What happens when you strop a blade the length of the Eiffel Tower? You get the incredibly-sharp Stainless Krona Edge! Our new stropping process strops every edge the equivalent of an extra 1000 feet. Result? An edge twice as sharp as a barber's straight edge. Try it! You'll feel a stropping difference and get uniform quality. Yes, the best stainless steel blade has the Stainless Krona Edge—and only Schick has it!

Sand Hill, Harmony Areas Slated as Recruit Homes

An Army Basic Training Center will be established here in October to occupy the Sand Hill and Harmony Church troop areas left vacant by the 1st Cavalry and 2nd Infantry Divisions, it was announced officially last week.

For the past three weeks, soldiers here have been painting, building and remodeling the barracks and facilities at Sand Hill and Harmony Church to accommodate the basic trainees who will begin arriving Oct. 4.

It was anticipated by post officials that some 3,000 permanent party personnel will be required to receive and train the estimated 1,300 basic trainees who will arrive here each week.

The training center will be commanded by a brigadier general who has not as yet been named. Meanwhile, Col. Bob Edwards, formerly director of The Infantry School's Weapons Department, will serve as deputy commander.

Although not officially announced until last week, it was known that Fort Benning was being considered as the site for a training center and plans were drawn up with minimum delay.

Two hundred non - commissioned officers, picked from units on the post, left for Fort Jackson, S. C., Sept. 10 to undergo an intensive five-week course as drill instructors.

They were given an official send off at Theater No. 1 by the Fort Benning commander, Maj. Gen. Robert H. York. When they return near the middle of October, they will take over supervision of the new recruits' training.

A reception center to process the trainees has already been established at Harmony Church. The first basic training company will begin arriving Oct. 4 for the initial class which is scheduled to start Oct. 11.

Already, clothing and the necessary supplies to clothe and equip the new soldiers have begun arriving according to training center officials.

Issue points and medical facilities are springing up under the hammers and paint brushes of civilian engineers

Drill Sergeants Sought For Recruit Training

Fort Benning enlisted personnel are being urged to look into a five-week course offered by the Army to train drill sergeants to be used in new training centers being opened by the Department of Defense.

Due to the expansion of the draft and the opening of new training centers, a critical need for drill sergeants exists.

A training course has been established at Fort Jackson, S. C. and classes will begin on Oct. 2 and 16 with completion dates of Nov. 5 and 19.

Already Left

They were given an official send-off by Fort Benning commander, Maj. Gen. Robert H. York. When they return they will take over the supervision of the new recruit training.

In order to qualify for drill instructor school, enlisted men must be in grade E-4 or higher, be fully qualified in a combat arm, and have demonstrated leadership and soldierly qualities with no record of disciplinary action during their current period of service. They must also be physically qualified to perform duties as a trainer, have good military bearing, have no record of emotional instability, have 15 months of service remaining upon completion of the school or a signed statement of intent to re-enlist, and must not be over 39 years of age.

Assured Tour

Once completing the course, the drill sergeant is assured an 18-month stabilized tour in the U. S. and can be assured of spending that tour at Fort Benning if he wishes, according to Army officials.

As a drill instructor he will handle most of the basic

MP's Mark 24 Years Of Service

Fort Benning's military policemen Sunday will celebrate 24 years of service "for the troops."

They will join with the members of the corps scattered throughout the world to observe the anniversary.

The 200 military policemen who maintain law at Fort Benning are doing the job that three months ago was done by four MP companies comprising 800 men, according to deputy provost marshal, Lt. Col. Ber

Gen Forsythe Makes Plea For Support for Leaders

By JIM BAKER

Brig. Gen. George I. Forsythe told the Military Order of World Wars last Thursday night that the young officer in the armed forces faces a much different kind of challenge than he did twenty years ago.

The assistant commandant of the Infantry School told the assembled group that the junior officer was preparing himself for the "100 Years War." He added that only "20 years had gone by so far."

He called on the assembled senior and retired officers at the MOWW gathering to provide the "anchor - point for their leadership."

Forsythe invited the group to come to the Infantry School and see the dedication of the young officer which belied the publicity of the anti-Viet Nam demonstrations and, in his words, "the teach-ins which are even more dangerous because they aren't teach-ins, they're protestations."

He called on the group to provide the vocal form of patriotism that young leadership needs to make their case.

He told the MOWW that he was presuming to speak for the young officers who come to Fort Benning for

Village Pay Day

1st Cavalry Wins Vietnam Friends In Local Village

BY JOE TREASTER

AN KHE, Viet Nam — After five days of working along side soldiers to clear the 1st Cavalry Division's campsite here in the central highlands, payday came for some 2,000 natives.

Sitting spread - legged behind a foot - locker full of piasters, Capt. Ronald Summers, who had hired the natives, and Maj. Edmund L. Fuchs, who had been made a temporary finance officer, doled out the cash.

The workers crowded around in a semi - circle, waiting to step forward with their government identification card when an interpreter called their names.

Giggled and Laughed

"They giggled and laughed when they got the money," said Capt. Summers. "The rate was 70 piasters a day for men, 50 for women. Some of them collected 350 piasters. Some were dumfounded when they saw the 200 piaster notes. They'd never seen a bill that large."

When SSgt. Will H. Heath, a medic, pulled his jeep near the pay line, one woman reluctantly allowed him to treat her cut foot.

When the others saw the woman's face break into a smile, Sgt. Heath was mobbed.

"There must have been 150 of them crowding around showing me their troubles," he said. "Most of them had infected sores and cuts. Some of them weren't sick at all but they still wanted a pill. So I gave them aspirins and salt tablets."

Help Arrives

Help came from Capt. Larry McKinstry, one of the division's doctors.

"I enjoy working with these people. It gives me a real feeling of satisfaction," he said. "I can't understand what they say, but I can tell they appreciate our help. I think they appreciate medical help as much as the bullets our troops fire for them."

The first pay day, and daily ones that followed, turned the local market place into a thriving business center. Everybody was buying.

The wealth had spread as far as the village blacksmiths, who said they were making and sharpening more sickles and machetes than they had since the French fought here 11 years ago.

The villagers blatantly displayed their gratitude with a sign on the wall of the equivalent of the city hall. In both Vietnamese and English it read:

"The people of An-Tuc district are grateful for all the friendly forces that have won them a friendly and happy life."

training when he made this request for vocal leadership.

He described the 2000 officer candidates who pass through Benning each year as dedicated young volunteers. Of the ROTC graduates who come to Benning for Infantry Officer training, he said "they were quite different. I think ROTC is going downhill. It's becoming more vague and more generalized and the young lieutenant doesn't even know how to pin his bars on."

He said the career captains come to the Infantry School to have their vision expanded in order to become senior officers.

Forsythe described the modern war as a different kind of war "than the one we fought."

"We went to war," he said, "with the idea of lets get it over with and get back to peacetime."

The young officers who are "today's Army" are looking to the long war, the general said.

"They're different from what we were," he added.

"They're better educated, more of them are married... they have more children than we did at their age, and they're more interested in world events than we were."

He said this was the kind of mentality required to fight the present war against communism and he concluded that the young officer looked to the older group for the cornerstone on which to build his own brand of leadership.

The unceremonious draft notice ranks among the few pieces of paper that can vastly influence the course of a man's life. But more than most other milestone documents and certificates that accumulate over the years, the draft notice is usually greeted with mixed emotions.

These "second thoughts" stem, perhaps from a natural reluctance to being conscripted, particularly when the military service looms as a challenging experience, unlike anything the draftee has previously known.

These reservations dissolve quickly, however, as the draftee becomes immersed in the daily business of being a oldier. Whether the remainder of his time in uniform will hold real rewards or be, is fact, a career detour, is a decision that comes to be placed entirely in his hands.

Men who are anxious to benefit from every experience soon find that the traditional "giving of time to one's country can produce lasting compensations in terms of personal development and growth."

The Army trains its men to assume jobs as cooks and carpenters, medics and missilemen, artists and armorers, and thus operates what is considered by many to be the world's largest school system. The Army gets a return on its investment by putting the newly-trained soldier to work. . .at the same time, providing him with on-the-job experience and a chance for advanced instruction in his specialty.

Very clearly, the Army is a partner in building the careers of countless young men who step into civilian jobs that closely correspond to their Army occupations.

The Army also offers to the draftee opportunities to travel, learn foreign languages, and, through life in the military environment, develop human understanding, discipline, maturity and leadership. It is this that has earned for the Army the respect of the civilian industrial and business communities. Employers seek out the man who can indicate a successful period of Army service.

No one will try to convince today's young man that the Army is very much like civilian life. It isn't and it can never be. The Army is entrusted with an essential mission and all its efforts are marshalled toward it. Much is demanded of the soldier. . .and much is offered to him in return.

The Judge Says . . .

Sometimes a couple will rear a relative or step-child but won't bother to adopt the child formally and legally. Such informal arrangements can be very harmful to the child, legally speaking.

A child legally adopted by a person or couple usually assumes the adopting parents' name and by law becomes the parents' heir just as if he or she were a natural child of that parent.

To adopt a child legally, one must file a petition in an appropriate court, this court usually being in the county where the adopting couple lives. Also, in most cases there must be written consent of the child's own parent, guardian and-or a responsible government official if the child is over fourteen years old, he or she must also agree to the adoption.

The Judge must then satisfy himself, in the best interests of the child, as to the genuineness of the consent, moral character of the prospective parents, their ability to support the child and the mental and physical condition of all parents.

The adoption laws are strictly enforced. The courts will not recognize any informal arrangement. Many children who were brought up by loving, well-meaning people, and were even told that they were adopted, have been deprived of an inheritance because their foster parents did not comply with the letter of the law.

DENTAL IMPRESSIONS

NATHAN GRACE — PREVENTIVE DENTISTRY OFFICER

Dental Superstitions

The spacing of teeth has given rise to many odd beliefs and superstitions.

In Canada, it was once thought that an individual, whose front teeth were so far apart that a quarter could be placed between, would become very wealthy. In Italy, a person with widely spaced teeth is expected to become a good singer.

For preventing or warding off toothaches, a multitude of home remedies have been developed through the ages. These range from washing an infant's mouth out with holy water to the wearing of a parsley root around the neck. Once the toothache actually developed, some people believed that kissing a donkey would relieve the pain.

The ancient Persians developed a relationship between one's marital prospects and the type of tooth decay or portion of the tooth which decayed first. They believed the following: If your teeth decay at the gum line, you will marry a widow. If they decay at the sides, you will marry well. If they decay only on the upper or top portions, you will surely be an old maid.

While literature and folklore abound with colorful fallacies and superstitions pertaining to teeth, they are not without their respect and veneration for these very essential organs. Perhaps the author of Don Quixote stated it most aptly when he wrote, "A diamond is not as precious as a tooth."

Provost Marshal Reminders

Safety is always a big item on any Army post. Here at Fort Benning, there are several easy steps to safety.

Parents should see to it that their children's bicycles have proper lights and reflectors for night operation. It seems a shame to risk a life or serious injury for a 25-cent reflector.

Parents are also reminded that post regulations require all bicycles to be registered at the provost marshal's office. The procedure is simple and it safeguards the property in the event of theft or loss.

It has recently come to the attention of the provost marshal that pets are being allowed to wander on the post. Regulations require all pets to be under voice control or on a leash when out of doors.

A reminder to all soldiers with automobiles registered in the state of Georgia: all cars must have their safety inspections for the current year by October 31.

Another reminder: Don't leave valuable items in open view in your unattended autos — it's a sure invitation to thieves. Make sure your car is locked, especially during the hours of darkness.

One final reminder: The provost marshal's office is making use of The Bayonet's classified column for found items. If you have lost anything, be sure to check the Found Column each week.

Army Relief Society

Care for Our Own

Since 1900 the Army Relief Society has extended a helping hand to widows and orphans of Regular Army officers and enlisted men both on active duty and retired.

This help is made possible by endowments, gifts and the generosity of those who contribute to the annual Army Emergency Relief fund drive. Ten percent of the amount donated to AER is allocated to the ARS.

The Relief Society's work is carried on by several committees with one of the most noteworthy being the Relief Committee.

This segment of the Society is ready to step to the widow's aid when she most needs it — between the tragic time of her husband's death and the time her regular benefits are established.

For the widow whose husband was on active duty at the time of his death, both a fairly adequate pension and Social Security benefits usually come through quickly. These combined with personal insurance benefits and possibly part-time employment usually make help necessary for a comparatively short period.

The widow whose husband dies after retirement is generally older and it may take as long as from three to six months before she receives any Government benefit. Many of these women receive little or no Social Security. Due to advanced age or physical handicaps, many widows in this group are unable to work and require ARS help for long indefinite periods. In some instances nursing homes are the only answer.

Complicating the widow's problem in many cases is the failure of her husband to provide insurance. Sadder yet are the cases where the husband had insurance but neglected to name his wife as beneficiary.

An indication of the scope of aid given by the Relief Committee of ARS is found in a quick examination of the records for the year ending March 31, 1965. During the 12-month period the Committee gave financial assistance to 258 widows at a cost of $140,830 — proof positive that the Army does indeed take care of its own.

It's Backwards Thinking For Fashion-Conscious

BY JEAN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

This year instead of thinking ahead in terms of stylish millinery you'd better apply some backward thinking.

Although this is not usually recommended, in this instance, at least, backwards thinking is the only way to have a strategic point of back view.

This year, as in almost no other, the viewpoint of people who witness your retreat concern the hat designers and should concern you.

Suddenly, fashion - conscious people have begun to realize that there is a lot they can do to be remembered long after they have gone.

For too many years women have been dressing to suit themselves, to be pleased by the images that face them in the mirror. They dressed only for the head-on, first impression.

While first impressions should never be underestimated, last impressions are more lasting.

Panels fluttering from the shoulders, ruffle-like bustles, back pleats and peplums, and back plunging necklines that hardly know when to stop are all style memorable exits.

Now the hat designers are also deeply interested in the fashion story in the rear view mirror. After all, they, who have played such a huge role in guaranteeing that a woman is noticed in the crowd, certainly should do their part in making her departure a memorable event too. And they are doing that.

Milliners have not deserted the gorgeous front-view hat for the woman who needs to grab attention more than she needs to hang onto it. But the big concentration is now to the beautiful back-hat.

It sits on the crown of the head so far to the back that it sometimes can't be seen from the front. A formal chapeau may have curly coc feathers or whispy ostrich feathers or rich velvet bows that cascade down the hairline to the nape of the neck.

A sportive one draws on its back interest with neck scarves, tassles and feathers.

In any event the hat gives its wearer as much reason to be memorable as the lingering aroma of an exotic perfume.

Wives Meet With Post Thrift Shop

The semi-annual meeting of unit commanders' wives and thrift shop representatives was held recently at the thrift shop to ascertain the number of volunteer workers available for shop work in the coming months.

Mrs. Francis Crown, third vice president of the Officers Wives Club, thanked the women for their past support and described the welfare projects which benefited from the shop profits last year.

Mrs. Robert Whitt, thrift shop bookkeeper, reported that shop sales this summer have shown a marked increase over last summer. She added that the shop's financial status was excellent.

Mrs. R. L. Kampe, shop manager, said that the shop is one of the largest of its kind in the country and that everything possible is being done to make it attractive to the buyer and pleasant for volunteer workers.

It was announced that the shop will be open the first and third Saturday of each month from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. for the convenience of buyers.

CURING BUD DROP

(AP) — If buds drop from African violets, it's usually because there isn't enough moisture in the room. One way to remedy this is to set clay-potted plants in trays filled with pebbles and water. The pots should rest on stones above water level.

Daily Baths Not Necessary Doctor Says

(AP) A lot of kids are going to like Dr. Ralph V. Platou. The New Orleans pediatrician told the Tennessee Pediatric Society in Memphis that a bath a day is not only unnecessary but often harmful.

The doctor said, "Most of us are bathed too much. Today's strong soaps can remove many of the natural skin secretions which are beneficial. We should be bathed when we are dirty and only when needed. Otherwise our skin should be left alone."

Miss Nellie Boyd of the extension service says turkey meat can be served as a left-over and still be popular with the family. A good way to use left-over meat, Miss Boyd says, is to make turkey loaf salad, a meal in itself.

Left-over turkey can also be used in meat pies, prepared in a la king style.

"GUIDING LIGHT" CERA PLAQUE

Ceramics 'Guiding Light' Presented OWC Plaque

The "guiding light" of the Ceramics Workshop at Fort Benning, Mrs. Andrew Petroski, was presented a plaque in the form of a golden key at recent informal ceremonies.

Symbolizing the appreciation of the Officers Wives' Club which sponsors the workshop, the key was presented to Mrs. Petroski by Mrs. Stanley Davis, ceramics chairman, in recognition of eight years of volunteer service at the shop.

Since she first became interested in ceramics as a hobby in 1958, "Mrs. Pete" has devoted many hours each week to the shop where she is known as friend and adviser to both beginners and experts.

The Ceramics Workshop is one of the largest facilities of its kind in the community. Its many molds range in size from those for miniature fruit to one for a 24-inch Christmas tree. Use of the molds is free to all club members.

There are five kilns in operation daily. Members may fire three molds in the morning and three in the afternoon. Volunteer workers such as firers, loaders and ceramic teachers may fire as many as they want.

Ceramic classes, taught by volunteers, are conducted at the workshop. Studying three hours a week for five weeks, each student works directly under the supervision of an instructor.

The Ceramics Workshop is operated by a board of directors and a rules committee. The shop is open from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Friday. Membership cards are issued and must be shown to enter the shop or buy supplies.

Army Wives Weekly Recipe

MERINGUE CHANTILLY

8 egg whites, at room temperature
1-4 tsp salt
1-4 tsp cream of tartar
2 c. sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
2 c. heavy cream, whipped and sweetened to taste with powdered sugar

Lightly grease and flour two large baking sheets; line with waxed paper. Pencil a nine-inch circle twice on each sheet. Beat egg whites until frothy; add salt and cream of tartar, beating thoroughly. Add sugar, one tablespoon at a time, beating constantly. Add vanilla; beat until meringue is stiff and glossy, but not dry. Divide meringue into four parts, one for each circle. Fill pastry bag with meringue. Press out a pencil — thick strip of meringue around rim of each circle. Make a lattice by pressing four strips of meringue horizontally and four vertically across the circle, touching meringue rim.

Bake at 225 degrees until firm and dry, but still white, about 45 minutes. Cool circles a little; using broad spatula, remove from paper while warm. Divide whipped cream into two parts. Place one lattice on serving dish. Spread lightly with whipped cream. Top with second layer and repeat until all layers are used. Do not spread whipped cream on last layer. Fill pastry bag with remaining whipped cream. Pipe decorative swirls on sides and row of rosettes around top. Fill lattice cavities with large strawberries. Refrigerate until serving time, but serve as soon as possible after decorating with whipped cream. Yield: eight servings.

Meats Defrosted In Packaging Retain Quality

An extension home economist, Miss Nelle Thrash, suggests that meats should be defrosted with package intact.

It is best, she says, to defrost meat in the main part of the refrigerator away from the freezing unit. This type of thawing is slower than room temperature but it lessens the chance of juice and flavor loss as well as possible quality loss. The only time meat should be dipped in water to defrost is when it is to be cooked in water.

Miss Thrash says meats should be cooked as soon as defrosted. Defrosted meat should be cooked by the same methods recommended for meat that has never been frozen.

Former Air Force Officer Hopes to Get Job In Viet Nam as Army Lieutenant With 101st

A former Air Force officer at Fort Benning's Infantry School hopes to wing his way to Viet Nam in the near future with the 101st Airborne Division as an Army lieutenant.

The young officer, enrolled in an Infantry officers basic course, is learning his way around on the ground in such courses as map reading, bayonet techniques, and even how to get a stranded motor vehicle going again.

"When I graduate from the basic course in October, I'll begin jump training almost immediately," Little said.

"I came from the Air Force to the ground forces but I'm working from the ground up again. As soon as I qualify as a parachutist, I will join the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky. Eventually, I hope to get to Viet Nam," he added.

Little joined the Air Force after graduating from college with the full intention of getting through his military service and then returning to civilian life. However, he was sent to San Antonio, Texas. After being commissioned, his military education was continued with a security service officers course at Goodfellow Air Force Base, Texas.

"Throughout this time, I kept getting assignments to serve on Joint STRICOM (STRIKE Command) exercises," Lt. Little said. "This brought me in close touch with Infantry leaders and their men. On Desert Strike in California and Arizona, three exercises in the Indian River series in Florida, and in Gold Fire in Missouri, I began to think in terms of a military career for myself."

"Now if I just had a job like those Infantry leaders, I thought, I could have a very satisfying life," he continued.

The final decision came in November 1964 at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. Lt. Little said, "I was talking to some Army officers at the Air-Ground Operations School there when I made the decision to cast my lot with the ground forces."

Army Aviators Graduate From Pilot School Here

Eighteen Army aviators were graduated last week from the Caribou Pilot Transition School conducted by the 10th Aviation Group at Fort Benning.

This is the first class to complete the course since the 10th assumed the CV-2B Caribou-pilot training role from the U. S. Army Aviation School at Fort Rucker, Ala. The program, with new classes beginning every six weeks, will provide qualified Caribou pilots to fill the world-wide requirements of Army aviation, officials said.

All phases of training are presented by Maj. Robert F. Henley's 1st Aviation Company. The aviators receive 42 hours of flight training, including delivery of cargo by parachute, and 44 hours of ground school, which emphasizes operation and functioning of the various mechanical, hydraulic, and electrical systems of the Caribou aircraft.

The new Caribou pilots, destined for service in the Republic of Viet Nam, are: Majs. Richard G. Legener, Raymond Forehand and Dean R. Willwerth; Capts. Raymond M. Fisher, John C. Bahnsen Jr. and Charles E. Toomer; Lts. Ellis G. Rockswold and Robert E. Whipple; CWOs James E. Koenne, Donald C. Petre and John H. Martens Jr.; and WOs Herman Helgason, Louis W. Dorsey III, Kermit H. Selvig Jr., Ronald L. Steele, Stephen H. Berg, David D. Ellison and Carroll B. Fitzgerald.

Marines Wallop VC in Ambush

The action, which cost a Viet Cong patrol five dead, was a textbook ambush.

Members of "C" Reconnaissance Company, Third Battalion, Fourth Marine Regiment, set up the ambush in a row of bushes along a dirt road suspected to be trafficked by the VC. Weather conditions were ideal for an ambush. It was raining heavily and, as one Marine reported, "It was so dark we couldn't see more than a few feet."

The forward listening post was the first to spot the eight-man VC patrol. The VC passed within eight feet of two men on the post.

The men at the listening post let the VC pass and then opened on them with automatic weapons. They were joined by other squad members flanking the road.

Heavy Drinking Cancer Cause

Heavy drinking has been called a cause of mouth and throat cancer according to a study conducted at three New York hospitals.

The findings, as reported by the New York Times were based on studies of 598 cancer cases and an equal number of matched "control" cases without cancer.

The report added that the same results were found with regard to the use of tobacco—twice as much heavy smoking was found among the cancer cases as in the control cases.

The study, the Times reported, was conducted by Dr. Milton Terris, professor of preventive medicine

tram Weiner.

In the past year Fort Benning's military policemen have handled 1500 traffic violations per month, 1,000 traffic accidents, 800 criminal investigations, 12,200 incidents, and apprehended 933 AWOLs.

During the past year some 40,000 vehicles were registered on post and 175 traffic engineering surveys were made by military policemen.

Fort Benning's MP's have established a remedial driving program which has had a marked effect on the number of repetitions of traffic violations, according to observers.

The role of the MP stretches from that of the traditional watchdog who waits with speed traps, to apprehend speeding motorists endangering the lives of motorists and pedestrians to the dedicated young policeman who has over the years developed one of the finest working relationships with local community policemen.

Today's military policeman is skilled in the use of first aid, capable of handling the messiest traffic accident or escorting the most distinguished guest.

Under the command of Col. Houston W. Blackledge, provost marshal of Fort Benning, the military policemen here handle an area of responsibility which extends to 81 counties of Georgia, Florida, and Alabama.

Although youthful as far as a Corps of the United States Army is concerned, military police activities date back as early as January 1776 when a "Provost Martial" was appointed "to the army of the United Colonies" by "His Excellency, Gen. Washington."

Two years later, by Congressional resolution, a Provost Corps was established "to be mounted on horseback, and armed and accoutred as Light Dragoons." In September 1862, a Provost Marshal General was appointed in the War Department for the duration of the Civil War.

Primary Function

His primary function was the operation of the draft laws, but his subordinates stationed throughout the country were also charged with apprehending deserters, arresting disloyal persons, inquiring into and reporting treasonable practices, seizing stolen government property and detecting spies. This office and its supporting agencies was disbanded in 1866.

In 1917, a Provost Marshal General was again appointed in the War Department and another one appointed to the American Expeditionary Forces. In 1918, a Military Police Corps was activated in the AEF but dissolved, along with the Provost Marshal General Department shortly after the end of WWI.

Military Police duties between 1919 and 1941 were performed by individuals and units designated for that purpose at military installations.

In August 1941, a Provost Marshal General's Office and a Corps of Military Police were again established. Later, Sept. 26 was set as the official date of the Corps' birthday.

Committee OKs Insurance Plan

From The Army Times

WASHINGTON — A House subcommittee has approved a low-cost, commercially-operated, $10,000 life insurance protection program for members of the armed forces.

Action came following unexpected endorsement from the Administration. The House veterans insurance subcommittee turned down a bid from the Defense Department to extend group life coverage to current and future military retirees, claiming that to do so would bring premium costs for active duty members up too high.

The measure, as reported to the full House Veterans Affairs Committee for consideration, would offer insurance protection up to $10,000 at $2 monthly cost. The subcommittee bill would limit policies to amounts from $5000 to $10,000.

Favored Bill

William J. Driver, administrator of veterans affairs, told the subcommittee he favors a bill which would make low-cost insurance available not only to members of the armed forces serving in Viet Nam or other trouble areas but to all personnel now on duty or who may be called to service.

He said the Administration was against legislation passed by the Senate (S-2127) which would give free $10,000 government underwritten insurance to servicemen in hostile areas.

Instead, Driver gave Administration support to a House bill (HR-10873), introduced by subcommittee chairman Rep. Robert Everett (D., Tenn.) which would authorize VA to purchase group coverage from one or more life insurance companies for servicemen.

Coverage in the amount of $10,000 would be automatic to each member of the uniformed services on active duty. The service person could, however, decline to be insured or elect to have the amount of insurance reduced to the next lowest level of coverage possible—$5000 worth.

Premiums Deducted

A uniform premium would be deducted from the pay of those covered. The government would contribute any amount necessary to cover the excess cost due to extra hazards of service.

Although no firm premium rate could be established until the completion of actual negotiations with the insurance companies, VA estimates the cost might be as low as $2 per month for the full $10,000 coverage. Earlier estimates had put the monthly cost at $2.50 to $3 per man for each $10,000 policy.

The group life insurance protection would cease 120 days after separation from active duty. The Defense Department urged that servicemen be permitted to continue coverage under the active duty program upon retirement. The subcommittee turned this request down, noting that such action would prompt insurance companies to raise rates as more and more military people in the 50 to 60 age group come into the program.

Physical Condition

"The reason the insurance can be offered so low in the first place is that the general physical condition of military personnel is higher than any other group of insurers," Everett told Army Times.

While the group life insurance program for federal employees is considered a bargain, the Tennessee lawmaker said it "undoubtedly would be much lower if limited to the same age groups as the proposed military program."

Though not permitting men leaving uniform to stay in the program, the subcommittee bill would permit them to convert to a permanent plan of insurance written by participating commercial companies within 180 days of separation without a medical examination.

Driver said commercial insurance is available without restriction to servicemen who are performing "essentially peacetime duties." However, he said protection is not always available for the serviceman who has been alerted or is serving in a combat zone.

Single Men

Driver said the group program would extend insurance coverage to a group of servicemen — the single serviceman with no dependent parents — who is not covered under any existing survivor benefit programs administered by the government.

"In the event of their death, the program of dependency and indemnity compensation authorizes benefits for their parents only if they meet a specified needs test," he added.

No indemnity compensation benefits are available to parents if their annual income exceeds $2400 a year, according to Driver. "It is extremely difficult to devise a change within the framework of the existing (DIC) program which would provide benefits for non-dependent parents within the basic needs concept that has been incorporated in it."

STATUS SYMBOLS

Contest for Succession

Khrushchev Wins Power Struggle In USSR Following Stalin's Death

After Stalin's death in 1953, a new contest for succession began. By 1955, Khrushchev had emerged as the undisputed boss of Communist Russia. Among his main rivals was Lavrenti Beria, head of the secret police. Shortly after Stalin's death, Beria was arrested by his ministerial colleagues and executed a few months later.

The fate of other potential rivals — Malenkov, Kaganovich, Molotov, Zhukov — was less harsh. In 1957, Khrushchev removed them from their official positions and reassigned them to lesser jobs in remote places such as Siberia and Central Asia. This method of polite exile was a change from the Stalinist technique of indiscriminate murder. Perhaps Khrushchev sensed that the Russian people were tired of thirty years of Stalinist violence and terror.

Under Khrushchev, as under Stalin, the dictatorship of the Communist minority went on. (There are about ten million Communist party members out of a Soviet population of 225 million.) Again, as under Stalin, the Communist party itself was ruled by the Central Committee which was in turn ruled by a Presidium, a group of about a dozen men or so.

Bold in World Affairs

In world affairs, Khrushchev showed himself even bolder than Stalin. Whereas Stalin concentrated on building a satellite empire along the Soviet Union's borders, Khrushchev considered the whole world ripe for Communist penetration.

In 1957, the Soviet Union gained a foothold in the Near East, particularly in Egypt and Iraq. In Southeast Asia, Khrushchev supported Communist rebellions in Malaya, Burma, Viet Nam, and Laos. Among the newly independent African states below the Sahara, the Communists attempted at various times to establish centers of influence in Guinea, the Congo and the East African states. In the Western Hemisphere, Cuba under Fidel Castro became a Soviet Communist subversion in Latin America.

Encouraged Advances

Khrushchev's boldness in foreign affairs was encouraged by the Soviet Union's great advances in military strength, scientific development and economic growth. The high level of Soviet space technology and rocket power were revealed by the launching of a man-made satellite in 1957 and the orbiting of a piloted spaceship in 1961.

Growing Soviet economic strength was used by Khrushchev to build up a powerful military machine and to penetrate underdeveloped countries through trade and economic aid. Soviet engineers and other technical experts in underdeveloped countries served as a tool of Communist influence and penetration.

Since living standards in the Soviet Union are still very low, Russia could well use all available manpower and resources at home. But in the thinking of the Communist leadership, the goal of Communist expansion aboard still comes before the economic well-being of the Soviet people at home.

STRONG EFFORT . . . Khrushchev made a strong effort to win the support of leaders in the new nations of Africa and Asia. Here he is shown visiting President Sukarno of Indonesia in 1960.

Post Scouts Get 'Arrow'

Three Fort Benning boys recently became members of the Boy Scouts of America coveted Order of the Arrow society while three others advanced to higher degrees in the same organization.

The Order of the Arrow is a service organization divided into three degrees. The first is called "Ordeal Membership" and is extended to scouts who best exemplify the scout oath and law in their daily lives.

Fort Benning boys becoming "Ordeal" members were George Adamson, Carl Cain and Don Lanier. To qualify for this honor, the boys were subjected to rigid physical and mental tests which included going 24 hours without talking and receiving only limited food during the same period.

The second degree is called "Brotherhood Membership" and is extended to "Ordeal" members based on their contributions to the Order of the Arrow and scouting in general. A comprehensive oral examination is one of the requirements for this degree. Fort Benning boys becoming "Brotherhood" members were James Allen, Gary Foster and Bill Malueg.

Called "Vigil Membership", the third degree of the Order of the Arrow pays tribute to exceptional service.

Post Personnel Receive $1,900 For Suggestions

More than $1,900 was awarded to Fort Benning military and civilian personnel during ceremonies at The Infantry Center last week for suggestions adopted by the Army, saving the government an estimated $35,546.

The suggestions brought $1,915 to 62 persons participating in the post's Incentive Awards Program. In addition 37 people were awarded letters of appreciation and a total of $3,935 for outstanding job performances. Gift awards were also presented to some military personnel.

The Incentive Awards Program is a means to give government employes and military personnel an incentive to offer suggestions to raise the quality of production.

The Incentive Awards Committee is working towards a goal of seven per cent of the work force at Fort Benning offering suggestions.

AUSA Delegates Pioneer At Atlanta Conference

Delegates to a conference of Third Region Association of the U. S. Army (AUSA) chapters last week were cast in the role of "guinea pigs" as they met for a two-day workshop at Third Army Headquarters in Atlanta.

In his opening remarks, Maj. Gen. Paul A. Gavan (USA,ret) director of regional affairs for the national AUSA headquarters, said the conference could be considered as a "pilot" for similar meetings within the other regions if it proved to be mutually beneficial.

Third Army commander, Lt. Gen. Louis W. Truman, officially welcomed the conferees Thursday afternoon and met them again socially that evening prior to a dinner in the Fort McPherson Main Officers Open Mess. Col. Tyron E. Tisdale, secretary of The Infantry School, was guest speaker after the banquet with an illustrated talk on Viet Nam.

Oscar L. Betts Jr., Third Region president and also president of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter, presided over the two-day conference. Presentations were made by Gen. Gavan and other national officers including Col. Arthur Symons (USA, ret.), secretary; Capt. Arthur Sowell, USAR, treasurer and Col. William Lake (USA, ret.) membership director. Ernie Massei, from the board of trustees, was also present.

Airborne Units Trimmed by Army

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Army has "slimmed" its 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions for easier airlifting by eliminating some heavy equipment and reducing each division's personnel strength from 14,000 to around 13,000.

The 101st is stationed at Ft. Campbell, Ky., and the 82nd at Ft. Bragg, N. C. Both divisions have elements overseas with "All American" 82nd troopers in the Dominican Republic and 101st "Screaming Eagles" in the Republic of Viet Nam.

Money for Dependents' Travel to Come Faster

From The Army Times

WASHINGTON — One of the financial problems facing soldiers ordered overseas without their families will be eased by a new Army policy announced in DA Message 729084.

Under the new rule, payment for travel of officers and enlisted men's dependents fo their new stateside homes, will be made upon completion of the dependents' travel and before the effective date of the soldier's orders.

For many soldiers this will eliminate months - long delays in reimbursement for their cash outlay and could reduce the drain on some family budgets from interest on small loans.

Previously, the travel payment couldn't be made until after the effective date of the individual's orders.

The new provision applies only to travel of dependents when members are under orders assigning them to overseas stations where concurrent travel of dependents is not authorized.

Lack of adequate housing at the oversea stations has often been the cause of such orders in the past, but sudden deployments to trouble spots such as Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic have imposed these conditions on many thousands more.

Although the new policy came too late to benefit many soldiers in the recent unit movements, the speedier payments will help those in the replacement stream from now on.

Before the change, a soldier received his oversea orders a couple of months or more ahead of their effective date and immediately faced a dilemma. He could:

Start at once helping his family move off-post to their new home, pay the travel expenses and tighten the family budget to await reimbursement months later.

Wait until the oversea transfer date was close, get an advance of basic pay and leave the dependents to complete the move by themselves (or, if possible, wrangle some leave to help them).

The financial difficulties probably were "solved" in some cases by soldiers securing loans — which of course added interest payments to their other budget problems.

Now, under the new payment rules, the family may have to squeeze their budget temporarily to pay for a move, but Uncle Sam will pay them back at once instead of months later.

More Credit Unions Asked by Pentagon

From the Army Times

WASHINGTON — As the first bite in its battle against loan sharks who fleece military men, the Defense Department has issued a directive requiring commanders at every post to help establish credit unions for men of all ranks.

There are about 400 credit unions used by the services now and all are controlled by federal law. Credit unions are organizations in which a group of people combine their savings for use as loans to each other. Members who need loans are able to get them with little or no collateral at reasonable interest rates. Officials say the directive should encourage the establishment of more credit unions.

The Pentagon also expects to issue still another directive which will put restrictions on commercial lenders who deal with the military.

Resumed Hearings

Meanwhile, Congressmen resumed the Capitol Hill hearings which led to the Pentagon's credit union directive. Chairman Wright Patman (D., Tex.) of the House Banking Committee said he was "happy to report" that the Pentagon now "pays particular attention to the needs of the new and young soldier."

But, he added, "A strong follow-through on the directive by military commanders and credit unions will go a long way toward curbing the abuses of the serviceman's trust." Patman said he is certain the directive is a strong one, "particularly since I have been informed that members of the finance, trade associations have complained to the Department of Defense about its issuance."

Patman said he was sorry the directive did not extend to oversea bases, leaving "the overseas based serviceman at the mercy of the loan sharks."

Difficult Loans

Many soldiers have found it difficult to get loans because of the transient nature of military life. This has been particularly true of the lower ranking enlisted men.

The new directive makes it mandatory that the credit unions serve all ranks of military men including those in E-1, E-2 and E-3. Most commercial lenders draw the line below noncom and petty officer grades.

The credit unions on military posts will be charged with counseling in family financial planning and in analyzing consumer credit problems, including the true costs of installment buying. They are also, the directive said, to help combat "usury or the patronage of lenders who charge exorbitant rates of interest."

The commanders will provide office space when possible and permit transaction of credit union business during duty hours if there is no interference with the performance of official duties. Credit unions will also be afforded advertising space in appropriate publications, the directive says, and the use of bulletin boards for promotional or information purposes.

Proven Practices

The directive said that "in accordance with proven credit union practices, lending policies should be as liberal as posible and still be consistent with the interests of the credit union and the individual member.

Specific reference was made concerning guidance to be afforded military members in pay grades E-1, E-2 and E-3 in securing a loan for budgetary purposes.

The new policy points out that, without charge, skilled counseling should be available to all members.

Emphasis was placed on particular attention to the youthful and inexperienced serviceman and young married families. Such guidance should help personnel solve money problems and budget effectively. This assistance and instruction should continue, the directive explains, until financial problems can be solved without guidance.

The directive notes, "To be avoided are unnecessarily restrictive, unreasonable or out-of-date rules on the size of loans, type and amount of security, or waiting periods before loan eligibility can be granted."

To pay off a loan, military personnel are encouraged to use the service allotment privilege.

The directive points out that credit unions used by DOD military and civilian personnel "are to be recognized and assisted at all echelons as important moral and welfare resources."

Aims of Federal credit unions include "combating usury or the patronage of lenders who charge exorbitant rates of interest."

A feature of the credit union is a regular savings plan that pays dividends on purchased shares.

Afford EM Credit Aid Says DOD

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Special financial assistance for lower-ranking enlisted men is one of the main provisions in a new directive on credit unions serving Department of Defense personnel.

Signed by Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus Vance, DOD Directive 1000.9 encourages the operation of one credit union at each installation for use by military and civilian personnel.

In accordance with accepted practices, the directive explains, lending policies should be as liberal as possible and still be consistent with the interests of the credit union and the individual member.

Penetration Of Antarctic

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Deep Freeze 66, the 11th consecutive assault on Antarctica, is scheduled to get underway Oct. 1, 1965.

The first penetration into the Antarctic will mean the end of seven months of isolation for 289 U. S. military and scientific personnel who "wintered over" in Deep Freeze 65.

Supporting the U. S. Navy in this year's extension of the long range program of scientific probing are units of the Coast Guard, Military Sea Transportation Service (MSTS), the Military Air Transport Service (MATS) and personnel assigned to the Army, Marine Corps, Royal New Zealand Navy.

Over 3,000 men, 30 aircraft and 11 ships will be involved in the operations.

Included among projects are the cobstruction of a temporary station on the remote Polar Plateau where seven scientists and four sailors will winter over and a continuation of the 5,000 - mile South Pole - Queen Maud Land Traverse begun last year.

Army Resources Used Extensively To Aid Hurricane Betsy Victims

From The Army Times

NEW ORLEANS, La. — Working closely with the office of Emergency Planning and the Red Cross, the Army last week rushed urgently needed relief supplies to thousands of victims of Hurricane Betsy, reportedly the worst storm ever to hit New Orleans.

Supervising Army relief operations were Lt. Gen. Robert W. Colglazier Jr., Fourth Army CG, and Maj. Gen. Kelsie L. Reaves, Fort Polk, La., CG, who was placed in command of the nearly 1000 troops sent into the disaster area from Fort Polk, Fort Sill, Okla., and Forts Hood and Sam Houston, Tex.

Large forces of Louisiana National Guard troops also were ordered to the scene.

From Fort Polk, the Army provided 25,000 rations (three meals to a ration), 3000 mattresses, 12,000 sheets, a medical aid team and an engineer water purification system as well as water trucks, mess teams, portable shower units and helicopters.

Shipped from Fort Sam Houston were 12,000 rations, 600 litters, 2000 cots and mattresses and 3400 blankets.

About 1200 men from the 1st and 2nd Armor Divisions at Fort Hood moved into the disaster area to assist in supplying and serving food to victims of Betsy.

The Red Cross said the Army had also provided 28 field kitchens for use in ARC shelters which were still housing more than 25,000 refugees four days after the storm hit.

Fourth Army Headquarters at Fort Sam Houston said several hundred Army vehicles, including trucks, trailers, ambulances and amphibious vehicles, had been deployed to the disaster area.

The Red Cross said it would pick up the bill for troop maintenance and transportation.

Meanwhile, Army divers from Forts Belvoir and Eustis, Va., joined with other military and Corps of Engineers contract divers in an effort to locate and recover a sunken Mississippi River barge carrying 600 tons of potentially deadly chlorine. The barge was believed to have gone down near Baton Rouge, La.

In the wake of Betsy, the Corps of Engineers opened emergency offices along the lower Mississippi to aid in recovery efforts.

The 134th Aviation Company last week aided efforts to locate a sunken barge filled with deadly liquid chlorine which had disappeared on the Mississippi River during Hurricane Betsy.

The unit was called upon to haul containers of red dye to U. S. Geological officials in Baton Rouge, La. The dye was dumped in the river for time-distance studies in an effort to locate the barge.

In addition a 134th "Carlbou" air lifted generators from Baltimore to the Louisiana capital to power sonar equipment utilized in the massive search operation.

The barge was later located with the chlorine containers intact, thus bringing to a close another chapter in the destruction and havoc caused by Hurricane Betsy.

Choir Seeks Soldiers As Members

The Fort Benning Soldier Chorus is being activated for the entertainment, recreation and morale of Fort Benning personnel—to be used at command and official functions.

It will be under the direction of the USAIC bandmaster and the choral director.

All male enlisted personnel in grade E-2 or higher are eligible to apply for membership in this chorus, said the announcement from Special Services.

Final acceptance of applicants will be based on an interview and audition, and subsequent approval of the choral director and USAIC bandmaster, spokesmen said.

It was requested that all applicants interested in joining the Fort Benning Soldiers' Chorus contact Special Services' entertainment section at 545-5641.

Those selected will be assigned special duty and attached to the USAIC band for duty, rations and quarters according to Special Services officials.

Prospective members who have background in music or choral activities through such means as school, church or community projects are requested to make application.

Personnel with professional musical background are urged to apply according to spokesmen for Special Services.

The last time there was an official Infantry Center chorus group was two years ago, officials said.

Willie Mays Hits 500th Home Run

(AP) — Willie Mays had only one hit last week against the Houston Astros but it was a 410 foot blast into baseball history. It was Willie's 500th major league home run and 47th of the season. Only four other players have hit more than 500 career homers — Mel Ott, Jimmy Foxx, Ted Williams and of course, the king of them all, Babe Ruth, who had 714. Willie, who is 34, says:

"I'll have to average 40 a year to catch up to that guy Ruth. I don't think I can do it."

CRUISING DOWN THE RIVER . . . An experimental PATA (Plenum Air-Tread Amphibian) makes its preliminary trial runs on the Appomattox River in Virginia. PATA is designed as a cross-country troop carrier. It is currently undergoing military potential and engineer design tests by the General Equipment Test Activity at Fort Lee, Va. Performance and durability tests in swampy terrain and on inland waterways similar to those found in Viet Nam will be conducted in Louisiana.

Sept and Oct Time for Seeding Winter Lawns

(AP) The next two months will be the time for Georgia homeowners to seed lawns for a green winter cover.

Extension landscape specialist T. G. Williams says it's always best to get the seed in the ground before it gets cold.

A grass used in combination with summer grasses is winter rye. Rye will slow down the spring growth of Bermuda but won't seriously damage it if the lawn is kept mowed. Rye dies out as the weather gets hot.

Army Rejects Pilot Idea For Enlisted

From The Army Times

WASHINGTON—There's no place in the Army for enlisted pilots. That's the verdict of a just completed review of Army aviation manpower. Officers on the Pentagon study group felt that a switch to enlisted pilots would only complicate assignment problems.

They said too that enlisted aviators would have to hold higher enlisted grades. The officials said that they could foresee instances where an enlisted aviator in his early twenties would hold E-7 or E-8 stripes.

The effect on morale of ground soldiers who had been in the Army for many years and had not attained E-7 or E-8 rank would be disastrous.

In addition, they said that it was possible that situations would arise in the field where enlisted pilots would be performing aviation jobs normally done by officers.

This, they felt would be a unsatisfactory condition.

Entering their deliberations too, it was said, was the success the warrant officer aviator program is achieving. It is progressing better than anticipated according to the Pentagon.

Instead of going to enlisted pilots the Army will move to overcome a now crucial aviator shortage by encouraging more enlisted men to seek warrant officer training.

With the approval of more than 5000 additional WO pilot positions by Defense Secretary Mc Namara these opportunities are wide open.

Enlisted men overseas filling WO aviator applications may be in for a break because of the need for pilots.

Normally, a soldier serving in a long tour area would have to complete more than half of his assignment before being ordered back to the states for training.

Men in short tour areas normally have been made to finish the full 12-month tour before going back to CONUS for training.

The Army has not waived these requirements completely but personnel officers described themselves as "flexible" on the matter.

Soldiers seeking entry into the warrant aviator program would be wise to make a move while standards are somewhat relaxed (but by no means low).

With a crash situation prevailing, soldiers who pass all physical and mental tests are in a better position for selection.

There are some 2400 WO pilots in the Army today compared to about 6800 commissioned fliers.

With the build-up, part of the Army increase of more than 230,000 men for Viet Nam, the WO - commissioned relationship will move to about a 50-50 relationship.

Vance Urges Revamping Of Reserve

SEA ISLAND, Ga. (AFPS) — Augmenting the Army with a division and three independent brigades does not eliminate the immediate need for realigning Reserve and Guard forces, according to Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus R. Vance.

The reorganization, Secretary Vance noted, would revamp the Reserve structure so that it would consist exclusively of units required to meet war contingency plans.

He said Army Secretary Stanley Resor and Army Chief of Staff General Harold K. Johnson have again reviewed the proposed reorganization, recommending the plan be implemented as designed, "to increase useable forces and improve their readiness."

Secretary Vance also briefed the Governors on recent build-up decisions concerning the Republic of Viet Nam.

CAPITOL CORNERSTONE

If You're Planning a Winter Vacation--Don't Forget Home

If you're planning a winter vacation — and more families do these days — devote sometime to thinking about battening your house against trouble while you're away.

Many cities require property owners to keep their sidewalks free of snow and ice, at the risk of a summons — even though the sidewalks may belong to the city itself. The homeowner also may be subject to suit should a passerby slip on an icy sidewalk and suffer an injury.

A check should be made of the homeowner's insurance policy to make sure coverage applies in event the man or boy hired doesn't show up to do the job.

Check to make certain all outdoor water faucets are secured for winter. The valves inside should be securely turned off and the outside faucets left wide open to prevent bursted water pipes.

Even though you won't be home to enjoy the winter comfort your furnace provides, many of your treasured possessions will. Leave the furnace thermostat turned up to about 60, again to prevent freezing water pipes and to keep damp cold from permeating the furniture.

The refrigerator also should be left running to avoid an accumulation of food smells, which can happen even in an empty refrigerator not scoured properly, and to keep the motor and freezing apparatus from developing hugs through idleness.

Winter thunderstorms may be rare but its still a good idea to pull the plugs and unfasten the antenna of your television and radio sets so a lightning bolt won't destroy your set.

And, finally, you look to your automobile. If you have no garage, arrange to store your car. Leaving it on the streets for two or three weeks in wintry weather without care can damage both its finish and the engine.

Marines Find Canteen Of World War II GI

CHULAI, South Viet Nam, (UPI) — A battered United States Army canteen of World War II vintage is the centerpiece of a mystery turned up here by American Marines.

The dirt-encrusted water container was found in July by men of the Second Battalion, Fourth Marine Regiment, while they were stretching barbed wire around the Chulai command post.

First Lieut. Isaac Ayala of San Antonio, Tex., cleaned up the canteen and found the inscription "John Kenneth George, Sergeant, U. S. Army," scratched on the metal. Other markings gave Sergeant George's unit, indicating he had become a prisoner of the Japanese when Corregidor fell in 1942.

Lt. Ayala wrote to the Department of the Army in Washington for information on Sgt. George. Recently, he received a photostat of a letter sent by the department in June, 1945, to the sergeant's father in San Dimas, Calif.

The letter said that Sgt. George was presumed to have been killed with 1,765 other captured Americans when a Japanese prison ship was sunk by a submarine in October, 1944. All but nine prisoners were reported dead by the Japanese.

The Japanese ship, according to the letter, was sunk in the South China Sea 200 miles off the China mainland and five American prisoners presumably reached land in a small boat. Four others were recaptured later. Their names were not given.

One theory is that the canteen may have floated ashore in Viet Nam when the ship went down and was picked up and later discarded inland at Chulai.

Another possibility is that one of the five escaped prisoners may have retrieved the canteen from the water and carried it to Viet Nam.

Lt. Ayala is trying to locate Sgt. George's father at the California address.

LAST RANGER SHOT

The last of the Ranger series will soon be sent by NASA to take pictures of a new area of the moon not covered by its predecessors. NASA will then have about 15,000 pictures to study so our astronauts who head for the moon will know what to expect.

and soldiers.

According to present plans, one of the three training brigades and the reception center will be at Harmony Church. The training center headquarters and two other training brigades will be quartered at Sand Hill.

The basic training period consists of an eight-week course in such military fundamentals as drill, discipline, tactics, familiarization and care of individual weapons. Soldiers completing the course are assigned to units for further individual training or to service schools for training in military specialties.

GETTING READY... For weeks now soldiers have been preparing barracks (above) for the October 4 influx of recruits. In center, uniforms at the issue point are sorted and racked according to sizes. Clothing is being racked as fast as the shelves are being built. Under the hammer and paint brushes (below), the barracks and office buildings are being remodeled and renovated against the nearing deadline when the troops arrive.

In a training company, each training platoon has three drill sergeants, permitting more personal contact between trainees and trainer.

Drill sergeants are noted by the fact that they gain the prestige of being allowed to wear the World War I "campaign hat" and a crest on the right breast pocket with the motto of the training centers: "This We'll Defend."

Gen. Gavalas Speaks

Katz Tops Class at OCS Graduation Ceremonies

Second Lt. Darrell W. Katz was named the distinguished and honor graduate of The Infantry School's officer candidate class No. 8 at graduation exercises in Marshall Auditorium last week.

Katz was also cited as the distinguished leadership graduate of the class.

Guest speaker for the graduation ceremony was Brig. Gen. Leonidas Gavalas, deputy chief of staff for Personnel, U. S. Continental Army Command, Ft. Monroe, Va., whose own son was among the 144 graduates.

Gen. Gavalas told the graduating class "You have reached one of the major milestones of your lives, you have been catapulted into responsibility. Not only must you be soldiers first and foremost, you must be many other things as well."

Astute Managers

He continued by telling them they must be "skilled technicians to master the complex weapons and equipment of our modern Army, astute and discerning managers, able to derive the most from the resources for which you will be responsible, diplomats, because you will spend much of your service with allied forces in foreign countries, and perhaps linguists as well.

"You must become generalists while remaining specialists, able to discharge responsibilities, assignment and missions often strange to your professional background."

He added, "I talk about responsibilities. The reason is simple. Officers and responsibilities are inseparable! And gentleman, your reponsibilities are yours! You cannot avoid them and you must never shirk them. The greatest key to success for a military officer is the recognition and discharge of his responsibilities."

Gen. Gavalas also said, "It is my privilege to welcome your class to the ranks of officers, and so gentlemen, welcome! Welcome to hardship, to sacrifice, to long hours of exacting, demanding and sometimes frustrating work. Welcome to a difficult profession which will give you no returns in the form of high pay or quick recognition. Welcome to occassional danger and heartache.

"Welcome also to challenge, to opportunity, to responsibility, and welcome to satisfactions that your civilian contemporaries will never know."

Gen. Gavalas was introduced by Brig. Gen. George I. Forsythe, assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

Commissions Son

Besides being honored as guest speaker, Gen. Gavalas also had the honor of seeing his son, George, graduate and of pinning on his son's new second lieutenant bars.

Lt. Katz, as the distinguished honor graduate of the class, received a letter of academic achievement signed by Gen. Forsythe, an engraved plaque from the Association of The U. S. Army and an engraved silver bowl from the members of the 5th Student Battalion.

As distinguished leadership graduate he received a one-year membership from the Association of the U.S. Army and an engraved "Follow Me" statuette from the members of the 5th Student Battalion.

TOP GRADUATE . . . Darrell W. Katz, right, distinguished graduate of The Infantry School's officer candidate class No. 8 which completed 23 weeks of training Sept. 15, is presented an Association of the U. S. Army plaque. Making the presentation is Brig. Gen. Leonidas Gavalas, deputy chief of staff for personnel, U. S. Continental Army Command, who spoke to the 144 new second lieutenants.

Unit Patches OK For RVN Vets

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Army personnel returning from the Republic of Viet Nam may wear their unit organizational patch on the right shoulder sleeve of their uniform.

This policy has traditionally been followed by the Army to strengthen esprit de corps and to identify an individual with his overseas service during times of hostility.

Radio Preacher To Speak Here

Dr. Aswald Hoffman of St. Louis, Mo., preacher for the radio program, "The Lutheran Hour," will speak at Fort Benning's Infantry Center Chapel at 8 p.m. tomorrow.

The service will be informal and will provide an opportunity for Lutheran families on post to meet the prominent clergyman, organizers said.

Dr. Hoffman is expected to arrive in Columbus tomorrow and remain through Monday (Sept. 27). He will be guest speaker at a Lutheran rally at 4 p.m. Sunday at the Municipal Auditorium. The minister will be the guest of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer during his three-day visit to Columbus.

Gen York To Address PTA Meet

Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, Infantry Center commander, will be guest speaker at the first meeting of the Fort Benning PTA for the 1965-1966 school year at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 28, in Marshall Auditorium.

Early Pay Bill by Senate

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Senate has cleared a bill that would allow the services to pay uniformed personnel as much as three days in advance of their regular pay date.

Service officials sometimes advance payday but are held liable for collecting money advanced to persons who die before earning the pay. Under the bill, beneficiaries are not required to reimburse the government.

The new authorization would provide all - service uniformity, an official said, and help personnel collect their pay without waiting a day later when the payday falls on a weekend or holiday.

An example of the three day maximum advance is a pay date falling on a legal Monday holiday. The bill would authorize payment the preceding Friday instead of the date after the holiday.

Also, Saturday and Sunday paydays could be held on the preceding Friday. Should Friday be a legal holiday, pay could be received on Thursday.

The policy would apply to both check and cash payments.

McNamara Okays Program Using Civilians in Non-Essential Jobs

A manpower reapportionment program involving 75,000 military assignments was announced last week by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to speed up and reduce the cost of the nation's military buildup.

Initial phase of the program involves hiring 60,000 civilians during 1966 to do civilian type jobs now being done by 75,000 military officers and enlisted men in non-combat support assignments.

Infantry Center G-1 personnel officials said this week they had as yet received "no information as to how it would be applied locally."

They added information should soon be forthcoming.

"This program," the Secretary said, "will not only permit acceleration of our buildup of military power; it will enable us to decrease the number of draftees who would otherwise be required. It will also allow a considerable reduction in the number of military people who will have their tours of duty extended involuntarily."

The positions noted by Secretary McNamara where civilians can substitute for military personnel include administration and clerical, supply and maintenance, medical, food service; and transportation. Even though some overseas positions are involved, the bulk will be in this country, the secretary said.

Reduce Tours

Secretary McNamara specifically noted that the program would result in a reduction of some several thousand involuntary tours of Navy personnel. Also, some overseas tours could be reduced under normal circumstances.

The Secretary emphasized, "The new program was in keeping with President Johnson's desires that, in the present crisis, all military personnel should be assigned to duties for which there is a direct military requirement, and that there should be no waste or misapplication of America's manpower."

A manpower utilization board is being established to oversee the initial phase of the program and develop plans for extending it beyond 1966, the Secretary said. The board will be headed by the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Manpower) and include the undersecretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Ford Motors Has Film Tips On Used Cars

Tips in a new motion picture released by Ford Motor Co. will help potential buyers get the most value for their money when purchasing a used car.

The film, "So You Want to Buy a Good Used Car," portrays a teenager buying his first car. In 15 minutes, the youth and the color film demonstrate how a step-by-step examination on a dealer's lot will help determine the general condition and operational capabilities of the car. Many of the techniques shown are used by professional appraisers in evaluating the worth of a used car.

The film is available to any groups who wish to write for it according to the Ford Film Library in New York.

With information learned from a driver - education course at school, the youth uses a "BELTS" test for checking important safety factors — "B" for brakes, "E" for exhaust, "L" for lighting "T" for tires and "S" for steering mechanism.

The film points out that many persons regularly buy a year-old-vehicle because it offers more accessories and other equipment at lesser cost.

Four important reminders for potential used car buyers also are included in the film: (1) select a dependable dealer before choosing the car, (2) reassure yourself that the car is in good physical condition, (3) make the BELTS test and (4) examine the car on the lot and on the road.

The film is available on a free loan basis from the Ford Film Library, 16 East 52d St., New York, N.Y. "So You Want to Buy a Good Used Car" is one of more than 30 Ford film titles ranging from safe driving to vacation subjects.

Entertainment Picture Brightening In Viet Nam--GIs Get More Shows

From the Army Times

WASHINGTON — The entertainment picture for U. S. troops in Viet Nam is going to get better.

The number of prints of movies sent to the war zone is going to be increased to five times the number distributed a year ago and the number of live USO shows is going to be doubled. In addition, films of U.S. television programs will continue to be shown.

A year ago, when there were fewer than 20,000 men in Viet Nam, only one print of each movie was sent to the area and it was at the end of the film pipeline for the Far East.

Men serving there complained that most of the pictures were old. Some even reported having seen the pictures on TV before they came to Viet Nam.

Then the Army and Air Force Motion Picture Service began increasing the number of prints to the present four. Now it will go up to five and officials say despite the manpower buildup the time a film is in the circuit will probably not be more than six months.

It used to take nearly two years for one film to make the circuit which meant that some men were seeing pictures at least two years old.

Films are shown five nights a week and they are free although there is one theater, at Tan Son Nhut airfield, which charges for admission. Its films are the commercial-type 35mm while the free shows are on the smaller 16-mm films.

The USO shows will jump from one troupe a month to two with a minimum of 14 to 16 performing days for each show. Starting this month the Armed Forces Professional Entertainment Branch of the Army Adjutant General's Office, in cooperation with the USO, will send 22 to 28 entertainment units a year to South Viet Nam.

The Brothers Four are the first celebrities to perform in Viet Nam under the stepped-up program. Connie Stevens and comedienne Martha Raye will also travel to the war zone. Miss Raye was there in June and will be back in October.

Country music star Roy Acuff will be in Viet Nam at Christmas time. Bob Hope is hoping to be able to return during the Christmas season.

When he was eight years old, Gary Hylton got his first guitar. It had no strings, no bridge and no tuning keys. At first he repaired it with off - key chords. Later he set the instrument straight and today Sp4 Hylton swings with some of the biggest country and western groups in the U.S.

Hylton was recently assigned to Company C, 1st Battalion (Provisional), 2nd Control Command.

He has played on the "Grand Old Opry" with stars such as Roy Acuff, Stony Cooper, June Carter and "String Bean" and the Country Music Makers starring Bonnie Lou and Buster Moore.

Hylton has also played with a radio and television country and western band known as "The Diamonds" in his hometown of Johnson City, Tenn.

While stationed in Korea, Hylton formed a group called "The Country Cut-Ups" which won second place in the Eighth Army Entertainmen contest in August 1964.

Hylton plans to return to the "Diamonds" for a musical career after his military service.

The Aftermath

BY DICK MINNIG

LAST MONTH CLEVELAND newspaper man Robert Manry sailed across 3,200 miles of Atlantic Ocean in a 13 and one half foot boat. Hundreds of climbers have been killed or maimed in an attempt to scale Mount Everest's 29,028 feet. Bodies are slamming into each other on football fields across the U. S. The big question is why. What is the reason behind the thousands of games and sports from ice hockey to monopoly? Why have men put their inventiveness to devising them and their energy to playing them? them.

From the time we are old enough to move we play. As we grow older we begin to play with others and the rules of the game grow more sophisticated. It is rare to find a man who doesn't play, whether it is in a Saturday night poker game, climbing a mountain or doing a crossword puzzle on the morning bus.

Men will make anything into a game and for any occasion. The ancient Sicilians devised one called Cottabus which was popular at drinking parties all over Greece. Reclining at the feast, men attempted to throw the remains of their wine from their cups into a metal bowl without spilling a drop in the process and trying to make a distinct splashing sound on impact.

SOME HAVE EXPLAINED sports and games by saying they are the product of surplus energy. Others have said they are a universal recreation. Some psychologists believe play is the result of a desire to excell. It is true that sports are a recreation but we could hardly say a man risks his life on an icy mountain or behind the steering wheel of a racing car only for fun or that it is the only way to release surplus energy. The desire to be a winner comes much closer to explaining the motive behind play. Most men want to excell and sports provide a ready medium for proof of excellence by defeat or victory.

A. A. Brill, an American associate of Sigmund Freud, said all games and sports spring from an "aggressive component" which is a primary weapon in the battle for survival. And although the conditions of life have changed since man lived in caves, this instinct must be exercised.

What this all means is that we possess a drive or physical-mental mechanism which aids us in our battle with natural dangers. It gave our ancestors the aggressiveness to attack and smash the bear that was harrassing their cave homes. Today, under normal conditions, most natural dangers are removed. But we still possess our aggressive instinct which must be channeled into peaceful, acceptable behavior. We can't smack our neighbor on the head when we are feeling aggressive. Some people kick chairs or are just ornery but the best outlet for our combatative spirit is in sports and games.

CHESS AND FOOTBALL are mock combats; in poker we battle each other for the pot; the swimmer fights against the water and fellow swimmers; the mountain climber battles sheer faces of rock and some of us battle the impersonal creator of a double crostic. We fight to win. Even if we lose there has been the struggle.

And life without struggle is monotonous. I am reminded of a story that was once telecast on "Twilight Zone". It concerned a gambler who died and went to a place where he was given everything he ever wanted and without the slightest effort on his part. Naturally he concluded that he was in heaven. He drove a big Cadillac and every game he played he inevitably won. He didn't have to struggle for a thing. Eventually, bored and frustrated to distraction he begged to be sent to hell. The guardians of the place told him he was in hell.

Before his voyage Manry told his wife, "There is a time when one must decide to risk everything to fullfill one's dream or sit for the rest of one's life in the backyard." Ulysses-like, Manry left the backyard for a 78-day struggle

Touch Football Off to Slow Start; Only Two Major Units Begin Play

Fort Benning's company-level touch football season plodded off to a slow start last week with only two of the post's major units taking part in the play. A Special Services spokesman attributed the starting delay to recent personnel shortages and troop movements on post.

Only five games were played last week at Gowdy Field which was recently altered to accommodate this year's football competition.

With six weeks remaining until the post playoffs begin at Gowdy on November 2, only the Infantry Center Troop Command and the 428th Medical Battalion have begun their company - level competition. All other major units have so far remained inactive.

In play last week Co B, 1st Battalion, CTC chalked up its first win by beating Co A, 1st Battalion, 20 to 0.

Headquarters and Headquarters Company, CTC edged the 586th Engineers, 1 to 0. Both teams were scoreless at the end of playing time and Headquarters Company was awarded the victory on the strength of deeper penetration. The Engineers are the defending post and Third Army champs.

Companies within the 428th Medical Battalion league played three games last week with the 690th Ambulance Company coming out on top with a two win, no loss record. Martin Army Hospital recorded one win, one loss and the 95th Evacuation Hospital and 50th Medical Company took one loss each.

The 197th Infantry Brigade will probably not begin its competition until next week according to a brigade spokesman. The unit's recent move to its new Kelley Hill location has hampered its start of the season.

According to a Student Brigade athletic spokesman, the brigade will not participate in play at Gowdy and Doughboy fields because of the lack of organized teams. Instead TSB will hold its own double elimination tournament to choose representatives for the post playoffs. The TSB tourney is slated to begin October 22.

Competition at the 10th Aviation Group is expected to get underway next week. Starting dates for the organization had to be pushed back because of the reorganization of units within the group.

Lawson Aviation Command will not have any organized touch football competition this season.

The USAIC Special Services section reports that no definite word has been received on the Third Army touch football competitions.

Next week three major units are slated to play. On Monday the 10th Aviation Group will hold competition at Gowdy field from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. The 428th Medical Bn. will play from 7 to 10 p.m. at Doughboy Stadium.

On Tuesday CTC teams will meet at Gowdy Field from 6:30 to 10:00 p.m. Wednesday the 10th Aviation Group will play at Gowdy from 6:30 to 10 p.m. and 428th teams will meet at Doughboy from 7 to 10 p.m.

On Thursday CTC teams will play from 6:30 to 10 p.m. at Gowdy. No games are scheduled for Friday.

Soccer New Addition To Army Sports Slate

From the Army Times
BY GEORGE MARKER

WASHINGTON — Army has finally decided to recognize soccer as a valuable addition to the Army sports program, especially since it has long been entrenched as the world's most popular sport.

Field commanders in the states and overseas last week were directed by Army Circular 28-13 to submit nominations to The Adjutant General by Dec. 3, 1965 of candidates for an official Army team.

Just what will happen when Army gets these names is still anyone's guess. The only "certain" competition now available to military booters is the annual CISM tourney; other possibles are the 1967 Pan-American Games and the 1968 Olympics.

Seventh Army

There is little doubt that the impetus for an armed forces soccer team came from the Seventh Army where eight Army division squads have kept the sport alive. Then a raw - boned Yorkshireman, Cyril Rutter, came on the scene to coach the U. S. Armed Forces CISM soccer team and the American image suddenly brightened.

Competing against such soccer-oriented countries as Greece, Turkey, Morocco and Egypt, the U. S. played well before losing such heartbreakers as 3-1, 2-0, 2-1, and 3-1. In 1962, an all-star Army squad vying against top - flight German professional and amateur teams compiled a fine 18-2-7 record.

A Football Question

What Happened To Football Here?

Where has all the football gone? In days when high school, college and pro football teams are blasting off all over the country, a pall seems to have fallen over the gridirons at Fort Benning. All energy seems gone from the soldier impetus toward the football field this fall. What is the reason?

It is unimaginable that the interest in football manifested in the past by a large proportion of the post population has suddenly vanished. It is true that the Fort Benning Doughboys have left the scene by Army directive and much grid action and excitement is missing this fall, but men are still playing the game. During off-duty evenings, soldiers still have the interest and energy to play outside billets. Yet organized competition seems to have foundered this year.

The Infantry Center baseball and softball competition brought energetic response and active participation through all command levels, yet enthusiasm seems to have fled at the sight of the pigskin. Only two major units have begun touch football competition this year with a third and possibly a fourth to follow next week. Most other units seem to have given up the ghost. Yet only six weeks remain until the post playoffs scheduled by the Infantry Center Special Services section.

While it is true that increased work demands have been placed on many men stationed here and some units are in the process of internal reorganization, increased command emphasis and support may provide the needed organization and impetus for an active and vigorous football season.

The Doughboys were removed from the grid scene in order to make way for increased football participation on the unit level. Have the Doughboys gone in vain?

Trophies Won by MTU Shooters Presented at Capitol Ceremonies

By LEE LACOMBE

More than three dozen major individual and team trophies won by shooters from the Army's Marksmanship Training Unit at the National Rifle and Pistol Championships in August were presented to the U.S. Army at ceremonies in Washington, D.C. last Sunday.

Several hundred people gathered on the spacious grounds of the Washington Monument to witness the presentation and review conducted by the 3rd Regiment (The Old Guard) and the U. S. Army Band.

The 37 trophies were accepted on behalf of the Army by W. Brewster Kopp, assistant secretary of the Army for financial management.

Representing the MTU on behalf of their fellow shooters were 1st Lt. David Meredith, national service rifle champion; 2nd Lt. Margaret Thompson, winner of the women's national service rifle title; MSgt. Mack Salmon, coach of the army Blue team which won the national trophy pistol team match; SFC William B. Blankenship Jr., high man in the national trophy individual pistol team event; MSgt. William Krilling, national smallbore rifle prone champion; Capt. Lones Wigger, who took the national smallbore rifle position title; and Sgt. Hector Aguilar, who captured the Nevada trophy high power rifle match.

In the reviewing stand with Mr. Kopp were Lt. Gen. T. J. Conway, assistant chief of staff for Force Development; Col. Joseph J. Peel, commanding officer of the MTU; Col. Louis Gershenow, acting CO of the Military District of Washington; Mr. John K. Lee, representing the National Rifle Association; Col. Merle Preble, director of Civilian Marksmanship; and Lt. Col. C. J. Schaffer, assistant executive officer, National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice.

A pre-parade concert was given by the band and after Adjutant's Call, eight platoons of the 3rd Regiment marched onto the field. Fixed bayonets and retreat were then sounded.

After retreat Mr. Kopp moved off the reviewing stand and passed along the line of awards; as he paused at each one, an announcer described the award.

Following the presentation of awards, Mr. Kopp congratulated the members of the MTU on their outstanding showing in the national matches.

CLIPPING PENALTY

The Haverhill, Mass, high school football coach, Paul Ryan, called a clipping penalty against 12 young men who reported for practice. He sent them off to get their long, Beatle - style hairdos clipped. Coach Ryan said: "It's simple. Either they get haircuts or don't play ball. I'm not coaching a girls' team."

A meeting of all participants and unit athletic and recreation officers will be held at Briant Wells Field House at 10 a.m. on October 14 to discuss tournament procedures and draw pairings for the opening round of play.

NASA Recruiting Men For Astronaut Missions

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Recruitment is underway by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) to select additional pilot - astronauts for manned space flight missions.

To be eligible for selection applicants must be citizens of the United States; be no taller than six feet; have been born on or after Dec. 1, 1929; have a Bachelor's degree in engineering, physical or biological science; and have acquired 1,000 hours jet pilot time or have been graduated from an armed forces test pilot school.

All applicants must be able to pass a Class I flight physical examination which requires 20-20 uncorrected vision.

NASA said the selection process will be completed next spring and the new pilot-astronauts will report for duty at the Manned Spacecraft Center in the summer of 1966.

Military applicants must apply through their respective services. Others should send applications, postmarked no later than midnight, Dec. 1, 1965, directly to: Pilot - Astronaut, P. O. Box 2201, Houston, Tex. 77001.

Civilian applicants and military reservists should submit a Standard Civil Service Form 57 or resume of employment experience and academic training plus a statement of total jet flying time.

There are presently 28 pilot-astronauts and five scientist-astronauts participating in the NASA manned space flight program.

with the sea. He fought and won and we all admire winners. His small craft, the Tinkerbelle may soon rest in the Smithsonian Institute along side of Charles Lindberg's "Spirit of St. Louis".

John L. Hunt, leader of the successful British assault on Everest in 1953, said after the climb, "... there is a need for adventure in the world we live in and the ascent of Everest seems to have stirred the spirit of adventure that is latent in every human breast."

Sports help satisfy our spirit of adventure, our need for struggle and our desire to excell. These traits make us human and some day they will carry mankind to its highest aspirations.

Man has long speculated on how life had originated on earth. Of all the theories evolved, one has been that living spores may have floated to earth from outer space. This has been considered a "way-out" idea, yet it is not as "way-out" as it seems, for science has now evolved a method whereby living embryos may be flown to other planets in test tubes.

According to an article in Life Magazine, a scientist is presently carrying out a series of experiments along these lines at Washington State University.

He remarked that glass vials may hold "the barnyard of the future — complete with the farmer" — for transportation to other planets. Fertilized egg cells, he felt, could be shipped anywhere in cold storage, each vial color-coded to identify the species it contains.

The U. S. Army is taking a large interest in the development of SECOR (Sequential Collation of Range) as a geodetic surveying system. This system has been developed by the Corps of Engineers and the Cubic Corporation. A little over $10,000,000 has so far been spent.

The system is all-weather and permits the establishment of geodetic ties between points separated by huge bodies of water and vast stretches of little known terrain.

Four geodetic satellites are now in orbit. Three are in circular, equatorial orbit and one in elliptical polar obit. Two are currently operational. Continents and islands can now be brought within the same coordinate system, something hertofore not possible. Maps will be prepared by the Army Map Service from data gathered. (AFPS)

'Hostage' Opens Season For FBLT

Opening the Fort Benning Little Theatre's 1965-66 season will be Brendan Behan's Irish comedy "The Hostage" to be staged Oct. 6-9.

Directed by Peter Hadjuk, who also directed "Snow Angel" at Fort Benning during the summer months, the play is billed as a "bawdy adult comedy." It centers around a group of soldiers of the Irish Republic Army who have captured an English hostage in reprisal for one of their own the British have sentenced to hang.

Looking for an inconspicuous place to keep a hostage, the Irishman decide to imprison him in a house of ill repute.

Much of the hilarity of the play is centered around the characters themselves which Hadjuk says can only be described as "different."

Curtain time for each of the four nights will be 8:30 and admission will be 50 cents.

Antipasto Platter Helps Round Out Evening Dinners

A platter of antipasto and a platter of cold cuts served on the patio table add to the gracious, informal atmosphere of evening dinners. You can include ripe black olives, stuffed green olives, marinated artichoke hearts, radishes, chilled carrot curls and little stalks of stuffed celery. A platter of favorite cold - cuts and cheeses and a basket of assorted slices of bread or dinner rolls can help to round out the evening menu.

Local Civilian Credit Union Opened to Soldiers

Soldiers of all ranks will soon be able to join Fort Benning's all civilian Federal Credit Union, according to a statement Wednesday by union president, Warren A. Wyrick.

Wyrick said Infantry Center officials have accepted a proposal by the credit union to open membership to active duty soldiers stationed at Fort Benning. At present, only civilian workers and their families are permitted to deposit or borrow money from the union.

No date for opening memberships has been determined according to Wyrick, however, "definite and immediate" steps are being taken to clear the way for full soldier participation.

Military authorities and members of the union's board of directors have been working closely for some time to iron out the details of joint civilian-military participation.

Credit union members recently were polled on a plan to accept military members. This poll was inconclusive in that it was split nearly 50-50 with approximately half the members not voting, the spokesman said.

In making Wednesday's announcement, Wyrick stated that he "personally appreciated" the full cooperation of military officials in arriving at a plan to accommodate soldiers in the credit union.

Military authorities at Fort Benning have long been concerned over "easy credit" to soldiers and soldier indebtedness. At many military installations, credit unions are open to soldiers as one means of financial assistance

First of Trainees To Process Here Starting Monday

Col. Bob Edwards

First Training Cycle Will Begin October 11

The first basic trainees will arrive at the reception station at Harmony Church sometime late tonight or tomorrow morning, according to Training Center spokesman.

The first trainee at Fort Benning will begin processing Monday morning.

It is anticipated the first batch of drill sergeants now attending the drill instructors course at Fort Jackson, S. C. will return to Fort Benning next week to take over as cadre of the trainee companies.

Maj. Gen. Robert H. York is scheduled to address the drill instructors already at Benning in theater number six Monday afternoon at 3:30 p.m.

Training Center facilities are ready to receive the trainees. Barber shops, medical dispensaries, records processing units, barracks, clothing issue points, dental stations and mess halls have been readied in round the clock operation to handle the trainees.

Col. Bob Edwards, deputy commander of the training center, is presently commanding the unit until a brigadier general is named as commander.

Training center officials announced the assistant chiefs of staff. The G-1 will be Maj. William Bourne; G-2 Maj. Charles T. Gibson; G-3, Lt. Col. Walter Mattox; and G-4 Maj. Floyd M. Maples.

Col. Ben H. Ward, Lt. Col. William R. Hanks and Lt. Col. Robert Baden will command the first, second and third training brigades, respectively.

Commander of the reception station will be Maj. Edwin C. Davis and the committee group commander will be Col. Eldridge Dudley.

Official announcement of the creation of the basic training center at Fort Benning came several weeks ago as a reult of the increased draft call and military buildup.

The training command will have some 3000 permanent members to handle some 1300 inductees a week.

The training companies will occupy the areas at Sand Hill and Harmony Church formerly occupied by the 2nd Infantry and 1st Cavalry Divisions.

DA Message

Army to Extend Certain 20-Year Retirements

Plans to extend some service personnel past their 20-year retirement dates have been announced by the Department of the Army.

A message from DA stated that because of the need to exercise a selected retention program of valuable service personnel, all voluntary retirement applications will be closely screened effective immediately.

The message said that "Those persons whose services, either by experience, grade, skill or position (assignment or pending assignment) are required by the Army" will be retained on active service and their retirement applications will be disapproved.

Primarily affecting those officers in grade up to and including major, the directive makes stipulations as to which applications would be accepted.

Voluntary retirement applications submitted by enlisted persons for retirement within 30 days of ETS will be approved, if otherwise qualified. Also those persons with at least 29 years and six months of active service will have their applications honored.

Others not affected by the directive are officers and warrant officers whose mandatory retirement or release from active duty is required by law and those personnel who have had their applications approved by DA prior to Sept. 27.

Those retained on active duty past their normal retirement date will be kept in that status a minimum of 12 months but no longer than 24

Voluntary resignations and cases involving undue personal or family hardship will be submitted to the Department of the Army for final determination under the terms of this latest directive.

Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, Fort Benning's commander, expressed his satisfaction with the union's proposal, and stated that "it will be of immeasurable help in alleviating an unhealthy situation that has existed for some time."

He pointed out that the credit union's action is another excellent example of military - civilian cooperation in matters of mutual interest.

Officials said that the addition to the sewage system would prevent any possibility of pollution of the Chattahoochee River as far as Fort Benning is concerned.

The Savannah District of the Army Engineers will advertise and award contracts for the work. A completion date of one year is expected to be a contract requirement.

THE WALLS TUMBLE . . . Building 86, on the main entrance to Benning, came down this week as was suggested during a contest held several months ago. The area will be made into a garden as nothing constructive could be found for which to use the building.

Annual Report Shows 98 Per Cent Satisfied With Medicare Program

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Dependents' Medical Care (Medicare) Program continues to favor the morale and welfare of military personnel and plays an important role to an individual choosing a service career.

This consensus, made by each service, is part of an eighth annual report of the Medicare Program that shows 98 percent of the users are satisfied with the care received.

The Medicare Program pays for authorized care provided to eligible dependents from civilian medical sources and supplements the medical care provided to dependents in uniformed service hospitals.

Even though the services reported favorably on the overall program, comments indicate need for a provision to cover outpatient care from civilian sources and dental care.

The Army and Air Force were primarily concerned about lack of dental care while Navy and Marine Corps comments cited the outpatient care problem.

Through Dec. 31, 1964, statistics show 6,022,700 eligible dependents have received in-hospital care under the Medicare Program — 4,011,300 in uniformed service hospitals and 2,011,400 in civilian hospitals.

Since the beginning of the program, Dec. 7, 1956, through last December, servicemen contributed 8.4 percent and the government 91.6 percent for total authorized care of $625.4 million from civilian sources.

Over the eight-year period, dependents admitted to civilian hospitals under medicare were 71 percent wives and 29 percent children.

Even with a decreasing birth rate during 1964, the report shows the largest single requirement for medicare continues to be the birth of children and related maternity care. For the year, 36.6 percent of all hospital admissions at government expense were births.

The distribution of deliveries by "age of mother" is significant, the report states, since individuals covered by medicare constitute an unusually young population. Statistics show 47 percent of all births were to women in the 20-24 age group and almost 90 percent of all births were to women aged 15-29.

PTA Meet Selects Officers

The Executive Committee of the Fort Benning Parent-Teacher Association met last week at Faith School to elect a new first, second and third vice president.

Lt. Col. Walvin M. Cadman was elected first vice president; Mrs. William R. Hanks, second vice president; and SFC Edward Milliner, third vice president.

PTA president, Col. Bob E. Edwards, discussed his attendance at the 43rd annual PTA Institute held at the University of Georgia this summer.

"It is a worthwhile and helpful experience to participate in the workshop program of the PTA," according to Col. Edwards and he recommended greater attendance in the future of members of the Fort Benning organization.

