Center

Last year in record numbers 2nd Division soldiers hit the books.

The number of enlisted men with less than an eighth grade education was sliced almost in half.

According to the Education Center, 16½ percent of the division — more than in any one of the four years previous when count was taken — set sight on scholarly pursuits.

Meeting A Lack

Among the abundant figures released by the Center was 8,639, the number of "educationally deficient' soldiers who received counselling.

The Army considers deficient an officer with less than a four-year degree, a warrant officer with less than a junior college degree or an enlisted man who failed to finish high school.

Figures supplied by the Center do not take into account those "Indianheads" who possibly studied on their own.

Eighth Grade

The number of enlisted men with less than eighth grade schooling was reduced from 401 to 206, Mr. Gus W. Schlitzkus, an education advisor, said.

He further told that the number of enlisted men without high school diplomas fell by more than a thousand to 2,479.

Presently only 2,035 enlisted men have less than a 90 score on the Army General Technical (GT) test, a slip from 2,479 the year before.

Facts and Figures

There were 2,633 group - study course enrollments, 366 American University course enrollments and 405 U. S. Armed Forces Institute correspondence course enrollments; 20,476 tests were administered and 16,537 passed.

In all, 7,100 individuals were enrolled in courses or tested during the year with the following tangible results: 223 enlisted men achieved 8th grade educational level through schooling or testing; 1,166 enlisted men achieved high school equivalency by passing the High School General Educational Development (GED) Test Battery; 70 individuals passed the one-year college GED battery; and 26 individuals achieved the two-year college DA Evaluation.

DID YOU KNOW

That 14 2nd Division units have won a Distinguished Unit Citation, two of them twice. Those two were the 3rd Battalion, 23rd Infantry and the 3rd Battalion, 38th Infantry. The former was first rewarded for its performance in France and a second time in Belgium in World War II. The latter was recognized both times for actions in Belgium, first in the summer of 1944, again, several days before Christmas of the same year.

Division Soldiers Will Choose Valentine Queen

Considering a March Leave?

Mardi Gras 431 Miles--$150 Away

BY JOE TREASTER

Comes spring and a young soldier's fancy turns lightly to field maneuvers, showy parades and warm nights of guard duty.

No?

Well, then, what about Mardi Gras?

Festivals known thusly are scheduled shortly in Mobile, Memphis, Galveston, Shreveport, Pensacola and New Orleans.

All the towns, including New Orleans, where the most flamboyant parties are pitched, are within easy travel distance. (New Orleans is 451 miles from Columbus.)

Carnival activities, daily balls and parades begin in New Orleans two weeks before the climax of Mardi Gras, March 3, and climb to their peak in the final five days.

Travel authorities say the five days before March 3 are swinging days in Mobile, too.

A legal holiday in Alabama, Florida and parts of Louisiana, annual Mardi Gras celebrations began in 1869. They have been held sporadically since 1704.

The term "Mardi Gras" applies to Shrove Tuesday, the day before Ash Wednesday which opens the Lenten season — a 40-day fast before Easter.

The French words, liberally translated, mean "fat Tuesday," which seems to be a reference to an old custom of thrifty people to try to use up all the meats and fats that were forbidden in Lent.

In Italy the holiday was called "carnival" or "farewell-to-meat" day.

In New Orleans, secret societies called Krewes organize and pay for the festivities. A secret committee selects Rex, King of the Carnival, and his queen, who parade on Mardi Gras Day and preside at the grandest ball in the city that night.

Invitations to the masquerade balls go only to members of the Krewes, their friends, professional insiders or people with travel agency connections.

Mrs. Louis Peckham of the S. C. Harris Travel Service in Columbus said one way to get tickets to the balls is to sign up for a $150 five-night package Mardi Gras visit. Food and drinks are not included, she said.

Mrs. Peckham said direct travel is possible by bus, train and plane. The bus is the cheapest, she said, at $23.35 for a round trip.

2nd 'Manchu' Battalion Honors Seven at Review

In a combination retreat and awards ceremony, the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry honored members of the battalion in various areas of proficiency.

First honored was Sgt. Robert Nelson, of Company C as the battalion squad leader of the month, for the month of January.

Nelson received a letter of commendation from Lt. Col. John D. White battalion commander and a trophy.

Named squad leader of the month for February was SSgt. Hale Vannoy of Company A.

Vannoy also received a letter of commendation and a trophy.

Outstanding individual in the battalion for the past month, and subsequently named soldier of the month for January was Spc4 Charles Gray of Company A.

Sgt. Carlton Hayes, of Headquarters Company was named soldier of the month for February.

Highlighting the ceremony, the awarding of the best overall company, went to Company C.

Acting 1st Sgt. Lee Howard accepted the commander's trophy for the company.

Service Club Two is sponsoring a division valentine contest. Entered in the contest are nine members of the Fort Benning Women's Army Corps (WAC) detachment.

Division soldiers have the opportunity of choosing a valentine queen by casting a vote between now and Sunday evening at the service club.

Division soldiers do not have to vote blindly, there are photographs of the contestants available for scrutiny at Service Club two.

As a service to voters the 2nd Infantry Division News interviewed the contestants and came up with the following information to aid soldiers in their choice of a military valentine.

Judith Marion is a private first class from Lawrence, Mass. She is 19 years old, weighs 120 pounds and stands five feet six inches tall. She has 19 months in service and is undecided about a career in the Army. She has ash-blond hair and green eyes. Her favorite food is spaghetti, and she likes dancing, swimming, golf, waterskiing and Thunderbird cars.

Louise Truitt hails from Wilmington, Del. She is 20 years old has "a year and a half plus eight days" in the service and is a specialist 4. She is undecided about an Army career. She stands at an even five feet and weighs 97 pounds. She speaks spanish, and likes ice skating, stamp collecting, gardening and judo. She has a boy friend.

Andrea DuMont is a 19-year-old native of Terre Haute, Ind. She is a private and has spent seven months in the Army. She joined to see the world. She has auburn hair, green eyes, stands five feet, nine inches tall and weighs 145 pounds. She likes pizza, swimming and art.

Mary Bergeron is 20, five feet, six inches tall, has brown hair and eyes. She is a private with six months in the Army and is undecided about it as a career. She joined for education and travel.

She likes Pizza, swimming, bowling, Pontiac cars and her boy friend.

Virginia Trumbower is 21 and has been in the Army two and a half years. She is a specialist 4 who intends to go to college when she leaves the service. A native of Hastings on Hudson, N. Y. she joined the Army for travel and education. She stands five feet, four inches tall, weighs 108 pounds, has auburn hair, brown eyes, likes porkchops, bowling and has just bought a blue Fiat car.

Suzanne Passreiter calls Omaha, Neb. her home. She is a specialist 4 and has been in the Army 18 months. She has taken college courses at the education center, joined the Army for the experience and plans to be a secretary when she leaves. Twenty years old, she is five feet, four inches tall, weighs 115 pounds and has brunette hair and brown eyes. She likes Italian food, Sting-ray cars, all sports and indulges her penchant to write.

Diane Johnson hails from Yakima, Wash., is 20 years old and has been in the Army two and a half years. She is five feet, six inches tall and weighs "about a 150 pounds," has dark brown hair and brown eyes. She likes to eat "anything," horse - back riding, baseball and sewing. She joined the army to travel and answers "yes and no" when asked if she intends to stay in the service.

Harriet Thomas is 19, five feet, two inches tall, weighs 125 pounds and hails from Spartanburg, N. C. She has boy friends and likes skiing. Tops on her list of foods is seafood, especially shrimp. She enjoys cooking and likes Malibu cars.

Yvonne Freer is married and has been in the Army eight months. She's undecided about an Army career, is 21, a native of Fort Wayne, Ind., four feet, ten inches tall and weighs 115 pounds. She likes semi-classical music and attended a business school.

There you have it Indianheads, now its up to you to choose a division valentine.

Plummeting Career Includes 72nd Armor

BY BYRON DUNHAM

Half tanker, half "lion tamer," a talented NCO plummeted from Germany into the 3rd Brigade's 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor recently.

SSgt. George C. Dickerson, a former tank commander with the 3rd Battalion, 35th Armor at Bamburg, signed into "Alpha" Company, took command of a new tank, and netted praise for his list of laurels.

Capt. Richard C. Swain, company commander, said: "I'm proud to get somebody like this. Dickerson was a private only 28 months ago."

Earning the soldier stripe after stripe, the list is lengthy:

As a trainee at Fort Knox, Ky., he graduated first in his class from the Armor Center's "Acting NCO Prep School";

As a private first class during the yearly Tank Crew Qualification Course at Bamburg, his skill as a gunner bagged for his "tank-buddies" first place in their company and second place in the battalion.

Benning Commands Unite for Sanitation; Teach Its Importance

By CHUCK McKOWEN

The 2nd Infantry Division joined forces with other major commands of Fort Benning for team training in field sanitation this week.

The Unit Field Sanitation Team Course for the "Indianhead" soldiers was conducted in Donaldson Hall, Harmony Church, on February 8.

The course, eight hours in length, taught 140 division men the importance of basic sanitation in reducing the incidence of insect and rodent-borne diseases.

Other subjects covered such individual protective measures as the use of insect repellents, uniform impregnants, and protective clothing.

Insecticides

They were also familiarized with the use of residual and space insecticide sprays for the control of flies and related pests. Rodent control measures, water purification and personal hygiene were other topics covered in the course.

Lt. Col. Manuel Petrakis of the Medical Service Corps, assigned to Martin Army Hospital under the surgeon's office, coordinated the joint effort for Maj. Taros Nowosinsky, post preventative medical officer.

Combined efforts of Surgeons, Col. Hal B. Jennings Jr., United States Infantry Center, Lt. Col. Wilbur D. Dice, 2nd Infantry Division and Lt. Col. Joseph C. Stroud, 11th Air Assault Division resulted in the course of instruction for field sanitation.

Schedule

The schedule for training set aside Feb. 8 for 2nd Division, Feb. 9 for USAIC and Feb. 10 for 11th Air Assault Division.

"The field sanitation training is basically for the troops who are away from their units," Petrakis said. "This includes field or combat duty."

Each company - size unit is required by Army regulations to have a field sanitation team. This team consists of at least two men, one a non-commissioned officer.

"In the past, the post surgeon gave the instruction on field sanitation, now it is a joint effort," said Petrakis.

"The medical sections of USAIC, the 11th and 2nd Divisions have gotten together to give the instruction."

The sanitation team is trained in individual and unit protective measures. Its mission is to assist commanders in preventing disease in their unit.

37th's NEW CREST
From DA's Heraldry Dept.

DA Approves Revised Crest for 37th Arty

The Department of the Army recently announced that the 37th Artillery had been assigned a new unit insignia.

Making the announcement locally, Lt. Col. Herbert H. Hill, commander of the 2nd Infantry Division's 6th Battalion, 37th Artillery, said approval for the new crest came from the Department of Heraldry of the office of The Adjutant General.

The new crest supersedes the one presently worn by 37th Artillerymen. The crest which will soon disappear from the shoulders of the men of the 37th, was designed by the wife of its first battalion commander and depicts the old clock tower at Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Present Crest

Hill said that it was felt the present crest was not representative of the unit's short but illustrious history.

In making the announcement, Hill added the new crests are presently being manufactured and will be available for wear by members of the battalion in March or April.

The new crest incorporates the 37th motto "On The Minute" below a shield with the artillery red as a background.

In the upper right-hand corner is a lion, taken from the Belgian Coat of Arms to symbolize the unit's actions in the Ardennes Forest Campaign and at Elsenborn Ridge. For these campaigns the 37th was cited by the Belgian Army.

Blue Lines

Two wavy blue lines diagonally crossing the shield from upper left to lower right represent the Rhine and Naktong Rivers and symbolize the unit's combat service in World War II and Korea. There are five waves in the diagonal which refer to the participation in five World War II campaigns.

A dolphin in the lower left corner of the shield symbolizes the peninsula of Korea, surrounded on three sides by the ocean. It particularly refers to unit participation in the break - through of the Pusan Perimeter after nearly retreating into the sea.

Apache Title to S and T

2nd Division SPORTS

FIGHT FOR A REBOUND develops between Adams (14) of S and T and Petty (2) of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry in recent action which decided Apache supremacy.

By TOM KIRWAN

All of us within the division at one time in our life have selected our heroes and idols from the pages of some book or from an exciting tale someone has related to us. I dare say in the history of football no heroes were so popular with so many of us as was the famous backfield that galloped down the decade of football memory and was christened the "Four Horsemen".

One of the members of the pony team, Harry Stuhldreher quarterback, blocker and tackler, the commander of one of Knute Rockne's best All America as a senior, 25 years a coach, and a member of football's hall of fame, died two weeks ago and with him a part of footballs glorious past — and a deep feeling of sorrow from those of us who have elevated him to the pedestal reserved for idols.

Succeeding generations inherited the famous group and to this day young fellows who never saw the '20s will speak knowledgeably of the quartet.

This team made up of seven mules and four horses compiled an impressive three year record of 26 wins, two losses and one tie. It was not until October of 1924 that the group became a legend.

Grantland "Granny" Rice, painted the colors of the 1924 Army-Notre Dame game in the New York Herald Tribune. His thoughts must have been soaring as he wrote of the Irish backfield.

"Outlined against a blue-gray October sky, the Four Horsemen rode again. In dramatic lore they are known as Famine, Pestilence, Destruction and Death. Those are only aliases. Their real names are Stuhldreher, Miller, Crowley and Layden."

At the 1924 season's end Shuldreher, Crowley and Layden made the All America team but Miller gave way to a man from Illinois named Red Grange.

This backfield was one of the most popular in football history. The backs got most of the publicity, as backs usually do, but the lineman put in good game efforts to receive equal billing as the "Seven Mules".

"Knute Rockne," Suhldreher recalled many times, "worried that the linemen might resent all the attention showered on us, so he had the team vote on which was the most important, the backfield or the line."

"The line won, 7 to 4."

23rd Finishes In Third Place

The 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion clinched their hold on the second half of the division basketball schedule when they defeated the 313th ASA Battalion 70 to 43.

The supply quintet was led in the attack by Mel Nicol who scored 15 points, a season-low for the S and T star. They also managed to effectively stop Roger Oyler of the 313th from hitting his field goals in the game. Oyler scored only three points in the evening.

The 122nd Signal Battalion gave the 1st Battalion 23rd Infantry and the 37th Artillery free passes to runner-up positions by forfeiting their last two games of the season. Admin Company contributed a forfeit to the 1st of the 23rd's third place finish.

The only other game played in the Apache league in the past week saw the 313th ASA go down to defeat at the hands of the 37th Artillery by the score 81 to 60. Lundford was the leading scorer for the Arty quintet with 18 points. Spillman and Oyler led the ASA hoopsters with 18 and 14 respectively.

Lt. Gary Taylor, division special services officer announced that the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion; the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry, the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry and the 37th Artillery will be the representatives from the Apache league in the division playoff tournament. The places are decided by showings in both halves of the schedule, Taylor reported.

DID YOU KNOW

That the 12th Artillery spent 334 days in Europe during World War II? This covered a move from Normandy across Europe to Nezbavetice in Czechoslovakia:

Cherokees Won't Give Up; League Playoffs Assured

The Cherokees in the division basketball schedule are not giving up a thing as the 2nd Division News goes to press.

As things stand in the league to date, the 2nd Medical Battalion would be in first place.

The last game in the Cherokee division was played Wednesday night and it decided whether the 7th Cavalry wound up regular season play in a first place tie with the 2nd Medical Battalion or a three-way tie for second place with the 2nd Engineer Battalion and the 72nd Armor.

In play during the past week, the 2nd "Meds" were handed virtual assurance of first place when the 702nd Maintenance quintet forfeited. The Medics did take an 86 to 75 decision from the 12th Artillery, however.

Grillo was high scorer for the medic hoopsters with 21 points, Young of the Artillery scored 36.

The 2nd Engineer Battalion completed the "coup de grace" for the 702nd Maintenance Battalion giving them a winless season. Cameron and Menter of the Engineers ran wild in the scoring department with 46 and 34 point showings.

The 2nd Battalion 9th Infantry defeated the 17th Arty entry 93 to 75 Tuesday night behind the 34 point production of Myrick.

Final outcome of the Cherokee division and the representatives for the double elimination tourney to decide the division hoopball crown depend on the outcome of playoffs being held tonight and early next week depending on the results of the game played Wednesday.

Activation Day

A Time For Reflection

Sky Soldiers of the 11th Air Assault Division will celebrate their second birthday February 15, by looking back at the new techniques they established in ground tactics and air mobility.

The 11th Air Assault Division was activated at Fort Benning, Ga., in the Harmony Church area February 15, 1963, under the command of Brig. Gen. (now Maj. Gen.) Harry W. O. Kinnard. The initial strength was 3,800 men and 175 aircraft. This strength was gradually built - up to 18,000 men and 459 aircraft by September 1964 for the division size AIR ASSAULT II exercises in the Carolinas.

In May 1963 the unit celebrated Organization Day at Lawson Army Airfield. Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, wartime commander of the 11th Airborne Division attended the celebration. The 11th Air Assault Division looks to the wartime 11th for its history and traditions.

In July 1963 Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and then Secretary of the Army Cyrus R. Vance, made a special trip to Fort Benning to watch the Sky Soldiers train. In September 1963 the Sky Soldiers held their first brigade-size exercise at Fort Stewart, Ga., and then US Army Chief of Staff Gen. Earle G. Wheeler watched the men train.

The two star rank of major general was pinned on Gen. Kinnard by his wife and Lt. Gen. C. W. G. Rich, former Fort Benning commander and now Third US Army commander, in November 1963. The year 1963 was rounded out when the men from the division held Religious Emphasis Day. Here Sky Soldiers attended the church of their choice and honored God in their own way.

The new year 1964 began with the opening of an Air Assault Idea Center. Here Sky Soldiers got the chance to submit their own ideas to improve the air assault concept. Also in January 1964 Gen. Kinnard was summoned to New York City to accept the Grover E. Bell award. This award was given the 11th for its outstanding progress and pioneering work in the helicopter field.

February 15, 1964 marked the first anniversary for the division and the attached 10th Air Transport Brigade commanded by Col. Delbert L. Bristol. The men celebrated this birthday in a quiet manner and training went on as usual. HAWK ASSAULT I was held at Fort Stewart in March 1964. The brigade size exercise was observed by new Secretary of the Army Stephen Ailes.

Brig. Gen. John M. Wright, was assigned as assistant commander of the division in March. Gen. Wright, a Master Parachutist served with the Philippine Scouts in the Pacific during World War

17th Aviation Caribous Supporting Flood Relief

A Task Force consisting of 28 officers, 62 enlisted men, and nine aircraft from the 17th Aviation Company, 37th Air Transport Battalion, recently participated in disaster relief operations of the flooded counties in northern California.

The Task Force, commanded by Maj. Thomas G. Ziek, commanding officer of the 17th Aviation Company, departed for flood ravaged Humboldt County, Calif. on Dec. 29 after an alert notification of only 12 hours. The aircraft completed the 1600 mile trek with refueling stops in Dallas, El Paso, Phoenix and Fort Ord, Calif., and arrived at the Arcata airport on the following day.

The unit's aviators soon learned that most of the landing sites in the disaster area were located in valleys near sea level with surrounding mountains rising up to 6,000 feet. This rugged terrain combined with low ceilings and practically zero visibility made the aerial resupply of these areas impossible, even by helicopter, until January 2nd. Many missions were attempted during this period but most of them were unsuccessful due to the poor weather. The missions which were accomplished were done so by flying up the narrow canyons with the clouds on top actually forming a tunnel. This type of flying requires the utmost in pilot proficiency because at any moment the ceiling may lower and the canyon may become so narrow as to prevent turning around; thereby trapping the hapless crews. During this period, the crews managed to fly delayed mail to flood-isolated Crescent City, Calif., and electrical equipment to Garberville, for the restoration of lights and power in that city, as well as flying area familiarization flights with local Civil Air Patrol pilots.

Finally, on January 3rd, the weather improved. Col. James Lee, 6th Army Aviation co - ordinator, outlined the unit's mission to the operations officer, Maj. Ted N. Phillips, and the crews were briefed and ready to fly. At dawn the aircraft departed for all parts of Humboldt and Mendocino counties carrying food, medical supplies, and hay for starving cattle. The cargo was landed if possible, air dropped if landing was unfeasible, and LOLEXed (low level extraction) if the terrain permitted.

This hectic pace continued until the 7th of January when low ceilings and poor visibility again prevented the crews from reaching the more isolated areas; however they did manage to complete several missions each day. This was done either by flying up the canyons at low level or by orbiting the area, on top of the clouds, and landing at the first moment that the ever - changing weather permitted. The weather was so changeable that it was commonplace to have fog, sleet, hail, snow and thunderstorms all within a one hour period.

Among the more challenging of the missions flown were the hay drops to isolated ranches. Local civilians aided in loading the hay and also acted as spotters to pinpoint the exact location where the hay was to be delivered. The aircraft would make several passes to identify the small drop zones and check for hidden obstacles, then at a signal from the pilot, the hay was pushed from the plane six bales at a pass. At first the ranchers were skeptical of this method of delivery but all doubt was soon erased as ton after ton of hay was delivered precisely on target. One old rancher was heard to say, "Them fellers dropped four bales in my 50 foot corral. I've wasted more hay feeding out of the back of my pick-up."

Other unique missions flown by the unit were the air delivery of all material

Helicopter Pilot Awarded DFC For Heroic Action in Vietnam

1st Lieutenant James H. Fitzgerald Jr. of Company C, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for "heroic action," at the 11th Air Assault Division review ceremonies, held recently on Sightseeing Field.

Lt Fitzgerald was cited "for heroism while participating in aerial flight." He "distinguished himself by heroic action on September 16, 1963, in the Republic of Viet Nam. On that night, Lt. Fitzgerald was the pilot of the second aircraft in a flight of three UH-1B helicopters that were conducting an ammo resupply mission for the 7th Vietnamese Infantry Division. Due to the fierceness of the firefight, which was in progress at this time, an ammo resupply mission was required, even though it was during the hours of darkness.

Upon arrival at the battle area, it was determined that the volume of fire was too heavy for a safe landing, so all aircraft were ordered to orbit until a landing site could be set up. During this period the aircraft were subjected to hostile fire. Lt. Fitzgerald made a successful approach under intense fire and although it was dark he made a smooth landing in an extremely small area.

Although his aircraft was continually under fire, he remained calm and directed his attention to the job at hand. When the cargo was offloaded, he accompanied the flight to its home station.

Lt. Fitzgerald was a member of the 114th Aviation Company, at Vinh Long, South Viet Nam for thirteen months prior to his assignment as a section commander in Company C.

Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard presented the award at the massive review.

Thoughts-On Love . . .

BY JAMES GRAHAM

Love is a mighty word. It moves mountains and topples strong men. It makes a warrior out of an ordinary citizen and reduces the warrior to tears when it is refused. You can't put yourself in love one day and slide out of it the next. Love is more than desire or intellectual understanding—it is the strongest of human emotions, the most beautiful and the hardest to be sure of. You can't buy it and you can't give it away. Love must be found, nurtured, developed and maintained if it is to grow and blossom to its fullest potential. You can't live on love alone but you surely can't live a decent life without it.

Brigade Completes Field Action With Feeling of Real Progress

Col. George S. Beatty's 1st Air Assault Brigade emerged from Hawk Arrow II last Friday evening with its two forces having made real progress in several specific areas as many innovations were introduced to normal operations during the four-day mock war.

Deploying Tuesday to positions northeast of Fort Benning near Buena Vista, the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry under the command of Lt. Col. Arne H. Elisson and the 1st Battalion, 187th Airborne Infantry commanded by Lt. Col. Harlow G. Clark, joined by their attached aviation, artillery, engineer, pathfinder and other support personnel gained maximum effect in this combined arms effort which continued throughout the four days of tactical missions.

Efficient communications, a must for successful air assault operations, were hindered by radio jamming when special devices managed to enter the command nets with bag-pipe music and other annoying sound effects, requiring brigade personnel to communicate over the interfering noises.

The 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion supporting the brigade carried out an assault transport mission using a new all-weather navigation system called "Red Dog" whereby pilots of the troop - carrying helicopters while operating under IFR conditions, simulating near zero-visibility weather.

Utilizing two direction-finder radio beacons, one at the point of departure and the second near the objective landing zone, the pilots flew at staggered altitudes, homing in on the objective beacon with each ship maintaining a different altitude.

Upon arrival over the objective beacon, the pilots, each carrying an assignment card, began their letdown and proceeded to the objective LZ in accordance with the instructions on the assignment cards. The system was used successfully and was considered to be a major step forward in all-weather navigation during tactical operations.

A special reinforcement operation to support an initial attacking force was carried out with the additional force brought in by CV-2 Caribous, rapidly and in sufficient strength to influence the action already undertaken by the initial force.

Base security was more of a problem during Hawk Arrow than in past operations, with the supporting aggressors furnished by the 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry conducting a steady series of harassing raids through the employment of both guerrilla and conventional forces.

In line with base security operations was an elaborate barrier plan, put into practice by the engineers of company A, 127th Engineers laying mine-fields, selecting bridges and road craters to be blown, and assigning special aerial demolition teams to raiding parties.

Two special night helicopter operations were conducted with one company from each of the two Infantry battalions being airlifted to a landing zone three kilometers from the objective, from which they launched hit and run attacks, returning to the waiting helicopters for transportation back to their bases of operation.

Much progress was made during the Hawk Arrow operation. Although conducted with the usual speed peculiar to air assault operations, the tempo was such as to permit implementation of new methods and techniques while at the same time providing sufficient time to evaluate the progress being made.

necessary to construct a nine room school at Klamath, Calif. to replace the school lost during the flood. Another school, located at Orleans, was able to start classes in temporary quarters with the delivery, by Caribou, of the necessary school desks and supplies.

