Allied Officers Guests Of Columbus Women

Capt. Robert N. Blomstand, Capt. Iraj Bahrami of Iran, Maj. Gunnar Stefansen of Denmark and Col. Samuel H. Herring of Liberia were guest speakers at a meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Muscogee County Medical Society.

Capt. Blomstrand, who is the officer in charge of the section for the Allied Students, explained the reason for the establishing of the training program.

He said that since its inception, over 10,000 officers from 37 countries have trained here. At present there are 96 officers from 36 countries enrolled in the course.

Realizing that these officers and their families were returning to their homes knowing nothing of the people of this country, the Army appealed to various groups to invite them into their homes.

The Army now includes a four-day stay in New York City; a four-day stay in Washington, D. C., a one-day tour of Cape Kennedy, an extensive tour of Columbus and vicinity and a trip to Atlanta for these families.

Superintendent Attends Anuual School Meeting

Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, superintendent of the Fort Benning Children's Schools, attended the annual convention of the American Association of School Administrators in Atlantic City, N. J., Feb. 13 to 17.

Theme for the convention was "Man's Tomorrows."

The program included addresses, discussion groups, closed circuit TV presentations, a "meet the experts" informal gathering, films and exhibits.

All registered nurses are invited to attend the meeting. A primary function of the club is to provide volunteer nursing service to MAH, through co-operation with the American Red Cross.

Rangers' Wives Club Holds Nostalgic Brunch

"Hearts and Flowers" was the theme of a recent brunch attended by wives of the Ranger Department.

The theme created a springtime nostalgia throughout the room with pink hearts and nosegays of lavender violets on lace.

Hostesses for the occasion were the wives of the Combat Conditioning committee and included Mrs. Stanley Pore, Mrs. Ralph Mitchell, Mrs. Donald Grundmann, and Mrs. John Miklas led by Mrs. Arthur Garrett, program chairman.

Mrs. Clara Scheaffer enhanced the springtime theme by demonstrating her cake decorating skill on a "spring basket" cake.

Review Honors Brig. Gen. Norton Due to Depart Benning in March

Dual Role

Keeping proficient as a combat military policeman as well as with garrison-duty keeps the members of the 552nd MP Co., CTC, in training around the clock. PFC Bill Cleghorn, gives directions (L) and assist drivers in the field as well as on post as a part of his training. (Photo by Betty Farmer).

Men from the Student Brigade marched in review Friday afternoon Feb. 19, in tribute to Brig. Gen. John Norton, assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

Approximately 1,000 men paraded before the general who came to Fort Benning in May, 1963, and leaves early in March for an assignment in Viet Nam.

Highlighting the event were an 11-gun salute, fired by Btry. C, 17th Arty., 2nd Inf. Div., and a fly-by of aircraft from the 11th Air Assault Div.

The parade theme was displayed prominently when wind machines blew open two parachutes with the words, "May Man, Jack," a Vietnamese slogan for "Good Luck, Jack!"

Speaking to the participating men and spectators, Gen. Norton said his duty at Fort Benning has been the "finest tour in our (his and Mrs. Norton's) lives."

He also said he hoped "The Infantry School would do as well for my successor as you have done for me."

He summed up the spirit of Fort Benning in four main points: a sense of urgency in moving ahead; professionalism in fundamentals; personal pride for Fort Benning, and the willingness to care for and maintain the Army's equipment in a combat-ready condition at all times.

The ceremony, organized by Col. Donald T. Kellett, commander of the Student Brigade, opened with a formation of troops from Hq. & Hq. Co., the 15th Finance Disbursing Section, the 2nd, 4th and 5th Student Bns.

New Standard Established In Combat Proficiency Test

Fort Benning's officer candidate class No. 3 of the 5th Student Bn., 54th Co., broke The Infantry School physical combat proficiency test record recently by qualifying 93 per cent of its candidates.

The previous high was 86.5 per cent set by officer candidate class No. 4 in 1962.

The class average for OCS No. 3 was the second highest in The Infantry School history with a 451.0 average score, the highest was set by OC 2-65. Of the 177 men in the class, 166 received a score of over 400. The maximum score for the test is 500.

Events included in the test are the 40-yard low crawl, the horizontal ladder, the dodge, run and jump, the grenade throw, and the one-mile run.

"This outstanding achievement shows the spirit and pride that the men of the 54th have in their unit," stated Capt. Carroll R. Wilsen, commander of the 54th. "Physical training and mental training are equally important in the making of a good Army officer. This

The high individual score for the test was tallied by Candidate John P. Stephens unit excels in both." with a total score of 497.

Troop Transport

New Regulation Will Prohibit Sales to Juniors

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The military departments are preparing regulations that would prohibit senior active duty personnel from personal commercial solicitation and sale to individuals junior in rank or grade.

In a memorandum to Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower Norman S. Paul explained that such solicitation would apply at any time, on or off duty, in or out of uniform.

"This limitation includes, but is not limited to," the secretary states, "the personal solicitation and sale of life and automobile insurance, stocks, mutual funds, real estate or any other commodities, goods or services."

Service regulations are being amended to contain language substantially the same as noted by Secretary Paul.

McLemore Is Named Top Graduate

Montagnards Pledge Loyalty in Mountain Ceremony Amid Festive Flags, Pennants and Tribal Musicians

UNPAID MONTAGNARD MILITIA SWEARS ALLEGIANCE . . . By Biting Rifle Muzzle During Ceremony

Special to The Bayonet

SAIGON, Viet Nam — As burning incense swirled madly aloft on a steady mountain breeze, some 1,700 loudly cheering Montagnard militiamen swore allegiance to the Vietnamese government.

During the second in a series of ceremonies held in Darlac Province, 500 mountain women and children watched the large group of armed but unpaid hamlet militia from villages in Lan Thien district about 30 miles from Ban Me Thuot bite rifle muzzles as gestures of loyalty to the Republic.

The exotic lakeside rites began with the sacrifice of a water buffalo to appease the spirit gods. The head of the animal was placed on an ornately decorated altar set in the middle of a field amidst the milling throng. The carcass was divided among the villagers.

Amid festive flags and fluttering pennants, tribal musicians thumped throbbing drums and resounding gongs announcing the arrival of the province chief, Maj. Vinh and American counterpart sector adviser, Lt. Col. W. N. Brinham.

Also joining in the colorful exercises were Maj. Gen. W. R. Peers, a visitor from Washington D. C., Vietnamese Sub Brig. Gen. Lan, commander of the 23rd Division; Col. T. C. Mataxis, senior adviser II Corps; Col. D. A. Kersting, 23rd Division adviser; and Col. P. L. Bogen, chief of the Army Concept Team in Viet Nam.

After trooping the line of massed mountaineers, representing 47 hamlets and eight villages from the surrounding area, the visiting dignitaries viewed the allegiance ritual by the Rhade and Muong tribesmen.

Three rounds of ceremonial artillery boomed as the chanting province chief pledged the loyalty of the troops to the government and the 1,700 assembled warriors bit the muzzle of rifles, symbolic of the oath.

As the visiting officials were invited to participate in the rice wine drinking ceremony. Huge earthen jars were aligned containing the traditional native drink for community celebrations.

The mixture is brewed by placing a special tree branch or bush in the jar. A volatile base is added and the jar is filled with water from nearby creeks.

While a village elder squats in the hot sun reciting an ancient invocation, each person advancing a chair at a time, in turn draws a generous mouthful from each of the jars through a bent bamboo straw about four feet long. Everybody drinks from the same straws.

To signify friendship following the wine jar amenities, each jug - sipper receives a brass bracelet as visible evidence of Montagnard trust.

When the small contingent of American advisory personnel departed the isolated hamlet by helicopter after the ceremonies, the mountain tribesmen were busy emptying the wine jars and cooking the slaughtered sacrificial buffalo over small campfires. Others had set out earlier on the long trek home — 40 kilometers over the mountains

Anti-Larceny Slogan Wins for OC Doolittle

The Student Brigade highlighted its current anti-larceny campaign with the presentation of a $25 Savings Bond to Officer Candidate Douglas Doolittle, 55th Co., 5th Student Bn. (OC), for his prize-winning anti - larceny slogan.

Lt. Col. Claude W. Baker, TSB's deputy commander, who made the presentation, originated the idea to make TSB personnel more security-conscious in regard to both personal and government property.

When asked whether he had devoted much time to his slogan, Candidate Doolittle replied, "I did it on the spur of the moment." Candidate Doolittle's "spur of the moment" action earned him $25.

A total of 228 slogans were submitted during the two-week long contest by personnel of the Brigade. The prize-winning slogan was chosen by Col. Baker and Sergeant Major Elmer G. Green.

Candidate Doolittle's winning slogan was:

"I left a lock unlocked one day,
And thought my valuables would stay,
When I returned, to my dismay, Even the lock had gone its way."

In addition to the slogan contest, TSB augmented its anti-larceny program with lectures at Command Information classes. The program was part of a post-wide campaign to encourage Fort Benning personnel to guard against theft.

TEC Group Developed Comprehensive Program To Test Adequacy, Effectiveness of New Concepts

Early in 1963 the Test, Evaluation and Control Group was formed and was charged with field testing the air mobility concept basing its evaluation on scientific principles. Traditionally, an Army testing effort has consisted almost entirely of field maneuvers, troop tests and Army training tests.

The purpose of such maneuvers and tests has been either to train organizations for combat readiness or to determine the relative state of training of a unit. The evaluation of these tests consisted mostly of military judgment and opinions.

However, since a new concept was to be tested, the TEC Group had to develop a comprehensive program to test the adequacy or effectiveness of functions and systems of the new concept and the new organizations, the 11th Air Assault Div. (TEST) and the 10th Air Transport Bde. (TEST).

TEC Group's approach to the problem was to test the component functions and systems such as intelligence and security, combat support, etc. within the new organizations, evaluating each of the systems independently as well as determining how these systems interacted with each other.

Preparation for and actual testing have been conducted simultaneously with the organization and buildup of the experimental 11th Air Assault Div. and 10th Air Transport Bde. at Fort Benning.

There were actually two major field tests of the air mobility concept. The first, Exercise AIR ASSAULT I, a reinforced battalion task force test, was conducted in the fall of 1963, at Fort Stewart, Ga. The second, called AIR ASSAULT II, was a month long field test exercise conducted over some 4.5 million acres of private land in the Carolinas and Georgia from mid-October to mid-November 1964. It involved the full air assault division and air transport brigade.

In addition to the two field tests, TEC Group conducted three functional tests, in the period between AIR ASSAULT I and AIR ASSAULT II. These tests singled out specific systems within the combat functions of intelligence and security, combat support and mobility for examination. Results of these tests have been published previously.

While the TEC Group conducted AIR ASSAULT I with only a small augmentation, the design, control and evaluation of AIR ASSAULT II demanded considerable augmentation, as the full air assault division and air transport brigade were involved. Thus the TEC Group expanded into a larger Exercise Director Headquarters under Lt. Gen. C. W. G. Rich, commanding general, Third Army, who had been test director for Project TEAM since its beginning.

Since the evaluation problem was so large, the evaluation group formed for Air Assault II was subdivided into functional elements as follows: First, a combat systems evaluation element consisting of the following functional divisions: intelligence and security; mobility; combat support; combat service support, control and communications and air traffic regulation.

There was also an organization and materiel element consisting of the tables of organization and equipment and the critical materiel divisions.

This latter division examined the adequacy of hundreds of non-standard items of equipment authorized to be used by the air assault division and air transport brigade.

The combat operations research group, a civilian group of scientists under contract to Department of Army, provided scientific support for the development and evaluation of the test.

An operations group with an exercise control center at Fort Jackson, an area control center in the field, and with controllers with the troop units, designed and conducted a controlled field test exercise which enabled the evaluation group to collect the data needed for a proper evaluation of the concept.

The Army Materiel Command field office was established some 19 months ago with TEC group to provide an on - site, direct means of facilitating and coordinating fully integrated U. S. Army Materiel Command support for Project TEAM. It has been important to the TEC group's efforts in assisting the air assault division and air transport brigade in getting both the standard and nonstandard equipment they needed for the tests.

Two other offices, the U. S. Strike Command Liaison office and the air mobility liaison office, which report to Department of Army, have provided needed contact with those two headquarters as the TEC group prepared for and conducted the tests.

TEC group's job is not complete with the submission of the final report. It has already been assigned a new air mobility study and evaluation requirements and will undoubtedly receive more.

TEC group's current organization consists of five directorates: plans, headed by Col. William R. Tuck with Col. Lon D. Marlowe Jr. as deputy; evaluation, headed by Col. Ralph L. Dalton with Col. Gerald H. Shea as deputy: organization and materiel, headed by Col. William O. Morgan; test operations, whose chief is Col. William E. Neidner and support, headed by Lt. Col. Howard V. Cooperider.

Deputy Commander for TEC group is Col. Hubert E. Strange, who established the group and was its chief until Gen. Williams arrived in August 1963. Chief of the Army Materiel Command field office is Col. Robert E. Dittmer. Commander of the air mobility liaison office is Col. Edwin L. Powell Jr. Heading the STRICOM liaison office is Col. Harvey N. Brown. Chief of the combat operations research group is Hunter Woodall. Sergeant Major for TEC Group is J. C. McClung.

Five-Part Exam To Take Place Of College GED

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Five new tests will replace the current college-level General Educational Development (GED) test-battery July 1, according to Defense Department education officials.

Called GECCT (General Examinations battery of the Comprehensive College Tests), a major difference from the four-part GED is addition of a mathematics test and increased recommendation from 24 to 30 credit hours.

The U. S. Armed Forces Institute (USAFI) will administer the tests for active duty service personnel to establish college credits toward a baccalaureate degree or for military equivalency purposes.

GECCT samples a student's grasp of subjects ordinarily included in the general educational requirements for the first two years of college, an official said.

Gen. Harris and Clark Performed Similar Army Jobs

Gen. Hugh P. Harris, who will replace Gen. (Ret.) Mark Clark as president of The Citadel in July, has, like Gen. Clark, served in many educational assignments during his Army career, and a comparison of their Army duties reveals a number of similarities.

For example, from 1949 to 1952 Gen. Clark held the position in which Gen. Harris is now serving. In 1917, soon after being promoted to captain, Gen. Clark joined the 11th Inf. of the 5th Inf. Div. in France. Gen. Harris joined that unit at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., in 1938 when he was a first leiutenant, and served with that division during extensive field maneuvers in Alabama, Georgia, and Louisiana immediately prior to World War II.

Gen. Harris was promoted to brigadier general in 1953 while serving as G3 of the Eighth Army in Gen. Clark's Far East Command. During the Korean Conflict they served in that theatre at the same time for more than a year.

A native of Anderson, Ala., Gen. Harris attended Lawrence County High School in Lawrenceburg, Tenn., and the Columbia Military Academy, Columbia, Tenn., before entering the U. S. Military Academy. He was graduated from West Point and commissioned a second lieutenant of Infantry in 1931.

First Assignment

His first assignment was with the 22d Inf. at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and he next served at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, before returning to the United States for duty with the 24th Inf. In 1938 he attended the regular course at The Infantry School.

Gen. Harris was one of five Regular Army officers who volunteered for assignments to the experimental 88th Airborne Bn. at Fort Benning in 1941. He was responsible for development of techniques for loading combat equipment in transport aircraft and gliders and supervised preparation of the service manual and training schedules used in air - transportability training of several infantry divisions.

When the Airborne Command was activated at Fort Bragg, N. C., in 1942 he was designated assistant G3. He held that position during combat preparations of the 82d, 191st, 11th, and 17th, Airborne Divs. and of eight separate airborne combat teams. During his service with the Airborne Command, he also spent three months as War Department observer during Allied operations in North Africa and served on several official boards which developed combat doctrine to be used by airborne forces.

Shortly after activation of the 13th Airborne Div. in 1943, he was appointed chief of staff and served as such in Europe and in the United States until the division was inactivated at Fort Bragg in 1946.

Attended Command Course

Later that year he attended Command Course Number 2 at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. He remained there as a senior instructor in the Command and General Staff College. During a two-year tour there he was chairman of Army, Corps, and Airborne Committees of the School of Combined Arms. At the same time he assisted in preparation of airborne and staff procedure instructional material for use in the Army school system.

Other schools he attended are the Parachute School at Fort Benning, regular course Command and General Staff College, Air Force School of Applied Tactics, British Offensive Air Support Schools, and the National War College.

In 1948 he was an exchange officer with Canada and assigned to the Joint Airborne Training Center in Manitoba where he helped initiate and supervise airborne training of the Canadian Brigade which served with distinction in Korea. During this period he participated in several arctic exercises in Northern Canada and Alaska.

After graduation from the National War College in 1951 he was assigned as the first post-war chief of staff of the XVIII Airborne Corps at Fort Bragg where he organized that staff and remained until July, 1952. At that time he was transferred to Korea as commander of the 224th Inf. Reg., 49th Inf. Div. On completion of this tour as regimental commander, he was designated G3, Eighth Army, and served in this capacity throughout the heavy communist spring offensive of 1953. He became deputy chief of staff, Eighth Army, with staff responsibility for all combat plans and military operations in Korea, in June, 1953. He returned to the United States in Nov., 1953, and was assigned as chief of staff at Second Army Headquarters, Fort George G. Meade, Md.

Two years later he was assigned to Headquarters, U. S. Army, Europe, as commanding general of Berlin Command. In October, 1956, he became the commanding general of the 11th Airborne Div., Seventh U. S. Army, Europe.

Assigned to Benning

Gen. Harris was assigned to Headquarters, U. S. Continental Army Command as deputy chief of staff for operations and training in June, 1958. He became commanding general, U. S. Army Infantry Center and commandant of the U. S. Army Infantry School in April, 1960.

Gen. Harris assumed command of I Corps (Group), Korea, in August, 1961; became commanding general, Seventh U. S. Army in Europe on Nov. 1, 1962; and was promoted to four-star general upon assuming his present position on March 1, 1964.

The general's more than 20 citations and decorations are headed by the Distinguished Service Medal, Silver Star, and three Legion of Merit awards. He also wears the Combat Infantryman, Glider, and Parachute Badges.

CTC Clinches Basketball Crown

By Russ Havourd

The 1st Bn., CTC "Jets" rolled over the 29th Inf. last Friday night at Briant Wells Field House, 85-69, to clinch The Infantry Center Battalion level basketball championship.

The Jets had the upper hand going both ways. Outstanding defense by center Hank Kersman and forward Pernell "Honeycomb" Cole quieted the 29th's high scoring of forward George Walstad and 6'6" center Monty Clausen as 1st Bn. poured it on offensively. Kersman led both teams in two categories, netting 26 points and raking in 17 rebounds.

The first period opened with the 29th taking a slight lead and holding it into the second. At one point, Lt. Col. William Hacker's squad had a 19-9 advantage since the Jets couldn't seem to get under way.

Picking up the tempo in the second stanza, 1st Battalion moved to within range of the hot 29th. Kersman came through with a tap-in to put the Jets ahead to stay, 32-30. At the half the Infantrymen trailed 37-32.

Star guard Carl Seldon began hitting in the third quarter, accounting for most of his 18 points, to lead the Jets to an ever-widening margin.

Again in the fourth, Kersman and Cole combined to control the boards as CTC put the game out of reach.

The victory gave coach Paul Brecka's once beaten quintet undisputed first place in The Infantry Center tourney with the 29th as runner-up.

Both teams have earned a berth in the post championships where they will face two teams each from the 2nd Infantry and 11th Air Assault Divisions. The double elimination tournament will be held March 2-7 in Briant Wells Field House.

Defense was the key factor in the contest, as is proven by the shooting statistics of both teams. CTC hit for 36 per cent from the floor while sinking 50 per cent from the charity stripe. The 29th was more accurate with 45 per cent from the field and 52 per cent from the line, but they had fewer opportunities to score.

This was the second bout the two teams have had. They met two weeks ago in a regular league game which resulted in a narrow 81-80 victory for the Jets.

Six Teams Will Compete For Post Championship

Two teams from the Infantry Center battalion-level basketball league have been selected to compete in the Post Championships, March 2-7. They include 1st Bn., CTC, Infantry Center champions, and the 29th Inf. team, which was runner-up for the Center's crown.

Four other teams, two from the 2nd Inf. Div. league and two from the 11th Air Assault Div. league, are still to be selected.

The six teams will vie in a double elimination tournament to decide the post champs. All games will be played at Briant Wells Field House.

A schedule for the games will be published upon completion of drawings for team pairings. 2nd Lt. Roger Reynolds, sports officer for The Infantry Center, will be in charge of the tournament.

After the post champion team is decided, an all-star team will be picked to compete in the Third Army basketball tournament scheduled for March 29th-Apr. 3 at Fort Jackson, S. C.

Also to be selected is the coach for the all-star team.

Post Rifle and Pistol Club Will Fire Three-Gun Outdoor Pistol Match

By Lee LaCombe

A three-gun, 2,700-point aggregate pistol match will be sponsored this weekend by the Post Rifle and Pistol Club, according to Tom Kirkman, club secretary.

The outdoor event will start Saturday and continue through Sunday.

Four matches will be fired with each of three guns, 22 caliber, center fire and .45 caliber to determine the individual champion. A team match will also be shot with each weapon.

In addition there will be four matches fired using the service .45 caliber pistol and ammunition and a team event with the same gun.

SFC William B. Blankenship Jr., national pistol champion, of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, won the outdoor match sponsored by the club last month.

Just one year ago Blankenship stepped to the firing line at the Post Pistol Range on a Saturday morning and when he had finished firing eight hours later, he had blasted the old national record for a three - gun aggregate and broke into a scoring area never before attained in the history of organized competitive shooting.

He slammed out a 2,674 out of a possible 2,700 points with the three guns, easily erasing the old mark of 2,662 which had been held by Capt. Franklin Green of the Air Force.

No one had ever reached into the coveted 2,670 area before. It heralded the beginning of a successful year for Blankenship who went on to win the national title again and the National Trophy Individual Pistol title, as well as sparking the U.S. Army Blue squad to victory in the National Trophy Pistol Team championship.

STARKS WINS TOURNAMENT

Starks led the 54-hole tourney all the way and finished with a four-over-par 75 on the rain soaked 7,680 yard Miami Springs Club course. Defending champion Lee Elder of Nashville, Tenn. shot a final round 74 for a second place 215.

Devotes Life To Coaching

SFC Andy Collins, a squad leader with the 72nd Engineer Co. (Combat) of the 197th Infantry Bde., is a man devoted to baseball.

Sgt. Collins entered the Army in January, 1951, after managing and pitching on a semi - professional team in his hometown of Lillington, N. C.

He has coached the 197th Infantry Bde. baseball teams for the last two years and last year coached the Fort Benning baseball team which was runner - up in the Third Army championships.

He first came to the post in 1955 and coached the 1956 baseball team for the now deactivated 14th Infantry.

He also managed the 1961 champion American Legion Softball Team while at Hanau, Germany.

SHOOTS HOLE-IN-ONE

Capt. Calvin Mauldin, using a wedge, fired a hole-in-one Tuesday afternoon at the Fort Benning Country Club, it was announced by pro Howard Holbrook.

THE KINGSTON TRIO

Columbus Benefit Show Features Kingston Trio

The Kingston Trio, nationally prominent folk-singing trio, will appear at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium Friday, March 5, at 8:30 p.m.

The group's appearance is being sponsored by the Pilot Club of Columbus and the proceeds will be used to finance the club's scholarship programs and other community service projects.

The Kingstons—Bob Shane, Nick Reynolds and John Stewart—are one of the most popular folk-singing groups today. They helped to make their kind of music popular and have been widely imitated.

A ditty titled "Tom Dooley" was the Trio's first million-selling single record. They came into national prominence in 1958 and have lead the field since then.

Finds Creative Outlets In Ballet and Theater

PFC Ingo Orlamunder, stage manager for the Little Theater's upcoming production of "The Visit", devotes most of his off-duty hours to the pursuit of culture in the form of the theater and ballet.

He performs with the Columbus Ballet Guild and began to study ballet both — jazz and modern — when he was 18. In 1961, Orlamunder helped to form a dance group called Kaleidoscope which performed in New York City public schools.

A member of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf. Headquarters Co., Orlamunder was born in Germany and came to the United States in 1946. In 1962, he starred in a children's show in New York's Greenwich Village called, "Way Out West".

Entering the Army in 1964 after working for a New York television station, Orlamunder came to the 29th last May and immediately began working with Fort Benning's Little Theater.

2nd's Soldiers 'First For Harris'

Indianheads Provide Greeting

Soldiers Think Fast. . .

Records Saved From Fire

BY HANK ALLISON

A fire of undetermined origin swept through a wooden building in the motor pool of the 2nd Infantry Division's 37th Artillery early Wednesday.

No accurate estimate of losses — in terms of dollars—could be immediately reached, officials said, but it was known that seven 155 mm howitzers—sustained "moderate" damage.

Maj. Ernest Kitchens, operations officer of the 37th, has been named to head an investigation into the cause of the fire.

Two 2nd Division artillerymen made repeated trips into the burning building to save important equipment records. Pvts. Carl H. Amburgey and Arthur B. Jenkins of Headquarters Battery, 37th Artillery managed to save equipment log books and other vital records which could not have been replaced.

Said Jenkins, "The office was full of smoke when we first entered it. The flames hadn't broken through yet but they were all over the inside before we got out the last time."

Quick thinking on the part of soldiers working in the area saved several trucks parked nearby from being damaged when they drove them out of range of the fire.

Lawson Guard Welcomes Special Retirement Guests

BY LANNY THOMAS

When Gen. Hugh P. Harris retiring CONARC commander, steps from his plane onto Fort Benning soil this afternoon, he'll receive colorful greetings in the "Second-to-None" style.

The general, along with numerous other military figures coming for the gigantic retirement ceremony this weekend, will be welcomed at Lawson Field by a 2nd Infantry Division ramp guard and band. Company A, of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry, is furnishing the honor offered Harris and other generals.

Among the list of dignataries who will be welcomed by the 'Indianhead' soldiers are: Stephen Ailes, Secretary of the Army, Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army Chief of Staff, Gen. Earl Wheeler, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Paul Adams, STRICOM commander, and Lt. Gen. C. W. G. Rich, commander of Third U. S. Army.

Although this is Harris' last reception as an active military leader, it will be his first time to have 2nd Division soldiers stand by as a ramp guard.

As Harris and others arrive at Lawson Field, the guard, consisting of 40 men, will march out to the plane. The two squads will then face each other and present arms as Harris and others step off their planes. The guard will be on duty from 2 p.m. until 5 p.m. today and from 7 a.m. until 10 a.m. Saturday.

They will be leading four similar composite brigades—representing all the major commands of Fort Benning—in a gigantic retirement review honoring the chief of the U. S. Continental Army Command (CONARC).

An estimated 10,000 soldiers will be massed for the ceremony on Sightseeing Field — in the heart of the post — and some 5,000 spectators are expected.

Gen. Harris, one - time commander of the post and commandant of The Infantry School, is to receive the Distinguished Service Medal.

Soldier Chorus Gets Compliments Following Custer Terrace Debut

BY JIM LULL

"To say they are off to a most auspicious start would be the understatement of the year," remarked Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow, 1st Brigade commander, following the initial performance of the 2nd Division Soldier's Chorus at the Custer Terrace Officer's Club Monday night.

Col. Snow said he was honored and privileged to have the 1st Brigade be the first to host the new group in a public apperance.

The 2nd Division Soldier's Chorus was formed following a suggestion by division commander, Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles who had seen a similar group operated successfully at Fort Hood, Tex.

Monday night the men sang a variety of tunes, including "This Is My Country", "Aura Lee", "Cindy", and "Rock-a-my-soul".

Voohrees, the director, expressed satisfaction with the group following their first performance. The 35 - voice chorus had only been practising together slightly more

Div Officers Bid Coffin 'Farewell'

The assistant division commander for the past 21 months, in early March becomes chief of the nuclear actions section of SHAPE (Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers, Europe) in Paris.

At the head of the receiving line were Gen. and Mrs. Coffin and Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John H. Chiles, the division commander, and his wife.

After the meal Gen. Coffin received mementos of his tour with the 2nd Division — including a scrapbook bulging with photographs and newspaper clippings — and watched a humorous skit.

Dance music came from the division band.

Pilot Praised

Avoids Tragedy By Missing Residents

A 2nd Infantry Division pilot who steered his crippled plane away from a thickly populated North Carolina area before bailing out drew the praise of thankful residents this week.

Capt. Ronald S. Stebbin's Mohawk OV-1 exploded in a clearing surrounded by homes, businesses and a junior high school. A construction crew was at work just 300 yards from the crash site.

"I thought it was going to hit our house," said Mrs. Leon Shackelford. "The people on this street certainly can't praise the pilot enough for guiding the plane into the wooded area and away from the school and residences."

Mrs. Shackleford's husband, manager of a local auto agency, was one of the first to reach the scene of the crash.

When the plane's twin engines failed and the craft plunged earthward at 12:30 p.m., hundreds of students were in their classrooms at Horace Sisk Junior High.

It was not until he and his observer-passenger, Sgt. Jerry McFadden — who both survived low-altitude ejections — were being airlifted away from the crash area that Capt. Stebbins realized how close he had come to the school.

"You read about some plane hitting a school," he said, "And it scares you. Whenever I fly over a city I think about that possibility."

Capt. Stebbins said he saw the construc-

2nd Division Maintenance Course Accepted by All Third Army Units

BY DON DUDICK

A concept in maintenance procedures developed by the Second Infantry Division will be incorporated by all Third Army installations, according to a division spokesman.

The division's Preventive Maintenance Indicator Course (PMIC) will be the guide for other installations. The decisions was made after a team from the Third Army Headquarters recently sat thru and evaluated the course.

The PMIC, established in 1963, prepares commanders and supervisors in the proper methods of preventive maintenance inspections. Such inspections and use of preventive maintenance save unnecessary repairs due to lack of proper care.

Another of the major reasons for the establishment of such a course was the high turn-over of personnel in the division. Officials felt many were coming into the division with outdated or inadequate schooling in preventive maintenance and maintenance management. The PMIC is an attempt at continuing uniformity of such operation in the division.

The PMI school has resident instruction, mobile instruction, and courtesy inspection capabilities. The resident instruction phase is the course. The division periodically publishes schedules which establish "quotas" of personnel to attend the course from each unit.

PMIC is sixteen hours in duration and is conducted over a two day period in the Support Command area.

"A mobile unit of instructors is available to all units on request," said Capt. William McGondel, chief of the maintenance school. "This mobile unit will come down to the unit and conduct instruction on any phase of preventive Maintenance and Maintenance Management.

"The mobility concept is not limited to on post units. Whether the unit desires instruction in its motor pool on Sand Hill, help in the field, or a class at Fort Stewart does not matter. The mobile unit has the capability to conduct a class anywhere."

The courtesy inspection phase of the school was establish to help units prepare for inspections by having a crew of 'professionals' cover the maintenance aspects of the unit. A crew of instructors from the school will help a unit desiring such work prior to an inspection.

DivArty Units Find Materiel Maintenance 'Daily Companion'--Have Own Inspections

BY HANK ALLISON

"Materiel maintenance, the subject of much interest in the 2nd Infantry Division in recent weeks, is a daily companion to the activities of all Division Artillery units, says a DivArty spokesman.

Since October 1963, when the 2nd Division Artillery units were under the command of Col. Burnside E. Huffman, the cannoneers have sported a maintenance management inspection team of their own.

Four times a year, this team of experts in all fields of materiel readiness inspects vehicles, weapons, and communications equipment in division artillery and rates this materiel according to Third Army inspection rules.

Winner

The winner of the competition for the third quarter of 1964, Battery B of the 37th Artillery, was honored at a ceremony last Saturday at Division Artillery Headquarters.

Regular inspections of this type, according to Maj. Joseph F. Cobis, who commands and organizes the inspection team, enable a commander of a large brigade-sized unit to keep abreast of maintenance within his command.

"Enthusiastic"

Maj. Cobis also stated that Col. Tony F. Perpich, Division Artillery Commander, is "very enthusiastic" about the maintenance program.

Most Common

When asked about the most common failings Maj. Cobis mentioned leaky brake systems, defects in the power train (engine, transmission and differential) and the communications equipment, improper mounting of radios and inaccurately calibrated radios.

In the weapons field, the problems usually lie with cleanliness and lubrication. "A clean, properly lubricated weapon, is the best life insurance a soldier can have," said the major.

Units receive only four hours notice before the 15-man inspection team arrives in the area. "This means they have to be on their toes every day," the Major said.

Result

What is the result of all this "bolt tightening", as it is so often called by the private who finds himself with a wrench in his hand?

In the last 18 months since the adoption of the program, the artillery units have increased their combat readiness to such a high degree that they were recently honored by the Third Army inspection team.

Unit Honored For Best Mess

Battery A of the 17th Artillery and its mess steward, SSgt. James D. Guin were recently honored for divisional artillery's best mess for the month of February.

Guin was honored by DivArty commander, Col. Tony F. Perpich for the "excellence" with which he and his staff prepare the bill of fare enjoyed by the men of A battery.

According to Artillery Food Service Technician, WO Wendell P. Rayfield, Sgt. Guin has spent countless off-duty hours remodeling his mess hall to create a pleasant home - type atmosphere in which his men can enjoy their meals. Sgt. Guin has paneled the walls with lumber salvaged from construction work and hung pictures of travel scenes on the paneled walls.

The kitchen has been modernized so that it is a pleasant place for the cooks to work. Many of the soldiers feel that "Our mess hall looks like a nice restaurant." "This is just the feeling I want them to have," says Sgt. Guin.

Said W. O. Rayfield, "The Army needs more men like Sgt. Guin who are willing to do that little extra that makes them stand out in their jobs."

Theatre Group Names Officers

Still nameless, the mushrooming theatrical group meeting at Service Club Two on Tuesday evenings elected officers last week.

First Sign Of Spring Coming To 2nd Division With Thoughts of New Apparel-Fashion Show

Mrs. Perpich Is Host For Coffee

Mrs. Tony F. Peprich was hostess recently to the ladies of Headquarters, Division Artillery, for their monthly coffee at her home on Lumpkin Road.

Mrs. Peprich served the ladies in her dining-room, which was decorated in a Valentine's Day theme. Mrs. Francis E. Mendenhall poured from a Valentine tree, the centerpiece of the table.

The ladies held a surprise baby shower in honor of Mrs. Alan Baumann.

Following the shower, Mrs. Perpich presented Mrs. Doyle Evans with an engraved silver tray on behalf of all the ladies. Her husband, CWO Evans, is retiring from the Army.

With the coming of spring, a woman's fancy turns to thoughts of shedding winter's heavy garb and donning the lightweight clothes of spring and summer.

Not to be outdone by the crocuses and hyacinths, she welcomes the chance to replace winter's browns and blacks with spring's pastels.

The first sure sign of spring to the ladies of the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club is the advent of their Spring Fashion Show traditionally presented at the March luncheon.

This year's luncheon will be held Tuesday, March 9, at the Supper Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Mrs. Arne Eliasson, program chairman, has been at work with ladies who will model the newest in fashions from Davison's Department Store of Columbus.

Farewells Said To Mrs. Grimes

Ladies of the 12th Artillery were entertained at their monthly coffee on Tuesday evening, Feb 16, by Mrs. Edward M. Reed, hostess.

Farewells were said to Mrs. John R. Grimes who is leaving Ft. Benning while her husband, Lt. Col. Grimes, serves a tour in Korea.

The ladies presented Mrs. Grimes an engraved silver tray.

Refreshments of tacos, fruitcake, coffee and cider were enjoyed.

Dutch Generals See 2nd's ROAD Division; Express Interest in Modern Techniques

By HANK ALLISON

Three generals of the Royal Netherlands Army visited the 2nd Infantry Division last Thursday afternoon.

During the whirlwind tour, Maj. Gen. Bouwe Andringa and Brig. Gens. Johannes Wolterbeek and Jacob Kroes were briefed on the ROAD concept of divisional organization by staff advisors to Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, 2nd Division commander.

The visitors were then whisked to 2nd Division Artillery headquarters where they received a briefing on recent artillery developments from DivArty commander Col. Tony F. Perpich and adjutant Maj. John F. Hesterly.

For Maj. Hesterly and Gen. Andringa it was a happy reunion, since the two officers had served together in the Netherlands.

The three generals, here on a fact-finding tour for their government, were briefed throughout their trip by representatives of the division's engineer, infantry, and artillery units. Each of the officers is a specialist in one of these fields of Army operations.

Gen. Andringa Inspector of Artillery, Gen. Wolterbeek, Inspector of Infantry and Gen. Kroes Inspector of Engineers, were all "very interested" in the modern techniques employed by division elements.

Limited Interest

There was a limited amount of interest in, and discussion of, the Army's new air-assault concept. When a flight of Army helicopters passed over the 2nd Division area, however, Gen. Andringa remarked, "Oh, this is what you are using in Viet Nam.

"First it was the foot infantry then, trucks, next armored and now they fly in helicopters." Then the general quipped, "what I have begun to wonder is why you people call yourselves the Infantry when you don't walk anymore."

ROAD Concept

During briefing on the ROAD concept, Gen. Chiles explained that one of the big advantages of reorganization was the unification of all supply and maintenance services under one central command.

"As you can see," said the general, "what we have here is really an American supermarket, where you can buy anything you want and get repairs for any kind of equipment under one roof."

Under previous organizational concepts, supply and maintenance services were divided into seven separate areas. This sometimes made it difficult for commanders to maintain their equipment and obtain supplies, it was explained.

'Very Happy'

Gen. Chiles told the Netherlands officers, "We're very very happy with ROAD. It is very similar to the organization of an Armored Division." Said Gen. Wolterbeek, "The supply and logistics under ROAD are much better than ours. We, however, are studying something much along the same lines."

After the tour of the 2nd Division, the generals left for a tour of the experimental 11th Air Assault Division.

During the 37 months of the Korean campaign, the 2nd Infantry Division Artillery fired a total of 2,389,696 rounds of 105mm and 416,068 rounds of 155mm ammunition.

Episcopal Women Announce Upcoming Pancake Supper

Fort Benning's Episcopal Church Women announced final plans this week for a pancake supper to be held Mar. 2 in the lounge of main post's chapel number three.

The "all you can eat" affair is scheduled from 5:30 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. with the general public invited according to group spokesman, Mrs. Strathmore K. McMurdo.

Mrs. John V. Stoecker, chairman for the event said the cost was 75 cents per person. Children under 12 years of age will be charged 50 cents and children under three may eat free of charge.

The pancake supper is an English version of Mardis Gras, known as Shrove Tuesday. Pancakes are the traditional British diet on "Pancake Day" or Shrove Tuesday.

The money will be used to send a girl from the Appleton Girls' Home in Macon, Ga. to college.

The home holds non-delinquent wards of the court and is administered by the Atlantic diocese. It has a hundred year history dating back to the days of the civil war when it was opened by the Appleton Publishing Company of Michigan for orphans of Confederate soldiers.

Gen Coffin Wins Senior Officer's Pistol Matches

General Coffin outshot Senior Officers' Pistol Match held at Gill Range last Tuesday (23 Feb). The victory marked the second month in a row that General Coffin has won the match.

Colonel Huffman placed a close second, pushing to the end. Throughout the match he was within a few points of the first position and managed to keep pressure on the general.

The officers fired the .45 caliber service automatic on the Camp Perry Course. The course is fired from the standing position at a range of twenty-five yards. Ten rounds are fired at slow-fire,

Letter Pictures Basic Training

For most 2nd Infantry Division soldiers — men who are serving two and three year tours — basic training is a vivid memory.

It was eight weeks of running, jumping and shooting. For many it was the first time away from home. And for the psuedo-sophisticated college boys who thought they'd said goodby to mom long ago, it was an introduction to the cold world.

Basic training was different things to different people. Whatever it was, it has not been forgotten.

Reproduced here — primarily for nostalgic purposes — is a personal letter providing a glimpse into the experiences of a 2nd Infantry Division man's younger brother now living basic training:

"Dear Joe,

"I would be willing to sell the copyrights to my experiences here at Fort Jackson, S. C. rather cheaply. In fact, you can have them free.

"I will start with my first days of training.

"To form A Company, people of all degrees of intelligence were piled into one happy group. Of course this resulted in an impossible mess.

"Fortunately for me, the majority of the men in my company have at least a high school education. There are about 50 men who don't have diplomas. This seems to shock the cadre here. They seem to expect more flunkies than smart people.

"As for actual personalities; some of the men are rather outstanding. And for that reason, I think some of them have been recycled.

"One six-monther, the son of an Air Force colonel, was caught several times wearing a permanent party dickie and a Third Army patch. No action was ever taken.

"But putting on a pair of captain's bars got him an Article 15.

"This 17-year-old kid begged for more. Trainees aren't allowed to have cars on post. He brought his and began dating Wacs.

"He kept a half pint of booze and a six-inch switchblade in his locker, refused to work, hid from PT training and was constantly on sick call.

"Verdict: general misfit. He was recycled.

"Another 17-year-old, a West Indian boy, had a fight with the acting platoon sergeant about America. The West Indian said he was drafted and he didn't really want to leave home.

"One prior service man decided to invade Columbia, S. C. The expedition required forging a pass, which he adeptly did.

"In town, Lord Booze gave him the courage of a lion and he began talking with his fists. The trusty MPs arrived, discovered flaws in his pass and delivered him to the company commander.

"My favorite of them all is a New Yorker with an I. Q. of 145 (I know the exact figure because he keeps reminding me). He has been made an acting sergeant.

"Intelligence he no doubt has. However, he has no common sense. He doesn't know how to handle men. Consequently he spends a good deal of time in the orderly room charging his men with insubordination. No one will cooperate with him.

"We go on bivouac next week and he is supposed to get a blanket party. Time will tell.

"So far we have had four men recycled, one discharged for 'medical' reasons, and two because of financial hardship.

"I fired sharpshooter on the record range. I had a severe problem of jerking the trigger.

"This morning I was appointed acting corporal. You probably know how these jobs are.

"In my platoon there are a few misfits. They hide in the attics to escape the morning run. These men? They're all college grads. They're always late for formation and always crying about being picked on.

"I have been to town only once and I really can't say much for the place. I ate dinner at a relatively good steak house and checked-out the bars: poor.

"Brother Joe, the kindly platoon sergeant has just snapped off the lights. I guess he wants us to go to sleep.

"Well, it's been a long day — every day here is. I can't wait for tomorrow. That's when we go to the gas chamber.

"Until later, adios.

"Your brother, George.

Four ROTC Cadets Will Visit Division

Four Tulane University ROTC cadets are expected to arrive at Fort Benning today for a five-day visit with the 2nd Infantry Division.

Each of the men will be temporarily assigned to a 2nd Division battalion, but they will be quartered at Salerno Mess on Main Post.

"The purpose of the cadets' visit here," said Capt. John Mooney of the division's civil affairs section, "is to show them what an infantry 2nd lieutenant does in his duties as a platoon leader."

They are scheduled to attend the retirement ceremony for Gen. Hugh P. Harris, commander of the Continental Army Command tomorrow. Sunday will be a free day for them.

Monday and Tuesday the cadets will work with platoon leaders in their assigned battalions. They leave Wednesday.

At a not-yet determined time during their stay at Fort Benning the cadets will spend a few minutes with the commanding general in his office.

Marne Field Review Honors Five Retirees

By Chuck McCowan

A miniature review at the 2nd Infantry Division's Marne Field, climaxed a colorful retirement ceremony which rang down the curtain on the military careers of five division soldiers last Friday.

Col. B. E. Huffman Jr., acting division commander in the absence of Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles and the two assistant commanders, thanked the men for their services and congratulated them on their achievements.

"The 2nd Infantry Division will miss each of you, "he said. "I wish to congratulate you on your achievements on behalf of Gen. Chiles, for the many years you have given to the military service."

The retirees are CWO Doyle Evans, Headquarters, Division Artillery, CWO Charles W. Johnson, Headquarters and Company A, 702nd Maintenance Battalion, and CWO Virgil Campbell, 2nd Battalion, 72nd Armor who was not present.

Also retiring are SFC Marion D. Duncan, Headquarters Battery, 1st Battalion, 12th Artillery and SFC Ralph W. Summers, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Engineer Battalion.

The men who have completed a combined total of over 102 years of service will not officially leave the Army until Feb. 28.

Evans and Summers led the group with over 21 years of service.

Awarded to the men during their careers, were one Combat Infantry Badge, one Purple Heart, Three Bronze Stars, four Army Commendation Medals and five Good Conduct Medals with ten loops.

Small Bore Matches Set for Coming Week

'We Are Out To Win This' Says 1st's CO

By Jim Lull

"We're going out to win this one too — as of now, we have everything going for us!"

Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow, 1st Brigade commander, thus indicated his intention of winning the upcoming 2nd Division Smallbore Championship Matches.

Seven teams of the 1st Brigade will be entered in the tourney, three each from the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry and 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry and one from the 1st Brigade's Headquarters Company.

"I would certainly like to see all seven of our original entrants survive the preliminary matches, and make it to the big one," he said.

Emphasizing the fact that the 1st Brigade has a marksmanship reputation to uphold, Snow said, "We have got everything going for us, but we still have to work for this one."

Elimination matches — involving nearly 50 teams—begin Monday as units prepare for the 2nd Infantry Division Smallbore Rifle and Pistol Championship Matches.

Each divisional company-size unit will enter a team in both the rifle and pistol classes. They will fire .22 caliber rim-fire weapons.

The matches are being held to narrow the field of smallbore competitors that will participate in the 2nd Division Smallbore Championship Matches due to be conducted here March 22-24.

According to the division officials, the firing will also serve to improve marksmanship at company level, stimulate interest and improve individual firing techniques.

The week-long elimination matches will be held at Gill Range, in the Sand Hill area.

All companies have held their own elimination firing during the past week to determine the team they will field in the division firing.

Many unit commanders have been urged to utilize the upcoming matches as their "Major Command Smallbore Championships," and to later award the appropriate trophies.

1st Brigade Has Annual Best Mess

The 1st Brigade's Headquarter's Company mess hall, twice honored during the past year as the outstanding division mess hall of the month, has been selected as top 2nd Division Mess Hall for the calendar year 1964.

The 1st Brigade was determined the division's best mess because no other mess hall won the monthly award more than once during the year.

Each brigade size unit submits its top mess hall for monthly inspection by division food service experts. The mess hall nominated by the major commands is based on routine inspections performed by the food service technicians with the units.

An impartial team, consisting of one inspector from the division food service office, one from the division surgeons office, and one "disinterested" inspector from a neutral unit look at the various entrants.

Their decision is based on several facets of food service, including sanitation and physical facilities, food conservation, food preparation and service, maintenance of equipment, security and control of appropriate monies and excess food on hand.

Presently the major commands entered in the competition, less the 2nd Brigade, are the 1st and 3rd Brigades, Division Artillery, Support Command, 122nd Signal Battalion, 2nd Engineer Battalion, Division Headquarters Company and 4th Squadron, 7th Cavalry.

Div Soldiers Give Blood; 512 Pints

Two days of blood donations ended Friday at Kimbro Gym with 512 2nd Infantry Division soldiers giving a pint of blood each, a Red Cross official said.

Henry N. Evans an assistant Red Cross field director, said that 651 men turned out to donate, but that 139 were rejected.

"The number of rejects was about normal," he said. "We can't take blood from people for lots of reasons. Being under 17 is one reason. Another is travel in the Far East in the past two years or recent exposure to malaria or hepatitis."

"I like to give blood," the chief said. "I give it every time the Red Cross comes to the division. It makes me feel light."

Working with Evans on the two-day operation were eight registered nurses from the Red Cross Regional Blood Center in Atlanta, 23 women volunteers and 14 men from the division's 2nd Medical Battalion.

FLAPSTAX already contains the shortening, the milk, and the egg. You just add water. One 10-cent package makes about 8 to 10 eye-poppin' pancakes. Like BIXMIX, FLAPSTAX is made by Martha White. than one week.

The dress-blue "stag" social function with nearly all 1st Brigade officers in attendance began with a social hour, followed by dinner and the entertainment.

Col. Snow said the idea was to give officers within the brigade a chance to get to know each other. This concept has been used in foreign military services and other branches, but it's believed this was the first attempt within the 2nd Division.

Gen. Chiles said following the dinner that "It's cases like this in which we get to know each other better than during the ordinary work-day world."

Fire

who arrived when the fire was out of control said, "The building went up very fast. In less than five minutes the entire structure was in flames. When those two men went after the records, there were no firemen here, nothing but fire."

The officer stated that along with the damaged howitzers, tents and mess equipment were stored in a loft along with portable generators.

Office equipment used by the motor pool staff was destroyed.

There were no serious injuries. One soldier was treated for minor burns sustained while aiding firemen.

"The plane veered more than I thought it would or it wouldn't have been as close to them," he said.

A fractured vertebrae kept Capt. Stebbins in Womack Army Hospital at Fort Bragg, N.C. for several days, but Sgt. McFadden, who ejected at 500 feet, was released almost immediately after treatment for minor cuts and bruises.

At the hospital this week, Capt. Stebbins said he had "no idea" what made his engines fail as he approached Simmons Army Air Field, planning to refuel.

"That's what bothers me," he said. "The Mohawk has a tremendous warning system and not a single light came on. The engines just stopped."

I applied as many emergency procedures as possible; but there wasn't time for a restart. We were over the city, so I told Sgt. McFadden to eject."

Capt. Stebbins said he aimed for the only clear area he could see.

"I wondered if someone would be in the woods," he said. "When I knew the plane was going to crash there I ejected myself."

According to Army officials an investigating board will be called to determine the cause of the crash.

reception will be the 2nd Division Band which will also play at ceremonies for Harris on Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning.

The Infantry Center placed the responsibility of providing a ramp guard for Harris and others on the 2nd Division. The Division then selected the 1st Brigade to furnish the guard who in turn pointed to the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry. Company A was chosen.

"We of the 1st Brigade feel real happy that the 2nd Division gave us the responsibility for this ramp guard," said a spokesman at the Brigade.

Brigade

Division troops will be Col. John Armstrong the commander of the unit's 3rd Brigade.

Soldiers comprising Col. Armstrong's composite brigade will come from the 1st and 2nd Battalions of the 9th Infantry, the 7th Battalion, 17th Artillery; 4th Squadron, 7th Cavalry and the 2nd Battalion, 72nd Armor.

Following directly behind Col. Armstrong and a special staff will be the 2nd Division's living symbol, "Chief" Sgt. Marland Tahbonemah.

Soldiers marching in the review will be wearing dress greens, bloused boots, helmet liners and stripped pistol belts. Rifles will be slung over their right shoulders.

Canoneers firing the farewell salute to Gen. Harris will be members of the 7th Battalion, 17th Artillery.

The division's marching band will be integrated with music makers from the post's other major units to form a single, large group.

Key figures in the 2nd Division portion of the review held a skeleton rehearsal Tuesday. The next day the entire division force paced through their routine on Weiherby Field.

Thursday a full-scale dress rehearsal — with everything exactly as it will be Saturday — was held on Sightseeing Field. Then, as Saturday, adjutant's called was sounded at 9:45 a.m.

Today, for participants in the review, there is only waiting.

But for men of Company A, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry the "big day" is today.

They have been designated "ramp guards," and will spend most of the day welcoming dignatires — including the Secretary of the Army — to the post.

Supply Personnel Being Schooled on Revisions

An organization supply course being conducted in the division's conference room for supply personnel at all levels commenced Feb. 23 and will last through Feb. 26.

The course is designed to orient personnel of each organization on the current revised supply procedure prescribed by a new Army Regulation now being implemented by the United States Army Infantry Center and the 2nd Division.

The most significant change is that on March 1 the Division's entire supply system will become mechanized.

Initially prepunched and preprinted cards will be provided each unit for the issue and turn-in of all parts.

The new system will not only expedite receipt of the supplies but it will notify the unit as to where the item is coming from and when it should be received.

Streamlining of the supply system is expected to enhance material readiness, by reducing the time for obtaining parts.

Lt. Col. John V. Stoeker, the division's G-4, introducing the course said, "the system has a lot of bugs in it, but time will work them out." He added, "the new system will decrease reaction time for supplies to be received by the unit."

'Gary Owen' Honors Troopers at Retreat

"Garry Owen" survived the battle of the Little Big Horn and what's more still lives.

Want proof? Just wander into the 7th Cavalry area north of Scott Avenue and 14th Street sometime. You will find him, or rather it, stenciled, painted, carved, burned, and hacked into buildings, walls, boards, walks, and vehicles throughout the area.

The name, "Garry Owen", is the title of an Irish folk tune. Immediately after the Civil War numerous Irish immigrants arrived in this country. Many, who were ex-European cavalrymen, became part of the US cavalry. The song quickly became popular in Army forts. Gen. George Custer, commander of the newly formed 7th Cavalry Regiment, found the song appealing. He adopted it as the official unit march, thus played at all events.

Although Custer didn't, the 7th Cavalry did continue throughout American military history. With her go the words, "Garry Owen," no was much a legend to military buffs as the unit itself, becoming both motto and sign.

Kean Commands 12th; Recent Grad of Alabama

BY HANK ALLISON

Lt. Col. John P. Kean, Korean veteran, instructor at West Point and Annapolis, N.A.T.O. advisor, and more recently, post graduate student at the University of Alabama, took command of the 2nd Division's 12th Artillery Thursday.

Kean, who last month was awarded his masters degree in Industrial Relations, will replace Lt. Col. John R. Grimes, who leaves for year of duty in Korea.

Said the new commander, "I feel privileged to be assuming command of such a fine battalion with such a terrific heritage. I am looking forward to working with the Honest John Rocket." The 12th is the only rocket battalion in the 2nd Infantry Division.

The pleasant, well spoken graduate (class of '48) has served as a tactical instructor at both his alma mater and at Annapolis.

Kean has served with the Army in all parts of the world including Asia, Europe and as far north as Alaska.

Thirty-eight years of age and "pushing thirty-nine," he found time to squeeze in tours of duty as a unit commander at many posts and as a staff officer for various U. S. Army units as well as the N.A.T.O. and Headquarters Central Army Group (G-3. war plans) in Heidelberg Germany.

Division Photo Men Take Benning Awards

A 2nd Infantry Division cameraman this week captured three first places — more than any other entrant — in the Fort Benning eliminations of the annual Army-wide photography contest.

PFC Don Borders, 24, of the 2nd Infantry Division Information Office, won black and white film competition in the "people," "babies and children" and "experimental" classes.

For the three firsts, one third place and six honorable mentions PFC Borders received $70 in prize money and the privilege of having his work advanced to Third U. S. Army competition.

Top Money

Another photographer, M-Sgt. William G. Smith of the United States Army Infantry Center (USAIC), took two first places, but scored high enough in other categories to become the contest's top money winner with $125.

Three other pnotographers associated with the 2nd Infantry Division Information office were also among the prize winners.

PFC Pierre Beaule, 25, a member of a Lawson Army Air Command alert team, but closely associated with the inforation office, won the "action" class and placed second in "animals and pets" and "experimental" classes with black and white film.

Sgt. Richard H. Peoples a former member of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry, recently reassigned to Germany, took second place in the "military life," black and white class.

All four of the 2nd Division men have been published in the local newspapers and PFC Borders, a graduate of Marquette University, has sold to several magazines including Sports Illustrated and Red Book.

There were an estimated 200 entries in the contest which was subdivided into black and white and color categories with seven classes

Crusaders Upset Medics in Semi-Final Hoop Meet S and T Takes Engineers in Loser Bracket 92-91

The Aftermath

By TOM KIRWAN

Last weekend, the spring-like weather sparked many people into a game which is the high pressure sport of all times. It destroys friendship, breaks up homes, generates bores and to top it all, no one ever plays the game as well as he'd like to.

Golf is the title of the game, and the object is to drive a small, usually white, ball into a series of variously located four inch holes, with the fewest possible strokes.

The game is played on large areas of scenic real estate with rolling spring-green hills dotted with trees of all shapes marked with bare sandy areas and spotted with lakes and ponds.

To an artist the playing area might appear to be a picture of nature in all its loveliness. To the golfer however these bits of nature are a thing to be cursed. For some unknown reason they all seem to act as a magnet attracting the ball to hamper the golfer in his attempt to reach that four inch hole.

In this game in which a two inch putt has the identical value of a 300 yard drive, it is amazing how a person who has a fair-way 100 yards wide to shoot at will continually hit the ball in the narrow strip of rough ground that separates one fair-way from another.

After hours, weeks and months of practice listening to advice from other golfers and finally explaining to the wife why it is more important to play golf then to take her shopping, you arrive at that stage in your golf game where you are considered a good golfer.

At this point in your development one might think that the frustrations of the game are behind you but nothing is further from the truth, this is an individual's game: a man plays against himself and the course, and no one likes to take the blame for bad performances.

In passing, let me note that golf reduces its victims to gibberish. I give you "twosome," "foursome," — and even, praise — be — "fivesome." I present without comment "birdie," "stymie," "dormie," "closes" and "greenies"

Spoken by grown men.

Many golfers go to great pains to avoid high numbers in this game, except when it comes to figuring their handicap. It is because of this that the best definition of golf is as follows: Golf is a game where everyone wants to shoot in the low seventies and have a handicap of fifteen.

Golf is such a fever with some men that I can only draw the conclusion that the hereafter for them will be a green-fairway-in-the-sky where they will face the Eternal Handicapper.

If the weather is fair this weekend, go to your nearest golf course and see these fever ridden individuals but don't look too close for you'll find this individual participating, with his friends, in the heartrending affair of golf.

A night of squeakers climaxed the elimination rounds in the division basketball championship tournament Tuesday night.

In the first game played before a packed house at the 2nd Infantry Division's Kimbro Gymnasium, the only undefeated team in regular season play went down to defeat at the hands of an inspired "Crusader" quintent from the 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor.

Led at Half

The 2nd Medical Battalion led at the half 37 to 25 but Dave Eakins' outstanding point production in the second half proved too much for the medic quintet. The 72nd defeated the Medical Battalion 69 to 65.

Eakin's field goals in the second half brought the partisan crowd to their feet as he hit 11 out of 12 and scored a total of 26 points in the second half to take the game's scoring honors with 33 points.

"Crusader" Charlie Haynes netted 20 in the contest.

High Scorers

Dave Robertson and Tony Motta were the high scorers for the Medics with 22 and 15 points respectively.

In the second game of the evening, the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion took the 2nd Engineer Battalion down the long hardwood road to a 92-91 defeat.

First Round

In first round play, the Battalion fell to the 72nd Armor in a close one 79-77. Haynes with 23 and Eakins with 22 sparked the "Crusader" team. Nick Payblas led S and T with 24 points.

The 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry opened an early lead and held on to defeat the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry, 86-79. Larry Melton with 33 and Leroy Myrick with 22 sparked the 9th Infantry.

In other first round play the 2nd Medical Battalion behind Robinson's 26 points defeated the 37th Artillery, 80-70. Lunford paced the Artillery five with 25 points.

Squeaker

The 2nd Engineer Battalion closed out first round play with an 84-82 squeaker over the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry. Cameron sparked the Engineers victory with 36 points. Louis Jackson with 24 and Ed Irving with 21 led the Manchu quintet.

The 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry was the first team to be eliminated, when they fell to the S and T quintet, 78-72. Nicol played a major part in the downfall of the infantrymen, as he bombed home 36 points.

In the second game of the losers bracket, the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry stayed alive by eliminating the 37th Artillery, 93-67. Moore with 26 and Ferguson with 25 led the 9th Infantry.

Record Intact

The 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor kept its tournament record intact by defeating the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry in winners' bracket play, 80-64. Eakins led the Crusaders with 29 points. Riley's 19 markers led the 2nd and 9th.

A strong 2nd Medical Battalion team also remained unbeaten by defeating the 2nd Engineer Battalion, 83 - 72. It was the first loss in tournament play for the Engineers. Robinson with 30 points led the Medical. Cameron and Minter with 20 points apiece led the Engineers.

The 2nd and 9th Infantry was next to be dealt out, as they fell to once beaten S & T, 90-80. Nicol again led S & T. He pumped home 39 points, a new high in the tournament. Myrick had a good night for the 2nd of the 9th with 34 points.

The 2nd Engineer Battalion met the 1st of the 9th Infantry for the second time in the tournament and again eked out a victory, 73-72. Drummond with 21 led the Engineers. Moore, with 22 points, led the infantrymen.

227th Pilot Awarded DFC For Heroic Act

Capt. Donald M. Dawkins of Company C, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion recently was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for "heroism while participating in aerial flight" in the Republic of Vietnam.

Capt. Dawkins, then a 1st Lt. "distinguished himself by Heroic action against a hostile force while participating in a helicopter medical evacuation" Capt. Dawkins executed an approach under "heavy fire from the Viet Cong Forces. The wounded troops were picked up as enemy small arms fell around the aircraft. He ascertained at this time that a second lift would be required."

Capt. Dawkins "with complete disregard for his personal safety made two other lifts, into the area, one of them in total darkness evacuating a total of seventeen wounded personnel, and bringing in needed supplies and a doctor."

Capt. Dawkins served in the 11th Aviation Company in Vinl Long, South Vietnam for thirteen months prior to his assignment to Company C. He is presently the officer in charge of the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion's instrument school.

Wednesday morning 1st Battalion, 15th Artillery, changed battalion commanders at a ceremony in its Headquarters Battery Mess Hall. Lt. Col. Lloyd J. Picou, on behalf of the battalion presented Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general of the 11th Air Assault Division, with a picture making the general an honorary Artilleryman.

After the presentation Col. Picou bid the battalion "Farewell," and expressed his pleasure in having had the gratifying experience of serving as its commander. Sgt. Maj. George W. Wilson, sergeant major of the 15th Artillery, then presented the battalion colors to Col. Picou who, in turn, handed them to the new commander, Lt. Col. Frank A. Athanason.

Col. William A. Becker, division artillery commander, and Gen. Kinnard then pinned the green command, tabs on the shoulders of Col. Athanason. Col. Athanason then spoke to the assembled officers and non-commissioned officers of the battalion and assured them that the 15th Artillery will always be known as the best where ever it goes. The formation was then dismissed and refreshments were served to the guests.

From the 15th Artillery, Lt. Col. Picou will move to the 11th Air Assault Division Artillery S-3 section. He came to the 15th Artillery from Vietnam where he served as a G-3 advisor to II Corps of the Army of the Republic of South Vietnam. Col. Picou has commanded the battalion since September 1963.

Lt. Col. Frank A. Athanason comes to the 15th Artillery from Vietnam where he served with the Military Advisory Group.

Among the guests were Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, Brig. Gen. Richard T. Knowles, Col. William A. Becker, Col. William R. Lynch, Sgt. Maj. William A. Craig, Sgt. Maj. Chester R. Westervelt, and Sgt. Maj. Joseph Chickini. Also many of the battalion commanders, sergeants major, and staff officers of the battalions and Division Artilleries of both the 2nd Infantry Division and the 11th Air Asssault Division.

Day Room Idea Pays Dividends

An idea paid dividends for Sgt. Earnest S. Atkinson and PFC Arthur H. Allen of Battery B of the 2nd Battalion (LJ), 42nd Artillery as they shared a $10.00 prize for a joint suggestion which they made reference the proposed rennovation of the unit dayroom.

Submitting a suggestion for an improved floor plan for the dayroom, Sgt. Atkinson and PFC Allen won out over several other applicants in unit competition for the $10.00 prize.

Colonel Bristol Receives Honors At Farewell Ball

Col. Delbert L. Bristol, who commanded the 10th Air Transport Brigade since Feb. of 1963 was honored recently at a farewell dinner. Col. Bristol will assume duties as assistant Chief of Staff for Force Development in the Office of the Director of Aviation in Washington.

At the dinner Col. Bristol received his Master Aviator Wings which were pinned on by Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard.

A rather strange presentation was made by the Brigade Executive Officer, Lt. Col. Greg Olney. He presented Col. Bristol with the propeller from the first L-4 airplane Col. Bristol flew back in 1942. Col. Olney, not knowing that it was such, had picked it up 17 years ago off the burned aircraft.

Affixed to the prop is the first set of wings worn by the colonel (those of a Liaison Aviator) plus the aviator, senior aviator and master aviator wings.

Before coming to the brigade, Col. Bristol served as Chief, Army Military Assistance Advisory Group (MAAG) in Vietnam.

He has attended the Command and General Staff College, Army War College and the Army Management School.

3rd Brigade's Task Force Units Complete Hawk Arrow III Action

Last week the 1st Battalion, 188th Infantry teamed up with the 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry and other 3rd Brigade Task Force units to further perfect air assault operations during Hawk Arrow III.

The maneuver was designed to develop quick reaction, offensive and defensive techniques against unconventional forces and to implement effective local security measures around command posts, forward supply areas and airfields.

The 3rd Brigade Task Force, comprising the "Blueland" units, moved into the guerrilla infested "Redland" on February 9, 1965 with the general mission of establishing assembly areas with a given sector and of preparing for further operations to locate and to destroy aggressor unconventional bands.

The problem kicked off at approximately 4:00 a.m., February 9 at which time the Bravo "Bull Eagle" Company mounted 2½-ton trucks in the chill of that morning and motored out of the contonement area enroute to Aggressorland.

The mission of Company B was to clear and secure the Goodman Field complex for the 3rd Brigade to establish its Command Post and forward support airfield. Under the direction of 2nd Lt. Donald G. Peters, the 2nd Platoon of Company C, 127th Engineers further assisted in the defense of the 3rd Brigade CP by laying an intricate network of mines and booby traps.

"Chargin Charlie" Company followed shortly thereafter with the task of securing the battalion base and providing security for Battery B, 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery. The company also acted as the battalion reserve—reaction on - call force.

Later that morning, Charlie Company, 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion, commanded by Capt. Willard M. Bennet, lifted the Alpha "Swamp Rats" Company into their respective area to set up local security and to prepare for air assault operations.

While Headquarters Company personnel established the "Eagle" battalion Command Post, elements of Delta Troop, 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry kept constant vigil and reported on the guerrilla activity within the battalion sector.

In the ensuing days Company B repulsed repeated aggressor penetrations of the 3rd Brigade CP, while Alpha and Charlie Companies conducted air assaults to destroy enemy guerrilla encampments. Norswarthy is the special recognition given Sgt. Albert H. Oro of Company B, 188th Infantry by the umpires for his exceptional and distinguished performance while leading his squad under extremely heavy aggressor fire on the last day of the maneuver, February 12.

Despite the overwhelming odds, the enemy forces, portrayed by the "Rakkassans" under the command of Lt. Col. Harlow G. Clark, proved to be a most worthy adversary as characterized by their effective assaults on friendly positions and their deceptive camouflage and evasiveness when attacked by friendly 3rd Brigade units.

In essence, Hawk Arrow III explored several aspects of air assault concepts which it is believed will enhance future field maneuvers.

81st Artillery Batteries Practice for Years ATT

By Capt. P. J. Kirwin

On Thursday and Friday, February 18th and 19th, battalion umpires administered practice annual training tests to the firing batteries of the 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery. Supporting the umpire team were survey, mess and fire direction personnel of Headquarters Battery.

Following a briefing by the chief umpire, Battalion Executive Officer Maj. William R. Hendrickson, each battery commander briefed his unit and departed the assembly area to conduct a reconnaissance of the firing position by OH-13 helicopter. Advance party and firing battery elements followed on order and occupation of the position selected was completed.

During the practice ATT each firing battery was subjected to chemical and simulated nuclear attacks, aggressor ground and air attacks and radio jamming. Each battery was rated upon its ability to deliver timely and accurate fires in support of an infantry assault despite enemy harrassment.

Upon completion of the practice tests, Battery A, B and C received an umpire critique. All parties agreed that the tests were an excellent training vehicle.

227th Best Unit

During a recent parade and awards ceremonies conducted by the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion, Company D commanded by Maj. Billy L. Tedlock, received the battalion plaque for "Best Company" for the Month of January.

The award is presented to the company that compiles the most points based on formal inspections, daily general appearance of the company area and flight line, manner of performance of tactical missions, daily aircraft availability rate, vehicle deadline rate, and the lowest AWOL and incident rate.

The award was accepted by 1st Sgt. John M. Odgers.

228th Pilot Joins 511th Infantrymen In Benning Swamp

CWO Frank L. Roberson, a Chinook pilot of Company C, 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion returned to Kelly Hill after spending a week as an exercise controller with the 2nd Platoon, Company B, 511th Infantry.

CWO Roberson has spent most of his recent years in the aviation field, however, he relieved many old experiences the past week as he waded through the swamps of the Fort Benning Reservation.

CWO Roberson entered the Army in 1943 and participated in the Normandy invasion in June 1944. After Normandy he joined the 83rd Infantry Division and fought his way across Europe as an infantry soldier.

This war was over in Europe when CWO Roberson returned to the States for peacetime duty. This lasted until the Korean conflict, when he again saw action in Korea from 1953-54.

On his return from Korea he applied from the Army Field Training program, was accepted and received his warrant and wings in ceremonies at Fort Rucker, Ala. in November 1965. Since then he has flown over 2500 hours in Army Aircraft and has been with the division for the past year and a half.

1st Aviation Company Has History That Is Dotted With Many Firsts

The 1st Aviation Company, commanded by Maj. Paul L. Stansel, has a proud history that is dotted with many "Firsts." The unit's accomplishments will speak for themselves, however, they were made possible by the dependable and devoted main crews that keep the company's 16 CV-2B's (Caribour) aircraft flying.

Beginning when the 1st was organized as an Otter company back at Fort Riley, Kan., to the present unit of Caribous located at Lawson Army Airfield here at Fort Benning, the 1st has established an enviable record of flying safety and aircraft availability. These records are made possible by the maintenance section of the company headed by Capt. Marvin E. Childers and his assistant Capt. Michael R. Jakab with enlisted assistant being SFC Bill E. McMillan, the platoon sergeant. This combination along with the other five NCOs and men of the maintenance section of the 1st has been unbeatable when it comes to results. Probably the finest tribute this maintenance section could receive is the complete faith which all of the pilots have in the aircraft when maintenance says that the plane is ready for flight. It has been said of Capt. Childers many times, "if he said it's ready, I'll go."

To further indicate the level of proficiency of this section it would be well to recognize the outstanding accomplishments while the unit participated in AIR ASSAULT II. During the period from Sept. 1 to Nov. 16 the unit averaged 89.6 per cent flyable aircraft and for the same period amassed 5,347.1 accident free flying hours.

This stated that the 1st Aviation Company had the highest aircraft availability rate and the lowest aircraft out of commission rate of any company sized unit in the 11th Air Assault Division during AIR ASSAULT II.

All of these records are due to the technical proficiency and great devotion to duty of the maintenance personnel such as those mentioned previously and Sgt. William F. Pethel and Sgt. Myrle Connelly of the 1st Platoon and Sgt. Mathew W. Piekielniak and Sgt. Brissette of the 2nd Platoon. These men have combined their efforts into a single purpose, that being the best maintennance available to what they consider the finest pilots in the Army, and because they are all part of the 1st Aviation Company and striving to make the 1st the best.

Top Service Pays For 38th Soldier

Constant honors and continuous outstanding service paid off for a member of the 1st Air Assault Brigade's 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry, when Sp4 Thomas Campbell of Company D was privileged to serve as General's Orderly during the first week in January.

During that week, Campbell accompanied Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard during most of his official functions, serving as assistant to the aide de camp.

Cited on numerous occassions for his superior performance, his two most distinctive honors were when he was named most outstanding soldier in basic training in Company C of the 1st Training Brigade's, 5th Battalion, and last August when he was named Soldier of the Month for the 11th Air Assault Division.

A native of Kailua, Hawaii, Campbell enlisted in the Army in Sept. 1963 at Schofield Barracks, and upon completion of his initial training, joined the 38th. He is presently serving as a radio - telephone operator with the 1st Rock Recon Platoon.

ARTILLERYMEN RE-UP

Three more members of the 2nd Battalion (Little John), 42nd Artillery have reenlisted for their own vacancies in that organization. They are Sgt. Bill J. Long of Battery A and SP5 Lawrence G. Fields and PFC Frank Bell of Headquarters and Service Battery.

Brigade Offers Words of Praise To Division's Support Elements

BY SSGT. T. G. JAMESON

For the past two years, Sky Soldier Infantrymen of the 1st Air Assault Brigade have tackled problems and enjoyed successes hitherto unknown by Army Infantrymen, but like their earthbound counterparts in the conventional division, their successes have only been possible with the continued support of the attached direct and general support units of the 11th Air Assault Division.

It is with this thought in mind that as their second year in the Air Assault business drew to a close this month, the sky soldiers of the 1st Brigade pay tribute to those unsung heroes who have helped make it all possible.

From the early days at Fort Stewart in 1963 until Hawk Arrow II this month, these units have unfailingly contributed their share to gaining the maximum effect from the Infantryman in his mission, that of closing with and destroying the enemy.

That pervasive and ubiquitous influence which the air assault brigade exercises on the maneuver ground has been made possible by the rapid air transport of Infantry units, provided by aerial units of the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion.

The devastating firepower of heavy artillery, which enables the Infantryman to close with his enemy, has been brought into play time and time again by the aerial rocket ships and ground batteries of the 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery.

Defensive operations by the 127th Engineers have achieved spectacular success with the various barrier plans which have been put into effect to provide base security with ambush traps, minefields, man-made obstacles, and often these hard-working engineers have been required to fight as Infantrymen.

Equally impressive is the work of the Division Pathfinders, who both day and night, have parachuted into difficult areas to mark and prepare landing zones for the transport aircraft carrying attacking Infantrymen.

The boys carrying the heavy loads from the 228th Assault Support Battalion with their CH-47 "Chinooks" have done their share, transporting the Artillery's howitzers, command jeeps and trailers, mules and other heavy equipment during the initial long-range deployment of the Sky Soldiers.

Providing reconnaissance by fire for the 1st Brigade has been the air cavalry troops of Troop B of the 17th Cav's 3rd Squadron with two aerial platoons and one ground platoon, leading raids and screening flanks and forward positions behind enemy lines.

Many other supporting units, such as those of the 10th Air Transport Brigade, 511th Signal, Support Command, the 228th Aerial Surveillance and Escort Battalion, 71th Maintenance Battalion, have more than done their share in assuring that the Infantryman gets there on time, with the right equipment and is able to carry out his mission.

1st Brigade Commander, Col. George S. Beatty pointed out the magnitude of the support forces role recently when he appeared as guest speaker an an Officers and NCO Luncheon sponsored by the 121st Engineers, stating that never before had supporting units been required to improvise and design new means to meet the needs of an all-new concept in ground warfare.

The colonel pointed out the speed with which the supporting units had to adjust to the rapid pace of air assault operations in addition to overcoming problems which never before existed, and closed by saying that every challenge had been accepted with workable solutions reached, with progress continuing in all areas.

TEAMWORK PAYS AT 611TH
Crew Chief and Mechanic Combine Efforts

611th Battalion Sized Companies Support The Flying Sky Soldiers

Activated in September 1963, as part of the ever-growing 11th Air Assault Division, Company B, 611th Aircraft Maintenance & Supply Battalion became a part of the largest Aircraft Maintenance & Supply Battalion in the United States Army. The company itself, compares in size to a few of the battalions within the 11th Air Assault Division. The 611th Battalion is the largest of the 11th Air Assault Division's battalions.

Overcoming the growing pains of initial organization, the first aircraft work order for Company B was accepted in early Dec. of 1963. Since that time hundreds of aircraft work orders and thousands of allied shop work orders have been completed in support of fixed and rotary wing aircraft ranging in numbers of, from one hundred, to one hundred fifty aircraft.

The unit has had three commanding officers since its' inception. (Maj. (then Capt.) Charles A. Bullock, Capt. Paul H. Brown, and since July 1964 the present commander, Maj. Eugene R. Walsh. Maj. Walsh is a qualified aviator in every type aircraft the unit supports as well as having many years of experience in the maintenance field.

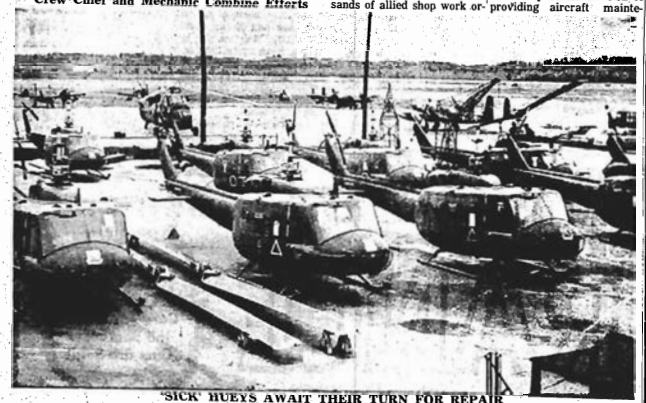
Company B is organized into various maintenance, supply and support sections to accomplish its' mission of providing aircraft maintenance and repair parts supply support to divisional aviation units, of the Air Assault Division, and aircraft organic to the aviation group.

Supporting both fixed and rotary wing aircraft has required Company B to exercise a great amount of flexibility in both supply and maintenance.

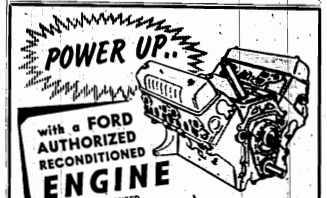
The company has handled an average of 2,676 supply requests per month and stocked an average of 2,529 line items. In aircraft maintenance an average of 93 aircraft work orders and 315 shop work orders are processed monthly.

During AIR ASSAULT II maneuver in the Carolinas a peak maintenance load was realized during the month of October when 166 aircraft and 545 shop work orders were processed. During this period the entire company was required, because of the work load, to work two ten hour split shifts in order to afford maximum aircraft availability to supported units.

The 611th Battalion motto is "service first" and is personified by Company B in providing a monthly newsletter containing general and technical information of mutual interest. The company also provides assistance teams, composed of maintenance and supply personnel, that visit supported units for the purpose of providing service.



"SICK" HUEYS AWAIT THEIR TURN FOR REPAIR
When These Are Returned Others Will Take Their Place



227th's Crewmen Gain 'First'; But This Time They're Grounded

Members of the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion have completed another "first". This time the "first" was completed on the ground instead of in the air. Crew members have been attending the escape and evasion course presented by the Infantry School and conducted by the famed Ranger (Patrolling) Committee.

The course has three hours of classroom work. Included in the classes are instructions on Code of Conduct, escape and evasion techniques, patrolling, and map exercises. Then the toughest part is presented by the Ranger Committee. This is the escape and evasion course over six miles of the roughest terrain (swamps, stream and crossings) on the Fort Benning Reservation.

To make the situation realistic, 140 aggressors from the 197th Infantry Brigade were there to capture, harass, or discourage the personnel from completing the course. Also, a scout dog platoon was utilized by the aggressors. A POW compound was operated by the aggressors for the unfortunate personnel that did not escape or evade and got captured. Living in this compound was hard on all mental and physical parts of the body. Included were tough interrogations and trials to break down the mental stamina of the American fighting man. Members of the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion attending the course had many varied comments as to the "live action" on the problem. The battalion will continue to train their air crews until a goal of 100 per cent have completed the Ranger "escape and evasion" course.

SENIOR AVIATOR

CWO Billy Couch was presented his senior aviator wings this week at an informal ceremony held at Company A, 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion. CWO Couch has over ten years flying experience both as a civilian and miltary pilot. His total time so far is nearly three thousand hours of flight, and he is qualified to fly over ten different models of rotary fixed wing aircraft. Couch was transitioned in the CH-47 in 1963 and is an instructor pilot with Company A and the Battalion Decca Officer.

Two Rakkasans Earn Diplomas

Rak Headquarters Company of the 1st Air Assault Brigade renewed efforts in the company's off-duty education program for 1965, and at the same time, announced that two more troopers had joined the ranks of the high school graduates Monday, as a result of last year's program.

Sp4 Byron J. Liggett III, a draftsman and clerk assigned to the 187th S-3 Section, and Pvt. Edward F. Mahoney of the Rakkasan Communications Platoon qualified as high school grads last week after the results of GED tests on the two were returned from USAFI Headquarters in Madison, Wis.

INFANTRYMEN FIRE THE LAW
Sp4 White and SSgt. Elizondo Of Company A

Engineer Paratroopers 'Jump' Into Field Action

On the 13th and 14th of January, 1965 the Airborne Beavers of Company A, 127th Engineers descended by platoons onto Fryar Drop Zone and secured the area. Armed with their 3.5" rocket launchers, they were prepared for any threat by armor. As in any operation there was more action behind the scenes. The Beavers were doing everything from issuing parachutes to jump masters to jumping the Air Force C-130's used in the operation.

38th Infantrymen Gain Respect for the LAW

Noise, noise, and more noise on Kelley Hill, as men from the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry took over Patton Range. Selected men from the battalion fired familiarization with the M-72 LAW, (Light Anti-tank Weapon).

On a chilly morning, the men left for the range. Early in the morning it began to get very foggy and as the fog got denser, the officer in charge of the range, sent some of the men back. The fog cleared later and the men who had remained got the chance to fire off the 100 rounds.

While waiting for the fog to clear, some of the men who had fired the LAW previously told the others of their experiences with the weapon. Those who were first on the ready line listened with respect, for they wanted to learn all they could about this new weapon from a foot soldier's view-point.

When the time came to fire, the first men on the firing line, apprehensive as they were, found the weapon extremely easy to fire. The men who fired after them did progressively better until all were scoring direct hits on the tanks and targets at which they chose to fire.

When "cease fire" was called and all the rounds were expended, the general run of remarks among the men were about the ease with which the LAW is fired, the complete absence of recoil and the effect of the HEAT round.

Many men went over to the tank and looked it over. This tank had been hit with every type recoilless weapon the Army has. They were fascinated by the relatively small size which the LAW made on impact, but one look inside of the tank left no doubt as to its effectiveness.

Letter From Battery Commander Tells of Unit's Accomplishments

Capt. Harold M. Hamilton, commanding officer of Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 11th Air Assault Division Artillery, in a letter addressed to the members of his command, pointed out the accomplishments of the unit during 1964.

During the past year, the members of Headquarters Battery spent a total of 112 days in the field. Included were four Division Artillery Field Training Exercises, and eight Division Exercises, culminating in Air Assault II, the unilateral division test of the Army's Air Mobility Concept.

The unit underwent four major command inspections. The first was the 11th Air Assault Division Command Material Readiness Inspection (CMRI). The unit underwent its Annual General Inspection and received an over-all rating of Excellent. Then they were inspected by the Third United States Army Command Maintenance Management (CMMI) Team; receiving an over-all rating of superior.

Headquarters Battery was named the 11th Air Assault Division Artillery Honor Battery of the month for seven consecutive months in 1964, was then chosen as Division Artillery Honor Battery of the Year, and was retired from the competition.

In recognition of the outstanding records set by the unit, numerous awards were presented to the unit. The Third United States Army Certificate of Proficiency was presented to the battery for having attained a score of 99 percent on the Third United States Army Command Maintenance Management Inspection (Highest in the 11th Air Assault Division in 1964).

The Division Artillery Honor Battery Plaque will soon be permanently presented to the unit for having been named Division Artillery Honor Battery for seven consecutive months. The Department of the Army Minuteman Award, The Third United States Army Savings Award (Gold Citation), and the Third United States Army Savings Award (Special Citation) will soon be presented to the battery for having attained a percentage participation in Soldiers Deposits and Savings Bonds of 94.9 per cent as of March 31, 1964.

Various members of the battery have been rewarded for their distinguished service before or during their assignment to the unit, and were thus a credit to their unit. Maj. Harold D. Wilson, Capt. New Command At 26th Battery

Maj. David L. Carson has taken command of Battery E, (Aviation) 26th Artillery. The change of command ceremonies were held recently at Appari Heliport in the Harmony Church Area.

Col. William A. Becker, 11th Air Assault Division Artillery commander, passed the battery guidon to Maj. Carson from Maj. Benjamin F. Harden, former CO. Col. Becker then pinned on the green tabs which are emblematic of the new command position. Also present for the brief ceremonies were the commanders or representatives of all other Sky Soldier Division Artillery units.

Maj. Carson comes to Battery E from the 377th Aerial Rocket Artillery Battalion where he was executive officer in Battery A.

Artillery Officer Upped to Capt.

Capt. Richard J. Boehman Jr. of the 2nd Battalion (Little John), 42nd Artillery was recently promoted to his present grade in informal ceremonies here.

A 1961 graduate of Xavier University, Capt. Boehman has served almost his entire Army career with the 42nd Artillery. This has included service with the unit both at Fort Bragg and Fort Benning as the organization underwent successive changes from an Honest John to a composite to a Little John Battalion.

Capt. Boehman is presently serving the battalion as Assistant S3 (Special Weapons Officer). He formerly was the Executive Officer of Battery A.

Two Cav Officers Raised to Captain

In an informal ceremony recently held in the office of Lt. Col. John B. Stockton, Robin K. Miller and James D. Danielson were promoted to the grade of captain. After serving a year together in Vietnam in the 114th Helicopter Company they returned to Fort Benning and were assigned to Troop C, 3d Squadron, 17th Cavalry.

Basketball Highlights

Off The Backboard

By Lt. Joe Mottola

It's basketball tournament time in the 11th Air Assault Division as the final week's action finally determined league champions and runners-up.

The Mohawk league was settled when the 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery "CHARGE SEVENS" blasted the hopes of the 127th Engineer Battalion "BEAVERS" with a 79-66 triumph. Second place was decided when the 187th Airborne Infantry "RAKKASANS" eliminated the Headquarters Special Troops "RAIDERS" with a runaway 80-53 victory.

First place in the Chinook league went to the 2nd Battalion 23rd Infantry "TOTEMS" with a fine 11-1 record. The "TOTEMS" played strong consistent ball throughout the season and will be a team to be reckoned with in the tournament. Second place was determined in the crucial game between the 5th Battalion 38th Artillery "CANNONEERS" and the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry "KANIENGAHAGA" quintet. The "CANNONEERS" closed to within six points but could never quite pull even. The final score was 57-47 in favor of the "KANIENGAHAGA" battalion.

The Caribou league had three teams tied for first place last week as the 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion came from "CARIBOUS" 51-47 in overtime. Meanwhile the 1st Battalion 38th Infantry "MARNE MEN" had to go into overtime to defeat the 226th Aerial Surveillance and Escort Battalion "CLAWHAMMERS" as Jerome Pikop tallied 19 points for the 226th in the near upset.

This set the stage for the "winner-take-all" meeting between the 38th Infantry "MARNE MEN" and the 37th "CARIBOUS".

The hot-shooting "MARNE MEN" always a strong second half team pulled away from the "CARIBOUS" and were never headed as they breezed to a 54-44 win and a place in the Tournament. This left the 611th and the 38th Infantry in a tie for first place which will be played off.

The Iroquois league was the first league to be settled as the 511th Infantry "FALCONS" finished the season with a perfect 12-0 mark. They are the only team in the Division leagues to go undefeated. The "FALCONS" will be another team to be reckoned with in the tournament but they will have to play tremendous ball to keep their unbeaten streak alive. Second place went to the 188th Infantry "EAGLES" who finished at 9-3.

A review of tournament teams records reveals that the first and second place teams in three of the four leagues have split their two games against each other. This would tend to indicate well balanced competition in the tournament.

The tournament itself is a double elimination type with a team being dropped from play upon the loss of their second game. The tournament officially opened on the 25th of February at the Harmony Church Fieldhouse and the final game is scheduled for Sunday the 28th at 8:30 p.m. in the Harmony Church Fieldhouse. If another game is needed to determine the Division Champion it will be played at 7:00 p.m. on Monday night. The Commanding General or his representative has been invited to present team and individual trophies after the concluding game.

Giant Winged Satellite In Near-Perfect Orbit

NEW YORK (AFPS) — Pegasus, a giant winged satellite to measure the potential hazards of meteoroids to astronauts and spacecraft, was successfully launched from Cape Kennedy Feb. 16. The 3,200 - pound satellite and its supporting structure remained attached to the 20,000 - pound second stage of a Saturn I space vehicle as it achieved an almost perfect orbit.

Pegasus is expected to be visible from earth as it circles in an orbit from 310 to 465 miles high.

Upon reaching orbital stage, Pegasus expanded two thin aluminum, plastic and copper wings to a span of 96 feet. When a meteoroid strikes the wing panels it will set off an electrical charge which will be registered by the satellite's instruments. The number of meteroid hits will be in turn transferred to earth by ground radio command.

Pegasus is expected to return data for at least 18 months. Two more Pegasus satellites are scheduled to be orbited aboard Saturn vehicles this year.

Following the Pegasus satellite, the United States launched Ranger 8, Feb. 17, from Cape Kennedy.

The Ranger 8 successfully collided with the moon's surface and returned more than 7,000 high-quality pictures before hitting.

Ranger 8's six cameras enabled it to photograph potential landing areas in the Sea of Tranquility, a smooth plain on the east - central portion of the moon as viewed from earth.

McNamara Announces Reserve Realignment

Washington (ANF) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, in announcing plans to realign the Army's Reserve and National Guard forces, stated: "I want to acknowledge the great importance of our Reserve forces and the outstanding service they have rendered to our country. Under the recommended reorganization, the units now in the National Guard and those that transfer from the Reserve, as well as the individual trainees who remain in the Reserve, will make an even greater contribution to our national defense."