Cost Reduction Goal Surpassed By Third Army

Third Army achieved 124 per cent of its cost reduction goal in fiscal year 1965 thereby aiding the Department of Defense in surpassing its goal, a newsletter from Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced.

Secretary McNamara praised both civilian and military personnel in aiding the Defense Department to realize a $4.6 billion cost reduction.

Persons in the military were urged by Secretary McNamara to "continue to give the cost reduction program your personal attention as a matter of high priority and maintain vigorous command emphasis on a continuing basis."

The Judge Says . . .

Sergeant Jones and his wife went to Honest Sam's Used Car Lot to purchase an automobile. They had many "good deals" to choose from. Sam showed them a late model Monster 8 for the "today only" price of $2,300 —a small down payment of $300 plus $75 per month for three years would cover the debt plus finance charges and interest. Sam's finance company was perfectly willing to finance the transaction.

Jones talked the matter over with his wife and both agreed that they could afford the cited monthly payments. "All we have to do," said Jones "is to tighten up our purse strings on nonessential items."

"I agree," Mrs. Jones said excitedly. "Just look at those pink bucket seats!" The Jones' bought the car.

By borrowing from Honest Sam's own finance company, Jones was paying $3,000 for a $2,300 automobile. In other words, he was paying $700 for interest and finance charges alone. Had he borrowed from a bank, this amount would have been considerably lower.

Jones soon discovered the actual car payments were in excess of what he and his wife had calculated. This was due to "extras" such as license plates, sales taxes, collision and comprehensive insurance required by Honest Sam, and a life insurance policy required by the finance company, payable to Honest Sam, to assure the car was paid for in the event of the sergeant's death.

Much to his consternation, Jones discovered that his automobile insurance alone was costing around $10 per month. Gasoline, oil, lubrication and tuneups cost Jones about $20 a month. Then came repair bills.

Repair bills? But Sam had told him that the car was in perfect shape.

(CAUTION! The sale of a used car carries no guarantee other than that the seller has title to the car. The buyer takes the car "as is" unless the contract provides otherwise. If a friendly car dealer makes any promises or guarantee to you concerning the mechanical condition of a used car at the time of sale, be sure and put the guarantee into the written contract of sale. An oral promise or guarantee that has not been made a part of a written contract is worthless.)

Jones refused to make further payments until the car was repaired. Upon non - payment of the balance due, Sam's finance company demanded immediate payment of the balance due in accordance with the terms of the contract. Jones could not pay it and turned the car back. The car was put up for sale at "public auction."

In practice this is not a "public auction" at all. It is attended usually by only a few people, most of whom are used car dealers. The bidding is invariably well below the blue book value of the car.

To his bewilderment, Jones found out that he was liable to Sam for the difference between the remaining balance of the note and the amount received from the sale at the auction. To top it off, he had no car to show for his money and no money to show for his car.

This unfortunate situation is not infrequent. Don't let it happen to you. Weigh all the expenses which go into buying and maintaining a car BEFORE you pay. There is no deal so hot that it cannot wait a thorough investigation. Before you sign a contract to pay for a car on monthly payments over a long period of time, see your soldiers advocate or legal assistance officer first.

The "RESPONSIBLE" Individual . . .

. . . Backbone of a Successful Mission!

Responsibility Key to Modern Army

American servicemen have a proud heritage, one that includes, above all things, individual responsibility. This means not simply accepting responsibility for a mistake, but, more important, taking the responsibility to do things which need doing the right way.

How often, even in an operation involving hundreds of men, is it possible to point out a few individuals who have had some special bearing on the completion of the mission?

These few men accept the job given them, whether it is a combat mission or cleaning barracks windows, as their responsibility. They don't shrug the problem off with the excuse they are just part of the crowd. They take the attitude that at least part of the job is theirs and no one else's. Then they go ahead and do it.

Individual responsibility is the key to the success of any mission. It is also the mark of the man who will get ahead — who will make a leader. The serviceman who accepts responsibility for his own actions and duties develops into the man who can accept it for others. He is the man his leaders trust and the man who can make an organization click.

A special forces advisor serving with a Republic of Viet Nam unit in the jungle is carrying the responsibility. So is the supply clerk who processes an order for a new pair of boots for the advisor. So is the military doctor in the United States who treats the advisor's son and the mail clerk who sticks that one extra letter — a letter telling the advisor that his son is better — into a bag headed for the Far East.

The individual is the key — the key to winning wars on waste, unit inspections or the struggle to preserve freedom. Each serviceman must make the effort and take the responsibility to help determine the success of his mission. (AFPS)

Responsibilities To New Soldiers

With the arrival of basic trainees at Fort Benning, responsibilities for all of us become even greater than before.

The responsibilities have always been with us. Now it becomes even more important that we as soldiers discharge them in the proper way.

The responsibility for wearing the uniform of the soldier goes without saying. Everyone who has been in the Army more than four months knows how to wear the uniform. It is now paramount that we do so properly. How can the new soldier learn without example?

For most soldiers who are not careerists, it is important to remember that these young trainees are the ones who will take your place in the ranks of the U. S. Army when you leave it. To be able to do this they need an example of professional competence and dedication.

It is entirely possible that the young soldier feels that his country owes him a debt because he is in the Army.

This is not so. The law of the land in which we live is the law of two years of compulsory military duty. If we share the benefits and protection of this great land, then of necessity we must support the laws and responsibilities that go with residence and citizenship.

It is incumbent on the soldier at Benning to lead the way in developing by example the proper manner of conducting oneself when away from the base.

There are going to be many instances when the soldier who has been at Benning some time will be able to help the young trainee who is "on the town" for the first time since induction.

This sort of help is not only good soldiering but it is good citizenship.

It is time for every soldier, whether a career man or not, to come to the aid his new comrades-in-arms by setting the best possible example while a member of the greatest fighting force in the world.

Step Lively And Watch Weight

Step lively and learn how to control weight. Develop new food preferences which will give pleasing results in appearance and health while satisfying hunger and providing the energy needed for everyday living.

People gain weight by eating more food than needed. Food not used for energy is stored as fat. Losing weight requires a change of eating habits and more physical activity.

Doctors have calorie plans for everyday living. The number of calories depends on individual health, body structure, and activity. He also has advice on the kind and amount of exercise for the individual.

The idea of dieting is to develop eating habits that can be kept. Avoid strict diets, they usually last a week or two. One is apt to return to the old weight-gaining routine after following a strict diet.

Do not try to lose more than one and a half to two pounds a week. Be patient! Don't expect to see a change at regular intervals.

When the desired weight is reached, increase the amount of food you eat. But watch the scales. They know when you are being too generous.

Minerals, vitamins and other nutrients are needed for good health. They are available in all of the food groups listed below. For a snack between meals save a little of the food from the day's allowance.

Social life can be enjoyed in spite of dieting. When a guest at dinner, limit the high-calorie foods at noon. Moderation for the entire day is what counts.

Re-Up Program Short-Lived

Advance Decision Rule Erased

From The Army Times Special to The Bayonet

WASHINGTON — Enlisted men no longer have to make their reenlistment decisions eight months in advance of the scheduled end of their current hitches. The Army's "Reenlistment Losses Projection Program," which was designed to give planners earlier figures on the re-up trend, has been discontinued, it was announced in DA Message 730027.

The short-lived program, launched only last April, didn't work out as officials had hoped. Instead of making earlier re-up decisions, many soldiers found a loophole in the policy and delayed their decisions to the last minute, thus fouling up the planners' statistics.

Two factors convinced the Pentagon the program had to be dropped. The interviews and reports required were awkward or impossible for the growing number of troop units in Viet Nam. Also, first results from the reporting system showed a decline in the reenlistment rate apparently because men who hadn't decided for or against another hitch signed declinations.

Under the terms of the now-defunct program, each individual upon reaching the eighth month before his ETS had to take one of three actions: take a short discharge and immediately re-up; sign a declination of intent to re-up; or sign a statement of intent to re-up and, if eligible, sign a request for a voluntary nine-month extension.

The idea of the extension was to force men to serve the extra term if they refused to honor their statement of intent to reenlist.

But, at the same time, the Army slashed the red tape to make it easy for eligible men to sign over for another hitch if they changed their minds at the last minute.

It was this provision, apparently, that enabled large numbers of men to postpone their decisions, contrary to the policy's intention of getting earlier commitments.

Halting of the program, according to the DA Message, means that men who have signed statements of intent to re-up, declinations or extensions of their term of service will have these forms voided.

These forms will remain in the individual's 201 files, however, until the next reenlistment or separation action has been completed. Authorities want to check the outcome to see how well the early reports predicted the soldiers' later actions.

The policy on short discharges for the purpose of reenlisting now reverts to that prescribed in AR 635-205. Normally, this means a man can be discharged up to 90 days before his ETS for the purpose of reenlisting.

First term draftees and Regulars may still reenlist after completing one full year on their current hitch.

Under the old program, individuals who refused to take any one of the three required choices were supposed to be classified as ineligible for further reenlistment. They may be reinstated to re-up eligibility now, at the descretion of their unit commanders.

Some men nearing retirement reportedly signed the 9-month extension form expecting to complete 20 years during the extension period without having to re-up for another full tour. Since these extension forms are being voided, these men will have to check for other provisions to complete their service.

According to reenlistment authorities, a recent change to retirement regulations authorizes extensions up to six months for the purpose of completing service for retirement.

Troop Command Education Cited At Benning

The Infantry Center Troop Command was presented a Certificate of Merit last Friday as the post's leading unit in educational development during the 1965 fiscal year.

The unit had 35.5 per cent of its personnel participating in educational programs available to military personnel.

Col. Earl F. Holton, deputy post commander, presented the certificate to Col. Lon D. Marlowe Jr., commander of the unit.

The unit was cited "for superior achievement in the establishment and maintenance of a comprehensive and effective educational program embracing all its operations and activities from July 1, 1954 to June 30, 1965.

Other units and their percentages are: U.S. Army Infantry Board, 30.9 per cent; the Student Brigade, 27.9 per cent; 428th Medical Battalion, 19.5 per cent; Lawson Army Aviation Command, 17.5 per cent; 197th Infantry Brigade, 14.2 per cent; and Martin Army Hospital, 13.2 per cent.

Drivers Training a Must For Basic Trainees Oct. 1

From The Army Times

FORT MONROE, Va. — Beginning October 1, the Army plans to make driver instruction mandatory for all basic trainees, male and female, in a move designed to reduce high accident rates among young soldiers.

Designed to develop safe driving "attitudes" rather than stressing how to drive, the new course will be taught at all training centers.

The instruction is the vital first step in a continuous driver education program that ends only when a soldier leaves the service, officials told Army Times.

Entitled "Driver Education for Basic Trainees," lesson plans call for two hours of mandatory instruction on motor vehicle accidents and their causes, the effects of speed and alcohol or driving techniques and principles of safe driving.

"It is not our purpose to teach a young man how to drive," one official told Army Times. "He generally already knows how. We want to stress upon him the need to be more responsible behind the wheel of a car."

SECOND RANGER TAB AUTHORIZED
Col. Walls and Sgt. Richmond, right.

War Ranger Veteran Receives Second Tab

BY LARRY FROELICH

Gene L. Richmond, a senior career counselor at the Student Brigade, is now the owner of two Ranger tabs—a unique situation for the Army.

SFC Richmond, who is one of the few enlisted men on active duty today who served with the original 6th Ranger Battalion of World War II fame, is now authorized to wear the Infantry School Ranger tab along with his old unit tab because of a recent change in the Army regulations.

Col. Jess W. Walls, Student Brigade commander, presented the second tab to Richmond during a recent ceremony in his office.

Battalion Found

The 6th Ranger Battalion was formed in 1944 and received its initial training at Port Moresby, New Guinea, where U. S. troops were fighting the Japanese. Richmond remarked that his unit acquired some "practical" experience on New Guinea by participating in the Finschhafen campaign.

On the night of October, 17, 1944, the battalion executed its first combat mission. The Rangers split up into three groups and slipped onto the Philippino islands of Homonhon, Suluan and Dinagat. After securing the tips of each island, the Rangers set up beacons so that the main task force convoy could navigate through the treacherous Leyte Straits enroute for the invasion of Leyte.

After campaigns in Leyte and Luzon, the Rangers landed on the island of Santiago in the Philippines and captured the village of Aparri. Upon securing the hamlet, the battalion seized the nearby prison camp at Cabanatuan, releasing hundreds of American and allied POWs.

Kyoto Station

In 1945 with the war at an end, the Ranger battalion, was stationed on the Japanese island of Kyoto as part of the U. S. occupational forces. In the early part of 1946 it was disbanded at which time each man in the unit was awarded five battle stars and a bronze arrowhead, the latter for participating in an amphibious landing.

With this wide background of combat experience and the many schools he has attended (Explosive Ordnance School, Nuclear Weapons Assembly School and Recruiting School), SFC Richmond brings wide qualifications to his present duty as senior career counselor of TSB.

He and his wife, Ruth, and their four children, Judy, Jeanne, Debbie and Thomas, reside in Columbus, Georgia.

Fort Benning Has Openings For Civilians

Applications are being accepted at Fort Benning for engineer and machinist positions, officials have announced.

The positions available are: operating engineer (steam), rated as Wage Board (WB) 10, at $2.38 per hour; operating engineer (steam), WB - 11, $2.53 per hour; machinist, WB - 11, $2.53 per hour.

In order to qualify for the positions of operating engineer (steam), both WB-10 and 11, applicants must have had at least two years of experience.

The machinist WB-11 and automotive machinist WB-10 positions require a formal apprenticeship or four years of equivalent experience.

Further information about these positions may be found on bulletin boards at first class post offices. For specific information about qualification requirements and how to apply, officials urged interested parties to contact the Civil Service Board, Civilian Personnel Section, U.S. Army Infantry Center in Bldg. 1620.

Fire Prevention Week Stress on Fire Safety

Keeping fire safety uppermost in the minds of everyone at Fort Benning is the aim of the Fire Department during National Fire Prevention Week which begins Monday.

Running to Oct. 9, the week, set aside annually to demonstrate the necessity for fire safety precautions, will include lectures in various units, tours of The Infantry Center Fire Prevention Museum and fire discussions with school children.

The idea for a National Fire Prevention Week began in 1871 when the infamous Chicago fire caused $196 million worth of damage to the Illinois city. Each year, Fire Prevention Week is set aside to coincide with that tragic event.

One of the main points that will be brought up during lectures next week here will be the fact that the post had 337 fires in fiscal year 1965, causing $72,579 in property damage.

"Although fire losses were 50 per cent lower in FY '65 than in FY '64," fire chief Gilbert A. Ward said, "our annual loss in fires is still much too high and it's up to each individual to cut down the amount of fires."

Chief Ward pointed out that the majority of fires were caused by discarded smoking materials, children playing with matches, faulty wiring and unauthorized use of gasoline and other combustible materials.

Mock Village Trains Troops For Viet Nam

BY MIKE GROGAN

In the midst of the Fort Benning training areas sit two Viet Nam mountain villages under attack by small forces of American troops.

Built to assure adequate training to officers and men who may find themselves fighting an unconventional war in Viet Nam, the Infantry School has designed and built two life sized models of a Vietnamese mountain village in the Fort Benning training fields.

Designed by Capt. Joe L. Zimmer, an instructor of counter - guerrilla operations in the Platoon Tactics Committee of The Infantry School's Company Tactics Department, the villages are used primarily by student officers and officer candidates who may some day find themselves leading troops into just such a village.

Containing eight straw huts with authentic fences, one of the villages is used for demonstration purposes while the second is for practical exercises.

The demonstration village, located at Blackhawk Trail, is used to teach the students search and seizure operations on such a village. On this model, students learn the characteristics of a Vietnamese township and the problems of attacking and defending it.

On the second village, which is at Lafayette Road, the students perform a six hour practical exercise which consists of organizing a motor convoy, counter ambush techniques, infiltration through difficult terrain and isolation of the objective area (the village).

The students must surround the village using stealth by establishing a cordon (a security force used to surround a small population group). Once they have surrounded the village they must make a detailed search for guerillas and contraband, interrogate the population and disseminate pro - American doctrine.

"The villages are exactly like those found in the mountain regions of Viet Nam," said Capt. Zimmer, "and when a student goes through the instruction and practical exercise he is well equipped to cope with the type of problems found in fighting that type of war particular to this type of terrain."

Capt. Zimmer was chosen to design the villages because of his experience in the Viet Nam mountain areas. From July 1963 to June 1964 he served in the mountain villages of the Viet Nam Delta as an assistant battalion advisor, a battalion advisor and a ranger advisor on special air mobile operations.

The villages took about 4,116 man hours to build and were constructed with materials taken from the woods and hay fields by Company B, 29th Infantry and members of the Platoon Tactics Committee.

Besides being used to train officers and candidates the villages have been put to use by units being sent to Viet Nam to train whole battalions on the peculiarities of unconventional warfare.

The Infantry School's Company Tactics Department, is used to teach the candidates search and seizure operations.

DOD Training Film Shows World War II

Washington (AFPS) — A new training film, "World War II, 20 Years Later" (AFMF-648) has been released by the Directorate for Armed Forces Information and Education, DOD.

The 20 minute film shows the war as an epic struggle. It presents the events and situations which led up to the war and ends with the V-days, which brought it to a close two decades ago this year.

Attractive Army Image Sought for New Enlistees

From The Army Times

WASHINGTON — The Army wants more "high IQs" to volunteer for military service. It has hired a New York - based management counseling firm to help find ways to make Army life more attractive to capable young men.

The firm, on the job for more than a year, is scheduled to submit a report of its findings to Army Chief of Staff Gen. Harold K. Johnson sometime in late December. The general has been voicing concern about the Army image to high school age for sometime.

The firm, Marcom Inc., says its studies are designed to increase "the overall enlistment rate of the Army with emphasis being given to finding ways to increase the image of Army life among the higher IQs."

Similar Study

The study is similar to one that is scheduled to be launched in the near future by the Department of Defense which is earmarking some $82,000 for the study.

Officials want to know if its recruiting pitch is reaching the people the military services want and whether they're adequate enough to sell them on making the decision to enlist.

On an allied front, the Army is also looking into ways to improve life once the man gets in. With re-enlistment rates tumbling, the Army wants to know what it can do within its own resources to improve service life. For instance, should the post exchange or commissary be kept open later in the evening than is now the case?

Determine Pitch

The group is analyzing the interests of the upper mental groups to determine just what type of sales pitch would induce them to volunteer for the Army.

It also wants to know the effect inadequate facilities have on selling Army life to a young man. Marcom is conducting a survey to determine if recruiting results are higher or lower in the big cities than the small town because of their generally better facilities.

Some personnel officials feel the "big city" recruiting stations with their more modern equipment, lighting and air - conditioning make a better impression on young men than the smaller "hole-in-the-wall" type stations located in small towns and cities across the country.

Army Selling

The firm is also studying ways to improve the Army selling techniques. Researchers are looking into ways to improve the salesmanship of individual recruiters and recommend the best techniques they can use to sell the Army.

The study is aimed not only at improving the image of Army life for men of draft age but youngsters in high school as well. The Army wants recommendations on how to improve its image among youngsters in the 15 to 18 year group.

A more favorable image among high school youngsters could benefit the Army in a number of ways, officials told Army Times. With the junior ROTC program being expanded to still more high schools across the country, the Army wants to make sure it has enough participants to make conduct of the program worthwhile. A better image could lead to higher enrollments in college ROTC and the reserve program.

Renovated Commissary Now Open for Business

The Post commissary has reopened that portion of the sales area which has been under renovation for the past several weeks, Lt. Col. Samuel Dobresk of the Quartermaster Service Division announced.

"Customers will appreciate the improved appearance and convenience the facilities now offer," Dobresk stated. He added that, although further remodeling is being done in the store, it should not interfere with normal sales.

Thus far hardwood walls lowered acoustic ceiling, air conditioning and fluorescent strip lighting have been added to the store and new display cases for the meat market and frozen food sections are to be added in the future.

The total renovation is expected to cost $100,000 by the time work is completed, according to commissary officials.

Russia's Problem: What to Do About Drinking Officers?

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's top soldier warned today that drink is the curse of the officer class and the habit must be uprooted. Defense Minister Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky wrote in the military newspaper Red Star:

"It is high time to understand that hard drinking is a sign of a lack of discipline and a man who has a weakness to drinking cannot be a reliable officer. . ."

Malinovsky said the idea that an officer is free to drink when off duty "is a rotten philosophy." He added:

"Hard drinking is especially intolerable in the military. It is an evil which must be decisively uprooted."

Malinovsky made no suggestions on how to do this in a 4,000 word article calling on officers to improve their political, ideological, moral and military training.

Engineers Provide Living Quarters for Reserves

100 KILOWATT GENERATORS PROVIDE LIGHTS FOR TENT CITY
577th Engineers Operated Generators at Tent City

FLOORS ARE LAID FOR PREFABRICATED TENTS
577th Engineer Battalion Made Area Liveable for 2500 Reservists.

In order to make conditions liveable for the 2,500 reservists who spent their summer encampment at Fort Benning, the 577th Engineer Battalion was the first to arrive at and will be the first to leave the encampment area.

Confronted with the task of constructing a "tent city" to accommodate 1,000 reservists at a time, the 577th sent out a survey team from their S-3 section early in the year to survey the area around Upatoi Creek and Buena Vista Road.

Once this was done and the tent frames had been prefabricated, the engineers constructed the billeting tents which housed the men, orderly room tents for administration headquarters, supply, kitchen and mess tents.

In addition to the facilities normally required to run a summer camp, electrical and plumbing facilities were provided; a PX concession along with an enlisted man's beer garden was constructed; and lounging areas for officers and enlisted men were provided.

After the construction was finished, a general construction platoon was placed in support to keep "Tent City" running. The Engineer battalion provided a fire fighting team, a crew to operate a water purification point and a team to operate electric power generators.

But even though the reservists have come and gone, the 577th still works on in "Tent City". Now the job of dislocating the encampment area is under way. The empty skeletons of tent frames are disappearing, however, and 577th officials say they will finish the dislocation this month.

GUM DAMAGE

Abnormal chewing habits—either too hard or too light—may result in damage to the gums, Dr. Irving Glickman, Boston, has pointed out.

BIGGER MUSIC

The retail dollar value of musical instruments, sheet music and accessories purchased by Americans since 1941 has grown at a rate more than 3.5 times that of the Gross National Product according to the American Music Conference. The major factor is said to be the growth of music - making among young people. In 1947, approximately three million youngsters were playing instruments; in 1964, they exceeded 12 million, an increase of 300 per cent, although the 4-to-21 age group increased only 71 per cent.

Stage Set for Communism's Spread

EDITOR'S NOTE: This, the latest installment in The Bayonet's treatment of communism, deals with its spread. From the study of the rise of communism in Russia, we now move on to the doctrine as it is found in other parts of the world. The series is based on the book by William Ebenstein, "Two Ways of Life."

Thus far we have examined in some detail the "case history" of the rise of communism in one country — Russia. We have seen what social, economic and political conditions lay behind the birth of Russian communism and also what strategies and techniques Communist leaders used to exploit those conditions in order to seize power.

Now let us observe to what extent the Russian experience may help us to understand the spread of communism in other countries. To begin with, a distinction must be made between those countries in which communism was imposed by outside armed force and those in which communism triumphed through internal revolution or civil war.

Conquests by External Force

In Europe, during the final stage of World War II, the Soviet armies imposed communism on East Germany, Hungary, Poland, Bulgaria, Rumania and Albania by virtue of direct military occupation. In the case of Czechoslovakia, there was a mixture of internal and external force.

Three years later, in 1948, the Czechoslovakian Communist party staged a revolution which probably could have been suppressed by the Czech government. But the Soviet Union let it be known that if steps were taken to crush the revolt, she would use the Soviet army poised on the Czech border to intervene on behalf of the Communist revoluntionaries. The Czechs submitted and Czechoslovakia was added to the list of Communist satellites.

Meanwhile, in Asia, after the defeat of Japan in 1945, North Korea was occupied by the Red Army and became a Soviet satellite. In the 1950s, communism spread to North Viet Nam and parts of Laos mainly as a result of the military assistance given to Vietnamese and Laotian Communists by China and Russia.

Underlying Conditions

In only three countries, other than Russia, has communism triumphed without being imposed from the outside: Yugoslavia, China and Cuba. In each of these countries existing political, economic and social conditions bore a significant resemblance to those of tsarist Russia. In none was there a vital tradition of constitutional government.

Yugoslavia was ruled by an authoritarian monarchy whose base of power was weak because of the many nationalities composing the country. The political ruling class was almost entirely Serbian, and - as in tsarist Russia, where the Great Russians have generally been dominant-minority nationalities felt that they were second-class citizens.

China, too, had no tradition of constitutional government and in fact no effective central government at all. Local war lords ruled major territorial divisions largely as they saw fit. As a result it was next to impossible for the national government to formulate and carry out plans for social and economic progress.

Cuba, liberated by the United States from Spain in 1898, was unable to develop a tradition of constitutional government. Dictator followed dictator and political office was little more than a means for personal gain. The main concern of government leaders was to keep themselves in power rather than to provide for social and economic betterment of the nation. During most of the period of 1933-1958, Cuba was under the iron rule of dictator Fulgencio Batista, a former sergeant in the Cuban Army.

As in the case of Russia, economic underdevelopment was a background factor in the rise of communism in Yugoslavia, China and Cuba.

Agriculture, the main economic activity in all three countries, was technologically backward and inefficient. Industry was little developed and the middle class, made up of businessmen, professional persons, technicians and skilled workers, was very small. In all three countries, the middle class desired national progress along the Western lines of constitutional government and free enterprise, but, tragically, in none was the middle class large enough to become a dominant element in state or society.

China and Yugoslavia

In the cases of China and Yugoslovia, the impact of these political, social and economic deficiencies was magnified by the pressure and strains of war. China was invaded by Japan in 1931 and much of her territory was conquered by the Japanese.

For the next fourteen years, China was in a constant state of war, a war that went badly for her. Throughout this long and costly conflict with Japan, the Communists under the leadership of Mao Tse-tung fought against their own government with more vigor than against the Japanese invaders.

By 1945, the Nationalist government under Chiang Kai-shek had been severely weakened by the twin catastrophies of military defeat and economic collapse characterized by runaway inflation. This situation was fully exploited by Mao, just as in 1917 Lenin had exploited Russia's military misfortunes. Mao had been careful to conserve his military strength during China's war with Japan and he now launched an all-out offensive for control of China. By 1949, Mao's Communist forces were masters of the Chinese mainland. Chiang's Nationalist forces fled to Formosa under the protection of American naval power.

HURRICANE HELP . . . A soldier from Fort Polk, La., hands out some of the 12,000 sheets provided by the Army post for refugees of Hurricane Betsy. In a message to Lt. Gen. Robert Colglazier, Fourth Army commander, President Lyndon B. Johnson said in part: ". . . I want you to know that your President recognizes and appreciates the outstanding way in which you have responded to this difficult challenge. You and the men under you are a tribute to this nation and to the U.S. Army."

30 Allied Officers Visiting Fort Benning

Fort Benning welcomed 30 Allied officers from five Allied countries with an honors ceremony on York Field Wednesday.

Senior officer of the group is Maj. Gen. Ton That Dinh, commanding general of the Republic of Viet Nam Army. Three other general officers head the list of distinguished visitors. They are: Maj. Gen. Thip Theerathada, deputy of Army Field Forces, Royal Thai Army; Brig. Gen. Vguyen Van Vy, commanding general, Quang Trung Training Center, Viet Nam; and Brig. Gen. Arthur Duarte Candae Fonseca, commander, RIO Military College, Brazil.

The visiting officers represent military forces of the Philippines, Jordan, Thailand, Viet Nam and Brazil. They are touring U. S. military school installations to see armed forces training methods and techniques.

At Fort Benning the Allied officers' primary interest is the organization and mission of The Infantry School, methods of instruction utilized, use of training aids, planning of instruction, general school operation and non-resident instruction procedures.

Unemployment Rate High Among School Dropouts

Much has been said recently about the problem of school dropouts and this month President Johnson announced a major campaign to get young Americans to return to school.

Appointing Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to direct the campaign, the President made note of the fact that young people who do not finish school find it more difficult to earn a living than those who do finish.

In July 1965, the President pointed out, the unemployment rate for young people was 12.3 per cent, more than two and one-half times that for all workers in the labor force. The rate for school dropouts, age 16 to 21, is 16.6 per cent, almost four times the national average. Over six per cent of those over 18 who do not finish high school are unemployed as compared to 3.4 per cent for high school graduates.

The President also pointed out that a college graduate earns nearly two-thirds more than a high school graduate and, those finishing high school earn over three-fourths more than a person who did not finish eight years of school.

In Oct. 64 some 5.1 million young people from 16 to 24 were school dropouts. During the coming school year an estimated 750,000 more boys and girls will drop out of school without having attained a high school diploma, six out of ten of them in the 16-17 year-old age bracket. At that rate we would have 32 million adults, non-high school graduates in the labor force by 1978.

Safety Mark Is Improved By Services

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The armed forces made marked safety improvements during the first six months of this year compared with the preceding six months according to individual service statistics.

Army preliminary figures show that 436 persons died from accidents, a 14 per cent decrease, with disabling injuries reduced two per cent to 7,556.

The Navy reported a 60 per cent reduction in non-hostile aircraft fatalities and a 17.3 per cent drop in private and government owned vehicle accident deaths.

Navy non-hostile aircraft accidents claimed 42 lives with automobile deaths totaling 186. Some 1,200 personnel were injured in auto accidents, representing a 41 per cent decrease.

Air Force ground accidents were decreased by almost 500, with ground accidents fatalities dropping from 243 to 220. The Air Force also reduced major air accidents by two per cent to 158.

Officials said privately-owned automobile accidents, tabulated separately, are a major Air Force worry. Even though considerable progress was achieved, 170 deaths were recorded. This is 16 less than during the same period last year.

Medal Winners Honored; New Post Schools Named After Fallen War Heroes

Two new schools at Fort Benning will be named after a Korean Medal of Honor winner and a Viet Nam Distinguished Service Cross winner.

School officials last week announced the school on Custer Drive will be named after Capt. Morris R. McBride who was posthumously decorated for his actions in Viet Nam. The one on Lavoie Street will be named in honor of PFC Richard Wilson.

A dedication ceremony for the McBride School will take place at an as-yet-unannounced date. Plans call for McBride's widow and two daughters who reside in Columbus to be present for the ceremony.

Name Transferred

There will not be an official dedication for the Wilson School as the name is being transferred from a training field formerly used by the Airborne Department, officials said.

McBride won the Distinguished Service Cross in Viet Nam in March 1963 while a member of the Military Advisory Command.

He was working with elements of the Vietnamese Army when they came under heavy Viet Cong fire. The commander of the unit was killed. McBride assumed command and rallied the widely dispersed units, exposing himself to enemy fire. While aiding a wounded Vietnamese soldier, McBride was mortally wounded.

Wilson won his Medal of Honor when he fought with a company of the 187th Airborne Regiment which was ambushed near Opari, Korea, in October 1951.

Wilson, a medic, returned to the battle area to help a wounded soldier. His body was found three days later shielding the body of the man he had returned to help.

Identical Plant

McBride and Wilson Schools are identical modern educational plants with 21 classrooms, libraries, and multi-purpose rooms adaptable for use as auditorium, cafeteria or gymnasium. The schools opened Sept. 1, even though contruction was not entirely completed.

Fort Benning dependent schools are named for Medal of Honor or Distinguished Service Cross recipients. Five other schools are named for Capt. Alexander M. Patch, Distinguished Service Cross; Lt. Col. Don C. Faith Jr., Medal of Honor; 2nd Lt. William H. Wilbur Jr., Distinguished Service Cross; 2nd Lt. Frank R. Loyd Jr., Distinguished Service Cross; and 2nd Lt. Edward A. White, Distinguished Service Cross.

Disaster Aid Earns Medal For Officer

Personal efforts during the California flood disaster early this year have resulted in the first oak leaf cluster to the Air Medal for an Army aviator of the 134th Aviation Company.

Capt. Thomas H. Denney received the medal from Maj. Ted N. Phillips, commander of the 134th, for his "meritorious service" during the joint military disaster relief operation.

During the latter days of December 1964 and through January of this year, Denney participated in rescue, resupply and emergency medical evacuation missions in California. Flying a CV-2 "Caribou" in hazardous weather and mountainous terrain, he airlifted and parachute-dropped supplies into stranded towns and isolated regions of the disaster area.

In addition, he landed in hastily prepared and unmarked strips to effect the rescue of countless flood victims.

A portion of the citation noted that "Throughout the perilous aerial flights, he displayed the highest standards of air discipline and contributed to the success of a joint suffering and prevented further loss of life."

Maj John Fust Awarded Cluster To Air Medal

Maj. John W. Fust of the 10th Aviation Group was awarded the third oak leaf cluster to the Air Medal for piloting support aircraft during the California flood disaster of last January.

During a sustained five week effort, Maj. Fust's Caribou dropped food, clothing and medical supplies to persons stranded by flood waters. He also dropped hay to livestock seeking refuge in the mountains and performed rescue and evacuation missions from isolated airfields under adverse weather conditions.

Col. J. Elmore Swenson, 10th Aviation Group commanding officer, made the presentation.

Gen York Visits Mechanized Bn

A professional attitude was the theme emphasized by commanding general Robert H. York in a recent message delivered to the men of the 1st Battalion (Mechanized), 58th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade.

The general stressed the need for a soldier to maintain a professional outlook 24 hours a day while he conducted his first inspection of the facilities of the 58th.

After being greeted by Maj. George F. Powers, battalion executive officer, Gen. York praised the achievements of the battalion as a support element of the United States Army Infantry Center.

Gen. York also related a number of personal experiences that occurred during his assignments in Northern Africa and the Dominican Republic.

Army Satellite Links Hawaii to U.S. Mainland

FORT MONMOUTH, N. J. (ANF) — The first earth terminal of a world-wide military communications system is now under construction in Helemano, Hawaii, and equipment installation will begin in October according to an announcement by the U. S. Army Satellite Communications Agency (SATCOM) here.

The site, about 20 miles north of Honolulu, will provide an additional communications link between Hawaii and the U.S. Mainland as well as an important relay point for satellite communications in the vast Pacific area.

The Army has been charged with developing and operating all ground terminals to be used in the new system, a project of the Defense Communications Agency. The Navy is responsible for the shipborne portion of the terminal network which will communicate with satellites under Air Force supervision.

SATCOM will begin tests of newly developed terminal equipment late this fall, the first package of which will be installed at the Helemano site. A test period will extend through 1966. During that time a second terminal unit will be installed to permit simultaneous communication with two satellites.

Personnel to man and operate all Army terminals are being provided by the U. S. Army Strategic Communications Command, operators of the Army's own global communications network.

Additional ground terminal sites around the world are now being studied by SATCOM and the Defense Communications Agency.

Special Agency Insures Compassionate Absences

WASHINGTON (ANF) — A Korea - based serviceman has just learned that his wife is back in Kansas faces cancer surgery and a long convalescence. A quick call to Washington and he's at her bedside.

Processing that request and an average of 53 others like it every day is the Army's "Heart," formally known as the Department of the Army Compassionate Review Branch, Office of Personnel Operations.

Insured Flexibility

This agency is the heart of a structure which insures the serviceman the flexibility he needs to resolve his urgent personal problems. Last year the branch processed some 13,000 cases and requests covering a spectrum from simple leave extensions to reassignment.

Other requests for compassionate action were processed by subordinate commands, officer branches, and senior enlisted control sections.

Documented Request

If a compassionate problem can be resolved within a reasonable period of time, the serviceman can normally expect the branch's approval. He should be sure, however, to carefully document his request.

In this connection, the branch urges applicants to thoroughly review the policies for compassionate actions set forth in paragrpahs 22 and 23 of AR 614-6 and sections III, VII, and VIII of AR 614-30.

Theatre Presents Behan's Hostage

SENDING THE HOSTAGE OUT FOR MORE BEER

When the curtain goes up at the Fort Benning Playhouse Wednesday night, the scene on stage will be that of a brothel and the cast will include a madam, a fanatically religious prostitute and nine other zany characters dreamed up by Irish playwrite Brendan Behan.

The play, to be staged Wednesday through Saturday next week, is Behan's comedy "The Hostage." The script seems to take the personalities of these characters lightly but not Peter Hajduk who is directing the show for the Fort Benning Little Theatre.

"As a director," Hajduk says, "There's a great deal of difficulty in communicating your ideas of the whole play to the individual actor; especially in this particular play because of tho touchy subjects. It's also up to me to draw the line between what is good and bad taste and what can be presented to the public. That's a great deal of responsibility."

But aside from his problems, Hajduk beams when he discusses the play and the progress his cast is making.

"It's a great play," he maintains, "and the cast is doing a wonderful job with it. So far everything is on schedule."

Hajduk has run into a few production problems (such as where to come up with a set of bagpipes) but he says the technical part of the show is taking shape.

Much of Hajduk's confidence in his cast comes from tho fact that most of them have a good deal of theatre experience. Les Muchmore, who plays the owner of the brothel, is the president of the FBLT Board of Directors. He carried a lead part in "Finian's Rainbow" last season and worked in productions at Dyess AFB and Fort Bliss, Tex. Ella Hearne, who plays Meg Dillon, was also in "Finian's Rainbow" and Don Smith, who carries the title role, was in Baker High School's production of "Camelot" last season.

Pat Brown is cast as a "sociable worker" in the show. This will be her first appearance in a FBLT production but theater - goers will remember her convincing performance as Annie Sullivan in "Tho Miracle Worker" with the Columbus Little Theater.

Wes Carr has appeared in numerous productions around Fort Benning and Columbus. He directed the Fort Benning Theater's prize winning play last year and as soon as he finishes with the "Hostage," he will take up directing chores with the "Glass Menagerie."

Gail Carr has appeared in production throughout the area. She is remembered for her performance in "Once Upon A Mattress."

Connie Gilbert has been associated with the Little Theater in past productions as have Rick Sonntag and Dick Miles.

UNIFORMS GALORE AT POST THRIFT SHOP

Peruvian War College Staff Visits Fort Benning

An honors ceremony on York Field welcomed the director of the Peruvian War College, Maj. Gen. Carlos Giral Morzan, to Fort Benning last week.

This marks the sixth time that Gen. Giral has visited the United States. The first occasion was as a second lieutenant when from January to March, 1941, he was a student at The Infantry School and then served three months with the 2nd Armored Division stationed at Fort Benning.

A 13-gun salute, fired by Battery A, 2nd Battalion, 10th Artillery, marked the general's arrival with Brig. Gen. Ricardo Vasi Verme and 25 other officers from the staff and student body of the War College.

Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, commandant, The Infantry School, was local commander for the ceremony and accompanied Gen. Giral as he trooped the line inspecting an honor guard from Company C, 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade.

The Allied officers were briefed on the organization and mission of The Infantry School; visited classroom and field exercises and the Airborne and Ranger Departments; saw post training facilities; and visited the Third U.S. Army Training Aids Center.

An official reception was held in the Main Officer's Open Mess and an official luncheon was hosted by Gen. York.

The visitors departed Saturday from Lawson Army Airfield for Miami, Fla., en route to Peru after having toured U. S. military installations since Sept. 10.

Jewish Greeted On Holy Days By Commander

Fort Benning's Jewish congregation has received greetings from Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, Infantry Center commander, upon the observance of High Holy Days from Sunday, Sept. 26 through Wednesday, Oct. 6.

The religious holidays began at sunset last Sunday with Rosh Hashanah (the Jewish New Year) and will continue through Yom Kippur (the Day of Attonement) which ends at sunset, Oct. 6.

The general's message read, in part, "These days commemorate and recognize the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. Thus you establish the foundation upon which can be built a society of spiritual values to create and insure a world of peace.

"To those of you who hold dear and cherish the ancient custom of these holy days, I wish a year of happiness and strength with a renewed dedication of service both to God and man," York concluded.

Soldiers Can Save Now On Thrift Shop Uniforms

Because of the departure of so many from Fort Benning recently, the post Thrift Shop is overstocked with items marked at bargain prices for military personnel, according to Mrs. R. L. Kampe, manager.

Carrying a stock of such items as clothing, uniforms, sporting goods, toys and furniture, the Thrift Shop prices the goods for quick sale, taking as little profit as possible.

Items are sold by the Thrift Shop for servicemen and profits from the small commission charged are designated for post welfare funds which benefit everyone at Benning. Much of the money says Mrs. Kampe, goes to Martin Army Hospital for such things as layettes for needy mothers and toys for the pediatric ward. Also, $300 scholarships have been awarded post children from the money brought in by the shop.

Sponsored by the Officers Wives' Club, the Fort Benning Thrift Shop is one of the largest in the country. Located in Building 130 behind the Infantry Museum, the shop is open on Tuesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Property Disposal Store Open Oct. 6

Fort Benning's Property Disposal Retail Sales Store, Bldg. 1123 at the salvage yard, will be open Oct. 6 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Desks, chairs, stoves, refrigerators, clothing, footwear and tools are available in limited quantities on a first come, first served basis.

All transactions are cash.

Mountain Moved By Engineers

Camp Rash Bay, RVN (AFPS)—There is a granite mountain here and the U.S. Army is moving it—to supply crushed rock for the building of facilities in the area.

The job of moving the mountain is being handled by Company A, 864th Engineer Battalion (Construction). Working with two crusher systems, the company is turning out 3,000 to 4,000 yards of coarse and fine crushed rock daily.

The operation has a side advantage of providing work and training for 40 to 60 Vietnamese. One operation largely handled by the Vietnamese is drilling blast holes.

Ex-Cong Used by Vietnamese; Defectors Fit in RVN Program

Special to The Bayonet

HUNGDIEN, South Viet Nam — A former Viet Cong propagandist stood before a pagoda altar here and, using tactics the Communists had taught him, lectured a Vietnamese peasant militia platoon.

Can Duong Cong, 27, a graduate of Saigon University, had worked for the Communists in 1961.

The platoon, composed of barely literate men, sat around Can Duong Cong in a semi - circle. Cong emphasized to them why it is important not only to fight but also to know why.

For 12 straight days, he and other speakers would talk to the platoon. The lecturer would hammer on the importance of the militiaman seeing himself as a vital link between the people and the government.

The peasant soldiers are also told that they can depend on the government to protect their villages and that they should spread this word when they return home.

After 12 days, the lecture team moves on to a new province district.

Can Duong Cong, a sharp-minded, black - pajama - clad intellectual, is the perfect example of the South Vietnamese government's "hieu hai" or roughly, "open arms," policy.

He had served the Communists but had been disillusioned and was allowed to change sides as the policy of the South Vietnamese government permits.

In other words, the government—on American advice—thinks that at this stage of the war the Viet Cong should not only be defeated but also won back.

Village Supposedly Pacified

This village, about 50 miles south of Saigon is supposedly "pacified." But still no one dares to go out at night—because the night still belongs to the Viet Cong. It is said here that "the villager who smiles at you during the day may shoot you at night."

Two young U.S. Army officers from Wisconsin watch in the background as the former Viet Cong lectures to the peasant soldiers. Not far away is a regular Vietnamese army lieutenant. "We have found that Communists tactics can be used to advantage," says Capt. John W. Symons, 30, of Hartland, Wis.

The other American adviser, 1st Lt. Sam Thompson, 25, of Elmwood, Wis. puts it this way:

"We know that the Viet Cong is a good soldier. So why not imitate him to defeat him?"

There are three entities in the formal Vietnamese military establishment — Army, Air Force and Navy, which are the counterparts of similar American forces. These are directly responsible to the central government.

Working With Army

There is also the Regional Force, a national guard-type force which is recruited on a provincial basis. Like our National Guard, the Regional Force has a working relationship with the Regular Army.

Then there is the Popular Force. This simply is a force that has been set up to protect the villages and has little contact with the regional and the central governments.

It is generally conceded here by American military experts that the popular forces are in a bad way.

According to a report distributed by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of American forces here, and compiled by the Vietnamese, the Popular Forces—or peasants' army — suffers from high desertion rates, high weapon losses and high incidences of running away from the enemy.

It is also agreed that the popular forces, more than anyone else, have the most contact with the Viet Cong.

Liaison Officer Reassigned To Brifian

Three years of service with The Infantry School were closed last Saturday when Lt. Col. John E. Dent of County Kent England, left for home.

Since November 19, 1962, Dent has served at Fort Benning as British Army liaison officer to The Infantry School. He left Saturday for an assignment to the British School of Infantry at Warminster, Wiltshire, England.

Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, Infantry School commandant, presented Dent a Certificate of Achievement and a "Bayonet Plaque" for outstanding service at the School.

Dent was called on for his "guest speaker presentations to the Infantry officers career course."

His citation read in part "Throughout his period of service with The Infantry School, Col. Dent's uncompromising standards, sincere manner and pleasing personality were characteristic of his exceptional performance of duty.

"His enthusiasm, loyalty, devotion to duty and professional competence contributed immeasurably to the successful accomplishment of the mission of the United States Army Infantry School."

Gen Kinnard Appreciates Support for 1st Cavalry

From The Army Times

WASHINGTON — Maj. Gen. Harry Kinnard, CG of the 1st Cav. Div (Airmobile) in Vietnam, has thanked Army Materiel Command, Continental Army Command, Third Army and the Infantry Center at Fort Benning for aid in the formation, testing and deployment of the new unit.

In a letter to Army Chief of Staff, Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Gen. Kinnard said he wanted "to express my sincere appreciation for the support rendered by many agencies of the U. S. Army in assisting us to achieve an excellent readiness status.

"Wherever we went and to whomever we spoke, we met with a cooperative 'can do' attitude."

Considering that the division was officially notified of its mission to reorganize, re-equip and prepare for possible deployment on June 20, 1965, and that by August 20 all but 300 men of the 1st Cav. Div. had left Benning, Kinnard said, "I feel we have accomplished a noteworthy achievement.

"We could not have done it alone."

Kinnard said that the Army staff had been "most helpful and responsive to every query, request or recommendation made to them."

"Finally, I thank you (Gen. Johnson) most sincerely for your personal support which gave the necessary emphasis without which we just could not have 'cut it'."

U.S. Army Plane Sets Air Record

The Army XH-51A flew 263 m.p.h. at 12,000 feet, an altitude where most rotary wing vehicles are severely limited in performance. During the flight it was noted the high speeds combined with the spinning of the rotor to produce blade tip speeds of 715 m.p.h. — approaching the velocity of sound at that height and temperature.

The 4,500-pound aircraft is called a compound because it has fixed wings and an auxiliary forward thrust jet engine in addition to its helicopter rotor blades.

The aircraft, flying more than two miles above the earth, produced no evidence of blade stall and performed maneuvers without difficulty.

20 CENT PENSION

MACERATA, Italy (AP) — Pierina Bernardi, 72 years old is believed to receive the smallest penison in Italy. She gets 20 lire (20 cents) a year for having worked in a state tobacco factory in the 1920s. That is about the price of a soft drink in Italy today.

Post Announces Civil Service Job Openings

Positions open for medical technicians include medical technician general, rated General Service (GS) 5, salary, $5,000 per year; medical technician (histopathology), GS-5, $5,000 per year; and medical technologist (cytology), GS-5, $5,000 per year or GS-7 at $6,500 per year.

Information concerning the requirements for the medical technician positions and how to apply may be obtained at the Georgia State Employment Office; the Civil Service representative at the Columbus, Ga. Post Office; and the Board of Civil Service Examiners, Civilian Personnel Section, Infantry Center, in Bldg. 1620.

The position of sewing machine operator is rated Wage Board (WB) 4. with a salary of $1.55 per hour. Applicants must have had at least six months experience operating light duty power sewing machines in the alteration or repair of a variety of clothing.

Clothing and shoe fitter, a WB-6 position, pays $1.77 per hour. Applicants must have had at least a year of experience fitting men's shoes and clothing, including taking individual measurements and marking garments for alteration.

Personnel interested in the sewing machine operator or clothing fitter positions are requested to apply at the Board of Civil Service Examiners at Fort Benning.

Supplies Airdropped To Viet Nam Villages

Nha Trang, RVN (AFPS) — Scattered through the jungles and mountains of the Republic of Viet Nam are small village compounds protected by Vietnamese and their U. S. Army Special Forces advisors.

These isolated compounds depend almost entirely on airdrops for supplies. The 310th Aerial Commando Squadron, USAF, is one of the units making drops of grain, reading material, livestock and other supplies.

The crews of the C-130 "Providers" have become so skilled they can drop supplies within yards of flares set out by Special Forces soldiers. They must fly low and slow when making drops, putting supplies within the compounds, and the big aircraft make good targets for Viet Cong groundfire. In the past year, aircraft have been hit 140 times. Only one has been lost.

The compounds were built to help Vietnamese protect themselves against the Viet Cong. They are a strong threat to the success of the Viet Cong program of terrorism and taxation. The surrounding hills and woodlands are alive with Viet Cong who regularly attack to pilfer and destroy. The supply drops help keep the people within the compounds, where they are unified against the enemy, pay no Viet Cong taxes and form close friendships with the Special Forces advisors.

Linguistic Research Information Revealed at DOD Language Study

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The annual International Foreign Language Conference, sponsored by the Department of Defense Language Institute (DLI) and Syracuse University, met at the University's Minnowbrook Conference Center, Blue Mountain Lake, N. Y., Sept. 24-26.

The meeting provided a forum for the exchange of information concerning linguistic research, course development and aptitude and proficiency testing. The conference is an outgrowth of the Inter - Agency Language Round Table which meets monthly in Washington with participation by 15 government agencies involved in language training.

The Defense Language Institute was created in 1963 to bring all armed forces language training, except at the service academies, under the authority of the Secretary of the Army.

The services require full time foreign language training for nearly 7,000 personnel annually. About two-thirds of this requirement is met by the two DLI schools — the West Coast Branch at the Presidio of Monterey, Calif., and the East Coast Branch, located with DLI Headquarters here.

The Department of Defense requires personnel with capability in 65 languages of which 50 are scheduled for training each year. The DLI schools are currently running basic courses in 25 languages.

Teaching English as a foreign language for foreign military personnel — the second major training program over which DLI has technical control — has an annual enrollment estimated at 100,000. This training is conducted under the Military Assistance Program in 48 countries overseas and at the Air Force English Language School, Lackland AFB, Tex.

Washington Is Airborne Site For Reunion

The original parachute test platoon will be honored at the annual Airborne Association Reunion to be held in Washington, D.C., Oct. 26-28.

Commemorating the "first 25 years of the airborne soldier," the reunion will honor the 50 men who were selected from a group of 200 volunteers as the parachute test platoon at Fort Benning in July 1940.

To be held at the Hotel Washington, the reunion will include a reception, dance, beer party with musical and airborne show, memorial luncheon with famous airborne commanders as guest speakers, and a final dinner and dance with a floor show.

About 25 of the original test platoon are expected to be on hand for the affair. Registration fee is $20 per member and members may bring one female guest without extra charge. Application forms for membership and registration may be obtained by writing the Association at P. O. Box 5, Fort Bragg, N.C. or by contacting Lt. Col. James M. Townsend of the Airborne Department at 545-2713.

Re-up Bonus For Skills Begins Jan. 1

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Variable reenlistment bonus payments to certain critical skill personnel will begin Jan. 1, 1966, according to Defense officials.

Service secretaries have been asked to submit recommendations to the Department of Defense concerning guidelines and program alternatives furnished by Assistant Secretary of Defense (Manpower) Norman S. Paul.

Recommendations are due not later than Oct. 15.

The variable reenlistment provision is in the recent military pay act. It offers career incentives amounting up to several thousand dollars in some cases. This would be paid to designated critical skill personnel reenlisting for the first time (or extending long enough to qualify for the standard first reenlistment bonus).

Secretary Paul said it is not contemplated the program will be retroactive. This means, as it now stands, no one will be eligible for benefits until the program officially goes into effect next year.

Things to be ironed out include selection of the critical skill career fields and individual eligibility requirements.

Japan's Industrial Expansion Reaches Into Military Arms

NAGOYA — Japan's third "industrial revolution" consists not only of transistor radios, cameras and ballpoint pens but of jet fighters, antitank missiles and the whole arsenal of modern weaponry. Little is heard of this facet of Japanese industrialization but it has been mounting year by year.

Although Article 9 of the United States written post-war Consitution prohibits Japan from waging war, the Japanese Defense Agency is spending $1 billion a year on self-defense.

Its armed forces are in excess of 200,000 men including 13 army divisions, a 226-vessel navy and 2,000 air force planes. This compares favorably with the armed strength of several European North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries.

The defense agency also has drawn up a secret, highly controversial 1,400-page report under the code name "Three Arrows" which deals with the eventuality of Japan's involvement in Asian wars.

Recently the Howa Machinery Co. Ltd in Nagoya began production of 25,000 rifles and 150 mortars, worth nearly $5 million. Howa is only one of 61 Japanese companies producing weapons.

WINGS AND ROTORS . . . First complete view of the design for a new-type Army combat aircraft (Advanced Fire Support System—AAFSS) has been unveiled by Lockheed-California Co. It is a "compound" aircraft—a vehicle that has both rotor system and fixed wings—powered by a single jet engine. It will be able to make helicopter-type vertical takeoffs and landings, but will have the inherent stability of the rigid-rotor as well as the handling ease of a fixed wing plane from hover to speeds of more than 200 mph. The proposed two-man AAFSS vehicle, armed with a variety of weapons, could serve as an escort for troop-carrying helicopters and perform aerial fire support missions.

Candidates Encouraged At Opening

Brig. Gen. George I. Forsythe, Infantry School assistant commandant, spoke of the mission of an officer to new candidates at the opening of OCS class No. Three recently.

"Our mission," Gen. Forsythe said, "is to take our men to battle, fight and live; not to die."

The general went on to welcome the new candidates and read to them the certificate of commission that they will receive upon graduation.

The main points he stated were: "The standards you achieve in OCS; the great measure of determination needed; and the relationship between candidates, tactical officers and faculty."

Gen. Forsythe praised the high standards of the OC School and warned the candidates to prepare themselves for the effort they must put forth.

Post Colonel's Son Undergoes Citadel Hazing

Following traditions evolved at the military college since its founding in 1842, freshmen cadets are indoctrinated during a week of concentrated training prior to the reporting of upperclassmen.

This enables them to take their place as members of the South Carolina Corps of Cadets when it forms upon the arrival of the cadets of the upper classes.

During "Plebe Week" the freshmen underwent instruction in drill, college regulations, honor system and the traditions of The Citadel.

HORSEFLY KNOCKS GOLFER

TV ENROLLMENT

More than 10 million persons in the United States were enrolled in television education classes last year.

3 Majors Join Agency

Three majors have been assigned to the Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency (CDCIA) at Fort Benning.

They are Majs. Elden H. Wright, Cecil W. Nist Jr. and Paul R. Wholey.

Maj. Wright came to Fort Benning from an assignment in Korea. He is a graduate of the University of West Virginia at Morgantown and has completed officer career and communications courses at The Infantry School and airborne training at Fort Campbell, Ky.

Maj. Nist, who recently completed an assignemnt in Viet Nam, is a 1951 graudate of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y.

He has completed the officers career course and airborne training at The Infantry School and attended the U. S. Army Special Warfare School at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Maj. Wholey, who also came to the post from Viet Nam, is a graduate of The Infantry School's career course and of the U. S Army Language School at the Presidio of Monterey, Calif. He has been awarded a Bronze Star Medal and a Combat Infantryman Badge.

IOBC Students Hear Col Smith

Dedication and knowledge was the substance of the advice offered graduates of the Infantry Officer Basic Course No. 1 by Col. William E. Smith, chief, Tactics Group of Brigade and Battalion Operations during graduation ceremonies held recently.

Col. Smith congratulated the 214 officers "on completion of the course and for gaining insight to what the Army is like and for desiring to learn more about it."

BILL HEARD CHEVROLET USA

One of the Bond Gals

Luciana Paoluzzi is one of the fascinating new girls adding that extra something to the James Bond movies. She plays Fiona, an alluring agent of SPECTRE. She will be appearing in "Thunderball", the latest in the 007 series. According to the film makers, United Artists, Luciana's passionate kisses are a prelude to a Black Widow sting of death intended for Bond. Here she was photographed on the beach, as can be seen from the sand sticking to her arms and legs.

SCUTTLED SHIPS

The Japanese are sinking ships to protect them whenever a typhoon threatens according to the publication Product Engineering. The ships, called floating trains, are a system of steel containers 75 feet long and propelled by tug boats. Each of the containers has a number of air bags that can be deflated to sink the train to the sea floor if a storm arises. After the storm passes, air is pumped back into the bags and the containers float to the surface.

Buildup of Troops Ups Promotions

From The Army Times

WASHINGTON — The 340,000-man buildup of military forces will accelerate enlisted promotions, Pentagon officials say. The promotion breakthrough is expected to be accomplished over a two-year period.

According to personnel officials, the percentages of enlisted men in the top six grades may decline in one or more services but the magnitude of the buildup will still require many more in those noncom and petty officer grades. This means more promotions.

The number of promotions will probably vary by service. Army may see as large as a 20 per cent hike in the number of men in the top six. Air Force will probably not feel the impact of the promotion increases as much. Navy is somewhere in the middle and the Marine Corps picture is unclear.

The services have been bucking to keep the present percentages of total enlisted strength in the top six but Defense officials consider this unrealistic and so will trim down the requests.

Defense personnel planners want to insure that the promotions are not made too rapidly because the present buildup may not be permanent. That's why the promotion acceleration is being spread over the next two years.

If there were a faster increase and the Vietnamese situation eased off with an accompanying cutback in U. S. armed strength, an enlisted promotion freeze would result. Enlisted personnel structure changes made now will affect the force for a decade.

Officials have not yet released the grade-by-grade breakdown of the increase in manpower. They say, in fact, that even the enlisted-officer comparisons are still classified. But, it was leaned that the 340,000-man increase will be at a ratio of about seven enlisted men to one officer.

Although most of the buildup will be in new recruits, quite a few prior servicemen will be brought in. They come in with rank and this could mitigate somewhat the expected promotion increases — particularly in the Air Force.

Pentagon personnel planners are now working on thier fiscal 1967 budget submission and the new budget, due out in January, will reflect the increased enlisted promotions.

Because of statutory and other limitations, the number of additional promotions for officers should not be significant.

Instant Pudding

New Device Booms Out Foxholes

FORT CLAYTON, C. Z. (ANF) — Instant foxholes are the end-product of an explosive device now being tested here at the U. S. Army Tropic Test Center.

Called a Foxhole Digging Aid, the one pound cylinder was created to help the front - line soldier speedily prepare one and two-man protective shelters and light weapons emplacements. Properly placed and detonated by the soldier, the device loosens the soil with two explosive charges fired in sequence.

In minutes the soil can be scooped from the hole to a depth of three feet and only a portion of the usual effort is required to excavate to the full depth desired.

Preliminary tests have shown that the device can slice two-thirds from the time normally needed to dig a foxhole in hard soil.

Developed by the U. S. Army Engineer Research and Development Laboratories at Fort Belvoir, Va, the digging aid will go through a complete tropic test cycle here.

HOMEWARD BOUND . . . The Hughes Trophy, awarded annually to the unit selected by the Army Aviation Association as having contributed most to the development of Army aviation, is shown as it departs Fort Benning. Gen York Urges Parents Make PTA 'Meaningful' in New Term

Parents need to go back to school, sit down with their children, listen and observe to get the real parent-teacher relationship, more than 800 military parents were told at the opening meeting of Fort Benning's PTA Tuesday night.

Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, guest speaker at the meeting in Marshall Auditorium in Bldg. 4 urged his listeners to make PTA relationship meaningful during the 1965-1966 school year.

"Most of us go to PTA because our child asks us to," he said. "It is important to him for us to be there and sign the book so his room will be 100 per cent and get a ribbon or other award."

The general said, "We don't get the real parent-teacher relationship that way."

Replying to an invitation to visit the dependent schools, issued by Mrs. Hazel Scudder, superintendent of schools, Gen. York suggested that parents accept the invitation and not only visit but take the time to discuss school problems with the teachers.

The general challenged both teachers and parents to "set the standards of education high and see that the pupils live up to them."

21 Retire, Receive ACMs In Ceremony

The Army Commendation Medal was awarded to 21 officers and enlisted men during retirement ceremonies held at Fort Benning Wednesday.

Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, Infantry Center commander, presented the medals to Lt. Col. Paul H. Dixon, Maj. Wilbur C. Baggett, Maj. Lawrence R. Fralick, CWO George Moeller, MSgt. Jack A. Warren, SFC Raymond Cormier, SFC Frank W. Baraga Jr., SFC Milton L. Collins, SFC Lamare Geddis, SFC Henry McGruder, SFC Whit L. Moon, SFC Charles W. Wondersee, SSgt. Fred A. Chambers, Sgt. Charlie C. Anderson, Sgt. David Bassham, Sp5 Cornelius Lee and Sgt. George E. Samson.

Receiving first oak leaf clusters were SFC William H. Lindsey, SFC Harvey G. Phillips and Sgt. Buster L. Lewis while CWO Coats Brown was awarded the third oak leaf cluster.

The honor and color guard was furnished by Company C, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry.

Five problems are attempted by five man teams with each man given the chance to be the team leader. The feat that these officers accomplished is outstanding in that in 1200 groups since 1963 only seven groups have completed five out of five while four out of five is a rarity.

Benning Hosts Basketball Clinic

SHOWING A HOLDING VIOLATION
Floor Demonstration at Briant Wells Field House

Fort Benning hosted the first Third Army - wide basketball officials clinic this week at Briant Wells Field House. Representatives from posts throughout the Third Army area participated in the three days of lectures and floor demonstrations on basketball rules and officiating techniques.

According to John Danekar, an instructor at the clinic and president of the Fort Benning Officials Association, the clinic was designed to train qualified instructors to conduct their own training programs on return to their assigned posts.

He added that one of the clinic's main goals was the standardization of rules through the Army area. "For this reason," he said, "we are covering material in depth beginning with the fundamentals." He added that rules guidebooks would be given to all students at the clinic to help insure rules remain the same at all third Army posts.

Clinic Instructors

Instructors for the clinic under the direction of Raymond Wiles came from the Fort Benning Officials Association and Third Army headquarters at Fort McPherson.

On Monday night a welcome banquet was held for clinic participants at the Gold Bar Club. David Gilbraith of the Southeastern basketball conference was guest speaker.

Clinic spokesmen said that this was the first time Third Army has held a basketball clinic embracing its entire area. Clinics had previously been given only at the individual post level.

This year students came from Fort Jackson, S. C.; Fort McClellan, Ala.; Fort Gordon, Ga.; Fort Stewart, Ga.; Fort Bragg, N. C.; Redstone Arsenal, Ala; Fort Campbell, Ky.; Fort Rucker, Ala.; and Fort McPherson, Ga.

Most of the men attending had prior officiating experience according to clinic instructors.

Daily instruction at the clinic usually began with classroom work covering basketball rules. Discussions were augmented with films and slides. This was followed by floor work under game conditions with students officiating.

As part of the current preparation for the Fort Benning basketball season which will begin about Nov. 10, the Fort Benning Officials Association will conduct a post clinic according to Danekar. It will be held on three Sundays beginning Oct. 10. Place and time have yet to be announced.

Boxing Matches Scheduled Tonight

The 4th Student Battalion (Abn.), The Student Brigade will sponsor boxing matches starting at 7 p.m. tonight at the arena on Beane Street behind the battalion's Headquarters and Service Company. All boxing fans are invited to attend.

Skindiving Increases in Popularity Among U.S. Military on Okinawa

From the Army Times

FORT. BUCKNER, Okinawa — Skindiving is a growing sport among American military personnel and dependents here on Okinawa. Skindivers talk of the haunting beauty of the sea floor, its vegetation and coral formations. They speak of the sensation of floating and the dangers of currents and sea snakes. There are the mysteries of the sea with its unworldly inhabitants.

"It's a different world, a new element," said PFC Ed Scott, who works in the optical laboratory at the U. S. Army Hospital: "You're not so bound by gravity and there is a tremendous sense of freedom. I guess you're just as free as a fish."

Scott is a member of the Okinawa Ocean Rovers, a group devoted to off - duty weekend skindiving. President of this water - logged group is Maj. Edward McNulty, G4, USARYIS. Club members must provide their own equipment, including masks, snorkels, swim fins and compressed air tanks. Members use and comply with provisions of USARYIS Regulation 385-23, Scuba Diving and Water Sports.

Seasonal Changes

The club membership changes with the seasons. In the summer there are about 80 military personnel and dependents active. In the winter, it shrinks to 35 polar-bear types wearing rubbery, wet-suits to ward off the chill. These wet-suits are also worn in the summer for cool times, diving in deeper and colder depths and for protection against poisonous marine life.

In any season, safety is the key word for divers. Before any group diving is allowed, a safety officer and one or two aides go in first to check for jagged coral or other hazards. They also check for deadly sea creatures such as sharks or sea snakes. Sharks are rare, but the sea snake is a constant visitor. Members emphasized that all divers are briefed on what to do when the snakes come around.

Wary Eye

The procedure is to keep a wary eye on the creature. If sea snakes are not bothered, they will generally stay away, but if they should come close, one procedure to discourage them is to move the feet rapidly. Capt. Alan E. Rozon former president of the club, pointed out that sea snakes in the diving area are not usually a hazard, but that in January and February they appear to be more aggressive than usual. The thing is to stay cool and alert.

Once the all clear has been given by the safety officer, the Okinawa Ocean Rovers clear the decks for a day of wet relaxation.

Members dive for diffrent reasons. Some search for underwater caverns or collect shells while others take photos or do some underwater hunting with spear guns. A few just follow the fish around, enjoying the sensations of floating and the languid freedom it allows.

ARCARO TOP JOCKEY

Tennis Tourney Begins Oct. 7

The annual fall tennis championships sponsored by the Main Officers' Club are scheduled to begin next week at the club courts. All Officers' Club members are invited to participate.

The tourney, which will run from Oct. 7 to 16, will include mens singles and doubles, class A singles, women's singles, men's senior singles and mixed doubles.

Entry fees are $2.00 per team and each singles event. For further information, call the tennis pro shop at 545-4895.

Army to Assign New Sports Chief

Lt. Col. Ralph F. Mendenhall of the U.S. Modern Pentathlon Team will take over the reins of the Army Sports Section on December 1. He will replace Lt. Col. Gene Myers who retires November 30.

Mendenhall had been assigned to DA Sports earlier from 1955-59 where he held posts on nine Olympic committees and various AAU committees.

The Aftermath

By DICK MINNIG

What Price Glory?

FROM THE "Ain't anything sacred anymore department"... or "Ted Erickson and his wonderful computing machine."

Automation, the bane of labor, may be fast invading the sacred precincts of sports. Last week a course computer came to the aid of a Chicago research chemist in his record-breaking swim of the English Channel and the world of nuts and bolts came one step deeper into the realm of muscle and lung power.

It was Ted Erickson's fourth attempt to swim the channel both ways non-stop and he bettered the old mark by 13 hours and three minutes. He made an attempt last year but was swept off course by tricky tides and had to give up. The same thing happened twice in the last two weeks with Erickson explaining, "We fed the computer with tidal streams, direction and my swimming speed but somehow we forgot about the wind."

During his conquest of the channel, however, Erickson and his computer got an assist from a human pilot, always an essential part of channel efforts. As he stroked along, the pilot amended the computer's calculations and Erickson wound up the winner. Score another victory for science but what of sports?

Inventiveness Is Human Nature

MEN PROGRESS through inventiveness. In the 1,750,000 years we have been hanging around street corners, we've managed to raise ourselves from draughty caves and raw meat to the present era of the electric toothbrush and the near creation of life in a laboratory test tube. I suppose it was inevitable that our natural inventiveness would invade the world of sports. The tendency was present when one of our wiley ancestors put a throwing stick on the end of his spear for the added power and range his arm couldn't give.

But, echoing a phrase of horror movie fame, "Was man meant to delve into such things.". . . at least where sports are concerned? Using a springier pole for added lift in vaulting competitions is one thing, but a computer is another.

For me, sports have always tested the naked skill of muscle, wind and brain. While I admire Erickson's endurance and ingenuity, I wonder if his feat is not more a test of the

Editor's View

By Jim Baker

Ever wondar why Americans have such a penchant for coffee?

Why not tea, milk or just plain water or even beer?

It has to be coffee with cream, coffee with cream and sugar, coffee with sugar or plain coffee.

The Army does much to perpetuate the coffee cult. The first inkling of it comes to the basic trainee the first time he comes in from a night of training — the mess sergeant has prepared hot coffee or hot chocolate and maybe something to eat.

The platoon sergeant tells you "When I was in Korea we never came in from a patrol without having something hot waiting for us."

Your first reaction is "Boy, it's sure a good thing the mess sergeant was on your side if he always had the hot stuff timed for the patrol's return."

First Encounter

But after this first encounter with the hot coffee cult comes further initiation in the mysterious rite.

If the soldier is assigned to an infantry line company, he soon finds that many of his leaders—company, platoon and squad—are in the mess hall sometime between the hours of 9 and 10 a.m. partaking of the bounty found therein.

Another startling discovery is that there is a snack bar or snack truck somewhere which purveys hot coffee — that marvelous adrenalin stimulant — for everyone and that the price is only five or ten cents depending on the amount of stimulant needed.

There are as many ways to get coffee in the Army as there are soldiers who want it.

But the real circus comes to the soldier who works where there is an electrical outlet and water is within two miles. This gives way to the cult of the coffee machine.

Discipline

The discipline of the coffee machine mystique is caste conscious and rigid.

Invariably there is the coffee - maker — the great poo-baahh of the cult—his rank may vary but he is the maestro—the man who like all fine artists is proud of his art and constantly endeavoring to improve it. In our case, that great talent is that of making worse coffee than anyone has ever tried or bothered to do.

Our maestro is one who will never volunteer to "clean out the pot" and if prevailed upon to do so can be depended upon to come up with better coffee than usual — his only little form of protest.

Then there are the other members of the coffee cult — the participants who come to the altar bearing vessels as varied as the animals in Noah's ark.

They have cups with their names painted on, engraved or just lettered with a "magic marker." Cups can have ranks, nicknames or can be just plain old PX crockery. They approach the altar in many ways—with just washed out dripping cups; brown stained cups from fifteen days ago; with bleary eyes; with bright - eyed expectancy; with two cups; and invariably one who elbows to the fore with the message "this one's for the colonel."

Associated with the fringes of the coffee machine cult are all the assorted vices which creep into it.

On The Fringe

There is "the once a month guy" who comes cheerily to you on pay day looking for the dollar to perpetuate the cult another month.

Then there is the visitor from across the way — he or she needs just enough to keep the cult going that morning — "The fund ran out."

There are the grafters—the guys who tell the collection agency that they won't be having any this month and who at least once a day help themselves to a cup under the most natural guise in the world. They come in stopping at all the desks, talking cheerily about the weather, the morning headlines, so-and-so went to Viet Nam and the "crummy coffee in the mess hall."

Another villain is the organizer. He is perhaps the most odious because he is probably the most innocent.

He is the one who takes it upon himself to see to it that "everything gets cleaned up." He is the one who publicizes the foibles and follies of us all by posting a "roster of people to clean up."

Decides Justice

He is the one who decides justice when there is no justice, decides who shall be martyred when there are no martyrs needed, pushes the cult off on the innocent by involving them when they have no desire to participate. His excuse—"this place is an eye-sore."

Everyone participates in the cult to greater or lesser degrees. The coffee maker is usually one of the people who only drinks five or six cups a day.

The fiend drinks about 20 cups a day. He can be seen moving between the desk and the machine more often than he can be seen anywhere else. He is found at the end of the day rushing madly through the work that didn't get done earlier because of the trips to the machine.

Most fiends are also chain smokers and will be identified by the grimace they make as they sip cold coffee and grope for one of the three lit cigarettes in the ashtray.

Darn it, my coffee's cold and I can't decide which butt to pick up.

Members Still Sought Here For Chorus

Only 11 have applied for positions in the new soldier's chorus now being formed at Fort Benning, according to special services officials.

They say there are many more openings available and any one interested may apply for a position by going to the special services office.

The Fort Benning Soldiers' Chorus is being activated for the entertainment, recreation and morale of Fort Benning personnel — to be used at command and official functions.

It will be under the direction of the USAIC bandmaster and the choral director.

All male enlisted personnel in grade E-2 or higher are eligible to apply for membership in this chorus, said the announcement from Special Services.

Final acceptance of applicants will be based on an interview and audition, and subsequent approval of the choral director and USAIC bandmaster, spokesmen said.

It was requested that all applicants interested in joining the Fort Benning Soldiers' Chorus contact Special Services' entertainment section at 545-5641.

Those selected will be assigned special duty and attached to the USAIC band for duty, rations and quarters according to Special Services officials.

Prospective members who have background in music or choral activities through such means as school, church or community projects are requested to make application.

Personnel with professional musical background are urged to apply according to spokesmen for Special Services.

The last time there was an official Infantry Center choral group was two years ago, officials said.

SIX-YEAR MOLARS

Six-year molars are the child's first permanent teeth and are highly important as keystones for all other second teeth, the American Dental Association points out.

AT THE Movies

THE BEDFORD INCIDENT — The U. S. destroyer Bedford is a tight ship, under the iron fist of Capt. Richard Widmark. On a routine submarine patrol in the Greenland straits, Widmark is not too happy with two men aboard, topnotch news correspondent - photographer Sidney Poitier and the ships new doctor, Lt. Cmdr. Martin Balsam. Poitier and Balsam become aware that the Bedford is run by a martinet whose only fault is his driving quest for "perfection". The sonar operator of the Bedford picks up a Russian submarine. Widmark requests permission from Fleet to intercept the submarine but is ordered to "wait". Countering every trick of the sub, Widmark follows it as the suspense mounts and explodes in a startling climax.

THE HILL is the explosive story of five English soldiers, held in a British military stockade in North Africa, during World War II. The prisoners are mostly drunkards, thieves and cheats but one among them, Sean Connery, has been imprisoned, unjustly, for cowardice under fire. To rehabilitate the men into fit soldiers, guard Ian Hendry forces them repeatedly to climb a huge manmade hill in full pack under a blazing sun. Soon the weakest among them dies from heat and exhaustion. Connery determines to bring this mistreatment of prisoners to the authorities. This leads to the exciting climax, which determines whether justice is to be done, or if the entire incident is to be concealed and forgotten.

OPERATION C. I. A. — A CIA agent on duty in Saigon is murdered while trying to get word to the U. S. Embassy about a peril scheduled to strike within five days. Agent Burt Reynolds is rushed in to solve the secret of the never delivered message. Reynolds contacts his Vietnamese undercover agent and learns that an attempt is to be made to assassinate the American Ambassador. His efforts to put together the pieces of the puzzle lead into one murderous trap after another. Tension and suspense mount as Reynolds desperately seeks to find the identity of the Viet Cong key agent before the plot can be carried out.

WINTER A-GO-GO — William Wellman Jr., an athletic, personable young man, inherits a ski lodge on the south shore of Lake Tahoe, at Heavenly Valley, and is determined to make it a place for young people to have good, clean winter fun. He's so busy with the endeavor that he doesn't give much time to Beverly Adams, a beautiful young girl who is mad for him. James Stacy is his good pal and promotion man for the lodge. The youngsters face trouble in the person of Walter Marlow who holds a mortgage on the lodge and is determined to close it within a 90 day period. The lodge attracts a gang of snow-bunnies and thrives. Everyone has a ball as music is supplied by "The Nooney Rickett Four" and "The Reflectors." — 'nuff said.

36 HOURS — American Major James Garner is assigned a secret mission in Lisbon and prior to departure, given the exact date and plans for the D-Day invasion. Garner is drugged in a Lisbon cafe by Nazi agents — and wakes up to find his face, his past and his mind—all changed! Eva Marie Saint portrays a former concentration camp prisoner, in the role of a nurse, forced to spy on Garner. Here is a lifetime of intrigue mounting suspense and explosive drama which offers top entertainment for all.

LIGHT WEIGHT

Indiana's ace end, Bill Malinchak, believes in being as light as possible when he is on the playing field. He wears soccer shoes because they're six ounces lighter than football shoes. And he has discarded his belt because it weighs three ounces. Malinchak also wants to discard his pads but is likely to be overruled on that issue.

Moonlighter Hands GI Second Baseball Chance

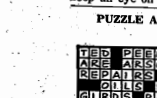
From the Army Times

FORT DEVENS, Mass.—A moonlighting officer doubling as major league baseball scout may provide a soldier with a second chance to make the big time.

Ron Kellogg of Fort Devens made his first bid as a high school hurler in Hannibal, N. Y., where he compiled a 25-3 mark including seven no-hitters. The St. Louis Cardinals then handed him a $4500 bonus and shipped him to the Appalachian League. Ron wasn't able to cut the mustard there and moved down to a semi-pro circuit.

In 1963, he joined the Army and played for Fort Monmouth where his pitching suddenly improved — so much that an Army major (who happened to be a Chicago White Sox scout) said he'd keep an eye on his progress.

PUZZLE ANSWER



Aftermath

Erickson's victory was striking. He beat Antonio Albertondo, the old record holder, by more than 2 hours. But where would he have wound up without the machine? There's an amazing difference between a naked fist and a rifle.

Emphasis in Modern Sports

THE EMPHASIS in modern sports seems to be on the specialist. Golf, bowling, baseball and basketball lay greater stress on an athlete's technical skill than on his physical prowess. In the world at large, our time has often been called the age of specialization. But for all tried-and-true, back slapping, T.V.-watching sport's lovers, the line must be drawn somewhere. What price glory?

To the men of science, I issue a plea. Leave sports alone. To the athlete I say leave the machine at home and come as you are.

But, alas, if we could devise the electric toothbrush and junior Tractor could marry Moon Maid, is the day drawing when Sports Illustrated will look like Scientific American and guided footballs will hum over the gridiron?

Benning Marks 47th Anniversary

Land Was Originally a Plantation

About the only claim to fame Fort Benning had back in 1918 was its knee-deep mud. But when the "Home of the Infantry" marked its 47th anniversary yesterday the post had better reasons for claiming importance.

The history of Fort Benning ranges from an aristocratic cotton plantation set in the red hills of western Georgia to its present status as the hub of worldwide Infantry activities.

In World War I, temporary troop-housing was established on property owned by a cotton planter. Camp Benning was formed on Oct. 7, 1918 at a site on Macon Rd. in Columbus.

The next year the Government decided to make the post a permanent home and bought the plantation property for slightly less than half-a-million dollars. Later that year the post was moved from Macon Rd. to its present area and renamed Fort Benning in 1922.

Today more than $151 million has been spent on buying more land, constructing buildings and making improvements. The post's land area is 285 square miles and it has a military population of about 30,000 persons with over 10,000 on-post dependents.

First Recruits Arrive; Training Begins Monday

New recruits still in civilian clothes stood scratching their fresh shaved heads Monday morning at Fort Benning as Army drill sergeants lined them up and began the 72-hour business of marching them through initial processing as members of Uncle Sam's Army.

Robert M. Chaney, a tobacco farmer from Douglas, Ga., the first recruit to step from the first bus last Friday afternoon, went through the process of becoming a soldier Monday.

He was given his GI hair cut which was considerably less than the well - known "bean-shave" and then went through the business of being issued uniforms, testing for aptitudes, personal affairs interviews, dental examinations, and records processing and classification.

The Best Possible

According to Col. Bob Edwards, acting commander of the Army Training Center at Fort Benning, the process of turning the average civilian into "the best soldier possible," was "a difficult but rewarding job."

According to Maj. Edwin Davis, Reception Station commander, it takes 72 hours to fully outfit, test and evaluate the soldier before he is turned over to one of the training companies for the eight weeks of the basic combat training.

For Chaney and the 160 trainees who arrived over the weekend, the earlier part of the week saw them go through the final phases of testing and classification. They were also given the opportunity to arrange such personal affairs as allotments for wives and dependents, tax deductions and social security registrations.

The final day of processing saw the recruits classified according to aptitudes, given their innoculations and sent to their companies for training.

Although Benning's reception station is capable of tak-of the U. S. Infantry whose doctrines and principles extend around the globe.

Benning

Over 350,000 men, including thousands of Allied officers, have been trained in the Ranger and Airborne Schools, specialist training courses, Infantry Officer Candidate School and officer career courses.

This year has been a big one for Fort Benning with a large turnover of troops caused by the merging of the 11th Air Assault and 2nd Infantry Divisions into the 1st Cavalry Division. This unit was then sent to Viet Nam thus leaving the areas of Sand Hill and Harmony Church almost vacant.

But the emptiness didn't last as this month a training center was formed. The center accommodates 3000 permanent personnel and an estimated 3100 basic trainees will be received each week.

Expansion plans went even further when the Army announced recently that in accordance with its plan to speed up activation and training of the new helicopter companies, Fort Benning would receive UH-1B "Huey" helicopter and CH-47 "Chinook" companies consisting of 525 officers and men.