On one occasion, the unit was called upon to perform a mercy mission. A Fort Lewis soldier, seriously injured in a truck accident at Bandon, Ore., was in desperate need of the services of a neurosurgeon. Two hours after receipt of the mission, the soldier was picked up at Bandon and flown to a major hospital at Eugene, Ore., a distance of 250 miles.

The maintenance for the task force was provided by the 17th Aviation Company's maintenance platoon under the command of CWO Hubert Crowe, augmented by personnel from the 170th Maintenance Battalion. The majority of the maintenance was performed at night in order for the aircraft to be available during the valuable daylight hours. The maintenance crews performed their jobs outdoors with the aid of flood lights and in weather ranging from freezing rain to dense fog.

Parachute riggers were provided from Fort Bragg, N. C. They performed the job of rigging the various loads and assisted in lashing them in the aircraft. Among other jobs, they rigged approximately 20 pallets, consisting of food, clothing, fuel oil, and medical supplies to be delivered to the isolated areas.

The Game Wardens of the State of California, and local law enforcement officers, rendered an invaluable service by keeping the operations section constantly abreast of current weather conditions throughout the disaster area.

377th Battery A Fetes Maj. With Farewell Fun

The officers and ladies of Battery A, 3rd Battalion, 377th Artillery, held a farewell party for Maj. David L. Carson, the former battery executive officer who is going to battalion headquarters as S-3. The January 29th party began with a social hour at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

During the social hour each officer was presented with a humorous award which pointed out a feat performed or a characteristic shown by that officer during the past months.

Capt. John T. Bradish, the new executive officer of Battery A, read a letter of appreciation to the wives for their distaff performance above and beyond the call of duty," and each wife was also presented with a miniature Air Assault badge, presented as the Air Assault Medal of Courage.

A surprise poem from the wives, depicting their lives during Air Assault II, was read to the officers by Capt. Bradish.

Following the social hour the officers and their wives adjourned to the Custer Terrace Officers' Club for the buffet dinner.

Lt. Col. Neon A. Mahone Jr., battalion commander, and Mrs. Mahone were special guests during the social hour.

11th Meeting Has Valentine Theme

Ladies of the 11th Aviation Company (General Support) held their February coffee at the home of Mrs. Alden G. Hannum. Hostesses with Mrs. Hannum were Mrs. Gerald Burns and Mrs. Robert Nelson. The table was gaily decorated with a centerpiece of red and white carnations carrying out the St. Valentines Day theme.

After coffee and refreshments were served, Mrs. Paul E. Carpenter, wife of the commanding officer, presided over the business meeting and plans were discussed for the 11th Aviation Group spring fashion show and luncheon. Mrs. Richard Cox was appointed coordinater and Mrs. John Todd in charge of reservations. Others volunteered for various committees.

Many newcomers were welcomed and introduced as Mrs. John B. Clayton, Mrs. Kenneth R. Jones, Mrs. George Knight, Mrs. Stanley Minkinow, Mrs. James S. Neal and Mrs. Jackson C. Stevens.

226th Ladies Plan To Aid the Needy

Ladies of Company B, 226th Aerial Surveillance and Escort Battalion, 11th Air Assault Division, held this months coffee at the home of Mrs. William Page on February 5, 1965.

Assisting Mrs. Page with the morning affair was Mrs. Lawrence Minor. It was decided by the ladies to assist a needy family by turning over the cash proceeds received from the company bridge activities to them.

Following the business portion of the meeting coffee and a delightful variety of snacks was served.

It's Pot-Luck At 26th Party

The officers and ladies of Battery E, 26th Artillery held a party Saturday evening, January 30, 1965, with a pot-luck supper in the home of Capt. and Mrs. Delmer M. McConnell at Fort Benning.

During the evening Maj. Benjamin F. Harden, Battery E commander, welcomed the new arrivals, Capt. and Mrs. James L. Merchant and WO and Mrs. Donald Parenti, to the unit.

Maj. Harden also presented an engraved silver trap to Capt. and Mrs. Robert D. Franklin who are leaving the Army.

229th Wives Meet At Morning Coffee

Wives of the 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion met in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers Club for a coffee on Friday, Feb. 5.

Hostesses for the morning were wives from Company C under the direction of Mrs. Willard Bennett, wife of the company commander. The hostesses chose a Valentine theme. As each wife arrived, she was presented with a name tag which was a miniature valentine. The centerpiece was a lovely arrangement of white mums and red velvet hearts. Mrs. Earl Buchan and Mrs. James Feck were asked to pour.

Mrs. L. B. Killingsworth, a local make-up consultant, gave a demonstration on proper skin care and make-up application.

Valentine Photos Bring Pennies To March of Dimes

The Staff at Service Club 3, in the Harmony Church area are sponsoring a "Valentine Photo Contest", Sunday February 14 at 8:00 p.m. and all proceeds will be contributed to the March of Dimes.

To vote for the photo of your choice each voter will contribute one cent. The photo with the most cents will be judged the winner. All the money contributed will be turned over to the March of Dimes. Service Club 3 is located in building 4410.

Colorful Red Carnations Decorate 227th's Meet

The ladies of the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion were entertained by the wives of Company A at a coffee on January 28, held at the Custer Terrace Officers' Club.

Lt. Col. Jack Cranford, battalion commander, presented an informative talk on the organization of the division, and future plans directly involving the 227th.

New wives who have recently joined the battalion, were welcomed by Mrs. Jack Cranford, wife of the battalion commander. Among those welcomed were Mrs. Donald Spencer, Mrs. Charles Moore, Mrs. Charles Pugh, Mrs. LaRondal Measles, Mrs. James Tilmon, Mrs. Kent Ellis, Mrs. John Honaker, Mrs. David Cunningham, and Mrs. Robert Matlick.

Red carnations, the January Flower, were used throughout the room in the form of nametags, nosegays for each table, and a lovely floral arrangement which centered the headtable.

Artillery Group Fete Promotion

Maj. and Mrs. David L. Carson entertained the officers and ladies of Battery A, 3rd Battalion, 377th Artillery, the evening of January 8th in recognition of Maj. Carson's recent promotion. The party began with a social hour at the Carson's home and was continued by dinner at the Custer Terrace Officers' Club. Lt. Col. Nelson A Mahone Jr., battalion commander, and Mrs. Mahone were special guests.

Engineers Mark Reactivation Date

This month marked the second year of reactivation for the 11th Air Assault Division's 127th Engineer Battalion. Since its original inception Nov. 1, 1942, the 127th has distinguished itself in war and peace.

The colors of the battalion carry World War II campaign streamers for New Guinea, Luzon, and Leyte. World War II honors also include the Meritorious Unit Streamer (Pacific Theater) and the Philippine Presidential Unit Streamer for the same area.

Korean action saw Company A of the 127th in combat along side the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team. In 1952, the 127th became the first unit in the 11th Airborne Division authorized to wear a distinctive patch as a result of the efforts of Lt. Col. Harold E. Beaty, then the battalion commander. Thus was born the distinctive Beaver Patch which has become familiar to all in the 11th Air Assault Division.

Before its deactivation at Munich, Germany in July, 1956, the 127th Engineers found 'homes' in such places as Camp Mackall, N.C., Camp Polk, La., New Guinea, Luzon, Leyte, Okinawa, Japah, Fort Campbell, Ky., and Munich, Germany.

Company A, 127th Engineers, was reactivated in February of 1963 at Fort Bragg, N.C. This first air assault engineer company was organized, equipped and moved to Fort Benning and the 11th Air Assault Division. The organization was expanded to the 127th Engineer Battalion with the activation of Headquarters and Headquarters Company on July 18, 1963. The activation ceremony featured the presentation of the battalion colors to Lt. Col. Robert J. Malley by the division Commanding General, Maj. Gen. (then Brig. Gen.) Harry W. O. Kinnard.

Testing of experimental equipment and evaluation for adoption in the engineer unit occupied much of the 'Beavers' time during the early months of its activation. Lightweight equipment which could be transported internally or slung underneath organic division aircraft was tested during this period. The TD-340 dozer and the 3414 tractor were items which made the grade and were adapted for use. Techniques of sling loading were developed for all sizes of equipment — from the squad 'mule' to the ten ton road grader. Another development was the 'Hasty Helipad,' a technique of clearing wooded areas to facilitate the landing of helicopters.

A big year for the 127th was 1964. The battalion grew to full strength that year with the addition of Company's B and C. More items of test equipment were received in the early months for test and evaluation. Among these were the Ballastable Earthmoving Sectionalized Tractor (BEST) equipment which could be broken down into individual loads that could be sling loaded by the CH-47 Chinook. In their search for heavy equipment the Beavers turned to the Marines. Tests are still being conducted with Marine Corps equipment. The Anthony Crane, a 20,700 pound sectionalized crane which can lift 3000 pounds with its 23 foot boom was tested and approved. Also found to be valuable was the Marine Corps sectionalized front-end loader. A late addition was the Marines MRS100 Tractor (Rubber Tired).

Commercial manufacturers have also aided the 127th in its search for light equipment. The Homelite light - weight chain saw and the Caterpillar 112 Sectionalized Grader - Scraper were developed for use by the 'Beavers.'

With all its experimental equipment the 127th has become the center of attention for many dignitaries, among them Lt. Gen. Walter K. Wilson Jr., Chief of Engineers, who paid a visit to the 127th in April, 1964.

Through the winter and summer months in 1963-64 the battalion continued with brigade and larger unit tests. Such names as HAWK ASSAULT, HAWK STAR, BEAVER I, and HAWK FLASH all saw the 127th Engineers in action. Tasks such as aerial minelaying, obstacle construction, airfield maintenance along with infantry combat roles gave the line company platoons an opportunity to sharpen up for the divisions Fall exercise.

With these exercises completed in late August, the battalion next looked to Exercise AIR ASSAULT II. The engineers found themselves in many and varied support roles for the division. The principle mission involved runway contruction in nearly every area of North and South Carolina. There were airstrips prepared of compacted earth; others were covered with a membrane surface consisting of a vinylite plastic material over the entire runway.

During tactical phases, the line companies were performing engineer tasks for the brigades, always on call for special missions from the battalion commander. Company C was recalled to the rear area for the mission of covering one of the base airstrips with pierced steel planking, as rains threatened to make the strip inoperable. Working around the clock, in rain and mud, the job was completed in less than 24 hours. Not to be outdone, the Bravo Beavers were called upon to build Strip 11 Foxtrot, a forward airstrip for re-supply. Three hours and 24 minutes later the job was done and the first CV-2 Caribou landed on the pioneer airstrip. In typical engineer fashion, they were ordered to secure the strip, and subsequently fought off an aggressor tank company.

The large thirst for potable water for the division was quenched by the battalion S-4, Capt. Frank W. Barr with his mule mounted water purification units. When needed, these units could displace and move to a new location by organic aircraft and be operational again in less than two hours —another first for the battalion.

Elements of the 127th were early to arrive and late in leaving the AIR ASSAULT II maneuver area. Several units were left behand to repair damaged property. Trees which had been cleared were cut to usable lengths, fences, gates and roads were repaired. With their job done the last of the 127th Engineers returned to Fort Benning in time for the Thanksgiving holiday.

The battalion motto, 'That Others May Follow' is reflected in the many deeds of the 127th. They have lead the way in topping goals in recent Community Fund and United Givers Fund Drives and topped their goal in the recent Red Cross Blood Donor Drive. Taking on all comers, the 127th took top honors in the 1964 Post Christmas Display Contest.

Being the first Air Assault Engineer Battalion in the history of the Corps of Engineers has been a unique experience for the 127th. Reflecting the motto of the Engineers, 'Essayons' (Let Us Try), the men of the 127th Engineer Battalion have stepped into the future and have established the engineer's role in the air assault concept.

Basketball Highlights

Off The Backboard

By Lt. Joe Mottola

The proverbial "Pot of Gold" at the end of the rainbow for battalion basketball teams in the 11th Air Assault Division is the Division Tournament which will start on the 25th of February. The top two teams in each of the four leagues will compete in a double elimination tournament to determine a division champion.

Only in the Iroquois league do we find a team which has just about locked up a slot and that's the only undefeated team remaining out of the 28 original teams. We're speaking of course of Lt. Col. James H. Nix's 511th Infantry "FALCONS" with a 9-0 record. The second spot seems to be a toss-up between the 11th Medical Battalion and the 188th Infantry.

The possibilities in the Mohawk League are even greater as four teams vie for the two select positions. The 81st Artillery "CHARGE SEVENS" have one loss; the 167th Infantry "RAKKASANS" have two while the 127th Engineer "BEAVERS" and the Headquarters Special Troops "RAIDERS" have each dropped 3 games. However each of the four teams have games remaining with each other so league standings could conceivably change from day to day.

The Caribou League has the 37th Transport Battalion with one loss while the 38th Infantry "MARNE MEN" and the 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion have two losses apiece. The 15th Artillery "SHOOTERS" could come on with a strong finish and will have to be watched.

The Chinook league is led by the "TOTEMS" of the 23rd Infantry followed by the "CANNONEERS" of the 38th Artillery and the "KANIENGAHAGAS" of the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry. The 170th "WRENCH BENDERS" and the 511th Signal Battalion "SIGNALEERS" could have a lot to say about who'll go on to tournament play in this league.

This past week saw leading teams winning in their accustomed fashion with the exception of the Second place team in the Iroquois league, the 188th "EAGLES" who were upset by the rapidly improving 17th Cavalry Squadron. The "CAVALIERS" played heads up, hustling ball to drop the "EAGLES" into a tie for second with the 11th Medical Battalion.

This week will see some key games which could really shake up league standings. On the 15th, Headquarters Special Troops "RAIDERS" will meet the 81st Artillery "CHARGE SEVENS". On the same night at Kelley Hill, the 23rd Infantry "TOTEMS" will meet the 511th "SIGNALEERS". In their first meeting, the "TOTEMS" won against the 44th Transport Battalion "CHOPPERS" who have recently been playing the role of "Spoilers" in the Mohawk league.

Wednesday finds the 81th Artillery back in action against the 44th Transport Battalion "CHOPPERS" who have recently been playing the role of "Spoilers" in the Mohawk league.

Top notch games on tap for Thursday include the 611th AM&S team against the 37th "CARIBOUS" as well as the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry "MARNE MEN" against the 226th "CLAWHAMMERS".

ENDS CAREER . . . MSgt. Michael A. Kukler, who has served as 11th Air Assault Division Information Supervisor since the division's organization, ends his 20-year career as an Army 'news hound' when he retires from active duty this month.

11th's 'Nose for News' Ends 20 Year Career

The Information Supervisor for the 11th Air Assault Division who served with the 11th Airborne Division, and guarded Gen. Douglas MacArthur during World War II, MSgt. Michael A. Kukler, will retire from the Army February 28, 1965.

MSgt. Kukler enlisted in the Army in August 1942 and volunteered for airborne duty. He was sent to Indiantown Gap, Pa., for his basic training. After completing basic he was sent to Fort Benning, Ga. He was graduated from the Parachute School at Fort Benning in February 1943 and selected as a Jump School Instructor.

Later he was assigned to the 11th Airborne Division in the Philippine Islands. The highlight of his career was when he was selected as a member of the honor guard for Gen. Douglas MacArthur. MSgt. Kukler guarded the general in the Philippines, on Okinawa and accompanied him to Atsugi, Japan. In addition he has the distinction of being one of the first American troops to enter Japan prior to the Japanese surrender.

In February 1946 he was honorably discharged from the Army as a Staff Sergeant. He was employed with the Electro Metalurgical Works in Niagara Falls, N. Y., in 1947, and 1948. Here he wrote stories for the plant magazine and the Niagara Falls Gazette.

MSgt. Kukler reenlisted in the Army in July 1948 and was sent to the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N. C. For a time he worked as a platoon sergeant and Information NCO. Later he was assigned as Information Supervisor for the 82nd. He worked in this capacity until he was sent to Germany in March 1956.

In Germany he worked as Information Supervisor for the Bremerhaven Port of Embarkation until February 1959. His next assignment was as Information Supervisor of the 101st Airborne Division and Fort Campbell, Ky. He was sent to Oak Ridge, Tenn., in April 1961 and worked as a Recruiting and Publicity Sergeant. His next assignment was as Information NCO for the Third US Army Missile Command at Fort Bragg, N. C., in July 1962.

When the 11th Air Asssault Division was activated at Fort Benning, Ga., in February 1963 he was assigned as Information Supervisor. MSgt. Kukler has worked in this capacity until his retirement. He has applied for work with the United States Civil Service Commission as a newswriter.

Artillery Paratroopers Make Second Night Drop

Battery B (Abn), 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery the only airborne artillery unit at Fort Benning, continued its parachute proficiency training this past week with a Monday night drop on Lee Field.

Jumping from C-130 aircraft with the Bravo cannoneers were the other members of the 11th Air Asault Division airborn Task Force; the 1st Battalion, 187th Airborne Infantry and Company A of the 127th Engineers.

Following parachute issue at 5:30 p.m. the men of Battery B boarded C-130's of the United States Air Force Tactical Air Command that would deliver them to the drop zone.

The green light came at 7:00 p.m. and the troopers of Battery B exited the aircraft in sticks of seven as the four engined C-130 Hercules aircraft made miltiple passes over the drop zone.

This was the second night-time training jump for the men of Battery B (Abn), 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery.

23rd Infantrymen Cited For Competition Scores

A number of men of the 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry recently received awards for scoring high in military competitions. Lt. Col. Harold G. Moore, battalion commander, and Col. Thomas W. Brown, commanding officer of 3rd Brigade, presented certificates and cigarette lighters to the deserving members of the unit.

Receiving awards for attaining a perfect score of 500 points on the physical combat proficiency test were SSgt. Robert L. Brown, PFC Jessie L. Hill, PFC Kelly Thomas and PFC Edward Faultry.

In the weapons competition, PFC Robert M. Hill fired a high score of 389 with the .45 caliber pistol, and Sgt. Thomas C. Lopez, PFC Leo C. Chase and PSgt. Larry M. Gilbreath scored 79 with the M - 14 rifle. Sp4 Alphonso Bradley was recipient of a certificate and cigarette lighter for attaining 179 points with the M-60 machine gun, while SP4 Joseph J. Ognibene accepted an award for firing 200 in the 81MM Mortar competition.

Capt. Walter D. Everhart and Capt. Leigh R. Sprowls, commanding officers of Companies A and D respectively, shared the Battalion Disciplinary plaque for the month of November.

42nd Artilleryman Selected for OCS

Sgt. Francis G. Gordon, a member of the 2nd Battalion (LJ), 42nd Artillery, has departed this station for Fort Sill, Okla. where he will attend Artillery Officer Candidate School.

A career soldier who entered the Army in 1958, Sgt. Gordon is the first member of the 42nd Artillery to be selected for OCS. He has served that organization as a Chief of Survey Party since March 1964.

Sgt. Gordon is married and has three children. His family will reside in Lawton, Okla. while he is attending OCS.

Artillery Promotes

Four members of the 2nd Battalion (Little John), 42nd Artillery have been promoted in informal ceremonies here. They are SSgt. Roy H. Gunn and SP4's James Anderson, James F. Kerr and Robert J. McNamara.

11th Activation Day

II. He was G-3 of the Seventh US Army in Europe before becoming a Sky Soldier. CWO Keith R. Borck, from the 10th Air Transport Brigade, the first man to receive the Distinguished Service Cross for his extraordinary heroism in Vietnam, was honored in April 1964.

Also in April 1964 the ladies from the division collected more than 3,000 pounds of clothing for the quake stricken people of Alaska. A CV-2 CARIBOU from the 37th Air Transport Battalion, flew the clothing to Alaska. In May 1964 HAWK ASSAULT II held at Fort Stewart. The free - play problem pitted the 1st Air Assault Brigade commanded by Col. George S. Beatty, against a live aggressor from the 2nd Infantry Division. More than 9,000 men and 275 aircraft were used in the problem.

In July 1964 the division held Unit Day activities on Dickman Field. The celebration was held to honor the Sky Soldiers on becoming a full-scale division. Brig. Gen. Richard T. Knowles, assistant division commander was promoted to his one-star rank in July 1964. Gen. Knowles, an original Sky Soldier, was largely responsible in helping Gen. Kinnard implement the air mobile concept.

Training continued as usual and in August 1964 HAWK FLASH I was held. This was the first of three brigade size exercises in preparation for the big one AIR ASSAULT II. This exercise involved more than 32,000 men on about 4.5 million acres of privately owned land in 14 counties of North and South Carolina.

The 11th was honored in November 1964 when Gen. Kinnard accepted the Army Aviation Unit of the Year trophy in Washington, D. C. In December 1964 more than 725 Sky Soldiers rolled up their sleeves and contributed their blood. The year ended with seven CV-2 CARIBOU aircraft from the 37th Air Transport Battalion, flying on mercy missions to aid the flood stricken people of California.

The new year, 1965 found the Sky Soldiers still aiding the flood stricken Californians. Air mobility training continued in and near Fort Benning. Also a new twist was added when Lt. Col. Benjamin S. Silver landed the first CH-47 CHINOOK on Victory Pond to demonstrate the aircrafts floating capabilities.

During February 1965 the Sky Soldiers are currently engaged in brigade training exercises in HAWK ARROW I, II, and III. The training is being held near Buena Vista, Ga., and Gen. Knowles is the test director.

No huge celebrations are being planned to celebrate the second anniversary this February 15, but the past two years speaks for itself.

Brigade Aviators Train in Mountains

The aviation section of the 2nd Brigade Headquarters and Headquarters Company recently participated in mountain training at Fort McClellan, Ala.

This section, headed by Maj. William J. Meehan, took off for this training Monday morning and returned Wednesday afternoon. During this period of time, the pilots had a chance to prove their ability to maneuver their aircraft in and around rugged mountains and hills in both daylight and darkness. Next the pilots were put through a series of tests to determine how well they could land "choppers" on terrain similiar to that in Viet Nam.

2nd Brigade Hits Aggressor Band In 1st '65 Action

The 2nd Brigade received its first mission since the Air Assault II maneuver in the Carolinas and moved to the field near Buena Vista, Ga., last week.

Early Tuesday morning the 2nd Brigade commanded by Col. William R. Lynch moved to their proposed location and established a CP.

Before many tents were raised the aggressors launched one of many attacks during this problem on the CP. A huge contingent of men from the Headquarters Company returned their fire and successfully drove them back.

Later on that same night a band of Redland guerrillas crept behind the Brigade lines only to fall into the hands of several guards inside the CP.

More harassment from the aggressors was encountered during the following days, but each time the "enemy" was repelled.

Friday morning the Brigade headquarters and Headquarters Company picked up its position and moved back to Fort Benning.

COMRADE COMMENDED . . . Lt. Col. Joseph E. Jenkins (right) former G-4 (Logistics) of the 11th Air Assault Division receives the congratulations of his wartime comrade, Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, division commander. The colonel was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for his service as division G-4 since the division's activation. Mrs. Jenkins (center) listens as the two officers recount their exploits while they served together in the 101st Airborne Division during World War II.

228th Chinook Helicopters Have Played a Vital Role In NASA Efforts Toward Exploration of the Moon

Two helicopters of the 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion made aviation history recently after their successful aerial delivery of components of the National Aeronautic and Space Administration's Apollo vehicle which will, as part of the Apollo manned lunar landing program, place man on the moon sometimes in the 70's.

Completion of feasibility tests and devliery of the first two objects completed another "First" in the long list of accomplishments made by elements of the famous "Sky Soldier" Division of Fort Benning Ga. The mission, carried out by the two CH-47A "Chinook" helicopters of Company C, 228th American Aviation plant at Tulsa, Okla., with the requirement to move the first Lunar Excursion Module (LEM) Adapter from the Tulsa plant to the future moon launch center at Cape Kennedy, Fla.

The adapter, a cylindrical shaped object measuring 24' across the base and tapering to 15' at the top, has an overall height of 50', and weighs 4700 pounds. It's function is to serve as a protective fairing or "garage" to cover the Lunar Landing Vehicle section of the Apollo Missile on its fight from the time it is lauched from the earth until it enters the Lunar orbit.

Because of close tolerance requirements in the fitting of the adapter onto the other components making up the complete rocket system, its necessary to find a means of transporting the adapter device completely assembled, over the long distance from the manufacturer to the Cape with a minimum of cost and risk of damage. After preliminary studies hauling by helicopter would be the best method of transporting the critical and costly object. Further studies determined that the CH-47A, because of its multi-engine feature, its long range, and its weight carrying capability, was the best choice of helicopters available to do the mission. The requirements were then forwarded through the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) to the Department of the Army; where the Chief of Staff agreed to furnish Army resources for the accomplishment of this effort of primary National importance to the space program.

The requirement for selecting a unit to accomplish the mission was passed down through Continental Army Command to the Third US Army, and then to the 11th Air Assault Division. The 11th Division and it's 228th were selected primarily because of their assignment on CH-47A helicopters and the fact that Company C of the 228th had already done extenstive testing with long range ferry tanks, and in October 1964 had successfully completed a long range flight endurance test of six hours and forty minutes duration, covering a distnce of 812 nautical miles, the longest flight of its kind yet conducted in the CH-47A. Long range flight capability was a primary requirement for the mission due to the fact that distances between refueling and overnight stops were beyond the normal range capability of the standard CH-47A.

Upon receipt of the mission of November 19, company liaison officers were immediately dispatched to Cape Kennedy to coordinate the arrival of the Adapter there, and also to Atlanta Army Depot where the two helicopters to be used were outfitted with long range ferry tanks. On November 29th, within ten days after receipt of the mission at battalion headquarters, the two completely outfitted Chinooks touched down at the North American Plant at Tulsa, Okla. to begin testing that would lead to the formulation and adoption of procedures to be followed in all future deliveries of the Adapters through the next four years.

To date, two LEM adapters have been manufactured and moved to their designated assembly areas for link up with the remainder of the total space vehicle.

The first was delivered on December 29th to the Kennedy Space Center at Cape Kennedy, Fla. and the second delivered on January 19th to the Marshall Space Flight Center at Huntsville, Ala.