The realignment is designed to bring the Army's Reserve Component structure into balance with the Contingency War Plans and the related equipment program. The Secretary said the realignment, in addition to producing increased combat readiness on the part of the units in the Reserve and National Guard, would streamline the management structure of the Army Reserve forces. It would also result in cost savings approximating $150,000,000 per year.

The realignment program will involve the transfer of the units of the Army Reserve into the National Guard and the elimination of all units of both Army Reserve and National Gaurd for which there is no military requirement. The Army Reserve will consist of individuals rather than units and will provide individual trainees for summer camp and mobilization. Under the plan, the paid drill strength will be 550,000 well-eqoipped, well - trained officers and men.

'Early-Bird' Phone Rate In Effect

As of Feb. 1, the $1 maximum station-to-station long distance rate went into effect at 8 p.m. Person-to-person calls are not affected since they cannot be made at the $1 rate.

The charge applies to the first three minutes and is comparatively cheaper than rates in effect during the rest of the day. Consequently many persons have waited until 9 p.m. before placing long distance calls.

This had resulted in long waits and flooding of the telephone switchboards from 9 to about 10 o'clock.

The cheaper rates are in effect all day Sunday, and from 8 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Reduced rates higher than the after 8 tariffs which had been in effect from 6 to 9 p.m. will now be available all day Saturday and from 6 to 8 p.m. throughout the week.

Chevrons Added At 81st Artillery

Sgt. Craig has been the Ammunition Sergeant for the 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery since it's activation in Feb., 1963. He joined the Army sixteen years ago from his hometown of Decatur, Ala. He has served with the Artillery for his entire career.

FORT BENNING, GEORGIA, HOME OF U. S. ARMY INFANTRY CENTER

VOL. 23, NO. 26 — FRIDAY, MARCH 5, 1965 — 48 Pages — 5c

New Assistant Commandant

Brig. Gen. George I. Forsythe (L) new assistant commandant of The Infantry School, discusses a model of an armed helicopter such as those currently being used in Viet Nam, with Brig. Gen. John Norton, former A-C, who has been reassigned to the Army Support Command in Viet Nam.

Chapel Field Ceremony Marks Change in School's Assistant Commandant

Brig. Gen. George I. Forsythe, newly assigned assistant commandant of The Infantry School, was officially welcomed here yesterday at a ceremony on Chapel Field.

Taking part in the ceremony were the honor guard platoons from Company C, 29th Infantry, 197th Inf., the Infantry Center band and a salute battery from Battery A, 2nd Battalion, 10th Artillery.

Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, commandant of The Infantry School, accompanied Gen. Forsythe during the inspection of troops while Brig. Gen. John Norton, departing assistant commandant, was accompanied by Lt. Stephen M. Heller, honor guard commander.

Gen. Norton, who was assigned here in May 1963, will leave shortly for an assignment with the support command, Military Assistance Advisory Group (MAAG) in Viet Nam.

His successor, Gen. Forsythe, was assistant division commander of the 25th Infantry (Lightning) Division in Hawaii, before coming to Fort Benning.

Gen. Forsythe was also at Fort Benning in 1942 when he attended the Battalion Commanders Course here. Following this he went to Alaska where he participated in the Aleutian invasion of Kiska. Later, with the 7th Inf. Div., he participated in the invasion of Kwajalein.

Girl Scouts Celebrate Their 53rd Birthday

The 695 members of the Fort Benning Girl Scout Council will join with almost three and three-quarter million Girl Scouts throughout the country in celebrating Girl Scout Week from Sunday, March 7 through Saturday, March 13.

"A Promise in Action" is the theme of Girl Scout Week and of the Girl Scouts' 53rd birthday which occurs on March 12. This date marks the anniversary of the first meeting of the first troop organized in Savannah, Ga., by Juliette Gordon Low, founder of the movement in the U. S. A.

Since that first troop of a few girls, more than 20 million members have made the Girl Scout Promise to do their duty to God and country, to help other people at all times, and to obey the Girl Scout Laws of loyalty, honesty, courtesy, cheerfulness, kindness and thrift.

This year, Girl Scouts are paying special attention to the "bridges" which give continuity to their program. The program adapts activities related to the arts, the home, and the out-of-doors, to the changing interests and needs of girls ages seven through 17, thus "bridging" the four age levels: Brownie Girl Scouts (ages 7 and 8) to Senior Girl Scouts (ages 15 through 17).

Special days are earmarked throughout Girl Scout Week to illustrate the various aspects of the Girl Scout program. They are: — Girl Scout Sunday; Monday — Homemaking; Tuesday — Citizenship; Wednesday — Health and Safety; Thursday — International Friendship; Friday — Arts; Saturday — Out-of-Doors.

Gen. Heintges Kicks Off Joint Fund Drive; Urges Enthusiastic Support From Keymen

Kicking off the 1965 Federal Service Joint Crusade last week at Theater No. 1, Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges told 900 military and civilian keymen that the success of the campaign will depend upon their enthusiasm.

"It is a characteristic of our soldiers that they are free in giving," the general continued. "We have set no specific amount for individuals to give, but I hope the response will be 100 per cent."

The fund drive, which continues through April 7, is the annual campaign to raise money for health agencies as well as CARE, Radio Free Europe, the American Korean Foundation, and Project HOPE, a mercy ship.

Col. Earl F. Holton, deputy post commander and chairman for the drive, presided at the meeting.

In addition to Gen. Heintges, guest speakers included Mrs. Sally Baron of Atlanta, and B. H. Brown of East Point, Ga.

Mrs. Baron, who represents the National Health Agencies, said the Joint Crusade at each installation includes only those agencies not in the local United Givers Drive.

Brown, director of the Federal Service Crusade for the southeastern states and Puerto Rico, said that Radio Free Europe keeps alive the desire to be free and "in so

TO ALL PERSONNEL AT FORT BENNING

"I wish to express my appreciation and congratulations to all personnel on the outstanding conduct of all phases of the retirement ceremonies at Fort Benning, Feb. 24-27, 1965 in honor of General Hugh P. Harris, commanding general, United States Continental Army Command.

The advance planning and coordination, the meticulous attention to details, the rehearsals and the concerted effort required to present a review of such magnitude as was held on the 27th are well known to me. The faultless performance can only be attributed to the capable organization and supervision of the commanders and staff and the cooperation and enthusiasm of all individuals who contributed their efforts on this occasion. The highly successful results can be a source of great pride.

All the events planned to honor General Harris were conducted with the same efficiency and dignity befitting the occasion. The highly favorable comments from the distinguished guests concerning the review, the overall appearance of the Post and the military courtesy and bearing of all personnel were most gratifying and well deserved by all who participated in the ceremonies.

I am pleased to quote a message received from General Harris on March 1.

"Thank you again for a memorable day. The troops on parade and the entire program was fully worthy of The Infantry School and Fort Benning traditions."

To this tribute I wish to add my commendation for a job well done.

Tower Training Committee Instructs 17,500 a Year

BY DAVID N. SCOTT

When an airborne student arrives at The Infantry School to begin his training as a military parachutist the first things he will probably notice are the large variety of training devices located at Eubanks Field.

The first objects to catch his eye will be the 250-foot jump towers. Mushrooming out below these iron giants are numerous other training aids such as mock air craft hulls, large fans mounted on the rear ends of trucks, and rows of harness' extended from pullies.

All of these devices have a definite purpose and are at the disposal of the Tower Training Committee of the Airborne Department. This committee has the responsibility of qualifying the airborne student in all aspects of jump techniques except the actual exit from an aircraft in flight.

It is the job of Capt. John H. Bradley and his staff of five officers and 68 enlisted men to train over 17,500 men a year in the techniques of parachuting. It is also their mission to present an orientation on airborne training to all new airborne students.

"After the student leaves this committee he is prepared for his first jump from a plane in flight," explained Bradley. "He is constantly drilled by our excellent instructors on every possible aspect of parachuting and the functions of the chute itself."

Upon completion of his week of training with the Tower Training Committee he reports to the jump committee where he executes his first jump from an aircraft.

An example of one of the training devices utilized by the Tower Committee is the mock door. This training aid is an exact replica of the exit doors in the cargo compartment of a jump aircraft. Here the student is given practical experience in the techniques of making mass exits from the right and left doors of current USAF jump aircraft. The large wind machines are another example of the stockpile of equipment at the disposal of the committee. These machines are used to teach the student parachute control after he has completed a jump.

The 250-foot free towers give the students their first experience in actually controlling a parachute during a descent. They also provide practical experience in parachute landing falls and quick recovery methods. These towers were originally built for the 1939 New York World's Fair.

"The similarity between an actual landing by parachutes dropped from an aircraft and landing by parachutes dropped from the towers provides an authenticity in the training that prepares the student for his first jump from a moving plane," stated Bradley.

A smaller 34-foot tower is used to train the potential jumpers in exiting techniques and body position. It also serves to test the mettle of the student.

Emergency landing procedures for trees, high tension wires, and water are demonstrated by means of the suspended harness.

Mark of Respect

"'Tis the Star-Spangled Banner—O long may it wave."

The "Star-Spangled Banner," officially approved as the national anthem of the United States by Congress in March, 1931, was written by Francis Scott Key while he was a captive aboard a British warship in Chesapeake Bay during the bombardment of Ft. McHenry in the War of 1812.

The words of the patriotic song were written in a burst of inspiration as Key saw the flag still flying over the fort through the morning mist after the bombardment.

"Whose broad stripes and bright stars through the perilous fight,

"O'er the ramparts we watch'd, were so gallantly streaming."

Just as Key was inspired by the sight of the U. S. flag billowing victoriously over Ft. McHenry, veterans of all of the United States' wars and conflicts have been inspired after their perilous fights. For, after victory, they too could experience that swelling of pride if they could see Old Glory still "gallantly streaming" after the battle.

Though our national anthem was inspired by one battle in a war of long ago, its words could be used to describe the many battles that won the freedom we enjoy today. In dedication to this freedom all citizens of the United States should pay proper homage whenever the national anthem is played.

Paying proper respect proudly is a mark of a good soldier, sailor, Marine or airman —to say nothing of a good citizen. If you feel ashamed or if you fear being called a "flag-waver" or a "square" for showing outwardly your respect for your country, then you are in the wrong profession. And you may be quite sure that if there had not been enough men before you who were openly proud of their country and its symbols, you would never have heard or seen "The Star-Spangled Banner." Think it over. (AFPS)

Surgeon Says

Your Appendix

By Maj. Thomas L. Hudson, MC

Removal of the appendix due to inflammation is the most common emergency operation. This operation can be a life saving procedure.

Prior to the development of the operative removal of the appendix, most attacks of appendicitis resulted in death. In fact, the world famous magician Houdini, died of the complications of a ruptured appendix.

The most common complication regarding appendicitis nowadays is related to delay in seeking medical attention. The symptoms of appendicitis start like those of various viral disorders, loss of appetite, mild upper abdominal discomfort, generalized poor feeling and nausea (with or without vomiting). These are usually present several hours before the pain moves to the lower right side of the abdomen.

In most cases there is associated vomiting, tenderness to touch in the lower abdomen and discomfort with standing erect. The temperature with uncomplicated appendicitis is usually below 101 degrees. It is at this stage of the illness that the patient presents himself to the physician. This is the typical story, but sometimes the story is completely unusual. It is important not to take any type of laxative. This will increase the possibility of rupture of the appendix.

The contamination of the sack-like cavity which contains the intestines results in a serious complication and high fever. Since the early symptoms are similar to numerous other conditions parents have a tendency to give the child a dose of some type of laxative. In a few hours they have to rush the child to the hospital when he becomes severely ill.

'A Promise in Action'

Once again, Girl Scouts of the U. S. A.—almost three and three-quarter million of them—are celebrating their Week.

Girl Scout Week 1965, March 7-13, has as its theme, "A Promise in Action." Actually, the "Promise" has been very much in action and in evidence for 53 years. It was March 12, 1912, when a group of very young ladies formed the first Girl Scout troop in the United States and set the pattern for more than 20 million others by making the Girl Scout Promise: "On my honor, I will try: to do my duty to God and my country, to help other people at all times, to obey the Girl Scout Laws."

This year, Girl Scouts are emphasizing what they call "bridges." They refer to a continuity of program activities which become more complex and challenging as girls grow from seven through 17. They refer also to a plan whereby girls in one age level introduce girls of a younger age to what lies ahead for them when they progress to the next level in Brownies, Juniors, Cadettes and Seniors.

In a larger sense, however, Girl Scouting really is a bridge to the future. For the Girl Scout program is concerned with helping girls By inspiring girls to live up to the Girl Scout Promise and the Girl Scout Laws of loyalty, kindness and thrift, Girl Scouting can make the difference in the kind of woman a girl becomes.

And the kind of woman—the kind of human being—a girl becomes can make the difference in the world of the future.

Chaplain's Corner

Science and Religion

By Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker
The Post Chaplain

For almost 2000 years, since the birth of Jesus of Nazareth, the Christian Faith has been assailed by atheists, agnostics, humanists, and in these recent years by communism and materialism. Various types of philosophies supported only on part truth and part error have supposed themselves to be infallible critics against the Church and the Holy Scriptures.

The great confession, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God," has become to them a stumbling block. Here in Peter's confession stands the Rock of infallible Truth which has endured in ages past and will continue through eternity itself. Here is the stability which this age needs so much. When an international society is disturbed, confused, and perplexed by communism which has arrayed itself against those civilized nations which advocate the democratic ideal that man is endowed with dignity and liberty.

There are trends in our own social order, if followed to conclusion would remove from us, in all areas of daily life, the freedom to worship as, when, and where we choose.

Someone said, "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing." This is evident to me every day, for education without religious faith can be very dangerous. There is no true basis for a conflict between Religion and Science. Each has its origin in the same God who created heaven and earth. God is the source of all truth in all phases of this universe. He cannot contradict Himself.

The manufacture of satellites and rocket engines for the exploration of space may have created a small disturbance in the minds of some people. The fact that astronauts did not physically encounter God in outer space does not alter the fact that God is everywhere. When automobiles first appeared as agents of more rapid transportation, some people were greatly concerned lest they would take families away from Church and away from God. The opposite became true, for they have been a blessing in conveying millions to the house of God. The automobile only when used selfishly and driven unwisely becomes a menace to life and property.

The humanist would have us believe that Jesus was only a good and great man who achieved the maximum degree of perfection. If this is logical then from our universities and colleges should have come thousands of young men who excelled him in greatness and holiness, when his limited opportunities are considered.

The denial of truth does not alter and destroy it, but those who scoff at truth are destroying themselves.

Your Dental Health

Oral Prophylaxis

During talks on oral hygiene there are two points relative to oral prophylaxis or cleaning teeth, which need further discussion. The questions raised are these: "When the dentist or hygienist cleans and scales my teeth, doesn't that scrape off enamel? Can't the teeth be damaged this way?"

There is evidence that dental prophylaxis is harmful to the teeth. On the other hand, there is very definite evidence that it is beneficial. Cleaning of the teeth in this way prevents the accumulation of stain and calculus on the teeth.

Children are more susceptible to a green stain than they are to calculus formation if they exercise poor oral hygiene. Periodic cleaning of their teeth will prevent stain formation or help remove it if it is already present. Fluoride should be used to make the teeth more resistant to tooth decay.

OWC Members Donate 400 Pillow Speakers to MAH

Also Plans to Offer $3,000 in Scholastic Awards

Pillow Speakers Donated

BY DOROTHY NEWMAN

Mrs. Robert M. Williams, OWC president, and Mrs. Madison Wright, OWC Welfare Chairman, recently presented 400 "pillow speakers" to Col. Hal B. Jennings Jr., commandant of the MAH for use by hospital patients.

MAH is equipped with facilities for broadcasting its own programs and also for receiving broadcasts from local stations. These facilities offer excellent diversion for patients but when broadcast over regular speakers, tend to shatter the quiet so essential in a hospital.

To solve this problem "jacks" were installed next to each patient's bed so that a pillow speaker could be plugged in and thus enable each individual to listen to radio programs without disturbing other patients or the hospital staff.

Recently it was revealed to the OWC that a complete new inventory of speakers was needed. The Club provided the funds necessary for this project.

To Offer Awards

The Club will again offer Scholastic Achievement Awards to students in the Columbus - Phenix City area. There are 10 awards available for $300.00 each.

In order to apply for these awards, high school seniors must attend school in this area and have a father on active military duty. Children of all military personnel are eligible.

Mrs. Madison Wright, OWC Welfare Chairman, has announced that April 1, 1965 is the deadline for all applications. Recipients of these awards are chosen on the basis of their outstanding scholastic achievement. Application blanks are available at all high schools in this area.

TSB Social Bylines

Three Women Honored For Outstanding Work

BY MARIANNE WHITLOCK and EMILIE D'ACUNTO

"A sincere farewell and many thanks for most outstanding contributions" was extended to three women active in TSB social events at a special luncheon held at the home of Mrs. Donald T. Kellett.

The women honored were Mrs. Claude W. Baker, Mrs. Robert B. Lipscomb and Mrs. Ralph J. Viestenz.

Mrs. Kellett presented each woman a tray with "The Student Brigade" engraved on it and a small memento of Hq., TSB. Mrs. Kellett expressed her personal appreciation to these women and also acknowledged the outstanding contributions made by each.

Mrs. Baker has been very active and has devoted much time and effort to the success of different functions. Her husband Lt. Col. Baker has had a change of assignment.

Mrs. Lipscombe has worked on the publicity committee for TSB as well as heading other committees. Her husband, Maj. Lipscombe, is retiring from the Army.

Mrs. Viestenz "has done an extraordinary job in successfully completing the many responsibilities she has undertaken." Maj. and Mrs. Viestenz are also retiring from the Army and will reside in Oregon.

The main decoration was a unique mobile suspended from the chandelier in the hall of Mrs. Kellett's home. "Good-bye", was printed in several different languages on the designs hanging from the mobile.

The hostess, Mrs. Kellett, was assisted by Mrs. Nelson W. Stouffer, Mrs. Guy A. Modica and Mrs. Ralph C. Clark.

A short business meeting was also conducted and Mrs. Kellett read a letter of appreciation written by Mrs. Robert M. Williams, president of the OWC thanking all of the women of TSB who participated in the OWC luncheon held Feb. 3.

Spring Formal

Plans for the Spring Formal are underway. Hosts will be the 4th Airborne-Ranger Bn. The coming event was discussed at a coffee held at the home of Mrs. Richard Jones. Mrs. John Lissner lead the discussion.

Welcomed to the battalion was Mrs. James Browner. A business meeting was conducted by Mrs. McCluskey presented a serving tray as a token of farewell. Mrs. Jones, the hostess, was assisted by Mrs. Chester Higlund.

Orientation Coffee

Welcoming speeches were given by Maj. Ronald S. McCaul, executive officer 2nd Student Bn., Capt. Gordon D. DeRoos, 2nd Detchment commander, and Mrs. Deroos. Chaplain Ralph C. Workman spoke on the activities of the Christian Religious program offered to the post.

Guests included Mrs. Donald T. Kellett, Mrs. Earl F. Holton, Mrs. Joseph E. McCuskey and Mrs. Ralph C. Workman.

Mr. Ronald S. McCaul, Mrs. Gordon D. Deroos, Mrs. James C. Yarbrough and Mrs. J. H. Rodriguez were cadre hostesses.

2nd Bn. Coffee

Ladies of the 2nd Bn. held their monthly coffe at the home of Mrs. Joseph E. McCluskey. A farewell as bid to Mrs. Graham Norris Jr. and a welcome was extended to Mrs. Douglas O. Pingles. A business meeting was conducted by Mrs. McCluskey

Wives' Luncheon

Officers' Christian Union Has Active Post Chapter

One of the least known but very active religious organizations on post is the local chapter of the Officers' Christian Union (OCU).

The OCU is a national and international organization composed of officers whose purpose is to promote spiritual fellowship among members of the armed forces and to assist the chaplains whenever possible in furthering the chapel program.

The principal activity of the group is a weekly Bible-study fellowship. In addition to informal group Bible-study in members' homes, the local chapter has a weekly prayer breakfast at the Main Officers' Open Mess, a monthly luncheon on the third Thursday and periodic special meetings.

Guest speakers often are invited to the meeting. Recently Mr. C. M. Tokatlioglon, a native of Turkey, an educator, linguist and missionary, addressed the group.

The history of the Union dates back to 1943. Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison Jr., USA (Ret.), has been president of the national organization since 1954.

Any officer in the armed forces, or anyone who has served as an officer or is training for commission may be a member of the OCU. Officers desiring further information may call Capt. John Ladd, 687-1036, Capts. Bud Kragt, 544-1217, or Capt. James Meredith, 689-5600.

Senior to Junior Sales Ban:

It Doesn't Mean Houses, Cameras or Automobiles

(Editor's Note: This article was taken from the March 3 issue of the Army Times to clarify the recent Defense Department memorandum banning the commercial sales by senior active duty personnel to those junior in grade to them.)

WASHINGTON — Sales of "personally owned goods and properties" such as cameras houses and cars were not banned by the recent Defense Department memorandum which was intended to halt "commercial" sales by seniors to juniors, Pentagon officials say. The selling ban was intended only to restrict sales by senior men to their juniors when the seniors are engaged in a business way to supplement their own income.

The ban was put into effect, the Defense memo said, because "the traditions of the military service do not countenance personal solicitations and sales to junior servicemen by their seniors in situations in which the military member solicited is placed in a position of either agreeing to the purchase or of risking the displeasures of those senior in military rank."

Persons who are selling personally owned items were not barred from selling to men who may be lower in rank.

Service bulletin boards often carry notices of homes, cars and other items for sale by persons being reassigned. It was not intended that these sales would be covered by the ban.

The commercial sales ban arose because of complaints to lawmakers from constituents in the military that they were being solicited by their seniors to buy real estate, insurance and mutual funds.

In one case, a Navy insurance officer was charged with using his position to gather prospect lists for his own insurance business.

New service regulations will be issued soon and they will carry language substantially as follows:

"Military personnel on active duty are prohibited from personal commercial solicitation and sale to military personnel junior in rank or grade, at any time on or off duty, in or out of uniform. This limitation includes, but is not limited to, the personal solicitation and sale of life and auto insurance, stocks, mutual funds, real estate or any other commodities, goods, or services."

Future Look of War College Discussed by General Salet

"What should the U. S. Army War College be like in the 1970's? This question is raised in the March issue of ARMY magazine published by the Association of the United States Army. The article of which it is a part is captioned, "The Army War College Looks to the Future." Its author is Maj. Gen. Eugene A. Salet, commandant of the War College.

In developing an answer to this question, Gen. Salet considers some trends already evident at this senior Army institution of learning. First, he reveals, there is now relatively greater emphasis on military subjects than in the past. Next there is a trend toward more individual and less committee work. Third, there's more emphasis on reading, writing, and seminar discussions and less emphasis on formal lectures.

A fourth trend is toward increased stress on research with a special committee of three officers serving as a focal point for all research activities. Finally Gen. Salet is seeking greater stability and less turnover on the school's faculty. The average faculty member's stay is only two years. The author wants to get it extended to three years which though authorized is seldom realized.

With such trends, Gen. Salet sees greater emphasis being placed on individual effort and initiative resulting in graduates who will be suited to the ever-increasing requirements for senior officers capable of creative military strategy and able to inject meaningful factors into the making of our national policy.

Visitor Offers 'Sincere Help'

Last week Lt. Col. Karl W. Volk, Chief of Plans in the Enlisted Section, of the Arm's personnel office presented a briefing on enlisted personnel management procedures.

The conference, designed to promote a better understanding of the enlisted personnel management system and to get recommendations for improvement of the program was given to captains, lieutenants, personnel officers and senior non-commissioned officers.

Volk touched upon the implementation of the new or revised MOS structure being placed into effect on 1 July 1965 and the new Enlisted Qualification Record (Form 20) that is to be in effect on 1 May 1965. He said "before summer a new regulation governing personnel management procedures, consolidating some 25 regulations will be in effect.

Explorer Scouts Receive Training

DAHLONEGA, Ga. — Almost 200 Explorer Scouts and advisers of the Atlanta Area Council, BSA, gathered at the USAIS Ranger Dept. camp here on Feb. 20, 21 for a "Cold Weather Encampment."

Arrangements for the two day version of Ranger mountain training were made by Lt. Col. George Tassey, commanding officer of the Mountain Ranger Camp and C. M. Calhoun, Atlanta Area Council Activities director.

The "training program", supervised by Captains William J. Northquest and Marshall Stogner, included instruction and practical work in the fields of patrolling, weapons, demolitions, land navigation, communications, and — a Mountain Ranger Camp specialty — military mountaineering techniques.

The Ranger cadre were impressed by the spirit and enthusiasm of the Explorers, who took the double-timing and feet - elevated pushups required by instructors in stride. Many of the Explorers were visiting the Mountain Ranger Camp for the second time, being veterans of a similar encampment in the early spring of 1964. On completion of their two days of training, the Explorers were issued individual "Junior Ranger" certificates by Lt. Col. Tassey.

Provisions for Pay, Family Housing Included in DOD Posture Statement

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Although Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's FY66 "posture" statement dwells primarily on the military hardware and operational aspects required to maintain national security, a select portion deals with personnel compensation and benefits.

Within the government-wide allocation of "allowances for contingencies," a provision is made for a number of items of proposed or possible legislation, including military and civilian pay adjustments, carrier flight deck hazardous duty pay, uniform career management and a cash awards program for members of the armed forces.

Delivering his statement to members of the House Armed Services Committee, Secretary McNamara explained the need for additional family housing.

The secretary strongly urged the Congress to support the Defense Department's FY66 request for 12,500 housing units. Two years ago DOD presented to Congress a program on the need for 62,100 units over a five-year period.

Noting that President Johnson "wants our uniformed citizens to be first class in every aspect," Secretary McNamara explained, "We feel that the provision of adequate family housing is one of the foundation stones in providing first class treatment to our armed forces."

The $743.3 million requested for family housing in the FY66 budget also includes provisions for construction of trailer park facilities and relocation of certain housing units; improvement of existing public quarters; planning, operation and maintenance including cost of units leased, and payments for indebtedness and mortgage insurance premiums.

As for medical services, Secretary McNamara said a $48 million construction program is planned for FY 66. This includes replacement of about 800 bed-spaces and various clinics and construction of various laboratory and other facilities.

The secretary points out that in planning these facilities, provision has been made for space for dependents of active duty military personnel, except in a limited number of areas where it is felt adequate civilian facilities exist.

Explaining that the problem of providing health care in military hospitals for retired personnel and dependents of both active duty and retired personnel is an old one, Secretary McNamara told the committee, "I hope by this time next year I will be able to recommend some solution to this problem."

The Defense Department's armed forces information and education program will be continued in FY66 at a cost of about $9.3 million, the secretary said. He noted that this program provides worldwide radio, television and press services, together with a program designed to promote a broad understanding among military personnel of national goals and purposes.

Firm Expands Bus Schedules

Howard Bus Lines of Columbus recently announced a March 1 inauguration of a new bus service between Custer Terrace and The Infantry School, Bldg. 4.

Established primarily for career course students, the new route will operate initially on a trial basis and will make five stops at five-minute intervals along Kessler Dr.

The first stop at 7:15 a.m. will be at the junction of Kessler Dr. and Merrill Lane (south). Succeeding stops along Kessler Dr. will be at Kessler Court, 7:20; Craig Court, 7:25; Kaudle Court, 7:30; Gibson Rd. (south) 7:35, then to Bldg. 4, to arrive not later than 7:50 a.m.

Departure times for the return trip will be flexible to provide transportation immediately following the close of each section of the class.

Public Relations Course Is Slated For 30 Students

Brig. Gen. John Norton ...An Aide's Eye View

By 2ND LT. LOUIS PRIEBE

Brig. Gen. John Norton leaves Fort Benning today. His departure spells the end of ten exciting, demanding, and education - filled months for 1st Lt. Steve Broderick, Gen. Norton's Aide-de-Camp.

Lieutenant Broderick feels that his assignment "gave me a valuable opportunity to work in close contact with an outstanding general officer. It was really interesting to see how he meets and solves his daily problems; to see how he handles his position as assistant commandant and how he works with his staff."

"What is the most important thing I have learned as Gen. Norton's aide? That's easy," Broderick explains. "The value of hard work and planning ahead. First off, Gen. Norton is a hard worker with an 18 hour day as the rule rather than the exception with him. There have been a lot of evenings where he has left his office at 7:30 or 8 p.m. He likes to get his paper work for the next day out of the way early and spend a maximum amount of his time working with the personnel of The Infantry School during the day.

"Gen. Norton is a firm believer in planning ahead. To accomplish this he relied on a number of planning boards which were posted in our office. We also used daily and weekly training schedules along with the itineraries of different visiting groups," he explains. "We tried to be prepared for an event as far in the future as possible and not to be surprised by anything.

"Don't get the idea that this has been a one man show though," Broderick emphasizes. "Ours has been a team effort, and without a maximum amount of coordination between Col. Long, the deputy assistant commandant, and Mrs. Inez Goodwin, Gen. Norton's secretary, I would have been hard pressed. Whatever success I have had as part of the general's staff is due mainly to their efforts.

"Of course, one of the most important jobs during the last ten months has been maintaining a close relationship with Gen. Heintges' office," Broderick added. "Capt. Tom Hines, Gen. Heintges' aide, and I were always working together."

Broderick explains that "working with Gen. Norton was a real challenge. Just keeping up with him takes a lot of energy, and you always have to be on your toes. I may go running down the hall to get the elevator for him, but when it gets there, no Gen. Norton. He has gone down the exit stairway and will be waiting for me when the elevator gets down stairs. If you're not alert around him, you're dead!

"Gen. Norton has devoted all of his energy and talents toward one goal: making a better Infantry School and a better Infantry," Broderick emphasized. "If you would say that he has had one motivation at Fort Benning, I guess that's it."

Broderick feels that he has learned a great deal as an aide. "I've had an opportunity to be exposed to the very latest in Infantry doctrine, the newest in weapons and equipment and the latest methods of teaching and instruction. I only hope that I can retain a reasonable amount of the knowledge I have been exposed to, and put it to good use in my future assignments.

"Meeting the allied students from all parts of the world has been one of the more interesting parts of my job," he added. "Hearing what they have had to say about their countries and methods of training, along with their opinions on the United States and our military operations, has always fascinated me."

LT. BRODERICK

Protective Mask Device to Assist First Aid in Field

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Development has begun on a device which will permit personnel wearing the field protective mask to give artificial respiration to severe nerve gas casualties, using the principles of mouth-to-mouth rescue breathing.

The rescuer will not be exposed to the hazard of nerve gas poisoning while using the resuscitating device. It will be used for immediate first-aid in the field pending arrival of medical assistance.

The device will consist of a flexible tube with an adapter at one end to permit rapid attachment to field protective masks. The other end will be attached to an oro-nasal mask for use on the casualty receiving resuscitation.

The equipment will weigh less than one-half pound and will be small enough to be stored, ready for use, in the protective mask carrier. Despite its small size, the resuscitator will be sufficiently rugged to withstand the rigors of field handling and use.

Army LASER Relays Seven TV Channels

WASHINGTON (NF) — Believe it or not, a pencil-thin light beam has been used to relay simultaneously the signals received from all seven of the television channels broadcast from New York's Empire State Building.

This important progress in LASER communications is viewed as a significant step toward realizing the potential of lasers to relieve overcrowded portions of the radio spectrum. The achievement could also be a move toward providing a needed enlargement of communications capabilities for both general and military use.

New Record Possible

The seven-channel television experiment is being carried out at the Army Electronics Command's Laboratories at Fort Monmouth, N. J., over newly developed modulation - demodulation equipment developed under contract by Texas Instruments, Inc., of Dallas, Tex.

The Army and Texas Instruments researchers say they believe the demonstrations set a new record for the amount of information transmitted on a single LASER beam, although the capacity of the equipment has by no means been fully exploited.

Valuable Uses

Along with television, the light-beam transmission can be readily used to provide links for other types of broadband communication services.

The main value of LASER is the ability to transmit large volumes of information from one major terminal to another, from which it would be relayed to final destinations by conventional broadcasts or ordinary lines.

13,700 Men to Be Called

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Selective Service quotas continue a recent rising trend with the April draft call slating 13,700 men for Army service. The Department of Defense procurement figure for the month is 20,200 enlisted men with no prior military service.

The balance of 6,500 men will be filled by enlistments.

At the start of this year, 5,400 men received draft notices for an overall January recruitment objective of 13,600. The combined February-March figures were originally set at 6,900 draftees for a total objective of 22,400 men with no prior military service.

Manpower requests for the March portion were later doubled, creating a 7,900-man draft included in a 15,900-man Department of Defense quota.

OCS Trainee Recounts Hole-in-One Experience

Joe Bauer shot-a-hole-in-one!

This statement in itself would arouse little or no interest in the average sports writer.

But when you say the hole was a Par 4, 303 yards long, they all come to attention.

And come to attention they did last summer when Joe, now an officer candidate here in the 50th Co., 5th Stu. Bn., scored his ace on the Zanesville, Ohio, Jaycee course.

Joe's feat came to light last week when Radio Station WHIZ of Zanesville, called to set up a telephone interview with the young OC. The station names an "amateur athlete of the week" all during the year and then picks one of those for the yearly honor. Joe won hands down!

Cadidate Bauer said, "The hole was 303 yards long but sloped off sharply after 245, so the green was hidden. You had to shoot for a marker. The man just before me got off a good one on a line with the marker and mine went the same way but stronger.

"We found his ball on the approach so I fully expected mine to be in the lake which bounded the green on the far side. I was looking in the water when I heard someone behind me say, 'Well I'll be a blank blank blank, and there was my ball in the hole.'"

Only one other man has tallied an ace on that particular hole, Cadidate Bauer says, and he is a former Marine lieutenant, presently assistant pro at the Jaycee course.

Bauer, incidently, normally shoots in the low 70's when he has a chance to play. As an OC though, he "hasn't found the time" to try the local links.

Basketball Tournament Underway

BY PFC FRANK L. LOMBARDI

A quick-paced elimination tournament to select the 1965 post basketball champions got underway Tuesday night at Briant Wells Field House before a near capacity crowd.

In the first of two games, the 2nd. Medical Bn. of the 2nd Inf. Div. edged out the 511th Inf. Bn. from the 11th Air Assault Div. by a tight 60-59 score.

The second game pitted the 2nd Bn., 38th Inf. team from the 11th AAD against Infantry Center champions, 1st Bn., CTC. The 38th defeated CTC by a last-ditch spurt of scoring to end the game 86-78.

The double elimination tournamnt is sponsored and directed by the Special Services Office, USAIC, and will last until Sunday when the champ team will be decided. Each of the six teams in the competition must lose twice before being eliminated.

Joseph Canty's 2nd Medical Bn. team went into the tournament with a 13-1 record and runnerup in the 2nd Inf. Div. championships. They had a close call Tuesday with Coach Wallace Halpin's 511th Inf. team which won the 11th AAD championship with a 12-0 record.

The Medics trailed at the half by 10 points due to the deadly shooting of Richard H. Bosacker who tallied all of his 16 points during the first half. Edward Washington, 6' 6", of the 511th pulled down the majority of rebounds and kept his team slightly ahead of the Medics.

In the second half, David Robinson, the game's high scorer with 32 points, teamed up with Cyril Cosgrove to catch up with the Infantrymen and tie the game at 47 points.

Robinson then fouled out of the game and a nip and tuck battle lasted up to the buzzer. Richard Bosacker of the 511th committed a personal against the Medic's John Grillo with the score 59-57 and six seconds remaining.

Fast breaks on the part of each squad had the teams' supporters on their feet until the game ended with the Medics one point ahead.

Coach Paul Breski's CTC team had an off night against Rodney Rountree's 38th Inf. squad. CTC had a 18-2 record going into the game, while the 38th had a 16-2 record and finished second in the 11th AAD league.

Hank Kershman and Carl Seldon of CTC kept the game alive up to the half when the score was tied at 44. Emmit Beard of the 38th did most of the shooting for his team and as the game's ace with 22 points.

Kershman, 6' 4", then fouled out in the second half and his team started falling behind. The lead kept changing hands up to the last five minutes of play with the score at 77-78 in CTC's favor.

Ronald Towe of the 38th put his squad ahead and kept it there until the buzzer. CTC was held scoreless for the final minutes of play while the 11th AAD team moved slowly ahead to victory.

Bowling Record

Holding tightly to her 221 high game score is Lou Smith of the TEC Group Ladies Bowling League. Jean Williams (L) and Ann Barnes (R) who are lounging in the low average spot of the league, hope some of these points will rub off on them.

Lady Pros Lose Exhibition Match Against Club's Top Men Golfers

BY PFC RUSS HAVOURD

The Officer's Country Club was host to two of the nation's top lady professional golfers, Kathy Whitworth and Carol Mann, last Saturday for an exhibition match and golf clinic.

In match-play competition against Col. George Hardgrove, present club champion, and Capt. Jim Remmert, the top handicap player on post, the girls were barely defeated in the nine-hole contest.

Playing from men's tees, the ladies fired a one over par 76 as a team while Col. Hardgrove and Capt. Remmert combined for a four under 71, to win, two up.

Capt. Remmert played some of the finest golf ever seen at the club, according to pro Howard Holbrook. He birdied the second, and in spite of desperate efforts by Miss Mann, he eagled the long, par five, eighth hole. After hitting to within five feet of the cup on his second shot, Capt. Remmert had to sink the putt with Miss Mann tugging him away from the ball.

Miss Whitworth has stood high in the ranks of lady golf pros for the past six years. She was named the Most Improved Professional twice, once in 1960 and again in 1962. During the 1964 season, she wound up in third place in the money earning bracket with $20,434.50.

Miss Mann, a relative newcomer to the pro ranks, was rated as the 15th leading money winner in the circuit in 1964, earning $6,792. She captured first place in the Woman's Western Open, coming from behind to win in the final nine holes.

WAC Dribblers Get Walloped

Fort Jackson's WAC team rated first in the Third Army WAC basketball league.

The WAC team now has a 3-4 record.

Not Paid Enough?--Now's the Time to Gripe

Are you dissatisfied with the military pay scale? Do you find that your monthly income fails to meet your expenditure requirements? If so, now is the time to "sound off" and complain where the complaint does most good, according to a recent article in the Army Times.

Make your opinion, criticisms or suggestions for improvements in pay matters known before March 12.

The President's Pay Panel to federal, civilian and uniformed personnel decided recently to take a look at pay matters from the "you" viewpoint. Thus, they have put out a letter requesting views on the matter by anyone who cares to take the time to sit down and write a letter. The notice is being pinned on bulletin boards all over the world and is signed by Marion B. Folsom, chairman of the panel.

The notice as quoted from the Times reads: "The President's Special Panel on Federal Salaries will receive and consider any views on federal salaries which interested government personnel transmit in writing. Letters should be addressed to: President's Special Panel on Federal Salaries; Executive Office of the President; Room 252, Executive Office Bldg.; Washington, D. C. 20503.

"All communications received will become part of the panel's records. Therefore, the panel requests that no materials be sent which the writer wishes to keep or to have returned. No communication can be considered which is received later than March 12, 1965," concludes the panel.

Safety Record

Division Goes 3 Months Fatality-Free

The 2nd Infantry Division set a recent record for safety, according to the commanding general, Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles.

In briefing his unit commanders recently, he said, "In the some seven years I have been with the division I have never let it down and it has never let me down."

He pointed to the last three months of fatality-free driving in the division as an example.

Capt. J. A. Robertson, division safety officer said the three-month fatality-free period is a record for the division, "at least as far as recent statistics indicate."

He said the defensive driving program instituted in December "was no doubt largely responsible for the accident free Christmas holidays and recent observance of George Washington's Birthday.

Robertson said the emphasis on defensive driving was being continued throughout the division. It is in his words, "a continuous thing, not something you forget from time to time."

Division officials generally express a wish that the record will stretch into an indefinite one.

Composite Brigade Marches for Harris

By LANNY THOMAS

A 2nd Infantry Division composite brigade paved the way for more than 10,000 soldiers Saturday to honor U.S. Continental Army Commander Hugh P. Harris in the final minutes of his 38 years of military service to his country.

The Indianhead soldiers, clad in dress greens, bloused boots, helmet liners and strippedpistol belts, were the first in the long parade representing all major commands on the post.

Col. John Armstrong, commander of the 3rd Brigade, led the Division soldiers during the hour-and-half-long retirement review for Harris on Sightseeing Field.

Units of the Division furnishing support were the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry; 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry; 7th Battalion, 17th Artillery; 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor; and 4th Squadron, 7th Cavalry.

"Chief" Sgt. Maryland Tabbonemah, marched at the head of the troops.

Besides the 10,000 troops participating in one of Fort Benning's largest ceremonies, more than 5,000 spectators

CPX Winter Sun II Set: Carolina City Target For Mock War Play

Soldiers of the 2nd Infantry Division Tuesday resume efforts in a long-range mock battle to capture the city of Fayetteville, N. C. and regain control of the Carolina dominating Pee Dee River.

All action in Exercise Winter Sun II — the second phase of a two part command post exercise — will in reality occur on the Fort Benning Reservation, but theoretical planning places the fighting in the Carolinas, according to Lt. Col. Donald A. Funk, exercise director.

Col. Funk said all elements of the division are expected to participate in the problem with emphasis being placed on communications and command and staff procedures.

Commanders will begin plotting battle plans Monday at Division Headquarters, he said. The next day some 3,000 troops move into the fields on the reservation. They are expected to return to garrison Thursday.

Elements Leave Monday

As commanders study the situation Monday, division rear elements will leave garrison for five days of field duty.

Rear elements — including the gigantic 2nd Administration Company and portions of the 122nd Signal Battalion — will perform their normal functions, an official said.

Air Force Maj. Dana T. Moore, the division's air liaison officer, said that jets from MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa, Florida, and Shaw Air Force Base in Myrtle Beach, S. C., are expected to fly 16 sorties during Winter Sun II.

The planes are expected to attack convoys as they move between the fields and the garrison and to hit the command post mid-way through the problem.

Capt. Johny Mooney, assistant to the division's civil affairs officer, said that a team of six airborne trained civil affairs men will come in from Fort Gordon for Winter Sun II.

What their role would be, Capt. Mooney could not specify, but he said it was known that at least three of the men would make jumps.

When the division pulled out of the simulated fighting at the end of January in Winter Sun I, they were on the verge of taking the Pee Dee River and moving onto Fayetteville.

Maj. Reginald H. Corliss, an assistant to Col. Funk, said the division had backed up the enemy against the river.

Air Force support, he said, knocked out the only escape route — a bridge — and caused a flood with the simulated destruction of two dams. He estimated "enemy" losses at up to 50 percent.

Maj. Corliss said that in Winter Sun I the division advanced some 70 miles from its starting point.

"But forward movement of six to eight miles will be considered a major breakthrough in the problem next week," he said. "This time our intelligence indicates that the enemy is in a well-prepared defensive position.

"It will be an entirely different kind of warfare. Progress will be extremely slow."

Factors for great strides in Winter Sun I, the major said, were softening blows dealt the "enemy" by 2nd Division allied units, the 4th Mechanized Infantry Division and the 11th Airborne Corps.

Gen. Chiles Kicks Off Fund Campaigns; 'Everyone Sweetening Pot' With Money

The annual National Health Agencies and the Federal Service Crusade fund drive was kicked off last week when Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles commander of the 2nd Infantry gave this contribution to the chairman of the drive, Col. Fred O. Jackson.

Gen. Chiles said, "these drives are all good, the money donated will go for a good cause."

In a "check presentation" ceremony held in Col. Jackson's office last Friday he said, "everyone is sweetening the pot" as battalion and separate company commanders made their contribution to the drive.

The project officer, Maj. Ross E. Leety, group chiefs and some keyman were also present.

The battalion commanders present were Lt. Col. Jack D. Wallace, 2nd Medical Battalion, Lt. Col. Dean Van Lydegraf, 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion and Lt. Col. John W. Gephart of the 702nd Maintenance Battalion.

Separate companies were represented by Capt. John Leach and PFC Thomas F. Levins both of Headquarters and Headquarters Company and Band.

Also present for the ceremony was Lt. Col. John A. Hemphill, Executive officer and the sergeant major, Sgt. Maj. Joe R. Camp, both assigned to the Support Command Headquarters.

Drive officials said that the campaign affords the opportunity to help support specific health agencies, many of which render services to dependents of members of the military service and others throughout the world. Contributions however do not have to be specified.

"No quotas have been set and contributions are strictly on a voluntary basis," said Capt. Robert C. Lawrence, the division's assistant project officer.

The drive will run through April 7, and includes CARE, Radio Free Europe, the American - Korean Foundation and project HOPE.

Tulane Cadets Visit, Learn All About 'Indianhead' Lieutenants

By LANNY THOMAS

While New Orleans and Mardi Gras festivities may have been the hub of activity in the South this week, four Tulane University ROTC cadets chose to visit the 2nd Infantry Division rather than stay around town.

The cadets, who made the trip here on their own off-duty time, arrived last Saturday and since then have been living with and learning all about the duties of a second lieutenant. Each cadet was assigned to a lieutenant who served as a guide during their stay.

Visiting the division were Cadets Corbett Penton, a senior, Gerald Penzman and Gerald Feldman, both juniors, and David Schuster, a freshman. All four are top students in their respective classes.

Their visit to Fort Benning is the first of a series in a Tulane - sponsored program designed to send students to various Army posts, according to Penton, spokesman for the group.

The future Army officers were greeted Monday morning by Capt. John Mooney, of the division's civil affairs section, in a brief orientation at the Division Historical Center. After a tour of the center, each cadet was escorted to a separate battalion where they spent Monday and Tuesday learning about the duties of a platoon leader.

Commanding General Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles found a few minutes to welcome and exchange remarks with the cadets in his office Tuesday morning. He advised the cadets that a brief visit of this nature could not always reveal the correct picture. "You can't always get an exact picture of a lieutenant or anyone in a short visit like this anymore than we can judge you as the best cadets from Tulane," he said.

"I have a little better understanding of a lieutenant's duties and what to expect," Penton said. "My contact with both officers and enlisted men has been very revealing."

According to Lt. Donald Cornett, a guide from Company B, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry, the cadets were exposed to as many aspects of Army life as possible. They arrived in time to witness a spectacular military review, the retirement ceremonies for Gen. Hugh P. Harris.

During their stay at company level, they also were in the division at a time to see how soldiers are paid, how fund drives operate, and the standards a soldier must meet — uniform and reporting procedures.

Other officers escorting the cadets around the post and with whom they lived were lieutenants James Daily, Company C, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry, Robert Grant, 4th Squadron, 7th Cavalry, and Jareed East, Company A, 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry.

'Garry Owen' Honors Troopers at Retreat

Lt. Col. John F. McArdle, squadron commander, awarded trophies to the platoon leaders whose platoons came out highest in the annual training test competition conducted recently on the Benning reservation.

Sp5 William A. Ross of Headquarters Troop received a Third Army Certificate of Achievement signed by Lt. Gen. C. W. G. Rich. The citation was awarded to recognize the "outstanding professional competence and initiative" shown while working with the 'Project Team' from September to November of last year. Ross, an operations assistant in the S-3, was a special assistant to the deputy chief, Combat Service Support Division, during the project.

The squadron's soldier of the month for February was Sp5 Bruce E. Johnson of Troop A. He received a cash award and letter of commendation from the squadron commander.

Johnson, a tank gunner, plans to make the Army a career and currently is applying for attendance at Officers Candidate School.

Rounding out the awards portion of the ceremony were the presentation of Good Conduct Medals to nine men in the "Garry Owen" organization.

Division Soldier Planning Career in Social Work

By HANK ALLISON

Richard Jason, a former psychiatrist's assistant and now a Medic at headquarters battery of the 2nd Division Artillery wants to be a social worker when he completes his tour with the Army.

"I liked my work and plan to continue it along with my college education after I am discharged," said Jason. "I was majoring in psychology at Villanova University before I was drafted and would like to be a social worker after I earn my degree."

Jason's duties as a psychiatrist's assistant included making sure the patients were fed and properly clothed, setting up appointments to interview incoming patients, and supervising the recreational activities in which his patients were engaged.

The 22 year old Philadelphian kept a full schedule working, going to school at nights, studying, and playing basketball on the Villanova team. Along with all these extra - curricular activities, he still managed to maintain the high grade average which along with his basketball skills had earned him a scholarship to Villanova.

"I started working at the hospital when I graduated from high school," said Jason, "and later became very interested in social work. This is when I decided that if I desired to make any headway I had to go to college.

"There are many people in the world who need help, and I would like to be the one to help them."

gathered for the event to see the one-time post commander and commandant of the Infantry Center retire and receive the Distinguished Service Medal. Army Chief of Staff Harold K. Johnson pinned the medal of Harris in the opening moments of the ceremony.

In his closing goodby to the Army, Gen. Harris expressed a deep interest in activities involving Fort Benning and the city of Columbus.

Members of the division's marching band were integrated with other units of the post to form a single, large group. The band played the Tennessee and Missouri waltzes as Harris trooped the line. Canoneers firing the farewell salute to Harris were members of the 7th Battalion, 17th Artillery.

Navy Ensign Sees Medical Battalion

Ensign Roy T. Coulter while visiting Lt. John Halbert, the medics' motor officer, was given a tour of the area, and was allowed to sit in on a battalion command and staff conference.

Coulter and Halbert both graduated from Ouachita Baptist University, in Arkadelphia, Ark.

Their paths then took different directions as Lt. Halbert came into the Army, while Coulter went to Aviation Officers Candidate School.

Upon graduation he will see temporary duty at Corpus Christi, before assignment to the fleet.

131 Trainees Face First Week's Training In 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry's Program

By Jim Lail

Formal infantry training began this week for 131 advanced trainees assigned to the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

The men are being subjected to a full ten hours of daily training, as they prepare to step into the division as light weapons infantrymen.

Prior to this week, the men were oriented to the infantry training program.

Highlighting the orientation week was a bus tour of the battalion, division and post.

In addition, they were given cold weather indoctrination, protection against lighting and the gas chamber exercise.

"They were given time to establish themselves in the billets during that week too," said Capt. James H. Hogan, of the battalion's training and operations section.

The men have been split among all our of the battalions' companies for housing. "We have sent 37 men to each line company for billetting — with headquarters company assuming a complement of 20," Hogan added.

Lt. Joseph R. Beeman has been selected to act as the company commander for the trainees.

Already the trainees have had an opportunity to acquaint themselves with several of the infantryman's weapons, said a battalion spokesman.

Early this week they were given instruction in field fortifications, first aid, map reading and they tackled the bayonet course at Dare Field.

Thursday, the trainees were given instruction in the use of the M-79 grenade launcher, and today further instruction in the use of the 3.5 rocket launcher.

Tomorrow morning will be no surprise to the trainees, an inspection is slated.

Next week, the men will continue dismounted drill and physical training, together with advanced training in land mine warfare and bayonet assault.

During the ensuing week, the trainees will prepare for the upcoming phsyical combat training test.

Give Prizes At 12th Arty Ceremony

The "Rocketeers" of the 12th Artillery, assembled recently for a combined award-retreat ceremony.

Lt. Col. John R. Grimes, the battalion commander and commander of troops for the parade, presented the awards.

SFC. Marion D. Duncan and SFC. Charles Ban Gordon received the fifth award of the Good Conduct Medal.

Lt. Sgt. Ervin Graham received the third award of the medal and Sgt. Thomas Harbin, the second award.

PFC. Billy I. Griffith of Headquarters Battery was selected as the battalion's Soldier of the Month for January 1965.

Best marksman awards were presented to PFC. Harold F. Biederman of Headquarters Battery, Sp4 David W. Parkinson of Battery A and Sp5 Stuart D. Shaw of Battery B, Sp5 Shaw also received the award for highest score in the battalion.

12th Arty Driver Garners Praise

A driver from the 12th Artillery drew praise recently from Brig. Gen. Edmund L. Mueller, the assistant division commander.

The score represents the outstanding maintenance condition of the vehicle and logbook entries, surpassing division maintenance standards.

Gen. Mueller, commended Passmore for maintaining his vehicle in such an exemplary manner.

Woolwine Named Soldier of Month

Sp4 Charles T. Woolwine of Company B, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry recently was named 1st Brigade soldier of the month board.

He will now appear before the division soldier of the month board.

1st Brigade Sgt. Maj. Hopkins, president of the brigade soldier of the month board, commented that Woolwine "was a standout in the brigade competition. He gave a near perfect performance."

Reg Stresses Water Safety for Troopers

The precision of Reg. 385-26 is pointed up by the fact it deals only with "bodies of water in excess of 1.5 meters in depth" — 58½ inches.

While the new regulation gives no hint for fathoming water in terms of meters, it does, as one facet, require the use of life jackets.

The regulation suggests that those who might be affected by its policy are soldiers on "bridges, rafts, amphibious vehicles, assault boats, small craft" and during fording.

The regulation limits to 25 lbs. the weight of a "non-buoyant" object to be carried during stream crossing and prescribes that it be hung over one shoulder only.

Soldiers involved in water operations are also to be taught swimming, rescuing and artificial respiration.

As a further precaution, a rescue motorboat manned by two lifeguards will be stationed downstream during river operations.

Never Stationed Overseas, But 'Crossed Mississippi River Twice'

By ALICE WITTER

Ignorance may be bliss, but when an outsider asks a member (distaff, or otherwise) of the 7th Cavalry Regiment who Garry Owen was, the outsider feels anything but blissful. Betty McArdle, wife of the commander of the 4th Squadron, 7th Cavalry Commander Lt. Col. John McArdle, explained that "Garry Owen" is not a "who."

Garry Owen, it seems, is Gaelic for Owen's Garden, an inn in Ireland which was a favorite of members of the Fifth Royal Irish Lancers and inspired a drinking song of the same name. When a large number of these Irishmen came to the U. S. and joined the newly-formed 7th Cavalry (back in the days of Custer), they brought their "drinking song" with them. In addition to becoming the signal for the unit's cavalry charge, "Garry Owen" became the name synonymous with the squadrons of the 7th Cavalry Regiment.

MRS. MCARDLE AND LESLIE

The large replica of the squadron crest, which is passed to the new commander of the unit to be mounted on the front door of his quarters, was affixed to the McArdle quarters on 1st Division Road last July.

Met At Knox

The present proud co-owners of that crest, Betty and John McArdle, met a little over ten years ago at Fort Knox, Ky. Betty Haddock, working under the Comptroller there, had been born in Morgantown, W. Va. John McArdle, a native Californian who had graduated from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, was a bachelor officer just returned from a four-year tour in Germany.

The two were married and went for two years to the University of Virginia at Charlottesville, where Capt. McArdle received his master's degree in nuclear physics. In 1955, their daughter Leslie was born.

After graduation, Capt. McArdle was assigned to the Pentagon in Washington, D.C. for three years.

The school year 1960-61 found the McArdles at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, for the Command and General Staff College course.

Works For Dentist

While Major McArdle spent 14 months in Korea, Betty and Leslie remained with Betty's mother in Wheeling, W. Va. Betty worked as a dental assistant while Leslie was in school—a job that aided immeasurably in making the time pass.

When Major McArdle returned to the States in September 1962, his next assignment was at Fort Stewart, Ga.

Although she hopes they will remain at Fort Benning for a couple of years, she looks forward most of all to an overseas assignment. With her pleasant manner and her delightful sense of humor, she says that when other Army wives discuss this foreign country or that she brags that she has crossed the Mississippi River twice!

January of 1964 found the McArdles at the Armed orces Staff College at Norfolk, Va. — an interesting assignment because of the opportunity it offered to meet members of the sister services, the Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps.

Although the Fort Benning assignment came as something of a surprise, the McArdles are very happy here and like both Ft. Benning and Columbus.

Mrs. McArdle, a petite redhead with the pretty, fair coloring that is typical of redheads, has enthusiastically plunged into the activities she enjoys. With her daughter Leslie following in her own footsteps as a Girl Scout, Mrs. McArdle has taken on the tremendous job of Girl Scout leader for a troop of thirty-six girls.

In addition to the many squadron and division activities, she bowls with the 2d Division Officers' Wives League.

She looks forward to getting back into the Gray Ladies' volunteer program here —an activity she has found most satisfying and worthwhile in the past.

She is especially proud of he fact that the ladies of the quadron have a record of never having missed a month in five years of giving ward parties at Martin Army Hospital.

Supply, Transport Battalion Honored on Second Birthday

A party honoring the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion on its second birthday was held recently at the Supper Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

This theme was repeated on the other tables with a battalion crest and the insignia of the Quartermaster Corps, Transportation Corps, Signal Corps, Ordnance, Chemical Corps, and the Engineer Corps, the six branches of the Army which make up the Supply and Transport Battalion. There were also replicas of military vehicles typical of the battalion.

Spring Fashions To Be Modeled

The Ladies of the Big Indianhead, Noncommissioned Officers Wives Club has scheduled a fashion show of the latest Spring fashions from Matthews.

It will be presented by Miss Mable Bailey at the Sand Hill NCO Club for their March luncheon.

The program will be held Wednesday, March 10, and will begin with lunch at 12:30, followed by a parade of the latest in fashions.

Reservations can be made by calling Mrs. Julius Sumrall or Mrs. Roy Austin.

11th AA Sends 'Thanks' For Birthday Note

A letter from the 2nd Infantry Division commander, Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, to Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commander of the 11th Air Assault division, last week brought plaudits from the 11th's commander. The occasion was the 11th's second anniversary.

Said the Kinnard letter: "It was characteristically thoughtful of you to take note of our second birthday by sending us your fine letter of congratulations.

"All of us in the 11th Air Assault Division have been constantly mindful of the support and encouragement which we have continuously received from the Second to None Division. We have been proud to march by your side, fully in step and together sharing our challenges and duties."

"This proves again that it is more fun to be friends with your neighbors," said Gen. Chiles in response to the letter. I am proud of the 11th Division and appreciate their reciprocal pride in us."

Farewell Said To Gen. Coffin

The officers, warrant officers and senior non-commissioned officers of the Support Command were present at Kimbro Gym. Col. F. O. Jackson, commander of Support Command, spoke for his men and presented the general with a sport trophy.

"We will certainly miss you . . . you are truly 'Second to None'" said Col. Jackson. He described the general's work and accomplishments in the Material Readiness programs.

The general spoke to the assembled officers and men on Material Readiness, bid them a fond farewell, and adjorned to the lobby for cake and coffee.

The Supply and Transport Battalion had prepared a decorated cake for the event. The upper corners of the cake held replicas of the S&T crest, and the inscription "Good Luck B. General Coffin" was centered around an artillery insignia. The inscription was yellow on an artillery red background.

Coffin Sees 1st Bde Before Departure

Brigade commander, Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow met with Gen. Coffin in the award-winning 1st Brigade headquarters company mess hall early yesterday morning.

The departing general then spoke to many officers and top non-commissioned officers.

'Denying Opportunity' Believed Best Aid In Division's Crime Prevention Program

By FRED MORROW

The 2nd Infantry Division's Provost Marshal recently published several suggestions for crime prevention. These suggestions concern unit commanders, non-commissioned officers and the individual soldier.

According to a recent letter from the Provost Marshal, there are two factors present in the commission of a crime — desire and opportunity.

"Although very little can be done to control the unknown criminal desires of individuals, much can be done to deny the opportunity for perpetrating offenses," said the Provost Marshal.

Letter Says

The letter goes on to say, "This is particularly true regarding the offense of larceny in the military service. Morale and "esprit de corps" are adversely affected when larcenies occur, especially barracks larcenies."

Suggestions for unit commanders were, to prepare a physical security plan, provide barracks and interior guards, have monthly security indoctrination classes, and provide facilities for securing personal valuables.

Prevention Plan

It was also suggested that unit commanders appoint a NCO to head a crime prevention plan. Under the plan, the NCO appointed would make inspections of buildings in appointed NCO make unannounced periodic inspections of barracks, the arms room, the mess hall, the day room, the company area, inspect the motor pool, and make sure protective lighting is available in these areas.

Inspections

It was suggested that the and the unit parking lot to insure security. In the motor pool, it was suggested he check the perimenter fence and gates to make sure they are in good repair, and also insure that bolt cutters and other sensitive tools be provided with special security.

There were numerous suggestions for the individual soldier. Among these were the purchasing of good locks, the reporting of defective wall or foot lockers to the crime prevention NCO, the reporting of unauthorized or suspicious persons in the company area, and opening bank accounts or buying bonds to secure money.

Former 'Manchu' CO Honors Unit in Letter

By JIM BAKER
Editor, The 2nd Division News

A former commander of the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry, "Manchu" wrote last week from his Pentagon office to tell his old unit of a recent presentation to him of the Legion of Merit.

"The award rightfully belongs to the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry and I accepted it in tha spirit," said Lt. Col. Lewington S. Ponder, now a member of the Office of Per-

"Express"

"I would appreciate it," the letter continued, "if you would express these very deep feelings of mine to those officers, noncommissioned officers and men who were with me in the battalion and who share this honor. No one knows better than I that the award represents the whole hearted efforts of a group of outstanding men. I am privileged to wear it only because I was fortunate enough to serve with these very fine people."

Ponder also occupied the position of assistant chief of staff G-1 while he was with the 2nd Infantry Division.

It was he who commanded the unit when it participated a year ago in Exercise "Long Thrust IX," a three-month air mobility exercise to Europe.

Drew Praise

At the time, the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry drew praise from European commanders for its ability to adapt to the extreme conditions of the German winter and for its overall military bearing.

The letter was addressed to Lt. Col. John D. White and Sgt. Maj. James A. Scott, present commander and sergeant major of the 2nd of the 9th. Scott was sergeant major, when the unit took part in the overseas exercise.

1st Brigade Ends Decisive Shoot

BY JIM LULL

The fourteen smallbore rifle and pistol teams of the 1st Brigade compete today in the final round of elimination marksmanship matches.

Teams from throughout the division have been firing this week, as the field narrows preceeding the 2nd Division smallbore championships upcoming this month.

The 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry and 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry will each fire three teams in both classes, with the 1st Brigade headquarters company rounding out the brigade entrants.

Teams that survive the elimination firing will then compete in the division finals March 22-24.

Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow, 1st brigade commander, has announced that the elimination firing will also determine the 1st Brigade team and individual winners. "We will have an awards ceremony to appropriately honor the top brigade firers later," Snow said.

DID YOU KNOW

The first seven days the 2nd Infantry Division spent in combat were quiet. On the eighth day, elements of four North Korean rifle divisions and two armored divisions slammed into the 'Indianhead' front, thus setting the stage for the first "stand or die" battle of the war for the "Second to None."

20 Awards Presented During Engineer Battalion Retreat

By JIM LULL

The 2nd Engineer Battalion held its monthly awards ceremony Friday, as prizes—numbering an even 20 — were presented.

The affair took place at the 2nd Engineer's Company A classroom, with Lt. Col. Alfred L. Griebling, battalion commander, dealing the awards.

"Competition is healthy," Griebling said, "without it, we wouldn't strive as hard to turn in better than average performances—and the men sitting here today have set high standards which should be followed by all men in the command."

Top Awards

The top unit awards went to Companies A and C, as they took the December and January Best Company plaques, respectively.

Outstanding among the individual awards were the Soldier of the Month winners.

Sp5 Charles J. McKinney, of Company B, distinguished himself as the January Soldier of the Month, and was additionally named the December Equipment Operator of the Month. McKinney was presented a wrist watch.

The December Soldier of the Month award went to Headquarters company. He also received a watch.

Service Award

The December Service Award was given to Headquarters Company. Company E took the same award for January.

The battalion maintenance awards went to Companies C and A for December and January respectively.

Monthly best mess awards went to Company D for December, and Company B. for January.

Sp4 George Anthony of Company B was named the outstanding Driver of the Month for January, and Sp5 Allen Gray was named top equipment operator for the first month of the year.

17th Arty to Leave Monday for Ft. Gordon

The first unit to leave for the Northeast Georgia post will be the 17th Artillery. This 105 mm howitzer battalion commanded by Lt. Col. Glen W. Smith will train and test at Gordon from March 8th to April 1st.

The next unit to test will be the 37th Artillery. The composite 155 mm and 8 inch howitzer battalion will test from April 2nd through April 23rd.

An advance party of 20 Division Artillery soldiers, under the command of Lt. Clinton S. Watson, has been preparing firing points and communications equipment in anticipation of the tests. The detachment, composed of surveyors and communications specialists left for Fort Gordon early in February.

According to Lt. Col. Max E. Rector, Division Artillery operations officer, these tests are the "climax" of the years training.

Col. Rector also stated that the tests will cover three basic combat skills, shooting, moving and communicating. The emphasis, said the colonel, will be on communications and firing accuracy.

The 12th Artillery, the division's Honest John Rocket battalion, will fire their weapons on the Fort Benning reservation during early May.

FAREWELL GIFT
Col. Armstrong and Capt. Plummer

Indianhead Lodge Farewells Honor 3rd Brigade Officers

Indianhead Lodge Thursday afternoon was stuffed full of officers and ladies from the 3rd Brigade who gathered to bid goodbye to Capt. Gerald V. Plummer, Lt. and Mrs. Thomas DeGroff, and to award Third U.S. Army Certificates of Achievement to captains John A. Bond and McClelland Williams.

Bond and Williams were praised for their work during Air Assault II with the Exercise Director, Project TEAM (Test and Evaluation of Air Mobility).

The citations, signed by Lt. Gen. C. W. G. Rich, stated that their service as data collectors and evaluators was characterized by "outstanding professional competence," and "contributed materially to the successful conduct of the exercise."

As a tangible expression of "adieu," the officers and ladies presented Capt. Plummer, and Lt. and Mrs. DeGraff, with sets of two handsome desk pens and engraved penstands.

Upon Lt. DeGroff's separation from active duty at the end of this month, he and his wife Sara plan to reside in Tampa, Fla., where he will pursue his special field, architectural and industrial design.

S & T Honored By Best Mess

The 2d Supply and Transport Battalion went to the top and took the Support Command Best Mess honors for the month of February.

Headquarters and Company A mess hall, under the scrutiny of SFC David F. Lyle, mess steward, won in the competition. Col. Fred O. Jackson, Support Command commander, presented the award to Sgt. Lyle last Friday.

When asked where he would hang it, Lyle replied, "I already have the nail driven for it, and I plan to hang several more."

Of the five awards presented to this date, Lyle's mess hall has won three of them.

The award is won by achieving the highest rating of all Support Command mess halls for preparation of food, sanitation, portion control and economy, administration of records and overall supervision.

Lyle has been with the Supply and Transport Battalion since July 1964. He notes that during his 15 years as a mess steward, he has been presented with approximately 50 best mess awards.

Assistance For Retired

At long last there is a group of people who care enough about the retired serviceman to assist him in whatever capacity is needed once he becomes a respectable citizen of the civilian community.

The idea was conceived by two retired Fort Benning soldiers — Capt. L. T. Pitts and Sgt. John Nelson — felt that there was a need for rehabilitating the retiree who after at least twenty years of federal service becomes faced with many problems in civilian life.

"Rehabilitate"

The term "rehabilitate" is used in the sense that there are many problems facing the retiring soldier upon separation from the service and that something can be done about them. Some of these problems include finding employment, re - locating his family, affiliating them with schools, a church or civic organization entitlements and any number of incidentals that arise in the transition from army to civilian life.

The non-profit organization has received wide acclaim from both prominent civilian and army officials. The results of the program will probably be observed by the Department of Army for possible use at all major installations.

Astute Eyes

Under the astute eyes of a relief committee, responsible for assisting the retiree in his problems, the soldier can take his place in society with the self - assurance and confidence he possessed during his military career. Other committees will be established as required.

The feature of this program is that any retiree may be assisted in any community he so desires if a member of the organization. Of course the immediate aim is to encourage the soldier to retire in Columbus but it must be pointed out that the program is not restricted to only this area.

The Retired Serviceman's Organization is experiencing its growing pains early, as over a hundred people attended its first meeting last month. More are expected to attend the March meeting.

Local radio and press announcements will provide the time and place of its next get together so that all soldiers, retired or are about to retire, can use this service.

To Mechanized Infantry

War Is Noise, Vibration, Lurches

By JOE TREASTER

War to a mechanized infantryman is vibration. It's a violent roar in both ears and shouted instructions from a combat sergeant. It's skidding sideways when the squishy yellow roads blend into hardened pavement.

Whether the war is mock or real makes no difference to the men in the lumbering armored personnel carrier — the banker's armored car gone to the field. The roar and the shouts and the skids are the same. And the vibration never ends.

On maneuvers, as any bleary-eyed soldier can tell you, the days are long and the nights are short. Rest is a sometime thing.

The command, "Move out," may come at anytime. But when it does the men and their metallic monsters are ready. The monsters suck diesel fuel and rattle to life.

At 15 miles an hour balls of hardened clay dance on the armored personnel carrier's seats and floor boards and the whole machine sways on slimy mud roads like a skiff in the Atlantic.

Some soldiers get seasick in an APC. But in a fast moving battle there's no time for that.

When the enemy is distant, most of the squad can squeeze up through the top hatch for a look at where they're going. But when there is danger of small arms fire or shrapnel the men face each other on metal benches.

Cornering in a buttoned-up APC is like whirling on the "Whip" at a carnival —the world spins sideways and you jerk forward.

On straight, hard roads the APCs reach up to 40 mph and with the tracks grabbing the pavement unevenly, it's zig-zagging all the way.

As the speed increases, the noise and vibrations increase. The driver presses harder and the diesel explosions build. Only the call to "dismount" stops the racket and lets the troops out of the metal box.

But outside there's another kind of noise: enemy fire.

Use of Drugs, Narcotics Exploded

A booklet, prepared by Lt. Daniel F. Sweeney of the Information Office, presents a moral case against drug addiction and delineates the various types.

Four Species

Stimulation is largely achieved through pep pills and goof balls, Sweeney says. Sedation would be acquired from sleeping pills.

And in the last category, stupor, the drugs commonly thought of as the paraphernalia of addicts are implied — heroin, cocaine and others.

Medical Use

Each of these drugs has a sound basis in medical treatment when used under the supervision of a doctor, Sweeney observes.

As an example, he points out that the potent drugs — such as heroin — are invaluable to relieve the pain of cancer or to ease post-operation pain.

Recognizing the valid medical role of drugs and narcotics, Sweeney pitches his booklet to those who would satisfy "insatiable desires."

When man places his senses above his "intellect and will," as he does with the criminal use of narcotics, he reverts to "animalism," Sweeney says.

First, it is damaging to the body, he says. Second, the military provides stiff penalties under Article 134 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

Not only does the military prescribe a maximum penalty of six years in prison and a dishonorable discharge for the "possession and-or use of illegal narcotics," Sweeney says, but the individual is not released to society until he has been cured.

These are the reasons given by Sweeney under the heading "Why Do People Become Drug Addicts:"

33 Complete Five-Week Air Observation Course

By Bob Jones

After five weeks of constant training, 20 officers and 13 enlisted men completed the Aerial Observation Course and were presented their diplomas by Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, the Commanding General of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Chiles addressed the students and pointed up the need for the aerial observer and his part in gathering intelligence. He further stressed the urgency for high caliber training so we "may be better trained for the future."

First to receive his certificate was 2nd Lt. James J. Bowers of Battery D, 37th Artillery, who was the honor student of the course. Bowers compiled a total of 959 points out of a possible 1000 and according to Gen. Chiles, "upheld the traditions of the 'Second to None' and allowed none to get ahead of him."

The Aerial Observation Course is conducted annually by the 2nd Infantry Division and is offered to company grade officers and "key" enlisted men. The students are non - awaiters from various units throughout the division.

The 2nd Aviation Battalion, under the command of Lt. Col. John G. Cleveland, was responsible for the training and Capt. Jerry M. Roberts of the battalion was the project officer.

Roberts explained "the primary purpose of the course is to teach students the methods and techniques of gathering intelligence and adjusting of artillery fire. The school is five weeks in length and is broken up into two phases, the ground school and the flight phase."

He further added, "the aerial observer is an important element in combat and might be considered the eyes of the division."

Aiding the 2nd Aviation Battalion in the instruction were the division's Military Intelligence, Chemical, and G2 sections.

The students flew over 660 hours in the observation helicopters and fixed wing aircraft of the aviation battalion's General Support Company.

Lt. Thomas Grant of "Bravo" Company, 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry, made an excellent showing in the course, presented by the 2nd Aviation Battalion.

Lt. Grant achieved a score of 899 points out of a possible 1,000.

Presented in two phases, the course began with class room study of target detection and artillery adjustment from the air, photo reconnaissance, route reconnaissance, and chemical-biological-radiological (CBR) weapons systems.

Twenty hours of practical application was spent in the air, testing the knowledge gained on the ground.

Better Days for Commanders

Latest DA Plan to Alleviate Personnel Shortages; Keeps Supply of Trained Troops Ready to Replace

A plan to alleviate 18-hour days and other hardships caused by personnel change shortages is being proposed by the Department of the Army.

The new plan, also designed to lessen a commander's headaches that sometime come with the rapid turnover of Army personnel, provides constant strength of trained individuals. According to an article in the current Army Times, commanders should be able to see their unit strength remain firm for a 12-month period, beginning July 17.

If the experimental program proves successful, it probably will be put into effect on a permanent basis.

Under the present system the Army is required to maintain its strength throughout the year as close to the strengths at the beginning and end of the year as possible.

When the Army loses a certain number of personnel due to separation (ETS) and other reasons, it is authorized to draft or recruit an equal number to make up for the deficit. However, the flaw in this system is that the new procurements are untrained to fill the vacant jobs.

Caused Worry

This shortcoming has caused worry for both the commander and those personnel in the unit hit by the sometimes rapid loss of its members. Many persons find themselves doing two and three jobs until adequate replacements arrive.

The new "level trained base" program is designed to permit a smooth transition in the turnover of personnel, according to the Times' article. Under this system a unit reports the ETS of its members far enough in advance so that when a trained man leaves, a trained replacement is ready to jump into his job. This plan will require the Army to procure someone to be trained for a specific job five months prior to the departing date of the member.

The system allows the monthly strength of the Army to change while the operational strength remains constant. According to the Times, the Army has already seen the effect of this change since the draft for the winter and spring exceeded the losses.

Fifteen thousand persons were drafted in February and commanders should feel the difference in July when these soldiers turn up trained for their jobs

Secretary of Army Stephen Ailes has given full support to the system.

Awards Ceremony Highlights S & T Retreat

By ART CHIEPPA

After formal retreat, Lt. Col. Dean VanLydegraf, battalion commander, said of those to be honored, "I am proud to present awards such as these to such deserving men."

Trophies

Soldier of the Month trophies for the months of November '64 through February '65 were awarded on the basis of neatness, military bearing, knowledge of military subjects and outstanding performance of duty.

VanLydegraf addressed the formation of troops, commending them for jobs well done. He specifically commended Sgt. John P. Bridge, who was recently promoted to his present grade, on his fine performance of duty.

Three Words

"An old college professor once told me, if you ever get in a bind on making a speech, just think of three words, 'mind', 'body', 'spirit'," the colonel said. Those are fitting today, they bring to mind our soon departing Sgt. Major. Sgt. Archer has performed in an outstanding manner as sergeant major of this battalion."

Sorrow showed in the face of Archer as he stated, "In my nearly 20 years of service, this is one of the finest units I have ever served with. I hope to have the opportunity to serve with you again in the future."

The Soldier of the Month awards sent to Sgt. James R. Alexander, Company B for November, Sp5 Robert V. Dorsey Jr., Headquarters Company for December, Sp4 Eugene A. O'Neil, Headquarters Company for January and the February award went to Sgt. Jack D. Whidden Jr., also of Headquarters Company.

A letter of commendation for being selected Orderly of the Day to the commanding general of the Infantry Center was presented to Sp4 Roger M. Berry of Company B.

Basketball

Concluding the awards ceremony was the presentation of the battalion's basketball trophies to Lt. Col. Banner Lydegraf. PFC Melvin M. Nicol, team captain, gave the commander the runner-up trophy for the season first half, and the championship trophy for the second half placings in the Apache League.

Chaplain Urges Stronger Servicemen-Church Ties

The Chaplain's subject, "The responsibility of local churches to the serviceman," was well illustrated by his many experiences with the 2nd Infantry Division's young men.

The meeting was attended by all Fort Benning Methodist Chaplains, their wives, and members of the congregation.

"The local church must know who the serviceman is and what he is like," said the Chaplain. "The average G.I. is like any young man in your church, no different. He doesn't change into a different person when he puts on a uniform."

The Chaplain also said that, "The chapels on Fort Benning and the churches in town, are not in competition, they must work together.

Many servicemen and their families live in Columbus, and go to church in town. Many of the unmarried young soldiers like to leave the barracks and go to town on the weekends for a change of scenery. "We encourage these men and their families to go to church in town and mingle with the civilian population so that they may know each other better," said the chaplain.

"We feel that the churches downtown, along with those on post, have a responsibility to the serviceman and that they are meeting it."

Logistics Officer Vietnam-Bound

"It should be a good tour. I haven't seen any combat since Korea, more than twelve years ago," he said.

Normally he is the battalion motor officer, but with the temporary absence of Capt. William Spisak, attending an amphibious training course, McIntosh has been holding down the S4 job.

Part-Time Study Bears Fruit for Div MP Officer

It took the young supply officer of the division's MP Company only one year of spare-time-study to successfully complete the correspondence course that Fort Gordon MP School authorities ordinarily expect a man to take six years to complete.

Pietrofesa holds a bachelor's degree in history and a master's degree in psychology from the University of Miami.

The course is ordinarily one of nine month duration for resident instruction however it is offered as a correspondence course and is usually completed over a six year period, the lieutenant explained.

Traffic control, prisoner of war control, criminal investigation, civil affairs, combined arms operation and nuclear weapons provide the bulk of subject matter for the course.

The course is a prerequisite for promotion to the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Military Police Corps.

Pietrofesa is presently working on a doctorate in psychology and reports that he has already completed his desertation, one of the hurdles in the acquiring of a PhD.

Also present for the award was Capt. DeWitt Hudson, MP Company commander.

Pietrofesa and his wife, Diana have one son, John David.

Harris Review Occasions Reunion of War-Time Duo: Almond-Chiles Combination Works Over Seven Years

By JIM BAKER
Editor, The 2nd Division News

Commanders past and present of the 2nd Infantry division got a chance to reminisce last week about the seven years in which Army assignments threw them together.

Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Edward M. Almond visited Fort Benning last week on the occasion of Gen. Hugh P. Harris' retirement ceremony.

He took time to visit the unit he commanded from Sept. 17, 1945 to May 15, 1946.

Upon his arrival, the present commanding general presented the former commander an Indianhead Division lapel pin and said "It's a real honor to have you here today, sir!"

The retired general helped in the promotion of 1st Sgt. Clovie C. Quick, division noncommissioned soldier of the year to his present rank.

"In my judgment, the first sergeant is the most important individual in the Army," Almond remarked.

During the time Gen. Almond commanded the division, Gen. Chiles was the commander of the division's 23rd Infantry Regiment.

In the Spring of 1946 Gen. Almond went to Japan to become Deputy Chief of Staff for MacArthur's General Headquarters.

In 1948 Gen. Chiles became assistant secretary of the general staff in the same headquarters. Again the Almond-Chiles association flourished as Gen. Almond took over the post of Chief of Staff and Gen. Chiles became secretary of the general staff.

Outbreak of war in Korea saw Gen. Almond appointed to head X Corps and Chiles became Corps G-3 officer.

The two men worked together through the Inchon landing, and the fighting in northeast Korea.

Early in 1951, the 2nd Division was assigned to X Corps.

February of that year saw the Almond-Chiles team riding in the same aircraft when news came that Col. Paul Freeman, (now Gen. Freeman) commander of the 23rd Infantry Regiment, had been wounded in bloody fighting at Chipyong-Ni.

Gen. Almond asked Chiles "How would you like the 23rd back?" Chiles' answer was another question.

"How did you feel when you got command of X Corps?"

Gen. Chiles was almost immediately flown in to command the unit he served with in World War II, now surrounded by four Chinese divisions at Chipyong-Ni.

Chiles left Korea to attend the Army War College in July of '51. Months later the two men were thrown together once again. Gen. Almond was assigned as commandant of the college. Gen. Chiles became executive officer of the college upon completion of his studies there.

Of Almond the man, Gen. Chiles says "He was a magnificent soldier.

"He had one attribute we could all emulate — he never failed to take an objective in combat."

COMMANDERS PAST AND PRESENT promote Clovie C. Quick, division soldier of the year to first sergeant. Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Edward M. Almond a World War II commander of the 2nd Division and Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, present commander, do the honors.

Reunited With Driver

It was like old times for retired Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond, former 2nd Infantry Division commander, when he visited Fort Benning and the 2nd Infantry Division last week.

The general, here for General Hugh P. Harris's farewell review, was reunited with his driver SFC George W. Dawson.

Dawson served with Gen. Almond for five years. The first two years were in Japan where the General was Chief of Staff under Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

When the Korean War broke out, Gen. Almond took command of X Corps, to which the 2nd Infantry Division was assigned in 1951. Dawson went with him.

72nd Drops Medics For Crown

The 72nd Armor opened a new charge in the final half of the 2nd Division Basketball Tournament on Thursday evening of last week and turned the tables on tre 2nd Medical Battalion for a 77-74 victory.

However, the Medical Battalion knocked down their first obstacle in a bid for the post championship Tuesday night by downing the 5th Battalion, 11th Infantry, in a 60-59 thriller.

The division championship put 72nd Armor in the seat for a stab at the post championship being played this week at Briant - Wells Field House on Main Post. They received a bye for the first round and their first game was to be played Wednesday night against the 11th Air Assault's 38th Infantry champions.

The Medical Battalion was to make its second appearance in the tournament Wednesday against the 29th Infantry.

Lt. David Eakins and Pvt. Charles Haynes were key guns pointwise in pushing 72nd Armor to its victory in the division finals. Eakins scored high with 31 while Haynes followed with 29. John Hundley cont ibuted 11 points toward the victory.

PFC David Robinson, a Medic who turned in a brilliant performance throughout the tourney, kept the winners in contention with 20 points and teammate PFC Cyril Cosgrove netted 20. Robinson also proved himself again and led his team with 32 points in the opener of post play.

In semi-finals of division play, Robinson racked up 35 points in a game with the Supply and Transport Battalion that put his team in the finals with a 80 to 68 win.

In division finals, the Medics appeared well on their way to victory with a lead throughout the first two stanzas. However, 72nd closed the gap after the halftime break, but not for long. The Medics came back with a stronger charge and at moments widened their lead to eight points. However, 72nd again chopped the lead. With Haynes setting up Eakins for outside shots, the two put the winners in front to stay.

In semi-final action between the Medics and S and T, Nicol and Payblas of S and T took scoring honors with 33 and 19 points, respectively.

The Aftermath

BY TOM KIRWAN

On television, Mr. Magoo is a fumbling little cartoon character, who has so much trouble with his eyes that he tips his hat to lampshades. In sneakers, Mr. Magoo is a guy who has trouble adjusting his eye-sight but whose specialty is handling and shooting a baketball.

Dave Eakins — Mr. Magoo of the 72nd Armor — was the best ballplayer in the 2nd Division Basketball Tournament. This might seem impossible to someone who heard Dave explain the reason he wears eye glasses, "I have trouble adjusting my vision to varying ranges, so it is hard for me to judge distance."

In the quarter final game, his team was down by 14 points at the end of the first half. In the last twenty minutes of play Eakins threw-in eleven shots from the floor—seven straight - totaled 26 points for the half, finished the game with a total tally of 33 points, and his team left the floor the victors.

As Dave explained to his wife Fran, "My shooting for this tournament was as good or even better than any game I played in high school or college."

The 72nd Armor finished third in regular season play but a strong home stretch effort made them the division champs. Eakins blamed the sudden success of the ballclub on two things. During the regular season, our Battalion was preparing for an Annual General Inspection, and it wasn't until after the inspection that the necessary time could be fully devoted to practice. The main reason, however, was that our Battalion Commander, Lt. Col. Trost gave us the backing and the command emphasis the team needed. "That man didn't miss one of our games, and I think sometimes he was more exhausted from cheering than the team was from playing."

Mr. Magoo scored a total of 115 points in the tournament for a game average of 28.8 points (It is too bad that such talent was not selected to represent the division, on the All Star team). But his hardwood magic isn't the only reason the tankers ended up as the division's best team. During the tournament the crusader center, Charles Haynes, scored a total of 84 points and was responsible, along with Len Jones, for pulling down the needed rebounds. Ron Johnston and John Hundley were the team hustlers, and in the championship game they made the medics feel as if they were tied up in their own splints.

ROBINSON (24) AND HAYNES, (25)

Gen. Kinnard Praises Washington

38th Infantry Fights Battle for 2nd Place

By Gene M. Wilver

"Washington for two!"

"Beard on a one-hand jumper!"

"Washington on a dunk!"

"Washington steals and dunks for two!"

"Beard hits on another jumper!"

These were the sounds heard over the loudspeaker by avid sport fans at the Harmony Church Field House last night as the 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry "Falcons" fought off a determined 2nd Battalion 38th Infantry 88-80 for the 11th Air Assault Division Championship.

As has been the case in all of the past games, the six foot six inch center of the 511th, Edward Washington, led the way with a game high of 39 points. Emmit Beard of the 38th Infantry, with his unstoppable jump shot, contributed 37 points in a losing cause.

Washington got the tap to Rich Bosacker and the game was underway. Sloppy ball handling and taut nerves resulted in a slow start for both teams. Washington and James Watson, playing for the 511th and the 38th respectively, were being carefully watched and in the opening few minutes of the championship game, the two big men were throttled.

With five minutes gone by in the first half, the 511th came to life with the help of the brilliant playing of Washington, Bosacker, and Ken Boyer. The "Falcons" opened the gap to 12 points but at 10:12 of the first half, the 38th found the range and began to dwindle down the lead. Beard and Ronald Towe hit on jumpers and Dennis Carey's continued harassment of the opposing team ball handlers, ignited the spark.

With 2:30 left in the first half, Beard hit on another one of his numerous jump shots to even the score at 39 all. After exchanging the ball many times, Beard hit on another jumper from outside of the key to put the 38th in the lead for the last time. Coming right back, Ronald Konmotsu of the "Falcons", the shortest man on the court, crept under the basket and pushed a one-hander up and thru the coirds to knot the score once more.

This little incident seemed to spark the "Falcons" as combined for seven straight points to put the 511th ahead at the end of the first half, 44-39.

Washington again won the tap and Bosacker grabbed it, flipped to Washington, and the "Falcons" had two more points. The 38th began their comeback drive with 18:22 left and Beard put on a one-man show with his fabulous array of jump shots from everywhere on the court. From this point on it became evident to the spectators that it was going to be a battle between two men on the court for scoring honors, Washington and Beard.

Beard pulled the 38th up within five points but Washington found the range and sank three straight baskets before Beard connected with 10:25 to go.

Beard and Washington exchanged basket for basket during the last ten minutes and when the buzzer sounded the score was 88-80 in favor of the "Falcon." Even in the waning minutes of this ballgame the 38th was launching another drive.

At the sound of the buzzer, pandemonium reigned as the men and players of 511th carried their coach off the floor on their shoulders.

Washington was high man of the game with 39 points. Teammates Bosacker, Grese, and Boyer had 13, 14, and 10 points respectively for the victorious "Falcons."

Leading the way for the 38th Infantry was Beard with 37 points and Towe with 16 points.

Col. Seneff Honored At Farewell Review

Col. George P. Seneff, Jr., former 11th Aviation Group commander, was present for a last farewell from the officers and men of the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion at a retreat ceremony held on Feb. 26, in the 227th Parade area.

Included in the ceremonies were the retirements of two warrant officers who have each completed over 20 years of active federal service. CWO Roy C. Adams, Alpha Company, and CWO Jimmie R. Price Bravo Company were the officers to retire and both were presented the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious service as well as their retirement certificates.

The officers and men of the 227th gave the final salute to Col. Seneff which was followed by a coffee social within the battalion commander's office. Wives and families of the retiring officers plus other ladies of the battalion were present for the social.

Col. Seneff was awarded the famed 227th "Tiger Certificate" by the battalion commander after which he bid his farewell to the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion.

Flying Cross Earned By 227th Aviator

Lt. Kenny distinguished himself by "heroic action" during the daring rescue of the crewmembers of a downed helicopter. He executed this rescue under "heavy fire from the Viet Cong forces."

The award was presented by Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general, 11th Air Assault Division, at the massive division review on Sightseeing Field.

They Ask Your Help

The National Health Agencies and Federal Services Joint Crusade have appealed to us for support of their activities.

These agencies through medical research, radio broadcasts to Iron Curtain countries and distribution of food are waging a winning war against poverty, disease, hunger and oppression the world over. Our contributions will do much to further these worthwhile objectives.

100% participation by the division will not only be of great financial assistance to these worthwhile activities but will also demonstrate our concern for the betterment of our own citizens and those less fortunate in other countries of the world.