The Officer Candidate School is being expanded to take in about 2,000 extra students per year pushing the annual total of graduates up to an estimated 3600.

The modern age of nuclear power, rockets and push-button warfare has failed to lessen the importance of the Infantry. The soldier is still the essential element of victory in combat.

With this in mind, the "academy of the battlefield" — the U. S. Army Infantry School at Fort Benning — turns out more than 10,000 combat-ready men a year.

Army training centers throughout the United States send hundreds of men each year to the Infantry School's Airborne Department.

Training techniques used by the airborne are the result of more than 20 years of experience.

"The success of the training has been proven by the 200,000 parachutists who have graduated from jump school," department officials said.

Fort Benning is also the home of the famed Ranger Department. Purpose of this training is to develop shock troops who can perform unequaled raids, ambushes and reconnaissance patrols. Here select men receive rugged training which make them the finest small unit leaders in the world.

In addition to tough fighting men, Fort Benning is also the supply point for thousands of well-trained officers. Since its inception more than 20 years ago, the Officer Candidate School has graduated nearly 80,000 second lieutenants many of whom proved their mettle in World War II and Korea.

Another important adjunct to the Infantry School is the Allied Training Program which teaches combat methods of the Infantry to officers and non-commissioned officers of many Allied countries.

At 47, Fort Benning is one of the most important posts in the U. S. Army. It has grown rapidly and strongly and has great prospects for continued growth. Its present importance is a far-flung cry from its crude beginning in 1918. Today it is a big post with a big job to do—helping preserve freedom.

Theater Praised For Ambition

This week the Fort Benning Little Theater launched its season with "The Hostage" by Brendan Behan.

Fort Benning soldiers and dependents, whether theater lovers or not, would be well advised to support this enterprising young group of dedicated players.

Many of them have civilian theatrical backgrounds while some have only worked in Army theaters.

Whatever their backgrounds, they are a dedicated few who spend many hours in rehearsal for the privilege and thrill of performing for an audience.

The hours spent in rehearsal have their lighter moments, but for the most part it is hard work. They ask only for the opportunity to entertain.

The group has in the past won Third Army Theater awards and is now embarked on this ambitious venture in experimental theater — "The Hostage."

This group deserves our support.

Daily Devotions Held By CTC

Daily devotional services are being conducted in the Headquarters Company dayroom at the Infantry Center Troop Command.

According to Chap. (Lt. Col.) Gray G. Johnson, the services are being held in an effort to involve a greater number of enlisted men in the religious program of CTC.

Chap. Johnson initiated the program three weeks ago in order to bring the services to the troops so that it might be easier and more convenient for the men to attend a religious program.

The services, held daily from 12:30 to 12:45 p.m., have an average attendance of twenty soldiers.

The chaplain issued a warm invitation to all CTC personnel to attend the services.

Clips and Bandages In Mantle's Daily Ritual

One of the daily rituals that few people see or hear about pertains to the condition and contents of Mickey Mantle's locker.

It doesn't matter whether the Yankees are home in New York or playing in Minneapolis or Los Angeles.

When Mantle reports to the ball park the first things he sees in his locker are two rolls of foam rubber bandages and five to eight metal clips — clips that hold three feet of bandage on each of his aching legs.

Big Pete Sheehy and Little Pete Previte, Yankee club house custodians since before Mantle came up to the Yankees in 1951, have many daily chores and the clips and bandages are things they've handled so much they think nothing of them.

"After every game," says Big Pete, "we dry the bandages, trainer Joe Soares examines them and before each game we put them in Mickey's locker."

"Mantle knows so much about how to wrap those things around his legs," Casey Stengel once said, "that nobody — not even a doctor — could do it any better."

The bandages run from close to Mantle's ankles to well above his knees.

The Judge Says . . .

Don't Spend More Than You Make

All family men will agree that there is one thing just as certain as death and taxes: monthly bills.

Despite keen competition for the consumer dollar during the rest of the month, it seems that all the merchants have combined in one giant conspiracy to cause the breadwinner to have sinking spells as he sorts through the vast array of bills and reminders of past-due bills that cascade from his mail box on the first of every month.

Bills and accounts seem to come with such frequency that someone has remarked "they don't make the months as long as they used to."

With today's pay scale servicemen, like other folks, can provide their families with the necessities of life — food, shelter, clothing. In addition they may acquire such "luxuries" as dishwashers, clothes dryers, stereophonic record equipment and expensive automobiles. Some say that such "luxuries" are status symbols displayed in an effort to "keep up with the Joneses".

Sometimes we think we are ahead of the Joneses, but when we look at the balance in our checking accounts, we find we are lagging behind in payment of the purchase price for the possessions that got us there.

To illustrate suppose that Sgt. E. Z. Spender, who is married, with two children, has a take-home pay after deductions of $365.00 per month. He recently bought a new economy car with monthly payments of $55 even though he still owed a local finance company $250 as the balance of a small loan.

He and his wife decided to buy some new furniture and appliances on the installment plan. The salesman told them the payments were small and they could make them easily. Sgt. Spender didn't bother to total up his obligations each month but assumed he could pay for the furniture and appliances. Later on, he found to his dismay that his income would not "stretch."

Since he had bought the furniture and appliances on a charge account, he had taken title to the goods and could not return them to the seller when he could not make his payments. The seller wanted his money — not the return of the furniture.

In desperation, Sgt. Spender finally added up his bills. He found he owed $1,250 and every creditor wanted payment at once. The merchants were harassing Spender through his commanding officer by threats of a law suit and other action.

A friend suggested bankruptcy. He didn't really like the idea of having the tag "bankrupt" pinned on him but he knew of no other way to be relieved from payment of his overdue obligations.

If you find yourself approaching Spender's condition, talk to your soldiers advocate or legal assistance officer. He may be able to help you rearrange your schedule of monthly payments. Most creditors will agree to reasonable extensions of time where necessary.

Learn with Sgt. Spender — there are less expensive and more desirable ways to pay your bills without losing your credit and injuring your reputation. Bankruptcy should be the last resort, not the first.

The Surgeon Says

Children's Fever: The Cause and Care

Fever is a common occurrence in children. Usually it occurs while the child is sick, but it may occur when the child is well. Fever by itself means nothing. The amount of the fever is of far less importance than the fact that the child has a fever.

How much temperature is a fever? Usually any temperature of 101 degrees rectally or over 100 degrees by mouth is considered a fever. Temperatures should not be taken if the child has been playing or exercising and feels hot. He is hot and his temperature is higher than normal, but after a short rest it will fall to normal.

What does fever mean? Usually it means that the child's body is fighting an infection of some kind. The body knows that disease germs do not grow well at high temperatures, therefore, fever occurs and helps the body fight the infection. Strenuous efforts to bring a sick person's temperature back to normal before the infection is cured are really harmful. It is extremely difficult to do, anyway.

Does fever mean the child is sick? Usually yes; but occasionally a child, especially a little one, will have a "fever" for several hours without any illness of any kind. If the child does not act sick, the "fever" means absolutely nothing, and nothing should be done to treat it except to give him some extra water or juices.

A sick child with fever is best treated by first, an aspirin tablet — the dose is one baby aspirin for each year of age, given four times a day. Children, 10 years old, may take two adult aspirins or APC's. All children will take aspirin, especially if crushed and put with applesauce or chocolate syrup, etc.

Sometimes liquid aspirin-like preparations are used. Dosage is on the label. If fever persists and the child looks ill, then a visit to the family doctor is in order.

In most doctor's office and hospitals, the most expert and best care is given during normal office hours — and sometimes of great importance — specialized laboratory tests are available at these times. Your doctor will tell you how to treat the fever.

Occasionally the fever is unusually high (105-106). At these times it is best to give the child a cool tub bath for 15-20 minutes and repeat it as necessary. A tub bath is much more effective than an alcohol sponge.

In general, a child with a fever should wear as little as possible. A shirt may be too much. Huge amounts of fluid should be given—at least a 6-8 ounce glass of water, milk, juice, Kool-Ade or tea each waking hour and as often as possible during the night. Do not worry about food. The child will catch up on his feedings after he is well.

It is important to remember not to give more than the recommended dose of aspirin. It is not "candy," it is a medicine. "Accidental" overdoses of aspirin kill more children each year than polio, and measles together.

Columbus Day

Explorers' Motto The Same Today

A vast portion of the earth's surface has been explored and mapped in man's undying quest to explain the unknown. The search into the unknown today is primarily directed towards outer space.

But, 473 years ago, an Italian navigator was infected with a desire to learn more about the mass of water and land upon which he lived. He wasn't satisfied with knowing where man had been; he wanted to go beyond those limits and see what was "over there."

He, of course, was Christopher Columbus and, in his quest, he found the land mass which is now known as the Western Hemisphere.

While in some ways, Columbus was much like our present day space explorers, he had a disadvantage not entirely prevalent today. Through mechanical and scientific discoveries we have a preface and introduction to what lies in outer space. But Columbus was at a loss — he had nothing. In fact, the consensus then was that he was sailing into oblivion. Most people figured the horizon was the edge of the world.

But with conviction and, probably, a certain sense of fear, Columbus and about 88 men undertook a voyage which could be compared today to that of the Nautilus as it probed under the North Pole.

As each Oct. 12 rolls around, many people in this hemisphere pause and reflect upon what was accomplished by Columbus and his three small ships. Perhaps they also wonder how the natives Columbus discovered got here. Some probably remember history lessons in school that told of Lief Erickson's voyage to northeastern North America about 1,000 A.D. and perhaps some have heard of Hoei-shin, a Chinese Buddhist monk, who is supposed to have sailed to what is now called Mexico in the 5th century A.D..

While Columbus gets credit for "discovering America" there may have been many other hearty souls who found this continent long before him. But no matter who actually was the first we must remember that it took courage and fortitude to set sail into the unknown.

In the next few years we will no doubt see modern-day explorers reaching the moon, building space labs in the "outer limits" and other undreamed-of feats.

Like the man we honor Oct. 12, they will be pioneers, adventurers and explorers in the quest for knowledge of the unknown. (AFPS)

In Viet Nam:

Navy Ship to Provide Open Heart Surgery

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Open heart surgery near front-line troops will be tried when the Navy sends its de-mothballed hospital ship USS Repose to the Republic of Viet-Nam early next year.

This will be the first time this type surgery has been attempted so near the front lines, said the Navy's Surgeon General Rear Admiral Robert B. Brown.

Open heart surgery has been performed before in well-equipped medical facilities mostly to correct congenital heart defects. Admiral Brown said casualty cases would be treated, rather than congenital diseases or deformities.

Advanced techniques are possible, the admiral explained, because of experience gained in the Korean Conflict, modern medical equipment in the Repose and rapid air evacuation methods.

Persons hit in the heart with a piece of metal could be saved by a machine attached to large vessels on both sides of the heart, acting as an artificial heart until surgery removes the metal.

Similar operations could be performed on the lungs and extremities, helping reduce fatalities and saving legs and arms that previously had to be amputated.

A complete staff and consultants will be assigned to the Repose. Equipment includes heart and lung machines, 750 beds, latest X-ray, surgical and air conditioning equipment.

The ship will also have recovery and intensive care wards, a decompression chamber and a frozen blood facility. Admiral Brown said the blood facility is not designed to replace the "fine fresh blood program," merely supplement it.

Plans are to recommission the Repose in October. It was built and used in World War II and operated during the Korean Conflict.

Admiral Brown estimated the ship could be ready for departure late this year, but it is not likely it will get to the RVN until early next year.

MacArthur Papers To Be Published

Washington (AFPS) — The World War II reports of General of the Army Douglas MacArthur are expected to be available for public sale by the Superintendent of Documents in 1966.

Published by the Department of the Army, the volumes cover World War II campaigns in the Pacific, the post - surrender period and Japanese operations in the Pacific area.

Infantry Editor Johnson Gets Silver Oak Leaf

Maj. Ross L. Jackson, editor of the School's Infantry Magazine, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel last week.

A 1949 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., Johnson attended Infantry officer basic and career courses and parachute training at The Infantry School. He is also a graduate of the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

He came to the post from an assignment in Korea with the 1st Cavalry Division.

Post Employs Handicapped; Hiring Practices Emphasized

Fort Benning's Civilian Personnel Section is observing National Employ the Handicapped Week, Oct. 3 to 9, by encouraging all post employers to utilize job applicants with physical impairments according to T.A. Barefoot, civilian personnel chief.

The post has a civilian work force of 3,255 of whom more than 120 have physical impairments. Disabilities include impaired upper or lower limbs, visual or hearing difficulty, inactive tuberculosis, heart disease and diabetes.

Physically impaired workers at Fort Benning comprise almost four per cent of the work force and carry their full share of the work load, officials said.

The productivity of the partially disabled employees is due in part to the care with which they are placed in their particular jobs.

A position is analyzed to determine its physical requirements. Then the job's requirements are matched to the applicant's abilities, not his disabilities.

Fort Benning follows a long established policy of the Department of the Army in hiring disabled veterans, industrial workers and other persons with physical limitations. These individuals are selected for employment solely on a basis of experience, education, aptitude, training, specialized skills and physical capacity.

The effective utilization of all employees, both able-bodied and physically impaired, helps to meet manpower needs and contributes to the community's respect for the installation and the Army as an employer, officials said.

Sixteen of the post's 120 employees with physical impairments were hired during the past 12 months. The trend is up throughout the nation with more handicapped persons entering government service, in the past year than in any year since World War II.

Hammond B. Smith, director of the Atlanta Region of the Civil Service Commission, said 9,283 physically handicapped workers among 468,765 persons hired by the Federal Government in 1964.

"This accomplishment has double significance," he said. "It was not only the highest percentage of handicapped workers employed in any single year since we started keeping statistics, but it was accomplished in a tight employment market when Federal installations were being closed and manpower ceilings were in effect."

In addition to the physically handicapped, 636 individually trained mentally retarded workers entered the Federal work force between January 1964 and July 1965, Smith added.

"This experiment in placing selected retarded workers in jobs they could perform was so successful that the program has been extended for three additional years," he said.

Outdoor Work Need Not Strain Do-It-Yourselfers

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Outdoor decoration is getting to be as much fun as indoor decoration. But what a strain on the do-it-yourselfer. Since flowers, bushes and trees can't be moved around like furniture, something has got to happen. So gizmos are being added all over the place. Some workers are tired of it all.

"How do you get your man's interest reactivated?" asks a woman. "All I want is a couple of simple little jobs but he insists it is cheaper to hire someone to do the work. I'd like to get some kind of contraption at our swimming pool so we could change clothes without walking up to the house and tracking in water over the floors. But I don't see much point in spending a fortune to have a little project built."

Hobby or Chore

Sometimes it costs a do-it-yourselfer more to do a small project than it is worth. He must measure it in terms of value he puts on his own time, his own experience and how fast he can work. If do-it-yourself is a hobby, fine. But if it is a chore, he saves little if he winds up with an amateurish job. He loses relaxation time and may even become resentful about the whole deal.

There are shortcuts to some projects, such as the pool dressing room.

One family has taken over an unused child's play fort, the tall kind without a roof. They've remodeled it, added a roof, painted it pink and now they have a very classy dressing room. It is roomier than most with a chair and small dressing table. Hooks on the wall provide hanger space.

Overdoing It

Seasoned home builders take home improvement jobs in stride and sometimes they overdo it. One woman's complaint is twofold: her husband spends too much time building all sorts of things they really don't need: and secondly she worries for his health, doing strenuous jobs in the heat.

"His current project is building a dog run," she points out. "It is true that he will save $100 on the job, considering the estimates we have been given. But I wonder whether he isn't losing the hundred, healthwise. He huffs and puffs and complains after every session of digging with the posthole digger he uses to make holes for the stanchions. After that, he must align the chain fencing and so on. I would advise anyone trying this type of project to get some help. Our dog was very happy in the house anyway. He didn't really need a dog run," she says.

Goof Off Jobs

Anyone who wants to goof off for a season might try projects that require creative ideas that involve very little work but could be a testimonial to his own genius.

One man put all his wife's plants on wheels. Simple low little redwood dollies were put under the heavy potted trees and plants he hated to move from living room to terrace. Now he just wheels them out and at season's end will wheel them back.

New Soldier's Life Insurance Bill Grants GI's Low-Cost Coverage

ROBERT S. HOROWITZ
In The Army Times

Every soldier on active duty will be covered by a $10,000 life insurance policy at the cost of about $2 a month now that the president has signed the life insurance bill.

The effective date of the new insurance program is Sept. 29, according to a message from Third Army.

The circular, 608-9, says the insurance coverage and premium deductions are automatic and no application or allotment forms are necessary.

Under terms of the new law, all on active duty for at least 30 days will be covered automatically, and about $2 will be deducted from each monthly paycheck. The exact cost of the premium is being negotiated now between the Veterans Administration and a group of private insurance companies. Some congressmen said this week they hoped the premium would actually cost less than $2 a month.

Each serviceman will have only two options — he can ask, in writing to be excluded from the plan, or he can ask in writing to be covered by $5000 worth of life insurance, at a monthly cost of $1.

Coverage will extend to 120 days after leaving active duty, when the insurance can be converted to a civilian policy without a physical examination, even in some cases of disability, retirements and discharges.

The new insurance will be extremely cheap. Servicemen will pay about 20 cents per month per thousand — regardless of age or present physical condition — while civil servants now pay 25 cents per month per thousand. The cost goes up tremendously in private industry.

The new law also has a retroactive feature, going back to Jan. 1, 1957. The survivors of any military on duty since 1957 will be entitled to collect $5000 in cash, minus whatever government benefits already were collected. At the last minute Congress broadened the type of circumstances under which the government will pay, and the final determination in each retroactive case will be left to the Veterans Administration.

The new $10,000 program will be known as the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance. The insurance will be carried by private companies, which will get a subsidy from the government to make up for the fact that some servicemen—like those in Vietnam — are in a particularly hazardous situation.

After release from active duty, servicemen who want to continue their policies will be given the list of these companies, all of which are certified to sell insurance in all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

Such men will not have to take a physical exam to get the insurance. However, physicals will be required of two groups — those who elect not to take the insurance, and then change their minds, and awols who lose their coverage after being absent for 31 days and then want to come back into the insurance plan.

Beneficiaries will collect either in a lump sum or over a period of 36 months. A serviceman will be allowed to choose any beneficiary he wants. And if he fails to designate one, his widow will get first priority. If there is no widow, the money goes to his children. If there are no children, the money goes to his parents, then the executor of his estate, or any next of kin designated by the VA. If a serviceman elects a lump-sum payoff, his beneficiaries can elect to collect over 36 months.

The insurance will not cover "any person guilty of mutiny, treason, spying or desertion, or who, because of conscientious objections, refuses to perform service in the armed forces of the United States or refuses to wear the uniform. . ." Nor will the insurance cover men who are executed as lawful punishment for crimes, except when executed by an enemy of the United States.

The new insurance will be in addition to all government benefits and to any insurance now held, both government and private. However, the retroactive $5000 policy will be reduced by any U.S. Government Life Insurance and National Service Life Insurance paid to the veteran's survivors.

Congressional hearings on the insurance bill got under way less than two months ago as a result of reports that some servicemen assigned to Vietnam were unable to buy commercial life insurance. The Senate originally passed a bill that would have extended free life insurance to men in combat zones, but the House Veterans Committee came up with a proposal that is substantially what was passed into law last week.

Serviceman Insurance Termed as Major Step

Pete Wheeler, director, Georgia Department of Veterans Service, has termed Congressional approval of a new insurance program for U.S. servicemen a major step toward "meeting our obligations" to these men.

"Establishment of an insurance program has been an objective of the Department of Veterans Service for several years. As technicians in the field of veterans' affairs, we have observed the value of this kind of insurance to servicemen and their dependents. It is long overdue," Wheeler said.

Under the new program, servicemen will be able to buy $10,000 worth of life insurance at a cost of $2 monthly which will be deducted from the insured's pay.

In addition to the insurance, survivors of men killed in Viet Nam are eligible for payments under a Veterans Administration program, Mr. Wheeler said.

"A second means of meeting our obligations to U.S. servicemen is by passage of a Cold War GI Bill. The Senate already has approved a Cold War GI Bill, extending housing and education benefits similar to those of the World War II and Korean War GI Bills to men who have served since January 1955, cutoff date of the Korean GI Bill," Mr. Wheeler said.

Holden to Speak at YMCA Meet

Col. Earl F. Holton, Fort Benning deputy post commander, will be guest speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Armed Forces YMCA Committee on Management at 12:30 p.m. today in Columbus.

He will speak on the new Army training program getting under way at Fort Benning.

William C. Buck, committee chairman, said the talk will provide background information that will be helpful in planning the YMCA program in coming months.

Gerald G. Fling, new program secretary for the YMCA, will also be introduced at the meeting.

Fling Takes Over As YMCA Secretary

Gerald G. Fling assumed the job of program secretary of the Columbus Armed Services YMCA last Friday.

A veteran of World War II, Fling has a Bachelor of Science degree in education and physical education from the American University. He comes to Columbus from Gulfport, Miss., where he served as general secretary of the YMCA of the greater Gulfport area since September 1964.

Fling has also served with YMCAs in Pottstown, Pa.; Mobile, Ala., and Savannah, Ga.

Special Forces Compile Foreign Weapons Manual

ABERDEEN, Md. (AFPS)—The Army Special Forces soldier must be able to fire, assemble, breakdown and repair arms manufactured and used in just about every corner of the globe.

To provide the Special Forces man with the background he needs, a two man team under direction of G-2 of the John F. Kennedy Center for Special Warfare, Fort Bragg, N. C. is working at the Proving Ground here. They are gathering information to complete a "Special Forces Foreign Weapons" handbook.

Of particular interest are weapons made by the U.S.S.R. and other communist countries.

Although the Special Forces unit at Fort Bragg has some 40 foreign weapons (approximately 50 per cent of the small arms weapons types in use throughout the world today) many weapons were only available here.

The Proving Ground Museum is providing information on older and more conventional weapons. The Foreign Technical Intelligence Office is lending its assistance with newer weapons including some so up-to-date that they have not been introduced as standard equipment for armed forces in the country of origin.

January Draft Hits Medical Personnel

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Department of Defense has asked the Selective Service System to call 1,529 physicians, 350 dentists and 100 veterinarians for active duty service in the Army, Navy and Air Force beginning January 1966.

The call is necessary to provide health services required by the increase in active armed forces strength announced in July by the President.

Of the physicians to be called, 949 are for the Army 250 for the Navy and 320 for the Air Force. All of the dentists and veterinarians are for the Army.

Trexler Takes Command Of 29th Infantry

Lt. Col. Tommy P. Trexler assumed duties as commander of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade last Friday, taking over from Lt. Col. William C. Hacker who is preparing for departure to Viet Nam.

Trexler is not new to the 29th Infantry. His first assignment as an officer was with the 29th Infantry in 1949.

Trexler began his Army career as an enlisted man in 1947. Following two years enlisted service, he attended Officer Candidate School at Fort Riley, Kansas. After OCS, he attended the Infantry Officer Basic Course at Fort Benning. He then joined the 29th Infantry Regiment in Okinawa, as a 105 Battery executive officer.

In August 1950, Trexler went to Korea and joined the 24th Infantry Division as a platoon leader.

Trexler served in combat with the 24th Division until Jan. 1, 1951 when he was taken prisoner. He was not released until the last day of "Operation Big Switch" in September 1953.

After Korea, Trexler saw foreign duty in Germany in 1958 and has had assignments at Fort Jackson, S.C., the Pentagon and Fort Benning.

Trexler holds the Silver Star with oak leaf cluster, the Army Commendation Medal, the Purple Heart with three oak leaf clusters and the Combat Infantryman Badge.

Dependents Attend Fire Safety Talks

School children at Fort Benning observed National Fire Prevention Week this week with lectures and a visit to The Infantry Center Fire Prevention Museum.

The program included visits to the schools by fire trucks. Children had an opportunity to inspect the fire fighting equipment and ask questions about the trucks' operation.

BASEBALL MARKS

Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh and Tony Oliva of Minnesota captured their second straight batting titles in 1965. Clemente won the National League crown with a .329 average and Oliva won the American League title with .321 . . . Major league baseball attendance reached an all-time high of more than 22 million in 1965 for an increase of 5.4 per cent over 1964.

Navigation Students Graduate

Twelve aviators from the 134th Aviation Company have completed schooling in the techniques of Long Range Air Navigation (LORAN) following attendance at the United States Navy school in Corpus Christi, Texas.

Officers from the 10th Aviation Group unit included Capts. Gary Alton, Merrill Adamcik, Chris Lawrence, William Gissendaner, Leroy Jones and Gil Roesler; Lts. Darryl Neidlinger and Art Roy; and WOs John Edwards, Terry Hamby, Joseph Hudson and Dduglas Macmillan.

LORAN is a navigational system which pinpoints exact locations through the use of ground stations, special transmitters, and wave patterns viewed on board the aircraft and plotted on special maps.

The system is often used by commercial aircraft, marine navigation, other armed services and next month will be undergoing tests for use in army ground vehicles.

Fuzzy Ranger Stowaway Given Military Honors

Guards and inspections are as natural to Army personnel as chow and paycall. So, there is nothing particularly noteworthy about an inspecting officer encountering a barracks guard, unless the guard has pink eyes, six inch ears, is wearing a white coat and weighs only two pounds.

Such was the situation confronting an inspection team during a recent routine hut inspection at the U. S. Army Mountain Ranger Camp at Dahlonega, Georgia.

Upon opening the door of the last hut Lt. Col. George Tassey, the Mountain Ranger Camp commander, discovered the fuzzy malingerer who had failed to turn out for training.

An inspection of the darkest corner of the hut revealed a rolled burlap bag, a soap dish full of fresh water and a neatly trimmed carrot. A quick personal inspection found the rabbit to be well groomed and perfumed.

Good soldiering habits and individual Ranger ability should never go unheralded, according to the colonel.

For exhibiting exemplary ability in operating on diminished rations and employing superior escape and evasion techniques in avoiding the tactical officer and NCO for an undertermined amount of time, the rabbit was awarded a U. S. Army "Regulation Rabbit Collar" with distinctive Ranger Arc Tab. The presentation was made by Tassey at a Ranger Camp formation.

The bunny "Ranger" was then presented to the class company commander who escorted him to his new private hutch.

Dutch Defense Minister Saluted Upon Arrival

The Netherlands minister of defense received a 19-gun salute when he arrived at Fort Benning yesterday for a one day visit to see the U. S. Infantryman in training with the tools of his trade.

Petrus J. S. de Jong arrived at the post about noon Thursday and was welcomed by an honor guard at 12:20 p. m. on York Field before seeing airborne training at Eubanks Field and officer candidates firing the M-60 machine gun on Wagner Range.

Also on the agenda was a visit to the Officer Candidate School area.

The minister of defense was accompanied by Lt. Gen. L. W. C. Adank, quartermaster general of the Netherlands Army; Maj. Gen. B. H. Slager, vice chief of staff, Air Force; Commodore J. Doorenbos, deputy flag officer, Navy; and Maj J. M. Lammeree, aide to the minister.

Brig. Gen. George I. Forsythe, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, was the local commander for the honors.

An official dinner was held last night at 7 p. m. in the Main Officers' Open Mess.

HUEYCOBRA . . . A modified version of the Army's UH-1B Iroquois, specially configured for the armed helicopter mission, is being evaluated by the Army for possible use as an interim Advanced Aerial Fire Support System. The HueyCobra was developed by Bell Helicopter Company. Kamman, Sikorsky and Boeing-Vertol are other helicopter manufacturers who have submitted proposals for evaluation.

Combat-Tested 'Huey' Gets Modified Look

From The Army Times

WASHINGTON — Textron's Bell Helicopter Co. has come up with a streamlined version of its combat-tested UH-1B specially configured for the armed helicopter mission. Tabbed the HueyCobra, the aircraft utilizes the transmission, rotor system and engine of the UH-1B in a new fuselage configuration which Bell officials say is designed for "maximum speed, armament payload and crew effectiveness."

Compared to the current Huey, Bell says the HueyCobra flying a 50-nautical mile mission can reach the objective area in half the time, deliver twice the weight of ammunition, operate in the objective area three times as long and provide substantially improved protection for the aircraft and crew.

Bell has proposed the Huey Cobra to the Army as a design change for the UH-1Bs currently on contract, but no quick decision is likely. Other helicopter manufacturers — notably Sikorsky and Lockheed, both of which have been working on proposals for the Advanced Aerial Fire Support System (AAFSS) — also are expected to get into the armed helicopter mission act.

In what may be a strong selling point, Bell officials say the Cobra can be deployed directly from production to field units now equipped with the UH-1.

Communism in Other Countries

Social Conditions Yield to Plans

Last week's discussion brought out that social, economic and political conditions underlying the birth and rise of communism in Yugoslavia, China and Cuba were similar in many respects to conditions in pre-Communist Russia. Let us now examine the similarity of the methods by which these conditions were exploited by Communist leaders in each country.

From its beginning in the early 1920s, the Chinese Communist party under Mao Tse - tung exploited the yearning of the Chinese peasants for land by adopting land reform as a primary goal. Recognizing that the mass of the Chinese people were peasants, Mao leaned more for support on the peasantry than on the small urban working class.

Here Mao was less of a Marxist than Lenin who had relied on Russia's urban proletariat as the key to the seizure of political power. Mao carefully established an image of the Chinese Communists as nothing more than a party of "agrarian reform," which was quite different from the Russian Communist party. This pose was so successful that even foreign observers, including some American experts and policy - makers, were taken in by it.

Mao's Triumph

After Mao's triumph in 1949, when thousands of Chinese were tried and executed in public, and when tens of millions were "re-educated" in slave-labor camps, it became evident even to the most naive that agrarian reform was not the core of Chinese communism but only a pose designed to smooth the path to Communist conquest.

In Yugoslavia, the inequality of land ownership was not nearly so serious as in Russia or China. Yet following the successful Leninist technique, Tito, too, made land redistribution one of his most widely publicized goals. He proposed to confiscate lands belonging to those who were unsympathetic to communism (officially labeled "Fascists" and "enemies of the state"). In practice this meant taking away land from prosperous and efficient farmers and giving it to those who were "loyal" to the state.

In Cuba, the problem of land reform had several aspects. First, there was the problem of large landed estates owned by a few landowners on one side and scores of landless farm laborers on the other. Second, much of Cuban agriculture depended on one crop, sugar, which in turn was exported primarily to one country, the United States. Yearly differences in the size of the crop and in the world price for sugar made the Cuban economy unstable.

Throughout the Cuban civil war (1956-1958), Fidel Castro, like Mao, relied primarily on the peasants for support. In his public statements, Castro advocated land reform, economic diversification and political democracy. After Castro seized power in January of 1959, the Communist character of his movement became more evident.

A new propaganda line was added, attacking American "imperialism," since many of Cuba's largest and most successful sugar plantations had been developed and were owned by Americans. In accordance with this new propaganda line, one of the first acts of Castro's government was to confiscate the American sugar companies. Later he also confiscated Cuban - owned sugar plantations. But instead of giving the confiscated land to the landless peasants, as he had promised to do during the civil war, he turned it over to state-run farm collectives.

Leninist Technique

In Yugoslavia all political activity had been stifled under German occupation. As soon as the Germans were driven out, Tito set out to build a powerful Communist party organization and at the same time to infiltrate the older parties of the Left and Center.

His technique was to proclaim the permanent struggle against fascism as the banner under which all "democratic" groups should be united. From the beginning he intended that such an all-party, anti - Fascist front would be dominated by the Communist party, although at the beginning the Communists were numerically a minority. Since the Communists could count on the support of Tito's armed Partisan forces they were able gradually to suppress or eliminate political opposition. The Chetnik leader Mihailovich, Tito's leading political rival, was executed in 1945.

In China, Mao Tse-tung's Communists focused their infiltration activities on peasant organizations. In addition, they won over a number of local war lords through bribery or by promising them important positions in the future Communist government. This explains why much of the American war material sent to the Nationalist forces in the years 1945-1949 ended up, via traitorous war lords, in Mao's arsenals.

Infiltration

The Chinese Communists applied similar methods of infiltration — a mixture of persuasion, bribery, and threats — to government officials. Particularly as the civil war seemed to go against the Nationalist side, many of Chiang's officials began to work secretly for the Communists while officially pretending to be loyal to the Nationalists. Whenever the Communists took a city or region, they were welcomed by government officials in responsible positions who had been undercover agents of the Communists for years.

Economics Influence Enlistees; Skilled Not Likely to Volunteer

From the Army Times

WASHINGTON — About 40 per cent of those who enlist and take officer training do so because it seems better to them than being drafted. And of the volunteers who aren't influenced by the pressure of the draft board, the biggest factors are economic. That is, those with skills that pay off best are least liable to volunteer. Those with dim job prospects are most likely to sign up, probably to get the training the services offer.

These conclusions about the reasons young men join up were revealed in surveys made among active duty enlisted men and officers.

They may appear in the White House ordered Draft Study which is expected to be released in October. The study has already taken 18 months, has cost more than a half million dollars and has occupied the full time of about 30 military men and civilians.

The study was set for completion last June, but the Viet Nam buildup and other factors sent the study group back to its slide rules and computers for additional information.

Citing economic factors and their influence on enlistments, the survey analysis says that interest in volunteering tends to be higher in parts of the country and among population groups whose civilian job prospects are lower than average.

Conversely, it tends to be lowest among highly trained professionals such as physicians, who are in short supply in the civilian economy.

This may be the reason the training and educational opportunities offered by the services are among the best enlistment incentives offered by the services, particularly for those individuals who are not primarily motivated by their draft obligation.

The findings about the desire for training as a recruitment incentive should lend support to those who are backing a Cold War GI Bill.

Ladies' Nylons Are Used For Launchings

Redstone Arsenal, Ark. (AFPS) — In Trumann, Ark., a lady read about Army missilemen who make missile launch tube caps for antitank missiles out of old nylon hosiery.

She tucked 29 pairs of used nylons into a box and mailed them here to the Army Missile Command.

Although no note was enclosed, engineers knew what they were for. They slit them lengthwise, applied a coating of resin material, and stretched them across a mould to harden. Three launch tube caps were produced from the stockings.

Army officials traced the woman through her return address. She told them, "I got to thinking that I might be able to do some good in my small way to help the boys over in Viet-Nam."

Red Propaganda Dealt Marines In Viet Nam

CHU LAI, VIET NAM (AFPS) — Marines landing here during Operation Piranha found they not only had to deal with the Viet Cong (VC) but also with their propaganda.

The VC had told villagers, "Marines will kill you . . . their amphibious tractors are "people eaters'."

The Marines countered the propaganda with actions. Despite 96 hours of naval bombardment and aerial strafing only two civilians received minor injuries. They were given treatment by Navy corpsmen.

There was difficulty getting civilians aboard amphibious tractors for transport out of danger areas. The villagers thought monsters within would devour them. Gentle coaxing finally convinced them the tractors were a ride to safety.

DRAFT GOOFS

CHICAGO — A letter addressed to a Mr. Stephen Siewierski arrived advising the addressee to report for an Armed Forces physical examination. Apparently the draft board was a bit mixed up. At the address was a Miss Stephani Siewierski — who at work is known to her colleagues as Steve. She's a five - foot - four, 115 - pound blonde stenographer. The selective service office, advised of the goof, told Miss Siewierski to tear up the letter.

Post Organist Invited To Be Guest Conductor

Theodore Gargiulo, organist at Fort Benning's Infantry Center Chapel, has been invited to conduct an overture during next Friday's concert to be staged in Columbus by the U. S. Army Field Band.

Gargiulo will conduct "La Forza del Destino" by Giuseppe Verdi.

The concert is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Columbus Three Arts Theater.

The Army Field Band is composed of approximately 100 of the Army's finest musicians.

The repertoire, designed to appeal to audiences everywhere, includes classical, semi - classical and popular selections; choral arrangements; and novelty numbers as well as military marches.

The Soldiers' Chorus, featured on every program, will present several special choral arrangements.

Organized as the Army Ground Forces Band in 1946, it was designated the U.S. Army Field Band of Washington, D.C. in 1950. It has played in all 50 states as well as in Mexico, Canada, the United Kingdom, Europe and the Far East.

Coordinated locally by the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, the concert will be directed by Lt. Col. Robert L. Bierly of Silver Spring, Md., commander, and Maj. Wilmont N. Trumbull of Arlington, Va., executive officer and assistant director of the band.

The Soldiers' Chorus will be directed by Sgt. Eugene W. Coughlin of Detroit Lakes, Minn.

Admission will be free.

Xmas Holiday Schedules Announced

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Department of the Army last week announced the Christmas-New Year holiday period from 7 a.m., December 18, 1965 to 5 p.m. January 2, 1966, except for basic combat, advanced individual and related training activities. The Christmas Holiday period for these training activities will be from 7 a.m., December 23, 1965 to 12 midnight, December 28, 1965.

During the holiday period, major commands are authorized to suspend training consistent with operational requirements. Commanders are authorized to permit the maximum number of personnel to take leave during the period so long as it does not interfere with the performance of assigned missions. Deviation from departure date will be authorized in some instances to permit use of available local commercial transportation.

Basic combat and advanced individual training activities are now conducted on a 52-week basis instead of 50 weeks as in previous years. However training will be accelerated and schedules adjusted to allow most trainees to be home on leave for Christmas.

Leave during the established holiday period will not interfere with leave which is normally granted upon completion of basic combat training and prior to reporting for advanced individual or specialist training.

Sport Parachute Rule Discussion In November

Washington (AFPS) — A public hearing to consider revisions to existing sport parachute jumping rules will be held here by the Federal Aviation Agency Nov. 4, 1965.

Major discussion will involve revision of the parachute jumping regulations (Part 105, Federal Aviation Regulations) by restricting jumps in controlled airspace and in approved off-airway routes outside controlled airspace.

DENTAL WORK

On an average, each 10 recruits entering the Army require 79.5 fillings and seven surgical actions such as extractions and two dentures.

Individuals wishing to contribute to the discussion but unable to attend may make written comments to: FAA Rules Docket, Attention: Presiding Officer, Public Hearing on Part 105, Parachute Jumping, Washington, D.C. 20533. Comments, which must be received by Oct. 28, will become part of the hearing record.

Air Cav Pay Being Studied Further

WASHINGTON—The Pentagon's Military Pay and Allowance Committee has sent an Army proposal urging special flight status for soldiers assigned to an airmobile unit to Defense Department manpower authorities for "further coordination."

The Army proposal asks for flight status for any soldier in an airmobile unit who must habitually travel aboard helicopters and planes as part of the job.

Flying pay non-crew member rates are $110 a month for officers and $55 a month for enlisted soldiers.

Army Times reported in its September 15 issue that neither the Navy nor Air Force was opposing the Army proposal. However, it appears that approval of the Army request would shortchange ground marines who also are deeply involved in aerial operations.

The Bayonet Is Your Newspaper

An Editorial

As the post newspaper, the Bayonet is one of the most important information media at Fort Benning.

To accomplish its job effectively, The Bayonet must have the cooperation of all units at Fort Benning in the form of releases about newsworthy events occuring on the post. These releases must, of course, be timely and accurate.

Examples of the type of stories The Bayonet is interested in can be found simply by leafing through some of the past issues of the newspaper. The scope is rather vast and ranges from the "Stork Club" to promotions and commendations to the opening of the new basic training center on the post.

As of late, not enough unit news has been submitted to fill the 30 plus pages of The Bayonet each week.

To make this publication more meaningful, this situation is one which warrants the attention of all units no matter how small or large they may be. Newsworthy events aren't confined to large units — quite often the most refreshing and interesting copy originates from comparatively small organizations.

In preparing copy for publication, remember that timeliness is a prerequisite. All stories should be submitted as far in advance or as soon after an event as possible as appropriate.

The Bayonet deadline is 12 noon each Tuesday (for the following Friday's paper) but getting stories in on the preceding Friday, Saturday or Monday increases chances for publication.

A "dash" of initiative, a "pinch" of imagination and a penchant for accuracy are the solutions for all units to follow to begin getting or to increase their coverage in The Bayonet. It's a sure way of silencing the question, "Why doesn't my unit or my buddies ever get mentioned in the newspapers"

Scuba Club Teaches Diving Skills

BY JOSEPH HUTTIE

The appearance of fin, goggle and tank-toting people of all ages and sizes announces the arrival of the Fort Benning Scuba Club at Briant Wells Field House every Tuesday night as the club makes its way to poolside for free instruction in water safety, diving, underwater swimming and operation of scuba gear.

The club's president, Capt. James E. Davis, commander of the 72nd Engineer Company, 197th Infantry Brigade, is a vivid example of the rise in the popularity of scuba diving in recent years. Until his assignment to Ft. Benning three years ago, Capt. Davis had never donned the gear which is such a large part of the scuba diver's image.

Capt. Davis said that although he had been a fair swimmer throughout his younger days he had never even though of taking up the sport of scuba diving until he was introduced to several Ft. Benning club members.

The five - week training course which is conducted by the Benning club in conjunction with the Special Services Section has produced more than 150 divers during the past two years although the club's membership numbers only about 35 active participants.

Capt. Davis pointed out that the club was organized originally in 1959 as a training club but the organization had to agree to provide divers for military search and rescue operations in order to gain a legal charter.

Since that time members have participated in a number of diving missions including the recent recovery of a downed helicopter in the Chattahoochee River.

Activities Limited

According to Capt. Davis, the club's training activities are somewhat limited. "We have all the equipment we need with the $2,500 worth of gear provided by Special Services. But you just can't adequately instruct a class of 30 divers. Thus, we try to keep our classes in the 15-20 range."

Capt. Davis adds that the problem becomes somewhat acute at the start of a new class when there is a flood of applicants. He says, "We have a carefully set list of requirements all applicants must meet before they can enroll. Included in these prerequisites are a health examination, an underwater swim test of 25 yards, a 150 yard above water test, and a water safety test in which an applicant must tow another swimmer 25 yards employing a standard life saving carry."

High School Students

According to Davis, the club's training courses are most popular with high school students aged 15-18. The captain points out that people in this age group are also probably the best trainees.

"Although we have some trainees under the age of 15, we find that it is more difficult to emphasize the need for safety both above and below the water level with youngsters in their early teens than it is with the ones in the 15-18 age bracket," he says.

Persons enrolled in the 5-week course must provide their own diving mask, fins and snorkel while the Scuba Club furnishes the tanks, compressed air and emergency rescue equipment, not to mention a highly skilled group of instructors.

Requirements

In order to gain a member classification, applicants learn to swim 150 yards alternately on both the surface and underwater using mask, snorkel and fins. The trainee must also dive to a depth of 10 feet without the use of equipment and follow this by a 50 yard swim using full scuba gear.

After demonstrating his knowledge of his equipment, the diver must learn to recover and put his gear on at a depth of ten feet. Finally, the applicant must pass a written test before gaining membership.

Since his introduction to the sport three years ago, Capt. Davis has spent a great deal of his off - duty hours in diving spots close to Fort Benning. A favorite location for many of the club's members is Panama City where visibility is good up to a depth of 65 and 70 feet, according to Capt. Davis.

Asked whether or not he thought older people made good divers, Capt. Davis replied, "It just depends. Most of your better divers are under 30. However, it's just a question of the condition of your ears and sinuses. There are quite a few world-known divers over the age of 40."

Spear Fishing

Since his initial scuba dip, Capt. Davis has taken to spear fishing as still another form of underwater sport. He says that gruper and sea bass are his favorite quarry and that the much - talked about barracuda is a good species of fish to stay clear of. "Too unpredictable," he adds.

One of Capt. Davis's chief companions on many of his diving expeditions is his 16-year-old son, James Jr. "We both joined the club at the same time. In fact we went over to sign up for the same classes. Now we make quite a few trips together," he adds.

Capt. Davis points to the world - wide interest in underwater research as one of the primary motivations of the steadily growing interest in diving. He says that because of this increase in interest, the club is constantly changing and improving its teaching techniques. "We try to give a person a good idea of what a scuba diver should know. Diving isn't really very dangerous as long as you are aware of the underwater hazards. And this is where we can serve our greatest purpose, making these hazards known to people," he concluded.

Delegates Will Attend Post Comedy

Delegates to the convention of the Georgia State Theater Conference, being held in Columbus, will attend the Fort Benning Little Theater's presentation of "The Hostage" tonight.

FBLT opened the 1965-66 theatrical season Wednesday night with the Brendan Behan play and will give two final performances tonight and Saturday night at the Little Theater, Building 2519, behind the quartermaster laundry building. Tickets for either performance are still available by telephoning 323-9980.

"The Hostage", directed by Peter Hajduk, takes place in a boarding house which has gained a somewhat disreputable reputation. The hilarity of the production centers around the cast of wacky characters which include a madam, a fanatically religious prostitute, and nine other characters, who are described as "different" by Hajduk.

President of FBLT, Les Muchmore, plays the owner of the boarding house turned into a brothel while his would-be wife is portrayed by Ella Hearne. Don Smith carries the title role as the hostage and Pat Brown takes the part of the religious fanatic. Others in the cast include, Gail and Wes Carr, Rik Sonntag, Connie Gilbert, Dick Myles and Al Gonzales.

Curtain time for the two remaining performances will be at 8:30 p.m.

Metric Units Play Havoc With Sports

(AFPS) — It's being predicted that within 25 years the United States will be on the metric system. Backers of the proposal feel that America should use the same system of weights and measures as the rest of the world.

If this happens, it'll play havoc with sports writers.

Recorders of the accomplishments of military football players will have to write that Army's quarterback, Carl Stichweh, completed 66 out of 119 passes for 745.824 meters, instead of 816 yards, during the 1964 season and Navy's Roger Staubach passed for 1,347.236 meters in 1963.

A football playing field will no longer be 100 yards long. It'll be 91.4 meters long. Instead of a play producing a first and 10, it will be first and 9.14 meters. Sports writers won't be able to describe a shifty halfback as "6 - 0, 185 - pounds of speed," he'll be 182.88 centimeters tall and weigh 83914.520 grams.

No longer will Navy have the ball on its own 40-yard line. It will be on its own 36.56 meter line.

Things will be the same in baseball. No longer will a runner on third be just 90 feet away from scoring the run. He'll have 27.43.20 centimeters to go. Sports announcers will probably have more than their share of the confusion.

The biggest problem though, will be faced by headline writers. It will be difficult to fit into a headline that someone ran 36.56 meters for a touchdown.

New Mobile Radar Detects Targets

WASHINGTON (AFPS)— The Army has announced a new mobile High Power Acquisition Radar (HIPAR) which will provide the Nike Hercules air defense guided missile system overseas with greater effectiveness against attacking high performance aircraft and short range ballistic missiles in the field.

The mobile HIPAR will give the same full target detection capability for Army air defense units overseas as now exists at fixed Nike Hercules sites in the United States.

THE NAVY GETS THE GRAVY . . . And in this case it was the newest Miss America. One of the many honors presented to Miss America, 1966, Debbie Bryant, was an appointment as an unofficial Naval aviatrix. The presentation was made by Capt. C. G. Hathaway, executive officer of the New York Naval Air Station. The Army needs an honorary doughboy, eh, what?

Initial Processing Takes 72 Hours Before the Soldiers Making Begins

ing 250 recruits per day. Davis said present plans call for the processing of only 220 per day. This will give the center an input of 1100 per five day week.

This he said was due to the increased intakes at Forts Jackson and Gordon and the other established training centers.

344 Hours

The trainees will get a total of 344 hours of training during their eight weeks in Fort Benning's Army Training Center.

For the first four weeks, according to Lt. Col. Walter Mattox, they'll be kept as close to the training center as possible. "We want to get a good crack at turning them into soldiers," he said. He added that it would not be until the end of the fourth week that the trainees would be allowed passes off the base.

The trainees will be tested at the end of each week to make sure they are learning what they are being taught, Mattox said. He said that the all-important tests administered at the end of the eight weeks would tell whether or not the trainee would be allowed to "graduate" from the basic training center.

He said that any trainee who failed to qualify with the rifle would automatically be put back into the beginning of rifle training.

Win in Viet Nam

At the suggestion of Fort Benning commander, Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, signs with the "Win in Viet Nam" motto are being placed throughout the center to remind the recruits of the great responsibilities the U. S. has in that country.

The Army Training Center will handle reservists and national guardsmen on active duty as well as draftees and volunteers.

They will be fed into the training center from recruiting main stations in Atlanta, Cleveland, Memphis, Montgomery and Jacksonville, Maj. Davis said.

The first basic training cycle will begin Monday with Fort Benning's volunteer drill sergeants returning from training at Fort Jackson, S. C. during the middle of the week, officials said.

The training center will use the Malone ranges on the reservation which were built by the old 2nd Infantry Division when they were operating a basic combat training center in 1961.

Shorn Heads and Army Green Meet Recruits

BY JIM BAKER

Walter Benson, 20, from Little Rock, Ark., stood in line for his haircut less than ten minutes after he stepped off the bus in the Reception Center Monday morning and said he thought he was going to like basic training.

He stood in formation minutes later with a shaved head and a bewildered look on his face while shifting his weight from side to side.

Keith Stoar worked as a clerk for the Cleveland Transit System a week ago and now he's dressed in Army olive drab, ready to make the best of the next two years.

Walter Benson was another of 160 trainees who arrived last weekend. He said his home was Conway, Ark. and he used to work for a protection service. He is 19 and had one of those cultivated, long haircuts, popular among teenagers.

The look on his face was nothing short of apprehensive as the unfeeling clippers took their first swath of blond hair from the top of his head.

Tobacco farmer Robert M. Chaney sold his Douglas, Ga. tobacco farm to his father before entering the Army. Chaney was the first man to step onto Fort Benning soil as a basic trainee since the old 2nd Infantry Division stopped basic training in 1961.

For the 25 - year - old farmer, there were no major problems; he had spent some four years as a member of Army and Air National Guard units.

Lt. Charlton Roberts said the six telephones outside his Company B in the Reception Station were busy almost all weekend.

Also getting a great deal of action from the first trainees in the Reception Station were the consolidated day rooms which are equipped with ping pong tables, easy chairs and plenty of the latest magazines.

The PX facility there reported a run on padlocks and shoe polish during the first days the Training Center was open for business.

For recruit Chaney who was a man who went through the business of being photographed and questioned for the press, all he wanted to do was get the "processing over with and start work training."

Knowledge of Conditions Change Pre-Conceived Ideas of Viet War

EDITOR'S NOTE: For seven months Chaplain Richard E. Dryer was the only Jewish chaplain with the U.S. Armed Forces in Viet Nam. He has since been joined by Chaplain Robert Louis Reiner, USNR, and a third Jewish chaplain, Chaplain Harry Z. Schreiner, is due to reach Viet Nam the second week in October.

More and more American civilians are coming to Viet Nam these days with preconceived ideas. They spend a few days here interviewing people, interviews intended primarily to strengthen and support their preconceived ideas. Then they return to the United States as self - proclaimed experts on the Viet Nam situation.

I have lived for over seven months in this beautiful but embattled country. Since I have been the only rabbi available during this period to serve both the American Jewish servicemen, and U. S. civilian aid officials, I have had the responsibility and the opportunity to travel the entire length and breadth of South Viet Nam; from Quang Tri in the north to Ca Mau in the south, from the largest cities to the tiniest hamlets.

I have had long conversations with many religious leaders, students and ordinary people. All of them want peace in their country. But not one of them has said to me that he believes that a satisfactory peace could be obtained by the unilateral withdrawal of the American military forces.

I have been stopped by Vietnamese as I walked down the street in civilian clothes the day after a Viet Cong bombing of an American troop billet. These Vietnamese wanted to express their heartfelt and sincere grief—and thanks — to an American, any American.

These ordinary people were deeply grateful for the presence of the American military in their country. Their own dead they could accept more easily than the sacrifices of men from thousands of miles away who were here to defend their freedom.

A refugee from North Viet Nam invited me to his humble home to share a meal with him and his brother and their ten children. He, too stopped me on the street only because he recognized me as an American and wanted me to know how he felt. I accepted the invitation and learned how his parents had been brutally murdered by the Viet Cong —not killed by the accidents of war, but brutally, deliberately murdered.

A taxi driver bought me a drink, simply because I was an American and I was in his country to protect him.

While the Viet Cong plunder and terrorize, rob and murder, what are the Americans doing to warrant the affection of the Vietnamese? They are acting like typical good-hearted Americans. For example, a Jewish Marine surgeon and a Protestant Marine Chaplain have teamed up to adopt Catholic and Buddhist orphanages in their area. The chaplain takes up special offerings from his military congregation to buy medical and baby supplies and the surgeon puts the money collected to good use.

I have had to counsel an American serviceman who has been tortured by nightmares since the night the Viet Cong bombed a civilian restaurant in Saigon. This typically generous American had picked up a hungry five-year-old Vietnamese child and taken her to the restaurant for a dinner. He came out of the bombing unhurt. She started to run away after the first bomb went off and was killed by the second.

Being truly liberal means to approach a subject with an open mind, to examine impartially both sides of a matter.

War is evil. There is no doubt about that. But the issues in Viet Nam are not that simple. The United States is not opposed to peace in Viet Nam; the Communists are. The United States is not opposed to negotiations; the Communists are. The United States did not start an aggressive war on the territory of another country; the Communists did.

The United States has not engaged in deliberate terror against civilian populations; the Communists do. The United States has not deliberately kidnapped and murdered civilian women and children, teachers and communal leaders; the Communists have.

The United States is not an uninvited foreign power on the territory of a peaceful country; the North Vietnamese are. It goes far beyond the demands of sensible liberalism to contend that American forces should withdraw from this war while the Communists continue to carry out their announced plans to subjugate South Viet Nam.

I too was opposed to American involvement in Vietnamese war — before I came over here. In fact, it took about four months before I became firmly convinced that we are doing the only thing we can do. I have tried to avoid hasty and ill-founded judgments.

I have gained first hand knowledge by being here for a long period of time and by talking with many Vietnamese in all sections of South Viet Nam. I have heard of no refugees fleeing from us to the Communist controlled portions of the country but I have seen thousands who have fled from them to us.

I certainly share the desire of all well-meaning people that this war be brought to an end as quickly as is reasonably possible. But we cannot bring this about unilaterally when the other side refuses even to consider a peaceful solution. For a time, we stopped the bombings of North Viet Nam.

This brought no cessation of Viet Cong aggression in the South. It only brought the response that no cease - fire would result from the cessation of the bombings unless this action was accompanied by a complete American withdrawal from Viet Nam and a complete Communist takeover. I hate war as much as anyone but this kind of submission is not an acceptable alternative.

Our present policy of continuing the military struggle is not a pleasant one, especially for those of us who are over here; but the prospect of giving in to a brutal, tyrannical aggressor is much less attractive.

If pressure is to be brought, let it be applied to the side which refuses to consider any peaceful negotiations, not to the side that stands ever ready to consider any honorable proposal for peace.

Canal Rights Being Sought

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Republic of Panama and the United States are negotiating a new base rights and status of forces agreement and a treaty under which there might be constructed across Panama a new sea level canal.

The announcement by President Johnson said, "In order to meet their present and future needs the two countries are negotiating separately a new and a modern treaty to replace the 1903 treaty and its amendments."

President Johnson said the new treaties will provide for the defense of the existing canal and any sea level canal which may be constructed in Panama.

"United States forces and military facilities will be maintained under a base rights and status of forces agreement," the President noted.

President Johnson explained that the present canal and any new canal which may be constructed in the future shall be open at all times to the vessels of all nations on a non-discriminatory basis.

A primary objective of the new treaty, President Johnson said, will be to provide for an appropriate political, economic and social integration of the area used in the canal operation with the rest of the Republic of Panama.

It was also noted the new treaty will effectively recognize Panama's sovereignty over the area of the present Canal Zone.

PXs Planning To Honor Cash Saving Coupons

NEW YORK (AFPS) — Army, Air Force and Navy exchange stores and Navy commissary stores will soon be accepting merchandise coupons to help stretch the serviceman's shopping dollar.

Coupons received by customers through direct-mail advertising, newspaper or magazine advertising, or by inclusion in packages of merchandise, will be accepted by cashiers.

Army and Air Force Exchange officials pointed out that coupons must be given to the cashier prior to the actual ringing of the sale. The Navy has restricted coupons to those of a manufacturer whose products are stocked by the store at the time of purchase.

Higher Rates Now On Damage Claims

Washington (AFPS) — Some service personnel who received $6,500 for lost or damaged personal property under the Military Personnel Claims Act may be entitled to more money.

A new law authorizes payments up to $10,000, and covers personnel since July 2, 1952 whose claims were limited to $6,500 under previous regulations.

An additional claim may be made by written notice to the appropriate military department on or before Sept. 15, 1966.

Tactics Discussion

1st Cavalry Division Operating From Compact Camp at An Khe

AN KHE, Viet Nam (ANF) — "The landing of the 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) in Viet Nam marks the third time in three decades that the 'First Team' has fought aggression in the Far East."

With that statement, Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard officially announced the arrival of his "First Air Cav" and made known their intention to fight Communist insurgency using ". . .all our strength, determination and imagination."

Just three months earlier, the division was stationed at Fort Benning, Ga., as the 11th Air Assault Division (Test), the prototype and skeleton of the present airmobile unit. Then, as swiftly as the word came from the White House via nationwide radio and television, the 1st Air Cav was packing its gear for Viet Nam.

While the bulk of the division's nearly 16,000 personnel and their 434 aircraft were bundled aboard ships at Mayport Naval Station, Fla., an advance party of 1,000 men led by Brig. Gen. John M. Wright, an assistant division commander, arrived in Viet Nam to carve a radically new division campsite out of the trackless jungle of the central highlands.

Gen. Wright designed a tightly clustered camp centered on a helipad and landing strip capable of accommodating several hundred helicopters.

". . .You may have been taught that for protection we spread out," he said, "but the idea is to produce a living area that will require a minimum number of guards and, therefore, leave a maximum number of soldiers to go out and find the Viet Cong."

BARRIER SYSTEM

The camp will be encircled by an extensive barrier system of outposts and guards to keep the enemy beyond mortar range.

The jungle - choked campsite was brought into existence and made accessible by eight days of round-the-clock work by Army Engineers who plowed miles through virgin jungle to lay an access road, then cleared the 50 - square - kilometer campsite and prepared the airstrip.

Combat supplies had already been flown in to the new installation and personal goods were arriving when lead elements of the division came roaring inland from the harbor terminals.

Though Gen. Kinnard cautioned that his division would be no cure-all for the U.S. cause in Viet Nam, it has, in the words of Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, put the Army ". . .on the threshold of an entirely new approach to the conduct of the land battle."

Field Band to Give Concert in Columbus

The U. S. Army Field Band, popularly known as "The Kings of the Highway," will present a concert at 8 p.m. next Friday at the Columbus Three Arts Theater.

With about 100 of the Army's finest musicians, the band will play a repertoire designed for audience appeal.

The Army Field Band travels thousands of miles each year as the representative band of the Department of the Army.

Bringing the world's great music to many areas, the band has appeared in all 50 states, Mexico, Canada, the United Kingdom, Europe and the Far East.

The band has won fame outside the country, officials said, as a result of three tours sponsored by the Department of the Army and the State Department.

Established in 1946, the band played in the inaugural parades of Presidents Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson.

The concert will include numbers by the "Soldiers' Chorus," a vocal group integral to the band.

Lt. Col. Robert L. Bierly will direct the concert, assisted by Maj. Wilmont N. Trumbull with Theodore Gargiulo, organist at Fort Benning's Infantry Center Chapel, as guest conductor.

Admission is free.

Italians Help Produce New Army Carrier

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The M113 Armored Personnel Carrier, the first U.S. Army item of equipment to be manufactured under the Co - production for Security Program, is now being completely produced in Italy for use by the Italian Army.

Under the present program, the Italian government will spend $30 million on U.S.-built component parts for M113s.

This program is a significant step forward in the Defense Department's efforts to achieve maximum standardization of NATO equipment. It demonstrates the possibilities of future cooperative effort between the U.S. and other NATO nations.

The program also assists balance of payments problems and insures a capable manufacturing base for the M113 in Europe.

Make Compost Out of Leaves

You've been advised to make a compost pile out of your leaves instead of burning them. But, just what is the best way to make the pile? Here is how:

The best thing is a bin ten feet square and six feet deep. First, place 10 to 12 inches of leaves in the bottom of the bin and wet thoroughly. Next, cover with one inch of top soil and sprinkle four or five pounds of 8-8-8, 101-10-10 or some other complete fertilizer over the soil.

Repeat these steps until the bin is full. Leave a depression in the center of the pile so rain water will soak down. During dry periods, add water to hasten rotting of the leaves.

Follow this procedure and in a year you will have about two tons of well-rotted compost.

CHORUS VISITS . . . The Soldier's Chorus will sing at the Army Field Band concert at 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 15, at the Columbus Three Arts Theater. The program is coordinated by the local Chamber of Commerce and the Department of the Army. A portion of the chorus is shown here. Admission is free at the Three Arts Theater, officials said.

Dental Superstitions

DENTAL IMPRESSIONS — NATHAN GRACE, PREVENTIVE DENTISTRY OFFICER

Dental disease is perhaps as old as mankind itself. Through the years and centuries, people have been trying to find ways to explain and prevent it. A large volume of superstitious lore has developed pertaining to teeth and their various ailments.

The Hindus believed that a child whose upper teeth appeared before his lowers would bring great danger to his wife's brother. The origin of this fear has never been explained. Perhaps they thought the baby would bite his brother-in-law when he grew up.

Occasionally children are born with one or more teeth already visible. In some primitive lands this was regarded as a bad omen and the child is immediately destroyed. In other places, a baby born with teeth is considered extremely fortunate and a great future is predicted for him.

In Greece, until quite recently, it was felt that rubbing a baby's gums with the brains of a rabbit or sheep would prevent teething pains. In some parts of Germany, it was thought that these selfsame teething pains could be eliminated by taking 12 drops of blood from the tail of a black cat at midnight and feeding them to the baby. Neither of these procedures sound especially appetizing but they are indicative of the thinking of past generations and the concern and interest shown in the human dentition.

Enlisted Scoring System Revised

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Army has adopted a new scoring concept for its enlisted evaluation system.

Called "Multiple Hurdle," the new system does away with some inequities in the scoring method. In the past, a soldier who got a good evaluation from his commander and a low score on his proficiency test could still retain his primary MOS. Conversely, a soldier could do well on the test, get a poor evaluation from his commander and still retain his MOS.

The Army has now set a minimum score for the commanders evaluation, for each evaluation test and for the performance test. A person failing to exceed any of the minimum scores would fail the entire series and be determined unqualified for his MOS.

Benning Unit Claims Mark In Caribous

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army's 17th Aviation Company (Caribou) has laid claim to the record for the largest Pacific aerial deployment using Army aircraft.

The unit flew its 18 CV-2's from Fort Benning, Ga., to its new duty station in Viet Nam, a distance of 10,046 nautical miles.

The 16 day flight included stops at Hamilton AFB, Calif., Hawaii, Midway Island, Wake Island, Guam and Clark AFB, P. I.

Three officers and two enlisted men were aboard each Caribou, making a total flight crew of 90 men.

Severe weather encountered after takeoff from Wake Island for Guam accounted for the only major incident of the journey. All aircraft returned safely to Wake.

Freedom Group Gives 200 Books To Post Schools

Fort Benning's dependent schools have received 200 copies of "Guidelines to the American Way of Life," complied by the Freedom Foundation in Valley Forge, Pa.

The books were donated by Fort Benning Chapter No. 8, National Sojourners.

The presentation was made by Lt. Reginald C. Thomas chapter president, and Col. (Ret.) Milton G. Schneider, chairman of the Americanism Committee.

Dr. Joseph T. Conforti, assistant superintendent for instruction, said the books will be used throughout the schools as reference material to supplement instruction in Americanism.

"In a time when it seems that America's traditions are passing out of style and being forgotten, we must not assume that, by inevitable law of history, our American heritage will remain forever a dominant influence in our country, unless we make our children aware of the forces and ideals that made America great", Thomas said.

Fewer Cavities Sought By Navy In Paste Tests

BAINBRIDGE, Md. (AFPS) — A toothpaste test is being given to approximately 100 Nuclear Power School students at the U.S. Naval Training Center here and 100 more will soon join them.

All of the students selected will have their teeth cleaned and receive fluoride treatments. After the treatments half will use a fluoride toothpaste and the other half will use the same toothpaste without fluoride. Examinations will follow each six months for the next two years.

The object of the test is to see if using a stannous fluoride toothpaste in conjunction with fluoride treatments reduces cavities appreciably more than the fluoride treatments alone.

There are two reasons for selecting the Nuclear Power School students. Most of them will be assigned to the New London area where it will be easy to keep track of them and they are in the age bracket (18 to 25) during which most cavities occur.

Liaison Officer Visits Center

New Infantry weapons, tactics and doctrine are being discussed with Brigadier Norman G. Wilson-Smith, senior Army liaison officer of the Canadian Defense Liaison Staff, Washington, D. C., during his visit to the Infantry Center yesterday, today and Saturday.

Smith will be briefed on Fort Benning's history, organization and administration and then tour the new Infantry School, Bldg. 4.

Scout Activity Going Strong

Boy scout activity at Fort Benning during the last quarter has been continuing at a steady pace, according to a scout spokesman.

PFC W. E. Taylor, post scouting coordinator, reports that the boy scouts have participated in 19 outpost encampments, two guided tours, 13 instructional periods and an overnight stop during the last three months.

It is estimated that nearly 700 boys and leaders participated in the scouting activities.

Bill Signed Authorizing Money for Suggestions

Washington (A F P S) — President Johnson has signed an act authorizing cash awards up to $25,000 to service personnel for suggestions, inventions or scientific achievements which benefit the government.

It will be some time before each service can adopt respective programs to put award machinery into motion, an official said, but anyone making a contribution now is eligible for consideration.

Uniformed personnel are encouraged to submit worthwhile contributions for evaluation under the new authorization.

Money will be paid from appropriated funds similar to the program provided civil servants. Previously some service personnel were granted cash awards in lesser amounts from non-appropriated funds such as post or base exchange profits.

The awards legislation was introduced by Rep. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa. It gives regulation authority for the new program to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara as it affects the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force. Similar authority is given to the Secretary of the Treasury for the Coast Guard.

An additional authorization can be made by the President for "efficiency, economy, or other improvement of operations of the Government of the United States."

This means a person can receive an award for "service contribution" and then be given a "Presidential" award, if both do not exceed the $25,000 limit.

Only active service personnel are eligible. A person may receive the award after service separation if the contribution was made while on active duty. Should the contributor die, the money would go to a beneficiary.

Anyone receiving a cash award will be required to waive rights for future legal action against the Government involving such claims as patent or royalty rights.

WORLD WAR I

The first American shot fired in World War I was fired on October 27, 1917 by Battery B of the 6th Field Artillery. Sgt. Alexander Arch of South Bend, Indiana was in command of the crew that fired the shot.

Honor Ceremony Greets Laotian Major General

Infantry, airborne and Ranger training was observed by Maj. Gen. Kong Le Rolin, commanding general, Neutralist Armed Forces, Laos, who was welcomed to Fort Benning at a 2 p.m. honor ceremony Wednesday (Oct. 6) on York Field.

Local commander for the honor ceremony was Brig. Gen. George I. Forsythe, assistant commandant, The Infantry School.

During the presentation of honors The Infantry Center Band sounded three "Ruffles and Flourishes" and "The General's March," while Battery A, 2nd Battalion, 10th Artillery, commanded by Capt. Willis R. Bunting of Selbyville, Del., fired a 15-gun salute.

Company C, 1st Battalion, 197th Infantry Brigade, furnished the honor guard.

Following an inspection of the honor guard by Gen. Kong Le and Gen. Forsythe, the band played the national anthems of Laos and the United States, and then the troops passed in review.

Gen. Kong Le was briefed on the history and organization of The Infantry Center, and on the utilization of the Fort Benning reservation in support of training.

He saw airborne training facilities at Eubanks Field, toured the officer candidate area and then observed Infantry weapons training and employment.

Thursday Gen. Kong Le visited the Ranger mountain training camp at Dahlonega, Ga.

An official luncheon will be held today at noon in the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The general will depart tomorrow from Lawson Army Airfield for Miami, Fla., and Cape Kennedy.

ON FRENCH SOIL

The first American to land on French soil in World War I was Cpl. Franklin M. Koons of Sioux City, Iowa, one of the Rangers who accompanied Lt. Col. Lord Lovat's commandos on the Dieppe raid, 19 August 1942.

BASKETBALL'S IN THE AIR
TSB Team Works Out at Briant Wells Field House

Post Touch Football Still Fizzles But Basketball Prepares Blast Off

While Fort Benning's touch football play is still fizzling on the launching pad, basketball is in the air here and all indications point to a healthy season. With five weeks remaining until the scheduled start of this year's basketball competition, most major units are now capping several weeks of planning with team tryouts and practice sessions.

The 197th Infantry Brigade began tryouts on Monday at the Kelley Hill Field House. A brigade spokesman reports that the 197th plans to enter five teams in the major unit competition slated to begin around the second week of November in Briant Wells Field House.

197th Infantry Brigade

The brigade's 10th Artillery, 69th Armor and 29th and 58th Infantries are now organizing teams. In addition a Brigade Troops team is forming from the 197th Headquarters Company, the 42nd Artillery, 26th Scout Dog Platoon, 72nd Engineers, 187th Pathfinders and 183rd Chemical Platoon. Howie Keene, a member of last year's All-Army basketball squad, will coach the brigade troops contingent.

The 197th reports that competition will also be organized on lower unit levels to allow basketball participation by men unable to play on the brigade's five major entries.

10th Avn. Gp.

A 10th Aviation Group athletic official said that organization is planning to organize two battalion-level teams to represent the unit in major unit competition.

Lawson Army Aviation Command announced this week that it will not organize any teams for major unit competition this year. LAAC's troop strength and 24 hour a day work shifts make major unit play difficult, a spokesman said. The command will organize some teams for intra unit play.

Approximately 30 men from the 428th Medical Battalion turned out for team tryouts on Monday. A battalion spokesman said the Medics will enter one team in major unit competition. It will be composed of players drawn from Martin Army Hospital, 50th Medical Company, 98th Evacuation Hospital and 690th Ambulance Company.

TSB Organizes Two

A Student Brigade sports official announced this week that TSB will organize two teams in conjunction with other Infantry School units. Team No. 1 will be composed of the TSB Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Infantry School Battalion, 2nd Student Battalion and 4th Student Battalion (Airborne). The 1st Ranger Company, 5th Student Battalion (OC), 15th Finance Disbursing Section, U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit and USAIS Infantry Board will comprise team No. 2.

The brigade began team tryouts at Briant Wells Field House on Monday.

CTC

The Infantry Center Troop Command will enter two or three teams in competition this year according to the CTC sports office. The 1st Battalion, CTC, defending Infantry Center basketball champs, and the 577th Engineers will each organize teams. A spokesman said there is a possibility that the 39th Transportation Battalion might also field a squad but no definite decision has been reached yet. The 39th's strength was diminished this year when it sent a company to Viet Nam.

Most units report that basketball practice will get underway in earnest next week.

No Grid Action Here Last Week

Weather and troop movements combined to ground touch football action at Fort Benning last week. No games were played by the two major units currently holding competition at Gowdy and Doughboy Fields.

Both the Infantry Center Troop Command and the 428th Medical Battalion were scheduled for two evenings of grid activity. Rain canceled out CTC on Tuesday and Thursday and the Medics were forced to cancel play because elements of the battalion were engaged in moving to new quarters.

An announcement by a 10th Aviation Group athletic spokesman this week made the Benning football picture more bleak. The group will probably not participate in company - level action at Gowdy Field this year, the spokesman said. The 10th was originally scheduled to play twice a week at Gowdy.

In action this week the 690th Ambulance Company beat Martin Army Hospital 12to 6 on Monday in 428th Medical Battalion competition. The win kept the 690th in first place with a 3 win, 0 loss record.

In CTC play the 98th Ordnance Company trounced the 587th Engineers, 22 to 6, and B Company, 1st Battalion beat Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 6 to 0 at Gowdy Field on Tuesday. B Company holds first place in CTC competition with a 3 win, 0 loss record.

In action within the 197th Infantry Brigade, D Company, 1st Bn, 29th Infantry beat A Company of the 1st by default and C Battery, 10th Artillery defeated E Battery, 6 to 0.

FRIDAY NIGHT FIGHTS . . . Pvt. Ashland Poe of the 46th Company, 4th Student Battalion The Student Brigade, takes to the scale this week in preparation for the battalion-sponsored boxing matches which get underway tonight at 7 p.m. at the Beane Street arena. Sgt. Noah Cornell, referee and matchmaker, does the weighing in while Pvt. Carlos Ortiz strikes a fighting stance. The arena is located behind the battalion's Headquarters and Service Company.

'Moose Course' Lives Up to Title

FORT RICHARDSON, Alaska (AFPS) — Moose Run Golf Course here is living up to its name, much to the distraction of golfers who contend moose are not allowed to play on the course.

For reasons known only to the moose, they are attracted to the course by the "pins" —flagsticks placed in each hole. Officials have been trying to discourage the animals. Besides not being authorized users of the course they are plowing rather rough on the greens.

Efforts to remove the pins each night and return them only when the course opens have been frustrated by early morning players who replace the pins before the course opens, signaling the moose to come visiting.

The only ones who seem to gain from the situation are the local hunters, some of whom are rumored to have turned in their 30.06s for three irons, possibly in hopes of getting a double trophy.

The Chicago Cubs tied a major league on the final day of the season by coming up with their third triple play of the year. Pitching for the Cubs in all three of those instances was Bill Faul.

The Aftermath

BY DICK MINNIG

Give the Devil His Due

FROM THE "interesting facts about cards department" or "you've got to give the devil his due".

In 1453, the Franciscan friar Saint Bernard of Siena said that playing cards were the invention of the devil. Cards have increased in popularity ever since. Playing-card sales in the U. S. have reached 60 to 70 million decks annually since World War II and there's no sign that they're about to taper off. You've got to give the devil his due.

Card playing at Fort Benning usually takes two major forms. These are the polite lunch-time bridge session whose mecca is Building 4 and the not-so-polite "barrack's poker game" played wherever dealing room is available. The games are always in season. Civilians often dominate the former. The latter is strictly a military affair which comes in two to six man sizes and is accompanied by cheer and dispair in healthy doses. You can always tell the players without a program. The silent smug faces are winners and the headshakers and long-exhalers are losers.

Cards and the Serviceman

CARDS and the servicemen are inseparable. About 30 million decks were distributed free to servicemen during World War II. They are inexpensive, portable and have a meaning which transcends state and national boundaries. A king is a king in Maine or Texas.

In addition there's a vast variety of games that can be played with a 52-card deck. The new complete Hoyle lists over 400 games and their variations, including 10 varities of solitaire and ten of pinochle. You can play alone, play honeymoon bridge or play in an eight man blackjack game. Cards are for the hermit or the community lover.

And the names of games are revealing of all facets of life. We find poetry in the German "Senip Senap Schnurr Basilorum", eros in the "Wild Widow", or "Vive le Amour, nature gone amuck in "Seven Toed Pete," travel in "Up and Down the River", ugliness in "Beast" and even man's insignificance in "Spit in the Ocean". Kids have come up with some good names too. Slap Jack, Old Maid, Beggar Your Neighbor, Stealing Bundles, Go Boom, Donkey and Cuckoo are some of them.

The devil is not the only one who has been given the honor or blame for inventing cards. Hindus, Moslems, Jews, Chinese and others have also been named. But it is generally believed that cards were first introduced to Europe by homeward bound crusaders about 1300. It was only a matter of time and Columbus until they came to America.

Trouble in Spades

TAXES on cards are almost universal. Governments couldn't afford to pass up an item so popular. In France and Spain the manufacture of playing cards is a state monopoly and in England a man was hanged in 1805 for forging an ace of spades. You could say he had troubles "in spades."

Even education and propaganda have exploited playing cards. Louis XIV was taught his geography, history and other studies by lessons engraved on card faces. In the 1920s the Soviet Union attempted to replace the traditional royal design of playing cards with revolutionary figures. They failed miserably.

Fortune tellers make use of playing cards to predict the future. Court cards are supposed to represent people and numerical cards denote events. The future is mapped out when cards are combined with each other. For instance, a king of diamonds in conjunction with an ace, seven and eight of spades, make chances good that an easily angered blonde man is out to do you in.

The other uses of cards are endless. They can be pitched into hats, made into houses, used as knife or dart targets, stuffed up sleeves or made into magic tricks. So shuffle, cut and deal.

Small Games Rosters Due Next Week

The Infantry Center Special Services Section announced this week that units desiring to compete in the 1965 small games tournament should submit a roster of participants by October 11.

A meeting of all participants, unit athletic officers and Special Services officials will be held on Oct. 14 in Briant Wells Field House to discuss final tournament procedures and draw pairings for the opening round of play.

The tourney, slated for Oct. 18 to 22 at the field house, will determine the post champions in horseshoes, handball, badminton, and table tennis. All contests will be decided by single elimination, a tourney spokesman said.

Checking Accounts Teach Money Handling To Prospective High School Graduates

If you're a high school senior today, you're probably entering your young life's last year of total protection. Next year, whether you're going to college or to work, you'll be much more on your own.

While this freedom has many delights it also has many responsibilities — such as handling your own money.

Even if you handle only a few dollars a week, a checking account of your own this year will get you in practice for next year's flight from high school and, probably, home.

If your father complains that your clothes bills are impoverishing him, explore the possibilities of a monthly clothing allowance to be included in your checking account. At the next paternal moan, you can present the facts: "Last month I spent less than $14 for clothes — $9.98 for a pair of slacks and $5.98 for a shirt on sale." (Rule of thumb to guide both of you: the average American family currently spends about 10 per cent of its budget on clothing.)

Simple To Open

In most banks, opening a checking account is a fairly simple procedure for the high school student. Some banks may have a minimum age requirement or ask for a parent's signature when you open an account. (However, many banks in rural areas, where the 4-H program requires a certain amount of banking, will open accounts for young businessmen and women of 13 or so).

If you go to your parents' bank, and generally conduct yourself responsibly, it's probable that in a few days you'll have a brand new checkbook of your very own.

Special Checking

Banks will not usually charge you for checks if you keep a specified minimum balance in your account — maybe $300, maybe $500. However, with a deposit of only a few dollars, nearly all banks will open what is usually called a Special Checking Account. With such accounts you generally either buy your checks (usually at 10 cents each) or pay a small fee for each deposit made and for each check drawn.

Writing a check is considerably easier than writing a theme for English. Once you're in practice, the process will become almost automatic. (So automatic, does it become that an absent-minded novelist recently signed a check to the telephone company, "Love, Milly". They sent it back).

These are the steps to remember in writing a check and filling out the corresponding stub in your checkbook. Always fill out the stub first so you won't forget to keep a record of your checks.

The Stub

1. The number of the check. (This is for your own records. Number your checks consecutively if the bank hasn't already printed numbers on them).
2. The amount of money you have in the bank today ($36.50).
3. Date of today's check.
4. Amount of check ($9.98).
5. Name to which the check is written (Go - Go Shop).
6. What the check paid for (pants).
7. Balance remaining in your account ($36.50 minus $9.98-$26.52).

The Check

1. Number of the check
2. Date
3. Name of the person to whom you are paying the check (or, if you are taking your own money out of the bank, "Cash".)
4. Amount of the check in numbers ($9.98).
5. Amount of the check in words (Nine and 98-100 dollars)
6. Your signature (make sure that it's the same as the signature on file at the bank. If you're registered as Mary Anne Robertson, sign the check that way, not Mary A. Robertson).

Do's and Don'ts

Some do's and don'ts for keeping your checking account running smoothly:

DO be sure that the amount in words is the same as the amount in figures. This seems elementary enough but it's one of the most common check-writing mistakes.

DON'T cross out or correct anything once the check has been written. If you've made a mistake, start afresh. The bank will give you a new check.

DO fill out the rest of the line with a heavy dash after you have written the name of the payee and the amount in words. This is so that someone else can't alter the check you have written.

DON'T write a check in pencil. It is legal but it could be so easily erased and rewritten for a much larger figure.

DO check your records with the statement that the bank will send you every month.

LOLLOBRIGIDIENNE

The name of Gina Lollobrigida, who's currently filming MGM's "Hotel Paradiso" in Paris with Alec Guinness, has been officially incorporated in a new word in the French language.

The word is "Lollobrigidienne" and it appears in a revised French dictionary with the explanation: "Used by artists to describe a rolling landscape, or by surveyors, etc., for a hilly terrain!"

Film historians say the last time this sort of thing happened was with Mae West who gave her name to the inflatable life-jacket.

MPs Make Plans For Two New Sub-Stations

Two new military police sub-stations will be established in the near future in Fort Benning's Sand Hill and Harmony Church areas.

The sub-station will be at the Sand Hill intersection of Custer and Cusseta Roads and one at Bldg. 5154 on Cusseta Road near the intersection of Highway 27 in the Harmony Church area.