Although final formulation and acceptance of detailed plans and procedures is being made at this time, it is anticipated as a result of the first highly successful missions for the National Aeronautics and Space administration, that the CH-47A helicopter will be the standard delivery vehicle for all future LEM Adapter movements.

GAIN CITATIONS . . . Capt. William R. Chritton (left), and Capt. Donald J. Piotrowski, of the 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion, were recently cited at a battalion review. Capt. Chritton was awarded the 6th and 7th Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal, while Capt. Piotrowski gained the Army Commendation.

Bataan Defender Ends Army Duty

SP5 Santiago S. Pabalate, 187th Transport Airplane Company, retires on March 1, 1965, after more than twenty years in the United States Army.

SP5 Pabalate joined the Philippine Scouts in 1938, and was on duty in the last offensive positions when Bataan was surrounded to the Imperial Japanese Army. Herded together with other allied prisoners, SP5 Pabalate began the now infamous Death March. After two and one half days on the march, under cover of darkness, SP5 Pabalate and two other comrades were able to escape the long line, evade their captors, and disappear into the dense jungle. Moving up into the central mountainous jungle, he and other escapees formed guerrilla bands that struck and harassed the Japanese Army for two and a half years, until the liberation of the Islands.

Artillery Battery Greets New CO

Last week Battery B, 1st Battalion, 15th Artillery, had a change of command. Capt. Jack M. McKnight took over as battery commander from Capt. Donald G. Harmon.

Capt. McKnight hails from Moncks Corner, S.C. He enlisted in the Army in 1949 and completed his basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C. During the Korean Conflict he served with Battery A, 38th Artillery, 2nd Infantry Division and was awarded the Bronze Star and the Purple Heart during the period of 1950 to 1951.

Capt. McKnight received his commission after completing Artillery OCS at Fort Sill, Okla.

Farewell Review Scheduled Today for Brig. Gen. Norton

More than 1,000 officers and enlisted men will take part in The Student Brigade's farewell review for Brig. Gen. John Norton today at Alvin C. York Field.

The ceremony, to honor Gen. Norton who is leaving for an assignment in Viet Nam early in March, will begin at 5:29 p.m. The public is invited.

Organized by Col. Donald T. Kellett, commanding officer, TSB, the review will open with a formation of troops and will include an inspection by Gen. Norton, who will troop-the-line in a jeep, a pass in review, an 11-gun salute and a fly-by conducted by the 11th Air Assault Div.

Participating in the formation will be personnel from Hq. & Hq. Co., the 15th Finance Disbursing Section, the 2nd, 4th, and 5th Student Bns. and a massed band from The Infantry Center, the 2nd Inf. Div., and the 11th Air Assault Div., under the direction of CWO William J. James.

After trooping - the - line, Gen. Norton will make an address before the units pass in review. Following the review, a retreat ceremony and an 11-gun salute will take place. Participating in the salute will be Battery C, 17th Artillery, 2nd Inf. Div.

Gen. Norton began his military career in 1936 and entered the United States Military Academy in 1937. After receiving his commission in 1941, he served with the 12th Inf. Regt., 4th Inf. Div., and the 505th Parachute Inf. Regt., 82nd Airborne Div. at Fort Bragg, and in North Africa during World War II.

In 1948 he served in Washington, D. C., with the Strategic Plans Group of the General Staff and then with the Office of the Chief of Staff, U. S. Army. From 1950 to 1953 he was military assistant and executive officer to the Secretary of the Army.

After attending the Armed Forces Staff College in 1953, he served in Europe before returning to the United States in 1955. He was appointed by the President to serve as Military Aide to Prince Philip during the visit of the royal family to Washington in 1957.

Upon graduation from the National War College in 1959

BRIG. GEN. JOHN NORTON

New Titles, Designs Effective September 1

BY SGT. MAJ. AL SPRATLEY

Department of Army Wednesday released a revised enlisted grade insignia and title structure aimed at putting an end to the confusion which has been prevalent since early 1958, when new structures were announced for all the services.

Most significant in the announcement sent to the field is the separation of E-9s into two categories; establishment of a new insignia and title of "lance corporal" for E-3s; present insignia of private first class and title to be bestowed on E-2s.

All NCO's not promoted subsequent to June 1, 1958 will remove their present chevrons and adopt the new, authorized insignia and title.

Only E-8s, E-4s and E-1s, and those promoted since June 1, 1958 escape the sweeping revisions, which are to be effective September 1.

Sgts-Major Restricted

In the top enlisted grade, the title of "sergeant major" will be reserved for those heading flag bearing units, to differentiate from those in that grade solely because of administrative or MOS assignment.

This action corrects an inequity which has long been recognized by the senior sergeants themselves and parallels a segment of the grade and insigna structure proposed by a delegation of Fort Benning sergeants major to the AUSA annual meeting last November.

There are only minor differences between the new structure announced Wednesday and that which as advanced in 1958. At that time an implementation date was established and later deferred in the hope that normal attrition would make it unnecessary for a wholesale changeover.

Even though not implemented at this time, the structure as adopted by the Army June 1, 1958, was put into effect for all NCO's promoted subsequent to that date.

Some Lose Rocker

As a result, sergeants first class (E-6) were promoted to (new structure) sergeant first class (E-7) without changing insignia. The same thing applied to promotions from E-5 to E-6 and from E-7 to E-8.

This dual system caused the confusion which DA is now taking steps to eliminate. No longer will it be pos-

Gen. Harris Retirement Set for Post

Plans neared completion this week for the gigantic retirement review to be held here, Saturday, Feb. 27, for General Hugh P. Harris, presently commander of the U. S. Continental Army Command (CONARC).

Brig. Gen. John Norton assistant commandant of The Infantry School has been announced as commander of troops.

Scheduled to participate are five brigades (20 battalions) for a total in excess of 10,000 troops; two elements of mounted troops with Infantry, armor and artillery equipment, massed colors, honor guard, salute battery, band and a flyover to consist of some 200 aircraft.

Forty sets of bleachers to accomodate approximately 5,000 spectators will be in place for the review along with 450 chairs for special invited guests.

Gen. Harris, commander of Fort Benning and commandant of The Infantry School from April 19, 1960 to July 31, 1961, will be decorated with the Distinguished Service Medal during the ceremony.

Maj. Gen. Jablonsky Guest Speaker

Brauer Selected as Honor Graduate; 151 Men Receive Lieutenant's Bars

One hundred fifty-one newly commissioned second lieutenants were encouraged by Maj. Gen Harvey J. Jablonsky, commanding general of the 1st Armored Division, Fort Hood, Tex., and guest speaker at Monday's Officer Candidate School graduation ceremony, to continue to improve themselves.

Speaking to the graduating class of OC 2-65, the second OCS class to graduate this year, and the 588th to graduate since officer candidate training began at Fort Benning in 1941, Gen. Jablonsky told the officers that they should broaden their range of specialties.

"By broadening ones specialties, you will be more valuable to your unit, and to the Army," the general said. "Get qualified in as many fields as physically possible. This will widen the challenge of future assignments."

Second Lt. Vaughan D. Brauer was selected as honor graduate and received an engraved plaque, silver bowl, and a minature Infantryman statue in recognition of his outstanding work.

The general told the newly commissioned officers that with the achievement of their new rank, new responsibilities would also be added to their way of life.

"You as officers will be called upon to make many decisions, and as team leaders and individuals, you should possess the knowledge to make the right decisions."

He also told the graduating class that as leaders they would be given a group of individuals and would have to weld them into a team, working as one.

"The most important thing is to keep them informed," Gen. Jablonsky added.

"As their leader, the men will look to you for guidance. You must be there to help them, 24 hours a day.

"Our future depends on you and others like you," the general said.

Gen Jablonsky added that getting the job done is the most important thing.

"Giving an order is only 10 per cent of the job. The other 90 per cent is supervision and getting the job done."

Kickoff Rally Scheduled For Joint Crusade Drive

Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges will be principal speaker at a kickoff rally at 10 a.m. Feb. 24 in Theater No. 1 for Fort Benning's annual Joint Crusade fund drive.

Gen. Heintges will address team leaders, campaign captains, group chiefs and project officers from throughout the post.

Col. Earl F. Holton, deputy post commander and chairman of the drive, will preside over the rally.

Also participating will be Mrs. Sally Baron, representative of the National Health Agencies, and Bee H. Brown, state director for the Federal Service Joint Crusade.

The drive will run through April 7, including two paydays.

The two missions of the campaign have been outlined as 100 per cent participation,

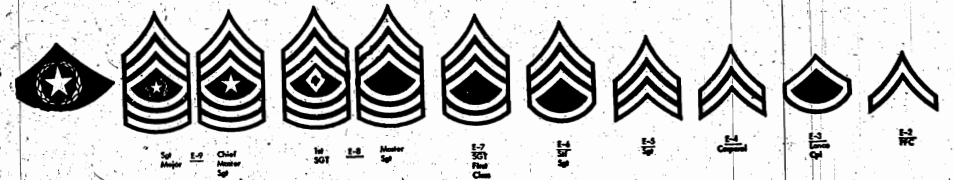
Revised Insignia and Grade Titles Effective in September



Ranks

sible for two NCO's wearing identical insignia and addressed by the same title, to be of different pay grades.

New Insignia

Here is the breakout expected to end the confusion:

E-9 — (a) NEW INSIGNIA (wreath around star) for sergeants major of color bearing units. TITLE, no change.

(b) NEW TITLE (chief master sergeant) for all other E-9's. INSIGNIA, no change.

E-8 — No change in title or insignia for master sergeants or first sergeants.

E-7—INSIGNIA (three up-two down) adopted June 1, 1958, only authorized. NCO's promoted prior to that date must remove shevrons and replace with authorized insignia. TITLE, sergeant first class.

E-6 — INSIGNIA (three up-one down) adopted June 1, 1958, only authorized. NCO's promoted prior to that date must remove chevrons and replace with authorized insignia. TITLE, staff sergeant.

E-5 — INSIGNIA (three stripes) adopted June 1, 1958, only authorized. NCO's promoted prior to that date must remove chevrons and replace with authorized insignia. TITLE, sergeant.

E-4 — No change. INSIGNIA and TITLE of corporal retained.

E-3 — NEW INSIGNIA, one stripe up and one rocker. NEW TITLE, lance corporal (replaces private first class).

E-2 — INSIGNIA and TITLE of private first class.

E-1 — No change.

Sps, 9 Eliminated

Specialist ratings in grades E-8 and E-8 are being eliminated since positions in those grades have never been authorized. All other specialists ratings remain the same.

Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges has directed a program be launched immediately to acquaint the public with these new insignia, titles and reasons for the change.

Gen Heintges said his primary objective in the program will be to forestall any misunderstanding by the public that the forthcoming loss of one stripe by some, and a change in their title, is a reduction in grade or for any reason other than to rectify the confusing situation which now exists.

Drive

and the giving of as generous gift as possible by every person on the post.

Contributors may designate their contributions to the organization or agency of their choice.

The joint drive involves two major agencies, both of which have several subordinate agencies.

The Federal Service Joint Crusade includes CARE, Radio Free Europe, the American-Korean Foundation, and Project HOPE.

The National Health Agencies inciuded are the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation, National Foundation March of Dimes. National Multiple Sclerosis Society, National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, and American Cancer Society.

The health agencies have three basic areas in which they combat disease. They provide research, service which includes therapy, rehabilitation, guidance and ruedical care, and public information program which seeks improvement through education.

The Federal Service Joint Crusade agencies are aimed at helping people help themselves.

Tots' Nursery And Milk Bar Are Moving

Increased parking facilities for the Main Post Commissary are being planned for through the removal of the milk bar and children's nursery located in Bldg. 1830.

Both these facilities will be shut down effective at the close of business tomorrow. The structure, along with buildings 1828 and 1829 will be demolished and the parking area expanded.

The milkbar will be moved to Bldg. 1206, adjacent to the Infantry Museum, and will reopen for business Thursday morning. The new location will provide complete drive-in service and allow personnel to do their shopping without being involved in commissary traffic.

The children's nursery that has been operating with the commissary will be combined with the Main Town Nursery, Bldgs 1075 and 1076 in the old hospital area.

Your Dental Health

Business Teeth

Are your business teeth as well cared for as your social teeth? Your social teeth are those teeth which show when you smile, laugh, or talk, and your business teeth are those teeth in the back part of the mouth which have the job of chewing your food.

Most of us see our social teeth quite often and give them enough care to keep them socially presentable. It would seem that a good many people adhere to an old adage "Out of Sight, Out of Mind" when it comes to caring for their business teeth.

Our social teeth function to slice or tear the food into portions suitable for further chewing by the business teeth, and are not designed to render foods acceptable to the digestive tract. The food is passed on to the business teeth which grind it into a form suitable for further digestion.

If these business teeth are badly decayed or broken down or missing, they cannot properly do the job they were intended for. In order to have a properly functioning digestive system, the food must be thoroughly chewed or ground and during this process properly moistened with saliva. This step is very important.

Sir William Osler (1849-1919), a noted British physician, who came to this country in 1884 and became very prominent in medical education, recognized the value of good dental health. Among his many writings we find this statement, "There is not one single thing in preventive medicine that equals in importance mouth hygiene and the preservation of the teeth."

Good dental health is available to all who will follow a few simple but important rules:

1. Brush your teeth properly after each time you eat.
2. Reduce the sweets eaten, especially the in-between-meal snacks.
3. Avail yourself of fluoride treatments for the reduction of tooth decay, and last but not least
4. Visit your dentist for regular dental care and instruction on how you can prevent dental disease.

The Judge Says . . .

There have been recent reports that certain life insurance agents have engaged in unethical practices in the sale of commercial life insurance to personnel on the Fort Benning Reservation. Among these agents are those who are designated "twisters".

The "twister" is the agent who employs misrepresentation or misleading or incomplete policy comparisons to influence policy holders to drop in force insurance and replace it with a new policy. His tactics include downgrading other insurance companies and discouraging you from talking with an agent of the company which issued your present policy.

If you are confronted with an agent who employs these tactics, demand an opportunity to investigate all his representations carefully. Then do investigate by seeking counsel from an agent of your present company or some impartial third party such as your Soldiers Advocate.

Also, you should be aware of the fact that it is generally to your disadvantage to substitute an in-force policy for a new one. Your present policy will usually have a lower premium than is required on a new policy because you have grown older since you took out the in-force policy and therefore have a higher premium rate. Also, you will suffer inevitable loss caused by the fact that you will have paid "acquisition costs" on two policies, although you will be owning only one policy.

The Surgeon Says

Measles Vaccinations

Measles, often called "Red" or the "10-Day" Measles, is one of the most infectious of all diseases of childhood, and spreads in epidemic waves in late winter and early spring.

In the United States, approximately four million children contract measles each year. While deaths from this disease are rare, its more frequent permanent crippling disabilities and the severity of the illness itself, are the features which cause great concern to parents and doctors alike.

Only in recent years has American medicine been able to provide an effective weapon to combat the disabilities produced by this disease, and in March 1963, the first "live virus" measles vaccine became available for general use. This vaccine has been found to give prompt and lasting immunity to those children who have not previously had the disease.

A limited amount of this "live virus" measles vaccine has recently become available for use on this Post. It is intended for children who are between the ages of nine months and 12 years, and who have neither had the disease nor have been vaccinated against it previously.

Eligible children may obtain this immunization at the Dependents' Immunization Clinic, Bldg. 323, Main Post. The clinic hours are 8-11 a.m., and 1-4 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday except holidays.

Space Research

Feb. 17, 1959, the United States launched a three-stage rocket from Cape Canaveral, Fla., successfully putting a 21½-pound satellite into orbit around the earth.

Scientists predicted at the time that the world's first weather satellite would probably orbit "forever."

None of us will be able to verify this prediction, but as the sixth anniverary of the Vanguard II launching nears, the tiny satellite is still making a complete circuit of the earth every two hours and six minutes.

The United States space program has achieved many successes since the Vanguard launching. The Telstar, Syncom and Relay communications satellites have relayed news and sporting events from Europe and Japan to American TV screens and radios.

Last year's Ranger 7 shot produced the first close-up photos of the moon. At this very moment the Mariner IV spacecraft is speeding toward Mars and is expected to pass within 5,400 miles of that planet by July 14.

Four U. S. astronauts have orbited the earth in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Project Mercury capsules. Plans for a two-man Gemini orbital flight this year have been announced by NASA as the forerunner of a manned moon shot.

Many people regard the achievement in space as something that doesn't affect them personally. They look at the U. S. space program only as a race to see which nation conquers space first. But, as members of the armed force, we know that the technological advances developed through space projects have been rapidly applied in many ways to the equipment, weapons and machinery we use in the defense of our country.

Other things learned through NASA's research programs are adopted to our daily lives to make them easier and more rewarding.

The U. S. space program is intended to use the facts and knowledge acquired in experimentation and practical application to the good of all mankind.

Being informed about what's going on in the space program gives everyone a chance to observe history in the making — history which will someday expand to include entirely new vistas of civilization. (AFPS)

Holiday Ahead

Fort Benning's military and civilian personnel are scheduled to have a holiday Monday, as the nation commemorates the birthday of its first president, George Washington.

Falling on Monday this year, the holiday stretches the normal weekend into three days, allowing more time for off-duty activities. Long holiday weekends are usually associated with a substantial increase in the number of traffic deaths, injuries, and vehicle damage. As is the normal case for long weekends, safety officials are encouraging people to be extra cautious, particularly motorists.

So far this calendar year, Fort Benning drivers have only a fair record. According to the USAIC Safety Director, there have been two traffic fatalities involving post drivers since 1965 began.

To keep the record from getting worse, the Safety Director urges all drivers to insure their own safety and that of others by driving DEFENSIVELY — driving safely themselves and making allowances for the unsafe acts of others.

The relatively few accidents that have occurred in recent holiday periods have involved, for the most part, recreational-type driving within a 50-mile-radius of Fort Benning, rather than on long trips. Most of these accidents occurred between 2200 and 0400 hours and were caused by one or more of the following factors: unsafe speed, use of intoxicants, or fatigue.

Avoid accidents during the holiday and throughout the year by exercising the three C's of Defensive Driving — CONCENTRATION, CONTROL, AND COURTESY.

Medical Wives' Club Holds 'International' Luncheon And Displays Spring Styles During Fashion Show

By Ruth V. Haas

More than 150 members and guests of the Medical Services Wives' Club met for a luncheon and Spring fashion show conducted with an International theme last week.

Hostesses were wives from the Departments of Medicine, Pediatrics and Dermatology, with Mrs. Edwin S. Sternberg as chairman.

Flags and dolls in native costumes of various countries decorated the tables in the Fountain Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess and highlighted the International theme. The dolls were made by Mrs. E. C. Johnson.

Mrs. John P. Canby, president, introduced Miss Jonni L. Walker, a fashion coordinator from Atlanta who presented a selection of spring styles. Miss Walker is a graduate of the Traphagen School of Fashion, New York, and has had extensive experience in all phases of fashion.

Miss Walker was assisted by the following ladies: Mrs. Mildred Yancy, Miss Carol Henderson, Mrs. Florine Bohanan, Mrs. Zelon Hunt, and Mrs. Jesse Allrid. All arrangements for the show were coordinated by Mrs. R. S. Buckius, Program Chairman.

Models included: Lt. Col. Mary P. Foley, Public Health Nurse, MAH, Mrs. Andrew G. Lefko, Mrs. Gary R. Joachim, Mrs. Chas R. Kesmodel, Mrs. David A. Maurer, Mrs. Leslie Arneson, Mrs. John M. Haas, Mrs. Chester T. Stafford, Mrs. Stanton P. Fischer, Mrs. Charles A. Dunn, and Lt. Col. Muriel Burchfield, Chief Nurse, MAH. Background music was provided by Mrs. Clinton L. Gould.

Mrs. Canby announced that the next luncheon will be Friday, March 12, at the Custer Terrace Officers' Open Mess when hostesses will be wives from the Department of Surgery.

Art Teacher for OWC Children Strives to Develop Creative Talent

By Dorothy Newman

The "limitless imagination" of children is being given a chance to develop through art classes conducted for children of OWC members.

Teen-age and childrens' art classes are taught by Mrs. George Geczy, an art education major at Penn State University who has taught classes for both adults and children.

"The most gratifying experience for anyone is to be able to create something by himself, and it is particularly rewarding for a child to discover this for himself at an early age.

"Children have limitless imagination and should be given every opportunity to express themselves. I hope to expose the children, in these classes, to a variety of art projects, and hence develop and nurture their inherent ability," she commented.

Students are split into two age groups for these sessions. The first group ranges from six to 10 years of age while the second group includes 11 to 17 year-olds. The younger group works with clay, papier-mache, tempera (water colors), collages and paper sculpture. The older group concentrates on oil painting, set designing, mobiles and toothpick sculpture.

Both groups are provided with models for still life and portrait work. On nice days, these youngsters may sketch outdoor in such areas as the post Hunt Club.

A new series of classes will begin in mid-March and will be conducted on Saturday mornings and afternoons. Parents interested in registering their children should contact Mrs. Geczy at 689-5594.

Practicing Their 'Art'

Protestant Women Discuss Korean Topic

The Infantry Center Protestant Women - of - the - Chapel will meet at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday at the Religious Education Center.

Mrs. R. T. Knowles will discuss "Korea, the Government and Christian Work", and Mrs. David Wilson, "Zambia, the New and Old." Mrs. W. M. Goad, Mrs. G. J. Dicarlo and Mrs. C. D. Hooks will cite quotations from outstanding national leaders.

Mrs. H. C. Lewis will sing "The Lord Is My Shepherd" by Albert Hay Malotte.

Hostesses will be Mrs. J. W. Cochran and Mrs. C. F. Konze.

Grade School Children Lead 'Pressured' Lives

The lives of modern day school children are "over organized" according to an elementary education expert who addressed 600 members of the post's Parent - Teacher Association recently.

Dr. Rodney Tillman, assistant superintendent in charge of elementary education in the Minneapolis Public Schools, spoke on "Elementary Education Today and Tomorrow."

He was on post to serve as consultant for a three - day Creativity Workshop for the staff and faculty of the Post Children's Schools.

He explained that the number of children placed on tranquilizers by family physicians is alarming proof of the great pressures on children.

"We must reduce the tremendous pressure on school children," he said. "I am often inclined to say, 'I'm glad I didn't have it as tough as my youngsters.'"

"A study is under way in New Jersey to determine what kind of pressures are leading to suicide among elementary school children," he said. "Our society has met all kinds of challenges and I am sure we can meet this one."

Dr. Tillman said that many of the most promising educational practices of today will in all probability become the common ones in the schools of tomorrow.

Among the promising practices of today, he told of listening devices to be used with record players and tape recorders, a long playing record that activates a TV set with both picture and sound and similar devices to increase the personal touch in teaching.

Through such mechanical aids, we can extend the individual contact time between teacher and child," he stated.

"There is increased attention to short cuts to learning," he said. "In the near future a child may come home from school and say, 'Pack my toothbrush, Mother, because tomorrow our class will go to Japan to study their history."

"If we can commute our top level business executives, we can do the same with our children," he added.

Dr. Tillman spoke of the value now and in the future of inservice teacher training such as the Creativity Workshop. He commended the PTA for supporting the program.

Col. Maurice C. Holden, presided at the meeting.

Mrs. Irving Scudder, superintendent of the Fort Benning Children's Schools, introduced the speaker.

Creativity Workshop Conference

The consultant for the Creativity Workshop of the post's PTA, Dr. Rodney Tillman (Fourth from L,) discusses the program with dependent school staff and faculty, including (L to R) Mrs. Barbara Weary, Mrs. Pearl Brakonecke, Dr. Joseph T. Conforti, Wayne Box and Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder. Dr. Tillman is the assistant superintendent of elementary schools in Minneapolis.

Wives Hear Talk On Buildings

Famous Georgia buildings and their history was the topic discussed recently at the monthly luncheon of CTC Officers' Wives Club.

Clayson Kyle, associate editor of the magazine section of the "Ledger - Enquerer", gave a lecture on the topic and showed color slides to demonstrate the architectural features of the buildings.

The ladies of the Provost Marshal section were sponsors for the luncheon. Mrs. Howard B. Wells welcomed and introduced the new arrivals and guests, Mrs. Allen R. Anderson and Mrs. Harry F. Boyle.

The tables were adorned with red and white Valentine decorations, including a floral centerpiece.

130 Persons Attend Tea Held by NCO Wives

Approximately 130 members and guests of the NCO Wives' Club attended an annual membership tea recently.

Guests included Mrs. John H. Chiles, Mrs. Harry W. O. Kinnard, Mrs. Robert M. Williams, president of the OWC, and WAC Maj. Nada Smatlick, coordinator of the Community Service Center.

A Valentine theme was used in decorations throughout the hall. Tea tables were centered with arrangements of red carnations, white chrysanthemums and larkspur, clustered about white "hearts."

New members welcomed to the club were Mrs. Rollin Van Gorder, Mrs. Arthur Purser and Mrs. George Snavely.

Chairman for the tea was Mrs. Paul Moorhead. Hostesses were Mrs. Patrick Downey, Mrs. Walter Smith, Mrs. Raymond Field and Mrs. Richard Cerrone.

Serving on the refreshment committee were Mrs. Flora Brewer, chairman, and Mrs. Henry Speech and Mrs. Emerich Baski. Background organ music was played by Tom Hipps.

The membership chairman, Mrs. Henry Rosiak, announced an open house breakfast at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday at the NCO Wives Club House, Bldg. 1401. There will be no charge for the breakfast.

Feature Movie Will Be Shown At Main Chapel

A feature length motion picture, "In His Steps," will be shown at 7 p.m. Sunday at The Infantry Center Chapel.

Based on the novel by Charles M. Sheldon, the film updates the book, providing a contemporary approach to the story.

Written around the turn of the century, the story concerns an actress, a newspaperman and an clergyman whose unique concepts changed their lives.

The public is invited.