Former 1st Brigade CO

Beatty to Command 11th Aviation Group

Col. George S. Beatty, Jr. a veteran Army aviator and former commanding officer of the 1st Air Assault Brigade, has been chosen to command the 11th Air Assault Division Aviation Group, replacing Col. George P. Seneff.

Col. Beatty has commanded the 1st Brigade since the division's activation in February 1963. Before coming to the 11th, he was assigned as the G-3 (plans and operations) of the U. S. Army Aviation Center, Fort Rucker, Ala.

Receiving his commission in December 1938, Col. Beatty was placed on active duty in August 1940. During World War II he served with the 24th Infantry Division in the Pacific Theater.

After the war he was assigned to Fort Benning where he served as an instructor for the Infantry School. When the Korean War broke out, he served as the Commanding Officer of the 2nd Battalion, 187th Regimental Combat Team.

Following the War he was assigned to the Pentagon in Washington, D. C. He is a graduate from the Naval War College in Newport, R. I. Among his awards and decorations are the Combat Infantryman's Badge with Star, the Master Parachutist Badge and the Army Aviator Wings.

11th Pathfinders Conduct Second Guidance Class

Capt. Richard D. Gillem, commander of the 11th Aviation Group Pathfinders has announced plans for a second Terminal Guidance Team Leaders Course to be held from 8-12 March. Instructors for the course will be members of the Pathfinder Company.

The Terminal Guidance course will train selected personnel from various units of the 11th Air Assault Division in the procedures and techniques of establishing and operating platoon - size landing sites for UH-1 IROQUOIS and CH-47 CHINOOK aircraft. This training will make it possible for infantry or artillery units, for example, to select and set-up their own pick-up areas during night operations when regular Pathfinder personnel are not available. In general this capability will add considerably to the flexibility of the unit commander.

The course itself will include refresher training in land and aerial navigation, familiarization with Army aircraft, an introduction to Pathfinder equipment and procedures, and practical work in the selection and organization of helicopter pick-up and landing zones for both day and night operations. A written examination will be given at the end of the course.

The first Terminal Guidance Team was held in August prior to the Carolina maneuver. The twenty - two personnel who were graduated from that class were able to assist greatly during AIR ASSAULT II. Qualified personnel were called upon again during January to supplement the Division Pathfinders during training exercises.

Officers and NCO students for the course will be sent from major and separate units in the Division. Nominees for the course need not be airborne qualified and may or may not already have had formal Pathfinder training. They should be assigned unit duties which will permit their using this specialty to support their unit's operations.

Caribou Commander Now 'Chopper' Rated

Lt. Col. John W. Lauterbach, 37th Air Transport Battalion commanding officer has recently returned from Fort Wolters, Tex. and is now fully chopper rated. Lt. Col. Lauterbach, who commands the Army's only Caribou battalion, just completed the Rotery Wing qualification course.

Already rated in the fixed winged O1A,B & D, U6A, U-8, CV-2 and Cessna 182, his recent school qualifies him in the OH23D for a total flying hours of over 1200.

A United States Military Academy graduate, class of 1947, Lt. Col. Lauterbach has served in Europe with the 18th Infantry and Tiawan with the Military Assistance Advisory Group. His stateside tours have taken him to Fort McNair, Washington and Fort Rucker, Ala. where he was graduated from Fixed Wing Aviator School in 1959, and several tours of Fort Benning, Ga.

His current tour of Fort Benning started with his arrival in August 1962 to command the 62nd Aviation Company (FW-LT). He retained the same position when the 62nd reorganized into the present 187th Transport Airplane Company in February 1963.

In September, 1963, Lt. Col. Lauterbach became executive officer of the 37th Air Transport Battalion and in January 1964 was selected for 10th Air Transport Brigade S-3. In May 1964 he assumed command of the 37th Air Transport Battalion.

Under Col. Lauterbach's leadership the 37th Air Transport Battalion supporting the 11th Air Assault Division, successfully completed AIR ASSAULT II. The battalion flew over 18,000 hours, transported nearly 30,000 troops and carried over 16,000 tons of cargo.

An interesting footnote is even though the 511th won the championship, both of these 2nd Brigade teams will play on the post championship and it is feasible that these same two teams could once battle it out for the post championship.

611th Wives Are Praised For Inspirational Help

Company B, 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion wishes to publicly recognize and offer deserved praise to wives of personnel of this unit, for their part in helping to successfully prove the air assault concept. Their glowing smiles, radiating constant joy, and their inspirational support, was of great moral value. It is hoped this article will, in part, suffice for an expression of deep thanks.

The wives of personnel of Company B, 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion diligently discharged their wifely duties in enduring all of the hardships of temporary, and prolonged, separation. Being instrumental in restoring morale during short and unscheduled visits, she represented a coveted milestone of devotion in the esteem of her wornout, tired, beaten, battered, overworked and sad - eyed husband.

Despite dark circles under hubby's eyes, which were sometimes clear below his chin, she flattened his ego by convincingly referring to him as her handsome Prince Charming.

Despite the fact that his conversations included only matters pertinent to aircraft maintenance, or flying, she achieved the knack of remaining, quiet, attentive, faithful and understanding when such subjects were discussed. She greeted him with open arms only to be given a peck on the cheek, and a grunted hello, in return. Through all of this, and more, she will always remain the beacon that guides to a safe landong.

Having undergone the supreme (Air Assault Concept) test she doubtlessly will remain the patient ever - loving partner of his aircraft maintenance career.

187 TAC Wives At Feb. Gathering

The February coffee for the ladies of the 187th Transport Airplane Company was held recently in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Centering the coffee table was a baroque mirror and an arrangement of beauty and grooming aids. This served as a thought provoking introduction for Mrs. Richard Renfro, who outlined the topics covered in the Charm and Modeling classes offered by the Women's Club.

Mrs. Ted Holloway, wife of the company commander, welcomed Mrs. Leroy Jones, Mrs. Robert Vaughan, and Mrs. Joseph Hudson as newcomers. She also thanked the hostesses; Mrs. Bill Nave, Mrs. George Holloway, and Mrs. Victor Turanski; for arranging the coffee.

'White Elephant' Coffee Held by Cavalry Ladies

The ladies of the Staff, Headquarters, and Troop A hostessed a White Elephant Coffee which was this month's function for the wives of the 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry.

Mrs. Gerald Flick, Mrs. Robert Zion and Mrs. Walter Beckham were responsible for decorating the home of Mrs. John B. Stockton, wife of 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry commander. The table looked lovely with two silver coffee and tea services along with refreshments and a huge pink and white paper mache elephant. The latter was donated to the Ft. Benning School for mentally retarded children.

During a short meeting the ladies were honored to meet Mrs. Harry W. O. Kinnard and Mrs. E. B. Roberts.

Mrs. Clarence Knight and Mrs. George Park were the recipients of the door prize.

As a finale, fun and mischief abounded as the ladies traded and bargained their brown paper bags containing their white elephants.

A Tragedy That Became An Epic

STORY BY CHUCK LOWENHAEEN
JOE POPLINSKI

"The flood started on December 21st; nine years to the day since our last major disaster," said Robert R. Bessett, full-time lumber-jack and parttime civil defense worker. "I was here when the waters hit back in 1955, and let me tell you, there is no comparison between that one and this one. This year's flood has caused about eight times as much damage. Of course, the areas around here were not as developed then as they are now."

At 1:00 a.m., January 22nd, just five short hours after receiving the initial call, two CHINOOKS from the Provisional Helicopter Company "brokeground" and left Fort Benning, enroute to Eureka. Capt. Mark C. Kendall was officer in charge of the flight and also piloted one of the aircraft. With him was CWO Charles E. Kanode as co-pilot and Sp6 David C. Everette and Sp5 Daniel J. Chavez as flight engineers. Aircraft number two was piloted by Capt. Thomas R. Messick with CWO Robert L. Watts as his co-pilot. Sp6 Harold E. Rains and Sp6 W. P. Fowler were the flight engineers for Capt. Messick's ship.

When the two aircraft arrived, they found complete devastation. The flood waters had traveled inland some three hundred miles. Armed Forces aircraft had been in the area since January 6th but due to the mountainous terrain previously mentioned, it was impossible to use fixed-wing aircraft, no matter how small for anything other than surveillance and recomaissance missions. As Mrs. J. Pitera, a national Red Cross worker put it, "The people in this area had lost everything. It was impossible to reach some places, except by air and the arrival of the larger helicopters from Fort Benning, were a God-send."

In the midst of the disaster area, all of the bridges and even one super highway were completely washed out. Highway No. 101, a four-lane thoroughfare leading up the west coast from San Francisco to the Canadian Border, was not re-opened until February 7th.

The arrival at Eureka Airport, a small county airfield used mostly by private businessmen, marked a precedence in Army aviation. It was the first time that CH-47 CHINOOK helicopters had flown from Fort Benning to the west coast.

Northern California's climatic conditions make it almost impossible to fly more than five hours a day. Even when the sun is high in the sky at 10:00 in the morning, a soft, grey mist that clings to the ground, makes visibility of more than a half a mile in any direction, virtually impossible. Add to this continuously changing drafts of air in the mountain valleys and there is no need to wonder why Mr. Bessett says, "the pilots remain cool, calm and confident while flying into places I wouldn't ride as a passenger, and in most cases accomplish rescue missions and re-supply missions that are nothing short of miracles".

During the first three days of February, the two CHINOOKS flew a total of 16 hours and twenty minutes. In this small amount of time, they flew nine missions, twenty-one sorties carrying a total of thirty passengers and more than 95,000 pounds of cargo.

On February 11th, another CHINOOK arrived from Fort Benning. With the exception of one day, when the airfield remained closed-in because of bad weather, during the next week the three aircraft flew 21 hours and 50 minutes, 10 missions and 36 sorties. During this time they carried 73 passengers and 114,000 pounds of cargo.

The cargo carried on these flights was enough to challenge the load plans that were originally intended for the aircraft. It is easy to load a helicopter with arms, ammunition and military supplies, when it is done daily, as at Fort Benning, but it is completely another thing to load baled hay one minute, diesal tractor petroleum products the next, and then turn around and load bathtubs, kitchen fixtures and building materials — all in the same day. But that is the job that confronted the flight engineers and crew-chiefs.

A typical day in Eureka would start off by all flight personnel reporting to the airport by 7:15 in the morning. Each aircraft was inspected and cleaned. This normally took about two hours. Then if the weather permitted the aircraft would be loaded. Officers, NCO's, enlisted men, civil defense and Red Cross workers, high school and college students worked side by side. Fifty-two bales of hay makes up one load for a CHINOOK. Each bale weighed a little over one hundred pounds. After about forty-five minutes of flight time, the CHINOOK lands and its cargo unloaded. Landing areas are hard to find in the mountains and as likely as not, the helicopter may land on the side of a hill. It can't go back empty, so some families wanting to go into town for a while pile in and then the aircraft heads back to the airport. Following this schedule, the CHINOOKS fly more than four such flights per day. Around 3:00 p.m. the fog starts to roll in again and the aircraft are tied down for the night. If the day has been bad, and visibility almost negligible, then the men spend all of it working on their helicopters. This schedule is followed seven days a week. To the military personnel there, the difference between week days and weekends is not noticed.

At 6:00 a.m. on February 6th, three CV-2 CARIBOUS left Fort Benning for Eureka. Two of the aircraft contained maintenance parts for the CHINOOKS and the other one carried relief crews. These were the same men that had originally acted as reserve crews for the initial trip. The CARIBOUS arrived at Eureka late on the night of the seventh. On Monday the 8th, the new crews began flying missions.

On February 12th the CARIBOUS arrived back at ort Benning with the original CHINOOK crews. Citizens of Eureka, when asked their opinion on the conduct and effectiveness of the pilots and crew members of our units, stated, "These men have flown in utterly treacherous weather, overcome snow, rain and fog, and were always ready to go. They accomplished more than was asked or expected of them."

Fourteen Sky Soldiers from the 11th Air Assault Division and the attached 10th Air Transport Brigade who were aboard a twin - engined CV-2 CARIBOU when it made a forced landing a 5:00 p.m., on February 11th, hold in high esteem four ladies from the Lucedale, Miss., area.

The aircraft was on the last leg of a cross - country flight from Eureka, Calif., to Fort Benning when the pilot, Capt. Kenneth Womack, noticed a sudden loss of oil pressure in the planes right engine. In an extremely short period of time, Capt. Womack and Lt. David Marshall, co-pilot, brought the aircraft down from its altitude of 800 feet and landed it in a cow pasture owned by Clifton Mcleod of Lucedale. On the way down, forty-five foot flames, stremed behind the engine, but were quickly extinguished by the passengers and crew - members when the aircraft stopped.

About thirirty minutes after the landing, Mrs. Clifton Mcleod, Mrs. Floyd Mcleod, Mrs. Dorthy Mcleod and Mrs. Francis Birch, whose husbands own nearby farms, prepared and served coffee and cookies to the Sky Soldiers. They further showed their kindness and generosity by serving meals that evening and the next day to two men that were left behind to guard the aircraft

The CV-2 CARIBOU is noted for its short distance take-off and landing capabilities and according to its pilot, Capt. Womack, "Under the circumstances, it was a perfect landing."

Netherland Generals Visit 38th Battalions

The 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry attached to the 11th Air Assault Division, recently played host to three Netherland generals who were visiting Fort Benning. Maj. Gen. Bouwe Andringa, Brig. Gen. Johannes Wolterberk, and Brig. Gen. Jacob Krees were met in front of the 1st Battalion Headquarters by Lt. Col. Arne H. Eliasson, commanding officer of the 1st Battalion, and Lt. Col. Robert B. Tully, commanding officer of the 2nd Battalion.

The visiting generals were then escorted into Lt. Col. Eliasson's office where they were shown the Van Heutsz Sabers which were presented to the 38th Infantry Regiment on Oct. 25, 1956 by Maj. C. C. van Livth de Jeude, the Inspector General of the Royal Netherlands Army. While in the office Maj. Cecil M. Henry, battalion S-3, gave a briefing on the history of the 38th Infantry Regiment. Next the guests were taken to the outer office where refreshments were served. At this time the generals were introduced to some of the NCO's that fought with the 38th in Korea.

Rappelling Goat Gets New House

Rakky Rakkasan, the rapelling goat from the 1st Air Assault Brigade's 1st Battalion, 187th Infantry became the proud home owner of a ranch style goat-house last week, through the courtesy of the Rak S-4 Officer, Capt. Donald F. Warren, and an old fashion volunteer detail.

In typical pioneer fashion, a volunteer detail was hastily gathered last Tuesday morning, and by nightfall, the abode was ready for occupancy.

Located on a prominent piece of real estate adjacent to the 187th Headquarters, Rakky's new quarters are painted an Infantry blue and are surrounded by a fence to keep out unwanted visitors.

Honor Battery Streamer Awarded to Battery A

Kelly Hill's Artillery Field was the scene of the 11th Air Assault Division Artillery's Honor Battery presentation. Capt. Aaron O. Crocker, commanding officer of Battery A, 1st Battalion, 15th Artillery, accepted the red and white honor battery guidon streamer and plaque from Col. William A. Becker, Division Artillery commander.

The ceremony marked the culmination of a series of unannounced inspections carried out by the Division Artillery staff. These tests were designed to evaluate the performance and standards among the 18 artillery batteries in the division. These CMMI type inspections covered such areas as maintenance, mess operations, communications, training proficiency, administration, and included a driver of the month selection.

Lieutenants Decorated For Service in Vietnam

At impressive ceremonies held recently at the 3d Squadron, 17th Cavalry, the much decorated Vietnam veterans Donald J. Fritshce and 1st Lt. Richard A. Burner received the Army Commendation Medal and the Bronze Star respectively.

1st Lt. Donald J. Fritsche received the Army Commendation Medal for performance of exceptionally meritorious service in support of the United States objectives in the counterinsurgency effort in the Republic of Vietnam during the period June 1963 to April 1964.

1st Lt. Richard A. Burner received the Bronze Star with "V" device for his actions as the pilot of an armed UH-1B aircraft during an "Eagle" operation.

While supporting a Vietnamese operation Lt. Burner's ship received heavy concentration of enemy fire and was shot down. Lt. Burner managed to land his crippled bird safely in enemy territary and refused pick-up as he held off large numbers of enemy forces until his wounded Crew Chief had been evacuated and his ship stripped of any equipment that might prove useful to the enemy forces.

Lt. Fritsche and Lt. Burner, now both members of Troop D, 3d Squadron, 17th Cavalry, were formerly members of the UTT Helicopter Company and the famed 114th, respectively.

Medical Aid Section Learns Rappelling

The Medical Aid Section of the 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion recently completed Phase I tower rappelling training which prepares them for emergency rescues. The "Stacked Deck" section, led by Flight Surgeon Leonard Yovis, who is aircraft rappell - qualified, and Chief-of-Section Sgt. Francis G. Parker, trained under the critical eye of Senior Aidman Specialist Samuel Satterfield, a tall North Carolinian well experienced in air assault aircraft rapelling. The medics learned methods and procedures of lowering themselves and their voluminous lifesaving medical gear of medicines, litters and resusitator into nearly every possible emergency situation.

Rappelling is the second major improvement in "Stacked Deck" medical service since its section commander Doctor Yovis joined the battalion.

During AIR ASSAULT II maneuvers in the Carolinas last fall, Capt. Yovis equipped a UH1D "HUEY" aircraft as a flying aid station complete with medics, flight surgeon and emergency medical equipment. The Doctor's "flying hospital" performed immediate emergency rescue on assault missions by flying with the fleet of assaulting aircraft carrying six soldier infantrymen, and administered routine sick-call in many field locations during a single day. Now augmented with a rappelling capability, the emergency medship will be able to lend even more complete medical service by being able to give immediate aid to personnel in areas unaccessible to aircraft.

Flight Surgeon Yovis is from Detroit, Mich. and is an honor graduate of the Aviation Medical School. He heads the battalion assault medical section of Section Chief Parker, four Senior Aidmen Specialists Sam Satterfield, John Rittenberry, Harry Coulter, James Jordan, and five other Aidmen. The section is capable of performing emergency treatment, first aid, firefighting and crash rescue, minor surgery, aid to burn and tear wounded personnel, and resusitation. These medical men accompany the 229th Battalion units into the field wherever and whenever the assault is employed.

Unique Commo Outfit Initiated in 1st Aviation

In keeping with its motto "We Support" the 1st Aviation Company continues to find ways to accomplish its mission the fastest with the mostest. The latest ventures of the 1st Aviation Company (FW-MT) was the construction of a tower Ground Control Approach complex on a one and one-half ton trailer by personnel of the Communication Section.

This unique construction allows the AN-TPN-8 radar indicators to be transported to a field location in position from which they will be operated. It further provides maximum cooling of the equipment while in operation. Maintenance can be performed with ease due to easy accessibility of the equipment. Installation time is reduced by 25 per cent and allows closer coordination between tower and GCA personnel.

The tower is constructed from plexiglass and canvas covering the two forward bows of the trailer. The two bows are extended approximately twenty inches higher than the other bows with a plexiglass covering. The tower operator uses an elevated stool or he may stand up to have all around visibility through the plexiglass. All radios for tower and GCA are remoted into the trailer complex. This design is considered ideal for rapid installation and operation for limited periods of time until a more permanent installation can be constructed for sustained field operation.

The entire project is inexpensive and was constructed from organic equipment and salvage canvas. Credit for this project goes to the personnel of the 1st Aviation Company (FW - MT) Communications Section under the supervision of Capt. Holman Edmond Jr. and Sgt. James E. Joiner the Communications Officer and Communications Chief respectively.

This is another of the many ingenious developments by ambitious Sky Soldiers of the 11th Air Assault Division who have taken it upon themselves to find more and better ways to accomplish their mission in an effective and efficient manner. This type invention could pave the way for future developments for use in any of the Army divisions. Plus at the present it provides the 1st Aviation Company (FW - MT) with an immediate answer to its need for rapid aircraft controlling which is so vital in the type operations the 1st support.

Land Navigation-Patrolling Test Is Conducted By 81st Batteries

The Weems Pond Ranger patrolling area in Harmony Church was the scene of a land navigation and patrolling problem conducted by Battery C, 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery last Wednesday the 24th of February.

Under the direction of Lt. Jack W. Woods, battery executive officer, the artillerymen were organized into seven man reconnaissance patrols. Equipped with a map and compass each patrol was briefed on its mission, location of friendly and enemy forces and their map location.

The patrols started the problem along Yankee Road, northeast of Weems Pond and moved south to their objectives; Hills 398 and 406. Barring the way were such natural obstacles as swamps, creek and dense forest undergrowth.

Mounted aggressors armed with machine guns traveling the trails and footpaths further restricted their movement. Upon reaching its objective each patrol was met by a friendly partisan who passed on instructions needed to finish the course.

At the end of the day SP4 John W. Boyette, Sr., Charlie Battery Chief of Firing Battery, commented "our goal was to gain knowledge of land navigation procedures, our report: mission accomplished."

Captain 'Zig Zag' Miller Now a Real 'Character'

Capt. Christian "ZIG ZAG" Miller of Company A, 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion acquired his new nickname by becoming a member of the International Order of Characters while on leave in Connecticut recently.

Why would one be proud of becoming a character? A short history of the organization should help you understand why "ZIG ZAG" is proud of his new affiliation.

The "International Order of Characters" was founded in Auckland, New Zealand during World War II by the then Maj James E. Crane of the Medical Corps. Crane was in charge of the 13th Air Force Rest and Rehabilitation Center at the time of organization with the purpose of the "Order" being to establish rapport between flyer and physician. Successful as it was during the war, it was deactivated at wars end as its purpose had been fulfilled.

In 1954 the International Order of Characters was reactivated under the direction of Dr. Crane who was elected permanent president of the organization at this time.

The slightly revised purpose of the reactivated organization was to consolidate, coordinate, and attempt to solve existing aero-medical problems. This was to be accomplished by combing pilot experience and medical competence in an organization devoted to that cause.

Today, ten years later, this goal has been realized. Information on such common aviator problems as fatigue, tension and emotional stress has been collected, evaluated, and passed on to agencies and personnel who are able to make the best use of it.

Secondarily, the I.O.C. is proud of the fact that it has been able to help provide education to children of a few pilots who have died in aircraft accidents. The funds used in this aid to education program are donated by members of the "Order".

Business meetings are held annually during which the yearly limit of ten new members are selected. Past meetings have been held at such delightful sites as London, Munich, Tokyo, Monaco, Lisbon, Hawaii, Naples and Salzburg.

Christian "ZIG ZAG" Miller, III has joined a select group of aviators by becoming a member of the I.O.C. Its membership roster includes: HRH Prince "The Lion" Bernhard of the Netherlands, Prince "Ancient Mariner" Philip of England, Berry "Sun Dust" Goldwater, and Gen. James "Tiger Jim" Doolittle.

How is it that "ZIG ZAG" was invited to join this select group? It could be due to his helicopter experience in Viet Nam or with the 11th Air Assault Division. Could it be that the characters club is seeking real bonefide characters? If this is the case, those who know Capt. "ZIG ZAG" also know that the characters club has struck a vein of gold.

Captain Receives DFC For Outstanding Actions

Capt. John W. Houser, 17th Aviation Company, 11th Air Assault Division, was recently awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, for meriotrious achievement in the Republic of Vietnam.

On Aug. 27, 1963, Capt. Houser voluntarily flew a crippled U. S. Army twin engine transport plane from the hostile controlled "D" Zone to the Saigon Airport over heavily infested Viet Cong territory. The aircraft had sustained major damage in a landing accident the previous March and was thought to be irreparable. After a very minimum of repair, Capt. Houser flew the aircraft to Saigon where it could be rebuilt and returned to service. When he took off for Saigon there was grave uncertainty as to the air - worthiness of the plane. Capt. Houser not only faced grave danger in the air but also from the ground where his aircraft was the target of numerous small arms and automatic weapons fire.

Capt. Houser attended the University of Kentucky for two years. He is presently serving as the Maintenance Officer for the 17th Aviation Company.

New Aviator

Four newly assigned aviators joined the ranks of Charlie Company, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion. They are: 1st Lt. David Cunningham, CWO Julio Garcia-Lafitte, and Billie Curtis, all of whom just returned from a tour in Korea, and WO Billy Allen coming from the Aviation School at Fort Rucker.

Basketball Highlights

Off The Backboard

By Lt. Joe Mottola

The 511th Infantry "FALCONS" have won it! After dropping their first game to the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry earlier in the tournament, they came on with a rush to avenge their earlier loss and win it all in the deciding game against the never say-die 38th Infantry.

The tournament was opened by the Division Chief of Staff, Col. E. B. Roberts when he made the initial toss for the centers of the 188th Infantry "EAGLES" and the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry "KANIENGAHAGAS." The Infantrymen showing the quality and spirit which carried them to the runner-up spot in the tournament came from behind to force the game into overtime and eventually win it 89-86.

In the second game, the 511th Infantry "FALCONS" met the 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery. The "FALCONS," led by Tom McMicken's 27 points had to battle all the way against the Artillerymen before winning 88-78.

There were two games at Briant Wells on Thursday the 25th. In the first game, the "MARNE MEN" of the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry had little trouble with the 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion as they marched to a 82-67 victory. In the nitecap, the 187th Infantry "RAKKASANS" flashing their running game showed their class as they overcame a 12 point deficit to defeat the 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry "TOTEMS" 78-66.

Friday afternoon, the 51Hth Infantry and the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry squared off before a standing room only crowd. The fighting "KANIENGAHAGA" team clipped the wings of the "FALCONS" 71-70 and their 13 game undefeated streak in an outstanding game.

That same afternoon, the 187th "RAKKASANS" took on the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry "MARNE MEN" before a capacity crowd. The Paratroopes had five men scoring in double figures as they fast - broke their way to a 91-83 victory.

On Friday night the 188th "EAGLES" won 100-97 despite Curtis Johnson's 46 point effort for the Artillerymen.

The second game saw the 23rd Infantry "TOTEMS" playing solid, steady ball and eliminating the 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion 87-73.

Saturday afternoon, the 188th "EAGLES" and the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry "MARNE MEN" squared off with survival in the tournament at stake. The "ROCK OF THE MARNE" Battalion held and eked out a 92-91 overtime victory.

The 511th "FALCONS" then met the 23rd Infantry "TOTEMS" with the loser to be eliminated. In a game that wasn't decided until the final buzzer, the "TOTEM" pole fell and the "FALCONS" had a 75-73 win.

Saturday night, the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry "KANIENGAHAGAS" took on the 187th "RAKKASNAS" before a packed fieldhouse. The fleet "RAKKASANS" ran into a hot shooting "KANIENGAHAGA" quintet and ended up on the short end of a 97-73 score.

In the nitecaps, the 511th Infantry "FALCONS" were back in action against the 38th Infantry "MARNE MEN". The high - flying "FALCONS" soared to an 83-65 and eliminated the "MARNE MEN".

Sunday afternoon, the 511th Infantry met the 187th Airborne Infantry with the winner guaranteed an appearance in the final game. It was decided by points and big Ed Washington's top notch defensive play as the "FALCONS" earned the right to meet the "KANIENGAHAGA" team by virtue of a 74-62 win over the "RAKKASANS."

That night the stage was set for what could have been the final game. Brig. Gen. Richard T. Knowles was on hand to present the trophies and the "FALCONS" and "KANIENGAHAGA" fans jammed the stands as the teams took the floor. When the buzzer sounded it was the "FALCONS" who were on top by a score of 86-73 as the tournament was forced into a final game Monday night for the championship.

The big game got under was with Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, and Brig. Gen. Knowles on hand to congratulate the winners. The "KANIENGAHAGA" team played a tremendous game but the "FALCONS" were not to be denied as they took the championship with a hard fought 88-80 victory.

Gen. Kinnard congratulated the teams and handed out team and individual trophies as well as trophies for first and second place finishers in the Division leagues.

A History of Aviation Is Told in Unusual Hobby

A great many persons have a variety of hobbies such as stamps and coins, but a most unusual hobby is maintained by Sgt. Joseph A. White of the Provisional Helicopter Company (Chinook), 44th Air Transport Battalion (T), 10th Air Transport Brigade. The hobby is so unique that the Smithsonian Institution, National Air Museum and the Naval Aviation Museum at Pensacola, Fla., have expressed interest in the collection. Its a collecton of military aviation wings, badges and insignias from the world over.

Within the United States portion of the collection you will find one of the original fourteen badges awarded aviators in 1913. One of these badges was awarded to a 2nd Lt. H. A. Arnold then of the Infantry but who was attached to the Signal Corp for flying instructions. Lt. Arnold went on later to become Gen. Arnold, Chief of the U.S. Army Air Corp during World War II and was still later to rise to the rank of five-star general.

Another of the original badges went to Second Lieutenant T. H. Brereton, of the Coast Artillery who also went on to become a major general in command of the Ninth Air Force in the Middle East. Another went to 1st Lt. B. D. Foulois of the 7th Infantry who later went on to become the Chief of the Air Corp, 1917, United States Air Service. Although these badges were awarded to the above, the first two were awarded to Capt. C. D. Chandler of the Signal Corp and to Second Lieutenant T. D. Milling of the 15th Cavalry under War Department General Order No. 39, dated May 27th, 1913.

It's interesting to note that to qualify for these wings a pilot was required to fly 2500 feet, while the wind was blowing at least fifteen miles per hour, to complete a reconnaissance flight of at least twenty miles at an average altitude of 1500 feet and to demonstrate precision landing capability both with the use of power and without the engines.

The collection is followed by a series of insignias which are in the form of spread wings in silver but with the letters "U. S." in gold on the shield. It is interesting to note that the enlisted pilots wings were five inches while those of the officers were three inches.

Additional wings that are in the collection which also were authorized on October 14, 1921 was the Airship Pilot and Balloon Observer. Still later the Senior Pilot, Command Pilot, Combat Observer, Technical Observer, Balloon Pilot, Senior Balloon Pilot came into being on the 10th of November 1941. This was still followed by the Service, Glider and Liaison Pilots wings in addition to the wings of the Bombardier, Navigator, Aerial Gunner and Air Crew Member between September 4, 1942 and April 24, 1943.

The Flight Surgeon wings, of World War II fame were authorized in February 1943 in gold finish and later changed to silver in 1944. The Flight Nurse wing was authorized on December 15, 1943.

The newest of the Air Force silver wings came into being in 1961 to recognize the men who fly today. There are eighteen different badges or wings authorized in today's Air Force. There are six basic categories of which are the Pilot series, Navigator, Air Crew Member, Air Crew Observer, Flight Surgeon-Nurse, Astronaut.

Also in the collection you will find three levels of Astronaut wings although only one type is presently in use. The other two are for flights to come. The first USAF Astronaut wings went to Mercury Astronaut Virgil I. Grisson. Its interesting to note that the wings were pinned on by Mal. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois of 1913 fame. It is also interesting to note that you don't have to blast off in a rocket to receive the Astronaut wings. Flyers of the X-15 airplane can qualify in meeting the pre-requisites that NASA has placed for qualification of these wings. The first X-15 pilot to receive these wings was USAF Major Robert M. White in July 1962 for obtaining a height of 314,750 feet. Compare this with the initial requirement of 1913 which was 2500 feet. The wings were presented by USAF Chief, Gen. Curtiss LeMay.

Also to be found in the collection are the wings worn by the aviators of the U. S. Navy, Marine, Coast Guard from its first authorized wings in 1917 to the present day U. S. Navy Astronaut wings.

The U. S. Army is represented in the collection by its five types of wings in which Col. Delbert Bristol, former commanding officer of the 10th Air Transport Brigade has a hand in the designing of said wings.

Some of the other countries to be found in the collection are Austria (1919-18 badges), Australia, Bavaria (1914-18 badges), Belgium, Bulgaria, Canada, Denmark, France, Germany (both World War I and World War II), Australia, Israel, India, (World War II and present), Netherlands, Slovak (Czechoslovakian pilots who flew for Nazi - Germany), South Africa, Switzerland, Sweden, Turkey and Uruguay among others.

The Nazi-Germany collection consist of some of the following Luftwaffe badges; Pilot, Pilot Observer, Glider, Radio Operator, Aerial Gunner, and Antiaircraft Badges. Stories giving the qualifications for these badges are included in the collection.

Sgt. White's Nazi-Germany collection also includes many of the German decorations. Some of these are the Knight's Cross to the Iron Cross, Iron Cross 2nd Class, Iron Cross 1st Class, War Order of the German Cross Spanish Cross, War Service Cross, wound decorations, various War Bars worn by various different types of Luftwaffe personnel, War Shields for various combat engagements, Armbands. Luftwaffe Ground Combat, Sea Combat, Tank Attack, Honor Roll Badges plus many other badges from the Army and Navy.

Also in the collection are shoulder insignias going back to the first authorized patch to the current types. Some of the other items in the collection are China-Burma-India Victory Flag, Mustang Fighter Pilots Emblem (Worn by pilots flying P-51's between Iwo Jima and Japan), Flying Tiger Jacket Insignia, WWII Technicians Badges, WWIII Squadron insignias of over 350 different squadrons.

The collection is further enlarged by photographs of military aviation on both sides during World War I. It numbers over 100 different types. There is also a collection of Air Force cap badges and Parachutist badges from all over the world.

A majority of the collection is mounted in frames and are exhibited in the Flight Operations building of the Provisional Helicopter Company (Chinook) at Lawson Army Airfield.

The third annual Organization Day of the 197th Inf. Bde. will begin at 10 a.m. tomorrow with a review on the brigade parade field.

Col. Walter D. Short, the brigade commander will be reviewing officer.

Awards will be presented to the Brigade Soldier-of-the-Year; to the three highest scorers on the recently held Expert Infantrymen Badge Test; to the Outstanding Brigade Tank Commander; Outstanding Brigade Artillery Gunner; and to the marksman who had the highest individual score during 1964.

A program especially designed for children will be held between 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. and will include carousel, fire truck, jeep and pony rides and several amusement booths and games.

After a barbecue luncheon at 11:30, the 26th Inf. Plt. (Scout Dog) — the only such unit in CONUS — will present a demonstration exhibiting such skills as sentry duty, obedience and the negotiation of an obstacle course.

Afternoon activities will include troops competitive participation: the Brigade Troops will compete in a vehicle wheel changing contest; the 2nd Bn. (Composite), 10th Artillery will have 105mm Howitzer crews competing in a mock combat situation; squads of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf. will compete in dismounted drill exercise; and squads from the 1st Bn. (Mechanized) 58th Inf. will engage in drill competition.

Tank crews from the 4th Bn., 69th Armor will demonstrate their efficiency and speed in readying a tank for action.

Other afternoon events will

River-Crossing Instruction Is Moved to Chattahoochee

The Infantry School will add life-saving realism to combat training by instructing soldiers on river-crossing techniques in the treacherous currents of the Chattahoochee River.

Such training had previously been conducted in a placid pond on the military reservation, but School officials felt this environment misled the students as to the true nature of their enemy—water obstacles.

Beginning March 26, students will witness specialized river-crossing problems in a training area at Bradley Landing, site of the recently dismantled ponton bridge. Here swift river currents and steep, unimproved banks will provide the type of training hazards which will best prepare the Infantryman for similar conditions in such places as Viet Nam.

The problem will be conducted 9 to 12 times a year

National Poison Prevention Week

Poisons Rate High on Killer List; Parents Are Reminded of Danger

With the lives of thousands of military dependent children threatened daily by accidental exposure to toxic substances, Col. Hal B. Jennings Jr., Infantry Center Surgeon and commanding officer, Martin Army Hospital, issued an extra reminder to military parents in connection with the National Poison Prevention Week being observed this year from March 14 to 20.

"Statistics show that in the United States accidents rank as NUMBER ONE KILLER for children and young adults aged one through 34 years. Accidental poisoning is a part of this picture and it generally selects the very young as its victims, with three - quarters of all poisonings occurring among the 12 to 36 month old group," Col. Jennings said.

"During 1964, 438 children — more than one a day — were treated in the Emergency Room at Martin Army Hospital for ingestion of a poisonous material carelessly left about — all but 19 of these children were less than 5 years of age."

The poison hazards of the average household have greatly increased through the years. Not too long ago, kerosene, poison fly paper, lye and tincture of iodine comprised most of the domestic substances that might be fatal if swallowed, but now — especially in the past few years — a horde of potentially harmful chemicals have invaded the home, in products intended to clean clothes, polish silver, clean ovens, and wave hair; to kill insects, weeds, and rodents; to aid the 'do-it-yourself' fan in his hobby; and, of course, to relieve illness.

"While aspirin, both the baby and the adult types, as well as iron pills, tranquilizers, and other internal and external medicines are the most frequent causes of poisoning," the senior medical officer continued, "many instances involved bleaches, metal polish, formaldehyde, lighter fluid, furniture polish, and others. Most of the kerosene poisoning occurred when it was found by children in drinking glasses, soda bottles, or other containers familiar to the child."

"To prevent such mishaps from occurring," advised the USAIC Surgeon, "parents must understand the behavior of their child and his capabilities. In general, a child that does not walk is most likely to ingest materials which are stored on the floor, as under the kitchen sink or in a closet.

"The one or two year olds reach drugs and other poisons on table tops, or can find cosmetics in mothers' pocketbooks; the three or four year old children can climb and search for sweet and flavored medicines that are stored on shelves and in medicine closets."

Col. Jennings gave these pointers to parents and others in helping to reduce accidental poisoning hazards created by the curiosity of a small child:

1. Keep a sharp eye on all medicines, never leaving them on table tops or chairs after use, and always placing

Maj. Gen. Jablonsky Guest Speaker

West Point Founders' Day Dinner Set for Main Officers Open Mess

Maj. Gen. Harvey J. Jablonsky, commanding general, 1st Armd. Div., Fort Hood, Tex., will be the guest speaker at the West Point Founders' Day dinner to be held at the Fort Benning Main Officers Open Mess, Thursday, March 18 at 7 p.m.

Master of Ceremonies for the evening will be Brig. Gen. Robert R. Williams, commanding general, Test, Evaluation and Control Group, here at Fort Benning.

Gen. Jablonsky graduated from Washington University in St. Louis and captained the football team there during its 1929 season. Following his graduation, he received an appointment to West Point and captained the Army team in 1933. He received the Army Athletic Association Award as the outstanding athlete in the class of 1934, and remained at West Point for eight years as assistant football coach.

In 1942 Gen. Jablonsky attended the Command and General Staff College and then came to Fort Benning where he earned his parachute badge in 1943. While here he served as executive officer of the 515th Parachute Inf. and as assistant commandant of the Parachute School.

Gen. Jablonsky went to Europe in 1945 as a member of the War Department Observer Board and took command of the 515th Parachute Inf. Regt. which he brought back to the United States when the war ended.

In other post-WWII assignments, Gen. Jablonsky served an additional year as assistant football coach at West Point, was chief of staff with the 11th Airborne Div. and later commanded the 187th Airborne Inf. Regt. in the Far East.

Gen. Jablonsky returned to Fort Campbell, Ky., with the 187th Airborne and, later, attended the Army War College. Upon his graduation in 1952 he was assigned to the Military Mission in Turkey.

In subsequent assignments he was on the CONARC G3 staff; president of the U. S. Army Airborne and Electronics Board; assistant division commander of the 82nd Airborne Div., and in Korea as senior advisor to the 1st Republic of Korea Army.

Immediately prior to this present assignment at Fort Hood, Gen. Jablonsky was Chief of Infantry Officers Division and later Director of Officer Personnel, Officer of Personnel Operations, Department of Army. He has again been reassigned and will leave in May for duty as commanding general of the U. S. Military Assistance Advisory Group in Iran.

Gen. Williams is a 1940 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy and has been an outstanding figure in Army Aviation.

Since his first assignment with aviation in 1941, Gen. Williams has been Aviation Officer of the U. S. Constabulary in Europe; president of the Army Aviation Board at Fort Rucker; Chief, Air Mobility Division, Office of Chief, Research and Development and, just prior to his assignment here, Commandant of the U. S. Army Aviation School at Fort Rucker. He learned to fly as a civilian in 1935.

and will require that the river be closed to traffic for two-three hours on the day of the demonstration and a rehearsal the day before. The Infantry School has requested permission from the Mobile District Engineer, regulating authority for this area, to conduct the problems on the river.

The problem requires no permanent obstruction in the river which would create any navigation hazard.

School officials point out that commercial shippers using the river would be alerted in ample time to schedule barge traffic. Local boat owners and operators would be notified through public media.

All river-crossing demonstrations are to be scheduled during weekdays so as not to interfere with weekend pleasure use of the river.

A static demonstration of weapons and vehicles used by the units of the Brigade will be on display throughout the day.

To terminate the day's activities, a reception will be held in the Gold Bar Annex of the Main Officers' Open Mess for the officers and their ladies, and a dinner-dance at Crain Hall for the non-commissioned officers and their wives.

The 197th Inf. Bde. headquarters is located between Dixie and Sightseeing Roads, south of Sightseeing Field.

2. Any bottles, cans, or boxes containing poisonous materials should be kept off the floor surfaces, at all times.

3. Items such as kerosene, benzine, turpentine, garden supplies, insecticides and any other pest killers must be stored safely and out of reach, and preferably under lock and key.

In conclusion, Col. Jennings states, "It is hoped that the publicity of National Poison Prevention Week will remind all parents that over 90 per cent of all accidental poisonings can easily be avoided by taking the simplest precautions."

athletic director of the Youth Activity Club (YAC) on the post, and Miss Leone Redfearn, a physical education teacher at Columbus High School.

Dawson discussed the "President's Physical Fitness Program." He said the Department of the Army supports the program, as do dependent schools. He also stated that concentration on physical fitness will help alleviate many of the problems that young people are confronted with today.

Spurlin described the local dependent school program for physical fitness. He stressed the fact that vigorous exercise can be accomplished in play as well as in organized calesthenics. He said physical fitness is not a matter of exercise alone, but includes medical, dental and routine good health practices.

Spurlin said fun and good sportsmanship are important aims of the school's physical education activities.

The YAC program gives post dependent children an opportunity to engage in competitive organized sports, such as tennis, swimming, golf, boxing, archery, football, softball and fencing.

Miss Redfearn described the physical education program at Columbus High School. She said proper eating habits and plenty of sleep are as important as any part of the program.

Quote of the Week

"The proposed realignment will not only increase the combat readiness of the Army reserve forces but also, when completed, should produce recurring annual savings of at least $150 million." — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, testifying before the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee on Army Reserve—National Guard realignment.

The Surgeon Says

Monster or Utopia?

By Maj. Richard R. Buckius, MSC

In recent years the number of contact lens wearers has increased. This is due to improved design and techniques and to the publicity given many contact lens wearers. As an outgrowth there have been many requests for information from both wearers and non-wearers of contact lenses.

Modern contact lenses are plastic foreign bodies which are worn floating on the cornea of the eye. They are very small usually 8-10 mm. in diameter, and are circular. Contact lenses are individually fitted to each eye and are seldom interchangeable. With modern design and markedly improved fitting techniques, 80-90 per cent of all persons who require glasses to see could wear contact lenses with comfort and safety.

Motivation of the wearer is of prime importance. As it has been stated, a contact lens is a foreign body which is inserted into the eye, and the initial sensation of pain and tearing is the same as getting any small object in the eye. These symptoms are usually short lived and a tolerance to this foreign body developed with a properly fitted lens.

The individual must have enough desire to tolerate these discomforts and to give the time required for proper fitting, 10-15 hours spread over five to six weeks. The environment in which the lenses are worn must be given serious consideration. The wearing of contact lenses in dusty or contaminated areas is not advisable. In fact many industrial organizations will not permit employes to wear contact lenses on the job. In many cases humidity has a significant effect on wearing time.

An ill-fitted, damaged or dirty contact lens can result in permanent change or injury to the cornea which may result in impaired vision. It is necessary that the contact lens be fitted not only to correct the vision, but so that the cornea will have enough tears flowing between it and the contact lens to keep the cornea healthy. It is imperative for the wearer to carefully follow the instructions given him by his eye specialist and use the storage and wetting solutions religiously.

The present day contact lens is polished similarly to a diamond but unfortunately is not as hard. A contact lense can become easily scratched or nicked which in turn irritates the eye, making it more susceptible to infection. Therefore, it is recommended by most eye specialists to have the fit, the condition of the lens, and the eye itself examined periodically. This general check-up should be done every six months.

Contact lenses are neither a MONSTER nor a UTOPIA, but merely a device to correct some visual defects that can be worn comfortably and safely by most people. It must be remembered that each person's eyes must be evaluated and fitted individually by trained personnel.

To the Girl Scouts

On behalf of the military and civilian personnel of the Fort Benning community, I would like to extend sincere best wishes to the Girl Scouts of America on their 53rd Anniversary.

During this past half century, thousands of our young girls have found sure and solid footing on the bridge this organization has provided to span the formative years between childhood and womanhood.

The ideals and principles which the Girl Scouts follow have served this Nation well, contributing to our own physical and moral strength and, in their international application, binding us closer in friendship with the other Free World peoples.

Congratulations and every best wish in your continued dedication to God and Country during the years to come.

Proof of the Pudding

We are forming opinions, each day, of the effectiveness of a service or the worth of a product by standards which are the result of common experiences.

A pair of shoes priced at $4.50 should give a year's wear. A new car should give a high type of service. A college education with a specific major, for the average person, should provide the theoretic tools adequate for the beginning in a comparable vocation.

Saint Paul in a letter to the Christian Church at Ephesis used the tools of a soldier to illustrate the Christian Life. He wrote, "Stand therefore—having on the breastplace of righteousness; and your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; above all taking the shield of faith—, and take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit; which is the word of God."

Since a soldier is known by his proficiency with his arms, he should also be known by the example of his religious faith, for faith confirms the rightness of the cause which he defends and provides a strength of character, which is so necessary on the field of battle.

We believe public officials, as servants of the people, should live by a high standard of morals, for immorality in high places can destroy any type of government. As soldiers, we are also public servants and must in the final analysis give a good report of our effectiveness to the citizens of our country.

A Little Knowledge

"A little bit of knowledge is a dangerous thing." This oft-repeated observation, and variations of it, is less a condemnation of acquiring knowledge than it is a caution against venturing into areas of comment or action beyond the sphere of personal knowledge.

Taken in this sense, it provided an excellent rule of thumb to be followed by military personnel returning from overseas duties.

Such personnel evoke considerable interest among the civilian population, civic organizations, and news media. This is especially true today of those returning from Viet Nam.

Department of Army and State Department policy directives place no prohibition on such returnees being interviewed by news media or making public speeches. As a matter of fact, they are specific that the right to speak remain inviolate.

But, they are just as specific in stating that any remarks or comments should be restricted to "facts within their areas of personal competence."

Statements concerning foreign political personalities, internal problems and U. S. involvement are clearly not within the "personal competence" of the average individual. It is better, and safer, that they be left to the governmental agencies responsible for them and adequately knowledgeable, such as the State Department, Department of Defense, etc.

Existing regulations cover restrictions on discussion of classified matters and good common sense should certainly be enough of a curb against repeating rumors or advancing personal, unqualified speculation.

Few people, except those at the very top echelon, are ever in a position to see the "whole picture." Like the blind men, each of whom formed a different opinion of what an elephant looked like, so is each man whose knowledge is confined to only one segment of an operation, apt to form an opinion entirely alien from that he would form if he were able to see it in its entirety.

Freedom of Speech, like any other American "Right" suffers from abuse. Conversely, it is nurtured and perpetuated when exercised only in good taste and confined to "facts within the areas of personal competence" of those who use it.

The Judge Say's

Automobile Tax

In recent months, a large number of soldiers stationed at Fort Benning have received tax assessments upon their automobiles from the state of Georgia.

The tax is based upon that provision of the Georgia Code providing that there shall be a tax upon the use of personal property purchased at retail outside of the state of Georgia. The tax, which is in fact a complement to the Georgia sales tax, is three per cent of the cost or fair market value of the automobile, whichever is the lesser.

The fact that a sales tax was paid when the auto was purchased is not recognized as an avoidance by Georgia because it does not have reciprocity provisions with other States.

Assessment occurs when a soldier purchases Georgia license tags for a vehicle which he has purchased in another state after the date of his orders assigning him to Fort Benning. Within a few months of his registration, he will receive his tax notice from the Georgia Department of Revenue, Sales and Use Tax.

As Georgia tax officials do not consider that the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act prohibits the collection of such use tax, it is recommended that those military personnel who have not previously registered their motor vehicles in Georgia apply for license plates from their state of domicile. This recommendation does not apply to the soldier who has purchased a vehicle in Georgia and paid the Georgia sales tax because the use tax is not again payable in his case.

Win In Viet Nam

(These questions and answers on Viet Nam, Laos and Southeast Asia are excerpted from "Viet Nam—The Struggle for Freedom," a pamphlet (DoD Gen-8) issued by the Directorate for Armed Forces Information and Education, Department of Defense.)

Q: What is the current status of loyalty to the government and morale in South Viet Nam?

A: In some parts of Viet Nam, especially those controlled by the Communists, loyalty to the central government is weak or non-existent and morale is poor. But elsewhere, where government forces maintain security and where the economic, social and administrative programs of the government show results, the reverse is true. In some areas, where Communists have been strong, peasant attitudes appear to be turning against the Viet Cong. Overall it is clear the key to building morale and loyalty to the government is physical security. As long as the Viet Cong are able to terrorize the civilian population, morale cannot be expected to be good. But it is quite plain that, given adequate protection from Communist reprisals, the South Vietnamese will support their government.

Holy Name Implements New Catholic Liturgy

BY 2nd LT. RAYMOND FRANKOSKI
(HN Vice President)

One of the main functions of the Holy Name Society of Fort Benning is to provide lay readers for the Masses on post.

The lay readers group is part of the liturgical renewal that is sweeping the Catholic Church today. It is not a change in the Mass, since the Holy Sacrifice remains the same in all of its essential contents. The renewal is in joining the laity to actively participate in the Holy Mass.

The laity are not just in the Church, but are essential members of the Church. Each individual must take an active part in worship.

The lay reader's function is to aid the laity in doing so. Along with directing the laity in praying along with the priest, he also describes the different messages Our Lord gives us each Sunday. The Church aims to give the Catholics a new insight of what it means to take part in the Sacrifice of the Mass. The Mass is still the center of Catholic life, and under the new liturgy, it is even more so.

Among other projects the Holy Name Society plans to undertake are: ushers for Masses, instructors for religious education of grade and high school students who attend public schools, a male chorus, and youth groups.

In order to accomplish these numerous and important tasks, the Society needs to bolster its membership. There will be a monthly Corporate Communion this Sunday at the Main Post Catholic Chapel at the 7:30 a.m. Mass. A breakfast meeting will follow immediately at the Student Officers' Field Mess (Bldg 2754B). Transportation will be provided from the MPCC.

All Catholic men as well as present members are urged to attend.

Combat Service Support Reorganization Planned

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The reorganization of the active Army combat service support activities to provide improved supply, service and maintenance support in the corps and field army area has been announced by the Department of the Army.

Known as CO-STAR II (Combat Service to the Army), the reorganization will take place from April through December 1965 within existing personnel and financial ceilings and without disturbing current field army operations.

CO-STAR II is designed to improve the control and quality of combat service support in the corps and field army area to the rear of the divisions. Supply, service and maintenance support operations will be realigned along functional lines and placed under the control of a single agency, the field army support command (FASCOM).

Command Structure

A FASCOM will consist of a headquarters, support brigades, and separate army-wide brigades. The support brigades will provide supply and maintenance service except for munition, medical and missile items. Separate brigades will provide army-wide services for ammunition supply, medical, transportation, civil affairs, military police, replacement and certain administrative functions. The command also will have responsibilities for security and damage control in the rear areas.

Time Saver

CO-STAR II replaces current procedures in which supply and other support units are under the operational control of special staff sections in the field army headquarters. In the reorganization, the ordnance quartermaster, chemical, transportation, provost marshal, and finance sections in the field army headquarters will be eliminated. This will permit the field army commander and his staff to devote more time and attention to training and combat operations.

New Positions

Seven new and two revised military occupational specialties (MOS) in the field of supply and maintenance will facilitate assignment of the best qualified officers in these newly - created functionalized positions. This will increase career opportunities and provide greater incentive for technical service officers.

CO-STAR II is an extension of other recent changes in the Army structure designed to improve logistic management and support. The Technical Services were reorganized along functional lines in 1962 and the support activities within combat divisions were reorganized under a single support command.

Primary Mission of the 197th Bde. Is Support of The Infantry School

Tomorrow marks an historic point in the history of the "Follow Me" Brigade, one of the most versatile and unique units in the U. S. Army.

Celebrating its third birthday since being organized under the ROAD concept on Sept. 24, 1962, the 197th Inf. Bde. has a three-fold mission:

1. Support of The Infantry School by providing problems, demonstrations, participation in training films and ranger camp maneuvers.

2. Support of The Infantry Center with honors ceremonies, construction and maintenance of training sites and support of contingency missions.

3. Training as required by Department of the Army directives, training to assure adequate demonstrations for The School, and training as required to execute contingency missions.

Specific Brigade support activities include providing artillery demonstrations of conventional and atomic weapons; providing The Infantry Center Honor Guard Company and Salute Battery; furnishing scout dog demonstrations; engineer support for demonstrations and river crossing techniques; and also providing armor and mechanized Infantry demonstrations.

Because of its mission and close association with The School, the Brigade was authorized to adopt as its motto: "Follow Me."

March 13th has been selected as Organization Day to honor the crossing of the Ludendorff Bridge, Remagen, Germany, by the 99th Reconnaissance Troop (Mechanized), the 197th's famed parent unit, on March 12, 1945.

The history of the 197th dates back to June 24, 1921, when Hq. & Hq. Co. was constituted in the organized reserves as an element of the 99th Div. later the 99th Inf. Div.

Ordered into active military service in August, 1942, it was reorganized Nov. 15, at Camp Van Dorn, Miss., as the 99th Cav. Recon Troop, and in August, 1943, became the 99th Recon. Troop (Mech.) of the 99th Div.

The 99th Recon. Troop, less the 3rd Platoon, was redesignated as Hq. & Hq. Co., 197th Infa. Bde. in August of 1962.

During World War II, the 99th Recon. Troop participated with the 99th Div. in "The Battle of the Bulge" and the defense of Elwenborn, Belgium.

It was the first Infantry division to arrive at and cross the Rhine — crossing the Ludendorff Bridge.

It then spearheaded through the Ruhr pocket and made the final thrust into the satellite countries, stopping on V Day at the Inn River in Austria.

The unit was cited in the Order of the Day of the Belgian Army three times for actions at the Siegfried Line, Elsenborn Crest and the Ardennes and numbers among its decorations the Belgium Fouragere.

OC 4-65 Enters Last Phase of Training; Gen. Forsythe Pins Blue Ribbon on Guidon

"You are about to have one of the greatest privileges you can have as an American. . .that is. . .to lead the American soldier." These were the words spoken by Brig. Gen. George I. Forsyth, new assistant commandant of The Infantry School, while addressing members of Officer Candidate Class No. 4-65 at their Senior Status Reception.

The reception, held at the messhall of 53rd Co., 5th Student Bn (OC), TSB, was preceded by a Senior Status Review at Chapel Field.

Referred to as "Blue Day," it celebrates the completion of 18 weeks of training and the achievement of Senior Status. Ushering in the final phase of 23 weeks of rigorous training for the prospective second lieutenants, it is considered second in importance only to graduation.

"Blue Day" is so named because the candidates are now authorized to wear Infantry Blue shoulder tabs and helmet liners. At this stage of their training, while they do not as yet have officer privileges, they do command the same respect from junior classmen as is due commissioned officers.

Vigorous Basketball Tournament

By PFC
FRANK L. LOMBARDI

For six days last week, basketball fans were able to watch six top-notch teams slug it out in a ten-game tournament to select the post championship squad.

Emerging undefeated in four games was the 2nd Inf. Div., 2nd Med. Bn., who through the ball handling of David Robinson went all the way to the top Sunday by downing the 11th AAD, 2nd Bn., 38th Inf. team 74-71.

Robinson scored a total of 142 points throughout the tournament.

The Infantry Center's entries in the tourney were the 1st Bn., CTC, and the 29th Inf. squads. The Infantrymen lost both games they played and were eliminated halfway through the tournament, losing to the Medics (68-61) and to CTC (84-83).

CTC, Infantry Center champions, had their spirits dampened early by losing their first game to the 38th Inf. (86-78). They rallied in their next two games and put down the 29th Inf. and the 511th Inf. (77-62).

In the play-off to decide which teams would compete in the final game, CTC again clashed with the 38th Inf. The game went into overtime with the score tied at 79. Spectators were on their feet for the next five minutes as the lead sawed back and forth until the 38th ended the game 94-92.

Both of the 38th losses came at the hands of the Medics. The first game was lopsided with the Medics taking it 93-79. Robinson accounted for 42 of the points in the game.

The 2nd Div.'s other entry, 1st Bn., 72nd Armor, and division champions, put up a surprisingly weak struggle and was knocked out of contention by two successive loses in opening rounds of play. They lost to the 38th Inf. (86-78) and to the 511th Inf.

11th AAD champions, 511th Inf. team, took their first loss (60-59) from the Medics in the opening game of the tournament in stride and kept trying for a come back until Friday night when they were eliminated by CTC.

The three top teams in the tournament were all eliminated before the final game, paving the way for two runner-up teams to decide the championship.

Fingertip Control

John Hock (15) sinks two points for the 2nd Med Bn. in a game against the 511th Inf. Henry Greene tries vainly to block the shot. David Robinson (24) in background rushes in to lend a hand. The Medics swept the tournament to become 1965 Post Basketball Champions.

Nudge Out 38th Squad By 3 Points

By PFC DAVE BUMAN

The 2nd Inf. Div. 2nd Medical Bn. nipped the 2nd Bn. 38th Inf. 74-71, in the final seconds of play Sunday night, to take the Post Basketball Championship.

From the opening toss-up the Medics took control of the ball and pushed to a ten point lead which they held into the final stanza of play.

Behind some sharp shooting by six-foot, five-inch center, Dave Robinson, the Medics pushed to a 12-point lead early in the last period.

From then on the action was fast and furious bringing the capacity crowd to its feet.

The 38th Inf. cut the deficit with a fast - breaking offense led by two tap-ins by Emmit Beard. Another two-pointer by the 38th Infantry's mainstay James Watson, took the 38th to within six points of the leading Medics.

Robinson Out

Two quick baskets by the infantry quintet ran the score to within two points of the medics. Tony Motta, number two man on the Medical Bn. quintet, fouled out with only two minutes to play.

Final desperate drives by the Medics' Cyril Cosgrove and the 38th's John Marshall coupled with last - ditch-effort defensive play kept the lead see-sawing back and forth.

Foul Decides Game

With less than ten seconds remaining in the game, a foul gave the Medic's Cosgrove two free shots. He made both good to end the game, 74-71.

Coach of the medics, Joseph Canty said "Its the best military ball playing I've ever seen."

Hahn Will Open His Bag of Tricks During One-Hour Golf Routine

One of golf's most exciting personalities, Paul Hahn, will combine golf, trick shooting, comedy and instruction during his full one-hour routine at Sand Hill Golf Course on March 26, 1965, at 6 p.m.

When Hahn pulls out his tricks from the bag weighing 90 pounds, you'll see a shotmaker hitting with the accuracy of a Ben Hogan. But where the stars of golf hit their precision-like shots with scientifically - engineered clubs, Hahn will be placing the ball 240 yards down the fairway with a collection of zany clubs that look funny—and are.

His clubs have rubber shafts made of garden hose. They're swivel jointed. They weigh two pounds and have shafts six feet long as compared to the average driver of 42 inches.

Where the stars measure their stances so that they hit the ball with their feet placed the same way on every shot, standing on a stool to hit one ball, kneeling to hit the ball on another, or balancing on one foot to hit a third.

As he hits the ball, even in his famous double action series of hitting a dozen balls in succession with a club in each hand, you'll also hear a comedian cast in the mold of Bob Hope. He's one guy who can hit the ball with his mouth open and the words pouring out.

Hahn got his start as a trickshot golfer in 1948 when he found that professional golf tours were unproductive in cash. He began to develop his trickshot repertoire while teaching at a California golf club.

He has been a success ever since. Nowadays he pilots his own airplane to most cities on his tour. He toured the world five times to travel 500,000 miles with his big bag of tricks and gave exhibitions in 37 countries.

'Business As Usual' For Div's Clerks

The division's administrative force — which would become the division's rear in the event of war — this afternoon begins infiltrating back to garrison after five days of field duty.

Commander of the force, Lt. Col. Thomas M. Leahy Jr. said the final segment of troops should reach their quarters by 3 p.m.

He said he was "quite pleased," with the performance of his men in the unfamiliar setting and pointed to areas of improvement after the group's last stay in the field, last November.

"The initial setting - up was accomplished much smoother this time," he said. "Response to attacks by aggressors was very good. We had only one practice before the attacks but everyone seemed to know what to do. I was pleased."

He notes that distribution through the division's message center — which also went to the field — continued to go well.

The division's replacement center reported processing an average of about 20 newcomers daily during the exercise. And between 35 and 40 men daily began outprocessing to new assignments or to leave the division.

"We had about 200 business visitors every day we were in the field," he said. "Business was as close to 'usual' as we could make it. The Personnel NCOs from the battalions came out at least once a day and sometimes twice a day."

Lt. Robert Pritchett, the Administration Company executive officer, commanded the division rear mobile force —a band of about 40 roving defenders.

Soldier Chorus Performs For USO's Anniversary

The newly formed 2nd Infantry Division Soldiers Chorus, under the direction of Lt. Merlin K. Vorhees, with the support of the "Second to None" band under CWO Darrel Blumm, made its third public appearance at the 24th anniversary celebration of the United Service Organization (USO) in Columbus' 5th Avenue USO Club.

The band and chorus presented a 'concert internationale' with selections by the 2nd Div concert band, the dance band and numbers by the chorus from Civil War ballads to The Battle Hymn of the Republic.

An estimated 800 persons turned out for the celebration:

Lt. Col. Maurice W. Kendall, assistant chief of staff for personnel of the US Army Infantry Center, was guest speaker for the evening.

In his speech, Kendall said "it was only fitting that these men of the 2nd Inf Div band and chorus entertain the many people who have given their time and talents to entertaining thousands of servicemen through the USO program".

This month warks the 24th year of service to men and women in uniform by the USO.

It was founded in 1941, by a federation of six volunteer organizations; The Young Men's Christian Association (YMCA), The National Catholic Community Service, The National Jewish Welfare Board, The Young Women's Christian Association (YWCA), and the National Travelers Aid Association.

Its purpose was to provide aid for the men in uniform to meet their religious, social, and educational needs while away from home and family.

Sights and Sounds

Sights and sounds collected during the week at Exercise Winter Sun II and the division rear bivouac area:

A lieutenant from division main approached a sentry at the entrance of division rear. The lieutenant didn't know the password. But when the soldier failed to challenge him, the officer prodded:

"Aren't you going to challenge me. What is the password?"

"Persian - dog," said the guard.

"Thank you, you may procede," said the officer, driving on.

* * *

It wasn't enough that the sentry had fumbled the lieutenant into the area. The officer later learned of a further mix-up. The password wasn't "Persian-dog." It was "Siamese-dog." A matter of geography?

* * *

An exasperated soldier making his way through the wilderness to the numerous tents he was required to visit in the routine of outprocessing: "I joined this division in the field and I'm leaving it in the field."

* * *

"Some people have told me they get more work done in fewer hours while they're in the field," said Lt. Col. Thomas M. Leahy, Jr., division adjutant general. "They say the telephone doesn't ring out here like it does in garrison."

Winter Sun Conquers Key River

BY JOE TREASTER

Winter Sun II — the second in a series of maneuvers aimed at preparing the 2nd Infantry Division for a large-scale mock war in late summer — ended Thursday on the Fort Benning reservation.

A critique of the exercise was held yesterday.

As the nearly 3,000 soldiers convoyed back to garrison they were plagued by the same strafing jets that hit them on the way out.

During the three-day command post exercise planes from Air Force bases in Florida and South Carolina flew numerous sorties.

Fictitious

For maneuver purposes the simulated fighting was fictitiously placed in the Carolinas.

The mock fighting ended with division soldiers putting off an "enemy" counter-offensive and pushing on toward the prime objective: Fayetteville, N.C.

Shortly after the division had succeeded in a simulated crossing of the Carolina dominating Pee Dee River, Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, the division commander, presaged the counter punch.

'Counter Attack'

"The worst thing that could happen would be a massive counter attack," he said. He reasoned that the division—, after crossing the river and getting between it and the "enemy" — would be in a vulnerable position.

The opposition turned on the division late Wednesday.

Despite an "enemy" airlift evacuation — accomplished with 50 helicopters — the division took more than 1,200 prisoners of war.

Gen. Coffin Given Final Farewell; Recalls First Contact With 2nd

By LANNY THOMAS

With an icy March wind lapping across Marne Field, Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin last Friday made a farewell appearance in the 2nd Division and was sent on his way with a solemn band version of "Auld Lang Syne."

The 47 - year - old general, who served the division as its assistant commander for the past 21 months, is enroute to Paris for an assignment as chief of the nuclear actions section of SHAPE (Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers, Europe).

Nearly all top division officials and officials from The Infantry Center and the 11th Air Assault attended the brief farewell review Col. B. E. Huffman, division Chief of Staff, was commander of troops on the field.

Major unit commanders within the division and their sergeants major led a miniature compliment of troops past the departing general for his last time.

In a few brief remarks to those who fought the cold on Marne Field, Gen. Coffin recapped his first associations with the division which he said began around 40 years ago. He recalled his father presenting him a book in 1927 that was written by a marine colonel. The colonel was a part of the division when it was activited in France during World War I.

In the book, Coffin related, the colonel told of the ups and downs of the division and finally concluded with the thought that he was proud to have served with the 2nd Division.

"I too am proud to have been a member of the 2nd Division," Coffin said. "I salute you. I know this division will always be "Second-to-None as it has been "Second-to-none" in the past."

In his address, Gen. Coffin said that his time with the Indianhead Division was "exeremely valuable."

A final touch to the ceremony was provided by the 2nd Aviation Battalion with a helicopter "fly-by" and a banner drop wishing the general "Bon Voyage."

In a farewell address to an earlier assembly of 1st Brigade men in the unit's award - winning mess hall earlier last week, Gen. Coffin left advice for the group. "Take full advantage of the time you serve in the 2nd Division — do all you can while you are here," he said.

"To be a member of the 2nd Infantry Division, and the 1st Brigade, is certainly a most unusual honor. This brigade is a powerful unit — when your 3000 soldiers are given an objective — they do it!" he said.

The general and Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow, 1st Brigade commander, then proceeded to cut a beautifully decorated cake inscribed "Au revoir and bon voyage to Gen. Coffin."

Nearly all officers and senior enlisted men of the brigade headquarters, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry and 1st Battalion, 23 Infantry were in attendance.

Officers and senior noncommissioned officers of all Division Artillery units gathered in the DivArty conference room. . . farewell to the general.

The general was presented a plaque decorated with miniature cannons and crests of all 2nd Division Artillery units.

The artillerymen "claim the general as "one of our own" said Maj. John H. Hesterly, division artillery adjutant "since he was originally commissioned as an artillery officer."

After the farewell ceremony, the general and the guests adjourned to the rear of the conference room for refreshments.

Chiles Calls Support Unit 'Guardians' on Birthday

Speaking at its birthday parade Saturday, Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles called the 2,000-man Support Command the "Guardians" of his 2nd Infantry Division.

The unit, comprised of mechanics, medics, administrative and chemical specialists and the division's band was celebrating its second birthday.

Near Freezing

Temperatures were near freezing and a trace of snow drifted onto Weatherby Field.

Support Command's heritage dates back to World War I, but along with the rest of the division, it was reorganized in 1963. Previously it had been known as "Division Trains."

Gen. Chiles compared the role of Support Command to the division as a parent's relationship to his child.

"Both the child and the division need support," he said. "Without the parent the child would be lost. Without Support Command we would be lost. They are our guardians."

The flexibility of Support Command, he said, makes it possible for the maneuvering elements of the division to operate anywhere.

Surpassed

Col. Fred O. Jackson, who took command of Support Command last August, said the men have surpassed his expectations.

"I was proud to get the assignment," he said. "But I'm even more proud now. This certainly is a unit that both 'soldiers' and performs services."

Gen. Chiles, the reviewing officer, and Col. Jackson made a swift inspection tour of the assembled soldiers and returned to the reviewing stand.

Wing-Wagging

After the field had cleared a helicopter swooped down with a banner bearing a helicopter hovered, three smoke streaming observation planes of the 2nd Aviation Battalion shot over the field in a wing-wagging salute.

Dan Sweeney's 'View From the Hill'

The South's Tiger

It seems like the word "tiger" has caught on as the advertising gimmick of the year.

People are putting tigers in gas tanks, under the hoods, on tires, and there's even a local "tiger" radio station. Yet the most symbolic tiger to the soldier at Fort Benning lies beyond the reservation limits in the town of Columbus.

Sleeping Tiger

This town has for many years been the sleeping tiger of the south. That is to say, the potential which the city possesses has been latent.

It has only in the past few years begun to exploit its potential.

Culturally, the Three Arts Theater has done much for the city. The newly renovated non-profit theater has given Columbus everything from Bach to ballet.

Names of Caliber

The Municipal Auditorium consistently bills names of the caliber of the Kingston Trio, Al Hirt, and Barry Goldwater.

Athletically, the professional baseball Yankees have this past year set up permanent residence here in Columbus. And the Harlem Globetrotter basketball quintet are stopping here on their southern swing.

Economically, the tiger has stretched its paws beyond the city proper and has caused substantial housing development in the area.

Overnight

"Estates," "parks," "forests" and many other fifty to one hundred - home-hamlets have sprung up it seems overnight.

Columbus has always had attractions to compare with other cities of its size. It appears that only recently has it become rejuvenated and more progressive than its southern counterparts.

The tiger has slumbered for many years and now seems to be waking up to the desires of an intelligent military - civilian populus.

Realize

The tiger trainers of the community realize that there are many tricks yet to be mastered, but they are being taught. In a short time hopefully, the south will have a prize "tiger" ready for Ringling.

It Was Cold

A near - freezing wind and a suggestion of snow blowing across the 2nd Infantry Division's Whetherby field sent brave spectators huddling beneath blankets and stamping their feet in the bleachers.

They were gathered on the parade field to see the division's Support Command celebrate its second birthday.

One young blonde-haired mother sat in the front row of bleachers with three young children. Only noses, eyes and foreheads appeared above the edge of the blanket behind which they were hiding.

Infantry Trainees Fire 3.5 Rocket Launcher During Second of Eight-Week Course with 23rd Infantry

By JIM LULL

The advanced individual trainees of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry spent Friday on chilly, wind - swept Warner Range learning about and firing the 3.5mm rocket launcher.

Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, division commander, and Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow, commander of the 1st Brigade, visited the operation in the early afternoon, and were given a thorough tour of the activity on the range by Lt. Col. Strathmore K. McMurdo, commander of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

Main Groups

The men were split up into three main groups for instruction, two of them being "outdoor classroom" sessions, and a live-fire station. Lt. Joseph Beeman, devanced individual trainee company commander, led the men into their various instruction stations.

"Combat destruction" and "Operation Under Unusual Conditions" were the two lecture and question - and-answer stations.

Included in the live-firing of the powerful weapons, was training in safety measures and coaching in firing.

Ammunition used was realistic — minus the explosive. The trainees were able to easily trace their shots down range, and adjust their aim accordingly.

In addition, officials said the student soldiers were taught how to "Bore-sight" the 3.5 rocket launcher.

Shamrock Theme Seen At Coffees

By ALICE WITTER

"Casual" was the theme for the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion coffee held March 4. The coffee was "come as you are," and the ladies sported everything from nightgowns to daytime dresses.

Hostesses were Mrs. Billy C. Allred and Mrs. Alfred E. Klemm. The coffee was held at the home of Mrs. Billy C. Allred.

The table was decorated with a "Bit O' the Irish." It was covered with a green linen cloth. The centerpiece was a floral arrangement of carnations and apple blossoms, dyed green, and accented with paper shamrocks. A green top hat and Irish clay pipes added to the St. Patrick's Day theme.

The hostesses for the April coffee will be Mrs. Carl G. Harrison and Mrs. William W. Babb. It will be held at the home of Mrs. Harrison.

The ladies of the 2nd Engineer Battalion said goodbye to seven of their members at their March coffee held recently. The affair was held at the home of Mrs. Allan Tobiason with Mrs. Herbert Lever as co-hostess.

Silver trays were presented as farewell gifts to Mrs. Robert Redd, Mrs. Jere Drummond, Mrs. Joel Pugh, Mrs. Joseph Andrews, Mrs. Ulyss Hughes, Mrs. William Thompson and Mrs. Larry Lindsay.

All the ladies except Mrs. Lindsay are returning to civilian life. Mrs. Lindsay will make her home temporarily in Michigan, while her husband is assigned to Thailand.

A bridge party was planned for Wednesday, March 17, at the home of Mrs. Alfred Griebling.

Coffee was poured by Mrs. Griebling.

The monthly coffee for the ladies of the 702nd Maintenance Battalion as held at the Second Division Family Center recently.

A St. Patrick's Day theme was artistically carried out in decorations and table arrangement by co-hostesses Mrs. Gene S. Kreighbaum and Mrs. Alfred H. Clow. Coffee was poured by Mrs. Eugene Byars.

Mrs. John Gephart, who presided over a short business meeting, welcomed Mrs. John H. Wigington to the battalion.

Mrs. Fred Hoxie won the door prize.

1st Brigade

The ladies of the 1st Brigade held their monthly coffee on March 3 at the new home of Mrs. Fitzhugh Chandler, who was assisted as hostess by Mrs. Don Chunn.

Serving at the coffee was Mrs. Beverly Snow.

Mrs. Chiles Plays Host At Coffees

Mrs. John H. Chiles, wife of 2nd Division Commander, Maj. Gen. Chiles, has been keeping a busy schedule lately meeting and chatting with wives of officers persently assigned to the unit.

During the last two weeks she has entertained with five coffees. The wives have been treated to spanish coffee and whipped cream.

In the future, Mrs Chiles plans to entertain with a "newcomers coffee" each month. According to a spokesman for the Officers' Wives Club, Mrs. Chiles has asked to be notified of the name and address of all new officers and their wives as soon as possible after they became a part of the division.

Armor Ball Plans Made

Plans for Fort Benning's annual "armor ball" got underway Monday and a spokesman extended a sweeping invitation to all retired officers in the Columbus area.

According to Maj. John French, chairman of the planning committee, admission is by invitation only. But he asked that retired officers make known their desire to attend by phoning Capt. Paul Berthiaume at 545-8311.

Representatives from all armor units on the post, including the 2nd Infantry Division's 1st and 2nd Battalions, 72nd Armor and the 4th Squadron, 7th Cavalry, are expected to attend the April 17th event at the Main Officers Open Mess, Maj. French said.

72nd Ladies Hold Monthly Coffee

Ladies of the 72nd Armored Battalion were entertained recently at a coffee and business meeting in the home of Mrs. Michael Fortini.

Dinner Party Caps MI Detachment Unit Day

Guests at the party, in addition to members of the Detachment and their wives or dates, included Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Earl Ingram, Assistant Chief of Staff, G2, and Major and Mrs. William Lam, Deputy G2.

The Detachment was formed in 1944 in France and called the 2nd Counterintelligence Corps (CIC) Detachment. After the War, it was stationed first at Camp Swift, Texas, and then at Fort Lewis, Washington.

The 2nd CIC Detachment was called upon for service in Korea, and after the conflict, the unit returned to Fort Lewis. In 1956, the Detachment was inactivated; in February, 1958, the 2nd CIC Detachment was redesignated the 2d Military Intelligence Detachment.

In June, 1958, the unit was activated at Fort Benning, Georgia. Since 1962, the 2d MI Detachment has been a part of the U. S. Army's STRAC Force.

DID YOU KNOW

Immediately after the armistice was signed in Korea in 1953 the engineers of the 2nd Infantry Division's 2nd Engineer Battalion constructed "Demolition Drive" and "Suicide Drive" roads up to the Main Battle Position to be used for ammunition and ration supply.

Mrs. John Cleveland

Assignments of Aviator Found 'Varied--Unusual'

BY ALICE WITTER

Lt. Col. and Mrs. John Cleveland are unique in several ways. Col. Cleveland is the commander of the 2nd Division's only Aviation Battalion, the 2nd. In addition, his basic branch is the Engineer Corps, but he is a qualified aviator — all of which, in the words of his wife, has resulted in many varied and interesting assignments.

Katherine Truesdell and John Cleveland met when both were in high-school in Albany, N. Y. — although John, an "Army brat," had been born in Arizona. On the day following his graduation from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., they were married.

During World War II, John served in Europe and participated in the momentous capture of the Rhine bridge at Remagen. The Clevelands have been assigned in Germany twice since the war, the last time from 1961 to 1964, in Nurnberg and Stuttgart, where Mrs. Cleveland wes secretary of the German-American Women's Club during one winter.

John also was stationed in Korea twice. For the last three months of the first tour, Katherine joined him and found Korea to be both interesting and enlightening. She especially remembers the overwhelming feelings of sadness and pity she felt for the sick and suffering Korean children.

"Their" Army career has also been highlighted by five tours in the Washington, D. C. area — some of them for only brief periods of time, but the last for four years. Katherine regards the last tour as one of her favorite tours of all. She said that "John enjoyed his work; the children were in good schools; and everything seemed to fall into place." In addition, she feels it is an exciting city — "wheels are turning; things are going on."

Another interesting and unusual assignment came when they went to the Air Force Command and General Staff College at Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery, Alabama, instead of the Army's college at Fort Leavenworth. The friendliness and warmth of the Air Force people was not expected, but was very welcome.

The Cleveland children are Dixon, 18, a freshman at Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Carey, a junior at Columbus High School; Nancy, 12, an eighth-grader at Faith School; and James, 10, a fifth-grader at White School.

Division's AG is Promoted to 'Light Colonel; Finds Army Career Rewarding--'Way of Life'

By JOE TREASTER

It was mid-afternoon in the office of the 2nd Infantry Division's adjutant general. It had not been a particularly pressing Thursday, business-wise. But the phone had rung constantly.

Each series of jangles brought Sgt. Maj. James G. McDonough on the wire.

"It's for you, sir," he said time after time, then waited for his boss to come on the phone.

"Col. Leahy, speaking."

The conversations were, for the most part, brief. They were repetitive. But each brought a smile to the adjutant general's face and each ended with a "thank you for calling," from him. The calls brought congratulations.

Advanced in Rank

The day before, last Wednesday, in the office of the commanding general, Thomas M. Leahy, Jr., had advanced from the rank of major to lieutenant colonel.

"I was very pleased and very proud," he said. "This one (he was talking about the promotion) took less than four years — slightly over 47 months.

"It sort of evened things out. I was a captain for eight years. I was caught in the 'hump'."

Nine years ago, when he was still a captain, Col. Leahy, decided to make the Army his career because "it became a way of life. It was no longer just a job."

The decision came as he moved into the desk of the assistant adjutant of the Sandia Army Base near Albuquerque, New Mexico. He had just completed a two year tour of NATO headquarters in Turkey.

"Enjoyable"

"My assignment in Turkey and later the MAAG (Military Advisory Assistance Group) assignment in Korea were probably the most enjoyable of my career," he said.

"My family was with me both times. We got to travel a lot together. In Korea we made friends that we still correspond with. And I enjoyed working with the amalgamation of NATO soldiers in Turkey."

Col. Leahy entered the Army in 1943 as a private and served for about a year in the Solomon Islands before going to Officers Candidate School in Brisbane, Australia.

As a lieutenant, he was assigned to the headquarters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur in the Philippines.

"I admired the general very much," Col. Leahy said. "I consider him a very great soldier; a great man."

When World War II ended Col. Leahy left the service and enrolled at the University of Southern California. There, in a speech class, he met the girl who later became his wife. They now are the parents of three children.

War in Korea caused Col. Leahy to be recalled to service in 1950 for a series of stateside assignments, including the top adjutant general's spot at Fort Ritchie, Md. Then came the foreign tours, the duty in New Mexico and more education.

'CHAMPS' SCORE 74-71 WIN

Recaps Ties Between Old Field 'Foes'

By TOM KIRWAN

In the past year the 2nd Infantry Division and the Eleventh Air Assault Division have opposed each other on many battlefield maneuvers. Sunday, this battle was renewed.

This time, however, the field of battle was not in the Carolinas, at Fort Stewart, or in the woods of Fort Benning. The participants were not dressed in the usual green - colored field gear, and the only weapon was a unit's knowledge of and skill with a basketball.

This war was fought on the hardwood floors of Briant Wells Field House on Main Post and the objective. . .to win the 1965 Fort Benning basketball championship.

Going to market in the week long, double elimination tournament the 2nd Medical Battalion of the 2nd Infantry Division came away from games with a victory each time. The 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry of the Eleventh, Air Assault Division, however had fallen once.

So it was that if one team in the final few games of the tourney had stubbornly been tabbed "the team to beat"—it was the talented group from the 2nd Medical Wig Wam of Sand Hill.

At 2 p.m. the whistle sounded for the start of the game. The players were tense from the thought of the pressure ahead and the fans were happy and confident that their team would win.

The medics moved to center court for the start of action. Angry, their pride punctured by the unexpected in the 2nd Division Tournament, they were not about to go down in defeat in another championship game. They jumped off to a fast ten point lead, and by controlling the ball they kept the lead until the final quarter of play.

Points were hard to come by throughout the contest except when medics scoring champ Dave Robinson came within shooting distance of the basket. He added 35 points to the scorebook and Frank Motta helped with 14. But in the final stanza both players left the game because of the five-foul-rule. From that point on the action was fast and furious as the 38th launched a final attempt to go ahead.

Led by Emmit Beard and James Watson, the 38th began to fast break and cut into the medics' lead. In the last few minutes of play the Medics' Cyril Cosgrove and the 38th's John Marshall were trading baskets in an attempt to keep the lead for their team.

In the final seconds of play, Cosgrove, stood calmly on the foul line and completed two free throws to put the game on ice for the medics with a final score of 74-71.

Quality and quantity abound on the championship team, and because of it they are richer in both the trophies they brought back to Sand Hill, and richer in the eyes of the division who can once again say "Second-to-None".

'Teamwork, Backing' Pushes Medics to Top

BY LANNY THOMAS

"Teamwork, team support, effort and a good organization all made it possible for us to win this championship," says Dave Robinson, captain of the 2nd Division's champion medics and a star of the team.

"We couldn't have won if everyone had not worked toward one goal — to win," Robinson said. "We had the best support ever and a good team organization from top to bottom"—from Col. Fred O. Jackson, Support Command commander, to Lt. Col. Jack Wallace, battalion commander, and to Maj. Joseph Canty, who coached the champs.

"These people gave us the backing we needed in order to win."

Robinson, who played center and led scoring throughout the season, said his "baskets didn't just come. I had a wonderful group of guys to play with and back me up on the hardwood." He also praised team trainer, Lt. Jerald Savalls. "He was with us every minute."

Col. Wallace, who was one of the team's strongest supporters, had these remarks: "I think team support is very important and men of the battalion support it 100 per cent. We have a good bunch of fighting medics and we of the battalion take great pride that we can represent the division in this capacity."

The players and their wives and other battalion officials were honored at a banquet Thursday night at the Sand Hill NCO Club. Col. Jackson, who also followed the medics in their championship climb, spoke to the group. He paralelled their teamwork with that found in the functions of today's Army.

The medics this season marched through both leagues of play with a first place and their only big slip-up came in the finals of the division championships. They went down to 72nd Armor.

However, they again picked up their pace in main post battles and rang up four consecutive victories. In the opener, the medics took the 11th Air Assault's 511th Infantry in a 60-59 thriller. The 29th Infantry was their next obstacle — they fell, 68-61.

During their first tangle with the 38th Infantry, the medics turned in a 93-79 scorebook.

Have an Idea?--Here's a Chance to Put It to Work

By JIM GRAHAM

Shortly after the organization of the 11th Air Assault Division, its commander, Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, officially opened the division's Idea Center.

This unique center was created so that the men of the 11th would have an opportunity to present their ideas on ways of improving the operation, equipment and training of the newly formed division.

Since its doors opened in 1963 the Idea Center has processed a multitude of suggestions. At its creation, interest in the Idea Center was at a peak. But as the division matured and the demands placed upon her men increased the interest in the Idea Center faded.

Recently, Gen. Kinnard expressed a desire to see interest in this unique function restimulated. He expressed a hope to see a new influx of constructive suggestions flow into the Idea Center.

The Center has recently moved into a new home in the Division Artillery area, Building 5205 (Upstairs). Here Lt. Col. Harold T. Smith, DivArty Aviation Officer and Officer - in-charge of the Idea Center, and his administrative assistant, Sp5 Jimmie M. Hill and their staff are prepared to assist the Sky Soldiers in the presentation of their suggestions.

At the Center are clerks to assist in the preparation of the written description of ideas that are submitted. A draftsman is also on hand to lend his talents when needed. A conference room with blackboards is also available so that the individual can fully explain his suggestion.

The Idea Center staff points out that it is not difficult to present your idea. They may be presented either orally or in writing directly to the Idea Center. Ideas involving the organization, equipment or operation of a specific unit should more properly be routed through proper channels in that unit, but these suggestions will be accepted at the center directly from the individual.

Occasionally ideas are adopted in a unit and are never submitted to the Idea Center.

When an idea is received it is usually forwarded to one of the division's general or special staff sections for comments on its veasibility and for possible suggested improvements. Past this step it is, in most cases, forwarded to the Army's Combat Developments Branch for general acceptance.

So, Sky Soldier, have you been thinking of an idea that would make your job or the work of your comrades a little easier or a little better? Well here is your chance to put it into the hands of the people who can put that idea to work — for you, for your unit, or for the Army.

AIR MOBILE HOSPITAL PICK-UP
Chinook Lifts Compact Medical Unit

Provisional Helicopter Chinooks Sling Load MUST Medical Unit

The Brooke Army Medical Center, Fort Sam Houston, Tex., requested the use of a CH-47A (Chinook) helicopter for the period of 17th through 25th of February, for the purpose of demonstrating the air mobility of "MUST" (Medical Unit Self - Contained Transportable).

The mission was received by the Provisional Helicopter Company (chinook), 44th Air Transport Battalion, 10th Air Transport Brigade on the 8th of February with a reporting date of the 16th.

Some special equipment for the flight was required in the form of a long range ferry tank system, giving the aircraft an extended range of six hours. This tank system consisted of three 500 gallon type blatters with pump and hose connecting to the main fuel tank of the aircraft.

Other special equipment included sling kits to carry the medical unit "MUST" and litter kits to demonstrate how the Chinook would be used as an Air Ambulance (CH-47A can be outfitted with 24 litters).

The crew for this flight was CWO Keith R. Borck, CWO Ronald I. Smith, CWO Raymond F. Powers, SSgt. Ronald L. Rhodes, Sp6's, Francis Kelly, James H. Castilow and Sp5 Joseph M. Conners.

The aircraft departed from Lawson Army Airfield at 11:00 a.m. on the morning of the 15th of February arriving at Guadalupe, Tex., six flying hours later, non-stop and without maintenance difficulties.

The aircraft was halted due to weather, twenty minutes flying time short of its arrival at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex. The aircraft departed the next day, arriving at Brooke Army Medical Center the same day.

On the 18th the CH-47A was utilized in a static display with litter kits installed to demonstrate Air Ambulance capabilities.

The 24th found the VIP demonstration in which the CH-47A helicopter was utilized in the slinging of the "MUST" unit. It was later shown on Walter Cronkite's news program that afternoon.

The "MUST" is a 6,000 pound package, comprising of three boxed units — a gas

38th Infantry Grabs 2nd Place In Post Basketball Tournament

BY GENE WILVER

A tired but happy group of ball players from the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry, 2nd Air Assault Brigade, brought back to their battalion Sunday night, a second place finish in the Post Tournament.

The ball club played one of their best games and need not be ashamed of its showing. Being the second half ball club that they are, the Kaniengehaga's almost overtook the 2nd Medical Battalion in the waning minutes of the game.

The final score of the game was 74-71 in favor of the Medics. The Medics dominated the first half with leads up to 16 points at times. The never-say-die quintet of the 38th bounced back every time with dunks by James Watson, and jumpers by Emmitt Beard and Ronnie Towe. When the buzzer sounded, signifying the end of the first half, the Medics found their lead dwindled down to a mere five points.

Anticipation described the fans of the 38th when the second began. Knowing the second half ball club the 38th is, the fans awaited for the comeback of the 38th's.

The Medics seemed to disbelieve the 38th's reputation and soon the 38th found themselves down by 13 points with 9:16 remaining. With 4:34 left in the game, the fans of the 38th felt hopes dwindle as their team was down by 17 points.

Mounting an almost unbelieveable offensive, the 38th scored 12 straight points and the score was 73-68 in favor of the Medics with 1:33 left to play. Twenty-three seconds later, the score was 73-71 and the audience was going wild.

The Medics realized that they must control the ball and that they did. This made the 38th foul and the Medics made good on their free

Letter of Appreciation

TO: Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard
Commanding General
11th Air Assault Division

I wish to express my appreciation for the participation by you and members of your command in the retirement review held in my honor on February 27, 1965 at Fort Benning.