The sub-stations will be in communication with the Main Post, Central MP Station by telephone, radio and teletype.

Generally, these sub-stations will provide MP assistance to local commands, information to visitors, and provide facilities for preliminary investigation of offenses and incidents.

FRANKENSTEIN AND THE SPACE MONSTER. . . Space scientist Dr. Adam Steele (Jim Karen) has developed an astro-robot who has a human body in an effort to spare our astronauts from danger and possible death. The robot's launch from Cape Kennedy is detected by an invading space ship from another planet.

THE GLORY GUYS. . . Capt. Tom Tryon knows his regiment is committed to a war of annihilation against the Sioux. Tryon mistrusts his commander, General Andrew Duggan, whom he suspects of overambition. Tryon meets and falls in love with beautiful Senta Berger but discovers that his regiment's chief scout, Harve Presnell, has a prior claim on her. The men become enemies.

THE LINE IS DRAWN: 20-minute short. This picture is based on a series of letters written by Capt. James P. Spruill, United States Army, to his wife while on duty as an advisor to the Vietnamese troops. Capt. Spruill was killed while on duty in Viet Nam and his letters released to the Army and the general public because they contained such a strong sense of understanding of the people of Viet Nam and why America has come to the aid of this war-stricken country. The film depicts faithfully the duties of Capt. Spruill as he advises the Vietnamese Army and comforts and aids the people of the land. The story projects in most simple terms through the language of an American hero the spirit of the struggle in this far off land.

'007' Has Military Background for Role

Connery spet three years in the British Royal Navy. Ten years later, he joined the "Secret Service" for his movie role as James Bond, 007, in "Dr. No," subsequently recreating the characterization in "From Russia With Love" and "Goldfinger."

Now he changes uniform and service again, this time as a soldier in a British military prison, for his current role as Trooper Joe Roberts, the broken warrant officer in MGM-Seven Arts' "The Hill," which had its American premiere on Oct. 6th at the Sutton Theatre in New York.

Book Review

Patton's Genius Depicted

By MIKE GROGAN

PATTON: ORDEAL AND TRIUMPH by Ladislas Farago, Ivan Obolensky, Inc., July 1965.

As soon as the melee of war dies down and the victors have enjoyed the fruits of their triumphs, there appears on the scene the raft of second guessers who pick apart the tactics that won or lost each battle and explain how it should have been fought.

In many ways this is what Farago is doing in "Ordeal and Triumph" but, instead of adding his own strategic plans to those of the military minds, he takes the tactical schemes of Gen. George S. Patton.

The book is more than a mere biography of a famous general; it is also a study of the frustrations of military genius.

A flamboyant and controversial general, Patton is characterized in the book as a tactical wizard whose plans could well have ended the European War in 1944, a year before it actually came to a halt.

But for his remarkable talent for getting into trouble, Farago explains, Patton's plans for waging war could have changed the entire complexion of the European operation. But the general's penchant for doing things his own way and his superiors think of him as unpredictable caused him to take a back seat to Gens. Montgomery and Bradley.

Still, Patton made a name for himself as a hard hitting, hard driving military leader who the Germans considered as the Allied general they had to fear most. His brilliant tactics pushed the Third Army he commanded across Belgium and France with remarkable swiftness and, if it hadn't been for logistics problems, he would have entered Germany at a time when Allied planners had not even considered carrying the war into the "Fatherland."

Frustration after frustration met Patton as he prepared his Army to move into Germany. His plans were not accepted by the high command because of his past record for getting into "hot water."

Credit Union Gears Operations For Accepting Benning Soldiers

Army Band To Perform Here Tonight

"The "Kings of the Road," the U.S. Army Field Band, will play here in Columbus, at the Three Arts Theater, tonight at 8 p.m.

The band features 100 of the Army's finest musicians and has arranged a program designed to be listened to, according to band conductor, Lt. Col. Robert L. Bierly.

The band travels thousands of miles every year as a goodwill ambassador for the Army.

It has brought the world's great music to such places as Mexico, Canada, the United Kingdom, Europe and the Far East.

The band concert will also include vocal arrangements by the Soldier's Chorus and a special guest conductor, Theodore Gargiulo, organist at Fort Benning's Infantry Center chapel.

Army Directive Brings Action by Local Bureau

A credit union for soldiers at Fort Benning took one step closer to reality when the civilian credit bureau announced it is opening membership to soldiers next week.

Also, it was announced that soldiers may make loan applications Nov. 15.

The Infantry Center Federal Credit Union this week said it has amended its charter and may begin to accept military members as early as Monday.

The union added it has found it necessary because of the expected increase in membership to enlarge the present office staff and train military personnel to serve on the board of directors and key committees.

Presently the credit union has approximately 2700 members as of the month of September according to Warren A. Wyrick, union president.

The decision by the credit union to begin accepting military members was announced after a Defense Department directive last month requiring commanders at every post to help establish credit unions for men of all ranks.

According to officials, a serviceman gains membership by making a deposit which serves to buy shares in the union. Shares are issued on the basis of every five dollars deposited in the credit union, officials said.

Dividends on an average of 4.5 per cent per annum are paid on the member's shares semi-annually.

Chartered under federal law, the union is operated by a board of directors elected by all members. It makes loans to members based on their ability to repay and charges a maximum rate of interest of one per cent per month on the unpaid balance.

As an added advantage the credit union furnishes free life insurance on the unpaid balance of a loan and a dollar for dollar life insurance on deposit up to $2,000.

This means that if a soldier receives a loan and dies before it is fully paid, the loan is erased. Also, for every dollar he deposits, his dependents will receive an additional dollar if the member should die.

The Credit Union policy came from the Defense De-

Insurance

$2 Payments For Coverage Start in Oct.

All Fort Benning soldiers will have $2 deducted from their October pay for the new Group Life Insurance for Uniformed Services according to information received by officials at the post Monday, Oct. 11.

The insurance, which went into effect Sept. 29, is not mandatory; however, the $2 deduction is based on an assumption that the serviceman will elect to take out a $10,000 policy under the new plan. At a later date, there will be an opportunity to reduce the insurance coverage to a $5,000 policy with a $1 per month premium or decline the insurance, officials said.

Coverage and premium deductions under the group insurance plan are fully automatic, however, if a serviceman declines or cancels the insurance and decides later to subscribe to the plan, he must meet good health requirements.

Premiums include claims and administrative costs, subject to reduction if justified by operating costs. Costs traceable to extra hazards of service will be borne by the government. Other

Cycle Roundup Offers Youngsters Safety Tips

The 1965 Bicycle Roundup Safety Program will take place at three Fort Benning elementary schools Oct. 16, 23 and 30.

Designed to instill safe attitudes in post children who ride bicycles, the program will instruct the children on traffic regulations and bicycle maintainance and will register, inspect and provide reflectorized tape for the bikes. Followup information to parents on bicycles needing repair or adjustment will be provided.

Instruction and inspections will be held at Faith School tomorrow, Wilbur School on Oct. 23 and at Loyd School on Oct. 30. Sessions will begin at the respective school auditoriums at 9 a.m.

About 1,500 children are expected to attend the sessions in contrast to the 1,000 who attended last year. Safety League membership cards will be awarded each child.

The provost marshal's office will provide supervision for the program and VFW Post 665 will provide the reflector tape for the bicycles.

Musicians Don't Have Dental Problems

Playing of certain types of wind instruments may help correct malocclusion, (faulty bite), Dr. S. Seidner, Tel Aviv, Israel, has reported. He pointed out that playing a signal horn may aid orthodontic treatments in children with protruding upper teeth and playing a blockflute may be helpful in treating protruding lower teeth.

Defense Dept. Accepts Service Medal Design

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A bronze, disc-shaped medal has been accepted by the Defense Department as the design for the Viet Nam Service Medal announced by President Johnson July 8.

All members of the U. S. armed forces are eligible to receive the medal for service in Viet Nam and contiguous waters or airspace thereover, after July 3, 1965. Specific time periods and military participation for award of the medal are spelled out in a new Defense Department instruction.

Designed by the Army's Institute of Heraldry, the medal shows a cluster of bamboo trees super-imposed on a traditional Oriental dragon above the inscription "Republic of Viet Nam Service."

The bamboo trees are adapted from the flag of the President of RVN and the partly-concealed dragon is in reference to the subversive nature of the conflict.

The reverse side of the medal shows a crossbow surmounted by a flaming torch above the words "United States of America." The crossbow is the ancient weapon of Viet Nam and the torch of the Statue of Liberty is a symbol of United States devotion to liberty and freedom.

The service medal is appended to a yellow ribbon with three vertical red stripes suggesting the colors of the RVN flag. The ribbon has a green border on each side, alluding to the jungle of that country.

The post credit union has set a target date for accepting loan applications from military members, Nov. 15.

The credit union will provide soldiers with credit and loan liquidation counselling according to a recently published credit union fact sheet.

The fact sheet continues that there will be no checking accounts and the union will be under control of the members, not military control.

The information sheet said salaries are paid only to credit union office help.

The board of directors is elected by the union membership according to union information.

Claims will be settled in a lump sum payment or in equal monthly installments over a 36-month period. Selection of the method of payment may be made by the insured, or, if he fails to do so, by the beneficiary.

Further information about the insurance is being disseminated through command channels to all service personnel.

Editor's View

By Jim Baker

The day was Wednesday; the place, an office in Fort Benning's building four.

A major picks up the telephone and after listening into it for a while, replies that he will "check it out and call back."

He puts the phone down, thinks a minute and then picks it back up and dials a number and asks for a Major Snead.

When the party comes to the phone he tells this story.

"A friend of my wife got a letter from her captain husband in Viet Nam the other day and he asked her to check into a complaint from one of his sergeants who said he hadn't heard from his wife living in Columbus.

"She did her best to try and locate the sergeant's wife at her husband's request.

"She was finally located living downtown and working at night as a cocktail waitress in a bar.

"The woman told the captain's wife she had not received a single penny since her husband left for Viet Nam.

"She said a bank note was coming due and between working and taking care of her family she had not been able to write to her husband."

(It is possible the woman even felt betrayed by her husband as she had never received any money from him. It is also possible she didn't know that the husband had arranged a generous portion of his pay to go to his wife each month in the form of an allotment.)

The facts of the situation learned, the Major's wife called her friend and told her the story and she called the sergeant's wife who called the Fort Benning Community Services Agency.

Maj. Shirley Snead told him many routes were open to the woman and she should contact the agency.

She said the banks, upon verification from the Red Cross, will extend loan dead-lines and the Red Cross would even advise the sergeant in Viet Nam of his wife's health and situation.

One of the jobs of the services agency is to check on the validity of the complaint or problem.

In this case, Maj. Snead said there were many simliar instances of allocations not reaching families of men stationed in Viet Nam.

She said the Red Cross could advance the money in emergencies to families against the day when the money started coming in.

The big problem in Snead's work with the Community Services Agency is that they have no way of knowing whether or not problems exist unless people come to the agency with them.

The only way the Community Services Agency can help families in need is if the families come to the agency for help.

There is also the Army Emergency Relief Fund which can advance money to dependents of servicemen in dire situations.

The Community Services Agency and its staff is in business to help dependents, but they can only help when they know of the problem.

Hopefully everyone will read this plea or at least people will tell their friends about it. When enough people know about it, maybe the Community Services Agency can do the job they want to do.

They helped one family and they are helping many more.

Help them to help everyone who comes to them.

Post Thrift Shop Can Save Money

Recently, The Bayonet published an article about the abundance of merchandise currently available at the post Thrift Shop. For those who haven't gone by to take a look, it might be well worth their while to do so.

Uniforms, furniture, clothing and many other types of merchandise are available in what, in many cases, are truly bargain prices. These are offered for sale by servicemen who for one reason or another have decided to sell same for what is often just a fraction of the original cost.

For handling the merchandise available in the Thrift Shop, the Fort Benning Officers Wives' Club charges only a small commission which it in turn uses for welfare purposes for the whole post. The ladies who run the shop do so on a volunteer basis.

The Thrift Shop is located in Building 130 behind the Infantry Museum and is open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday. It's a worthwhile place to visit in that purchases you make there both save you money and benefit the post welfare program as well.

Casual Autumn Drive Can Lead to Tragedy

Weatherwise, autumn is one of the most pleasant times of the year.

The days and evenings are not too hot . . . not too cold . . . as a matter of fact, they seem just right for taking a little drive "here, there and everywhere." Our highways reflect this activity with people going on trips, people coming back from trips and people just "out for a spin."

Too often, these little "spins" result in tragedy in the form of fatal and disabling accidents. These accidents don't "just happen" . . . as the saying goes . . . they are most often caused by a simple act of carelessness which has not too simple consequences.

With clear skies on the horizon and the weather conducive to trips around the countryside with the family and friends, all Fort Benning drivers should remind themselves of the importance of driving sanely and defensively during the coming months. It's so easy to "forget" and become careless . . . unfortunately, one moment of carelessness too often results in a lifetime of grief.

Drive carefully, drive defensively . . . drive to stay alive!

'Let's Discuss False Claims for Travel Allowances'

During recent years there have been a number of court-martial trials of military personnel who made and presented false claims against the government.

This is an offense punishable under the Uniform Code of Military Justice by up to five years confinement at hard labor, a dishonorable discharge, total forfeitures and reduction to the lowest enlisted grade.

The cases usually involve a claim for the travel of a soldier or his dependents which was not actually performed, for which travel pay had already been paid, or for which travel pay was not authorized.

Generally speaking, when a soldier is ordered to travel from one place to another, the government must either provide the transportation or reimburse the soldier on a mileage basis for performing the travel.

Reimbursement for the travel of a soldier's dependents is generally authorized only when the soldier is ordered to move on permanent change of station (PCS) orders and his dependents actually perform travel in changing their permanent place of residence. No reimbursement is permitted for dependent travel performed for temporary visits even if the soldier has PCS orders.

Reimbursement for authorized travel is usually made by making a claim for it through a personnel officer. If a soldier makes a claim for travel pay with the knowledge that reimbursement had already been made, or that reimbursement was not authorized, or that no travel was actually performed, the claim is false and he will be subject to court-martial charges.

Sometimes, soldiers accused of making false claims attempt to justify their actions on the grounds that they did not know they were not entitled to the money involved or that some personnel officer or clerk told them they had it coming.

This is no defense. A personnel officer's or clerk's information may be based on the fact that the individual's records do not yet reflect that he had received the pay or that the government had provided the transportation. The soldier concerned, however, would be aware of whether he had been paid for certain travel and would have been given a copy of a voucher showing the amount and nature of the travel.

If the government had provided the transportation, the soldier would be aware of that. If his dependents had not actually changed their place of residence on a permanent basis, the soldier would or should be aware of that. Claiming ignorance or lack of knowledge when the circumstances indicate the direct opposite will not generally stand as a defense in a court-martial.

The point is that soldiers should be very careful when making claims for travel performed by themselves or their dependents. It is so easy to make a claim for or to accept a payment to which you are not entitled, especially if a personnel clerk says you have it coming.

It is not easy to avoid the consequences if the claim is false. If the claim is false, the person making the claim is the one who will be punished, not the personnel clerk. Read carefully and understand any application for travel pay before you sign it.

McNamara Announces Elimination Of Six Army Reserve Divisions

Washington (AFPS)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has announced that some 750 Army Reserve units, including six divisions, will be eliminated while other selected Army National Guard and Reserve units will be brought to increased combat readiness.

Phase-out of the reserve units will affect some 55,000 personnel who may go into high priority reserve units, join the National Guard or go into the Ready Reserve Reinforcement Pool.

The eliminated units are those not required for contingency war plans, Secretary McNamara said.

Guard units being strengthened are Pennsylvania's 28th Infantry Division, Indiana's 38th Infantry Division and Minnesota's 47th Infantry Division.

Each of these divisions will retain its headquarters, division base and one brigade. The other brigades, two for each division, will be in other states, mostly in the same geographical areas.

Other guard units being brought to increased readiness are six independent brigades and 822 company and detachment size units. Additionally, 50 reserve units of company and detachment size will be strengthened.

Select Forces

Selected forces will be situated in all 50 states, Mr. McNamara said, so that additional training and possible mobilization will not be concentrated in a particular region or a few states.

Six independent brigades being brought to increased strength include Hawaii's 29th Brigade; Nebraska and Iowa's 67th; and Kansas and Missouri's 69th. One brigade will be selected from Texas' 36th Division, one from Oregon, and one from California's 49th Division.

Reserve divisions being phased-out are the 63rd, 77th, 81st, 83rd, 90th and 102nd. Affected states, which contain an entire division or components, are: California, New York, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Tennessee, Ohio, West Virginia, Texas, Missouri and Illinois.

The selected force will number 130,000 guard personnel and 15,000 reservists. Units are authorized 100 percent combat strength and a 50 percent increase in paid drill periods with priority for equipment and maintenance.

PRESIDENTIAL AWARD . . . CWO Gary H. Wilkerson was presented the Presidential Service Badge for serving as a helicopter pilot for Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy. He was a member of the executive flight detachment from July 1959 to 1962. Col. J Elmore Swenson, commander of the 10th Aviation Group, made the presentation.

Soldiers Use Ingenuity For Comfort, Protection

BY JIM LULL

AN KHE, Viet Nam — Troopers of the Army's 1st Air Cavalry Division have shown that combat comfort is directly proportional to a soldier's inventiveness.

What has happened in Col. William R. Lynch's Brigade is typical.

Pup tents throughout the unit boast bomboo patios and verandas topped with ponchos. Everyone has installed Army issue mosquito netting.

Foxholes range from a simple slit, just deep enough to get the body below ground level, to elaborately roofed and tunnelled and underground sanctuaries.

One battalion has grouped its tents into squads and surrounded them with a wall of sand bags as dual protection against heavy rains and enemy mortars.

Another unit has used scores of sand bags to build bunkers, shelter areas and storage huts. At the headquarters sand bag fortresses have been combined to be used for personnel security and as a storehouse for duffle bags.

In other areas of the camp can be seen clothes lines draped with kelly green underwear of the cavalrymen, personal fireplaces and wooden storage sheds.

Each day a new invention appears. It's the work of the American soldier.

Target Developments Get Legion of Merit For School Captain

The nation's second highest award for meritorious service, the Legion of Merit, has been awarded to a Fort Benning officer for his work on the formation of a target system in Viet Nam.

Capt. James B. Carlisle Jr., a student in The Infantry School's associate officer career class, was also presented the third oak leaf cluster to the Air Medal in addition to the Legion of Merit.

Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, Fort Benning commander, made the presentations during a special ceremony Oct. 4 in his office.

Carlisle, who was officer in charge of the aviation section of the 3rd. Radio Research unit in Viet Nam from July 1964 to last May, was awarded the Legion of Merit for his activities in the "formulation and refinement of tactical doctrine" for a unique target acquisition system.

The citation accompanying the medal read in part: "As a result of his perseverance, organizational ability and outstanding training procedures, the target acquisition system has developed into a major intelligence source in support of vital operations in the Republic of Viet Nam.

Following his graduation at The Infantry School, Capt. Carlisle expects to be assigned to Fort Rucker, Ala., as an instructor pilot.

Wives Kick Off Season With Spanish-Style Tea

In an artistically created Latin American atmosphere, 1,200 ladies at Fort Benning attended the fall opening tea of the Officers Wives' Club at the Main Officers Club last week.

The tea tables were laid in the main ballroom with centerpieces formed by brightly colored fruit on over-size silver trays, flanked by multi-branched candelabra.

The tables, placed in the form of a cross, were covered with colored cloths. Rotating throughout the tea hour, Spanish costumed ladies poured tea from silver services placed at the four points of the cross.

Complementing the original Spanish decor of the Officers' Club, simulated Moorish tapestries were hung from the vaulted ceiling, draping the walls and emphasizing floral displays throughout the room. Over-size handmade crepe paper blossoms were attached to branches of green plants in shoulder high standards.

Mrs. R. M. Williams and Mrs. W. M. Preston, decorations co - chairmen, used the theme of a Spanish castle, "Alcazar," in the main ballroom while creating the atmosphere of pueblos of the countryside in adjoining dining areas.

In the Fountain Room, tables flanking the walls were manned by representatives of the varied welfare, educational and recreational activities sponsored by the club. Here guests signed up for such programs as cake baking, modern language courses or bowling.

Spanish selections from a collection of records loaned by Martin Army Hospital provided background music.

Costumes worn by hostesses and the floral decorations were designed by a committee headed by Mrs. C. W. Youngman.

Civil Affairs Units Aiding Vietnamese

AN KHE, RVN (AFPS)—An important phase of the war in the Republic of Viet Nam is being fought without arms by civil affairs units. A typical unit is a six man team of the 1st Cavalry (Airmobile) Division.

Headed by Lieutenant Colonel Robert J. Craig, the team is working on a broad-based civil affairs program to assist the people of the city of An Khe.

Working in conjunction with the U. S. Marines and the Vietnamese, the unit is providing medical, social and industrial assistance.

"Not all our work will be on a grand scale," Craig reported. "Some of our agricultural experts, for instance, will be working on such small projects as the construction of culverts and drains. We feel the Vietnamese people need our help through the entire human spectrum."

The first project of this civil affairs unit was hiring and directing the efforts of some 3,000 Vietnamese laborers.

Later a medical service team was brought into refurbish an abandoned dispensary and to immunize the people against a variety of diseases.

These are just the first steps in the program which is designed to provide the education and assistance the Vietnamese people need to help themselves.

Safety Tip

Tail-Gating Will Kill 6,500 In Half of Daytime Accidents

Within the next year, 6,500 Americans will be killed in traffic accidents involving tail-gating.

Statistics revealed that 46 per cent of all daytime accidents involve rear-end collisions. (This includes same direction side-swipes). The National Safety Council reports that nearly two-out-of three multiple car turnpike accidents are rear-end collisions.

The carnage is truly prodigious. Shortly before Christmas three years ago, a woman driver pulled part way off the Santa Ana Freeway in California with a flat tire. A driver slowed to get around her and the car behind him smacked him.

This set up a chain reaction that piled up cars for two miles. One person was killed, 24 were hospitalized and 25 others injured. The resulting costs were also prodigious. Of the 200 cars, 20 were demolished, 40 disabled.

We don't have to put up with this sort of accident. It is not a price we have to pay for driving. We can prevent the majority of rear-end collisions by adhering to the following suggestions:

Think Bigger. What is a safe following distance? The old rule of thumb is that you should stay one car length behind the car ahead for each ten miles an hour of speed. That means 110 feet at 65 miles per hour. This isn't enough. The National Safety Council now recommends two and a half car lengths for each 10 miles an hour in good weather, double that in bad. At 65 miles an hour, in good weather, that's 276 feet—almost the length of the football field. So remember to keep a safe interval between you and the car ahead, especially at turnpike speeds.

Keet it Flowing. The highway is no place for uncertainty or hesitation. Once you've committed yourself to enter traffic, move, blend with it swiftly, drive as if it were your responsibility to keep it flowing. It is. It is not speed, but difference in speed, that causes trouble. When all cars on the road move at the same speed, safely spaced, none, obviously, can get clobbered.

It is not only the cautious driver who interrupts traffic flow. There are numerous heedless little things that you can do to invite trouble. Open the door of your parked car into traffic. Squat half on the pavement while you change a tire. Mosey along the turnpike at a sight-seeing pace. Weave from one lane to another. Edge the front of your car a couple of feet onto the highway from the side road to keep oncoming traffic guessing. Get into the fast lane and hold onto it in spite of the honking horns behind you.

Gather wool elsewhere. It is hard to believe that a driver would plow into the rear of a police car that is cruising at 50 miles an hour. Or hurdle into the rear of a tractor - trailer with 10 red warning lights blinking on the rear. But drivers have done these things and frequently there are no skid marks to suggest that the driver ever was awake to his danger. Remember that driving is a full time job requiring your continuous attention.

Shun the Bunch. Tailgaters run in bunches, like geese. They ride the highway in clusters of six or eight, 100 feet apart, with a mile of empty road ahead and behind. To defend yourself from them, keep a cushion of space all around. If someone cuts in ahead and fills your cushion, drop back. If somebody rides your tail, increase your pace and leave him or slow down and wave him past. When you pass another vehicle, pass, don't dawdle. In every situation keep your eyes sweeping the scene, keeping thinking of an "out" for whatever may develop.

Shouldn't we start thinking about the 6,500 Americans who will die in tailgating accidents within the next year. Isn't it time we started paying more attention to our driving?

Army Policy Rules Out Foreign Tour Extension

From the Army Times

WASHINGTON — Tour extensions for officers and enlisted men in overseas long-tour areas are almost totally ruled out by a new Army policy. The action will speed rotation from these areas and tend to equalize chances for combat assignments in Viet Nam.

In a short message to the field, DA 731189, the Army cut back the maximum overseas tour length from five years to four years. But, for nearly everyone, tours will be limited in practice to the "normal" lengths of 18, 24 or 36 months.

All requests for extension beyond the normal long tour lengths, as set in AR 614-30, will go to the Pentagon for approval, the message said.

But there won't be many requests for extensions, it was indicated. Requests "will be held to a minimum," the message said, and will be passed on to the Pentagon "only for most extreme and exceptional reasons."

All extensions previously approved are being reviewed for possible revocation, the Army said. Not all will be revoked, officials indicated, but any could be at any time.

"Extensions approved by the Department of the Army for all personnel will not be a bar to future consideration of such individuals to fill urgent requirements," said the message.

This latest policy move is in line with the Army's action in July making all overseas long tour areas a part of the rotation base for short tour areas.

Only a year ago, the Army boosted the maximum voluntary oversea tour to five years and encouraged soldiers to request extensions. The idea then was to reduce number of PCS movements.

In long tour areas, the normal tours for soldiers accompanied by dependents are by regulation usually about 12 months longer than the unaccompanied tours — except in Europe, Panama, Hawaii and Puerto Rico where both are 36 months.

Areas with a normal unaccompanied tour of 24 months are: Anchorage, Alaska; Bermuda; Brazil, Canada; Chile; Columbia; Costa Rica; Egypt, El Salvador; Hong Kong; Japan; Mexico; New Zealand; Peru; Trinidad; Uruguay; and Venezuela.

Tours of 18 months for unaccompanied personnel are normal in: parts of Alaska Anguilla; Antigua; Aruba; Azores; Boliva; Crete; Guantanamo, Cuba; Ecuador; Eleuther, Ethiopia; Greece; Guam; Teheran, Iran; Iraq; Liberia; Tripoli; Libya; part of Morocco; Nicaragua; Pakistan; Paraguay; Philippine Is.; Ryukyus Is.; Saipan; Sicily; Surinam; Bangkok, Thailand; Turkey; and Yugoslavia.

The Army said authority to approve extension of tours in short tour areas remains unchanged.

New MP Home Plans Installing Color TV, Music

The 139th Military Police Company moved recently from its home of many years in building 399N, the first cuartel, to Building 2834 in the old 197th Infantry Brigade area.

The switch moves the company into the new style barracks and leaves the cuartel open for remodeling. The older building is to be turned into bachelor officer's quarters.

The new billets provide spacious living accomodations with plenty of room for recreation and relaxing, according to the MPs.

They will contain a color television set and music will be piped into the mess hall, living quarters and a lounge in addition to the regular day room.

Baggage Cart Saves 21 Man-Hours

With the help of a salvaged railroad baggage cart, Headquarters Company, 577th Engineer Battalion, Center Troop Command, has managed to save twenty-one man hours per week.

Prior to the procurement of the cart by Sgt. Donald E. Hutzel, vehicle operators had to walk approximately one hundred yards to check out tools not included in their vehicle tool set.

The round trip from truck to maintenance building and back took approximately seven minutes. With thirty operators making the trip, the estimated time cost was three and a half working hours every morning.

Through the ingenuity and initiative of Hutzel and of course the efficiency of the salvaged railroad cart, many man hours are saved causing another indirect dollar savings to "Uncle Sam".

Uniform of Future to Protect GI Against Enemy and Environment

NO, IT'S NOT A ROBOT!
An Air Conditioned Uniform

A uniform of the future, which will protect the soldier against both man-made and environmental hazards on the battlefield was demonstrated to Maj. Gen. Robert H. York here during a recent briefing.

At the request of the Army Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency, a team from the Army Natick Laboratories came to Fort Benning for the briefing and demonstration.

It is anticipated that the uniform will provide protection against fragmentation munitions, small arms fire, chemical agents, biological diseases and radioactive fallout.

The uniform consists of a headpiece, a garment designed to provide body ventilation and a self-contained power and ventilating pack. The ensemble has been tested in 120 degrees to -40 degrees Fahrenheit without any discomfort, Leo Spano, head of the laboratory team explained.

The uniform provides a barrier between the body of the soldier and his environment by use of a power device that draws in air through a purification filter and then blows it into the ensemble for breathing and body ventilation. The garment has an outer layer that is resistant to gases, certain levels of radiation and biological agents.

The outer shield of the garment is expected to have some ballistic protection built into the cloth with no increase in weight. Audio and visual abilities will not be restricted.

The Spread of Communism

Communism's Appeal Is to States Wishing to Become Modern Ones

As we have seen in previous discussions, the pattern of Communist triumph in Yugoslavia, China and Cuba closely follows the "classical" pattern established by Lenin in the Russian revolution of November 1917.

This pattern involves three techniques — posing as agrarian reformers, infiltration and forcible seizure of power. It is important to note, however, that in each case the Communists also exploited a general but widespread desire to turn a backward state and society into a modern one.

In the newly independent nations of the underdeveloped world, this desire is closely linked with nationalism or the sense of absolute loyalty to the glory and righteousness of one's nation. In theory, communism claims to be above nations and to be international in outlook.

Yet in practice, nationalism has been an important force in the appeal of communism in underdeveloped countries. Communists have supported nationalist movements in Asia and Africa because they look upon them as useful means for the spread of communism. Since traditions of free government are often weak or absent in such backward nations, the Communist doctrine of change by violence and terror does not produce the same reaction of shock and opposition that it meets in politically more mature nations.

Moreover, as people in the underdeveloped countries become increasingly proud of their nations' independence and growing importance in world affairs, nationalistic feelings become very strong. Communism exploits these feelings by promising that it can rapidly create the industrial power and social discipline necessary to gain international respect and recognition.

However, while publicly supporting nationalist movements in underdeveloped countries, Communists fully intend the ultimate outcome to be, not national independence, but submission to international communism. This is demonstrated by the readiness of Communists to betray their own countries in time of war whenever such treason helps communism, a fact which can be illustrated by several cases.

Thus in pre - Communist Russia during World War I, Lenin openly called for the Russian soldiers on the front to quit fighting and go home. As Lenin put it, "the defeat of tsarist Russia would be the least evil" from the viewpoint of the Russian worker and peasant. During World War II, as we have seen, both the Yugoslav and Chinese Communists took advantage of their country's plight to establish Communist regimes.

Later still, during the war in Korea in 1950-53, Communist leaders in the United States, France, Italy and other nations publicly announced that in case of war between their own countries and Communist Russia, they would fight with the Communists against their own countries. History is full of individual traitors who have sold out their country. This is, however, the first instance of a whole political movement advertising such treason in advance.

In sum, we see that Communist strategy exploits patriotism and nationalism as long as they can be made to serve Communist objectives. With equal ease Communist strategy encourages betrayal of one's country whenever that tactic seems expedient.

'Ultimate' Weapon Leaves Mark

There are two fragrant outcasts at the Army's NIKE Air Defense station in nearby Duncanville, Texas. The enlisted men still bear traces of a run-in with a pugnacious skunk.

They spotted the animal moving about near the missile operations building. Fancying themselves experts in the fine art of capturing skunks — without provoking them — the pair coaxed the animal into the open and made a grab for it.

But they miscalculated their ability to pacify the skunk — and the little creature used its ultimate weapon. The two soldiers made an unmilitary retreat.

First Chapel Constructed In Viet Nam

NHA TRANG, R V N (AFPS)—The first permanent chapel building here has been completed by volunteers from all of the military forces.

The building was needed to provide religious facilities for the increasing number of military personnel. With all resources being used to construct living quarters and operational buildings, workers were not immediately available for the chapel.

Volunteers were sought and men of all religious denominations and services responded to raise the structure during off-duty hours.

The chapel will be used for religious services by all denominations and presently has nine services a week. Equipment includes a field organ.

Missile Unit Praised During 3rd Army CTI

The 2nd Battalion, 42nd Artillery received a rating of satisfactory in a Command Technical Inspection (CTI) conducted recently by the Third US Army Inspection Team.

The team praised the Little John battalion's "technical operations performed with a minimum of discrepancies and comments."

A CTI tests a unit's ability to transport, store and deliver reliable nuclear weapons. It also judges the unit's implementation of applicable safety rules, administrative support of the nuclear weapons program and implementation of the nuclear weapons surety program.

The inspection was in preparation for a Technical Proficiency Inspection by the Continental Army Command Inspection Team.

Officer Wives Present Gifts To Baby Clinics

Small patients waiting their turn at Fort Benning's Well Baby and Immunization Clinics are enjoying eight new child-size rocking chairs, a gift from the Officers Wives' Club.

Other gifts from the club include gayly painted wooden wall plaques depicting nursery rhyme characters and 400 numbered tags to indicate patient waiting order.

Mrs. Arthur Estes, welfare chairman for the club, delivered the gifts to Maj. Elizabeth Angell, the Army health nurse who operates the clinics.

Three Famed Screen Couples On Same Lot

Shooting schedules recently brought together in one place three of the screen's most famous acting couples.

Miss Woodward and Robards were just down the studio street teamed in "A Big Hand For the Little Lady."

Practice Tests See Firing Of Missiles

The 2nd Battalion, 42nd Artillery recently completed two field exercises in preparation for an Army Training Test.

The firing of four Little John missiles by Battery A was one of the highlights of the exercises. Headquarters and Headquarters Battery provided the support for the firings with its metrological, communications and survey sections.

Capts. James R. Adams, commander of Headquarters Battery and Gilbert L. Muchmore, commander of Battery A were harrassed by hostile aggressor forces from the 58th Infantry. When the smoke cleared, the battalion discovered itself in possession of several prisoners and had suffered only a few "casualties."

Other activities included night moves, air attacks and the frequent use of the word "gas"

Paraguayan Officers Greeted

In announcing the cast for the Tennessee Williams' drama, which will be presented Nov. 10-14, director Wes Carr noted that Mrs. Britto will be appearing in her eighth major role with FBLT. Her plays have included "The Visit," "Cave Dwellers," "Look Homeward, Angel," "Streetcar Named Desire," "All My Sons," "Bell, Book, and Candle" and "Philadelphia Story."

The annual tournament of plays includes productions by class one installations throughout the Third Army area. In previous tournaments, FBLT won best production, actor and director awards for "The Zoo Story"

Promotions to Run at Higher Rate Because of Army Manpower Rise

From the Army Times

WASHINGTON — Promotions in the Army will run at a higher rate during the next nine months than last spring's forecasts and will continue at a substantial rate during the following Fiscal Year. This is because of the 235,000 man build-up in Army strength.

The Defense Department has told the Army to go ahead with a phased build-up in rated personnel over the next 21 months. For enlisted men this means promotions to those already in service.

For officers, promotions will be increased to a lesser degree than for the enlisted ranks, since some of the increase in officer strength — in at least the grades of major, captain and first lieutenant — will come from voluntary recall from the Reserve.

Recommended Lists

The officer promotion picture appears to call for a speedup in using the present recommended lists. Promotions in all grades, but particularly those of major and lieutenant colonel, will come ahead of schedule. The major and lieutenant colonel recommended lists, which were expected to meet Army requirements through September, 1966, may be exhausted as much as three months before then.

Promotion to captain, which is now occurring during the 44th month of service, will probably drop back to below the 39th month (about 21 months in grade). Some slight speed-up in promotion to full colonel is also possible.

But it is unlikely that this will mean earlier convening of selection boards. They will meet at the normal times but their recommendations will be used sooner. So, for officers, there will be a speed-up in promotions.

This in turn means an increase in the total number of promotions. But it does not mean a lowering of promotion standards. It means, instead, earlier selection of those who meet these standards under the "best qualified" method of selecting officers for promotion.

20 Per Cent Increase

Last Spring, the Army forecast a rated enlisted grade structure for FY 1966 (July 1965 to July 1966) of 429,000. This broke down to 4500 E-9s, 14,400 E-8s, 36,000 E-7s, 76,500 E-6s, 138,000 E-5s and 156,000 E-4s.

This grade structure over the next 21 months will increase, on an average, by 20 per cent. The 20 per cent will not necessarily apply to each grade.

Final result of this increase, however, will find the Army by July 1967 below its present rated percentage. It was authorized 50.5 per cent of its personnel rated in the original FY 1966 assignment of enlarged grade structure. If the Army is limited to a 20 per cent increase in the number of men rated, at the end of FY 1967, its rated percentage will drop at 48.8 per cent.

Brighter Picture

In terms of opportunity for promotion, the picture is far brighter. While the Army cannot (or will not) yet make forecasts by grade, it appears likely that there will be an additional 500 promotions to E-9 in the next nine months and in the neighborhood of 7000 to 7500 additional promotions to E-7.

An educated guess indicates that additional promotions to E-8 will be relatively small in number — perhaps 2000 to 3000 more. But additional promotions to E-6 should total more than 20,000 while additional promotions to E-5 could exceed 40,000. The number of additional promotions to E-4, with the rapid turnover in this grade, is impossible to forecast.

WILDLIFE

(AP) Wildlife is a perishable crop and the quail is an excellent example.

Wildlife specialist David Almand of the Extension Service says normal controlled shooting has little effect on the quail population. This is because nearly 80 of every 100 birds alive in summer will die before the next spring regardless of whether they are hunted.

Each game species will produce surpluses above the number the area can support. Almand says the landowner would do well to realize a profit from these surpluses. He can do so from hunting fees.

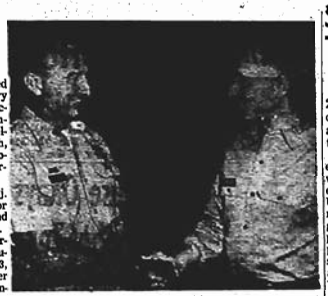
Legislator Now Here As Reserve Officer



HOMESTATE REUNION . . . Two Alabamians get together at Fort Benning as Reserve Maj. Pete B. Turnham (right), a Lee County member of the House of Representatives who is on two weeks of active duty, is greeted by Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, Infantry Center commander. Gen. York was born in Birmingham and calls Hartselle his hometown. Turnham, who lives in Auburn, is taking on-the-job-training in intelligence and security with The Infantry Center G-2 (Intelligence) Section.

An Alabama legislator who was graduated from the Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning during World War II has returned here for two weeks of active duty as a Reserve officer.

Maj. Pete B. Turnham has been assigned to the G-2 (Intelligence section) of The Infantry Center for on-the-job training in intelligence and security.

A member of the 3357th U. S. Army Reserve Garrison Unit, with headquarters at Opelika, Turnham represents Lee County in the Alabama House of Representatives.

He is chairman of the Education Committee of the House and a member of the Ways and Means Committee. He represents Alahama on the Southern Interstate Nuclear Board, a 16-member group which promotes the peaceful use of atomic energy.

In addition to his legislative duties, the congressman is in constant demand as a speaker for civic and educational groups interested in the Army's role in every day life. He trained as a lecturer in this field at the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., where he took a two-week course in Army information.

In 1960 and in 1961, Maj. Turnham was a lecturer for the course at the Command and General Staff College.

Entering the service during his senior year at Auburn University in 1943, Turnham attended Officer Candiate School at Fort Benning. Commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Army, he served with the 71st Infantry Division, first at Fort Benning and then in Europe, France and Austria.

Returning to civilian life in 1946, he was awarded an M.S. degree from Auburn and served five and a half years as a member of the school's Extension Department.

Turnham is scheduled to complete his training at Fort Benning Oct. 17.

Substandard Quarters To Get Rent Increase

From the Army Times

WASHINGTON—Rents paid by some of the 20,000 military families living in substandard dwellings are due for increase in the wake of a Defense survey of the government-owned quarters.

The Budget Bureau ordered the survey for all housing which had not been appraised within the past two years. Under the law, the Pentagon must make the reviews regardless of the morale impact — and there have been protests from such widely scattered areas as Hawaii and Michigan.

Many families are finding that last month's pay raise is being eaten up by the rent hikes. Although Budget Bureau Circular A-45 makes it clear that the new rents may not exceed the Basic Allowance for Quarters (BAQ), many service families regard the provision with little warmth.

Nurse Lack Now Critical, Say Officials

Department of the Army has designated the period from Oct. 1 through Dec. 31 as "Operation 500." This is an all-out attempt to recruit registered nurses for the Army Nurse Corps.

The campaign includes a national and local publicity drive via radio, TV and newspapers.

Gov. Carl Sanders has proclaimed Oct. 18-24 as Army Nurse Corps Recruiting Week for the state of Georgia.

The shortage of nurses is felt here at Martin Army Hospital as it is elsewhere; yet the hospital's nurses will add to their already heavy schedules personal appearances at civic, educational and church group meetings as well as radio and TV appearances.

They also attend local district and state meetings and conventions in an effort to give full support to the drive for fully qualified nurses to join the Army Nurse Corps, officials said.

Ann-Margaret Selected 'Star Of the Year'

Officials of the Allied States Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors recently announced that Ann-Margaret was selected as "Star of the Year" by the nation's theatre owners.

The attractive young actress made her movie debut in "Pocketful of Miracles" in 1961 and has had a meteoric career. At present she is appearing in three films which have either been released recently or are due to hit the theaters.

Burial Ground for 3000

NCO Caretaker of Post Cemetery

Fort Benning's Post Cemetery has been the burial place for some three thousand soldiers and members of their families.

Among the more distinguished inhabitants are Brig. Gen; Charles W. Pence and Brig. Gen. Walter Scott Fulton.

Also buried there are forty - four German and eight Italian prisoners of war, along with seven Chinese Air Force officers who died over here in the early 1940s.

Separated from others in the cemetery are two American soldiers who died dishonorable deaths after being tried and sentenced to hang for murduring the second world war, according to the caretaker, Sgt. Willie E. Green of Company A, 1st Battalion, Center Troop Command.

He lives in a house behind the cemetery with his wife and three children and spends his work week keeping the cemetery and preparing for the almost daily funerals.

According to Green, people come everyday (some from distant places) to visit the burial place of their deceased loved ones.

People eligible for burial in the cemetery are those on active duty or retired from the armed forces and their dependents.

McNamara 'Fair Deal' Policy Protects GI's

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Department of Defense has defined standards of fairness for those seeking the privilege of doing business with service personnel and their dependents.

A 13-page DOD directive is designed to help curb misleading advertising, tricky payment provisions, exhorbitant interest rates, slyly-worded contracts and improper repossession techniques.

DOD has told sellers that it will follow the doctrine, "let the seller make full disclosure," instead of "let the buyer beware."

Violators may be placed off limits or have their privilege suspended at all defense installations including controlled housing areas. Some exceptions are in overseas areas and concern dealings with foreign firms.

Officials have prepared standards of fairness forms relating to such contractual matters as finance charges, late payment fees and other items. The forms are authorized for installation level reproduction and are designed to clearly reveal contract terms.

The DOD action lists 10 prohibited practices including sales solicitation of defense members in troop housing. The directive states that solicitation will be on an individual basis, preferably by appointment, in a specific location and at designated hours.

Continued emphasis is being placed on in - service educational programs helping service personnel better understand the wise use of credit, a defense spokesman said.

Individual firms and agents will be required to conduct their business in an acceptable manner. This does not relieve service personnel from discharging their private indebtedness and financial obligations, it was explained.

Letters of indebtedness from agents or firms not conforming with the directive's provisions will be returned to the sender without being forwarded through channels, the official said.

Entries Now Accepted In Photography Contest

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Entries are being accepted for the seventh annual Armed Forces picture competition to determine the "Military Photographer of the Year."

Only photographers and information personnel on active duty can enter the contest sponsored by the National Press Photographers' Association, the University of Missouri and World Book Science Service.

To be eligible for the top award, "Military Photographer of the Year," the contestant must have entries in each of six categories.

Last year's top winner was Marine Corps Staff Sergeant Cecil "Steve" Stibbens, former staff photographer with Pacific Stars and Stripes, now on the staff of Leatherneck magazine. One of Stibbens' photographs also won "The President's Choice" for March 1965.

All photos and material submitted must have been published by news media or military newspapers between Jan. 1 and Dec. 15, 1965, and must depict military subjects. Any size black and white photo, vertical or horizontal, may be submitted but each must be on a 16 by 20-inch mount with caption on the back of the mount.

Entry may be in one or all of the following categories: news — photos of either a scheduled or unscheduled event; features — photos or picture stories of human interest subjects; pictorial studies — design and mood pictures of human interest subjects; sports, picture stories, and portraits and pictorial studies.

Entries must be postmarked by Dec. 31 and mailed to Prof. Clifton C. Edom, Journalism Annex, Room 27-A, School of Journalism, University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo.

Military participants will not be competing with professional civilian photographers in this contest. Each contestant may submit up to 20 entries.

House Okays Combat Zone Air Mail Bill

WASHINGTON — The House this week passed a bill that would provide free air mail and speedy parcel post service to troops in combat areas.

There was no objection to the free air mail privileges which were extended to U.S. servicemen in World War II and the Korean war and which are also provided for men in Viet Nam under an earlier bill.

But the Defense Department expressed strong opposition to a provision that would require it to fly parcel post packages to men in combat areas in its own planes without cost. Senders would pay only the surface rate to the port of embarkation.

In a strongly worded dissent in the report on the bill, the Department said the provision would take up needed airlift capacity for a low priority cargo at a heavy increase in cost over the sea transportation now used.

The Post Office Department and the Bureau of the Budget also objected to the provision on the basis of its added cost, estimated at six million dollars.

There was no debate on the bill, however, and it was passed by unanimous voice vote. The Senate must still act on it.

WEST POINT CHIEF VISITS RANGER SCHOOL
Gen. Lampert Talks with Former Cadets

Gen. Lampert Visits Ranger Facilities

Maj. Gen. James Lampert, superintendent of the Military Academy, recently reviewed the facilities of the Second Ranger Company, Dahlonega, Ga. and the First Ranger Company, Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. He ended his tour at the Harmony Church Ranger Camp by addressing the students at the opening of Ranger Class No. 4.

Lampert praised the Ranger training and pointed out to his former cadets its importance and necessity.

During an informal reception Lampert renewed friendships and discussed various military topics with former cadets, now members of Ranger Class No. 4.

GINA'S ADMIRERS

Maybe nothing ever happened in the Grand Hotel but things are sure popping in the "Hotel Paradiso." Just ask Gina Lollobrigida, who co-stars with Alec Guinness in the MGM film now filming in Paris.

La Lollo has been plagued with unscheduled callers since the address of her Paris apartment become known. One over-zealous fan rapped so hard on her door he broke his hand while another persistant pursuer trapped the beautious Gina in the elevator to ask her views on life and love.

"I asked why a Frenchman would be so interested in me," the ravishing Italian smiled, "and his answer stopped me cold." Said he, "Because Brigitte Bardot just isn't my type."

OC Incentive Offered To College Graduates

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Guaranteed assignment to an Officer Candidate School is the Army's enlistment incentive offered to college graduates with no prior military experience.

The offer comes as part of the current expansion program to meet an increased requirement for junior officers. The OCS training program ups its annual total of candidates from 3,400 to 11,700 beginning this month and boosts the number of school facilities to nine.

College seniors and men already graduated from accredited colleges may apply for active duty with assignment to Officer Candidate School if they are U. S. citizens and at least eighteen-and-a-half but not over 27 years old.

The special OCS option goes into effect upon the successful completion of Basic Combat and Advanced Individual Training.

Applicants may indicate a preference for one of the three combat arms or the technical and specialist services.

They will serve an obligated tour of at least two years after commissioning; men who do not successfully complete the program will serve the remainder of their obligated tour in enlisted status.

Outstanding soldiers in the upper tenth of their OCS class may be designated Distinguished Military Graduates and may apply for a Regular Army commission.

Bids Invited For Benning Construction

The Savannah District Army Engineers invited bids last week on four construction projects at Fort Benning expected to total $5.8 million.

On Oct. 5 they called for bids on construction of an extension to the post steam distribution system and the building of tactical equipment shops, which will entail the construction of a battalion tank repair shop and the restoration of five other buildings. Bids will open Nov. 2.

Bids for the conversion of Building 399L into a 627-man bachelor officers quarters were invited on Oct. 7. The building, currently an enlisted men's barracks, will provide space for a living room and bathroom for each officer. A total of 221 tons of air conditioning will also be installed along with a sprinkler system and four new boilers. Bids will be opened on Nov. 18.

Last Friday bids were invited for the construction of sewage treatment plant additions to provide secondary treatment at two existing sewage plants. Bids will open Nov. 4.

Clearance Refusals Kept Secret

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was learned this week that the Army has ordered that under certain circumstances a person may be kept in the dark as to why his clearance to handle military secrets is denied or revoked.

The Army said such action may be taken on grounds which it termed of national interest. Any such decision would be made by the under-secretary of the Army. And the Army says the person affected could appeal the decision to higher authority or take it to court.

The Army said the rights of the individual will be carefully considered to insure that there is no abuse of individual rights.

The new rule came to light after the Army published a 25-page document covering "Clearance of Personnel for Access to Classified Defense Information and Material." The document supersedes a three-year-old set of rules. The regulations apply to military personnel and civilians working for the Army anywhere in the world.

WAC Warrant Officer Promoted; One of Only Six W-4s in Corps

One of six senior female warrant officers in the U. S. Army was promoted in ceremonies at The Student Brigade last week.

CWO Anna H. Kryniski was promoted to chief warrant officer, W-4, by the commander of the Infantry School's Student Brigade, Col. Jess Walls.

Kryniski is one of 23 female warrant officers in the Army at the present time and she is chief of the Enlisted Students Personnel Branch of The Student Brigade.

Miss Kryniski started her Army career in June 1945 at Fort Demoines, Iowa, where she completed her basic training and attended clerical school. Later, she was transferred to Heidelberg, Germany.

During 1948 to 1951, she held the rank of first sergeant and served at one of the training companies at Fort Lee, Va. She received her warrant officer appointment in 1951 and was assigned to Fort Riley, Kan. as personnel officer in the Adjutant General's Officers Division of the 10th Infantry Division.

She served for three years in the Southern Region US Army Audit Agency in Atlanta as adjutant and administrative officer.

Viet People Play Important Role In 1st Cav's Three-Fold Mission

BY JOE TREASTER

AN KHE, Viet Nam — At the end of every four-hour orientation session conducted by Task Force Alfa, veterans of the Army's 1st Air Cavalry Division, a spokesman for the commanding general delivered a three - point message.

He warned the men to be cautious in handling their weapons in camp, told them of the division's mission and reminded them of their membership in the unit which proved the Army's air mobility concept.

"First, we are to eliminate Viet Cong control within our assigned areas," he said. "And we must remember that U. S. forces actions will be conducted to complement the overall Government of the Republic of Viet Nam plan for pacification of areas."

The spokesman told the soldiers they must remember the importance of "recognizing civilians — both individuals and communities — as our friends."

The division, he said, will assist the Vietnamese people and their villages in efforts to establish "a strong and stable" government and "a progressive economy."

Speaking of the division's heritage, he said:

"The division has proved the air mobility concept and carried the program through to official acceptance. The same determination and ingenuity which has marked our earlier efforts in CONUS (Continental United States) will serve the division well in meeting new challenges in Viet Nam."

Book Review

MacArthur Tells His Own Story

REMINISCENCES by Douglas Mac Arthur. McGraw - Hill Book Co., 1964

That Douglas MacArthur was a military man of outstanding, indeed extraordinary ability, has been acknowledged throughout the world for the greater part of this century. More has been published on the famous general than perhaps any other soldier America has produced.

But histories and biographies can't tell the full story of a man as complex as MacArthur. They can follow his campaigns, analyze his surroundings and digest his speeches in order to make suppositions as to why he acted in a particular way. However, only the man himself can truly tell his own reasons, his own thoughts.

That is what makes an autobiography such as "Reminiscences" important.

It is true that MacArthur is not a truly objective historian when it comes to his own accomplishments; in fact, at times one would consider him somewhat less than humble. But it is his story and only he can give the reader the proper insight into his fabulous military career.

MacArthur's story covers three wars plus the life of a military man in peacetime. During his career, he became the most decorated soldier in American history and served in the highest military offices of the country.

As a soldier he was a hero. In World War I alone, he won the Silver Star seven times, the Distinguished Service Cross twice and was nominated for the Congressional Medal of Honor.

After the "Great War," he completely reorganized the curriculum of the Military Academy, served as Army Chief of Staff and helped in the policy making of the democratic government of the Philippines.

His story goes into World War II and his fabled battle for the Philippines and the signing of the treaty papers with Japan. It discusses his term as the commander of the Occupational Forces in Japan.

MacArthur studies the Korean War and the great pushes against the Communist Army. Here again he is not very objective concerning the problems he had with Washington in fighting the war.

But even if "Reminiscences" is purely MacArthur's viewpoint, it is the viewpoint of one of the greatest military men this country has ever known and that makes it well worthwhile. . . MIKE GROGAN

Selected Guard, Reserve Force Combat Ready

WASHINGTON (ANF) — A priority Selected Force of 145,000 men in three divisions, six independent brigades and some 982 smaller units has been formed within the Army National Guard and Army Reserve in order to provide a pool of highly-trained units for immediate availability.

By beefing-up the trained manpower in the Reserve components, the Selected Force makes it possible to maintain increased levels of readiness while minimizing the call on new personnel for the Army and relieving the strain on training cadres which are engaged in the buildup of Active Army forces.

Units assigned to the Selected Force will be authorized 100-percent of combat strength, a 50 - percent increase in the number of paid drill periods at their home stations and priority for equipment and maintenance. Consideration will also be given to advancing the time of their annual field training.

From 50 States

The units have been drawn from all 50 states so that additional training requirements and possible mobilization will be distributed throughout the nation.

The three divisions will be composed of National Guard division base elements with headquarters, artillery and combat service support units and three National Guard brigades each.

Of the six independent brigades, three will be provided by National Guard divisions and three will be taken from present National Guard independent brigades.

Company Sized Units

National Guard units will also comprise 822 of the 982 company and detachment size units in the Selected Force with Army Reserve organizations making up the balance.

Army Reserve and National Guard elements outside of the Selected Force will continue to maintain their trained strength and readiness.

Personnel now in units not required by contingency war plans will be called on to bolster the strength of the Selected Force and other high - priority reserve component organizations.

In this category are over 600 Army Reserve units with a total assigned strength of 55,000 men now being phased out by the Department of Defense.

Men from these units not joining other Army Reserve or National Guard elements will become members of the Ready Reserve Reinforcement Pool for the duration of their military obligation.

As provided in the 1966 Defense Appropriations Act, the Army Reserve will be programmed at an end-strength of 270,000 and the National Guard at not less than 380,000.

A joint Franco-American space probe project will be under way with the arrival in the United States of the first French satellite, the FR-1. The satellite is designed to explore the ionosphere by studying the properties of the electromagnetic wave field created by a low - frequency sender.

Constructed under the direction of the French National Space Study Center, it was designed and developed for telecommunications. It is to be tested at the Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Md., for fitting and adaptation to the United States Scout - type launch rocket.

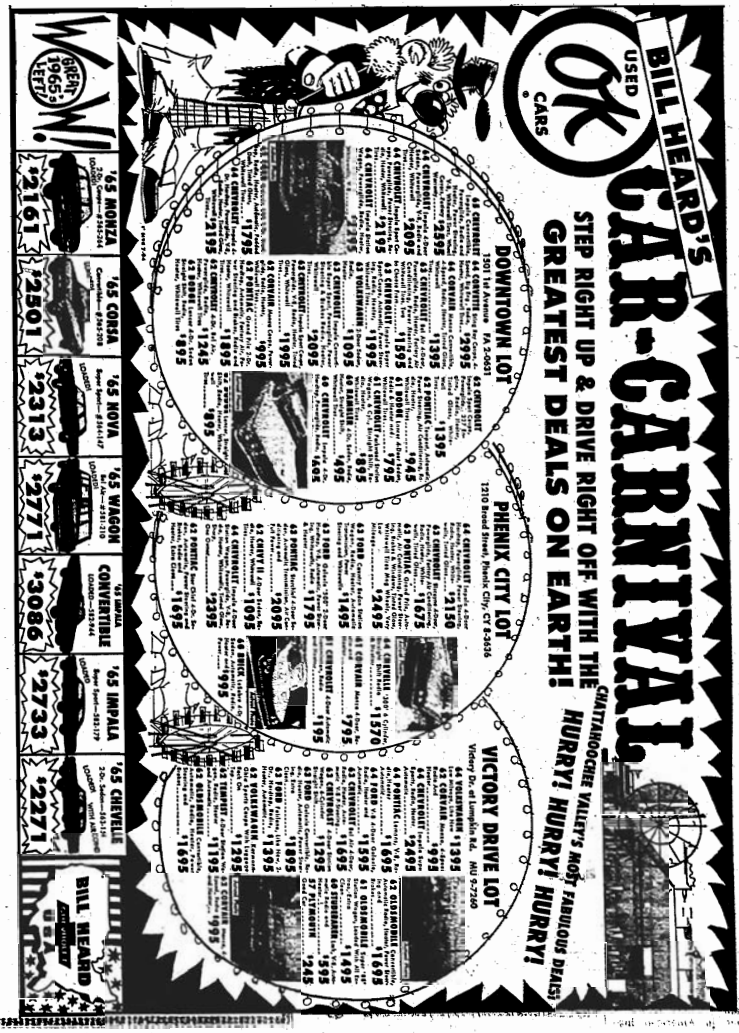
The FR-1 is 27.5 inches in diameter and weighs 132.3 pounds. It is covered with silicium solar cells to provide electrical energy for the probe equipment. The satellite is gold-plated and has three sets of atenna — one on top, another at the base and a third on slender arms that extend electrically when the satellite is in space. Launching is scheduled for the end of the year.

A facilities grant of $900,000 has been made to the University of Denver by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for the construction of a building to house space - related research. Comprising 38,000 square feet, the building, which will be three stories high, will be known as the Space Science Laboratories.

From early pioneering in upper atmospheric physics and cosmic ray investigations, the University of Denver has expanded its efforts over a wide range of science and technology. Its research at present includes investigation of electromagnetic propagation synthesis of rocket fuels, effect of interplanetary field on cosmic radiation, infrared absorption by the upper atmosphere and the outer space related studies.

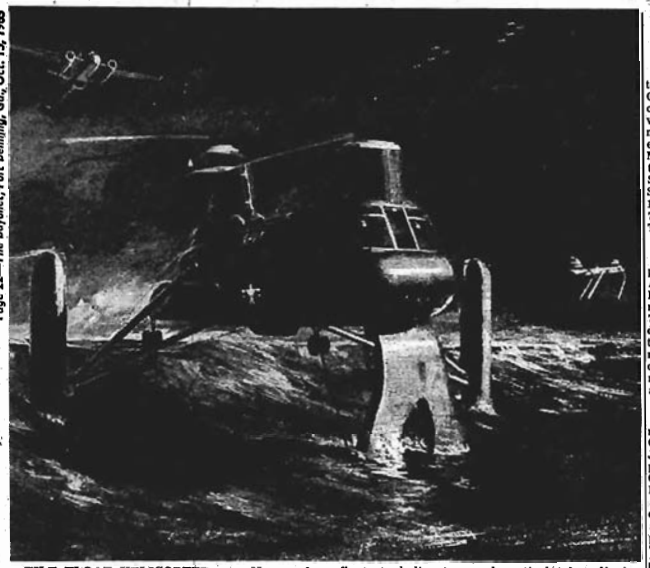
STADIUM SCORE

Five World Series games have been played in Dodger stadium, two in 1963 and three this year. In those five games, the visiting teams have scored a total of three runs—all on homers. Mickey Mantle's homer accounted for the only run by the New York Yankees in the two 1963 games in Dodger stadium. And homers by Harmon Kilebrew and Tony Oliva produced Minnesota's only two runs in the three games played in the Dodger Stadium this year.



BUSY BEAVERS

Some bustling beavers got so busy building dams in Logan Canyon, Utah, that they lost their homes. Two of their housing projects caused the Logan River to back up and flood a camp ground. State fish and game officers had to blow up the dams.



TILT FLOAT HELICOPTER . . . Now under study by the Boeing Aircraft Corporation is this new concept which will place a helicopter on tilt floats above the water in heavy seas, providing a steady platform for an indefinite period without power. The application of tilt floats to helicopters and vertical take off aircraft will add versatility to U.S. antisubmarine warfare, rescue, oceanography, research and strike support. The floats can be retracted during flight and extended prior to landing.

DENTAL IMPRESSIONS

NATHAN GRACE — PREVENTIVE DENTISTRY OFFICER

The First Visit to the Dentist

Perhaps one of the most significant and important events in the life of the young child is the first visit to the dentist. This should occur during the child's second or third year.

Statistically speaking, we find that 40% of our two year olds are suffering from dental caries or tooth decay. This frightening and unfortunately little-known fact is reason enough for initiation of early dental care.

The average youngster does not exhibit any instinctive fears of the dentist or dental office. If he is excessively frightened or nervous during his first visit, this is generally a reflection of parental or other attitudes transmitted to him by inadvertent expressions and comments. With gentle, understanding and tactful handling these young patients can generally be cared for with a minimum of difficulty.

Attitudes and fears of a dental nature are determined and crystalized while one is very young—often as a result of the first dental visit.

NCO Spends Hours Helping Scouts

By JOSEPH HUTTIE

While life on a military post such as Fort Benning is indeed fluctuating and at times extremely trying for the professional soldier who calls it home, the children of military personnel find little difference between their youthful activities and those enjoyed by their civilian counterparts.

At least this is the opinion of Sgt. Burton Chapman, operations NCO for Headquarters Battery, 10th Artillery, 197th Infantry Brigade. And perhaps it is because of men such as himself that the lives of Army children run such a normal, everyday course.

During the past 20 years Sgt. Chapman has dedicated a major portion of his off-duty hours to the adult leadership pool employed by the Boy Scouts of America in order to carry out their complex program of scouting activities.

Various Scout Units

As Fort Benning District Commissioner for the Boy Scouts of America, Chapman is in charge of the operations of seven scout troops, 7 cub scout packs, and three explorer posts sponsored by various units here at Benning. More than 750 children are currently entered on the rolls of these 17 individual scout outfits with a total of 300 members of the Fort Benning military community serving as adult leaders.

The scouting program at Benning is not a newly developed organization. The first troop was founded in December of 1924 when the members of the 10th Artillery, 197th Infantry Brigade decided to set up the initial sponsorship program.

For Sgt. Chapman the Boy Scout program has taken many forms since his original entrance as a scout in his hometown of Waymart, Pa. A Life Scout himself, Sgt. Chapman has served in many capacities as an adult leader in geographical regions stretching from Germany, where he was a member of the Trans - Atlantic Scouting Council, to Marrysville, Calif. where he assumed duties as a regular scout master.

Before assuming the role of district commissioner, Chapman served as Neighborhood Commissioner, and as a member of the Chattahoochee Council.

Army Program Same

According to Chapman a Boy Scout program operated on a Army post is about the same as the average program offered by a city. "In fact most of our scouting programs are done in conjunction with Columbus," he added.

However, Sgt. Chapman does point to the adult leadership offered here at Benning as a strong advantage offered to the scouts here on post. "As far as nature study goes, the kids here have some of the best training there is. For few people know nature better than a soldier," he said.

Another opportunity offered to the scouts at Benning is those activities financially supported by the Community Activities Fund through the Post's Youth Activities Organization. "These additional funds aren't available to scouting groups on the outside," Sgt. Chapman pointed out.

In addition to the regular weekly program of scouting events, Sgt. Chapman must wrestle with the problems encountered attempting to plan special trips such as last summer's trip to the Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico, the annual camp out at the Chattahoochee's Camp McKenzie and the Council's camp at Pine Mountain. Approximately 100 boys from the Fort Benning scout organization attended these various camps.

Local Projects

The Scouts also participate in many local projects such as the Columbus Jaycees Scout-A-Pal program in which each Fort Benning scout was paired up with a handicapped youth from the Columbus area for a day of fun at Callaway Gardens. "It was a good thing for the scouts for they had to assume direct responsibility for their scout pal," says Chapman.

Sgt. Chapman has already begun laying plans for next summer's special agenda for the Benning Scouts. Currently planned is a trip to the Philmont Scout Ranch again and a fully equipped canoe journey into Canadian waters.

Chapman is also working with the Columbus Jaycees with the hope of expanding the Scout - A - Pal program into a four-times a year event. This way we would be able to show these handi-capped children a good time in a number of places throughout the year," Chapman adds.

Scouts All Alike

Sgt. Chapman feels that Scouts all over the world are pretty much alike. He got a first-hand taste of foreign scouting while with the Trans - Atlantic Council in Germany.

"That was probably my biggest experience since I started with the scouting program. It was a real thrill camping out with all those scouts from all over the world," Chapman said.

What reward does Chapman receive for the number of hours he spends plotting the activities for the Fort Benning Boy Scout organization. "I guess it's a reward just being able to help and make a community a better place to live in. It's also great to see those boys have something to do that really interests them," he says.

Everyone Into the Pool

FROM the "World Series Madness Department" or "Everyone into the Pool."

The series is over for another year. But inevitably, as the series opener approaches next year, some one will again organize that singular form of American madness known as the "series pool". Everyone from Granny in the office next door to Junior in grade school will be enmeshed in a diabolical net of innings and runs. The frantic race for reward awakened by the cry, "Everyone into the pool", will be on again.

The phenomena of the series pool has no counterpart in American life. With no other sport does a similar monster open its jaws to ensnare the unwary, develop lust in the hearts of the meek, drive the baseball fan to frenzy and infect even the indifferent with the betting fever. The nearest associated disease to the series fever is the Irish Sweepstakes syndrome but that is another story.

Perhaps the cause of the madness lies in the atmosphere of excitement generated by the series. This excitement is the result of a combination of factors. The myth of baseball as the great American past time with its stock of childhood memories and Ruthian legends is one of the major super chargers.

It is also the result of the label "world championship" which connotates some cloud-thundering struggle and something of world-wide significance. It is a result of the vast promotional campaign by the mass communications media. It is a result of the need to bring six months of baseball to some reasonably shattering climax. It is a result of the human need of excitement. If there is nothing exciting in our work-a-day world, we will seize the first pretext to create some.

Enter the Poolmaker

INTO this charged atmosphere, the pool maker steps and casts his net upon the waters. He is truly a fisher of men. Thousands are caught — even those who must stop a moment and ask who is playing this year though this is really an insignificant fact. There is something exciting going on and we must be part of it.

Pools come in all assorted shapes and sizes. Depending on the number of participants, pools can either be straightforward and simple or become lost in an infinity of numbers. They can be made to accommodate an eight man office with low stakes and low yield or can be stretched into a city-wide affair with larger rewards. Pool coupons can be a penciled piece of notebook paper or a sophisticated printed certificate. But although the cost of participation may be in cents or dollars, the incentive is the same — to win.

Pools are illegal in the U.S. except for the state of Nevada. But to most citizens, pools are placed in the same category as speeding-when-the-cop-isn't-looking. I can't remember one person who was ever arrested for organizing or participating in an office pool. And, on a larger scale, the government always takes its yearly bite out of Irish sweepstakes winnings.

Some individuals participate in a single pool; others who are more susceptible to the series excitement become enmeshed in pools at very intersection of their lives. They cannot resist the magnetism of numbers which hold out the promise of such sweet reward.

Legendary Tales

"ANOTHER goad to the betting impetus is the legendary tale of the pool that was. These fabulous stories tell of riches once won for the price of a quarter. They dangle before the eyes of the pool participant a view of the seven lost cities of gold.

Some pools are planned far in advance of the series; others are spur-of-the moment affairs. But

Touch football still faltered in some major units last week as much company-level grid action failed to materialize and forfeits handed out free victories.

Action was heaviest within the Infantry Center Troop Command where B Company, 1st Battalion copped two victories to stay firmly in first place in the CTC race with a four win no loss record. On Tuesday, B Company beat Headquarters Company, CTC, 6 to 0, at Gowdy Field and then went on to edge the 586th Engineers, 1 to 0, on Thursday. When neither team had scored by the end of the final quarter, B Company was awarded the triumph over the Engineers on the strength of deeper penetration.

In other CTC action last week, the 98th Ordnance Company trounced the 586th Engineers, 22 to 6.

In 428th Medical Battalion play, the 690th Ambulance Company beat Martin Army Hospital, 12 to 6, on Monday. The win gave the first place 690th a three win, no loss record. Rain forced a cancellation of other Medic action.

In competition within the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry 197th Infantry Brigade, three free triumphs were gained by default. D Company got free wins over A Company and C Company while Headquarters Company won by default over A Company.

In other action, C Battery of the 10th Artillery defeated E Battery of the 10th, 6 to 0. Competition in other units of the Brigade failed to materialize.

The 10th Aviation Group announced this week that its company - level touch football competition has been grounded this year. Pro Grid Film Made Available To Servicemen

Experts reviewed 900 feet of film and culled 65 plays to come up with the best grid action ever filmed in the movie: "How to Watch Pro Football."

Sponsored by the American Express Co. with the official blessing of Pete Rozelle, NFL commissioner, the film is being offered free to servicemen all over the world.

Military groups may arrange for a showing by contacting local American Express facilities.

OLYMPIC STAR . . . Mel Pender, Olympic track star and holder of the world record in the 70 yard dash, recently arrived at Fort Benning to attend the Infantry Officers Candidate School. A ten-year veteran of the Army, Pender placed fifth in the 100-meter dash in the 1964 Olympics despite a pulled muscle and last April in Louisville, Ky., he set the world mark in the 70 yard dash at 5.8 seconds.

350 Youngsters To Participate In YAC Activity

Pee Wee football kicked off at Fort Benning last week with ten teams and 350 boys ranging from eight to 13 years of age slated to take part in the grid action.

The Youth Activities Club (YAC) sponsors the weekly competition which is divided into biddy and intermediate leagues. The biddy league is composed of boys eight to ten years of age and boys 11 to 13 years old make up the intermediate league.

In last week's biddy league action, the Green Hornets defeated the Blue Birds 28 to 7. Quarterback Ricky Gouchenouer scored one touchdown and directed two more on handoffs to Ed Gray who scored twice on long runs. Line backer Kent Gaudy picked off a Blue Bird pass and went 55 yards for the final Hornet tally. Fullback Bruce Jones scored three of four extra points for the Hornets.

Knights vs. Eagles

In other action, the White Knights trounced the Golden Eagles, 33 to 0, in their season opener. Sparking the Knights' offensive drive were quarterback Eddie Hurst, halfback Allen Taylor and center Shane Bromfield.

The Knights' defensive line, led by Bobby Walls, held the Eagles in their own territory most of the game.

In intermediate league action, the Intermediate — 1 team defeated the Mustangs, 6 to 0. Steve Gouchenouer ripped off tackle for 30 yards to score on the first offensive series for I-1, and quarterback Lee Milliner connected with six of his ten passing attempts. The Mustangs tightened up defensively for the remainder of the game but were unable to get into the scoring column.

Huskies Win

The Huskies defeated Intermediate Team 4 by a score of 18 to 6 in other action last week. Huskie halfback John Carter plunged off left tackle for four yards and a touchdown in the first quarter of the game and quarterback Gus McLeod scored in the second quarter on a two yard sneak. In the second half, Carter again scored after picking off an I-4 pass and racing 55 yards for the touchdown.

The biddy league plays a five-game schedule with action taking place at Blue Field on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 5 p.m. Intermediate league teams have a six-game schedule played Tuesday and Thursday at 6:15 on Doughboy Field.

SNOW TIRES

Infielder-outfielder Cookie Rojas of the Phillies was given a "night" by Philadelphia fans near the end of the 1965 baseball season. Among the gifts received by Rojas were two snow tires. He lives in Puerto Rico.

Sports Profile

197th Starts Shaping 5 Basketball Squads

BY JOE HUTTIE

For members of the 197th Infantry Brigade, football has taken the back sports seat during the past two weeks as the brigade's five basketball entries in the battalion - level post league began shaping their squads for the approaching season.

Four units have completed their second full week of practice sessions while one other club wound up its opening week of activity. Brigade troops, the 29th Infantry, 10th Artillery and 58th Infantry squads began to jell toward the end of last week while the 69th Armor held initial tryouts to determine its strength.

29th Infantry

The 29th Infantry ranks as the early favorite among brigade units largely due to the return of the high-scoring duo of lieutenants Don Harnum and Monte Clausen. Although the practice sessions are just getting off the ground, both Clausen and Harnum represent a strong core around which the 29th is sure to build.

Clausen at six foot, six inches and Harnum at six foot, two inches were both selected for Fort Benning's all-post team last year, Clausen as a center and Harnum as a guard. Both sharpshooters played college ball with Harnum gaining his experience at the University of Maine while Clausen was peppering the hoop at the University of Arizona.

According to Harnum, the big rebounder for this year's 29th club could be six foot, three inch Glen Martin who played forward on last year's squad but didn't see too much action during the regular season. Clausen, who averaged 15 points per game, and Harnum, who dropped in 17 per game, should provide the scoring punch necessary to make the 29th a strong contender for this year's crown.

10th Artillery

For the 10th Artillery, the offense will be shaped around last year's high-point center Walton Burroughs. At six foot, three inches, Burroughs paced the 10th to a 3rd place finish last year while averaging 18 points per game. However, the appearance of six foot, four inch John Murry will make it possible for Burroughs to switch to an outside forward slot this year. The change should make Burroughs an even stronger scoring threat.

Returning guards Oliver Barnes at six foot, two inches and Jerry Burns, who sat out most of last year's season after a long hospital stay, should provide the 10th with a sound backcourt team.

Brigade Troops

Another team to bear watching will be the Brigade Troops entry led by high scoring Howard Keene of Headquarters Company. Keene was a Fort Benning representative on the All Army team last year and averaged 24 points per game during the regular season. Keene at six foot, five inches, will couple with newcomer Warren Alcock, at six foot, five inches to give the Brigade Troops a strong rebounding punch.

The guard situation also looks sound with a veteran of last year's competition, six foot Gordon Kay, along with five foot, ten inch John Bass and newcomers Paul Lowen and Joe Huttie heading the list. Last year's Brigade Troops entry copped fourth place in the final standings.

KINGETER

MTU Takes Pair of Firsts At Lackland

LACKLAND AIR FORCE BASE, Texas — Sgt. John Kingetter of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit took a pair of first places in the Running Deer Slow Run Aggregate and the Fast Run Aggregate here last week.

The hot-shooting soldier captured the slow run aggregate with a score of 264 and the fast run aggregate with a 227.

USAMTU shooters walked off with all top honors in the slow run aggregate. Second place went to SFC Loyd Crow, third to Capt. John Foster and fourth to Sgt. Edmund Moeller. Their winning scores were 251, 251 and 246 respectively.

SFC Crow placed second and Sgt. Moeller third in the fast run aggregate with scores of 222 and 212.

Two members of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit finished in the top four of the U.S. International Clay Pigeons Championship.

PFC Kevin Onka shattered 289 birds for the runnerup spot, only three birds behind Peter Rousses, a civilian who won the match.

Third place went to Sgt. John Abbott of the Marines with a 287. PFC Gary Simonson of the USAMTU tied for fourth place with Sgt. Jack Johnson and Chief M-Sgt. Pete Mashburn of the Air Force with 285.

All six shooters will go to the World Moving Targets Championship in Chile.

Officers' Club Tennis Championships Begin

The annual fall tennis tournament sponsored by the Main Officers' Club got underway at the club courts last week with Scott Allen named top seeded player.

John Bradley was named second seeded among the 17 entries in the men's open singles division.

In second round play, Allen beat E. B. Peters by scores of 6-1 and 6-2 and then went on to the third round to defeat Jim Scwoob 6-1, 6-1. Allen will face Fred Stetson in the semi-finals which begin tomorrow at 2 p.m. A hard-driving player, Stetson defeated Siegfried Carlstrom 6-2, 6-3 in the second round and Dave Raney, 3-6, 6-3, 6-0 in third round play.

Bradley also earned a place in the semi-finals by defeating Robert Caron 6-3, 6-0 in the second round and gaining a default victory over Greg Robinson in the third round.

Bradley's opponent in the semi-finals will be D. F. Coupe who beat Beverly Read in the second round by scores of 6-1, 6-1 and Roger Gaines in the third round 6-2, 6-0.

The singles finals will get underway at 11 a.m. on Sunday.

In senior division action, Lester Burnette was slated to face Jacob Riley and N. D. Stafford was matched against Murray Hundley in semi-final action today. The finals are also scheduled to begin Sunday.

In the ladies singles division, Mrs. Lou Kearns and Mrs. Lucienn Frequelin are scheduled to face each other in the semi-finals which begin tomorrow at 3 p.m. Mrs. Lester Burnette is matched against Mrs. Gayle Baker-Crane in other semi-final action.

The team of Burnette and Riley was scheduled to face Robinson and Read today in the men's doubles semi-finals. Gaines and Roger McCall were to battle Allen and Coupe. The doubles finals will be played at 4 p.m. on Sunday.

12 Nations Host Sports For Military Competition

From the Army Times

WASHINGTON — Twelve nations have selected the events they will sponsor in the Conseil International du Sport Militaire (CISM) competition for 1966, leaving seven still unsponsored, according to a report of the CISM executive committee which met in Brussels.

The U. S. armed forces has accepted the role of host for CISM's XXth General Assembly, Nov. 15-20, at Wiesbaden, Germany.

The 1966 slate of events — seven more than in 1965 — lists the following unsponsored events: track and field pentathlon for jet pilots (P. A. I. M.), Sea Week (Naval pentathlon), basketball, water polo, wrestling and orienteering.

Last year 115 national teams competed in 12 CISM events. Clinics are proposed in swimming in Spain; parachuting in Morocco; boxing in Italy; and fencing in Denmark.

CISM's general assembly also decided to recommend South Viet Nam for membership.

New Training Program Saves Costly Man-Hours

A totally new training program has been devised for the training of Army support soldiers. It is a system in which the military office worker would have to qualify only once each year in the subjects required for combat readiness.

Prior to the initiation of this program, Center Troop Command officials conducted their training in a manner which required the soldier to be away from his duties an average of four to eight hours each week.

Initial study of the problem was begun as much as 11 years ago and the solution has proved so successful in operation here at Fort Benning that it has been adopted by the Army as the standard method of training desk-bound soldiers in the combat arts.

Today with the help of a five man training team, countless man - hours are saved and much repetitious training has been cut out.

Many times, SSgt. Paul Brown, SSgt. Angelo Flores, Sgt. Elroy Garcia, Sgt. Carl Klein and Sgt. Charles Kostelak of the training team are out long before the sun rises to prepare the firing ranges and classrooms for a day of training.

Aside from the mission of keeping the support units combat ready, they qualified over 700 men in the past two and one half months while assisting the 1st Cavalry Division in its preparation for deployment to Viet Nam.

Ideas and studies which resulted in the new program were initiated in 1954 by Maj. Clarence Wedtfall, then S-3 officer of Center Troop Command with the assistance of Lt. Arthur Taylor Jr. As a result, the support soldier is able to carry out his daily duties and also qualify in the Code of Conduct, survival, evasion and escape, map reading, gas chamber and weapons qualification.

GAS CHAMBER EXERCISE . . . Sgt. Elroy Garcia puts Center Troop Command soldiers through the gas chamber qualification. All the training is condensed to allow as much time as possible for the soldier's regular Army job. Above, Sp4 James Kennedy of Company B, 1st Battalion, recites name, rank and serial number. "TIME OUT"

A suburban London pub operator roared the traditional British pub-closing notice to his customers — "Time, Gentlemen, please" — and the floor fell in — literally. Grimly clutching their beer glasses, some of Fred Percival's best patrons dropped two feet into a hole that "opened" in the floor of the crowded bar. One strong voice complained from the rubble: "Don't shout again, Fred — we're going."

BULB-PLANTING

Bulb planting gains in activity at this time of year as new shipments of Dutch bulbs arrive from Holland. It is time to work out a planting schedule so that early ones may be planted soon. Then follow with Dutch bulbs that do not demand early planting.

This is also a good time to look over varieties of Sasanqua camellias to determine which colors, flower form, size and plant form you want.

Navajos Sad; Western Movie Uses No 'Injuns'

HOLLYWOOD — There was joy among the Navajo Indians in the Flagstaff, Ariz., area when they learned that a location company for Warner Bros.' "A Big Hand for the Little Lady" was arriving, since the movie companies sometimes hire hundreds of local Indians as extras.

The joy was short-lived, however, when they were told the technicolor picture, although a western with Henry Fonda, Joanne Woodward, Jason Robards and Paul Ford as the stars doesn't have a single Indian in the script.