Ensemble Group Presents Songs At Lunch Given by CAR Wives

By Marianne Whitlock
And Emilie Dacunto

A musical performance was presented by an ensemble group from Central High School, Phenix City, at a luncheon last week given for the wives of Infantry Officers CAR Course No. 1, 2nd Student Bn. on Feb. 11th.

The invocation was given by Mrs. Arthur J. Estes. Mrs. Thomas N. Griffin, student social chairman, introduced the following guests: Mrs. John A. Heintges, Mrs. Donald T. Kellett, Mrs. Talton Long, Mrs. Claude Baker, Mrs. Arthur J. Estes, Mrs. Joseph E. McCluskey, Mrs. Ronald McCall, Mrs. Edward Rusk and Mrs. Gary M. McCrite.

The ensemble was conducted by Mrs. B. F. Register. Selections from "My Fair Lady" were sung to conclude the program.

The decorations symbolized "Valentines Day." The main table was covered with a red table cloth trimmed with white lace. The table centerpieces were heart forms, emplaced in red and white net.

The wives of the officers of the first platoon were hostesses. Mrs. Hart R. Armstrong was the chairman of the luncheon and Mrs. Cullen S. Allen was the chairman of decorations.

52nd OC Wives

"Valentine's Day" was the theme for a luncheon held by the 52nd OCS Wives' Club of the 5th Student Bn.

The invocation was given by Mrs. William Stevens. A farewell was addressed to Mrs. John Norton, wife of Brig. Gen. John Norton. Gen. Norton will be leaving Fort Benning for Viet Nam in the near future. Mrs. Robert C. Caldwell was presented with a corsage of roses.

A talk on "basic wardrobe and fashion" was given by Miss Mary Margaret Byrne, fashion editor for the "Ledger-Enquirer."

Guests were: Mrs. Norton, Mrs. Donald T. Kellett, Mrs. Claude W. Baker, Mrs. Robert B. Nett, Mrs. Robert C. Caldwell, Mrs. John A. Schmidlen, Miss Byrne, Mrs. Raymond Celeste, Mrs. Leland A. Roy and Mrs. Richard M. Reynolds.

Co-ordinating the luncheon were: Mrs. John Rich and Mrs. George Friel, invitations; Mrs. Avery Salter and Mrs. Terry Sowers, program and menu; Mrs. William Poe, decorations, and Mrs. Sidney Godwyn, finance.

Orientation Coffee

An Orientation coffee for the wives of Infantry Officers Basic Course No. 8, the 23rd Detachment, 2nd Student Bn. was held recently. The speakers were Lt. Col. Joseph E. McCluskey, Chaplain Ralph C. Workman, Mrs. Joseph McCluskey, Lt. Lawrence Dacunto and Mrs. Lawrence Dacunto.

The cadre hostesses were Mrs. Dacunto, Mrs. J. McCluskey, Mrs. Stan Cybulski and Mrs. James Yarborough.

53rd OC Coffee

The 53rd OCS Co., 5th Student Bn., held its fourth coffee and a brief business meeting conducted by the chairman, Mrs. Ridger Renn. Mrs. Dewey Taylor was elected co-chairman.

A "Blue Day Briefing" was given by Lt. William Hartzog and Lt. Kenneth J. Both. Mrs. Kenneth J. Both discussed receiving line procedure.

Infantrymen Learning How to Fight As Aggressors and Friendly Forces

No amount of knowledge about fighting will make a soldier a fighter. He must practice being one, both as a friendly force troop and as an aggressor. This is the task of the soldiers of Co. A, 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf.

Co. A is presently using their aggressor - type techniques in Florida against the students of the Ranger Department. The students are going through the swamp phase of Ranger instruction on the 240,000 acres set aside for them at Elgin Air Force Base.

The purpose of this swamp instruction is to provide the Ranger student with knowledge in jungle, swamp and amphibinous operations over simulated battlefield conditions.

The swamp phase is devoted to a series of patrolling exercises, held mostly at night. It offers a means by which the student can be placed in a command position in actual performance of combat and reconnaissance patrols, ambushes, waterborne raids, beach landings and evacuation operations against a live "aggressor" enemy.

Designed to be as realistic as actual combat, the valuable experience received by the 58th's Infantrymen will help them in seeing both sides of a combat situation.

Preparing for their aggressor role, the Infantrymen studied the history of the aggressor force and its language; the wearing of the aggressor uniform and insignias; jungle patrolling; types and purposes of blockades and other subjects.

Five members of the 4th Bn., 69th Armor recently received 197th Inf. Bde. certificates of achievement during an awards ceremony and miniature review at Panther Field.

Lt. Col. Edwin J. McCarren, battalion commander, presented the awards.

Following the ceremony, the battalion commander presented the battalion softball trophy to 1st Sgt. Andrew C. Evans of Co. C, and the battalion touch football trophy to 1st Sgt. June E. Williams of Co. B.

Pre-Airborne Training Slated for Fort Gordon

Soldiers who elect to attend Airborne School will be given their preparation training in the Army's Third Training Regiment at Fort Gordon, Ga. At present, men who qualify for Airborne specialization receive their preliminary instruction at one of the seven basic training centers across the United States.

The pre-Airborne program is a combination of advanced infantry instruction and rigid physical conditioning, sandwiched between eight weeks of basic combat training and the Airborne School itself.

New Plan

The men will be assembled at Fort Gordon and move as a "package" to the Airborne School at Fort Benning. In addition to consolidating this special Army training effort, it is expected that the program will create friendships and build increased unit morale among the Airborne soldiers.

Fort Gordon's climate will permit the training program to operate year-round. Close liaison will be maintained with the Airborne School and the physical training activities will be identical at both posts.

Infantry Center, Marine Corps Trade Mementos

A reception honoring Lt. Gen. Frederick L. Wiseman commandant, Marine Corps Schools, was held last week at the Fort Benning Main Officers' Open Mess.

Highlight of the evening was an exchange of mementos between the two service school commandants.

Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, presented a miniature Infantryman Statue to Gen. Weiseman who accepted the gift on behalf of the Marine Corps Schools.

Gen. Wieseman returned the honor by presenting a plaque, significant of the Marine Corps Schools, to Gen. Heintges.

Captain Proud of South Korean Volunteers That Have Joined Viet Nam in Its Struggle

"Now I can proudly say that Republic of Korea forces are going to Viet Nam. Two thousand Korean volunteers are joining the struggle," said Capt. Kichul Kim of the ROK Army.

He added, "I hope that within the year we will have peace in Viet-Nam."

Capt. Kim, enrolled in an career officers course at the Infantry School spoke about his home land and the organization of Korean armed forces to Officer Candidates of 53rd Company, 5th Student Battalion, the Student Brigade.

A graduate of the ROK Military Academy, it was the first time Capt. Kim ever spoke in English before an audience.

"South Koreans know what communism is. In the United States, most people know about communism only through books, radio or television. But we in Korea have lived with communism and have a first - hand experience," Capt. Kim said.

"I know a good many of you will be sent to Korea during the course of your military careers. You need to know about Korea," he said in explaining the purpose of his talk.

Capt. Kim told of his country's climate, geography and history and of U.S. - Korean cooperation since World War II.

He explained that Korea is divided into a North with a population of 40 million and a South with 27 million people. The combined geographical areas of both North and South is slightly larger than Georgia.

Capt. Kim said that Korea is basically an agricultural nation but that it is striving hard to broaden the base of her economy and improve the living standards of her people.

The ROK military, which totals some 600,000 men, is the third largest force in the free world.

Capt. Kim said that South Korea has an Officer Candidate School similar to the one at Fort Benning. Korea also has a military academy and a Reserve Officers Training Corps to provide leaders for its 50,000 - man officer corps.

Speaking of U.S. assistance in training ROK military forces, Capt. Kim said that KMAG (Korean Military Assistance Advisory Group) gives invaluable aid. He praised the efforts of the Americans.

Capt. Kim said that very few Korean officers come to the Infantry School at Fort Benning because the Korean Infantry is one of the best in the Orient and KMAG considers it able to give Korean soldiers the training they need.

197th Trains New Men While Supporting TIS

While actively engaged in supporting Infantry School problems, the 72nd Engineer Co. a unit of the 197th Inf. Bde. trains its men by means of an on-the-job training program.

The program is designed to familiarize newly assigned members of the company with the equipment and techniques organic to a line platoon of engineers.

The OJT's receive practical experience in constructing fox holes, gun implacements, camouflages, decoys, drainage culverts and obstacles (other than mines) while on actual problems.

The trainees prepare visual aids for the demonstration which is given to students of USAIS in order to acquaint them with obstacles and the tools used in constructing obstacles.

The OJT's prepare and participate in the demonstrating of the use of hand tools; rigging shears and tripods; tying knots; estimating bridge capacities; and constructing log hurtles to halt vehicles.

Mechanized Rifle Platoon Attack Program Revised; Ambush, Mine Field, 'Order Objective' Emphasized

By SFC AVERY WEBBER

As a result of lessons learned in World War II, Korea and Viet Nam, the Infantry has revised its mechanized rifle platoon in attack training program.

The revisions place emphasis on ambush, mine field and "on order objective" training.

"On order objective" is a concept which insures a continuous offensive action against an enemy. Once a mechanized unit has captured its primary objective, the commander receives further orders for another objective. This sequence continues from one objective to another.

This, compared with the old concept when a commander received instructions for intermediate and final objectives at the same time, gives the commander more flexibility in accomplishing his mission, officials said.

The new innovations are expected to increase the Infantryman's effectiveness in combat in any part of the world.

Ambush Training

Ambush training will have an immediate value for individuals who may serve in areas where non-expected resistance is a threat to our forces.

Approximately 4,200 students a year complete the mechanized rifle platoon in attack training at The Infantry School.

In addition to the innovations, this course provides students with an understanding of the effectiveness of a mechanized rifle platoon in regard to speed and rapid responsiveness to combat situations.

As compared with the old Infantry, a mechanized unit, with its tanks, personnel carriers and command and reconnaissance vehicles, has greater mobility, more firepower, an increased lead capability, a waterborne capability, and it has a psychological effect on enemy troops.

The six-hour course, which is conducted by the platoon tactics committee of the Company Tactics Department, is held at Orion Road assembly area, approximately ... miles from the Main Post, for the officer basic, officer candidate and officer candidate Reserve classes.

Twice a Month

When training is being conducted, which is twice a month, the area is a scene of tracked vehicles and combat-ready troops camouflaged as in a combat situation.

While in the assembly area, students receive detailed briefings on the mission, terrain and tactics of the attack from their leaders.

After about an hour in the staging area, the tanks and other tracked vehicles, loaded with troops and combat gear, move out for their objectives which are Bush Hill and Cactus Landing Strip in Chattahoochee County.

The vehicles, traveling in a column formation, rumble over swamps, rolling hills, wooded areas and dusty fields for approximately five miles before reaching their objectives.

The force approaches in a line formation, closely approximating a dismounted platoon attack.

The tanks begin to fire their main guns, aided with fire from .50 caliber machine guns mounted on armored personnel carriers.

Students dismount from the carriers and move along with the tanks in an integrated line formation to secure their objectives.

Machine gunners observe and support the attack from their tank hatches.

The entire operation is controlled by radios, visual signals and pyrotechnic devices.

The course covers approximately 15 square miles in Chattahoochee County along Marion County and is presented twice a month.

The smell of burned powder, the noise and crash of simulators, the swirl of dust and smoke combine with the roar of tracked vehicles add an unmistakable air of combat realism for the student.

Battalion Taking Training Devised by Unit Members

For the first time since becoming a unit of the 197th Inf. Bde., the entire 1st Bn., 25th Inf. is undergoing a basic unit training to prepare the unit for combat-rediness.

The program was set up and devised by members of the 29th and will be completed in April when the battalion will go through a four-day field training exercise.

While one company of the 29th is undergoing the training, another company will take over its commitments and duties so that the mission of the battalion — support of Infantry School problems — will not suffer.

Capt. Harvey W. Foster, 29th Inf. training officer, is in charge of the basic unit training. MSgt. Raymond Anderson is NCOIC.

"The overall purpose of this program," stated Anderson, "is to build unit integrity and to prepare the battalion for combat readiness within 30 days."

A typical day during the training begins with a four-mile march to the training area which is located on the Alabama side of the reservation.

"The enemy" is situated on a hill in three bunkers ringed with barbed wire. Once the enemy is located, the platoons attack under smoke cover — one platoon at a time — using mortars and rifles.

Each platoon is divided into three task forces. Task Forces One and Three are used as supporting and maneuvering elements, while Task Force Two carries in the special equipment used to destroy the fortified position.

After the attack is completed, the platoon reorganizes on position and prepares for their next objective.

In addition to such maneuvers, the soldiers receive training and attend classes in night attack, defense of outposts, night patrols, tank Infantry in attack, delaying action and daylight withdrawal.

The men of Co. B, commanded by Capt. Augustine Gomez, are currently in their third week of training. The men of Co. A were the first in the 29th to complete the training.

PFC Wilmer Thomas, an assistant machine gunner, said that he not only felt the program was a beneficial one, but that it was also an enjoyable experience.

Playoff Game for Infantry Center Championship Will Pit 29th Inf. Against CTC for Second Time

A playoff game to decide the second half champions in The Infantry Center battalion-level basketball league will be played at 7:30 o'clock tonight between the 29th Inf. and 1st Bn., CTC squads.

Both teams met last Thursday in a game which could have clinched the title for the Infantrymen. A fired-up CTC team, however, edged the 29th Inf. out of first place by one point (81-80).

The crucial clash will take place at Briant Wells Field House.

CTC, under Paul Breski's coaching, has dropped only one game out of eight during the second half of play. The Infantrymen suffered their only defeat last Thursday when they played Breski's squad.

After suffering the one point defeat, the 29th went on to win against the 197th Brigade Troops Tuesday night by 86-57. With one game remaining to be played against last place 69th Armor, the Infantrymen are assured a tie for first place standing.

CTC also has one more game to be played against TSB No. 2 which is expected to be an easy win.

When the two teams meet in the playoff they should both have an 8-1 record. If CTC wins they will be named Infantry Center champions because they have already won the first half title.

If the Infantrymen pick up the game, a two-out-of three battle will be scheduled to select the champion team.

Thursday's Game

In their first encounter last Thursday, the 29th took an early lead. CTC fell into stride and made a seesaw battle of the game. Four key steals in the first half by right guard Larry Littlejohn resulted in tallies to keep CTC just four points behind at the half (37-33).

Left forward George Walstad, the game's big gun, netted 15 of his 25 points in the second half to maintain the 29th's slight margin through the third quarter.

CTC's defensive playing prevented the Infantrymen from securing a solid lead. At the final seconds of play CTC was only one point shy and this was overcome by Roger Reynolds who sank two free throws, putting CTC ahead by one.

Dave Braun broke up a last-ditch fast break attempt by the Infantrymen with only six seconds on the clock.

The 29th walked away with their game against the 197th Troops by 29 points. They grabbed the lead early and maintained it throughout the game. The sharp shooting of George Walstad, with 18 points, and Monte Clausen, with 20, kept the Infantrymen safely ahead.

Howard Keene of the Brigade Troops was the game's high scorer with 22 points. He teamed up with Charles Green to put up a struggle but the Infantrymen kept stealing the ball away and grabbing most of the rebounds. Robert Gates of the 29th kept the ball moving for his team until an opening arose and then set up scoring plays.

CTC's Injuries

When CTC and the Infantrymen clash, the 1st Bn. squad might be impeded by injuries three of the top players have suffered. Forward Richard Craig took a spill on a rebound during a practice session Monday and injured his ankle.

Star guard Carl Seldon pulled a muscle in the 29th game last week and missed Monday's practice, and forward-guard Floyd Wicker has been nursing an ankle injury.

Beginners' League

By Dorothy Reed

What is it like to bowl in a beginners bowling league? Ask any of the thirty two ladies of the TEC Group who make the trek to the Main Post Bowling Center every Tuesday morning.

Before you get an answer, you have to get them to stop laughing. Fun seems to keynote this brand of league competition. Ann Barnes, who has the distinction of lounging in the bottom spot along with Jean Williams, seems to have numerous occasions for merriment. But you have to admit it certainly is unusual to bowl in a raincoat and ski pants.

Pacing the leagues high scorers are Lou Smith and Jackie Thayer followed by Marilyn Smith. The "Maneuverers" captained by Margaret Neidner, with Joan Voss, Joan Morgan, and Jan Robinson, have been holding down first place for several months. The cellar-dwellers of this enthusiastic league are the "Goof Balls" with Betty Maddox, Betty Strange, Kiki Polson, and Janet Fry.

Cleo Powell, president of the league, has announced the awards brunch will be held in April. The most prized trophy will be for the most improved bowler. Top three bowlers in the eight-team league are: Lou Smith, Jackie Thayer and Marilyn Smith.

This Tuesday, Lou Smith achieved a "Duteh 200" score. It was the second time that the Women's International Bowling Congress patch was awarded at the new Bowling Center.

Versatile 29th Inf. Sgt. Won Golden Gloves Title

A sergeant with the 29th Inf. combines proficiency in baseball with swimming and professional boxing.

Besides holding a Red Cross life-saving swimming badge, Sgt. Robert Curry of Co. A, 1st Bn., has played semi-professional baseball and holds a professional boxing record of 11 wins for 11 matches.

A boxer since he was 12 years old, Curry was lightweight Golden Gloves champion in his native state of New Jersey and in Pennsylvania in 1948.

He entered the Army in 1954 after having boxed in amateur matches in New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey and after having played semi-pro ball with the New Jersey Mohawks for four years. Curry continued his boxing career and won the 11th Airborne's light weight championship in 1956 and was runner-up in 1957.

Out of the 63 fights he fought as an amateur boxer, Curry won 59 and lost four.

Curry has a long history of coaching, having coached boxing teams in Europe during 1962.

MTU Shooters Take 3 Awards At Skeet Shoot

Shotgun shooters from the Army's MTU took three ciass awards at the Dixie Skeet Championships at Winter Haven, Fla., over the weekend.

PFC Leland Brown was the Class A champ with the 410 with a score of 90 out of 100 birds.

PFC Kevin Onka took the Cass A title with 97 out of 100 birds and his teammate Brown won the Class B with 96 birds.

Keene and Faber Win Nominations To All-Army Basketball Tryouts

Two Post basketball players have been nominated to tryout for the 1965 All-Army Basketball Team.

PFC Howard B. Keene of the 197th Inf. Brigade's Headquarters Co., and PFC Roger W. Faber of Co. A, 577th Engineer Bn., left Wednesday for The Presidio of San Francisco, Calif., where the tryouts are being conducted.

The two players were selected after major post units were asked to nominate players for the tryouts. Faber and Keene were the only two players receiving nominations.

Selection was based on college experience in basketball, height and weight, and proficiency in the game.

Both men will spend about a month at The Presidio in training along with other nominees from Army installations throughout the country. Eventually an All-Army team will be selected to compete in the Interservice Basketball Championships on March 10-13 at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Last year, the championship was won by the Air Force entry.

Faber, 24-years-old, 6' 4", plays forward for the 577th Engineer Bn. battalion-level basketball team. He is a consistently high scorer and during the first half of league play ranked third in scoring with 152 points.

He played on the 1964 All-Army team and with the University of South Dakota's basketball team during his four years in college. He won honorable mention for All - American in 1962 and was All Conference his last three years in school.

Keene, 22-years-old, 6' 5", also a forward, plays with the 197th Brigade troops battalion - level team. He ranked sixth in scoring during the first half of league play with 131 points.

He was on the starting line-up of Louisiana State University's basketball squad during his senior year at that school.

PASTRY SCHOOL

Pvt. David A. Brown, 95th Medical Battalion, recently graduated from Pastry Baking School. The school is a four week course.

Rolls Top Game

Renee Hart, bowling in the Officer's Wives Bowling League, rolled a 255 scratch game last Thursday. Renee carries a 159 average in the league. Her game is the highest scratch game bowled in the league for this season.

WACs Drop Doubleheader Against Bragg

The post's WAC basketball team lost both games against Fort Bragg's WAC squad last weekend.

Saturday's game ended by a 34-28 deficit for the post's team. Fort Bragg's Josephine Soboleski was high scorer with 23 points, while Norma LaDavia of Fort Benning sank 9 points.

Sunday's game was closer with the post losing only by three points (41-38). Bragg's Miss Soboleski was again one of the high scorers with 20 points. Top markswoman for the night, however, was Earline Surles of Fort Benning, with 22 points.

The WAC team now has an even 3-3 record. Another doubleheader is scheduled this weekend against Fort McPherson's WAC team. Saturday's game will be played at 7:30 p.m., while Sunday's is scheduled for 2 p.m. at Briant Wells Field House.

Engineers Trounce TSB No. 2

The 577th Engr. Bn. basketball team rolled over TSB No. 1 to an effortless 96-53 victory at an Infantry Center battalion level league game.

The Engineers kept TSB scoreless for a full five minutes while tallying 17 points. Alvin Brunswick of TSB finally managed to sink the first basket for his squad.

Brunswick kept up his shooting throughout the game and tallied 30 points, making him high scorer. Only two of his teammates scored with James Green sinking 20 points and Charles Barmore three.

The first half ended at 43-18 with Bruce Krinke of the Engineers leading his team in scoring with 16 points. Roger Faber and Paul Evans kept control of the ball for the 577th, grabbing most of the rebounds and sinking six baskets and seven foul shots between them.

Evans of the Engineers tied Krinke for high man on his squad with 13 points. Bobby Pendley was next in line with 17 points. All but one player on the 577th squad managed to score during the game.

Artillery Downs Medics Squad By Six Points

The 10th Artillery defeated the 428th Medical Detachment 76-70 last Friday in The Infantry Center battalion level basketball league.

The Artillerymen led the first half by only two points (40-38). In the second half, the 10th Artillery switched to a man-to-man defense and managed to widen their lead and end the game six points ahead.

High scorer for the Artillerymen was Walton N. Burroughs with 22 points, followed by John F. Mcnill Jr., also of Battery E, with 15 points.

Ballet Guild Will Present 'El Amor Brujo' Tonight

Spanish dancing comes to Columbus as "El Armor Brujo" is staged tonight by the Columbus Ballet Guild at the Museum of Arts and Crafts on Wynnton Road.

The ballet will be performed at 8:30 p.m. today and tomorrow. The Guild is a non-profit organization intended to stimulate interest in ballet through presentations, lectures, films and discussions. Many of the members are associated with the post.

"El Amor Brujo" by Manuel de Falla is a story about lovely Candelas, to be danced by Vick Morales, whose affections for Carmelo, danced by Vic Prophet, are thwarted by the spectre of an old dead lover. The spectre will be danced by Jim Burke. Lucia, which will be danced by Glynne Gilmore, is a friend of Candelas who is determined to help.

Miss Stephanie Stenberg will be one of the gypsies in "El Amor Brujo" most often translated "Love, the Magician".

Carolyn Alexander will be featured in the ballet "On A Dark Night" and will also dance in "Dance Macabre" and "El Amor Brujo".

Ingo Orlamunder will dance in "El Amor Brujo" and is in charge of lights and special stage effects.

AT THE Movies

HOW TO MURDER YOUR WIFE. . .A film of slap-happy nonsense dealing with the marriage miseries of a once - happy bachelor. Jack Lemmon plays the husband who has decided to destroy his spouse—a luscious cupcake by the name of Virna Lisi.

THE UNSINKABLE MOLLY BROWN. . .Debbie Reynolds plays Molly, the Irish-American lass, unlettered and unschooled, brash and wilful, who becomes a legend with her millions. Harve Presnell plays a poor lad who falls in love with her and marries her under pretense of possessing wealth.

PAJAMA PARTY . . . Science fiction combined with the "twist", "swim", "Watusi", provide the setting for Hollywood's "surfing crowd" to go through more of their paces. Tommy Kirk is a Martian scout sent to earth to pave the way for an invasion but his mission is forgotten when he falls for Annette Funicello.

Civic Leaders Shown Div's Debtor's Service

Civic and business leaders Monday heard an explanation of the 2nd Infantry Division's newly - formed debt counseling program at a luncheon meeting of the Columbus Optimist's Club in the Martinique Motel.

Last week the Columbus Boosters Club heard a similar explanation at a breakfast meeting in the Ralston Hotel.

Lt. James Bayer of the Divisions legal section outlined the goals of the program and explained the actual operation of debt counseling.

Although a formal debt counseling program was new to the division he said, a similar program used for three years by the 82nd Airborne Divison is helping over 200 men in financial trouble at Fort Bragg, N.C.

Bayer placed his "clients" in three categories. Persons who are over-indebted but can be helped, persons who need or ask aid in budget planning, and finally persons with disputed debts.

Bayer clearly pointed out "the Army is not attempting to serve as a collection agency for the local creditors." He said the sole purpose of the program is to help soldiers establish a stable budget and sound financial planning.

Bayer stated, the majority of his "clients" find themselves in one of the three categories due to divorce alimony payments, minor marital problems, and over-extended credit.

He recommended that merchants and finance organizations run more extensive credit checks and pointed out that many otherwise outstanding non - commissioned officers have been "booted out", retired, or reduced in rank because of their inability to handle personal finances.

"When such actions occur, the Army loses an investment of several thousand dollars . . . You and I as taxpayers must pay the price to retrain another to replace these soldiers places," he said.

"Since November 17th, 1964, I have interviewed close to 120 soldiers. Of this number, 46 have become actively enrolled in the program, he said. The remainder have been advised on their budgets or various aspects of handling their finances in a more adequate manner."

Lt. Bayer said another of the duties performed by the service has been the settling of various types of disputes as to the balances on accounts and sometimes, the fact of whether or not an actual debt had been incurred.

He thanked the business community for its assistance in planning and initially setting up the new program and asked for continued cooperation from business men to insure successful operation of the debt counseling program.

150 Recruits Assigned For AIT

1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry Named Training Unit for 'Successful Venture'

By JOE TREASTER

Some 152 recruits fresh—from basic training — are expected to begin arriving in the 2nd Infantry Division Saturday for advanced infantry training.