The outstanding appearance and military bearing of the men from your command that participated in this ceremony made this a memorable event. The Army Aviation fly-by was an outstanding addition and added significantly to the occasion. The professional manner in which this review was conducted attests to your leadership and organizing ability as a troop commander. I have prepared a separate letter of appreciation to Colonel W. R. Lynch, the Commanding Officer of the 2nd Provisional Brigade, for his participation in this outstanding performance.

Please accept my deepest thanks to you and your men for making this a most memorable occasion.

The CH-47A demonstration played host to the House Armed Services Committee and representatives of industry and medicine to show off this new whospital concept that the Army wants for the strike units and thinks it a prime development for civil defense.

377th 'Aerial Rocket' Artillery Honors Rescue Party Members

Members of Battery A, 3rd Battalion, 377th Artillery were awarded the 11th Air Assault Division Certificate of Achievement at a recent Battalion ceremony on March 5, 1965.

The Certificate of Achievements were awarded to Capt. John T. Bradish, Capt. Joseph V. Lenoci, Lt. Robert W. Nattjes, WO Charles Eldreth Jr., WO Albert G. Gay, WO Jesse L. Hobby, and SSgt. Millard Brown. These individuals were members of the first aerial Rocket Battery ever formed.

While participating in Exercise HAWK STAR I, June 24, 1964, in the vicinity of Fort Jackson, S.C., these personnel distinguished themselves by exceptionally meritorious and courageous action in the aerial evacuation of the injured from the crash site of a CV-2 aircraft.

It was raining and the ceiling was about 300 feet. The crews were in bed after a hard days of flying since 4:00 that morning. A loud noise occurred and these individuals, without regard for their own personal safety immediately responded to the crises. Their helicopters were the first to arrive at the accident, within minutes after the crash occurred.

Although unfamilar with the exact location of the military hospital to which the injured were to be evacuated, and without accurate knowledge of a storm cell in the vicinity, they successfully navigated at night through hazardous weather conditions which required symbol the Tiger. The facemost exacting decisions and flying techniques.

The first aircraft to arrive at the hospital completely organized and assisted in the transfer of injured to awaiting ambulances. Their quick action, proficiency, and alertness aided in preventing death to seriously injured.

Tigers Add Stripes

Company C, 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry, known throughout the battalion as "Tiger Company", has recently made another addition to their training uniform.

THE BAYONET

From The Wives

To The Flying Husband

Wives of members in Battery A, 3rd Battalion, 377th Artillery, presented their husbands with a poem showing the trials and tribulations of a military wife while husbands are away. This poem was read at a recent gathering after the wives were presented with letter of achievement and miniature Air Assault Badges.

Bold, brave, and flight-suited up,
They stared at the half-filled coffee cup.
Restless as tigers, their hearts did ache
For that long anticipated weather break.
Alas and alack—it finally came
Look! There they go to the new war game
Meanwhile — busted washing machines, measles, mumps,
Cold, lonely beds, big goose bumps,
Jingling telephones, jangled nerves,
Crash diets, exercise— still no curves!
A break coming—are you really sure?
What shall I wear for the most allure?
Who is that? Surely not my man!
He never had a mustachiod pan!
Three days gone—sure went fast
Should have known it wouldn't last.
More lonely weeks—but time marches on.
Whatta you know, October's gone.
Soon they'll be home again—this time to stay
There'll be so many things to say.
The heroes are here—circling round
Soon they'll be—right here on the ground.
Dirty, grimy, tired too,
Home at last, from Air Assault II.
Meet your daughter—This is your son.
Let's go home—introductions are done.
Two months later; back to normal.
Laughter's easy; talk's informal.
Even the field gear's been put away
Drawers and tee-shirts still charcoal gray.
Just one problem—faces the cynic
Battery coffee—at the OB clinic?
There is one fact we always knew
It's great being wives of you chosen few.
So to all you full-time airplane drivers,
part-time husbands,
And sometimes fathers; we say thank you for being around, even though only occasionally.

Aviation Company Men Advance Thru Education

The 1st Aviation Company, the Army's oldest Transport Aviation Company, is rapidly adding scholastic honors to its impressive string of Aviation and Combat achievements.

Led by their commander, Maj. Paul L. Stansel, and the Executive Officer, Capt. Charles R. Jones, 33 officers and men are enrolled in off-duty courses offered by the American University, with the interest span ranging from the freshman to the graduate level.

Seven enlisted men have completed the one year college level exams offered by USAFI, ten enlisted men are completing the USAFI High School exams, and three other enlisted men are attending the on-duty prep school in preparation for the high school exams. Thirty-three enlisted members of the unit have been awarded the highly prized high school diploma after completion of the USAFI exams.

Judging from the fact that academic arguments and scholarly dissertations have virtually replaced the proverbial "hanger flying", it is expected that the scholastic list of honors will soon resemble a 1st Aviation Company roster.

228th 'Chinookers' Ask 'What's in a Name?'

Most of the 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion Pilots have been flying the CH-47A "Chinook" for a year or more and perhaps at one time or another each has wondered where the name Chinook came from.

The Chinooks were an Indian tribe that lived in the region that is now Washington State. Their territory ran along the Pacific coast from the Columbia River to Greys Bay and included the site of the present city of Hoquiam.

A tall tribe with broad foreheads and arched noses they were easily distinguished from their smaller neighbors. Although they lived in the villages the nature of their work, trading and fishing, necessitated considerable moving about.

Their trips were generally made by water in dugout canoes of huge size and graceful form (perhaps this is the reason their tribe name was selected for the Army's first amphibous cargo helicopter).

The Chinook tribe numbered in excess of 16,000 persons when Lewis and Clark visited the country in 1805, but in 1829 a plague of unknown origin reduced the people to almost extinction.

During the 18th and 19th centuries the Chinook dialect was widely used as a trade language for Indian tribes and white traders from California to Alaska. The language has rapidly fallen into disuse in the original area, but it is growing in popularity as a trade language in central Alaska.

11th Pathfinders Conduct Conference for Officers

The 11th Aviation Pathfinder Company will hold a conference on Pathfinder operations and techniques in conjunction with the Infantry Agency, Combat Developments Command on March 16 and 17. Capt. Richard D. Gillem, 11th Pathfinder Company Commander, will head the conference and will be the principal speaker.

Attending the Pathfinder conference will be officers from the Combat Developments Commands of Ft. Rucker, Ala. and Ft. Belvoir, Va., as well as from the Infantry Agency at Ft. Benning. Officers from the Airborne Airmobility Department and the Brigade - Battalion Operations Department of The Infantry School are also scheduled to attend. Interested personnel from the XVIIIth Airborne Corps, the 1st and 2d Infantry Divisions, and the 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions have also been invited.

The conference will consist of two discussion sessions and a demonstration of the operation of a night helicopter landing zone for large formations of both UH-1 and CH-47 aircraft.

The general topic of the discussion sessions will be the equipment, organization, and employment of Pathfinders. This will include a demonstration and explanation of current and developmental equipment, a discussion of proposed changes in the Pathfinder TOE and operational techniques as a result of experience with the 11th Air Assault Division, and some speculation on the use of Pathfinders in future combat and training operations.

The demonstration of a night landing operation will be held at Dekkar Field. A Pathfinder team will parachute into the landing zone, establish radio communications with the aircraft, set up a homing beacon and light the area for landing.

Artillery Takes Road Marches

Saturday morning, March 6, the cannoneers of the 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery entered into the second phase of a recently renewed physical conditioning program: tactical road marches.

Inaugurated after his assumption of command in March, 1964, by the commanding officer of the 81st, Lt. Col. Francis J. Bush, the scheduled marches were cancelled during AIR ASSAULT II. Since then they have been combined with the "daily dozen" to keep the 81st Artillerymen in good physical condition and in step with the "lean and mean" Air Assault concept.

The road march on Saturday followed a ten mile course over many of the roads and tank trials in Harmony Church. This hike along with several days of service practice rounded out the first training week in March for the 81st Artillery cannoneers.

Chinook Flys to Ft Lewis To Test Air Force's C5A

During the week of the 21st of February 1965 the Provisional Helicopter Company (Chinook), 44th Air Transport Battalion, 10th Air Transport Brigade received a mission to provide one CH-47A helicopter to Fort Lewis, Wash. for the purpose of disassembly, loading, unloading and reassembly of the aircraft into a Boeing C5A mock - up aircraft.

The aircraft arrived at Gray Army Airfield on the 21st of Feb. 1965 and were met by Mr. Kit Carson and Mr. Dennis Harragon of the Boeing Company (Airplane Division) Seattle, Wash., Mr. Tom Smith and Mr. Bill Berzosky of Vertol (Service Engineering Branch) of Phila., Pa., M. Bob Heady of Vertol (Field Service) Columbus, Ga. and Lt. Col. Swift, airfield commander of Gray Army Airfield.

The crew for this mission were CWO James D. Lombard, CWO Lawrence J. Gutman Jr., SP6 Robert H. Jewell, Sp6 James Stuttvile and Sp5 Alvin C. Musselman.

On the 22nd of February 65, the crew attended a briefing in which both Boeing and Vertol crews were briefed on the disassembly, reassembly and loading and unloading of the CH-47A into a C5A mock-up.

The actual disassembly commenced at 7:55 a.m. and was completed by 4:55 p.m. At 5:00 p.m. the loading of the CH47A into the C5A was started. The CH47A was wenched in backwards and was in position at 6:00 p.m. This phase was completed by 6:20 p.m.

Unloading was done in the reverse order of loading and the time which elapsed for the unloading was one hour.

Feb. 23 started with the reassembly in the reverse sequence of disassembly. This was accomplished with eight mechanics and one supervisor doing the assembly and disassembly. Assembly was completed and the aircraft was run-up without difficulties.

The VIP demonstration was scheduled for Feb. 24 and started with the arrival of the VIP's at the mock-up at 11:00 a.m. at which time the aircraft was started up and rotors engaged to simulate and show the VIP's that the Ch-47A was in flyable condition.

At 11:10 a.m. the aircraft was shut down and the disassembly of the CH-47A was started. The procedure was the same as used on previous days, this time, however, the crew accomplished the disassembly in only three and one-half hours.

The CH-47A was loaded into the mock-up C5A in twenty two minutes and unloaded in twenty seven minutes. Feb. 25 found the assembly of the CH-47A completed and a one hour test flight performed. Upon completion of the test flight, the aircraft proceeded to Seattle, Washington, Boeing plant Number 2 for a demonstration on the 26th.

The morning of the 26th started with a static display. A short flight demonstration of twenty minutes was flown and then the aircraft proceeded to Mt. Rainier for an in-flight pictures with Mt. Rainier in the background. The aircraft then proceeded to another Boeing plant for a static display there and then it returned to Plant No. 2, refueled and departed with a well done by all concerned.

"You mean, continued the captain, that we have two Jeffrey L. Cooper's in our company!"

"Yessir!" the First Sergeant answered.

Such is the dilemma of Capt. Richard R. Browning, commanding officer of the Headquarters Company, 2nd Air Assault Brigade, and 1st Sgt. Dairl K. Broaddus, first sergeant of Headquarters Company.

The Coopers, Jeffrey Lynn and Jeffrey Lee, are not in anyway related, but strangely enough come from the same part of the country, Michigan.

Sp4 Jeffrey Lynn Cooper is a crew chief who has just returned from the 120th Aviation Company in Viet Nam. Sp4 Cooper entered the Army on August 6, 1963 and was sent to Fort Knox for basic training at Fort Knox, and training. Helicopter maintenance school came next and following this came the assignment in Viet Nam. When he returned from Viet Nam in January of this year he had earned the Expeditionary Medal.

The other Cooper, Pvt. Jeffrey Lee Cooper, is a wireman from Detroit, Mich. He has had previous service in the Army. Between 1960 and 1963 he was in th Army as a wireman with the 32nd Artillery Brigade in Germany.

Pvt. Cooper came back into the Army in January of this year and after basic Field Communication course, he was sent to Headquarters Company, 2nd Brigade.

A 611th Mechanic Works On A Chinook

611th's Company 'B' Celebrates Second Anniversary of Progress

February 8, 1965 marked the second anniversary for Company "A", 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion. Company A was the first Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Company organized in the 11th Air Assault Division. The organization of this unit took place when the 335th Transportation Aircraft Maintenance Company (Direct Support) was redesigned and became a vital part of the 11th Air Assault Division.

Long before the organization was formed, the personnel of Company A had demonstrated their ability in the Aircraft Maintenance Field; the know how to pick up and move on a moments notice, their wrench turning prowess, and more significant their general progress in the Aircraft Maintenance business.

During the Cuban crisis, Company A, then the 335th, picked up and moved to a Florida location on a moments notice where the company played a very important role in the National Defense during this crisis.

When the Cuban situation had subsided the 335th returned to the Lawson Aviation Command at Fort Benning, where upon they were redesignated Company A 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion.

The unit then began to reorganize under a new maintenance concept, Project TEAM and eventually became the largest company sized unit in the United States Army.

The company continued to bear this prodigious support mission from its inception until early 1964 when Company B assumed this mission.

In addition to the expert maintenance and supply role played by Company A, full advantage was taken of the opportunity to convert constant gripes about antiquated World War II equipment being used into recommendations for new and improved equipment designed for use under the air mobile concept. In order to shed the bulk and yet increase efficiency, the technical savvy of old time maintenance and supply experts of the unit were relied upon in developing the prototypes of much of the equipment taken or granted by the air mobile set of today.

As the days and months rolled by and the new Air Mobile equipment began arriving, it was integrated into the company's operations with the only difference being increased production.

511th Supply Sergeant Ends 28-Year Career

SFC John D. Gaskins, supply sergeant in Company "C", 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry, 2nd Air Assault Brigade, has recently completed 28 years of service in the United States Army.

He originally hails from Waycross, Ga., and he joined the Army at Atlanta, Ga., on Aug. 24, 1936. From there he reported to Fort McCleland, Ala., and thus began his colorful career as a professional soldier.

SFC Gaskins was a former member of the 11th Airborne Division and he served in both Japan and Africa during World War II. During peacetime, he has also been stationed in such overseas places as Germany and Korea.

In November of 1963 SFC Gaskin came to Company "C", 511th Infantry, and he first served as platoon sergeant and later became the supply sergeant in February of 1964.

Throughout his career as an airborne soldier, Sgt. Gaskin as made 118 jumps. Among the awards he has received, are the Master Parachutist Badge, and in 1946 he was awarded his Glider Wings. The last jump Sgt. Gaskin had made was in 1959.

Upon his retirement from the service in August 1966, Sgt. Gaskin intends to enter into the field of commercial fishing. He presently hails from Feredina Beach, Fla., and is married and has four children.

38th Officer Held Civilian Dream Job

Lt. Richard L. Fajen, newly assigned to Delta Company, 2d Battalion, 38th Infantry as a Fire Direction Officer, had, as a civilian, a job that most young boys dream of one day having. He was a Forest Ranger with the Forest Service in California.

His actual duties were to spot fires, and when one was located, fly by helicopter to the site. There he surveyed the blaze and decided the better method of fighting it and how to approach the area. If the area was inaccesible, or a helicopter couldn't land, the helicopter would hover low over the ground and the fire-fighters would jump.

Lt. Fajen is from Ridgewood, N. J. He entered the Army at Ft. Dix, N. J. in Feb., 1963, and there completed basic training.

Mortar Fire in Battalion Area -- It Happens at the 23rd Infantry

The Forward Observer sights the target — a gasoline storage area. He immediately calls his Fire Direction Center, and the firing data is sent to the mortars. In no time at all, the mortar fires and the round is in flight. The personnel are members of Delta Company, 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry, and they are actually firing missions such as this in their own company training area.

It is hard to believe that they are actually firing their mortars in a cantonment area, but with the pneumatic firing device for the 81 m.m. mortar, it is possible. Members of the "Totem" battalion's Combat Support Company have been in extensive training with this valuable training device for the past few weeks.

The pneumatic firing device enables all members of the mortar squad, from the Forward Observer to the Gunner, to utilize the same firing procedures as they do in actual live firing exercises.

Along with the firing device; there is a mock-up city consisting of buildings, roads railroads, and storage areas. These mock-ups are approximately ten inches high, and they are laid out on a range varying from 500 to 2,000 inches. The device itself is operated on compressed air, and fires a projectile that is armed with a 22 caliber blank that detonates on impact.

In addition to being a valuable training aid, the penumatic firing device has a special significance to Delta Company. Delta Company is fortunate to have as a member of its organization Sgt. William C. Barnes, one of the personnel directly responsible with the original testing and operation of the pneumatic firing device. Sgt. Barnes is presently Third Squad Leader, 4.2 inch Mortar Section.

In 1955, Sgt. Barnes was a member of the committee at Ft. Ord, Cal. that initially used and tested the device after its adoption by the Army.

The device was originally developed by the Navy to train its observers. However, in the early fifties, the Army saw the value of such a device for the training of its indirect - fire gun crews. The necessary modifications to be made; the device was adopted by the Army, and subsequently tested at Ft. Ord. The pneumatic firing device presently is adaptable for the 60, 81m.m. and 4.2 inch mortar.

Delta Company, 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry readily recognizes the value of the pneumatic firing device as a training aid, and it is proud of Sgt. Barnes for his participation in its development.

Winners of the Good Conduct Medal for the fourth time were 1st Sgt. Edward L. Mauldin and SP5 Roy C. Grantham of Headquarters and Service Battery and SFCs William D. Ramsey and William P. Chaco of Battery A.

Included on the list of Good Conduct Medal winners were also four third award recipients. They were Sgt. Maj. Harold L. Deal and SSgt. Anthony V. Gutierrez of Headquarters and Service Battery and 1st Sgt. Leroy Smith and MSgt. William G. Pruitt of Battery C.

Gaining the Good Conduct Medal for the second time were SFC Ben Williams of Headquarters and Service Battery and SSgt. Carmelo Cales of Battery A.

Of the 15 men awarded the Good Conduct Medal for the first time, five were from Headquarters and Service Battery, three from Battery A, six from Battery B and one from Battery C.

Those from Headquarters and Service Battery acquiring their initial GCM award were SSgt. Robert T. Williams, Sgt. Raymond C. Jackman, SP5s Joseph A. Luke and Lewis Williams, and SP4 Thomas Hoffa.

First time award winners from Battery A were Sgt. Bobby D. Warden and Ernest L. Hazzard and SP5 Jimmy Segrest.

The six men from Battery B receiving the Good Conduct Medal for the first time were SP4's James R. Endicott, Winston M. Fields, Robert A. Heirs, Samuel S. Ingram, Robert G. Mounger and John W. Palmer while, in Battery C, the first time winner was SP4 Hillary L. Wade.

15th Artillery Contributes Two Howitzers for Test

As a final preparation for Battery - Level Army Training Tests, the batteries of the 1st Battalion, 15th Artillery each contributed two 105mm Howitzers, and Fire Direction Section, and three Forward Observer teams to form a composite battery which fired a record number of missions and rounds last Saturday.

As the situation developed according to a preplanned scenario, the nine forward observers kept the fire direction centers humming and the big guns booming. What started out to be "another training mission," turned out necessary to be a dramatic demonstration of the destructive power of the well trained artillery.

The keen eye and sound judgement of the forward observer coupled with the speedy but precise pencils of the fire direction centers and the accurate sightings of the cannoneers effected a maximum performance. Before the exercise was over, the battery pumped out over 300 rounds in 48 missions.

The training exercise was controlled by an Umpire Team under the direction of Capt. Harry W. Chambers, assisted by Captains Robert J. Gabrielli, William P. Lundberg, and Donald G. Harmon. Lt. Col. Frank A. Athanason, battalion commander, and Majors Samuel H. Fisher, Jr., and Jesse O. Bickmore voiced their pleasure with all the men involved for having performed a monumentous task with accuracy and professional composure.

Benning Hosts Allied Officers During Tour

Fort Benning played host to twenty-three students from the senior foreign officers intelligence course, Fort Holabird, Md., who visited here March 14-16.

The visiting students who arrived at Muscogee County Airport Sunday, met with Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges at his office Monday morning and were presented "Follow Me" pins and certificates making them "Honorary Doughboys."

After a briefing in the new Infantry School Bldg. 4, on utilization of Fort Benning reservation in support of training, the group went to Eubanks Field for an Airborne orientation and to observe Airborne training facilities.

Following a tour of the Infantry Museum the visitors were taken to Morgan Field to watch Ranger training in hand to hand combat.

Field firing and operation of Infantry weapons was observed on Patton Range where marksmanship training was in progress utilizing anti-tank and missiles, including the 90-mm and 106-mm rifles.

On Dianda Range the allied officers were briefed on

Post Personnel Given Invitation To 'Change Map'

Hitler, Mussolini, Hirohito and a few other would-be geography jugglers wound up as losers when they tried to change the landscape, but Fort Benning personnel are being invited to do the same thing—on a smaller scale—with a prize, rather than a retribution being offered for their efforts.

The Command has announced a contest for suggestions as to how this building may be better utilized. It was originally built, back in the early '30's as the military police outpost, and had garrison accommodations upstairs for the MP's. During its history it has also been put into service as an information center and presently houses the Post Exchange concession photo lab.

The contest, to find what practical and functional use this building may be put to augment post facilities, is open to all personnel, military and civilian, with a "suitable" prize, as yet unannounced, to be awarded for the best idea submitted. The contest will close on April 16 with the winner to be announced in The BAYONET, issue of April 23.

Contest entries will be judged on the basis of practicability, clarity and detail. In the event of a tie, the first tieing entry received will be adjudged winner.

Entries should be sent by mail or message center to: Contest Editor, The BAYONET, Information Section, USAIC, Building 4, Room 602, Fort Benning, Georgia.

3500 View Brigade Festivities; Unit's Top Award Goes to Tindell

More than 3,500 military and civilian personnel attended the third annual Organization Day ceremonies conducted by the 197th Inf. Bde. Saturday.

Col. Walter D. Short, brigade commander, was host to many distinguished visitors, including Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, Brig. Gen. George I. Forsythe and Brig. Gen. R. T. Knowles.

Col. Short presented Sgt. John Tindell, "Brigade Soldier-of-the-Year", with a gold wrist watch and a promotion to his present rank.

Tindell of Battery B, 2nd Bn. (Composite), 10th Arty., also received a plaque from the Association of the U. S. Army and a plaque from the local chapter of the Daughters of the U. S. Army.

Other awards presented during the review went to SSgt. Olva Chipps of the 69th Armor for High Individual Marksman with the .45 caliber pistol; Sp4 Rufus Choate of the 69th Armor for High Individual High Marksman with the M14 rifle; SFC Donald J. Gower of the 69th for Outstanding Tank Commander, and to Sgt. Courtland Middleton of the 10th Arty. for the Artillery-Cunners' Award.

Second Lt. Jack Edwards of the 58th Inf. received the first place Expert Infantryman Award while the second and third place awards went to 2nd Lt. Francis Wolfa and Sp5 Robert Sarnoski, both of the 58th.

Immediately after the review, an informal barbecue luncheon was served. Activities continued throughout the day with a scout dog demonstration, a contest of individual and group skills, kiddie rides, a static demonstration of weapons and vehicles used by the units of the brigade, and a dinner-dance.

The exhibition put on by the 26th Inf. Plt. (Scout Dogs) was one of the highlights of the day. Members of the unit put the dogs through demonstrations of climbing ladders, jumping through windows and attacking an "enemy" wearing padded clothing.

Taking top honors in the intra-battalion squad competitions were Co. B, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., drill competition; Co. A, of 1st Bn., 58th Inf., and Co. C, 4th Bn., 69th Armor in the Tank Crew Drill competition.

Battery C, 2nd Bn., 10th Arty. won the Howitzer Drill competition while the 72nd Engr. Co. won the Brigade Troops' Wheel Changing competition.

Climaxing the day's festivities was a reception held in the Gold Bar Annex of the Main Officers' Open Mess for the officers and their ladies and a dinner-dance at Crain Hall, hosted by the non-commissioned officers and their wives with the brigade's unit commanders as guests of honor.

Annual Joint Campaign For Funds Nears Finish

The 1965 combined fund drive at Fort Benning for the National Health Agencies and the Federal Service Joint Crusade is in its final three weeks of collection.

Scheduled to run through April 7, the goal of the campaign is 100 per cent participation in the form of a generous donation.

Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges said, "I enjoin all personnel at this installation to contribute to this worthwhile cause to help our nation grow physically strong, and to help all mankind live in a world of dignity and honor."

In his address to more than 900 keymen at the kickoff of the drive, the general stated "It is a characteristic of our soldiers that they are free in giving. We have set no specific amount for individuals to give, but I hope the response will be 100 per cent."

Fund drive keymen have stated that the participation is running near the 100 per cent mark.

The fund drive is the annual campaign to raise money for health agencies as well as CARE, Radio Free Europe, the American Korean Foundation, and Project HOPE, a mercy ship.

The health agencies receiving funds from the annual campaign are the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation, March of Dimes, National Multiple Sclerosis Society, National

Col. Koob Tells IOBC Graduates 'The Infantryman Is Key to Victory'

"The Infantryman — the old ground pounder who stands on his two feet with his rifle in his hands the key to victory. Until the Infantryman stands in the enemy's heartland there is no victory," said Col. William Koob, as he addressed 188 graduates of Infantry Officers Basic Course Number 7 at Marshall Auditorium.

The nine-week IOBC is designed to thoroughly indoctrinate the newly-commissioned Army officer with his responsibilities and duties as an Infantry unit commander. Among the graduates were 12 officers from 12 allied nations.

Col. Koob said that leadership is best described as the eager seeking of responsibility. He told the officers, "You have a great responsibility. The nation's youth are being entrusted to your care."

"As Infantry officers we are unique among the professions in that we must deal with the whole man," he continued. "You must be responsible for your men's equipment, clothing, health, morals and a host of other things."

Col. Koob spoke of the art of command. He said an artist is someone who achieves an end result by manipulating a medium.

"As an Army officer you must achieve an end result — the accomplishing of your mission," Col. Koob said. "And the medium you manipulate is men who think and fear and ask questions."

"If you can achieve your end result by manipulation of men, you can truly consider yourself an artist," he said.

Col. Koob said that unfortunately we live in a world where integrity is not always practiced, but that to the Infantry officer, integrity is absolutely necessary because it is tested in blood.

'AWOL' Bag Goes AWOL

A civilian hitchhiker has contacted The BAYONET in an effort to recover an AWOL bag he left in the car of two Fort Benning soldiers who picked him up in Mobile, Ala., last Sunday, March 14.

According to the young man who was enroute to Miami, the car was a 1964, blue Chevrolet Impala, but he does not recall any Fort Benning bumper sticker. The driver, he said was from San Antonio, Texas and was wearing light blue levis, a sport shirt and cowboy boots. He and a companion had been in Mobile on a three day pass.

The driver, or anyone having information on this lost luggage, which contained papers, clothing and a cashier's check, is requested to contact The BAYONET, Post Information Section, 545-3301.

Chaplain's Corner

The Last Grandeur

BY CHAPLAIN (COL.) SILAS DECKER

The Germans, who had traveled and visited Naples, had an expression intended to convey the grandeur of that city, "See Naples and Die."

They believed that city was the most beautiful in all the world. This reminds me of my visit to Naples enroute to see the ruins of Pompeii in 1946. Approaching the city, from Rome, our car brought us to the last hill overlooking Naples. Under the sun its public buildings shone like precious jewels.

As we arrived, we could see the city as it really existed; the laundry hanging from its windows, trash cans overflowing, its narrow streets and dark alleys, dirty children who told the story of the poor and the neglected. This city had not recovered from a great war.

Whoever has traveled in our country to the far northwest will remember Seattle, which is one of the truly great and beautiful cities of our country. At its westward limit is Puget Sound and in the city are two beautiful fresh water lakes, Lake Union and Lake Washington. As a back-drop is the majestic Mt. Ranier. The local residents had a saying, "When you can't see Ranier's peak, it is raining. When you can see its peak, it is going to rain." The climate at Seattle is usually mild. Rain, though frequent, is fairly light. A rain coat is not a necessity.

Our last vision of beauty and grandeur need not be one of the past. As the naturalist walks down a wooded lane, the astronomer takes another look into his telescope, and a farmer harvests a new crop, each can see new grandeur and beauty in God's Creation. We usually see what we want to see.

Jesus of Nazareth spoke of those, "who have eyes and see not, ears and hear not." The experience of a vital religious faith will help to provide a spiritual insight that can see beauty all around and seeing, appreciate it.

CODE

OF THE U.S. FIGHTING MAN

In the next six issues, The BAYONET will outline the Code of Conduct with an explanation of its principles and a statement of the standards expected of you.

As a member of the armed forces of the United States, you are protecting your nation. It is your duty to oppose all enemies of the United States, whether in combat or, if captured, in a prisoner of war compound. Your behavior is governed by a Code of Conduct which has evolved from the heroic lives, experiences and deeds of American fighting men from the Revolutionary War to the Korean conflict.

This Code applies to all U. S. servicemen at all times. It is just as applicable during peacetime or under cold war conditions as it is during a declared war.

To live up to the Code, you must know it . . . not just its words but the ideas and principles behind them.

Your personal goal — besides becoming militarily proficient — is to believe unquestioningly that, as an American fighting man, you not only must oppose any enemy of your country but also that you can defeat him.

"GIVE ME LIBERTY OR GIVE ME DEATH..."

'Give Me Liberty. . .'

". . .Give me liberty, or give me death!" is one of the most famous statements ever made in the history of the United States.

At a meeting in Richmond, Va., March 23, 1775, a 39-year-old orator was trying to convince revolutionary conventioneers that there was only one course of action for them to follow in their fight to gain independence from Great Britain.

The man was Patrick Henry, governor of Virginia and the most eloquent orator in the cause of the American Revolution.

Within a month after his plea before the Virginia Provincial Convention, British and colonial forces were "having at it" at Concord and Lexington.

Since that time, many Americans have echoed his words at various times and places —usually in time of strife.

As members of the armed forces, we too have these words brought to our minds at least once in our lives. We may not have been aware of the words to have given them much thought at the time, but we did embrace their meaning when we took our oaths of allegiance to the United States upon joining the armed forces.

Men and women, enlisted or commissioned, have repeated the sacred words, "I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic." By these words we are pledging our lives to the belief, "Death Before Dishonor."

The words we repeat in our enlistment contracts are often passed off as "something appropriate to say" for the occasion, but in truth we are telling our enemies and friends alike that we are echoing Patrick Henry's plea ". . . Give me liberty, or give me death!" (AFPS)

Surgeon Says

Number Two Killer

No age is free from cancer, and certain forms of it, notably leukemia, are most often found in young children. Cancer takes the lives of children as well as adults and the same vigilance should be exercised.

Heart disease remains the number one cause of death today, however, cancer is the number two killer.

Population increases, the growing number of older people, improved diagnosis, better reporting of deaths, and other factors contribute to the growing cancer statistics. Alarming as they may appear, cancer is curable if detected and treated in its early stages.

For years the American Cancer Society reported that one in every four who had cancer was being saved. Today, one in every three are being saved. Where there's life, there's hope!

A physician dedicates his life to saving of lives, but he can do just so much. If suspected victims will learn the warning signs of cancer, physicians can save thousands of more lives.

If you value living, help your doctor by helping yourself first. Learn the following seven danger signals. They may some day save your life if detected and treated in their early stages.

1. Any sore that does not heal.
2. A lump or thickening, in the breast or elsewhere.
3. Unusual bleeding or discharge.
4. Any change in a wart or mole.
5. Persistent indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.
6. Persistent hoarseness or cough.
7. Any change in normal bowel habits.

There are only three proven ways to cure cancer: Surgery, X-Ray and radium. These three tried and proven methods are used singularly or in combinations.

A quack "cure" won't affect the cancer but they may injure, cripple, kill or prevent detection and treatment by a reputable physician until it becomes too late. Time is of the essence.

A thorough physical examination by your medical doctor will reveal most forms of cancer in early stages. You should get a complete physical at least once a year.

The Judge Says . . .

In order to take the sting out of retirement and to whip the ever present risk of inflation, members of the Armed Forces should have an investment plan geared to their families' financial situation and needs, if possible.

Most assuredly, there is risk in investments. The nature and extent of the risk should be understood before embarking upon an investment program.

Shares of stock are evidences of ownership in a company or corporation. Therefore the basic risk of all stock is the risk that is inherent in ownership. If the business and earnings of a company or corporation increase, the dividends paid on its stock can increase and stock may rise in value. Conversely, if a company or corporation has not been successful because of poor management or other reasons, its stock can decline in value and ultimately become worthless.

There is really only one thing an investment firm has to offer and that is service. Members of the Armed Forces, due to the nature of their occupation and the many changes in assignment and station all over the world, require a special investment service geared to their particular needs. If the investment firm contacted is not equipped to provide this type of service, shop around until you find one that does have what you need.

By KATHRYN A. POPE

The OWC spring luncheon is set for Wednesday, April 7, in the Main Officers' Open Mess. Officers for the 1965-66 club year will be elected at the gathering.

An original musical production, "Who'd Follow Me?", written and directed by Mrs. Rutland D. Beard Jr. will highlight the event. "Easter Egg Fantasy" is the theme for decorations.

Hostesses for the luncheon are wives of the Communications and Electronics Department and of the Airborne and Air Mobility Department, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Donald A. Beyer and Mrs. Vernon T. Mergler.

A single slate of nominees will be presented to the membership this year. These have been selected by the nominating committee. Nominations from the floor will be welcomed, provided the nominee has given prior consent, Mrs. Robert M. Williams, club president, announced.

List of Nominees

The list of nominees includes Mrs. Maurice W. Kendall, president; Mrs. Tyron E. Tisdale, 1st vice president; Mrs. Tony T. Perpich, 2nd vice president; Mrs. Francis J. Crown, 3rd vice president; Mrs. William C. Luehres, recording secretary; Mrs. Gale E. Thompson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Chester R. Mead, parliamentarian; Mrs. Harold G. Moore, custodian; Mrs. Robert A. Fielder, treasurer; and Mrs. Charles W. Elliot, assistant treasurer.

Members of the advanced childrens' art group, under the direction of Mrs. George Geczy, are creating the sets for the musical, which is a parody on Army life.

Mrs. Beard has written lyrics to familiar popular songs and added several musical numbers of her own for "Who'd Follow Me?". The cast will perform such numbers as, "Hey, Look Me Over, I'm an Army Wife," "You've Got a Lot to Learn," "There is More to the Army than the Officers' Club." Members of the group are Miss Gretchen Vanden Bout, Mrs. William C. Roll, Mrs. James Barber, Mrs. Leon D. Bieri, Mrs. Thomas Griffin, Mrs. Jimmie Smith, and Mrs. James Hudson.

Other performers are Mrs. Roger Boyd, Mrs. Metullus Barnes, Mrs. Lawrence Franks, Mrs. Robert D. Studivant, Miss Sandi Roberts, Mrs. Robert Lindquist, Mrs. Jack Bennett, Mrs. Edward Szvetec, Mrs. Ben Crosby and Mrs. Larry Joyce.

Accompanying the singers and dancers will be Mrs. George Johnson, piano, Bob Branstetter, bass violin, Mrs. Hudson, ukelele, David Beard, lead guitar, Ben Shaw and Sally Clark, rhythm guitars.

Decorations

Background colors of green and gold will be used by the decorating committee. Members of this group are Mrs. Clarence J. Schlafer, Mrs. James S. Miles, and Mrs. Bernard K. Doyle. They will adorn the club with hundreds of decorated Easter egg shells, using jewels, tiny flowers, glitter and other materials. In the center of the main ballroom will be a six-foot Easter egg, the work of Lt. and Mrs. William C. Allison, which will highlight the day's theme.

Add Finishing Touches

Military Pay Raise Action Welcomed by AUSA Group

The Association of the United States Army (AUSA) welcomed action in the House of Representatives resulting in the introduction of a number of the recent bills calling for a military pay raise.

Lt. Gen. (Ret.) James M. Gavin, president of AUSA, indicated that his organization was most gratified by this Congressional support.

Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, of the House Armed Services Committee and 38 other Representatives introduced bills to increase the basic pay of all military personnel. Representative Rivers and his colleagues took their action without waiting for the recommendations of a special panel appointed earlier this year by President Johnson to study military and federal civilian pay problems.

In explanation of this action, Mr. Rivers was quoted as saying, "Why further study is necessary is beyond me. The justification for a military pay raise needs no study."

Gen. Gavin stated that "If enacted, the Rivers Bill would be a major step forward toward our objective on military pay and benefits as spelled out in the Resolution adopted at our 1964 Annual Meeting."

At its annual meeting last November, AUSA reiterated its previously - established support for measures pointing toward the improvement of military career incentives and the enactment of an adequate military pay raise.

Taxpayers Are Warned That Errors Cost Money

NEW YORK (AFPS) — Taxpayers filing their Federal income tax returns are urged to be more thorough in following instructions contained in Federal income tax instruction booklets.

Careful reading of the instructions, especially when computing tax liabilities, say officials of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS), can save the taxpayer money.

The tax officials pointed out that automated equipment at the IRS Center at Lawrence, Mass., has detected a large number of errors in computations, especially by individuals who use either the 10 percent standard or the new minimum standard deduction in figuring their tax.

The officials report that many taxpayers whose income is less than $5,000 are using the wrong tax table to determine tax liability. For instance many married tax payers filing joint returns are using Table D of the instruction booklets. This table is intended for taxpayers using the minimum standard deduction who are married and who are filing separate returns.

A JEEP IS PULLED ACROSS THE RIVER ON AN IMPROVISED RAFT OF OIL DRUMS AND SMALL TREES
. . . As One Phase of a River Crossing Techniques Demonstration

Bradley Landing Is Site of River Crossing Problem; Adds Combat Realism to Committee's Demonstration

BY RUSS HAVOURD

One of the primary factors influencing the selection of the present site of Fort Benning back in 1922 was the proximity of the Chattahoochee River and the potential use it might have in tactical training.

Today, the engineer committee, of The Infantry School Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, is taking advantage of this foresight. A training demonstration in river crossing techniques is being conducted at Bradley Landing on the Chattahoochee, former site of the pontoon bridge.

Photographs by Sp4 Pierre L. Nichols.

After many years of presentation on Victory Pond, the problem forfiets its deceiving simplicity to achieve realism and difficulty on the river. Currents and abrupt banks afford conditions not unlike those encountered in an actual combat situation.

Officer and officer candidate classes can easily see for themselves the stumbling blocks to be overcome. They witness the means of executing the hasty crossing, preferred because it maintains attack momentum, and, the deliberate crossing, used when a hasty crossing cannot overcome a determined defense.

First Phase

The first phase of the demonstration deals with the hasty crossing. Here, emphasis is placed on expediency. The importance of surprise by means of silence or speed is clearly brought out.

Two men buck the current on air mattresses to establish a foothold on the "enemy" shore. More troops paddle across on an expedient, yet reliable raft constructed from dry brush and a tarpaulin, stringing a stern line behind them. Once ashore, the advance party manually hauls a jeep on a raft of timber and oil drums across to their position with a stern line. The jeep's trailer even proves useful since it can be made amphibious, serving as a means of ferrying equipment or personnel.

Engineer Support Stressed

Moving more deeply into the situation, a need for permanent crossing arrangements is made apparent. Safe crossing of large bodies of troops and heavy equipment such as tanks and artillery requires more time and planning, called a deliberate crossing. This phase stresses the importance of engineer support in overcoming such factors as current, banks, approaches and road nets.

A reconnaissance boat moves out into the river, checking these factors. Motor driven plastic and pneumatic assault boats hastily usher more troops across, slamming unharmed up onto the banks. Heavy smoke screens are laid over the water, covering the approach of armored personnel carriers, plodding against the current.

The demonstration becomes more impressive when, with sufficient manpower on either bank, the heavy equipment begins to roll. Footbridges components are strung together, snaking across to the desired bridgehead. Other components are linked to create a light tactical raft on which a two - and - one - half ton truck and a howitzer are transported.

Final Phase

The final phase of the deliberate crossing calls on the heavy floating equipment of the engineer unit. Buoyed by pneumatic pontoons and maneuvered by powerboats, the M-4T6 raft supports a main battle tank as it inches to the other side. These rafts also can be joined to span the obstacle, providing a solid, all - purpose bridge. Mass movement now can be executed, pushing the attack steadily into enemy positions.

The training staff is aware of constant developments and improvements and keep them abreast of them. The recently developed mobile assault bridge is the latest answer to this type of mobility problem. Through not yet available in quantity, an explanation of the vehicle's practical use is already incorporated into the instruction.

Continually changing procedures and instruction, The Infantry School engineer committee is helping to produce a well-trained and functionally capable combat officer, so essential in today's modern Army.

Capt. Bowen's Staff Prepares Trainees for Jumps; 18,000 Airborne Volunteers Are Trained Each Year

By DAVID N. SCOTT

"Mix one volunteer with a large amount of self confidence and desire — add a healthy body and rigorous training and the results equal a well qualified airborne soldier," explained Capt. Cecil R. Bowen, chief of the ground training committee of the Airborne Department.

It is the job of Bowen and his staff of three officers and 71 enlisted men to provide the right amount of each ingredient to over 18,000 airborne volunteers a year.

"When the volunteer arrives at our committee he is analyzed to find out just what ingredients are lacking. We then begin the process of adding the missing components. Unlike a normal chemical or mathematical problem, we can never add enough of certain elements," explained Bowen.

Since ground training is the first phase of the student's airborne instruction it is the responsibility of Captain Bowen's committee to instill in him the basic jump techniques along with the other necessary ingredients. "Desire is one element the student usually possesses or he would not be here in the first place," continued Bowen.

The control of the body from the split second the jumper leaves the aircraft until he receives his opening shock, the preparation to land and the parachute landing fall are the main techniques emphasized by the ground committee.

The student begins his training with a lecture and demonstration to orientate him on the background and requirements of the airborne course, the basic jump techniques, operation of the training devices, function of equipment and the physical training program.

His practical experience begins on the parachute landing fall platforms which range in height from two to four feet. The purpose of the platforms is to teach the trainee the proper body position, the four directional landing falls, and quick recovery methods from the fall. It also gradually prepares him for the jump from the 34-foot tower.

The inclined ramp is utilized to teach the student the correct body position from the time he leaves the aircraft until the second his chute opens. All of these devices are surrounded by sawdust pits which cushion the trainee's fall.

The 34-foot tower gives the student practical experience on the fitting of the parachute harness, the proper door position and the correct exiting position. Once on the tower the student assumes the correct door position and jumps. His fall is broken by a harness extending from his body to a cable which enables him to slide slowly to the ground. Another purpose of the tower jump is to give the student confidence in himself and his equipment.

Each exercise is graded by one of the committee's instructors. The graders pick out the trainee's mistakes and explain to him what must be done to correct them. If the grader thinks the student needs additional training he will have him repeat the exercise until he has perfected it.

Developing the student's physical condition by rigorous and progressive physical training is another of the committee's functions. Daily periods of rope climbs, mass calisthenics and long distance runs are performed to improve the overall physical condition of the trainee.

After the trainee completes his week of training with the ground training committee he moves to the tower training committee where he is prepared for his first jump from an aircraft in flight.

Before coming to the Airborne Department Capt. Bowen was S-4 of the 197th Inf. Bde. He has also served as a company commander with the 7th Inf. Div. in Korea and the 101st Airborne Div. at Fort Campbell, Ky.

Study Is Now Underway On ROTC Commissions

By SAMUEL E. RUSH

What does the Army expect the newly commissioned second lieutenant from the Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) to know about the military service when he graduates from college?

The answer to this question, and to many others in the ROTC program, is being determined by the Human Resources Research Office (HumRRO), Divison No. 4, (Infantry) at Fort Benning.

Task ROCOM (Reserve Officers Commission) is the title by which Theodore R. Powers, task leader, refers to the ROTC problem.

The problem? To develop methods and techniques for measuring and improving the quality of the Army ROTC program's output.

Since the end of World War II, the importance of the ROTC program as a source of active duty officers has steadily increased; at present, the majority of all company grade officers on active duty were commissioned through the ROTC program.

282 Participates

There are 232 U. S. colleges and universities that participate in the ROTC program to some extent. Currently, 126 schools require ROTC training during the first two years while 106 schools have it as an elective subject. In schools, the last two years of the program are voluntary.

Specific branch programs, such as Artillery, Infantry and Armor, exist in 29 colleges. However, the trend is to a general military science program, and 203 schools now follow this plan.

A substantial majority of all junior officers commissioned each year come from this source. It is estimated that 13,000 college students will graduate with Army ROTC commissions in 1965.

With the increasing importance of ROTC as a source of military leaders and also because of increasing frequency of comment from field commanders of newly commissioned ROTC officers regarding ROTC training, U. S. Continental Army Command (USCONARC) decided in the fall of 1963 to initiate a review of its ROTC program.

One of the first resulting steps was to involve HumRRO in activities identified as desirable and suitable for research. HumRRO Divison 4 at Fort Benning was selected to accomplish this work.

CONARC Request

At the request of USCONARC, an exploratory study was undertaken during Fiscal Year 1964 to identify a research approach to these problems, and to evaluate the feasibility of a solution to the problem.

Results of this study indicated an essential first step in the research would be identification of detailed student performance objectives for the ROTC program, and the second step would be development of appropriate measures of knowledge and skill based on the results of the first step.

A possible long range third step will be the development of improved ROTC training methods and materials.

To accomplish the first step of student performance objectives, the approach had to be both general to define broad pruposes and standards for the ROTC training program, and specific to consider training content factors.

After a general study of the various elements in the ROTC system, student performance objectives will be determined through a four-phase process.

Phase one, identification of the various principal duties assigned to junior officers, has been completed; it has been found that over 500 principal duty categories exist. However, of this number only 168 occur in sufficient frequency to warrant further study.

In phase two, common knowledge and skill areas will be determined that are relevant to the training for these jobs, either during the ROTC phase or during branch orientation and initial on-the-job training of ROTC graduates.

In phase three, the master list of knowledge and skill areas will be analyzed, and those appropriate for inclusion in the general military science ROTC program will be extracted.

Final Phase

In the final phase, detailed student performance objectives will be written for the knowledge and skill areas identified in the previous phase.

To develop appropriate measures of knowledge and skill, detailed training objectives for the ROTC program will be organized into functional areas.

These areas of knowledges and skills will be used as a basis for the development of specific tests and groups of tests that can be reliably administered by nonprofessional personnel for each functional area.

It is anticipated that some training objectives will deal with actual performance skills, but most objectives probably will concern essential knowledge and the ability to apply this knowledge. The measures developed will reflect this balance.

This initial step, identification of detailed student performance objectives, is scheduled to be finished by the end of June, 1967. Its completion will make possible the development of measures of military knowledges and skills that accurately reflect those requirements of active duty that can be met in the general military science ROTC curriculum.

SUMOGO THE FRIENDLY DOG

No, Mr. Mailman, he's not vicious.

Even though he's an Akita dog, the type Japanese police train and use as killers — this particular dog is a gentle, people-loving pooch called Sumogo. He is owned by Sgt. and Mrs. Loren Nelxon of 1917 Wellborn Drive.

Born in 1962 out at Fort Carson, Colorado, Sumogo or Sumo as his owners call him, was raised from a pup with children.

What scares mailmen, delivery boys and salesmen is the mere size of the animal. At a respectable 150 pounds, Sumo stands desk high, can vault a five foot fence with ease and consumes 15 pounds of dog food a week.

Akitas are rare in the United States. According to only 500 registered with the American Kennel Club in 1962. She estimates there may be seven or eight hundred now.

Sumo resembles a German Shepherd. The main difference is in the size of his face and neck. The collar Sumo wears was specially made from the largest collar available in a Phenix City pet shop plus some extra links from another collar.

The Nelsons love their dog as a pet and a friend for the three boys. They've never entered him in a dog show, although Sumo has had some obedience training to teach him to heel, stay, etc. and the trainer has said he's one of the smartest dogs he's ever seen — and easy to manage at age three.

The Nelson's say their kids have tried all the usual tricks with the dog — tried to ride him like a pony with no success, (he sits sown), and tried to get him to pull them in a wagon with no luck.

Sumogo seems content just to be a friendly pet. The Nelson's have another dog, a Cocker Spaniel named Cindy. The two dogs get along fine even though the Cocker seems intent on teasing Sumogo.

Last Christmas, Mrs. Nelson made her daily check of the mailbox. Inside was a note from a parcel post carrier. "Have a package for you — but will not deliver because of the vicious dog". Mrs. Nelson smiled. She'll probably never convince mailmen, delivery boys and salesmen that Sumogo is a friendly dog.

But for whatever it's worth to them — she guarantees that Sumo won't get any bigger.

Coach Breski said the team must be cut to 10 players before the Third Army competition. He added that probable starters may be Harnum and Grochowski at guard, Walstad and Robinson at forward and Washington at center.

Krilling Sets Record With Perfect Score In Rifle Competition

MSgt. William Krilling of the US Army Marksmanship Training Unit became the first man in the 50-year history of small bore rifle competition to fire a perfect score of 3200 points in the prone championship of the Silver Dollar matches which ended at Winter Haven, Fla., Monday.

He fired in matches over courses of fire at 50 yards, 50 meters and 100 yards.

Didn't Drop a Point

The 38-year-old Army expert also accomplished the unheard of feat of not dropping a single point in all of the prone matches as he cleaned his target with perfect scores in both of the 2-man team events.

Enroute to his record setting victory Krilling also established a new service record in the iron sights prone aggregate with a 1600-130x.

He and his partner Lt. Dennis Dingman set a new service record in the 2-man dewar team event with a combined score of 800-65x. Another MTU shooter Lt. David Ross broke the old service record in a 50-yard any sights phone match with a 400-40x plus 110.

Firing on the winning team were 1st Lt. Lones Wigger Capt. John Foster, Lt. Donald Adams and Krilling.

All but one of the 21 individual matches were won by marksmen from the Army's marksmanship unit. The MTU experts also took three of the four fired team matches and were runnerup in one.

Post Buffs Will Vie Against Palmer During MP's International Golf Day

Thousands of military and civilian golfers, including many post buffs, will compete against Arnold Palmer on April 8 in the ninth annual International Golf Day (IGD) sponsored by the Military Police Association.

The IGD is a handicap golf tournament in which the proceeds are used to support local charities.

Golfers will compete against the 18-hole record of Palmer in the opening rounds of the Masters Golf Tourney in Augusta.

Each participant buys a ticket, combined with an official score card, and then plays 18 holes on any course of his choice. He then submits the signed and witnessed score card to the local IGD coordinator or any military police representative.

The deadline for submitting entries is midnight April 7. Players may use their established handicap or the Callaway system.

Last year nearly 20,000 participated with $15,000 going to local charities. Of each $1 entry fee, 75 cents is retained in the local area. Military installations throughout the world took part in the event.

Tickets and score cards may be purchased at the golf pro shops on post, at any military police headquarters and from any military policeman.

Dads Give Sons a 'Whipping'

By PFC STEVE GEYER

A basketball game, that at times took on the appearance of a physical fitness contest, turned out to be a bad bounce for the Youth Activities Club Intermediate Team No. 6 last Friday at the Old Post Gym.

The contest, a father-son game, organized by the coaches of the YAC team, PFCs Steve Geyer and Bob McConnell, Co. C, 1st Bn., USAIC TC, was promoted to create more parent interest and awareness of the YAC program here.

The "Dads" turned out in force to play their sons who completed a ten - game undefeated season last week in the 12-13 year old YAC Intermediate Division.

After two time-outs and one substitution during the pre-game warm ups the "Dads" were ready to show the old team spirit, but not without having to stage a rally in the second half to overcome their hard playing sons.

Behind at half-time 11-15, the "Dads" made some offensive changes that enabled them to sneak up and wrest the game from their sons, which balanced on two free throws in the closing seconds of the game.

The "Dads" hit 60 per cent from the charity line while their sons managed 50 per cent gifts. High scorer for the "Dads" was Maj. Leon McCall, 23d Inf., 2d Bn., 2d Inf. Div., with 13 points. Lt. Col. Walvin Cadman, Ranger Dept., USAIS, chalked up 6 points while 1st Sgt. Paul Vickers, 39th Trans. Bn., USAIC TC, Capt. Henry O'Connor, 9th Inf., 1st Bn., 2d Inf. Div. and SFC Herman Calin also flashed lights on the big board.

The game was a toss-up until the final seconds when two attempts from the charity line for the sons failed to find the net, and only seemed to prove that Dad can still keep up with the younger generation.

The YAC promotes numerous youth organizations and activities on post, as well as sponsoring seasonal sports for military dependents ages 8 through 18.

Trick Shot Artist

Paul Hahn-Houdini of Golf Links--Must Shoot With Perfect Timing

It takes one great athlete to spot exactly what makes another.

When Phil Rizzuto, the former Yankees shortstop great who now is a sportscaster, played a golf exhibition with Paul Hahn in New Jersey recently, he became a raving fan of the world-famous trick shot star.

"Paul Hahn has the greatest timing and precision I've seen by a man in any sport," said Rizzuto.

"He has to be perfect in his timing and precision. In all other sports there's a margin for error. A receiver running out to catch a forward pass can complete the play by stretching if the ball is a yard off target. Mickey Mantle can mis-hit a pitch, but still get a hit. There are areas of leeway in scoring hockey goals and getting points in basketball. But there are none in the shots made by Paul Hahn."

What Rizzuto says about Paul Hahn you'll see for yourself when the Houdini of the Links gives his famous one-hour routine of trick shots, instruction and just plain comedy at Sand Hill Golf Course at 6 p.m. March 26.

One amazing discovery you'll make as you laugh at Hahn's Bob Hope-like quips and ooh at his unbelievable shots is that he also puts on a serious clinic to help your own golf.

Hahn is of the school who believes that "good golf is easy," and that there's no reason to complicate into misery a game which can be a great pleasure for all participants.

You'll learn from Hahn that all shots are hit with the same basic swing, and, if you observe carefully, you'll see that there's no problem to hitting the ball properly.

Bag of Tricks

Trickshot golfer Paul Hahn will demonstrate his bag of tricks at Sand Hill Golf Course on March 26. His act has been seen throughout the U.S. and in 37 foreign countries.

Wigger Wins Mid-Winter Rifle Matches

Olympic Gold medal winner 1st Lt. Lones Wigger of the Army Marksmanship Training Unit won the National Mid-Winter Smallbore Rifle championships at St. Petersburg, Fla., last week with a four day aggregate total of 4,785 points.

Wigger jumped off to an early lead in the match taking the iron sight prone aggregate with a 1,594 effort and then widened his margin by winning any sight prone aggregate with a 1,599.

In the last two matches civilian competitor Herb Holstee of Boulder, Colo., made a run at the front-runner by narrowing Wigger's lead to five points. But in the final event in wind up to 20 miles per hour the Olympic stalwart dropped only three points to close out his opponent.

Captain Awarded Silver Star For Vietnam Heroism

By JOE TREASTER

At the first miniature review ever held indoors at the 2nd Infantry Division, the Silver and the Bronze Star Friday were awarded to two veterans of Vietnam.

The Silver Star went to Capt. Don C. Chunn, Jr., of the division's 1st Brigade. Capt. James L. Kelly of the 12th Artillery received the Bronze Star.

Silver Star Story

'Didn't Realize Danger'

Editors Note — Conflict in Viet Nam has once again proved that the American Fighting man is capable of valor on any battle field in any part of the world. The following is the account of the circumstances surrounding the award of the Silver Star, the nation's third highest award for valor, to Capt. Donald C. Chunn as told to 2nd Division News staff writer Jim Lail.

According to Capt. Chunn, an armed helicopter had been downed in a Viet Cong infested area, however its occupants were able to escape.

The crew in the area to repair and evacuate the aircraft, were experiencing heavy fire from Viet Cong forces surrounding the lame craft.

The helicopter Chunn commanded had a mission — unlike any it had experienced before. He and his crew were to clear the area of the enemy to allow repair of the downed craft.

Chunn voluntarily dropped himself from his hovering craft, and with the limited aid of a few Vietnamese already on the ground, began ridding the area of the oppressive Viet Cong force.

"Before you go into enemy fire you at least think about the dangers you are confronted with — but when the bullets started flying around me I more or less forgot about myself — it was then that I didn't fully realize the danger."

Small arms fire and mortar shelling faced Chunn all the while, but he successfully cleared the area of the enemy so that the repair crew could continue work.

Chunn and his Vietnam men captured several of the Viet Cong during the operation.

During the final minutes of the fight he was wounded by shrapnel from a mortar blast.

After moving the men away from the helicopter, the target of Viet Cong mortar fire, the wounded captain entered the craft and radioed for help to evacuate the American troops and himself.

Chunn was later taken to Saigon for medical treatment.

"We encountered almost daily conflicts while supporting ground troops and flying escort missions for unarmed helicopters," he said.

Chunn served the normal 13 - month tour in Viet Nam, and also made three parachute jumps with the South Vietnamese paratroopers while he was there.

"They were known as tactical jumps — a good means to co - ordinate US - Vietnamese airborne forces," he added.

The Silver Star winner assumed the position of assistant adjutant of the 1st Brigade the first week in January.

Week on Road Showers Marksmen With Awards

Second Infantry Division pistol men returned to Fort Benning yesterday after a 14-day competition tour through Florida in which they captured six team and 43 individual awards.

"We gained a lot from the competition," said PSgt. L. V. Huddleston, noncommissioned officer in charge of the 15-man-team.

"Our new men got a chance at match experience and we got to scout the teams that we'll be shooting against in the Third US Army Matches in April.

The team, commanded by Capt. John T. Burke, picked up 31 awards at the fifth annual Dixie Pistol Matches in Jacksonville and the others at the National Midwinter Pistol Matches in Tampa.

At both events Sp5 Geza Hajos led the division men in wins.

The marksmen snared their most significant victories in the four man matches in the final day of competition at Tampa Tuesday.

The master team of PSgt Huddelston, Sgt. Ortiz Ramirez, Cpl. Marvin Smith and

For the past week 2nd Division News staffers Joe Treaster and Art Chleppa have been covering the division pistol marksmen as they participate in Florida matches. In the course of their exhaustive coverage of the matches they have come up with several outstanding feature stories — See page 20.

Sp5 Hajos placed second in overall competition among military post camp and station teams. The team from Fort Campbell, Ky. won the class by a slaim margin of 11 points.

The Sharpshooter team of Sp5 Jack E. Thomspon, Sp4 Sammy L. Dublin, SFC Orville L. Garrett and SSgt Vincente T. Dydasco and Sgt. Charles L. McManus who alternated, grabbed a first and three second place honors.

Sgt Hajos: First master, slow fire, 22 caliber; two first in master, time fire, 45 caliber; second master, national match course, 45 caliber; fifth master, time fire, center fire; sixth master, rapid fire, 45 caliber service.

Sgt. Ramirez: second master, rapid fire 45 caliber service; fifth master, aggregate, 45 caliber service.

Sp4 Dublin: First sharpshooter, rapid fire 45 caliber; third sharp shooter, rapid fire 45 caliber service.

Future Soldiers May Wear Air-Conditioned Uniforms

The soldier of the future who dreads the hot days and nights of Georgia summer maneuvers may find relief in air conditioned combat gear.

Scientists at the Army's Natick, Mass laboratories say they have developed a uniform with an electrically powered heater which may eventually be converted to air conditioning.

According to a recent Army Times article, the present suit can keep a man warm any place on earth. It will warm to 110 degrees when the weather is 40 degrees below zero.

Modern Fabrics

The suit uses several layers of modern fabrics and has a complete thermal electric generator, powered by a gasoline burner, plus a system of heat ducts and exhaust ports.

These layers of modern fabrics, which include a liner made of stretchable Lycra, a spacer material made of shrunk ethylen nylon fabric, an impermeable fabric which protects the wearer against gases, another spacer layer, and a stretchable coated fabric, are combined into a one piece suit which is worn between a set of regular thermal underwear and the customary shirt and trousers.

"With this, the soldier will wear a heat regulation package, powered by a thermal electric generator," says the Times.

Total Weight

The total weight of the new uniform is 37 pounds. This includes helmet, boots, power source, and eight hours of fuel.

The article quoted Leo Spanow, chief of Natick Laboratories' Advanced Project Office as saying, "the goal is to provide the combat soldier with a uniform that can be used throughout the climatic range. It is possible to make the suit air conditioned for wear in the desert and tropics, but there are several engineering problems still to be solved."

Division's 17 Artillery Fires 105's At Fort Gordon in ATT Preparation

FORT GORDON, Ga. — The 2nd Infantry Division's 17th Artillery completed its 2nd week of intensive training today at this Northwest Georgia post in preparation for yearly Army Training tests.

The 105 mm howitzer battalion, consisting of 450 men who man 18 howitzers and artillery support equipment will climax nearly a month of training when they take the tests the 28th and 29th of March.

According to Maj. Robert L. Fellows, operations officer for the battalion, the tests will cover all aspects of artillery combat training. "This is as close to combat conditions as we can come in a training situation," said the Major.

"We will fire about 3500 rounds of all types during the course of the training and the actual tests," said Maj. Fellows.

Division Artillery Commander Col. Tony F. Perpich, at Fort Gordon for three days last week, observed the battalion in action and particularly noted the tactical and firing positions. He also inspected the procedures of the forward observers as they directed the fire.

Said Maj. Fellows; "We are training seven days a week if the weather holds up. We move to the field for a thirty hour period and on the go at all times."

Night moves are common. "The difficulty of this type of a move is enhanced by the fact that it is always made under 'blackout' conditions," said the major.

Camp Crockett

All maneuvers are being carried out in the Camp Crockett area of Fort Gordon with the men living a "tent city" when they are in garrison maintaining their equipment.

Battalion Sgt. Maj. William H. Graham said "the men are called on to practice all the defensive procedures normal to combat. They carry gas masks at all times and are often surprised by a tear gas attack or a barrage of red smoke bombs that simulate an atomic attack."

The men have experienced only one day of bad weather during the tests, and according to Graham, "Morale is high".

An aggressor unit armed with light weapons and noise-making simulators "attacks" the defense perimeters of the units while they are in the field.

"A group of five or six men can stir up a lot of troops with a few machine guns in the middle of the night," said Graham.

'Quite Well'

"The tests are progressing quite well," said the sergeant major, "We think we will come out with a good score when they are over."

The 17th Artillery will return to Fort Benning March 31st and will be replaced at Gordon by the 37th (155mm-8I inch howitzer) Artillery battalion.

Division Private Meets Old Friend During Kingston Trio Visit Here

By JOE TREASER

The performance of the Kingston Trio Friday night at Columbus Municipal Auditorium resulted in a reunion for one of the singers with an old college pal, now a member of the 2nd Infantry Division.

PFC Ken McConnell of the division's information office and Trio member John Stewart studied together at Mt. San Antonio Jr. College in Walnut, Calif., for two years.

McConnell, who works part-time as a television news reporter, had been assigned to cover the trio's performance.

"I was hoping to see John, but I didn't think he'd remember me," McConnell said. "I was wrong. He spotted me right away."

The two talked about old times during intermission and later continued the reminiscence at a local night spot.

"We were in drama classes together," said McConnell. "He was sincere and highly intelligent — and he got a lot of parking tickets.

"I thought all the places he's been and the money he's made would change him. But he's still the same person I knew in school. He didn't act any differently."

McConnell said the singer set an unofficial school record by collecting 151 campus parking tickets. Stewart went before a dean, McConnell said, but the case was eventually dismissed.

Both McConnell and Stewart were in the college's little theater group. At beach parties after performances, the soldier said, Stewart was the center of attraction, playing his guitar and banjo and singing folk songs.

For a time Stewart was a rock 'n roll musician. But he met the Kingston Trio, wrote some songs for them and eventually joined the group in 1961.

All of the trio members, including Stewart, 25, are married and none of them have been in the armed forces. (Asthma kept Nick Reynolds and Bob Shane, both 31, out. And Stewart said he was "never called.")

Historical Center Gets Qualified Curator in Cheevers and Assistant

The curator and his assistant at the 2nd Division's Historical Center have combined the unfamiliarity of their civilian backgrounds to form a working team in its maintenance and expansion.

PFC James W. Cheevers wears the three stripes of a buck sergeant and holds the title of acting sergeant. The rank was awarded because regulations require that an NCO must be responsible for the Center's fifty thousand dollars of equipment, much of which is not replacable.

Cheevers is a 1963 graduate of William and Mary University where he earned a Baccalaureate degree in history. Due to this background he was chosen to fill the slot at the Center.

He has been working on the division's history since he was assigned to the G-5 section last August.

Prior to his entrance into the military, Stone was an award winning cosmotologist with five trophies to his credit for creative hair-styling efforts in mid-west competition.

Cheevers and Stone assumed permanent residence in the Center last week. Prior to then, they had been performing their duties out of the G-5 section office, about a block up the street from the Center.

Cheevers is the writer and historian of the Center. He spends most of his time doing research and organizing the mass of documents, pictures, and equipment of the Center.

Stone does not find much time for hair styling, unless it is the wig on a mannequin wearing a World War II Nazi uniform that needs repair. He is the maintenance man and keeps the Center in impressive condition for the visitors.

The Second Division Historical Center is open seven days a week. It is open 0800 to 1630 hours on weekdays, and 1300 to 1700 hours on weekends. All personnel are invited to visit the Center.

Medics Devotion Cited In Life-Saving Attempt

By Dave Buman

Three 2nd Medical Battalion soldiers were presented Tuesday with letters of commendation and gold watches for their "outstanding devotion to duty" in an attempted life-saving operation.

However the general's condition worsened as complications set in, and he died despite efforts by medical staff to save him.

The 76 year old general was the author of The Long Hard Road, a memoir of his days during the Bataan Death March and imprisonment in a Japanese prisoner of war camp. He was also a personal friend of Maj. Gen. J. H. Chiles, commanding general, 2nd Infantry Division.

In presenting the watches to the three soldiers, the general's widow commended them for their continued service to her as well as to the general during his last days.

In part the citation read "Your constant devotion to duty and your soldierly manner was as much a comfort to me as it was to the general."

Poor Man's Army?

Are the wages now being received in the Army substandard?

This is a question that has been treated recently in magazines, newspaper editorials and various other news media.

The initial reaction by the serviceman is, Yes. But there are a few things to be considered before making such a hasty conclusion to this question.

About a year ago when plans were being discussed about the poverty situation in the various sections of the country, the Air Force and the Navy jumped on the bandwagon in hopes that perhaps the Armed Forces could derive some benefit from the bill.

In an Air Force survey, figures were released on personnel earing less than 3,000 dollars and reflected that many of these men were on relief or welfare. Those that were not were moonlighting whenever possible.

Perhaps one reason it didn't was that few high school graduates are making more money than those in the Army. True, there are some well ahead of the Army private pace but with none of the benefits.

The problems seem to emanate when the private has a family and attempts to provide three people with the same amount he made when he was single.

It must be generally accepted in this instance that his civilian counterpart is confronted with essentially the same problems as the married private in the Army.

On attaining the rank of E-5 or above, post facilities in most instances are available to him, substantial allowances for quarters are granted along with the other benefits, he then is in complete alignment with his civilian equivalent.

On the other hand, several statistics were given in February 1963 that eventually prompted the October pay raise.

Some of these showed that the service personnel over the ten year period 1952-62 received salary increases that averaged 14-17 percent as compared with a 35-40 percent increase received by civilian counterparts.

The irony here appears that defense spending has been decreased proportionately over this same period, while the brunt of the decrease seems to have been borne in large part by the people manning the establishment.

Good personnel relations? You be the judge.

At any rate, the disparity in salary increases between the services and civilians has lessened the opportunity for the soldier and sailor, to be competitive.

Fortunately, the problem has been realized and something is being done about it. Perhaps with a few more raises, the services can keep their experts and as an added feature take the military out the limelight when it comes time for a poverty bill to make another personal appearance.

Wildcat Road 'Possum' Meets Jaywalker's Fate

Mr. Grey Possum took a leisurely stroll Thursday afternoon across the main street in his neighborhood; Wildcat Road on the Fort Benning Reservation.

He moved slowly and deliberately, lifting and dropping his paws almost as though he were sleep walking. The day was dull, overcast. There seemed no reason to hurry.

Unnoticed by Mr. Possum was the distant orange swirl that rose from the clay road. Unnoticed also was the olive drab jeep that sped forward from the swirl.

The Jeep passed directly over Mr. Possum and he, apparently by instinct, turned in the direction of the vehicle's travel.

The move saved his life. As he wheeled to the left his right shoulder and hip felt the brush of knobby tires.

The men in the jeep had seen the animal and slammed their machine to a halt. A sergeant who had been driving scrambled back to where Mr. Possum stood, still pondering the brush with the spinning wheels. He made no attempt to escape. Escape from what?

"I got you little rascal," said the sergeant proudly. "Damn possum.'

The sergeant fingered the pistol on his hip, wishing he had something more potent than the clip full of blanks.

He wanted to know more about Mr. Possum, and swung him by the tail to eye level.

"Boar possum. Yep, he's a' boar, all right," the sergeant announced.

With that Mr. Possum hit the ground, head first. Still holding the tail, the sergeant swiftly stomped the creature's head flat. Dead Mr. Possum went sailing into the woods on a powerful swing of the sergeant's arm.

"They eat birds' eggs," the sergeant explained. The Jeep growled to life and disappeared into another orange swirl.

Funeral For DeReus Held At Ft. Myer

Colonel Clarence C. DeReus, former commander of the 2nd Infantry Division's 1st Brigade, died last Sunday morning at Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D.C., following an extended illness. He was 47.

Col. DeReus commanded the brigade from May until early November 1964, when he was taken to Walter Reed Hospital for an emergency operation.

The funeral, with full military honors, was held Wed- p.m., at the Fort Myer, Va. Post Chapel.

Burial followed in the Arlington, Va., National Cemetery.

During his short period of command at Fort Benning, Col. DeReus was the first president of the Protestant Men of the Chapel religious group in the 2nd Division, and was termed by many as "a man full of compassion and of definite principle."

Col. DeReus had acquired an outstanding combat record during his 23 years in the Army, and had served in several key positions in staff assignments in peace-time.

He is survived by his wife Alma, and two sons — Michael, presently attending Virginia Military Institute and David, at high [illegible]

Fund Drive Started With CG's Donation

Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, Monday used a crisp dollar bill to kick off the annual Officers Wives Welfare Fund Drive.

The 2nd Divisions' commander handed the bill to the fund's 2nd Division chairman Mrs. Tony F. Perpich.

Chiles said he hoped the fund would go "a long way" towards its' goal of 100% participation.

The Officers Wives Welfare Fund provides help at Martin Army hospital by supplying needed articles to patients. The fund also helps anyone stationed at Fort Benning if they are in need.

Mrs. Perpich said there are no restrictions as to rank, so far as the fund is concerned, all that is necessary is a "genuine need for assistance."

New Commander

Last Friday saw the command of Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor change hands during a brief ceremony.

The new commander is Capt. John M. Hayes, former battalion S-3 Air officer. He took command from Capt. Michael R. Fortini, presently under orders for assignment in Korea.

Indianhead Marksmen Meet WW I Veteran

TAMPA, Fla. — A charter member of the 2nd Infantry Division, a man who recalls French warfare, wrap around legging and enemy mustard gas as vividly as yesterday, fired along side the Indianhead team at the National Midwinter Pistol Championship this week.

The now elderly veteran, who said he joined the division when it was being formed in Bourmont, France in 1917, and the men of the division's marksmanship detachment became warm friends.

But the oldster refused to be interviewed and asked that he not be identified in a news story.

"I've got nothing against the 2nd Division," he said. "I'm as proud of it as the next man. I just don't like to rehash the war. That's why I quit the American Legion.

"And I can't be identified because of my particular line of business. It wouldn't be good."

Even the appeals of Capt. John T. Burke, commander of the marksman, were to no avail.

"I don't need any publicity and I don't want any," said the man. "I don't want to answer any questions."

And so it came about that he grudgingly let slip gems of historical significance, gleaned first hand:

"I met an old marine the other day who said it was his boys who started the 2nd Infantry Division, but I set him straight. I told him it was the other way round: The Army started the division. They just had some marines attached. I know. I was there."

"We had some navy fellows in the war with us too. That's something that's not widely known.

They had big 14-inch guns that were towed on their own 32-wheel carriages on railroad tracks.

The guns were huge things, maybe 65 feet long. They'd lob a shell 20 or 25 miles. The navy men lived like kings. Each man had his own pullman car.

"In World War I the Army was comprised of three branches," he said, "the regular army, the national guard and the national army, formed by men coming into the service under the advanced new selective service act."

He laughed as he recalled a song aimed at the draftees:

"Soft water soap and wire brushes to scrub their ears.

"They wouldn't fight by a hellava sight.

"They're the handcuffed volunteers."

He had a theory on how the war could have been shortened with, however, tragic consequences for allied forces:

"The Germans had something with that gas. If they had only used it more widely instead of on a small portion of Canadian troops, they could have gone all the way to Paris. But higher German headquarters was against the gas."

In the formative stages of the division, British and French cadre were used to whip the fresh troops into fighting shape.

"We had cadre from both countries, but there was a language barrier with the French.

"When we went into war, our cadre went with us; not just senior officers but enlisted men down to the squad level. We had French and British guides with each platoon telling us when to duck."

Midwinter Pistol Matches

Marksmen Enforce 'Concentration'

By JOE TREASTER

TAMPA, Fla. — The name of the game is concentration. It's played in some circles with a cool head and a pistol.

To hurl a tiny lead pellet through a piece of cardboard 25 or 50 yards away is the object.

It looks easy. But try it.

Better yet, unless you're packing Miltowns, talk to members of the 2nd Infantry Division Marksmanship Detachment who this week spent five days playing the games at the National Midwinter Championships.

"It's tough work," said PFC Donald B. Page Jr. "People around the post make a big joke about the detachment people goofing off all the time. It's frustrating. I wish you'd tell them the truth."

According to Army doctor, Capt. Frederick W. Foltz, a member of the pistol team, hitting the bulls eye requires the attention of every muscle in the body, a steady hand and deep concentration.

"Sometimes you'll lock your mind on the sights and the targets for 7.5 seconds," said MSgt James R. Posey. "They say the concentration stand of a genius is something less than 10 seconds."

Most men stand at the firing line with their 'pistol' shoulder aimed in the direction of the target, knees locked. The non-firing arm is hung loosely in a pocket. Locked at wrist and elbow is the pistol arm.

As a range officer bellows "ready on the left? Ready on the right?" the marksmen begin deep count, measured breathing and from an angle high above his head starts the pistol on a downward swing that should bring it even with the target at the word: "fire."

"When you're firing, you've got to keep every part of your body except the locked joints relaxed," said Sgt. Posey. "Late in the day the fellows start getting tense and their scores show it."

Actual trigger pulling may consume only two hours of a competition day.

"When you're not firing, you sit and study the other firers," he said. "For variation, you stand and study the other firers."

"You can't do much else because you'd get distracted and you'd use up too much energy. So you just sit and study. You get beat just sitting."

Sergeant Ortiz Ramirez said some marksmen play cards to help them relax.

"Cards relax you physically," he said, "but they keep you alert mentally."

But card games are not popular with 2nd Division men. In garrison they do calisthenics and dynamic tension exercises.

"We play a lot of volleyball," Sgt. Ramirez said. "It keeps you loose."

Sgt. Ramirez said a typical tournament day for the marksmen starts at 6:30 a.m. when "we usually just wake up. None of us use alarm clocks."

Some of the fellows gather at convenient restaurants for breakfast. "But," said Sgt. Posey, "most of the fellows don't eat that early. I never do."

The shooting doctor, Capt. Foltz, recommends that the men eat "a steak or something else high in protein for breakfast." But he so far has few takers.

One thing the men never have for breakfast — or any other meal — is coffee.

"It makes you nervous and increases your wobble," Sgt. Ramirez said. "Some guys drink sanka. But all our guys drink milk."

By 7:30 a.m., said Sp5 Thompson, most of the men are at the range. "We get to discussing what we did wrong the day before," he said. "We give our problems to the others and see if they can work them out. Fellows with gun trouble, we send to the armorer."

With the start of the first match at 8 a.m., which invariably calls someone from the team to the firing line, the men go through the tedious, nerve racking routine: Shoot, wait. Wait, wait. Shoot.

Lunch is usually a late meal for the pistol men; a hard boiled egg (loaded with proteins) and maybe a light sandwich.

At night, when the matches are over for the day, the men eat hardy.

Then, they spend a few hours lulling around the motel pool or watching TV, trying to fade away a day's tension.

"We hardly ever go out on the town while we're in a match," said Sgt. Ramirez. "Whiskey and late hours make you shaky. We've got to be steady."

Precision of Marksman, Surgeon Much Alike Says Shooting 'Doc'

By JOE TREASTER

TAMPA, Fla. — Could the delicate business of popping a piece of lead into a distant silver dollar size target be compared to the precisioned work of a surgeon?

Army doctor Capt. Frederick W. Foltz, a recent addition to the 2nd Infantry Division's crack marksmanship detachment said he finds a lot of similarities.

"A good shooter prepares ahead and learns to control his emotions so that he doesn't get psyched-out under matched pressure," he said. "The surgeon faces a similar situation in the operating room."

Until last November Capt. Foltz had never fired a 45-caliber service pistol, the principle weapon used by detachment members.

But after five warm up shots on a Fort Benning range, he blasted a series of targets for 371 points — 21 more than needed to qualify as an expert.

Amazed officers of Division Artillery, where Capt. Foltz is in charge of four aid stations, invited him to compete in eliminations leading to the annual division tournament.

He joined the division team in January under an informal arrangement and fired just one rung below the master level in his first contest.

"I've always been well coordinated, compared to most people," he said, "I think I shoot well because I'm interested in it. I enjoy shooting so I try very hard."

Capt. Foltz said he was "very discouraged" by his scored showing at the Dixie Matches at Jacksonville, but that he scored "about 40 points higher than ever before" at the Midwinter.

Dixie Tourney Blazes Trail for Marksmen

By ART CHIEPPA

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.— In preparation for the National Midwinter Pistol championships, the 2nd Infantry Division marksmen participated in the Dixie Tournament.

The 15-man team left Fort Benning on March 4 and traveled to Jacksonville in time to get in one day of practice for the official matches started on March 6.

Firing classes included 22-caliber, centerfire, 45-caliber, and 45-caliber service pistol. The 2nd Division team came away with 20 individual awards during the tournament, the most important being won by Sp5 Geza Hajos. Hajos was top man in the master class with high 45-caliber service pistol aggregate.

Another first place winner, expert slow fire of the 22-caliber pistol was Sp5 Jack E. Thompson. Thompson also came out on top with a first place for the expert class in the national match course centerfire.

Sgt. Ortiz Ramirez took first place in the master rapid fire 45-caliber. SFC Orville L. Garrett walked away as winner in the sharp shooter class, slow fire, centerfire, while SSgt. Vicente T. Dydasco was the sharp shooter first place winner of the 22 caliber time fire.

"One of our teams won the service expert class with the 45 caliber service pistol." stated Capt. John T. Burke, marksmanship detachment commander.

"In the face of all the service teams, our boys did real good."

Capt. Burke, who is also a shooter, said "For most of the men, it is the first match away from Fort Benning. They are really taking the competitive pressure in good strides (sic).

"When we finish shooting at Tampa, we'll go back to Fort Benning and start working for the coming Third Army Matches."

The division team left Jacksonville March 10 for Tampa and will compete in the Midwinter Matches March 11 through March 17.

Bruised Palms, Shattered Nerves Tag Crackerjack 'Pistol Packers'

TAMPA, Fla. — Fifteen pistol-packing 2nd Infantry Division soldiers will return to garrison this week after a pair of road tour matches of marksmen.

Shake hands with any of the marksmen and your paw plies tight up against a puffy purple bruise.

The grotesque trademark has been entered into the crotch of the pistol hand of each of the team members.

Consider a heavy steel 45-caliber automatic pistol smacking into that usually soft flabby spot something like 100 times a day, maybe six days a week.

It changes character — it becomes calloused and discolored.

"It doesn't look good," says Sgt. Ortiz Ramirez, "but it doesn't hurt."

Sgt. Ramirez, a former basic training instructor who has been competing in pistol matches for five years said he once quit for about six months.

"The little spot went away. It wore off," he said. "But then I started firing again and it came right back. It's part of the business."

Sgt. Charles V. McManus, the proud possessor of a slightly reddish, but well-developed bruise, said some pain is noticeable in the first days of gunplay.

"The first time I fired in a match the spot swelled up," he said. "Now it doesn't bother me at all. It's good and tough."

The spot is a telltale sign for those in the know.

"I don't make a point of looking at hands," said Sp5 Jack E. Thompson, "but I can tell a pistol man right off. He's always got that bruise."

Div's Dentists Help Observe 54th Birthday

Dental Clinic No. 4 serving the 2nd Infantry Division on Sand Hill celebrated the Dental Corps' 54th anniversary earlier this month.

Among those on hand for the occasion were Mrs. John H. Chiles, wife of the 2nd Infantry Division commanding general, Col. E. F. Holton, Col. E. M. Williams, Infantry Center chief of staff and Col. C. W. Youngman, assistant chief of staff, G-4, logistics officer for all of the Fort Benning Dental Clinics.

Although the clinic is operated and almost totally staffed by military dentists, it exclusively serves personnel of the Indianhead Division.

According to Dr. (Maj.) Robert J. Everhart, chief clinician, there are also three officers from the 2nd Medical Battalion working in the clinic.

The 2nd Medical Battalion doctors are Dr. (Capt.) Benjamin Stebor, 2nd Division Dental Surgeon, Dr. (Capt.) James J. Lavalla, and Dr. (Capt.) Mark Gowin. A fourth 2nd Division dentist, Dr. (Capt.) Jon A. Simpson, is attached to the 2nd Brigade, 11th Air Assault on Kelly Hill.

Among specialists attached to the Sand Hill Clinic are Dr. (Capt.) Jerome Gutterman, who recently completed special studies in endodontology at the University of Michigan, Dr. (Capt.) Harold B. Brooks, chief of oral surgery, and Dr. (Capt.) Marvin D. Dearr.

Fashion Preview Picks 'Green' For Spring Wear

CASUAL WEAR for wives of 2nd Division Officers may take many forms this spring. Modeled here is a two-piece suit that may be worn on any casual occasion.

By ALICE WITTER

Fashions keyed to the needs of Army wives lent a practical note to the Spring Fashion Show Luncheon of the Second Division Officers' Wives Club held Tuesday, March 9.

With an emphasis on easy-care, wrinkle - shed, travel dresses and suits particularly in new knits of silk and of acetate and nylon, the fashions ranged from beachwear and sportswear to afternoon dresses, cocktail dresses, and evening gowns.

As in any collection of spring fashions, pastel shades —particularly pink, aqua, and yellow — are very apparent. However, shades of green, from palest lime to olive and forest green, were most used. White, in dresses, suits and coats with vivid color accents in accessories, was also popular.

Table Decorated

The luncheon was held in the Supper Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess and was hostessed by the ladies of the 122nd Signal Battalion under Mrs. Frederick A. McKiernan, the 2nd Medical Battalion under Mrs. Jack D. Wallace, and the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry, 11th Air Assault Division under Mrs. Arne Eliasson.

The luncheon tables were decorated with white and gold bird - cages entwined with various-colored roses.

Special guests for the occasion were the wife of the Fort Benning commandant, Mrs. John A. Heintges; and the president and three vice presidents of the Fort Benning Officers' Wives Club, Mrs. Robert Williams, Mrs. Jess Morrow, Mrs. Francis Crown, and Mrs. Beverly Snow Jr.

Special Guests

Mrs. Jess Goodman, a past president of the Fort Benning Officers' Wives Club, and Mrs. Joseph Spano of the Ledger-Enquirer newspapers were also guests.

The ladies who modeled the fashions from Davison's Department Store were Mrs. John V. Stoecker, Mrs. Walter Everhart, Mrs. William L. Mason, Mrs. John M. Plant Jr., Mrs. William Salmon, Mrs. Jon R. Wise, Mrs. Kenneth E. Hinson, Mrs. Walter G. Robertson, Mrs. Raymond L. Robinson, and Mrs. William E. Tower.

The commentator was Miss Nancy Simmons of Atlanta. Mrs. Dick Roach was pianist.

Crawford Home Scene of Coffee

The home of Mrs. George Crawford was the scene March 3 of the monthly coffee for the ladies of the 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry. Mrs. Billy Lord assisted as hostess.

The table was decorated for St. Patrick's Day and the refreshments were especially appealing.

Mrs. Leon McCall presented a farewell gift from the group to Mrs. James Landers who has served as treasurer. Goodbyes were also expressed to Mrs. James McMillan and Mrs. Robert Karney who were unable to attend.

Wives of 23rd Infantry Luncheon At Martinique

Mrs. Joseph M. Sebes and Mrs. Raymond C. Welch recently hostessed a luncheon at the Martinique for the ladies of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

Upon arrival the ladies were decorated with bright green shamrock name-tags which added to carrying out the St. Patrick's Day theme.

After having sherry, the ladies enjoyed a delicious chicken casserole. During the course of the meal, Mrs. Richard Thompson discovered a shamrock under her butter dish which entitled her to the door-prize, an arrangement of spring flowers which served as the centerpiece.

Farewells were said to Mrs. Ralph E. Inman and to Mrs. Xavier A. Esposito.

Congratulations were extended to Capt. and Mrs. William J. Mullen on the arrival of their son, William IV.

ACM Goes To Maj. Miller At C of S's Office

The Army Commendation Medal recently went to Maj. Ralph D. Miller, 2nd Infantry Division assistant chief of staff in a ceremony in the office of the chief of staff, Col. Burnside E. Huffman.

The award, pinned on the major by Col. Huffman, was made for the period Miller was assigned to the division's 31st Brigade as assistant S-3 and later as S-3 officer.

The citation lauded Miller's judgment and ingenuity displayed when the unit was alerted for possible duty in connection with civil disturbances during the period between October, 1962 to August, 1964.

He was further cited for his participation in the reorganization of the division in the ROAD configuration in early 1953 and in such major maneuvers as JESS II and Hawk Star I.

Tax Advisors Offer Late Relief to Soldiers

Second Infantry Division soldiers facing the April 15 deadline for 1964 income taxes with dread can breath easier if they consult their unit tax advisors before filing this year.

Lt. Brooks LaGrua, tax advisor of the 2nd Division's Staff Judge Advocate's office, says that he and co-worker, Lt. David R. Hansen have handled "nearly 500 tax questions in the period up to and including the month of February."

They suggest personnel with exceptionally complicated tax matters involving the reporting of corporate income, be taken to a civilian tax expert.

But in the matter of "whether or not you can claim your third cousin as a deduction" the division legal office can set the soldier straight.

One of the most tricky problems encountered, says LaGura, is the question of the necessity for the soldier to pay state income taxes in a state in which he no longer resides. If they cannot advise the soldier on the problem, they can refer him to the proper state authority to find out say the advisors.

Law Degree

LaGura holds a law degree from the University of Connecticut and Hansen from George Washington University.

The advisors say the soldier is generally to be "commended for honest interest shown in getting their taxes straight."

Tax exemptions that have been claimed at the beginning of the year and then disallowed by the Internal Revenue Department cause the greatest pecuniary hardship say the tax-men.

They suggest that the soldier check on his deductions at the beginning of the year and have the money withheld accordingly rather than have to pay all at one time when the deduction is disallowed.

By VIRGIE HART

A luncheon highlighted by a fashion show last week was the center of activity for the ladies of the 2nd Infantry Division non - commissioned officers wives club.

The "Ladies of the Big Indianhead" luncheon, a monthly affair, was held at the division NCO club Wednesday.

Commentator and special guest for the fashion show was Miss Mable Bailey, owner and operator of the Mable Bailey School of Charm, of Columbus. Hostess was Mrs. Julius Sumrall, chairman of the hospitality committee. She was assisted by Mrs. Roy Austin.

Tables were arranged in banquet style with a floral centerpiece on the headtable. Candles in polyethelyn graced the tables. The ladies enjoyed salad, stuffed pork chops, baked potatoes with sour cream dressing and green beans.

A smart array of clothing was modeled by Mrs. Jane Baker, Mrs. Pat Payne, Mrs. Genevieve Shannon, all of Fort Benning, and Mrs. Kathryn Green of Columbus. Miss Bailey narrated as each model went through her steps and advised the club members of the style of each ensemble. Mrs. Warren Freeman provided accompanying entertainment on the piano.

"We teach ladies how to dress in order not to overdress and this is done on a point system," Miss Bailey said. "A lady should wear clothing having from nine to twelve points during the daytime and nine to thirteen points during the evenings."

According to the charm school professional, you must figure one point for each eye-catching detail and color. This is from hat to shoes inclusive.

Enjoys Shows

"I enjoy providing these fashions for the clubs and they seem to enjoy having me," Miss Bailey continued. "I provide the models and the clothing comes from Mathews of Columbus.

"At the School of Charm we have modeling and self-improvement courses, it takes four months to complete the models course and three for the self - improvement," she continued. "I take from three to six females in each group and the ages vary from six years and up."