One philosophical brave managed to retain a sense of humor about the disappointment. "At least," he told producer - director Fielder Cook, "we won't have to bite the dust in this one."

Synopsis

VON RYAN'S EXPRESS

In 1943, Colonel Joseph Ryan (Frank Sinatra) of the USA Air Corps is shot down in Italy and sent to a prisoner of war camp. Ryan's cooperation with his captors earns him the sarcastic name of "Von Ryan" from the other prisoners. When Italy surrenders, the prisoners are loaded on a freight train bound for Austria. Ryan formulates a plan to capture the train and head for the Swiss border. With the aid of British Major Eric Fineham (Trevor Howard) and his men, the guards are overpowered. Now VON RYAN'S EXPRESS must bluff and fight its way through four hundred miles of Nazi-controlled Italy. With German fighter planes strafing them from the air and German soldiers attacking on the ground, Ryan, Fineham and the Allied prisoners of war stage their last desperate battle for freedom.

JOY IN THE MORNING—It is the story of Carl Brown (Richard Chamberlain), law student at a midwestern college, in love with wistful, inexperienced Annie McGairy (Yvette Mimieux) from Brooklyn. Carl brings Annie to the campus where they are married by a Justice of the Peace. They are very poor, as well as very young, but are determined to make something wonderful of their life together, even though the odds are against them.

TAGGART — Kent Taggart (Tony Young) and his parents, who have recently settled on a piece of land in the West purchased from the government, are attacked by a band of cow hands who object to "squatters." Taggart's parents are killed in the skirmish and he flees with hired gunman Dan Duryea in hot pursuit. Duryea tracks Taggart into Apache territory. Taggart and Duryea settle their hatred in a blazed on a freight train bound ing climax when the blood curdling Apaches assault a nearby fort which is valiantly defended by the cavalry.

on the day of the game, the score is the biggest concern of life. Radios and TV sets are the order of the day and each bright new face at the door either answers or asks the question "What's the score".

A Hopeful Next Year

Some people are darly losers. Their fate is short and quick. Others, whose agony is prolonged, have a chance of winning to the bitter end. And when the moment of truth finally comes, there is the inevitable let down for most.

For the losers, there is always tomorrow's game on which to build shattered hopes. For the winners, winning is the climax and excitement subsides. For everyone at series end, there is always a hopeful next year when Granny will stick her hand into the hat once again and the madness will be upon us.

BONDED FABRIC

What is meant by the term "bonded" fabric? Miss Margie McIntyre of the Extension Service says that bonding is a process of joining two or more fabrics together permanently.

One of the more familiar combinations is an underlining of foam bonded to a knitted or woven outer fabric. A chemical adhesive is used to bond all fabric underlinings and some foam backings. The fabrics are joined under light pressure between rollers. With foam underlining, the surface of the foam is melted by a gas flame and serves as the adhesive to bond the outer fabric and foam as they pass through.

Generals Forsythe, Norton Nominated For Second Stars

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

The Defense Department Wednesday announced that Brig. Gens. John Norton and George I. Forsythe have been nominated for promotion to major general.

Gen. Forsythe, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, succeeded Gen. Norton. He came to Fort Benning from Hawaii, where he was serving as assistant commander of the 25th Infantry Division.

Gen. Norton, a former assistant commandant of The Infantry School at Fort Benning, is deputy commanding general of the U.S. Army in Viet Nam, second in command to Gen. William C. Westmoreland.

Gen. Norton served at Fort Benning from May 1963 until March 1965, when he left to take over the Army Support Command in Viet Nam.

Payday to Fall 2 Days Early This Month

Payday will come early this month for soldiers at Fort Benning, post finance officials have announced. The payday, two days early, is in accordance with the latest Third Army circular.

This is the first time finance will pay on the Friday prior to the actual end of the pay period, which falls on a non-duty day.

According to Public Law 89-193, commanders may pay their troops on the last workday of the pay period.

Bicycle

sent the program which includes lectures and a film on bicycle maintenance, traffic regulations, and inspection and registration of bikes.

Lt. Joseph White of the Georgia Traffic Safety Division gave the keynote talk. "We have a saying at the traffic department," he said, "a loose nut behind the wheel is the cause of most traffic accidents. This applies to bikes as well as automobiles."

Obey Regulations

"Your bike is considered a vehicle," he continued, "you must give all signs and signals and obey all traffic regulations."

Attention in the youthful audience was not always rapt as Saturday morning is usually prime play time for Benning youngsters. But sometimes one of White's remarks seemed to strike a familiar note.

Talking about several bad bike riding practices among youngsters, White said, "keep both hands on the handlebars and both feet on the pedals. Don't be like some people who guide their bike with only their body." At that, a chubby girl of about ten turned to a companion and smiled guiltily.

White concluded by telling his young audience, "Ride safely and your bike will be safe to ride."

Bikes Inspected

After a Walt Disney cartoon on bicycle safety and a question and answer period conducted by SSgt. William Wilkins of the Mobility Department, the kids swarmed outside to have their bicycles inspected and registered. The scene looked like the start of some vast caravan with kids, mothers, pet dogs and bicycles of all colors, shapes and sizes lined up in four columns.

After inspection and registration, representatives of the Provost Marshal awarded safety league membership cards to the youngsters along with literature on bicycle care and safety. Concluding the clinic, workers from the local Veterans of Foreign Wars Chapter put reflector tape on the bikes.

About 1500 children are expected to attend the clinics. The next one will be given at 9 a.m. tomorrow at Wilbur School with the third at Lloyd School on Oct. 30. A clinic for Catholic children has yet to be scheduled.

1500 Ride Bicycles

Andrew Baldwin, Fort Benning safety director, said there are about 3000 children attending school on post and that about half have bicycles. He estimated most of the post's 1500 bike riders would attend one of the safety clinics. He added that in the last few years Fort Benning has had no serious accidents involving children riding bicycles.

Payday

Previously, Third Army regulations stated that in such a case troops would be paid on the workday following the end of the pay period. However, Change One to Third Army Circular 37-16 now authorizes the early pay.

The same policy will be followed if the last day of a pay period is a legal holiday, officials said.

Meet

try contractors will display everything from laser devices to helicopters and tanks in the Sheraton Park Hotel's mall and 70,000 square feet of exhibition halls.

Following registrations on Sunday the meeting will be officially opened Monday morning by the national AUSA president, Elvis J. Stahr, with the keynote address to be delivered by Army Secretary Resor.

Personnel Conference

Also highlighting the first morning's activities will be a personnel conference for sergeants major to be followed by a reception and buffet for the senior NCOs.

There will be a presentation by the deputy chief of staff for Military Operations and the annual president's reception that evening.

Presentations Tuesday will be made by the assistant chief of staff for Force Development, the commander of 18th Airborne Corps and, at the annual luncheon, Army Chief of Staff Johnson will be the featured speaker.

On Wednesday, final day of the convention, presentations will be delivered by the Combat Developments Command; chief, Office of Reserve Components; and General Creighton W. Abrams, Army vice chief of staff. The annual business meeting will also be held that day and awards will be presented.

Sgt. Maj. Lawrence F. Kennedy of the 1st Cavalry Division will receive a certificate of achievement from the Association. Kennedy, one of the most active supporters and membership campaigners for the AUSA, was nominated by the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter for the Biddle Medal but will receive the certificate of achievement instead. Kennedy is presently serving with the 1st Cavalry in Viet Nam.

Black-Tie Affair

The traditional George Catlett Marshall reception and dinner, a black tie affair, will close out the 11th annual meeting.

Soldier-statesman General Taylor will be the principal speaker. The Marshall Memorial Medal this year will be presented to Gen. (USA, ret.) Jacob L. Devers, former chief, Army Ground Forces (now redesignated as the Continental Army Command.)

In a final, colorful note, the colors will be retired and another annual meeting will pass into limbo.

The local chapter's contingent will be headed by the post commander, Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, along with Columbus Mayor B. Ed Johnson and chapter officers Oscar L. Betts Jr., president and R. L. Hinson, first vice president.

Leave From Lawson

Most of the delegates will leave from Lawson Army Airfield Sunday morning with the exception of Hinson and Betts who will go to Fort McPherson as they are members of the party of Third Army commander, Lt. Gen. Louis W. Truman.

Mayor Johnson will accompany Gen. York and several other civilian members will fly to Washington commercially. J. W. Woodruff Jr., as a member of the resolutions committee, will go to Washington ahead of the local group.

Benefit

paign, will again provide leadership as this year's chairman. Lt. Col. Harrison A. Morley, assisted by 1st Lt. Carl W. Ford Jr., is this year's project officer.

Holton discussed a number of the 27 health, charitable, youth and welfare agencies receiving funds from United Givers and emphasized how much military families benefit.

He pointed out that United Givers, a non - profit organization, was organized in 1951 as a community effort to eliminate many separate fund raising campaigns in the Columbus area.

For the past week, key men and drive chairmen have been touring the United Giver agencies which will directly benefit from the Fort Benning and Columbus drives.

They have seen the work going on at such places as the South Columbus Boys and Girls Clubs, the Cerebral Palsy clinic, the Armed Forces YMCA, the Red Cross and the School for Retarded Children.

The groups have been visiting the agencies served by the local United Givers drive to give them a better idea of how they will promote the drive in their various units, one official stated.

Lt. Col. E. W. Buchanan, Student Brigade deputy commander, led one such daily tour last week.

The group was told by Temp S. Davis Jr., president of United Givers, "With the spirit of entry and enthusiasm generated by you (Fort Benning) I am sure United Givers will meet its goal."

After this beginning, Buchanan and 31 other top officers and NCOs who are keymen in this year's drive then visited agencies which receive United Givers funds.

The United Nations

The Best Agent For World Peace

Sunday is United Nations Day — the 20th anniversary of the day the UN Charter became effective.

The United Nations was created in the aftermath of World War II to formulate a means of healing the world and to eliminate the possibility of another such holocaust.

In its peacekeeping role, it has acted time and again as mediator and firm guardian of peace. In Africa, in Asia, in the Middle East, the UN has intervened, with persuasion when possible, with force of arms when necessary, to prevent minor conflicts that might have grown to threaten the security of the world.

In its role as an agent of world prosperity, it has fostered cooperation between nations. Without that cooperation, there would be no international progress.

It would be impossible, for instance, to explore outer space if it were not for international agreements to govern the use of radio frequencies. Weather information is exchanged under the auspices of the World Meteorological Organization, using the facilities and satellites of all industrialized nations. The United States, Mexico, Israel and the Soviet Union are cooperating in studies on the use of nuclear power reactors in desalting sea water.

The UN is dedicated to improving the lot of mankind and fighting sickness, poverty and ignorance. Programs have been initiated to combat disease and improve sanitation. Developing nations are helped in their efforts through the organization of natural resources and with loans from international lending agencies affiliated with the U. N.

The United States has always been one of the strongest supporters of the UN and its undertakings. As Americans and as members of our country's military forces, it is our duty to understand what the UN is and what it stands for and to support it in whatever way we can.

Our peace and prosperity is interwoven with the peace and prosperity of the world and our nation's freedom is secure only as long as the freedom of the world is secure.

The Judge Says . . .

'What Will Happen to Your Estate If You Don't Leave a Will?'

It's the same old refrain—"Who, me? I don't need a will. I'm only a Specialist 4, and besides, my wife will get everything I own." One can't be more wrong with this attitude.

First of all, if there is no will, the wife will not get everything.

When a deceased person does not have a will, then his home state provides for distribution of his assets by what is legally called "interstate distribution." All this means is if a person dies without a will his estate is to be distributed in accordance with a prearranged formula which usually provides for only a half or two - thirds of his assets to go to the wife while the remainder goes to children or other relatives.

In many cases, an unintended person shares in an estate and gets a portion of the booty, contrary to the wishes of the deceased.

In order to point up all of the other advantages of a will, let's examine a hypothetical situation. Although it's hypothetical the stated facts have occurred many times in the past and most likely will occur again.

Assume a man and his wife are driving to a party. The children have been left at home with a babysitter. A drunken driver runs head-on into the vehicle, and both man and wife are killed. All that the man owns is the car he was driving, some furniture and clothing, and $500.00 in a savings account. He did not have a will.

Let us look at the problems that arise because there was no will.

—Who is to have custody of the children? This could have been provided for in a will; without a will, the state will decide.

—Who is to administer the estate — a perfect stranger or a member of your family? In many states, a "public administrator" will be appointed to handle the administration and he will usually be allowed a fee out of the estate. If there had been a will, the executor could have been chosen by you and if the chosen executor was a member of the family, it could have been provided that he serve without fee.

—Due to the collision, the small estate has the potential of a great increase in assets by means of a suit for damages against the driver of the other vehicle. Who is to receive these proceeds? A will could have determined this. Without it, the state will determine the disposition by means of interstate distribution.

As you can see, a will provides the power of controlling the disposition of your estate. In order to retain this power of control rather than leaving it to the state, a will is definitely necessary.

Bicycle Roundup For Your Children

The first session of the post Bicycle Roundup has been completed and there are three more still scheduled for Fort Benning.

These sessions are designed to instill in youngsters safe "driving" attitudes which, hopefully, will stay with them when they graduate from the bicycle and move onto the use of motorcycles, cars and other marvels of the mechanical age.

Having the Bicycle Roundup on the post is the result of the cooperative efforts of a number of military and civilian agencies which are demonstrating a very active and real concern in implanting good safety habits in the minds of our youngsters. These agencies deserve a note of praise for their efforts.

During the first session of the roundup, some 250 youngsters attended. Attendance at future sessions is expected to boost this figure substantially.

If, however, your youngster has a bicycle which he uses on the reservation and you haven't made plans for he or she to attend, it might be well worth your while to consider doing so. The benefits derived by your children could indeed be life-lasting and life saving.

Provost Marshal Tip

Women Should Use Caution When Alone

Wives and dependent females are urged to be extremely careful about accepting baby sitting commitments over the telephone from male callers because of the dangers involved.

The woman accepting such jobs can quickly become the victim of persons trying to make contact for reasons other than baby sitting.

One woman recently placed an ad in the local paper and The Bayonet stating that she wished baby sitting work. The ad was answered by a rash of telephone calls from people making crude and obscene remarks to the woman.

Women are warned particularly against accepting outside sitter jobs from persons they don't know personally especially if the agreement is that the employer furnish the transportation.

Victims of obscene phone calls are advised to hang up on the callers as soon as they realize what type of call it is. In any case, the civilian or military police police should be notified of the call.

Another danger to dependent women are peeping toms. Attracted to lighted windows where the shades or blinds are not drawn, peepers are usually considered nothing but a nuisance. However, these people are inherently dangerous and should never be considered lightly. Persons should establish a habit of checking the blinds nightly.

Milk and Your Teeth

DENTAL IMPRESSIONS
NATHAN GRACE — PREVENTIVE DENTISTRY OFFICER

QUESTION — Can tooth decay be prevented by drinking large quantities of milk and eating foods that are rich in vitamins and minerals?

ANSWER — Milk in itself is an excellent food product and one of the best dietary sources of calcium which is necessary for the development of strong, healthy bones and teeth. For the maintenance of good general health, a balanced diet is obviously quite important.

However, none of the foods actually prevent tooth decay. After the teeth are completely formed and calcified, dietary constituents have very little effect upon them — except in one respect.

Dental decay can be prevented, to a large extent, by drinking fluoridated water and not eating foods containing excessive amounts of sugar.

During early childhood, therefore, we may presume that the teeth are being strengthened by the milk and other sound food elements that are consumed, even though no immunity to dental decay can be shown.

For continued excellent dental health throughout the childhood and adult years, a religious avoidance of candy, chewing gum, soft drinks, pastries, etc., will assure the maintenance of a sound dental apparatus as well as avoidance of pain, chewing difficulties and loss of teeth.

With the addition of a thorough toothbrushing regimen, the ravages of tooth decay can be almost completely neutralized.

Mrs. Robert M. Williams, director of the Officers Wives' Choral Group, announced last week that many more singers are needed now to begin rehearsals for the Christmas cantata.

The first performance will be given at the OWC Christmas luncheon on Dec. 1 and the choral group has already received several invitations to sing both on post and in Columbus. Mrs. Dick Roach will be accompanist.

The group held its first organizational meeting last week with Mrs. Williams acting as director for the third consecutive year.

Ladies who have had any experience in choir or choral singing are invited to join. Soloists are in demand since many of last year's singers have left Fort Benning. Auditions will not be held.

Weekly rehearsals are scheduled for Tuesdays at 9:30 a.m. in the adult classroom of the Sunday School Bldg. on Dixie Rd. Interested persons should telephone the group's chairman, Mrs. T. B. Kniffin, at 322-6518 or Mrs. Williams at 545-3225.

In addition to the annual Christmas cantatas, past performances have included "Broadway at Benning" in the spring of 1964 and Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado" last April.

OWC Adds 3 Activities To Offerings This Year

An organ club, senior citizens group and rifle marksmanship program have been added to the hobby and instructional classes being offered by the Officers Wives' Club this year.

Beginners in the marksmanship program will be taught basic marksmanship under the direction of the National Rifle Association. Classes will be given Tuesdays from 8:30 a.m. to noon during November and December. For information and registration, telephone Mrs. Vincent Gannon, 545-1946.

The organ club will meet once a month to exchange music and ideas. Plans are being made to have guest artists. It's not necessary to play the organ to join the club but lessons can be arranged. The contact for this group is Mrs. W. S. Mattox at 545-3518.

Senior citizens is a social group being formed to give senior dependents of Fort Benning officers an opportunity to get together and share common interests. Chairman of this activity is Mrs. Richard G. Miller at 545-2818.

Openings are still available for the children's art classes held each Saturday morning until Dec 11. The instructor, Lt. John T. Southworth, will cover such subjects as wire sculpture, collage, drawing and painting using watercolor, tempera, charcoal and brush with ink.

The 12 and under age group attends from 10 to 12 a.m. and the 13 and over age group from 1 to 3 p.m. For additional information, telephone Mrs. Donald Barraclough at 545-4598.

For ladies who anticipate an overseas tour soon, or those who would like to become familiar with a foreign language, the OWC offers a class in elementary Spanish grammar and a conversational Spanish class which is being formed by Mrs. C. E. Blanchard, 689-9749. Eight weekly two-hour lessons will be offered for beginners.

Mrs. Gerald Lasater at 687-4936 will teach six two-hour lessons in German to beginners on Monday mornings at 9:30. Eight lessons in elementary French are being taught Tuesday evenings at 7:30 by Mrs. Samuel Walinsky, 689-8723.

Salad Dressing

(AP) — Salad dressings and topping can give a quick-change trick for the family's favorite salad.

An extension service home economist, Miss Nelly Boyd, points out that mayonnaise is a favorite salad dressing but it should be served in a variety of ways. For example, add some prepared mustard, catchup, chopped olives or blue cheese to vegetable salads. As a fruit salad dressing, thin mayonnaise with fruit juices or syrup from canned fruits.

Another variety trick is to sprinkle fruit salad with celery seed, coconut, chopped nuts or chopped candied ginger.

DIET BEVERAGE

Low-calorie soft drinks can be recommended from a dental standpoint, Dr. Gerald J. Cox, Philadelphia, has reported.

Coyotes Participate In Planned Parenthood

FT. BLISS, Tex. (AFPS) —U.S. Army and Department of Interior wildlife authorities may have come up with a novel solution to the growing number of coyote bands plaguing El Paso area residents and outlying ranchers.

The answer is coyote birth control.

Experiments were begun two years ago by Army and Federal wildlife authorities to come up with a non-lethal method for controlling predatory coyotes.

An anti-fertility agent was dissolved in animal tallow and 5,000 drug-impregnated baits were air dropped into an area here heavily populated with coyotes.

The drop was timed to coincide with the end of the coyote mating season. When a female coyote ate the doctored bait, it destroyed whatever embryos she carried without doing her any harm.

The ever-increasing coyote population in the Ft. Bliss-El Paso area had been causing concern to both military and civilian authorities because of the increased danger of rabies and growing losses of livestock.

Quick Named Honor Grad of OCS Class

Thomas F. Quick was top man among 158 officer candidates who were graduated Oct. 13 at Fort Benning's Infantry School.

For making an average of 94.56 per cent, the new second lieutenant received a certificate of achievement, an Association of the U. S. Army plaque and a "Follow Me" statue from the School's 5th Student Battalion.

Assisted by the guest speaker, Col. George D. Rehkopf, chief of the Staff Group of the Infantry School Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, Mrs. Quick pinned the gold bars on her husband's uniform.

Quick and 2nd Lt. Charles E. Glasscock tied with a score of 99.3 per cent for a leadership award. They received "Follow Me" plaques from the battalion.

High Scorer

Another high scoring student was 2nd Lt. Kirk S. Fitzgerald who was awarded a letter of academic achievement for an average of 94 per cent.

The officer's oath was administered to the graduates by 1st Lt. W. M. Hartzog, adjutant of the 5th Student Battalion.

Col. Tyron E. Tisdale, secretary of the Infantry School who introduced Rehkopf, said that he, himself, had "sat out front" in a similar graduation when he completed OCS during World War II. On behalf of Brig. Gen. George I. Forsythe, assistant commandant of the School, Tisdale congratulated the graduates.

Self-Discipline

Rehkopf spoke on "self-discipline." He told the class that, after 23 weeks of rigid recruit - type discipline, they must now, more or less, discipline themselves.

He said a new lieutenant is a keyman in the Army with many thousands of officers above him in rank but 800,000 enlisted men to whom he is senior.

Rehkopf defined self - discipline as the intelligence to improve oneself, alertness to plan ahead, ambition to seek responsibility, resolve to set an example and the integrity to express beliefs regardless of consequences.

A program for parents and other teachers, including those who do not teach mathematics, will be staged at 7:30 p.m. by Smith in the auditorium of Faith School.

The Oct. 27 schedule includes a planning session at 8:30 a.m. in Bldg. 880-A; a workshop for teachers of the fourth, fifth and sxth grades at 9:30 a.m. at McBride School with Miss Scherr presiding; a workshop beginning at 9:20 a.m. at Faith School for teachers of the upper (seventh and eighth) grades conducted by Dean; and two workshops starting at 1:15 p.m. with Miss Scherr speaking to fourth, fifth and sixth grade teachers at Loyd School and Dean conducting a program for parents in the auditorium at Faith School.

Captured Rice Goes to Needy

AN KHE, Viet Nam — The First Air Cavalry Division played the role of modern day Robin Hoods recently as it captured 4,000 pounds of rice from the Viet Cong and turned it over to needy Vietnamese villagers.

Army Sgt. Oscar E. Zilink and his platoon from Company C, 2nd Battalion, 7th Cavalry found the rice in and around a buddist temple as they conducted a search and destroy mission near the village of Dong Trung.

Zilink and the Third Brigade commander, Col. Thomas W. Brown, called in the Binh Khe District chief, asking him to pass the food on to the hungry.

Addressing the villagers, the chief said: "This rice is presented to you by the American soldiers who took it from the Viet Cong."

Futuristic Telephones Discussed at Meeting

Fifty-seven Armed Forces Management Association members at Fort Benning were given a look into the future of commercial communications last week when Southern Bell Telephone Company's Charles Henegan demonstrated equipment at a dinner meeting at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Henegen, the company's Georgia general commercial engineer, displayed a LASER (Light Amplification by Stimulation of Electrical Radiation) operated record player, a model of the Telstar satellite, designs for the coming "picture" telephone and a delayed playback device that permits an individual to hear and study his own telephone voice.

Henegan said giant strides in the development of communications are being made. He foresaw the time when by wrist telephone, the shopper can command her home telephone to instigate an impluse that will "turn off the coffee pot she left percolating."

The busy businessman will dial the central office to automatically deflect his calls to his club in the evening, he said.

From Alexander Graham Bell's first breakthrough in rapid communications, the invention of the "Bell Liquid Transmitter," the first telephone, through the later developments of the translator, multiple channel submarine telephone cabels with repeater boosters, microwave, the Telstar satellite and the Laser, Henegan traced the rapid increase in man's ability to transmit words ever-increasing distances.

He anticipated the time when stock inventory will be made by machine, keyed to data on sales tickets, supplemented by machine re-ordering, as one of many work and time saving devices in the communications field.

RNs Sought Here to Take Refresher

A refresher course for registered nurses may soon be available at Fort Benning the Registered Nurses Association has announced.

Whether or not the course is given depends upon the number of people interested in taking the course, officials say.

The officials of the association continued that nurses who have not been active in the profession for some time might want an opportunity to see the latest equipment and learn new techniques.

Many women who have kept up their professional status for years and now find that they have the time to return to nursing may find the refresher course "an inspiration and morale builder," officials said.

Tentative plans call for three two-hour sessions a week at night.

Registered nurses who are interested in the course are asked to call Mrs. Margaret Pimninella at 327-8170.

Post Thrift Shop Adds Saturday To Its Schedule

Operated by the Fort Benning Officers Wives' Club, the Thrift Shop is located in Building 130 behind the Infantry Museum. Profits from the operation of the facility are used by the Officers Wives' Club for welfare purposes for the entire post.

Army-Navy Museum OKd For Philadelphia Square

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — An agreement has been reached for construction of a National Army-Navy Museum in Philadelphia's Independence Square National Historical Park.

The museum will have displays designed to preserve the more important dramatic historical events of the Army and Navy.

The agreement for the museum was signed by Lieutenant General Walter L. Weible, USA (ret.), executive vice president, United States Army Association; Morgan Fitch, president of the Navy League; and Paul Baker of the National Park Service, Department of the Interior.

When the museum is completed, the National Park Service will operate and maintain it as an activity of national historical interest.

The museum is being made possible through a fund drive conducted by the Army Association and Navy League which together have raised almost half-a-million dollars for the project.

The structure, which is to house the museum, will be a reproduction of the three-story colonial brick Pemberton House which stood on the museum's selected site during the Revolutionary War.

Donlon's Medal of Honor - The Story

White House Presentation

Retells Story for Ambassador Taylor

The Havoc at Nam Dong

The Attackers - The Next Morning

"I Was Just Doing What I Thought My Job Was," Says Army Captain

By JIM BAKER

The story of the first Medal of Honor winner since the Korean War unfolds at his own telling like an artist paints — in flurries, starts and in quick sketchy movements.

For Capt. Roger Donlon, the former Special Forces captain, the story of the defense of Nam Dong unfolds in rough sketches with quick jagged penmanship on a napkin or a scrap of paper.

"I was just coming in to the mess hall when the roof caved in with the first mortar round. "I was on guard, and stopped to check the roster to see who was next," he said quietly as the position of the mess hall suddenly took shape in relation to the rest of the buildings of his Special Forces camp at Nam Dong, Viet Nam.

Donlon, now a student in the career course for infantry officers at Fort Benning's Infantry School, says his chief problem now is learning how the "rest of the Army operates."

He is inclined to describe his Medal of Honor as "a team effort," and it is only after some prodding that the whole story unfolds.

There was Woody, the heavy weapons man, and the foulest mouthed member of the team. In the course of the night-long defense of the camp, Woody admitted to saying a prayer out loud and promising "that he would never kick his wife's mongrel dog out of the house again, if he ever got out of this."

For Donlon, who moved through the camp all night long, even after he had been hit three times, the most painful injury was a sharp tack that stuck in his bare foot — "somewhere along the line, a VC mortar round blew me out of my boots," mused the captain.

"I remember having to stop and pull it out of my foot," he said.

There was Beeson, the intelligence sergeant of the team, he stayed out all night in the "only mortar pit I couldn't get to," the captain stated.

Donlon said he never knew if Beeson was alive or not so he had Woody firing his mortar in a full circle so as to cover everyone.

There was the one pit where his team sergeant, Alamo, got it. His second in command, Julian Olejniczak, was hit in that pit also, as was the Australian warrant officer, Kevin Conway.

Houston had already been killed in the defense of the ammunition pits which were just beyond "the mound."

The mound was the result of a pit which the special forces team before Donlon's had begun digging. It was eventually to have housed an underground command post and medical aid station. At the time of the fight it was a deep pit with the dirt in front of it.

It was from this mound that Houston defended the ammo bunkers to the front and single handed took twenty Viet Cong with him before he was hit himself.

For Donlon, there was no respite. As he tells the story of that night, "I was just doing what I thought my job was."

Donlon remembers salvaging one of the radios from the burning command post at the outset of the fight, but during the fight, he was unable to remember where he put it.

Wherever brave men fight they also die. Kevin Conway, the Australian warrant officer, walked calmly from the center of the inner camp to Sgt. Disser's mortar pit near the main gate and as he descended the steps, he was hit in the head by a bullet. He died a half hour later.

Disser's pit took a beating in the course of the night, according to Donlon. The Viet Cong, trying to breach the gate, had moved in close and were hurling grenades into the pit.

Donlon says the grenades were of an inferior type, and caused more nuisance than damage when they exploded. He remembers that there were so many of them that "the only thing to do was to ignore them, stop firing and turn away from the blast and then resume firing."

Disser, Sgt. Alamo, the special forces team executive officer, Lt. Jay Olejniczak (called Lieutenant "O") were all injured in the mortar pit from the Viet Cong grenades.

Even Donlon took more shrapnel when he visited the mortar pit.

Throughout the telling of the story of the defense of Nam Dong, its battle positions and Donlon's travels are sketched in quick scratches on a slip of paper.

Donlon's final tours through the inner perimeter of the Camp were made in a doubled up manner because of a shrapnel wound in the stomach. He said he couldn't stand straight.

On the last trip, he made it through to the mortar position of Sgt. Beeson. Beeson had been firing his mortar all night long at anything that moved but the rest of team had no way of knowing it since he had been cut off by enemy machine gun fire.

All through the night, the team medics Sgts. Terrin and Gregg had approached Donlon in an attempt to take care of his wounds. Donlon remembers turning them away with "help the others, they're hurt worse than me."

Beeson finally told him to sit down and let him take care of the wounds or he would knock him down. Donlon obeyed and let Beeson bandage the shoulder wound but would not let him touch the stomach wound.

He remembers making the rounds of the gun pits one more time.

Shortly after this Lt. Lu arrived with his troops from the other end of the valley. Lu was the District chief and his responsibilities were both civil and military.

Donlon remembers his trip to The White House for the Medal of Honor presentation as an honor not for himself but for his whole team.

For him the Medal of Honor is a way of reaching people that he would otherwise not be able to do.

He says he will go anywhere to talk to a group of Boy Scouts.

He feels strongly about the boys, and claims that it is at that age and in the boy scout surrounding, that citizens with self assurance are born.

W. Germany Withdrawal Not Planned

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has not recommended bringing back United States troops from West Germany, the Defense Department said in reply to reports of a withdrawal.

It was noted that Secretary McNamara has repeatedly stated that personnel would not be withdrawn from Europe without his personal approval or that of Deputy Secretary Cyrus R. Vance.

"Neither has given such approval," a DOD spokesman explained, "nor is any reduction presently planned in the size of the U.S. commitment in Europe."

Noting that there is no requirement to transfer troops from Europe to Southeast Asia, the spokesman said, "The increase in force levels achieved in the last four years has provided sufficient combat power to meet the requirements of both Europe and the Far East."

The spokesman said that Secretary McNamara, as well as Henry R. Fowler, Secretary of the Treasury, are concerned over the balance of payments situation that led to the withdrawal speculation.

Ex-Agency Chief Awarded Legion Of Merit Medal

The Legion of Merit was awarded a former chief of Fort Benning's Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency (CDCIA) recently.

Col. (Ret.) Kenneth E. Eckland was awarded the first oak leaf cluster to the Legion of Merit for his outstanding service as chief of CDCIA from Dec. 1961 to June 1965.

Eckland now resides in Alexandria, Va. where the presentation was made.

Pro Pay System May Be Slated for Major Change With Inception of New High Dollar Re-Up Bonus

AN ANALYSIS
From the Army Times

WASHINGTON — The new high - dollar variable reenlistment bonus may cause a major realignment of the proficiency pay system and it is now nearly certain that the new bonus program will not be retroactive to September 1, the day it became authorized in the 1965 pay act.

A Defense Department memo to the service secretaries says, "it is not contemplated that any provision for retroactive application of this entitlement will be made." Officials caution that the memo merely sets guidelines for the services and that final decisions have not been made. But it is clear that suggestions for retroactivity will not be warmly received and that major changes in pro pay are coming.

The memo sets up five alternatives on how the new variable reenlistment bonus should be administered. All of them affect in some degree the present pro pay system and one would have the bonus or pro pay awarded for designated skills, but not both.

Others offer pro pay at certain levels with various amounts of the bonus. One offers both the bonus and pro pay.

Dollar Meaning

All the alternatives have important dollar meanings for enlisted men in critical skills, even if they have already passed their first reenlistment point (the variable bonus would be paid only for the first reenlistment). If some skills are removed from the pro pay list and transferred to the variable reenlistment bonus list, some men in those skills may be out of luck.

The memo says, "When a specialty now approved for proficiency pay (specialty) is removed to place it in a reenlistment bonus category, affected individuals will continue to receive the proficiency pay as provided in service regulations for removals of skills from proficiency pay status."

The services have different rules for handling this problem but none of them extend the pro pay beyond the current enlistment. For some men, that is only a matter of days; for others, it could be a couple of years.

In the Army, if a skill is removed from the list, the men drawing the pay will continue to get it for two years or the end of their enlistment, whichever occurs earlier. There is also the chance they could be shifted or trained into another pro pay skill.

Chance To Train

In the Air Force, if a skill is taken off the extra pay rolls immediately. They are generally given advance notice plus a chance to train into a new pro pay skill if they are qualified.

The Navy policy has been to continue the pay until a specified date, usually the end of the fiscal year (June 30) or until the end of the current enlistment, whichever is earlier.

The services, officials say, are going to Defense with fairly similar recommendations regarding the bonus and its relation to pro pay. They want to pay both. In addition, they would pay the variable bonus skills for which pro pay is not now permitted by Defense. How Defense will view these suggestions is not known. All of the service recommendations were to be in by October 15. Defense may have its new variable bonus directive out early in November and begin paying the bonus in January.

Retroactivity

This is where the sticky question of retroactivity comes in. It was stirred up some weeks ago when personnel officials at some installations told enlisted men the bonus would be retroactive to September 1. That interpretation appears to be wrong.

Some officials would prefer retroactivity because it would make it easier for men who now have the option of extending or reenlisting to make a choice.

If retroactivity is ruled out, a man who reenlists now and whose skills is later designated as one for which the variable bonus will be paid, will get no chance to get the money which, for some, could amount to as much as $7000.

In addition to the statement in the Defense memo (above), there are other indications pointing to a decision against retroactivity.

As one official expressed it, "No matter where we draw the line, there will be some men who won't qualify because their reenlistment came a day earlier."

Furthermore, it was Defense's intention, when it first proposed the variable reenlistment bonus with the pay bill, for all of it to become effective next January. Setting some payments back as far as September would require considerable budget juggling.

Problems

There are some additional administrative problems associated with retroactivity, particularly with the Air Force.

About one year before a first - term airman is due for discharge, he is interviewed and asked if he wants to go career. He has until eight months before date of separation to decide, and may:

Say no, serve the remaining eight months and quit.

Say yes and sign a nine-month extension form with the understanding it will be torn up at DOS if he reenlists or enforced if he does not reenlist at DOS.

Separate, take a short discharge and reenlist at the eight - month point.

Under the first two choices, he is not eligible for pro pay.

Under the third choice, he is eligible.

The problem is that men with DOS next spring have already been screened and made their decisions to extend or reenlist if they want to go career.

Short Discharge

If the bonus is not retroactive, the men who took short discharges and reenlisted at once will not collect. Those who extended will (if they are covered and the new bonus is in effect for their skills when they reenlist). Those who refused to reenlist or extend will theoretically not have another chance, although there is nothing to stop AF from offering them another crack at career status and the bonus if it wants to.

The Air Force, therefore, faces such situations as this: The more eager man who took a short discharge and reenlisted will be out of luck while the more cautious men who only extended will get the bonus. The man AF wants to give the bonus to is the one who refused the present deal. But if the bonus is re - opened to him, it seems unfair to those who took short discharges.

There is a point of realistic economics in the retroactivity question too. To go back and cover men reenlisted between September 1-December 31 would mean paying the "incentive" money to men already committed for another hitch.

It seems unlikely the economy - conscious Defense Department will see any wisdom in paying the additional premium to men whose services were already assured.

Closeup Story of Viet Nam War Given in Story of 'Green Berets'

THE GREEN BERETS by Robin Moore, Crown Publishers, Inc., 1965.

Today there are some 139,000 U. S. troops fighting the war in Viet Nam. This means that the equivalent of nine divisions of American servicemen are involved in armed conflict.

But it's well known that the buildup in that Asian country has been comparatively recent. This fact can very well lead to an interesting question. "How did we manage to fight in Viet Nam before the huge troop buildup?"

"The Green Berets" purports to answer this question. Written about the Special Forces, Robin Moore's book follows these fighting men into the fields of Viet Nam in the midst of what is called an "unconventional war."

This may sound old hat to many because of the thousands of newspaper and magazine articles that have been written about the war against the Viet Cong. But Moore covers it as an actual Special Forces fighter, concentrating on the people who are fighting and the way they combat the Communist guerrilla.

Many of the happenings in the book can be found nowhere else. One such instance is the case where a Communist infiltrator is found in a Vietnamese village that is manned by both Viet Nam and American troops and the manner in which information was obtained from him.

Robin Moore is perhaps as interesting as the story he tells. A free-lance, civilian writer, Moore felt that in order to write a book concerning Special Forces he had to live and fight as a Special Forces soldier. To do that, he underwent rigorous training from jump school at Fort Benning to the Special Warfare Center at Fort Bragg. He was the first civilian to do this.

In Viet Nam he fought as any soldier would. Unlike most correspondents, he carried a weapon with him at all times and actually participated in the battles he covered. He was considered by the American and Vietnamese troops as a brave and trustworthy soldier.

Because of the author's actual participation in the war, he is able to give a comprehensive account of the guerrilla warfare as it is actually conducted.

President's 'Stay Tough' Policy Backed By JCs

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce has informed President Johnson that the Jaycees favor a stay-tough policy in the Republic of Viet Nam crisis.

The president of the Jaycees, James A. Skidmore Jr., reported to the President that the young man's civic group endorsed the policy through a recently completed referendum vote of its 3,700 chapters in 50 states and the District of Columbia.

Mr. Skidmore said the Jaycees took the stand because they realize that to achieve victory over Communist aggression, force as well as diplomacy is often needed.

Mr. Skidmore informed the President that his policy on Viet Nam is supported on a 12-1 ratio by Jaycees representing 260,000 young men.

The Jaycees' referendum pointed out that responsible action in the RVN using military force, diplomacy and all other public and private resources to protect these principles is for the ultimate benefit of all freedom loving people.

The referendum also stated that as long as there are men who hate and despise, this nation must continue to have the courage to resist or all that we have built and stood for will crumble.

The U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce is a non-political, non-sectarian, non-profit organization dedicated to developing leaders and values the individual rights of all men.

Combat Ranger Lauds School's Instruction

A World War II Ranger who earned his patch in combat told 154 graduates of Fort Benning's Ranger course last week that they will be a "God-send to the commander you serve under."

Brig. Gen. John W. Dobson, Headquarters, U. S. Army Element (USA-ELM) Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington, who commanded the 1st Ranger Battalion known as Darby's Rangers and the first of six established during that conflict, compared the nine weeks of training the class has received with the Ranger training of the early days.

"We were Rangers, members of the unit before we earned the tab," he said. "That came after we proved ourselves in combat."

"I am deeply impressed with the Infantry School, and with the program of instruction," he continued.

Dobson said, "I know what getting my Ranger tab meant to me. To some of you it may mean nine weeks of hard work, learning to fry rattlesnake steak for lunch, the thrill of rappelling a cliff on a nylon rope or even going three or four days without sleep."

"Whatever it means, it adds up to a feeling of personal confidence, resourcefulness, determination, self-discipline and prompt obedience," he added. "This puts you 95 per cent of the way down the road to going into combat with a feeling of confidence."

Dobson presented a Gen. Darby Memorial Plaque to 2nd Lt. Philip R. Cooper, honor and distinguished graduate of the class. The award is a plaque presented by the Ranger battalion association composed of members of the six World War II Ranger Battalions.

YALE GIRLS

Yale's football team was cheered on by girl cheerleaders last Saturday for the first time in the school's history. The girls were from Connecticut State College for Women. Despite the female support, however, Yale lost to Columbia.

Honor Graduates

Two other honor graduates, 2nd Lt. Jay E. Vaughn and S- Sgt. Bobby H. Helms, received letters of appreciation.

Of Helms, Dobson said, "Being the only enlisted man in a class of 153 officers, Sgt. Helms is deserving of special praise. Let me say that he did not make honor graduate merely because he was the only enlisted man. He would have made it in any class."

Target date for raising the barge and its 600-ton chlorine cargo is Nov. 1. Safety arrangements are being handled by the state government under direction of Louisiana's governor.

GRENADE LAUNCHER TESTED . . . The modern infantryman may get still another twist on his light and accurate weapons systems. Now the infantry squad grenadier will get rifle fire power in addition to his "squad artillery" role if the tests of the new launcher for the M-16 rifle testing was conducted during the past two months by Fort Benning's Infantry Board. Known as the XM16E1, the new launcher is designed to fit the latest infantry shoulder weapon, the M-16, now being used by the 1st Cavalry Division and the 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions. The new launcher fires the same 40mm ammunition as the M-79 grenade launcher, presently being used in the infantry squad.

Vance Reveals Expansion Plans Of Chinese World Communism

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Red China's plans for expanding world communism were revealed by Deputy Defense Secretary Cyrus R. Vance at the National Security Industrial Association dinner here.

Secretary Vance referred to a political document by Red China's Vice Premier Lin Piao. Peking's doctrine, as outlined by Lin, calls for the seizure of power by armed force and the settlement of issues by war, the secretary said.

Targets, described by Lin as "rural areas of the world," were identified as Asia, Africa and Latin America. The Peking plan calls for "wars of national liberation" to surround, encircle and overwhelm the United States, Secretary Vance said.

The current conflict in Viet Nam is regarded by Red China as the "focus" of the revolutionary movement against the United States, the secretary explained.

"The governments of (the Republic of) Viet Nam and the United States will not be defeated by Communist aggression from the North," Secretary Vance said. "We will continue our support of the people of the Republic of Viet Nam until a just and reasonable settlement is reached."

Army Chief of Staff Harold K. Johnson made a similar statement saying that persistence will bring success. U.S. officials have also voiced "cautious optimism" that the United States will succeed in its commitment to the RVN.

Army's Artificial Heart May Cure Dread Disease

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Medical experts at the National Heart Institute believe that an artificial heart may be available to victims of certain heart ailments within ten years, thanks largely to an Institute - sponsored research program conducted at the U.S. Army's Harry Diamond Laboratories here.

Two prototypes of an artificial heart developed by Harry Diamond engineers were recently placed in the chest cavities of two calves and, operating with complete control over the animals' blood pressure, kept them alive for almost a day.

Though the Army's achievement is only the beginning of developmental work, engineers now predict that an artificial organ able to maintain blood pressure and respond to its changes will be perfected sufficiently to allow research with ailing human volunteers in the near future.

The Harry Diamond Labs, a research-development arm of the Army Materiel Command, joined the program to eliminate the nation's number-one killer through their pioneering research in "fluid amplifiers," control and switching devices that run on compressed air or gas and require few, if any, moving parts. Soon it became apparent that these devices had medical as well as defense and space applications.

Ultimately, the Army researchers are aiming at an artificial heart that is durable, economical and realistic-looking. But most important, they want to build a heart that will give its user as much freedom of movement as a man with a healthy heart.

MPs Provide Security For Saigon Structures

SAIGON (AFPS) — The U.S. Navy's largest single overseas shore command, Headquarters Support Activity, Saigon, provides a full spectrum of support activities for all U.S. military and many foreign forces in the area.

One of the major activities is that of the Provost Marshal's Department in Saigon and Cholon — Saigon's predominantly Chinese twin city.

The command security element consists of two main units; the Provost Marshal Department and the U.S. Army 716th Military Police Battalion.

Working with Vietnamese police, the MPs provide anti-terrorist security for U.S.-manned structures and hotels. In Saigon alone, these number more than 190.

They also guard money shipments, provide personal security for the U.S. Ambassador and Deputy Ambassador and guard ammunition shipments.

A four-man U.S. Navy Explosive Ordnance Disposal Team works with the Provost Marshal Department searching for and disarming Viet Cong bombs and explosive devices.

Roving motor patrols in the city frequently consist of a Vietnamese policeman and MPs from the U.S., Australian and New Zealand armies.

Besides physical guarding and patroling, the MP here has several other responsibilities. Two Navy chief petty officers act as fire marshals.

Volunteer Recall Eligibility Policy Extended for Reserve Officers

WASHINGTON (ANF) — In another measure to add company and some field grade rank to the officer's corps, the Department of the Army has announced that more lieutenants and captains and some majors in the Army Reserve will be eligible for volunteer recall to active duty under liberal new criteria.

The extended company-grade officer eligibility is based on a waiver which may be used when maximum age regulations prevent a lieutenant or captain from returning to active duty.

The new regulations permit a waiver of one year for first lieutenants and two years for captains.

Previously, an application could not be honored if the officer's age plus his prior commissioned active service time would total more than 28 years at the date of his reentry on active duty.

In other liberalizing modifications, Reserve majors and captains with an adjusted date of rank earlier than December 31, 1962 may apply for voluntary recall.

The requirement that applicants be able to complete ten years active commissioned service by the time they complete 20 years of overall active service for retirement purposes has not been changed.

Department of the Army is encouraging Reserve officers who meet the new criteria to apply for voluntary recall to active duty. Selection of applicants for recall will be made by DA.

President Sends Thanks To 'Dolly' Cast

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — President Johnson has sent his personal thanks to Mary Martin and the "Hello Dolly!" cast for entertaining service personnel in the Republic of Viet-Nam.

He expressed appreciation for bringing "Music, magic, and laughter to our sons and husbands who are so far from home."

President Johnson's message was read to the cast and audience at Bien Hoa Airfield by General W. C. Westmoreland, Military Assistance Command, Viet-Nam.

In a separate message to the show's star, a native Texan, President Johnson said, "You are making your President and all of Weatherford, Texas, deeply proud of you. Lady Bird and I send you our warm affections."

General Westmoreland also announced the President's successful operation. In a message to the Commander in Chief, the General said, "Mary, the cast and all the officers and men of the Military Assistance Command, Viet-Nam, join me in wishing you a rapid recovery. Our prayers are with you."

Chapel Will Show Religious Movie

The religious film "Angel in Ebony" will be presented in the Infantry Center Chapel on Sunday, October 24 at 7 p.m.

The film is a true life story of Sammy Morris, an African prince, who was tortured by a rival tribal chieftan, hitched a ride across the ocean on a tramp steamer, and enrolled in an American University with no previous schooling.

The Aftermath

BY DICK MINNIG

The Great 'But for' Game

FROM THE "It's never over til the last inning department or "the Great But For Game."

In the wake of the world series, "but fors" scramble into baseball talk and the sports columns of newspapers. But for is that little incantation which opens up the fantastic world of the might have been for baseball fans. But for the glint of sun in the outfielder's eye; but for that ball that just curved foul, all might have been different, destiny would have been reversed and the world would be turning on a different baseball axis. Our team might have won.

Losers are sometimes comforted in the knowledge of the but for and speculation on the might have been. The victorious, with the victor's magnanimity, let it all pass knowing that nothing can hurt them now.

Today Los Angeles is up and Minnesota is down. For the former, all is clover. The latter have assumed the traditional wait-till-next year philosophy. But the Twins have done a great job since they moved from Washington, D. C. in 1961. No one can say that their transformation from the Washington Senators was not a happy one.

Looking at Senator statistics in the history books, I found a classic example of the "But For" game. It was so classic that it seemed shrouded in the supernatural.

It Happened in 1924

THE YEAR WAS 1924. America was living high through the early years of a post war boom; booze was out by law and in by popular demand; and Rogers Hornsby, the Cardinal's skinny second baseman, had just finished hitting .424, the one year high for the 20th century. The year before Yankee Stadium had opened and the first million dollar gate was achieved. Baseball had also begun to hit the airwaves.

Bucky Harris, the "boy manager" was at the Senators' helm and the team had caught fire for him. Washington broke the three year reign of the New York Yankees as American League champs and got the first pennant in their history. Facing the Senators in the series were John McGraw's rough and ready Giants. A "but for" gave the Senators the win.

It was in the seventh and final game of the series and the Senators trailed by two runs. In the eighth inning, Washington managed to load the bases. With two out, Harris socked a bounder down third for what looked an easy out. Eighteen-year old third baseman Freddy Lindstrom moved over to make the play but before he could field the ball it hit a pebble and bounced over his head. Two Senators raced home to tie up the game.

The game continued into the twelfth inning when the plot suddenly thickened. With one away in the Senator's half, Muddy Ruel raised a pop foul. Giant catcher Hank Gowdy moved under it but got his foot entangled in the mask he discarded and couldn't make the play.

Ruel promptly hit the next pitch for a

VICTORY SMILES . . . (L-R) PFC Kevin Onka, Col. Joseph J. Peot and PFCs Dick Kulesh and Max Quick of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit of Fort Benning have victory written on their faces at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas last week as they stand with two trophies won by the USAMTU at the International Skeet and Clay Pigeon Championships. The high scores tallied by Onka and Kulesh earned them a berth on the U. S. team at the World Moving Target Championships to be held later this month in Santiago, Chile.

State Safety Stickers Required by Oct. 31

Provost Marshal officials have announced that all vehicles with Georgia license tags must have state inspection stickers by Oct. 31.

The law requires that "every motor driven vehicle operating with a Georgia license plate should bear an approved Safety Inspection Sticker on the left hand side of the windshield, properly signed and identified, that said vehicle has been safety inspected."

Exceptions to the law include trailers used as dwellings and which exceed a width of eight feet and a length of 29 feet or a gross weight of 4,500 pounds; a vehicle out of state at the time of deadline; a trailer of 1,500 pounds or less gross weight, and vehicles with out of state license tags.

In the case where a prior safety sticker expires, the owner has five days to have his vehicle re-inspected.

Presently the expiration date of March 31, 1966 is shown on the front of all stickers issued in 1965. This date is to be disregarded.

Under the latest Georgia law, the inspection sticker is valid for one year from the month of issue.

Violation of the Georgia law is considered a misdemeanor, according to a post Provost Marshal spokesman.

COUNTERFEIT MONEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some $3,364,000 in counterfeit currency was printed during the fiscal year 1965, a considerable drop from the preceding year, the Secret Service reported recently. Chief James J. Rowley said that 75 per cent of the bogus money had been confiscated before it was put into circulation.

Polar Unit Heads South To Spend Chilly Summer

FORT EUSTIS, Va. (ANF) — With summer approaching in the Southern Hemisphere, the 12-man Army Aviation Detachment for Antarctic Support has left here for its tenth consecutive season on the southern continent.

The detachment will provide helicopter transportation for geophysicists and topographers who annually take advantage of the summer—but hardly summery — weather to study the region around the South Pole as part of the U. S. Antarctic Research Program under the auspices of the National Science Foundation.

This year the Transportation Corps unit will be based in a remote mountain range on the edge of the Filchner Ice Shelf in Edith Ronne Land, a considerable distance from the main American base. Their supply station will be at the South Pole itself.

In past summers, Army personnel became the first men to travel overland from Byrd Station to the South Pole.

double. Gowdy, incidentally, was the first baseball player to see military service in World War I and Fort Benning's Gowdy Field is named after him.

The Camel's Back

WITH RUEL on second, Walter Johnson continued the string of put fors by hitting a bounder that was booted by Giant shortstop Travis Johnson. Then came the "but for" that broke the camel's back.

Ed McNally hit a perfect double play ball toward the pebble-struck Lindstrom. The stands were tense as the third baseman prepared to field the ball but history repeated itself. The ball found another pebble and again shot over Lindstrom's head while Ruel sailed home with a big but for run to give the Senators their first series win. They have never gotten another.

Since 1924, the Senators have managed to win only two American League flags. Since moving to Minnesota, however, they have quickly moved to the top division and last week "but for . . ." they might have been.

But there were no pebbles in Metropolitan Stadium last week and there was no joy in Minnesota that night.

What happens when you strop a blade the length of the Eiffel Tower? You get the incredibly-sharp Stainless Krona Edge! Our new stropping process strops every edge the equivalent of an extra 1000 feet. Result? An edge twice as sharp as a barber's straight edge. Try it! You'll feel a stropping difference and get uniform quality. Yes, the best stainless steel blade has the Stainless Krona Edge—and only Schick has it!

Now it surely makes sense to be a "one toothpaste family" with Colgate even if you are the whole family.

Colgate Toothpaste is ideal for every member of your family. Compared with the well known fluoride brand, Colgate with Gardol was clinically tested, clinically confirmed unsurpassed in reducing new cavities. Even among children, the most cavity-prone age!* What wonderful reassurance for families everywhere.

What's more, everyone will enjoy that clean Colgate taste. Encourages brushing as your dentist recommends. So refreshing for your breath, too. It stops mouth odor instantly for most people. Be a one toothpaste family. Choose Colgate, the one that does it all.

UG Drive Seeks Help for Agencies Serving Soldiers

The 1965-1966 Fort Benning United Givers Drive is now in its second week.

The Post Chaplain's Section was the first Fort Benning unit to register 100 percent participation in this year's drive. Lt. Richard E. Charlson, drive captain for the Chaplain's section, made his group's deposit to the Central Post Fund last week.

The overall UGF goal for the Columbus - Phenix City - Fort Benning community is $750,864 of which approximately $285,700 is returned to Fort Benning personnel and dependents in the form of services and assistance. Post personnel and employees have been asked to donate only $65,000 of this total.

Supports 27 Agencies

The United Givers is an organization which supports twenty-seven service, charity and aid agencies.

It is a local, non-profit organization which was organized in 1951 to eliminate many separate and duplicate fund gathering drives in this area.

Almost 500 people of the Columbus-Phenix City - Fort Benning community work each year in the campaign without salary. Only 3.5 cents from each dollar contributed will be used to support the commercial costs of the drive.

All 27 agencies of United Givers supported by Fort Benning have been required to certify in writing that their practices conform to the Army's standards of non-discrimination.

These standards are that

Conventioners Hear Gen Taylor

BY SGT. MAJ. AL SPRATLEY

Columbus and Fort Benning's 30 man delegation to the annual meeting of the Association of the US Army arrived back at Lawson Army Air Field last night after three days of conferences and discussions at the Sheraton Park Hotel here.

At the formal General George D. Marshall Memorial Dinner Wednesday night some 4,000 members and guests heard General Maxwell D. Taylor describe as "communist jargon" Hanoi's term of their actions in Viet Nam as a "War of Liberation."

Taylor said, "War of Liberation is merely communist jargon for the use of terrorism and guerrilla warfare to subvert a non - communist government while disguising the aggression as a civil revolt."

Disappointed

Taylor said further in speaking of Viet Nam that "With regard to reaching a peaceful settlement, we are disappointed that thus far we have had no response from the communist side.

"We are quite convinced, however, of the fact that we are presenting the leadership in Hanoi and Peking with very serious problems. Hanoi in particular must view the future with foreboding."

Wednesday afternoon at a special ceremony, Sgt. Maj. Lawrence F. Kennedy, one of the most active members of the Columbus - Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter, was awarded a certificate of achievement by the AUSA.

Kennedy, presently on duty with the 1st Cavalry Division in Viet Nam, was unable to be present at the ceremony, but Fort Benning Sgt. Maj. W. A. Callahan accepted in his behalf.

Chief of Staff, General Harold K. Johnson Tuesday told delegates to the annual meeting here that "Even if the level and scope of hos-

Student Brigade Marks 23 Years Of Service to the U.S. Infantryman

The Student Brigade celebrats its birthday today marking 23 years of service to the Infantry School. Tomorrow Brigade personnel will be given a training holiday in observance of the unit's organization day.

The Student Brigade was formed on October 26, 1942 and was called The Student Training Brigade. It was part of the Service Command. The brigade was composed of three, 800-man student training regiments, including the Officer Candidate School, an Army Specialized Program, Training Regiment and the West Parachute Training Regiment.

During the next four years, there were various redesignations and the size of the cadre varied with the accelerations and decelerations in student enrollment. On September 1, 1947 the First Student Regiment was redesignated The School Brigade with four student battalions and the Infantry School Detachment which housed the officer and enlisted instructors of the Infantry School.

In October 1959, The School Brigade was renamed The Student Brigade. In February of the following year, the Infantry School Detachment became the Infantry School Battalion.

Today, The Student Brigade is composed of Hq. & Hq. Co., 1st Student Battalion (Ranger), 2nd Student Battalion, 4th Student Battalion (Airborne), 5th Student Battalion (OC), Infantry School Battalion and the 15th Finance Disbursing Section.

Ghosts, Goblins To Tour Post Sunday Night

Fort Benning officials have announced that Halloween "trick or treating" will take place on Sunday night, Oct. 31.

The announcement came in the light of the declaration by the city of Columbus that it would celebrate Halloween tomorrow night, Saturday, Oct. 30.

Officials at Benning also said that for the safety of children, trick or treating activities will end at 8:30 p.m. on Sunday.

Provost Marshal officials reminded parents that they have an important role in stopping the vandalism which sometimes occurs on Halloween.

Stateside Care Will Be Given To Vietnamese

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Following a firsthand report, President Johnson ordered arrangements be made for airlift of 40-60 Vietnamese paraplegics to the United States for medical care and rehabilitation at the Castle Point, N.Y., Veterans Administration Hospital.

Accompanying the Vietnamese veterans to this country will be a team of Vietnamese medical personnel who will undergo training by VA specialists. The training will include modern methods of caring for paraplegics.

The VA has developed the finest spinal cord treatment in the world, officials said.

The Vietnamese will be hospitalized in a previously unused ward at Castle Point, officials said, and their care will not interfere with the admission and treatment of American veterans.

Troop Buildup Brings on Cut Of Xmas 'Outs'

WASHINGTON (AFPS) —The customary early release for personnel due for separation over the Christmas-New Year holidays will not occur this year, according to officials.

Suspension of the early out was necessitated because of the manpower buildup and the situation in the Republic of Viet-Nam.

tilities in Viet Nam were to decline, a sudden phasedown in our strength would not necessarily follow."

Still Required

Johnson said although active conflict might subside, "the security of the people and the process of nation-building will still be required." He said "We should have no illusions about achieving success quickly in Viet Nam."

The main theme of Johnson's address was "Challenge and Response." He outlined the challenges posed by Hanoi's esculated support of the Viet Cong and those occasioned by the exchange and buildup of military forces in the United States.

"Responding to these challenges," Johnson said, "has required more than business-as-usual effort from everyone in the Army, but in the Army tradition everyone has taken the challenges in stride."

End Aggression

He said, "We do not desire to widen the war. We do not covet dominion over land or people. We do not need permanent bases there. Our only objective is, as the President stated when he announced the buildup, ". . .to bring about an end to aggression and a peaceful settlement. . ."

Led by Fort Benning commander, Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, and local chapter president, Oscar L. Betts, Jr., the Columbus delegation joined with over 3,500 other AUSA members representing chapters from throughout the United States and overseas commands.

Prior to the opening ceremony, presided over by Lt. Gen. (USA, RET.) Walter L. Weible, AUSA executive vice president, and which featured Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor as key note speaker, approximately 600 sergeants major met with Department of the Army staff officers.

Attention was focused on Fort Benning's senior sergeants before the conference was two minutes old as General Weible cited them for their united effort and support of the Army Association.

Responds to Questions

Lt. Gen. J. K. Woolnough, deputy chief of staff for personnel, presided over the conference with other Department of the Army staff members on hand to respond to questions or recommendations.

Occupying top spots on the agenda was a briefing and subsequent discussion on a Department of the Army proposed policy for standardization of promotion criteria.

Fort Benning's top non commissioned officers, Sgt. Maj. W. A. Callahan and Infantry School Sgt. Maj. John F. Whitley, met later with other delegates and expressed their approval of the plan which is designed to eliminate the complaint that the soldier wasn't promoted because he wasn't "in the right place at the right time."

Under the proposed standardization of criteria, selection boards will establish promotion lists from which promotions will be made.

The board's recommendations and the soldier's status on the list will be forwarded for incorporation on the list at his new station if he is transferred.

BACK FROM AUSA . . . 1st Sgt. August Myszka, foreground, and 1st Sgt. Gideon Frazer, two of Fort Benning's representatives to the AUSA Convention, are shown as they stepped off the plane from Washington Thursday.

A Letter to Your Family Means a Lot

Some 20 years ago a father received a letter from his serviceman son. It made little sense. A wartime censor had deleted most of the sentences, leaving a few disjointed paragraphs and some connective words.

The writer had unknowingly written items of interest to the enemy. A harmless sounding sentence, "Our outfit won't be here much longer, so don't worry if I don't write for awhile," had been deleted. This information clearly indicated a movement of U.S. forces.

This letter could have fallen into enemy hands in a number of ways. Captured mail sacks from a torpedoed ship is one example.

Today's letter-writing problem does not necessarily concern what service personnel write. It is what they fail to write. This problem is magnified for commanders during force build-ups like the present one. Commanders are concerned with individuals who do not write home as regularly as they should.

Initial service entry is a strange experience for most people. It is equally strange for their families, representing the first separation for some.

A few scribbled lines such as "We're working hard and I have little time to write, but I want you to know I'm well fed, in good health, and keep you in my thoughts," helps bring happiness to the folks at home and helps ease their worries. It need not be these exact words. The point is, it's better to write a short letter, than to delay writing.

More seasoned service personnel also have a responsibility in motivating the younger ones to "keep in touch" back home.

Perhaps the real value of letter writing might best be summed up by the words of one non-commissioned officer: "The most heart-warming sight I've ever seen was a middle-aged woman telling a neighbor lady about a letter from her son. Her face actually glowed as she talked." (AFPS)

From the Provost Marshal

'Watch Out for Goblins'

BEWARE OF BLACK CATS!

We know that for 364 days each year, there are no such things as ghosts, goblins and witches, but on that 365th day, it becomes legal for such ghastly creatures to flit around the neighborhood knocking on doors and demanding tribute for not scaring you out of your wits.

It's a day that all children eagerly look forward to and everyone knows that these unearthly creatures are immune to normal hazards.

Every Halloween hundreds of small children are injured, some seriously, and damage to property runs high. Everyone can do his part to help the kids enjoy the occasion and prevent unnecessary damages to property. Wouldn't it be nice if this year we could get through the day without experiencing the same bad misfortunes that have happened in the past?

For example — remember the reports on the many children who have been injured or killed because motorists have failed to see them with their often dark costumes on? Think of how you would feel as a motorist striking one of these little children. Don't you agree that it would be worth it to drive more carefully on this night and not have the remembrance of hurting a child through some careless act?

Again, remember, all children need protection so parents should escort the young ones around the darkened areas and streets.

Then, there are those who find this night of ghosts and witches the ideal time to seize and damage the property of others. As all are eagerly looking to be treated — he treats himself to those things that he finds easiest to take. We can surprise him this year by leaving nothing outside our homes to tempt his eager grasp.

This is also a time when joy is gotten from just plain old destruction. We may be able to trick him here by lighting those dark places and keeping a sharp eye on the area around us.

Let's have a safe and fun night by being prepared and watchful so that all can enjoy it.

Remember: escort small children, be especially alert for children on streets, secure loose property and keep exterior lights on.

To All Benning Soldiers

The 1966 Fort Benning United Givers Fund Drive, a campaign which solicits monetary support for twenty-seven humanitarian agencies through a single appeal, is being conducted during the period 20 October-20 December 1965. The United Givers effort affords us a chance to help support local and national health, youth and welfare agencies which render many of their services to our military community.

The goal for this year's United Givers Fund campaign can be attained with your help in a fair share system of giving. Fair share giving guides are available to assist in determining your equitable contribution.

I urge all personnel at this installation to contribute wholeheartedly a full citizen's share to these deserving agencies through the United Givers Fund Organization.

Drugs Not Just Remedies; They're Also Dangerous

When a person is seriously sick, injured or suffering severe pains, he is inclined to try almost anything for relief.

This practice can be traced back to primitive man who often in desperation tried many of the things around him, such as leaves and roots and bark, for this purpose. It was found that some of the things he tried relieved some of his pains, lessened his fevers, protected his wounds or allayed some of his discomforts.

Only a few of the countless remedies tried in early folk medicine worked well enough that they still are used. For example, the brew made from the bark of the willow tree, once used to lower fevers, is the forerunner of modern aspirin.

The foxglove tee, once used for "the dropsy," is from the same plant as today's heart medicine, digitalis.

It was also found that malarial fever responded to cinchona bark, a source of quinine, while some coughs responded to syrup of wild cherry. There are many other examples.

Not so long ago the pharmacist compounded his own medications on the prescription of the physician. Now he operates a prescription store in which most of the drugs are pre-packaged.

The drug industry, continually searching for effective substances to combat disease, tests each year over 100,000 chemical and biological substances. Only about 40 of these become marketable drugs.

Today, 90 per cent of the physician's prescriptions are for drugs unknown ten years ago. Many diseases which once often caused painful disability or even death have been changed into minor inconveniences through the use of modern drugs.

What is a prescription? A prescription is a written direction for the preparation, compounding and administration of a medicine. In a prescription, the physician designates the kinds and amounts of the drugs he wants the pharmacist to dispense to his patient along with the directions that should be put on the label of how to take these drugs.

Each prescription is the doctor's individual request for the drugs to be used in his treatment of that particular patient during that particular illness.

Even though the pharmacist takes the prescribed amount of drug from previously prepared stocks, each prescription is still the expression of the physician's judgement to the needs of this particular patient for a specific purpose, at a given time.

A person who has successfully used a drug prescribed by his physician for a specific illness may have a friend whom he believes to have the same illness. In a friendly gesture, he offers his friend what is left of his prescription. This is a dangerous practice.

In the first place, the donor assumes that he can make an accurate diagnosis of his friend. He further assumes that the dose of drug he took is the proper dose for his friend. Lastly, he is taking the responsibility for any adverse reaction or side effect his friend might have from this drug.

Patients should feel free to take the drugs prescribed by their physicians unless they have an allergy or otherwise react adversely to the drug. If a patient believes he is having a reaction to a drug, he should report it to his physician immediately and stop taking that drug until his physician can advise him. Only in this way can one be protected from individual differences in drug reaction.

Modern drugs are a far cry from the herbs and incantations of the tribal medicine man. All drugs should be used with respect and a great deal of care. Used properly under a physician's direction, they truly are modern miracle-workers and good servants.

Post German Club Holds Columbus October Fest

"Gemutlichkeit" was everywhere in Cecilia's Ratskeller in Columbus last Friday night as Fort Benning's German Club recaptured some of the warmth and good cheer of a traditional German October Fest.

Approximately 40 people attended the party and feasted on German food, drink, song and music.

Members of the club are German speaking people from the Fort Benning-Columbus area. Most are the German wives of soldiers stationed at Fort Benning or with the 1st Cavalry Division in Viet Nam.

According to Michelle Bradley, a spokesman for the group and a native of Heidelberg, the club was formed last June. The German wife of a Fort Benning soldier had been killed here in an automobile accident and her German friends met at the funeral.

"We suddenly realized how much we needed each other," Mrs. Bradley said, "and we decided to meet regularly." Mrs. Bradley's husband is currently serving in Viet Nam.

"The club is one way in which we can keep busy while our husbands are away," added Mrs. Nancy Connor, the group's vice president.

Mrs. Connor said that membership in the group is still open to people who speak German. For further information call Mrs. Connor at 689-5859.

The club's next meeting will be held at 12 noon on Nov. 1 at the Colony Motel coffee shop in Columbus.

ADD SPICE TO BEANS

Baked beans add a hearty touch to a sandwich or a salad meal. Prepare them in the following way and they go over big with husband and children:

Combine two cans (16 ounces each) pork and beans with two cans (4 ounces each) Vienna-style sausage (sliced in ½-inch pieces), 1 tablespoon catsup, 2 tablespoons brown sugar and ¼ teaspoon dry mustard.

Place in a casserole, cover and bake in 350-degree oven

Talk Safety To Youngsters This Halloween

(AP) On this Halloween, talk safety with the trick-or-treaters at your house.

A few Halloween safety reminders, pointed out by Miss Lucile Higginbotham, a home economist at the University of Georgia, are:

Wear clothing of light colors or carry something white which can be seen easily by motorists.

If a costume is worn, the fabric should be flame-resistant and free from dangling ties and tails.

Caution trick - or - treaters about crossing streets safely.

Miss Higginbotham also points out that the youngsters don't have to wear a mask which might blind their view of an approaching car. She suggests a painted face. An inexpensive supply of rouge, eyebrow pencil, cold cream and imagination will turn a youthful face into a scarey pirate, a bright-eyed Indian or a sad clown.

Airborne Ladies Meet at Coffee

The ladies of the Airborne Department were recently entertained at a coffee in the home of Mrs. Charles T. Stevens. Mrs. Norman Larkee and Mrs. Stevens, the hostesses for the occasion, served an assortment of home cooked pastries.

Mrs. Harvey R. Hougan, whose husband recently returned from Viet Nam, was welcomed to the group and Mrs. James J. Barber was bid farewell.

At a short meeting which followed the coffee hour, the ladies discussed a proposed tour of the Airborne Department and a bus trip to Atlanta sponsored by the Officers Wives' Club.

Mrs. Bobby K. Boyd invited the ladies to her home for the next coffee.

Infantry School Ladies to Meet

Wives of the academic staff at the Infantry School will meet at 12:30 p.m. on Nov. 2 at the Black Angus Ranch Restaurant.

Reservations may be made by telephoning Mrs. Gerry Wilson at 545-3205 or Mrs. Margot Hamilton, 689-5042.

Breakfast Suggestions

Accompany tomorrow morning's eggs with tiny bacon cornmuffs. To make two dozen muffins, grease 2-inch muffin pans, using ½ teaspoon bacon drippings in each cup (takes a total of ¼ cup drippings). Place pans in oven and preheat to 425 degrees. Combine two cups enriched self - rising corn meal, ½ cup sifted enriched self-rising flour and two tablespoons sugar. Blend one slightly beaten egg with one cup milk and ¼ cup bacon drippings. Add to dry ingredients, stirring until smooth. (Add up to ¼ cup more milk, if necessary, to make a stiff batter) Stir in 1-3 cup crisply cooked bacon pieces (6 slices). Fill hot pans 2-3 full. Bake 15 to 20 minutes.

Bullets Are Swallowed By New Copter Armor

Steel armor plate that swallows bullets after first shattering them to bits is being fitted to the U.S. Army's CH-47A Chinook helicopter.

The special armor plate was developed by the Aeronautic Division of the Philco Corporation.

The Army has approved the installation of a special dual-property steel plating on the Chinook and has ordered an undisclosed number of armor kits.

The armor is a double plate of steel bonded together and put through a toughening process.

The hard front shatters a bullet upon impact. The back face is relatively softer. It absorbs any pieces of bullets that penetrate the first layer.

The armor has a number of advantages over ceramic materials currently used for helicopter protection.

The armor plate is based on a process called "Ausforming," a special heat treatment for steel that imparts extremely high strength-to-weight ratios.

President Urges Blood Donations

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Both President Johnson and Defense Secretary McNamara are urging all federal employes to "fulfill their citizenship responsibility by serving as voluntary blood donors."

In a memorandum to all government departments and agencies, the President pointed out that blood and blood derivatives are essential to the practice of modern medicine and the nation's fight against such health hazards as cancer and heart disease.

Secretary McNamara, relaying the President's message to Defense Department personnel, called for continuing emphasis on blood donations to help meet increasing requirements.

Varied Weapons Fired During 'Mad Minute'

Fort Benning's largest firepower demonstration was held recently at Darby Range with Company A, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry under the command of Capt. William Golding serving as the base company.

The fire - power problem, known as the "mad minute" by participating units, is a demonstration of the attack weapons employed by a typical Infantry company.

Military and civilian personnel alike were on hand to witness the demonstration which employed weapons ranging from the M-14 rifle to the Honest John rocket.

IMPATIENT BURGLARS

LONDON (Canadian Press) — Burglars pried, chiseled and hammered without success at a 400-pound safe in a transport contractor's office and left with nothing to show for their work. When the police were called the next morning, they turned the safe right side up and the door fell off, exposing the money inside.

DA Emphasizes Night Combat Training, PT

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Survival in Viet Nam calls for a self-sufficient soldier, well-trained in night combat operations, and capable of prolonged physical exertion. This conclusion, just published by the Department of the Army, is the basis for a new training emphasis on night combat and physical conditioning.

Recognizing that night training requirements vary among commands, the DA report outlines a beefed-up program of such instruction. Included in the areas receiving increased emphasis will be techniques of fire during periods of darkness, individual weapons firing under all conditions of natural and artificial illumination, use of detection devices in offensive and defensive night operations, individual proficiency in land navigation at night and night live firing exercises for squads and platoons.

In conjunction with night operations, it becomes apparent that to cope with the rigors of the environment and sustained day and night operations in Viet Nam, personnel must be in the best possible physical condition. To help the soldier meet the stepped - up physical demands, DA stresses the need for additional physical training.

Franks, Shrimp For GIs Cost $2.5 Million

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Defense Supply Agency has awarded contracts totaling around $2.5 million for canned frankfurters and raw dehydrated shrimp for service messes.

The shrimp costs about $12 a pound, considering dehydration has reduced the weight. The frankfurters run a little more than 55-cents a pound, considering the cost for can containers.

Oscar Mayer and Company, Madison, Wis., is supplying some 2.5 - million pounds of the frankfurters while the United Fruit and Food Corporation, Boston, Mass., is supplying more than 90,000 pounds of shrimp.

BILLIARD HISTORY

DUBLIN (UPI) — In tracing the history of billiards, the famed Irish historian, Abbe McGeoghegan, claimed that Catkire More, a subking who ruled in Leinster in the second century, bequeathed 50 billiard balls of brass to a friend named Drimoth.

Department of Army Authorizes Full Strength for Selected Force

WASHINGTON (ANF) — In a follow-up to its earlier announcement of the creation of a National Guard and Army Reserve Selected Force, the Department of the Army has revealed its program to bring the units involved to a continuing state of increased readiness.

All units will be authorized 100-percent combat strength instead of the normal 70 to 80-percent. National Guard units will draw the additional manpower from volunteers among the trained reserve personnel now in units not required by contingency war plans. Individuals may also join the selected units.

USAR units tabbed for increased readiness will reach full strength through assignment of geographically situated personnel with a remaining Ready Reserve obligation. Other Ready Reserve personnel, regardless of geographic location, will be assigned if the units are ordered to active duty.

Training assemblies will increase in number to 72 each year, a jump of 50-percent over the 48 now scheduled for most units. The length of each assembly will also be extended, from the present two hours to a minimum of four.

Selected personnel, particularly members of battalion and larger-size units, will attend 96 training assemblies annually in order to prepare up-to-the-minute command and operational plans.

The additional hardware needed to train the Selected Force units will be drawn from the active Army's assets, available pools of National Guard and Reserve equipment, and new procurement.

Plans are underway to schedule the Selected Force units for annual field training early in 1966; all encampments will be concluded by the end of June. Army Training Centers, specialist schools, and OCS facilities will give personnel from the selected units priority within the Reserve Components.

All administrative and training actions, normally accomplished after a unit is alerted for mobilization, will now be completed during the intensified training program.

According to DA spokesmen, a unit may be authorized to return to its normal training program when it reaches its required state of readiness. (ANF)

BOOT BLUES . . . Boots begin to look giant-sized to PFC Paul Sasinowski of the 4th Armored Division in Germany after hours of work bringing the spit and polish look to rain-soaked, mud-caked "Lil' Abners." U. S. Sasinowski comes from Akron, Ohio. Specialist Stoyeck's home is in Brooklyn, New York.

December Draft Sees Big Boost

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Department of Defense has asked the Selective Service System for 45,224 men in December, roughly 9,000 more than November's call and the largest request since the Korean Conflict.

The Army will receive the bulk of the inductees, 40,200. The rest will go to the Marine Corps. The Navy and Air Force do not intend to place December calls, an official said.

Some 131,000 first enlistments were reported by the services for a three-month period ending Oct. 1, representing a favorable response to expanded recruiting activity.

Recent gains have also been attributed to increased draft calls. Statistics show that when Selective Service quotas are hiked, voluntary enlistments also increase. First enlistments during September were compared with the same month last year with a jump of about 15,000 noted.

During the recent three-month period, Navy gained 40,588 first enlistments; Air Force, 39,739; Army, 34,176; and Marine Corps, 17,239.

Navy officials reported such a favorable recruiting climate that their Selective Service estimates have been revised. August and September inputs were substantially greater than anticipated. October's outlook was also favorable and the November Navy draft request for 4,000 was canceled.

In addition to December inductees, the Army has a recruiting objective that month for an additional 7,700 non-prior service personnel. The Marine Corps is seeking 3,400 non-prior service volunteers in December.

Beginning in January, DOD has asked Selective Service for 1,979 medical personnel. This will provide 1,529 physicians, 350 dentists and 100 veterinarians for active Army, Navy and Air Force duty.

POOR PREACHER

The minister was trying to talk an officer out of giving him a speeding ticket. "Please don't give me a ticket," he begged. "I'm just a poor preacher."

"I know; I've heard you," the policeman said. — Quote.

Recruiting Unit Will Move Base

FORT MONROE, Va. — The U. S. Army Recruiting Command will be relocated from Fort Monroe to new headquarters at the former Nike missile site at Hampton, Va., in the middle of November, it was announced last week by Gen. Paul L. Freeman Jr., commanding general, U. S. Continental Army Command.

Because of growing responsibilities and the need for office space for its personnel, the Recruiting Command will move into three one - story cinderblock buildings at the Nike site which has been vacant for some time.

The U. S. Army Recruiting Command was activated at Fort Monroe October 1, 1964. It is responsible for the procurement of military personnel for the U. S. Army.

Assigned to the Recruiting Command are the six U. S. Army recruiting districts, 70 U. S. Army recruiting main stations, 70 Armed Forces examining and induction stations and more than 1,100 Army recruiting stations located through the continental United States. Total strength of the command is almost 6,000 personnel.

The Recruiting Command recruits enlisted personnel for the active Army, Army nurses, officers for the Women's Army Corps, candidates for the warrant officer flight program and volunteers for the Army's Officer Candidate School. It also supervises and operates the national recruiting publicity program.

197th Brigade Devises Program To Increase Church Attendance

The month of November will be "Go - To - Church - Month" for the members of the 197th Infantry Brigade, Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Lester E. Burnette has announced.

Both Catholic and Protestant chaplains will participate in the program which is designed to increase weekly attendance at services held at the brigade's Kelley Hill and Harmony Church chapels.

"The Go-To-Church" program is a special effort to try to get every member of the brigade to attend the church of his choice at least once during the month of November, Burnette explains.

In addition to a special series of sermons entitled "The Hands of Jesus," a weekly bulletin board will be kept in the vestibule of the Kelley Hill Chapel to record the attendance of personnel from each individual unit within the brigade.

A trophy will be awarded at the end of the month to the unit with the best attendance according to Burnette. A special Thanksgiving Day service has also been planned for 6:30 a.m. Thanksgiving morning. A waffle breakfast will be served after the services.

Burnette has also offered his services to any unit of the 197th that desires a special prayer or devotional meeting during the month.

Age Ruling Changed For Reservists

FORT MONROE, Va. — The U. S. Continental Army Command has been notified that more lieutenants and captains and some majors in the Army Reserve may now be eligible for voluntary recall to active duty under new criteria announced by the Department of the Army.

Under the new regulations the maximum age for first lieutenants and captains may be extended by a waiver. Previously the age of an applicant could not exceed the total of 28 years plus his prior commissioned active service time at the date of his reentry on active duty. The new regulations permit an additional age waiver of one year for first lieutenants and two years for captains.

In other modifications, reserve majors and captains with an adjusted date of rank earlier than Dec. 31, 1962 may apply for voluntary recall. The program had previously been limited to company grade officers only and had specifically prohibited captains with a potential date of rank in the Army of the United States earlier than Dec. 31, 1962 from applying.

The requirement that applicants be able to complete 10 years active commissioned service by the time they complete 20 years active federal service for retirement purposes has not been changed.

Reserve officers meeting the criteria are encouraged to apply for voluntary recall to active duty. Final selection of those to be recalled will be made by the Department of the Army.

Reservations for the dinner meeting may be made by mail, addressed to Maj. John J. Cassidy, Office of the Director of Instruction, U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, or by telephoning 545-4731.

The British and U.S. teams dominated first and second places in the competition from the beginning. The teams were tied for first place after three events but the British pulled ahead and were 36 points in front at the end of the fourth event.

The five members of the U. S. team made excellent rides in the final event, horseback riding, but fell one point short of the British in the final tabulation.

The points scored in the riding event were — Johnson, 1100; Pesthy, 1070; Kerr, 1070; Dupont, 1070; and Coots, 1010.