They will receive eight weeks of intensive instruction in infantry skills from men of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

A battalion spokesman said target date of Mar. 1 has been set for the first classes. But he said the date is tentative since it is not known for certain when the last recruits will arrive.

Commander

Lt. Col. S. K. McMurdo, commander of the battalion, said he "enthusiastically" welcomes the recruits and sees training them as a challenge."

"Training new soldiers enables us to be of service to the Army as a whole and it helps to further sharpen old-timers," he said. "We will be instilling in the new men our traditions and our history and we hope to retain many of them.

"It is a tremendous challenge for men of the battalion to take a personal interest in the training of men who we hope eventually will be integrated into the unit."

Early last year the battalion received about the same number of recruits for AIT and retained some 62 of them. Overflow conditions in traditional training centers caused the Army to assign a training chores to tactical units for the first time in BULLETIN . . .

Two 2nd Infantry Division soldiers escaped injury yesterday when their twin engine observation plane, a Mohawk OV-1 crashed in a wooded area five miles south of Fort Bragg, N.C.

The pilot, Capt. Ronald S. Stebbins of Company B, 2nd Aviation Battalion, said the plane began to develop engine trouble over a heavily populated area — Fayetteville, N.C. — but that he steered it over the woods before ejecting at 300 feet.

Moments earlier, Sgt. Jerry R. McFadden of the 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment, ejected at 500 feet. He was the only passenger.

The Indianhead etched on the coin is said to have been the model for the figure on the division's famous Indianhead patch.

The military mill and every other federal institution will be shut-down Monday thanks to George Washington.

It's his birthday.

No 2nd Infantry Division soldiers — save honorable KPs and guards — will be expected to work. Mess halls will operate on Sunday schedules and hundreds of men are expected to be conspicuously absent.

(Division officials said they hope soldiers don't try to squeeze long trips into the long weekend, lest accident rates climb.)

Were the father of our country still puffing patriotic breath, he would be challenged to extinguish 233 candles atop his birthday cake.

DivArty Clears the Way for Tests; Fort Gordon Is Scene for Firing

By ART CHIEPPA

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Advanced elements of the 2nd Infantry Division Artillery arrived at Fort Gordon, Ga. Monday to ready firing ranges for their home units.

The mission of the advanced party is to prepare some 35 artillery firing points in addition to target locations for coming annual training tests for the 2nd Division Artillery units.

The first unit scheduled for the Army Training Test (ATT) is the 17th Artillery bringing with them 105mm howitzer guns. They are scheduled to arrive at Fort Gordon during the first week of March this year.

Units will spend approximately three weeks at Fort Gordon before returning to Fort Benning. Actual testing will take two days. Upon departure of one unit, another will arrive and go through three weeks of training.

Scheduled to fire this year is one battalion of 105 mm howitzers, three batteries of 155 mm howitzers and a battery of eight inch howitzers.

The advanced party consisting of 20 men and ten vehicles are under the command of 2nd Lt. Clinton S. Watson, division artillery survey officer.

Watson and his men are assigned to Headquarters Battery, Division Artillery, commanded by Capt. Richard Andrews.

"Headquarters Battery furnishes support for the umpire teams," Lt. Watson said. "We must have all of the firing points and target locations ready by Mar. 8."

The 2nd division artillery units go through their annual training tests each year at Fort Gordon, the last being during April, May and June of last year. Battery tests are conducted at Fort Benning.

"Many of the firing points setup last year have been destroyed," stated Watson, "we'll have to set up 30 additional points."

According to SFC Paul Donahue, chief surveyor, "The men will cover approximately 100,000 meters to accomplish this job. This distance we travel on foot ground."

Watson has been with Headquarters Battery as survey officer for the last 14 months.

Under the direction of Watson, the men, all surveyors and communications specialists, will set up a telephone network to be used by umpir-

Tropical Manchus Welcome Alaskan

By Jim Lull

"At 60-degrees below zero, you really have to keep moving. There really isn't any way to keep warm!"

That's the description of the climate and duty at Fort Wainwright, Alaska, according to Sp4 William Hall, recently assigned to the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry.

Ironically, Hall was assigned to Company B, 4th Battalion, 9th Infantry at Fort Wainwright. His present assignment with the "sister" unit is with Company B also.

The only active 9th Infantry units are the 1st and 2nd Battalion of Fort Benning, and the 4th Battalion at Fort Wainwright.

Hall was a member of the ski patrol while stationed in Alaska.

"Every man assigned to our unit was given a pair of skis and snow-shoes," Hall said.

As a light weapons infantryman, which Hall is, the soldiers go about all training normally, except they ski instead of walk.

"I was sent to the Cold Weather School at Fort Greely, Alaska for two weeks. The Army taught me the fundamentals of skiing while I was there."

Extreme caution is taken to prevent frostbite.

"The buddy system is used," Hall added "it's a means to keep a constant check on all of us."

Admittedly, Hall is glad to be back on the "mainland."

"In a sense, it seems like you're really not in the United States while you're there. It's a different world," he concluded.

And a mighty chilly one.

VISITING PAKASTANI
Maj. Haq (R) With G-5 Maj. David Forsythe

CG Compares Pakastanis To Americans in Attitude

Six majors in the Pakastan army paused last week in their studies at the Army's Infantry Center to visit the 2nd Infantry Division.

They met the commanding general, visited the division historical center, watched an awards ceremony and attended the weekly social hour at the Indianhead Lodge.

Talking with the Pakistanis, Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, division commander, recalled a visit he once made to their country.

"I was treated very cordially," he said.

He said he has found three types of people who fall into a class by themselves: Texans, Argentinians and Pakistanis — they have the biggest and best of everything.

"The Pakistanis have an American approach to problems," the general said. "They have the attitude of get-up-and-go that we have here in America."

An aide listed the six majors: Dildar Rana, Mohammed Taj, Shamsul Haq Shaudhry, Usman Khan, Sahibzada Ali Raza Khan and Zamir Ahmad Khan.

'Indianhead' Cops Prize as Thespian

Third Army awards, for theatre competition were given this week, with an individual in the Division's 1st Brigade winning the "best lighting award."

Pete Hajcuk, 1st Brigade training supervisor and mail clerk took the listing award for his work done in the presentation of "The Caretaker."

The Fort Benning Little Theatre effort took the 3rd Army "overall best production" award in formalities that took place at main post's golf course.

Hajduk claims that Fort Benning is better equipped with lighting and staging facilities than "most army theatres I have seen."

"The Visit" is the next production of the Little Theatre, opening March 24th.

Pentagon Takes Long Look at Loan Practices; 'Five for Ten' Won't Do, Say Division Regs

BY JIM BAKER

Department of Defense officials are taking a long look at "loan sharks." They are concerned with the breed as they are found both on and off post.

According to a recent Army Times article, officials were reviewing lending practices even prior to decent court-martial actions involving officers engaged in usurious practices at Fort Hood, Tex. They were lending money at 50 percent interest over a period of one month.

The two lieutenants involved were both dismissed from the service. In its decision the court said money-lending on the part of officers was "wholly incompatible with the necessary attributes of character, integrity, honesty and fair dealing to be expected of an officer in his dealings with enlisted personnel under his command."

2nd Infantry Division officials take a dim view of persons who loan money at interest to other division soldiers. Division regulation 600-50 prohibits the lending of money among members of the command, "if any rate of interest, carrying charge, thing of value or other consideration over and above that of repayment of the exact amount of money actually loaned, is a condition of the loan."

The regulation does however make provision for a legitimate loan at ordinary interest rates. Money can be loaned in the division if the lender has permission from his unit commander.

According to the Times article the Pentagon is looking into the operations of loan companies and eve personal "five-for-ten" deals in which a soldier borrows five dollars now and repays the lender ten dollars on payday.

One being investigated is the possibility of expanding credit union operations so more people can participate. In most cases unions operate under federal government supervision.

Loose lending practices were recently brought into public focus locally when former division commander, Maj. Gen. Charles Billings lea spoke out against "easy credit" at a meeting of local business and military officials.

The review of lending practices and current regulations by Pentagon officials will pay "special attention" to the variance in state laws governing interest rates, the Times said. "Some states allow quite high rates of interest to be charged and others forbid such usury. Since there is this variance, officials feel some kind of Defense Department direction and policy should be established," the article concluded.

Division Artillery Units Practice Air Loading of Big Guns-Equipment-Men

Second Infantry Division Artillery units completed three days of air mobility training last Friday at Fort Benning's Wilson Field.

Elements of the 12th and 17th Artillery Battalions practiced air - loading techniques and trained for the eventuality of a quick air move.

The training teaches the artillerymen to load and securely lash down their howitzers and the trucks that pull them, within a 15-minute time limit.

Used in the training were mock - ups of C-130 transport planes and other aircraft the men might be required to use in moving their "big guns."

"When the plane is fully loaded and the howitzer crew of six men is aboard, the plane is carrying in excess of 17,000 pounds", said a spokesman for the artillery units.

"This type of aircraft is used for a strategic move," said the spokesman. "It would take us overseas or anywhere in the United States. If we were in a combat zone the howitzers would be sling - loaded under helicopters and moved to firing positions. If necessary, our weapons can fire on enemy positions ten minutes from the time the last howitzer is unloaded from the transport plane."

The actual air-loading was preceded by two days of classroom instruction given by the officers of the units participating.

Nearly 3,000 students at Tuskegee Institute, the Negro liberal arts college some 40 miles southwest of Fort Benning, and several 2nd Infantry Division soldiers recently heard a two-hour concert by folk singer Odetta.

Miss Doris Mitchell, a spokesman for the school, said that the concert was one in a series of scheduled cultural events.

Sgts. Major Help Plan Div Reunion

Two 2nd Infantry Division sergeants major will return to Fort Benning tomorrow (Saturday) after spending a week in South Florida, discussing plans for the 44th reunion of the 2nd (Indianhead) Division Association.

Sgt. Maj. Robert L. Brown, the division sergeant major, and Sgt. Maj. Edward B. Leavitt of the 2nd Engineer Battalion, met with members of the Association's Florida branch at the Diplomat Hotel at Hollywood Beach.

The 1965 reunion will be held at the Diplomat, July 14 through 17.

In a request to the division commander, Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, for the counsel of the two sergeants major, W. S. Bell, executive secretary of the branch wrote:

"We feel in need of their help in planning an outstanding program for both the division and the association, also to look over the locale of this reunion.

"Both Sgt. Maj. Brown and Sgt. Maj. Leavitt have been of great help to us in organizing the Florida branch and in securing the reunion for this area. We feel they would be our greatest help at this time."

Division Marksmen Are 3rd Army Champs

By DON DUDICK

"Third Army Champs" is the title presently held by the 2nd Division's Marksmanship Detachment.

The Indianhead Marksmen won the title in 1964. In addition to this triumph, they set two Third Army records in competition for the Short Range Team Match and for the Infantry Trophy. The marksmen also won the National Match Team Match.

Captain John T. Burke, commanding officer of the marksmanship detachment, says the mission of his unit is "to organize, equip, and train marksmen to represent the Second Division in marksmanship competition".

Explained

Capt. Burke explained "the detachment also co-ordinates the division marksmanship program and the operation of the Division Rifle and Pistol Match and the Division Small Bore Match".

In competition, the Indianhead Sharpshooters fire the M-14 Rifle, the twenty-two, thirty - eight, and forty-five caliber pistols. At present there are fifty-one men in the detachment.

The unit's primary competition is the Third Army Match. To prepare for this major match, the team competes in several other events throughout the year.

Competition

Prior to the Third Army Match, the Indianhead Sharpshooters will competé in the Florida High-Power Championships at Camp Blanding, Fla., the Dixie Pistol Matches in Jacksonville, Fla., the National Mid-Winter Pistol Championships in Tampa, Fla., the National Rifle and Pistol Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, the Interservice Pistol and Rifle Championships, and several south-eastern state matches.

To qualify for the division team, a man must be selected by his posted scores from the division match which is held once a year.

The Indianhead team is not the highest a man can rise in marksmanship competition.

Shooters can progress from division teams to berths on the Third Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit, or the Marksmanship Training Unit which is the All Army Team.

Difference

Capt. Burke compared the difference between his detachment and the all-Army Team "as the difference between minor league and major league baseball". He complained that many of his top shooters had worked their way to the "majors" after the team had won the Third Army Match last year.

But Capt. Burke feels that he has a strong team and will be ready to retain the "Third Army Champs" crown.

Four 'Indianheads' Ceremony Honors

last week four Indianhead soldiers were honored and three units received plaques at a ceremony held in the 2nd Infantry Division's conference room.

In addition to the awards Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, division commander, welcomed six majors of the Pakastani Army to the division and the awards ceremony as his personal guests.

Gen. Chiles presented a Distinguished Flying Cross (1st Oak Leaf Cluster), two bronze stars, the annual and monthly best mess plaque, a reenlistment plaque and January soldier of the monthly award.

Given the second award of the Flying Cross for heroism while participating in aerial flight in the Republic of Vietnam on August 14, 1963 was Maj. Calvin Bean, member of the 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor.

The Bronze Star for meritorious service while serving in the Republic of Vietnam went to Maj. Richard G. Booth, of the divisions adjutant general section and Capt. Samuel H. Heermans of the logistics section, both are members of Headquarters Company, 2nd Infantry Division.

Soldier of the month for January was Sp4 Charles L. Gray, Company A, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry. Gray was given a certificate from the commanding general, a wrist watch and a $25.00 check.

The annual best mess plaque was won by Headquarters Company, 1st Brigade and the best mess plaque for the month of January went to Company B, 2nd Engineer Battalion.

The monthly reenlistment plaque was won by the 37th Artillery Battalion.

Bean Awarded Second DFC

By Hank Allison

At a special awards ceremony in the 2nd Division Conference Room last Friday, Maj. Calvin R. Bean was awarded the First Oak Leaf Cluster to the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Maj. Bean, presently serving as executive officer of the 72nd Armor, was cited for saving the lives of three downed Army aviators and one Vietnamese soldier in a helicopter rescue operation.

The citation awarding the Cross to Maj. Bean reads in part, "on August 14th 1963, Maj. Bean "was platoon leader in command of three armed helicopters escorting transport helicopters over territory held by insurgent Viet Cong. While engaging an enemy position, one helicopter of Maj. Beans' platoon crashed into dense jungle.

"With complete disregard for personal safety, he directed the movement and rescue of the downed crew from a landing zone near the crash site which was held by the Viet Cong."

This was the second Distinguished Flying Cross that the Major had received. The first award was for his rescue of a battalion of Vietnamese Rangers surrounded in an ambush by two battalions of Viet Cong. Maj. Bean attacked the insurgents with his platoon of three helicopters. When his fuel tank was punctured by small arms fire he returned to the ranger outpost. After regrouping his forces, Bean took off again in a new helicopter and finally succeeded in driving off the Viet Cong. This action was credited with saving the lives of the surrounded rangers.

'Indianheads' To March In Harris' Honor

Definitely "Second to None," the first troops to execute "eyes right' for Gen. Hugh P. Harris next Friday (Feb. 26) will be those from the 2nd Infantry Division.

The leading march unit in Fort Benning's huge review honoring the retiring CONARC commander, scheduled to be held on Sightseeing Field, will be a composite divisional brigade representing all combat arms of the 2nd Division — infantry, artillery, armor, cavalry.

Commanding the four dismounted and one mounted mass formation some — 1,600 strong — will be Col. John W. Armstrong, of the 3rd Brigade.

DivArty

es of the yearly tests. They will also survey the areas in which the artillerymen will be firing.

According to Lt. Col. Max E. Rector, operations officer for 2nd Division Artillery Headquarters, the three basic areas to be tested involve the abilities to "shoot, move and communicate", with the major emphasis on communications and firing accuracy.

Recruits

early 1964. Favorable results caused continuation of the program.

During their training period the new soldiers will be members of an "AIT Training Company," commanded by Lt. Joseph R. Beeman, a 26-year-old Officer Candidate School graduate.

Lt. Beeman said that the trainees will be quartered in separate barracks within the living areas of the battalion's four companies. Three groups of equal size will go to each of the tactical units —Companies A, B and C— with a smaller group going to headquarters company, he said.

Designated as cadre for the training company were Sp5 Edward Osborne and four sergeants: Malcolm Wood, John Quarles, Ramon Aponte and Paris Dusch.

Responsibility for training subject matter has been distributed throughout the battalion, according to Capt. James R. Hogan of the unit's operations section. He listed the subjects and the companies in charge:

Headquarters Company: First Aid, M-14 rifle, modified and possible assistance in testing.

Company A: 3.5 rocket launcher, bayonet, familiarization with .45 caliber pistol, techniques of fire and squad tactics, escape and evasion.

Company B: M-79 grenade launcher, map reading, M-60 machine gun, 90 mm recoilless rifle; a weapons demonstration and a 16-hour problem testing all the material covered in the first seven weeks.

Company C: Counter insurgency, field fortification, map reading, artillery emergency forward observer procedures, patrolling and ambush techniques.

SAC Briefings Over For Gen. R. E. Coffin

A week of high - level briefings in Washington and Omaha — headquarters of the Strategic Air Command —ends tomorrow (Saturday) for the soon-departing assistant commander of the 2nd Infantry Division.

After what figures to be a quiet, long weekend Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin will return to the myriad of tasks demanding his attention before his departure for Europe.

Tuesday evening he will be honored by the division's officers at a banquet and formal dance at the Main Officer's Open Mess.

A final tribute to him comes March 3 at Marne Field. In a miniature review the commanding general is expected to recount Gen. Coffin's contributions to the division and present him a plaque.

It was earlier announced that Gen. Coffin will become chief of the nuclear actions section of SHAPE (Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers, Europe) in Paris in early March.

The general's week of briefings began last Monday with a day-long session at the Pentagon with representatives of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

He spent most of the next day conferring with other Army officials.

On Wednesday he visited the Naval Air Station at Norfolk, Va.

The general spent yesterday and today (Friday) at SAC headquarters in Omaha in conferences with officials of the SHAPE target section.

He is expected to return to Columbus by mid - afternoon Saturday.

During the coming week he is expected to visit a number of division units in a farewell gesture.

Gen. Coffin began his series of adieus a week ago Thursday at Fort Stewart, Ga., home of the division's 2nd Battalion, 72nd Armor.

General Flies to Stewart; Makes Farewell Gesture

Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin flew to Fort Stewart, Ga., a week ago Thursday for the first in a series of farewell visits to 2nd Infantry Division units before his departure in early March.

The assistant division commander has received orders naming him chief of the nuclear actions section of SHAPE (Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers, Europe) in Paris.

At Fort Stewart he met with the men of the 2nd Battalion, 72nd Armor — the only 2nd Infantry Division unit not stationed at Fort Benning.

Waiting at Liberty Army Air Field when the general arrived at 9:35 a.m. were Col. Walter E. Bare, Jr., commander of Fort Stewart, and Lt. Col. Claude O. Shell, commander of the armor battalion.

After a quick look at the battalion EM (enlisted men's) Club — currently being renovated — Gen. Coffin and the colonels had coffee with the unit's sergeant major, Walter J. Jenkinson, and other senior noncoms.

A convoy of tanks returning to garrison after three days in the field paraded past the general and later he watched the battalion's senior officers and NCOs competing on the rifle and pistol range.

At lunch he was the guest of Col. and Mrs. Shell.

In the afternoon Gen. Coffin addressed the battalion's officers and spent an hour in conference with Col. Shell and his executive officer, Maj. Robert A. Powers.

New Division School For Teletypists Announced

"These classes will train men who will operate the most highly classified radio teletype equipment the Army has today". This was the statement of 2nd Division radio officer, Lt. John A. Reilly as he spoke of the Divisions' new Communications School.

The classes, under the direction of assistant division signal officer, Capt. Jack A. Lucido, will train the men for a period of 12 days both in classrooms and in the actual transmission of messages.

The radio "rigs" used in the classes are known as Crypto type. They "scramble" a message so that even if the message is monitored by the enemy it cannot be deciphered.

"The trainees have been drawn from all major divisional units down to battalion level.", said Lt. Reilly, "In combat the Radio-Teletypes they operate would form a network to transmit messages from division level through the brigades and down to their respective battalions."

The teletype machines are mounted in a three-quarter ton truck and powered by a generator in a trailer. They have a much longer range than the FM radios that are used by units for regular field communications.

The 2nd Division at present has more than 50 of these teletype sets which, according to Lt. Reilly, are "vital in the Army's new mobile concept because of their greater range", and the fact that, "their Crypto setup gives complete security to all messages."

Bankers At New Facility Cheer Flow

Officials of the Fort Benning National Bank said this week they were "encouraged" by business returns at the recently opened Sand Hill facility and they praised 2nd Infantry Division military police.

Since the facility opened in mid-December, 212 checking and 442 savings accounts have been opened.

"We are very encouraged with the activity and cooperation that we have received" said Brig. Gen. (ret) Marcus B. Bell, chairman of the bank's board. "The large number of savings accounts indicates a very commendable policy in 2nd Division men."

Bell spoke gratefully of the "protection and deterrence" provided the band by men of the 2nd Military Police Company.

"We are of the opinion that their presence would deter even the dumbest or boldest individuals from attempting a robbery," he said.

Regular hours of operation are 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday, Gen. Bell said, but the facility is also open from 3 to 5 p.m. Fridays and has special hours on pay days.

"I am of the opinion that Sand Hill people are not aware of the extended hours on Friday afternoon," Gen. Bell said.

That Word Is Back!

From time to time a mysterious name has suddenly appeared and as suddenly disappeared throughout the 2nd Infantry Division.

Now it has reappeared as a name tape on the uniforms of the instructors at Support Commands Preventive Maintenance Indicators School.

GOMRAC is not only worn by the instructors of the school, but is printed or painted, or about to be, on the buildings, letters, literature, handouts, and correspondence originating at the PMI school.

The slogan is evidently becoming popular and is catching on. Recently a letter arrived for the PMI school addressed:

"Commanding General
Second Infantry Division
ATTN: GOMRAC

Finance Dispells Bi-Monthly Pay Rumor

By DAN SWEENEY

Second Infantry Division officials announced last week that division soldiers could not expect to be paid on a twice monthly basis until 1967.

The Centralized Automatic Pay System (CAPS) is a project of the Department of Defense, presently in experimental stages, which would enable soldiers to be paid on a twice-monthly basis.

Maj. Wayne Campbell, division finance officer said that "only a few tactical units will be involved during the experimental phases and that Fort Benning itself won't adopt the system until the testing phase is ended."

Response

Campbell made the statement in response to conjecture on the part of the local press about the effect of a seemingly imminent change in the Army's pay system.

The CAPS program, designed to eventually incorporate the entire Armed Forces on the twice - a - month pay system, began last year with three Army posts, Forts Harrison, Jackson, and Carson. Three more will convert to the system this spring when Forts Devens, Ord, and Hood pay bi-monthly.

An overseas post will also be brought into the testing phase probably this summer, in order to determine the feasibility for use outside the country.

An evaluation of the finance project is anticipated during 1966 or early 1967. "If the system is implemented," said Campbell, "the earliest probable date Fort Benning will become involved is July 1967."

The CAPS system will enable the soldier to establish a "norm" or amount of money he desires to receive at the end of each month. All other "variables" such as temporary duty, and separate rations will be disbursed between the tenth and fifteenth of the following month.

The finance officer said a soldier would be able to receive a half of his pay approximately every two weeks or any amount up to the total sum if he so desires.

The amount of money received is directly dependent upon the amount stipulated in his "norm". In any case, the "norm" will be disbursed on the payday at the end of the month.

Groundwork

The groundwork for this computerized system dates back to 1957 when only a few accounts were involved in this experiment. It became more expansive when the Army was appointed the test agency responsible for planning and production experiments relating to the bi-monthly pay program.

The Department of Defense system is operated out of Fort Harrison, the Army's finance center, and will utilize the personnel of other services to assist in the operation during the test phase.

TAKES COMMAND

Capt. Darrell J. Savage recently took command of the 197th Inf. Bde's, Hq. & Hq Co., at a change-of-command ceremony on the brigade parade field. Savage was previously assigned to The Infantry School.

G-2 Gathering Takes Pot-Luck

A pot-luck dinner was held by the officers and ladies of the G-2 section recently at the 2nd Division Family Service Center.

A carnival atmosphere was felt through the decorating efforts of the ladies of the Army Security Agency under the direction of Mrs. Lawrence O'Brien.

The centerpiece was a miniature merry - go - round which was surrounded by a caravan of food ranging from five different meat dishes to nine desserts.

efforts and extended warm

Col. Earl Ingram thanked the ladies for their culinary are returning to civilian life, and to Warrant Officer and Mrs. Lawrence Donnerstag who leave for a tour of duty in Germany.

Farewells were said to Lt. and Mrs. Edward Zeil who welcomes to Lt. Cox and Air Force Capt. and Mrs. Hugh Perry. Capt. Perry is assigned to the G-2 as staff weather officer.

Mrs. Ingram Hosts G-2 Ladies Meet

The home of Mrs. Earl Ingram was the scene recently of the G-2 bi-monthly coffee.

Honored guests were Mrs. John H. Chiles, Mrs. Robert F. Coffin, and Mrs. Burnside E. Hoffman.

The centerpiece, made by Mrs. Ingram, was a small urn filled with fresh-cut baby asters and dogwood branches in a Japanese motif. Mrs. Chiles poured.

Hostesses for the coffee were Mrs. Herbert Rankin, Mrs. Frank Creighton, and Mrs. Toshio Kawasaki.

After a short business meeting, over which Mrs. Ingram presided, coffee and refreshments were enjoyed.

Monthly Hospital Coffee Treats 200

The Ladies of the Big Indianhead held their regular monthly coffee recently at Martin Army Hospital.

Attending the event in the hospital's recreation hall were more than 200 ambulatory patients and staff members.

Romance Theme For 9th's Ladies

The romantic theme of St. Valentine's Day established the decorative note for the February coffee of the ladies of the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry. A bright red heart-designed coach and Valentine napkins added a delightful accent to a white linen tablecloth.