"We teach them to walk properly, sit, how to get out of cars, plan wardrobes and anything else I can see to help them improve themselves," stated Miss Bailey. "When they complete the course of their choice, they are ready for professional modeling."

Rounding out the day's activities was the drawing for door prizes. The headtable centerpiece went to Mrs. Wayne Cliff. Mrs. Sam Hart won a gift certificate from Mathews. A large lamp from Schultz United was awarded to Mrs. Kehuaurla and a handbag to Mrs. Harry Payton.

Mrs. Charleboia received a beautiful sweater from Haymore's of Columbus. Club secretary, Mr. Smith Hersman, displayed Avon cosmetics during the afternoon.

The ladies welcomed three new members to the "Big Indianhead" club, Mrs. Jerry Reed, Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Peyton. Signing the guest list were Mrs. Schuandt, Mrs. Fonder, Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. Mailhot, Mrs. Cornett, Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Mengey.

Other guests included Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Charleboia, Mrs. Brewer, Mrs. Kehuaurla and Mrs. Rampey.

Mrs. Gardell Kaney recently replaced Mrs. William McKinney as club president.

Viet Officers Watch Division Training Spend Entire Week With 1st Brigade

By JIM LULL

Five South Vietnamese Army Officers, in the United States to acquaint themselves with our military tactics and logistics, have become week-long guests of the 2nd Infantry Division.

The five men, one major and four captains, were greeted and welcomed to the 2nd Division by Maj. David Forsythe, division civil affairs officer.

They were immediately briefed on the operation of the division, and given a thorough tour of the 2nd Division museum.

The visiting officers, neatly dressed in olive uniforms with traditional gold trim, expressed a particular interest in the type of training employed to effectively train men of the division in guerrilla and counter - guerrilla tactics.

The Vietnamese officers have been temporarily assigned to the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry to observe training throughout the week.

Tour Division

Tuesday the men were given a tour of the division, specifically the 1st Brigade and 23rd Infantry areas.

Later in the week they observed preparation for the battalion's annual general inspection and followed the advanced individual trainees assigned to the 23rd through a day's training.

Today, the visiting dignitaries watch the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry perform tactical training and will have farewell conferences with the brigade and battalion commanders and a final interview with Maj. Forsythe.

First Trip

Major Pham Huynh Long and captains Nguyen Ngoc Hhoi; Lo Van Bao; Pham The Phiet; and Nguyen Khai Sieu explained that it was their first trip to the United States, and that they were very impressed, especially with the military establishments.

They met with Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, division commander, Monday, and be officially welcomed them to their temporary station and pinned Indianhead crests on their uniforms.

Gen. Chiles said "It's very fine to have allies visit each other like this — we make good friends with you—and likewise you become good friends of ours."

Road Concept

Later on the day of their arrival, Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow, 1st Brigade commander, explained further the ROAD concept, and told how the brigade falls into that organization.

The visiting officers met with Lt. Col. Strathmore K. McMurdo, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry commander later Tuesday, and they were introduced to the men with whom they worked throughout the week.

Civil Affairs Parachute Team Sees Winter Sun II

The five - man team is one of the two parachute qualified Civil Affairs platoons in the Third Army area.

Capt. Peter McKenizie, commander of the platoon, stated that "being parachute qualified the unit is able to assume any assault mission there are twenty one teams that an airborne division might receive, and go in with the first air wave."

The new concept came into being in November 1964 when it became necessary for civil affairs personnel to move organically with Third Army's 101st and 82nd Airborne Divisions.

McKenzie pointed out that which handle specific civil public safety, to a legal team.

"After jumping into an area," McKenzie asserted "we make a survey of the community, and then determine its needs."

There are many occasions when this team must also must carry out a mission in a foreign country. Working with foreign nations requires some adjustments in the organization of his platoon. "When this occurs," McKenzie remarked, "we carry two interpreters from the country into which we are jumping. This approach helps solve problems."

On his assignment with the 2nd Division for the maneuver, McKenzie commented "we appreciated the exercise; it gave the feeling of working with an actual division. Our team never dealt with a general staff and it was an education to observe the operations of a STRAC division."

Key Positions Change Hands At Medical Unit

The Army's continuous personnel turnover recently hit the 2nd Medical Battalion with the departure of four of its key officers.

Maj. Joseph A. Canty is departing for a comptrollers course at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., prior to his new assignment in Korea, leaving the responsibilities of the S-3 officer (operations and training) to Maj. Leonard M. Ford, the battalion executive officer.

Headquarters and Support Company's commander, Lt. Fred L. King, is leaving active duty leaving a vacancy to be filled by Lt. Stephen W. Fosdick, formerly of Company B.

Lt. John E. Halbert, 2nd Medical Battalion motor officer, is being replaced by Lt. Herman W. Seefeld as he leaves for a nine week course in basic maintenance at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland.

Also leaving for school is Lt. Jerald O. Savells, He'll be going to the amphibious training school at Little Creek, Va.

23rd Infantry Boasts SOM

Sp4 Harold E. Walker of Company B, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry recently was named "soldier of the month" for the "We Serve" 1st Battalion.

Walker attended Somerset Joint High School in Somerset, Penn., and was active in school activities, football being his prime interest.

The Aftermath

BY TOM KIRWAN

One of the most popular songs on the hit parade in the past few months was a song that talked about "that boy from New York City. . . Uhhh, Uhhh."

This popular platter, dusty disk, wax to watch, sure shot or pick to go on five-four-oh depending on what station you're listening to at the time, will probably have special meaning in the Columbus area in the next few months as the New York owned boys, the Columbus Yankees, open their second baseball season.

The yankee chorus is presently booked in Hollywood, Florida where their manager Loren Babe is shaping them up for their exhibition baseball season which begins on March 25th against other Yankee owned farm clubs in training in the Florida area.

The opening season wasn't too successful for the wearers of the pin-stripe as they were a team which played hot ball for eight innings and then had the ball turn into a hot potato they couldn't handle. That ninth inning lightning always seemed to spark their opponent.

I remember a game last June against the Lynchburgh White Sox. It was the ninth inning, the yanks had a one-run lead, two men out, two strikes on the batter. Does that have a familiar ring to it?

Then Lady Luck turned her back on the Columbus team. As a result, there were a couple of home run blasts off the bats of the Sox and they won the game 4-2.

The original version of the Columbus Pros, Retton, Futch, White, Barry, Hegan, Madden, Repoz, and Corti should be helped by some new commers like Mike Ferraro who joined the team from last year's Florida League.

The managers are hurling words of praise from their managerial cubby holes and it will be interesting to watch how that fickle feminine fatale, Lady Luck, will rate this years club. If she acts as a lightening rod in the ninth inning, this diamond chorus could be rated a sure shot or the pick to go in the Southern League.

7th Cav Officers Fall To Troops A, B, 61-37

Officers of the 7th Cavalry were pitted against each other last week in a basketball game played in Kimbro Gym. A team composed of Headquarters and Troop C was crushed by officers from Troops A and B, 61-37.

Lt. William G. Jennings took charge of the losing team which consisted of Lt. Col. John F. McArdle, squadron commander, Major Henry F. Martin, squadron executive officer, Capt. John P. Fernandez, squadron surgeon, Capt. Vaden K. Watson, Headquarters Troop commander, and Lt. Henry S. King, Headquarters Troop executive officer.

Lt. James F. Perretta, a platoon leader in Troop B, led the victors. Members of the team were Capt. Rene J. Emond, Troop B commander, Capt. Alexander S. Budd Jr., Troop A commander, Lt. James B. Jackson, platoon leader in Troop A, and Lts. Charles S. Jayne and Gary D. Lawson, Troop B platoon leaders.

Lt. Jackson and Lt. Perretta were high scorers for their team, while Capt. Fernandez and Lt. Jennings led the losers.

Volleyball Tourney Begins Monday at Kimbro Gym

Units this week were submitting the names of their best volleyball teams to compete in the division-wide tournament scheduled to begin next week in Kimbro Gym.

Today was the deadline for submitting entries to the Special Services Office for the double elimination tournament which begins Monday and runs through April 14. Seven teams had indicated earlier this week that they would play in the tournament, according to a spokesman at the division Special Services Office.

Each major unit is allowed to enter one team in the tournament. Some of the units were utilizing Kimbro Gym this week for playoffs to determine their best team.

The winner and runner-up team will represent the division in the post championships now scheduled for April 20 through April 23. The post champion will move on to the Third Army Tournament which will be held sometime in May.

Games in the division tournament will be played in the evenings, beginning around 6:30 depending on the number of teams that enter.

A drawing to pair up teams was to be held Wednesday.

Company 'C' Wins 702nd Tournament

"Charlie" Company, 702nd Maintenance Battalion whipped "Delta" Company 15-9, to take the inter - battalion volleyball championship last week.

Last year's 702nd volleyball champs—Charlie company — was out to make it two in a row. In double elimination games, Charlie took A, B, and D as well as E companies to clinch their title.

The team was coached by Capt. Fred Murill, with its "first string" composed of John Wilson, Ken Johnson, Bob Kopp, John Aungst, Ken Stevick, Ira Chesterfield and Henderson Collins.

2nd of the 9th Dominates 1st Brigade's Shoot-Off

The 1st Brigade qualified 13 of their 16 smallbore rifle and pistol teams last Friday, the final day of elimination firing prior to the division championships.

The 13 teams that have been retained, six rifle and seven pistol teams, will fire again March 22-24, during the 2nd Division Smallbore Championships.

1st Brigade officials are reportedly pleased with the performances during the elimination match, and are already pointing toward the division finals.

Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow, 1st Brigade commander, had previously announced that the elimination matches would serve as the brigade championship. Following Friday's shooting, results were compiled, and 1st and 2nd place winners in both the rifle and pistol classes were named.

Headquarters Company, 1st Brigade grabbed the top prize in the rifle competition, with Company A, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry taking the runnerup position.

All four of the brigade winners will be honored during an awards ceremony to be held later this spring.

Palmer to Challenge 'Anyone' in Masters

Thank you can beat champion Arnold Palmer in a round of golf? The world famous golfer is offering anyone the chance on International Golf Day on April 8.

Palmer has accepted a challenge and will take on all persons who think they can better his score in the 1965 Masters Golf Tournament to be held next month in Augusta, Georgia.

"Everyone, male and female, civilian and military, allies and Americans, is invited to play around of golf and attempt to beat the golfing champion," stated Lt. Charles Britton of the 2nd MP Company, a coordinator in the 2nd Division.

According to Britton, the tournament may be played on the golfer's home course using USGA and local course rules. Players must decide before playing whether they will use their established handicap or the Callaway system.

All play must be completed before the first round of the Masters Tourney which begins on April 8. The competing golfer shoots on his home course, allowing a fellow golfer to verify his score.

Tickets for the competition are $1.75 each. These proceeds will be used for charity at Fort Benning. Persons interested in purchasing tickets should contact Lt. Britton by phoning 544-7814 or 544-7334.

11th AIR ASSAULT DIVISION

FORT BENNING, GA. FRIDAY, MARCH 19, 1965 Page 31

Gen. Kinnard Is Instrument Rated Flyer

Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, commanding general of the 11th Air Assault Division recently became the first general in the United States Army to be a qualified instrument rated helicopter pilot.

Gen. Kinnard, who became a qualified fixed wing aviator July 8, 1963 and rotary wing qualified Dec. 19, 1963 has undergone extensive training with his co-pilot CWO Clyde Emery, Jr. in connection with bad weather or instrument flying.

He has flown a total of 23 hours under these conditions, and has a total Army flying time of 685 hours.

The general received his qualification card in surprise ceremonies in which the Assistant Division Commanders Brig. Generals Richard T. Knowles and John M. Wright were present.

Instrument qualification is but another milestone in the military career of Gen. Kinnard. His career was highlighted by participation in the Battle of the Bulge where he gained fame as the contributor of the immortal phrase, 'NUTS' to the Germand demand for surrender.

11TH AVIATION GROUP COLORS PASSED
Gen. Kinnard Presents Command To Col. Beatty

11th Aviation Group
Change of Command

A change of command ceremony was conducted near the 11th Aviation Group Headquarters as Col. George S. Beatty, Jr. received the Group colors from the Division Commander, Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard.

Col. Beatty had served as the commanding officer of the 1st Air Assault Brigade since the division's activation in 1963. He replaces Col. George P. Seneff, Jr. who has assumed duties as the Chief of Aviation in Washington.

Two Distinguished Flying Crosses were awarded for heroism in Vietnam. Maj. Bernard Queedens of the 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion received his award for action as the air control officer during an airborne assault on Jan. 17, 1964.

1st Lt. Hubert Coalson, also of the 229th, received his award for actions as team

Hennessey Takes Reins At 1st Air Assault Brigade

Sky Soldiers of the 1st Air Assault Brigade, first such tactical organization in the Army, witnessed their first change of command ceremony Monday morning at 9:30 a.m. when Lt. Col. John J. Hennessey assumed command from Col. George S. Beatty Jr., the first and original Infantry Brigade commander within the air assault concept.

It was a significant occasion for these two Infantry commanders both having served with the new famous Howze Board which made the first study for substituting aircraft for ground vehicles, and whose recommendations led to the formation of the 11th Air Assault Division.

Conducted in front of the 1st Brigade Headquarters, over 200 Sky Soldiers and guests were present for the ceremony, which included command and staff personnel from the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry and the 1st Battalion 187th Infantry.

A special honor guard was furnished by the two battalions, under the command of 1st Lt. Harry V. Smith, executive officer of Rakkasan Company D with the Division's band providing march music.

Special guests of honor were Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, Brig. Gen. John M. Wright, and Brig. Gen. Richard T. Knowles and commander of major division units.

Following the exchange of the colors, Col. Beatty expressed his gratitude for the loyalty and hard work provided by the personnel of the 1st Brigade which led to the success of air assault. Col. Hennessey then expressed the honor that was his in accepting the command, and stated that without change, the 1st Brigade would be first in all things.

Concluding the ceremony, Gen. Kinnard pointed out that the Division was fortunate in retaining Col. Beatty as commander of the 11th Aviation Group, adding that Col. Beatty's vast experience in Infantry operations, and knowledge of Infantry needs would be invaluable to the future of the division.

The 1st Brigade was activated under Col. Beatty on 15 February 1963, with its first battalion, the 187th, under Col. Hennessey at the same time the 11th Air Assault Division was activated.

Directed by these two lead-

'Imaginuity' Corner

"The most with the best in the least amount of time." This phrase has been a guiding factor toward many of the unusual pieces of equipment that have been developed by the Sky Soldiers of the 11th Air Assault Division.

In the early months of the division as the units were adapting to the air assault concept new and better pieces of equipment were found necessary to carry out some routine missions.

The 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery, the Air Assault Division's airborne artillery battalion had a problem of resupply of 105mm Howitzer rounds to their batteries in the field. CWO Truman E. Diamond, battalion property book officer, saw the problem and had an idea how it could be solved.

He took a 50 gallon oil drum and adapted it to become a carrier for the 105 rounds. Wooden partitions were placed in the drum so that could carry nine 105mm rounds. The drum was reenforced and the lid was adapted so that it could be bolted closed. A special rig was fashioned for the ends of the drum so that it could be sling loaded to position and once there could be rolled along the ground.

And so, through a little "imaginuity" on the part of one of its battalion members the 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery found an effective, inexpensive way to carry on an important resupply mission.

A BRAIN TEASER FOR THE WEEK

Sky Soldiers, give some thought to this, 'what method can be devised to best resupply water, in large quantities, to troops in forward areas?' If you have an idea how this problem can be solved call or stop in at the 11th Air Assault Division IDEA CENTER in Building 5205 (in the DivArty area), phone 545-6317. They can help you to help yourself and your division.

The first aircraft landed after 17 hours of flight at 10:30 a.m. and was met by Maj. Gen. J. O. Seaman, commanding general of the 1st Infantry Division and Fort Riley.

Flights are designed for crew training and demonstration of the CV-2's long range deployment capabilities.

The flight returned to Fort Benning March 12 at 2:00 p.m. from Fort Riley.

Navigational Beacons Are Airlifted To Morro Bay Harbor California

An Army Ch-47A helicopter of the Provisional Helicopter Company (Chinook), 44th Air Air Transport Brigade received a mission to airlift by the sling method a new navigational beacon to its site at Morro Bay Harbor, located in San Luis Obispo County, Cal.

The requested was instituted by the Harbor Master of the Coast Guard in the Morro Bay area to the Sixth Army Aviation Officer, Col. James H. Lee, who in turn relayed the mission to the Combat Development Evaluation Command at Fort Ord, Cal. where seven of the companies CH-47's are presently attached. Col. Raymond E. Evers, commanding officer of CDEC then contacted Maj. Dan P. Panageas, Officer-in-Charge of the Provisional Helicopter Company and assigned Capt. Nick W. Vollman, CWO Norman Cox, Sp6 Donald F. Lepek and SP6 Hubert H. Mosely as the crew for the airlift mission.

The beacon weighing 6,000 lbs stands 18 feet and was fabricated in San Francisco, Cal. and transported to Morrow Bay Harbor.

The beacon when installed will provide the Coast Guard with a light which will be visible to 15 miles out at sea, fog horn and low frequency radio fog signal for mariners seeking the harbor entrance in rough and foggy weather and will be operated from the Coast Guard harbor office.

It is interesting to note that the construction road to the site had been washed out and shipping it across and cramming it into place would have cost between $20,000 and $30,000 — considerably more than the cost of the airlift operation. The beacon is to be installed at the north end of the breakwater near the entrance to the harbor.

On the 2nd of March, a practiced run was made over the route to determine if any difficulties existed and with all things taken into consideration, the actual airlift was scheduled for the 3rd.

But came the 3rd and it was discovered that somebody had cut off a vital 50 foot section of the power and control cable near the structure at the seaward end of the Morro Bay Harbor breakwater. Mr. Glenn Logan, the San Francisco based supervisor-engineer with the Coast Guard stated that it would take about two months to bring the beacon into operation because of the theft. Coast Guard harbor office determine who took the cable or when.

So the mission was scheduled now for the 5th. The beacon would be implaced and later repairs accomplished. The Ch-47A arrived at the Morro Bay Harbor High School where the beacon had been deposited by truck and was airlifted to its concrete pad at the breakwater. Experience and patience was exhibited by all when the sling mission was accomplished to the tune of strong gust winds coming off the ocean.

The sling in which the lighthouse was slung is an electric-hydraulic cable, 10 feet long which picked up the structure and dangled it all the way from the High School to its permanent site.

It was the first such installation of this type and two more beacons of larger weight and height are planned for the helicopters of the Provisional Helicopter Company during its stay at Fort Ord, Cal. The two new beacons will be installed at Crescent City and Half Moon Bay areas in California.

7.62mm 'Mini-Gun'

Armament System Tested By 227th Battalion Pilots

Concord Range was the scene of an unusual demonstration recently as pilots from Company D, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion successfully tested the 7.62 "Mini-gun."

The demonstration was designed to test the feasibility of mounting this new system from the present armament suspension points provided by the XM-16 subsystem currently being used by Company D. In addition, a test of flight characteristics was completed with two 7.62 "Mini-guns", each firing 6,000 rounds per minute from each side of the aircraft.

Present to observe the test and fire the weapons system were Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard, 11th Air Assault Division commander; Col. George, P. Seneff, former 11th Aviation Group commander and Lt. Col. Jack Cranford, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion commander.

From this test it was found that the new "Mini-gun" in its present configuration can be suspended from XM-16 weapons systems without modification to either aircraft or armament system to further add to the inventory of armament capabilities of this already versatile weapons system.

In addition to this, the 7.62 "Mini-gun" was found to be extremely accurate in all angles of attack without loss of safety of flight characteristics or endangering aircraft or crew.

'Ist Rock' Medic Division's SOM

Spt Lewis F. Foster of the 1st Air Assault Brigade's 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry became Soldier of the Month for the 11th Air Assault Division a week ago last Wednesday in the office of the Commanding General when Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard presented the 1st Rock Sky Soldier with the enviable award.

The 24-year old sky soldier outclassed all contenders in the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry during early February to earn the 1st Rock title, and went on to take the 1st Brigade title on February 12th, which made him a candidate for the Division title.

A medical aid specialist with the 1st Rocks Medical Platoon, Foster is a college graduate, having received his Bachelor of Science Degree from New York University, majoring in Economics.

In addition to his duties as medical aid specialist with a 1st Rock rifle company, Foster is also conducting the basic 16-hour block of instruction in First Aid for the Rock Battalion.

'Eagles' Prepare For EIB Testing

The 1st Battalion, 188th Infantry, commanded by Lt. Col. Robert S. Keller, is undergoing intensive training in preparation for the 11th Air Assault Expert Infantryman Badge tests. The EIB training this year, as planned by Capt. Norman C. Propes, battalion S-3, will include various aspects of small unit infantry warfare.

Companies are conducting classes in mines and demolitions, individual weapons, first aid, communications, and other subjects required by the rigorous tests. When details are announced for EIB testing, the 188th expects to make its normal outstanding showing. Competition is already high, and troops can be seen "boning up" at night in the unit dayrooms.

Religious Reflection Day Plans Are Made Ready

Planning and preparation for the 11th Air Assault Division's 4th Tri-Faith Day of Religious Reflection, to be held Good Friday and Passover Eve, 16 April are well on their way.

Chap. (Lt. Col.) Ray M. Rowland, division chaplain, having made the necessary basic arrangements began coordination of the retreat planning with the area Staff Chaplains.

Under the leadership of the Staff Chaplains, committees of chaplains and laymen set out to be sure the program, publicity, and all other matters would make April 16 a day to remember in the religious life of the Division. Preparations include selection of facilities, securing speakers, organists and soloists, and outlining programs of worship. This work has been aided greatly by ideas and suggestions of Sky Soldiers who have attended previous Division Retreats.

"April 16, has been chosen", states. Chap. Rowland, "because of its religicus significance to all major faiths. For the Jewish faith it marks their Pass-over season and Good Friday for the Protestant and Catholic faiths is the da- of the Crucifixion of Jesus Christ. These days are normally observed as days of religious reflection and the Division Retreat adds emphasis to their observance".

For Christians, Good Friday emphasizes the Cross and redemption through the death of Jesus Christ — an occasion foreshadowing God's triumphs over sin and despair.

The Jewish Pass-over is a centuries - old commemoration of God's passing over the homes of Israil and smiting the homes of the Egyptians with death, thus preparing the way for release of His chosen ones from slavery and despair and their triumph in the Promised Land.

Foreign Language Class Conducted at 188th Inf.

Unique foreign language classes are being conducted in Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 188th Infantry, where five of the "Eagle" soldiers are teaching Spanish to a group of interested men in the company. The classes are being held in the company's dayroom and emphasize conversational phrases.

The instructors are members of the company: Sp5 Hector L. Borges, chief instructor, Sp4 Florentino V. Lares, PFC Elizer Pere, PFC Julio H. Revollo and PFC Ramiro Silva. Sp5 Borges, from Santurce, Puerto Rico, is a medical specialist in the Medical Platoon of Headquarters Company. He served with the Army eight years in Germany and, in addition to Spanish and English, he speaks fluent German and Italian.

Sp4 Lares, from Texas, is also a medical specialist. PFC Perez comes from Lajas, Puerto Rico, and his job in the Communications Platoon of the Headquarters Company is Radio Telephone Operator. PFC Revollo, who came to the United States seven years ago from Bolivia, is a clerk in the message center of the battalion headquarters. PFC Silva is from Mexico and serves as driver for the S-4 section.

The classes were set up with the help of the company commander, Capt. Russell W. Ramsey, who learned Spanish the hard way five years ago; teaching classes in Spanish to Latin American officers in the Army School of the Americas at Fort Gulick, Canal Zone, in Panama.

Role of Artillery Gift Presented

The 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery lives by its mission of providing close and continous support for the maneuver forces. In order to accomplish this mission, liaison and coordination is a must.

The "Steel Behind the Rock" Battalion, commanded by Lt. Col. Robert W. Short, feels it can best provide support if unity of effort exists between the supporting and supported units.

Recently the officers of the battalion made an effort to promote additional team work with the maneuver units it normally supports. Lt. Col. Short presented to Col. Thomas Brown, commanding officer 3rd Brigade, Lt. Col. Robert Kellar, commanding Harold Moore, commanding officer 2nd Battlion 23rd Infantry Battlion and Lt. Col. officer, 1st Battlion, 188th Infantry Battalion, lithographs depicting the "Role of the Artillery."

NEWLY DEVELOPED SIGHTING WEAPON
Capt. David Allen Shows The New System

17th Cavalry Officers Develop Weapon System

Two officers of Troop D, 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry have recently developed an experimental system to be used in conjunction with the Troops aerial rocket capability.

In late January Lt. Col. John B. Stockton gave the mission of developing a machine gun system to be used as a spotting weapon for the M-3 Aerial rocket system to Troop D.

Capt. David Allen, Troop D Weapons Platoon leader, and Lt. Joe Kuppich, a Troop D pilot, undertook the project. After months of combined effort, the 'Johnny Seven', as the system was dubbed, was successfully fired at Fort Rucker, Ala., in a demonstration for Brig. Gen. Richard T. Knowles, assistant division commander.

The 'Johnny Seven' was designed to improve the accuracy of the M-3 rocket system by increasing the probability of obtaining first round hits with the rockets and at the same time provide automatic weapons fire on the target.

"The beauty of the system," according to Capt. Allen, "is that it is completely separated for the basic M-3 and required no modification on the M-3 rocket system or the aircraft."

Pilot Averts Disaster During Training Mission

Capt. Emroy Gehlsen, a section commander of Company A, 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion and a veteran of last fall's AIR ASSAULT II maneuvers, averted possible disaster during a recent assault mission on an emergency forced landing caused by material failure in his aircraft.

Gehlsen was piloting an UHID assault helicopter fully loaded with air assault troopers while flying on a training mission on the Fort Benning reservation when smoke occured in the cabin accompanied with an abrupt change of control pressures. The veteran pilot broke away from the platoon of four HUEY'S in which he was flying, and executed a safe, power-on, emergency landing to investigate the cause of the mechanical difficulties. Gehlsen found had he not made the landing when he did, major damage would have been caused to the aircraft.

Capt. Gehlsen's successful control of the HUEY in this emergency situation is an indication of the quick thinking and professional aviation ability required of aviators who safely fly the infantry into combat. Capt. Gehlsen was recognized for his performance by the 11th Aviation Group commander Col. George P. Seneff.

81st SOM

PFC Davis will now represent the battalion in the Division Artillery competition and if selected as Division Artillery Soldier of the Month will go on to the Division competition. He will receive an engraved cigarette lighter and a letter of commendation from the battalion commander.

He is currently serving as Radio Telephone Operator and Driver in the battery's Fire Direction Section.

Bonsai Demonstration Highlights 11th Coffee

Watching Mrs. Joseph W. Granade do a Japanese flower arrangement was the highlight of the monthly coffee given March 4 by Mrs. Bentley Herbert for wives of the officers of Company B, 61th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion.

Mrs. Granade's handiwork was used as a door prize and won by Mrs. Arnold Adams.

The group will meet again on April 1 with Mrs. Gary R. Bill as hostess.

The ladies of Company A also met for coffee March 4. Mrs. Collins J. Purchase was hostess in her home.

After a short business meeting it was decided that each member would bring her favorite recipe for a recipe exchange during their April 1 coffee at the home of Mrs. Dalton J. Romero.

Mrs. Harold T. Campbell was hostess to the ladies of Headquarters Company on March 9.

At this meeting it was decided that instead of an April coffee the group would have a pot-luck supper for husbands and wives. This will be on April 8 at the home of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles W. McQueary.

127th Engineers Swing At Western-Style Party

"Swing your partner and do-si-do your corner" trailed across Victory Pond from the lodge as the 127th Engineer Officers and wives whooped it up a Country and Western Party. Plans and preparation's for the March 5th shin-dig were completed by the officers and wives of Company C.

To get the party rolling and provide fuel for later merriment, a large quantity of vittels consisting of bar-b-qued ribs, baked beans and fried pies was consumed by the guests. The entertainment then got off to a roaring start with music provided by the "Beaver Stump Jumpers". Members of the band are: Capt. "Curly" Hass, on jug, Lt. "Ringo" Bell-guitar, Lt. "Slim" Wood — jews harp, Lt. "Luke" Crow playing the comb, and Lt. "Lonzo" Easter on base.

The Stump Jumpers entertained with their recent hits: "He's Movin On", "Cigarettes and Whiskey and Wild-Wild-Women", and other favorite tunes.

The Stump Jumpers' "picken and signin" was followed by presentation of a Silver Card Tray to Lt. William Evans who is leaving the service upon completing his tour of active duty. The presentation was made by "Beaver Boss' Lt. Col. Robert Malley.

Lt. Col. James D. Clark of the USAIC Artillery Committee then took the floor and invited all to square dance. Many "green-horns" were initially reluctant, but with Lt. Col. Clark's expert instruction and encouragement with other square dance old timers, they were soon doing the Virginia Reel with the best of them. Anticipation of Lt. Col. Clark's next call kept everyone on their toes and do-si-doing into the wee morning hours.

11th Aviation Grp Ladies Welcome New CO's Wife

Following the business meeting Mrs. George P. Seneff Jr. wife of the former 11th Aviation Group commander, was presented a farewell gift by the ladies of the unit. Mrs. Seneff then welcomed Mrs. George S. Beatty Jr., wife of the new commander, and "initiated" her with a symbolic pin. Saturday, Feb. 27, Co. "B", 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion was honored by a visit of approximately 100 scouts and their leaders. They were welcomed to the 228th by Capt. Bill G. Lockwood, Company "B" executive officer, at Munsan Heliport, at Kelly Hill.

They explored a Ch-47, helicopter, inside and out. After exploring the helicopter the scouts were able to watch Maj. Rodney Spotts, our Battalion S-3 officer flying pilot proficiency in an OH-13 helicopter and Lt. Leonard W. Cummings, Company "B" Maintenance Officer performing a test flight in a CH-47. The group was then taken to Company "B" where they toured a bay where the enlisted men are quartered. There they saw a full field layout, ready for inspection and a display of the weapons assigned to Company "B". Pvt. Brewer assisted with the weapons display.

To wind things up Sgt. Payne served lemonade and orange juice to the thirsty scouts. Those participating were: Den club 4, Cub Scout Pack 37 sponsored by 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry. Den Mother—Mrs. Bobby E. Bogard. Cub Pack 221, sponsored by the Johnson School P-TA, Pack Leader, Mr. William F. Stacked Deck Aviator Sets 'Weary' Record

CWO Manfred Fernitz of Company C, of 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion, discloses a unique "more-time - in-bot-seat - than - time-in-bed" record.

Fernitz reports that during the six month period from June 4, 1964 through December 4, 1964 he spent more time flying his aircraft than he spent sleeping at home in bed. Chief Fernitz spent 159 days on exercises, trips and field maneuvers, and only 21 days at home. He flew in his aircraft 420 hours and slept at home in bed 168 hours.

CWO Fernitz believes his record to be the first of its kind, in this "category," in Army Aviation. A charter member of Charlie Company since the unit's activation in May 1964, Fernitz reports his official flight records prove that during the six month period he spent more time in his jet-powered UHID "HUEY," flying training and troop lift missions carrying the infantry about the Southeastern United States area, than he claims to have been able to spend sleeping in his own bed during the same period.

Fernitz participated with the Stacked Deck during this period in June Carolina exercises, July Fort Stewart FTX's, August Fort Benning field problems, a September aviation maintenance trip to Texas, the September through November AIR ASSAULT II Carolina mobility test maneuvers, and a November 26 to December 4 reconnaissance of a vast proposed air assault tactical problem area.

Aviators Cited for Heroism

Warrant Officers Edward W. Baker and James J. Dirienzo of Company "C", 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion were awarded the Army Commendation Medal for "heroism" at the 227th weekly Retreat ceremonies recently.

Lt. Col. Jack Cranford, the battalion commander, made the presentation and congratulated his officers as the adjutant read their citation.

Mr. Baker and Mr. Dirienzo were cited for "heroism" during a daring rescue of injured skysoldiers from the wreckage of a downed helicopter on May 20, 1964. "The engine on the downed helicopter was still running and the ruptured fuel tanks were allowing fuel to pour excessively around the wreckage, but, Warrant Officers Baker and DiRienzo, with complete disregard for personal safety aided in pulling the injured crew and passengers from the wreckage."

Mr. Baker and Mr. DiRienzo have been members of Company "C" for the past nine months and the praise bestowed on them by Lt. Col. Jack Cranford certainly is well deserved.

Paratroopers Jump at Night For Proficiency

Jumping from four C-130 aircraft on Wednesday evening March 17 and Thursday March 18 with the Bravo cannoneers were the infantry and engineer members of the 11th Air Assault Division airborne Task Force.

The paratroopers exited the four engined C-130 Hercules aircraft in sticks of seven as they made multiple passes over the drop zone. Training emphasis was placed upon immediate assumption of the "prepare to land" attitude by the individual paratroopers after exiting the aircraft and night-time tactical assembly.

Ratings High For 377th Inspection

Last week the 3rd Battalion (Aerial Rocket) 377th Artillery commanded by Lt. Col. Nelson A. Mahone, Jr. received its annual general inspection and the results proved the value of all the hard work put into the preparations for it.

Batteries B and C were inspected on Wednesday and Headquarters and A Batteries received their looking over on Thursday. All the batteries and the battalion headquarters received high rating during the critique held the day of the inspection.

Col. Mahone expressed his very great appreciation to all the officers and enlisted men of the battalion for the the senior NCOs.

Outstanding Record Garners Free Day

Members of the 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion's Bravo Company will enjoy a day off in the near future. The day off was earned by having the highest numerical score for the month of January in the training holiday competition conducted among the companies.

A high numerical score is indicative of a low incidence of AWOLS, articles 15's, court martials, and delinquency reports within the companies concerned.

Capt. Bobby E. Bogard, commanding officer of the company will schedule the holiday in the near future.

38th Prepared For Annual Test

Battery B, 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery, commanded by Capt. Ollie L. Langford, has just finished preparations for its annual Battery Test.

This unit, on loan to the 11th Air Assault Division from the 2nd Infantry Division, will take its first Air Assault type Artillery test. Although only five fire missions will be fired the test is quite extensive. All the common missions that might be found on a battle field of the future will be utilized.

These missions will consist of a Variable Time Fuse Mission, a Registration, a Time Mission, a High Angle Mission and the firing of a Defensive Concentration.

All the unit's training for the past year must be used to complete this test. A total effort is expected and all of Battery B's members are expected to do their part.

Brigade Sergeants NCO School Grads

Thirteen Sky Soldier noncoms from the 1st Air Assault Brigade returned from Fort Jackson, S. C. last week, after graduation from the 3rd Army NCO Academy on February 19th.

The Sky Soldiers, six from the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry and seven from the 1st Battalion, 187th Airborne Infantry began the rugged six-week course on January 8, and it was a rough and taxing month and two weeks for the troops, all of which graduated with good grades.

The six from the 38th were Sgt. Paul E. Prailleau and Sgt. Paul L. Lemay of Company A, Sgt. Charles L. LeCroy of Company B, Sgt. Roger E. Sams of Company C, Sgt. Thomas Ware of Company D and Sgt. William D. Benline of Headquarters Company.

Paratrooper grads from the 187th were Sgts. Floyd M. Horton and Tyrone Massey of Company A, Sgts. Udeo Tarring and Wilbur A. Ali of Company B, Sgt. Kenneth A. Bellanti of Company C, and Sgts. Harry G. Lute and Charles A. Gains of Combat Support Company.

The 3rd Army NCO Academy, one of the roughest in the Army, covers everything from field tactics to conducting classes in Military Justice, with emphasis on all principles of leadership.

227th Examines Instrument Formation Flying to Be Used in Practical Areas

Company "C", 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion is examining the practicability of contact formation flying under instrument flying conditions.

An all volunteer group headed by Capt. Thomas I. McMurray, the commanding officer of Company "C" recently completed their first flight in which a formation was maintained under instrument flying conditions by helicopters. Capt. McMurray said the results were good, considering the fact that it was the first formal experiment of this type to his knowledge, and the fact that there are no guide lines established as of yet.

He deemed the initial attempt as a success and also that this type of flight is possible if a high degree of proficiency is gained and maintained, however he did say that many more similar experiments would have to be conducted, and procedures established prior to this leaving the experimental stage.

Capt. McMurray further stated that if this type of flying can be executed safely it could open many closed doors in the field of air mobility insofar as the air assault concepts are concerned.

Lt. Col. Jack Cranford organized the group in hope of a breakthrough in the yet unproven theory of an Air Assault unit with the capability of instrument contact formations for all weather assaults.

Capt. McMurray listed his team of aviators as Captains David L. Johnson, Walton H. Osborne, and Charles O. Danielsen, all of whom, including Capt. McMurray, are rated in fixed wing and rotary wing aircraft and hold current instrument tickets in each type.

This well qualified team may be on the threshold of discoveries which would further validate the usefulness of the 11th Air Assault Division.

Newcomer Officer Receives Promotion

At a ceremony recently held at the 1st Battalion, 15th Artillery, Lt. Col. Lloyd J. Picou pinned the silver bar of rank on Lt. Gary R. Kaylor.

Lt. Kaylor is a new member of the 15th Artillery who was previously assigned to the Test, Evaluation, and Control (TEC) Group where he participated in the planning and evaluation of the AIR ASSAULT II test.

The two non-coms, Sgt. Don Allison and Herbert Izumi went through the regular two-week course conducted by the Infantry Center which covers aerial reconnaissance, ground survey and use of CBR instruments, making of survey charts of contaminated areas, and placing contaminated drift patters on area maps.

'Little John' Battalion Awarded Superior on General Inspection

The 2nd Battalion (Little John), 42nd Artillery scored another "first" as it recently received official notification that it had been awarded an overall battalion SUPERIOR during the organization's Annual General Inspection conducted here last month.

Commanded by Lt. Col. Charles F. Farber, the 2nd Battalion added this achievement to an already formidable list of accomplishments attained by the organization since its activation last May.

These accomplishments have included the earning of Third Army Certificates of Proficiency by Batteries A and C during a CMMI last July; the successful support of the infantry brigades of the 11th Air Assault Division during local and off-post maneuvers; highly accurate live rocket firings on the Fort Benning reservation in Aug., 1964; a highly commendable performance during Exercise AIR ASSAULT II: and the garnering of many individual and unit awards by personnel and the batteries of the battalion.

In a letter of commendation to members of the 2nd Battalion for achieving a battalion SUPERIOR on the AGI, Col. William A. Becker, commanding officer, 11th Air Assault Division Artillery praised personnel of the organization for an "outstanding level of officer and NCO leadership, coupled with a high degree of professional competence morale, esprit, and devotion to duty."

Col. Becker added that "It is particularly significant to note that this is the only superior rating awarded to a battalion - size unit within the division to date."

Trophys Are Presented To Cage Tourney Stars

An awards ceremony was held the 9th of March at Brant Wells Field House to present the trophies to the two teams which placed first and second in the Fort Benning battalion level basketball tournament.

Individual trophies were awarded to the 2nd Medical Battalion for its first place finish. The high scoring David Robinson of the Medics accepted the team's first place trophy. Second place went to the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry, 2nd Air Assault Brigade. The trophy was accepted by trainer - coach Lee Green on behalf of the team, battalion, and Coach Rodney Rountree. Individual statuette trophies were presented to each member of the teams.

From each division that participated in the tournament, ten men were selected to try out for the All-Star team which will represent Fort Benning in the 3rd Army Basketball Tournament at Fort Jackson, March 29th through April 3rd.

These men were selected by the team coaches on the basis of their defensive and offensive efforts, plus their teamwork and sportsmanship. Three men from the Kaniengehaga Battalion team were selected. They were 6'4" James Watson who scored 112 points from the floor for a 22 point average; Emmitt Beard had 116 points and a 23 point average; Ronald Towe who had 94 points and a 19 point average. Selected to coach the team was Wallace Halpin from the 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry.

To make this team, the three players will have to survive a competition in scrimmages and practice sessions with the 27 others. On the basis of their showing in these sessions, the men to represent Fort Benning will be chosen.

Sixteen Aviators Attend Aviation Medicine School

Twelve aviators from the 516th Transport Airplane Company, and four from the 1st Aviation Company attended a one day course at the U. S. Naval School of Aviation Medicine in Pensacola Fla. on Wednesday of this week. The course was in part a class on the effects and symptoms of hypoxia (lack of oxygen) brought on in high altitude flying. The sixteen aviators also had a practical exercise which consisted of an altitude chamber indoctrination course. Here they experienced the lack of oxygen at thirty - thousand feet and learned about their oxygen equipment. The effects of the lack of oxygen prove amusing entertainment as well as providing an excellent teaching point.

The aviators who participated were awarded altitude cards by the U. S. Naval School of Aviation.

Aviators from the 516th who attended the course were Captains Jack D. Jonier, Evart E. Robeson, Malcolm D. Rixon, John N. Holter, Joe T. Pope, Thomas R. Wolftom, William J. Head; Lieutenants Gerard F. Dreiling, Earl H. Behrens, Clifford C. Lowery; and Warrant Officer Douglass J. MacMillian.

Artillery Officer Gets Combat Test

Lt. Ralph E. Fisher, Battery C, 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery concluded a week of evaluation at Fort McClellan, Ala. where he participated in combat - type training.

Lt. Fisher is a forward observer and has been in the battalion since April 1964. Previously, he attended the Field Artillery Oficer's Basic Course, at Fort Sill, Okla.

Lt. Fisher hails from Milan, Tenn., and is a graduate of the University of Tennessee where he majored in Agronomy.

38th Views Films On Traffic Safety

Battery B, 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery knows the results of poor driving. The Battery Command Information Program, under the leadership of Capt. Ollie L. Langford, has presented two films vividly showing the results of carelessness.

The color films titled "Code 30" and "Mechanized Death," depicted actual crash screens and mangled human bodies.

The expected results of this program is the hope that the Battery members will become better and safer drivers by analyzing the cause and effect of automobile accidents.

Brigade

In addition to the heavy and novel training which was introduced, they learned to do without the niceties of a conventional infantry unit, and improvisation came to mean doing more with less, and faster, as they fathered the "lean and mean" theory.

In 1964, following Operation Hawk Star I, the Brigade's three battalions were equally divided among the Division three Infantry brigades with the 1st Brigade retaining its original battalion, the 187th, and acquiring the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry. It was also in July that Col. Beatty appointed Col. Hennessey to the post of deputy commander of the 1st Brigade.

The success of the 1st Brigade owes much to these two outstanding leaders, who formed and trained the first combat units in the Air Assault concept, and proved the value of air assault last fall in the last big test.

Key Protestant Laymen Meet at Kelley Hill Service

"The Church of Jesus Christ is always dependent upon its laity — the men of the church — for its strength," Chap. (1st Lt.) Billy Lord told key Protestant laymen and major commanders of Kelly Hill units at the Ash Wednesday Laymen's Service at Kelly Hill Chapel.

After a dinner of roast beef, cooked and served by cooks of the 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry, Chap. Lord spoke on the "Task of the Layman." He emphasized that the layman is first a believer in Christ, then a witness to others of his belief.

"Your task is to be a witness to others, to lead men to Christ. You can do this directly, or you can bring men to chapel programs." Chap. Lord said as he outlined the ways laymen on Kelley Hill could fulfill their tasks of Christian witness by supporting the Kelley Hill Protestant worship and witnessing program.

The Protestant Lenten Program at Kelley Hill Chapel was sketched by Chap. (Capt.) Henry Ackermann.

"In keeping with the seasonal emphasis the Protstant Chaplains are instituting several new programs," he stated. He outlined them briefly. They include a Bible Study Class at 9:45 a.m. on Sunday, with a study of "Romans" the first project. Sunday evening services of an informal and evangelistic nature will be held at 7:30 p.m., with the regular troop fellowship following at 8:30 p.m. On Wednesday nights there will be services at 7 p.m. featuring films on the life and passion of Christ. Chap. Ackerman asked that each unit be informed of these additions to the chapel program and that the men be urged to take advantage of the new worship opportunities.

Col. William R. Lynch, 2nd Brigade commander, speaking for the commanders on Kelley Hill, pledged support for the Chapel program. He asked the unit commanders to take part in newly-instituted "Chapel Support" activities, in which each Sunday a different major unit would give definite support and emphasis to the Catholic and Protestant services. "As commanders," Col. Lynch stated, "we cannot overlook our responsibility to our men in the field of religion. We must set examples and give our support in every way we can."

Chap. (Lt. Col.) Ray M. Rowland, Division Chaplain, reinforced Col. Lynch's statement on the value of unit support of Chapel services by citing the experiences of other chapels. "I believe that this program is a fine thing," he said. "You men, you commanders, and the chaplains are to be commended for this step forward. I am sure that you will see rewards for your efforts soon."

The Lenten Laymen's Lunch was the first of several activities leading up to the climax of the Lenten season, the Good Friday Retreat and Easter Sunday. Chap. (Maj.) Robert Johnston, 2nd Brigade Chaplian, has left in planning this comprehensive program for the Protestant men on Kelley Hill.

1st Brigaders Cited At Multi-Purpose Brigade Ceremony

Two 1st Brigaders were promoted last Saturday, and another retired in the 1st Air Assault Brigade Headquarters, during a combined ceremony presided over by the Brigade Commander, Col. George S. Beatty.

Col. Beatty opened the ceremony at 9:00 a.m. by pinning W-2 Warrant bars on WO's Jimmy Frost and Ronald Ehmann, both aviators assigned to the Brigade's Flying First Light Aviation Section.

He then presented MSgt. Charles Flavin, 1st Brigade S-2 sergeant with the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious service and his Certificate of Retirement, afterward commenting on the outstanding job which the sergeant performed during the difficult period when the air assault concept was just an experiment, and all problems were being encounted for the first time.

Several special guest attended the ceremony, including wives, among them, all the key staff officers and NCOs.

GAS CHAMBER TEST

During the past week Battery B, 5th Battalion 38th Artillery participated in an Annual Gas Chamber Exercise.

Warrant Officer Selected To Officiate Basketball

CWO John G. Daneker, Co. "C", 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion, 11th Air Assault Division has been selected as one of two basketball officials from Fort Benning to officiate the 1965 Third United States Army Basketball Championship Tournament being held at Fort Jackson, S. C. during the week of March 29 to April 3, 1965. Mr. Daneker was also named supervisor of a team of six officiating at this tournament. Each installation within the Third Army area will be represented by a post team and seven will also be represented by a WAC team.

Mr. Daneker has already officiated in three tournaments at Fort Benning, during the past few weeks including the final game for the Post Championship. He also was selected by the Alabama State High School Association to officiate two High School Regional Tournaments.

Mr. Daneker has been officiating basketball for sixteen years and has been averaging over one hundred ball games per year for the past seven years. He was first selected into the Major College Ranks in 1950, breaking into the North State Conference in North Carolina. He has been officiating College, and or college level ball since that time. At the present time he is President of the Georgia District IAABO Bd. No. 107 which affiliated with the "International Associate approved Basketball Officials" (IAABO), the largest officials association in the world. He currently serves as a member of the IAABO Foreign Relations Committee, a position which requires quite a bit of corresponding and coordinating with officials throughout the world.

In Jan., 1965, CWO Daneker was selected as a member of the "International Amateur Basketball Federation" (FIBA). This made him eligible to officiate games played under AAV Rules, which includes all PAN-AM, AAV, and Olympic games.

By virtue of his thorough knowledge and understanding of basketball rules and mechanics of officiating, he is often called upon to conduct clinics for fellow officials, coaches and players.

Also selected from Fort Benning as an official for the Third Army tournament was CWO Francis Scully, AG Section, 11th Air Assault Division.

'Rak' Sergeant Honor Graduate Of Nine-Week Ranger Course

Sgt. Russell Crawford of the 1st Air Assault Brigade's Rakkasan Company was the Distinguished Honor Graduate of the Infantry School Ranger Course, Class Number 6 last Friday, upon completion of the grueling nine week course.

Sgt. Crawford is a communications specialist in the 187th Commo Platoon. He received several spot reports for superior work while demonstrating the personal traits, skills and perserverance traditional in the Army Ranger.

Sgt. Crawford's achievement came as no surprise to 1st Sgt. Alfred A. Daniels of the Rak Headquarters Company, who also had the Soldier of The Month for March, Sp4 Bradford W. Wheeler.

Sgt. Crawford was further honored Saturday morning when he received personal praise and congratulations in the office of 1st Brigade Commander, Col. George S. Beatty.

The Ranger course, designed to develop physically and mentally hardened leaders, is probably the toughest nine weeks of schooling in the Army, and covers advanced steps in combatives, physical training, land navigation, air landed & amphibious operations, countergurilla techniques, and jungle and mountain operations.

Hailing from Forest Lake, Minnesota, Crawford has quite a background. Prior to entering the Army, he attended Purdue University for a year, and was once employed as a heavy equipment operator in Lincoln, Nebraska.

Sgt. Crawford entered the Army in February of 1964, and after his initial combat Infantry training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., was assigned to the 187th.

A second Distinguished Graduate from the 1st Brigade was Sgt. Dennis P. Harriet of the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry's Company B.

2nd Brigade Trio Meets Demands

The Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Air Assault Brigade, communications platoon, has three members who are constantly in demand by all the staff sections.

This bulwark trio works in the Message Center of the Brigade Headquarters. Seemingly impossible demands are bestowed on this group and every time the message center comes through. Their tireless devotion to duty was very much in evident during the two and one half month long exercise last year. Working shifts to function around the clock, this team performed in and outstanding manner, by relaying messages, submitting reports, and transmitting items to name the least.

The senior message center clerk, Sp4 Tony N. Pool, who comes from Lawton, Okla., has two able bodied assistants in Pfc's Earl C. Gatlin and Melvin M. Reese.

Two Soldier's Medals, the nation's second highest medal for heroism in peace time, two Bronze Star Medals, two first oak leaf clusters to the Bronze Star and four Army Commendation Medals will be awarded to eight officers and two enlisted men during ceremonies on York Field this morning.

Vetzel's citation, which accompanied the medal read in part, ". . .while serving as a member of Co. E, 724th Maintenance Bn., Henry Kaserne, Munich, Germany, he observed a burning truck in the center of three columns of trucks. Building 81 Contest

Winner Will Receive A Host of Awards

A $50 U. S. Savings Bond presented in the Commanding General's office, a commemorative plaque at Building 81 following its renovation, guest of honor at the official opening, a letter from the Commanding General and possible recognition by the Incentive Awards Committee, are among the honors and rewards which will accrue to the winner of the Command contest to "find a better use for Building 81."

Response to the contest, announced in The BAYONET last week, has exceeded all expectations. As of Wednesday noon, 54 suggestions had been received with the mail about evenly divided between military and civilian personnel.

Object of the contest is to find a better use for Building 81, a two story structure just inside the main post area beyond Outpost No. 1 and the Upatoi Creek bridge.

The building sits on a concrete island, bounded on each side by roads and presently houses the Post Exchange photo lab concession. The Command wants to find a way to better utilize the building to augment post facilities.

Entries in the contest will continue to be accepted by The BAYONET, through mail, message center or personal delivery, until 5 p.m., April 16. Winner of the contest will be announced in The BAYONET, issue of April 23.

Those who have submitted suggestions, and those who will do so before the deadline, are reminded that the winner will be picked solely on the basis of the suggestions, its practicality, clarity and detail. Whether or not it is actually adopted now or at a future date is not a factor in selection of the winner.

However the suggestions received by The BAYONET will be forwarded to the Incentive Awards Committee

KNOW YOUR SENIOR NCOs

Sam Spade, Sherlock Holmes and Nick Carter have nothing on John D. Copeland, first sergeant of Co. D, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., a licensed "private eye."

Sgt. Copeland, who entered the Navy in 1944 and the Army in 1946, plans to return to his first love, private investigation, next April after completing 20 years of service.

A veteran of the Asiatic-Pacific campaign in World War II, Sgt. Copeland studied the science of detection (including graduate work in finger printing) for two years.

His most exciting case occurred while stationed in Germany when he recovered one half million dollars of black market goods being transported across the Austrian border by a ring of criminals.

A native of Detroit, Michigan, Sgt. Copeland came to the 197th Inf. Bde. in 1962. He has been first sergeant of Co. D since November, 1964.

His medals and decorations include the National Defense Service Medal, World War II Victory Medal, Army Occupation Medal (Germany) (Japan), and the Good Conduct Medal.

Some Enlistment Options Require Four Year Tour

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Effective May 1, 1965, some Army enlistees and reenlistees will find themselves signing up for minimum periods of four years.

The change will up the enlistment term from three to four years for those enlisting for assignment to U. S. Army, Europe, and for many of those signing up for attendance at an MOS producing U.S. Army service school course.

The three year enlistment will still apply in the service school area for certain men who enter directly from civilian life, another service, or who have been out of the Army for more than three months and can only come back in grades E-1 or E-2.

Those desiring more information should check Chapter 6, AR 601-210. Four year tours will apply to those enlisting or reenlisting for options contained in Sections IV, V, XIII, and XIV.

Enlistments and reenlistments approved and completed for three years prior to May 1 for commitments to Europe or service schools, will be honored notwithstanding the starting date of the course or oversea availability date.

137 Receive Gold Bars; Reynolds Is Top Graduate

Leadership was the theme in an address given to 137 graduating officer candidates at The Infantry School's Marshall Auditorium Monday.

Brig. Gen. Walter F. Winton Jr., deputy commanding general of the U. S. Army Training Command, Fort Polk, La., was the guest speaker.

"In my opinion there are three elements of military leadership," the general said. "Study. . .character. . .professional know-how."

Gen. Winton explained the three elements and their importance to the newly commissioned officers.

"No military man can become a competent leader without devoting his life to study," he pointed out. "Character is important for it eliminates selfishness and false pride and instills cooperation."

He also spoke of how important professional know - how is to any man in a responsible position.

Second Lt. Richard M. Reynolds was honor graduate of the class. Reynolds also was cited as the top graduate in leadership ability.

Others receiving awards were Donald O. Porter, who received The Infantry School's Weapons Department shooter's award for having the highest firing record, and John P. Stephen, who won the Physical Combat Proficiency Test award.

Gen. Winton, a 1940 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., completed Fort Benning's parachute training school in 1942 and served with the 505th Parachute Infantry both at Fort Benning and in the European Theatre during World War II.

Emergency Care

By Maj. Stanton P. Fischer

The American Hospital Association is concerned with a growing national problem — that of emergency room medical care.

In 1962 there were 28.7 million emergency room visits in the United States. This represents 1 visit per 6 persons in our population. If this present trend continues at its current rate of increase, the number of emergency room visits will double every nine years.

This remarkably high number is largely the result of non-emergency visits which comprise approximately one-half of the total. Only about one of these patients in three has an accidental injury, and it is for these patients plus those with acute serious illness that emergency rooms are staffed and equipped.

The experience at Martin Army Hospital parallels that at the national level and this problem has become one of serious concern for our hospital, physicians and the military community. The use of emergency room facilities by patients with ordinary medical care problems of a non-urgent nature results in waiting room congestion, harrassment and prolonged patient waiting periods. Furthermore, X-Ray and laboratory services are taxed beyond their capacity during the evening hours. The result is obvious.

Hospitals have attempted to meet this demand in one of several ways. An increase in medical staff and facilities has failed, both nationally and at Martin Army Hospital, to improve overall emergency room medical care. Restriction of emergency room care only to injuries has proven impractical. Recently a new approach has been evaluated in several hospitals and found promising. Each patient is seen by a physician immediately upon entering the emergency room.

If this brief examination discloses a condition which is not medically urgent, the patient is referred by future appointments to the proper clinic for evaluation. (Thirty per cent of patients given such appointments do not keep them!) The emergency room is therefore better able to identify and provide immediate attention to those injuries and serious illnesses which medically require it.

At Martin Army Hospital there are increasingly frequent times when such a screening process is indicated in the interest of good medical care. Important progress toward the solution of this problem could be made if patients with non-urgent conditions would use the proper clinic facilities by making appointments rather than coming to the emergency room. The understanding and cooperation of the military community is urged for the sake of giving better medical care for all our patients. As the name implies, the Emergency Room is intended for the treatment of emergency medical conditions.

The men and women of Third United States Army extend congratulations and heartiest good wish on the fifty-eighth anniversary of the United States Army Infantry School, April 1, 1965.

From its beginning in 1907 as the School of Musketry at the Presidio of Monterey and its subsequent establishment at Fort Benning in 1918, The Infantry School has grown to a position of world-wide prominence. Graduates of The Infantry School served with valor and distinction in World War II and Korea and are today defending freedom in Viet Nam.

We take pride in the spirit of the Infantry and wish you continued success in your vital mission.

On the occasion of its 58th anniversary, I wish to extend congratulations to the staff, faculty, and students of the United States Army Infantry School.

The mission of The Infantry School is of vital importance to our Nation's defense. By training Infantry officers and enlisted men in the art of leadership, The Infantry School answers the challenge presented to the Infantryman today. By developing and revising doctrines, tactics, procedures, and techniques, The Infantry School accomplishes one of the most important missions of our Army. The Infantryman is the deciding factor in warfare and The Infantry School is largely responsible for his achievements.

I wish to express my appreciation to all personnel of The Infantry School for their dedication to the spirit and tradition of "FOLLOW ME". I am confident this dedication will continue to bring success to the Infantry in the years to come.

CODE OF THE U.S. FIGHTING MAN

I

I am an American fighting man. I serve in the forces which guard my country and our way of life. I am prepared to give my life in their defense.

A member of the Armed Forces is always a fighting man. As such, it is his duty to oppose the enemies of the United States regardless of the circumstances in which he may find himself, whether in active participation in combat or as a prisoner of war.

The Judge Says . . .

Often times you will hear someone say: a Specialist Four, and besides, my wife will get everything that I own." If only this individual knew how erroneous his statement is.

First of all, if you don't have a WILL, your wife will not get everything that you own. When a deceased person does not have a Will, then his state of domicile provides for distribution of his assets by what is legally called Intestate Distribution." All that "Intestate Distribution" means is that if a person dies without a Will his estate is to be distributed in accordance with a prearranged formula which usually provides for only one-half to two-thirds of his assets to go to the wife while the remainder goes to his children or other relatives. In many cases, a person whom you would not want to share in your estate will get a portion of the booty.

In order to point up all of the other advantages of a Will, lets examine a hypothetical situation. Although it's hypothetical, the facts to be stated have occurred many times in the past and most likely will occur again:

Assume that you and your wife are driving to a party. The children have been left at home with a babysitter. A drunken driver runs head-on into your vehicle, and both you and your wife are killed. All that you own is the car you were driving, some furniture and clothing, and $500.00 in a savings account. You didn't have a Will.

On the above stated set of facts, look at the problems that arise because of the fact that you didn't have a will:

1. Who is to have custody of your children? This could have been provided for in a Will, the state will decide.

2. Who is to administer your estate — a perfect stranger or a member of your family? In many states, a "public administrator" will be appointed to handle the administration and he will usually be allowed a fee out of the estate. If you had a Will, you could have chosen the executor, and if the chosen executor was a member of the family, you could have provided that he serve without fee.

3. Due to the collision, your estate has the means of a suit for damages against the driver of the other vehicle. Who is to receive these proceeds? If you had a Will, you could will determine the disposition by means of Intestate Distribution.

As you can see, a Will gives you the power of controlling the disposition of your estate. If you desire to retain this power of control, rather than leaving it to the state, a Will is definitely necessary.

197th Inf. Bde. Soldier Is Supporting Korean Child

By SP4 DAVE KAUFELT

Coming to the 197th Inf. Bde. after a 13 month tour in Korea, Sp4 Cecil R. Pollock will never forget the underprivileged children he saw there.

Early this year, Pollock applied to the Foster Parents' Plan, Inc. — a non-profit, privately run organization — and "adopted" an eight-year-old Korean girl, Lee Yun Cho.

LEE YUN CHO

By alloting $15 from his monthly pay check to Lee Yun, Pollock knows that she is receiving medical care, clothing, a chance to complete her education, food and counselling.

Pollock sends his foster child packages of clothing and toys as often as he is able.

"Having been raised in an underprivileged family," the specialist said, "I can sympathize with Lee Yun and with all needy children. I hope to be able to help more children in the future."

While stationed in Korea with the 8th Engr. Bn. of the 1st Cav. Div., Pollock's unit helped support an orphanage for Korean War victims. A letter written to the church in his home town of Arvin, Calif., was responsible for over 300 pounds of clothing received by the orphans.

Before he entered the Army in January, 1962, Pollock served in the Navy — seeing overseas service in Iwo Jima and Japan — and in civilian life was a cab driver while not going to broadcasting school in Hollywood.

He plans on making the Army a career. A cook with the 197th's Hq. & Hq. Co., he hopes to return to Korea in the near future so that he may visit his adopted daughter.

Sergeant Cited For Outstanding Religious Work

Sgt. William E. Wood was awarded an Army Commendation Medal recently for outstanding service at Fort Benning.

Wood, chief clerk and senior non - commissioned officer in the Religious Education Division of the Infantry Center's Chaplain Section, is leaving the post for an assignment in Germany.

The sergeant was cited for "his loyalty and support of his superiors in surpassing all goals for that activity (Religious Education Division) established by this and higher headquarters resulting in a program which excelled any similar one in excellence and total participation in the entire U. S. Army."

Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker, Infantry Center chaplain, made the presentation to Wood, who has been with the section for eight months.

No More 'STRAC' Units; Replaced by 'ARSTRIKE'

The term "STRAC," long used to describe the dual-corps force which makes up the U. S. Army Forces STRIKE Command, has been replaced by the more specific term "ARSTRIKE."

The Strategic Army Corps (STRAC) was created in 1958 to provide the Army with the capability for immediate and effective response in an emergency. Originally a light, three-division force, it now contains two tactical corps, eight combat divisions, and additional combat and support units.

After the U.S. STRIKE Command came into being in 1961, to broaden the nation's response capability, its Army element, ARSTRIKE, took over direction of all STRAC forces. The term "ARSTRIKE" specifically denotes the present status and mission of these forces and replaces the former term "STRAC."

Infantry School to Celebrate Its 58th Anniversary; Foot Soldier Is Still U.S. Army's Ultimate Weapon

By IDA C. EVANS

Dedicated to the needs of the foot soldier, The Infantry School, on the eve of its 58th anniversary, is engaged in intensive training to fit the modern Doughboy for his role in Viet Nam.

Established April 1, 1907, as a modest School of Musketry at the Presidio of Monterey, Calif., The Infantry School through the years has kept abreast of the times, ever sensitive to the human factors involved in the use of new weapons and techniques — to the human factors involved in warfare in varied areas of the world.

In keeping with this tradition, the School today is permeated with a determination to make its instruction appropriate to the needs of the American foot soldier serving in Viet Nam.

Bulletin boards in the lobby of the academic building, Bldg. 4, and in the corridors of its extensive classroom wings provide the latest news of events in Viet Nam. Maps, casualty lists, photographs, news clippings, and information about weapons and communications keep that war constantly in the forefront of Infantry School thinking.

The displays are part of a program conducted by the "Win in Viet Nam" committee, established Oct. 23, 1964, by former assistant commandant, Brig. Gen. John Norton, now in Viet Nam.

MAJ. GEN. HEINTGES
Commandant

The emphasis on slanting school instruction to the needs of the times includes revision of programs of instruction throughout both the resident departments and the Department of Nonresident Instruction, as Infantry needs in Viet Nam are identified.

Infantry Magazine is printing articles by men who have recently served in Viet Nam. Unit commanders and instructional department directors are keeping the issue of the conflict ever before their personnel, as a means of underscoring confidence and maintaining an understanding of the nature of that war.

Using television facilities of the new academic building, tapes on Viet Nam are shown to students, and briefings on Viet Nam are conducted for staff, faculty and students.

A major effort of the "Win in Viet Nam" committee is a week long orientation designed for Infantry officer career course students who have received orders to that area.

Scheduled after members of the career class have received orders, the orientation includes 40 hours of training in counterinsurgency and tactics and techniques appropriate to Viet Nam. The orientation, which will be given in May, will be under the direction of Col. H. E. Wolff in close coordination with the "Win in Viet Nam" committee.

Career course students who receive assignments to Europe or Korea, where the emphasis is on mechanized Infantry, will get 40 hours of instruction on the employment, operation and maintenance of the armored personnel carrier (APC).

Those going to assignments as company commanders at Army Training Centers will spend the 40 hours in an equally appropriate orientation. To prepare for some assignments, students will engage in individual research and conferences with staff members of the school.

Lt. Col. D. H. Lanier, chief of the instructional program section of the Office of the Director of Instruction, said the 40-hour course will be tailored to fit "as nearly as possible, the geographic or subject area" of a man's assignment.

Other advances The Infantry School has made during the past year include moving its river crossing problem from placid Victory Pond to Bradley Landing on the Chattahoochee River to achieve realism.

A combat arms mechanics course has been established to train tracked vehicle mechanics who can serve with any branch. Forward strides have been made in the installation of closed circuit television facilities for all classrooms.

The new academic building, occupied by The Infantry School on May 1, 1964, was constructed with television cable conduits to Marshall Auditorium, the offices of the commandant, assistant commandant and director of instruction and its 14, 200-man and 14, 50-man classrooms.

The school has asked for bids on a contract to lay cables throughout these conduits and install adequate playback facilities. With 19 and 23-inch screen receivers on student desks, the closed circuit television system will increase student participation. The instructor and the training aids he uses will be "close up" and charts, diagrams and maps will be at a reading distance for each man.

BRIG GEN. FORSYTHE
Assistant Commandant

Already projecting instruction to Communications - Electronics Department classrooms, by May, 1965 the school will be "well on the way to completion of television capabilities for all classes," officials said. By June, it is expected that equipment will be ready for a production phase, preparing tapes from live instruction.

Lt. Col. G. R. Wilson said The Infantry School will be the first among the combat arms educational institutions to have a complete television facility, including production of video tapes, playback to classrooms, a videotape library, and an exchange service with other Army schools and agencies.

The Infantry School, with a student body of 37,577 including 86 Allied students from 38 countries, has come a long way in 58 years. Through a move from California to Fort Sill, Okla., in 1912, and a subsequent move to Fort Benning in 1918, the former School of Musketry has consistently felt the imprint of its founder, Gen. Arthur MacArthur. His firm conviction that commanders should be trained for leadership still bears fruit today.

Often called the alma mater of Infantrymen all over the world, the school owes much of its success and prestige to the high quality of the students who have gathered in its halls and worked field problems on its 182,311-acre campus. Many of these students have returned to the school later as instructors, department directors, staff members, and even as commandant.

In keeping with the caliber of the men who shaped the destiny of the school and of the soldier it produces, The Infantry School continues to hold steadfastly to the principle that, though tactics and weapons undergo changes, it is the individual man that counts most in the final determination of any conflict.

All Star Team Dunks Campbell In Pre-Tournament Warm Up

BY PFC RUSS HAVOURD

The Fort Benning "All Stars" overwhelmed the Fort Campbell, Ky., "Screaming Eagles", 100-77, Wednesday night at Briant Wells Field House in a warm-up tilt before going to the Third Army Basketball tournament at Fort Jackson, S. C., March 28-April 3.

The All Stars, playing their second game as a team, led all the way behind the game's big gun, left forward Jerry Grochowski with 23 points.

Outstanding defensive efforts and board control by starting center, 6'6" Monty Clausen, tethered the Screaming Eagles while Grochowski netted 13 points in the first half.

Walstad and Clausen also tallied double figures in the opening stanza, hitting for 10 points each, to move Benning to a 56-30 half-time margin.

Early in the second half, Campbell seemed to catch fire as they steadily narrowed the All Stars' lead to 19 points. High scorer for the Screaming Eagles, 6'1" right guard Bob Lewis pumped in 10 of his 16 points to pace the challenge.

Playing without guard Carl Seldon and sparing high scoring left forward Dave Robinson, the All Stars hit triple figures. Campbell's assault stalled and Benning was moving ahead at the final buzzer.

It was win number two for Fort Benning, coming off a one-sided victory over a Fort McClellan, Ala., quintet, 110-79 last Wednesday (March 17) at Fort McClellan. The Screaming Eagles suffered their fourth loss against 14 wins for the season.

Post Players Down Rivals At McClellan

The "All Stars" crushed a Fort McClellan, Ala., five 110-79, last Wednesday in their first scrimmage in preparation for the Third U.S. Army Basketball Tournament.

The All Stars led from the opening tap and moved to a 53-34 half-time margin in the one-sided contest.

Three other All Stars, forward George Walstad, guard Dick Bosacker and forward Pernell Cole tallied double figures.

Young Ball Handler Racks Up 36 Points

Most professional league basketball players wouldn't mind scoring 36 points in a game. College and high school players would consider they had a pretty sensational day if they hit for that many. But when a nine year old boy racks up such a score it's pretty unbelievable.

That's exactly what Timothy Beale, son of Maj. and Mrs. Rudolph W. Beale, 142-A Arrowhead Road, did last week in an off-post Biddy League Championship play - off game.

Tim is a member of Biddy 4 team, coached by SFC Virgil C. Ray of the Test, Evaluation and Control Group (Project TEAM). Tim had never played any basketball until he started this January under Ray's tutelage.

Post sports officials say Tim's amazing performance is a record for the Biddy League at Fort Benning.

Following the game at Wilhur School Gym where Biddy 4 beat Biddy 2, 69-13, Tim got a standing ovation from the crowd.

Asked what he thought of his future in the basketball world, Tim replied, "Basketball is great, and I think I might continue on playing and learn more about the game."

Flamingo Open Invasion Capped by Pistol Team

Special to The Bayonet

CORAL GABLES, Fla. — The U. S. Army Pistol Team capped a successful invasion of the Citrus State this week by sweeping all of the team events and the major individual matches at the Flamingo Open.

Starting with a three-match sweep that included a new national Center Fire record in the Mid-Winter Championships at Tampa a week earlier, the Army Blue No. 1 squad captured seven straight team events.

Composed of national champion SFC William Blankeship, $gt. Merriweather Jones, SSG Emil Heugatter and SFC Ralph Thompson, the soldiers won all four team matches in the Flamingo.

Individual Title

In addition, Heugatter took the individual title with a 2,631 after getting off to an early lead by winning the .22 cal. aggregate with an 890. Thompson captured the Service Pistol aggregate with an 871, and MSgt. Richard Stineman added the Center Fire title to the Army's win bag with an 879.

For the second straight week the Army's top team broke the 3,500 point mark.

At Tampa they set a new national record with a 3,545, which included their new mark of 1,184 in the Center Fire, and they fired an even 3,500 at Coral Gables.

The Army Blue No. 2 team was runnerup in the aggregate in the Flamingo with a 3,469.

SFC Jake Wise of the Third Army Marksmanship Unit was runnerup to Thompson in Tuesday's hard ball matches with an 862.

Only four of the 16 fired matches escaped the Army handgunners and three of these were taken by the Navy's top shooter Don Hamilton.

Co. B Sweeps Two Events

The 1965 Infantry Center Smallbore Championships held here recently concluded with sharpshooters from Co. B, 1st Bn., 58th Inf., taking first place in two of the events.

In the rifle competition, Co. B compiled a 963 total out of a possible 1,200 to edge its nearest rival, the 552nd MP Co., with 938. Headquarters and Service Battery A, 2nd Bn. 10th Artil. placed third in the team match with 799.

HARDY BROWN . . .
Top Shooter

Easily taking charge in the pistol team event, Co. B, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., tallied 1,317 out of a possible 1,800 while Headquarters and Headquarters Co., 197th Inf. Bde., captured second place with 1,204.

Third honors went to Battery A, 2nd Bn., 10th Artillery, with a composite score of 1,179.

One of the 58th's marksmen, PFC Hardy D. Brown, brought top honors to his unit in the individual rifle competition. Brown fired a 246 out of a possible 300. Second place winner was Sgt. T. L. DeMark of Headquarters and Headquarters Co., 197th, with 240. In third place was PFC Joseph Gurske of the 505th Transportation Co., with 234.

WAC Dribblers Win One Game

The Fort Benning WAC basketball team played a two game series to a draw last weekend against Fort Rucker, Ala.

The first game went to the Rucker gals 33-31 with SP5 Susie Mostert of Fort Rucker netting 20 points. SP5 Erline Surles of the post squad scored 19 points.

In the second game, the post team took it 42-27 with Both Susie Mostert and Erline Surles scoring 23 points.

The squad now has a 5-5 record and will play in the Third Army Tournament at Fort Jackson, S.C., starting Monday to end the season.

Hahn Tees Off Tonight At Sand Hill Golf Course

When Paul Hahn digs into his 90-pound bag of golf tricks at 6 p.m. today at Sand Hill Golf Course, he'll prove that you can hit a golf ball with anything, in any way, if you're swinging correctly.

Ordinary golfers will wonder about their own game after watching Hahn hit 230 to 250 yard tee shots with a club made from a garden hose shaft or with a triple jointed swivel-shaft.

He combines entertainment with sound instruction on the game. During his one hour show he performs a total of 35 trick-shots.

Each time he will be making a point that hours of instruction sometimes falls to get through — that the swing is the most important part of good golf. No matter what the shot, Hahn hits every ball with a fundamentally sound swing.

His routine has taken him over 500,000 miles since 1950. He circled the world five times to give exhibitions in 37 countries.

When Hahn concludes his act by lining up a dozen balls and hitting them in rapid-fire succession with one club in each hand, he will demonstrate the importance of a perfect swing.

What he does requires months of practice. He spends two hours daily on the practice tee, more than some touring pros devote to their game.

Youth Club Needs Coaches

The Youth Activity Club (YAC) needs players and coaches to participate in the 1965 baseball season, officials said.

Broken down into age brackets, there will be four leagues, the Biddy League, ages eight and nine; the Doughboy League, ages 10 and 11; the Intermediate League, ages 12 and 13, and the Pony League, ages 14 and 15. Military dependent children, both on and off-post are eligible to play.

Prospective players and coaches wishing to volunteer for the program should go to YAC "Brat Barracks" (Bldg 1054) or telephone 545-4747.

ARSTRIKE Replaces STRAC in Army Terms

"STRAC" — a term on the lips of every 2nd Infantry Division soldier since March, 1962 — is out according to a recent Third Army message.

The message informing the division that its designation had been changed from STRAC (Strategic Army Corps) to ARSTRIKE (Army Strike Command) explained that it was due to technicalities in the Army System.

STRAC's history goes back to its creation as a single corps in May, 1958.

In February, 1962, STRAC became a dual corps when the III Corps joined with the XVIII Airborne Corps and became a part of STRAC.

When the United States STRIKE Command was created in January, 1962, all the combat units of the dual-corps STRAC were assigned to Army Strike Command (ARSTRIKE), the Army element of the joint Army-Air Force command.

STRIKE Command with headquarters at McDill Air Force Base in Tampa, Fla. was created to provide combat-ready ground and tactical air forces which can be rapidly deployed when needed.

The word "STRAC" has become synonymous in Army jargon with the highest caliber of soldierly traits.

It is nothing for the observer to hear a well-uniformed soldier being told he is "STRAC."

The term has even been so widely accepted as to be found in official correspondence. The camouflage cover worn on the steel helmets of division soldiers has long been referred to as a "STRAC-Cover" in the Army's glossary of jargon.

ARSTRIKE units only come under the command of STRIKE in the actual event of a contingency. At all other times, the units remain under the control of the continental armies to which they are assigned.

Troops Conquer Chattahoochee

Training Said to Be 'Extensive'

By JIM LULL

Elements of the 2nd Infantry Division this week began to learn the techniques and fundamentals of river crossing and assault.

The 2nd Engineer battalion is conducting the training for divisional infantry battalions.

Training this week was conducted for the benefit of the 1st Battalion 9th Infantry.

The 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry, and the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry are slated for river training next week.

More Complex

The two-day river assault training is more complex this year than it has been in the past, according to engineer officials.

The first day, following a conference period and introduction to equipment through demonstrations, the various infantry units are given a practical maneuver on the still waters of Victory Pond in the Harmony Church area.

The following day, before the sun comes up, the men are taken to the banks of the Chattahoochee River near Lawson Field, where they tackle the current in a predawn test.

The men cross the water in river assault boats under combat conditions. A blanketing smoke screen goes up, and simulated water mines are exploded near the crafts.

Aggressor Force

Once the men arrive on far banks, they unload and are met by an aggressor force, supplied by the engineer's Company C.

"The infantrymen are shown the proper methods in handling the various assault rafts," explained Maj. H/ D. Matheney, training and operations chief of the 2nd Engineer Battalion.

"One thing we try to impress upon the people we train is the various engineer support they could expect in time of combat," he said.

A demonstration showing the ability of the light and heavy tactical rafts is also given.

Light Rafts

The light rafts send a five-ton bridge truck afloat, and the heavy, more durable rafts are used to support an M-48 tank on the water.

Capt. Allen Tobiason, Company A, heads up the entire program as the project officer.

Division Gets 62 Stripes For Handout

Capt. B. W. Holbert, recently announced that 62 allocations for promotion had been given the 2nd Infantry Division for the month of March.

Holbert is the chief of the division's personnel management branch.

There were no allocations for E-9, one for E-8, two for E-7, 31 for E-6 and 28 for E-4.

According to Holbert the division's share of allocations was on a par with January and February allocations.

He said the division had "been receiving more before the first of the year" however.

According to personnel management spokesmen, the 1st Brigade and Division Artillery each were given an E-7 allocation. They added that the division was convening a promotion board to decide the recipient of the only E-8 [illegible]

'Indianheads Alerted For Montgomery Civil Crises

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Some 70 2nd Infantry Division soldiers remained on duty here Thursday as part of the composite force providing security for the civil rights march from Selma.

Col. John Armstrong, the headquarters staff of his 3rd Brigade and small teams of specialists were called to Montgomery last Saturday along with two active army military police battalions and federalized portions of the Alabama National Guard.

Throughout the week a reinforced battalion of some 1,000 men under the leadership of Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow Jr., commander of the 1st Brigade, stood ready at Fort Benning, prepared to assist if required.

2nd Infantry Division officials expressed satisfaction with the alert posture of the division force assembled at times on Knight Field, ready in the event they were called.

In the past several years division forces have been alerted for civil disturbance [illegible] ingham, Ala. and Oxford, Miss.

As the 2nd Infantry Division News goes to press, officials were still unable to estimate when the division would be taken off the alert status or when the "Indianheads" presently in Alabama would return.

MAH Bridge Out Say 2nd Engineers

The temporary T-6 bridge, that spanned the Upatoi Creek near the Martin Army Hospital, has been dismantled and removed as engineer officials await the construction of a permanent type structure in the near future.

The bridge taken out will be used at the Americo Trail bridge site in the 2nd Division area, however the construction date has not been set.

The bridge provided an effective flow of traffic along Santa Fe Road for slightly more than two months. It was not anticipated at the time the bridge was assembled that it would have to function as long as it eventually did.

A permanent structure will be built by civilian contractors in the near future, division engineer officials said.

MP's Scramble

Division Police Test New CP Defense Idea

By DAN SWEENEY

The 2nd Infantry Division's Military Police Company came out of CPX Winter Sun II recently with a new "trump card" for their military bag of tricks.

Throughout the three day exercise, rifles chattered, sirens sounded and men scurried as the MP's tested a new CONARC idea for guarding and protecting the division command post in combat.

Elements of the Military Police charged with the security of the division's headquarters employed their rapid reaction elements as the command post came under aggressor attack.

First Time

"This is the first time the Military Police have assumed responsibility for the security of the headquarters," said Maj. James Riley, assistant Provost Marshal.

The responsiility formerly belonged to the Headquarters Commandant section but the communications network was not sufficinct to handle the job.

"The concept of Military Police being responsible for the security of the headquarters is new," Riley said, "and came as a result of a staff study at Continental Army Command Headquarters."

The idea, originally proposed by the now retired Provost Marshal chief, Maj. Gen. Ralph J. Butchers, was submitted to the army command for testing in strategic Army divisions.

Warning Sytem

The system under test by the division employs an early warning system that enables as many as two reaction forces located inside the lines to move rapidly to any sector of the perimeter coming under fire.

It features a network of radio and telephone communication which triggers an alarm system for the reactionary force. "The system worked quite well," Riley commented, "in our first test and I have every reason to believe the concept will be quite successful."

The operation took place under the scrutiny of two officials of the Combat Developments Committee at Fort Gordon, Georgia. Maj. Ben Yarbrough and Maj. Robert Reinke.

Possible Use

The officers were evaluating the concept for possible use at the Military Police school's program of instruction.

Capt. DeWitt Hudson, commander of the Military Police Company and escort for the visiting officials said "their comments were quite favorable.

"Of coure they looked at a number of other areas in our operation, but they seemed to be favorably impressed."

Col. Burnside Huffman, the division's chief of staff assuringly commented "it looks like we're finally making some money."

Army Suggestion Program

Cash for Money Savers?--Maybe

The on again, off again practice of cash awards for money-saving suggestions by service personnel is on again, an article in the Dec. 16 issue of the Army Times states.

An article by Times staff writer Bob Schweitz claims that only a month ago the idea was nixed by the Defense Department because of prior difficulty in identifying authors of the suggestions.

This dilemma was laid to frequent reassignments of service personnel.

Now Defense has "done an about face" and will back the same sort of incentives program that failed to pass Congress in a bill last year, the story says.

Up to $25,000

"The House - passed bill (which failed in the Senate) would have allowed military men to win cash up to $25,000 for their suggestions. The Defense Department backed this bill after many months of soul-searching and after a press conference statement by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara that he would consider such support. The bill was introduced by former Rep. Roland Libonati (Dem., Ill.) who did not run for reelection.

"Civilian employees of the Department of Defense have long received cash awards and military men have, for the most part, gotten only letters of commendation."

The remainder of the Times story reads:

"In some cases, particularly in the Air Force, some men have been paid from non - appropriated funds but these funds have been quite limited and the prizes have been small.

72nd Armor Fielded For Readiness Test

Second Division troops again were in the backwoods of the Fort Benning Reservation last week undergoing a test of readiness.

This time it was the 1st battalion of the 72nd Armor that fielded for their annual Operational Readiness Test. Officials of the division and 3rd Brigade headquarters are finding out how the battalion would fair in a combat situation. And an aggressor was to trigger an assimulated war this morning.

The battalion, consisting of about 450 enlisted men and 35 officers, marched out of garrison Thursday morning to begin the test which involved portions of three days. The test ended last Saturday.

Directing the Test

Third Brigade Commander Col. John W. Armstrong directed the test while brigade executives officer, Lt. Col. William H. Cox, controlled the play.

War games today put the battalion to its fullest test, according to Col. Cox, under the assumption that a mythical Red Army landed in Phenix City and began aggressive action by coming across the Chattahoochee, a boundary between Redland and Blueland.

Aggressor strength was furnished by one mechanized infantry platoon and a mortar and recon platoon of the 1st battalion, 9th infantry, and a recon platoon from the 1st battalion, 23rd Infantry.

702nd PFC Commended for Traveler Aid

By DAVE BUMAN

If you've ever tried to cash a check in a strange town, you can well imagine the trouble you'd have if you couldn't speak the language.

That's the trouble three sergeants from the Laotian Army were having when they met PFC James L. Tucker of Headquarters and A Company, 702nd Maintenance Battalion.

Enroute from a tour in Thailand, Tucker was waiting for a train in Chicago, Illinois, when he spotted the three Laotian uniforms across the station.

Native Tongue

Having learned the language and customs of these people from his duty in southeast Asia, Tucker walked up to the men and spoke to them in their native tongue.

At first the Laotians were startled to hear their language spoken, but Tucker quickly explained his knowledge and asked if he could help them in any way.

The three explained that they were on their way back to Laos after attending an Army technical school at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland, and that their embassy had given them a check for $290 for their return trip, but they couldn't get it cashed.

Situation

After sizing up the situation, Tucker translated the Laotians problem to the people at the Travelers Aid Society, located in the train station.

From here, the Red Cross was called in, and although they still couldn't cash the check, the Laotians received enough money on loan from the Red Cross to get them to Travis Air Force Base, California, where they were finally able to cash the check.

The Travelers Aid Society was so impressed with the way Tucker handled the problem and helped the Laotians with their language barrier, that they sent a letter of appreciation to him through Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, who in turn passed the letter to Col. Fred O. Jackson, commanding officer of the division's Support Command.

In the presentation of the letter to Tucker, Col. Jackson complimented him on his part to further American relations, and called him an "ambassador in uniform".

From the Ground Up

1st of 9th Unit Learns 'To Walk--Then Run'

"Learning to walk and then run" is the present schedule of training for members of Company C, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry.

When the unit participated in Exercise Air Assault II, they assumed the role of armored aggressors. Before the Air Assault exercise began the unit practiced armor tactics using their armored personnel carriers as simulated tanks.

According to commander Capt. Harold J. Cloutier, Company C is "learning the tactics of the mechanized infantry from the ground up."

Basic squad tactics, command and control of tracked vehicles and offensive and defensive tactics form the nucleus of the company's field training.

Officials say it is a part of the battalion's policy to get its companies into the field for training.

According to a battalion training spokesman the type of training is left to the discretion of the units. It is being conducted in preparation readiness tests at Fort Stewart, Ga., next month.

Training officials at the battalion's headquarters are providing training aids in order to make the company training as realistic as possible.

'Manchu' Battalion Deals Air Medal at Ceremony

The 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry held its monthly awards ceremony Friday afternoon in a training area near the battalion headquarters.

The Senior Parachutist's Badge was given to Capt. Basil N. Apostle, of the battalion's S-3 (training and operations) section.

Sp4 George Johnson Jr., Company A, was named the "Manchu" battalion soldier of the month. The squad leader of the month award went to Sgt. Carlton Hayes of Headquarters Company.

Headquarters Company also provided the top driver for March, in the person of PFC James Fields.

Company C was given the top mess hall award, and headquarters Company took the best overall company award for the past month.

Seven enlisted men were then given the mechanic's badge, and 29 more accepted the driver's badge.

Gen Coffin Leaves Relic for Div Museum

Departing assistant division commander, Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin was handed the sword by a major of the German Army in Heidleberg on an April morning in 1945 shortly after the allies had occupied the city.

An order was broadcast that all Germans were to discard their weapons and surrender. Severe punishment was promised to those found carrying any sort of weapon.

The German officer spotted Coffin, then lieutenant colonel, and a companion, marched up to him and presented him with a sword in the classical manner of surrender.

Later when the German officer had been turned over to authorities, Coffin wondered what to do with the sword. His companion, a Col. Spivey suggested he "keep it."

Keep it he did, for almost two decades. Since that April day the "light colonel" progressed from his Heidelberg assignment through the post commander to the post he will assume with Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers, Europe (SHAPE), and he kept it until recently when it was presented to the museum in a farewell gesture.

According to Sgt. James Cheevers, division museum curator, the sword will make a fine addition to the museum. He says that they are fairly rare as they were issued in limited numbers and only to field grade officers.

Coffin also presented the museum with a more recent memento, the sign bearing his title during the air assault evaluation last fall. Gen. Coffin was the exercise director for the test.

37th First Sgt. Ends 20-Year Service Career

In a brief ceremony held recently at Battery A, 37th Artillery, 1st Sgt. William L. Welsch retired after more than twenty years service.

During the ceremony, Sgt. Welsch was presented a second oak leaf cluster to the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious service as first sergeant of Battery A during the past year. Making the presentation was Capt. Michael F. Davis, commanding officer of Battery A.

Welsch started his service career with the Navy in July, 1941 where he attained the rank of chief petty officer.

2nd Engineers Give AIT Lesson On Land Mines

BY JIM LULL

The 2nd Engineer Battalion gave the 131 advanced individual trainees assigned to the 1st Battalion, 22rd Infantry a thorough indoctrination in land mine warfare Monday, as the trainees progressed into their second full week of infantry schooling.

The land mine training took place at St. Mary's Demolition Range, recently reconditioned by the 2nd Engineer's 1st platoon of Company A.

The day's instruction began with a three-hour orientation program, familiarizing the men with the types of mines they will use, various mine fields, as well as an introduction to the aiming and disarming of the Claymore weapon (aimed fragmentation grenade.)

The infantry trainees then advanced to the practical training phase, with the "county-fair" type stations employed.

Project officer, Lt. Theodore N. Wright, explained that five stations were used to fully acquaint the student soldiers with land mine warfare.

"It certainly was a worthwhile instruction period," Wright said. "This is an exceptional group of trainees — most responsive. The questions they asked during the day were very good."

S & T Wins 4th Top Soldier Award

Support Command's Supply and Transport Battalion has captured the Soldier of the Month award for the fourth consecutive month, giving them a six out of seven record.

Sp4 Talmadge H. Heath, a wheeled vehicle mechanic at Company B was chosen as the top soldier for the month of March, and picked up a $20 Savings bond for his soldiering.

From here, Heath will compete with representatives from major units in the division to determine the division's best soldier.

Wartime Romance Grows Into Twenty Years As Wife of Army Officer for British Born Lady

By ALICE WITTER

Many elements of the wartime romance movies that portray World War II are present in the real - life story of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Herbert R. Hill.

Col. Hill, commander of the 6th Battalion, 37th Artillery, met Barbara Lowe in England during the war where he was assigned with an artillery unit in 1943.