Kerr's performance was only nine points less than that of the individual gold medal winner in the 1964 Olympic Games.

In a Coercive Economy

Productive Property State Owned; No Consideration for the People

EDITOR'S NOTE: This, the latest installment in The Bayonet's treatment of the communistic doctrine and its spread, deals with the mechanics of communism as it functions within the population of Russia. It is taken from the book, "Two Ways of Life," by William Ebenstein.

As we have previously discussed, the purpose of all economic activity in a coercive economy is not the welfare of the people but enhancement of the power of state's ability to wage aggressive war.

The method of operation for all coercive economics is the same. Decisions are made by command of political leaders who are accountable to no one but themselves and who can carry out their policies by force regardless of the wishes of the people.

—All productive property is owned by the state and therefore everyone is dependent on the government for his living.

—Workers are subject to strict government regimentation.

Tax and wage policies tend to favor an elite group of government officials, party bosses, industrial executives and scientific leaders.

—Production is geared to heavy industry and military equipment rather than to consumer goods.

In analyzing the way these elements of the coercive economy work in practice, the Soviet Union has been selected as the most important example. In the sections that follow we shall discuss in some detail each of the four characteristics outlined above.

Dependent on Government

In the Soviet Union, all productive property is owned and managed by the state. Communism recognizes individual property only with respect to consumer goods such as clothing, books and household furnishings. (In rural areas, some houses — built by the owners themselves — may also be privately owned.)

If all productive property connected with agriculture, industry and transportation is owned and managed by the state, it follows that people who work in these fields are economically dependent on the government. Members of the various professions are also dependent on the government for their livelihood.

Doctors, lawyers, architects and musicians are all on some government payroll. Free-lance writers and composers, too, can earn a living only if their books are published by government-owned publishing firms or their compositions played by government-paid orchestras. Similarly, all employment connected with radio, television and the theater depends on the government because all the means of entertainment are owned and managed by some governmental authority. Thus under communism, there is literally no one who can earn a living independently of the government.

No Private Employment

To make sure that everybody works only for the government, Soviet law forbids individuals to employ others in any type of business enterprise as that would be "exploitation of man by man." The only form of private employment permitted is in domestic service. This exception is allowed because, according to Communist theory, the domestic employee does not create any "profits" for the employer but merely performs household chores. Theory aside, this exception is probably allowed in practice because it benefits the well-to-do class of government officials and industrial executives. The domestic workers themselves gain little since wages of domestic servants are very low in Russia (about thirty dollars a month). It is one of the ironies of life in Communist Russia that it is much easier to find domestic servants there than in the capitalist United States.

Ranger Float Takes Second In Competition

A float entered in the recent Dahlonega Annual Gold Rush Days Parade by the Army Mountain Ranger Camp took second prize in the 16-float competition.

Entered at the request of the Dahlonega Chamber of Commerce, the Ranger Camp float depicted the Ranger of today and the Ranger of 1756. SSgt. Glen E. Septer and SSgt. Douglass M. Perry, both instructors at the camp, dressed in the "then and now" garb.

Septer wore buckskins of the Davy Crockett era and carried a long rifle and Perry donned the modern fatigue uniform and carried the new M-16 rifle.

The design of the float symbolized a forest and a six-foot arc depicting the "Ranger" tab hung between two trees.

Christmas 'Call' Policy Slated Again

Washington (AFPS) — The ninth annual "Hi - Mom" Christmas Telephone Call program will put more than 1,000 servicemen overseas in touch with their families at home, this year.

Sponsored by the Communications Workers of America (CWA), AFL-CIO, and run by overseas USO clubs, the program pays the costs of phone calls home during the holiday's for hundreds of men.

DoD Urges Servicemen Not to Cancel Insurance

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Persons thinking about cancelling the new $10,000 group life insurance should "think twice," according to Defense Department officials.

Once this coverage is canceled, a complete physical examination is required to reinstate it, an official explained. A doctor's certificate will not suffice.

The physical examination must be evaluated by the prime insuring company and meet civilian insurance medical standards, the spokesman said.

He pointed out, "You may be qualified for military service; however, not qualified for reinstatement by virture of the civilian insurer's medical standards."

The DOD spokesman emphasized, "You must be in good physical condition, and a heart condition, diabetes, or other illness may prohibit reinstatement."

The official also said that if a person's beneficiary is someone other than noted on the "Emergency Data" form, the personal affairs office should be informed.

He re-emphasized that before any cancellation of other insurance, especially a permanent plan with cash or loan value, the personal affairs or unit insurance officer should be consulted.

Army Promotion Policy Moves Toward Uniformity

From the Army Times

WASHINGTON — Uniform selection criteria will control enlisted promotion procedures throughout the Army. A new regulation making this major policy change will be published soon.

This week, Lt. Gen. J. K. Woolnough, deputy chief of staff for personnel, presented to the Annual Sergeant Major Conference the details of the changes being proposed.

There is no question that promotion procedure will be changed. Before actual promulgation of the change however, the DCSPER will consult the Army's senior enlisted leaders for their comments and suggestions.

This is in line with his recently announced policy to read into the exercise the Army's sergeants major before putting into final form decisions which affect enlisted personnel management procedures.

Sore Subject

Enlisted promotion policy has been a sore subject with Army members for many years. Almost all have agreed that there must be a better way to handle promotions. But there has been almost no agreement on how to do so.

There has been general agreement that more uniformity is needed. Considerable support has been expressed for a centralized enlisted promotion system, at least for the top grades.

What Gen. Woolnough is describing to the sergeants major is not a centralized promotion system. It could be considered a first step toward such a system, if further study indicates that this is desirable. Even if centralized enlisted promotion is adopted, it will be years — perhaps five or more — before such a system could operate accurately and effectively.

Removing Objections

Meanwhile the Army staff has proposed certain steps which will remove some of the objections to present promotion procedures. Among these, two of the major ones concern criteria used in various commands to select individuals for promotion and the problem faced by individuals transferred out of a quota - receiving command after selection and before promotion.

This, in the past, has forced such an individual to start over again at the bottom of the road to promotion and work his way up past the obstacles that he has overcome one or more times previously, only to fail to gain the goal because of being moved out at the last minute.

Present authority permitted major commands to add selection criteria to the basic Department of the Army AR will be withdrawn. No longer is there to be a whole series of promotion regulations, beginning with AR 624-200 and going down through for example, USAREUR Regulation 624-200, Seventh US Army Regulation 624-200 to 8th Infantry Division Regulation 624-200. Each further restricted promotion criteria.

The result of this has been that First US Army Regulation 624-200 has differed from Third US Army Regulation 624-200 which has differed from US ARADCOM Regulation 624-200, and so forth.

Thus when a man has moved from one command to another he has found that in one command he qualifies for consideration for promotion while in the other, criteria are so set that he does not.

One Policy

The new policy is that there will be only one set of selection criteria and that it will be established by Department of the Army. At issue, and discussed with the sergeants major, is exactly what these criteria should be.

How long must a man be in grade to be eligible for selection? How much total service should be required, if any, for promotion? Should a man have a certain educational level before he can be selected for promotion to any grade? How much weight should be attached to any of the above in establishing a promotion score?

Should a Promotion Qualification Score be established as mandatory and, if so, should it be the same regardless of MOS or should it be permitted to vary either by MOS or according to Army requirements? Which criteria should be subject to waiver? How should "below the zone" selection be made or should it?

Soldier's Medal, Legion Of Merit Presented Here

Heroism not involving conflict and outstanding job performance of duties have resulted in the award of the Soldier's Medal and the Legion of Merit to a Fort Benning soldier.

Lt. Col. Elwood H. Shemwell was presented the medals for service and action in Viet Nam by Col. Maurice W. Kendall G-1, personnel officer, of The Infantry Center, where Shemwell is chief of the Personnel Management Division.

Col. Shemwell was awarded the Soldier's Medal for his heroic action Dec. 24, 1964 during a rescue operaion following a terrorist bombing of the Brink Bachelors Officers' Quarters in Saigon.

Uninjured in the explosion, the colonel went to the devastated area. Upon learning that a man was pinned under a portion of concrete roof, reports said, he unhesitatingly rushed into the room, disregarding the danger of smoke, flames and secondary explosions to assist in removing the injured man from under the heavy obstruction.

Shemwell, who came to Fort Benning in September, received the Legion of Merit for "distinguishing himself by exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service" as plans officer, Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff for Plans, U. S. Military Assistance Command, Viet Nam, from September 1964 to August 1965.

The colonel's citation read in part, "Throughout this critical period in the struggle against communist insurgency, Lt. Col. Shemwell played a major role in the development of the U. S. and Southeast Asia 'Treaty Organization Plans.'"

Armament Provided for Chinook; 'Copter Now Able to Shoot Back

Boeing Aircraft Corporation has come up with a helicopter design that may put an end to the argument that the rotary wing aircraft is defenseless.

Boeing Aircraft's Vertol Division disclosed details of an armed CH-47 Chinook helicopter at the annual meeting of the Association of the U. S. Army held in Washington this week.

The model of the aircraft shown to AUSA members displayed an extensive array of armament plus materials designed to protect the helicopter from enemy fire.

One of the new weapons installed on the Chinook is a grenade launcher mounted on the nose of the aircraft. The M-5 40mm launcher is capable of firing several hundred rounds at a high cyclic rate and is controlled by the co-pilot who is able to cover an extensive area on either side of the flight path with the turret mounted weapon.

On either side of the launcher turret, a 19 round 2.75 rocket pod or a 20mm gun have been installed. If neither of these seem to be suitable in a combat situation, a 7.62mm high rate of fire "Gatling" machine gun can be installed in place of either weapon giving the turrets a high rate of fire weapon.

On each side of the aircraft, five gunners are stationed with 7.62mm or 50-caliber machine guns on flexible mounts to protect the flanks of the Chinook. Another gun is mounted on the rear-loading ramp of the cargo compartment so the aircraft can be protected from ground fire after it has passed the target.

The helicopter is also provided with a new type of steel armor plate which is built into the crew seats and completely covers their torso. Other steel plates surround the components of the aircraft. This plating will protect the crew and the aircraft from enemy fire.

The armed Chinook will be primarily used to protect troop carrying helicopters and to furnish suppressive fire. An unarmed version of the aircraft is presently being used in Viet Nam by the 1st Cavalry Division.

Aircraft Ejection Seat Successful on Ground

LOS ANGELES (AFPS) — An aircraft ejection seat that will enable aviators to safely eject from their aircraft at zero altitude and air speed has been successfully tested with a man for the first time.

The volunteer subject was Maj. James C. Hall, USAFR, 39, a veteran parachute safety instructor.

Previous low altitude ejection seats required at least 100 feet of altitude and 100 mph. air speed to function properly. In 1964, 35 airmen were killed under landing or take-off conditions where a standard, low altitude ejection seat lacked the capability to recover them.

Maj. Hall's test ride of the new seat was preceded by more than 40 tests using instrumented dummies.

During the test, Maj. Hall initiated the ejection by pulling the seat's ejection handles. He was thrust to approximately 400 feet altitude from a grounded platform in less than one second.

Within two seconds, seat and man automatically separated and a parachute deployment gun fired, extracting the chute about 350 feet above the ground. Twenty-five seconds after ejection, he landed safely 400 feet from his point of launch.

After recovery, Maj. Hall showed no ill effects from his short, fast ride.

The ejection seat, to be delivered to some Air Force F-106 fighter squadrons this month, is an outgrowth of the escape system designed for the Gemini spacecraft.

The 1st Student Battalion (Ranger) was activated on May 20, 1965. Prior to its activation, the Ranger companies in Dahlonega, Ga. and Eglin AFB, Fla. were assigned directly to the Brigade and the Ft. Benning Ranger company was under the command of the 4th Student Battalion.

The 2nd Student Battalion commands and houses all student officers in the various officer courses presented by the Infantry School. During each year, approximately 4,000 officers, many from allied countries, are members of the battalion. They learn the art of Infantry — from the rigors of patrolling to the complexities of staff functions.

The 4th Student Battalion (Airborne) commands and administers all Airborne students, schopling some 5,000 airborne trainees annually.

Nearly 3,000 officer candidates have been processed by the 5th Student Battalion (OC) each year. The exacting training presented by battalion cadre, together with the instruction provided by the Infantry School, turn candidates into tough, skilled, self-reliant officers who are ready for command responsibilities. Over 80,000 officers have graduated from the OCS course.

The Infantry School Battalion commands and provides for the enlisted men assigned to the academic departments of the Infantry School. In addition, the battalion houses all enlisted students other than enlisted Airborne and Ranger students.

Following a briefing on the origin and development of the Infantry School, the nurses observed airborne training at Eubanks Field, visited the Infantry Center Museum and toured Lawson Army Airfield before they departed last eveefing.

Operation Shiny Bayonet

1st Cav Performs Well In Combat

By Joe Treaster
and J. D. Coleman

AN KHE, Viet Nam—After the 1st Cavalry Division's first major combat action in Viet Nam, the commanding general, Maj. Gen. Harry W. O Kinnard has this to say:

"I'm well pleased with the performance of the division. I consider the work a valuable shake-down for the division. We made some mistakes, but they were minor and we'll sort them out critically and take corrective action."

For five days—from Saturday, Oct. 9 to Thursday, Oct. 14 — more than a third of the division stalked the Viet Cong. Three separate operations were underway simultaneously.

Shiny Bayonet

In the most significant one, "Operation Shiny Bayonet," some 5,500 soldiers—three battalions of infantry, three of artillery and a cavalry squadron — joined with some 3,500 Vietnamese soldiers in a gigantic pincer movement through the Suoi La Tinh Valley, 30 miles northeast of An Khe.

Eighteen miles to the northeast, in "Operation Cobra," two cavalry battalions worked through the Song Con Valley.

And 40 miles west a reinforced infantry company dropped down to set the stage for the eventual opening of Highway 19 from An Khe to Pleiku — a 50-mile-long segment which since late July had been Viet Cong controlled.

"Shiny Bayonet" was a Third Brigade operation directed by its commander, Col. Thomas (Tim) Brown of Columbus, Ga.

It began with an air assault in which 126 helicopters placed both the 1st and 2nd battalions of the 7th Cavalry on landing zones near their objectives on the western slopes of the Suoi La Tinh Valley, at 8:30 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 10. By noon more helicopters had landed the 1st Battalion, 12th Cavalry in the same area, near its objective.

"Cobra" Kicked Off

Early the next morning, almost lost in the roar of the massive helicopter lift, the 2nd Brigade, commanded by Col. William R. Lynch of Huntsville, Tex., kicked off "Cobra."

Troops of the 2nd Battalion, 5th Cavalry began their move up the valley while the 2nd Battalion, 12th Cavalry stood guard in the An Khe pass and over a 24-mile portion of Highway 19.

The mission of the 2nd of the 5th was two-fold: to pacify the valley in preparation for the establishment of a Special Forces camp at the site of a former French fort and to recover the bodies of two men who died in a helicopter crash the week before.

"The mission," said Col. Lynch, "was a success and the battalion performed magnificently."

Stubborn Resistance

In the first day of the operations, both brigades ran into stubborn resistance. Medical evacuation helicopters flew 134 sorties and surgical teams at the rear worked at a frantic pace. Two of the medical evacuation choppers were knocked out of the sky by enemy fire and one pilot was killed.

By nightfall of the first day all three battalions of the Third Brigade had reached their initial objectives while the "Cobra" battalions had reached an intermediate objective.

On Monday and through early Tuesday the tempo of activity subsided. Then, as the 1st Battalion, 12th Cavalry attempted to push its foothold deeper into enemy territory, it began running into stiff opposition.

The infantry fell back momentarily and let the artillery have the field. More than 100 rounds fell on the Viet Cong entrenchments, just a portion of the 4,442 rounds fired by the three battalions of division artillery during the four-day period. An additional 924 rounds of aerial rockets smashed the enemy.

When the pounding ceased, the back of the VC was broken.

Wednesday the Third Brigade pulled out of the Valley and returned to the division camp at An Khe, bringing an end to "Shiny Bayonet."

"Cobra," however, continued through Thursday with the successful recovery of the bodies of the two downed fliers. The brigade maintained its control in the valley and began assisting the Special Forces in constructing its training camp in the former VC territory.

The two operations, Gen. Kinnard stated, typified the variety of U.S. missions in Viet Nam.

Missions Explained

"In 'Cobra' we were working for the restoration of government control to a certain area," he said, "With 'Bayonet' we were working to fulfill a basic U.S. Army mission to go after hard core units and kill or punish them in their strongholds, destroy their installations and deny them use of their food supply."

The general said he felt the division accomplished both missions.

He noted that casualty figures from "Bayonet" indicated that the division had "really roughed up at least a battalion."

Official body count of enemy dead in "Bayonet" was placed at 45 with 46 captured. Another 36 suspects were taken captive. Estimates, unconfirmed, set the dead VC at 74 and captured at 52.

The cavalrymen also took more than 26 tons of rice and several tons of salt and peanuts which will be turned over to refugees in the region.

50 VC Killed

In "Cobra" confirmed VC losses were seven dead, one admitted Viet Cong and 52 other suspects captured. Estimates unconfirmed were 50 VC dead, 90 wounded.

In the Song Con Valley the situation was different. The objective was not so much to route hard core Viet Cong as to restore government control.

"We intend to bring the district chief back to his former location in the valley so that he can begin exercising control," Gen. Kinnard said.

Col. Lynch said the Song Con Valley is "tremendously" fertile and that as many as 1,000 head of cattle were seen in the upper portions of the valley.

Copters Bring Supplies

The units in both operations were supplied almost entirely by helicopters of the division's Support Command. The unit daily delivered 300 short tons to the combat men facing the enemy.

The bulk of the aircraft involved in the simultaneous onslaughts came from the division's aviation group commanded by Col. Allen M. Burdette Jr., Fort Wayne, Ind.

The group committed a total of 186 helicopters. During the opening combat assault 126 were in the air at once. 102 Hueps (UH1-D) and 24 Chinooks (CH-47).

Although 42 choppers were hit by ground fire, only two were downed and one was eventually recovered.

Col. Burdette said of his pilots:

"The men were magnificent. I was particularly pleased by the responsiveness to operational systems and the actions of the individual aviators in doing exactly what they were supposed to do at the appropriate time. They flew beautiful formations knowing full well they were going to get shot at."

The division learned that extraction of units was the area where most future attention was needed, Gen. Kinnard said. It appears that all commanders agreed that air extraction, like a daylight withdrawal from contact in conventional warfare, needed careful planning, close timing and heavy fire support.

Cub Scout Leadership Meet to Be Held Here

It will be "Pow Wow" time for Cub Scout leaders when Fort Benning hosts a tri-district clubbing conference from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 6 at the Faith School auditorium.

Conducted by the Fort Benning District in conjunction with the Russell and Muscogee Divisions of the Chattahoochee Council of the Boy Scouts of America, the conference is designed to give adult Cub leaders new program ideas and bring them up-to-date on latest scouting techniques and developments.

During the "Pow Wow," there will be sessions on suggested methods of conducting games, ceremonies, skits and handicraft activities as well as a session on pack administration. Each adult attending the "Pow Wow" will participate in whatever sessions can best help him with his own cubbing responsibilities.

The event is open to any adult (military or civilian) wishing to attend. Cub masters, den mothers, assistants to den mothers, pack committee members and interested parents are particularly encouraged to join in on the "Pow Wow."

Emphasis during the conference will be on learning by doing. Scout officials emphasized that each session will be a "Do" session and that an interesting and enjoyable program will be available for all attending.

Registration will begin at 1:30 p.m. There will be a small registration fee of 50 cents to cover the cost of instructional materials.

DAD'S WINGS . . . 2nd Lt. Ernest D. Wetspheling wears the airborne "wings" worn by his father, Col. (Ret.) Charles P. Westpheling. The colonel earned his badge at Fort Benning in 1941 when the airborne concept was new, about a year after the Army's first test platoon was organized. Lt. Westpheling was presented the wings by Maj. Gen. Robert H. York (left), commandant of The Infantry School, following the lieutenant's completion of the three-week jump course recently. The new paratrooper is now taking Ranger training. Soldiers Want Letters, 'Goodies' From Homefront

From The Army Times

WASHINGTON — Servicemen away from home, no matter what war, no matter what country, still miss the same things from home.

More letters from home, more pictures and snapshots, more hometown newspapers, magazines, even out - of - date, and tape recorded messages are the commodities most desired by the men serving now in Viet Nam.

The checklist was compiled by the USO, which polled men in the Southeast Asia combat zone.

Still high on the preferred list, USO reports, are homemade cookies, cakes and candies. The key word, USO says, is homemade. Forget 'em if they're from the store.

Low on the list are jewelry, billfolds and cameras, all of which can be purchased in military stores in Viet Nam at lower retail prices. Specifically not wanted are cumbersome gifts and civilian clothes.

The USO, which has been in the business almost 25 years, advises relatives and dependents to plan ahead to make sure persons in Viet Nam receive their gifts before Christmas.

Gifts sent by surface transportation may take up to 45 days, the USO warns. Mid-October should be the latest mailing date for goodies for Viet Nam.

The USO survey also showed that the men away from home want "lots of Christmas cards."

In related news, the USO is "confident" that the three new USO clubs requested by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, American commander, will be in operation by Christmas. Clubs at Cholon, Bien Hoa and a second club in Danang will join clubs already in operation in Saigon and Tan Son Nhut.

Boeing Tilt-Float Copter Design Displayed

A working scale model of Boeing's Vertol Division tilt-float helicopter was displayed for the first time at the sixth annual Helicopter Rescue Symposium held in Atlantic City during October.

The tilt-float design concept is result of a Vertol Division conducted design feasibility study under contract from the U.S. Navy's Bureau of Weapons. The object of the study is to convert a helicopter to a tilt-float configuration.

The application of tilt-floats to helicopters and vertical or short take-off and landing (STOL) aircraft offers mission versatility for anti-submarine warfare, rescue, oceanography, research and strike support, and many other uses.

The fundamental purpose of this design is to place a vehicle on tilt-floats above the water in heavy seas to provide an exceptionally steady platform for an indefinite period, without power. It is expected that pitch and roll motions of less than one degree and two degrees will be attained in eight foot waves.

The tilt-floats are retracted during flight and extended prior to landing in the water. In addition, the aircraft has the option of landing on the water, in high seas, with excellent amphibious capability with the tilt-floats retracted.

Marine Outfit Under Command Of Australian

DA NANG, RVN (AFPS)—A thick accent and a vocabulary of Australian Army terminology might confuse some Marines, but not those of "D" Company, 1st Battalion, Ninth Marine Regiment.

As far as "D" Company is concerned, there's only one man in the Third Marine Division who would say "wireless" when he meant radio — their company commander, Australian Army Captain Michiel J. Harris, serving with the Marines under the Exchange Officer Program and the first Australian to command U. S. Marines in combat.

A graduate of the Royal Military College in Canberra, he brought with him to the Republic of Viet Nam three years of experience with jungle fighting, gained in New Guinea with the Pacific Island Regiment of the Australian Army.

no person be excluded from service because of race; that there be no discrimination on the basis of race in hiring, assignment, promotion or other conditions of staff employment; and that there be no discrimination on the basis of race in membership of the agency's governing body.

The USO, American Red Cross, South Columbus Boys Club, Armed Services YMCA, Retarded Childrens Association, Muscular Dystrophy Association, Boy and Girl Scouts and the Cerebral Palsy Center are just a few of the 27 agencies which service military personnel and families.

Over 40 percent of the Columbus Cerebral Palsy Center's annual budget was devoted to the care of military dependents stricken with this tragic affliction. Most of the cases handled by the Muscogee County Red Cross Chapter were military in nature.

Of the over 1600 members of the South Columbus Boys Club, 1212 were military dependents. Last year over 243,689 servicemen were provided a "home away from home" at either the Armed Services YMCA or the Columbus USO.

Worthwhile Investment

These and other figures attest to the manner in which Fort Benning benefits from this annual drive. Each dollar contributed has been proven over the years to be a most worthwhile investment which has gone a long way toward alleviating suffering and providing necessary services for the community and nation.

Last year the United Givers drive went over the top of its objective and this year the objective is $718,644.

Over one third of this amount will be spent directly on Fort Benning soldiers and their dependents.

Officials point to the large number of military dependents who are served by the South Columbus Boys and Girls Clubs and the Armed Services YMCA as two examples.

Even before the United Givers drive was kicked off last week, groups of soldiers from Fort Benning went into Columbus to see the work being carried out by the member agencies of the United Givers Fund.

One such group was the one from the Infantry Center Troop Command, headed by Col. Lon Marlowe, commander.

They visited the Cerebral Palsy Clinic where they saw dedicated speech therapists teaching youngsters how to say simple words.

YMCA Home

They saw the facilities afforded the soldier away from home by the Armed Services YMCA.

They visited the Edwina Wood School for retarded children.

They got tangible proof of where the United Giver Fund money goes.

One soldier on the tour described the feeling he got as "a feeling of triumph which came over me as the children performed feats that would not be possible without the patience, love and understanding that is given them."

At the retarded children's school, a young officer said he did not feel so sympathetic as he did impressed and enthused.

Everywhere the group went the reaction was the same, according to a group spokesman.

Book Review

Attempt to Kill Hitler Portrayed

THE MEN WHO TRIED TO KILL HITLER by Roger Manvell and Heinrich Fraenkel, Coward-McCann, Inc., 1964.

In July, 1944 as the war in Europe raged towards its climax, Adolph Hitler called a meeting of his staff at his now infamous Wolf Lair. They gathered around the conference table listening to the different reports of the progress of the war when Col. Claus Stauffenberg, commander of the German Reserve Army, placed his briefcase under the table and excused himself from the room, stating that he had an important call to make.

Stauffenberg left the building and waited, glancing anxiously at his watch. Then, at precisely 12:42 p. m., the conference room erupted in an explosion that knocked one end from the building. Stauffenberg jumped in his staff car and left Wolf Lair. A short time later he informed his constituents that Hitler was dead.

But the colonel was somewhat presumptuous. The bomb he had placed under the conference table sealed in his briefcase had failed to kill the Fuehrer. The heavy wood of the table had protected Hitler and he merely sustained a number of injuries. The assassination plot had failed.

The plan to kill the militant leader of Germany was a part of a revolution devised by a group of Germans made up mostly of Army officers. They had in mind to take over Germany, bringing it back under sane leadership and ending the war.

The plans for the revolution began taking shape in 1939 and the story that follows the entire plot is described by authors Manvell and Fraenkel with accuracy and preciseness.

"The Men Who Tried to Kill Hitler" leaves nothing of the daring plot unexplained, discussing the inception of the plan and following it up through the many attempts to kill Hitler and on to the capture and execution of those involved.

It explains the boldness of men who fought the odds for their cause and lost.

EM to Get Voice In Policy Change

From The Army Times

WASHINGTON — The enlisted corps, through its senior noncommissioned officers, will have a voice in developing enlisted personnel policy in the future. The Army told the recent sergeant major conference that proposals on new policies, procedures and systems affecting enlisted personnel management throughout the Army will be submitted to major command Sergeant Major Councils for their comment before being adopted.

The reaction of these councils will be considered in the final drafts of proposed changes to policy.

Result Seen

The result is likely to be that those major commands which do not now convene Sergeant Major Councils will have to do so, in order to give DCSPER the kind of reaction it wants from the enlisted corps. DCSPER will urge creation of such councils, but it does not appear that their formation will be directed.

The Sergeant Major Conference was held on Monday, October 25, in the Sheraton Park Hotel in Washington, D. C. It began at 7:30 a.m. All sergeants major were invited to attend the conference and to attend the luncheon given after it.

Luncheon Sponsored

The luncheon was given by the Association of the United States Army, host for the conference which was sponsored by the DCSPER. Sergeants major, however, needed be neither members of the AUSA nor delegates to the AUSA Convention to attend the conference or the luncheon. The idea of consulting Sergeant Major Councils prior to taking action to change enlisted personnel management policy has received top-level Department of the Army blessing.

"We are no longer going to keep these changes to ourselves before announcing them," an Army staffer said. He had in mind the reaction, among other things, to the recent stripes change proposal. In the future, when the Army points out it has checked an action with senior enlisted personnel, it will be able to cite the reaction of these councils.

There were indications that a number of important announcements about enlisted personnel management was to be made at the conference. The meeting also included briefings on current enlisted management problems, the impact of the buildup in strength on the Army, and discussion of the enlisted promotion systems and changes that are under consideration.

Standard Personnel Laws Sought by Defense Dept.

From The Army Times

WASHINGTON — Early next year the Pentagon will ask Congress to standardize a number of personnel laws dealing with length of enlistment, extension of service during wartime, minority enlistments; discharges and separations, and rank and command in joint operations.

The proposed law changes are now being reviewed by the services and Defense.

The present differences exist because the old Naval Affairs and Military Affairs Committees legislated separately before they were joined into the Armed Services Committees.

The Pentagon launched a study last year aimed at simplifying and clarifying the legal codes. Upon the study's completion a legislative proposal was drawn up for service coordination. When it gets final Defense and Administration blessing it will go to Congress, probably early in the next session.

When the committees were unified with the 80th Congress there was some standardization of personnel laws. Later efforts provided more standardization. The proposal now being prepared would clean up some of the remaining differences.

Although it is not to be as substantive a measure as the Bolte proposal (which affects officer appointments, promotions, retirements, and strength in officer grades) this new measure will affect both enlisted and officer careers.

Pentagon officials were unable to release the study or the proposed legislation yet, but it was learned the measure may permit the Army and Air Force to allow men under 18 to enlist for the duration of their minority rather than for a definite number of years. The Navy may get a five - year enlistment option, which it now does not have.

The Army and Air Force have temporary enlistments but the Navy and Marine Corps do not. These are for the duration of a war and six months thereafter.

There would be uniformity in the amount of "new suit" money allowed to men separated from the service and who are not permitted to take their uniforms home. These are mostly court - martial cases.

A number of other measures are being suggested. One is aimed at clarifying the precedence in joint operations when men of different services and equal rank are on duty.

The services are expected to have their comments into Defense within the next few weeks.

Draft Report Denied For General Release

WASHINGTON—U. S. officials say they will not release the long-awaited draft study report because it contains much classified material, according to a recent Army Times article.

The Administration made much of the study before the election of 1964 when it suggested the study might show the draft would not be needed for more than 10 years more.

The Times article says the war in Viet Nam has made the main conclusion of the report, that the draft will be continued, obvious, but there are many other facets of the study which are of interest to people in and out of uniform.

One of the side findings of the study was the decision by Defense that 60,000 civilian employes could be substituted for 75,000 military men doing civilian-type jobs. More such switches are expected. Military men are being shifted to more combat-oriented duties, the article continues.

The draft became an issue in the presidential campaign. Former Sen. Barry Goldwater, the Republican candidate, suggested that if elected he might be able to end the draft. Then the White House announced that it had a study on the subject already in the works.

After the American commitment in Viet Nam was expanded, draft calls were increased and officials were saying that no end to the draft was in sight.

The Times says the report contains suggestions on how to make the system fairer than it is now, how to make better use of men now turned down by the examining boards and a host of other information which would be of interest to the American public.

President Boosts Educational Aid

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — President Johnson has signed a bill raising educational assistance from $110 to $130 monthly for youngsters whose parent is killed, or totally and permanently disabled in service.

"Our obligation to these children is clear," the President said.

The amendment to the War Orphans' Educational Assistance Act brings the first rate increase since enactment in 1956. It also extends coverage to youngsters since the end of the Korean Conflict.

Voluntary Enlistments Increase

A Defense Department report shows that there have been large increases in voluntary enlistments since the draft was ordered raised sharply in late July.

Monthly figures for July, August and September disclosed increases ranging from 32 per cent for the Air Force to 45 per cent for the Marines. Comparing July and September totals, the Army received 46 per cent more volunteers and the Navy 41 per cent more. An increase in the draft tends to cause a boost in voluntary enlistments.

Army volunteers rose from some 9,000 in July to 11,800 in August and 13,300 in September.

Navy enlistments were up from 11,165 in July to 13,622 in August and 15,801 in September. Marine enlistments went from 4,628 in July to 5,457 in August and 7,154 in September. Air Force enlistments were 10,388 in July, 15,511 in August and 13,838 in September.

Hospital Efficiency Study Conducted By Army Medics

FORT SAM HOUSTON, Tex. (ANF) — Civilian hospital administrators have been learning a bit about their own business from the instructors at the Army's Medical Field Service School at Brooke Army Medical Center here.

A team from the Texas Hospital Association has been studying an Army-developed executive decision - making exercise which is designed to provide practical experience in running an efficient hospital.

The Texas group may adopt the exercise for use in state-wide seminars.

Known as SAMEX (for Simulated Applicatory Management Exercise), the exercise uses a computer to monitor the participants as they attempt to come up with the most effective distribution of the limited resources of a hypothetical 450-bed hospital.

The USO is still very much in business, since there are still well over 2,700,000 men and women in uniform.

The USO is a home away from home for lonesome trainees, a place for servicemen overseas to relax, to meet friends and the friendly people of allied nations. Package Rates Cut

Free Airmail to Combat Zones

From The Army Times

WASHINGTON — Mail to and from combat zones and overseas areas is going to be faster and cheaper.

Congress approved a bill this week which provides free airmail service for first-class mail, including cards, for military people in combat areas and for men who are hospitalized as a result of service in combat areas; changes the rates on mailing air parcel post packages between the U.S. and overseas, and provides that certain packages will be sent by air, on a space available basis, although the sender will pay only the regular domestic surface rates.

The bill, in effect, replaces the provision in this year's military pay bill which provided for free mail for men in Viet Nam (or wherever else the President proclaims a combat zone). The new law keeps the free mail privilege but adds a provision requiring that the government send it all by air.

The new air parcel post rates for overseas servicemen affect both the men in uniform and their homefolks. When a wife or mother now wants to air mail a parcel post package to a serviceman overseas, she pays the "eighth zone," which is the most expensive zone. The new law will require her to pay only the cost between the place where she mails the package, and either New York or San Francisco.

For example, under the old law, a three - pound parcel being mailed in Dallas to a serviceman in Germany cost the "eighth zone" rate which is $2.28. Under the new law, the sender would pay the postage from Dallas to New York, which would be $2.12.

Similarly, a three - pound air parcel post package that now costs $3.28 to go from Chicago to Viet Nam will cost $2.23 under the new rate.

The new rates apply in both directions to and from the serviceman.

The final provision of the new law provides space-available air shipment of parcels to and from servicemen for parcels which do not weigh more than five pounds and which do not exceed 60 inches in length and girth combined. The surface parcel post rate will apply to these air-shipped packages.

President Johnson's approval of the bill, HR 11420, is assured, since the Army, the Budget Bureau and the Post Office all favor it.

Services Scholarship Program Services Scholarship Designed

From the Army Times

WASHINGTON — The Army and the Air Force have endorsed a juicy scholarship proposal that would go far toward solving the services' chronic doctor-dentist shortages.

Promising students in medical-dental schools would receive annual scholarships worth approximately $1240 to cover tutition and fees. In addition, they would receive a monthly subsistence of $240 for it is anticipated that many of the participants would be married.

The plan, as worked out by the two services along the lines of a bill introduced by Rep. Charles Bennett (D., Fla.) would start the students off as Reserve second lieutenants. When they entered active duty they would be captains, as are starting doctors and dentists now.

The scholarship-subsistence recipients, however, would be expected to serve six to eight years, although provisions are provided for their leaving after their third or fourth year, if they refund some of the money Uncle Sam paid them.

Young doctors and dentists currently entering the AF and Army need serve only two years. Despite continued efforts to attract them toward the military as a career, most depart after their two. The services remain in a continual bind to staff their hospitals and clinics with experienced people.

Even to keep many medical-dental billets filled with inexperienced people, the services must resort to the doctor-dentist draft.

Mailing Dates Announced

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The mailing period for sending Christmas parcels and greeting cards overseas has been announced by Post Office officials.

Packages and cards going by surface mail should be posted between Oct. 21-Nov. 10. Air mail should be deposited between Dec. 1-10.

These dates apply to parcels and cards going overseas to and from the United States, an official said, to insure delivery in time for the holiday.

Package contents should be firmly packed with nothing loose inside, the official explained, adding it is wise to put an addtional address slip inside the package.

Officials also recommend that containers be of strong material, tied with heavy cord. Fiberboard packaging, such as cardboard boxes, should be wrapped in paper even though this is not a strict requirement.

Customs regulations apply to some items being mailed overseas. Some countries also prohibit various items and U.S. regulations prohibit certain other items. Local postal officials can give advice on these matters, a spokesman said.

Campsite Signs Bring Humor To Dug-In Troops in Viet Nam

BY JOE TREASTER

AN KHE, Viet Nam — It all started when men in the advance party of the 1st Air Cav. Div. decided the land they were clearing for a campsite looked like a golf course. They greeted the bulk of the division's troops with a sign that read: "WELCOME to the 1st Air Cavalry Division GOLF COURSE — constructed for your use and pleasure by the advance party."

That was the start of a rash of signs that has no end in sight.

Most of the signs appear among the clusters of pup tents where the troops live.

Hanging in front of a tent occupied by PFC Marvin Wolf is this banner: "The An Khe Hilton. Sorry, no heat, no air conditioning and no running water. Dining: American Plan."

PFC Ken McConnell calls his tent "The An Khe Mortar Lodge." Next to his foxhole, McConnell has posted a military description: "Hole, Deep 1 Each, Brown in Color," and then, as an extra tag: "No Dogs, Cats or Children Allowed."

After moving their tent three times in two days, PFC Billy J. Smalley and PFC James Watkins erected this sign: "Watkins and Smalley's Mobile Homes — Guaranteed Shelters through rain, snow, blizzards and mortar fire."

Hanging on a branch stuck in the mud near the division's finance center is a small sign reading: "This way to Frisco—7777 miles."

An arrow points straight down.

And at the side of a road where soldiers had been working for days building sand bag bunkers is this clincher: "Confusion City—Population 100,000 Sand Bags."

Utility Carrier Completes Tests; Can Take Full Squad Into Action

MORTAR SQUAD GOES INTO ACTION

With Equipment in Trailer the Carrier Takes A Full Squad Into Combat.

A combat utility carrier and trailer with many new innovations has recently completed tests at Fort Benning.

Designated as the XM571, the new carrier is a composite vehicle consisting of a full-tracked, power carrier unit and a full-tracked, powered trailer unit.

The front carrier unit contains the power plant and operating controls for both units and can be used independently of the trailer. It has the capability of carrying a full squad into combat.

The unique innovation provided by the carrier is its "articulation joint". This joint connects the front and rear units and not only transfers the power from the front to rear unit but also contains actuators which serve to provide steering control for the trailer.

ARTICULATION JOINT

Joining Unit Provides Power

The carrier, which weighs 5300 pounds, has amphibious capabilities and can carry a payload of 2,000 pounds. It is expected to carry an M60 machine gun.

The vehicle recently underwent 2,000 test miles with the Infantry Board at Fort Benning.

Post Soldiers Repair Toys For Christmas

The Infantry School's Mortar Committee is shooting for 6,000 or more. This time their target is Christmas toys for underprivileged children in the Columbus area.

For the seventh year, the Weapons Department committee is collecting and repairing toys to be handed out at Christmas through the Salvation Army. Committee personnel, headed by SFC Chris J. Lahere, have been working for a month on "Operation Toy."

Last year the committee collected and repaired 861 major items, such as bicyles, wagons and swing sets, and 5,000 minor items, such as small cars and dolls. This year the workers hope to exceed this number.

Any toy donations will be picked up anywhere in the local area. Project personnel may be reached by telephoning 545-6632 or 545-6757. Deadline for final pick up is Dec. 15.

In addition to Lahere, whose wife makes clothes for the dolls, others working on the collection are M-Sgt Hildreth E. Harvey, SFC Billie T. Davis, PFC Elzie Harper, SSgt. Lloyd W. McGowan, SFC James M. Ogelsby and Sgt. Haskell R. Wax.

Missile Adapted For Use Against Hostile Aircraft

China Lake, Calif (AFPS) —An Army air defense weapons system, designed to protect forward area forces against low altitude air attack, has undergone successful guided firings at the Naval Ordnance Test Station here.

Called "Chaparral," the system uses a modified self-propelled vehicle as a mount for launching the Navy-developed Sidewinder 1-C missile which was modified for ground-to -air application.

German Officer Views School Operations Here

Infantry School firepower demonstrations, airborne and Ranger training along with small arms field firing and tactical problems were seen by the German liaison officer to the U.S. Army Chemical Center and School, Fort McClellan, Ala., last week.

Lt. Col. Karl Fischer arrived here last Wednesday for a three-day stay at the "Home of the Infantry." On Wednesday afternoon he heard several briefings on Infantry School operations.

Col. Fischer saw field training operations of the Airborne and Communications Departments and toured the officer candidate area on Thursday. His tour Thursday also included a trip to Hook Range to see weapons of the Infantry battalion and the Ruth Range problem, "Combined Arms Team in Defense."

The colonel, who was accompanied by his wife, departed Oct. 22.

TRAVELING UMP

Due to an emergency, National League umpire Paul Pryor had to work in two games one day — 400 miles apart.

He umpired in San Francisco in the afternoon and then flew to Los Angeles for a night game. The night game happened to be the perfect no-hitter thrown by Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers against the Chicago Cubs.

2 Groups of Visitors See Infantry Training

Two groups of visitors were at the "Home of the Infantry" last week to see weapons employment, tactics, field problems and training techniques.

The Allied students represented military forces of 11 countries.

Highlight of the visitors' tour of The Infantry School was a demonstration of weapons of the Infantry battalion. Each type weapon authorized a battalion was shown individually and then fired for the visitors.

The Company Tactics Department problem, "Combined Arms Team in Defense," showed the visitors the total firepower available to an Infantry company commander. Use of tracer ammunition fired at night indicated the capability of each weapon in or supporting an Infantry company.

At the conclusion of the problem, all the company's weapons fired simultaneously to show the "wall of steel" through which an attack must pass.

Grief Stricken Parents Provided for by Post

Fort Benning and the city of Columbus have responded with generosity and practicality to the tragedy which took the lives of two small military dependents in their trailer home Oct. 13.

Sp4 and Mrs. Paul Ray Maddox, whose sons, Douglas Ray, 3, and Paul Ray Jr., 4½ months, died when the trailer burst into flames, have received a $100 grant from Army Emergency Relief to meet urgent immediate needs and a $200 grant from the Muscogee County Chapter of the American Red Cross for funeral expenses. They also have received clothing and household goods.

The children were buried at the Main Post Cemetery after funeral services at the Infantry Center Chapel.

Maj. Shirley Sneed, coordinator of the Fort Benning Community Services Agency, said numerous donations have been made to meet the needs of both the parents and a son, John Wayne, 2. The mother and son escaped from the burning trailer. The father was on a training problem in the field when the trailer burned.

At noon Oct. 14, Sneed said a long list was made of items the family needed and "by dark, every need had been met."

She added that the Non-Commissioned Officers' Club donated $25.

Members of the club and neighbors in the Oak Hill Trailer Park at 3536 St. Mary's Road donated food, cooking utensils, bedding and furniture.

Capt. Stephen Fersch, who commands Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, to which Maddox belongs, commended Army Emergency Relief for the rapid response to the tragedy. The fire occurred at 9 a.m. and the $100 grant was ready at 3 p.m. the same day, he said.

Fersch also expressed appreciation to the management of the Oak Hill Trailer Park for furnishing Maddox with a trailer to use until he gets settled again.

The company arranged for a member of Maddox's platoon to stay with him and assist him in making arrangements for the funeral and meeting problems that relate to the tragedy, Fersch said. A fund was being collected within the brigade to provide further assistance.

Benning Unit Handles Mail for Santo Domingo

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic — Mail call for soldiers serving here comes compliments of the 539th Army Postal Unit of Fort Benning's 39th Transportation Battalion.

For the nearly 8,000 servicemen on the strife-torn isle, mail is the only link they have with homes and families. The Fort Benning unit provides the steel for that link. It handles all the incoming and out - going mail for U. S. troops.

In a normal day the unit handles between 30 and 60 bags of mail destined for men of more than 50 different units. The weight of these bags fluctuates between 800 and 3,000 pounds.

The 539th has been in the Dominican Republic since May and is the only unit from Fort Benning still here.

From New York

The unit is composed of 11 enlisted men and one officer. Two men from the unit are working at the airport in San Juan, Puerto Rico, and handle the mail as it is taken off the commercial airliner which brings it from the Army Post Office in New York City.

From San Juan the mail is flown by Air Force transport to San Isidro Air Base in the Dominican Republic. Men from the 539th pick the mail up at the air base and break it down according to unit in their facility at the fairgrounds west of here.

In the early days of the crisis, the mail came into the International Airport in the Dominican Republic about 20 miles outside Santo Domingo. The daily trips to the airport have put more than 20,000 miles on the unit's 2½ ton truck and jeep.

Finance Facility

The 539th APU also operates a postal finance unit which sells money orders and stamps. To date this facility has sold more than $500,000 worth of money orders and nearly $10,000 worth of stamps and other postal services.

When payday comes around, the 539th has a mobile finance unit which services most of the troops.

Thanks to the 539th, the U. S. soldier here receives news from home with as little delay as possible. Presently the delay from the time the mail leaves New York until it is the hands of the individual soldier is one day.

According to the commanding officer of the 539th, Lt. R. T. Grimes, the only problem the unit has which hinders the arrival of mail is the dependance on unscheduled flights to bring the mail from San Juan.

Presently, Grimes, who also serves as staff postal officer for the XVIII Airborne Corps, is making arrangements for even faster transportation of the mail from San Juan.

Little Theatre Withdraws Entry

The Fort Benning Little Theater has officially withdrawn from the Third U.S. Army Tournament of Plays according to Little Theater spokesmen.

FBLT president Les Muchmore stated that the group, which has won the top awards for the past two tournaments, will not present Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie" as previously announced.

The decision to withdraw, Muchmore continued, from the competition was based on the fact that FBLT has no adequate facility to present the play. Building 25-19, which was previously used by the group for the past several seasons, is to be converted by the post for other uses and all the Little Theater's equipment has been removed.

In making the announcement, Muchmore added that the FBLT will remain inactive until another suitable facility is made available to the group for rehearsals and productions.

Hunters Urged to Aim For Safety

From the Army Times

WASHINGTON — Safety is the aim and accidents the target which the American Red Cross urged the nation's 14 million hunters to shoot for to enjoy a safe hunting season this year.

"Careless hunters often bag more than they bargained for," said Alfred W. Cantwell, national director of the American Red Cross Safety Services. "Last year more than 2400 sports - minded Americans were killed by guns and explosives — a six per cent increase over the previous year."

Reasonable caution and common sense are the keys in reducing the number of Amerieans involved each year in hunting accidents, according to Cantwell. A loaded gun is an object that intelligent hunters have a great deal of respect for.

For those who will be taking advantage of the 1965 hunting season, the Red Cross safety expert offered the following hunting and first aid advice:

Hunting Advice

Treat every gun as if it were loaded. Avoid all horseplay with guns. Don't point one at anything you don't intend to shoot.

While traveling in cars, boats, or planes, make sure your guns are unloaded. Keep them cased, wrapped or dismantled.

Hunt with a companion and insist he abide by safety rules too.

Be sure ammunition fits your gun. Double check—and frequently—to make sure the safety is on.

Keep your finger off the trigger until you're ready to shoot.

Don't handle a gun by its muzzle or use it as a prop, club or prod.

Make certain the moving object you fire at is legitimate game and not another human being or a domestic animal.

Don't climb fences, run or jump while carrying a loaded gun. In rough terrain where your footing is precarious or in heavy underbrush, unload the gun or open its action.

If, despite all your precautions, someone is wounded while hunting, these are first aid measures you should take, Mr. Cantwell said:

Control the bleeding, protect wound from contamination and give the victim care against shock.

Even if the surface wound is small, there still may be extensive internal injuries. Summon a physician as soon as possible, preferably without moving the victim. (You can learn more about such valuable first aid precautions by taking a Red Cross first aid course.)

NICKLAUS, LEMA TEAM

Jack Nicklaus, who won the 1963 and 1964 individual titles of the international gold championship and Canada Cup golf matches, and Tony Lema were this year's United States representatives for the event, in Madrid, Sept. 30 to Oct. 3.

Viet Officers Teach Language To U.S. Soldiers

FT. GORDON, Ga. (AFPS) —Four officers from the Republic of Viet-Nam Army, attending Military Police School here, have volunteered two nights a week of their off-duty time to teach Vietnamese to American soldiers on assignment to RVN.

According to one of the officers, "We feel. . .we can help repay the aid and assistance rendered to our country by the U.S. Army and the kindness of the American soldiers to our people."

The four young officers operate as a team, teaching 25 American students the Vietnamese language. They will continue to instruct the classes until they complete their courses in mid-November.

Army Medical Research Program Reports on Combat Necessities

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Field rations supplying 2,000-2,600 daily calories will maintain physical activity even though it becomes monotonous fare after prolonged periods.

This is one of various findings of a five-year Army medical research and development test and evaluation program now entering its fourth year.

Purpose is to help meet programmed needs for any type of war in any kind of environment. The after-three-year report was presented by Lt. Col. Donald L. Howie, deputy commander, Army Medical Research and Development Command.

Programmed studies dealt with more effective insect repellents, control of infectious hepatitis, immunization methods and serums, radiation effects, and other preventive medicine areas.

A drug that works only on ringworm fungi is under study as are areas less familiar to the average layman, medically termed chorio - physiological and chiatric.

Some research activities included discovery of an "electron transfer system" speeding oxygen to shock cases; adding ingredients to whole blood to prolong its storage or "shelf" life; studying several blood vessel substitutes; and using a butter-like medical spread that controls burned skin infection.

Potassium, it was found, helps relieve "mountain sickness," an ailment suffered by persons subjected to physical exertion at great heights. Potassium is found in dehydrated fruits and vegetables.

It was determined that Asian influenza strains have shifted from the 1957 and 1962 prototypes. A formula for combatting the 1965 - 66 strain has been devised.

Researchers also determined that gamma globulin helped reduce the incidence of measles in first week recruits but did not control the incidence of meningitus of pneumonia.

One major Southeast Asia problem that is undergoing study concerns diarrheal diseases.

Exchange Now Accepts Coupons

The Fort Benning Exchange began a coupon redemption program Tuesday which allows exchange customers to apply manufacturer's coupons toward the price of articles purchased in the exchange.

Coupons are generally received through direct mail, newspaper and magazine advertising or with retail merchandise.

Use of merchandise coupons in civilian retailing has become an increasingly important selling tool of many manufacturers in recent years, particularly those in the highly competitive food and health-beauty aids industries.

The colonel was senior adviser, Vietnamese Army School Center, Military Assistance Advisory Group (MAAG), Viet Nam, from March, 1960, to March, 1961, and regimental and senior division adviser, 22nd Infantry Division (Vietnamese) from August, 1963, to August, 1964.

DENTAL IMPRESSIONS

NATHAN GRACE — PREVENTIVE DENTISTRY OFFICER

Teeth Can Be Reimplanted

QUESTION: My son recently lost a tooth in a local football game. Our dentist informed me that he might have been able to replace or reimplant this tooth if I had brought my son and the tooth to him immediately. Can this be done and if so, how?

ANSWER: To begin with, your child should have been wearing a rubber mouth protector.

This inexpensive item guards against accidents of this nature and can be easily fitted by any dentist.

Now, to your question. Yes, the tooth might possibly have been reimplanted depending upon a number of factors.

If the wound caused by the tooth loss is clean, the gum uninjured and the tooth itself intact, it can be replaced in its original socket with a reasonably good chance of restoration of normal function.

To protect the newly replaced tooth and promote healing, it is generally immobilized by attachment to adjoining teeth with fine wires for a few weeks.

What should you do when your child loses a tooth? First, wrap the tooth in a wet towel or place it in water. Don't attempt to clean the tooth. Take the tooth and child to the dentist. The earlier that treatment is instituted, the greater the chance of complete success.

Space Capsules

NASA has signed a contract covering a 16-month period extending to Oct. 31, 1966 to provide overall system management for the four - stage solid-fuel Scout launch vehicle. A new and more powerful version of the Scout was successfully sent up from Wallops Island, Va., Aug. 10 to put an Army satellite into orbit. The flight marked its 10th successful launch.

NASA has consolidated its unmanned launch activities at both the Eastern and Western Test Ranges under the John F. Kennedy Space Center, Cape Kennedy, Fla. There, the Launch Operations Division of the Goddard Space Flight Center will become an integral part of the Kennedy Center, directed by Dr. Kurt H. Debus. Robert Gray, assistant director, will supervise the Western Test Range, Lompac, Calif., as well as part of the Goddard team permanently assigned to the range and the NASA Pacific Launch Operations Office that supports it logistically.

Adopts Family of Three

Post Couple Finds Happiness in Children

BY JOSEPH HUTTIE

The task of raising three children coupled with the complicated problems they create has been known to put the understanding and patience of many an adult to the supreme parental test.

However, for SSgt. and Mrs. Florian S. Kroll, this test had been a long and eagerly awaited one. But until recently the Krolls had been denied the joy of raising a family of their own.

Now, after more than a year of tedious meetings and procedures the Krolls are the proud parents of three bubbling children. This sudden increase in the size of the Kroll household was made possible by the adoption of three children through a local agency.

According to Kroll, who is the platoon sergeant of the 183rd Chemical Platoon, 197th Infantry Brigade, he and his wife originally set out to adopt a child in February of 1964.

A Full Family

What made the Krolls suddenly decide to adopt a full family of three?

"The three children, Byron age five, Johnny age three, and Tina Maria age two, were all brothers and sisters and we just didn't think it would be right to break up a family. So we adopted them all," says Kroll.

For the Krolls there has of course been a problem of adjusting. The children themselves seem to have adapted quite naturally to their new home. However, they are still learning quite a bit about parenthood according to the sergeant.

"I guess the hardest thing to adjust to so far has been getting up early on my days off. You know before I just slept in on days when I was off from work but now the kids are up at 6:30 to wake me," he adds.

Sgt. Kroll points out that the children have not yet completely found themselves in their new home either. "Byron is a real help around the house even though he is still young.

"He wants to help at everything. But he still has a protective attitude toward his younger brother and sister, and it may take us awhile to overcome this," the sergeant says.

When thinking back to his first day as a new father Sgt. Kroll sums it up with just one word, "rugged." "We just didn't know what to expect. We knew how we felt but we didn't know what was running through the minds of the kids," he adds.

More Cooking

How is Mrs. Kroll taking it all? "Well it's sort of sudden for her. More cooking, more laundry, and more sewing, but she really loves it," says the new father.

The children break up a great deal of monotony for the Krolls according to the sergeant. Byron has already put in a bid for a baseball and football and the family made its first outing last week.

"It wasn't a really big thing," says Kroll. "We just took them out to the airport, but they got a great kick out of it."

One of the things which has impressed the Krolls most about their children is their politeness. "They just don't ever have to be reminded to say thank you, you are welcome, please, or anything. They really know how to be polite," says the chemical sergeant.

Hectic Pace

Although the pace has been a hectic one for the Krolls recently, things have begun to settle into an orderly and more manageable routine. Being a religious family, the first thing the Krolls purchased for their children were three small prayer books. The weekly excursion to church has already become an important part of the lives of the children. "They can hardly wait for the next Sunday to come around again," says Kroll.

How do the parents feel about adoptions in general? Kroll states it this way, "There are a lot of lonely people in the world. The children have brought a great deal of cheer and happiness into our home and we have easily noticed the difference in our lives. Adopting children could probably make many people a lot happier."

Concepts of Army Marksmanship Have Undergone Major Changes

From the Army Flier
Fort McClellan Ala.

Prior to the Civil War there was a tendency in the Army to consider proficiency in marksmanship an inherited trait.

In reality, this proficiency was not inherited; it came after years of intensive training. The average backwoodsman or frontiersman was taught to shoot at an early age and shooting competitions were frequent.

In the decade after the Civil War, the Army took the first steps toward building a permanent program of marksmanship training. This development was an outgrowth of the experience of the Civil War and was spurred on by public opinion for interest in marksmanship remained high following the war.

As a result of their war service, veterans were particularly interested. A group made up largely of former Civil War officers founded the National Rifle Association in 1871. In the East, shooting clubs flourished and throughout the country state militias added an emphasis of their own to the development of accurate long range shooting.

The Civil War was the turning point in the development of marksmanship. It became apparent that national defense could no longer depend on a broad base of home-trained sharpshooters.

The Army, along with public - spirited groups and officials, recognized the need for a new approach to maintain a nation of riflemen. Since then the history of American marksmanship has been marked by the efforts of these groups to encourage small arms proficiency and to develop ever better equipment and techniques.

The Army's first training manual on rifle marksmanship was published in 1883. In 1901 Congress directed the Secretary of War to establish the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice. This board remains active today in promoting rifle practice among civilians as well as the military services.

With war raging in Europe, Congress passed the National Defense Act of 1916 extending broadened powers to the National Board. Commanders were authorized to furnish arms, ammunition, and range materials to certain civilian organizations and to make ranges, details, instructors and facilities available to civilian clubs. This action was initiated too late to be fully effective in the mobilization for World War I and most of the marksmanship training had to be provided by the Army.

Shoot And Salute

Gen. Pershing, the great World War I commander, was a strong advocate of marksmanship training. One famous request attributed to him was "Send me some men who can shoot and salute."

At the insistence of Gen. Pershing, the Army established a school at Camp Perry, Ohio, to train officers as rifle instructors. This was another milestone of progress in marksmanship training and the revisions of Army shooting manuals after the war reflected the concepts and methods of this school group.

Marksmanship is an important prestige value for the Army and the nation; like it's part of the military art and represents a fundamental measure of good soldiers. any element of weaponry, al measure of good soldiers.

BADMINTON SINGLES CHAMP
Dave Raney of TSB Shows Winning Form

The badminton doubles championship brought the 1965 Infantry Center Small Games Tournament to a close at Briant Wells Field House last Friday afternoon, ending a week-long competition which decided the post champs in badminton, table tennis, handball and horseshoes.

John McGill and Pat Gallagher of the 197th Infantry Brigade played the final match against Dave Raney and Bill McLean of The Student Brigade with McGill and Gallagher taking the badminton doubles title.

Earlier in the week, Raney beat McGill in the final match of the badminton singles competition to win that championship.

In table tennis, Martin Weiner of TSB emerged as champion after defeating Lester Larrew of the 197th Infantry Brigade. In the doubles final, Weiner teamed up with Nat Chillers of TSB to defeat Mail Stafford and Marv Taylor (also of TSB) to walk away with the title.

Bud Moentmann of the 10th Aviation Group was the winner of the handball singles competition with Don Boccia of the 197th Infantry Brigade taking second place. Moentmann later teamed up with Ray Richer of the 197th to add the handball doubles title to his triumph.

Herb O'Brien of TSB defeated Earl Baxter of the 197th in the final round of the horseshoe singles contest to take that title and went on with teammate Ed Proffitt to beat Arnold Jones and Bob Knowland of TSB in the finals of the doubles competition.

Over 50 men participated in the competition which began at the Field House last Monday. The 12 winners in the tournament were presented trophies by Col. Earl F. Holton, deputy post commander.

Units End Grid Action, Prepare for Post Tilt

Major units were finishing up their company-level touch football competition this week with playoff tournaments to pick teams for the post championships which begin this Monday at Gowdy Field.

The 197th Infantry Brigade began a double elimination tournament Monday. By Wednesday, D and Headquarters Companies of the 29th Infantry were on top of the competition with two wins to their credit.

D Company beat B Company of the 69th Armor, 14 to 7, on Monday and on Tuesday whipped the Brigade Troops team, 25 to 6. Headquarters Company recorded a forfeit win over C Battery, 10th Artillery and romped over C Company, 69th Armor 26 to 0.

The two undefeated teams were scheduled to meet Wednesday.

In other 197th action, Brigade Troops walloped B Company, 58th Infantry, 27 to 0, and B Company, 69th Armor beat C Battery, 10th Artillery by forfeit.

The brigade tourney is scheduled to end today or tomorrow.

The Student Brigade tournament got underway last week with four of the six teams taking part eligible for the post championships. Both Officer Career Course (CAR) teams participating are not in the running for the post title.

The CAR-1 team was undefeated on Wednesday with a four win record. The team had averaged five touchdowns per game and had completely shut their opponents out of the scoring columns.

The team trounced the 41st Company, 4th Student Battalion, 30 to 0; walloped C Company, Infantry School Battalion, 36 to 0; beat E Company, ISB; 38 to 0; and edged Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 6 to 0.

In other action, CAR-2 beat C Company, ISB, 10 to 6 with Headquarters Company beating CAR 2, 18 to 10. The 41st Company got two victories on a forfeit win over E Company, ISB and a 1 to 0 triumph over CAR-2.

With the removal of the ineligible teams, Headquarter Company, TSB and the 41st Company will battle for the brigade at the post playoffs.

The Infantry Center Troop Command was slated to wrap up its competition on Thursday.

On Monday the front running 98th Ordnance Company beat B Company, 1st Battalion, 6 to 0. On Tuesday the 98th had a chance to sew up the CTC crown but were dealt a stunning 30 to 0 defeat by the 586th Engineers.

IN THE HUDDLE . . . These members of the touch football squad from Headquarters and Headquarters Company, The Student Brigade, don't look too worried about the competition as they huddle in a pre-playoff scrimmage Monday. TSB's company-level playoffs began last week and will decide the brigade's representatives to the post playoffs which begin this Monday. Post Shooters Set Barbeque, Election Sunday

The post Rifle and Pistol Club will hold its annual barbeque for members this Sunday, Mr. Kirkman, club secretary said this week.

The barbeque, which begins at 12:30 p.m. at the post pistol range, will be followed by election of club officers.

A 600-point pistol match will be held for members commencing at 10:00 a.m. Sunday with any caliber pistol or revolver permitted. Awards will be made to winners in master, expert, sharpshooter and marksman classes as well as a prize for the high lady shooter and high junior.

There is no charge for the match. All of the day's activities are open to club members and their dependents, Kirkman noted.

Heugatter, Wigger Win In Matches

Olympic Gold Medal winner Capt. Lones Wigger and SSgt. Emil Heugatter led Army shooters from the Marksmanship Training Unit to victories in matches over the weekend at opposite ends of the country.

In Richmond, Calif., Wigger came from behind to take the California State Free Rifle Championship with an aggregate of 1,724, only a single point higher than another member of last year's U. S. Olympic team, Gary Anderson.

Heugatter was high individual shooter in the South Carolina Outdoor Pistol Championship at Parris Island with a three-gun total of 2,596 points out of 2,700.

The Army's Gray entry also won the .22 caliber and .45 caliber team titles and placed second to the Marines in the center fire.

MSgt. William Krilling of the MTU won the 300 meter phase of the California matches with a 575 followed by Ray Lewis of the Air Force with 573 and Wigger with 567.

But Wigger's strong showing in the smallbore event, which he won with an 1,156, lifted him to the overall crown.

The rifle group will fire in the Fall Roundup Smallbore Rifle Championship this weekend at Los Angeles, Calif.

Knights Stay Unbeaten In Kids' Grid Clashes

The Knights became the only unbeaten Biddy League team last week as the youngsters walloped the previously undefeated Tigers, 27 to 0.

Speedster halfback Allen Taylor led the Knights' running attack while quarterback Eddie Hurst completed five of 11 passes to ends Mark Dyer and Mark Flowers.

The defense, led by Bobby Walls and Jeff Trower, held the Tigers scoreless.

The revamped Golden Eagles, under head coach Sonny Ramirez, won their first game in three outings last week by beating the winless Varmints, 13 to 0.

Halfback Keith Carter got both touchdowns for the Eagles, going off left tackle for the first score and tallying later on a 40 yard run off tackle. A Mike Ramirez pass to end Scott Henry added the extra point.

The Red Devils shut out the undefeated Green Hornets, 14 to 0, last week and held their usually high scoring opponents to only three first downs.

Devil scores came on short runs by quarterback Bobby Harrow on a quarterback sneak and an end sweep. Elliot Rodriguez, Don Hance and Marty Martin spearheaded the Devils' defense.

The Huskies of the Intermediate League made it three in a row last week and remained the only undefeated team in the league by defeating the I-1 team, 13 to 0.

Quarterback Jess McCleod scored in the second quarter on a keep play and picked up the Huskies' second tally in the fourth quarter on a 20 yard keep. Pete Calin tallied in one of two tries for the extra point.

Mike Smith and Dennis Southern were defensive standouts in holding I-1 scoreless.

After losing its opener to the Huskies, 1-4 has battled back to win three in a row. Last week the team blanked I-2, 12 to 0 on Thursday and edged I-1, 7 to 6, on Saturday. The wins put I-4 into second place with a four win, one loss record.

Sports Oddity

First baseman Johnny Mize is the only player in major league history to hit three home runs in a game with three different teams, and the only player to accomplish the feat six times. Mize hit three homers in a game four times with the St. Louis Cardinals, twice each in 1938 and 1940, and he did it once each for the New York Giants in 1947 and the New York Yankees in 1950.

Incidentally, Mize is one of two players in history to hit three homers in a game for at least one team in each league. The other was Babe Ruth. He did it with the Yankees in 1930 and with the old Boston Braves in 1935.

U.S. Services to Pick Top Chessmen in Nov.

From the Army Times

WASHINGTON — An international chess tournament, to pick the best military player in 19 countries, became a possibility for next spring as the U. S. armed forces prepared to pick their best in a week of play in November.

The sixth annual all-service championship is to be played here November 6-13. Two or three of the top men may go on to seek international honors.

A Department of Defense spokesman, with the blessing of Defense Secretary McNamara, put forward the international idea at the recent meeting of the executive committee of CISM (International Council of Military Sports) at Brussels.

The delegates agreed to pass the proposal along to the General Assembly when it meets late in November. Some of the 19 countries already have chess competitions in the military ranks, some don't.

If the project is given a CISM green light, the tournament probably wouldn't come off until spring, so the countries that don't have programs would have time to pick their teams.

Sideline to Athletics

Chess would not, according to the plan now under consideration, become another CISM sport, but the tournament would be organized as a sideline to the athletic activities. If the plan works out, the tournament will probably be held in Europe.

The U. S. would be represented by the top three finishers in the upcoming play for the Emery trophy, emblematic of the all-service team championship.

Final selection of the service teams has been held up briefly by efforts to find a woman player good enough for the competition. Apparently few servicewomen play and none is of service tourney caliber.

Navy Team

The Navy will field a six-man sea - service team. Since it will carry the colors of the Marine Corps and Coast Guard as well, it will have one more than the five players on the Army and Air Force teams.

The Air Force is the only one to pick its team by a servicewide competitive system. It won the trophy last year and the year before.

Chess experts said the Army will probably field a stronger team than usual this year — even though the service is not officially sponsoring a team. More than 20 Army players volunteered to make their way to Washington on their own and to take leave and play on their own time.

Post Club Announces Golf Slate

The Fort Benning Country Club recently announced a series of golf tournaments scheduled for the next two months.

A "Flag Tournament" for all club members with established handicaps will be held Nov. 11. Merchandise will be given as prizes, the club said. There will also be putting, hole-in-one and driving contests.

A pre-Thanksgiving Day Turkey Tournament is scheduled for Nov. 20. Over 30 turkeys will be given as prizes. Entrants playing the Lakeside will play a "blind bogie" and Pineside entrants will play "best ball."

The final tourney of the year, a full handicap event, will be a turkey tournament held on Dec. 18, the club said.

LEG MEDAL . . . Col. Joseph J. Peot (R) wears a "Leg Medal" just presented to him by Maj. Gen. Robert H. York. The "leg" represents six points toward a required 30 points for qualification as a Distinguished Pistol Shot. Col. Peot, commander of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit at Fort Benning, received the six points for being in the highest 10 per cent of the non-distinguished firers in the individual competitions at the National Trophy Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio.

Birthdays Bring Break

Having birthdays in Company C, 1st Battalion, 1st Brigade, USATC is fast becoming a thing to watch for. Company C commanding officer, Capt. John J. Zavertnik, is having monthly buffet style birthday parties for his cadre and basic trainees.

Honored for the month of October were thirteen members of Company C who after being released from the rigors of training, were confronted with a a huge cake bearing their names.

The entire 235 man unit was invited to participate and enjoy the platters of decoratively arranged food and trimmings that graced the company mess hall.

It is needless to say that with the advent of this sort of treatment, basic trainees at Company C will be anxiously awaiting announcements of birthdays.

Reserve General Tours Benning Training Areas

Maj. Gen. Eugene G. Cushing, commanding general of the 104th Reserve Infantry Division at Vancouver Barracks, Wash., arrived at Fort Benning recently to see training activities at The Infantry School and the Army Training Center.

Gen. Cushing's primary interest was in the instruction given to future officers, newly commissioned officers and recruits. He saw basic class solving some leadership problems and officer candidate training.

In addition, he visited the new Army Training Center which opened this month. The Center is processing about 1,000 recruits a week and was established as a result of the Army's expansion program.

Gen. Cushing left Fort Benning for Fort Gordon, Ga.

United Givers Drive Nears Goal Already

Officials Issue Appeal To Put Drive Over the Top

The first unoficial totals for the United Giver's Fund Drive are in and already Fort Benning has passed the halfway mark towards its $60,000 goal after only two weeks.

As of four p.m. Thursday the unofficial total was reported to be $50,894.34 or better than 80 per cent.

Post United Givers Fund officials have issued an appeal to soldiers to help the drive go over the top by a substantial margin again this year. They emphasized the drive still has a month and a half to run and pointed to the basic generosity of soldiers to give as much or more than expected.

Although many of the donations have not yet reached UG headquarters but are still held by the units, it has been learned that several of the units on post have reached and surpassed their goals.

Among the units having the highest percentage of collections are the Reserve Component of the Infantry Center with 106 per cent, Center Troop Command with 90 per cent and the 10th Aviation Group with 91 per cent.

Company D, 4th Battalion, 69th Armor of the 197th Brigade became the first company-size unit on post to reach 100 per cent.

CTC's 380-man 54th Quartermaster Battalion became the first battalion-size unit to reach their goal as the $1,219.35 they have collected amounted to 111 per cent of their mark.

The United Givers Fund Drive kicked off in the Phenix City-Columbus-Fort Benning area Oct. 20 and will continue until Dec. 20.

Funds collected are used by 27 charities in the area which rely upon this fund drive for their support and an estimated one-third of the funds collected in the area come to the aid of soldiers on post.

Veterans Day Especially Significant

This Veteran's Day 1965 is especially significant in that once more our nation's sons are facing the enemy on a foreign battlefield to preserve the rights and freedoms of an oppressed people.

I call upon all military personnel, our civilian work force, and dependents to join with me in paying tribute to these fighting men and women and to veterans of all past conflicts.

But it must be realized that we have a solemn obligation that cannot be discharged with mere words of homage. We must be thoughtful and acutely aware that we are today enjoying the liberties for which our comrades-in-arms of yesterday fought and sacrificed.

Let us mark this day not only with grateful remembrance of those who have preceeded us but also with prayer and dedication for strength and victory in our constant struggle to secure freedom for all peoples.

Career Class Members Awarded 77 Medals During Ceremonies

Seventy seven medals were awarded Tuesday by Brig. Gen. George I. Forsythe to members of career classes one and two in a ceremony in Marshall Auditorium.

The highest award was the Silver Star which was presented to Capt. Marvin O. Myers. Myers received his medal for gallantry in action in Viet Nam while serving as commander of a helicopter.

Although forced down by enemy fire, he managed to rescue his helicopter after fighting off an enemy attack. Capt. Myers also was awarded three Air Medals and an Army Commendation Medal for numerous acts of heroism in Viet Nam including rescuing two U. S. advisors, evacuating wounded and capturing enemy personnel, all under intense enemy fire.

Capt. Rodney S. Beasley received the Soldier's Medal for heroism not involved in action against an enemy and the first and second oak leaf clusters to the Air Medal.

Beasley was cited for rescuing a pilot who had parachuted into the East China Sea. Beasley located the downed pilot's parachute in the water and, after trying unsuccessfully to snag the parachute with the helicopter skids, climbed onto the skid of the hovering aircraft and tried to reach the parachute himself. Unable to reach it, he plunged fully clothed into the water and secured the parachute.

Others honored were Capt. Lucien B. Clawson, awarded the Bronze Star with "V" device for heroism in exposing himself to enemy fire during a cleanup operation; Capt. Francis C. Egan, also awarded the Bronze Star with "V" device; and Capts. Joe D. Black, Jaye E. Evans, David E. Fried, Eugene E. Fudge, Vincent C. Gomez, Charles A. Hall, James E. Harriss, Curtis J. Herrick, Robert C. Johnston, Ronald W. Marley, William E. Powell, David N. Radike, Carl J. Regan, David N. Roush, Dale W. Shipley, Paul F. Sinkler, Harlow H. Stevens, Richard J. Terseck, Richard B. Timmerman, William C. Westgard, Alan A. Ward and Duane E. Zimbrick, all of whom received Bronze Stars.

Clawson, Fudge, Johnson and Shipley also were awarded Air Medals.

Six others also were awarded the Air Medal. They are Capts. Charles R. Byrd, Richard S. Dawn, William R. Miner, Ronald J. Sprengler and John F. Swiggert.

Forty seven men received Army Commendation Medals: Capts. Jack M. Mays, Peter R. Bankston, Robert C. Caldwell, Warde C. Chittenden, Richard D. Clarke, Robert G. Clarke, Philip E. Courts, Stillman D. Swimming Offers U.S. Youngsters A Big Chance for Foreign Travel

By BOB HARING
Associated Press Writer

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Swim to see the world — and set world records along the way.

That may be the best advice for travel-minded youngsters since Horace Greeley recommended going west.

For swimming, of the organized, competitive sort, offers — even in non-Olympic years — a chance for foreign travel.

Fifty or so of the country's top swimmers who competed in the recent men's and women's national AAU championships here won trips to various parts of the world.

The trips ranged from visits to Mexico and South America to tours of Europe. Some Jewish swimmers were picked from this meet on a team to visit Israel.

Twenty-eight men and women made a tour of England, France, Monaco, Portugal and Spain. Fourteen men took part in the World University Student Games in Budapest, then toured eastern Europe and the Middle East.

Latin American Tour

Four girls toured five Central and South American nations — and three Olympic veterans now attending Indiana University had a trip to Mexico City for a study of effects of high altitude on swimmers.

Another group won a Mexican trip, too, to compete in the Mexican national meet. This trip also is related to high altitude studies in preparation for the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City.

Many of the travelers are high school teen-agers.

Pattie Caretto of Commerce, Calif., Mary Ellen Olcese of Philadelphia and Judy Humbarger of Fort Wayne, Ind., are 14-year-olds who won European trips. Lillian (Pokey) Watson of Santa Clara, Calif., and Steve Krause of Seattle, Wash., are 15 and Kendis Moore of Phoenix, Ariz., is 16.

Martha Randall of Philadelphia and John Nelson of Pompano Beach, Fla., at 17 are relative oldsters. Bob Hoag of Commerce at 20 is one of the oldest members of the team.

Travel in Teens

Travel can begin for swimmers in the very early teens. Jane Barkman of Philadelphia, for instance, visited South America at the age of 15.

Boys on the Budapest trip were a bit older because they're college students. Roy Saari of El Segundo, Calif., at 20 and Gary Ilman and Don Roth of Santa Clara at 21 were the older swimmers of this group.

Dick Roth of Santa Clara, no relation to Don, made the college team though he's only 17.

For most of the older swimmers, this wasn't the first foreign travel from swimming. Saari, for instance, has visited Latin America and other places besides winning a trip to last year's Olympics in Tokyo.

Ilman and Dick Roth are veteran travelers, too, and also went to Tokyo.

Encourage Competition

Part of the idea behind the non-Olympic trips is to encourage better competition by swimmers in the years between the big international games. Some trips are helped by the State Department with the idea of promoting international understanding.

Swimming may be a nice way for a teen-ager to travel but the youngster had better be an expert. For example five who won National AAU championships here in August have set seven world records here, at Cardiff, Wales or in Monte Carlo this year.

Bad Guess

Toronto pitcher Mickey Sinks was tapped for a $50 fine by International League president Tommy Richardson.

Sinks became annoyed at umpire Sam Carrigan, who tossed him out of a game. The pitcher went to the parking lot and emptied the air out of what he thought was the umpire's tire. He made a bad guess. The car belonged to Richardson—the league president.

Veterans Day

A Day to Honor Those Who Died in Uniform

Forty-seven years ago, a group of men met in a railroad dining car in the Forest of Compiegne, France, and signed a truce ending World War I. The date was Nov. 11, 1918.

In the years that passed, other men have met and signed truces ending wars in which thousands have died. Those who survived will never forget their experiences.

Every year, countless men and women all over the world, young and old, pause for a moment of recollection and silent prayer at 11 a.m., Nov. 11.

In the United States we know this day as Veterans Day and we hold commemorative services at the Tomb of the Unknowns in Arlington National Cemetery. In England, their dead are honored in front of the Cenotaph in London; and in France, at the Arch of Triumph in Paris.

This is the day on which everyone remembers. Those of us now in service have our memories also. We honor our comrades in arms in various ways. Many of us take part in memorial services in the air and on land and sea. There are some of us who, this year, may be too busy to pause and pray, for we will be fighting yet another action, many miles from our homeland.

And there may be some of us who will be remembered at this time next year.

But no matter where or how we spend the day of Nov. 11, 1965, we should remember why those before us have passed on. The causes of the past are the same as the causes today—to preserve and protect the freedoms that we so very much enjoy.

We do not want to live under a dictatorship, monarchy or communism. We enjoy the form of government that has been in this country since its birth. We want those who come after us to enjoy that same freedom and, consequently, we have to fight and sometimes die to preserve it.

This year, when we pause at 11 a.m., Nov. 11, remember the past, think of the present and plan for tomorrow. (AFPS)

Chewing Helps Resist Decay

An arm is stronger when exercised; the skin of the hands is thicker and tougher when used roughly; the soles of the feet can be toughened to defy the pebbles which now make us cringe while walking on the beach. Would it be reasonable to assume that teeth can be toughened during their formative period so as to resist tooth decay?

Sometime ago, an experiment was set up to see if teeth are actually more resistant to decay when chewing is more vigorous. A group of children, ages four to six, were given tough pieces of chewy material to chew once a day during an exercise period at a nursery school.

At the end of the school year, it was found these children had developed about 30 per cent fewer cavities than the other children who were not given the chewing exercise. This reduction in decay was attributed to the development of more resistant teeth, not to any cleansing action of vigorous chewing.

It appears that chewing does help resist decay. It also helps to maintain better bone structure around teeth, as any dentist can testify. So it might be better to do battle with that tough roast rather than sprinkling it with tenderizer and pressure cooking it for two hours.

The Judge Says . . .

'Watch Responsibilities In Your Home State'

Most personnel at Fort Benning are aware that if they come originally from another state, the state of Georgia probably cannot levy and collect a tax against their personal property located in this state and cannot levy an income tax against their Army salary.

This is because Section 514 of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act essentially says that a soldier whose "domicile" is other than Georgia and who is presently in Georgia only because he has been assigned here by the Army is not liable for income or personal property taxes levied by the state of Georgia.

What is not so generally realized is that, under the same section of the same act, the soldier is liable to the state of his "domicile" for such income and personal property taxes as that state may choose to levy, whether he is in that state or not.

Since the law says that everyone has a "domicile," this means that this soldier, while successfully avoiding Georgia taxes, is still subject to the taxing jurisdiction of some other state.

What is the state of a person's "domicile"? Domicile is a peculiar concept. Essentially, one's domicile is one's permanent residence, his "legal residence," his "home of record." It is the place where one intends to stay and live permanently.

The concept is to be carefully distinguished from the concept of "residence." A residence is simply a place where a person is living at the moment. Even though one's present residence is Georgia, this state might not be his domicile depending upon whether he intends to reside here permanently after he has completed his time in the service.

What is particularly confusing about the concept of domicile is that the law says that everyone has to have a domicile at all times. Generally, a person acquires the domicile of the state of his birth. He retains this domicile until he formulates an intent to remain permanently in some other state and actually does reside in this new state.

This is true even though this person has not been back to the state of his birth for twenty years and even though he never intends to return there.

Career service personnel often lose sight of the fact that they, like everyone else, do have a domicile.

They may not have been "home" for several years but they still retain their original home as their domicile, simply because they have not established a domicile any place else.

Under the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act, they have probably remained liable all these years for whatever taxes their original state chooses to levy.

Give Generously To United Givers

With the Thanksgiving-Christmas holiday period fast approaching, the often uttered expression "Tis better to give than receive" is one which deserves a good bit of thought from us all.

Now is an especially appropriate occasion to think about this time - honored phrase in view of the United Givers Fund Drive which is presently being conducted at Fort Benning.