Mrs. Ronald M. Kuhn, Mrs. Robert W. McClellan and Mrs. Irvin Njus served as co-hostesses for the monthly coffee which was held at the Second Division Family Service Center.

Mrs. Alfred J. Millard presided at the coffee service and ladies selected refreshments from an assortment of heart-shaped cookies, frosted brownies, and dainty sandwiches.

Morning Coffee For 1st Brigade At Snow Quarters

The officers' wives of the 1st Brigade were the guests of Mrs. Beverly C. Snow Jr., for a morning coffee, recently.

The affair was held in Mrs. Snow's quarters on Miller Loop.

New arrivals welcomed were Mrs. Tommy P. Trexler, Mrs. Don C. Chunn Jr., Mrs. George A. Weckerle and Mrs. Charles W. Verlander.

Attending their first coffee with the ladies of the 1st Brigade, but being old-timers with the 2nd Division, were Mrs. George F. Powers Jr., and Mrs. Fitzhugh H. Chandler Jr.

Mrs. Toni Combes, sister of Mrs. G. F. Powers Jr., was also present as a guest.

Luncheon Honors 'Our Husband, The Infantryman' as Wives Meet

The special honoree of the 2d Division Officers' Wives Club was nowhere to be seen on the day of its monthly luncheon, February 9. The luncheon honored "our husband, the Infantryman," in the words of the program chairman, Mrs. Arne Eliasson.

In keeping with the theme, the luncheon tables were decorated with center - streamers of "Infantry blue" and the candelabra held "Infantry-blue" candles. Each table was centered by an unfurled scroll containing "A Combat Infantryman's Prayer", and GI Joe dolls dressed in Army uniforms.

A note of sadness was lent to the occasion as it signaled the departure of Mrs. Robert E. Coffin, wife of the Assistant Division Commander. Club president Mrs. William E. Conger presented Mrs. Coffin with an engraved silver bowl and a scrapbook commemorating the club's activities during the past year.

Mrs. Conger also announced the assumption of the duties of secretary by Mrs. Hugh Gracey, occasioned by the departure of Mrs. James Rast.

The luncheon was highlighted by the reading of a special poem, written by Col. Willard E. Chambers, honoring "the woman behind the man." The narrators were Mrs. John W. Gephart, Mrs. Robert B. Tully, Mrs. Harold G. Moore, and Mrs. Strathmore McMurdo.

Hostess units for the event were the ladies of the 3rd Brigade and the 3d Eng. Bn., under Mrs. John W. Armstrong and Mrs. Alfred Grieb-ling.

Special guests were Mrs. James W. Feighner, Mrs. Willard Chambers and Mrs. Samuel Smithers.

Following the luncheon, the ladies departed for the new Infantry Academic Building, where they viewed a special presentation of the epic poem, "I Am the Infantry," followed by an extensive tour of the new building.

7th Cav Ladies Coffee at Jackson Home

The ladies of the 7th Cavalry had a monthly coffee at the home of Lt. and Mrs. James B. Jackson.

Leaving Garry Owen are Maj. and Mrs. Robert E. Mays. Their next permanent duty station will be Heidelberg, Germany.

Volunteers for the month-ly ward party at Martin Army Hospital were Mrs. Irving H. Kline and Mrs. Frank B. Balius Jr.

Squadron bridge hostesses for February are Mrs. Henry F. Martin and Mrs. Robert E. Grant.

HONORARY INDIANHEAD
Gen. Chiles Returns Scout's Honor

Boy Scouts Honor CG During Week

Highlighting the climax Saturday of Boy Scout Week was the presentation of a trophy to Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division during the annual report on scouting activities for the past year.

The Fort Benning District of Boy Scouts represented by Eagle Scout Steve T. Lawrence, Troop 127, Explorer Scout Douglas L. Powell, Post 54 and Cub Scout William C. Quinn, Pack 27, all from Fort Benning gave the general a summary of scouting activities during the last year for each group.

Chiles was presented a trophy on behalf of all boy scouts of America and the Fort Benning District for the support and cooperation in scout activities throughout the year by himself and members of the 2nd Infantry Division.

At this time the general showed his own Eagle Scout Badge to the scouts present, emphasizing the "great work" that scouts here and around the world are doing, he said "the real fine thing about scouting is if you do something, you receive awards and badges."

During the ceremony Chiles made the three scouts and SFC Alfred O. Foster the assistant district commissioner of the Boy Scouts of America honorary members of the 2nd Division.

Foster is the first sergeant of the 17th Aviation Company, 11th Air Assault Division.

Present at the ceremony was Capt. Edward R. Green who is an Eagle Scout and member of the 2nd Division's 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry.

7th Cav Platoons Take Army Training Tests

The armored cavalry platoons of the 2nd Division's 7th Cavalry this week completed two weeks of platoon testing on the Fort Benning reservation.

Casualties Mount During 'Medics' Paper War Action

A "paper war" conducted in the conference room at the headquarters of the 2nd Medical Battalion produced enormous casualties according to reports from the battalion.

Under the command of Lt. Col. Jack D. Wallace, the battalion operated a Command Post Exercise (CPX), plunging the rest of the division into a bloody fight to test the medics' handling of paper casualties.

The play of the problem will embrace the same play as the recently completed division CPX, Winter Sun, said a battalion controller.

"Stress he continued," is being placed on patient treatment, evacuation and medical supply in conjunction with the necessary reports that must be forwarded to higher headquarters.

Planned and coordinated by Maj. Robert Mays, squadron S-3 officer, the platoons of the three letter troops underwent seven-phase testing to determine the effectiveness of their combat performance.

The mission of the armored cavalry platoon is reconnaissance and destruction of small enemy units.

Each platoon is equipped with a scout section, a mechanized infantry section and a mortar section.

In the course of testing the cavalry underwent readiness inspections before leaving garrison, road reconnaissance testing, delaying action testing, night problems and post combat or maneuver inspection of the 34-hour problem.

Capt. Vaden Watson, 1Lt. Edward Kahn, 1Lt. George Snuggs and 1Lt. Daniel Isacowitz assisted Maj. Mays in the testing of the platoons in weather that dropped as low as 18 degrees.

Sergeant Would Dive From 20,000

By HANK ALLISON

"I would like to jump out of an airplane at 20,000 feet — that would really be a thrill," said a quiet man who just "likes to sky-dive."

SFC Billy Kilpatrick, supply sergeant at Headquarters Battery 2nd Division Artillery, went through "jump school" at Fort Benning in 1946. After spending two years in the 82nd Airborne, where he made a total of twenty jumps Kilpatrick gave up his parachuting until a year ago when he was introduced by sky-diving.

"I always liked the jumping, but I always felt like I was dragging my feet the second I jumped," said the slight sergeant. "I wanted more altitude and the Airborne only jumped at 1200 feet.

One of Safest

Sky diving, according to Kilpatrick is "one of the safest of the more rugged type of sports, providing you abide by the safety rules."

The Sport - Parachutists have a national governing body, the Sport Parachute Club of America. This club sets the rules and draws its governing principles from the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

Kilpatrick and another man from Headquarters Battery, Sp4 David Floyd, are regular jumpers.

Kilpatrick has made a total of 38 jumps and holds the distinction of being one of two men in the Army to reenlist while in a free-fall.

The first man to re-up under these novel cicumstances was MSgt. John Hollis who captained the All-Army Sport Parachute team that went to Helsinki for the Olympics in 1961. Kilpatrick was reenlisted by Capt. Jack McKee of the Eighth Army Signal Corps.

"If you get close enough to another man you can hear him talking quite easily while you are falling, however, any bodily contact which takes place while you are in the air must be preplanned on the ground. This is a safety precaution," said the sergeant.

Highest Jump

Kilpatick's highest jump to date was made at 8500 feet. The only protective items on his face are a crash helmet and goggles.

There are many different body positions used in sky diving which can increase or decrease your speed. In a stable position the sky-diver is able to attain speeds up to 175 feet per second. Falling through space at this high rate of speed eats up 8,000 feet pretty quickly. "An altimeter and stopwatch are standard equipment for all jumpers," says Kilpatrick. "This is one of the first rules every jumper must learn.

"The fun part of the sport comes with your proficiency, for as you increase in skill you become more able to maneuver while you are falling.

"Any gymnastics that you can do on a springboad or trampoline, you can do in the air. We turn loops and all kinds of other maneuvers.

"Sky - Diving has a very low accident rate and accounts for not even a fraction as many bones and serious injuries as skiing or mountain climbing.

Good Chance

"If a man's parachute were to come out of the pack but not inflate he would still have a good chance of escaping with minor injuries if he knew how to handle himself."

The sergeant continued, "There is a story of a flier ejecting over the ocean at 20,000 feet and although the man's parachute didn't open he escaped with minor injuries.

"As for age limits, you are never too old to start." Kilpatrick is 38 years old and he speaks of a 60 year old father and his 18 year old son who jumped regularly as a team.

Trexler Named To 1st Brigade's Vacant XO Post

Lt. Col. Tommy P. Trexler, a recent graduate of the Armed Forces Staff College, has been assigned the position of executive officer of the 2nd Infantry Division's 1st Brigade.

Trexler held a Pentagon job prior to attending the five-month Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va. last August.

The newly assigned colonel says that he is looking forward to his duty with the division.

The new executive officer enlisted in the Army in 1947, and gained his commission through the Infantry Officer Candidate School, Fort Bailey, Kan., in 1949.

Highlighting his overseas duty were tours with the 29th Infantry Regiment in Okinawa in 1950 and a Berlin assignment in 1958-61.

Trexler served with the 19th Infantry, 24th Division during the Korean War.

PMOC Chooses New Officers; Hear Speaker

The 2nd Infantry Division's Protestant Men of the Chapel (PMOC) chose Lt. Col. John D. White as their president at a luncheon meeting this week.

White, commander of the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry took over the presidency from MSgt. Louis Mojica, also of the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry.

Vice presidency went to MSgt. Caswell H. Edwards of the 1st Brigade.

PFC Dale Ziemann of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry was elected secretary and Maj. Ralph C. Cooper of the 3rd Brigade became the new treasurer.

Addressing the group at the Sand Hill Non-commissioned Officers' Club was Dr. Leslie Williams superintendant of Missions for the Columbus Baptist Association.

A newly introduced constitution, containing eight articles, declared that the purpose of the organization is to lead men into fellowship with Christ, provide opportunities for Christian Service, and encourage support of the chapel program.

What Can I Expect

Many soldiers are leaving the service each month at an attrition rate of nearly 300 each month. The obvious question that comes to this individual's mind is, "What can I expect from the Finance office when I get out?"

For the officer or enlisted man here are some points that may give you some idea of what benefits you derive when your period of service is completed, provided your tour has been honorable of course.

ACCRUED PAY AND ALLOWANCES

All pay and allowances accrued since your last regularly scheduled pay day will be payable on date of discharge. One important point to remember is that when you are being discharged at any time up to and including the fifteenth of the month, you will not receive pay on the last day of the month preceding.

Instead, you'll receive one month's pay plus whatever you have accrued up to your date of discharge in one lump sum on your discharge date.

UNUSED LEAVE PAYMENT

About the simplest way of breaking this category down is to discuss generally those points which apply to both officers and enlisted men, and then those points which deal specifically with each type.

In general, we all know that leave is determined at the rate of two and a half days per month totaling 30 days a year. Due to operational requirements of a strategic division it is sometimes impossible to take the entire 30 days. Therefore, the Army will pay you for accrued leave time up to sixty days.

Specifically, an officer can expect to receive his basic pay, an allowance for quarters and subsistence for those days of leave not taken. An officer can expect to receive his quarters allowance whether or not he has government housing available to him. This provision also includes bachelors as well.

An enlisted man draws his basic pay, and subsistence at the rate of 70 cents per day despite what his current rate of subsistence is at the time of his separation. An allowance for quarters is given in grade E-5 or above with first class dependents such as wife, children or dependent parents.

PAYMENT FOR TRAVEL

The army pays you a rate of six cents a mile from your discharge point to either your home of record or the place from which you were ordered to active duty. The specific provisions for this payment are covered under paragraph 4157 of Joint Travel Regulations in case you may be interested in the particular case.

Also, you may use any mode of transportation available to you but rates for commercial carriers are included under finance tables that stipulate the amount you may receive. A few points to remember are that you should not have to worry about finance records as these are transported usually fifteen days prior to your separation to a transfer point. All pay is disbursed from the Infantry Center's Finance and Accounting Office so you need not trouble Division Finance for payments upon leaving the service.

One last point, if you possess Soldier Deposits, it is a good idea to take steps with the Personnel Office at Division Finance to draw them out at least one month in advance of your separation. It may save you some trouble after you have left the service.

Sudden Death Tourney Decides Cherokee Entries

Cherokee League play finally resolved itself into a choice of four representatives for the division basketball tournament this week after a hard fought playoff between the 7th Cavalry, 2nd Engineer Battalion and the 72nd Armor.

The play off was occasioned by the 72nd Armor's defeat of the 7th Cavalry quintet in the final game of the Cherokee season last Wednesday.

The 90 to 79 win by the Tankers over the Cav saw Eakins and Haynes of the Armor score 27 and 20 points respectively. Wilson and Howell were the high men for the Cav quintet with 33 and 22 point totals.

Resolution

In the resolution of the three-way tie for second place in the league the 2nd Engineer Battalion first took the Armor to task with an 88 to 71 decision. Menter of the Engineers led the scoring with 31 points and Cameron followed with 27.

Eakins and Haynes were high men for the Armor with 29 and 25 points respectively.

In the second game of the sudden - death play off to decide Cherokee entries, the Engineers handed the 7th Cavalry an 85 to 84 decision. Cameron and Menter were again the scoring leaders in the game that gave the Engineers sole possession of second place and an assured berth in the double elimination championship tourney.

Final Game

The final game between the 72nd Armor and the 7th Cavalry decided the third and final representative in the tournament as the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry quintet had already clinched a play off berth as a result of their second place showing in the first half of the league.

The 72nd Armor won the match to send them into the Armor to task with an 88 to 71 decision. Menter of the Engineers led the scoring with 31 points and Cameron followed with 27.

Eakins and Haynes were the Armor.

The Aftermath

BY TOM KIRWAN

The architects from Special Services have been busy, selecting the prowess of the basketball league and naming them as the 1965 edition of the 2nd Infantry Division all-star team—and organizing a basketball tournament to decide who the divisions number one team is.

The all-star team, picked by the coaches and personnel who have been associated with the league for the last few months, is a tribute to the wizards of the court who have shown their individual abilities as well as their capability for team work.

These well-knit bodies, along with others from Main Post and the 11th Air Assault, will demonstrate their skills before the watchful eyes of Maj. Roger Miler who has the job of selecting those players who will represent Fort Benning in the Third Army Tournament on the 29th of March.

The Second Division all-stars are: Robinson and Cosgrove from the 2nd Med. Bn., Shadrick 1-23rd Inf., Haynes 72d Arm., Nicol 2nd ST., Temple 2-9th Inf., Moore 1-9th Inf., Cameron and Menter 2nd Engr. and Howell of the 7th Cav.

The division tournament is composed of the top four teams in both the Cherokee and Apache leagues.

This tournament, which is presently making battalion commanders and their coaches use battlefield tactics on the front line of Kimbro Gym, will end the regular season in a blaze of hot hands that will only be cooled for some, by the touch of a shiny metallic trophy.

The type of basketball played in this competition next week should be at its best because nine out of the ten players on the All-star team will be playing for teams in the tournament.

The winning team and runner-up will receive the trophies of victory plus the opportunity to participate in the post tournament against teams from the Eleventh Air Assault and Main Post, on the 2nd of March.

Although this is almost the end of the basketball season, the events which are to take place steers this seer to predict, this seasons best basketball has yet to be played.

INDIANHEAD SPORT NEWS

72nd-9th Pull Upsets In Tournament Race

Play for the division basketball championship got under way Tuesday night with two upset wins in the eight-team double elimination tournament.

The 72nd Armor Battalion entry sent the Apache front-running 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion into the losers' bracket of the tourney with an 81 to 76 overtime decision.

The game ended regulation time in a 70 to 70 draw. Haynes and Eakins were the leading scorers for the Armor in one of the closest, most hard fought games to date. They scored 23 and 22 points respectively. Payblas was high for the S and T quintet with 24 points. Nicol, S and T's usual standout, fouled out of the game early in the fourth quarter with only 12 points to his credit.

In the second game of tournament play Tuesday, the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry entry upset the 1st battalion 22nd Infantry 86 to 79. Miller and Shedrick were high pointers for the 23rd and Melton produced the lion's share of points for the 9th.

Games are scheduled tonight and on into next week according to special services spokesmen.

Lt. Gary Taylor, special services officer says the competition to date has been of the highest caliber and urges "maximum spectator participation."

Top Colonels Back From Knox 'Senior Course'

Two 2nd Infantry Division colonels returned this week from Fort Knox, Ky., where they were students in a preventative maintenance course for senior officers.

Col. Burnside E. Huffman Jr., the division's chief of staff, said he thought enough of the course that "every battalion commander and full colonel in the division should go. It was that worthwhile."

Col. Tony F. Perpich, commander of division artillery, joined Col. Huffman in endorsement of the course and said he wished he'd taken the course sooner.

Allman Promoted to Major At 2nd Aviation; Joins 2

A promotion at the 2nd Aviation Battalion recently saw Maj. Bernard R. Allman gain his present rank.

An aviator with a decade of expeience, Allman now pilots the battalioon's S4 section. He joined the battalion in December from the division's Support Command where he was the S3.

Allman's Army career began in 1953 as a lieutenant with a ROTC commission. His first assignment found him at Ft. Jackson where he stayed for two years.

The newly appointed major graduated from North Carolina State College with a BS degree in textile technology. He attended the school on a football scholarship.

AIR ASSAULT 11
THE BAYONET
Sky Soldier News
11th AIR ASSAULT DIVISION
FORT BENNING, GA. FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1965 Page 27

FLY BY . . . Col. Delbert L. Bristol, who has been the commander of the 10th Air Transport Brigade since its activation, views a caribou fly-by during a farewell review held in his honor.

228th Chinooks Test Feasibility Of Long Range Ferrying Flights

A CH-47A Chinook helicopter of the 11th Air Assault Division, recently completed a flight test designed to explore the feasibility of long range ferry flights as a means of deploying the CH-47A to areas of the world where strategic requirements might develop.

The flight, made by Company C, 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion, covered a circular roufe of 812 nautical miles during a six hour and forty minute continous flight period. Normal flight endurance for the CH-47A is two hours.

In the test, the increased endurance was achieved by using a 2000 gallon collapsible pillow tank installed inside the helicopter and connected to the aircraft's integral fuel tank system.

The flight, which began and ended near Columbia S. C. covered a circular course which included both the southern and eastern coastal areas of the United States. Due to low ceilings and visibility over parts of the flight route, the entire flight was conducted at 1000 feet mean sea level. This resulted in slightly higher fuel consumption than could have been expected at a higher altitude, which provides for optimum engine operation.

The aircraft used for the test was a standard model assigned to the 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion, auxiliary equipment and accessories. On takeoff for the mission, the helicopter lifted at its maximum gross weight condition of 33,000 pounds, which included 13,584 pounds of fuel. Average fuel consumption for the twin engined helicopter was 1880 pounds per hour. Average ground speed for the flight was 122 knots per hour. Based on this test, reliable authorities believe that the Chinook, stripped of all non-essential equipment could, flying at higher optimum altitudes, and aided by favorable winds, fly a distance of 1000 nautical miles non-stop. This is longer than any one leg a trans - oceanic flight might require for deployment to any area of the world.

Touchdown after this mission completed another "first" for Lt. Col. Benjamin S. Silver's 228th "Winged Warriors" Battalion at Kelly Hill.

Raks Form Nucleus For 'Bad Guy' Force

Rakkasan paratroopers of the 1st Air Assault Brigade formed the nucleus of a hard-hitting "Bad Guy" force to tackle the 3rd Brigade in the last of the four-day hit and run wars winding up the series of Hawk Arrow problems.

The Rak Task Force consisting of the 1st Battalion, 187th Airborne Infantry, with attached artillery, engineer, cavalry and anti - aircraft elements adopted the surreptitious unconventional tactics of the guerrilla, conducting clandestine operations to inflict maximum damage on their Blueland enemy while sustaining minimum casualties.

From Tuesday morning until Friday's surrender, Lt. Col. Harlow G. Clark's task force struck when possible, reducing the tempo of operations during daylight, and stepping it up after dark.

Col. Clark concentrated his effort on night raids and the utilization of demolitions and artillery to inflict maximum damage to airfields, aircraft, supply dumps and command posts.

Not only did the Blueland "Good Guy's" possess a strong numerical superiority, but also had every advantage in the way of observation, mobility and firepower, using modern, sophisticated weapons and equipment.

Catching the Blueland forces during their initial helborne invasion Tuesday near Goodman Field, the Redland forces conducted harassing operations, afterward withdrawing, leaving carefully placed snipers behind, and setting up ambush positions at key points near the field.

During the afternoon Tues-

227th 'Hueys' Support Hawk Arrow III Action

The morning of Feb. 9, 1965 one platoon from Company B, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion headed by Capt's Hunt and Winn departed Manila Army Helipad for Leyte Army Helipad. The platoon supported Company A, 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion who were supporting the 3rd Brigade in Hawk Arrow III. The scheduled 5:00 a.m. departure was delayed until 9:30 a.m. due to adverse weather conditions. Then the accelerated shuttle began and troops were moved into position from Appart Army Helipad to the vicinity of Buena Vista, Ga. This maneuver took the entire day but did not delay the problem. A night raid was carried out by the 188th Infantry.

On Wednesday, Feb. 10,

Message to All Sky Soldiers

February 15, 1965

Today marks the end of two years of pioneering and developing the air assault concept. This has been a team effort in every sense of the word and at each step on our long, fast journey. Each of you has made a real contribution in this team effort and the total of your efforts is tremendous.

You have converted the theory of air assault into a practical reality of techniques, tactics and general knowhow. You have provided the Army's top leaders with a sound basis for decisions on how far and how fast to go in incorporating air assault units in the future Army. You have met each challenge, solved each problem in superb style. You have my thanks from the heart — my admiration — my congratulations—my sincere wishes for "many happy returns".

Long Weekend; Drive Carefully

On Feb. 22nd, the natives and members of the division will once again celebrate George Washington's birthday.

Because of this holiday the Sky Soldiers will receive a long weekend extending over Monday.

As a safety reminder we wish to express the importance of careful defensive driving.

Help save lives and prevent injuries by following these simple rules:

1. Don't drink while driving.
2. Obey posted speed limits.
3. Open windows slightly for ventilation. Carbon monoxide fumes are deadly.
4. Use plain common sense while driving or engaging in any activity where an accident could occur.

Have a safe and happy holiday. Return alive and relaxed.

RED DOG ASSAULT . . . Two UH-1D helicopters bring men into position with the help of 'Red Dog' guidance systems during a foul weather infantry assault as part of Hawk Arrow III.

'Red Dog' Technique Aids Infantry Attack

The 229th "Stacked Deck" Assault Helicopter Battalion and 2nd Brigade Infantry assault elements recently used "Red Dog" adverse weather instrument flying techniques on recent HAWK ARROW I field maneuvers.

"Red Dog" techniques permit lift helicopters to fly under instrument and radio beacon controlled methods, thus enabling Infantry assault missions to be completed during rain, low hanging clouds and fog.

Lt. Col. Earl K. Buchan, 229th battalion commander, along with his 'Red Dog' staff, Capt. Val Panzitta, Maj. Harvey Detwiler, Capt. William Chritton, Maj. James Peck and Capt. Bill Johnson planned details for the incorporation of the Red Dog technique into an infantry assault to be made on a cloud covered battlefield.

During one "Red Dog" assault, lift helicopters moved Infantry elements to an area near the objective under controlled flight instrument techniques, and then, by single-ships, lifted assault elements to the objective.

On another, aircraft proceeded to aerial link up areas, joined into specified assault elements, and made the mass attack on call. In each case, flight was controlled by instrument and radio beacon techniques.

In the four day field maneuver which saw emphasis placed on Infantry-Aviation teamplay, 41 HUEY's flew 27 day and nine night assault missions. These aircraft carried 3589 troops over 59,434 passenger-miles burning 41,450 gals of JP-4 fuel. In addition, "Stacked Deck" choppers carried Infantry equipment and supplies over 185 cargo-ton miles.

11th Sky Soldiers In Mass Review For Gen. Harris

Sky Soldiers of the 11th Air Assault Division will participate in a mass review to be held for Gen. Hugh P. Harris's retirement review Feb. 27.

Each infantry brigade and division artillery will provide one battalion of 480 personnel each to be commanded by Col. William R. Lynch.

Color bearers and color guards will be furnished by Headquarters and Headquarters Company and the 2nd Brigade.

Two Little John Rockets will be on display at the review and will be furnished by the 2nd Battalion, 42nd Artillery.

A giant fly-over is scheduled and will include aircraft from the 11th Aviation Group; Division Artillery; 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry and the 10th Air Transport Brigade.

Rak 'Bad Guys'

day, platoon size forces were positioned throughout the immediate combat zone to engage the invading forces, withdrawing after heavy contact was made rendering their positions untenable.

Tuesday night the RAK guerrillas made two assaults on the Blueland brigade base as diversionary measures to enable individual guerrillas to make penetrations carrying concealed weapons.

Deliberate unit buildup of Rak forces to company-size early Wednesday morning forced 3rd Brigade forces to attack; and conduct search and clear operations throughout the entire area, exposing them to sniper fire, and possible counter-attack.

Simultaneously, a Rak guerrilla company was positioned near the Blue force brigade base, launching an attack on the base after a Blue force battalion was airlifted out, breaking off the attack and withdrawing after achieving an initial success through this shock operation.

Patrols up to platoon size in force, moved to the vicinity of each battalion base Wednesday night, launching attacks around midnight during penetration attempts, after which they were withdrawn.