"Bobbie," born in Bradford - on - Avon, Wiltshire (eighty miles from that better known city on the Avon) was in the Auxiliary Territorial Service assigned to an antiaircraft battalion in the Royal Artillery.

After Herb was sent to Germany, Bobbie volunteered to go overseas hoping that she might be stationed near him. However, the plan was thwarted when she was sent to Antwerp, Belgium instead.

When the war ended Bobbie hoped to be released so that they might be married, but the service was releasing women only gradually and had other plans for her.

Bobbie, along with five others, was slated to go to India. With Herb in Germany and Bobbie in England and on orders for India, it looked as though true love would not win out.

The Red Cross played Cupid by coordinating Bobbie's leave with Herb's, and they finally were able to get married.

Once married, Bobbie needed her husband's permission to be sent to India. Since he wasn't ready to oblige the Service in this respect, she was returned to England and was released after having served three years.

In December of 1945, Herb was returned to the States and was released from the Army. During this period Bobbie had to remain in England until May of 1946.

Settling down as owners of an orchard in Berryville, Arkansas, they lived a quiet existence. Bobbie, with her lovely British accent, says she "took to raising chickens, but it didn't last long — too much work for too little pay." She enjoyed the beautiful country but found it terribly lonely.

Their first son, Robert, was born in 1948, and shortly thereafter, Herb decided to return to military life. He was sent to Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

In 1949, Bobbie returned to England for a visit, and while there in her hometown, that second son, Dale, was born.

When Herb was sent to Korea in 1951, Bobbie and the boys remained at Fort Sill. When Herb returned to the States, he was reassigned to a unit at Fort Sill.

He remained to attend the Advanced Artillery Course. Bobbie still has a soft spot in her heart for Fort Sill. She received her American citizenship there.

When Captain Hill was sent to England without concurrent travel in July 1954, Bobbie and the children went to St. Louis to visit friends and await a port call. By October 1954 they were all together in London.

Their second year was spent at a base in Brize-Norton in Oxfordshire, not far from her parents. They returned to London for their third year.

After returning to the States, they proceeded to the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, where another son, Nathan, was born. Following the course, they went to Fort Hood, Texas, with the 2nd Missile Command, they remained there for ten months.

From 1959 to 1960 they were stationed at Fort Carson, Colorado. The beauty of the area impressed them so that they bought five acres of land and have tentative plans of retiring there.

The year of 1962 was spent at the Language School at Monterey, California where Major Hill studied Greek, and where, in fact, they all were introduced to Greek food and culture in anticipation of a tour in Greece.

The two-and-a-half years that Major Hill spent as Artillery adviser to the Greek Army constituted a wonderful tour for all the Hills. Mrs. Hill particularly was impressed by the lovely climate and the excellent American Academy School for all American children in the Athens area.

In August 1964 they returned to the States. Lt. Col. Hill assumed command of the battalion in September.

The two hobbies Bobbie has enjoyed most in the past but is unable to enjoy now are gardening and sculpting. While in Greece she took advantage of the opportunities to take courses in sculpting and has some lovely pieces in her home. But lacking a garage, basement or spare room for a workshop, she has been unable to continue since her return to the States.

As for gardening she flashes her warm smile and says realistically that "children and gardens don't mix" and there's hardly space for both.

Even after twenty years of "Americanizing," she has not lost the clarity and precision of speech that makes the British accent so pleasant.

G-1 Ladies Meet At Service Center

The ladies of the G-1 Section met for coffee recently at the Second Division Family Service Center.

Hostesses for the coffee were Mrs. L. M. Jackson, Mrs. S. W. Emsley, Mrs. A. F. Grenier, Mrs. J. S. Brigham and Mrs. G. Warren.

A newcomer, Mrs. R. G. Booth, was welcomed to the group.

A short business meeting were held and plans were made for the April Headquarters coffee when G-1 ladies will serve as hostesses.

The table was decorated with a lovely centerpiece of spring flowers. A variety of delicious cakes and cookies was served along with coffee and tea.

'Manchu' Wives Given 'Red Carpet' Welcome

A recent highlight of the March coffee of the officers' wives of the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry was a "red carpet" tour of the battalion area.

The "Manchu" men welcomed the ladies with coffee and refreshments served in Company B Mess Hall. In the center of the serving table was a specially decorated cake prepared by the cooks of Company B. Surrounding the cake and lending a masculine note to capture the spirit of the morning were four bronze infantrymen statuettes accented with ivy foliage.

During the coffee Mrs. Alfred J. Millard conducted a short business meeting and presented farewell gifts to Mrs. Frank L. Richmond and Mrs. Don A. Schwab. Special guest attending the morning event was Mrs. William Appel, Mrs. Millard's sister.

At the start of the tour Lt. Col. Alfred J. Millard, battalion commander, greeted and spoke briefly to the attending wives. Under the guidance of Major Thomas N. Britton, Jr., the ladies visited a company mess kitchen, troop barracks, the S-4 office, and the dispensary.

An outstanding feature of the tour was a visit to the 9th Infantry Museum where the unit's foremost trophy, the Liscum Bowl, is displayed. The ladies also visited the Motor Pool and given a ride in an M-113 Armored Personnel Carrier.

72nd Armor Tankers End Gunnery Testing

BY HANK ALLISON

Men of the 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor Monday completed their preliminary gunners exam in preparation for the firing of Tank Gunnery Qualification Tables at Fort Stewart next month.

The 15-part examination tests the men in all facets of maintenance and preparation for firing of the weapons system of their M-48A-1P 52 ton tanks.

Very important in the tests is the "bore sighting" portion. Here, the men must line the bore of the 90 mm main tank gun up with the sight to insure accuracy.

Machine Guns

Other parts of the test include adjusting the electrically-fired .30 and .50 cal. machine guns so that they will fire at peak performance.

Lt. James H. Barfoot, the officer in charge of administering the tests said, "All our men must be cross-trained to do any job necessary to operating the tanks. These tanks carry a four man crew and we want to make sure that the loss of one man will not disable an otherwise functional tank."

Before taking the tests the men had received almost 70 hours of training in the subjects involved. "Passing this test is a prerequisite to the actual live-fire qualification at Fort Stewart next month," said Barfoot.

"If a man should fail one of the 15 areas involved in this test he would not be eligible to fire at Fort Stewart until he was re-tested."

Eight Phase Test

When the battalion moves to Fort Stewart for live fire testing they will progress through an eight phase test involving both moving and stationary targets. They will also fire both day and night problems.

The hardest part of these tests will be the night firing and the course incorporating movement and firing.

During the movement course the "tankers" encounter different types of targets and must decide which weapon or combinations of weapons to use on them.

ARTILLERY AGGRESSORS
"Keeping Them on Their Toes"

'El Capitan' and Guerillas Harass 17th Arty Training

FORT GORDON, Ga. — In a secluded corner of this Northeast Georgia post lurks a 14 man guerrilla force committed to the "sabotage and destruction" of the 17th Artillery.

The 17th, under the command of Lt. Col. Glen W. Smith, has been practicing here this month for the Army Training Tests to be administered next week.

The aggressor forces under the command of "El Capitan" (Capt. Roger L. Lieux, Division Artillery Chemical Officer) will attack the 17th as they move on the read, at night while they are sleeping and any other time "we can catch them off guard."

"Our objective," said Lieux, "is to find them with their guard down, then move in causing as much damage as possible before retreating to the woods."

The "aggressors have "captured" an Army L-19 airplane which they reportedly plan to use against the artillerymen.

Far back in the wooded area used as a staging point by the insurgents, "El Capitan" explained his plans for harassing the U.S. troops. "Last time we only had six men and we succeeded in inflicting heavy damage on the U. S. forces. This time we are reinforced both with men and weapons, including chemicals for gas attacks."

The 17th Artillery will return to Fort Benning after completing their Army Training Tests on March 30th. The next unit to test at Fort Gordon will be the 37th Artillery under the command of Lt. Col. Herbert R. Hill. The 12th Artillery, the Division's only rocket battalion (Honest John) will take their tests on the Fort Benning reservation sometime in April.

Mabry Departs Division For Vietnam Assignment

Warrant Officer (W2) James R. Mabry, who for several months has been the administrative officer in the office of the Chief of Staff, last week departed the 2nd Division for an eventual assignment in Vietnam.

Col. Burnside E. Huffman, Chief of Staff, paused from his work for a few minutes Friday with Mabry's co-workers, friends and former bosses for a coffee and cake farewell.

Mabry has been with the division since October 1962. Since then he has filled the positions of unit personnel officer in the 5th Battalion, 38th Infantry, and as Division Funds Officer in the Office of the Inspector General.

He took over his most recent job in the office of the Chief of Staff in October of last year.

In a citation that Col. Huffman presented to Mabry, he was praised for his work in each of these jobs.

As administrative officer, the citation stated that "in this position he demonstrated a sincere sense of loyalty and an outstanding degree of ingenuity and versatility."

"If he did the job for you that he did for me, we'll sure miss him," Col. Huffman told Mabry's former bosses.

Mabry is taking a three week delay and is staying with his family in Atlanta before going to Vietnam. He'll be assigned as an administrative officer in a communications office on the Joint Staff in Saigon.

Mabry is a graduate of the University of South Carolina where he majored in business administration. His wife, Dorothy, and two daughters will live in Atlanta.

Lt. William A. Chubb, the division postal officer for the past eight months, has taken over Mabry's administrative job.

Chubb, who was commissioned and came on active duty in February of last year, graduated in the ROTC program at The Citadel in Charleston, South Carolina. He was a political science major.

Chubb attended the Adjutant General's course at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana from February to June and was then assigned as the division postal officer. He comes from Youngstown, Ohio.

ACM Goes To Former 11th AA Technician

Sgt. Rodney H. Rollinson, Company A, 702nd Maintenance Battalion, has been presented the Army Commendation Medal for service with Detachment B, 711th Maintenance Battalion, 11th Air Assault Division Support Command.

From May 1963 until March 1965, Rollison served as maintenance platoon sergeant.

1st Brigade CO Deals Awards To Marksmen

An awards ceremony to honor the 1st Brigade's small bore marksmen gave brigade commander, Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow the opportunity to extemporize on the subject of marksmanship and the job of the soldier.

"We have a primary mission," said the colonel, "the only reason we exist —to direct accurate fire on the enemy. If that fire isn't good, our mission is not complete."

He made note of the fact that 13 of the 16 teams entered in the elimination matches qualified to shoot in the division finals later this month.

The top rifle award was presented to the 1st Brigade's Headquarters Company A, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry.

Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry took the top pistol award while Company C was the runner up.

In his final remarks Snow said he believed "in awards ceremonies and marksmanship — now let's do our best in the division matches."

Maintenance Platoon Claims Self-Sufficiency

By DAVE BUMAN

"We can do anything with nothing" seems to be the motto of a small outfit with a big mission; the Service and Recovery platoon of Company, A 702nd Maintenance Battalion.

According to the book, their mission reads "To provide maintenance of all division material except medical and cryptographic equipment," but from welders to carpenters, the men of A company can tell you it means a lot of work.

Machine Shop

In the machine shop, the platoon has the capability of fabricating any metal part. This capability is put to work producing small vehicle parts that may leave a vehicle on deadline for a month or more while that part is on order. The section boasts that it has the equipment to reproduce all the equipment it has.

From stock material, the canvas shop can fabricate a tent or a 2½ ton truck top. The men in canvas repair are the "seamstresses" of the division, and their sewing machines stitch tents, ammunition covers, truck tops, tarpaulins, and even chain covers. They also put together the canvas cover on Support Command's symbol; the 1917 covered wagon — standing in front of the headquarters building.

Boasts Only Vehicle

The platoon also boasts the only vehicle in the division large enough to haul the 56 ton, M-88 tank recovery vehicle. Looking like the "jolly green giant" of the truck world, the M-123 tractor-transporter hoists the M-88 on its back with ease.

The section is also equipped with wreckers and crews to bring home and repair any vehicle in the division broken down along the road or in the field.

In addition to these capabilities, the Service and Recovery platoon also operates a painting and carpentery shop which puts out everything from shiny quarter-tons and "deuce-and-a-halfs" to cabinets and shelves.

The platoon's welding shop turns out everything from vehicle body work to battery boxes. And it's not uncommon for them to repair 40 radiators a month and make a few signs, too, according shop workers.

Engineers Give 23rd Trainees Show in Demolitions, Explosives

By Jim Lall

Demolitions and explosives training was given the advanced individual trainees of the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry by the 2nd Engineer Battalion last week at St. Mary's range, near the engineer battalion area.

The officer in charge of the training from the engineer's Company A, Lt. Douglas Mack, explained the training. "First we showed them the types of explosives they would use — and then gave them an opportunity to use the time fusing devices."

The training was carried out to meet an infantry requirement for training in demolitions.

The men were sent through a four-hour instruction period, that took the place of a normal 24-hour instruction block in the demolitions phase of infantry training.

Military Explosives

The trainees were given instruction in three various types of military explosives.

Composition Four, an amazing explosive that can be molded by hand was introduced to the men, and they were given an opportunity to form the shape of the explosive matter, and later set it off with blasting caps.

Military stick dynamite and TNT in the block form were the other two types they ignited.

A point of emphasis during the morning was the difference between electric and non-electric blasting caps. Practical instruction in this field followed.

Preceeding the actual field training with the potent explosives, the trainees were given a lecture type introduction to what they would be using, and how to handle the materials safely.

At the conclusion of the activity, a demonstration featuring the Bangelore explosive — capable of breeching mine fields and barb wire fencing areas—was presented.

Mack said the material "was presented well — and taken well by the trainees.

"I think they all had a basic understanding how to cap and fuse the various explosives by the end of the morning."

DivArty Soldiers Test Viet Gun

By HANK ALLISON

A captured Viet Cong anti-aircraft gun was the subject of testing and training for 19 division artillerymen at a Florida Air Froce Base.

The men, recently returned from Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., spent a month-long period working with the modified 50 - caliber machine gun. The gun was used by the United States Army in Korea where it was captured and eventually found its way into the Vietnam hostilities.

According to spokesmen for the Foreign Technology Branch at Eglin, the modified Korean war weapon was credited with shooting down a B-26 bomber presently in use in Viet Nam.

Modified

The machine - gun, originally manufactured by the Browning Arms Company, had been modified by the Chinese. It now employs a special sighting device and a Russian built tripod — enabling the gunner to stand while firing the weapon.

The sighting device drew most of the interest. An Air Force spokesman said "this is something unique, we had never seen anything like it before."

The device, presumed to be the result of Chinese craftsmanship, is a two man system to track and direct accurate fire on moving aircraft. The gunner aims and fires the weapon while the assistant gunner tracks the plane on the calibrated sight and sets the proper lead to compensate for the moving aircraft.

On Loan

The weapon, on loan from the Aberdeen, Md. Proving Grounds, was fitted with cameras enabling the test team to take pictures as they aimed and fired the weapon. Th pictures are designed to indicate the accuracy of the weapon. The Air Force would not disclose the results of the firing.

Second Division men also tested the effectiveness of M-14 rifles and M-60 machine guns — the basic weapons of today's Army — against aircraft.

The two men chosen to operate the captured Viet Cong machine gun in the actual tests were PFC Charles N. Cole and Pvt. John Ward of Batteries B and A of the 37th Artillery.

The weapons were used against different aircraft — jets, transports, and helicopters — said the Air Force. "We wanted to know how accurate the weapon would be on aircraft at different speed and ranges," spokesmen concluded.

Medical Battalion PFC Takes Army Income Loss

A private first class in the 2nd Medical Battalion went to work for the Army nine months ago and took a slight reduction in salary.

PFC Ronald Rhar was making $750 per month as a professional ball player. Now the member of the battalion's Company A, is making slightly less but still keeping his arm in shape and waiting for the time when spring arrives and a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of baseball Florida and spring training.

After graduating from Portville, N. Y. Central High in 1960, Rahr signed a monthly contract with the Pittsburg Pirates for $500, as a pitcher.

After training with the team for a year, he shipped out to Jacksonville Beach, Florida for spring training, and his first chance to play against some of the bigger names in baseball. At the end of his first double A season Rahr pitched a 10-7 record.

"The money was good, but we had to work for it" says Rahr. "Since I'm a pitcher I had to work mostly on my endurance. A guy can be a great pitcher, but if he can't make it through the game he isn't much good. Every day we had physical training, bunting practice, and of course pitching practice."

During his second year of pro ball, Rahr pitched against the Yankees, the Mets, the Red Sox and the Dodgers to name a few. He also got a raise of $250 a month; Then he was drafted.

Now he plans to pitch for the 2nd Division team to keep in shape until he can return to the Pirates in 19666.

Rahr was also offered some College scholarships after high school, but he feels he'd like pro-ball a little more than college ball.

Smile--You're on. . .

BY DAVE BUMAN

PFC Edward F. Rumsey of Headquarters and Service company, 2nd Medical Battalion, was waiting in Kennedy Airport, New York, for a flight back to Columbus after winding up a leave at his home in Waterloo, N. Y.

A good looking young woman approached him and asked him if he would carry her bag across the terminal for her.

Rumsey picked up the bag saying he'd be more than happy to help her out. But as he started to walk with the bag, it kept shifting back and forth against his leg as if it had something alive in it.

Rumsey asked the woman what she had in it and she answered, "a hair dryer. "Well, you must have left it on the way this thing's jumping around," said the soldier.

After a few yards, the woman changed her mind, and asked Rumsey to put the bag on a luggage carriier. But as he lifted it up, it flopped out of his hand by itself and bounced onto the carrier. At that, Rumsey just stood there with his mouth open as the woman said, "Turn around and smile, you're on candid camera."

As it turned out, the suitcase contained a gyroscope, and whenever the center of gravity was moved, it would right itself, causing the suitcase to flop back and forth.

The show is scheduled for Columbus on the 28th of March at 10 p.m. for those who'd like to see the 2nd Infantry Division in action.

'Tactics' Highlight Copley Promotion in CG's Office

By LANNY THOMAS

Promotions in rank for deserving individuals of the 2nd Infantry Division seem to come at any time, place or type of ceremony.

Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, commanding general employed his own presentation tactics Saturday morning in the promotion of his secretary - stenographer to the grade of Sp6.

The general took a few minutes off from his busy schedule and in his office pinned the stripes on the new Sp6 Cecil W. Copley. With the aid of Lt. Jack Wheeler and Capt. John C. Farley, Gen. Chiles' aides, he popped a complete surprise on Copley who had no idea of what was taking place.

Copley had worked late the night before and had been taking kidding from the aides about typographical errors on his work. When suddenly called into Gen. Chiles' office to take dictation on what was believed to be a press release, Copley found himself the focal point of the meeting.

Members of the press called in, for they knew not what, also were taken by surprise.

After an apparent preplanned conference with his aides, Gen. Chiles joked briefly about the typographical errors. He then pulled from his pockets a set of Sp6 stripes and pinned them on Copley.

Gen. Chiles remarked, "This is a well-deserved promotion, Copley, and I congratulate you."

"It's wonderful," Copley later remarked.

Copley has been the general's steno since last December. Prior to then he performed identical duties for Brig. Gen. Edmund W. Mueller, Assistant Division Commander.

He has seven years of service behind him and during the early part of his career was an MP stationed in Okinawa. However, he got into the administrative field last year and attended the course at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana from February to June.

Copley came to the 2nd Division last October from Fort Gordon, Ga., where he worked as a court reporter.

Copley, his wife, Elizabeth, and three young daughters, live at 3911 South Linden Drive, Columbus.

Awards, Medals Highlight 2nd Engineer Ceremony

An Army Commendation Medal, a certificate of achievement and four letters of commendation highlighted a 2nd Engineer Battalion review and awards ceremony Saturday morning at Marshall Bowl Field.

Lt. Col. Alfred L. Grieblng, 2nd Engineer Battalion commander, first presented MSgt. Floyd H. Bowman of headquarters company the Army Commendation Medal (1st Oak Leaf Cluster) for "exceptional leadership ability in directing and supervising motor maintenance functions."

For service as unit training non - commissioned officer, speed radio operator and light truck driver while with the 7th Infantry Division at Camp Casey, Korea, Sp4 Michael McKeown was presented a certificate of achievement.

In a division letter signed by Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, division commander, four members of the engineer battalion that were members of the presidential cordon during the inaugural ceremonies this January were given letters of commendation, complimenting them on their appearance, conduct and performance during the ceremony.

Pay Bill Would Give Div Soldiers 11 Per Cent Increase

Passage of the latest pay increase bill presently before the Congress could give the 2nd Infantry Division PFC as much as a $20 pay raise each month.

House Armed Services chairman, Mendel L. Rivers has proposed a one billion dollar pay bill which will increase army pay an average of 10.7 per cent.

According to a recent Army Times article, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara favors a pay raise which would hike the soldier's military compensation and only raise his pay by three per cent. His proposals are presently being studied by the President's pay panel.

Increased Allowances

The McNamara proposal would have the chief benefit in the form of increased quarters and subsistence allowances according to the Times article.

Under the provisions of the Rivers bill, the enlisted man would get an average pay increase of $16 a month. This would represent an increase of 13 to 33 per cent.

Enlisted men with more than two years in service would get an average pay increase of $28 a month, or 11.2 per cent.

The bill provides for a $55 a month raise for officers with less than two years service, an increase of 22 per cent. Officers with more than two years service would get $42 a month or an increase of 6.4 per cent.

"Effective"

"The bill makes no change in special pay and allowances," the article said. "It only affects base pay. It would become effective the first dale of those who defend month after enactment."

The article quotes Rivers as saying his bill "will enable Congress and the American people to insure that every military family will share equitably in America's prosperity. It will enable our military families to live as 'First Class citizens.' It is consistent with President Johnson's announced intention to 'take whatever steps both human equity and national defense require to enhance the ma-

16 Teams Vying for 2nd Division Volleyball Crown

By MARV WOLF

Kimbro Gymnasium was the scene of volleyball activity this week as the annual company level volleyball tournament got underway Monday night. It will run through April 13.

A 2nd Medical Battalion team and a Marksmanship Detachment team survived the first rounds of play on Monday night while winners in Tuesday's competition were the Supply and Transport Battalion, 2nd Engineer Battalion, and the 702nd Maintenance Battalion.

The medics lost out to the 2nd Aviation Battalion in the first game of their set Monday night, 15-4. However they turned the tables and won the match with 15-6 and 15-7 wins in the second and third rounds.

Marksmen Win

The marksmen won the first set over Company C, 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry, 15-12, but lost out in the second round, 15-12. A score of 15-8 in the third set gave the marksmen the match. One game Monday night was postponed.

In Tuesay night's action, the 2nd S & T won the first two rounds over the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry, 161-14, and 15-12, to take the match.

The 184th Chemical won the first round with the 2nd Engineer Battalion by forfeit. However the engineers charged into the tournament to win the match with 15-13 and 15-9 victories in the two sets that were played.

The 702nd team dumped the MPs in the first two rounds, 15-9, and 15-6, to win the match.

16 Teams Play

Men from sixteen company level teams are playing three games nightly on weekday evenings with the action beginning at 6:30, 7:30 and 8:30 for each respective game.

Admission to all games of the double elimination tourney is free. Although there is no favorite among the contenders at this time, competition has been extremely fierce as the winner and runner-up will represent the 2nd Division in the post level competition to be held April 20th.

The winner in post competition will represent Fort Benning in the Third Army ournament at Fort McClellan Alabama.

The tournament is sponsored by the 2nd Division Special Services Office. In addition to supplying colored jerseys to the competing teams, the Special Services Office is furnishing three groups of officials to impartially administer the play.

Moore, Robinson Stand Out in All Stars; Cagers Drop Fort McClellan in Scrimmage

By LANNY THOMAS

Fort Benning All Star basketballers this week were getting a final workout before charging into Third Army competition next week at Fort Jackson, S. C.

And judging from practice sessions and scrimmage, the 2nd Infantry Division's Dave Robinson and Henry Moore "will definitely" be on the 10-man All Star team to enter the tournament, according to Lt. Gerald Halpin, team coach.

In addition to Robinson and Moore, the 2nd Division is represented on the 14-man team with Charles Haynes and Jimmy Sedrick.

The cagers got a workout last week in a scrimage game with Fort McClellan and rang up a 110-79 victory. Lt. Halpin said he was "extremely pleased" with Moore's performance in this game. Robinson was injured early in the game and was unable to play the remainder.

Moore was top man on board work, pulling off 19 rebounds. He also neted 14 points, second highest on the team. Monty Clausen, of the 29th Infantry, led scoring with 18.

"More can outjump anybody on the team," says Lt. Halpin. "We have one man on the team who stands 6'7" and Moore can outjump him. He's a real hustle — keeps going after the ball that third and fourth time — has springs in his legs!

"He's a tremendous rebounder — probably the best on the team!"

Moore, 6'3", plays forward.

Although Robinson's injury, a cut on the head requiring stitches, held him out of practice several days, "he looked real good this week," Lt. Halpin said.

"He's hitting a good percentage of his shots. He's probably the best shot on the All Star Team. I'm really proud to have him on the team."

Both Hayes and Shedrick "have shown the drive needed to win" in scrimamage and practice, the lieutenant said. "If there's any one indication that we'll win in this tournament, it's the team spirit, drive and hustle. They're all putting their best foot foward."

Two games this week pitted the All - Stars against a tough Fort Campbell, Kentucky team in scrimmage play on main post. Those games were to be played Wednesday and Thursday nights.

"Our only disadvantage," Lt. Halpin said, "is that we have played only one game while Fort Campbell has been playing all year long."

Prior to entering the Third Army Tournament the Fort Benning team will be cut to 10 men. This elimination of four players will come later this week, according to the coach. Lt. Halpin had 30 players to choose from in the beginning.

Third Army competition will begin next Wednesday and will run through Sunday, April 4. To get the team ready, "I've been trying to run a few plays and patterns and work everybody together so they'll be familiar with one another," Lt. Halpin said. "Our primary defense will be man to man."

Lt. Halpin is the executive officer of Company A, 9th Battalion, 11th Infantry, of the 11th Air Assault Division. Prior to entering the Army he coached a high school basketball team in Oxford, Alabama.

The lieutenant, a native of Lineville, Ala., is a ROTC graduate of Jacksonville State College, Jacksonville, Ala.

11th AIR ASSAULT DIVISION

11TH AVIATION CARIBOU FLYS LOLEX MISSION
As A Portion Of Week Long Training Exercise

1st Aviation Company's Aviators Practice 'STOL' At Field Flight Training

"STOL" was the by word for the aviators of the 1st Aviation Company last week as the company displaced to Plains, Georgia for a week of flying training and practicing for ATT.

Under command of the acting company commander, the recently promoted Maj. Charles R. Jones, the unit moved out in a wheel convoy and Caribou convoy to Plains for the week of flight training and practice ATT.

The unit moved in and began setting up operations and maintenance while simultaneously beginning the flight training, to include instrument flying, low level cross country, LOLEX para drops for the Infantry School, with the emphasis on Short Take-off and Landings. This schedule was for both day and night.

Though interrupted one day due to high winds and terrential rains the training continued with extensive training the following day.

As always when the 1st Aviation Company trains, the two flight platoons begin a little friendly flying competition during the "STOL" work. This is designed to encourage the individual pilots to become more proficient at landing at a marked touchdown point on the field and stopping within the shortest distance possible without damaging the aircraft yet utilizing all of the Caribou's outstanding STOL characteristics. Also this procedure make for good conversation after the flying and there are many good and bad points discussed which all make for a better and more professional pilot for the 1st Aviation Company in keeping with its motto of "We Support." Also during the flight training the remainder of the unit continued to perform its duties of mess, maintenance, communications and operations.

The communicatons section headed by Capt. Holman Edmond set up and operated VHA and HF contact with the 37th Air Transport Battalion Headquarters at Fort Benning. Also the radio beacon was installed and approaches were drawn up for the pilots to practice. In addition the GCA (GRound Controlled Approach) Radar was in operation and operated by the 1st's expert controllers, Sp5 Richard L. Musall and Sp5 Kenneth Canning of the operations section.

Capt. Michael Jakab and his fine aircraft maintenance crews continued their around the clock care of the CV-2Bs so the training could continue uninterrupted for maximum utilization of the aircraft.

During the weeks training the company was visited by the 37th Battalion Commander, Lt. Col. John W. Lauterback, who termed the training as "highly rewarding and very essential for a unit to maintain its high standard of proficiency that is so necessary".

Gen.'s Aide Now Major

In a surprise ceremony held in the general's Mess, the aide de camp to the 11th Air Assault Division Commander was promoted to the rank of major.

Newly promoted Maj. Frank L. Henry had the insignia of his new rank pinned to his uniform by his boss, Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard and by his wife, Emma Lee.

After the orders of promotion were read and the insignia presented, Sgt. Maj. Chester R. Westervelt, division sergeant major, presented the new major with a gift of esteem from his fellow workers in the division headquarters. The 'gift' consisted of a large wrapped cigar and a poem.

After the ceremony a cake was cut and served to the guest at the affair, the officers of the division general and special staff.

228th Battalion Review Honors Vietnam Heroes

On Saturday, March 20, the 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion held a review at which awards were presented for service in Viet Nam. Col. George S. Beatty Jr., commanding officer of the 11th Aviation Group was the reviewing officer and also made the following presentations.

SP6 William P. Brown was presented the Bronze Star for Valor in Vietnam. While on a combat assault missior on aircraft in the flight was downed by enemy ground fire. At this time the aircraft in which Brown was flying landed and assisted in the rescue of the crew. With complete disregard for his own personal safety Brown aided the crew of the downed aircraft out of the area while under fire from the enemy ground forces. Brown's unselfish actions in this dangerous situation are in the highest traditions of the United States Army and reflect great credit upon himself and the military service.

SP4 Terry L. Bisbee was awarded the Purple Heart for wounds suffered while participating in counterinsurgency actions against the communist Viet Cong.

Army Commendation Medals were presented to Capt. Otto J. Hierholtzer, Capt. Jerry R. Mathews, CWO James T. Burnette, and SSgt. John W. Sackie for outstanding performance of their military duties. SSgt. Sackie was also presented the Air Medal for aerial flight in Vietnam.

The Air Medal for aerial flight in support of the ground forces in Vietnam was presented to SP5 Richard W. Hammondtree, SP4 Richard C. Delana, SP4 James M. Jarman, SP5 James M. Jarman, SP5 Char-

From the IDEA CENTER

'IMAGINUITY' CORNER

The battalions of 11th Air Assault Division Artillery are in the field. A target is sighted. Which battery should fire? What type round should be used?

Through the imaginative planning of Captains Broder Jervell and Dan Hillsman of the DivArty S-3 section, these problems can rapidly be solved by means of a Fire Capabilities Board.

The Board is a mounted map of the field problem area with an acetate layover on which the locations of each firing battery is drawn. The map is laid out with grid squares so that the batterys can be located rapidly.

Beneath the board is where the 'imaginuity' becomes evident. Centered beneath each battery is a disc of aluminum foil in the diameter of each batteries firing range. Each disc is connected to a wire and a part of an electrical circuit which ends in a small light mounted on a board above the map, each light representing a firing unit.

When a target is sighted and the information is forwarded to the Fire Control Center, a pin is placed in the map at the point of the target. When the pin pierces the board and the foil disc it closes the circuit and lights the light of each battery that could possibly engage the target.

From that point it is simply a matter of selecting the firing unit or units which can best destroy the target with the proper amount and type of rounds.

QUESTION OF THE MONTH

The IDEA CENTER is interested in your ideas on the problem of 'Resupply of large quantities of water to troops in a forward field position.' If you have some thoughts on this problem submit them in writing or orally to the 11th Air Assault Division IDEA CENTER, Building 5305. Phone 545-6317. Officers Awarded DFC's At Change of Command

Two officers from the 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion, 11th Air Assault Division received Distinguished Flying Crosses for service in Vietnam at the change of command ceremony for Col. George S. Beatty, March 15.

Maj. Bernard B. Quedens, company commander of Company A, of the 229th received the DFC for distinguishing himself in heroic action on Jan. 17, 1964 when he acted in the position of air controller in one of the largest heliborne combat assaults ever mounted.

FOR HEROIC VIETNAM SERVICE
Maj. Gen. Kinnard Pins DFC's

He was responsible for the control and coordination of a combined fixed and rotary wing armada of 56 aircraft. Throughout the entire operation Maj. Quedens constantly exposed himself to enemy small arms fire as he circled over the Viet Cong fortified emplacements to direct prestrikes and to guide transport helicopters to their landing zones.

Maj. Quedens repeatedly made low passes a few feet from the ground over the landing zone, and close to the enemy positions, so as to accurately mark the landing areas for the transports. Due to his outstanding professional ability, attention to detail and devotion to duty, this operation was accomplished with success.

1st Lt. Hubert M. Coalson of Company D, of the 229th received his DFC by distinguishing himself by heroic action on Feb. 27, 1964 while serving as team leader of two armed UH-1B aircraft operating against communist Viet Cong forces.

Lt. Coalson led his team on low level reconnaissance missions over a Viet Cong company, identifying and attacking enemy positions that were impeding the movement of the friendly ground forces. After dispersing several enemy groups, Lt. Coalson received word from an American ground adviser that friendly elements were receiving fire from the dominating hiss mass in the operational area. In the face of automatic weapons fire, he voluntarily led a low level strafing attack and reconnaissance into the enemy position, neutralizing the fire and assisted in dispersing the enemy troops.

As the friendly forces advanced, Lt. Coalson covered possible enemy escape routes and attacked several groups of fleeing Viet Cong. His courage in performing a difficult mission under heavy ground fire and his great skill in commanding his team contributed to the success of the mission.

188th Helicopter Unit Returns To the Command of 37th Battalion

In a ceremony held Monday, the 188th Transport Helicopter Company was duly welcomed back to the command of the 37th Air Transport Battalion. Present at the 37th Air Transport Battalion Classroom were Lt. Col. John W. Lauterbach, 37th Air Transport Battalion commanding officer, his special staff, Sgt. Maj. Jack N. Rego, and Majors Gerald D. Dyer and Denzel L. Clark, commanding officer and executive officer of the 188th Transport Helicopter Company respectively and all available aviators from the 188th Transport Helicopter Company. After presentation of the company guidon to the Battalion Commander, symbolic of the transfer, cake and coffee were served.

Due to the reorganization within the 10th Air Transport Brigade, the 37th Air Transport Battalion lost the 50th and 516th Transport Airplane Companies and gained once again the 188th Transport Helicopter Company effective March 22, 1965.

The 188th Transport Helicopter Company was activated on February 15, 1963 by Fifth US Army and assigned to Fort Riley, Kan. on the same date. On March 8, 1963, the unit was assigned to Fort Benning and attached to the 37th Air Transport Battalion on March 19, 1963.

During this period the unit had the CH37 Mojave Helicopter in lieu of the CH47 Chinook. After several organizations, the unit was detached from the 37th Air Transport Battalion and was attached to the 44th Air Transport Battalion.

The 188th Tranport Helicopter Company has participated in every 11th Air Assault Division field exercise including the extensive AIR ASSAULT II, using the CH37 as its prime mover. In January 1965, the unit received the first CH47, Chinook, helicopter. Presently the unit has fourteen CH47s and only one CH37. The company still has men and equipment in California on the flood relief mission.

The addition of the 188th gives the 37th Air Transport Battalion several additional capabilities one of which is delivery of troop and cargo into confined areas.

38th Infantrymen Participate In Realistic Squad Level Training

In preparation for the upcoming squad level Army Training Test, the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry, 2nd Air Assault Brigade, left Kelley Hill to participate in squad level training which took place in a remote part of the reservation.

Companies A, B, and C left the hill via helicopter Monday, March 15. They arrived at their pre-designated areas located in the southeast corner of the reservation about 9:30 that morning. The first mission of each company was the reconnaissance of the immediate area and the choosing of objectives for the squad leaders to use in their training.

Since this training was on a squad level the only part the platoon leader played was to issue orders and to act as an observer. No advice was given to the squad leaders and all decisions were their own. They were given an order or mission and controlled every other phase of the particular problem given to them, with the weapons squad acting as aggressors on most of the missions.

During the first day and a half, the squads concentrated on various objectives chosen by the squad leaders. The squads were deployed against the same objectives as many as three times. The second afternoon was spent in the defense phase of the problem. This consisted primarily of preparing foxholes, camouflag and the making of range cards, plus defense exercises. Each night was used for the conduction of combat patrol problems.

Bravo Company was fortunate in landing in an area used by Ranger Candidates on many of their field problems. This area is furnished with missile sites and a railroad trestle. Afforded the opportunity, the company took advantage of these targets and used them in realistic training. On the night patrol missions, the aggressors stationed on these objectives had set up security but had some small fires going. The Rangers had previously strung barbed-wire obstacles which combined with the aggressor security, gave the men of Bravo Company a very realistic and difficult mission of infiltrating the objective.

42nd Artillery Trained Here During WWII

A check of World War II archives at Alexandria, Va., has revealed that the 2nd Battalion (Little John), 42nd Artillery is no stranger to Fort Benning. As a matter of fact, the unit (then known as the 42nd Field Artillery Battalion) was billeted in the Harmony Church area in the early 1940s just as it is today.

Other information uncovered at Alexandra revealed that the 42nd Artillery (then a 105 mm howitzer battalion) hit the beaches at Normandy, France only 4½ hours after H-hour on D-Day (6 June 1944). The unit landed under hostile artillery fire on an already overcrowded beach at La Gde Dune, France some two miles southeast of St. Martin De Vaareville.

Two hours after landing at Normandy, the battalion was in position and ready to fire. Battery B fired the first battalion mission against the Germans at 1522 hours on D-Day.

Battery C Demonstrates Air Assault for Students

Battery C, 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery presented an impressive "light battery" demonstration on Monday, March 22nd to Infantry Career Course students at Concord Observation Post.

The light batter concept, originate by the 81st Artillery, mates the lightweight M-102, 105mm howitzer with the UH-1D helicopter in response to a typical quick-reaction, air assault mission. The occupation of the firing position begins with the arrival of the battery commander and his advance party in a UH-1D helicopter. Moving quickly to predesignated positions, helicopter guides and security personnel prepare for the arrival of the battery.

Next to land are the aircraft carrying the howitzer section crews. Upon landing the cannoneers disperse to provide additional local security and to prepare for the incoming howitzers. After the sling-loaded howitzers are emplaced, ammunition ships complete the lift by delivering their cargo to the rear of the guns.

Battery C, commanded by Capt. Robert A. Flory, presented both an occupation of position by a light four gun battery and the evacuation of the position by helicopter, as part of an artillery demonstration conducted by the Infantry School. Hueys of the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion were the prime movers for the artillery.

377th Aviators Receive Training In Instruments

Battery "B", 3rd Battalion, 377th Artillery, is presently undergoing a program to qualify its aviators in rotary wing instrument flying. Lawson Airfield Command is assisting, in the form of a four week school that includes Ground School and Link Trainer, (a simulated instrument flight device) practice.

377th Battery A Still Unbeaten

Battery "A", 3rd Battalion, 377th Artillery remains undefeated in the battalion volleyball tournament after defeating "C" and Headquarters Battery. One more game remains to determine who will represent the battalion in the 11th DivArty League.

A two out of three game series is played with each team. Battery "C" went the distance by winning the second game 15-4. Battery "A" then came on strong with a 15-3 victory. The series with Headquarters Battery started with Headquarters taking an early 7-0 lead in the first game. Again Battery "A" coming back hard at the finish nipped 15-13. In the second game, Battery "A" gained control with a 9-2 score, they went on to win 15-9.

377th Fires Rockets For Artillery Demonstration

By MIKE GERSHON

A portion of the vast fire power in the 11th Air Assault Division was demonstrated by the 3rd Battalion, 377th Artillery March 22.

Twelve UH-1 helicopters departed Apparri Helipad at 9:30 a.m. enroute to Concord Range for a live fire demonstration for the Infantry School. On hand to observe the artillery firing of several different types of weapons were students of the Officers' Career Course and ROTC students.

Each aircraft carried a total of 48 2.75 rockets housed in launchers on the side of the helicopters.

Immediately after lift off the three firing batteries of four ships each gathered into formation.

The aircraft spent approximately 30 minutes in what is called "orbiting," while 105mm howitzers and tank units fired artillery on the ground.

Soon afterward, the command was received from ground control for the ships to leave orbit and maintain their firing formation.

The radio frequency was alive with commands from the formation leader as the three batteries assumed a straight line formation.

Once in the prime firing formatio, the commands of "arm", "ready" and "fire!" were given and 72 rounds were fired at the range placing a heavy dispersion of explosions on the target.

The same results would have required four and one half battalions of 105 howitzers firing one volley to place the same volume of firepower on the target.

Two more passes were made at an altitude of 400 feet and a speed of 80 knots. As the smoke cleared from the range, the damage incurred by the aerial rockets was evident.

These recent demonstrations are a "boning up" for the forthcoming AUSA demonstration to be held April 30.

The battalion, under the command of Lt. Col. Nelson A. Mahone, will continue to conduct practice runs to build their proficiency in the firing of the rocket systems.

Capt. Lawrence O. Zittrain is the Battalion project officer and has the responsibility of coordinating the units' part in the demonstration.

In Pressure Chamber

Effects of Altitudes Shown 1st Av. Pilots

Last week 17 aviators of the 1st Aviation Company attended a one day course of instruction on the effects of flying at high altitudes, presented by the U.S. Naval School of Aviation Medicine at Pensacola, Florida.

While at the school the aviators learned the effects of flying at high altitudes with and without oxygen, the proper precautions to take in preventing unnecessary injury and the use of the aircraft oxygen equipment. Also the pilots were put in a low pressure chamber to simulate the high altitude effects.

After the classroom instruction covering the use of the equipment and the dangers of flying at high altitudes without oxygen they were sent to the low pressure chamber. Here they were seated side by side and donned their oxygen masks and headsets for the "climb" to 30,000 feet at a 5,000 feet per minute rate of climb. Upon reaching 30,000 feet the pilots were then paired off to watch each others reaction aftr taking off "patty cake". The average person can play 30 to 45 seconds before becoming dizzy and uncoordinated and unable to do anything which could lead to unconsciousness and other complications if not able to resume breathing the oxygen. After returning to oxygen it only takes approximately 20 seconds to return to normal. These effects are medically known as hypoxia. Then the descent is begun at 15,000 feet per minute until reaching 20,000 feet then slowed to 5,000 feet per minute for the remainder of the descent. The fast descent of course requires "popping the ears" to relieve the pressure.

Those attending the course were Captains Donald C. Brewer, Jack C. Nelius, George R. Nelson, Holman Glenn, George R. Downer, Marshall R. Bracey, Claudie G. Livingston, James F. RECOVERY OPERATIONS PART OF THE JOB
A Company C Huey Lifts Damaged UH-1D

611th 'Youngest' Unit Is Equal to Its Task

On January 4th of this year, Company C, youngest unit within the 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion, joined its sister units in their role of providing "B" level maintenance support to division aviation units. After only two months of full mission responsibility, Company C, under the command of Maj. Merle E. Bounds, has proved itself more than equal to original expectations.

Originally scheduled be be mission ready before AIR ASSAULT II, Company C was then used as rear area support during the maneuvers, with most assigned personnel filling vacancies in other 611th Units. In fact, when the field problem ended the company found itself with only 68 of the authorized 363 men available. A "period of adjustment" was looked forward to, when men and equipment could be made ready for assumption of the intended work load, but unfortunately this was not to be. Instead, the young unit was handed a task that would have challenged any maintenance outfit in Army Aviation.

Circumstances required that all UH-1 helicopters taking part in their AIR ASSAULT maneuvers have an inspection of the compressor section of their T-53 turbine engines. This mission was handed to Company C over a month before it was to become operational under original plans, but the under-strength unit made up for handicaps with professional spirit and long hours. Starting on November 25th through the holidays until January 14th 75 engines were removed, stripped, sent to the Lycoming factory and reinstalled upon return. During this period it was found that removal of the engine from the aircraft could be avoided by brining in Lycoming technicians to work along side the Company C maintenance men. Another 82 engines were taken care of in this way, with a saving of over 1,000 man hours for the entire operation. This was all done in the mist of extensive renovation to the hangar, adding to somewhat trying conditions.

The following weeks showed that Company C could soldier as well as perform maintenance with an impressive showing in the annual IG inspection plus weapons qualifications. These coincided with the initiation of full support of assigned flying units, so even though the units birth was somewhat frantic it has proved to be a solid factor in the fine record of Company C, 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion since then.

38th Artillerymen Attend SAEDA

Battery A, 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery, 11th Air Assault Division, under the command of Capt. Dave M. Johnson, recently returned to their old home—Sand Hill—where the unit attended a SAEDA (Reporting attempts of Subversion and Espionage Directed Against the Army) Class.

After an interesting discussion, a movie was shown depicting three authentic cases involving subversion and espionage against the United States. When each soldier left this class, he had acquired valuable knowledge concerning enemy espionage techniques.

NCO Review Highlights Presenting of Awards

Eight awards were presented to personnel and units of the 2nd Battalion (Little John), 42nd Artillery as the noncommissioned officers of that organization recently conducted the battalion's first retreat review of the year at Fort Benning's Stroup Field.

Reviewing officers for the ceremony were Col. William A. Becker, commanding officer, 11th Air Assault Division Artillery and Lt. Col. Charles F. Farber, commanding officer, 42nd Artillery.

Sgt. Maj. Harold L. Deal of the 42nd Artillery was in charge of arrangements for the ceremony. All key positions during the review were filled by the noncommissioned officers of the battalion.

Personnel receiving awards were SP4 Joseph K. Peterfeso and PFC Jerome M. Pietras of Headquarters and Service Battery; SP5 Donald C. Fleming of Battery B; and SP4 Daniel S. Kovacik of Battery C.

Peterfeso received an engraved cigarette lighter for being selected as the 42nd Artillery Soldier of the Month for March while Fleming and Pietras were awarded engraved plaques for winning Div Arty Soldier of the Month laurels for January and February, respectively. Kovacik was presented a small trophy for being named as 42nd Artillery Driver of the Month for February.

Unit awards went to Headquarters, A and C Batteries. Battery A collected two trophies for being Battalion Softball League Champions and for recording the Best Battery Combat Proficiency Test Score in 1964. Headquarters and Service Battery also was awarded a trophy for being the 42nd Artillery's best Rifle Marksmanship Unit in 1964 while Battery C received the Battalion Honor Battery streamer for earning that honor in January and February of this year.

Providing music for the colorful ceremony was the 11th Air Assault Division Band under the direction of CWO William J. James. Little John rockets and accessory equipment were displayed and refreshments were served at the completion of the review.

After making the personal and unit awards, Col. Becker commended the 42nd Artillery for its achievements during the 10 months it has been in existence, as a Little John battalion and stressed the importance of the unit maintaining its current high state of combat readiness.

Top Commo Check

In a recent communications inspection Charley Battery was rated number one in the 3rd Battalion, 377th Artillery. Charley Battery commo had an over all rating of 98.5 per cent and a 100 per cent rating on commo records.

This high rating is due to the unceasing effort and attention to detail on the part of Commo chief Sgt. Eldridge and his well trained team.

The inspection was held by Maj. James J. Kelly and SSgt. Roth.

FIGHTER CONTROL LIAISON OFFICERS

Air Force Liaison Officers Aid Division in Fighter Air Control

By MIKE GERSHON

In Dec., 1963 the need arose for liaison between the 11th Air Assault Divsion and the U. S. Air Force.

A team of Air Force officers and enlisted men was brought in to aid in the unit's maneuvers.

Headed by Lt. Col. John R. Stooner, the team's assignment was, and still is, that of controlling tactical jet fighters in support of the division exercises.

The liaison section maintains communications with Air Force fighter units to request tactical support.

Once in the area, they are controlled onto the target by Capt. Gordon Eells and Capt. Richard Kuiper.

During AIR ASSAULT II, 30 sorties were flown daily utilizing F-100 and F-105 fighter jets.

Coordination with fire support elements is necessary to insure the air strike is in compliment with the other arms used and does not conflict with Army aviation.

The fighters are visually controlled by the use of helicopters for better visual coordination and easier coverage of tactical terrain.

During AIR ASSAULT II, three tactical air control parties were assigned to the division augmented by TDY pesonnel and were attached to the 1st Brigade for tactical parachute activities.

All three officers are jump qualified. Col. Stoner is a senior parachutist and Captains Kuiper and Eells master parachutists. They have a total of 183 jumps.

In garrison Capt. Kuiper is the liaison officer to Col. William R. Lynch's 2nd Brigade and Capt. Eells to Col. Thomas W. Brown's 3rd Brigade.

The officers have flown 76 key division personnel in F-4C jets through simulated close air support missions and plan to fly more commanders in the near future.

Forthcoming plans for the group includes the continuation of their orientation program, air support for air assault demonstrations and taking part in any battalion brigade of division size exercise.

They hope to incorporate live fire tactical missions into the company level exercises.

Capt. Kuiper was the guest speaker at the Air-Ground School at Englin AFB, Fla. As a result of his experience he was tasked as the senior Air Force Advisor with the 101st Airborne Division during Exercise Eagle Jump from March 5-10.

Col. Stoner feels that the air - ground cooperation between the Air Force and the Army at the 11th Air Assault Divison is the best anywhere and will continue to do their best to support the division in any way possible.

377th Artillery Aviators Complete Red Dog Test

The pilots of Battery B, 3rd Battalion, (Aer Rkt), 377th Artillery completed Project Red Dog, the air assault instrument training program, on Friday, March 12, 1965. The program which is being supervised by the 11th Air Assault Division is designed to provide air assault instrument flight capability during instrument weather for the mass movement of aircraft.

The course was flown between two non-directional beacons under strict simulated conditions. The training was designed to provide strict controls similar to those maintained by FAA while enabling the pilots to improve their techniques of instrument flying. It is felt that occasions will arise in combat when it will be necessary to make a mass movement of rotary-wing aircraft when weather would normally prohibit visual flight.

Although a number of aviators are non instrument rated they have developed sufficient proficiency to fly under simulated instrument conditions and remain within their allotted airspace and complete the mission safely and satisfactorily.

611th Top Cager

PFC Don Clevenger of Company C was voted Most Valuable Player by his teammates on the 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion basketball squad, after sparking them to a second place finish in the 11th "Caribou" league. The team was tied for first at the seasons end but were shaded by one point in the playoffs.

Two Allied Officers Visit 188th

Two allied officers recently visited Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 188th Infantry. They Were Capt. Valentin C. Jimenez of the Colombian Army and Lt. Eduardo Andino Lopez of the Honduran Army. The officers were visiting Capt. Russell W. Ramsey, commanding officer of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, who had been their instructor in 1961 at the Army School of the Americas, Fort Gulick, in the Canal Zone, Panama. The school is a combined arms institution offering all major United State Army courses in the Spanish language.

Capt. Jimenez, from Bogota, Colombia, a graduate of the Colombian Military Academy, is an instructor at the Colombian Army Infantry School. Presently he is attending the Infantry Officer Career Course No. 2 at the United State Army Infantry School at Fort Benning.

Lt. Andino, from Comayagua, Honduras, is assigned as a military zone administrator in Honduras, He is presently a student at the Infantry School at Fort Benning, attending the Associate Infantry Career Officer Course No. 3.

Both officers were accompanied by Capt. Ramsey in a tour of the different sections of Headquarters Company, including the barracks, the Communications Building and the Medical Section. While briefing the two officers, Capt. Ramsey emphasized the relative independence of an air assault battalion and the subsequent need of highly qualified personnel. In the battalion motor pool the officers saw for the first time the experimental Belgian "mule".

New 11th Aviation Group CO Tours 227th

Col. George S. Beatty Jr., 11th Aviation Group commander, attended briefings and visited personnel of the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion on March 22, 1965. Col. Beatty utilized the time to get acquainted with the personnel and see how the ground plans are laid out for an air assault battalion.

The colonel has been involved for the past two years in every phase of training conducted by the Air Assault Division while he commanded the 1st Brigade, 11th Air Assault Division. He is indeed no stranger to air assault tactics and operations.

The 227th battalion commander, Lt. Col. Jack Cranford, his staff and special staff, and unit commanders gave Col. Beatty a detailed briefing on the 227th's activities, present mission, and future operational training plans.

Col. Beatty "walked through" all company areas and talked to the 227th POVOIR Sky Soldiers. Upon completion of the visits to the units, a tour of the 227th area was conducted to include a tour of the Motor Pool, Aircraft Maintenance, Instrument Section, Manila Army Heliport and Unit Operations, and the Medical Section.

Col. Beatty stated, after a full day of activities in the 227th, that he "looked forward to the growth of air assault techniques and tactics, and that he was indeed happy to be the commander of air assault aviation organizations to develop these concepts."

The men of Battery E, (Aviation) 26th Artillery, 11th Air Assault Division, have been relearning some basic soldiering skills.

During the past five weeks, an intensive program of instruction covering elementary military subjects has been integrated into the regular Battery training schedule.

Chinook to Maxwell For RAF Orientation

On Monday, March 15, a CH - 47 Chinook helicopter from B Company, 228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion flew to Maxwell Air Force Base at Montgomery, Ala., to play host to a group of RAF officers attending the Air University there.

The RAF officers had expressed their interest in the Chinook to the Air University officials so arrangements were made through the 11th Air Assault Division to have a Chinook brought to Maxwell Air Force Base for a static display and orientation flight. Upon arrival at Maxwell the crew opened the cargo helicopter for inspection to include displaying charts and graphs depicting the general characteristics of the helicopter and statistics of its past performance records.

The RAF officers, headed by Vice Admiral Piper, former commander of the famous 38th Group of England, were given a briefing by the Chinooks pilots, Capt. A. D. Scott, and CWO P. H. Johnson, after which they were taken on an orientation flight over the capitol of Alabama, Montgomery. The RAF officers were highly impressed by the CH-47A Chinook and expressed their gratitude for the opportunity of witnessing its impressive capabilities. They did comment, however, that they thought their own tandem rotor helicopters have less vibrations than the big Chinook.

The CH-47'a that made the trip to Maxwell was piloted by Capt. A. D. Scott and CWO P. H. Johnson, crewed by Sp6 I. Regan, flight engineer, and A. Johnson, crew chief, all of Company B.

During the period between March 8 and March 11 the companies of the 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry participated in a platoon live fire attack problem under the supervision of 1st Lt. Jack R. Gandy, the executive officer of Alfa Company and officer in charge of the problem.

The problem consisted of a Platoon in the attack exercise and involved movement to the objective, closing with the enemy by means of fire and maneuver, driving him off the objective, consolidating the objective, and repelling an enemy counterattack by fire. 1,000 Scholarships To Be Offered

Combined Fund Drive Will End Wednesday

Only six days remain in the 1965 combined fund drive for the National Health Agencies and Federal Service Joint Crusade.

As of Wednesday (March 31) collections from 50 per cent of the military and civilian personnel assigned to Fort Benning had been turned in.

Leading the units in participation were Center Troop Command, 77 per cent, and Lawson Army Air Command with 73 per cent.

Fund drive officials feel that the campaign will reach its goal of 100 per cent participation before the close of the collections on Wednesday (April 7). Payday was Wednesday and many unit keymen have held back in turning in their collections until after all personnel had received their pay.

No specific amount for individuals to give has been established, but Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges told the military and civilian keymen of the fund drive that he hoped that the response would be 100 per cent.

The fund drive, which began Feb. 24 and will continue through April 7, is the annual campaign to raise money for health agencies as well as agencies of the Federal Service Joint Crusade.

In his letter to Fort Benning personnel at the beginning of the campaign, Gen. Heintges said, "This campaign affords us the opportunity to help support specific health agencies, many of which render their services to dependents of members of the military service. Our contributions also help the thousands of unfortunates throughout the world by providing food and medical assistance to those in need; and by keeping the fires of freedom burning in the hearts, minds, and souls of those peoples of the world deprived of the freedoms and liberties we of the military stand to defend."

". . . To this end, I enjoin all personnel at this installation to contribute to this worthwhile cause to help our nation grow physically strong and to help all mankind live in a world of dignity and honor."

Uniform Change

With the changeover into summer uniforms just around the corner, Sp4 Ruth Miller (L) has PFC Cynthia Hall check the fit of her summer greens. The changeover is scheduled for Monday (April 5) with no optional period allowed.

Spring Term Is Scheduled For April 5

The American University Branch at Fort Benning has announced the schedule of Term IV to begin April 5 and end May 27.

The tentative term schedule is as follows:

Mondays and Wednesdays from 6:15 to 8:45 p.m. courses will be offered in Business Law II, Introduction to Accounting II, Personnel Management, Fundamentals of Real Estate, Foundations of Education I, Evaluation of Student Progress, English Fundamentals, English Composition I, History of the United States I, Foreign Policies of the Great Powers, Elementary German I, Elementary German II, Elementary Spanish II, Elementary Algebra, Survey of Math I, General Psychology, and Introduction to Social Psychology.

Entries Still Being Submitted In Post's Building 81 Contest

The Building 81 Contest Editor is no longer being deluged with entries, but they continue to trickle in with approximately 100 being logged in at press time.

Although no information as to the suggestions themselves can be released until after the contest closes at 5 p.m., April 16, those received so far indicate a great deal of interest and thought has been given to the building in question and how it can be converted to best serve and augment Post facilities.

(Building 81 is a two story structure situated just beyond Outpost No. 1 and the Upatoi Creek Bridge enroute into the Main Post. The building sits on a concrete "island" bounded on each side by roads, and presently houses the Post Exchange photo lab concession).

Authors of the entries already received at The BAYONET office run the gamut from private to colonel and from dependent to Federal employee, retired military and interested civilian. Some have been

At Annual Scout-O-Rama

Post Boy Scout District To Participate in Show

Scouting at its best will be put on display by the Fort Benning Boy Scout District Saturday, April 10, when local Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorer Scouts participate in the annual Scout-O-Rama at the Municipal Auditorium.

Demonstrations and displays will be presented to illustrate requirements for merit badges; to portray scouting hobbies, themes, services and activities and to point up the basic purposes and ideals of the Scouting program.

Approximately nine Districts from the Chattahoochee Valley area will take part in the Scout-O-Rama with keen competition expected for top honors in the events and exhibits.

Meanwhile, Fort Benning Scouts will be competing with each other for prizes to be awarded those who sell the most tickets at 50 cents each.

ROTC Vitalization Act Provides Financial Aid For Freshmen, Juniors

The Department of the Army, in a statement issued last week, announced a college ROTC scholarship program beginning in September which will provide financial assistance to 1,000 qualified students.

The Army ROTC program is conducted in 247 colleges and universities throughout the country and produces over 10,000 officers each year for the Army. Scholarships are being added to this program for the first time this year in view of the importance of the ROTC program to the Army.

Authorized by the recently enacted Public Law 88-647, the ROTC vitalization act of 1964, four-year scholarships will be awarded to 400 students and two-year scholarships to 600 students. Four-year scholarships will be granted to individuals who are entering college for the first time. Two - year scholarships will be awarded to selected college students completing the second year of the four year Army ROTC program.

CODE OF THE U.S. FIGHTING MAN

II

I will never surrender of my own free will. If in command I will never surrender my men while they still have the means to resist.

As an individual, a member of the armed forces may never voluntarily surrender himself. When isolated and he can no longer inflict casualties on the enemy, it is his duty to evade capture and rejoin the nearest friendly forces.

The responsibility and authority of a commander never extends to the surrender of his command to the enemy while it has the power to resist or evade. When isolated, cut off or surrounded, a unit must continue to fight until relieved, or able to rejoin friendly forces, by breaking out or evading the enemy. (AFPS)

Dental Health

Effects of Fluorides

By Lt. Col. R. Y. Whittemore Jr., DC

Just what do fluorides do for your teeth?

There are two types of action upon teeth from fluorides, systemic and local. The systemic action comes from drinking fluoridated water and the local action results from topical application of fluoride solution and the use of fluoride toothpaste.

We will first discuss the systemic fluoride. Fluoride may be in the drinking water from two sources, either in its natural state or added at the water treatment plant. Since there the fluoride is found naturally in the water, those areas which wish to give their children the benefit of this decay prevention, restore the fluoride to the water in the amount of one part per million or roughly one drop to a bathtub of water.

The color, taste, odor and hardness of the water remains unchanged. This means of preventing dental caries has been in use sufficient time to be backed by numerous studies on its effectiveness. These studies have shown that there are up to 65 per cent fewer cavities in the teeth of children drinking fluoridated water. This is the most effective weapon we have in the prevention of dental caries, however all water is not fluoridated.

Since it is a systemic action, its greatest effect is on teeth during their formation. The enamel of our permanent teeth is formed during the first eight years of life so for the greatest protection, fluoridated water should be consumed during this period.

If the fluoridated water is consumed from birth, the teeth formed during that period will be more resistant to dental caries and this resistance, since it is from a systemic source, will continue throughout life. There seems to be some protection given to teeth already formed, including the deciduous teeth.

Recent studies seem to indicate that there is also some protection given the deciduous teeth of the unborn child if the mother consumes fluoridated water during pregnancy.

Those persons living on Fort Benning receive fluoridated water from the post water supply, however, this is not the case in the surrounding communities. Fluoride tablets are available on prescription to add to water used for drinking and cooking in your home if you do not live on post.

Chaplain's Corner

By Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker
Post Chaplain

Following the end of World War II, I had the happy experience of a short vacation in Scotland which included a visit to Edinburgh, considered by many its most beautiful and enchanting city. Above all I remember Scotland as the home of Sir Walter Scott, its greatest philosopher - poet, who had the art of using simple language in a most romantic and thrilling manner.

While window shopping on Princess Street, Mrs. Decker and I went to a gift shop to purchase a souvenir to be a constant reminder of old Scotland. You will not be surprised that we obtained a bound copy of "Ivanhoe" which is one of the truly great classics of all literatre.

Preach Denial

The works of Walter Scott are many and each is worthy of reading. Years ago a quotation from one of his works captured my imagination and I have repeated it on suitable occasions. May I share it with you? "Preach self-denial. Make its practice a pleasure and you will create for the world a destiny, more sublime than ever entered the mind of the wildest dreamer." This is indeed a very profound philosophy of life.

Unsung Heroes

Here is a place to pay a merited tribute to all good Army wives, who have willingly denied themselves so much of convenience and parental stability, while their husbands were serving in foreign countries. While their husbands were earning decorations for valor, they have remained in the background, caring for their children and depriving themselves of many well deserved comforts and peace of mind. They are our country's unsung heroes, giving encouragement to their husbands while they bore more than their full share of family burdens and responsibilities.

Recognize Wives

A very important event in my life is remembered when a prominent college in Indiana honored me with a doctorate at its commencement in 1957. When its president conferred degrees on its graduating class, he gave a certificate of recognition to each student's wife who had worked and made his education possible.

Our nation owes a considerable debt of gratitude to Army wives. It is my hope that recognition will be given them soon for their contributions to our national defense and the cause of freedom around the world.

Presidential Message

Freedom and Peace

"We shall continue our program of military and economic assistance to Allies . . . and to those nations struggling against covert aggression in the form of externally directed, undeclared guerrilla warfare.

"In Southeast Asia, our program remains unchanged. From 1950, the United States has demonstrated its commitment to the freedom, independence, and neutrality of Laos by strengthening the economic and military security of that nation. The problem of Laos is the refusal of the Communist forces to honor the Geneva Accords into which they entered in 1962. We shall continue to support the legitimate government of that country. The Geneva Accords established the right of Laos to be left alone in peace.

"Similarly, the problem of Viet Nam is the refusal of Communist forces to honor their agreement of 1954. The North Viet Nam regime, supported by the Chinese Communists, has openly and repeatedly avowed its intention to destroy the independence of the Republic of Viet Nam through massive, ruthless, and incessant guerrilla terrorism against Government and people alike.

"Our purpose, under three American Presidents, has been to assist the Vietnamese to live in peace, free to choose both their own way of life and their own foreign policy. We shall continue to honor commitments in Viet Nam."

Editorial

Law of the Land

In April, 176 years ago, George Washington was sworn in as the first President of the United States and the Constitution became the official law of the land.

In the years since its adoption, the Constitution of the United States has become one of the world's greatest documents. While providing for a strong centralized government, it guarantees the basic rights of the individual and the separate states. Young democracies throughout the world have used it as a model. It's flexibility and basic principles amid changing world conditions have proved so lasting that it has been amended only 24 times since its adoption.

Yet many of us take our Constitution for granted. Perhaps we wouldn't if we had been a member of one of the original 13 states when our nation was struggling to exist under the Articles of Confederation — its first attempt at a constitution.

The Articles served for eight troublesome years as our constitution. These years were marked by quarrels between the separate states who feared a powerful centralized government.

Under the Articles of Confederation, the federal government could declare war, make treaties, maintain an army and navy, and establish post offices but it could not levy or collect taxes, control foreign commerce or compel the states to obey its laws.

Quarrels among the states and fear of total collapse of the central government finally led to the Constitutional Convention at Philadelphia in 1787. The Articles were abandoned and a new agreement, the Constitution, was drawn up. It contained several compromises, such as dividing the legislature into two houses, with votes on the basis of population in the lower house and equal status in the upper house.

Remembering the weaknese of the Articles of Confederation and looking toward the future of our country, the Constitutional Convention produced a document recorded in history as a masterpiece of political forethought. A failure in itself, the Articles played an important role in our nation's history as forerunner of our present Constitution.

Mrs. Rutland D. Beard Jr. has written the original production which spoofs the life of the Army wife and the Army man, too. There are some serious moments in the musical also, in such scenes as "The Queen of Battle," a musical salute to the U.S. Infantry.

Decorations theme is "Easter Egg Fantasy." The Officers' Club will burst into Springtime color with hundreds of gaily decorated and jeweled egg shells adorning tables and walls of the club.

Reservations may be made by calling, off-post, Mrs. Letcher Crawford, 323-0889. On-post members may call (A thru H) Mrs. Earl W. Buchanan, 545-3617; (I thru Q) Mrs. George A. Crowell, 545-2695; (R thru Z) Mrs. Jess L. Goodman, 545-3518.

Professional Practices to Resume Golfing Career

By SP4 DAVE KAUFELT

When the golf season gets underway, PFC John McGuire of the 197th Inf. Bde. Headquarters Co. will be out on the greens, keeping in practice for the time when he returns to his career as a golf professional.

A native of Anderson, Indiana, McGuire began golfing when he was seven years old. Following in his father's footsteps (the senior McGuire is a county and district champion golfer), McGuire was captain of his high school golf team, capturing the Indiana State High School Low Medalist title with a 72 in his senior year.

He became a golf-pro in 1962 when he was accepted by the Professional Golfers' Association (PGA) after shooting third in a state tournament.

After attending the PGA Business School, in Clearwater, Fla., in 1962, he worked as an assistant golf-pro in two local Indiana country clubs before entering the Army last year.

"Golf," says McGuire, "is one of the finest sports known to man. You don't have to be a spectator, no matter what your age. It can be inexpensive and it's played in the fresh air."

"Rainbow's comin!" — That's the chant at the Little Theatre heralding the musical play, "Finian's Rainbow," to be staged May 11-15 and 17-19.

Rehearsals have begun with a cast featuring Ella Hearne as the colleen Sharon, Les Muchmore as the pixified Finian, Rick Sonntag as Woody the Hero, and Phil Ford as the omnipresent Billboard Rawkins from "Rainbow Valley, Missitucky," and Georgia Creveling dances the role of Susan the Silent.

Director for the show is Wes Carr, who directed BLT's multiple - award - winning "The Caretaker" last fall. The production crew also includes Betty Auten as music director (as she was for "Once Upon A Mattress), Ingo Orlamunder as choreographer, Peter Hajduk as lighting designer, John Wolanczyk as set designer, and Tony Giordano as stage manager.

"Finian's Rainbow," the final FBLT production for this season, is an olio of Irish fantasy and Southern U. S. cornball — jigs and juleps galore — plus unforgettable songs which include How Are Things In Glocca Morra?, Look To The Rainbow, Old Devil Moon, If This Isn't Love Something Sort of Grandish, and That Great Come-and-Get-It Day.

The play argument springs from the Finian McLonergan Theory that gold buried at Fort Knox will grow more gold. Finian "land leases" a pot of gold from the leprechauns in Ireland to test his theory, and he unknowingly gets the three wishes which always come with such pots of gold.

First soprano and bass chorus parts are still open for casting in "Finian's Rainbow," and so is the part of Sunny, a blind harmonica player who accompanies dance sequences. Also needed is a banjo player for orchestra. The Playhouse is Bldg. 2519 on Main Post behind the Quartermaster Laundry off Indianhead Road. The telephone is 545-2992.

Fixed Bayonet Is Strongest Ally For a Soldier Out of Ammunition

"The only defense taught with the bayonet is a strong offense," barked the instructor. "Keep your blade pointed at your opponent throughout your parry—then THRUST! Instruction such as this has been given for several years as Infantrymen have worked to master their skill with the bayonet.

Almost every man who has worn an Army uniform will recall his rugged 12-hour block of bayonet instruction during basic training.

Since training programs after basic training leave little or no time for bayonet practice, the soldier must somehow retain this skill until the day it might be needed. In order to help the trainee retain this knowledge, commanders of Army training centers have asked that bayonet instruction be reviewed to insure that the best possible benefit is being derived from the time devoted to it.

As a result of this request the Combat Conditioning Committee of the Infantry School's Ranger Department was assigned the task of improving the techniques and training aids used in bayonet drill.

Why does the Army place an important emphasis on such a simple weapon in this age of automatic weapons supported with nuclear fire power? Capt. Arthur W. Garret, chairman of the Combat Conditioning Committee explained, "In a situation where a soldier finds himself out of ammunition or with a weapon that fails to function, the fixed bayonet becomes his greatest ally. The psychological effect of the bayonet is as great as the physical effect. For the man trained in its use, the bayonet inspires aggressiveness. And for the enemy who knows it will be used against him, it generates fear and panic."

Ranger bayonet instructors realized that one way to improve their training methods was to provide a target for the soldier to fight as soon as he had learned the basic movements. Previous targets were found impractical because they were easily damaged or too expensive. A major task of the Combat Committee was to, design a durable, inexpensive bayonet dummy that would test the soldier in all the skills taught.

In the search for such a device the Committee obtained suggested designs from all Army training centers. "We have selected the most effective and practical of these designs for actual test here at The Infantry School," stated 1st Lt. Ralph Mitchell an instructor with the Combat Committee. "Our job now is to decide which of the dummies are the best from the standpoint of durability, economy, ease of construction, and above all, effectiveness as a target for bayonet thrusts and rifle butt strokes."

Constructed by the 3rd Army Training Aids Center at Fort Benning, the dummies were installed on Watson Field for testing by members of a special student platoon made up of members of the 197th Infantry Brigade. For the past two weeks these men have been training on these dummies to see if they can take the rough punishment of thousands of bayonet thrusts and butt strokes.

Chief instructor for this experimental program is SFC Ralph Dunahoo, who takes special pride in another recent addition to recruit bayonet training, the pugil stick. "In pugil training," explained Dunahoo, "a padded stick replaces the rifle and bayonet. When used with the protective helmet, face mask, groin protector and gloves, it prevents injury to the trainees. The student fights a live opponent who can dodge and strike back. They soon learn that they must be aggressive to win. Pugil training drives home the points we taught on the dummies. Students know when they make a mistake as soon as they feel a blow from one of the sticks."

The overall schedule for the study will be to build a new bayonet training program from what was learned from the experimental platoon, from trips to Army training centers, and from a visit to the Marine Recruit Depot at Paris Island, N. C. Besides considering new bayonet dummies and training methods, the committee is also working with the new M16 rifle to be sure their methods are adaptable to it as well as the M14 rifle. After further testing this summer the committee will compile all of its practical material for a new manuel to be published in August.

This is just one of the many programs continually being undertaken by the Infantry School to meet the demands of the modern battlefield, to provide superior instruction, and to keep the Army ever combat ready.

The bayonet project officer is Capt. Stanley C. Pore.

Company's Six Display Cases Tell of Military Valor; A Story Written by Men and Units of the U.S. Army

By PFC Richard Minnig

Amid comfortable easy chairs and sofas in the day room of the 5th Student Bn., 52nd Co. (OC), are six display cases which tell a tale of military valor, service and tradition written by the men and units of the U. S. Army.

One part of this tale consists of cases containing insignia of grade and branch. A plaque over the cases reads, "This display serves to remind us that our Army is composed of many parts, each one augmenting and supplementing the others. Together they give us the finest and proudest fighting unit in the world, the U, S. Army".

Highlighting this display is a circle of five stars donated by General - of - the-Army Douglas MacArthur in 1962. Other stars were sent by Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; former Ambassador to France James Gavin who sent the three stars he wore on retiring from the Army; and Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commandant of The Infantry School in 1962.

All items in the displays were donated to the Officer Candidate School. Cases were built and set up as class projects. The initial project began in 1962 with each succeeding officer candidate class of the 52nd Co. maintaining and adding to the displays.

Killed in Action

Capt. William McK Hadley, a former commanding officer of the 52nd Co., wrote in donating captain's bars to the display. "I would like these bars inscribed as coming from Capt. Reginald B. Desiderio who graduated from OCS and attained the highest reward our nation can pay a soldier, the Medal of Honor. Although he was killed in action, his heroic deeds should serve as the epitome in leadership for all who strive to serve their country as a commissioned officer."

Capt. Desiderio was killed in action at Ipsok, Korea in November of 1950. The barracks which house the 52nd Co., are named in his honor.

Seventeen Army branch insignia tell of the Army's diversified organization to meet specialized jobs. The display includes the turreted castle of the Engineers, the crossed retorts and benzol ring of the Chemical Corps and the bursting shell and flame of the Ordnance Branch.

Signal Corps Insignia

Col. B. E. Small, Signal Officer for The Infantry Center in 1962, wrote in donating the Signal Corps insignia, "My first thought was to buy a shiny new pair from the post exchange. On second thought, it occurred to me that a pair of crossed flags which had seen considerable service, even though somewhat battered, might be more valuable for your purpose.

"The enclosed Signal Corps flags were purchased by me on graduation from OC Class No. 1 at the Signal Corps School, Fort Monmouth, N. J., in October 1941. These flags saw Australia, the New Guinea campaign, the liberation of the Philippines and the occupation of Japan. I wore them proudly during these operations."

Engineer Insignia

Col. Riel S. Crandall, post engineer at Fort Benning in 1962, wrote, "Attached are two battered Engineer branch insignia and one well-worn uniform button. I presume you wanted used insignia. These have been used for years.

"I enclose the uniform button since most people in the Army do not know that the Corps of Engineers, by tradition, wears a different type uniform button".

The Engineer's "Essayons button" shows a fortification surrounded by water, a rising sun with rays, and a soaring eagle bearing in its beak a streamer displaying the motto "Essayons." "Essayons" is French for "We will try." The button is believed to have been first worn during the War of 1812.

Decorations

Another display tells the story of individual soldiers by showing the decorations their country has awarded them. At the top of the display is the Medal of Honor won in 1944 at Leyete, Philippines by Lt. Col. Robert B. Nett, present commanding officer of the 5th Student Bn.

Beneath the Medal of Honor is a Silver Star won the same year in Brest, France by Lt. Col. G. P. McLendon.

Other stories are told by a Distinguished Service Cross earned in Chau-Ni, Korea, an Air Medal earned by Lt. Col. E. F. Vassar during the period June 1943 to February 1944 and a Distinguished Flying Cross won by him at Tong-Yang, Korea in 1950.

The Legion of Merit, awarded to Col. W. D. Short in 1945 for service in the European Theater of WWII, is also displayed. Col. Short is the present commanding officer of the 197th Inf. Bde.

Unit Crests

Two-hundred and eighty seven unit crests tell another part of the story. Army units of many different functions and of all parts of the globe are represented in this colorful display of Army heraldry.

Crosses, castles and trees, blue, silver, red and gold, eagles, bears and strange sphinx-like creatures stand out sharply in these small pieces of metal. They proclaim a unit's pride and its heritage.

Mottos are emblazoned on many. "Yield to None", "To the Last Man", "Forward with Fire and Steel", "Stand Fast", "For State and Country", ring these battle cries.

Included in the collection are crests representing the 1st Filipino Inf. Regt., the U. S. Army Garrison in Berlin and the Korean Demilitarized Zone, as well as units nearer home such as the 82nd Airborne Div. and Fort Benning's 2nd Inf. Div.

Seven military sabres are displayed in another case. The sabre, once an integral part of the Army officer's uniform, is now used by the candidates during their "Blue Day" ceremony.

"Blue Day" marks the transition from junior to senior candidacy. The sabres are a reminder of this big step toward a commission and are also a mark of the officer's position and responsibility as a leader.

'Battle Plans' Are Drawn Up For All-Out AUSA Campaign

"Battle plans" and strategy for an all-out campaign to increase civilian membership in the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter, Association of the U.S. Army (AUSA) were drawn up last week at a special meeting of the chapter's officers and directors.

R. L. Hinson, first vice-president and chairman of the membership committee, said there would be no letup in the continuing program to enlist new military members but a great deal more emphasis was going to be placed on participation by merchants and key employees in commercial and industrial establishments.

Hinson described the present civilian membership as "disproportionate" and "entirely inadequate" considering the importance of Fort Benning in the military establishment and the contribution its personnel make to the community's economic, social and cultural life.

Chapter president, Oscar Betts, opened the meeting, held at the United Oil Farm, by calling for reports from the various committees. He also introduced the newly assigned assistant commandant of The Infantry School, Brig. Gen. George I. Forsythe, who was meeting with the group for the first time since his arrival here early in March.

Big Plans

Big plans for the biggest chapter of the Association of the U. S. Army (AUSA) were discussed last week when directors of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning chapter met at the United Oil Farm. Special Field Problem Is Added to School's Agenda

BY PFC DAVID ARAN

A special field problem designed to give prospective young officers the experience and knowledge to combat the threat of guerrilla warfare has been added to the Fort Benning Infantry School agenda.

The problem, called Rifle Company and Platoon in Counterguerrilla Operations, covers the seizure of critical terrain, destruction of vital "enemy" installations, attacks on "enemy" reserves, and the elimination of "enemy" support fire.

Approximately 150 members of an officer candidate class recently ran the new problem. Supervised by Capt. Joe L. Zimmers, it lasts for five grueling hours, and takes the candidate through the roughest terrain Fort Benning has to offer.

The class is divided into four platoons dropped at various predetermined points, each heading for the assault area. The long trek takes the candidates through swamps where they are ambushed, through heavy undergrowth, across flat lands, and over hilly terrain.

At a designated point, the four platoons meet, regroup, and set out for the completion of their goal, the destruction of the "enemy" bunker. While three platoons surround the emplacement, the fourth platoon launches a surprise attack, which successfully completes the mission.

Nine members from the 2nd Inf. Div. constitute the "enemy" which operates from a typical guerrilla camp. The "enemy" bunker is in a wooded area on top of a hill, and gives the "enemy" a military advantage in case of attack.

Purpose of the new tactical field problem, set up by the Company Tactics Department's Platoon Tactics Committee, is to teach prospective officers the dangers of ruthless guerrilla warfare, the value of nature as a hindrance and a help to this type of hit-and-run combat, and the types of encampments typical of guerrillas.

The knowledge gained by this new field problem may well mean the difference between life and death for many U.S. servicemen.

Whalen Tours Fort Benning During Visit

William F. Whalen, Office of the the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Comptroller), was here earlier this week to confer with officials and observe Infantry School training.

Whalen, accompanied by Lt. Col. Eugene D. Taber of the Force Development Office, Department of Army, arrived Monday and departed Wednesday.

They were given a general orientation and review of Army training programs. Ranger, airborne and mobility training and weapons firing was also observed by the visitors.

Also on their schedule was a tour of the new Infantry School Bldg. 4, Main Post. Kelley Hill, Sand Hill and Harmony Church areas.

Combined Arms in Action Demonstrated by Exercise

By PFC M. F. GROGAN

A new problem that demonstrates the effectiveness of an attacking force combining all the combat arms has been devised by the Infantry School's Company Tactics Department.

"The Combined Arms Team in Action," staged at Ruth Range, replaces the old Problem 2894 formerly held at Buma Hill. Instead of showing the firepower dispensed by the weapons used in support of the Infantry, as did Problem 2894, the exercise demonstrates the organization of the combined arms team and its effectiveness in the attack.

The problem, which is narrated by Capt. Herbert N. Meninger and Capt. David H. Helela examines the organization and tactical employment of the combined arms teams consisting of Infantry, armor, artillery, engineers, mechanized Infantry or any combination of two or more of the arms.

It follows completely an "attack" made by the combined components and demonstrates effects of weapons and obstacles on Infantry troops and equipment.

The problem begins by showing the organization of the combined arms team and shows the effects of various weapons and combat equipment used in support of the Infantry.

Artillery pieces are fired to demonstrate their effectiveness; a demolition snake (a coiled "snake" of explosives which can be shot out over a mine field and exploded so as to detonate the mines) is fired, and tanks, recoilless rifles and a rifle platoon stage a demonstration of firepower.

As the problem continues a rifle platoon supported by other elements of the combined arms team takes an "enemy" held position.

Finally, the entire combined team is used in attack as Infantry troops move out with full support. It is climaxed by a simulated nuclear explosion and rocket and napalm attacks by jet fighters.

"This is the most extensive problem at Fort Benning," Capt. Helela said. "It shows the full effectiveness of the combined arms and the result of the Army's rigorous training."

The problem involves about 400 support troops, one mechanized rifle company consisting of 18 armored personnel carriers, a tank platoon with seven tanks, an artillery battery including eight 105-mm howitzers and a 155-mm self-propelled howitzer, a 4.2-inch mortar platoon, two H-13 Sioux and four UH-1 Huey helicopters; a Mohawk fixed-wing aircraft and four to six Air Force F4C Phantom jet fighters.

The problem is to be used to display the effectiveness of the combined arms to officers learning Infantry techniques at The Infantry School and to visiting dignitaries.

Students Are Briefed On Modern Warfare

ROTC cadets from five colleges converged on Fort Benning last week for a one-day orientation on modern warfare training at The Infantry School, the world's largest military instructional installation.

The 230 students came from the University of Miami, Fla., Florida State University and Florida Agricultural and Mechanical College, both at Tallahassee, Spring Hill (Ala.) College, and Auburn (Ala.) University.

In addition to the cadets, the visitors included six Army officers, four non-commissioned officers, and three doctors of philosophy.

For the cadets the orientation began with a firsthand look at airborne training on Eubanks Field. The briefing included demonstrations of ground training, controlled jump tower training and familiarization with the parachute and techniques of exiting an aircraft in flight.

At Bleacher 390, the students saw vehicles of the Infantry, with graphic examples of their capabilities exhibited on an obstacle course.

The cadets attended an awards ceremony on York Field before moving to the Officer Candidate School area for lunch with the candidates.

In the afternoon the cadets went to Marshall Auditorium in Bldg. 4 for a briefing on the 11th Air Assault Division, followed by a field trip to the Air Assault area.

New Trophy Is Designed By Weapons Department

One thing a newly commissioned officer must know, and know well, is his tools.

These tools are the weapons found in the Infantry battalion and a platoon leader cannot be effective without a thorough knowledge of these weapons.

To place more emphasis and add incentive to the importance of weapons knowledge, the Weapons Department has designed and produced a new trophy. This trophy is presented to the graduating OCS candidate in each class who achieves and demonstrates the most knowledge, in firing qualification and examination during the 217 hours of weapons instruction presented by the Department.

The concept of presenting such a trophy, designed and intended to enhance the ancient and honorable profession of arms was developed by Col. William L. Koob Jr., and approved and established by the present Department Director, Col. Bob E. Edwards.

The Department feels that this trophy will inspire the officer candidates of The Infantry School to greater achievement in the vital area of weapons knowledge and instruction.

The first Weapons Department trophy was recently presented at a graduation exercise to 2nd Lt. Donald O. Porter, 54th Co., 5th Student Bn.

Brig. Gen. Wright Addresses Ranger Class; Brownlee, Crawford Are Top Graduates

"To me, the Ranger tab means you are among the best trained combat leaders in the United States Army. I urge that when you leave, to make a determined effort to maintain your skills and knowledge, your physical condition . . . and make your influence felt in the U. S. Army."

With these words, Brig. Gen. John M. Wright, assistant division commander, 11th Air Assault Div., concluded his address to the graduates of Ranger Class No. 6, in Marshall Auditorium last week.

Speaking to 115 officer and enlisted graduates, Gen. Wright said, "I am mindful here that the primary thing you are interested in, is getting your Ranger tabs. I am also mindful of speaking to a group of men who are graduating from the Army's toughest, most challenging school, bar none.

"The Ranger course you have completed is a tough and honest test of your determination, strength, confidence, endurance, character, and . . . what kind of man you are."

"You know, since you completed the course, that you can take more than you thought you could when you started," he added.

"You have a serious and definite responsibility," said Gen. Wright prior to his conclusion, "to pass on to those you come in contact with, the skills and knowledge you have learned. If you can pass on this skill and knowledge . . . the Army will greatly benefit."

The two Distinguished Honor graduates of the nine-week course were 2nd Lt. Romie L. Brownlee and Cpl. Russell Crawford.

Gen. Wright presented the two Rangers with their diplomas, Ranger tabs, a plaque from the Association of the United States Army, and a one year subscription to the Infantry Magazine.

Officers Hear Address On Small Asian Nations

The necessity for the United States to prove that she is "a reliable ally to the small nations of Southeast Asia" was pointed out by Dr. Richard L. Walker, director of the Institute of International Studies, University of South Carolina, last week before The Infantry School's officer career classes.

His talk, included the psychological, sociological and political aspects in Southeast Asia.

The noted Far Eastern historian said, "In five years the United States, which is a Pacific power, has lost that element which is so important in Asia - face . . . or credibility."

He pointed out that the Vietnamese and other Asians find it necessary to ask "which is the force of the future" and we have to prove that we are.

Dr. Walker also stressed the importance of not underestimating the Red Chinese whom he called "a totally organized country."

"In 15 years," he noted, "China has progressed from a country in economic chaos to the ranks of a nuclear power."

Using film slides to prove his point, Dr. Walker noted that China is now a modern nation and not one of "meek little Asians" as many Americans think.

He also said that Southeast Asia is a vital and strategic area for the United States.

"With the long range weapons and communications it is no longer the Far East but it would be better if we considered it the Near West," he stated.

The speaker added that the United States is a pacific power and is the only power imperialistic thrusts of Mao capable of turning back the Tse Tsung, Red China premier.

Dr. Walker is a graduate of Drew University and received his masters degree in Far Eastern and Russian studies from Yale. He also holds a doctor of philosophy degree in international relations from Yale.

He has served as an assistant professor of history at Yale, as a visiting professor at the University of Washington and as an associate professor at the National Taiwan University on Formosa. From 1960 to 1961 he was a member of the Department of Political Affairs of the National War College.

Post Supervisors Attend Workshops To Improve Manpower, Production

Supervisors at Fort Benning are attending a series of workshops designed to improve manpower, increase production and lower payroll costs.

The program initiated March 15 will continue until all supervisors on the post have participated in one of its three-hour sessions.

More than 300 military and civilian supervisors have attended the course since its inception.

The program includes an orientation on "The Dynamics of Position Management" by Mrs. A. F. Hearn. She is assistant to William A. Burbee, chief of the Position and Pay Management Division, Civilian Personnel Section Infantry Center.

Following the presentation by Mrs. Hearn, the class is divided into four small workshop groups for discussion and questions. Workshop leaders include Mrs. Floyd Hudgins, Mrs. C. J. Dokos, Mrs. Richard Hale and Mrs. Opal Hankins.

The workshop leaders are position classification specialists in the Position and Pay Management Division.

Col. Robert M. Williams, Infantry Center chief of staff, said the workshops were implemented to meet the requirements of the command-ing general's program to achieve maximum utilization of the skills of civilian employees at a minimum cost to the government.

Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, in keeping with instructions from the deputy secretary of defense and the Department of the Army, has initiated the program to concentrate higher grade work in as few positions as possible. The program calls for centralizing lower grade tasks in support positions at a lower pay level.

Chiefs of activities that employ civilians have been urged to see that supervisors understand the necessity of economy and efficiency in the utilization of employees.

The management workshops provide the training needed by individual supervisors to support the general's position management program, officials said.

T. A. Barefoot, civilian personnel officer, briefed Infantry and Infantry School staff members on the purpose of the workshops in the initial stage of the program. Leinuel Johnson, employee development officer, coordinated the workshops.

CAR Course Has International Flavor With Eleven Allied Nations Represented

Among the 200 U. S. and Allied officers enrolled in the Officer Career Course No. 1, is a highly representative sample of the Infantry captain, and a dramatic evidence of the important role played by The Infantry School and the Army in maintaining peace throughout the free world.

Of the 200 student officers assigned to Det. 1, 2nd Student Bn., TSB, there are 12 Allied Officers encompassing the ranks of major and captain.

These Allied student officers hail from the four corners of the earth and represent 11 nations. From the South American continent are two captains from Brazil, one captain from Equador, and one captain from Uruguay.

Western Europe is represented by a major from Great Britain, a major from Spain, and a captain fom Ireland. The Mediterranean nations are represented by a major from Libya and a captain from Greece.