True, it is another in a series of several fund campaigns and it will undoubtedly provoke some comment along the line of "Oh, no, not another one of these." But, it is truer still that it is a charity drive upon which 27 vital public service organizations depend for support and, in many cases, their very existence.

A list of just some of the organizations benefiting from the United Givers Fund is enough to testify to the tremendous work which member organizations do in combating disease and alleviating suffering among our fellow-men.

It includes agencies which are devoted to the fight against cerebral palsy, muscular dystrophy, cancer and heart disease as well as organizations which work with young boys and girls in an effort to help make them better citizens of this great country in which we are privileged to live.

For some, the United Givers Fund Drive is a worthwhile yearly campaign to which they generously give without question. For others, it is a temporary inconvenience and the loss of a few dollars which might have been spent on something else.

Givers in both these categories can consider themselves fortunate that their association with United Givers is but a brief annual encounter and that they are able to be on the giving rather than the receiving end.

This is because, for many, the association with United Givers member agencies is a long and heart-breaking one.

It is especially painful for parents who are forced to watch the deterioration of their children's young bodies under the relentless attack of cerebral palsy or muscular dystrophy. . . for mothers and fathers who come to the realization that their child is mentally retarded. . . for grown-ups and youngsters alike who must witness the suffering of a loved one afflicted with cancer.

For most of these people, there would be no hope without the contributions made through United Givers. . . with these donations, there is at least a chance for those who might otherwise have no chance at all.

The story doesn't stop there either as United Givers donations are also utilized to help enable such well known agencies as the Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Boy's Club and Armed Services YMCA carry on their splendid work in this area. The value of these and other United Givers member agencies is immeasurable.

To continue their fine work, the United Givers member agencies desperately need the financial assistance which is being solicited in the military and civilian communities during the period October 20 - December 20, 1965. It is a tremendously important campaign which requires and deserves our wholehearted support.

It is indeed better "to give than to receive" in the case of a cause such as this which goes so far in so many directions. Give generously with the knowledge that your contribution will not only help combat disease and pain but will also help our youngsters grow up to be better citizens as well.

'The Point of the Spear'

Household Tips

(AP) — When there are youngsters in the family, crayon marks are apt to show up on painted walls, woodwork and wall paper at one time or another. When this happens, we suggest you try this method to remove them: scrape off as much of the crayon as possible with a spatula. Sponge lightly with a cloth dampened in a dry cleaning fluid. It may be necessary to repeat this treatment several times but it generally does the trick.

Red and blue index buttons for bathroom faucets are being introduced by a well-known company. The idea is common in Europe where it's considered part of the international language. In the U. S. the buttons are expected to be a safeguard for young children or anyone who has trouble reading.

NCO Wives Entertain At Dinner

A "flapper" costume brought first prize to Sgt. Maj. Leo F. Winterburn at the Halloween dinner-dance given by the Noncommissioned Officers' Wives Club at Crain Hall, Fort Benning, on Oct. 25.

Mrs. George Cox, who came as Minnie Pearl, won the prize for the best woman's costume.

Music was furnished by Tom Hipps and his orchestra.

The hall was decorated with cornstalks, pumpkins, black cats, witches and cauldrons.

The dance committee was composed of Mrs. Othon O. Valent, Mrs. Winterburn and Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith.

The NCO Wives Club members met Oct. 27 at Crain Hall for a get-acquainted breakfast. A color film on "Bird City" at Avery Island, La., was shown. Mrs Arthur Puser and Mrs. Frank Candalisa were in charge of arrangements.

Plans for a handicraft display by members, which will include ceramics, crocheting, knitting, embroidery, sewing, batmaking, cake decorating and novelties will be discussed at the Nov. 10 business meeting.

CHICAGO — Breaking all previous records, Americans consumed an estimated 3.4 billion pounds of candy in 1964, or 17.9 pounds per person. This amounts to 99 million pieces, bars and sticks a day, according to the National Confectioners Association. The giant batch was valued at $1.4 billion at the wholesale level.

Two Can Live More Cheaply

In New York — A recent survey by the National Industrial Conference Board recently demonstrated the old maxim that two can live together more cheaply than individually.

A one person household spent $2,622 on necessities and extras; a two - person household spent $4,494. The biggest saving was in food.

But a household of two persons spends more than twice as much — $87— for tobacco as an individual householder who spends $40.

On the other hand, alcoholic consumption was $60 for a single person and $82 for two.

The average American urban family spends more than $5,152 a year for food, housing, clothing and incidentals. And the National Industrial Conference Board says that about half the money goes for food and housing.

In a survey based on family expenditures in 1960 and 1961, the mean average family spent $1,590 for food and $1,360 for housing. Other items included: $269 for furnishings; $525 for clothing; $781 for transportation; $342 for medical care; and $148 for personal care. Among other items were: $205 for recreation and equipment; $100 for reading; $93 for tobacco; $81 for alcohol; and $113 for miscellaneous expenditures.

The board survey indicated that real family spending — adjusted for cost of living increases — went up 15 per cent in the past decade.

The study reflected the growing affluence of American families. In the early 1950s only one-third of the nation's purchasing power was controlled by households earning more than $7,500. Now more than half the population earns more than $7,500.

The range of family expenditures was from a low of $2,983 for a family whose head was more than 65 years old to a high of $6,364. The high figure was from a family headed by an individual 35 to 44 years old — the age bracket when child-rearing predominates.

Unit Passes Goal In Charity Drive

The United Givers Fund drive got off to a sound start for the 197th Infantry Brigade last Friday when Company A, 4th Battalion, 69th Armor became the first unit of the brigade to climb over the 100 per cent contribution mark.

For Company A, it was the sixth consecutive fund drive and the second United Fund in a row in which the unit has been the first throughout the brigade to reach the 100 per cent mark.

The company topped 120 per cent of its goal and according to Captain Robert K. Hartley, company commander, the unit has been successful in all its fund raising efforts.

Hartley cited the individual efforts of key men Albert A. Kuser, Willie Jones, Gerreal Dixon and Calino Narris-Cruz.

Company A was also the first unit in the brigade to top the 100 per cent mark in the United Fund drive last year in addition to being first the past two years in the Community Activities Association and Army Emergency Relief drives.

On a battalion level, the 2nd Battalion, 42nd Artillery became the first 197th unit to report 100 per cent participation when it turned in receipts totaling 117 per cent of its goal earlier this week.

According to the asst. adjutant, Captain Jewel G. White, the 197th's fund drive is progressing above expectations.

"We actually didn't begin our drive within the brigade until October 29th and already we are approaching the the 70 per cent contribution mark," he pointed out.

Weapons Department Gives Mortar Classes

As the United States becomes more involved in the fighting in Viet Nam, it becomes apparent that Army mortars have a more decisive role in combat. The Infantry School's Weapons Department offers just such training needed in this major role.

At present there are NCO and officer courses available to the combat deployable unit. The NCO and officer courses are each six weeks long with emphasis on the use of the 4.2-inch mortar and the Davy Crockett.

There are four new classes starting each fiscal year. The next officer class is scheduled for Feb. 6 and the next NCO class April 17. Units are sent quotas approximately one month in advance of the scheduled classes. According to the Weapons Department, at least 25 participants are needed before a class can be started.

The basic purpose of the NCO and officer classes is to provide personnel a working knowledge to supervise and direct the firers of battalion mortar platoons and Davy Crockett sections.

For the enlisted portion of instruction, weapons training is broken down to 137 hours on the 4.2-inch mortar, 46 hours on the Davy Crockett and 39 hours (field firing problem) on the 4.2-inch and Davy Crockett combined.

Planning Aid May Hit Career Problems

From the Army Times

WASHINGTON — A new planning aid for personnel officials offers hope that the next 10 years won't be as rough on career enlisted men as the past decade has been. Some of the major career problems — promotion freezes, MOS controls, mandatory retraining—have plagued soldiers increasingly as new types of equipment enter the Army and older hardware becomes obsolete.

Officials now are attempting to make advance plans for filling the personnel needs that stem from development of new equipment. As the hardware moves off the drawing board into production — or into the wastebasket — personnel authorities will try to keep their plans in step.

To do this planners will make use of a classified document called the "New Equipment Personnel Requirements Summary." The detailed information contained in the document will be updated in accord with the progress of the research and development projects.

The hope for improvement could turn out to be a lost cause since other factors besides technical change also contribute to the personnel management problems. Moreover, the pace of technical modernization seems continually to accelerate.

But if the situation could look better, it could also look worse, as indicated by reports of more and more new equipment items in the mill.

There are more than 400 items of new equipment currently in R&D, ranging from new grenades to complete missile systems, from field dental X-rays to laser surgical tools, and from a new quarter-ton truck to jet helicopters.

For some of the new items personnel aspects are minor and future manning needs can be handled through routine procedures.

More than 200 of them, however, are considered to have "significant" personnel implications.

Not a Worker's Paradise

No Economic Security in USSR; Personal Savings Can Be Taken

EDITOR'S NOTE: This, the latest installment in The Bayonet's treatment of communism, continues the discussion of life in a coercive economy. It is taken from the book, "Two Ways of Life," by William Ebenstein.

Normally one of the chief methods by which a person provides for his future economic security is through personal savings. In the Soviet Union this means of building individual economic independence has little significance for two reasons.

First, incomes are so low that people are unable to save much money. Second, personal savings are insecure. For example, in 1947, the Soviet government confiscated one-third to one-half of all bank savings accounts above a fixed minimum amount. At the same time, the government confiscated cash savings through an enforced "currency reform." All currency had to be turned in and exchanged at the rate of one new ruble for ten old ones. In were to be repaid, in, 1957, effect, this meant that a person lost ninety per cent of his cash savings.

Since investment in private enterprise does not exist in the Soviet Union, the only other means of saving is through purchase of government bonds. However, there is a big difference between buying United States government bonds and Soviet government bonds.

In the United States, the saying is frequently heard that government bonds are the safest investment in the world because a "promise to pay" made by the United States government is as "good as gold." No such statement can be made about the Soviet government.

Bond drives in the Soviet Union started in 1927. In theory the buying of bonds was voluntary. In practice, everyone was compelled to buy bonds amounting to about six per cent of his wages or salary. At the time the bonds the government postponed payment until 1947.

In 1947, there was still no repayment of the bonds as again there was a ten-year postponement. In 1957, the government announced that there would be a freeze on all bond payments — both on interest and principal — for another twenty to forty years.

Thus what started out as forced savings turned out to be taxation. The sale of bonds was but another form of taxation from which no one could escape. Since the buying of bonds was at the same rate for all citizens (about six per cent of one's annual income), it bore down more heavily on the lower income groups. This was in line with the general Soviet policy of regressive taxation.

This means that a person who has to give up six per cent of an annual income of about nine hundred dollars (the income of a typical worker in Russia) is hit harder proportionately than a person who has to give up six percent of an income of five thousand dollars (the income of a plant manager). By contrast, in the United States, those with higher incomes are taxed at proportionately higher rates.

Communist Manifesto

In the Communist Manifesto of 1848, Marx and Engels said that the first purpose of the Communist revolution was "to raise the proletariat (workers) to the position of the ruling class." Much of Communist propaganda all over the world today repeats this promise: that under communism the workers would be freed from capitalist "exploitation" and "domination." Let us see what the facts are.

As soon as Communist rule is established in a country, free labor unions are among the first victims. Not only are workers under communism not permitted to form free labor unions or to go on strike, they must join Communist unions set up by the government.

In purpose, these unions are the exact opposite of free unions. Thus, in the United States, labor unions typically defend the interests of the workers against the employer. In Russia, the Communist union defends the interests of the employer — the state — against the workers.

In the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, American businesses sometimes set up "company unions" which supposedly represented the workers but in actuality were the tools of management.

Communist labor unions are a revival of company unions. In one important respect, they are even worse. Behind the Communist union stands an employer who can do more than hire and fire workers he likes or dislikes; the employer behind the Communist company union is the all-powerful police state.

Free Labor Unions

Free labor unions in a Western democracy like the United States seek the highest possible wages, the best vacation provisions, the most favorable seniority rights and the most adequate unemployment relief they can obtain. Often labor unions take positions on public issues that contradict government policies. Not so under communism.

There the purpose of labor unions is to get the most work out of workers for the lowest possible wages. Unions have no right to bargain with the employer, or the desire to do so, since opposing the employer means opposing the Communist government, which comes close to treason. As to a Communist union contradicting the government on broad political issues — this is inconceivable, because one of the main functions of unions is to sell workers whatever "line" the government has decided upon.

The main effect of a century of free labor unions in the United States has been to bring democracy into labor - management relations through mutual discussion and negotiation. Management now negotiates with labor on such matters as wages and number of hours worked. By contrast, the Communist policy is that the manager is a boss who must be obeyed without question.

Marx and Engels promised the workers the position of the ruling class. What the workers get instead in Communist society is "iron labor discipline" under the all-powerful state.

Norwegian Officers See Infantry Training

Operations, training and administration of the Infantry School and capabilities and limitations of modern weapons were seen by three senior officers from Norway on a visit here last week.

Senior officer among the group was Maj. Gen. Paul M. Strande, land commander, North-Norway.

Others were Col. Olav A. T. Einstabland, Inspector General Infantry, Norwegian Army, and Col. Sverre Hamre, G-4 (Logistics), Norwegian Army Command. Maj. Eldon J. Knutson accompanied the group as Department of the Army tour director.

The visitors arrived last Wednesday afternoon at Muscogee County airport.

Following a visit Thursday with Brig. Gen. George I. Forsythe, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, the visitors were briefed on the history, organization and mission of the school and on the utilization of the Fort Benning reservation in support of training.

Briefings on methods of instructions used by The Infantry School, planning instruction, general school operations and a briefing on ROAD (Reorganization Objective Army Divisions) organization, operations, training and fire support were also presented to the visitors.

The Allied officers also visited the U. S. Army Training Center at Sand Hill, the Third U. S. Army Training Aids Center and the Department of Non - Resident Instruction.

Mobility Department classroom training, field firing on several of Fort Benning's many ranges, Ranger training at Victory Pond and a river crossing problem at Bradley Landing were also on the itinerary for the Norwegians.

An official luncheon was held Friday in the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The visitors departed last Saturday from Muscogee County Airport.

PARIS. . . .Gina Lollobrigida's eight - year - old son Milko has been perfecting his English with one of the world - acclaimed masters of the language—Sir Alec Guinness.

They met on the set of "Hotel Paradiso," Peter Glenville's production for MGM starring Sir Alec and La Lollo. The boy, who already speaks a little English was so fascinated by the famous actor - knight's British accent that he asked if he would teach him to speak the same way. And Sir Alec obliged with a few lessons on the set.

Final quote from Milko, before departing for school in Rome: "Now I think I speak the English jolly good.

Highest Viet Military Decorations Presented to Hero's Widow Here

The Republic of Viet Nam's highest military decorations were presented to the widow of Capt. Royal G. Isaacs Jr. at a ceremony last Friday morning in front of The Infantryman Statue at Building 4.

The medals were presented posthumously to Capt. Isaacs who was killed in action in Viet Nam last year.

Twenty - four Vietnamese students attending The Infantry School stood at attention while the citations were read. Maj. Tran Van Thi, the senior officer, presented the two medals to Mrs. Isaacs on behalf of his government.

Brig. Gen. George I. Forsythe, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, escorted Mrs. Isaacs to the position of honor and stood with her during the ceremony.

The medals presented were the National Order (Fifth Class), the Republic of Viet Nam's highest award, and the Military Merit Medal. Both medals included the Gallantry Cross with Palm.

The citations were read first in Vietnamese and then translated. They cited Capt Isaacs as a "courageous combatant who was well-known for his sacrifices and who exhibited a high spirit of good will and cooperation. He assisted the RVNAF (Republic of Viet Nam Armed Forces) in blocking the Red wave of aggression from engulfing South Viet Nam and Southeast Asia."

"With his enthusiasm and exemplary devoted manner, he willingly executed all of his entrusted missions and, disregarding all hardships and dangers, set a brilliant example for his comrades-in-arms," the citation said.

"He died in the execution of his mission. His loss was greatly mourned by both his American and Vietnamese friends," it added.

Following the presentation of the medals, The Infantry Center Band played the national anthems of Viet Nam and the United States.

Maj. Duke, Capt. Powell Bid Farewell to 69th

In ceremonies held last week, members of the 4th Battalion, 69th Armor bid farewell to Maj. Lynwood R. Duke and Capt. Benjamin B. Powell.

Duke served as the battalion executive officer for the past six months. Before his assignment to the 69th Armor, the major was a student in the Officer Career Course at Ft. Knox, Ky.

Capt. Donald L. Gooding will replace Powell as Headquarters Company commander. Powell has been assigned to the Army Aviation School at Ft. Rucker, Ala. where he will assume duties as an instructor.

Duke praised the men of the 69th for their outstanding record as a support group and as a participator in the many activities of the Ft. Benning military community.

Duke, who will attend the Military Assistant Instructor's School before departing for Viet Nam in January, reviewed the troops of the 69th for the final time before attending a reception held by battalion commander Lt. Col. Vincent deP Gannon.

Parents Will See Classes In Session

Parents will be able to observe classes in session during the four-day "Visit Your Schools" scheduled for Fort Benning dependent schools Nov. 8 - 12 in observance of American Education Week, Nov. 7 - 13.

Parents are invited to visit Wilbur, Loyd and Edward White Schools Monday or Wednesday, Nov. 8 or 10, and Patch, McBride, Wilson and Faith Schools Tuesday or Friday, Nov. 9 or 12.

Visitors are requested to sign a guest book in the principal's office before going to classrooms where samples of student work will be on exhibit.

Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, superintendent of schools, said the "Visit Your Schools" schedule was planned to give parents an opportunity to observe the school program on the post.

Artillery Unit Gets Excellent Mark in Tests

The 2nd Bn., 42nd Artillery has received a rating of Excellent (the highest rating possible) in the annual Army Training Test which it recently underwent at Fort Benning.

Lt. Col. Charles F. Farber's "Rocketeers" took to the field in high spirits for the test which required the battalion to move in both daylight and darkness and to carry out numerous fire missions. Four of these fire missions resulted in live rockets being assembled and fired with praiseworthy accuracy.

The unit was also required maintain constant communications under jamming conditions. Realism was also enhanced by the attacks of live aggressors, aircraft and gas.

Maj. Herbert H. Martin, battalion executive officer; Maj. James W. Cain, S3; Capt. Richard W. Brown, communications officer; Capt. Loyal G. Hightower Jr. liaison officer; and Lt. Kenneth P. McDonald, S2 were the staff officers responsible for coordinating the various aspects of the test. Battery commanders are Captains James R. Adams and Gilbert L. Muchmore.

One Million Servicemen Voted In 1964 Presidential Elections

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — More than a million members of the Armed Forces cast their vote in the last presidential election according to the fifth report of the federal voting assistance program just released.

"The participation improved considerably over previous elections," said James W. Platt, Department of Defense deputy coordinator of the program.

The Marine Corps continued to record the highest percentage of voters based on manpower eligible to vote. however, the Air Force had the largest number casting a ballot.

Results from surveys show the following percentages of military voters: Marine Corps 65.5; Air Force, 58; Navy, 48; and Army, 44.

Overall, 1,009,311 service personnel voted while 958,209 eligibles failed to cast a ballot.

During the 1960 elections, only 735,019 voted out of 1,886,597 active duty service personnel eligible for a 39.4 participation.

"Even though the number voting in 1964 was encouraging," Mr. Platt said, "we had hoped better participation through delivery-in-hand availability of the Federal Post Card Application Form, used for obtaining an absentee ballot."

The report points out that an important aspect of the entire program was the provision of information, pamphlets and a special motion picture, "The Vote," prepared by the Directorate for Armed Forces Information and Education of the Department of Defense.

The report also shows that only five of the 50 states had more than 100,000 eligible voters on active duty as of May 31, 1965. New York led with 144,500 followed by California, Pennsylvania, Texas and Ohio.

Airborne Units Seek Volunteers

From the Army Times

WASHINGTON — Airborne units—particularly the 101st Abn. Div. at Fort Campbell—continue to hurt for men. The shortage shows up in an Army call for more than 9200 men to fill anticipated vacancies in airborne units. The openings are expected in November and December.

The call for airborne volunteers also includes a request for more than 1100 new Special Forces soldiers or for experienced Special Forces types.

Pentagon officials have already disclosed plans to increase the strength of Special Forces — now at the 8500 - man level—to 10,000 men.

Airborne units have 385 vacancies in E-7 through E-9 ranks; 381 in grade E-6; 1421 in E-5; 4172 in E-4; 2848 in E-1 through E-3, and 47 slots with grade immaterial.

In short supply are light weapons infantrymen, infantry indirect fire crewmen, infantry operations and intelligence specialists, parachute riggers and even a sizable number of clerk - typists.

Four hundred green beret vacancies are expected in E-7 through E-9 with the radio operators and medical specialists needed most. Biggest Special Forces need in grade E-5 is for 111 radio operators. These are all for Special Forces qualified soldiers and the vacancies exist worldwide.

In addition there are 339 Special Forces vacancies for non - green beret soldiers and 195 slots for men who are neither airborne or special forces qualified.

Details are in Circular 614-5 5.

MORE TESTING . . . Modified M-113 armored personnel carriers, initially proposed by Lt. Gen. John M. Heintges and evaluated at the United States Army Infantry Board, are now undergoing service tests at the Infantry Board. The modified APC differs from its counterpart in that nine gunports and vision blocks are provided. Through these gunports, soldiers can acquire and engage targets from within the armor-protected compartment of the carrier. Firing and observation from the inside of the carrier are facilitated by maximum use of a center seating arrangement with adjustable seat controls. While only two of these vehicles are now undergoing tests, further development and production of these vehicles may follow after staffing of the Infantry Board's report of service tests.

Marine Corps Alters Basic Recruit Training

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Marine Corps Headquarters has announced additional changes in its basic training. The announcement stressed that basic training will continue to be four months long but will be substantially altered and intensified within the period.

The reduction of training from 12 to eight weeks, which started in September, will permit the addition of a four-week program of basic specialist training in the fields such as artillery, motor transport and supply without extending the basic training period beyond the normal four months. Such specialist training has been accomplished through on-the-job training in the past.

The pattern of basic training for Marines will continue to be recruit training at Parris Island, S.C. or San Diego, Calif followed by individual combat training at the Infantry Training Regiments at Camp Pendleton, Calif. or Camp Lejeune, N. C. Basic specialist training will follow individual combat training.

Marines bound for the Pacific area will receive further training at Camp Pendleton, emphasizing conditions and problems met in the Republic of Viet Nam such as jungle warfare, small unit tactics, patrolling and civil action.

An additional p r o v o s e d training phase will include approximately four weeks of unit and combined arms training at Camp Pendleton for Marines scheduled for overseas assignment.

Pilots Ignore Weather, Rescue Fallen Soldier

By KEN McCONNELL

AN KHE, Viet Nam—A 1st Air Cavalry Division sergeant spent two painful hours at the bottom of a natural pit in the central highlands until a powerful twin rotor helicopter lifted him to safety.

The rescue of SSgt. Ralph S. Barss was the first of its kind performed by 1st Cavalry Division fliers in Viet Nam.

Barrs had been on patrol with the 2nd Battalion, 5th Cavalry when the side of a mountain he and the others were scaling gave way. The others scrambled to safety but Barrs tumbled 20 feet down.

Lands in Creek

He landed in a creek at the bottom of the pit. The fall had twisted his ankle and he could barely move. The other soldiers saw he was trapped.

Rain was pouring down, darkness was falling and an evening fog was settling on the mountain side. Despite the weather, one of the men called for a helicopter.

Three ships made unsuccessful attempts to rescue the sergeant, returning with only grim reports: "Bad weather. No chance for a pick up. Ceiling is only 25 feet."

After taking the report, Maj. Nick J. Bollman replied: "That's all the room we need."

Bollman and Maj. John J. Phillips lifted off at 6 p.m.

Tree-Top Level

The two pilots flew through the An Khe pass at tree-top level. SSgt. Robert H. Evans, Sp6 Armend R. Nerbonne and Sp5 Ralph L. Silvers, crew members on the flight, searched the darkness for the flickering signal indicating the injured soldier.

Slowly the big CH-47 Chinook settled over the signal light and the pilots held the craft steady while the crew began lowering the 75 - foot cable and body sling. Three men on the ground helped Barrs strap into to sling.

Fifteen minutes ticked past. The ship held steady. Gunners watched the night for Viet Cong fire. Finally Barrs was up and on his way out of the mountain trap. Swinging slowly under the Chinook, he was cautiously raised through the bottom door of the aircraft.

Trip to Camp

The trip back to base camp was all that remained but low level flying was still required. Several shots were fired on the helicopter but no rounds hit the ship.

"I didn't think they could get the chopper in there," said one of the man after arrival back at camp. "There were mountains all around and it looked like we were going to hit them at any moment."

Helping Barrs out of the ship, Silvers said: "Any time there's a guy out there that needs us, we'll be there."

Navy Ship Named After Army Officer

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army will share the spotlight with the Navy when the champagne spills across the bow of the Navy's first escort research vessel — the USS Glover — during commissioning ceremonies in Boston, Mass., on November 13.

The ship, named in honor of one of the Army's early military leaders, Brig. Gen. John Glover, will bear a Coat of Arms sponsored by the Army Chief of Staff and designed and struck by the Institute of Heraldry. The presentation of the Coat of Arms will be made during the commissioning ceremonies.

Brig. Gen. John Glover was born in Massachusetts in November 1732. In the early days of the American Revolution, he recruited and trained a militia unit of fellow Marblehead residents who came to be known as the "amphibious regiment."

The regiment's first task was to defend the ports of Beverly and Marblehead from British attack. It helped evacuate Washington's troops from Long Island and with General Glover in command led the first major amphibious offensive operation of the Revolutionary War, the crossing of the Delaware.

Whether Infantrymen or sailors, and whatever their mission, Glover's men earned for themselves and their commander rare distinction in the Continental Army.

Lineal descendants of that resourceful Infantry unit served with honor in the War with Spain and World Wars I and II. Glover colors are now carried by the 101st Massachusetts National Guard.

WOOD TURTLE WHISTLES

The voices of most turtles are at most a slight squeak or sigh. However, the wood turtle of the eastern United States makes a whistling call audible 30 or 40 feet away. The National Geographic says.

Lucky Girl

Pretty Sue Hamilton doesn't worry about walking under ladders. Her luck has carried her a long way in movieland and, from the looks of things, she is due to go a lot further. Note: This is Sue's second appearance in three weeks in The Bayonet and she's still easy to look at.

Film Shows Rare Shots Of Birth

Thanks to the patient watching of a shark baby sitter, producer Ivan Tors was able to secure one of the most unusual bits of motion picture action in history for his MGM spectacle. "Around the World Under the Sea."

Scripters wrote a scene during which Keenan Wynne shows Lloyd Bridges the birth of a baby shark in a tank within an underwater laboratory at the bottom of the ocean off the Bahamas. It was up to the production company to photograph the birth.

Various species of sharks produce young in different ways— live birth, from an instantly - hatching egg and from an egg which nurtures for nine months before babies fight their way out of a sac.

Researchers found a half dozen of the latter type of ova and set up a watch. As time for birth approached, a panavision color camera was rigged since the embryo are transparent.

Two eggs seemed to be approaching the birth stage. A baby sitter was placed on duty and when signs came that a wriggling little shark was due to emerge, he sounded the alarm. A camera was in operation for a whole hour.

All in all, six months of preparation was required to obtain this one shot. It lasts less than a quarter of a minute on the screen.

5 Officers Nominated For Magazine Award

NEW YORK (AFPS) — Two Marine Corps colonels, an Air Force colonel, an Army colonel and a Navy captain have been honored with nominations by their college alma maters for this year's Sports Illustrated Silver Anniversary All - America Awards.

They take their places on a slate of 64 candidates—all cited for their exceptional success in life in the 25 years since their senior collegiate football season in 1940.

The officer nominees are: Colonels Lawrence V. Green, USA, nominated by the U. S. Military Academy and stationed at Ft. Knox, Ky.; Louis De Goes, USAF, nominated by the Colorado School of Mines and stationed at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio; William L. Flake, USMC, nominated by the University of Arizona and currently assigned to the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, Washington, D.C.; Walter Williams, USMC, nominated by Boston University and now on duty in Philadelphia; and Captain Richard E. Foster, USN, nominated by the U.S. Naval Academy and assigned to the Naval Shipyard, Norfolk, Va.

The final selection of the annual roster of 25 Silver Anniversary All-America Award winners will be announced by Sports Illustrated before the end of the year.

This year's candidates comprise a roster representing wide and varied fields of endeavor, ranging from major sports figures to nuclear scientists. All candidates dramatically illustrate the purpose of the award which is "to emphasize the pursuit of rounded human values in which athletics and education are joined."

Since colleges and universities do not nominate unless they deem the candidate to be of winning caliber, nomination alone is unique and considered to be a special honor.

FISHY PROBLEMS

A fisherman in Sheffield, England, really had problems recently. George Holland dropped his can of bait into a river and then lost his car keys trying to get it back. He fell into the river trying to recover the keys. Then, he broke into a side window of his car in an attempt to short the ignition to start the car. But when he was all finished, he couldn't turn the steering wheel because he had an anti-theft device on the wheel. So Holland walked home. And without even one fish to show for his pains.

Army Personnel Chief Warns First Termers Against Jeopardizing Re-enlistment Bonus

WASHINGTON — First-term Regulars coming up for reenlistment in the next three or four months should apply for extensions if they think they may be on the "critical list" for the new variable reenlistment bonus when it becomes effective next January 1.

According to the Army Times, this is the advice the Army personnel chief, Lt. Gen. James K. Woolnough, is giving Army men approaching the end of their first-term enlistments.

In an address before the Sergeants Major Personnel Conference, Woolnough said he sees no earlier effective date than Jan. 1, 1966, for bonus entitlement. Soldiers who believe they might be eligible should extend their term of service for three or four more months to see if they are, Woolnough advises.

Those who do will not "jeopardize their possible eligibility for the variable reenlistment bonus in the event their MOS is designated a critical skill," Woolnough told the Army's senior NCOs during their Army Association conference.

Four extensions will be granted those who, otherwise eligible for reenlistment, do apply, the Army promised in a message to the field. Provisions governing tour extensions are spelled out in paragraph 36, Army Regulation 601-210.

Standards

The standards for determining just what MOSs will be considered critical for the variable reenlistment bonus will be the same as those used to determine MOSs to be awarded $100, $75 and $50 monthly specialty pay. It's possible that some MOSs approved for specialty pay will not be on the list of MOSs eligible for the bonus. It's also highly possible that some MOSs, not now on the specialty pay list, will be on the bonus list, officials told Army Times.

The Bonus will not be the same for every MOS. The Pentagon plans to set up four degrees of "criticality" for paying the bonus. For example, one MOS may be considered four times more critical than another and would entitle the holder to four times as much reenlistment bonus as a man eligible with the least critical MOS. The variable bonus would be in addition to the standard re-up bonus.

"The bonus, using multipliers of one through four, is planned to be paid in equal yearly installments in each year of the reenlistment period," Woolnough said. The personnel chief noted that many of the details for the bonus have yet to be developed.

Multipliers

However, he said the general guidelines limit the bonus to those first-term Regulars qualified in a designated "critical skill" (PMOS) in the grade in which serving and who reenlist within three months after discharge for a period of at least two years.

The bonus recipient must have served at least two years on active duty before discharge.

Ninth Division To Be Activated

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor announced at the AUSA Annual Meeting here that the 9th Infantry Division, the Army's 17th active division, will be activated at Fort Riley, Kan., during the first quarter of 1966.

Under the command of Maj. Gen. George S. Eckhardt, the new division will be organized under the ROAD concept with nine maneuver battalions.

A cadre of experienced officers and non-coms drawn from other units of the Army will provide basic combat and advanced individual training to the newly enlisted or inducted men who will make up the bulk of the division's strength.

He also visited the assistant commandant of The Infantry School, Brig. Gen. George I. Forsythe, and the British exchange officer at Fort Benning, Maj. David Ward.

According to Proposed Plan

Transfers Will Not Affect EM's Promotion Status

From the Army Times

WASHINGTON — Uniform Armywide enlisted promotion standards will permit individuals picked for a higher grade in one command to continue on promotion lists if transferred to another command before promotion. These proposed standards cannot be further restricted in the field.

The new standards also provide for promotion without the need of serving in a position vacancy. But the promoted individual will be transferred as soon as possible to fill the vacancy.

These and other major modifications of the enlisted promotion system were sent to the field for comment on Ocobter 8 as a part of a draft revision of Chapter 7, AR 600-200. Some commands have already returned their comments.

All command comments will be considered by the Army staff before the final revision is presented for approval and sent to the printer.

Major Changes

As of now, here is an outline of the major changes in the enlisted promotion system:

Authority to promote to grade E-4 and below is given, as before, to commanders of company size units. Battalion-size unit commanders become the promotion authority only through grade E-6. Authority to promote to grades E-7 and up is taken from battalion-size unit commanders and given to commanders of units authorized a colonel as commander.

In addition, a higher commander within a chain of command may restrict the authority of a subordinate commander to effect reductions for which he is, in regulations, the promotion authority.

In making promotions, for one year after the adoption of the revised Chapter 7, two of the "waivable requirements" listed below may be waived. Thereafter, only one of the five waivable items can be set aside.

The waivable requirements include time-in-grade, time-in-service, promotion qualification score, physical qualifications and education.

Time in Grade

There is no change in time in grade requirements for promotion, nor in the waiver provision which permit up to one-half the required time in grade to be set aside.

For promotion to E-9, an individual must have served 16 months as an E-8 and have 18 years' active federal service. One-half the time in grade may be waived and eight years of the 18 years' AFS.

For promotion to E-8, an individual must have 14 months as an E-7 and have 15 years' AFS. One-half the time in grade and up to seven years AFS may be waived.

A new requirement is that an individual have a specific amount of active federal service for promotion to grades E-7, E-6, E-5 and E-4. For E-7, the time in grade is 12 months (one-half waivable) and 10 years AFS (five years waivable.

For E-6, the TIG is 10 months and AFS five years. Half the TIG is waivable and up to two years' AFS. This means that grade E-6 cannot be given to an individual until he has completed a "normal" three-year first enlistment and has, apparently, reenlisted.

E-5 Promotions

For E-5, TIG remains eight months (half waivable) and AFS is set at two years, six months with six months waivable. Effect here is to severely limit the number of draftees who can make E-5 before being transferred to the Reserve.

To E-4, TIG is six months (one-half waivable) and AFS is 18 months with six months waivable. There are no changes in time in grade or length of service for promotion to E-3 and E-2.

Individuals must be promotable (that is, not awol, charged or subject to some other disciplinary or security procedure).

They must be recommended by their unit commander.

Qualified MOS

They must be serving in or qualified for the award of the MOS in which the promotion is to be made and must be reclassified into that MOS on promotion. No waiver is permitted on these three items.

The Promotion Qualification Score (PQS) is made mandatory in the proposed change. It is set at 110 but a waiver is permitted so long as the individual's score is 70 or above (the same as that required for a verified MOS).

There must be a position vacancy within the command for each individual recommended for promotion. It is not necessary that the individual occupy the position vacancy. But he must be assigned to the position when he is promoted.

An individual selected for promotion must pass a physical examination. This is waivable.

Education Requirement

Specific educational requirements applied on an Armywide basis are new. They are: for promotion to E-5, the equivalent of an eighth grade education or the equivalent on the GED. For promotion to grades E-6 and above, one must have a high school diploma or the GED equivalent. These requirements can be waived if the individual is taking part in an educational program or "is potentially well-qualified but whose military duties preclude participation in an educational program."

Also new is the requirement that, for promotion, an individual must have the security clearance called for for his grade and MOS and must, for promotion to E-7 or above, have a favorable National Agency Check or a SECRET security clearance.

The use of selection boards is extended downward to include boards of officers and noncommissioned officers to pick for promotion to E-5. Permissive authority is given for use of boards for selection for promotion to E-4.

These boards will be given complete personnel records on all individuals being considered. The CER (or its replacement), including a narrative description of the individual (now absent on the vast majority of CERs), will be supplied for every candidate. Boards will, where practicable, interview candidates.

Results Published

Board results will be published with individuals listed in the order in which promotions are to be given. If the individual is transferred out of the command on PCS before he is promoted, the following applies:

"Newly assigned personnel who have been previously selected will be appropriately placed on the promotion list by the promotion authority based on recommendation of the selection board."

This is interpreted by the DCSPER staff as meaning that if selected in one command, an individual will continue to be selected by the command to which transferred and that the only question involved is where on the gaining command's promotion list he should appear.

Sergeants major at the AUSA-hosted Sergeant Major Conference here last week appeared to be generally favorable towards most of the changes proposed. They seemed to favor a centralized promotion system.

The Army staff, however, holds that it will take four to five years to accumulate enough meaningful information to permit centralized promotions. Meanwhile, this is a possible first step toward such a system and contains changes which will stand by themselves as necessary to improve the enlisted promotion system now in operation.

If a centralized promotion system is developed, it will be adopted in stages. That is, promotions from a centrally-picked recommended list would first be made for the top two grades. As the Army gained experience and information, this would be extended downward to grades E-7, then E-6 and possibly E-5.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has reached an agreement with the Soviet space undertakings.

An existing agreement for the exchange of weather satellite data between Washington and Moscow has been reaffirmed and both the United States and the U.S.S.R. have agreed on the publication of a joint research review. A joint editorial board has been established to that effect.

This board will fully cooperate in the preparation of information available in the United States and the Soviet Union. The board will also participate in the selection of writers and in the publication of their work.

The seven and a half million-pound-thrust Satron V launch vehicle is being considered by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for its planned Voyager program in the unmanned planetary exploration of Mars to take place in 1971. The Saturn is currently under development for the Apollo manned lunar landing program.

However, the role that the 1971 mission will play in the evolution of the landing capsule is now under study. The findings made by the Mariner IV of a more rarified atmosphere on Mars than had been expected will be a major consideration in scheduling early Voyager missions. Engineering test flights of this spacecraft system for 1969 have been cancelled and extensive ground tests are projected for 1971.

SUB-CALIBER SHOOTING . . . Capt. Edward W. Gale gives Pvt. Wayne L. Smith some extra training on the company's Daisy Model 99 Air Rifle. This training aid was introduced at Fort Knox, Ky., when Gale decided to apply the principles of sub-caliber tank firing to basic rifle marksmanship. He purchased the air rifle and set up a 15-foot range to help train sub-standard shooters in their own barracks. Gale feels that the weapon is excellent for diagnosing faults of the firer which are often hard to detect in dry firing.

BB Guns Help Trainees Better Shooting Scores

FT. KNOX, Ky. (AFPS)—"Haven't you ever seen a BB gun before?"

This was the reply made by a non-commissioned officer of the 4th Training Brigade here recently when he was asked what kind of weapon he was carrying.

The air rifle was quite different from the one normally thought of when a BB gun is mentioned. This gun, at a reduced range, has the capability of firing a three-round shot - group small enough to be covered with a pencil eraser. Through the use of the rifle, a novel way to improve the marksmanship of trainees has been found.

Through the trainees' practice with the air rifle, it was discovered that their performance served as an indication of how they would perform in the future using an Army M14 rifle.

Among the advantages of using the air rifles, Capt. Edward W. Gale, the sergeant's company commander cited, "The weapon is excellent for diagnosing faults of the firer which are often hard to detect in dry firing. Used on a large scale it should reduce the number of 'bolos' (trainees who fail to qualify as marksmen) and should raise the general level of marksmanship in a unit."

Success thus far is measured in statistics. With only one air rifle available for practice, the company qualified 94.9 per cent on the rifle range.

Overloading Boats Causes Accidents

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — According to a recent Coast Guard study, nearly half of all lives lost in boating accidents are due to capsizing because of overloading.

To combat the problem, boat manufacturers are being encouraged to put plates inside each boat manufactured stating the load capacity.

The plates will give inexperienced boatmen a good idea how many pounds of equipment and the number of passengers they can safely carry.

Earns Wings on 5th Jump

Pup Becomes Qualified Parachutist

PARACHUTING PUP
Igor with Special Chute

ASCOM, Korea (AFPS)—Igor, a seven-month-old pup who "owns" the parachute riggers at Ascom Depot, isn't a bird dog, but he has more right to call himself one than most dogs.

He recently completed his fifth parachute jump and now proudly wears his parachutist's wings on his collar. He even has his own 18-foot, green and white parachute.

Igor made his first jump when he was about four months old. The riggers thought it would be best to start him young so that any fear of height would be eliminated. The pup surprised them all by displaying no more fear in the aircraft than he did on the ground.

The original idea was to have Igor make the five jumps to qualify him for his wings but he seems to enjoy it so much the riggers are going to let him continue jumping. Unfortunately, they can't get him jump pay.

VFW Chairman Assures 1st Cav Troops of U.S. Public's Support

BY JOE TREASTER

AN KHE, VIET NAM—In a visit to the 1st Air Cavalry Division camp, the commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign War assured troops that the "large masses of the American people" support U. S. policies in Southeast Asia.

In a two and a half hour spin through the camp, the VFW commander, Andy Borg, talked with combat troops and learned from chief of staff Col. George S. Beatty of the division's accomplishments and its plans for the future.

Borg said he was "impressed" with the strides the division had made since landing in Viet Nam in September and "amazed" that troops could be considering a civic action program even before taking care of their own basic needs.

New Dimension

"Your actions reaffirm what I know about the American soldier in adverse conditions," he said. "The winning of the Vietnamese people is to me a new dimension in warfare."

The tall, snowy-headed, World War II veteran said he was making a tour of U. S. foreign installations on behalf of President Lyndon B. Johnson "to let the men know how he appreciates their sacrifices."

Borg said his main purpose in coming to Viet Nam was to tell the troops that the American people support the President's policies and appreciate their efforts.

"I don't feel that the troops should pay any attention to those misguided people who are demonstrating against the war," he said. "The large masses of the American people — from all walks of life—are behind our policy to defend the freedom of the Vietnamese people."

Some Stateside EM to Receive Earlier Notice of Oversea Orders

From the Army Times

WASHINGTON —Some Stateside enlisted men will get earlier notice of their oversea orders as a result of a recent change in reporting procedures.

This earlier notice won't affect large numbers of men and, because of the Viet Nam developments over the past year, doesn't come close to the goal announced more than a year ago of giving an average of four months' notice to all men.

According to DA Message 27497, action is being taken to avoid certain duplicate levies that caused a delay in oversea orders in some cases. Here's how the problem arises:

Enlisted men are selected by name at DA level in the Pentagon to fill oversea requisition. Selection is based on Foreign Service Availability (FSA) code information in the enlisted master tape record.

After men are selected, the Stateside losing commands are notified of their names. But, Continental Army Command also levies installations for deploying units, critical cadre positions and schools, and the local units select men by name to fill these levies.

Levied Twice

Frequently, when the DA name levy for oversea assignment is received by a unit, local authorities find that the same individual has already been applied against a CONARC levy.

The man subject to a duplicate levy doesn't suffer — but someone else does.

The unit notifies DA to delete the individual from the oversea orders. Then DA has to look for another man to fill the oversea requirement.

All this takes time and when another man is selected for the oversea slot he has that much less notice of his impending move.

Orders Published

To "alleviate" the duplicate selections which cause the trouble, the Army is requiring reassignment orders to be published by the losing unit within 48 hours after a man is picked to fill a CONARC levy. At the same time, the individual's changed FSA code must be reported to Data Command for updating of master tape records.

If anything further happens to change the individual's FSA before his departure date, the same procedures apply and new orders must be issued within 48 hours.

Officials don't expect the problem to be eliminated through this action. Even with the "short fuse" on reports required from the field there is still an unavoidable lag before Pentagon records are updated.

But each day saved in reporting will prevent some duplicate levies, they suggest, and give some individuals notice of oversea orders weeks earlier.

The annual service is being held in conjunction with the brigade-wide program which has designated November as go-to-church month for members of the 197th.

The featured speaker for the program will be Col. Jacob L. Riley Jr., brigade commander, who will speak on the topic "Go Inquire Concerning the Book." The service will be an all layman program with members of various units within the 197th participating.

Lt. Col. William E. Boyd, commander of the 58th Infantry, will be the master of ceremonies while Miss Freedy Marshall, a well-known entertainer in the Columbus area, will be the featured soloist.

Also participating in the Sunday service will be Sgt. Guy Sullivan of Headquarters Company, 58th Infantry, who will give the invocation: Capt. Robert K. Hartley, commander of Company A, 69th Armor, who will lead the responsive reading; and Sgt. John H. Graham of Company B, 69th Armor, who will read the opening prayer. The welcome will be extended by Capt. Hampton Erwin III, commander of Company B, 58th Infantry.

Brothers Work Together Here For First Time in 16 Years

Two brothers who have been in the Army a total of 28 years are now combining their efforts to feed the soldiers of Company C, 1st Battalion, 1st Training Brigade.

Brothers SSgt. Theodore C. Dalton and Sp5 Tom H. Dalton are working together for the first time in their military careers.

Ted is mess steward and Tom is the first cook in Company C, 1st Battalion, 1st Brigade, U. S. Army Training Center.

The Dalton brothers have worked together to build a reputation for fine food for the Company C mess hall.

Sgt. Dalton served in the Pacific during World War II and was discharged after two years of service. In 1948, he began a five-year tour of duty. He then worked with food service companies from 1953 to 1961, catering for the armed services.

In 1961, he returned to active military duty, feeling there was more satisfaction in Army food service and direct relationship with personnel whose morale is often determined by the quality of food served them.

Since 1961, he has received many awards and letters of appreciation.

Sgt. Dalton lives at 3509 Lakeside Rd. with his wife, Pauline. He has two sons, Sgt. Theodore L. Dalton Jr., a drill sergeant in the 2nd Training Brigade in Benning's Sand Hill area and Sp4 James Warren Dalton, who is stationed in Paris, France.

Specialist Dalton, Company C's first cook, took his basic training at Fort Jackson, S. C., in 1949. He served as a surveyor in artillery observation at Fort Sill, Okla., in Korea and at Fort Bragg, N. C. The winter of 1954-1955, he attended Cooking and Baking School and Mess Management School at Fort Bragg.

After serving two years in Germany, Sp5 Dalton came to Fort Benning and cooked at the ROTC Summer Camp, Infantry Center Military Police Company and Martin Army Hospital before joining Company C.

He lives at 2708 Lumpkin Rd. with his wife, Mary, and children, Tom Jr., 13; Richard, 12; and Diane, 7.

TOPS NCO ACADEMY . . . SSgt. Delton Whittington (right) of Benning's 2nd Training Brigade, was recent honor graduate of the 3rd US Army NCO Academy, Class 3-C-65. He is presented the commandant's trophy for attaining the highest standards and minimum demerits during his course at the academy. The presentation is made by Lt. Col. Robert E. Baden as Lt. Col. Murray G. Jones, commandant of the Academy, looks on. Graduation ceremonies were held at Fort Jackson's Theater No. 4.

'Operation Support' Now Backing President's Policy in Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Scrolls with thousands of signatures acknowledging civilian support of United States military actions to protect freedom are being sent to the Military Assistance Command, Viet Nam.

The Scrolls, one containing 7,000 signatures and another with letters from 2,500 persons, were presented to Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus R. Vance by Mrs. John C. Parker, originator of "Operation Support."

Mrs. Parker got the idea for "Operation Support" after hearing an American officer request "letters of support" during an interview in the RVN.

Secretary Vance said, "We can all be proud of what our soldiers, sailors, Marines and airmen are doing out there. We are certainly appraciative of what you have done for our men in Viet Nam and want to express our appreciation to you for what you have done."

Mrs. Parker's "Operation Support" petition is an open letter to the men and women of the United States military forces in the RVN, the Dominican Republic, West Berlin and other areas of the world.

Using a Christmas card mailing list, Mrs. Parker sent copies of the petition to her friends who in turn passed the petition to others. She has also corresponded with Gen. W. C. Westmoreland, Military Assistance Commander, Viet Nam.

An item in an Evansville, Ind., newspaper attracted the attention of Walter J. Dilbeck, a World War II veteran, who recommended wider dissemination of the petition. Through the efforts of Mr. Dilbeck, arrangements were made to present the scrolls to Secretary Vance.

The petition acknowledges citizen support and confidence in U.S. military forces, "realizing that in protecting those peoples who are living under the threat of communism you are also protecting our freedom."

Those signing the petition agree, "We want you to know that the hysterical outcries of the 'peace-at-any-price' individuals DO NOT represent the true feelings of the American people."

Purple Heart Displays Set In Cemeteries

WASHINGTON (ANF) — A permanent display of the Purple Heart medal at each of the 22 American World War I and II overseas cemeteries has been authorized by President Johnson "as a perpetual symbol of the profound gratitude of a breaved nation for the devotion and sacrifice of the heroes who are commemorated here."

A certificate bearing these words and signed by the President along with the Purple Heart medal and a brief history of the decoration, will be placed on permanent exhibition in the Visitors' Building of each cemetery.

Medical Teams To Give Help To Viet Civilians

WASHINGTON — The Army, Navy and Air Force, under Army supervision, will send six mobile military medical teams to the Republic of Viet Nam in early November to augment the medical staffs of civilian provincial hospitals there.

Under what is to be known as the Military Provincial Hospital Assistance Program, the teams will expand health and medical services for the civilian population.

The teams will help to alleviate an acute shortage of medical personnel in Viet Nam. There are less than 1000 physicians for a population of 14 million in Viet Nam or about one doctor for each 20,000 people. By campari-son, there is a doctor for each 700 people in the United States.

Radio Maintenance Training at Infantry School Expects to Increase Graduate Numbers This Year

Radio maintenance training at Fort Benning is expected to increase by some 250 men this year in Army manpower build - up, the Electronics Committee of the Infantry School's Communications Department announced recently.

The 12-week radio maintenance course is designed to train men to perform second echelon maintenance on the field radios and electronics equipment of Infantry units.

Thirty - two enlisted instructors from the Electronics Committee teach the course which is divided into fundamentals and maintenance portions. All instructors are qualified field radio repair specialists.

Training is conducted in building four in four modern classrooms equipped with closed circuit television and approximately two million dollars worth of instructional equipment.

The student spends from 40 to 45 hours a week in classroom work and an average of two hours a night in studying. For students who are having difficulty in their work, extra help is available from instructors in a special study hall set aside at the Infantry School during evening hours.

In the fundamental phase of the program, the student learns the basics of electricity and radio and is given a substantial block of instruction in mathematics. Each student entering the course must have at least one year of algebra or a minimum score of 45 on the mathematics portion of the GED test. A General Test score of at least 100 is also required.

In the second half of the course, the student studies FM, AM and single side ban radio and learns how to set up, maintain and operate infantry radio equipment.

As part of the training, instructors put defects or "bugs" in various electronic equipment and students attempt to isolate the trouble and make necessary repairs.

Eleven Pilots Finish Training

Eleven pilots completed the six - week transition course at Fort Benning last week and are now qualified to fly the Army's CV2B (Caribou) aircraft.

Conducted by the 10th Aviation Group, this was the second class to be graduated here. Fort Benning has the only Army transition course to familiarize and train qualified pilots to operate the Caribou. Pilots from U.S. and overseas military installations attend the course.

Lt. Col. Lester C. Robertson, deputy commander of the 10th, presented diplomas to the graduates in exercises at Lawson Army Airfield.

Of the 11 completing the training, which consists of approximately 90 hours of flying in the Caribou and 44 hours of maintenance instruction and classroom work on the aircraft, six will be assigned to Viet Nam. The other five graduates expect assignments in the United States.

Another transition course started Monday.

A Distaff Tip

Housework Can Leave You Time for Leisure

No matter how large your family or how much time you spend on housework, you may be able to make your daily chores easier, have more time for fun and family by heeding a few tips from the experts.

By simplifying your work, you can save energy and lots of time as well. For in cleaning a house, as in winning a spouse, the right technique can save hours, weeks, even years of effort.

First of all, find your own ryhthmic, relaxed way of doing things and stick to it. Playing music while you work, for example, may help you relax. Hasty thinking and hasty working seldom accomplish what you want — and cost you more time in the long run.

By organizing your jobs so that you can stay on one floor of your home or in one area of your apartment until you have completed them, you can save yourself a lot of unnecessary steps. A table on wheels can be used for assembling and transporting food, dishes, groceries, cleaning supplies, laundry and many other things from place to place. It also saves heavy lifting and provides welcome extra work space where it is needed.

Convenient Appliances

When you tackle those cleaning jobs, make sure you're using the most convenient appliances you can afford. Long - handled dust pans, brooms and mops will spare you a lot of stooping. Two dust mits, one for each hand, speed the cleaning chore. You'll save time and trouble by keeping all your cleaning supplies together in a basket.

Take a load off our feet by sitting to do your work whenever you can. You can sit to do a wide range of tasks — ironing, cleaning vegetables, feeding the baby.

When you sit to iron, for example, the chair should support your back and be a comfortable height to permit you to use the same arm movements as when you stand. First assemble everything you need within easy reach. Place dampened clothes at your left (preferably on a portable table) and set a rack to hold ironed clothes at your right.

Worksavers

Every housewife spends a great deal of time in the kitchen but you can make cooking and doing dishes less bothersome with these worksavers. Store seasonings, serving dishes and utensils needed at the stove right next to your range on easy-to-reach shelves. You may find open shelves preferable because they make it easier to get at supplies. Many utensils such as stirring spoons and pancake turners can be hung on walls near the stove. You will do less stooping while preparing family meals if your stove has a high oven.

The height of your kitchen sink is also important. If it's too low, you strain your back by stooping to do dishes. A rack in the sink under your dishpan will raise it to a more comfortable height. When washing dishes always scrape dishes and let [illegible]

Required maintenance: The following maintenance services are required under the warranty—change engine oil every 3 months or 4,000 miles, whichever comes first; replace oil filter every second oil change; clean carburetor air filter every 6 months and replace it every 2 years; and every 6 months furnish evidence of this required service to a Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealer and request him to certify receipt of such evidence and your car's mileage. Simple enough for such important protection.

Military Sports Council Honors Late President

NEW YORK (AFPS) — A tribute to a lifetime love of sports was paid to President John F. Kennedy, Oct. 25.

Senator Robert F. Kennedy, D.-N.Y., accepted, in the late President's name, the Member of Honor award from the 35-nation Conseil International Du Sport Militaire (CISM) at Olympic House here.

The Award was presented by Brig. Gen. Royal Hatch, USAF, Council President. President Kennedy is the 12th recipient of the award and the second American to receive it. This is the first time the medal has been awarded posthumously.

Previous recipients include: King Paul of Greece; King Olaf V of Norway; King Baudouin of Belgium; King Constantine of Greece; and General Joseph T. McNarney, USA, founder of the Allied Sports Council, forerunner of the current CISM organization.

During the presentation, Gen. Hatch said, "As an individual, John Kennedy showed a love of sports and competition, a courage in adversity and a generosity in victory that will long provide examples to athletes of all nations, thereby furthering the ideal of international goodwill through sports."

Founded in 1948, with headquarters in Brussels, Belgium, CISM is one of the foremost international sports associations conducting annual competitions among military athletic teams.

Officers' Wives Support Christmas Projects

Plans are currently under way by the Fort Benning Officers' Wives' Club to send large shipments of individual gift packages to soldiers in Viet Nam as part of the OWC Christmas project "Christmas for GI's in Viet Nam."

Mrs. Thomas G. Sweet, project chairman for the OWC, has encouraged everyone in the Fort Benning-Columbus area to participate.

The Wives' Club also announced this week that it is giving its full backing to "Operation Christmas Cheer," the project instituted by the Columbus chapter of Viet Nam Mail Call. "Christmas Cheer" will also send gifts to U. S. soldiers in Viet Nam. 1st Cavalry wives living here have also expressed their whole hearted support.

Mrs. Sweet said that anyone wishing to donate gifts should fill a box, approximately the size of a shoe box, with small useful items. The carton should weigh no more than two pounds and should be gift wrapped.

Pick up centers will be set up on Nov. 18 and 19 at the Main Officers' Club, Custer Terrace Shopping Center, the Academic Building, NCO Club, Main Post Protestant Chapel, Kelley Hill Chapel and the 197th Infantry Brigade Chapel on Sightseeing Road.

Packages should be delivered at the pick up centers between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. The OWC will wrap and ship the packages to Viet Nam in time for Christmas, Mrs. Sweet said.

Suggested items for the packages include large and small screw-top plastic containers, plastic wallets and bill folds, new or used pocket books and light weight current magazines, ball point pens, self-sealing air mail envelopes, stationary, school supplies for distribution to Vietnamese children, cigarette lighters without fluid, plastic cigarette cases and food such as cookies, candy, brownies, dried fruits, packages of seasoned corn for popping, small canned foods and foil wrapped packages of presweetened powdered drinks.

JUST ONE VITAMIN

What is a vitamin? Mrs. Rita Waters of the Georgia Extension Service says a vitamin is a substance needed for vital life processes.

More important vitamins must be furnished to the body in the form needed because the body, with slight exceptions, cannot make vitamins from other substances.

Vitamins by themselves do not build tissue or provide heat and energy. They are nevertheless, essential for the use of other food substances to carry out important body functions.

Book Review

Politics of 'Making of President'

The Making Of The President 1964, by Theodore H. White, Atheneum Publishers, 1965.

The balance of political power in the United States depends on an extremely unpredictable factor - the American public.

The great political organizations spend millions of dollars and hundreds of thousands of man hours trying to gauge public opinion and temperments and still every presidential election hangs in the dramatic climax of the election day when the actual ballots are cast.

Election day is the zenith of a year of campaigning, cajoling and criticizing. It's a day when the hopes of one man and one party are recognized to the fullest as the opposition goes down in defeat and possibly into political obscurity.

The 1964 election year began with a disaster - the assassination of a president. More than any other thing, the murder of John F. Kennedy played an enormous role in the selection of the next president.

From the moment Lyndon Johnson took over the presidency, the public knew he would be the Democratic choice for the candidacy in 1964.

The questions that arose then were who would be the democratic choice for the vice presidential candidacy and who would the Republicans choose to oppose the man who sat in the White House.

The campaigning through the primaries and the conventions and the final election are now history. The votes have been cast and the largest presidential landslide in history has been recorded. It is now time to speculate and study the reasons behind the final outcome of the elections.

Theodore H. White, does more than just speculate, however, in "The Making of the President."

A widely acclaimed political author, White won the Pulitzer Prize for his "The Making of The President 1960", a companion work of his present best seller.

White does more than record the obvious; he delves into the reasons, the personalities and the effects. His story of the 1964 election discusses the dominating issues, the battle of conservatism against liberalism and the strength of the man who was elected in the midst of perilous times.

The book is a portrait of American politics, delineating the ins and outs of a presidential election discussed by a man who has proven himself a knowlegable student of the American political scene . . . MIKE GROGAN

ATC Welcome Station Opens Here

The U. S. Army Training Center Family Welcome Station was officially opened here on Oct. 27 with Col. Bob E. Edwards, commander of the Training Center, officiating at the ribbon cutting ceremony.

FROZEN MEATS

If meat from your freezer has a brownish discoloration on the surface, don't panic. The meat is not spoiled, even though it may not be as flavorful as it should be.

Miss Nelle Thrash of the Extension Service says the discoloration is called "freezer burn." It is caused by a loss of moisture from the surface of the meat. It is an indication that the wrapping has been punctured or that the material used to wrap the frozen meat was not moisture and vapor proof.

The Welcome Station, Bldg. 3844 in the Sand Hill area, will be under the direction of the Training Center Special Services officer, 1st Lt. Gary L. Taylor.

At the opening ceremony, Lt. Taylor said the Welcome Station will provide a central location for trainees and their families or guests to meet during off-duty visits.

While awaiting the trainee's arrival from his unit, the visitors have a TV lounge, snack room, play room, nursery and complete locator service at their disposal. The guests also will be furnished a list of available on and off-post overnight accommodations upon request .The locator service will keep update card files on each trainee.

The Welcome Station will be open Monday through Thursday, 1 p.m. to 10 p.m. Friday, 1 p.m. to midnight; Saturday 8 a.m. to midnight and Sunday, 8 a.m. until 10 p.m.

Three Benning Soldiers Members of U.S. Skeet Shooting Team in Chile

Three members of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit have earned spots on the United States trap and skeet team which will participate in the World Moving Target Championship at Santiago, Chile, this month.

A fourth member of the unit will also be there as an official U. S. referee.

Sp4 Kevin Onka and Sp4 Gary Simonson, both of whom were promoted at Lawson, Ga., and Sgt. Joseph J. Peot, commanding officer of the MTU, will fire in the trap competition, and PFC Richard Kulesh is entered in the skeet competition.

Lt. Col. Lawrence Enterkin, chief of the MTU Competitive Division, has been selected as a referee at the matches.

The quartet departed from Muscogee County Airport Wednesday for South America.

The skeet competition will be held November 10-12 and the trap matches are slated for November 19-21. The team will return to the US November 23.

The three shooters gained their berths during tryouts which were held at Lackland AFB, Tex., in October, and are the only Army members of the 12-man U. S. team.

Onka finished second in the elimination contests and Simonson was sixth. Kulesh was fourth in the skeet competition.

Col. D. L. Cool of the Marine Corps is officer-in-charge of the U. S. team and Ken Pendergrass, a retired Navy man, is team adjutant.

Each country will also enter a four-man team in the team matches. Team scores will be determined by the scores fired in portions of the individual events.

The matches, which are sponsored by the International Shooting Union, will draw the finest shotgun shooters in the world. The skeet events will consist of 200 targets and the trapshooters will fire at 300 targets.

Engines of this type are used for take-off and landing of vertical and short take-off landing (V-STOL) aircraft. The development could have wide application to transport as well as tactical military aircraft if substantial savings in development costs through the joint project in addition to an engine incorporating the best of the two technologies.

Picture Role Makes Actor Feel Unwanted

In "The Hill," a motion picture drama of stark events taking place within a British military stockade during World War II, Ian Hendry has the role of a guard who spends most of his time making life miserable for the prisoners.

After awhile the role "got him."

On completion of a sequence in which he had spent several hours hounding Sean Connery, cast as a broken sergeant major, Hendry turned to the film's director, Sidney Lumet and pleaded:

"Say something nice to me, will you? I want to feel wanted!"

US, Britain To Develop Jet Engine

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Secretary of Defense has signed a memorandum of agreement with Great Britain's Minister of Aviation for a joint project to develop an advanced lift jet engine.

The development will be performed, in close collaboration, by Rolls Royce, Ltd., and a U. S. contractor not yet chosen.

It results in a significant advance in lightweight engine technology.

Soldier Gets Return on Money Through Red Cross Assistance

The American Red Cross field office at Fort Benning is one of the 27 agencies which will benefit from the United Givers Fund Drive now being conducted on post.

Over 20,300 soldiers and their dependents received direct assistance from this single United Givers Fund agency last year.

The operating cost for this agency was over $300,000; however, only 18,000 was collected by United Givers from Benning to support this service.

This, according to officials, represents a return of 17 times the original investment of the Fort Benning soldier.

The various services that the Red Cross provides include consultation and guidance, assistance with communication between the serviceman and his family, reports related to emergency leave, compassionate reassignment, overseas deferment and hardship discharge.

Emergency financial assistance of over $143,450 was rendered to military personnel in needy situations. Outright grants totaling $16,628 were made during this same period.

William H. Higgs, American Red Cross field director, recently stated "The Fort Benning Red Cross office stands ready to aid all servicemen and their families with personal problems often arising while they are in the military service."

Red Cross volunteers are recruited, sponsored, trained and supervised by twenty seven full - time Red Cross workers from this office. In 1964, 3,061 volunteers donated over 52,750 hours of service to Fort Benning personnel. Their activities ranged from teaching swimming lessons for children of servicemen to serving coffee and donuts to combat soldiers departing for Viet Nam.

Other activities sponsored by the local Red Cross office include the water safety and blood donation programs. Last year, 1034 certificates were awarded to swimmers upon completion of courses ranging from the beginning swimmer to the water safety instructor level. Also, Fort Benning soldiers donated over 6600 pints of blood to the Red Cross regional blood bank.

The Fort Benning Red Cross office has three branches located at Harmony Church, Sand Hill and Martin Army Hospital.

Coal Consumption Rises This Year

Consumption of United States bituminous coal is expected to reach a 14-year high of 506 million tons this year, or 5.6 per cent up from the 479.1 million tons used last year, the National Coal association estimated recently. Exports of soft coal to overseas markets, which reached 33.8 million tons in 1964, are expected to climb by 3.6 per cent to 35 million tons.

300 Housing Units Slated For Benning

Three hundred new enlisted housing units are scheduled for construction at Fort Benning before the end of this fiscal year.

According to G-4 installation officials, the three hundred units will be eight-family, two story dwellings to be built behind what is presently known as the "new NCO Capehart area" off Indianhead Road.

Fort Benning is among eight areas which will receive 1680 new housing units. The breakdown for the Army housing is as follows:

Presidio of San Francisco, Calif., 150; Fort Leavenworth, Kan., 50; Fort Meade, Md., 100; Fort Monmouth, N. J., 100; U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., 200; Fort Jackson S. C., 180; Canal Zone, 360.

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Association of the United States Army (AUSA) has announced the publication of the "Army 1965 Green Book," a special 146 page report on the U.S. Army, in the November issue of the AUSA monthly magazine "Army."

The Green Book, first issued in 1964, meets the demand for a reference book of current factual and useful information on the Army. It will have a circulation in excess of 100,000.

FALSE ALARM

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — Louis Parks opened a valve in the sprinkler system at Robertsville Junior High to flush out a nest which some wasps had built in a pipe. He inadvertently set off a fire alarm. Two police cars, three fire trucks and some other officials quickly converged on the building. Parks grinned sheepishly and commented, "at least I got the wasps out."

Army Boxers Take CISM Championship

From the Army Times

MUNICH, Germany — The U. S. needed only the firepower of the Seventh Army to repulse its foes and win the 1965 CISM Boxing Championships recently before a SRO crowd in the Circus Krone Arena. Usually an also-ran in CISM boxing, the U. S. entries won its first team title since 1961 on the strength of four gold, two silver and two bronze medals.

U. S. gold medal victors were 24th Div. flyweight Harlan Marbley, 8th Div. light welterweight Robert Smith, 8th Div. light heavyweight Winston Gilbert, and 3d Div. heavyweight Billy Watkins.

What was particularly significant in the team victory was that none of the gold medal winners had ever won an All-Army title.

Another former Inter-Service king, 8th Div.'s featherweight Charles Taylor, slugged it out with Tunisia's Djemal Hassen in the opening round and apparently was getting the best of the brawl. The pair then moved into the ropes and began mauling each other when blood began trickling from Taylor's eye and the bout was stopped. U. S. boxing coach Baron Walker of the 8th Div. later said, "Taylor was butted when he had his head down against the ropes." It was the first time Taylor had failed to finish a bout.

MARBLEY PROVED too powerful for Tunisian Tahar Tarnoual as he floored his foe midway in the first round with a hard right and seconds later dropped him with another right and the fight was stopped.

Smith, current USAREUR lightweight king moved up to lightwelter but he was punching just as hard. In the first round, and then again in the second, Smith dropped Spaniard Antonio Torcida. The script was the same in the third as Smith nailed his game opponent again and this time when he fell the ref lifted Smith's arm in victory.

Gilbert, USAREUR middleweight champ, also moved up in weight and defeated a Tunisian and a Dutchman to gain the finals. Against the Frenchman Henri Moreau, Gilbert found a willing foe as the pair traded evenly in the first round. Gilbert scored with a hard overhand right in the second cutting the Frenchman on the bridge of the nose. The American stayed in front in the third and won easily.

THE FOURTH gold medal winner, Billy Watkins, scored first round KOs in his first two bouts but he had a tougher time against German Werner Larmann. The heavies both respected each other's bombs and played it safe during two fairly mild rounds. In the last round Watkins' right sent the German reeling across the ring and onto the canvas. The knockdown was all Watkins needed to gain the verdict.

ACES GALORE

Most golfers would consider getting one hole-in-one during their careers quite an achievement.

However, it is getting to be a habit with Jim Lugareli of Conneaut Lake, Pa. He came through with the sixth of his lifetime this week. The 51-year-old player scored his latest ace when he sank a 173-yarder on the par three seventh hole at Conneaut Lake.

Driving Range To Stay Open In Evenings

Golfing members of the Main Officers' Club will be able to sharpen their games under lights at the Country Club driving range beginning Nov. 9.

According to club officials, the driving range will remain open until 9 p.m. each evening. Later operating hours may be established if the need arises.

Golf clubs will be available to golfers using the range.

Since the pro shop is closed during the evenings, officials advised that members desiring to use their personal clubs should check them out prior to 6 p.m.

LOSERS SPARED

The University of Pittsburgh football coaching staff gathered to watch movies of their game against Syracuse last week. But they couldn't see a thing because all of the film was spoiled. Perhaps it is just as well. Pittsburgh lost, 51 to 13.

29th Infantry Tops 197th's Grid Tourney

The 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry dominated the 197th Infantry Brigade touch-football playoffs last week sending two teams to the post playoffs.

Representing the 197th are Company D and Headquarters Company who won contests with Company C, 69th Armor and Brigade Troops to earn the right to represent the 197th.

Led by the passing of quarterback Jim Holder and the pass snatching of ends Monte Clausen and Jerry Ciampi, Company D toppled Headquarters Company, 27-0, in the finals of the six-day, double elimination tourney to grab the brigade championship.

Holder took the opening kickoff and scampered down the sidelines to the Headquarters 10 yard line. He followed the opening run with a quickie pass to Otis Redman for a touchdown and Company D was off and running.

Eight Teams Now Battle For Benning Grid Title

The Infantry Center touch football playoffs got underway Monday under the lights at Gowdy Field with four teams beginning eight days of grid battles to decide the 1965 Benning champs.

Company D, 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, one of the top rated contenders for the grid crown this year, beat the 98th Ordnance Company, Infantry Center Troop Command, 16 to 12, in the first of two games Monday. Company D won the 197th's crown last week in the brigade's playoffs while the 98th Ordnance came out on top of CTC's tournament last week with six wins and two losses.

In a second game Monday, Headquarters Company of the 29th Infantry blanked Martin Army Hospital, 22 to 0. Headquarters Company was runnerup in the 197th Infantry Brigade playoff.

In action on Tuesday, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, CTC got a free victory over the 41st Company, 4th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, when 41st could only field six players at game time.

Headquarters and Headquarters Company, TSB defeated the 69th Medical Company, 428th Medical Battalion, 18 to 14, in the second of Tuesday's games. The Med company is the 428th's tournament champ.

In the first of two games Wednesday, Company D, 29th Infantry chalked up its second playoff win by defeating Headquarters Company of the 29th, 18 to 12. Headquarters Company, TSB got its second triumph in two days by beating Headquarters Company, CTC, 28 to 18.

Yesterday two more games were scheduled for Gowdy Field. At 6:30 p.m. the 98th Ordnance Company was slated to meet Martin Army Hospital and at 8 p.m. the 41st Company was to play the 69th Medical Company. The playoffs are scheduled to end this Wednesday.

The annual fall tennis championships for youngsters 16 years old and under came to a close last Sunday at the Main Officers' Club courts with 13 year old Neal Wright winning the open singles title.

Earlier in the week, Wright scored wins against Larry Withers and Steve Crawford to boost himself into the finals. Rush, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ray J. Rush, rose to the finals on victories over Don Gregory and Ellison Withers.

Wright later teamed up with Ellison Withers to take the doubles championship by beating Gregory and Lang Withers 6-1, 1-6, 6-0.

The tourney began on Oct. 28.

Five Games Played In Kid's Grid Action

Fort Benning youngsters clashed in five grid battles last week as Youth Activities Club (YAC) sponsored football continued.

The Intermediate League Huskies chalked up their fourth straight win by blanking the Eagles, 28 to 0. In the first period, fullback Pete Calin ran 40 yards for the first touchdown and then booted the extra point. Halfback Jim Fox scored in the second period on a 10 yard sweep with John Carter kicking the point after.

Quarterback Gus McLeod continued the Huskie scoring when he tallied on a 45 yard keep play. Fox kicked the point after and in the final period broke loose for a 70 yard run and another six points.

The game brought the Huskies' scoring total to 94 points. They have given up only six points to their opponents.

The Intermediate No. 1 team beat the winless Mustangs, 24 to 7, with Steve Gochenouer steaming off tackle in the opening period for the first I-1 score.

In the second period, Lee Milner threw a 45 yard pass to Pink Dillard for I-1's second tally. Gochenouer got the third touchdown in the third period on a 20 yard counter play with Milner passing to the right halfback in the final period for I-1's last score.

The Mustangs' only touchdown came on Kenny Mason's 40 yard run off left tackle.

In other action, the unbeaten White Knights scored another win by crushing the Varmints, 35 to 0. Eddie Hurst and Al Taylor took scoring honors with two touchdowns each.

The Red Devils got their second straight shutout win by blasting the Eagles, 28 to 0, in other play. Rodney Walker scored twice for the Eagles with Don Hance and Bobby Harrow getting single touchdowns.

The Green Hornets downed the Tigers, 12 to 0, to move into second place in the Intermediate League. Quarterback Ricky Gochenouer hit Bruce Jones on a 35 yard pass play in the second quarter and then carried the ball himself for the score.

In the fourth quarter, Eddie Edmond raced around right end and went 44 yards for the Hornets' second tally.

AVERAGED 44.1 POINTS

National Football League teams averaged 44.1 points a game last season in 98 regular season games.

Gunnarsson Tops Fla. Rifle Meet

Sgt. Martin Gunnarsson of the Army Marksmanship Training Unit slammed out an aggregate of 783 to capture the Smallbore Rifle Position Championship at Winter Haven, Fla. last week.

Meanwhile on the west coast, MTU service rifle shooters participated in the Fall Invitational High Power matches, taking a large share of the first place awards.

The Invitational aggregate title went to Sixth Army's Sgt. William Lee with a 748 with two MTU shooters next. Sgt. William Duncan was runnerup with 746 and Sgt. George Norris was third.

The MTU shooters won top honors in team matches at both events. In Winter Haven they took the Iron Sight event with a score of 1,556. On the coast, the soldiers were high in the six-man team match with 1,488 and the Infantry Trophy event with 1,268. The MTU B squad was runnerup in the latter with 1,183.

In the high power championships, the MTU riflemen accounted for nine first place awards out of 13 in the individual matches and both team events.

The smallbore shooters captured four out of five first place trophies at Winter Haven. The service rifle shooters also chalked up 11 second place finishes and nine third place awards.

WINNING ASSIGNMENT

Syracuse football coach Ben Schwartzwalder recalls undergoing an intensive interview several years ago when he applied for the coaching job at a high school in Canton, Ohio.

As the interview came to a close, Schwartzwalder asked how many games he was expected to win in his first year.

The answer: "Just one. The only team you have to beat is our arch-rival Massilon High."

Just as Schwartzwalder was beginning to feel pretty good about the assignment, the interviewer added:

"But, if your team is good enough to beat Massilon, it should murder all the other teams on the schedule."

The Aftermath

Supply and Demand

PAID SPECTATOR sports must inevitably follow the law of supply and demand. We plunk down our demanding buck and smart sports promoters are eager to supply. Too many failures by promoters to live up to their half of the sports bargain result in unfilled stadiums and arenas. In this fabulous age of the million dollar gate, the public must get what it wants or want what it gets.

It stands to reason, therefore, that what any paid spectator sport is in the majority of times depends on what we want it to be.

Recently, while submerged in the bloody violence that drips from our T.V. screens, I flipped the channel selector on an impulse of schoolboy naivete to see what was new. The Frank Nitti mob disappeared from the screen as they were giving the coup de grace to Steve the Stoolie. A few notches away on the selector better things were going on.

Skull Murphy towered in the ring and raised a threatening fist to a grandmother in the second row who retaliated by waving a menacing hat pin. All the while Skull kept putting pressure on a good guy's throat that rested under his shoe. The referee, with an impotence that was startling to behold, meekly patted Skull on the back like a gnat scratching a rhinoceros. As I viewed the comic opera, I wondered what had professional wrestling become.

Rough and Tumble Action

MOST SPORTS-MINDED people today think of professional wrestling as a prearranged show of rough and tumble acting with little sports merit. But although this may be true, pro wrestling does exist as a brand of sport for many people and it was once legitimate. Why the debauch? The answer can only lie in what we have demanded. Wrestling survives as it does today because we enjoy it and pay for it.

What professional wrestling offers us today is a diversion that is part mayhem, part fantasy and part Lassie versus the mountain lion.

Wrestling pretends to come as close to a no-holds-barred gladiator combat as propriety and the Federal Communications Commission allow. Gouging, kicking, strangling and biting, are used with apparent impunity. It is pure violence and what makes it more enjoyable is that it is done in violation of rules of the game and with disregard to the legally constituted authority of our gnatty referee.

But an air of phantasy overrides it all and as carmine capsules of blood drips to the mat, we suspect a sham. Jack Armstrong couldn't take that impossible beating from Skull Murphy and survive. Skull couldn't dish

Services to Compete In Chess Tournament

Three service teams will meet in Washington, D. C., tomorrow at the start of the sixth annual Interservice Chess Tournament. The teams will represent the Army, Air Force and Sea Services (Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard).

PFC Robert Milardo of Fort Benning was named last week as second alternate on the Army team by the American Chess Foundation which is sponsoring the competition. However, at press time, Milardo was not planning to attend the meet because all five regular members of the Army team were ready to participate.

The tourney is scheduled to end on Nov. 13.

Only four of the 20 finalists and alternates on the 1965 list have participated in any of the previous championship competitions. Lt. William E. Webbert, USA, a finalist last year, is Army's first alternate this year. Aviation Antisubmarine Warfare Technician Second Class Johan A. Hansen, USN, was the top Sea Services player last year.

Electronics Technician Second Class Zacarias S. Chavez Jr., USCG, winner of the "Most Brilliant Game" award in 1963, will play again this year along with Airman First Class Ross F. Sprague, USAF. The Air Force won the championship in 1963 and '64.

Each team will consist of five men and alternates. The team with the highest total score will receive the Thomas Emery Championship Trophy.

Individual sterling silver trophies will go to the top three individual winners and all finalists will receive the American Chess Foundation silver medallion. Various other special awards will also be presented.

This year's tournament will be held in the American Legion "Hall of Flags."

Post Shooting Club Holds Barbeque and Elections

PEOT

The Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club held its annual barbeque for members last weekend and more than 200 turned out in the picnic grove near the post pistol range.

A 60-shot members' pistol match was held in the morning and, after a lunch of barbequed chicken, the club group elected officers for the forthcoming year.

Voted into office were Col. Joseph J. Peot, president; Maj. Joseph H. Gregory, vice president; Capt. Dannie George, executive officer; MSgt. Aubrey Wells, secretary and Lt. Jeffrey Thomason, treasurer.

Winner of the pistol match, which was open to all club members, was SFC Arthur Ogden of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, who dropped only two points out of a possible 600.

Two of the women members of the club garnered a pair of the first place awards.

Capt. Sallie Carroll of the Center Troop Command took top honors in the master class with a 594 and Ester Sims of Cottonton, Ala., was high gun in the sharpshooter class with a 575.

The men managed to take the expert category when William P. Davis of West Point, Ga., came in ahead of the field with a 585. In the marksman class, Don Parker of Columbus placed first with a 532.

Lt. Milan Rand of the Columbus Police Department won the honors in the unclassified category with a 479.

Electric clocks were presented to the winners by Capt. Lewis Sharp, outgoing president of the club.

Arrangements for the day's outing were made by Tom Kirkman, club custodian.

Company Tops 29th Infantry Shooting Match

Company C, 1st Battalion of the 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade was the winner of the recent battalion small-bore marksmanship competition held at the Main Post indoor range.

Company C garnered a total of 1,485 points out of a possible 1800 points in the rifle competition and 764 of 1200 points in the pistol contest.

In the rifle category, Sgt. George Mills was top shooter with a total of 261 out of a possible score of 300. Other members of the winning rifle team were Sgt. Charles Paul, Sgt. Jose Pablo, Sgt. Francisco Ramon, PFC Kenneth Kennedy and Lt. Welborn Callahan.

High scorer on the pistol team was Lt. Carleton Vencell with 228 points out of 300. Other Co. C shooters were Sgt. Robert Smith, Sgt. William Zorn and Sgt. Lee Williams.

MATCHES INSURED

(AP) — The Lawn Tennis Association of Australia has decided to insure Sidney's Davis Cup challenge round (starting December 27th) for $45,000 against a cancellation because of an outbreak of war. The odds are 50 to one.

Benning Teams to Begin Hoop Play on Thursday

The Infantry Center basketball season will get underway this Thursday with 13 teams slated to take part in the four-month battalion level play this year.

The Special Services Office has announced that competition will be divided into two halves. The first half will be a double round robin and the second half a single round robin.

The won and loss record of each team will determine the half champs with half winners meeting for a best two out of three series for the post championship, a Special Services spokesman said.