The first two days were rugged for the Redland force, and as their control of the hotly contested real estate deteriorated, they were forced to scatter in smaller bands, hiding during daylight hours, and making bold night raids.

Conducting limited harassing operations Thursday, and utilizing the artillery battery during an attempt to destroy a supply dump, the Raks remained concealed most of the day, except for a limited attack on a battalion base early Thursday afternoon.

Making up the Redland bad guys in addition to the 187th were elements of the 17th Cavalry, B Battery of the 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery, and the 1st Platoon of Company A, 127th Engineers.

Quick Thinking 229th Aviator Saves Third Damaged Aircraft

CWO John A. Foley of Company B, 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion, with quick action, cool thinking, and precise flying saved his third aircraft from severe damage on an emergency forced landing caused by material failure.

Having already saved his first aircraft last September and his second during the AIR ASSAULT II Carolina maneuvers, CWO Foley once again faced the same crisis on January 29. He was flying the number three position in the platoon of Huey's when the craft was jarred by a loud metallic sound. The Huey immediately pitched and yawed with severe vibrations. Foley took control, moved out of the formation, swiftly went into autorotation at about 1000 feet, reduced power and air speed, and found that he was over a completely wooded area. He selected the best area available, spotted a group of saplings as the least hazardous spot, swung into one of them, and cushioned the touchdown by riding the tree to the ground.

This was Mr. Foley's third successful recovery from a disastrous situation. His first occurred in September of last year when soon after take-off loud noises and power failure caused by mechanical reasons forced autorotation to a nearby road. His second occurred during the AIR ASSAULT II maneuvers of last fall when a disintegrated hanger bearing with accompanying smoke and heavy vibration, forced autorotation with a full complement of troops aboard.

In all three emergencies, Foley expertly landed his aircraft with neither damage nor injury.

THE COMMANDER SPEAKS
Gen. Kinnard Comments On Division's Two Years

Division's Second

Senior Sergeants Fete Anniversary

A dinner commemorating the second anniversary of the 11th Air Assault Division was held Monday, Feb. 15 at the Central NCO Open Mess. In charge of the affair was the Division Sgt. Maj. Chester R. Westervelt.

Present at the dinner were all the Sergeants Major and 1st Sergeants of the division, and the 10th Air Transport Brigade.

Honored guests were Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, Brig. Gen. John M. Wright, Brig. Gen. Richard T. Knowles, Col. George P. Seneff and their wives.

This was the first gathering of all the senior NCO's of the division since its activation. It was also the first chance the men had to honor their commanders.

Mrs. George P. Seneff was presented a silver bowl as a token of appreciation.

Col. Seneff was presented a modified entrenching tool decorated in various colors to represent the qualities needed in a General Officer.

Speeches were made by Col. Seneff, Sgt. Maj. Westervelt and Gen. Kinnard. In Gen. Kinnard's speech he praised Col. Seneff for his outstanding job done as commanding officer of the 11th Aviation Group, and wished him good luck in his new job as Chief of Army Aviation. A dance followed the dinner.

Touch of Spring Seen Around 337th Hat Tree

The ladies of 377th Artillery met at the Black Angus Restaurant for a luncheon last Thursday, February 11. Hostesses for the affair were the ladies of Battery B, under the direction of Mrs. Jack O. Phillabaum.

The unusual decorations, "Hat trees" blossoming with tiny handmade hats, resulted from Mrs. Eugene R. Woods artistic talent. Mrs. Joe A. Leming provided each guest with very original name tags.

The social hour began at 12:30 p.m. and was followed by a delightful luncheon.

Mrs. Nelson A. Mahone Jr., wife of the battalion commander, presided over a brief business meeting and gave special notice to Mrs. Phillabaum and her decoration committee for the table arrangements.

A touch of spring prevailed throughout and after the luncheon as new bonnets, courtesy of Judy Hats Shop, were modeled by Mrs. Woods, Mrs. Westmo Van Loon, Mrs. August M. Cianciolo, Mrs. John D. Monohan, Mrs. Lawrence O. Zitrain, Mrs. Jerry Steele and Mrs. Neil L. Stribling.

Mrs. Warren T. Trent highlighted the fashion show with comments as each model appeared wearing the colorful hats.

Mrs. Roger J. Bartholomew and Mrs. Donald Begay were the winners of the door prizes, fashionable spring bonnets donated by Judy Hats Shop.

Lt. Col. Malley Orients Engineer's Distaff Side

The officer's wives of the 127th Engineer Battalion attended an engineer orientation given by the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Robert J. Malley.

Lt. Col. Malley explained to the wives the composition of an engineer battalion and made it possible for the wives to see exactly where their husbands work to fill in the making up of the battalion.

Equipment and techniques used by the engineers were also shown and explained, including a demolition demonstration set off by one of the wives present.

Shown also was a film of the 11th Air Assault Division which was filmed in color, introduced by Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard and narrated by Col. George F. Seneff Jr.

During the briefing the wives were served coffee and cake.

After the briefing was concluded the wives were met by their husbands and everyone adjourned to the country club for a social hour.

During the social hour farewell was said to Maj. and Mrs. Greyson T. Yetter. The Yetter's were also presented with a silver calling card tray from the officers and wives of the battalion.

Protocol Officer To Be Speaker

Lt. Whaley of the Protocol Office will be guest speaker at the February luncheon of the ladies of the 611th Aircraft Maintenance & Supply Battalion.

Reservations must be in by noon Monday, the 22nd and cancellations by Wednesday noon.

Little John Unit Has Long, Proud History

One of the historically oldest and proudest units in the 11th Air Assault Division Artillery is the 2nd Battalion (Little John), 42nd Artillery.

Currently commanded by Lt. Col. Charles Farber the 42nd Artillery has a history dating back to 1918. In its many years of service to the nation (including combat in both world wars), the unit has earned four decorations and six campaign streamers.

The battle streamers won by the battalion are Alsace during World War I and Normandy (with arrowhead), northern France, Rhineland, Ardennes - Alsace and Central Europe in World War II. Additionally, the battalion has received the Presidential Unit Citation, two citations from the Belgian Army and the Belgian Fourragere.

Redesignated six times since its constitution in 1918, the 2nd Battalion, 42nd Artillery was part of the 3rd Missile Command at Fort Bragg, N. C. prior to being assigned to the 11th Air Assault Division. It has been part of the 11th Air Assault Division since February 1963 —first as a composite battalion (consisting of 105mm howitzer, Little John, aerial rocket and aviation batteries) and since May 1964 as an entirely Little John organization comprised of a headquarters and service battery and three firing batteries.

Under the command of Lt. Col. Farber, the 42nd Artillery has made great strides in the Air Assault concept. From a fledgling organization last May, the unit has been transformed into a combat-ready, highly proficient battalion which has proved itself capable of delivering the "big punch" of the 11th Air Assault Division Artillery at any time and under any conditions.

Among the battalion's many accomplishments since last May have been a highly commendable performance during Exercise Air Assault II; the earnings of Third Army Certificates of Proficiency by two of its batteries during a CMMI last July; the support of the infantry brigades of the 11th Air Assault Division during local and off-post maneuvers; live rocket firings on the Fort Benning reservation in August; and the garnering of many individual and unit awards by personnel and the batteries of the battalion.

The primary weapon of the Little John battalion is the 318mm rocket. This is a free-flight, fin - stablized, solid propellant field artillery rocket designed to be fired from a rail type launcher. It has range capabilities of 3,000 to 24,000 meters and is capable of firing nuclear, high explosive, chemical and practice type (flash smoke) warheads.

Through the years, the 2nd Battalion, 42nd Artillery has established a tradition of service to the nation. This has been both an example and inspiration to all members of the battalion in their new roles as Sky Soldiers in the Air Assault Division.

Sports Minded Flyer Promoted

CWO John G. Danoker, a member of Company C, 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion, received the silver bar of a CWO-W3 in an impressive ceremony recently conducted in the Winged Warrior headquarters by the Commanding Officer, Lt. Col. Benjamin S. Silver.

CWO Daneker, Chinook Helicopter pilot and an Instrument examiner for the 228th Battalion, entered the Army Aviation field in March 1957. Since that time he has accumulated over 2700 hours of flying time in nearly every type of helicopter in the Army inventory.

CWO Daneker was a professional baseball player with the Cincinnati Reds before he entered the Army in May of 1951 and completed his basic training at Fort Jackson, S. C. From Fort Jackson he entered the explosive ordnance disposal branch of the ordnance corp, and earned the explosive ordnance disposal badge. After spending six years in the ordnance disposal he entered the Army Aviation Training Program and there after received his Warrant commission and Army Aviator wings. He is now a Senior Army Aviator with combat experience in Vietnam. Besides gaining recognition as experienced Army pilot, he has become one of the top recognized officials in basketball and football throughout the nation. He has spent the last 15 years officiating over 100 games a season and has been a member of the "International Association of Approved Basketball Officials" for the past nine years. Only recently he was selected as a member of the "International Amateur Basketball Federation" which has picked only one other official as a member in the State of Georgia. He has also been honored as a football official when he was chosen to referee the Hula Bowl football game in Honolulu, Hawaii while stationed there in 1962.

Education Emphasis Big at Stacked Deck

The 229th 'Stacked Deck' education policy is to capitalize on every available moment. During the past Air Assault II maneuver and this pressing maneuver period, 'Stacked Deck' personnel have been increasing their participation in academic education. Even though 91% of the battalion enlisted first three graders have met army established education level, 89% have continued and are continuing to expand their achievements.

Landscape Firing Exercise Tests 38th Infantry Weapon Squads

A relatively familiar Army firing course, Landscape Firing, was given a rebirth by the 38th Infantry on the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th of Feb. when they held a competitive battalion firing exercise.

The firing was held on a squad level basis, with squad leaders completely in charge of their men. It was a competitive test based on squad leaders' control over the individuals, and squad as a whole.

The firing was set up in two phases, day and night firing. Daytime firing was permormed against landscape pictures of trees, bridges, etc., which were set up in series of five at a distance of ten meters. A fire order may have been: "Smith, left front, tree, sniper in tree, 200 meters, four rounds, fire." Situations such as these were given to squad leaders and they had to decide the correct order to give to their men. This was tricky because fire control played a large part in the grading. Night firing was done with pop-up type targets at 29, 40, and 60 meter distances.

Scoring was done on a hit basis. A situation may have required four rounds, and points were awarded for each hit up to four. Wasted rounds were costly since points were given for each unspent round turned in, thus, a squad leader really had to be in full control of his men, as well as have a good squad, to score high.

For this competition, all the members of the squads, including the grenadiers, were armed with the M-14 rifle. The automatic rifles utilized their fire power only on targets specified by the squad leaders, and the grenadiers and automatic riflemen fired only their sectors.

When the results of this competitive firing were turned in and the scores tallied, the 2nd Squad, 3rd Platoon, Company A, with a total of 971 points out of a possible 1313, came out on top.

The weapons squads of each platoon had their own type of competition involving the M-60 machineguns and the M-67, 90mm recoilless rifle. The gunners and assistant gunners fired at targets set ten meters away. These were the standard 500 inch targets. The 90mm gunners and assistant gunners fired at tank silhouettes with sub-caliber rounds, with targets ten meters away also. The results of this competition proved SSgt. Harold Spencer's squad to be the best, compiling a total of 336½ points out of a possible 492.

The mortar squads of Delta Company were run through a grueling six-hour tactical firing test, almost identical to the division Annual Training Tests for mortar squads. The only difference was the adjustment made due to the lack of certain types of ammunition. Nevertheless, the mortar squads boomed out more than 600 rounds during the exercise.

Top honors were captured by Sgt. Willie Kirkland's squad. Sgt. Kirkland's squad, graded not only on its shooting but its tactical application and the actions and orders of its leader, garnered 235 points out of a maximum 252.

These squads and their leaders are to be recognized by the Battalion Commander for their outstanding performances in a Battalion Revue Saturday, Feb. 13, on Kelley Hill.

FROM THE SCOUTS ... Sgt. Maj. William A. Craig (right), 11th Air Assault Division Artillery presents Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard with a token of appreciation from the area boy scouts. The presentation took place following the scouts annual report on their activities.

Maintenance Sgt At 26th Artillery

SFC Norman M. Kilbarger has been assigned as the aircraft maintenance sergeant for Battery E, 26th Artillery. Sgt. Fire Fighters Maintain Safety Vigil

Men Prove Themselves During Actual Incident

BY MIKE GERSHON

Hundreds of helicopters, thousands of gallons of fuel and valuable men involved in the operations of an air assault division requires a constant vigil on safety. A large aspect of this safety is controlled by the members of the Air Ambulance Platoon, 11th Medical Battalion, 11th Air Assault Division.

Twenty-four hours a day the medical aidmen, fire fighters and pilots of the platoon under the command of Maj. Raymond Bosworth, remain alert to answer a call for assistance.

Organized when the division was activated in February of 1963, the unit utilizes UH-1 helicopters to provide rescue, treatment and evacuation of aircraft casualty victims.

To accomplish this vital mission the unit is equipped with a fire suppression kit called the "SPUTNIK."

To better visualize the mission of these daring men and the use of their equipment we can follow the procedure used upon the receipt of an emergency phone call.

When the call is received on the "hot line" phone, the men are alerted by a loud verbal command.

The Crash Rescue Section led by Capt. Donald Hull and the Medical Evacuation Section headed by Capt. Kenyon Forrest rush for the nearby Corregidor Helipad where the helicopters and SPUTNIK are located.

A UH-1 is warmed up and hovers above the equipment.

A sling is attached to the helicopter and SPUTNIK, and the entire fire fighting team is transported by air to its objective.

Upon reaching the scene of the accident the SPUTNIK is lowered to the ground and the helicopter lands upwind of the fire.

Fire fighters, suited in fire proof clothing, and medical aidmen rush out and put the equipment into action. A 150 foot hose is uncoiled and dragged to the base of the flaming aircraft. The SPUTNIK is capable of putting out approximately 700 gallons of fire suppressing foam.

In a recent test conducted near Lawson Army Airfield, Ft. Benning, fire fighter SP4 James Pribble acted as the hose man and PFC Clyde Corneille acted as the rescue man.

The hose man covered the path through the flames with foam from the SPUTNIK and followed the rescue man through the fiery inferno where entrance was gained to the aircraft by the use of a forced entry kit. The simulated casualties were then extracted, treated and evacuated. The medical first aid was led by SP5 Floyd Moore.

While the rescue team is going through the flames, the helicopter hovers along behind them using the air from its rotor blades to blow back the fire.

Other aircraft in the area are alerted and can aid in the personnel evacuation.

Members of the platoon got a chance to prove themselves when an actual emergency mission arose February 9, 1965 after a UH-1 helicopter crashed upon takeoff from Aparri Helipad.

The call was received over the "hot line" at 1:50 p.m. and the team, led by WO Howard Crotty and 1st Lt. Allison Bennett left Corregidor Helipad just two minutes later.

In their helicopter were: flight observer SSgt. Carl Ray, medic SP6 Floyd Williford and fire fighters SP4 James Pribble and PFC Edward Signell. They arrived at the scene at 1:54 p.m.

The SPUTNIK was immediately put into operation and the ten men aboard the burning helicopter were evacuated.

Another helicopter, piloted by Capt. Donald Hull, was on a training mission in the area and assisted in the transporting of the victims to Martin Army Hospital.

The entire evacuation was completed by 2:08 p.m. — proving the speediness and efficiency of the team.

Life-like missions are run periodically for the platoon to maintain a high level of efficiency in case such an emergency as this should arise.

The men who fly and ride in the division's aircraft can feel proud of these men and can be confident in the capabilities of the alert Air Evacuation Platoon, as demonstrated in the recent incident.

They are devoted to their duty as evacuation and medical aid men in this, a most unique unit of the Army.

General Awards Medals To Six at 227th Review

Brig Gen. John M. Wright recently presented awards to men of the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion commanded by Lt. Col. Jack Cranford.

Capt. Donald M. Dawkins, Company C, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion, was awarded the distinguished Flying Cross (First Oak Leaf Cluster) for heroic action against a hostile force while participating in a command and liaison mission for the 21st Infantry Division, Army of the Republic of Vietnam, on Feb. 9, 1964.

1st Lt. Robert C. Welch, Company C, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion, was awarded the Flying Cross for his heroic action against a hostile force on Aug. 30, 1963, while participating in a helicopter rescue operation in the Republic of Vietnam.

1st Lt. Joseph K. McNutt, Company A, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion, was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for outstanding meritorious service in connection with ground operations against a hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam during the period June 1963 to May 1964.

Capt. Walter G. Lilley, Co. D, 227th Assault Helicopter Army Commendation Medal with "V" Device for heroism in connection with a military operation against a hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam on Feb. 27, 1964.

1st Lt. James H. Fitzgerald Jr., Company C, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion, was awarded the Army Commendation Medal with "V" Device for heroism in connection with military operations against a hostile force on June 29, 1963, while participating in a helicopter medical evacuation mission in the Republic of Vietnam.

CWO Myron G. Bethard, Company A, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion, was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for exceptionally meritorious service from July 1, 1963 to Feb. 1, 1964 while serving as Assistant Maintenance Officer of the 573rd Maintenance Detachment while on duty in the Republic of Vietnam.

Upon completion of the presentation of awards the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion "passed in review". Persons decorated and their families were treated to refreshments in the Battalion Commanders Office.

ROTC Graduate Gains Promotion

In a ceremony at his office on January 30th, Lt. Col. Charles W. McQueary, commanding officer of the 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion, awarded gold leaves to Maj. Robert D. Henderson, executive officer of Company C.

Maj. Henderson entered the Army in 1953 at Ft. Sill, Okla., an ROTC graduate of Texas A&M. He spent four years in Artillery before changing over to the Transportation Corps in 1957.

An Aviator with eight qualifications in fixed and rotary wing aircraft, Maj. Henderson served as Aircraft Maintenance Officer for the 64th Engineer Battalion (TOPO) in Libya, an aerial mapping unit, before returning to CONUS to attend the Transportation Officers Career Course at Ft. Eustis, Va. This was his most recent assignment before joining the 11th Air Assault Division.

New Light System Tested on Chinook

A temporary installation of formation lighting was tested by Company B, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion Wednesday, Feb. 10. The system is a cross between lights installed on the UH-1 helicopters of the battalion and the lights recently designed by the Navy for the Ch-46 helicopters.

Test results were gratifying, with few minor revisions of light placement to be tested. It is planned to couple this system which is solely fuselage mounted, with a rotor blade tip light system currently in the mill of the Chinook Project Office, St. Louis.

The combination of fuselage light with tip lights will virtually eliminate pilot fatigue and crew anxiety associated with present position and cabin light arrangement.

Tiger Officer TDY To Artillery Study

Capt. Gerald D. MacDowell departed for Fort Sill, Okla. January 8, where he will be on TDY for approximately four months to attend the Artillery Advanced Officers Course.

Capt. MacDowell became a real Tiger when he transferred from Company A to Company C after returning from AIR ASSAULT II.

Parallel Careers Meet For Two 611th CWO's

Two members of Company A, 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion recently received their orders for Chief Warrant Officer CWO-2. The presentation was made by Maj. Harold T. Campbell, commanding officer of Company A, to WO's William R. Dudley and Dwight W. Glessner. The pinning of bars was conducted at Company "A" Headquarters will all officers aboard.

The two warrant officers have a very unique career parallel in the military service. Both officers entered the Air Force in January 1948, then through Airplane Mechanics School at Keesler Air Force Base, Miss. From there they went to different Air Force Bases both becoming top flight mechanics and on to supervisory capacities in the aircraft maintenance fields.

CWO Dudley ventured away from the maintenance field for a short time to go into special investigation while CWO Glessner took a venture into the civilian life. After nearly four and one half years as a civilian, CWO Glessner returned to the Air Force as a Flight Engineer on KC-97 tanker refuelers while CWO Dudley entered the Missile field.

The two warrant officers having had several Maintenance Schools and a vast knowledge of maintenance experience applied for the Maintenance Warrant Officer program in 1963.

81st Artillerymen Join Aggressor Task Force

Battery B (Aba), 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery donned the red and green uniforms of aggressor forces this past Tuesday as they went to the field with the 187th Infantry to comprise the Redland Task Force. Redland had made aggressive moves into Blueland and the friendly 3rd Brigade was called upon to do battle. They were to find, however, that the aggressors had some surprises in store for them.

The first two days of the problem found activity limited for Battery B as the Red Forces operated mainly as guerrilla outfits. At noon on February 10th, however, the Red Forces assumed a sophisticated role and gained the advantage of the airborne Artillery. Battery B, employing along with supporting Infantry, established road block positions and fired numerous indirect fire missions from areas to the rear of the FEBA.

On one occasion Battery B deployed south of Doyle, Ga., along the fringes of an empty field suitable for a helicopter landing zone. Dug in around Battery B's position was a company of Infantry to provide small arms fire and security. A short while later a company of UH-1D helicopters landed in the field and Blue troops began off loading.

The friendly forces were immediately subjected to the point blank mass fire power of the Artillery pieces and small arms. The controller's assessment was heavy and the ill fated assault ended in a defeat for Blueland.

The exercise provided the personnel of Battery B with good experience and insight into how the aggressor thinks and operates.

Rak Paratroopers Up Jumper Ratings

Seven Rakkasan paratroopers from the 1st Air Assault Brigade exchanged their parachutist badges for more advanced ratings last week, with five adding stars to their badges, while two put wreaths around the stars.

Heading the list in the top category was Capt. David O. Lamb, Ravkasan S-3 Officer, and Sgt. Franklin Williams of Company C, who exchanged their senior wings for those of the "Master."

Adding the star to the novice wings for the title of Senior Parachutist were Capt. William C. Roll of Company B, Sgt. Julius R. Cosma of Company C, and SFC Richard L. Millstead, Sgt. James N. Duggins and Sgt. Harold Hammett, all of the Rakkasan Headquarters Company.

44th Chinooks Test Huey's Vulnerability

Two CH-47 Chinooks from the Provisional Helicopter Company (Chinook), 44th Air Transport Battalion, departed Feb. 9, enroute to Fort Ord, Cal. to support CDEC (Combat Development Experimentation Command).

The mission of the two Chinook's will have a unique role in support of CDEC, in that they will tow "dummy" UH-1D helicopters with a 250 foot cable and allow ground elements to fire live ammunition at the dummy helicopters providing realistic situations, in the vulnerability tests conducted by CDEC.

This rather difficult mission was readily accepted by the Commanding Officer of the Provisional Helicopter Company, Maj. Berry H. Henderson.

Many of the crew members are recent returnees from Viet Nam and the familiar "ring" of bullets around their helicopter will be nothing new to these vets. The crews are: Maj. Dan P. Panageas, Capt. Nick W. Vollman, CWO's Norman Cox, Kenneth G. Donelly, Wayne L. Young, 1st Lt Philip B. Kimak SP6's Albene Ginglewood, Joseph R. Carrier, Johnie Spencer, Luther N. Webb, SP5's Billy J. Carr, Harry W. Light, James Stuteville, SP4's Michael R. Basden, William R. Walker, and Freemon Wilson.

127th Marches to Field To Fight as Infantrymen

"Right Face!" With this small unit tactics command the men of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 127th Engineer Battalion, assumed their secondary role of "Fight as Infantry". Under the command of Capt. Lloyd L. Lee, all of the engineer experts, equipment operators, truck drivers, maintenance personnel and medics went on a two day exercise which involved intensive infantry training.

The battalion staff sections were closed and along with the equipment and maintenance sections, reorganized into Infantry according to the Company SOP. Rumors were heard that trucks were to be used, but were squelched when the command "Right Face" ended with a 4½ mile march to the training area. The Engineers had to leave their trusty trucks behind.

First on the agenda was a night escape and evasion mission. Alpha Company of the 127th Engineers acted as the aggressors and were very effective with their POW compound. The following morning was devoted to classes in Camouflage, Radiological Warfare Effects, and Counterinsurgency. The afternoon followed with a Combat Leadership Reaction Course was used to test the reactions of squad leaders and their men under adverse conditions of fire and terrain. Sp5 David O. Dumas, a maintenance specialist, and his squad of mechanics led the way by being best in two out of the seven test lanes.

A night tactics problem was next with the Battalion S-4 Section acting as the enemy against the hill held by Headquarters Company. Little sleep or rest was had and the word to fall-in for the return march was a welcome one.

The entire company marched in and arrived just at breakfast in the Harmony Church "home" area. Sore feet and tired muscles marked the end of a very successful exercise that is likely to be the first of its kind in scope.

227th Top Soldier

PFC Carl Hill, Company D, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion, has been selected as Soldier of the Month for February.

Pfc Hill, from Galveston, Texas, entered the service in 1963 after completing two years of college. He completed the Helicopter Maintenance Course at Fort Rucker, Ala., in Nov. 1963. Pfc Hill was assigned to Delta Company, 227th, where he serves as an armed helicopter (UH-1B) crew chief.

Senior Aviator

CWO Carl M. Hunter, Company "B", 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion, passed another milestone in his aviation career as he received his Senior Army Aviator [illegible]

New Battery Chief Is Selected at 81st

On Friday January 22, 1965, before a board of battery commanders and the battalion executive officer of the 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery, SSgt. John W. Boyette, Sr., won nomination to the position of Chief of Firing Battery of Battery C.

He earned the position in competition with other staff sergeants of the firing batteries. The board questioned the NCO's knowledge of artillery firing battey procedures, general subjects and current events.

81st' Top Soldier

SP4 Ernest Wright, Headquarters, Headquarters and Service Battery, 6th Battalion 81st Artillery, was recently chosen Soldier of the Month for the battalion.

SP4 Wright will now represent the battalion in the Division Artillery competition and if selected as Division Artillery Soldier of the Month will go on to the Division competition. He will receive an ingraved cigarette lighter and a letter of commendation from the battalion commander.

FOR VIETNAM. . .Maj. Otrie B. Barrett, (left), acting commander of the 37th Air Transport Battalion, awards a certificate for the 1st Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal to Maj. Kenneth N. Blake, Jr., battalion acting executive officer.