From the Pacific area there is one captain from the Phillippines. Representing Southeast Asia are two more captains; one hailing from Laos, and the other from Thailand.

Aside from the 12-nation make-up of CAR No. 1, U.S. officers come to the course from five branches of the service: Infantry, Armor, Artillery, Marine Corps, and Ordnance.

Of the 188 U.S. captains, 46 are graduates of the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, and 106 received their commissions through the Reserve Officer Training Corps program.

The 35-week long CAR course is designed to provide officers with a working knowledge of the duties and responsibilities of company and battalion commanders, battalion and brigade staff officers. A general knowledge of divison level staff and operations is also presented to the students during their stay here.

Qualifications of the student officers in CAR No. 1 are high. More than 140 are Airborne qualified and 93 are Ranger school graduates. Thirty-seven of the U.S. officers have seen combat and are holders of the Combat Infantryman Badge.

Although the average level of formal education of the U.S. officers is 15.8 years, 160 have completed 16 or more years of formal education.

The 188 U.S. captains average an age of 28.5 years and represent an average of nearly seven years of active service in the Army as officers.

With a diverse list of backgrounds, fine qualifications, and varied experience, the 200 student officers attending CAR No. 1 find that their say here is a rewarding experience both professionally and socially.

The international flavor of the 12-nation class enriches both the U.S. and Allied officers by having had the experience of living and working ideas and knowledge.

The class is currently entering its 30 week of training.

Pathfinders Provide 'Guiding Light'

By Sp4 David N. Scott

"In those first few minutes it looked as if the down coming masses would suffocate every single life" were the words of a German war correspondent during the 1st Allied Army's airborne invasion of Holland on Sept. 17, 1944.

As this eyewitness report was being written over 6,000 paratroopers and some 400 gliders were flooding the Dutch sky and were on their way to the most successful airborne operation of World War II.

Within one hour and 20 minutes all of the paratroopers and gliders had dropped into each division area in good concentrations and were able to seize and hold important tactical positions until the arrival of other military forces.

The success of this jump was due largely to the ground control provided by pathfinder units prior to the arrival of the main body. This "guiding light" of the Airborne arrived before the main assault in order to provide navigational aids for identification of routes and drop zones.

These aids were planted along the coast of England, midway across the North Sea, 5000 yards in front of the enemy lines and behind the enemy lines on the prescribed drop zones.

To accomplish such a dangerous mission took weeks of extensive and rigorous training on the part of the pathfinder units.

Pathfinders have a relatively short history, compared to other military units but it can not be said they don't have a proud tradition to uphold.

It is the responsibility of Capt. Carrow L. Moffitt, chief of the Pathfinder Committee of the Airborne Department, and his staff of two officers and 16 enlisted men to see that this tradition is upheld by qualifying over 300 pathfinders a year.

To provide this "life - or-death" element for the Airborne takes weeks of rugged training and hours of individual instruction. In order to furnish all of the necessary material, which ranged from delicate demolition tactics to physical training, the course is limited to 32 students. This enables the instructors to give valuable individual counseling and guidance.

Instruction for pathfinder training is not only provided by the Pathfinder Committee but also by the Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, the Company Tactics Department, and the Communications - Electronics Department.

The first two weeks of training consists of demolitions, CBR, map reading, and communications. The Brigade and Battalion Operations Department handles the demolition and CBR phase while the Company Tactics Department instructs the student on map and aerial photograph reading. The Communications - Electronics Department is responsible for the communication phase of instruction.

The remainder of the trainees' instruction time is carried out by the Pathfinder Committee which teaches the student how to utilize pathfinder techniques and equipment and provides practical experience in the subjects which were taught in the first two weeks.

The whole course of instruction is climaxed in the final week with a field exercise that covers all previous instruction. Here the student is graded on how well he performs during an actual pathfinder problem. The problem is kicked off by the Student Detachment Commander who briefs his men and formulates a plan for setting up drop zones and landing zones on unfamiliar terrain. The students move out from Lawson Field to the training area where they set up a helicopter landing zone and land a battalion of simulated helicopters.

After the completion of the first phase they are airlifted and dropped into another unfamiliar zone and set up navigational aids for troop carrier aircraft and a drop zone for an Airborne Company. Upon completion of the exercise they reassemble at Law- son Field and are critiqued on the exercise by the committee's instructors.

"The pathfinder has 10-30 minutes to accomplish all of the requirements pertinent to an airborne invasion," explained Moffitt. "In this short period of time it is his responsibility to set up radio communications between him and the aircraft, establish a drop zone or a landing zone and clear these zones of any obstacles that would impair the landing or drop. He must have a terrific sense of responsibility since the pilots and paratroopers are depending on him to guide them to their designated area. Probably the most impressive aspect of this is that it is all accomplished on unfamiliar terrain in enemy territory."

"This is probably the most satisfying assignment I have ever held," continued Moffitt. "Being in command of the only Pathfinder Training Center in the Army is quite an honor and an experience that is made very enjoyable by the quality of the excellent instructors in the committee. The NCO's in this committee are the backbone of the operation. They are all extremely well qualified and know their jobs from top to bottom."

Before coming to The Infantry School, Moffitt was a company commander at the Fort Jackson Training Center in South Carolina. He has also served as a detachment commander with the 10th Special Forces and an executive officer with the 14th Armored Cav. Regt. in Germany.

Over 300 Graduates Attend Annual Dinner Celebrating Academy's 163rd Anniversary

One hundred and sixty - three years of military tradition were celebrated at the annual West Point Founder's Day Dinner held at the Fort Benning Main Officers' Open Mess last month.

Over 300 graduates dating back to the class of 1911 attended the banquet commemorating the anniversary of the U. S. Military Academy.

Maj. Gen. Harvey J. Jablonsky, commanding general of the 1st Armored Div. Fort Hood, Texas, spoke of the long list of graduates of West Point.

"Only 25,485 men have graduated from West Point since 1802," he pointed out, "and over 18,000 are living today."

He also stated that almost 11,000 graduates are on active duty today and about 8,000 are in the Army.

Gen. Jablonsky, who took his airborne training at Fort Benning in 1943, served as executive officer of the 515th Parachute Inf. and as assistant commandant of the Parachute School, spoke of his feelings toward Fort Benning.

"It is always an inspiration to come back to the home of the Infantry," the general said. "Fort Benning has always held special significance for me as an Infantryman, a paratrooper and as a West Pointer."

Gen. Jablonsky graduated from the academy in 1934. His final year there he was elected captain of the Army football team and received the Army Athletic Association Award as the outstanding athlete in his class.

Other speakers at the banquet were Maj. Gen. (Ret.) P. E. Gallagher, president of the Columbus - Fort Benning Chapter of the West Point Society; Brig. Gen. (Ret.) J. B. Crawford, who at the age of 76 was the oldest graduate at the dinner and 2nd Lt. S. P. Lamback Jr. the youngest graduate.

Brig. Gen. R. R. Williams, commanding general of Fort Benning's Test, Evaluation and Control Group, served as master of ceremonies.

Gen. Williams took time out before the speeches to read letters from President Johnson and the West Point graduates in Viet Nam.

Study Hall Is Opened to Company Personnel

Men of Hq. & Hq. Co., 197th Inf. Bde. who are searching for a quiet place in which to pursue the courses they are taking at the Education Center need look no longer since a new study room was recently opened.

Equipped with desks, upholstered chairs and floor lamps, the study hall was devised by Capt. Darrell J. Savage, the company's commanding officer, in the hope that it would not only help students who are currently taking courses, but would also stimulate others to further their education.

Acting on suggestions from users of the study hall, Savage plans to install an unabridged dictionary in the room and to sound proof it with money from the unit fund.

The study hall is never closed so that the men of the company may make use of it no matter what their duty hours are.

Volleyball Competition Scheduled by Officials

Dates for the 1965 Post Volleyball Championships and the Third Army tournament have been announced by Infantry Center Special Services officials.

The post competition will be held April 13-16 to determine the company level champion and the team to represent Fort Benning in the Third Army tourney May 3-7 at Fort McClellan, Ala.

Major units in The Infantry Center, 2nd Inf. and 11th AA divisions are playing intramural games to select the companies to represent them in their respective command play-offs.

The winner and runner-up teams from each command will then compete in the post double elimination tourney.

Entries for the post tournament must be submitted, with team rosters of not more than eight players and one coach, before April 12, to Center's Special Services sports officer.

DA Curtails Installation Teams

New Policy Approved By Army Chief of Staff

By PFC Frank L. Lombardi

Department of the Army last week announced a new sports policy which curtails installation teams and competition between installations in favor of maximum intramural sports participation.

The DA message indicated that the revision was encouraged by Army Chief of Staff Gen. Harold K. Johnson's concern over the amount of military training time being used to train and compete in sports events.

* * *

Post officials are presently studying the new sports policy to determine what effect it will have on Fort Benning sports. Last year, The Doughboy football team was interservice champion.

* * *

According to the message, sports competition between installations or divisions as well as major command championships tend to take large number of personnel away from their military training. Resulting in "corresponding erosion of the Army's readiness capability."

Morale Factor

"There is doubt that the morale benefit of such competition compensates for the loss in training time. Therefore, a new Army sports policy has been approved by the chief of staff," it was announced.

Continued support is authorized to international sports competition and to those installation-division and major command level sports which directly support the international sports effort. This applies to such events as the Olympics, Pan-American Games, World Championships or State Department tours.

Provisions

Major provisions effective immediately include:

Major command competitions are prohibited except in those sports in direct support of international competition.

Competition between installation teams will be during off-duty time only.

No special duty, administrative leave or temporary duty is authorized for assembling and training sports teams or individuals except in direct support of authorized international competition.

Personnel will not be excused from military duty to travel and participate in sports competition except in direct support of authorized international competition.

Travel for personnel participating in the Army Sports program must be done with nonappropriated funds.

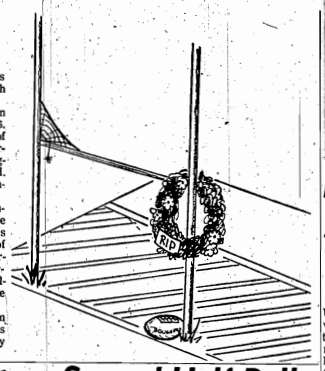
The cutoff date stated in the message is Jan. 1, 1966. However, during 1965 all of the Army Trials and Inter-Service Championships originally scheduled will be held. Track and field championships are cancelled.

In regard to the intramural emphasis, the message commented that the sports program has the mission of encouraging maximum participation by personnel in order to develop them physically and to increase esprit de corps and team work.

"The best way to obtain maximum participation is through extensive company intramural competition."

HANDICAP TOURNEY

The annual Officers Spring Handicap Tourney will be held at the country club April 5 through May 17. Deadline for entering is today at 5 p.m. Maj. Jack C. Sherwood is defending champion.



All Stars Stage Second Half Rally To Whip Gordon at Tournament

By PFC Russ Havourd

The "All Stars" put on an outstanding team effort in the second half to edge Fort Gordon, Ga., 98-93, in their first outing of the 1965 Third Army Tournament Tuesday at Fort Jackson, S.C.

Trailing, 50-45, at the close of the half, Benning came on strong with seven men hitting double figures. Pacing the All Stars were Monty Clausen and Henry Moore with 15 points each. Jerry Grochowski and Dick Bosacker tallied 14 apiece. Ed Washington netted 11, George Walstad had 10 and Don Harnum 12.

High scorer for Fort Gordon was Bob Ames with 25 points, followed by Ron Gamble with 23 and Jim Hamilton's 20.

The All Stars drew a bye in the first round of the tourney and moved into the second against Fort Gordon who won their first game over Fort Rucker, Ala., 75 - 64, Monday.

10-Man Team

The final selection of 10 players to go to Fort Jackson was made last Thursday night after the second Fort Campbell contest.

Post Players Get Dumped By Campbell

The Fort Campbell, Ky., "Screaming Eagles" dumped the Fort Benning "All Stars" 87-72 last Thursday night at Briant Wells Field House in the second meeting of the two clubs prior to the 1965 Third Army Basketball Tournament at Fort Jackson, S. C.

The Screaming Eagles rebounded from Wednesday night's 100-77 loss to dominate the game offensively and defensively from the start.

High scoring guard Willie Mays led the Fort Campbell contingent with 19 points, followed by forward Sam Brown with 18. Both did most of their scoring in the first half, pushing the All Stars to a 48-34 mid-game deficit.

Fort Campbell captured their 15th win against four losses while handing the All Stars' first defeat in a short three-game season.

Both teams left Saturday afternoon for Fort Jackson.

Karate Enthusiasts Demonstrate 'Empty Hand' Fighting Techniques

By Sp5 Mitch Yamanaka

With a loud yell, blinding speed, and a sharp "CRACK" the kneeling figure split an inch-thick board with his forehead.

A good way to get rid of a headache or get one?

No, just a demonstration to the Columbus Junior Chamber of Commerce that there are many parts of the human body that can be used as a weapon for defense.

TRACY GRADY BREAKS BOARD During Demonstration for Jaycees

Presenting the demonstration recently to the Jaycees was the newly formed Fort Benning Karate Club under the direction of Tracy E. Grady Sr., and Robert M. Gardner.

Empty Hand

Karate is a word from the Japanese language meaning "empty hand," and the club showed the group that Karate is exactly that, the art of empty hand fighting or fighting without the aid of a weapon other than the body.

Karate is said to have originated in China and refined on Okinawa, a group of islands south of Japan, when the ruling Japanese monarch forced the Okinawans to live without the use of weapons for protection.

From its beginnings, Karate spread throughout the Far East, and today you will find many different schools or styles of instructions.

Some styles emphasize the use of the hands, others the use of the feet, and still others the use of both.

Some insist that you build-up calluses on your hands, feet and elbows until they are as hard as rock. Other schools emphasize just the opposite.

Teaches Respect

Whatever style you learn, if you receive your instruction under a qualified instructor, you will also learn the meaning of true respect.

Karate schools and clubs have been opened throughout Georgia in the past, but not until recently were they organized under one association. In January the Georgia Karate Association, headquartered in Atlanta, was formed under the direction of Dae Shik Kim, a fourth degree black belt holder.

The Fort Benning Club, sanctioned by the Georgia Karate Association, is open to all military personnel and dependents. The classes are held at the Old Post Gym on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The instruction is under the direction of Grady, a second degree black belt, with Gardner, a first degree black belt, the head instructor.

Those interested in learning Karate may do so by attending the classes.

Awards Handed To 37th Arty Bowling Teams

Assignments Top Division's Week

With the announcement late Wednesday that Brig. Gen. Robert R. Williams was taking the reins to the job of Assistant Commander of the 2nd Infantry Division, the number of top division jobs filled this week was boosted by two.

The giant task of commanding the division's 1st Brigade was filled earlier in the week with the assignment of Col. Ben. Ward as brigade commander.

Gen. Williams, highly regarded as a proficient Army aviator, stepped into the ADC post Thursday after commanding the Test, Evaluation and Control Group for 19 months.

The division this afternoon will roll out the traditional "red carpet" welcome it gives commanders with a review for the 46-year-old general on Marne Field. Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, division commander, will officially welcome Gen. Williams while representative units throughout the division will pass in review.

NEW COMMANDER
Ben H. Ward

The Indianhead division's living symbol, Sgt. Marland Tahbonemah, will lead the procession past the division's newest general.

Gen. Williams also will be the guest of honor at the Indianhead Lodge immediately following the ceremony.

Gen. Williams' assignment with the 2nd Division partly fills a gap that has been vacant since the recent departure of both assistant division commanders. Brig. Gen. Edmund Mueller, filling one of the two jobs, left in early March for a six - month temporary duty call in Washington, D. C.

NEW ADC
Robert R. Williams

Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, departed the division in February for an assignment in Paris, France.

The beginning of Gen. William's career as an Army aviator dates back to 1935 when he learned to fly as a civilian. He was born on June 18, 1918 in Evanston, Wyoming and graduated from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point in 1940.

It was after West Point graduation that the general's big achievements in aviation began.

In December of 1941 he

Indianheads Depart for Training

37th Arty Rumbles Off To Gordon

The big guns of the 37th Artillery are rumbling up the Georgia highway to the northeastern Georgia training areas of Fort Gordon today as the unit prepares for the all important annual Army Training Test (ATT).

Wednesday the 17th Artillery returned from Gordon and their three weeks of training and testing.

The 37th was expected to move from the division area at Fort Benning this morning at 5:30 a.m. and will pull into the Fort Gordon at 6 p.m.

Under the leadership of Lt. Col. Herbert R. Hill, the battalion will undergo two practice tests to "limber up the guns" before the actual tests during their third week at Gordon.

The first two weeks will be taken up with fire precision registration, adjustment of the guns, time on target and mass fire missions.

The 37th Artillery has 155 mm and 8-inch howitzers. These are the largest artillery pieces assigned to the division with the exception of the Honest John rockets of the division's 12th Artillery.

In addition to the gunnery practice, the men of the 37th will have the chance to use a variety of fuses so as to become familiar with the capabilities of their weapons.

In the course of training the battalion will get the opportunity to practice the methods of fire observation. They will observe fire from

RIVER CROSSINGS

Have topped the division training news for the past week as its three remaining infantry battalions underwent the watery exercises. 2nd Infantry Division News Staffer Jim Lull and Photographers Don Borders and Gerald Heine covered the event from start to finish. The results of their work may be found on page 34.

72nd Armor Fielded In Ft. Stewart Tank Firing

The 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor leaves the 2nd Division this morning for Fort Stewart, Ga. where it will conduct annual tank firing and a two-week field exercise.

The advance party for the battalion left Fort Benning Monday to prepare the way for the main party.

Loading

Throughout the week, the "Crusaders" have been loading their heavy equipment in preparation for the move this morning.

Monday the M-48 Tanks were loaded aboard flat cars at the division railhead. The battalion's M-113 tracked personnel carriers and their M-114 tracked reconnaissance vehicles will also go by rail, while the heavy recovery vehicles will travel the highways on "lowboy" trailer - trucks.

Six-Week Period

The six-week training period which will see the 72nd returning May 17th is the culmination of the year's training cycle for the tankers.

During the series of firing tables, each tank crew member will have an opportunity to fire all the weapons on the M-48 medium tank, including, the 90mm main gun and its co-axilially mounted .30 machine gun and the .50 machine gun.

They will have an opportunity to fire at all types of targets, both fixed and moving, as well as engaging targets while there own tank is in motion.

Firing is conducted in a series of eight ables or firing situations. They cover various ranges and conditions including night firing of the tank guns.

For the Armor the annual trip to Fort Stewart for firing is one of the highlights of the training year according to battalion training officials.

Officials say that the tankers will be housed in a barracks during the firing and wrap up their Fort Stewart visit with a two week maneuver in the field.

Clanks, Thumps Characterize Departure

The characteristic clank of treads is punctuated by a new sound, the heavy rhythmic thump of hammers as the fatigue-clad tankers of the 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor swarm aboard flat cars at the 2nd Division rail head.

The hammers were for nailing down the boards for securing the steel monsters the flatcars would carry over the rails to their Fort Stewart, Ga. destination.

As each of the 50 ton behemoths creak up the loading ramp it is joined by a sergeant whose ticklish job is to guide the driver now gingerly nursing his charge forward, mindful of the six inch overhang on was commissioned in Field Artillery and named operations officer for a group to test aircraft for use by the artillery.

Gen. Williams was appointed Chief of the Flight Division when the Department of Air Training was formed in the Field Artillery School in 1942. He became the first ground force officer to receive an instrument rating.

He organized the first ground force operational aviation unit in 1947 while he was aviation officer of the United States Constabulary in Europe.

As his aviation career progressed, Gen. Williams in 1955 organized and became the initial president of the U. S. Army Aviation Board at Fort Rucker, Ala. Earlier he held the honor of being the first chief of the Army Aviation Branch, G-3, Department of the Army.

After attending the Army War College in 1958, the new commander became Chief, Air Mobility Division, Office of the Chief of Research and Development, Department of the Army in Washington.

He also served in the office of the Secretary of Defense.

More honors came to the general in 1961 when he received the Alexander Klemin Award for "notable achievement in the advancement of Rotary Wing aeronautics." He served as panel leader on the Army Tactical Mobility Requirements Board in 1962.

Prior to commanding the TEC group, Gen. Williams was Commanding General of the U. S. Army Aviation Center and Commandant of the U. S. Army Aviation School at Fort Rucker, Ala. This job came in March 1962.

The general and his wife, Jean, are parents of three children, Robert, a cadet at the Military Academy, and Kathleen and Keith. The family's official home is Greeley, Colorado.

Col. Ben H. Ward, who will assume command of the 2nd Division's 1st Brigade next week, arrived at Fort Benning Tuesday.

The colonel, recently returned from Viet Nam, was met by Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow, presently brigade commander and was given a thorough tour of the brigade and division areas upon his arrival.

Ward will officially assume control over the 1st Brigade Thursday, April 8th, in ceremonies to be conducted on Weatherby Field. All men of the brigade will pass in review at that time for the outgoing and incoming commanders.

The 44-year old colonel returned to the United States in February, following an assignment with the United States Military Assistance Command in Viet Nam for slightly more than one year.

He has also seen foreign duty in Japan, China, Europe and several other Asiatic and Pacific nations.

The new commander hails from Knoxville, Tenn., and has earned a bachelor of science degree in business administration from the University of Tennessee, and a master of arts degree in International Affairs from George Washington University.

Col. Ward is married with two children.

Col. Snow, a career army engineer recently received orders assigning him as the resident army engineer for the Wilmington, N.C. district. He is expected to depart the division within the next several months.

Clanks

either side of its mammoth treads.

Bobbing finally to a halt, the steel treaded beast is assaulted by a half dozen hammer-wielding tankers who quickly immobilize it with spike and board, then secure the downs to complete the job.

Amid this carefully planned tumult, yet slightly apart as befits his rank and station, stands a slim, greying but erect figure, hands on hips, looking at nothing, yet never missing a scene of the operation unfolding before him.

Item by item, a tank at a time, the battalion makes itself ready for its journey.

The thought of the trip, now just a few days away brings a tingle of anticipation to the one surveying the scene, and he allows a smile to briefly cross his features, for Lt. Col. Leonard E. Trost, commanding officer of the 1st Battalion, 72nd Armor, can hardly wait to get his beloved tanks back into their, and his, element.

Rumbles

the ground and from aircraft. They will also employ the technique of observation through the information compiled from aerial photographs.

Throughout the training and the testing the artillerymen will work in a simulated combat situation. They will undergo gas attacks and harassment from aggressor forces.

The Return

The return of the 17th Artillery signalled the end of the three week period in which they underwent extensive testing in the basic skills of supporting a combat unit.

The 17th's testing was similar to that of the 37th's officials said.

Division Artillery officials have described the annual pilgrimages to Fort Gordon as the "climax" of the artilleryman's training year.

New Chevrons Angle

No Charge for Stripes, Stitches

For soldiers worried about financing new rank insignia after the big September 1 changeover of chevrons in the enlisted ranks, the Army is offering consolation.

They also thought of the wives who are likely to be victims of tough sewing assignments.

A recent Army Times article says that Pentagon officials have decided to provide the chevrons to soldiers free of charge. And the Army also is supposed to foot the bill for attaching new chevrons on the sleeves.

This all came about when officials at the Pentagon took another look at the approximate number of career soldiers who would be affected by the change.

Earlier it was bttlieved that around 70,468 E-5s, E-6s and E-7s who have been in their respective grades since mid-1958 would have to shed one rocker as a result of the change. However, more recent estimates lowers that figure to about 55,000.

According to the Times article, the Army is obligated to pay for the new chevrons and sew them on under provisions of Regulation 780-8400-1, Change 12. That is, they will issue the chevrons to those required to change their insignia because of "promotions or through no fault of their own."

However, the changeover is not without its headaches, the Department of Army officials are aware of the problem expected on September 1. Should all enlisted men affected by the change rush to the laundry, expecting an immediate sewing job, they're in for a disappointment.

Obviously, local laundries cannot handle the demand for sewing on chevrons in a day's time.

Therefore, DA officials are hoping that each post will work out some sort of "phasing in" system where laundries will have adequate time to handle the sewing demand "possibly wearing the new insignia before September 1."

It was indicated, according to the Times, that any phasing in period would have to be after September 1.

The policy the 2nd Infantry Division will follow and exactly how it will handle the situation has not been determined yet. A spokesman for the G4 Section said that some sort of system was being planned. However, it will be another two or three weeks before an exact plan would be completed.

An official statement from DA said "putting the 1 Sept. 1965 insignia change into effect is a matter for local command action to comply with established DA policy."

The Times article indicated that a soldier will probably be issued from 12 to 15 sets of chevrons, but he may not receive his stripes much before September 1.

A tidal wave of insignia cannot be expected when the supply does come down.

Medics Earn Praise From Heintges

Honors continue to pour in for the 2nd Medical Battalion basketball team.

The quintet received a letter from post commander, Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges congratulating them on winning the 1965 Battalion Level Post Basketball Championship.

The letter, which was forwarded thru "Indianhead" commander, Maj. Gen. Chiles, praised the medics for the fine sportsmanship and team spirit displayed by the players.

Indianhead Reunion Plans Final; Special Soldier Rates Announced

By JOE TREASTER

Planners of the 2nd (Indianhead) Division Association this week announced special, reduced motel rates have been obtained for active - Army members attending the annual convention this summer in Florida.

A representative of the Diplomat Resorts and Country Club said the following rates will apply to active - Army members during the convention, July 15-17:

$8 per room, daily, double occupancy;

$6 per room, daily, single occupancy;

$3 daily, per third person. And children under 12 may stay in the same room with their parents at no charge.

W. S. Bell of the sponsoring Florida Branch of the association, said that Sgt. Maj. Robert L. Brown, the senior noncommissioned officer in the active 2nd Infantry Division, will be in charge of annual memorial services at the convention.

Bell said that Sgt. Maj. Edward B. Leavitt of the 2nd Engineer Battalion has been designated as liaison representative of the Florida Branch to interest the officer and enlisted men in the reunion.

"We are making every effort to make this convention one of particular interest to the active division," Bell told the 2nd Division News. "These men will be the future of this association."

He described the convention site as "a truly beautiful location — ocean on one side and inland waterway on the other."

According to the Diplomat representative "there is never a dull moment during a stay" there.

"There's something for your every mood and for every member of the family," he said. "There is golf on two championship courses; tennis on six tournament courts; 1,200 feet of private ocean beach and five swimming pools."

A Diplomat advertising brochure says the Florida establishment is called "the proven convention capital of the resort world."

"A tremendous auditorium and vast exhibit hall are only part of the marvelous facilities to groups of every size," the brochure states. "Our highly trained and experienced convention staff assures clock-work meeting. Over 600-acre resort provides many hours of unparalleled enjoyment."

The portion of the resort where special rates are available is one of four residential areas in the resort complex. Called "Diplomat West," it is located adjacent to the inland waterway, a salt and fresh water canal that runs from Boston to Miami.

'Hairpin, Rubberband' Handy on Lonely Road

By DAVE BUMAN

While traveling the long, poorly lighted stretch of road from Main Post toward Kelly Hill Gymnasium one evening, a Support Command soldier spotted a car off to the side of the road with its hood raised.

Pulling up behind the parked car, the soldier found he was coming to the aid of two damsels in distress.

The two ladies were traveling along when their car suddenly stopped responding to pressure of the accelerator, and coasted to a stop with the engine at an idle.

After looking under the hood, the soldier came to the conclusion that the ladies had lost a nut holding the linkage connecting the action of the accelerator to the carburetor, thus cutting off any response by the driver to the amount of gas flowing into the carburetor.

After explaining the problem as best he could, the soldier set about trying to connect the separated linkage, but found he had nothing with which to do the job.

One of the ladies then looked in her handbag, and came up with a "hairpin and a rubberband."

Having tried everything else with no luck, the soldier said "why not," and set about the work once again.

Within minutes, he had come up with a working "field expedient," and the ladies were able to continue their journey.

The Soldier of the story — Col. Fred O. Jackson, commander of Support Command, the division unit which he says prides itself on keeping the division running.

Choir to Present Musical at Easter

John W. Peterson's "Hallelujah! What a Savior" will be presented as an Easter cantata on April 11th, by the 25-voice Chapel Three choir at the chapel.

The 40-minute musical spectacular will be under the direction of Capt. James Meredith, with everyone invited to attend. It will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Personnel Note Blasts Carelessness

A message expressing concern over the isolated cases of adverse personnel actions has come from the Chief of Staff of the Army, Gen. Harold K. Johnson.

In the monthly Army Personnel Letter published by the office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for personnel, Johnson said he was concerned about the number of small actions which "have come to my attention."

He described them as being "heedless, thoughtless or careless and ignored the basic fact that each human being is different from any other human being. . .

"People are our most important asset. All that we do and all that we fail to do is a direct product of the performance of our people."

He ended his message with an appeal to the people in charge of personnel actions "to bend his every effort to putting the PERSONAL into personnel."

The Army Personnel Letter is circulated to all commanders and their staffs. It is aimed at commanders and personnnel managers, both military and civilian.

Museum Gets Two Tanks; M-4, M-48 Stand Guard

By MARV WOLF

Two large additions to the 2nd Infantry Division's historical center were added this week when a World War II vintage M-4 Tank and a much more recent M-48 tank were installed on the grounds outside the center.

The first to arrive was the M-4 Sherman Tank which was sent to the division from the Proving Grounds at Aberdeen, Md.

It finally came to rest this week some 25 years after it was tested, modified and finally turned loose to serve as the standard medium tank used by allied forces during World War II.

The M-4 was armed with a 75 millimeter gun and was in its hey-day in the era of the German "Tiger - Tank" and the Russian T-34. The M-4 was considered to be more reliable than the other two.

When the 2nd Division invaded Europe the M-4 Sherman left a trail of burning Tigers behind it to prove its reputation.

'Draggin' Wagons' Install Historic Tanks

By MARV WOLF

The efforts of Sgt. Rodney Rollison, Recovery Section Chief for Headquarters and Company A, 702nd Maintainance Battalion, gave the 2nd Infantry Division's historical center two new relics.

Rollison, who was a reservist called up during the Berlin Crisis of 1961, with the aid of three men from his section and one of their "Draggin' Wagons" moved an obstinate M-4 tank into position on the grounds of the historical center.

An equally obstinate but twice as big M-48 was moved in a similar operation on Thursday.

The two tanks are a part of the growing collection of historical properties now on display at the Historical Center, located in the 2nd Administration Company area.

The tank transplant was conceived by Maj. David A. Forsythe, Division G-5, and executed under the supervision of Capt. Jerry Mooney.

Infantry Unit Offers Surprises For Grieblings—Truism Confirmed

By ALICE WITTER

With the scarcity of command possibilities in branches other than the infantry at Fort Benning, officers receiving such orders are always surprised — as are their wives.

Lt. Col. Alfred L. Griebling, commander of the 2nd Engineer Battalion, and Mrs. Griebling, are one such couple. Since coming to the "Home of the Infantry," however, they have been surprised and delighted to find old friends and acquaintances - another confirmation of the truism that the longer one is in the Army, the smaller it becomes.

Betty Marriott and Al Griebling went through grade school and high school together in Denver, Colorado with only friendly interest. It wasn't until West Point cadet Al returned home on leave and threw a party for some friends, at which Betty was a guest, that a greater interest began to develop.

After graduation in 1950, Al was sent to Korea and returned in December of 1951. Betty, who had graduated from the University of Denver was a Chemistry major, had been working in the Food Testing Laboratory of the City of Denver Health Department.

In January of 1952, they were married and went to Fort Belvior, Virginia, where Al was a TAC officer in the Officer Candidate School. Their first child, Richard, was born there in December, 1952.

In July of 1953, Lt. Griebling received orders for the Omaha Engineer District, which meant a year of frequent moves: three months in Nebraska City, Nebraska; six months in Pickstown, South Dakota, where daughter Adele was born; and three months in Lincoln, Nebraska.

Another assignment at Fort Belvoir awaited them in the school year 1954-55 and the Engineer Advance Course. Further schooling followed when Captain Griebling was sent to Iowa State University at Ames, Iowa for a Master's degree in Civil Engineering.

The next three years were spent in the 317th and 299th Engineer Battalions at Hoechst, Germany, a village west of Frankfurt. In September, 1957, a third child, John, joined the Grieblings. Family life was interrupted briefly when the 229th Engineer Battalion paticipated in the "show of force" in Lebanon.

After returning to the States in 1959 the Grieblings proceeded to the United States Military Academy where Major Griebling taught civil engineering in the Department of Military Art and Engineering.

Three years at West Point were followed by the Command and General Staff College course at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. In July of 1963, Lt. Col. Griebling was off to Viet Nam while Betty and the children returned to Denver to await his return. The year of waiting was highlighted by the arrival of Elizabeth, born in February, 1964.

With his return to the States, Lt. Col. Griebling was greeted with the welcomed orders for Fort Benning and his command. Although they had anticipated a long tour here, Col. Griebling has been selected to attend the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Virginia in January, 1966.

Mrs. Griebling, with the ideal family of two boys and two girls ranging in age from fourteen months to twelve years, modestly says she has no great talents, and with her family keeping her busy, has little time for hobbies.

The Griebling quarters are decorated in a delightfully effective blend of Early American and French Provincial styles and exude the warmth and pleasantness of the hostess. Furniture, pictures, and bric-a-brac from Europe, the Far East and the Middle East recall assignments in those areas.

With keeping up with battalion and division activities and taking care of her home and family, it is no wonder this very pleasant, unassuming lady doesn't have time to rush around looking for hobbies.

G-3 Ladies Meet At Conger Home

Sunshine yellow and white recently set the mood for a sunny afternoon at the home of Mrs. William Conger for the ladies of the G-3 Section. Hostesses Mrs. Conger and Mrs. H. G. Mallet welcomed guests for an afternoon of tea.

Mrs. Burnside E. Hoffman was guest of honor. Mrs. Edward Reed was welcomed into the group while farewell was said to Mrs. A. E. Stipe.

A luncheon is planned for the third Tuesday in April.

The tea table was set with spring flowers and tea, punch, and coffee were served, along with tea sandwiches.

Marksmen, Families Picnic Saturday

Barbecue and beer will be the objects of consumption for members of the 2nd Infantry Division's marksmanship detachment and their families at the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club Saturday.

MSgt. James Posey said that some 62 family groups are expected to attend the picnic.

"This will be the first party held by the new group of marksmen brought together in January to represent the division throughout the year," he said. "We like to have the get-to-gethers every two or three months."

Sgt. Posey said the party will begin at 2 p.m.

Wives Entertain 702nd Officers

The officers' wives of the 702nd Maintenance Battalion invited their husbands, bachelor officers and guests to a covered-dish dinner recently at the Second Division Family Service Center.

The dining area had an Italian atmosphere with candle lights on brightly-colored red and white check tablecloths.

After dinner, the group engaged in a group-singing fun fest and dancing.

The ladies were thanked for their culinary efforts by Lt. Col. John Gephart.

Special guests were Col. and Mrs. Fred O. Jackson.

Coffee Meet Held In Home Of Mrs. Miles

The ladies of the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry, met recently in the home of Mrs. George W. Miles, Jr., for their March coffee. Mrs. Miles was hosting the group for her final coffee with them.

She will be leaving the group soon, since her husband will be attending the Infantry Officers' Career Course. He then will be leaving for a tour of duty in Korea.

Acting as co-hostess with Mrs. Miles was Mrs. Ronald L. Ziegler.

The serving table was covered with a white lace cloth and was decorated with an arrangement of yellow snapdragons. Mrs. John D. White, wife of the battalion commander, poured for the group.

After coffee, Mrs. White presided over a brief business meeting.

St. Patricks Theme Used In Hesterly Home For Coffee

The ladies of Headquarters, Division Artillery, met recently at the home of Mrs. John H. Hesterly on Lumpkin Road for their monthly coffee. Mrs. Hesterly decorated her home for the occasion in a St. Patrick's Day motif.

The ladies, each wearing a shamrock name-tag, went into the dining room for refreshments. Mrs. Farncis E. Mendenhall poured from the silver service. A centerpiece of green carnations and white stock adorned the table.

Mrs. R. H. Kamstra met with the group for her last time. Her husband, Jamjor Kamstra, has been transferred to Second Division Headquarters.

The ladies welcomed Mrs. Stuart T. Ashton to the group.

Choir Members Dominate Service Club Art Show

Duke Ellington
First Prize in Ink
For Marc Cummings

Three members of the 2nd Infantry Division Soldier's Chorus last week walked away with the top prizes in an art contest sponsored by Service Club Two on Sand Hill.

To each's surprise when awards were presented, not one of the three artists knew of the other's interest in art.

PFC Marc Cummings, PFC Chris Georgeovich, and PFC Terry Reese, all assigned to the chorus, have backgrounds in art and have been working with their hobby while in the service. So when the Service Club announced it was going to have an art contest, all three made up their minds to give it a try.

After the judging, Cummings took first, second and third in ink drawing; Georgeovich took second in oil painting; and Reese captured first and second in pencil sketching. And all three took a look around to find that the big winners were from the same outfit.

Now that the three artists have gotten together, they plan to keep up their work and try again in other contests. At least they'll know where to look for the competition next time.

In other categories of the art show, the first place prize for oil paintings went to Sgt. Dale R. Carter, of Company A, 122nd Signal Battalion. Pvt. Robert E. Whittaker, of Headquarters and Headquarters Service Battery, 37th Artillery, took first and second places in watercolor and third in oil painting.

Sp4 Richard Acevedo, of Company A, 1st Battalion, sky, Headquarters and Company A, 702nd Maintenance Battalion.

Fourth grade students 23rd Infantry won the prize in crayon competition and also second place. Taking third place in crayon was Sp4 Alexander Hor[illegible]w from Miss Mary [illegible]ise Schuyler's class at [illegible]yd School won the hon[illegible] in the children's categ[illegible].

Judging the pieces of art were members of the Columbus School of Arts, and Mr. Tony Mani, director.

Lt. Col. Thomas Leahy, division adjutant general, presented awards to the winning artists.

DOWN TO THE SEA IN SHIPS

By JIM LULL

The recent river assault training, presented over the past two weeks by the 2nd Engineer Battalion on Victory Pond and the Chattahoochee River brought interesting reactions of the various from both infantry and engineer commanders.

In a sense it's a matter of back - patting — nothing phony — simply that engineer officials saw the infantrymen take to the maneuvers professionally, and the infantry officials saw the engineers, from commander to privates manning the rafts, presenting the material in an "excellent" fashion.

Keen Interest

"Those men displayed a keen interest in the tactics and techniques throughout the endurance of the schooling — they remained extremely interested in both the displays and demonstrations, as well as the practical work presented them" remarked Lt. Col. Alfred L. Griebling, 2nd Engineer Battalion commander.

Griebling also noticed "a fine coordination between commands at—all levels" during the crossing and assault training. Also, it's important to note that the actual navigation of the rafts across the swift current of the Chattahoochee River is of equal importance," he said.

The commander of the first unit to undertake the training, Lt. Col. Alfred J. Millard of the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry said "this is a necessary part of every infantry battalion's unit training. We can't forget that a river presents a most serious obstacle to any infantry outfit — and the art of crossing it is essential."

He noticed that his own troops were "very enthusiastic" throughout the two-day maneuver.

Former Commander

A person who has had considerable experience in the river crossing and assault program is former 2nd Engineer Battalion commander, and now head of the 1st Brigade, Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow.

With definite opinions on the importance of the recent schooling, Col. Snow made the point that "a river is one of the most formidable obstacles to confront any military movement anywhere in the world. Anywhere you go there are going to be rivers."

"We must remember that in order to maintain the momentum of an attack, we have to hurdle these rivers quickly!"

He also emphasized the importance of coordination between the infantry and engineer corps in this operation saying, "It takes many different people, and many different skills to operate successfully."

"Proficient"

Lt. Col. Strathmore K. McMurdo, who led his 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry through the instruction early this week, said, "I feel that this battalion — as a whole — became proficient in river assault expediency and technique.

"There is all the difference in the world, of course, when the men go from the still waters at Victory Pond to the current of the Chattahoochee River — it's much more challenging because that current is moving at the rate of six feet per second."

The 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry, just finishing their river assault requirement this morning, is the last infantry outfit in the division to avail themselves of the engineer's instruction.

Time and Effort

Lt. Col. John D. White, battalion commander, commented that the engineers "have obviously spent a tremendous amount of time and effort to get this segment of training prepared."

So, for another year, the annual river assault training has ended.

Cav's Smith Promoted To 1st Sergeant

"It is a pleasure to congratulate you on this advancement. It is well deserved and you had keen competition."

Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, 2nd Division Commander, had these remarks last week when he pinned First Sergeant stripes on Sherman L. Smith, of Troop A, 7th Cavalry.

Smith was promoted to First Sergeant in Gen. Chiles's office while Lt. Col. John F. McArdle, squadron commander, and Capt. Alexander S. Budd, Troop A Commander, looked on. Smith's wife, Jean, gave the general a hand in pinning the stripes.

Smith has been in the 7th Cavalry for 25 months. During this period he has served as platoon sergeant of Troop C, 3rd Platoon, for 18 months. He spent the last six months as acting First Sergeant of Troop A.

Smith was selected for the promotion by a division board.

Riflemen Travel To Tennessee

Riflemen of the 2nd Infan- detachment next weekend try Division's marksmanship will travel to Oak Ridge, Tenn., for their second match of the season.

Capt. John T. Burke, commander of the detachment, said his 21 riflemen will be facing competition from most of the Third U. S. Army posts as well as state national guard and civilian teams.

"Our chances for this one look pretty good," Capt. Burke said. "The Third Army team should be our biggest competition."

Known as the "Southern Appalachian Earlybird," the match will be fired on the Oakridge Sportsmen's Association Range, Burke said.

The riflemen will fire as individuals and in four-man teams, the captain said. Certain phases of the competition will have the men aiming at targets 1,000 yards away, he said.

Gen. Chiles Praises New Division Choir

The Songsters of the In- The Songsters newly formed "Indianhead" choir recently received praise from division commander Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles.

In a letter of commendation Gen. Chiles praised the chorus for their outstanding achievements since their activation in January.

The General had special praise for their performance at the West Point Founder's Day Dinner on 18 March. Said the general, "the musical progress of the chorus was amply demonstrated at this performance.

"Please extend to each member of the chorus my personal congratulations for a job well done. I am sure that you will continue to perform in a manner "Second to None."

By-Gone Days of Nickel Beer II

Division Founder Reminisces

Editor's Note — One of the Second Infantry Division's founding sons, Herschell Fox of New York City, is at work on a book about his experiences in the war - shattered early years of the 20th Century. As installments of DOWN MEMORY LANE reach the Second Division News, excerpts will be presented. Chapter Two follows:

When World War I erupted, Herschell Fox, now 67, was a freshman at the University of Illinois. He remembers the campus became "one big Army camp."

A veteran of Mexican border skirmishes with Pancho Villa, Fox had been attracted to the university's chapter of the "Student Training Corps," (SATC), which, he recalls, some people referred to as the "Safe At - College" group.

News of the war made him grow restless.

Made to Understand

"We were made to understand that the Germans were about beaten and that we Yanks were being sent to replace a few straggling French and British soldiers," he writes in his book DOWN MEMORY LANE. "I wanted to get in the war before it was over. Enlisted men were being treated like heroes. In peacetime it would have been a different story."

Off to Chicago he went to enlist. Aptitude aside, the Army sent the erstwhile pen - pusher to mechanic's school at the Rock Island Arsenal.

"There were some good mechanics there," he said, "but when someone said 'Stillson' to me, I thought he was talking about food. I had no idea it was a king of wrench."

When superiors asked for volunteers to form a squad of 40, Fox, "like a damn fool," volunteered.

"Over There"

The men heading for "Over There" with Fox were to become members of the 2nd Mobile Ordnance Repair Shop, one of the founding elements of the 2nd Infantry Division at Bourmont, France in 1917.

"We were the first unit of our kind," Fox said. "According to old records I've found, we were at all fronts with the division. We repaired many weapons right on the front. A good amount of our work was done under fire by the enemy."

After each major operation, Fox said, all machine guns in the division were over hauled and new parts were substituted where needed.

"Being 2nd Division men, we also worked on a large number of motor vehicles and carts," he said. "The only thing we didn't work on was horses."

Remembers Also

He remembers also, helping to evacuate wounded men to forward dressing stations.

"We often drove at night with one man on each side of the truck leading the way," he said.

The trip from the Midwest to Europe remains in Fox' memory a jumble of railroad tracks, cold, dark nights and a stomach-turning Atlantic crossing.

He remembers leaving Rock Rock Island, Ill., "on a cold dark night," and reaching Camp Mills, N.Y., "on a colder night."

"Our 'homes' at Camp Mills were large conical, eight-man tents," he writes. "For a bunch of men accustomed to living like people, conditions were terrible. The days were cold and dreary and the camp, hastily erected was one big mud hole."

An old college roommate contributed a letter that Fox wrote while at Camp Mills:

"We have been expecting to leave here any day. And as a matter of fact, we do not care where they send us — let it be Siberia — but get us out of this damn place."

Word to break camp came on December 12, 1917.

In the dead of night, like a bunch of criminals," Fox said. "They ferried us to Hoboken, N. J. We boarded the S.S. Susquehanne and finally, we were on our way."

NEXT CHAPTER: The trip "Over There."

A Half Million Miles

SFC Ernest Smith, operations sergeant for the 2nd Military Police Company, points to the creditable record of 500,000 miles of accident free driving. The 2nd Infantry Division MP's have long been walking off with division safe driving awards.

20 Times Around the World

MP's Log Half Million Accident-Free Miles

By DAN SWEENEY

The Second Infantry Division's Military Police Company completed its accident-free trek toward the half-million mile mark this week under the direction of its commander, Capt. Dewitt Hudson.

Over a hundred drivers in the unit can be credited with the feat, which totals up to an average of 54 miles driven each hour, or better than twenty times around the world.

Hudson said the unblemished record was largely attributed to the emphasis placed on the safety program within the unit.

Each man receives two week's instruction on safety and driver training techniques before he even gets out on the road. During this time policy, rules and regulations which cover operations in maneuvers and on the division area are outlined.

When asked about the million mile mark Hudson commented, "We'd have reached it by this time if it hadn't been for a slight accident that caused damage to a Volkswagon last year."

It will take another year for the MP's to make the mark unless some sizeable maneuvers take place in the division. "Nevertheless," assured Hudson, "we're going after the million miles."

Machine Gunner Is Top Soldier

The 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry walked off with three of the 1st Brigade's achievement awards this month as the result of a small awards ceremony in the office of brigade commander Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow.

A machine gunner from Company B, Harold Walker, was named the Brigade's Soldier of the Month for March.

Walker, a native of Somerset, Penn., said he was "enthused" about winning the top soldier honor. "A surprising amount of emphasis was placed on the condition and wearing of the uniform," he said.

Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow, 1st Brigade commander, presented Walker a Plaque in the brigade office, and urged him to be prepared for the division selection. "We'll help you along in any way we can," Snow said.

The 1st Brigade "best unit award" was then presented to Sgt. Maj. James Eastwood, representing the 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

The monthly "best maintenance award" was also presented Friday to the 1st Battalion 23rd Infantry.

Simerly Filling 7th Cav Post

Lt. Julian Simerly, formerly aide-de-camp to Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin, has joined the ranks of "Garry Owen."

Lt. Simerly, of Pompono Beach, Florida, will serve as the 7th Cavalry's S-3 Air until he departs in August for the Career Officer's Course at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

A 1961 graduate of Florida Southern, he served with the 69th and 72nd Armor Battalions before becoming Gen. Coffin's aide.

A New Era of Confusion?

This September 1 will mark a new era of confusion for the American public if things hold true to form in the recommended insignia change.

What seems to be an effort to clear the air about distinguishing an individual's rank has ironically become more confusing.

Right now there are reflections of stripe changes over the past ten or fifteen years that may be found on an enlisted man's sleeve. Those that I have noticed here at Benning range from the old green and brown combat stripes, to the small "WAC" stripes. Presently, there are two types of specialist stripes, the small and large, which supplement the standard corporal through sergeant major grades.

Such unsolicited remarks as "How can I convince my family back home that I haven't been busted when they see I've lost a stripe," or, "There's some tradition in the other services but with so many changes to the stripes in the Army we have no tradition."

There is obvious dissension within the ranks to the recommended change but up to this point there has been little consideration for the American public, especially the women.

Wives of servicemen are no exception to the rule that women do not understand rank. I've heard generals referred to as Major So and So because he wore two stars on his shoulder. This problem is common to any wife first entering the service with her husband whether an enlisted man or officer.

I don't wonder at the confusion when there are over 100 insignia identifying officers and enlisted men in the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines.

With the trend shifting toward establishment of schools, financial systems, and various other areas under the Department of Defense structure, I propose that this department come up with nine Armed Forces enlisted ranks with each service having the same insignia.

Some logic could be used in officer rank as well by giving the more valuable gold more significance than silver. The transition could be completed by placing the General officer rank in a more logical Lieutenant, Major, Brigadier, and General category.

Maybe this might be less confusing to the public.

Alabama Tragedy As Seen By Indianhead

Editor's Note: Last week several members of the 2nd Infantry Division Information Office were assigned to the US Department of Justice in Montgomery, Ala. while the voter rights march from Selma was taking place. Among the group of "Indianheads" as the 2nd Division News staffer Joe Treaster who called upon his experience was a Miami newspaper reporter to paint the tragic picture that is here reproduced.

It was the day after Mrs. Liuzzo got it and nothing was funny.

Tony Liuzzo, a business agent for teamsters in Detroit, was on the phone with the White House:

"...my children are crying and my wife is lying on a slab in Montgomery. I think I should talk with the President."

The President would talk with him later, he was told. Everyone was very sad. But they could not come to the phone just now.

Color stories about the march to Alabama's capitol and the people who made it —the tottering old, the curious kids, the dedicated followers and the inspired leaders—died in the backshop. And no more were written. A lump in the throat stopped the "brights" reporters had planned for the day after. Nothing was funny.

When death was drilled into Mrs. Viola Gregg Liuzzo at about nine Thursday night, a pair of Army information specialists, the Justice Department press officer and reporters from eight of the nation's most powerful newspapers were toasting the end of a long, sleepless week.

Earlier, as demonstrators began quietly drifting home, Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, the Department of the Army's representative in the area, had released his troops, satisfied that the peace would be kept.

The relaxing newsmen talked of how they had covered the historic series of events; why they had written funny or why they had written straight. The news had taken strange, unpredicted hops during the week. But there had been no violence. And of that, the newsmen were happy.

The Justice Department man saw sugar plums dancing through his thoughts.

Then the phone rang and it was for him. And how his face was firm. And nothing was funny.

What he heard from the FBI man in Selma emptied the Elite Restaurant. The next morning, Americans learned what had ruined the newsmen's party. It ruined a lot of breakfasts, too.

2nd of 9th Heads Wins In Rifle, Pistol Matches

Marksmen from the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry last week dominated the winners circle in the annual firing of the 2nd Infantry Division Small Bore Rifle and Pistol Championships.

The battalion sported a winner in both individual and team competition.

Crackerjack pistolmen and riflemen from the division fired during the two-day competition in the main post indoor range. Scores of the winners will be compiled and passed on to Third Army for judging winners in the entire Third Army area.

Lt. Elliott Worthington Headquarters, 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry outfired a host of marksmen to put him in the winners slot for individual pistol competition. He fired a 275 out of a possible 300.

With a score of 273, Sgt. Charles Reese, Headquarters, 1st Brigade, followed Lt. Worthington for second place in this bracket.

The 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry's pistol team from Headquarters Company sewed up a first place in that category with a score of 1015 out of a possible 1200.

Firing on the team were Lt. Worthington, Sgt. George Fincey, Sp4 Forrest Snipes and PFC Robert Smith Jr. A team from the 2nd Aviation Battalion pulled a second place in pistol firing.

In individual rifle competition, Lt. Stephen Fosdick, Headquarters and Support Company of the 2nd Medical Battalion, tied up the winner's slot with a score of 288 out of a possible 300. Lt. Jared East, Company A, 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry was second in this category with a 242.

Winning the prize in team rifle firing was a group from the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion who wrapped it up with a score of 1337. The highest possible score to obtain in this category was 1800.

Capt. Alfred Kelmm was team captain while Lt. William Beane coached the marksmen. Other members of the team were Lt. Stringer, SSgt. Odel Drum, Sgt. Wendall Sharpton, Sgt. Jack Whidden, Sp4 Lonnie Sampson and SFC Phillip Liparto (alternate).

A small bore rifle team from Company A, 1st battalion, 9th Infantry earlier had topped 35 teams in elimination firing for the division match with a score of 1394. However, in the final showdown, they turned in a 1227 total, putting them second to the S&T Battalion.

The elimination match consisted of six-man teams firing thirty rounds per man from each of three positions — standing, kneeling, and prone.

The six members of this second place team were Lt. East, Lt. William Wilson, Sgt. James Worley, Sp4 Gyorgy Kovacs, Sp4 Lester Newland and Sp4 Eugene Sutton.

Winners in Third Army competition will be determined from the scores compiled fom all posts under its command. There will be no firing to determine winners.

An awards ceremony for first and second place winners in division competition will be held in the near future.

Volleyball Finals Near

Two Teams Remain Undefeated

As play continued this week in the 2nd Infantry Division Volleyball Tournament, only two teams had survived undefeated by midweek.

Play Tuesday night saw the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry take two games from the 2nd Administration Company by margins of two points and ten points.

The 702nd Maintenance Battalion forfeited their best of three series to the 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment.

The division's Marksmanship Detachment defeated the 7th Cavalry 15-8 and 15-7.

Winner's Bracket

By tonight there will only be two teams left in the winners bracket of the tournament. A game is scheduled for Kimbro Gym between the Marksmanship Detachment and the winner of the Supply and Transport — 1st Battalion, 22nd Infantry game played last night.

Other games to be featured in tonight's play will pit the winner of last night's game between the 2nd Aviation Bn. and the 2nd Medical Bn. against the 7th Cavalry.

The third game tonight will have the winner of play last night between the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry and the 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment playing the loser in the 23rd Infantry-S and T game.

Tuesday Night

In addition to the losers in Tuesday night's contest; six other teams have made it to this stage of the tourney, losing only one encounter. They are the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry; 2nd Administration Company; the 702nd Maintenance Battalion; 2nd Aviation Battalion; and the 2nd Medical Battalion.

Although evenings have been filled with competition in the gym, several teams have been forced to forfeit games because of military commitments.

In action on Friday night of last week was the 7th Cavalry against the 2nd Engineers. The Cavalry team dropped the engineers in two rounds, 15-8 and 15-5.

Medics' Charge

In another game on the same evening, the Marksmenship Detachment turned back a charge by the medics. The shooters defeated the medics in the first round with a 16-14; however, the medics retaliated in the second set with a 15-12 win. markesmen won the third set, 15-4.

The Aftermath

BY TOM KIRWAN

The Pied Piper of Fort Benning — that 200 pound pipe smoking individual, the man most of the youngsters on post have the greatest praise for — has once again put out a request for needed support.

Max Spurlin, athletic director of the Youth Activity Club (YAC), has started to organize the Little League baseball teams. Almost everything is available for a successful season. The youth of the post from 8 to 15 years of age have turned out, baseball bats and balls are ready for use, but yet, there is one thing lacking.

"Yac comes close to being a good program," explained Max. "We have basketball, a bowling league, boxing and even judo. Right now we are in the process of getting the baseball season under way."

"The one thing that is missing to make this a completely successful program is more interested DADS. In the boys bitty basketball league there were three teams that were without a coach. The kids can't understand why someone doesn't show up to help them. They are there and the equipment is there."

Just as an example of how hungry these clay molds of adulthood are—There was a woman on post who was interested in bird watching. She approached Spurlin with the idea of starting a club. He agreed, and the Benning bird watchers were on there way.

Max explained the situation this way. "There are close to three thousand youths who are affected by YAC yearly, if an individual comes along who has a bit of talent, and wishes to share this gift, there are kids who will sap this knowledge for all it is worth."

The program is open to any suggestions and help that will make it a success.

If there are any of you who are interested in reliving the years of your youth, dig out that old baseball hat and contact the Youth Activities club. They're in need of Little League coaches. If you're not a coach give them a call anyway since there are so many YAC activities you can help with.

BRONZE STAR WITH 'V' DEVICE FOR HEROISM
Brig. Gen. Wright Makes Presentation To PSgt. Alford

Bronze Star Awarded

Heroism and Service Cited At 511th Award Ceremony

At a retreat ceremony held by the 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry, 2nd Air Assault Brigade, Brig. Gen. John M. Wright, assistant division commander, awarded medals and certificates to members of the 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry.

The highest medal awarded was to PSgt. Richard B. Alford, of Company B, 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry. He received the Bronze Star Medal with "V" device for heroism in connection with military operations against hostile forces while serving with the 39th Ranger Battalion, Army of the Republic of Vietnam.

Also awarded at the retreat ceremony was the Army Commendation Medal to Capt. Francis R. Curran of Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry, for meritorious performance of service during the period of October 16, 1963 to January 17, 1965. Through the resourcefulness and creativity of Capt. Curren, the 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry was able to receive and allocate supplies and equipment expeditiously during its organization.

Sgt. James Partin of Company A, 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry received the Army Commendation Medal for performance of meritorious service for his more than twenty years of honorable and faithful service to his country. Brig. Gen. Wright also awarded him with the Certificate of Retirement from the Armed Forces of the United States of America.

The 3rd Army Certificate of Maintenance Proficiency was awarded to Company C by Gen. Wright. Company C was commended for an outstanding performance during the recent 3rd Army CMMI. This followed closely on the heels of an IG inspection by the 11th AAD IG in which the men of Company C were commended for their superior administration, supply, maintenance and training.

Speaking Out on Safety

Let's Stop Killing Each Other

By Capt. Augustus Scott
228th Assault Support Helicopter Battalion

The majority of us have undoubtedly observed the Army's increasing effort to avoid waste and inefficiency resulting from accidents and injuries. This effort, however, will succeed or fail according to the initiative and effort each of us puts forth in the future to make the program a success.

Just as the captain of each company, more than the colonel, determine the morale of the men of the Army, so we and our fellow men will determine the success of accident prevention and safety in our units.

What qualifications must you have to get results in safety? First of all you must believe in accident prevention just as you believe in any thing else that prevents waste and increases efficiency. Secondly, you must really care for your fellow man as human beings, be sincerely interested in their welfare and feel your moral responsibility to protect them.

Discipline has a place in safety work also. This includes disciplining yourself as well as others who may have a tendency to disregard safety in their work, driving, or recreation. You should know your job thoroughly from the safety standpoint. If you suspect that there are hazards with which you are not familiar then consult your safety officer or commanding officer and advise him of the hazards which you believe to exist.

Training is an important part of the safety program also. Never forget that the man who has not received proper training in his job or on his piece of equipment, whether it be in the operation of a motor vehicle or the stacking of material, may be the cause of a

11th Division Aviator Logs 10,000th Hour

CWO Norbert W. Moczygemba of the 516th Transport Airplane Company has completed his ten thoudandth flying hour. Maj. Theordore W. Pratt, commanding officer of the 516th, announced that CWO Moczygemba, fondly called Mr. Alphabet by his fellow aviators, has 10,000 accident-free flying hours of which 9,500 are in Army aircraft.

Mr. Moczygemba's aviation career began in 1943 as a civil service employee. In 1944 he became an aviation ordiance man in the U. S. Navy. He accompanied the South Pole Expedition of 1946-47 and returned to the Civil Service in 1948.

In 1950 he entered the Army as an automatic weapons crew chief, and in 1953 was a member of the 4th helicopter class graduated at Fort Sill. His first assignment was at Fort Bragg.

In January of 1954 he returned to Sill as an instructor in rotary-wing aircraft. While in the assingment he helped to open the Army aviation schools at Fort Rucker and Fort Walters.

He graduated from the first Warrant Officer Fixed-Wing Transition Course in 1959, and joined the 17th Aviation Company at Fort Ord. He left the States in 1960 for a tour in Germany, and returned in 1961 to serve with the IV Army Aviation Detachment as their multi-engine insturcter pilot.

After graduation from Instrument Flight Examiner School, he left the States again to serve with the 18th Aviation Company in Vietnam. Later while still in Viet-

General's Message

TO: Commanders, All Units
Chiefs, All General and Special Staff Sections
11th Air Assault Division
Fort Benning, Georgia

I wish to call to the attention of all commanders a very fine publication, the "Expert Infantryman Badge Digest." This book, written and published at the Infantry Center, is available at the US Army Infantry School Book Store for $1.75.

This volume is a compilation of all study references essential to preparation for the Expert Infantryman Badge Test and will also prove invaluable as a study guide for Proficiency Pay and MOS testing. As an added incentive the profits from the sale of "Expert Infantryman Badge" go to the United States Army Infantry Museum here at Fort Benning. I consider the museum to be a very worthy activity which enhances the proud traditions of the Infantryman.

In addition to individuals who may wish to purchase personal copies, I hope you will encourage your units to purchase copies of this book from unit funds and have them easily available to all members of your command to read, study and enjoy.

Captain Devises New M-3 Cleaning Method

Capt. Calvin H. Carr, aircraft maintenance officer of "Battery "A", 3d battalion, 377th Artillery, recently devised a time saving method of cleaning the M-3 rocket tubes. The problem of cleaning tubes still exists in the aerial rocket units.

There are 576 tubes in an aerial rocket battery compared to six in a 105 Howitzer Battery. Observing the excessive amount of time and manpower expended to prepare for an AGI, inspection with very poor results, Capt. Carr decided something must be done. This was in line with our mission of developing imaginative ideas for improved techniques and concepts in air assault.

The old method consisted of a long rod with a soft copper and fiber brush atached to one end — at the other end was a pair of hands belonging to a 675.20. Capt. Carr simply added a stiff, circular, copper wire brush and a fiber disc to act as a guide. The new modified rod was then attached to a portable placed handpower. It now takes about 3 minutes to clean a tube compared to the previous 30 minutes. This new idea saves over 250 man hours with greatly improved results.

Indications are that there is no significent increased wear. The tubes would become unserviceable from normal use before they would be adversely affected by this through cleaning process. The substantial reduction in corrosive residue remaining will more than offset the possible wear from this new cleaning process. This new method also cuts down considerably on cleaning materials. All that is needed now is a continuous flow of water to carry away the dirt. There is a savings in carbon removed, solvent steel wool and hot soapy water.

This is primarily an experimental process which has provided substantial savings in man hours and materials. Further evaluation is necessary before this unit would advocate extensive use of this cleaning process. This method was quickly adopted by the entire 377th Artillery Battalion.

From the IDEA CENTER

'Imaginuity' Corner

A noncommissioned officer's search for a better way to get his job done has resulted in the submission of another idea to the 11th Air Assault Division IDEA CENTER.

The idea concerns the Little John Rocket Wind Measuring Set and was submitted by SSgt. Roy H. Gunn, a Launcher Section Chief assigned to Battery C of the 2nd Battalion (Little John), 42nd Artillery. Basically, SSgt. Gunn's idea makes the windset part of the jeep and uses a system of compressed air to elevate it.

The windset in the Little John Battalion is used to obtain a low level wind correction prior to rocket firings. In conventional usage, elements of the windset are carried tied down to a jeep and the mechanism is elevated using a hand pump after it is removed from the vehicle.

SSgt. Gunn's idea combines an M151 mounted windset and an air compressor installed under the hood of the jeep which is used to elevate the telescopic windset mast. Where it formerly took four men approximately five minutes to emplace the windset, SSgt. Gunn's method enables only three men to get it in place in as fast as two minutes.

THE LITTLE JOHN WINDSET
Mounted And Ready For Travel

QUESTION OF THE MONTH

The IDEA CENTER continues to seek your ideas on problems that face the division every day. This month we have been looking for an answer to this problem:

'How can large quantities of water be resupplied to forward field areas?' If you can help with this idea inform the division IDEA CENTER, Building 5205, phone 545 6217.

Bunnies and Bonnets Set Scene At 227th Spring Fashion Brunch

Easter Bunnies and Easter Bonnets set the scene for a brunch planned by the wives of Company C for the ladies of the 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion. The event was held on March 25, 1965 at the Custer Terrace Officers Club.

Following a delightful brunch, Mrs. Jack Cranford, wife of the commanding officer introduced the guest of honor, Mrs. George S. Beatty, Jr., wife of Col. Beatty, commander of the 11th Aviation Group.

Following announcements concerning the battalion activities, Mrs. Cranford also welcomed new ladies who have recently joined the battalion, Mrs. Billy Joe Allen and Mrs. Richard Hunter.

A beautiful array of Spring hats were modeled by a group of Anne Roberts models. The collection gave an insight into the styles, fabrics, and colors which will be popular this Spring.

Mrs. Chloe Sheppard served as narrator for the fashions and was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Edward Busheyhead.

The fortunate winner of a Gift Certificate was Mrs. Gene Welsh, wife of the Company B commander.

17th Cavalry Wives Model The Latest Fashions

Latest Spring Chapeaus Modeled At 17th Cavalry

Spring was officially welcomed by the officers' wives of the 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry on Wednesday, March 24, 1965 when the ladies of Troop B were hostesses at an informal coffee held in a "Parsian Sidewalk Cafe".

Refreshments were served under a pastel-colored canopy in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Club, which was decorated with scattered "sidewalk" paintings. The artist in this case was Mrs. Jonothan Hansbrook, who along with Mrs. Douglas Tucker was in charge of decorations.

Spring would not be spring without a new hat! In the center of the "cafe" was a five foot high tree decorated with numerous miniature hats and Mrs. Roberts, buyer of millinery for Kirven's, presented the newest in Spring chapeaux. These were modeled by Troop B wives. Along with the traditional straw bretons and flowered hats, a Christian Dior "Snood" and a "Mary Poppins" were among the new styles shown for this season.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. Warren Griffith, Mrs. Clarence Knuight, Mrs. Billie Hammer and Mrs. William Laidlow.

81st Artillery Claims Georgia Background

The 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery was activted on July 18, 1963, at Fort Benning as the first direct - support howitzer battalion of the 11th Air Assault Division. This is not the first assignment in Georgia for the 81st Artillery however, for its first color-bearer, Battery F, 81st Field Artillery was converted from Troops L and M, 23rd Cavalry at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. (10 miles South of Chattanooga, Tenn.) on November 3rd, 1917.

Following its assignment to the 8th Division in 1919, the 81st Field Artillery was inactivated at Camp Bragg, N. C. on February 1st, 1922.

Redesignated on December 16, 1940, as Battery C, 81st Field Artillery Battalion, the predecessor of the present Air Assault battalion saw duty at Camp Kilmer, N. J. until February 1946; Fort Sill, Okla., until November 1948; and was assigned on August 10th, 1950, to the 101st Airborne Division.

Further reorganization and transfers saw the 81st Artillery equipped with the 155mm howitzer at Camp Breckinridge, Ky.; moved to Fort Jackson, S.C., and relieved from assignment to the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky., on April 25th, 1957.

Almost two years have passed since the 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery joined the 11th Assault Division. In that time the battalion has proven the compatibility of aircraft with howitzers as a distinguished member of the Air Assault team.

Lt. Col. Francis J. Bush is the present commander of the 6th Battalion, 81st Artillery.

'Improve Your Education' Prevalent at Battalion

Leading the way for the battalion in the way of educational self - improvement is the 42nd Artillery Commander, Lt. Col. Charles F. Farber. Col. Farber is enrolled in a Latin American History course at the Fort Benning Branch of the American University.

Also taking education courses are the Battalion Executive Officer, Maj. Herbert H. Martin and the Sgt. Maj. Harold L. Deal. Maj. Martin is taking a Money and Banking course offered by the American University while Sgt. Maj. Deal is enrolled in an Electronics course at the Fort Benning Education Center.

All told, there are 12 members of the 42nd Artillery taking education courses at civilian institutions (primarily at the Fort Benning Branch of The American University); 34 members of the organizatin taking military extension courses (primarily from the Artillery and Missile School at Fort Sill, Okla.)

511th Infantry Battalion, a Modern Air Assault Unit Takes a Glance Back at Its Proud Record in Combat

The 1st Battalion, 511th Infantry, 2nd Air Assault Brigade, is proud of its history and has just right to be so. At the time of the United States entry into World War II, it was apparent that the U. S. needed a strong striking force predicated upon great speed, flexibility and firepower. This need brought about the birth of the American Airborne forces.

Close on the heels of Fort Benning's parachuting pioneers came Army Ground Forces General Order No. 61 which brought into existence the 511th Parachute Infantry (Regiment) Battalion on Jan. 5, 1943. Commanded by Col. Orin D. Haugen, the Regiment moved to Camp Mackall, N.C., where it became a part of the 11th Airborne Division.

After more than a year of testing the 511th sailed from Camp Stoneman in May 1944 and landed at New Guinea, where more jungle training keyed the (Regiment) Battalion for one of the bitterest struggles in the history of modern warfare.

The 511th PIR was first committed to battle in Nov. 1944. As the assault element for the 11th Airborne Division, the (Regiment) Battalion cleared the treacherous mountain pass from Buecuen to Ormoc Bay, on Leyte, P. I., a distance of 45 miles of volcanic ridges and tropical forests filled with Japanese bunkers and covered emplacements.

The (Regiment) Battalion then paused on Bito Beach and took a well deserved rest, waiting for its next mission which was not long in coming. The commanding general, Eighth Army, directed the 511th to move by air to Tageytay Ridge, in southern Luzon, land by parachute and effect a junction with other elements of the Division moving in from the sea. On Feb. 3, 1945, the 511th Combat Team jumped on Tageytay Ridge, 40 miles south of Manila, and met the rest of the division in the race for Manila.

To the 511th fell the honor of leading the attack against the famous Japanese "Genko Line" which was designed to defend Manila against the expected American landing in the southern sector of Luzon. The line was made up of mutually supporting concrete pillboxes, with 6-inch naval guns, mortars, and anti-aircraft pieces sighted for direct fire. This action was strictly a doughboys' battle requiring house - to - house fighting with flame-throwers and demolitions. Three days after the landing the leading elements of the 511th had reached Manila. In 16 more days of mop - up operations the Philippine capital was secured.

In Aug. 1945, the (Regiment) Battalion landed on the Japanese mainland, where it remained for 43 months of occupation duty. The 511th returned to the States and Fort Campbell in 1949 and remained there until Operation Gyroscope brought it to Germany early in 1956.

The 511th Infantry was deactivated Feb. 1959 in Germany.

It was reactivated on July 18, 1963 at Fort Benning, Georgia as part of the 11th Air Assault Division with Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard serving as Division commander. During the past 20 months of reactivation the 11th Air Assault Division has grown considerably and today consists of approximately 15,500 men.

From 377th Artillery

Seven 'Lifetime Griffins' Honored Upon Departure

Recently as seven officers on orders to depart the 3rd Battalion (Aer Rkt) 377th Artillery prepared to leave, they were surprised at a battalion officers call held by Lt. Col. Nelson A. Mahone, the battalion commander. Each officer was given a "going away" present of a plaque with the regimental crest and an award which consisted of a membership as a "Lifetime Griffin".

Unique is the fact that the griffin is a legendary animal which can best be described as half lion and half eagle. The griffin is depicted in the 377th Regimental Coat of Arms and illustrates the quick striking power of aerial rockets.

Lt. Col. Mahone in presenting the awards noted that this was the first occasion such an award was being made. The recipients of the award have served with the aerial rocket battalion since its activation on May 1, 1964.

In thanking the officers for a job well done, the award notes the distinction the officers have all fired missions with the Army's first aerial rocket battalion.

The officers receiving the award were 1st Lt. Weston O. VanLoon, CWO Albert G. Gay, and WO's Donald E. Begay, George C. Karcher, Joe A. Leming, Dale L. Tooloose, and William M. Wilkerson.

23rd Field Problem Provides Test For Platoon Leaders

On the morning of March 22, 1965, the three platoons of Company A, 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry departed for a 48 hours field problem that had a very unique feature; the platoon leaders were "on their own" for the entire problem. Higher unit commanders were specifically prohibited from supervising in any way, allowing the platoon leaders the opportunity to exercise their own initiative in planning as well as executing missions that they themselves assigned.

The problem insured the realism involved in a "free play" exercise in which the platoon leader is not governed by a scenario or by the administrative restrictions imposed by a controller. It also permitted the platoon leaders to conduct the type of traning that they felt worthy of empbasis within their elements.

Aussie Paratrooper Rappels With RAKS

Capt. Brian C. Wade of the Royal Australian Army underwent an abbreviated air assault training program last week conducted by the 1st Air Assault Brigade's Rakkasan paratroopers.

A parachute infantryman in the Australian Army, Capt. Wade had a three-man Rak instruction team speed him through the course, made up of SSgt. Harold Hambrick of Company C, and SSgt. Thomas E. Tokash and Sgt. Bernard McCallister of Company C.

The program began Tuesday when Capt. Wade began rappelling training which covered basic principles, equipment and techniques, followed by tower training and actual helicopter rappelling on Wednesday.

Performed in both wooded and open terrain, during the final phase of this training, Capt. Wade was in charge, and was right at home with his paratroop buddies in the Raks. Serving as escort officer for the captain during his tour with the Raks was 1st Lt. Donald F. McMillan, executive officer of Rak Company C.

Upon conclusion of his tour Friday, Lt. Col. Harlow G. Clark, Rakkasan commander, presented Capt. Wade a souvernir album covering his visit and training with the 187th, a Rakkasan rappelling certificate and a complete set of rappelling equipment.

The photo-album, in addition to containing pictures of the captain during his training also has lesson plans covering each phase of his training in air assault, with photographs depicting the Air Assault Infantry role.

Capt. Wade was also attached to the most recent Ranger Class as an observer, and also with the Airborne School.

permanent or disabling injury to himself and those around him.

Make yourself a leader in safety and accident prevention both on and off duty by your own example, your influence and by exercising your authority where the circumstances warrent.

When you observe a near accident don't let it be regarded as a lucky break that no one was hurt. Remember instead, the possible consequence and the fact that a repetition would, in all probability, result in someone being hurt or worse yet, killed.

This type of safety mindedness will, in the long ruh, gain you respect from those around you and most of all will prevent you from KILLING ONE ANOTHER!

Battery B Prepares For Ft. Stewart Test

Graduation Certificates Presented at 10th ATB

Lt. Col. Lester C. Robertson, S-3 Officer of the 10th Air Transport Brigade presented certificates of graduation to 16 Enlisted Men of the 72d Air Traffic Company who were the first students to successfully complete an accelerated 240 hour course in Enroute Air Traffic Control. The presentation was made at 10th Air Transport Brigade headquarters on March 12, 1965.

Prior to the inception of this course by the 72d Air Traffic Company, commanded by Maj. George M. Belk, Enroute Controller training was given periodically by the Federal Aviation Agency at the FAA Academy, Oklahoma City, Okla. At the present time this course of instruction given by the 72d Air Traffic Company, is the only one of its kind in the military services and recognized by the Department of the Army.

Due to the complexity of Enroute Controller training, a prerequisite for course attendance was established. It was determined that the individual must have an MOS in the 901 field and be a graduate on the Tower and GCA (Ground Control Approach) Course given at Keesler AFC, Miss.

Capt. Manuel Carnero Jr. was the Project Officer in charge of instruction and course development, SFC R. L. Pitt, was NCOIC of instruction and was supported by the following instructors; SSgt. Brooks Rogers, Sgt. Floyd Rogers, Sgt. Edward Crawford and Sgt. Kenneth Poe.

Students receiving certificates at the graduation were; SSgt. Rafael Hernandez; SPS's Robert Cummins, Julius Fankhauser, Tommy C. 229th Pilots Turn Infantrymen During Ranger Escape Course

Instead of Aviation's "This is Army 820 over Romeo Papa at 1500 feet at 45 past the hour," it's Infantry's "Pass up the count" for members of the 229th Battalion.

On March 12, 1965, 142 officers and men of the 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion completed the US Army Infantry Center rough and tumble Ranger Escape and Evasion course located on the Fort Benning reservation. The Stacked Deck assault aviators and crew chiefs ran the course to expand their military knowledge in order to be made more aware of the problems faced by the Sky Soldiers Infantrymen who they assault lift into combat.

The pilots and crewmen were taught how to survive the rigors of raw life in the wilderness, to study new methods which will better enable them to return to friendly territory without being captured once forced to land or crash behind enemy lines, and to develop more confidence in themselves as individuals and in their capabilities as soldiers of the United States Army.

On the afternoon of March 12, pilots, co-pilots, crewchiefs and helicopter mechanics attended classes conducted by the Ranger Department. Afterwards they were divided into three groups and then broken down in to flight crew-size groups of three or four persons. Each crew was taken to drop-off points in the vicinity of the southeastern corner of the reservation. Each then departed to make their "escape" over the three mile course and to evade all aggressors enroute.

Aggressors, commanded by Capt. J. D. Coleman of Company D, 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry, made every effort to keep as many as possible from completing the course. Some were slowed, some were scattered; 23 were captured.

Aggressors took their prisoners to the E & E Stockade where "Comrade Interrogators" operating under "rules of the Geneva Convention" were encountered, "Comrades" were Ranger-Army Aviator Capt. William Barrett of Company A, and Edward Burkhalter of Company C, both of the 229th Battalion. Brief sojourns at the E & E Stockade and butchered conversations via push-ups-in-the-mud technique will be long remembered by those who were captured on this E & E problem.

The first crew to make contact with the partisan point was pilot and Section Commander Capt. William T. Hooks, co-pilot WO Jerry N. Duke, and crewchief Sp4 Ray P. Owens. Hook's crew finished the course in less than four hours and were able to do so by avoiding the low ground, trails and open roadways. All are members of Charlie Company.

Trolly Troopers Lead the League

The standings at the end of the fourth week of the 81st Artillery bowling league found three teams within a "missed split" of each other.

The Battery B "Trolley Troopers" lead the league with a record of 11½ points won and 4½ points lost. The Headquarters Battery "Breakers" and the "Alibis" of Battery A are tied for second place with 11-5 records. The league is comprised of a team from each battery and teams of firing battery and staff officers.

SFC Albert Soto, a member of the "Breakers" is threatening to take most of the individual honors. His 623 series is high for both scratch and handicap honors. He also boasts a 200 pin average. Sgt. Donald Baker of Battery B has the high scratch game of 244 and Cpl Frank Wiggam of Battery C. has recorded the high handicap game with a 255 pin score.

The Battery A "Alibis" claimed both high team game of 974 and high team series of 2828 in the handicap standings. The "8 Balls" of Battery C claim the high team handicap average of 858.

Red Dog Concept of Foul Weather Navigation Provides Tops in Training For 377th Aviators

Capt. Robert Arnold, a member of Battery A, 3rd Battalion, 377th Artillery, recently conducted training in a new concept of mass movement of aircraft under instrument flying conditions. All aviators in Division Artillery, and 1st and 2nd Brigades attended the training. This new concept was devised by Maj Chester Mead, the division project officer and given the name Red Dog. This term was derived from the technique used by the linebacker in professional football — to get the combat power in with maximum surprise and accomplish the mission.

The program of training was kicked off with a briefing by Maj. Chester Mead followed by five days of flight training under the supervision of Capt. Arnold.

Sixty-One Years of Service Are Represented At Recent 17th Cavalry Retirement Ceremony

On Friday, March 26, 1965, a retirement ceremony was held in the office of Lt. Col. J. B. Stockton, commanding officer, 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry. The Army Commendation Medal was awarded to 1st Sgt. Harold W. Dietrick, MSgt. Larry D. Frith and Sp5 Lowell D. Nation. The three cavalry men have amassed a total of 632 months of Active Duty.

1st Sgt. Dietrick, as a member of the 37th Infantry Division, participated in the Guadalcanal, Bougainville, and Luzon Campaigns — winning two battle stars and the Combat Infantryman's Badge. During the Battle of Manila, he was awarded the nations second highest decoration, the Distinguished Service Cross, for actions involving extreme heroism, and selfless devotion to duty. In 1945, he returned to the United States and civilian life, reenlisting in 1948.

In 1944, with the 10th Armored Division, MSgt. Frith participated in World War II's famous Battle of the Bulge. In 1946, after a brief break in service,, he reenlisted for occupation duty with the United States Army Constabulary in Europe.

With the commencement of the Korean Conflict, Sgt. Frith was assigned to the 502nd Armored Reconnaissance Battalion and stayed with this unit until the cease fire in August of 1953, after which he worked with the military Assistance Advisory Group in Japan. Later he volunteered for the 14th Armored Cavalry in Germany. In July of 1964, Sergeant Frith joined the 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry.

Sp5 Lowell D. Nation served in the South Pacific on Board the U.S.S. Zaurak. While on board the Zaurak, Sp5 Nation received battle stars for action in the invasion of Iwo Jima, the Philippine Islands Liberation and the Invasion of Okinawa. He returned to the United States and was discharged February 12, 1946.

Sp5 Nation was enlisted in the United States Army on January 17, 1947 reporting to Fort McClellen, Ala. serving tours of duty in Hawaii, Japan, and France, as well as stateside assignments.

1st Aviation CV-2's Endurance Tested On Extended Flight

A section, consisting of four CV-2 Caribou aircraft departed Lawson Army Airfield March 21 for a 2,200 mile non-stop flight to Ft. Lewis, Wash.

The aircraft from the 1st Aviation Company, 11th Air Assault Division are expected to arrive at the Washington post at noon on April 7 and will begin a return non-stop flight to Ft. Benning on the 2nd.

Following arrival at Benning at noon on the 3rd, the two aircraft with the most fuel remaining will stay airborne.

While at Ft. Lewis, crew members will publicize the aircraft to further test it's capabilities and the job being done by the 37th Air Transport Brigade.

Rock of the Marne Prepares for Testing

The 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry is currently undergoing training to prepare selected "Marnemen" for testing to earn the coveted Expert Infantryman Badge.

In order to win the badge, personnel must display proficiency in a wide variety of basic infantryman's skills, be of excellent character, and have an Infantry primary MOS.

Maj. Cecil Henry, Battalion Operations and Training Officer, assigned each company a portion of the EIB subjects for presentation to the remainder of the battalion.

The training to date has been superior as evidence by numerous training inspections. PSgt. George Lawless and SSgt. Pedro Lopez-Ferrer, both members of Bravo Company, received superior ratings for their instruction on the Bayonet Assault Course and the Assembly and Dissembly of the M-60 Machine Gun.

PSgt. James Norman and SSgt. Vernell Stokes, members of Charlie Company, received a superior rating for their classes on the General Assault Course and Military Symbols.

Selected personnel within the Battalion will participate in the forthcoming 11th Air Assault Division Expert Infantryman's Badge testing program.

Two-Fold Surprise Given to Trooper

A two-fold surprise was in store last week for a top soldier of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Air Assault Brigade.

Last Wednesday, then PFC Robert G. Devault, was told by the commanding officer of the Headquarters Company, Capt. Richard R. Browning, and 1st Sgt. Dairl K. Broaddus, of his promotion to specialist fourth class. The following day, Devault learned of his selection as 2nd Brigade Soldier of the Month. His achievement allowed him to go before a board for 11th Air Assault Division Soldier of the Month. When asked how he made out, he replied, "I don't know, but it was really a great experience."

Devault, who calls Rochester, Mich., his home, came to the company directly from clerk-typist school and basic training at Fort Knox, Ky. His job at the 2nd Brigade Headquarters is supply clerk in the S-4 section.

He has had experience in this field for after graduation from Rochester Senior High School in 1960, he was employed at Jerome Duncan Ford Inc. Utica, Mich., as a parts clerk. He pursued this occupation until "Uncle Sam" called him on February 12, 1964.

Recollection Day Planned For Division Catholics

The day of recollection for Catholic personnel of the 10th Air Transport Brigade and 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion, to be held at the Student Brigade Chapel on Good Friday, April 16, 1965, will be under the direction of the Rev. Donald Martin of the Society of Jesus, at present on the staff of Ignatius House, the Jesuit Retreat House in Atlanta.

Father Martin, a native of New Orleans and a graduate of Jesuit High School in that city, entered the Society of Jesus in 1950. He was ordained a Catholic priest in 1963 at St. Mary's College, St. Mary's, Kan., where he was awarded his S.T.L. after completing his studies in theology. He has spent the past year in acetial studies at St. Robert's Hall, Pomfret, Conn. and is currently doing graduate work in theology and church liturgy at the University of Notre Dame, South Bend, Ind.

Also included in the days activities is the Sorrowful Mysteries of the Rosary and the Solemn Good Friday Liturgy and Paschal Communion.

Training Held For May Test

Battery A, 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery, 11th Air Assault Division, commanded by Capt. Dave M. Johnson, has been constantly training in preparation for the battalion test to be held in early May.

After successfully passing all portions of the annual battery training test a week ago, Battery A has augmented its unit training by attending battalion - sized section classes. The unit will apply the sound techniques successfully utilized during its battery test and other useful fundamentals acquired from the battalion classes to prove through testing that the 38th is one of the finest, if not the finest, battalions in division artillery.

377th Battery A Praised for AGI

Battery A, 3rd Battalion, 377th Artillery received a letter of appreciation from Col. William A. Becker, 11th Division Artillery commander last week for earning a Superior rating in a recent Annual General Inspection.

Battery A, the first aerial unit in the 377th Artillery to receive a superior rating.

Battery C Announces Soldier of the Month

PFC Gerald B. Lander, assistant gunner of Battery "C", 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery has been awarded the Battalion Soldier of the Month trophy for being named soldier of the month two months in succession. PFC Lander is the second person to ever receive this award twice in the unit.

Born in Burrgettstown, Penn. in May, 1939, PFC Lander worked in and around Pittsburgh until Nov. 1963 when he was called into the Army. Taking his basic training at Fort Jackson, S. C., PFC Lander was destined for awards, being one of the top trainees. Upon arrival at Fort Benning, PFC Lander was assigned to "Rock" Battery, 5th Battalion, 38th Artillery. Since being in the 11th Air Assault Division his avocation as amateur photographer has been widely used. Many of his photographs can be found in the Battalion yearbook.

In a review parade Tuesday, PFC Lander was given his trophy by Lt. Col. Robert W. Short. Later, his Battery Commander, Capt. William F. Misiak said, "His enthusiasm and initiative have been evident to me since he first entered my command."

377th Artillery Repairs Helipad

The personnel of Battery B, 3rd Battalion (Aerial Rocket) 377th Artillery have been diligently engaged in improving the Battery and Battalion ground facilities at Apparri Heliport.

Warm weather has given the unit the first opportunity to bring out the rakes, shovels and heavy engineering equipment necessary to repair the damage caused by erosion this winter.

In many places it has been necessary for graders and tracters provided by the engineers to resurface and level the ground. Behind these pieces of equipment have come the men with rakes, shovels and in some areas axes, all doing a fine job.

The Battery's efforts have been supervised by WO James Adams of the 3rd Platoon and Sgt. Lonnie Davis of the Service Platoon.

Cav Coffee Held

The February coffee of Troop C, 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry was held at the home of Mrs. B. G. Williams. Guests included Mrs. John B. Stockton and Mrs. Lou Young was welcomed in to the troop.

New Method for Rocket Wind Measuring Set Found By Imaginative 'Little John' Launcher Section Chief

SSGT. GUNN
Inventive Artilleryman

Thomas A. Edison, step aside — there's a member of the 2nd Battalion (Little John), 42nd Artillery following in your footsteps. He is SSgt. Roy H. Gunn of Battery C who recently devised a new method for employment of the Little Joen Rocket Wind Measuring Set.

Assigned as a Little John Launcher Section Chief in Battery C of the 42nd Artillery, SSgt. Gunn came up with his idea in the interest of saving time and space in the transportation and utilization of the windset in the Air Assault concept. Basically, his idea makes the windset part of the jeep and uses a system of compressed air to elevate it.

The windset in the Little John Battalion is used to obtain a low level wind correction prior to rocket firings. In conventional usage, elements of the windset are carried tied down to a jeep and the mechanism is elevated using a hand pump after it is removed from the vehicle. The process formerly took 11 minutes or more whereas SSgt. Gunn's method has cut this down to approximately seven minutes.

Sgt. Gunn's idea combines an M151 mounted windset and an air compressor installed under the hood of the jeep which is used to elevate the telescopic windset mast. With the removal of a regular M151 jeep windshield and the installation of a 106 mm recoiless windshield the windset eravels in much the same position as the 160mm recoiless.

Mounting of the windset to the jeep in Sgt. Gunn's system is accomplished by use of a bracket constructed to fit the base of the windset. This bracket attaches the windset to the floor of the jeep a n d also contains the device with which to level the windset. The bracket can be transferred from one vehicle to another simply by the removal of four bolts.

Where it formerly took four men approximately five minutes to emplace the windset, SSgt. Gunn's method enables only three men to get it in place in as fast as two minutes. An air hose which runs from the compressor to the windset mast permits the mast to be raised in slightly over one minute.

With the windset as part of the jeep, both mobility and windset employment problems have been substantially reduced. The net result has been that SSgt. Gunn's idea has made a great contribution toward allowing firing units of the 42nd Artillery to get a round "on the way" in only two minutes after landing at a firing point. This formerly took 15-20 minutes.

SSgt. Gunn entered the Army on June 23, 1952 and has been with the 42nd Artillery since July 1964. He is a veteran of the Korean conflict and lists the Silver Star, Combat Infantryman's Badge, United Nations Service Medal, National Defense Service Medal and Good Conduct Medal among his decorations. He has also received three letters of appreciation and a USAREUR Certificate of Achievement during his Army career.

The citation accompanying SSgt. Gunn's award of the Silver Star cited him for gallantry in action near Panmunjon, Korea on May 29, 1953. According to the citation. Gunn(then a Corporal in Company B of the 14th Infantry) "calmly made his way forward completely disregarding his own safety as the intense barrage of enemy mortars fell in front of him, and attempted to bring back the executive officer as he lay wounded in battle".

Former 1st Brigade CO Gets Marne Rock Model

Col. George S. Beatty Jr., former commander of the 1st Air Assault Brigade and now commander of the 11th Aviation Group received a paperweight replica of the famous Rock of The Marne from Lt. Col. Arne H. Eliasson last Saturday morning during a departure coffee at the 1st Battalion, 38th Infantry's Headquarters.

The attractive engraved stone is an exact replica of the Rock of The Marne, symbol of strength for units of the 38th Infantry who stood steady as a rock to check the German offensive at the Marne River in 1918, during a critical period of World War I.

This presentation was the highlight of a 30-minute coffee in Col. Eliasson's office, which was attended by all command and staff personnel of the 38th, and each unit first sergeant. Also present for the occasion was 1st Brigade Commander, Lt. Col. John J. Hennessey.

In accepting the handsome memento, Col. Beatty stated that he could receive no finer reminder of his relationship with the 38th than the symbol of dependability, strength and cohesion of the 38th.

Artillery Promotes

Four members of the 2nd Battalion (Little John), 42nd Artillery have been promoted in informal ceremonies here. They are Sgt. David A. Burton of Headquarters and Service Battery; Sp4 Creed Taylor, Jr. of Battery A; Sp4 Thomas L. Snider of Battery B; and Sp4 Ronald P. Van Tassell of Battery C.

FORT BENNING, GEORGIA, HOME OF U. S. ARMY INFANTRY CENTER

VOL. 23, NO. 31 — FRIDAY, APRIL 9, 1965 — 36 Pages — 5c

Campaign Is Underway To Enforce Seat Belt Use

Fort Benning's Safety Section is actively campaigning for the installation and use of seat belts in all military and privately owned passenger vehicles.

The educational program includes posters distributed to units and activities, personal "testimonials" to be printed in The BAYONET, and person to person appeals to all car owners to install seat belts, officials said.

The testimonials will be written by people on the post who have found through experience that seat belts can minimize the injury incurred in an accident or sudden stop.

Privately owned vehicles registered on the post are required to have a sticker designating that the owner has met the requirements of the Georgia State Vehicle Inspection law. This law requires seat belts in the front seat of 1964 and 1965 model cars.

The Safety Section is urging all car owners to have seat belts installed, not only in the front seat, but for back seat passengers, as well.

Fort Benning military taxis, station wagons and carryalls are equipped with seat belts, according to Army Regulations, and their use is mandatory. Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, Fort Benning commander, has emphasized that buckling the belt "is not a matter of choice!" They WILL be used and this directive WILL be enforced!

Approximately 75% per cent of the privately owned vehicles registered on the post are not equipped with seat belts. Since these are models predating 1964, the owners cannot be required by law to install seat belts, officials said.

The Safety Office urges the installation and use of seat belts, confident that their use will substantially reduce the number of fatalities and the severity of injuries in vehicle accidents.

During fiscal year 1964, 29 Fort Benning soldiers lost their lives and 185 others were injured in privately owned vehicle accidents, according to Leon S. Mixon assistant safety officer. "Seat belts, if worn by the victims in these accidents, would have reduced the death loss and severity of the injury by approximately 50 per cent," he said.

Norman Evans, safety officer, said seat belts are available at five Post Exchange Service Stations, as well as at off-post service stations and auto supply concerns. The Post Exchange Garage and many stations in the civilian community will install the seat belts for a reasonable fee. Individuals who want to install their own, may use tools available at the two Vehicle Repair Craft Shops, he added.

Interservice Pistol Crown Won by MTU's Blankenship

Special to The Bayonet

LACKLAND AFB, Tex. — The U. S. Army's premier handgun expert SFC William B. Blankenship Jr., blasted his way from behind Wednesday to capture the individual Interservice Pistol Championship with a three-day total of 2,654 points.

Blankenship, who has won the national handgun crown five consecutive times, had trailed through most of the three days of firing but placed consistently high enough in all of the matches to take the title.

SFC Ralph O. Thompson, teammate of Blankenship from the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, slammed out a 2,652 but missed second place by 14 x-ring shots.

PO Don Hamilton of the Navy had the same point total, but put 144 of his shots into the x-ring, a smaller circle within the bulls-eye used to break ties. Thomp-

Valley Scout-O-Rama Will Be Held Saturday

The stage is set and the curtain goes up tomorrow at the Municipal Auditorium on what promises to be the finest Scout-O-Rama ever to be staged in the Chattahoochee Valley area.

Fort Benning District scouts, although eager for the activities to begin Saturday at 1 p.m., will concentrate their efforts today, tonight and tomorrow morning on ticket sales, with prizes ranging from choice of a TV set, canoe, or trip to Mexico for the best salesman, to wrist watches and a year's supply of soft drinks for the runners-up.

Tickets, which sell for 50 cents, may be purchased from any Cub Scout, Boy Scout or Explorer Scout and are good for the entire six-hour program.

The Fort Benning Scouts will be in competition with the other districts of the Chattahoochee area for honors in the categories of: Scouting-in-action; crafts and skills; outdoor activities in motion; exhibits, Pinewood Derby racing, and overall participation.

Judging the competition will be a committee composed of Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, Fort Benning commander and Sgt. Maj. W. A. Callahan, post sergeant major; Columbus Mayor B. Ed Johnson, Tom Moore, Ed Stratton, Felix Patrick, J. R. Allen and Joel Turner.

One Week Remaining In Contest

Only one week remains in the Command - sponsored contest to find a more practical use for Building 81. No entries will be accepted after 5 p.m. next Friday, April 16.

Judges will carefully screen each suggestion and it is expected that the winner will be announced in The BAYONET, April 23 issue.

A host of prizes and honors, already announced, will go to the person submitting the best idea (from the stand-

Familiar Sight

An old familiar sight at Fort Benning, Outpost 1, will be missing in a few more weeks as the construction of a new, more modern building is under way. Work on the new building began March 30 and is scheduled to be completed by May 13. The new structure will serve the same purpose as the old one. (Photo by SSgt. Betty Farmer)

Fort Benning Tour Scheduled For County Commissioners

The Georgia Association of County Commissioners will gather April 12-13 in Columbus for a state - wide convention, with a tour of Fort Benning slated as one of the convention highlights.

An estimated 1,000 county commissioners and other leading lawmakers from throughout the state, including wives, will visit the military installation during the afternoon of April 12.

Before their visit, the delegates will open their program at Municipal Auditorium with a military air as The Infantry Center Band plays a brief concert of martial music, followed by the National Anthem.

Soldiers will act as color bearers for national, city, state, and Infantry School colors. Fort Benning soldiers will serve as color guards.

At Fort Benning, the visitors will be welcomed by Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, before an airborne demonstration at Eubank Field.

Following this demonstration, the group will move to bleachers at Sightseeing Field, near the new Infantry School building, and see an action - packed show of the capabilities of the 11th Air Assault Division. Many

Explorer Scouts Receive Training In Competitive Smallbore Firing

Explorer Scout Post 99, sponsored by the Army's Marksmanship Training Unit got into high gear in its specialty — rifle marksmanship —last Saturday at the unit's indoor rifle range.

Under the guidance of 1st Lt. Donald Adams of the MTU's International Division the boys received expert coaching in the off hand or standing position and practical work in firing of .22 caliber rifles.

"This will be a high speed training program," MSgt. Arthur Purser, unit advisor to the post, said. "The post was formed about 14 months ago and we have 10 members now and they will be receiving high caliber instruction from members of the U. S. Army International and Olympic teams to include such luminaries as Lt. Lones Wigger Olympic Gold Medal winner.

He pointed out that the sessions would include about three weeks of instrucion in each of the positions used in competitive firing — standing kneeling, sitting and prone— with the ultimate goal of preparing the members of the post for competitive matches.

Equipment used is furnished by the sponsoring unit.

The Explorers also had an opportunity last Saturday to see a Boy Scout qualify for his Marksmanship Merit Badge. The test was administered by Sergeant Purser to John Chiles, son of Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, commanding general of the Second Infantry Division. The younger Chiles is a member of Boy Scout Troop No. 39 and is working on his Eagle Scout qualification.

The training sessions are open to any youngster between the ages of 15 and 19 who might be interested in rifle marksmanship training.

"Anyone wanting to come out and participate will be welcome any Saturday," the advisor stated.

son had 130 x-ring shots.

Thompson was the only Army competitor to win one of the sub-aggregates. He compiled an 898 in the center fire competition Tuesday to take first place in that event.

SFC Edwin Teague of the Air Force took the .22 caliber aggregate Monday with an 891 and Capt. T. D. Smith, of the Air Force and defending Interservice champion, won the .45 caliber title with an 885.

One of the pleasant surprises of the match was the outstanding showing by Huelet (Joe) Benner, retired Army sergeant major.

Benner for many years was the best pistol shot in the Army, winning the national championship six times. In his last few years of service he served at the U. S. Military Academy as coach of the West Point team.

He showed that he is still a man to reckon with on the firing line when he won a pair of the .45 caliber matches Wednesday. He took the National Match Course with a fine 298 and the Rapid Fire with an outstanding 200-11x.

The Interservice championships conclude today with firing of the team events and complete results will be published in The Bayonet next Friday.

Tour

of the division's aircraft will be available for firsthand inspection by the visitors.

Also scheduled on Sightseeing Field is a sky - diving exhibition by members of the Fort Benning Sports Parachute club.

The group will conclude its tour at 4:45 p.m.

College Scholarships

In an article carried last week in The BAYONET on the college scholarships under the ROTC Vitalization Act, the Third U.S. Army states were inadvertently left out.

The paragraph should have read: Residents of Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi should apply to the Commanding General, Third U.S. Army, ATTN: AJAAG-R, Fort McPherson, Ga.

SEWING CLASSES

The OWC sewing classes are beginning now. The classes are held from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. on Wednesdays and there will be six lessons. Cost of the session is six dollars. Those wishing to take these sewing lessons may contact Mrs. Thomas Bligh, chairman, at 687-2503.

Congratulation Letters Received by School

Letters congratulating The Infantry School on its 58th Anniversary, observed on April 1, are still being received by the Commandant, Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges.

In addition to those published in previous issues of The BAYONET, congratulatory notes have been received from Maj. Gen. Hugh Mackintosh, commandant of the Quartermaster School at Fort Lee, Va.; Col. John W. Thompson, acting assistant commandant, Engineer School at Fort Belvoir, Va., and Col. C. A. McIntosh Jr., commandant of the Finance School at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana.

Gen. Mackintosh cited The Infantry School's "long and distinguished history" and said it serves as a "continuing example of dedication to the highest military traditions."

Col. Thompson said, "The intensive professional training, technical know-how and skills which it (TIS) imparts are attributes to the value of the instruction provided at the 'Home of the Infantry'."

Col. McIntosh commended The Infantry School's "high achievement in the education and training of members of our military forces." He said further, "The dedicated men and women serving (the) school have written a proud record."

Although the signature block was included, the station of origin was omitted from one letter of congratulations published in last week's BAYONET. Signed by Maj. Gen. Harry H. Critz, commandant, the letter was from the U. S. Army Artillery and Missile School at Fort Sill, Okla.

The Judge Says . . .

Most states have laws regarding the age of a person before he or she may enter into a marriage contract. In most states that age is when the consent of parents or a court is obtained.

This minimum age requirement has been set by law for very good reasons, most of which are too numerous to mention in this column. One of the reasons, however, is that during the centuries of recorded history the average young adult was found to have sufficient maturity and sense of responsibility to be "on his own" and cease to be a burden upon his parents about 21 years after he was born.

When a man acquires a wife, he takes upon himself a multitude of additional responsibilities, both moral and legal. Did you notice that in the first paragraph of this column the term "marriage contract" was used? It is precisely that in the eyes of the law with all the preliminary requisites of any other contract. Generally, a contract has four elements — offer, acceptance, consideration and performance. A marriage contract has all these elements and can be breached — just as any other contract. Usually the breach occurs in the last element.

Some failures to perform pursuant to a marriage contract are considered so serious that laws in all states make such failures crimes. An example of such a crime is non-support of wife or children, or both. The law considers that a man is responsible for the welfare of his wife and children because he contracted for such responsibility regardless of the subsequent actions of his wife. Many men have gone to jail for failure to perform this portion of the marriage contract.

The Army considers the matter of support of dependents an extremely important obligation of all its personnel. Paragraph 10, AR 600-10 announces the Army policy in this regard, as follows: "Support of dependents by members of the Army involves a serious responsibility which is of direct concern to the Army. Any failure on the part of a member to carry out this responsibility not only reflects adversely on the Army as a whole, but is entirely inconsistent with the Army standards of honor. Irresponsibility by members in these matters will not be condoned."

The Judge Says — Recognize your marital responsibilities and perform your part of the contract. It will save you money and perhaps a jail sentence in the long run.

Editorial

'War on Waste'

Another front in the "War on Waste" — waste of human resources, productive skills and money — has been opened recently by President Johnson. It is known as Mission "Safety-70," a mission directing federal departments and agencies to reduce their injury frequency 30 percent by 1970.

Because the cost of accidents are high in both the loss of lives and money, Mission "Safety-70" asks federal employees, both military and civilian, to reduce needless tragedies and waste.

Since 1958 more than 1,200 workers in federal service have lost their lives through job injuries. Nearly 300,000 have sustained disabling injuries and more than 18,500,000 man-days of potential production have been lost. In 1963 alone, there were 190 deaths and 41,905 disabling injuries among the federal workers, at a cost to the government of $3,600,000.

Attainment of the 30 per cent accident reduction goal by 1970 would prevent about 45,000 injuries, save approximately 200 lives and save almost a quarter of a billion dollars in direct and indirect costs.

President Johnson stated, "Our objective is the fullest protection for our civilian and military personnel on and off duty and for all who visit federal buildings, installations, parks, forests and other facilities. To advance these goals the federal government will cooperate with state and local governments, management, labor and safety organizations in developing and applying safety standards responsive to changing conditions and the pace of technological progress."

While the armed forces have consistently posted an admirable record in the field of safety, we can still make an important contribution. As part of the implementation of the mission, a review of current safety programs in each federal department and agency has been ordered. By submitting safety ideas and suggestions, we can help make the record even better. And on the individual level, we can work safely, avoid accidents and insure that those around us do the same.

The goal of Mission "Safety-70" won't be easy to reach, but it is attainable. And as President Johnson points out, the effort's cost in interest, time and energy is small compared to the great benefits that can be gained. (AFPS)

Neurological Disorder

BY CAPT. JACK GREENBURG, MC
Chief, Neurology Service

Epilepsy is a neurological disorder usually characterized by some type of seizure. It is often likened to a temporary electrical storm of the brain.

During the course of seeing many patients with epilepsy, the physician is asked certain questions time and time again. The following is a list of such questions, the answers to which may alleviate some worries that many patients and parents have about this disorder.

QUESTION: What is the cause?

ANSWER: There are many causes. Many causes are of unknown origin. Brain damage of any kind such as concussion from accidents, prenatal or birth injuries, the after-effects of anoxia (lack of oxygen) at or before birth; infectious diseases; tumors; or other bodily disorders can all cause seizures.

QUESTION: Does having epilepsy mean brain damage or does epilepsy lead to brain damage?

ANSWER: Most cases of epilepsy, especially those beginning in childhood, occur in apparently normal children and in some forms that are controlled properly by the physician do not cause brain damage. There are cases of severe epileptics with brain damage and mental retardation, but the parents are aware of this long before the seizures begin. The following great names in history all had epilepsy: Socrates, Julius Caesar, Mohammed, Lord Byron and the great composer Berlioz.

QUESTION: What are the hereditary aspects of epilepsy?

ANSWER: The expected incidence of epilepsy in the general population is about one in 200. The incidence of seizures among relatives of patients who have epilepsy of unknown cause is about one in 25. The incidence of seizures among relatives of patients who have epilepsy of known cause such as following head injuries is about one in 100. All told the genetic prognosis in epilepsy is rather favorable.

QUESTION: How long must I stay on medication and is there a chance of addiction to the drug?

ANSWER: The treatment should continue for at least two seizure-free years. The medication must be taken regularly and religiously. Addiction to anti-convulsants is not a problem. The main problem in treatment is threefold: (1) Not enough medication. (2) Too much medication. (3) Failure of the patient to follow doctor's instructions.

QUESTION: What limitations in work or play are placed upon the epileptic patient?

ANSWER: When a patient is under medication and is completely controlled, he is a normal person. He should be treated as such. In between seizures, he is also a normal person and should be treated as such. The limitations usually placed are that the patient should not work in any situation that would be dangerous to him or to her if he should have a seizure such as working in high places, working near heavy machinery or live ammunition. Different states have different laws concerning driving. As a rule, one should not drive any type of vehicle for at least two seizure-free years.

ALLIED OFFICERS

Maj. Mohammad Taj, an officer in the Pakistan Army, joined the military service in 1944 and received a commission as a second lieutenant in 1950. Following his commission he was assigned to a number of staff positions at battalion level. After his promotion to his present rank of major, Maj. Taj held numerous staff level positions above battalion level. He has also been active in target shooting in the Pakistan Army Rifle Association and was captain of the Pakistan Army Shooting Team in interservice shooting competition.

Maj. Dildar Rana of the Pakistan Army was commissioned as a second lieutenant from the Pakistan Military Academy in 1950. As a company officer he held a number of positions in battalion level operations. He received his promotion to major in 1956. From 1960 to 1964, Maj. Rana was assigned, back at his alma mater, the Military Academy, as an instructor. Prior to his assignment to the Career Officers' Course at The Infantry School, he held the position of company commander.

New Brigade Unit Assists Aircraft Problems

The 197th Inf. Bde. recently welcomed a new unit into its fold when the 187th Inf. Pathfinder Detachment (Airborne) was attached to the brigade's headquarters company for rations and administration.

Consisting of 10 enlisted men and one officer, the mission of the 187th is the same as the mission of the entire brigade, support of The Infantry School and Center.

More specifically, members of the 187th are the first men on the scene during Infantry School problems utilizing aircraft. The pathfinders establish and operate landing zones, provide terminal guidance to aircraft, and assist the ground unit commander in the deployment of aircraft.

Each of the men in the 187th has graduated from the basic airborne course and has undergone a five week pathfinders' course at The Infantry School.

The first TO&E pathfinders' unit in the Army, the 187th was constituted in 1958 and attached to Lawson Field. From 1960 through 1963, the unit was attached to the Airborne Department of The Infantry School.

In 1963, the 187th became the first pathfinder team in the 11th Air Assault Div. (Test) and remained with the 11th until coming to the 197th.

Detachment commander of the 187th is 1st Lt. William O. Jones. SSgt. Bernie Pye is the NCOIC.

Win In Viet Nam

(These questions and answers on Viet Nam, Laos and Southeast Asia are excerpted from "Viet Nam — The Struggle for Freedom," a pamphlet (DoD Gen-4) issued by the Secretaries for Armed Forces Information and Education, Department of Defense.)

Q: What is the New Rural Life Hamlet Program in Viet Nam, and how does it work?

A: The New Rural Life Hamlet Program, like its predecessor, the Strategic Hamlet Program, is designed to bring physical safety and security to the countryside and thus to provide the basic conditions in which economic, political and social progress can take place. No development plan can succeed as long as the Viet Cong are able to terrorize peasants. However, military security alone — without tangible benefits, will not convince the rural population they should support the government. Thus the hamlet programs serve the dual purpose of providing physical safety and a better life through enhanced services.

After-Theater Party Scheduled by OWC Following 'Mikado's' First Performance

By Kathryn A. Pope

An after-theater party will follow the opening night performance of "The Mikado", Friday, April 23, in the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Tickets for the party are $2.50 per person and may be purchased through the units on post. The price of the ticket includes a buffet supper, dancing, doorprizes and games. Proceeds from the event will go to post welfare.

Dress for the party is black-tie for gentlemen and cocktail or formal dress for ladies.

Oriental decor, in keeping with "The Mikado" theme, will be used in the club, with cherry blossoms throughout the rooms, and dwarfed Japanese trees centering each table. Mrs. William Preston is decorations chairman for the event. Mrs. James Jones also serves on that committee.

Reservations

Mrs. Herbert Wolff, chairman of the party, has announced that reservations for tables will be made Monday, April 19, between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. in the Main Officers' Open Mess. A committee from the OWC will be at the club at that time to make the seating arrangements.

The tables for the affair will seat twelve persons.

Ticket purchasers may choose a party of twelve, or more, but this is not necessary to make table arrangements.

Only Time

A representative of each party of guests may go to the club on April 19 and reserve a table or tables for the event. However, reservations will only be made for those people who have purchased a ticket to the party. This is the only time that reservations will be made, and tables will be reserved on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Ticket holders who do not reserve a table may still attend the party, if they are willing to take a chance on seating arrangements, Mrs. Wolff announced.

Ceramics Show Winners Picked

Approximately 600 persons interrupted a rainy Sunday afternoon to attend the annual OWC Art and Activities Show in Faith School Auditorium.

Mrs. Jesse L. Morrow, 1st vice president, was chairman of the show which included exhibitions in many of the various OWC activities.

Mrs. John M. Stephens Jr., ceramics show chairman, presented Mrs. Rozalia Petrosky with the blue ribbon for best of show in the ceramics division. Mrs. Petrosky's exhibit was a drum cookie jar.

Other winners in ceramics and the categories in which they won are: Mrs. H. W. Uhland, first and third place in beginners; and Mrs. J. K. Roberts, 2nd place. Embossed category: Mrs. Uhland, first place and Mrs. Roberts, second and third place.

Assisting the hostess was Mrs. John Greene.

The Italian background of the newly decorated dayroom of the 51st Co., 5th Stu. Bn., TSB, was the setting for a coffee held for wives of students attending this OCS course.

Guests for the occasion were Mrs. Robert B. Nett and Mrs. Stanley S. Scott.

'War Room' Brings Conflict Closer

Sitting on a small table is the serene form of the Buddha, representing a philosophy with 158 million adherents in Asia, including 80 per cent of the Vietnamese population. We are in the "War Room" of the 55th Co., 5th Student Bn., (OC), which is bringing the culture and conflict of Viet Nam closer to officer candidates.

Officially opened on March 15, the "War Room" is a window on a crisis now involving 27,000 American servicemen and is dedicated to ". . . those officers and men whose devotion to duty, honor and country led them to fight in a land far from home to bolster the unity of the brotherhood of man."

Also referred to as the "Viet Nam Room", it is stocked with displays of photographs, battle flags, captured weapons, maps, books and propaganda leaflets.

The room was originally proposed by Capt. John H. Hayes, commanding officer of the 55th Co. and one-time advisor to the 7th Airborne Bn. of the Vietnamese Airborne Brigade.

Viet Cong

"The room's purpose", said Capt. Hayes, "is to bring to the candidates an understanding of the seriousness and reality of the conflict in Viet Nam."

Dressed in a black uniform with primitive crossbow in hand, a model of a Viet Cong guerrilla stands in one corner of the room.

His uniform, made of a light silken material, is worn by all Vietnamese peasants, making it difficult to tell friend from foe. The helmet, made of wood or woven reed, resembles in shape, the helmet worn by the British soldier in WW II.

Captured Weapons

Along one side of the room is a display of captured Viet Cong weapons. Some are as sophisticated as a French sub - machinegun, others as simple as a three - inch nail; but all are highly effective in the hands of the guerrilla.

There are curved knives and daggers with finely engraved handles, and crudely made jungle machettes with handles of wood or bamboo. A deadly, metal - tipped hunting spear which had become a weapon of war, lies nearly the full length of the display case.

A French, factory - made 9 mm Hodgkiss sub-machine-gun lies beside a crude shotgun handmade in some Viet Cong camp.

The simplest weapons displayed are the Panji spikes. These painful man-traps are capable of piercing a boot if stepped on. Hammered out of nails and inserted into boards they are placed on trails and pathways. An injury to one man can easily take two additional men out of a patrol to care for him.

A crossbow with poison-tipped arrows is another primitive but deadly weapon stocked in the Viet Cong arsenal. Hand made of wood and vine, it is used primarily by natives in the Northern areas of South Viet Nam.

Both the shotgun and the crossbow are on loan from Lt. Col. Robert B. Nett, 5th Bn. commander, who served in Viet Nam from February 1963 to January 1964 as deputy Senior Advisor to the 2nd Inf. Div., Army of the Republic of Viet Nam.

Above this display case are maps depicting examples of typical Viet Cong ambushes, showing plans of attack, placement of troops and escape routes.

Reading Corner

A "Reading Corner" occupies one-third of the room. The corner contains books and pamphlets on guerrilla warfare and tactics, speeches by Mao Tse Tung of Red China and Ho Chi Min of North Viet Nam, and a collection of photographs showing the people and places of the war in Viet Nam.

Commenting on the reading corner, 1st Lt. James Coleman, project officer for the "War Room" said, "It gives the candidates more insight as to what we are doing in Viet Nam and instills in them a desire to win. They are future leaders and should be aware of hot spots in the cold war".

Among the books and pamphlets on guerrilla warfare and tactics, is an English - translated Viet Cong field guide which points out and discusses the seven Principles of Guerrilla Warfare. It is the "Bible" of the Viet Cong guerrilla and lists intelligence, initiative, will, determination, secrecy, speed and perfection as its operational doctrine.

The photographs give us a visual picture of life in Viet Nam today. The war-weary faces of peasants; the confused look of a youthful Viet Cong prisoner, wooden bridges and dense jungle, villages of bamboo and thatch, mountain tribesmen with rifles, the robes and shaven heads of Buddhist monks and an American doctor removing a Panji spike from the foot of a Vietnamese soldier speak for themselves.

Leaflets

The room also has a collection of propaganda leaflets used by the Viet Cong in their psychological warfare against the South.

"We propose to overthrow the hardly disguised colonialist regime of the U. S. Imperialists and to establish a national coalition government", read one of the leaflets.

Another of the easily made and distributed leaflets read, "You must come over to us. To serve as cannon fodder of the U. S. regime is useless. Throw down your weapons and save yourselves. To refuse to fire is patriotic. To fire into the air is to waste U.S. ammunition".

Also on display is a Viet Cong battle flag with its crudely made yellow star and faded blue and red fields.

A chart of American casualty figures posted on a wall is a grim reminder of the seriousness and reality of the U. S. commitment in Viet Nam.

The "War Room" was eight weeks in preparation, and is open to visitors during duty hours. The officers and men of the 55th Co. welcome any donations or loans which can further illuminate the situation in Viet Nam today.

Brigade Drive Draws 397 Blood Donors

"Never saw a healthier bunch of soldiers," said assistant chief nurse Bessie Crowe. With that the recent two-day 197th Inf. Bde. Blood Drive began. From the 397 brigade volunteers, 331 pints of blood were donated to the March 1965 Red Cross Donor Blood Drive.

The "We Lead the Way" battalion—the 1st Bn., 29th Inf.—led the way in number of donors, providing 113.

The 2nd Bn. (Composite), 10th Arty. and the 4th Bn., 69th Armor were second and third in number of donors.

After filling out personal history forms and undergoing on-the spot blood test, the volunteers proceeded to the brigade classroom where they donated their pint of blood.

Both professional nurses from the Red Cross headquarters in Atlanta and Fort Benning volunteer nurses assisted in the program.

MP's Keep Daily Traffic Flowing

By Sam E. Rush

About 750 vehicles can move the personnel of an entire Infantry division, yet daily over 5,000 vehicles are utilized to transport the commuting personnel of Fort Benning through the Main Gate (Outpost No. 1), morning and afternoon of each workday.

This is the approximate number of vehicles that are directed by four military policemen at Fort Benning's Main Gate twice each day between the peak traffic hours of 7 to 8 a.m. and 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Officials estimate that 90 per cent of all Fort Benning commuter traffic uses the Main Gate entrance to the post.

As of Jan. 1, Fort Benning had 38,682 civilian vehicles registered on the post. As an aid to peak hour traffic flow the military police man 14 traffic control points (TCP) on the Main Post. The 2nd Inf. Div. mans six TCP's, and the 11th AAD mans one in the morning and five for the afternoon traffic.

To assist hurried commuters who daily immerse in this maelstrom of traffic, the Fort Benning military police safely direct a stream of traffic each 24 hours that would reach for approximately 160 miles if it could be placed bumper to bumper in a continuous line.

With intricate traffic flow patterns that are constantly being adjusted in accordance with changing traffic conditions, the Fort Benning military police have moved traffic without a serious accident during peak traffic flow periods for approximately six years, officials said.

Special Platoon

A specially selected traffic platoon, chosen for outstanding ability, is given extra training to provide traffic direction and exercise special traffic controls where needed, control the movement of pedestrians, and escort and assist important visitors.

A selected enforcement section of seven men, in addition to the traffic platoon, is trained in the use of radar and other special enforcement techniques, traffic surveys, and to assist in special details; such as payday and weekend traffic.

Radar, in opposition to popular belief, is not used as a "sneaky" way to trap unwary speeders, but often works to his benefit.

Radar Survey

For example, a radar survey of a 25 - mile per hour zone on Dixie Road recently revealed that 99 per cent of all drivers were exceeding the posted speed limit by about 10 miles per hour.

A study of accident experience on this section of road indicated that an increase in speed limit to 35 miles per hour would not create hazardous conditions and the road was reposted at the adjusted speed limit.

Col. Howard B. Wells, Infantry Center provost marshal, has found that most personnel are appreciative of the traffic problems peculiar to Fort Benning. They understand the problem caused by the limited road net and excessive traffic densities, and have been most patient and cooperative to directions of military policemen.

This confidence has been expressed in many letters of appreciation received by the provost marshal, commending individual MP's for their outstanding service.

In consonance with the continuing provost marshal program to provide a safer and more expeditious flow of traffic on the reservation, a Department of the Army traffic engineer survey team recently monitored traffic problem areas on the Main Post for constructive recommendations to improve traffic flow on a long range basis.

Of a more immediate nature the provost marshal also has a busy Traffic Engineering Section which daily surveys and evaluates traffic problems.

DNRI's Correspondence Courses Keep Up With New Developments

BY IDA C. EVANS

More than 40,000 men in the United States and at military bases throughout the world are keeping up with the latest developments in the art of soldiering by studying at home through correspondence courses at Fort Benning's U. S. Army Infantry School.

Whether they are at the desk of an all-night service station, on a train commuting to and from a job in a city, in an Army barracks or even on a ship at sea, these men are members of the school's student body, outnumbering the resident enrollment by approximately 3,000 a year.

Same Instruction

They are getting the same level of instruction taught on the post, including current revisions to keep abreast of the type of warfare in Viet Nam.

The Department of Nonresident Instruction through its Army Extension Course (AEC) Committee is passing on to this widely scattered group of students, the results of an intensive emphasis on the needs of Infantrymen serving in Viet Nam.

Programs of instruction for all resident departments of the school and the Department of Nonresident Instruction reflect the latest concepts in counterinsurgency and tactics and techniques appropriate to that area, officials said.

Composite Group

AEC's students are a composite group. More than 12,000 belong to the active Army, 11,000 to the U. S. Army Reserve and 15,000 are National Guardsmen. There are 304 Air Force personnel, 915 members of the senior division, ROTC, 163 from the Navy and Marine Corps and 19 civilians.

One of the major advantages of the nonresident program is its flexibility, officials said. A student may enroll at any time. With no fixed term, students complete courses and graduate or go on to other courses making almost every day a graduation day at the AEC Committee.

During 1964, more than 21,000 new students enrolled and approximately 4,000 completed courses.

Great Value

Col. Ned B. Mabry, department director, said extension courses are of great value to individuals on active duty who want to broaden their military education, yet cannot attend resident courses. Another advantage, he said, is that the courses are available to all components of the Army without cost.

"Perhaps of more importance," Col. Mabry said, "is its value in increasing the general military knowledge of students who enroll either for the entire course or for individual subcourses to meet particular needs."

NCO Course

Among the subcourses are those on methods of instruction, leadership, basic weapons and basic and platoon tactics. As a convenience to students, nine subcourses of the precommission course have been incorporated into an Infantry noncommissioned officer (NCO) career course.

"We believe the series will increase the professional knowledge and enhance the promotion potential of the students," Col. Mabry said.

There is a noncommissioned officer leadership and career development course which emphasizes leadership and the duties of the first sergeant and sergeant major. It is designed for both NCO's and men striving for noncommissioned rank.

Basic Course

An Infantry officer basic extension course parallels, as closely as possible, the resident Infantry officer basic course at The Infantry School. It is primarily designed for officers of the Reserve Components who cannot attend the school.

"Reservists not on active duty may complete the military educational requirements for promotion to the rank of captain by taking this course," Col. Mabry said.

For any officer, active or Reserve," the colonel said," the basic course is of inestimable value in keeping right up to date, even though he has previously taken a comparable course. We are constantly revising to include the latest information available."

Cold War

Cold war and counterinsurgency, airborne-air mobility, communications and tactical operations are among subcourses that make the career extension course of timely value to an Infantry officer, the colonel said.

There is a special "tactical packet" of subcourses for either company or battalion level.

"We especially recommend this course for officers who completed advanced branch training before the ROAD (Reorganization Objectives Army Division) concept was implemented," Col. Mabry said. "It is a good way to bring yourself up-to-date on ROAD techniques."

Col. Mabry said the department welcomes inquiries about courses and instructions for enrolling. Letters should be addressed to the Deputy for Army Extension Courses, Department of Nonresident Instruction, U. S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga.

New Program Is Established For Personnel of the 58th

In an effort to decrease and eventually eliminate the increasing number of letters of indebtedness involving military personnel, the 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf., has initiated a program to educate its troops on why they must solve their existing financial problems.

The program was started to provide the soldier who receives letters of indebtedness with information to improve his knowledge of buying and aquiring a bad credit reputation with the civilian selling community.

The new program was developed by 1st Lt. Edgar C. Lewis, of Hq. & Hq. Co., after several incidents occurred concerning letters of indebtedness. The commanders of each company were encouraged to take some sort of action in furthering the knowledge of the problem.

It was concluded upon completion of extensive investigations and study, that if the men were educated on budgeting they would have no problem in solving their finanical situation and working out some sort of payment of the amount due.

Third Army Champs

By PFC RUSS HAVOURD

The post "All Stars" extinguished the fire of the "Dragons" from Fort Bragg, N.C., 109-87, Saturday at Fort Jackson, S.C., to cop the 1965 Third Army Basketball Championship.

The Dragons ignited a few sparks early in the opening minutes of play as they matched the All Star pace. The score was deadlocked six times in the first stanza until Benning broke loose.

With 11 minutes remaining in the open half, substitute center Henry Moore came in and was the spark that set Fort Benning afire. He hit eight consecutive points to break a 22-22 tie and the All Stars turned the contest into a one sided rout, gaining a 50-37 halftime margin.

Large Lead

Puffing little more than cold vapor, the Dragons were met with an even larger nightmare as the All Stars rolled to a 91-59 advantage early in the second half.

Five All Stars racked up most of their points during the onslaught. Don Harnum was the game's big gun with 25, while Moore hit for 21, Ed Washington had 16 and George Walstad and Monty Clausen tallied 15 apiece.

In complete charge, the post team played to protect their lead behind the outstanding offensive and defensive efforts of Washington.

Fort Bragg struggled to overcome an impossible situation but the final buzzer aborted the attempt.

Perfect Record

The win gave the All Stars a perfect 3-0 tourney mark on the way to the crown.

In their first Third Army tilt, Fort Benning reversed a 50-45 half-time deficit to down the Fort Gordon "Ramblers," 96-93.

The victory was a team effort as seven of the ten-man squad tallied double figures. Moore and Clausen paced the All Stars with 15 points each.

After the favored Fort Campbell (Ky.) "Screaming Eagles" were eliminated from the race with two straight defeats, Fort

Post's WAC Team Is Runner-Up In Third Army Basketball Games

The Fort Benning WAC quintet played to a 4-2 record in the 1965 WAC Third Army Basketball Championship to capture the runner - up slot in the tournament held at Fort Jackson, S. C.

The WAC posted wins over Fort McClellan, Ala., Fort Gordon, Ga., Fort Rucker, Ala., and Fort Bragg, N. C., while dropping one each to Fort Bragg and Fort Jackson.

In their first outing of the tourney, Benning downed Fort McClellan, four times Third Army WAC Champions 38-34. Leading both teams on the score sheet was Fort Benning's 'Earline Surles with 20 points.

First Loss

Their first loss came at the hands of Fort Bragg, 30-26, in the second round of competition. It was a hard fought contest with Diane Weedle taking scoring honors for Fort Benning and the game with 14 points.

Back on the winning path, Benning then dumped Fort Gordon, 39-26, behind high-scoring Earline Surles with 19 points.

In the quarter finals, the Benning contingent again emerged victorious, edging Fort Rucker, 42-39. Surles and Weddle combined for all the tallies, hitting 20 and 22 respectively.

Assure Berth

Squaring off to avenge their only loss so far, Fort Benning slipped by Fort Bragg, 25-23 to assure a berth in the finals. Sharpshooting Surles again led the victors, netting 15 points.

In the last game of the event, undefeated Fort Jackson rallied in the closing minutes of the first half and defeated Fort Benning, 42-35.

Recovering from a 34-23 half - time deficit, Benning closed in to within 6 points of the Jacksonettes. In the middle of the challenge on the lead, Barbara Harris was injured and Fort Jackson began moving away.

Coaches Roger Dillard and Arlene Robinson had nothing but praise for the girls. Robinson felt that they did very well and with a little more experience could have taken top honors in the tournament.

MTU Shotgun Shooters Score 'Shattering' Win

Special to The Bayonet

PINEHURST, N. C. — Shotgun shooters from the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit fared well last week in the Pinehurst Invitational Trapshoot.

PFC Kevin Onka wrapped up three individual victories and his teammate PFC Gary Simonson chalked up another.

Onka chopped down 195 birds in the 16-yard match Saturday, and came right back with another first place in the 50 pair of doubles with a sparkling 95 with consistent rounds of 48 and 47.

Simonson won the final event of the three-day shoot when he took the 100-bird handicap event Sunday with a 95. He had been in good shape in Saturday's doubles when he blasted 47 birds on his first run but then had to withdraw from the match with an injured shoulder.

Onka's third victory came in Friday's 16-yard match when he totalled 98 birds. He was followed by teammate Pvt. Charles Jensen who had a 98.

Jensen also took Class B honors in Saturday's 200-bird match with a 195. The MTU's PFC Michael Watkins was runner-up in the doubles with a 93.

In the opening event of the match, the 1,000 bird marathon, Onka shattered 978 birds to place second behind the match winner Gy. Sgt. Bill Abbott of the Marine Corps who had 987. Jensen was third in the match with 975.

Harnum's Shooting

Late in the final period, Fort Bragg closed in to a 77-77 stalemate. Washington came on defensively, clocking shot after shot and controlling the boards while Don Harnum pumped in a flurry of baskets. He took scoring honors for both clubs with 21 points.

The All Star's title hopes brightened when the only two teams left in the Class A division were Fort Gordon and Fort Bragg. Both had fallen at the hands of Fort Benning in previous games.

The Dragons edged the Gordon Ramblers, setting the stage for Saturday's match with the All Stars in which all the marbles were on the line.

Third Straight Victory Collected By Four-Man Army Pistol Team

Special to the Bayonet

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—The U.S. Army Pistol Team won its third team title in a row Saturday as it took two of the three fired squad events and the overall aggregate with a total of 5,526 points.

The four-man crew from the Army's Marksmanship Training Unit topped the field in the .22 caliber match with an 1,181 and in the centerfire with an 1,177.

Navy was runnerup for team honors with an aggregate of 3,510 and the Air Force was third with 3,508.

For the big service teams the matches were a prelude to the Interservice Pistol Championships which opened Monday at Lackland AFB and are hosted by the Air Force.

The seventh running of the annual event has drawn one of the best fields of pistol shooters from the Armed Forces in many years.

Back to defend his individual championship is the Air Force's Capt. Thomas D. Smith, but he will be strongly challenged by the Army's SFC William Blankenship, five-time holder of the national pistol crown, and a host of other Army handgun experts.

Smith holds the Interservice record of 2,685 but Blankenship has set the national standard with a 2,674, fired at Fort Benning a little more than a year ago.

Science Fiction Comedy Comes to Service Club 1

Moon-struck members of the University Players of the University of Alabama will present the "world premiere" of a zany science fiction comedy, "Loosebough the First," at Service Club No. 1 at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The production is also touring other major installations of the Third U.S. Army.

In the title role of Lt. Loosebough, Joseph Putnam gives a convincing image of the gung-ho Army lieutenant whose unauthorized landing of a space probe vehicle on the moon kicks off all manner of national and international difficulties.

The lighthearted comedy was written by Playwright Joseph Baldwin, professor of speech and dramatic art at the University of Nebraska. Marian Gallaway directs the production.

The $1,000 Beer Can

With recent emphasis on national and local beautification, the 2nd Infantry Division News checked into the cost of keeping the division and surrounding areas clean of unsightly trash.

One of the most astounding facts we were able to glean from the local law enforcement authorities was that littering a Georgia highway with trash can result in up to a $1,000 fine.

Soldiers caught littering the reservation can receive as much as a Court Martial for a thoughtlessly - tossed beer can.

CG Breaks Soil; Begins $20,000 Enlisted Facility

BY JIM LULL

Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, commander of the 2nd Infantry Division scooped out the first shovel - full of dirt Monday to start construction of the $20,000 Sand Hill enlisted men's club.

To be called "Paton House," the club will cater exclusively to division soldiers of the grade of E-4 and below.

Company C, 2nd Engineer Battalion has been designated for the job, the division's largest construction project of the year. Lt. Lon L. Denison is the project officer for the construction.

From the Ground

According to Denison, the new structure will use only the cement patio of the original "Patton House Officers Club" which was destroyed by fire five years ago.

"We're building from the ground up," he said.

Gen. Chiles arrived Monday morning to break the ground to officially begin construction.

"It's difficult to take our combat engineers away from their proper duty and construct this building — but I know that the enlisted men of the division are really going to appreciate this facility," Chiles said.

Located

The new club will be located near the Sand Hill golf course and the 2nd Division Noncommissioned Officers Club.

Patton House will be staffed by NCO Club personnel according to club spokesmen.

Planners say the building will accommodate approximately 150 people at one time.

Sgt. Maj. Wallace C. Treadwell, president of the board of governors of the NCO Open Mess, on hand for the ceremony observed 'this will be a fine place for the enlisted men of lower grades to take their wives or girl friends for dinner and dancing.

Completion date for the new club has not been set, however engineer officials expressed the hope of having the building ready to use by mid-summer.

Chiles Launches Seat Belt Drive

By LANNY THOMAS

The commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division this week announced his intentions to press a division-wide campaign for the installation of safety belts in privately owned vehicles.

Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles is joining ranks with Post commander Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges in an effort to encourage the use of seat belts in civilian vehicles throughout the Fort Benning Reservation.

Similar Program

Chiles decided to wage a division level campaign after seeing a similar program at work at other Army installations. A policy of encouraging the use of seat belts is being pushed throughout the Army, receiving backing from the Assistant Secretary of Defense (manpower).

In a letter being distributed throughout the division this week, he encouaged all members of the division to install seat belts in their cars. He hopes for 100 per cent participation in the campaign.

"I urge you and the members of your command to take an active interest in this vital, life saving undertaking," the general stated.

Capt. J. A. Robertson, Division Safety Officer in the G-1 Section, has conducted extensive research on types of seat belts and their advantages. His detailed findings are being published and distributed to units this week.

All Post Exchange Service Stations are keeping a large stock of seat belts to facilitate in the campaign, according to Capt. Robertson.

PX Service Stations are selling seat belts at a cost of $2.95 each and installing them for $1.25. However they can install them only on cars modified for seat belt installation — those that already have holes in the floor.

Prices

Prices at the Cox and Kennon Garage on Main Post are $4.50 for each belt with $2.50 for installation.

If a soldier desires, he may purchase seat belts at the PX Stations and Cox and Kennon will install them at their cost.

According to Capt. Robert-

No Fallacy to Seat Belt Slogan

Can seat belts sometimes be a handicap?

What would happen if suddenly I lost control of my car and it plunged down a bank to the bottom of the Chattahoochee? Would I be trapped beneath the steering wheel — water rushing into the car, fingers frantically moving for the belt, and then a fateful gurgle, gurgle sending bubbles rippling upward to the surface.

Unfortunately, this is the picture of seat belts sometimes seen by the person first considering installing belts in his private automobile. Contrary to thinking, the gloomy seat belt picture just painted is seldom the case.

With a campaign underway this week to stimulate interest in seat belts among Indianheads of the 2nd Infantry Division, Capt. J. A. Robertson, Division Safety Officers, pried into the feasibility of using seat belts.

He found much validity in the often quoted slogan, "Seat belts do save lives." Capt. Robertson searched brouchures, pamphlets and other sources that tell the tale of seat belts.

Enlisted Reactions

The decision to construct a central enlisted men's club on Sand Hill has apparently met with high approval among enlisted men throughout the division.

"As it is now, there isn't much to do here—with the exception of the theatre and gymnasium. I certainly will use the new club," said PFC Carl Fitje of the division Headquarters Company.

Sp4 Theodore Christman, Company A, 702nd Maintenance Battalion, said that he did not feel the existing facilities fulfilled the need for off-duty recreation and relaxation.

Real Need

One enlisted man from Company C, 2nd Engineer Battalion interviewed while working on the early construction of the new establishment said "there is a real need for this place on Sand Hill:"

"I think many men will feel as I do," remarked PFC LeRoy Dickson of the 1st Brigade's Headquarters Company, "like somebody cares about us."

An interesting point was offered by PFC David L. Cant, Company A, 122nd Signal Battalion.

"It'll keep many men out of town and trouble — I know that I will patronize the new club."

Division Gets 292 Stripes For Handout

By Don Dudick

The 2nd Infantry Division's promotion allocations soared to new highs this month — a total of 100 more than all the allocations for the months of January, February and March.

Capt. Billy W. Holbert of the division's Personnel Management Branch announced early this week that 292 allocations for grades E-7, E-6, E-5 and E-4 have been received and are being distributed throughout the division.

According to Holbert approval from the Chief of Staff is required before the allocations can be sent to the units.

April allocations are two E-7, 20 E-6, 139 E-5 and 131 E-4.

"The E-5 allocation is four times more than what we have been receiving," said Holbert, "and there is no measurement for the E-6's." He added that the division has received only two E-6 allocations since October.

According to statistics E-4 allocations are at a level equal to that of the second quarter of the 1965 fiscal year.

Promotion allocations for the first three months totaled 194 and included all pay grades. The 292 total for April is up by a total of 98.

War Department Authorization

9th Wearing Own Belt Buckles

By MARV WOLF

As a result of a 1925 War Department authorization, the 2nd Infantry Division's two 9th Infantry battalions are now once again wearing their distinctive belt buckle.

At the time of the authorization from Dwight F. Davis, Secretary of War under President Calvin Coolidge, the Sam Bowne belt was part of the army uniform. The buckle was originally designed for the Sam Browne belt.

The 9th Infantry is the only unit in the United States Army with a regimental coat of arms which is authorized a distinctive belt buckle, according to the Institute of Heraldry.

The present distinctive insignia of the 9th Infantry is a gold badge depicting the Chinese imperial five - toed dragon, the numeral nine and the unit motto, "Keep Up The Fire."

It is presently worn as a crest on the hats and epaulets of the infantrymen.

The 9th Infantry is the fifth oldest and the third most highly decorated unit in the United States Army. Its history of participation in military action dates back to the War of 1812 when the unit was activated. Since then, it has taken part in every military campaign in which this country has engaged.

Surprisingly all the regimental traditions, its most prized trophy, the Liscum Bowl, its motto and its distinctive insignia were born out of the period from 1899 to 1911 when the unit took part in the quelling of the Philippine Insurrection and the Chinese Relief Expedition during the Boxer Rebellion.

The nickname "Manchu" was adopted by the unit from the Chinese Imperial Dynasty in power at the time.

The belt buckle was born out of a contest open to members of the regiment in 1923. From the contest, five drawings were chosen and forwarded to the A. H. Dondero Company, a well known manufacturer of militay insignia.

The story of gaining approval for the buckle is the story of disapproval after disapproval or of the perseverence of commanders against the non-committal upper echelons of the Army bureaucracy.

In the early stages, the records of the ninth indicate General John J. (Blackjack) Pershing was behind the approval of the belt buckle.

When the web belt replaced the Sam Browne in 1938, the buckle disappeared as a part of the uniform.

Ninth Infantry Regiment records show that the buckle was forgotten until April 1959 when the unit was stationed in Alaska. Records show the unit communicated with the N.S. Meyer Company about the possibility of obtaining the belt buckle for general wear by 9th Infantrymen.

In March, 1964, Maj. Charles W. Peer, then commanding the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry, again communicated with the Meyer Company indicating interest in the distinctive belt buckle.

Subsequent communications between the succeeding commander, Lt. Col. Robert W. Seaman, and Meyer indicate a difficulty in regaining approval for the belt buckle from army officials.

When Col. Seaman became the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1 and Lt. Col. Alfred J. Millard took command of the 1st of the 9th approval was finally obtained.

COMPARING BELT BUCKLES are Lt. Col. John D. White and Sgt. Maj. James A. Scott of the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry. Scott holds one of the original buckles which adorned the Sam Browne belts of regiment members in the '20's and '30's. There are two 9th Infantry units in the division authorized to wear the new buckle. (Photo by Marv Wolf) son, one of the factors that prompted Gen. Chiles to push the seat belt campaign among Indianheads was seeing the success of the program in the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky.

The 101st Airborne began a drive last July, and at its peak, 98 per cent of persons owning cars had front seat belts installed. As a result officials at Fort Campbell noted a marked decrease in traffic fatalities, Capt. Robertson said.

In a memorandum to all elements in the Army entitled "Seat Belt Policy", the Assistant Secretary of Defense (manpower) outlines a program each military department is to take.

Although there is no policy making seat belts mandatory, the Army is backing an aggressive program to encourage it. The memorandum encourages soldiers to install at least two seat belts in the front seat of their auto.

It also asks military units to "facilitate, through appropriate means, the procurement and installation of seat belts at a minimum cost."

The Army policy on seat belts does make it mandatory that a car have two front seat belts when it is used for official business.

As the 2nd Division takes a seat on the seat belt bandwagon, all soldiers will be asked to comply with laws governing the installation of seat belts in the state where their cars are registered.

Fallacy

nell University Aeronautical Laboratory, Capt. Robertson found that the chances of a driver or passenger being killed are five times greater if they are thrown out of a the car. Seat belts keep you in.

Studies of accidents show that a person wearing a seat belt is 60 per cent less likely to have an injury of any sort, and 50 per cent less likely to be killed than those without.

Owners of soft-top convertibles are often afraid of wearing seat belts, fearing they would be dragged or killed in the event of a rollover.

According to Capt. Robertson's report, only 2 per cent of all accidents studied by the Cornell group were cases involving soft-top rollovers. "The great danger in a convertible," the report states, "is being thrown out over the side or over the windshield. Without a belt you run the risk of ejection and in addition you may still be dragged under and killed."

Current emphasis is on front seat belts. However, it has been proved that the back seat passenger lands harder and is more apt to be injured in a bad head-on crash.

If a car traveling 40 m.p.h. crashes into another vehicle or object, the front seat passenger hits the dashboard a split-second after the crash, the car slowed down to 25 m.p.h. When rear passengers smack into the dashboard, the car has slowed down to 10 m.p.h.

Mrs. Bill Gephart

Finds Happiness As Mother, Club Worker, Teacher; Offers 4-Point Philosophy for Young Army Wives

By ALICE WITTER

One of the reasons mutual friends of Kay Bevis and Bill Gephart wanted them to meet was because Kay had the tall girl's usual problem of being unable to find sufficiently tall young men. One look at the commander of the 702nd Maintenance Battalion is enough to convince anyone that he 'hit the jackpot'!

Kay was a student at the Florida State College for Women in Tallahassee in 1941, but after World War II broke out she left school and went to work for the Corps of Engineers at Dale Mabry Air Base in Tallahassee. Lt. John W. Gephart, from Lancaster, Pa., had been commisioned at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland, and was stationed in Tallahassee.

They were married on Easter Sunday, April 25, 1943. After several brief assignments in various places, she returned to her hometown of Quincy, Fla., to await the arrival of their first child, while her husband went to Walker Air Force Base for special overseas training. Daughter Beverly was born in February, 1944, and her father was able to spend a few days' leave with them before going overseas.

Lt. Gephart spent the next twenty - two months as an Ordnance officer with the Air Force in Saipan. Kay kept herself busy taking care of the baby, doing Red Cross work, and writing daily letters to her husband.

After his return in October, 1945, Bill left the Army and entered Florida University at Gainesville. Before long he was offered a Regular Army commission, which he happily accepted. In April, 1946, he went to the Ordnance Depot at Stockton, California; and shortly after the birth of John William Jr., in August 1946, the Gepharts were all together in Stockton.

In May, 1947, they were sent to Craig Air Force Base in Selma, Alabama when Lt. Gephart was one of the Ordnance officers selected to help establish a separate Air Force.

In January 1949, Lt. Gephart went to the U. S. Army Europe Ordnance School at Eschwege, Germany. Their third child, Joanne Cecelia, was born in Giessen, the nearest city, in October, 1949. Although there were no hospitals or commissary facilities in the village of Eschwege, and the post was extremely small, this was the elder Gepharts' favorite tour. Mrs. Gephart helped to organize the first Sunday school and Kindergarten there and taught in both.

In 1952, they returned to the States and were sent to Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland. During the three years there, Mrs. Gephart engaged in Girl Scout and Cub Scout activities, P.T.A. work, playing the piano for morning kindergarten, and participating actively in Wives' Club activities. The last year there, 1954 to 1955, Capt. Gephart attended the Ordnance Advanced Course.

Following his graduation, Gephart was sent to Orleans, France, where he spent three years as Chief of the Ordnance Division Financial Management Section, Headquarters, USAREUR, COMZ.

This tour proved to be the favorite of the children — primarily because they lived in what the children called their 'fairy - tale house,' a lovely resort home set on a five - acre, wooded area surrounded by an eight - foot stone fence with a picturesque pond near the house.

Here again the senior Gepharts were active in many worthwhile community activities — P.T.A.; scouts; and the Little League, Babe Ruth and American Legion Baseball activities for which Capt. Gephart served as commissioner.

During a year as president of the Officers' Wives Club Mrs. Gephart helped organize the first Post Nursery and the first Franco-American Club. In addition she served on the Board of Governors of the American Officers' Wives Club of France, an organization functioning to develop such activities for each service stationed in the country.

She also served as the First Senior Delegate to represent France at the European P.T.A. Conference, held in Berchtesgaden, Germany.

Upon their return to the States, Maj. Gephart was assigned to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, for the Command and General Staff College course, followed by an assignment at the Pentagon in Washington for four years. He was the Budget and Congressional Coordinator in the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics.

While living in Annandale, Virginia, Mrs. Gephart took a course in Real Estate, successfully completed her state examination in Norfolk, and received her license. Her two years of activity in the real estate business came to an abrupt halt with the arrival of a daughter, Deborah Lee, in September 1961, whom they call 'their littlest angel.'

In October 1962, Lt. Col. Gephart went to Seoul, Korea, and the family went back to Quincy, Florida. Mrs. Gephart chuckles when she says she had more than enough to keep herself busy during that year of waiting—with one child in college, one in military school, one in junior high, and one in nursery school.

While in Korea, Col. Gephart received the Legion of Merit for the outstanding work he had done in Washington, D. C.

In November, 1964, the Gepharts came to Fort Benning.

Mrs. Gephart counts as her major interests sports, journalism, music, and people — although she enjoys her home, she likes nothing better than to get out and meet people.

During her twenty - two years as an Army wife, she has evolved a four-point philosophy that certainly constitutes good advice for every young Army wife.

First, an Army wife should be versatile; second, she should not lose her sense of humor; third, she should remember that wherever she goes, she is the foreigner and therefore she should be the one to 'bend a little' and should not expect the natives to do so; and fourth, she should stand behind her husband one-hundred percent!

Kay Gephart has always attempted to adhere to this philosophy — which may account, in part, for her feeling that 'it's been a wonderful twenty-two years.'

Review Welcomes New Assistant

TROOPING THE LINE, Gen. Williams takes a salute from Lt. Col. Dean Van Lydegraf, commander of the 2nd Supply and Transport Battalion. Commander of the troops for the Marne Field Review to welcome the new assistant division commander was Col. Tony F. Perpich, head of division artillery.

By JOE TREASTER

Brig. Gen. Robert R. Williams returned to the 2nd Infantry Division on a military red carpet last Friday after an absence of 23 years.

When he joined the division at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., in 1942 as a lieutenant, Gen. Williams recalled, there was little fanfare.

Conditions were different Friday. He was being recognized as the assistant division commander; Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles' right-hand man.

At the miniature review in Gen. Williams' honor on Marne Field, every element of the division was represented, the division band played and the living symbol, Kiowa Indian, Sgt. Marland Tahbonemah, huired a cross-arms salute.

Gen. Williams stood along on the reviewing stand, watching Col. Tony F. Perpich command the assembled troops. A speech was expected, but it was unexpectedly brief:

"This is the first time in my military career that I have had a chance to rejoin a unit with which I have previously served. It is a great honor and a pleasure for me once again to become a part of the 'Second to None' Division."

Gen. Williams was the honored guest at the division officers' weekly reception hour at Indianhead Lodge and later went with the commanding general to a reception at the Sand Hill Noncommissioned Officers' Club, sponsored by the 23 sergeants who represented the unit at the Presidential Inauguration.

An aid said a trip to the Army's Aviation Center at Fort Rucker, Ala., is scheduled for Saturday. He began handling chores at headquarters Monday.

Williams Assumes ADC's Post; Recalls Part in Army Aviation

By JOE TRESTER

Speaking non - militarily this week, the 2nd Infantry Division's new assistant division commander described himself as:

"Vice president in charge of the two brigades — the 1st and the 3rd — and the cavalry and artillery units."

The lapse into civilianism seemed an uncomfortable posture for Brig. Gen. Robert R. Williams — he's been in the Army 29 years — and the soft-talking officer smoothly corrected himself:

"Primarily my attention will be directed toward the maneuver elements of the division."

Gen. Williams last Friday moved into the office formerly occupied by Brig. Gen. Robert E. Coffin after a welcome review on Marne Field. Army officials had ordered Gen. Coffin to Paris.

No Changes

He made no significant changes in the decor of the office and, except for a camera session Tuesday for a chain of command photograph, he has spent little time in the cubicle.

Monday, his first full-day on the job, Gen. Williams began a round of visits to division units — talking with commanders and their men — that lasted through the week.

Although he wasn't interested in talking about it in his first days of leadership in the infantry division, Gen. Williams owns a sparkling record of Army aviation achievements.

He was the first ground force officer — an artilleryman — to receive an instrument rating, the first chief of the Army Aviation Branch and the first man designated as a "master Army Aviator."

First

Gen. Williams organized the first ground force operational unit, the United State Constabulary Flight Detachment, and the U. S. Army Aviation Board. He was the board's first president.

The gneral's first assignment out of West Point in 1940 was as commander of a field artillery battery at Fort Sill, Okla.

His second, and only other assignment in his branch, came 10 years later at the same post when he replaced now — Col. Sid Sacerdote as commander of the 2nd Field Artillery Battalion. Col. Sacerdote is presently Inspector General of the United States Infantry Center, Fort Benning.

Inaugural Cordon Honored at Banquet

As a finale to their week-long tour of duty in Washington, D. C, as members of the Presidential Inaugural honor cordon, 23 sergeants of the 2nd Infantry Division last Friday night gathered at the Sand Hill Noncommissioned Officers' Club.

As the men and their wives flowed into the club they were formally received by the commanding general, the chief of staff, the assistant division commander who just that day had joined the division, and the officers' wives.

Brig. Gen. Robert R. Williams, the new assistant division commander, was recognized as the guest of hour.

Proud Audience

In Washington the sergeants had been stag. But at the club party they were with their wives and a refreshment hour before dinner proved a forum for recollections of the capitol service. The women were an eager and proud audience.

Another engagement called the two general officers away before dinner was served. But before he left, the commanding general, Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles reiterated a theme he adopted after his first inspection of the soldiers in January: "You are the best of the best. I am truly proud of you."

Col. Burnside E. Huffman, Jr., the chief of staff, and his wife stayed for the dinner at which the division's senior NCO, Sgt. Maj. Robert L. Brown, served as master of ceremonies.

Sgt. Maj. Brown praised the men he led in Washington for their "outstanding" performance during the Inauguration.

Mementos

As mementos of the event, the men received a packet containing a color photograph of the group, prepared by the public information office, and black and white photographs showing the men in Washington with U.S. Rep. Howard 'Bo' Callaway of Georgia's Third Congressional District.

The pictures with the representative were autographed and came with a personal letter from him.

"I was very impressed by the 2nd Infantry Division men in Washington," he wrote.

NEW ASSISTANT division commander, Brig. Gen. Robert R. Williams, assisted division commander, Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles, in welcoming the division representatives to the January presidential inauguration.

Wood Raised to Major By Commanding General

Richard W. Wood, Headquarters Company, 2nd Infantry Division, was promoted to major at a recent ceremony in the office of Maj. Gen. John H. Chiles.

With Mrs. Wood present for the occasion and assisting in the presentation, Wood received the leaf of his present rank from the division commander.

Wood, the division's plans officer, graduated from OCS in 1954, after serving as an enlisted man for two years. His first assignment as an officer found him at Fort Hood, Tex., as a company commander with the 4th Armored Division.

The $1,000 Beer Can

. . . And the Judge says "Case dismissed."

So ends the case of the $1,000 beer can or the case of 1,000 empty beer cans, or the empty case of beer found littered along the highway.

Whether you drop one empty can or 1,00 cans of "empties" the maximum allowable civilian punishment for littering, totals $1,000 and 12 months in the pokey. A gruesome thought that most of us would not like to think about.

If you don't mind going one step further. I might quote the maximum allowable punishment under the military code of justice for "on-post" violators.

Disorderly Conduct

A Disorderly Conduct charge which goes with the offense calls for a maximum of four months confinement at hard labor and forfeiture of two-thirds of your monthly pay for four months.

Well you might say it is highly imporbable that such a stiff sentence would be doled out for discarding trash on the reservation and I'll be the first to agree, nevertheless such punishment is within court martial jurisdiction.

Just a few facts from a random sampling of units conducting daily clean up, paint up, fix up operations for the division relates that presently there are nearly three hundred soldiers involved in police calls. Utilizing the better part of a morning to adequately complete the job this totals to well over a thousand man hours wasted.

Not Restricted

The job of policing an area is not restricted to litter-pick-up, but includes mowing raking and trimming the grass as well. When this operation gets into gear with the coming summer months the police requirement could well double.

Ask any battalion or company level NCO what they thknk about Police Call and they'll offer comments such as, "If I had to reflect on what I thought about Police Call, you wouldn't be able to print it."

Such a comment should not be misconstrued to mean that high ranking non - coms dislike cleaning up an area, it's just that the problems they are confronted with in getting hard-to-come-by bodies and vehicles to do the job.

In addition to the clean up, there is a requirement to dispatch five motorized military police patrols to check these areas to insure an adequate job is done.

Next Time

So, next time you think about littering the area with a discarded can labeled 3.2 per cent remember that approximately that amount of men will be out in the division the next morning searching for it. Forfeiting two-thirds of your pay for four months couldn't come close to paying the salaries the government is now paying to keep Sand Hill clean.

'Call-Haul' Idea Given By Air Force

"You call, we'll haul!" So saying, Maj. William A. Warner, USAF proceeded to show the 2nd Division officers and noncommisioned officers assembled at Theatre Six just how the Tactical Air Force would support the division in combat, should the need arise.

Warner was the first of a team of seven officers who flew up from Hurlburt Field part of Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. The senior officer was Lt. Col. Morgan L. Waller, Jr. He and his team are from the Air-Ground Operations section at Hurlburt, and their mission here at division was the annual briefing of the divisions S-2, S-3 (air) and Intelligence and Operations NCO's.

Ward Assumes 1st Brigade Post at Wetherby Review

Change of command ceremonies Thursday afternoon placed Col. Ben H. Ward in control of the division's 1st Brigade as Lt. Col. Beverly C. Snow stepped out of the command he held since last fall.

The entire brigade passed in review for the incoming and outgoing commanders at Wetherby Field mid-afternoon yesterday.

The engineer officer, who held a brigade command position in an infantry division for the first time in the history of the modern Army, termed his tour as "the most rewarding and beneficial I've had since being in the Army."

The new commander, Col. Ward, returned to the United States in February following a tour of duty with the United States Military Assistance Command in Viet Nam.

During the review, Col. Ward expressed his satisfaction with the present condition of the brigade, and said he was "honored to take command of the unit."

Marksmen, 1st of 23rd Win Top Volleyball Spots

Volleyball teams from Company A, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry, and the 2nd Infantry Division Marksmanship Detachment battled to the finals rounds of the division tournament Wednesday night at Kimbro Gym.

The Marksmen went into the finals undefeated during the two weeks of play while the 23rd Infantry team only had one mark against them. The final game between the two top volleyball teams was the second meeeting of the two during the tournament. The Marksmen met Company A last Friday night in an encounter at Kimbro Gym, defeated them 15-11 and 16-14. This was the 23rd Infantry's only loss of the tournament up to Wednesday's finals.

The 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry team waged through semi - final action Tuesday night by turning back a team from the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry, 15-3 and 15-11.

The division champion and the runner up team will receive trophies and advance to the post tournament to be played on April 20 through 23.

Under double elimination play, the Marksmen could have lost in the game Wednesday night and still had a chance to play for the title in a second encounter.

The team from the 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry lost out in the tournament with a record of five wins and two losses.

As tournament action moved through the week, the 23rd Infantry team dropped the Supply and Transport Battalion on Thursday night, 15-4 and 15-10. On the same evening, the 2nd Aviation Battalion won over the medical battalion. The Aviators won in the first round, 15-6, lost 12-10 in the second and then won the match with a 15-13 score in the third set.

The 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry defeated the 2nd MI Detachment, 15-9 and 15-6.

The 7th Cavalry posted their win on Friday evening after defeating the Aviators, 15-9 and 15-7 in the second and third sets.

The 2nd Battalion, 9th Infantry moved closer to the crown by winning over S and T, 15-5 and 16-14 Friday night. After a 15-8 defeat in the first round, the 9th Infantry then dropped the 7th Cavalry Monday night, 15-3 and 15-7.

Bowling Tourney on Tap

Keglers will hold the sports spotlight in the 2nd Infantry Division on April 15 through 30.

The Division Bowling Championship will be held during this period. It will be a nine game scratch roll-off, with the highest total pinfall determining the winner.

A total of three games will be bowled by a team each time it bowls. The five highest scores in each game from the six-man team will be counted for total pinfall. If there are less than five bowlers to a team, only one blind of 125 pins may be used.

Should there be a tie for first or second place, a one game roll-off will be held immediately following the tournament.

Teams must submit a roster to Special Services, Kimbro Gymnasium, by Monday. The rosters are limited to seven players and if a roster is not submitted by April 12th, the team will not be eligible.

A drawing will be held Tuesday morning at 11 to determine what times teams will bowl.

The bowling tourney will be held at Sand Hill Bowling Alley.

Indianhead Marksmen to Compete In Tennessee 'Earlybird' Shoot

Expert and master riflemen from the 2nd Infantry Division Marksmanship Detachment this weekend will fire against top teams throughout the Southeast in the Southern Appalachian Earlybird High Power Rifle Tournament.

The tournament is being held in Oak Ridge, Tennessee. A team of 20 marksmen from the division left post Thursday for Oak Ridge where they are spending today warming up for matches.

Actual firing begins early tomorrow, lasting throughout the day and most of Sunday. Marksmen are firing on the Oak Ridge Sportsman's Association range in a hilly area just outside the city.

Two Teams

Two four-man teams of Indianheads will represent the division in team firing events on Sunday, according to SFC Joe Moreno, of the detachment. "We want to win as many team matches as we can. We'd like to pick up several individual trophies too," Sgt. Moreno said.

The Indianheads will fire against a varied group of experts in this match, according to Moreno. Third Army is expected to have one of the stronger teams in the match. Other Army installations expected to participate are Fort Gordon, Ga., and Fort Campbell, Ky.

The military marksmen will be up against a number of civilians and also members of the Tennessee National Guard. "We know we'll have some real competition," says Moreno.

Awards Sunday

The National Rifle Association High Power Rifle rules will govern throughout the match. When final firing is completed Sunday, individual and team awards will be given in each of the three categories — service, reserve and civilian.

The opening matches will be individual firing of 20 rounds at 200 yard targets from standing, standing to sitting or kneeling, and 600 yards standing to prone. Firing will then be from a prone position at 600 yard targets.

Team matches will follow a similar pattern, according to Moreno.

Marksmen will return to Fort Benning on Monday.

Capt. John T. Burke, detachment commander, remained in the division due to military commitments.

DISCUSSING RAPPELLING TACTICS IN THE FIELD
Charles Black Confers With Col. Beatty And Sen. Paul Braun

Local War Correspondent Covers Rappelling Story

Last week Mr. Charles Black, military writer for the Columbus Enquirer, visited the 1st Battalion of the 188th Infantry. Bravo Company "Bull Eagles" played host to Mr. Black, who had come to gather material for an article on helicopter rappelling.

A journalist who is well-known as a military analyst, Mr. Black explained that he liked to "do" and "experience", whenever possible, the things he writes about. Dressed in full combat gear, he accompanied the "Eagle" Sky Soldiers to the field in a tactical problem that included rappelling from a helicopter.

The problem started at seven-thirty in the morning when Bravo Company left the battalion area. Upon arrival at the assembly area, the company was given a brief orientation by 1st Lt. Wayne C. Elrod, officer in charge of the problem, who reviewed the basic pinciples of rappelling. This was the first time the company had used rappelling as an assault technique in a tactical situation. After the briefing, the company was divided into patrols of sixteen men each. Mr. Black was assigned as a rifleman to the second patrol, headed by SFC Ramon Lopez.

During the morning the company practiced rappelling, first into an open area and then into some tall pine trees from a height of sixty feet. Later in the morning a helicopter arrived carrying Senator Paul C. Braun, 46th District Senator from Georgia; Col. George Beatty, commander of the 11th Aviation Group; Lt. Col. Robert S. Kellar, commander of the 188th "Eagles". Senator Braun, a retired officer himself, had previously observed Company C participate in tower rappelling. He came to the field with his escort.

(See Rappelling, Page 27)

Sky Soldiers Help 'em Win

Sky Soldiers from the 11th Air Assault Division made valuable contributions to the Fort Benning All-Star team which recently won the Third United States Army Basketball Championship.

The team was coached by Lt. Gerald Halpin of the 511th Infantry Battalion who also coached his battalion team to the Division Championship. Gerald Grochowski of the 2nd Battalion, 23rd Infantry, Ronald Towe of the 2nd Battalion, 38th Infantry and Richard Bosacker and Edward Washington of the 511th Infantry were playing members of the team and provided much of the scoring punch for the All - Stars. These men were equally gifted on defense as their all-around outstanding play through three practice games and three tournament games demonstrated.

In addition, SSgt. Robert Clark from the 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry and Sgt. Walter Hester of the 511th Infantry worked tirelessly behind the scenes as Team Trainer and Team Manager.

A Day of Religious Reflection Planned By Division Chaplains

Good Friday - Passover Eve (April 16) will be marked by the 11th Air Assault Division with a Tri-Faith Day of Religious Reflection. The day long retreat will be held in ten chapels and chapel centers throughout the division area.

For Christians, Good Friday emphasizes the Cross and redemption through the death of Jesus Christ — an occasion bespeaking God's triumphs over sin and despair.

The Jewish Passover is a centuries - old commemoration of God's passing over the homes of Israel and smiting the homes of the Egyptians with death, thus preparing the way for release of His chosen ones from slavery and despair, and their tiumph in the Promised Land.

With these thoughts in mind as focal points, each of the three major faiths will hold periods of meditation.

PROTESTANT

The Protestant portion of the Tri-Faith effort will be held in the 197th Infantry Brigade Chapel for the men of the 10th Air Transport Brigade and the 611th Aicraft Maintenance Battalion, men of the 1st Brigade area will worship in Harmony Church Chapel No. 3; troops in Division Support Command will worship in the Support Command Chapel Center; soldiers in Division Artillery, 127th Engineer Battalion and the Aviation Group in Harmony Church Chapel No. 5. Personnel at Kelley Hill will participate at the Kelley Hill Field House.

Support Command's CO Takes New Post

Col. Robert C. Shaw, commanding officer, Support Command, bid farewell to the organization he has commanded since the activation of the 34th Air Assault Division in February 1963. At a retreat ceremony held on Dickman Field, Col. Shaw presented decorations to three members of the 611th Aircraft Maintenance Battalion. He then made brief remarks complimenting the caliber of service leading to the citations and, with a few touching words thanked his command for its outstanding performance of duty throughout his tenure as its commander.

Col. Shaw is a veteran of over 25 years in the U. S. Army. A native of New York he received his BS from the University of Michigan in 1938 and was commissioned a reserve officer. He entered the Army on active duty in September 1939. Served in Africa and Europe during World War II and in Korea. He is a 1949 graduate of the Command and General Staff College. Attended the Armed Forces Staff College in 1954 and the Army War College in 1958.

His assignments prior to his tenure as Support Command commander include command of an Airborne Battle Group of the 101st Airborne Division and he has had many varied command and staff positions throughout the Army. His decorations and awards include the Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Bronze Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Army Commendation Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Combat Infantry Badge and the Master Parachutist Badge.

Orders reassigning Col. Shaw indicated that his new assignment will be with the US Military Supply Mission India at New Delhi, India. He is scheduled to depart his command on April 4 for TDY

'Imaginuity' Corner

It may seem strange, but at times the most simple, everyday object can become the solution to a very pressing problem. This was the case not long ago at Battery E, 26th Artillery (Aviation).

For some time it had been noticed that dust and dirt could easily enter the fuel tank of an aircraft while it was being fueled in the conventional manner. These foreign particles could be quite dangerous because they might clog the fuel line and cause a serious malfunction of the aircraft.

But, Capt. William Fraker of Battery E was blessed with a little 'imaginuity' and saw that by attaching the familiar rubber 'plumbers helper' to the fuel dispensing nozzle it would completely cover the fuel tank opening and eliminate all the problems of dust, dirt and spillage.

QUESTION OF THE MONTH

How can aerial rescue and fire fighting equipment of the division be improved to provide aviation units with a better fire fighting and rescue capability? Submit your ideas to the division IDEA CENTER, Building 5205, phone 545-6317.

226th Brightens April Coffee With Spring Flowers

Ladies of Company B, 226th Aerial Surveillance and Escort Battalion, were positive spring had arrived when they attended their monthly coffee on April 2, at the home of Ms. Frank Newman.

Bouquets of red and white azaleas, daffodils, and Easter lilies were tastefully arranged and placed throughout the home. The serving table was graced with a centerpiece of red buds and dogwood blossom, upon which gaily decorated Easter eggs were hung.

Following the business portion of the meeting the ladies found the morning refreshments were as delightful as was the setting.

Mrs. Douglas Guentz assisted Mrs. Newman with the affair.

The ladies will hold their next coffee May 7, at the home of Mrs. Glenn D. McElroy.

party to see the tactical application by Company B.

In the afternoon the patrols were given their assault orders: Balvania, a little country that asked the United States to help combat enemy guerrillas, has discovered an enemy radio station operating within its territory. The mission of the second patrol is to close in and destroy the clandestine station. At 2 p.m. helicopters picked up the second patrol and moved in a zig-zag fashion to the pre-assigned drop zone where the men rappelled from a height of sixty feet.

Moving quickly to the objective area, the patrol attacked the clandestine radio station and destroyed it with assault fire and simulated grenades. Upon completion of the mission, the patrol moved to the rendezvous point but found the helicopters could not reach them due to "enemy" action.

Warned by a "friendly partisan," the patrol sliced off through the swamps and woods to another hill, where linkup was made with a truck. After evacuation to friendly territory, the patrol was critiqued on the strenuous raid action.

Mr. Black showed great interest throughout the patrol. He rappelled and moved through the underbrush like a veteran Sky Soldier. Dressed in the special tropical fatigue uniform which he received in Viet Nam during his recent journalistic stint there, Mr. Black was right at home. He compared the operation to those which he undertook as a member of the Marine Raiders during his own active military career.

at the Foreign Service Institute and for a Military Assistance Orientation at Arlington, Va., following which he will take a brief period of leave prior to embarking for his new assignment.

Col. Shaw built the Air Assault Division's Support Command from very humble beginnings during the hectic first phase in early 1963 to a point where it is now the division's largest major subordinate command with more than 3,000 officers and men assigned.

The command, which provides the bulk of combat service support for the division, has under Col. Shaw's direction labored mightily and inventively in devising means to support the new air assault concept.

Duties as commanding officer, Support Command, have been assumed by Lt. Col. Thomas W. Buchanan, former Support Command Executive Officer.

Composite Maintenance Team Moves Hueys to Maxwell AFB

Last week a composite team, numbering approximately sixty personnel, departed from the 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion, for Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.

This team, under the supervision of Maj. Harold L. Hodge Jr. and Maj. Eugene Diamond, were working against a three day deadline to disassemble and prepare for air shipment, a large number of UH-1 helicopters. The team was further broken into eight work teams, each man hand picked to perform certain functions.

All tools and equipment necessary to perform the required work were transported to the work site by the individual teams. Of necessity, before the team departed, a great deal of thought and precise planning was accomplished to insure timely completion of the project with minimum delay. It was thought the job would take three days. However, due to the excellent prior planning, employment of teams by shifts, the fine spirit of Air Force co-operation and the indomitable spirit of the U.S. Army mechanic, this tremendous task was accomplished in a little less than two work days. Another first for aviation maintenance adaptability to airmobile concepts was scored when, with the last aircraft turned over for loading, the teams began gathering tools and equipment together for their return to Fort Benning.

Fourth Army Area Sees Giant CH54 Flying Crane

A flight has recently been completed in which the 478th Flying Crane Company, 10th Air Transport Brigade demonstrated the capabilities of the CH-54A to personnel of the Medical Center, San Antonio, Tex., Fort Hood, Tex., Fort Sill, Okla. and Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

At San Antonio, the pods compatibility with the new experimental MUST (Medical Unit, Self - Contained, Transportable), as a mobile operating room for immediate surgery in combat areas was discussed. At the Fort Hood demonstration, a 7000 pound dock tug and an M114 were carried using both the four-point and single - point hook-up. At Fort Sill, a 155mm howitzer, an Armored Personnel Carrier and a Pershing Missile were loaded. The weather at Fort Leavenworth prevented a flying portion but the static display was examined with interest.

Personnel taking part in the flight were Capt. Jim Goodloe, CWO Jim Oden and CWO Chester L. Cook as pilots and Sp6 Horace S. Morris and Sp6 William J. Taylor as crew engineers.

Battery A Leaves For Ft. Stewart

Battery A, 3rd Battalion 377th Artillery left for Ft. Stewart last week to undergo extensive training and the annual Army Training Test. The ATT will be the first such test the battery has taken since its organization.

The training will include familiarization and qualification firing of the M-3 rocket system, both day and night, low level navigation, battery and platoon tactics and night formation flying.

Battery A was the first battery to ever fire the M-3 rocket system at night. This was done both at Ft. Benning and Ft. Stewart over one year ago. Several techniques are used to provide illumination on the target: flares, both fired from 105 MM How. and dropped by aircraft and napalm.

611th Officer Awarded DFC for Vietnam Action

In recent ceremonies held at Dickmann Field, Capt. Jerry J. Sullivan, of Company B, 611th Aircraft Maintenance and Supply Battalion, was presented with the Distinguished Flying Cross for heroic action in the Republic of Vietnam by Col. Robert Shaw, 11th Support Command commander.

While serving as a member of an aircraft recovery team in July 1963, Sullivan proceeded to Ca Mau, Vietnam, to supervise third echelon repairs on a damaged aircraft. When it became evident that complete repairs could not be made under existing conditions, Capt. Sullivan decided to make minimal repairs and attempt to return the aircraft to an area where better maintenance facilities were available. Although maintenance procedures dictate that an aircraft in such condition have extensive repairs before it is considered safe for flight, Capt. Sullivan volunteered to fly the aircraft, with complete disregard for his personal safety, even though its airworthiness was questionable. He did this with full knowledge, that he would have to fly at low altitude and reduced speed over extremely hostile territory. His actions eliminated the need to dispatch numerous other maintenance personnel and equipment into hostile territory, and greatly shortened the time that the aircraft was exposed to the enemy.

Other decorations Capt. Sullivan has won are the Purple Heart and the Air Medal with 8 Oak Leaf clusters.

Capt. Sullivan is a native of Philadelphia, Penn. and joined the 11th Air Assault Division, and his present unit, in July 1964.

Georgia Senator Visits 188th To Observe Field Training

Georgia State Senator Paul C. Braun, representing the 46th District, visited the 1st Battalion, 188th Infantry on April 2nd to observe air assault field training. "Eagle" commander Lt. Col. Robert S. Keller showed Senator Broun the "teaching" phase of rapelling off the towers by Company C, and the "tactical" phase demonstrated by Company B.

Escorting Senator Braun was the 11th Aviation Group Commander, Col. George Beatty. Senator Braun watched the Bull Eagles of Company B preparing for a series of raids in which the sky soldiers rappeled tactically into simulated enemy territory to destroy a clandestine radio station.

Among the Eagle sky soldiers was Mr. Charles Black, military writer of the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer. Mr. Black, dressed in fatigues, participated in rappelling and strenuous patrolling as one of the troops.

Senator Braun spent the rest of the day visiting other units of the 11th Air Assault Division and was accompanied throughout by Col. Beatty.

Airfield Lighting Project Started in 377th Artillery

To provide every possible advantage to the Sky Soldier, Capt. Wayne E. Krahn a member of Battery "A" 377th Artillery has taken on the project "Red Wing". The purpose is to provide reflective sheeting as an alternate device for night lighting during field maneuvers.

The idea came from an article published by Ft. Rucker titled 'Red Wing" a pilot flying for the Red Wing Shoe Company in Minnesota, had the company airport outlined with reflective panels to pick up his landing lights. This gives the same night capabilities as a fully lighted runway.

Some problem areas that have arisen during field exercises at night are the inability to provide timely lighting for landing aircraft an adequate night approach indicator, marking obstacles in the area and visual command and control difficulties.

The material to be used is 9x12 panels of Scotchlite Reflective Sheeting, with a reflector brilliance of 15 to 200 times brighter than a white surface depending on the color. These panels will be used in a variety of test projects.

Capt. Krahn intends to fabricate a simple glide slope indicator by the use of vertical and horizontal panels to line up the proper approach angle. This will have to be flexible enough to meet the many varied field situations. Panels will also be used to mark the landing pad, taxi ways, parking areas and obstacles. They will be illuminated by either the aircraft landing lights or a single light source on the ground. This will eliminate the necessity of turning on and off each light separately every time an aircraft makes an approach.

Additional uses will be to mark vehicles to be readily identified from the air at night.

These panels will also be installed at Apparri Heliport to provide the same assistance as in field locations.

Some of the advantages are its ease of transportation by taking up minimum space, maintenance free, durability and ease of installation.

A UH-1 Crew Chief Displays The Mask

Protective Mask Tested at 227th

The new M-24 Aviator's protective mask underwent a thorough flight test by members of Company D, 227th Assault Helicopter Battalion. Capt. Walter G. Lilley and Capt. Eugene H. Grayson along with Sp.4 Walter F. Trock, crew chief, wore the mask during the flight test. This included the actual wearing of the mask with flight gear (flight helmet with interphone connected to mask) and under actual flying conditions in a UH1B helicopter.

The only adverse comments concerned the limited peripheral vision, particularly in making descending turns. Later plans include a similar test during night flying conditions.

Third Army Featherweight Boxing Champion, PFC Jose Rivera of the 1st Air Assault Brigade's 1st Battalion, 187th Infantry, left for Fort Campbell, Ky. Sunday morning for 36 days of training in preparation for the All-Army Boxing finals.

An interbrigade transfer within the 10th Air Transport Brigade has given the 44th Air Transport Battalion the added advantages of the CV-2B Caribou. The 50th Transport Airplane Company and the 516th Transport Airplane Company formally of the 37th Air Transport Battalion were transferred to the 44th Air Transport Battalion on March 22, 1965. This reorganization of the 44th Air Transport Battalion will give the combined capabilities of both fixed wing and rotary wing transports, thus providing the commander with more flexibility and greater range.

McQueary's Entertain At Dual Function Party

Lt. Col. and Mrs. C. W. McQueary entertained a party of fifty at their new quarters, 112 Eames, Fort Benning on Saturday evening April 3.

The party served a dual function in that it provided a relaxed house warming and allowed unit commanders and staff officers the opportunity to say "goodbye" to Lt. Col. Paul O. Bailey, the battalion executive officer, who is departing the 12th of April for service in Vietnam. His experience within the 611th Battalion will be sorely missed. Mrs. Bailey will remain in Columbus during her husbands overseas tour.

The party was quite unique. Wives of the officers prepared favorite dishes and placed them with others on a prepared table sumptuously laid by the hostess. Dishes of all descriptions were there to include hot breads and fancy desserts.

During the evening, Col. McQueary made appropriate parting remarks to Col. and Mrs. Bailey, at which time he presented them with an engraved set of butane table candles as a parting memento from the officers attending the occasion.

Chap. Tietjen To Speak Here

Chaplain (Col.) Ottmar Tietjen, Third U. S. Army Chaplain, will speak at the Good Friday Retreat at Harmony Church Chapel No. 5 on April 16. Chaplain Tietjen will present the Inspirational Hour message at 10:30 a.m.

Chaplain Tietjen is a minister of the Lutheran Church (Missouri Synod). He has seen action with the 37th Division in the South Pacific where he participated in the liberation of the Philippines, and with the 40th Division in Korea. Chaplain Tietjen is airborne qualified and has been Division Chaplain of the 82nd Airborne Division and Staff Chaplain of the VIII Airborne Corps. He has also served as Staff Chaplain, Seventh United States Army, and Deputy Chaplain, United States Army Europe. His decorations include the Silver Star, Bronze Star Medal, and Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster.

Writer, Poet, Musician; That's 2nd Brigade RTO

A writer, a poet, a songwriter, a musician. All this and more encompasses the character of a radio man in the Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Air Assault Brigade.

PFC Joesph J. Smalkowski has been creating material ever since he was graduated from high school almost eight years ago. "Ski" was assigned to this unit after a bad back and a bruised tendon in his right foot forced him out of airborne training. Prior to this "Ski" had completed basic training and radio school at Fort Dix, N.J.

After graduating from Bishop Loughlin High in Jamacia, N. Y., in 1957, he continued his education at Queens College, Queens, N. Y., where he received a bachelor of arts degree in history in 1961.

Realizing that he was slowly falling into a pit with no escape, "Ski" took a vacation and traveled all over the European countries. When he got back, he was so inspired by what he witnessed that he sat down and began to write. His book is almost complete now and all it needs are the final touches.

"Ski" is the type who enjoys observing people and their customs. He has driven cabs in the big city of New York and has done a lot of social work there, also. Very appropos to his inclinations is that "Ski" plans to go back to New York when he receives his discharge in August and drive a cab in order to secure more data for a new book.

MAG-nificent DIE CAST ALUMINUM SPORTS WHEELS
New Rugged . . . beautiful! Gives your car that custom sports look.
At last—a sports wheel so beautifully engineered and precision-built it's hard to tell from the super-expensive all-magnesium sports wheel. Yet it costs many dollars less! The rim is of gleaming chromed steel— the center of precision die-cast aluminum with the reliable welded construction so necessary for safety. The flat spoke surfaces are polished to mirror brightness . . . inner spoke surfaces have the dull-luster finish that looks so much like the actual "mag" wheel. Here is the true luxurious sport-car look!
Check these outstanding Foxcraft features.
• STYLING—Original Design, perfectly executed, for sensational looks.
• STRENGTH— A sports wheel that is completely safe—heavy chromed steel rim with precision cast aluminum center—solidly welded, not riveted.
• PRECISION—Tolerance in assembly is within thirty one-thousandths of an inch lateral run-out, for true performance.
• ACCEPTANCE—The MAG-nificent Foxcraft sports wheel is accepted by NHRA for competition classes, including stock.
• COMPLETENESS—Comes complete with plated lug nuts, bolts and chrome cap.