188th Infantry 'Eagles' Finish High During IG

Company "C" of the 188th Infantry "Eagles" just finished their annual IG Inspection coming out high in the standards expected of them. The Company Commander, Capt. William H. Smith, was extremely happy with each and every man for a job "well done."

The 2nd Platoon, which is known as "Cater's Raiders," came out top in the company. This was accomplished through the effort of the platoon leader, Lt. John Cater, and the platoon sergeant, SFC Leroy Ireland. What really set the 2nd Platoon off was the high standards put forth by Sp4 Eric E. Krodel. Sp4 Krodel, who is always very "sharp", is a member of the second squad under SSgt. Richard Jenkins. For this special effort pot forth Sp4 Krodel was given a three day pass for being outstanding in the company.

The day after the inspection Charlie Company again headed for the field to train in the techniques of ambush patrols and anti-guerrilla tactics.

Battery B Claims 81st Top Honors

The first award in this years 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery honor competition was presented to Battery B (Abn) in ceremonies Tuesday morning on the battery street.

In making the presentation Lt. Col. Francis J. Bush commended the men of Battery B for their outstanding achievements during January. Battery B led the battalion in the overall competition which is based on comparative results of training, administration and maintenance inspections by battalion staff members, and by earning the highest scores within the battalion on the Annual Inspector General and Command Maintenance Management Inspections.

Battery B, commanded by Capt. Eugene O. Roverse, has been selected to receive the Third Army Certificate of Achievement for attaining the nigh maintenance standards.

Upon receiving the honor battery trophy, Capt. Roverse cited 1st Sgt. Harvey L. Golson and SFC Ronald Moran, Chief of Firing Battery, for their outstanding leadership in preparing the unit for the inspections.

Basketball Highlights

Off The Backboard

By Lt. Joe Mottola

It's going down to the wire in the 11th Air Assault Division Basketball League. Only the undefeated 511th Infantry "FALCONS" have chinced a tournament spot as of this writing. It looks as though play-offs will have to be held in at least two of the four leagues to determine who goes on to the Division Tournament.

A review of important games begins with the eighth of February, as the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry "KANIENGAHAGA" team maintained their share of second place in the Chinook League with a 56-43 victory over the upset-minded 170th Aircraft Maintenance Battalion.

Wednesday night at Kelley Hill, the "MARNE MEN" of the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry, held fast against the tough "SHOOTERS" of the 15th Artillery.

Over at Harmony Church's Mohawk league, the big rematch of the 81st Artillery "CHARGE SEVENS" and the 187th Infantry "RAKKASANS" got under way before a noisy crowd. The Paratroopers had won in the first meeting but it was all Artillery in this one. Final score 75-60. In the nitecap, the 127th Engineer "BEAVERS" 79-65 victory was over the 26th Artillery.

Thursday night the "MARNE MEN" of the 38th Infantry were back in action as they upped their record to 8-2 as they downed the "ROCKETS" of the 42nd Artillery 43-35.

The 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion "TIGERS" upset the "CRUSADERS" of the 11th Medical Battalion 64-56. The loss dropped the "CRUSADERS" out of a second place tie with the 188th Infantry "EAGLES" in the Iroquois league. The 188th "EAGLES" and the 81st Artillery also kept up their winning ways over the weekend with victories over the 227th "TIGERS" and the 408th "PROVIDERS".

10,000 Troops Set For Parade To Honor General Hugh P. Harris

Post Personnel Asked To Donate Generously

The annual fund raising campaign for the National Health Agencies and the Federal Service Joint Crusade will be held during the period Feb. 24, 1965 through April 7, 1965. This campaign seeks support for many humanitarian agencies through a single, joint appeal.

This campaign affords us the opportunity to help support specific health agencies, many of which render their services to dependents of members of the military service. Our contributions also help the thousands of unfortunates throughout the world by providing food and medical assistance to those in need; and by keeping the fires of freedom burning in the hearts, minds, and souls of those peoples of the world deprived of the freedoms and liberties we of the military stand to defend.

The goal of the campaign is 100 per cent participation in the form of a "generous donation". To this end, I enjoin all personnel at this installation to contribute to this worthwhile cause to help our nation grow physically strong, and to help all mankind live in a world of dignity and honor.

Honors Ceremony Planned For Gen. Norton, Forsythe

An honors ceremony in honor of the departure of Brig. Gen. John Norton and the arrival of Brig. Gen. George I. Forsythe will be conducted on Fort Benning's Chapel Field at 4:15 p.m. Thursday, Mar. 4.

Local commander for the ceremony will be Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges.

The honor guard will be provided from troops of Co. C, 29th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., and the Salute Battery will be provided by Battery A, 2nd Bn., 10th Artillery. Music will be furnished by the U.S. Army Infantry Center Band.

At the presentation of honors the band will sound "ruffles and flourishes" and "The General's March." During the playing of "The Generals March," Battery A will fire an 11-gun salute.

Gen. Norton will inspect the troops accompanied by

Over 10,000 troops, 200 aircraft, plus infantry, armor and artillery vehicles and weapons will be on the "ready line" here early tomorrow (Saturday) morning as Fort Benning prepares to stage its biggest review for General Hugh P. Harris, retiring commander of the U.S. Continental Army Command.

Seating for over 5,000 spectators has been erected at Sightseeing Field to accommodate the thousands of visitors expected to join with Fort Benning personnel in honoring the former post commander and commandant of The Infantry School.

Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, present Fort Benning commander, will be host to some of the Army's ranking officers who began arriving here Friday for the ceremony scheduled to begin promptly at 9:45 a.m.

In the event of inclement weather, the ceremony for General Harris will be held in Briant Wells field house beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Secretary of the Army Stephen Ailes plans to be here for the ceremony along with General Earl C. Wheeler, chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff; General Harold K. Johnson, chief of staff, U.S. Army; General Paul D. Adams, commander, Strike Command (STRI COM) and a virtual galaxy of one, two and three star general officers.

Commander of troops for the review will be Brig. Gen. John Norton, assistant commandant of The Infantry School. His staff will consist of Col. Earl C. Acuff, Lt. Col. Paul E. Johnson, Lt. Col. George J. Magner and, as adjutant, Col. Herbert E. Wolff.

17-Gun Salute

Gen. Harris will be honored with a 17-gun salute fired by Battery A, 2d Battalion, 10th Artillery, commanded by Capt. John P. Vaughn and, just before the troops pass in review, will be decorated with the Distinguished Service Medal. It will make the second time in his 33-year Army career that General Harris has been awarded the Nation's third highest military decoration.

The dismounted portion of the review will be made up of five provisional brigades with four battalions each, an honor guard and massed colors from all the post's major and subordinate units.

Leading in the order of march will be the brigade provided by the 2d Infantry

Two Activities Reach the Top In Fund Drive

Two Fort Benning activities reached 100 per cent participation in the post's 1965 Joint Crusade Fund Drive even before the campaign officially opened Wednesday.

The first to hit 100 per cent were The Infantry School's Department of Nonresident Instruction and the 187th Pathfinder Detachment, 11th Air Assault Division.

The kickoff meeting for the drive was held Wednesday in Theater No. 1 with Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, as principal speaker.

Project officers, campaign captains, group chiefs, team leaders and keymen attended the meeting.

The drive will run through April 7. It involves two major agencies, the Federal Service Joint Crusade and National Health Agencies. Both have several subordinate agencies.

Post Employees Receive Awards for Suggestions

Twenty-two Fort Benning employees have received $2,240 in Incentive Awards from Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges.

Four of the awards for work improvement suggestions went to Mrs. Joan Osterland who received $80; SFC Juan Mora, $75; John M. Rayburn, $70, and Henry H. Hartzog, $15.

Hartzog also was presented $100 for sustained superior performance.

Mrs. Osterland, a technician in the Pathology Service at Martin Army Hospital, was commended for suggesting the use of a commercial process for preparing and filing tissue specimens for microscopic analysis.

The process will result in an estimated annual saving of $1,633, in addition to increasing the efficiency of the procedure by 200 per cent. The saving in time will be approximately 640 man-hours, officials said.

Sgt. Mora's proposal, which has been adopted Army-wide, involves consolidating and streamlining the handling of orders of Reserve personnel reporting for active duty. The plan is expected to save 4,200 man-hours and $7,500 per year. Mora is chief administrative clerk in the Management Services Office at Martin Hospital.

Division and commanded by Col. John W. Armstrong. His battalion commanders will be Lt. Cols. Alfred J. Millard, John D. White, Glen W. Smith and Leonard Trost.

The second brigade, provided by the 11th Air Assault Division, will be commanded by Col. William R. Lynch with battalion commanders Lt. Cols. Harold G. Moore Robert B. Tully, Harlow G. Clark Jr. and Frank A. Athanason.

The Student Brigade will furnish the third marching element to be commanded by Col. Donald T. Kellet. His battalion commanders will be Lt. Cols. Joseph E. McCluskey, Robert Nett, John J. Lissner and L. G. Simmons.

Next in the order of march will be the 197th Infantry Brigade commanded by Col. Walter D. Short with the four battalions commanded by Lt. Cols. William C. Hacker, William E. Boyd, Edwin J. McCarren, Michael J. Malone and honor guard - colors unit commander, Lt. Stephen M. Heller.

CTC Element

The Center Troop Command will provide the final marching element under the command of Col. Jess W. Wells. Battalion commanders will be Lt. Cols. Noble E. Taylor and Joseph E. Halloran Jr., and Majors Clifford A. Philipsen and Floyd M. Maples plus WAC company commander Lt. Frances Overstreet.

Following the marching units there will be two mounted elements representing a cross section of infantry, armor and artillery equipment ranging from ¼ ton amblances to main battle tanks and the Honest John rocket. The two elements will be commanded by Maj. David C. R. Ward, British exchange officer serving with the 58th Infantry (Mechanized) of the 197th Brigade, and Lt. Col. Herbert R. Hill, 2d Infantry Division, 37th Artillery.

A composite band made up of musicians from the Infantry Center, 11th Air Assault Division and will be under the direction of CWO William J. James, 11th Air Assault.

Flyover

The massive ceremony will be brought to a dramatic finale by a flyover of some 200 aircraft from the 11th Air Assault Division and the 10th Air Transport Brigade.

Gen. Harris, who was commandant of The Infantry School from April 19, 1960 to July 31, 1961, will assume the presidency of The Citadel military college at Charleston, S. C., on July 1, succeeding the incumbent Gen. (Ret.) Mark Clark.

Awards

adopted Army - wide, proposed a change in electrical refrigeration units. He is an equipment inspector in The Infantry Center Maintenance Section.

Hartzog, an industrial control man with the Engineer Section, devised an improvement in plugs that connect lecterns to electrical floor outlets in Infantry School classrooms. The change is expected to save $500 per year.

In addition to Hartzog, other personnel who received sustained superior performance awards of $100 include Mrs. Hyrtle T. Heck, Tom W. Smith, Joseph E. Compton, and William E. McHugh, Dennis C. Smith, Laman D. Ingram and Willie Jackson Jr.

Employees who received outstanding job ratings were James Head and Mrs. Ned L. Messerly Jr.

Outstanding ratings and cash awards for sustained superior performance went to Miss Ruth Cook, $100; Berman P. Fuller, $150; William G. Franks, $200; Mrs. A. C. Barefoot, $100; Edmund Barefoot, $100; Edmund Rowe, $150, and E. L. Dunning, $100.

Outstanding ratings and quality pay increases in salary were presented to Mrs. Shelton Hunter, $150 per year; Durward L. Lake, $200, and Mrs. Helen M. Bentfield, $150.

Honors

the commander of the honor company, while Gen. Heintges will accompany Gen. Forsythe on the inspection.

Upon return of the inspection party to the position of honor, the band will play the National Anthem, and the troops will then pass in review.

In the event of inclement weather, the honors ceremony will be conducted in Briant Wells Field House.

USMA Exams Will Be Held During March

About 125 students from the Southeastern United States will be at Fort Benning from March 3 to 6 to undergo academic, medical and physical examinations to determine their qualifications for admission to the Military Academy at West Point, N. Y.

The exams will be conducted by a board of officers headed by Col. Walter D. Short, 197th Infantry Brigade commander. The 197th is also in charge of housing and use of post facilities for the candidates while they are at Fort Benning.

Capt. David C. Young II, of the Admissions Division, United States Military Academy, will speak on West Point's admission program at eight o'clock, March 4, at Marshall Auditorium.

Parents and interested students, especially sophomores and juniors, are cordially invited.

Reserve Officer Candidate Class Is Addressed by Brig. Gen. Norton

In probably his last opening address to an officer candidate class, Brig. Gen. John Norton stressed the school's significance on "How well it trains young combat leaders."

Gen. Norton, who will soon leave his post for the Army Support Command, Viet Nam, added "No matter how large the school grows and no matter how many other activities it encompasses, nothing should dim that significance."

Speaking to 203 officer candidates of Reserve Component Class No. 1 at Wigle Hall, 5th Student Bn., TSB, on Tuesday, Gen. Norton said that today the American way of life is being challenged from many quarters.

"If you are to accept the challenge of fighting for our way of life," he told the candidates, "you must learn all you can about the art of soldiering during your next nine weeks here.

"You can accept no worthier or tougher challenge and you will need all your determination to succeed in this task," he added.

Gen. Norton said the qualities of a good leader are professional skill and knowledge, the ability to apply this knowledge and consideration for others.

"The men who have preceded you through this program have set a particularly fast pace as combat leaders. They have taken a back-seat to no one. You must accept the challenge of their example," he concluded.

OC (RC) Class No. 1 is one of the two Reserve Component Officer Candidate Classes which will be given at The Infantry School.

Defense Office Issues Uniform Security Policy

WASHINGTON (ANF)—The Department of Defense has issued an Instruction (5, 210.47) providing uniform policy guidance, standards, criteria and procedures for security classification of official information.

The Instruction applies throughout the Department of Defense and also will provide the basis for classification activities in Defense industry.

It is aimed primarily at correct classification in terms of current security needs and is expected, ultimately, to reduce the quantity of classified information and material.

The Instruction sets forth for the first time the grounds or reasons for classification, one or more of which must be involved in any particular case of correct classification.

Authority to make original classification determinations is curtailed and restricted to the designated classying officials.

General Plans Benning Visit

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams Jr., vice chief of staff, U.S. Army, will arrive at Fort Benning's Lawson Army Airfield Sunday for a visit to The Infantry Center.

He will address the career course students Monday at 10 a.m. in Marshall Auditorium on "Decision Making in the Department of the Army."

Gen. Abrams will depart from Lawson Army Airfield at 3:30 p.m., Monday (March 1).

The Surgeon Says

Skin Problems

The most common cause for consultation with the dermatologists in any Dermatology Clinic in the country is acne. The large number of medications for "teen-age skin problems" in the drug store shelves is evidence that those who seek professional attention are only a small portion of the total number of people afflicted with this condition.

At one time or another, almost all adolescents will develop a few acne lesions. One recent medical study showed that about one-third of all young men and women between twenty and thirty years of age still have some active acne.

This condition, which affects so many people, is the result of overactivity of the oil glands of the skin. This overactivity is due to hormones produced by the male and female endorcine glands that begin functioning at puberty. The hair canals, into which the oil glands open often become plugged and the oily material accumulates in them. This forms the familiar blackhead. Inflammation around these plugs and infection by the bacteria that normally live on the skin causes the pimples and pustules of acne.

The treatment of acne varies with the severity of the condition. Most mild cases can be controlled with frequent washing with soap and water. This helps to remove the plugs from the hair canals and reduce the number of bacteria on the skin. Some persons notice that certain foods (particularly chocolate and nuts) cause more acne lesions to form and these individuals should avoid those foods.

Patients who continue to have trouble despite these measures should seek an appointment with a Dermatology Clinic. All treatment for acne aims for control rather than cure. True cure comes only with time, as the oil glands become less sensitive to stimulation by very undesirable other effects on the general health.

Therefore, it is important to treat acne during its active phase, understanding that spontaneous disappearance of this condition will eventually occur in almost all patients.

Chaplain's Corner

Were You There?

By Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker
The Post Chaplain

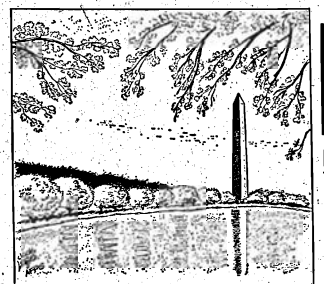
The career man and woman in the United States Army has opportunity to learn about new places and new people through travel by change of station assignment, in the United States and especially overseas.

When we read books about other people and other places we see through the eyes and minds of other writers. When we travel we see for ourselves and form our own opinions. In this manner we learn objectively.

Assignments anywhere overseas provide opportunity on leave time to travel. This can make possible many interesting learning experiences that will be of great value in future years. Those who do not take advantage of opportunities to travel, neglect their own welfare.

From 1944 to 1948 I was stationed in Europe and while there I visited Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Austria, France, Germany, Italy, Switzerland, England, and Scotland on leave time. The reading of many volumes about those countries could not be so beneficial as those visits.

While we form our own personal opinions, when we travel, about people and places, we too are on display and others form their opinions about Americans and the United States. Generally these opinions are favorable for we, by nature, are a friendly and charitable people. Our service personnel overseas are our best unofficial ambassadors. It is our patriotic duty to be good examples of America's best ideals and traditions.



SYMBOL of FREEDOM

The Judge Says . . .

Ignorance may be bliss to some people, but not to those involved with contracts. Some soldiers have the idea that being too poor to pay (TPTP) is a defense against payment of a debt.

Remember that inability to pay is not a legal defense for failure to make your time payments. Also, it is not a legal defense to your obligation on a contract to show that the car or appliances has been turned back, or repossessed, or that the price was excessive.

Failure to make payments on time, or completely, enables the mortgagee, in most chattel mortgage contracts, to repossess the item purchased and to sell it, applying the proceeds to the indebtedness on the item.

It should be realized that the original purchaser (i.e., mortgagor) is legally obligated under most contracts to pay any deficiency which might result from the failure of the proceeds of the sale of the item to equal the amount of the indebtedness. This deficiency can be collected by legal action by the mortgagee, if necessary.

Normally, the proceeds of the item resold do not equal its current market value as the mortgagee has little incentive to sell the item because he is practically insured against any loss.

The Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 does give a soldier certain relief on obligations existing prior to entry into service from civilian life, but does not extend its benefits to obligations contracted while in service.

Obtain advice on the legal aspects of your present obligations or proposed contracts from your Soldiers Advocate.

"The Point of the Spear"

JOHN F. KENNEDY

Editorial

Partners for Peace

Brazil: "I think the satisfactions are far greater than any sacrifices you make. The people have a simple, humble way . . . They're anxious to learn more and improve their way of life."

Viet Nam: "Had to stop for a while to talk to the leader of the Cai Son Agroville about possibility of having his people dig ponds so we can stock them with fish. . .The people here are poor, the land is poor, and the fish are poor. The Agroville Chief was thrilled at the idea."

These passages, from a pair of letters written "to the folks back home," have more in common than an obvious enthusiasm for work in a distant, under-developed nation. The authors (the first is a Peace Corps volunteer and the second an Army captain) share a rich devotion to their fellowman. They have dismissed the hardships that smother our higher instincts . . .the call that prompts us to stretch beyond our own pleasant world.

At first glance, the Army and the Peace Corps seem strange companions in such projects. The thought is due, perhaps, to a common misconception that the ultimate Army mission is limited to "fighting and destruction."

More accurately, the Army exists to maintain the peace . . . and it is the evolution of peace-keeping machinery that places the soldier and the Peace Corpsman side by side.

As the 20th Century moves well into its third quarter, a shrinking globe has placed a premium on international understanding. . . for isolation is impossible and war, more than ever, has no winners.

In this world climate, the Army has become a quiet pioneer in person-to-person aid . . . with heartening success. Historically the Army has supported its mission with skilled soldiers and sophisticated weapons. But the possibility of ever having to use this awesome force is lessened with each word of advice and helping hand extended to the people of developing nations.

Today's labors are concentrated in the hamlets of the Republic of Viet Nam, where Army advisors spontaneously give of themselves to pull a village up to self-respect.

Army Civic Action also has a more formal approach, with engineers, medics and other military specialists working in teams.

This is aid in its most meaningful form: a fence around a chicken-yard, someone to heal a skin disorder, a new roof on a tiny school. Long-term success depends on many other factors, but a lasting impression has been planted in the villagers' hearts.

Whatever the scale of its efforts, the Army depends most on the soldier. . .the man with American ingenuity, persuasion, and doggedness . . . and that precious commodity called a sense of humor, but he's the tough trooper with a short temper if he sees the needy going unaided.

The United States Army is proud to work in the same spirit of idealism as the Peace Corps and other distinguished humanitarian organizations. The Army is proudest of its men . . . ever adaptable, deeply dedicated, and serving their nation with selfless distinction. (ANS)

Folk-Singing Highlights Luncheon Held by Basic Course No. 7 Wives

Fort Benning Society Women's News

BY MARIANNE WHITLOCK and EMILIE DACUNTO

A selection of folk - songs was presented at a luncheon of wives of the students in Basic Course No. 7, 2nd Student Bn., last week by Lt. Handley Batchelder, a student in the course.

The invocation was given by Mrs. Byron Baker. Mrs. Jerry Listone, social chairman, welcomed the student wives and the guests. Guests included Mrs. John A. Heintges, Mrs. Bob E. Edwards, Mrs. Donald T. Kellett, Mrs. Joel P. Lawson, Mrs. Joseph E. McCluskey, Mrs. Ronald S. Caul and Mrs. Dale E. Johnson.

The centerpiece on the main table was a floral arrangement of aqua mums and carnations with a miniature black guitar placed in the center of the flowers.

The student wife hostess was Mrs. Jerry Listone. Mrs. Michaeal Moorhead was program chairman and Mrs. Thomas Rountree handled decorations.

CAR 2 Coffee

Spring hats set the theme "Head Into Spring" presented at a coffee held by wives of officers in Career Course No. 2, 2nd Student Bn.

Mrs. Charles C. Calhoun gave a description of each hat and then selected women from the group to model the hats. The hats were modeled by Mrs. Thomas H. Ulvenes, Mrs. Claude E. Fernandez, Mrs. Tom H. McCraig, Mrs. Andrew M. Seaman, Mrs. Peter M. Dawkins, Mrs. Charles K. Hanson, Mrs. James T. Dunn, Mrs. Richard D. Silfer, Mrs. Harold M. Ramey and Mrs. Jack E. Morgan.

Mrs. Robert H. Hager and the wives of the officers of the 1st Plt. were the hostesses.

ISB Meeting

Wives of officers of the Infantry School Bn. held their monthly coffee recently. Mrs. Robert Taylor was the hostess.

The serving table was decorated to celebrate George Washington's Birthday. A small statue of Washington was emplaced in red and blue flowers, and miniature American Flags were placed around the trays of food.

The wives of the men in the 54th OC Co., 5th Student Bn., held their 5th coffee on Feb. 16th.

The chairman was Mrs. Leland Roy. "Luncheon Organization and Protocol "was the topic discussed by Mrs. Glenn H. Wilson, Mrs. John L. Taylor and Lt. John E. Dyer.

Cadre hostesses were Mrs. John L. Taylor, Mrs. Clifford Cross and Mrs. Glenn H. Wilson.

The student wife hostesses were Mrs. Herald Martin, Mrs. Robert Crawford, Mrs. John Hanko and Mrs. Bryon Carr.

Churchwomen Sponsor 'World Day of Prayer'

Post churchwomen will observe the World Day of Prayer at 10 a.m. Friday, March 5, at The Infantry Center Chapel.

Theme of the annual event will be "What Doth the Lord Require."

The program will be comprised of prayer, meditation, music and instruction prepared by the National Council of Churches for use throughout the world.

The local observance will be sponsored by the Protestant Women of the Chapel Council.

Eight religious organizations for women on the post will participate in the service. They are the Episcopal Churchwomen, Lutheran Ladies, and The Infantry Center, 197th Infantry Brigade, Student Brigade, Sand Hill, Evening and Spanish Speaking Protestant Women of the Chapel.

General chairman is Mrs. Silas E. Decker.

Working with her will be Mrs. D. G. Williams, program chairman; Mrs. L. E. Burnette, music chairman; Mrs. Robert P. Ferriani, arrangements; Mrs. Arthur Estes and Mrs. George Miller, altar arrangements; Mrs. Claude Moorfield, publicity, and Mrs. Joseph Alutius Jr. and Mrs. Ferriani, hospitality committee.

An offering will be taken to support mission projects sponsored by the National Council of Churches throughout the world.

Free child care will be available at Tot Town Nursery.

ORIENTATION COFFEE

An airborne orientation coffee was held recently for the wives of the 4th Airborne-Ranger Bn. Lt. Col. John Lissner welcomed the group. Capt. Dean Potter conducted the orientation.

Outlines Japanese Customs

Traditional wedding costumes adorn dolls used by Mrs. Mary Haig (C) to demonstrate her talk on Japanese Customs at the monthly luncheon of the MTU officers' wives club. Hostesses were Mrs. Christa Wentworth (R) and Mrs. Mary Brown (L).

OWC Bridge Chairman Outlines New Schedule

The OWC Bridge Chairman, Mrs. Noble E. Taylor, has announced that a new series of classes will begin Monday and Tuesday for members interested in learning or improving their game.

Beginness classes will start Monday and will be held in the Country Club from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Interested wives should contact Mrs. John L. Davis, III, 689-2194, Mrs. John D. Miller, 689-6631 or Mrs. Richard Freeman, 689-8099.

Intermediate classes will begin Tuesday in the Country Club from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Registration for these sessions may be made with Mrs. George Ammon, 545-1900, or Mrs. Gurvis Windham, 545-7595.

For wives already familiar with Bridge, there are Duplicate and Party Bridge sessions held weekly at the Country Club. Party bridge is held on Thursdays at 1 p.m.