League play is scheduled to continue until March 5 with the post championships taking place the following week.

In the event a single team wins both half titles, it will automatically be declared post champ, according to the Special Services Office. The second place team will then be determined by the highest total of games won in both halves of play.

The Student Brigade will enter two teams in the competition. TSB's team No. 1 will be composed of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, TSB, 4th Student Battalion and Infantry School Battalion. TSB team No. 2 will consist of men from the 1st Ranger Battalion, 5th Student Battalion, 15th Finance Disbursing Section, U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit and the 2nd Student Battalion.

The Infantry Center Troop Command will have three participating teams this year. CTC team No. 1 will be composed of Headquarters and Headquarters Company: Companies A, B, C, and D, of the 1st Battalion; the 820th and 98th Ordnance Detachments and the Infantry Board.

CTC Team No. 2 will consist of men from Headquarters and Headquarters Company and Companies A, B, C and D of the 577th Engineer Battalion, the 510th and 586th Engineer Companies and the 36th and 544th Engineer Detachments.

Men from the 505th and 666th Transportation Companies, 539th Postal Unit, Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment of the 39th Transportation Battalion, and the 139th Military Police Company will make up CTC team No. 3.

The 428th Medical Battalion will combine with Martin Army Hospital and Lawson Aviation Command to field one team.

The 197th Infantry Brigade will send five squads to this year's competition. Teams will come from the 29th Infantry, 10th Artillery, 69th Armor and 58th Infantry. In addition a Brigade Troops team has been formed and consists of Headquarters and Headquarters Company of the 197th Infantry Brigade, 72nd Engineer Company, 183rd Chemical Platoon and 26th Scout Dog Platoon.

Aftermath

it out like that and not be labled a murderer. But if Marlon Brando and Natalie Wood survive, so does Jack Armstrong. There are always believers of the mat and the silver screen.

Lassie Versus the Mountain Lion

WRESTLING IS ALSO Lassie against the mountain lion, the Lone Ranger versus the lawless, Eliot Ness against Al Capone, Jack Armstrong the all-American boy against the scorpion, UNCLE against THRUSH. We witness a struggle between two fascinating personalities representing the dualism of good and evil that hits home to everyone of us.

From the moment Skull comes from the dressing room amid the jeers and boos of the crowd, we suspect he is bad. As he baits the fans, we think him bad and as he refuses a good guy handshake and clouts his opponent on the side of the head when he isn't looking, we are convinced he's bad. Throughout the match, he lives up to his character admirably as does the good guy who embraces the abiding philosophy, "My heart is pure therefore I have the strength of ten."

But alas, the old maxim "cheaters always lose" doesn't hold wter in our struggle. How formidable would evil look in our drama if it never won? And so the exciting battle continues between the two giants between whom reconciliation is impossible and in which victory is always in doubt. We love it.

So if wrestling has become "something", it is a something molded by tastes in a world that finds fascination in the violent, that searches for fantasy yet realizes the opposition of good and evil.

Synopsis

THE SANDPIPER: This vibrant love story is set against some of the world's most beautiful scenery along the Big Sur coast of northern California. Elizabeth Taylor, Richard Burton and Eva Marie Saint are the protagonists of a compelling romantic triangle. It is a highly emotional love story of an unconventional woman living the life of a nonconformist and a married man of strong conservative background, whose passionate love affair comes close to breaking up the man's marriage and ruining his career.

THE MONKEY'S UNCLE: This is a madcap comedy that has everything — from a wild Watusi with the shapely Annette to a hilarious plane ride with Tommy Kirk — to delight the young at heart. The story is about a brainy college kook named Merlin Jones (Tommy Kirk) who is called upon to prevent his school's football team from being scrapped. First he keeps two empty headed halfbacks from flunking out by inventing a screwball sleep-teaching device. Then he tries to solve the age-old mystery of manpowered flight so that good old Midvale College can win a large endowment. The results are hilarious in this swinging live-action comedy.

WAR GODS OF THE DEEP: A body is washed ashore on the Cornish coast. The face is contorted by fear as though the last thing seen was sheer horror. It is the body of a lawyer who had been staying at a 15th Century manor which has been inherited by Susan Hart, a beautiful young American. Tab Hunter goes to the Manor House to relate the fate of the lawyer to Hart and her friend David Tomlinson, an eccentric artist. Upon hearing a commotion in the adjacent study, Hunter breaks down the door and finds the room in terrible disorder and a weird scaled creature, a gillman, within. The creature attacks him and escapes through a sliding panel which shuts after him.

THE IPCRESS FILE: An Army Intelligence Agent, Michael Caine, and a Civil Intelligence Agent, Sue Lloyd, are assigned to bring back a kidnapped scientist who is being taken behind the Iron Curtain. During a warehouse raid, Caine finds a length of recording tape marked IPCRESS which, when played, makes an incomprehensible noise. The action and intrigue that follows and the significance of the recording tape makes this a picture not to be missed.

JUDGES GOOF

The judges at a beauty contest in Nottingham, England, were all set to award second prize to a blonde listed as Nancy Harwood. But Nancy let out a loud male laugh and announced he was really Nigel Harwood, a 19-year-old student at Nottingham University. Nigel said he had entered the contest on a dare and was amazed that his disguise worked.

'Know How' Tomorrow At 'Pow Wow'

Scouting officials at Fort Benning have issued a reminder about the Cub Scout leaders "Pow Wow" scheduled from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 6 at the Fourth School auditorium.

During the Pow Wow," there will be sessions on suggested methods of conducting games, ceremonies, skits and handicraft activities as well as a session on pack administration. Each adult attending the "Pow Wow" will participate in whatever sessions can best help him with his own cubbing responsibilities.

Conducted by the Fort Benning District in conjunction with the Russell and Muscogee Divisions of the Chattahoochee Council of the Boy Scouts of America, the conference is designed to give adult Cub leaders new program ideas and bring them up-to-date on latest scouting techniques and developments.

The event is open to any adult (military or civilian) wishing to attend. Cub masters, den mothers, assistants to den mothers, pack committee members and interested parents are particularly encouraged to join in on the "Pow Wow."

Glamour Girls Tell Their Home Decorating Ideas

Here are some elegant decorating ideas from the homes of America's glamour girls. They're easily copied, they are fun and beautiful — but perhaps nicest of all, they take more imagination than money.

Cyd Charisse (Mrs. Tony Martin) tells us that an embroidered eyelet petticoat ruffle makes a marvelous bedroom lampshade. All you have to to is gather it to a white parchment or silk shade and tie a narrow velvet ribbon around the top.

Marian Anderson thinks all pictures need not necessarily be hung on walls or crowded around the tops of bureaus and side tables. Why not, says the great lady, take a favorite painting and set it up on an old music stand? Placed in a corner of your living room or at the turn of the stairs, see if it doesn't bring extravagant comments.

Ordinary blanket covers, according to movie great Bette Davis, can get a glamour touch by sewing bands of eyelet or embroidery six to eight inches from sides and bottom. Attach only the top edge of embroidery so the bottom edge hangs free to conceal the tuck-in.

Zesty Salads Perk Up Meals

Salads are the perfect compliment to any meal. They add tangy zest to mealtimes without that heavy feeling.

You can make a zesty Lebanese salad by taking fresh cucumbers, carrots, celery, lettuce, fresh mint and tomatoes and dicing them into little bits no bigger than one eighth of an inch cubed. Then add one-quarter of pignoli (pine nuts), coat everything very lightly with olive oil, and sprinkle generously with lemon juice. Chill and serve in a wooden salad bowl. It's always delightfully tangy and guests invariably go back for more.

To give a big taste boost to your favorite potato salad recipe, add a garnish of chopped black olives and sweet red peppers and serve with long, crisp bread sticks and chilled dry wine.

An avocado (very ripe) can make an excellent salad all by itself when served with a dressing of oil, vinegar, water, ketchup, a pinch of sugar and a dash of Worcester sauce.

Effective Dieting Means Using Simple Arithmetic

Want to take off weight? It's easy! Dieting is just a matter of simple arithmetic. No tricks, no schemes, no gimmicks. So don't fall for the fad diet or slick quick-trimming formulas. These are the facts:

The average male adult needs 2400 calories a day to maintain his given weight. The average female adult needs 2000 calories to maintain her given weight.

Scientists have established that 3500 calories will create one pound. If you eat 500 calories each day above the number you need to maintain your weight, you will have consumed 3500 additional calories per week and gained one pound.

Now, as surely as the fact that what goes up must come down, if you cut 500 calories out of your basic necessary daily food intake you can lose a pound a week. Consistently cut 500 calories a day and you'll lose predictably four pounds a month. Cut a thousand calories from your daily diet and you'll lose two pounds per week.

But a word of advice: most physicians recommend that you cut no more than 500 to 1000 calories per day. Fast weight reduction puts a strain on the heart.

The experts also recommend a well-balanced daily intake from the four basic nutritional groups: 1) meat, poultry, fish, eggs, milk or cheese; 2) breads and vegetables; 3) bread, potatoes and cereal products; and 4) fats such as butter, margarine, and edible oils.

Start calorie counting now. Which would you rather have: a hamburger and vegetables; calories or a small chocolate bar at 285 calories; eight asparagus stalks at 25 calories or half an avocado at 200 calories; a chocolate malted milk for 500 calories or a complete meal — steak, baked potato, salad, coffee and even dessert!

PITCHING PRACTICE

(AP) The New York Mets' promising rookie pitcher, Dick Selma, surprised onlookers at spring training last year. At six o'clock in the morning, he was heard yelling — ball one — strike one — etc., outside of his motel room. He was practicing pitching by throwing a plastic ball through an open window where his bride was batting.

Selma expressed little surprise. Said the youngster:

"I struck her out three times that way."

Plumbers' Friend, Snake Essential Repair Items

BY ANDY LANG

Two devices with the unlikely names of a plumber's friend and a snake are essential household items, especially with the arrival of that inevitable day when the sink "stops up."

A plumber's friend is a suction - cup plunger that looks like a bell with a long wooden handle on top of it. A snake is a coiled steel spring with a small hook on the end of it.

Unclogging Drains

Either of them provides a simple mechanical means of unclogging a drain. When a stoppage occurs and water piles up in the sink, the first step should be to remove most of the water with a pot or other container. Leave an inch or two of water. Work the plunger up and down over the drain, holding it vertical, pushing down rather deliberately and pulling up quickly. Don't give up easily.

An obstruction in the drain may not be dislodged immediately but may yield after 20 or 30 efforts with the plunger. Incidentally, if the sink has an overflow outlet, plug it up with a cloth while using a plumber's friend.

Snake

A snake is pushed down through the top of the drain and worked around. You can quickly tell whether the snake is moving downward easily or hitting something that is clogging the pipe.

Sometimes the obstruction is in the U-shaped section of the pipe under the sink. This U usually has a clean-out plug, which can be removed with a wrench, taking care to place a container under it to catch the water remaining in the pipe. Using a bent piece of wire, poke around on both sides of the U to dislodge and recover anything that may be caught there. When there is no clean-out plug, there is a fitting that enables the bottom part of the U to be removed.

Chemical Cleaners

What about chemical drain cleaners? Do they work? Yes — if the obstruction is the hardened grease or some other substance that will be dissolved by the chemical. And yes — if the sink is not 100 per cent clogged.

There must be some drainage, no matter how slight, if the chemical is to get through the pipe to the material that is causing the stoppage. Also, if there is no drainage, the chemical may boil up in the sink. In any case, remember that a liquid strong enough to cut through hardened grease is also strong enough to be injurious to the skin. It must be used with care.

Keep Vehicle Registration Card Up to Date

Fort Benning Provost Marshall records indicate that a number of personnel are not keeping their vehicle registration cards up to date. As your insurance and state tag expire annually, the Vechicle Registration Branch should be promptly notified of any change in order to be able to provide current data in event of an incident or report of stolen vehicle.

ARMY FLAG

The first Army flag was established by President Eisenhower on Jan. 13, 1956. Although the Army had been established at that time for 181 years and had served in seven major wars and 145 campaigns, this was its first official flag. The original is in the possession of the Third Regiment, Fort Myer, Va.

180 Spaces Open For Post Troops To Attend OCS

General Troop Buildup Increases Requirements for Junior Officers

The latest military buildup is expected to require more than 25,000 junior officers in the next two years according to Army officials.

The expansion is already being felt at Fort Benning where the post has received 180 openings for officer candidates for the month of November alone.

The need for officers results from the 235,000-man Army buildup during the year.

The 180 are to be drawn from the 2300 soldiers at Fort Benning considered to be eligible for OCS.

The office of Col. Leonard P. Perna, post adjutant general, has screened records at Fort Benning and estimated the 2300 eligible figure.

Perna stated the expanded officer candidate program has resulted in the marked increase in spaces allotted to Fort Benning.

He emphasized that because of the increase in spaces the time required for

197th's Tattooed Sergeant Puts Popeye the Sailor Into Back Seat

BY JOE HUTTIE

Beginning with Popeye the Sailor and extending to servicemen across the world, the tattoo has long been a part of the Armed Forces image.

The famous strong - man comic book character did much to extend the idea of tattooed sailors among the younger set with his imprint of a navy anchor tattooed on the bulging muscle of his forearm.

[illegible] for the men of the 197th Infantry Brigade, Popeye will have to take a back seat to their own M. Sgt. Richard E. Dansereau, known as Sgt. "Dan" among the troops of Headquarters Company to which he is assigned.

A veteran of more than 23 years of active duty, Sgt. Dansereau would have to rank high on any official chart that kept records of tattoos according to size, type and total number.

Sporting 26 prints extending from the palms of both hands to the caps of his knees and ranging in design from a dancing hula girl to the statue of liberty, Sgt. "Dan" is virtually a walking scrapbook of his Army career which has taken him from the jungle-infested island of New Guinea in the South Pacific to the simny shores of California.

Humble Beginning

A bundle of Army stories and adventures, Sgt. Dansereau just chuckles when asked about the first of his many tattoos. "I was just a young kid of about 15 at a carnival. I don't even remember where the dang thing was anymore and I decided to get my initials tattooed on my left arm. It was just a lark then but it has just stayed with me over the years," he claims.

From that humble beginning, "Dan's" list of tattoos grew until today his imprints represent travels in the Philippines, Japan, Germany, New Guinea, the Dutch Indies, Australia and Korea.

He can't remember exactly how many tattoos he had before he came into

Explorers To Hold Meet At Benning

Fort Benning will be the scene of the annual Chattahoochee Council Boy Scout Explorer Congress this week-end as more than 100 [illegible] will converge on the post for this yearly event.

Theme of the two - day event will be Army aviation. Highlights of the week will be the election of council and district cabinet officers and aviation activities sponsored by the 10th Aviation Group and Lawson Army Aviation Command.

Hosting the Explorer Congress are Fort Benning Explorer Posts 54 and 102 in cooperation with the Infantry School 10th Aviation Group and Lawson Army Aviation Command.

Activities will start at 2:30 p.m. today when Explorers

2 Awards Highlight Honors to Soldiers and Civilians

Two "Special Act" awards highlighted presentations to 33 military and civilian personnel at Fort Benning who were cited for service over and above the requirements of normal duty.

An award of $300 was divided among six Quartermaster Laundry personnel for effecting a complete change-over from outdated to new machinery without interruption of service.

Col. C. W. Youngman, logistics officer of the Infantry Center who officiated at the ceremony, presented $75 to J. D. Wyrick, laundry and dry cleaning equipment mechanic foreman. Others sharing in the award were James R. Daniel, Charlie Grier, William Simmons and W. B. Spinks, mechanics, and Robert Martin, mechanic helper, $45 each.

Replacement Begun

Replacing laundry equipment began in 1962 and was completed in October. The work, accomplished both during plant operation hours and on weekends, has provided a modern efficient laundry at a saving of $7,885, officials said.

A second Special Act award of $270 went to nine civilians for their work in the expansion program of the Main Commissary during the past year. The project involved connecting Bldg. 1694 to Bldg. 108 without interrupting service. It required carpentry work, painting and relocation of equipment after store hours and on weekends.

Recipients of the award, each of whom was given $30, included Mrs. Geraldine T. White, George W. Walker and Ellis W. Davis, cashier checkers; Charles W. Harper Jr., manager; Clyde M. Osterman, assistant in the meat department; Ted. R. Caldwell, frozen food department manager; William I. Cobb, produce department manager; Wesley Berry, sales store manager; and James A. Abron, sales store checker.

Remaining Awards

The remaining awards presented by Col. Youngman were given for work improvement suggestions. Letters of appreciation went to Henry H. Hartzog, George K. Oglethree, William A. Ford, Edmund D. Rowe, Durward L. Lake and Mrs. Odelle C. Adams.

SPS Clyde Smith received a letter of appreciation and $25 while PFC Edward J. Duskiewicz was given a letter of appreciation and a pen and pencil set.

Receiving cash awards were Mrs. Frances N. Britt, $20; Haskell D. Garner, $25; and William B. Pickett, Bascom Anthony, Mrs. Louise Farrell, Mrs. Suzanne H. Williams, Mrs. Donald Long, A. E. Adkin, James H. Goodson and Walter W. Rinehart, $15 each.

Tattoo

the Army but his guess is "about two or three." He adds, "My first tattoo in the Army was in Washington, D. C. in 1942 when I had an eight inch picture of a pirate girl tattooed on my right leg and a print of the Statue of Liberty, about the same size, on my left leg."

The experience of those first two army tattoos stands out vividly in Sgt. Dansereau's mind since both his legs swelled up so badly that he had to wait a week to let the soreness subside before he could return to the tattoo parlor to have the jobs completed.

Sgt. "Dan's" favorite tattoo is the dancing hula girl on his upper right arm. "I had that one done in Los Angeles in 1943 before I took off for the Pacific," he adds. Quickly stripping off his fatigue jacket, Sgt. "Dan" bumped and whirled his hula girl with a few flicks of the muscle in his upper arm.

With six tattoos on his legs, one on his chest, one on the palm of each hand, six on his right arm and eleven on his left, Sgt. "Dan" points out that except for a little swelling now and then after having a new one put on he has never had any trouble with his collection.

According to him the tatooing process itself isn't really too great an ordeal. First a stencil is placed over the area to be printed, then lampblack, a fine soot containing carbon, is spread over the stencil's design.

An electric needle with a number of separate needles in its head is used to punch holes in the flesh thus laying the tattoo ink into the design "It hurts a little but you don't really mind it too much once you get used to it," he adds.

Sgt. "Dan" points to one adventure in particular that brings a broad smile to his face whenever he talks about it. "It happened while I was in New Guinea. My commander got word of my tattoos and sent an article to Yank Magazine (Army's official publication in the South Pacific) billing me as the most tattooed man in the service. The story was run along with a color picture and it wasn't long after that when I had half the Navy challenging my supposed record."

According to Sgt. "Dan", the tattooing process has long been a favorite with royalty throughout the world with kings of England and Scandinavia sporting tattoos.

For Sgt. "Dan", the tattooing part of his career is probably over. "No I don't really plan on getting any more in the near future," he says.

For those who have seen any of the sergeant's wares, one can only wonder where he would put them if he did decide to get any more.

Explorers

Scouts throughout the Chattahoochee Council begin registering at building 2756. Later in the evening, they will hear a talk on Viet Nam.

Saturday's program will begin with live firing of the M-60 machine gun at Wagner Range from 8-9:30 a.m. This will be followed by a talk on Army Aviation by Col. J. Elmore Swenson, commander of the 10th Aviation Group, from 10-10:30 a.m.

After Col. Swenson's presentation, the boys will be divided into four groups which will receive orientations on the UH-1B (Huey) and CH-47 (Chinook) helicopters, the CV-2 Caribou and the flight line and facilities of Lawson Army Airfield.

Saturday evening's slate will feature nomination of cabinet officers from 6-7:30 p.m. and recreational activities.

After election of district and council officers on Sunday morning, the boys will attend church services before starting back home in the early afternoon.

OCS

processing of OCS applications has been reduced drastically. He promised speedy processing all the way along the line for all OCS applications.

The Department of the Army announced the increase in the OCS program in September.

According to present plans, 8,300 more officer candidates will be trained this year than were trained last year in the OCS program.

Fort Benning's OCS is slated to turn out 2,000 more than last year.

Since that time Fort Benning has created a second OCS battalion under the command of Lt. Col. Robert G. Abarr. It occupies the area formerly belonging to the 197th Infantry Brigade which moved to Kelley Hill to make room for the expansion.

Officials explained that with the expansion of the OCS program, branches other than Infantry and Artillery have been opened.

Officer candidates will also be accepted in Military Police, Intelligence, Chemical, Medical Service Corps, Finance Corps, Armor, Signal and Engineer.

They will be trained at such centers as Fort Benning, Fort Sill, Fort Knox, Fort Gordon and Fort Belvoir.

In announcing the increased Benning spaces for the officer candidate program, post officials have emphasized the "outstanding opportunity and challenge" involved in becoming an officer.

They assert that now the way to an OCS commission in the Army is administratively easier than ever before.

Post units are getting behind the officer candidate program.

In Company A, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry of the 197th Infantry Brigade, the commander, Capt. William H. McGondel, has arranged tours of the Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning for interested soldiers.

The unit has screened records and is attempting to interest qualified soldiers in the program.

Lt. Col. Robert Nett, commanding officer, 5th Student Battalion (OC), welcomed the group to the School and emphasized the need for young Army officers.

Chain of Command Is Best Redress

In one of the syndicated "advice" columns which recently appeared in a local newspaper, the typewriter savant "solved" a soldier's problem by suggesting he write his congressman.

The reaction to such a sweeping statement could be predicted. We are privy to information that this dispenser of wise sayings received a number of letters from both military personnel and congressmen, chiding her for such an arbitrary suggestion.

Her advice would have been fine had it been qualified as a measure to use only as a last resort after all military avenues and resources had been explored and exhausted.

Every man in the military service, from private to the commander-in-chief, has a chain of command he can and should use. Along the line, squad and platoon leaders, company, battalion, brigade, division, post and Army commanders stand ready to consider the problems of the men under their command and to proffer wise counsel if the problem or situation is presented to them intelligently and properly through their subordinate commands. Any weak link in this chain of command will be strengthened or replaced if brought to the attention of the proper people.

The benefits of living under a democratic government being what they are, every citizen, military or civilian, has the right to take his problems or petitions to his congressional representative without fear of punitive repercussions. But it is often an unnecessary action that accomplishes no more than that which could have been accomplished if the petitioner had utilized, intelligently, resources available right under his nose.

Congressional secretaries forward all queries promptly to the command of the soldier concerned. This is good politics. But they are forwarded without recommendations or any phrasing. The problem is STILL within the purview of the commander.

To paraphrase an old axiom, "the shortest distance between two points (your problem and its solution) is straight up the chain of command.

Volunteers Needed, Ever There Somehow

Ride around the post on a balmy autumn day and you'll notice junior footballers practising for the next big game. With them can also be seen adult volunteers teaching the fine points of the game, diagnosing "what went wrong" and providing the youngsters with the guidance they so badly need.

Visit the post Thrift Shop on a Tuesday or Thursday or on the first and third Saturdays of the month and you'll be assisted by volunteer workers of the Fort Benning Officer's Wives Club. Their time is freely donated to this activity in the interests of providing servicemen with merchandise at the lowest possible prices and supporting post welfare activities.

Attend a Boy Scout or Girl Scout conference and you'll find a multitude of boys and girls eager to learn and waiting to be led down the right path to good citizenship. In attendance to do the leading are the ever present volunteers.

The list is endless. Be it women's club charitable activities, the post Bicycle Roundup, Red Cross, YMCA, church or youth activities, the volunteer is always there. To the general public, he is nameless and faceless but to those to whom he renders assistance freely and without thought of reward, he is truly an inspiration and a pillar of society. Without him, so many activities which contribute so much to the American way of life would be virtually meaningless.

The message behind this story is a simple one which can be summed up by saying, "Three cheers for the volunteer."

He deserves these and many, many more.

"Well, Jackson, there's one aggressor cow that won't mess with us again..."

Harry B. Levins in "The Rolling Review"

The Judge Says . . .

Would you give a salesman a signed blank check, telling him to place any amount he desired in the blank spaces?

Not too many persons are foolish enough to do such a thing, but never a week passes without several situations similar to the following reaching the Legal Assistance Office:

A soldier finds a used car he likes and the salesman informs him of the amount of the monthly payment. The soldier decides that this amount will fit his budget without too much difficulty.

The friendly salesman then partially completes the contract, assuring the buyer that a copy will be mailed to him when completed. The buyer notices the blank spaces but, anxious to get behind the wheel, he signs the contract, relying on the statement of the salesman.

When the copy is later mailed to the buyer, he is astonished to find the completed agreement is altogether different from that which he had intended.

This man has clearly been as foolish as the one who gives a salesman a blank check.

How can you prevent a similar situation from happening to you? The key is to keep on your guard, no matter how friendly the salesman may seem to be.

The salesman, in delivering his pitch, may make highly exaggerated claims about the value of his product, the importance of taking advantage of a one-shot sacrificing offer and the ability of the buyer to escape from the contract at any future time.

Generally, however, regardless of these statements by the salesman, the written contract controls. Thus, you should make certain that any statements by the salesman upon which you have relied have been spelled out. Do not sign if the contract contains blanks.

The Surgeon Says

Use Facilities At Martin Properly

Martin Army Hospital, like every other hospital, has a story to tell about its services, its aims and its problems. The outpatient services play a major role in the daily activities of the hospital.

The outpatient department is becoming increasingly more important to the Army's medical program.

Many factors are responsible for this type of medical care. Improved methods of treatment, the use of new drugs to control infections and accessible paramedic services such as laboratory, pharmacy and X-ray have made possible the treatment of many patients on an outpatient basis.

Treatment on an appointment system is always encouraged. Treatment on the appointment system allows for time to examine the patient more thoroughly, to obtain laboratory tests, to evaluate each patient and to treat and to follow the patient's course to recovery.

A well-organized system helps to reduce the excessive waiting periods and the crowded conditions encountered in hospital clinics. The appointment system also offers the patient some choice of doctors and helps establish a better doctor-patient relationship.

One section unique to the outpatient department is the emergency room. The operation of this section is somewhat different from that of the other clinics. The emergency room is open 24 hours a day. This unit is primarily designed to handle all types of medical emergencies.

From 5 p. m. to 8 a. m. Monday through Friday and on holidays and weekends, the emergency room is staffed on a rotating schedule by doctors who are assigned this duty in addition to their regular normal duty hours.

These doctors have worked on the wards and clinics during the normal duty hours of that day. They receive no compensatory time off the day following this extra duty.

Treatment in the emergency room is given on the priority of the emergency. True emergencies such as heart attacks, hemorrhages, severe convulsions, severe cuts, broken bones, dog bites, snake bites and poisonings resulting from drug ingestion which require immediate attention are treated first and the less serious ailments must await their turn.

The question sometimes arises, "Why is it necessary to see two or three doctors?" In these cases, the patient's condition requires specialized attention or treatment; therefore, the doctor on duty contacts the desired specialist who examines the patient and consults on the necessary treatment.

Unfortunately, this does consume considerable time but results in better and more specialized treatment.

Hospital ambulance service is only provided for emergency transportation to the hospital of the sick and injured. It is imperative that this service be utilized in emergencies only.

The emergency room staff has to provide the necessary attendants to accompany all patients transported by ambulance.

Many times this leaves the emergency room itself short of adequate personnel and thus increases waiting time.

Also, proper identification and authorization for care must usually be established before treatment (except in a true emergency) can be initiated.

"The Point of the Spear"

"We must continue to meet responsibilities and grant assistance to keep a strong country and a strong alliance and a strong NATO, and to do that we need a strong Army which is the point of the spear."

JOHN F. KENNEDY
Late President

Large Enlisted Promotion Quota Issued by DA

From The Army Times

WASHINGTON — Enlisted promotion quotas sent to the field last week total 44,267, the largest number for one month issued by Department of the Army in some years.

Predictably, the largest number of promotions goes to grade E-4 with 28,000 total authorized in November. This is 16,000 more than the "basic" monthly quota set in the last quarterly quota issue and 15,007 more than authorized in October.

The E-5 basic quota is also more than doubled by a 6500 supplemental quota which makes the November total for E-5 promotions 4572 more than the October quota.

The E-6 quota for November totals 2700 including a supplemental quota of 1200. Here again there is an increase over the October quota, in this instance of 845.

Quotas in November for grade E-7 and E-8 are substantially below the October quotas. Twelve hundred promotions to E-7 are authorized compared to last month's 2154. And for grade E-8, the quota drops by 179 to 706 from 885.

On the other hand, there is an increase of 51 to 161 in quotas issued for promotion to sergeant major (E-9).

Upward Trend

Thus the enlisted promotion trend continues upward on an overall basis, though in all grades there will be fluctuations up and down, reflecting current grade vacancies over the next several months.

While quotas continue to soar, controls are still being held on many MOSs. Here again there are changes with MOSs appearing on the controlled list and dropping off as area needs vary.

This month there is a net change downward of but one, from 105 controlled MOSs to 104. But 21 MOSs, controlled last month in one or more grades, have been dropped from the controlled list. Twenty MOSs on which no control in any grade was exercised last month appear on this month's list.

In most instances, MOSs reappear on the list after a brief absence or drop from the list after several months of control operate to reduce overstrengths in a particular MOS and grade. There are still some perennials — for example 94D (bread baker). And this month many medical MOSs, which were completely revised this summer, appear for the first time on the list.

WORK TIME SLASH

MADISON, Wis. — A University of Wisconsin professor predicts that by the year 2000 A. D. people will work a 22-hour week and get two-month vacations. Prof Lawrence Suhn also says the retirement age will drop to 55. The effect, he adds, will be to double the average employe's leisure time.

SECOND DFC . . . Capt. Don C. Chunn, right, receives a Distinguished Flying Cross, first oak leaf cluster, for heroism while participating in aerial flight in Viet Nam. The award was made at Fort Benning recently where he is a member of the Brigade and Battalion Operations Department of The Infantry School. Chunn was cited for heroic action Aug. 13, 1964 when he voluntarily flew an escort mission under heavy enemy fire.

Defense Plans Deducting Rent From Quarters Pay

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Service personnel living in "defense family housing units" will have rent deducted from the basic allowance for quarters (BAQ) starting July 1.

"Defense housing" refers to sub-standard family housing owned by the Department of Defense where service occupants now receive full BAQ and then pay a cash rental, usually less than the BAQ.

Overseas occupants of defense housing are not affected, except those in the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and U. S. possessions and territories where this type of housing may be located.

This latest move reclassifies some 5,000 defense units in the same category, adding them to the approximately 15,000 inadequate public quarters previously included in the DOD policy. These units will be reclassified as "inadequate family housing," the same as others classified by earlier legislation.

Now, a person's rent will be deducted from the authorized BAQ. In any case where the rent may be less than the BAQ, the occupant will receive the difference.

The revised policy is contained in an updated DOD instruction publication which calls for regularly scheduled three-year appraisals of inadequate units.

Soldier's Donations Help Support USO's 'Home Away From Home'

The Columbus USO, a "Home Away from Home" for over 16,000 Fort Benning soldiers each month, is dependent on your donation through the United Givers Fund for its existence.

The mission of the Columbus USO, according to Mr. Gordon H. Kitchen, executive director, is "to look out for the welfare and recreational opportunities of the men at Benning. This is provided through our volunteer staff and funds received through the United Givers Drive."

Mr. Kitchen, who has been the director of the Columbus USO since 1945, feels that today's soldier is "more keen and active than the soldier twenty years ago."

Due to this, he feels the necessity for providing the best recreational facilities possible is of the utmost importance.

Through these facilities and his capable staff of volunteers, a highly organized and effective program of entertaining and worthwhile activities are provided each week.

The United Service Organization's services are extended to all members of the United States.

"The member agencies of USO, because of their religious and ethical beliefs and traditions, believe that equal rights and opportunities should be accorded to all men and women.

"USO believes that neither patriotism nor religion can make distinctions on the basis of race, creed, color or national origin," said Mr. Kitchen.

COLUMBUS USO . . . Fort Benning soldiers enjoy their off-duty hours during a recent weekend at a birthday party for one of the hostesses of the Columbus USO. Part of the dollar contributed to the United Givers Fund goes to help support this serviceman's "Home Away From Home."

The Columbus USO, operated by the USO Council of Muscogee County, is composed of 37 leading citizens representing a cross section of this area.

The Columbus USO is located at 841 Fifth Avenue in downtown Columbus. Some of the services provided there include check - cashing facilities, counseling, dark room facilities, home hospitality, sleeping rooms and storage service.

Students Offer Blood to Troops; Defense Secretary Offers Praise

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has voiced his "deep appreciation" to the thousands of students and other groups across the country volunteering to give blood as a "gesture of support" for United States servicemen fighting in the Republic of Viet Nam.

To date, students from nearly 60 colleges and universities have pledged to donate blood through the American Red Cross which has been designated to collect blood for the nation's defense whenever necessary.

Two college students from Columbus and one from Macon, Ga. have joined the thousands of students throughout the country praised by Secretary of Defense McNamara for volunteering to give blood for servicemen fighting in Viet Nam.

Columbusites Terry Woodward and Ron Johnson along with Charles Cook of Macon, all students of the University of Georgia, began the "Isaacs Movement" in an effort to get blood donors for U. S. troops in Viet Nam and to offset the protests which have cropped up condemning U. S. policies in Viet Nam.

They named their movement after Capt. Royal Isaacs, a former Fort Benning soldier, who was killed in Viet Nam earlier this year.

The movement was endorsed by Georgia Lt. Governor Peter Zack Geer who commended the local students on their efforts and said that their sentiments reflect those of the majority of college students throughout the country.

The Red Cross made its first collection of blood from one of these movements earlier this month at the University of Illinois where more than 2,000 volunteers gave.

"Although at the present time our blood supply for Viet Nam is adequate," Secretary McNamara explained, "the Department of Defense does have requirements for blood which can be processed into anti-hepatitis globulin and albumin for treating shock."

These two derivatives, unlike whole blood, can be stored for long periods of time and are being used to protect and support this country's military force in the RVN, he added.

It was noted that reserve supplies for anti - hepatitis globulin have been particularly depleted as a result of the buildup in RVN.

Student Nurses See Facilities

Twenty student nurses from Chattanooga, Tenn. got a look at life in the Army Wednesday when they toured Fort Benning's Martin Army Hospital.

In addition to the student nurses who are in their junior or senior year at The Baroness Erlanger School of Nursing in Chattanooga, the number of visitors included several registered nurses who are considering a career in the Army Nurse Corps.

The nurses were briefed on the hospital's facilities and toured wards and clinics in small groups.

In the afternoon, the visitors observed airborne training on Eubanks Field, toured the Infantry School's academic building and visited the Infantry Museum.

The visit was sponsored by the Army Recruiting Main Station in Nashville, Tenn. Army Nurse Maj. Vera A. Nolfe of the station was coordinator.

Watermelon Patch Now In Viet Nam

CHU LAI, RVN (AFPS) — Marines here have their own watermelon patch thanks to Corporal Raymond K. Johnson, Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron-12.

Cpl. Johnson's project started out as a garden patch planted with seeds sent from the United States. The powder-dry beach sand of Chu Lai wasn't exactly rich topsoil but this didn't stop the Marine. He poured soybean oil over an eight-foot patch and planted a few packages of radish seeds.

A few gallons of water and a certain amount of guard duty against pests—including foot-long lizards — and Johnson had fresh radishes.

His next project—watermelons — seemed to enjoy the sandy soil and now Johnson is faced with a problem. The watermelon vines are spreading . . . and spreading . . . and spreading. Johnson's friends, cooking at the potential harvest, don't worry about it at all.

Unique Devices Offered on New Gas Mask

Tests at Fort Benning were recently completed on a new gas mask for the modern soldier which, aside from making him look more like Buck Rogers, also allows him to drink and administer artificial respiration while wearing it.

The new mask is provided with two special accessories, one a drinking kit and the other a resuscitation device. The drinking kit is designed to enable the soldier to drink water from his canteen while wearing the protective mask in a toxic chemical environment.

To use the drinking kit, the soldier first connects a small plastic hose leading from his canteen to another hose leading into the mask. He then turns a small handle on the outside of the facepiece of the mask. This action opens a valve and at the same time moves a drinking tube into the soldier's mouth. He then sucks on the drinking tube to draw water from his canteen.

The resuscitation device will allow a masked soldier to administer artificial respiration to a severe nerve gas casualty, using an adaptation of the mouth-to-mouth technique.

The resuscitation device consists of a piece of corrugated rubber tubing with an adapter at one end which fits into a receptacle in the outlet valve of the mask. On the other end of the tubing is a mouthpiece which is placed into the mouth of the casualty.

A platoon of soldiers from the 197th Infantry Brigade, under the command of 1st Lt. Robert H. White, participated as test soldiers in the service test of the modified mask and its accessories. The men used the items extensively in a series of simulated combat exercises conducted in an environment contaminated with CS gas.

The service test was conducted under the over-all supervision of Maj. John A. Bounds of the Infantry Board.

GI Insurance Details Outlined by Defense

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Defense Department says that, unless a person insured under the new Serviceman's Group Life Insurance (SGLI) coverage specifies otherwise, the following formula of the law would exist for payment in case of death:

The insurance will be paid to your widow (or widower) or if none, to your child or children or their descendants. If none of these, to your parents or surviving parent. If none of these, to the executor or administrator of your estate or if none of these, to your next of kin under the laws of your home state. The insurance will be paid in a lump sum or in 36 equal monthly installments as the beneficiary requests.

Officials pointed out that a person having the new insurance coverage can name any person or legal entity as beneficiaries, including any church, charity, school, estate, etc.

Also, the insured may specify that any beneficiary named or whom the law prescribes must be paid in 36 monthly installments.

To take advantage of either or both of these options, the insured must submit a signed statement to the personnel officer naming the desired beneficiary and method of payment.

Beneficiaries designated in emergency data records do not apply, officials said.

Who's watching over him? Who found him a hotel room, got him theatre tickets, sat down and advised him on his future . . . and will wake him up so he gets back to his ship? His USO and your USO too. Because but for you and millions of other Americans who have contributed to it, there wouldn't be any USO.

The USO is still very much in business, since there are still well over 2,700,000 men and women in uniform.

The USO is a home away from home for lonesome trainees, a place for servicemen overseas to relax, to meet friends and the friendly people of allied nations. And no matter how remote his post overseas, the famous USO shows come to him, to make him forget for a moment just how far away he is from everything and everybody that he loves.

Cav Platoon Stalks VC in Jungle To Ease Threat Against Choppers

BY RICHARD BUSSE

AN KHE, Viet Nam — A 1st Cavalry Platoon went looking for the VC in the jungle from the division's perimeter.

Ever since the division has taken up position near An Khe, the Viet Cong has harrassed perimeter defenses, trying to ferret weak places where they might get to the helicopters along the vast helicopter pad called the "Golf Course" in the center of the division area.

The platoon was being resupplied by helicopters—food, ammunition, water and the latest ball scores. But the VC had so far remained elusive, leaving only scant clues now and then as to their whereabouts and the size of the force they were operating in. But the signs were old.

Rain and Heat

The days brought the usual amounts of rain and heat. The jungle as usual was unyielding and had to be hacked through, streams forded and the nights distrusted. Most of the men in the platoon were veterans of many patrols but had never seen actual combat before.

They had two choices for finding the VC — observe and maybe ambush him first, or be observed and ambushed first. They knew they were stalking a master at ambush.

They moved on, advancing parallel to a dirt road. Farther along they saw houses in the distance lying approximately 250 meters from the side of the road, surrounded by bushes and coconut trees.

Mortar rounds began coming in, 60mm's. The rounds boxed the platoon in nicely. It was accurate fire coming straight over from the village.

On Target

The VC were right on target with all their fire, dropping mortar rounds in fast. One platoon member took cover behind a rice paddy dike. He had never been in battle before either. The 60s were popping - off near him but he summoned the courage to pick himself up to make a dash for better cover.

Fifteen meters away the ground blew up, splattering him with foul - smelling mud. He dived into the paddy head first and pulled the earth to him. He couldn't remember how it tasted but he could have sworn the VC were aiming everything right at him.

Fire Overwhelming

Then he and the rest of the platoon began returning fire. Their accurate fire was overwhelming. Sniper fire from the trees stopped. They saw the men fall through the branches to the ground. Enemy fire from the windows and the black-clad figures were driven back from the embankments.

Explorers Get Talk on Hotel Opportunities

Thirty members of Explorer Post 54 of the Fort Benning Boy Scout District heard a lecture on opportunities in hotel management at the Downtowner Motel in Columbus on Monday evening, Nov. 8. Delivering the talk was Donald G. Johnson, motel manager, who also provided refreshments for the boys.

Earlier in the month, members of Post 54 were instructed by Marcel Carles in the art of judo. For this judo session, Carles had assembled his most advanced class to assist in a demonstration which included warm-up exercises and actual matches showing various take-down procedures.

Carles also explained the formal routines followed by participants in the sport; the significance of the color belts awarded in judo; and how the Army has incorporated judo into its basic training instruction.

Another one of Post 54's recent activities was attendance at a lecture on Juvenile Court work given by Frank Eslinger, a Columbus probationary court worker. Eslinger arranged for a room at Juvenile Court where the meeting was held and also conducted a tour of the building for the boys.

At the meeting, the Explorers were shown to what extent Juvenile Court goes to help youthful offenders, to include the placement of children with foster parents and group therapy classes.

These activities are part of the comprehensive year-round program conducted by Post 54 according to PFC Earl Taylor; the unit advisor.

Book Review

True Espionage Cases Recorded In United Nations Spy Epic

RED SPIES IN THE U. N. by Pierre J. Huss and George Carpozzi Jr., Howard McCann Inc., 1965.

We live in a time when espionage is dramatized and romanticized to the point where the general public gets a false impression of the spy work that goes on in the world today. James Bond and Napolean Solo go about their merry ways injecting humor and romance into a field that is deadly serious.

Espionage is a serious business as the military and governmental security of a nation requires it to keep spies from infiltrating its borders and stop the theft of state secrets.

Since the end of World War II, the US has had to contend with communist spies and saboteurs.

It is a common occurence to read in the newspapers a story concerning the capture of a Red spy in this country or even the selling of secret information to the communists by turncoat Americans.

According to the book, one of the havens for communist espionage agents in the US is the United Nations with its headquarters in New York City. The authors say the diplomatic immunity that has been offered communist spies has made it extremely easy for Red agents to carry on espionage activities under the cover of the organization that is dedicated to world peace.

In "Red Spies in the U. N.," Huss and Carpozzi discuss the problem of foreign agents infiltrating our shores through the United Nations.

By dramatizing the facts with actual case histories of Red agents working in the U. N. and caught by our FBI, the authors have set down on paper for the first time a record of fantastic espionage cases; cases of Soviet spies working under the cloak of diplomatic immunity and posing as diplomats.

Filled with the intrigue of actual espionage cases, the book relates the importance of our keeping a watchful eye open for agents and the work that the FBI is doing in keeping our country secure.

Chaplain Speaks At Lions Club Luncheon Meet

He told the members of the invaluable aid rendered to the soldier by periodic consultation sessions offered under the program. The chaplain also told them that the Training Center is making every effort to impress upon the recruit his obligations to the civilian community as well as that of the military community.

Hassen-Ali Saeedi, commanding general, 7th Infantry Division.

Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, commandant of the Infantry School, was local commander for the honors ceremony.

Following the ceremony, the Allied officers began a schedule that included briefings on the organization and mission of the Infantry School, techniques of instruction and planning.

They also saw classroom instruction and field firing problems.

The group left Fort Benning Tuesday evening.

Officer Candidate School Offers Opportunity and Challenge Now

The Officer Candidate program has issued a challenge to Fort Benning soldiers — the challenge of becoming officers to those who can prove themselves.

The allocation of OCS spaces for Benning is 180 for the month of November alone.

Although there has been no lowering of standards, today the way to OCS is comparatively easy. Officials promise speedy processing of applications all the way from the company orderly room to Third Army.

The administrative requirements can be easily met for those who measure up to the basic intelligence and physical standards. Once the application is submitted, there are no long waiting periods, no prolonged agonies while interviews and papers are processed.

Instead, the promise of speed and action awaits the prospective officer candidate.

The School is tough — so are the men who graduate.

Why does a man go to OCS? What is his motivation for undergoing the rigorous training and physical exertion required in becoming a second lieutenant through the OCS program?

The answers are as numerous as the candidates who are now officers. They come from men who graduated from OCS and who are now brigadier generals down through the newest second lieutenants.

Some of the answers are patriotic, some are not. But the dominant answer is that of challenge — the challenge of proving that one has what it takes to graduate.

Questions such as "How bad do I want it?" "How much can I take?" "What will I do when I graduate?" and "Do I personally have what it takes to undergo the 23 weeks of OCS?" are the chief elements comprising the challenge.

Now the way is clear.

Fort Benning has plenty of room. Thousands on this post are qualified for the opportunity according to the post Adjutant General Section which has been advertising the new slant on OCS during past weeks.

All you have to do is apply. . . why not see your unit commander about OCS today?

TEST EQUIPMENT INSTALLED . . . Equipment is shown installed in the Caribou to determine the amount of punishment the aircraft can take in rough take off and landings. The equipment was used in testing by the U.S. Army Engineers' Waterways Experiment Station at Vicksburg, Miss. during the recent testing.

Army Caribous Tested For Rough Takeoff, Landing Capabilities

VICKSBURG, Miss. — The Army's largest aircraft, the CV-2, Caribou, was recently tested by the US Army Corps of Engineers Waterways Experiment Station here to determine how much stress the plane will take in landings and takeoffs.

It was up to the Waterways Experiment Station to test the craft to determine how much rough terrain the Caribou will take during repeated landings and takeoffs.

Testing was carried out to determine how little engineering effort would be required in preparing airstrips in forward areas.

The Caribou provides the field commander with a heavy air support capability and the more it can take in the way of rough takeoffs and landings the better it will be for the commander with regard to closer front-line mobility and cargo support.

The aircraft, with its short takeoff and landing capability, is valuable to the field commander since it offers the mobility of a helicopter combined with the cargo payload of a transport. It also operates over a greater distance range than the helicopters now in use.

The testing of the aircraft now includes checking the Caribou's landing capabilities at an airport and on a pasture near Vicksburg. The final testing will be conducted at Fort Benning and Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

Force and shock sensing devices and electronic computers gauge the versatility of the Caribous.

Pentagon's Pilferage Prohibitive

WASHINGTON (AP) — It almost staggers the imagination but in a year's time nearly 10,000 trays have vanished without a trace from the Pentagon's cafeterias and snack bars.

What's more, some 2,000 salt and pepper shakers and nearly 1,200 sugar dispensers also have disappeared.

Throw in a horde of lost knives, forks and spoons and you run into a cost estimated in five figures.

These statistics came to light with an appeal from the Army Welfare Fund Recreation Office. It complained the losses are cutting down the money that would otherwise be coming to the fund from the proceeds of Pentagon concessions.

WORLD POPULATION

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. —From mid-1963 to mid-1964 the world's population grew by 60 million as estimated in the latest quarterly issue of the population and vital statistics report of the United Nations. It brought the world total to 3.22 billion, the statisticians calculated.

Army Haircut Authenticates Motion Picture

A field day for barbers at Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's British studios found 330 extras standing in line for a short back and sides—British Army style haircut—for their roles as prisoners in a British Army stockade in MGM-Seven Arts' "The Hill."

Director Sidney Lumet, a stickler for authenticity, had ex-Regimental Sgt. Major George Montford, a stickler for the Queen's Regulations, standing by the ten barber chairs which had been especially installed for the occasion.

Montford's assignment? To make sure hat star Sean Connery and the 330 extras got full value out of his free haircuts.

Housing Tenants Taught To Service Facilities

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The services are continuing an education program to acquaint family housing tenants with their maintenance responsibilities.

Each service issues periodic guidance and regulations that are identical in one respect. Any damage caused by other than normal wear and tear must be either paid for or corrected by the occupant.

All of the services require tenants in military housing to maintain the quarters, government furniture, appliances and equipment, and the immediate grounds.

The Army specifies that tenants are responsible for day - to - day upkeep of facilities. Periodic inspections are held to insure that lawns, shrubs and trees are properly maintained. Painting and normal repairs are done by Army post engineers.

Air Force officials are calling for an attitude of "home ownership" rather than "property renter." This calls for complete grounds care, except pruning and spraying of trees; removing leaves and debris from one story gutters and rainspouts; and clearing snow from driveways and sidewalks.

Navy regulations are similar, requiring tenants to maintain the quarters, furniture, appliances and equipment, and to care for grounds to the extent of watering, trimming and cutting the lawn.

Action During Fire Earns DFC for Pilot

FORT JAY, N.Y. (ANF) — The factories and office buildings of Long Island City, N.Y., seem hardly the place to earn a citation for "military heroism in aerial flight," but WO Charles J. Humphries' Distinguished Flying Cross stands in disagreement.

Humphries, a pilot in the New York National Guard's 42d Division, was on a routine helicopter courier flight from Governors Island in New York harbor to an airport on Long Island.

Spotting billows of smoke from a large chemical factory, he landed to see if he could be of help — and learned that two men were trapped on the roof.

Humphries angled his chopper to blow off the dense smoke and quickly moved in to pick up the men who were stranded atop a wall after the roof caved in.

Moments after the second man was plucked to safety, the wall collapsed into the blazing structure.

WESTERN INCOME HIGH

North America and Western Europe had 17 per cent of the world's population and 64 per cent of its income in 1963.

VENEZUELA'S HOUSING

Housing officials estimate there are 800,000 substandard dwellings in Venezuela. Because the country has one of the world's highest annual birth rates, it would require 50,000 new homes a year just to cope with the expanding population.

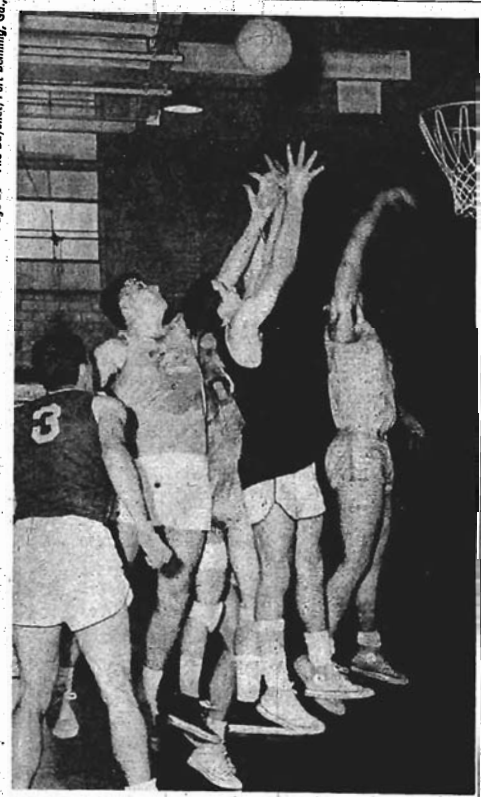
Post Touch Football Playoffs End



BASKETBALL SCRIMMAGE . . . Student Brigade and Columbus College hoop men fight for the ball at Briant Wells Field House last week during one of three scrimmages between the two teams. Company D, 29th Infantry Wins Post Title

Company D, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry clinched the Infantry Center touch football championships Wednesday night, coming from 18 points behind to beat Headquarters Company, the Student Brigade, 22 to 18.

The TSB team scored early in the first quarter on a pass play from Jimmy Knight to Thurman Woody. They followed up quickly with a Knight touch down pass to Nelson Talley. Woody scored four extra points on passes from Knight to give Headquarters a 16 point lead as the quarter ended.

In the second quarter Headquarters punted to the D Company two yard line. On the first play from scrimmage quarterback Jim Holder was caught behind the goal line for a safety making the score 18 to 0 at half time.

D Company began to roll in the second half. Their scoring began when Monte Clausen caught a Holder pass in the end zone from the 10 yard line. Ted Hampton caught another Holder pass for two extra points.

In the final quarter Hampton intercepted a Knight pass to put D Company on the Headquarters 40. Holder then threw one intended for Mike Walker. The ball glanced off Walker's hands and into the arms of Clausen who went over for the score.

D Company picked up the winning score when Holder carried the ball on a 40 yard run to the Headquarters four and then tossed a pass to Gary Chiampi for the TD. A Holder pass to Clausen brought in two more points.

Holder's rollout passes and quick over-the-middle tosses have been almost unstopable this year. The D Company quarterback is an experienced scatback who gained the small college rushing title while attending Panhandle A & M.

Clausen played two seasons for the Fort Benning Doughboys and saw action this year with the Columbus Mustangs. Chiampi brings a list of creditable assets onto the field with him including All-State honors while playing high school ball in Minnesota.

In play off action last week, the 98th Ordnance Company, CTC rolled over Martin Army Hospital, 32 to 6, and the 690th Medical Company edged the 41st Company, TSB, 21 to 20.

On Friday, the 98th Ordnance Company chalked up its second playoff win by walloping Headquarters Company, CTC, 30 to 0. In the second game of the doubleheader, the 690th Medical Company got its second triumph of the playoffs on a 24 to 12 victory over Headquarters Company of the 29th Infantry.

This week's action started off with a 14 to 8 win by the 98th Ordnance over the 690th to put the Medics out of the competition.

Post Basketball Picture Changes; Season Scheduled to Start Monday

Plans and preparations for Fort Benning's basketball season neared completion this week at an organizational meeting Tuesday between coaches and representatives from the Special Services Sports Office.

It was announced that the season will open this Monday with doubleheaders at Kelley Hill and Briant Wells Field Houses and that 10 teams will participate in the season's first half. This number is three less than the originally projected 13 squads.

At the meeting's end, the Infantry Center basketball picture looked like this:

The Student Brigade

The Student Brigade will enter only one team in play this year. The brigade had originally planned to enter two teams. Personnel shortages were given as the reason for the withdrawal of TSB team No. 2. TSB's single entry will be composed of Headquarters Company, TSB; Infantry School Battalion; and 4th Student Battalion.

The 197th Infantry Brigade will enter competition with five teams. These are the 29th and 58th Infantries, 69th Armor, 10th Artillery and a Brigade Troops team.

Troop Command

The Infantry Center Troop Command announced two major changes. The 1st Battalion, CTC, defending Infantry Center champions, will not field a squad this year. An athletic spokesman for CTC said that personnel shortages and work conflicts resulted in the decision to scrub the 1st Battalion team.

However, the 54th Quartermaster Battalion decided this week to enter a team. The 54th's entry brings the number of CTC teams back to the originally planned three squads. The other two CTC participants are the 39th Transportation Battalion and the 577th Engineer Battalion.

The 10th Aviation Group announced that it will enter only one team this year. The group had originally planned to enter two squads.

428th Medics

A 428th Medical Battalion spokesman announced this week that the battalion will not participate in the season's first half but said the Medics will probably field a team for the second half. The spokesman said that personnel movements within the unit had made it difficult to organize an effective team.

The season's opener at Briant Wells Field House will take place at 6:30 p.m. on Monday between the 10th Aviation Group and the 29th Infantry. The second game will begin at 8 p.m. and will pit the 39th Transportation Battalion against the 10th Artillery.

In the opener at Kelley Hill Field House, the 197th Brigade Troops team will meet the 577th Engineers at 6:30.

A game between the 58th Infantry and TSB will be at 8 p.m.

Chimp to Give Bowling Show At Post Alleys

Anyone interested in getting a few hints of bowling is invited to see "Judy" give a bowling demonstration Nov. 20 at the Main Post Bowling Alley at 11:30 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Judy, who happens to be a chimpanzee, will also bowl at the Sand Hill bowling alley at 3:30 p.m.

The chimp has been bowling since January, using a 16-pound ball. She carries a 90 average with a high game of 133. Judy has also appeared on the Jack Paar and Gary Moore TV shows.

Miss Sandra Chapman, personnel director for a bread company's educational exhibit, taught Judy to bowl.

The educational exhibit, which includes aspects of animal biology and science, is presented in 3,000 schools a year on a national basis, ranging from kindergarten to college level.

Wigger Nabs Individual Rifle Crown At Los Angeles Fall Roundup Match

Special to The Bayonet

EL MONTE, Calif. — Olympic Golf Medal winner Capt. Lones Wigger of the Army Marksmanship Training Unit got off to a fast start and went on to win the individual championship in the Los Angeles Fall Roundup Smallbore Rifle Prone Championship here with an aggregate score of 3,198, only two points shy of a possible 3,200.

The big west coast shoot drew a premier field of 125 contestants, including five former national prone champions.

Wigger took a narrow lead over teammate MSgt. William Krilling at the end of the Iron Sight aggregate. Both men posted 1,598 totals but Wigger had 128 x-ring shots to 121 for Krilling.

Wigger then slammed the door on all of his competitors by not losing a single point in the Any Sight aggregate as he fired a perfect 1,600x1,600.

He needed the terrific score, however, as no less than seven members of the big field also posted perfect 1,600s. The sub-aggregate title went to Herb Hollister who had 142 x-ring shots.

Krilling was runnerup to Wigger in the grand championship with a 3,196 total.

Two other members from the MTU also competed in the match. Lt. Jim Meger finished with a 3,186 score and one point farther back was PFC David Kimes with 3,185.

UCLA's All-Court Press Upsets Rival Teams in Hoop Competition

By JOHN R. WOODEN UCLA Basketball Coach
Written for AP Newsfeatures

The full value and effectiveness of the all-court press, which has proved so successful at UCLA over the last two years, is difficult to assess, but there are some principles to be kept in mind that give one an insight into how it operates and what it can do.

First to be remembered is that the press is a gambling type of defense and requires continued effort and limitless patience if it is to pay dividends.

All players must be well grounded in the individual defensive fundamentals. Since I feel that these must be taught through the use of the man-to-man defense, our freshman team uses only a man-to-man press, but does use the principles of the zone defense when away from the ball.

Forces Opponents

The press speeds up the game and, perhaps, forces opponents out of their normal style of play. Thus, it also can cause disharmony and disunity on the opposing team. In fact, the principal value may come from demoralizing the opposition and upsetting their game.

I coach my UCLA players not to reach in to attempt to take the ball away from an opponent, but to play position and force errors when the opponent hurries.

Our players are taught to turn and sprint toward the defensive basket and to pick up the man in the most dangerous position whenever the ball passes their individual line of defense. Strong side men should be alive to "two-time" as they go back, and the weak side men should be alert to intercept.

Man to Man

Regardless of the type of zone we set up initially (2-2-1, 1-2-1-1, 1-3-1, 2-1-2) we use tight man-to-man principles if the man in your zone has the ball, and floating man-to-man principles, depending upon how far from the ball your man is in the other areas. If no opponent is in your zone, move closer to the zone that is being attacked.

Results often come in spurts, so apply immediate pressure after acquiring the ball through an error. Often they will try to make up the loss by "hurrying" and will make more errors.

Our 1964-65 team had at least one "spurt" in a period of about two minutes duration in all 30 games in which we out-scored opponents 10 to 20 points. Sometimes it did not come until the middle of the second half.

Players must realize the necessity and value of and be willing to make the necessary sacrifices to attain and maintain top condition.

Scoring

In addition, they must also be unselfish in regard to scoring since the scorer often will not be the player who caused the rival error.

It's interesting that the requirements for the No. 5, or deep, position are about what all coaches look for in all players. An outstanding player at this position is essential.

He must be quick, alert, courageous, unselfish, able to "read" the man with the ball, be very good at handling the deep defense when outnumbered and a fine rebounder who can get the ball out quickly.

He must be very aggressive, with judgment that prevents committing himself too soon, and —above all—a player who really loves a challenge.

The other Inter-Service events of the Army interest—wrestling and track and field—are slated for Fort Riley, May 3-6, and at Fort Eustis from June 15-17.

The Air Force worldwide sports calendar of 18 events in '66 includes bowling, badminton, squash, chess and model airplane contests.

Grid Champs And Officers Plan Clash

Company D, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, which clinched the Infantry Center touch football title on Wednesday, will face a tough team of officers from Career Course No. 1 in a challenge match at 8 p.m. on Nov. 19 at Gowdy Field

Attendance at the game is open to everyone in the Fort Benning - Columbus area. No admission will be charged but donations for the Fort Benning Teen Club can be made at the gate.

At the end of the post playoffs Wednesday, the CAR class team issued a challenge to the Benning champs who immediately accepted.

The CAR team had garnered a four win, one loss record to top The Student Brigade grid tournament held two weeks ago but were ineligible to participate in the post championships because of their student status.

Chief of Staff Promises Pilots Career Equity

From the Army Times

WASHINGTON — The special career circumstances forced upon Army aviators by their heavy involvement in Viet Nam won't count as black marks against their records.

"I want to assure you," said Army Chief of Staff Gen. H. K. Johnson at the Army Aviation Association of America meeting here, "that everything possible is being done to alleviate or eliminate that (Viet Nam) impact.

"Special effort is being made in the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel and in the Office of Personnel Operations —in your career branch offices — to see that equity of opportunity is provided.

"Schooling that has been postponed can be accommodated at a later date, so that aviators will not be penalized merely because current circumstances mitigate against what we usually call balanced career opportunity."

Johnson said he was aware that the shortage of aviators has forced the Army to fill positions lower than their rank called for, and that other officers are carrying out responsibilities beyond their grade.

"In the efficiency evaluation of the officers concerned the circumstances creating such situations will be taken into account," the Chief of Staff promised.

JOHNSON SAID that heavy burdens have fallen particularly on pilots in the rank of major and below as well as the mechanics who keep the aircraft ready.

"We have had to remove some Army aviators from ground duty and command assignments and put them back into the cockpit. Some desirable career assignments have had to be deferred, some of them well deserved school assignments."

The spectre of repetitive assignments to Viet Nam for officers has been raised but the Army will do all it can to prevent them.

New 'Copter Breaks World Speed Mark

The speed attainment is a performance breakthrough for aircraft of pure helicopter design. The official world speed record for helicopters of the HueyCobra's weight class is 180.1 mph.

A modified version of the Army's UH-1B, the new aircraft was designed for greater speed, maneuverability and firepower, and can carry twice the ammunition load of the UH-1B.

Necessity of Secondary MOS Test Is Considered in Pentagon Study

From the Army Times

WASHINGTON — A study is underway in the Pentagon to decide whether testing of enlisted men in secondary MOSs should continue.

Another outcome of the study could be new rules controlling the award of secondary MOSs. Officials last week said a complete analysis of experience with the SMOS test program over the past year has been launched with two questions in mind:

Is the time, effort and money spent on SMOS testing worthwhile in terms of the information produced and the use made of it?

What are the benefits to the Army in soldiers having SMOSs?

While recognizing that soldiers' SMOSs are an asset in general, authorities nevertheless feel the secondary and additional MOSs awarded should be those which "will best meet the critical needs of the Army."

For example, said one official: "Personnel with an MOS for which requirements exist primarily in CONUS should be cross - trained in MOSs which are required primarily in oversea commands, and vice versa.

"There should also be a means of controlling the production of SMOSs so as to alleviate or eliminate critical shortages of special skills," the official added.

One of the Army's top goals in EM management is increased flexibility in assignments, it was pointed out.

"The ability to assign and use each individual in more than one military specialty would be a positive step toward accomplishing this objective," the official said.

Servicemen Sought For Fitness Program

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Defense Department has sent a memorandum to each of the services requesting nominees to compete in the third annual U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce (Jaycees) Physical Fitness Leadership Recognition Program.

Twelve winners will be selected from 50 state finalists and military personnel overseas recommended by DOD.

The program is endorsed by the President's Council on Physical Fitness.

Nominations of military personnel stationed in the United States should be made through the local Jaycee office. At overseas installations, details are available at Special Services and Information offices.

DOD participation in the program is "primarily designated to recognize and encourage outstanding achievements of military and civilian personnel of the military services who participate voluntarily as individuals in non-official programs in their off-duty time."

Winners will receive an expense-paid trip to Washington in the early spring to be honored at an official reception. Three national winners, to be selected from the 12 finalists, will each receive a $1,000 cash award.

BOEING, BOEING — The big, bright, bright, b a n g, bang, fun, fun, story of two dedicated airline hostess jugglers — bep at keeping one up — one down — one pending. It takes a sly, slide rule look at timetable love in the big jet era. Incidentally, the REAL Schmidter r e a l l y stands out in this grab bag of sophisticated comedy. Stars Jerry Lewis, Tony Curtis and Thelma Ritter.

THE SABOTEUR — CODE NAME "MORITURI" — Yul Brynner, captain of a blockade - running German merchant ship, is ordered to take a load of valuable rubber cargo to occupied France. British intelligence persuades Brando to board the ship disguised as a Nazi SS officer. Brando is to prevent the ship from reaching its destination as it is to be intercepted by units of the U. S. Navy. Action and suspense mount to a surprising climax.

Ed Sullivan TV Show To Feature Post Nurse

A Fort Benning Army nurse will appear on the Ed Sullivan Show Sunday to initiate a 30 day tour of the nation to recruit volunteers for the Army Nurse Corps.

She is 1st Lt. Catherine Jean Schilling who was awarded a Bronze Star Medal in September for heroism in Viet Nam.

The intrepid young nurse had refused to leave her post after her tour of duty was completed, remaining in Viet Nam six weeks after she was due to report for duty at Fort Benning.

Her delay was due to the attack on Camp Holloway at Pleiku and the subsequent bombing of Qui Nhon barracks, events which caused a nursing crisis that far outweighed her planned return to the States.

After her appearance on the Ed Sullivan Show, Lt. Schilling will remain in New York City three days where recruiting personnel plan to have her speak to various groups of nurses and students in schools of nursing, officials said.

Lt. Schilling will continue her recruiting tour with visits in Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 17-20; Miami, Nov. 20-23; New Orleans, Nov. 23-26; Dallas, Nov. 26-30; Los Angeles, Nov. 30 to Dec. 3; San Francisco, Dec. 3-7; Portland, Ore., Dec. 7 and 8; Seattle, Washington, Dec. 8-10; ending with appearances on Dec. 11 in Yakima, Wash.

Lt. Schilling is a graduate of Millard Fillmore School of Nursing in Buffalo, N.Y.

Science Aids Eternal Quest For Girls

BAMBERG, Germany — Army troops here have raised the fine art of girl spotting to the new level of sophistication.

They set up watch posts at downtown night spots and use a commercial walkie-talkie radio to pinpoint the movements of comely lasses.

An average conversation employs military jargon and goes something like this:

"Alfa one, this is alfa two. A pair of dolls just walked in here. One's blond, the other is a brunette. Both, repeat both, are curvy."

"Detain if possible Casanova," said Alfa one, forgetting all about military radio procedure.

In the Christmas Spirit

Post Soldiers Are Santa's Helpers to Needy Kids

BY MIKE GROGAN

Repairing toys for needy children has brought the Christmas spirit to a group of Fort Benning soldiers early this year as it has each Christmas for the past seven years.

For seven years, the members of the Infantry School's Mortar Committee have worked diligently on a project they call "Operation Toy" in order to bring toys and other Christmas gifts to the needy children in the Columbus - Fort Benning area.

During the early part of October, SFC Chris J. Lohere, who is overseeing the project, and the other 140 officers and enlisted men of the commitee began their project.

The first step was to advertise the need for castaway toys which the group can restore

CANDY BOUND FOR WAR-TORN VIET NAM
(L to R) Mann, Smith and Grace with 70 Pounds of Candy

Collection of Gifts For Viet Christmas Ends Here Today

The Fort Benning Officers Wives Club begun collecting gift packages for soldiers in Viet Nam yesterday at eight pick up stations here as other post and Columbus groups also moved to bring Christmas closer to American soldiers and Vietnamese civilians.

The OWC's collection of packages, which is part of their "Christmas for the GIs in Viet Nam" program, is scheduled to end tonight according to Mrs. Thomas G. Sweet, project chairman.

Mrs. Sweet said anyone wishing to donate gifts should fill a box, about the size of a shoe box, with small useful items. The carton should weigh no more than two pounds and should be gift wrapped.

Suggested items for the packages include large and small screw top plastic containers; plastic wallets and billfolds; new and used pocket books and light weight current magazines; ball point pens; self sealing air mail envelopes; stationary; cigarette lighters without fluid; plastic cigarette cases; and foods such as cookies, brownies, dried fruits, packages of seasoned corn for popping and small cans of foiled wrapped packages of pre-sweetened drinks.

Mrs. Sweet said that pick up stations will be manned today by officers wives at the Main Officers Club, the Academic Building, NCO Club, Main Post Protestant Chapel, Kelley Hill Chapel, the 197th Infantry Brigade Chapel on Sightseeing Road and the snack bar at the Custer Terrace Shopping Center.

All gifts will be sent to Viet Nam in time for Christ-

Thanksgiving '65 Time to Be Grateful

As we observe Thanksgiving Day 1965, let us contemplate the abundant blessings we enjoy as Americans and be grateful.

Let us not fail to remember our comrades in Viet Nam and other overseas areas safeguarding the rights we have long taken for granted and for which people in these lands aspire.

Let us be mindful of our individual and collective responsibilities to serve our country worthily and our God devotedly.

May this day be so observed that we uphold the great ideals and traditions of this Nation—the "Home of the Brave and the Land of the Free."

To each of you I extend best wishes for a pleasant Thanksgiving Day. . . Maj. Gen. Robert H. York.

Post Supply System Seen By Army CG

Lt. Gen. Louis W. Truman, commander of the Third U. S. Army, visited The Infantry Center Tuesday to get a first hand look at supply operations and procedures.

The general heard briefings on Fort Benning's supply operations, including the problems of inventories and excesses generated by the movement of troop units from the post recently. He was briefed on the organization of a consolidated supply system and on the overall picture of "flow processes" for supply documentations.

To get a first hand look at one phase of this supply process, Gen. Truman followed through the administrative system from the time it was initiated at the unit level until the transaction was completed at the issue warehouse.

Gen. Truman stressed the importance of getting excess supplies back to depot stock for more efficient disposition.

Gen Adams Addresses CAR Classes

Following a visit with Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, Infantry School commandant, Adams addressed a combined gathering of career classes No. 1 and 2.

He departed the post yesterday.

Carbine Williams to Show New Weapon Tomorrow

David M. (Carbine) Williams will demonstrate his .22 caliber machinegun tomorrow morning at 9 at Hook Range.

Williams is a unique inventor in the weapons field as he conceives his ideas and then designs and builds a finished working model.

He holds 59 major patents on weapons that he has invented.

Mr. Ross E. Beard Jr., a recognized weapons collector and Williams' biographer, will present "Carbine".

Williams is noted as the designer of the 'carbine' the weapon that has been a part of the Army's arsenal since World War II. He designed that weapon while serving time in a penitentiary.

The weapon he will demonstrate is the only model in existence.

The gun is bolt fed and has cyclic rates of fire at 1000 and 2000 rounds per minute. At present, the gun is chambered for the regular .22 caliber long rifle, high speed cartridge.

Army officials said they are interested in the weapon for training purposes as well as for riot control.

Changes are expected to be minor and the gun could go into production in six months if the Army accepts it, according to one official.

Santa

into suitable Christmas gifts.

Then the committee members began to collect, repair and paint thousands of toys from small cars and dolls to bicycles and waggons. Just before Christmas, the toys will be given to the Salvation Army for distribution among the needy families in the area.

"We thought we would have trouble this year," Capt. Carl R. Grantham of the committee admitted, "because of the lack of the two divisions. But the people in the area have come through and given us a lot of toys to work on."

So far over 1500 items have been collected and are stored in the Mortar Committee's supply building in the Harmony Church area. Those on the committee who are repairing the items have set up an assembly line to get the toys repaired quickly and efficiently.

Many of the toys have interesting backgrounds. Like the bicycle that once belonged to a general's daughter in Germany until it was sold to a secondhand shop. A captain then bought it for two dollars and brought it back to the states.

When he gave it to "Operation Toy," it was in poor condition and at first was considered beyond repair. Parts of it were used on other, less damaged bikes. But then an enterprising young soldier felt he could get the toy fixed and after many hours of work has it ready for Santa to put under a needy child's Christmas tree.

Gifts

mas. The packages will be sent along with gifts collected in "Operation Christmas Cheer", the project instituted by the Columbus Chapter of Viet Nam Mail Call.

Mrs. Sweet said that Fort Benning soldiers and dependents who wish to donate Christmas gifts to American soldiers and Vietnamese civilians after the closing of the OWC pickup stations today can do so through "Operation Christmas Cheer."

Pick up points have been set up at the following Columbus locations: Teletron TV at 24-27 Cusseta Road; The Tire Exchange at 633 4th Avenue; Safety Tire Company at 20-28 Cussetta Road and 1706 South Lumpkin Road; Higdon's Super Market at 848 25th Street; Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 665 on Victory Drive; the Charles F. Harrison Post No. 35; American Legion Post No. 525 and Am Vets Post No. 9 at 401 Broadway.

In Phenix City donations may be made at the Family Hobby Center at 2200 4th Avenue.

"Operation Christmas Cheer" is also collecting useful items such as clothing and school supplies and toys for Vietnamese children, Mrs. Sweet said.

Benning youngsters at the Don C. Faith School have contributed 70 pounds of candy for children in Viet Nam, a spokesman at the school said.

Gary J. Mann, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Clarence Mann, organized the collection project along with classmates Pat Smith and Steve Grace.

The boys visited classrooms recently and collected a variety of "trick and treat" candy. The candy will be sent to Chaplain (Maj.) Charles Gibbs of the 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion, 1st Cavalry Division and 1st Lt. Phillip Mock of the 2nd Battalion of the 502nd Airborne Infantry for distribution.

Boys and girls of Our Lady of Lourdes Parish, Columbus, also sacrificed part of their Halloween candy for Vietnamese children. The candy will be sent to men of the 1st Cavalry Division for distribution.

E-9s Urged to Recruit E-4s for Re-enlistment

From The Army Times

WASHINGTON—The Army wants every E-9 to recruit at least 10 selected E-4s annually for reenlistment, noting that failure to do so might result in more lower-level jobs being turned over to senior NCOs.

The recruiting goals for E-9s were spelled out in an information brief during the Army's recent Sergeant Major Conference.

In urging a better recruiting effort among E-9s, the Army brief noted that the current enlistment rate for lower grade enlisted personnel "consistently fails to meet the minimum level desired by the Army."

The majority of lower grade reenlistments come from E-3s. "E-4 and E-5 reenlistments are not in sufficient quantity to insure a high degree of selectivity in future promotion competition for NCO slots," the Army told its top sergeants.

It said the continued poor reenlistment rate will require the Army to put senior NCOs in E-4 and E-5 jobs "to compensate for the lower level of efficiency among junior NCOs."

Noting its increasing demand for OCS applicants, the Army is also urging its senior NCOs to keep an eye out for the soldier who possesses commissioned officer potential.

Do you know What to do...

After an ACCIDENT?

Accident Report Form Saves You Headaches

Even though the National Safety Council and local military and civilian officials warn us of the perils of traffic accidents, we still are involved in them. The dictionary defines "accident" as an unexpected occurrence. No matter how much we know about traffic safety, accidents will happen.

We all should know how to prevent an accident. But the question arises—what to do if one does have an accident?

Every reputable automobile insurance company has a prepared form to help those involved get all the facts about an accident.

Some of the data needed includes the date, time and place of the accident. This information could have a later bearing on the case. Another important factor is the weather and road condition.

Next, the name, address and license number of the other driver, the name and address of the car's owner, its license plate number and state, and make, model and year of the other car is required. This information should also be furnished on your car to the other driver.

Make sure the names and addresses of anyone injured in your car as well as those in the other car are listed.

If there is any doubt as to who had the right of way or who was responsible for the accident, names and addresses of any witnesses are very important. So, too, is the name and badge number of the investigating police officer.

The name of the insurance agent for the owner and driver of the other car should be obtained, if available.

Perhaps one of the most important parts of an accident report form is a diagram showing the position of the vehicles involved — both before and after the accident. Almost every report form has a basic cross street diagram already printed and all that is required is to draw in what happened. Usually your car is known as Number One and the other as Number Two.

This diagram, if filled in at the time of the accident, can later be used to settle certain arguments. While most insurance companies advertise "quick payments," difficulties may arise and it could be months before a settlement is reached. In this period of time, the persons involved may forget some of the accident details. Memories can become very hazy. If the other driver was in the wrong and insists that you are the one who committed the wrong, your diagram could very well save the day for you.

Obviously, the best thing to do is avoid having an accident. But, if despite your precautions, you become involved in one, a properly filled-out accident report can save a lot of headaches. (AFPS)

'The Point of the Spear'

"It's most continue to meet responsibilities we must continue to have a strong Army and a strong alliance and a strong Free World; and to do that we need a strong Army which is the point of the spear."

JOHN F. KENNEDY
35th President

Doesn't Knock Twice

Don't Ignore OCS Opportunity

Though opportunity may sometimes knock more than once, it is generally a good idea to take advantage of it the first time around.

And, opportunity is indeed "knocking" at Fort Benning in the form of a chance for more and more qualified personnel to attend Officer Candidate School.

Because of the recent strength increase to enable the Army to meet its many and varied world wide commitments, there is a corresponding increase in the need for more junior officers. A step toward fulfilling this requirement comes in the recently announced Officer Candidate School expansion throughout the country.

What it means here at Fort Benning is a chance for more qualified personnel to attend OCS than had previously been the case. Additionally, what had often been a tedious and irritating processing procedure has been simplified and expedited to the maximum extent.

The training, of course, is rugged. OCS is a comprehensive, demanding course which requires determination and 23 weeks of wholehearted effort to succeed. But, the dividends are prodigious.

To begin with, the OCS graduate is commissioned a reserve second lieutenant.

The top graduates in the class are given an opportunity to attain Regular Army commissions.

As a commissioned officer, the soldier comes in line for greater responsibilities and the feeling of accomplishment which comes with success.

Promotionwise, the individual who completes OCS opens up a new world for himself. Within 18 months, the OCS graduate who continues to prove himself becomes a first lieutenant and less than two and one half years later he can expect a boost to captain. In a day and age of frozen enlisted MOSs and the like, this promotion picture offers an infinitely better potential than remaining an enlisted man. Going from second lieutenant to captain in approximately four years can prove to be a good bit faster than advancing only one stripe in the higher enlisted grades during the same period.

The financial advantages which accrue to the OCS graduate through the aforementioned promotion picture are also worth considering. In the long run, they can amount to a healthy sum.

Notwithstanding patriotism and the challenge of proving to oneself that he can successfully negotiate the hard road to an OCS commission, life as a commissioned officer can offer the individual unparalleled opportunity when compared to enlisted status.

The opportunity to take the first step toward obtaining this OCS commission is "knocking at the door" right now. If you're qualified, might it not be a good idea for you to see your unit commander about OCS today.

There might never be a better time!

Editor's View

By Jim Baker

One of the first things the soldier does when he comes into the Army is to become initiated into the Army's police call program.

He probably remembers that first morning in the reception station when the first thing he did even before he ate his breakfast was to go out along the side of the road picking up cigarette butts, beer cans, paper, broken glass and even discarded tires.

Police call is never ending as far as the Army is concerned.

One soldier remembers graduating from an Army speciality school and being told by the colonel who presented the certificates of completion "that wherever you go in the Army, I can promise you one thing — there will be grass to be cut."

When one stops to think of the number of man hours involved in police call, the cost of it becomes staggering.

This is a cost that each of us as soldier - taxpayers must bear.

It's at high time we all did something to lower the cost of this operation.

We can.

It's easy.

All we have to do is stop littering the post with beer cans, discarded furniture, dead animals, cigarette butts and paper of all kinds.

Maj. John F. Chambers, S-4 of the Infantry Center Troop Command, has some rather enlightening things to say about the area he is responsible for policing each day — it covers 2600 acres, approximately one fifth of the post's 285 square miles, and requires 100 men five and a half days a week to keep the post beautified.

One of the common problems, according to Chambers — people who clear government quarters and "just dump their trash in the street."

He says sometimes he has to remove as many as three truck-loads of trash from one street. And he added that these were large two and a half-ton truck-loads.

Chambers has some very nasty stories to tell about people who put newly born cats in sacks and then discard them along the side of the road to die.

There are also people, Chambers says, who apparently very carefully place their trash in a car litter bag and then discard the full litter bag along the road.

Just about everything and anything from junked automobiles to unwanted pets have been found along the Benning roads according to Chambers.

The Provost Marshal reports finding bicycles and autos abandoned all over the post.

And of course there is the ever popular beer can. . . they can be found any and everywhere.

No one in his right senses would drive through the countryside sprinkling dollar bills to the wind but this is just what happens every time a beer can is thrown carelessly away.

Not only does he risk as much as a $1,000 fine in the state of Georgia and court martial proceedings if he does it on government property, but he is also throwing his own tax dollar out the window so someone can come along and remove the blight his carelessness has caused.

Many complain about waste in government spending but there is no greater waste than the waste of money to clean up after someone else has been thoughtless and careless.

If one were to compute the manhours alone that are involved in keeping this post clean, the cost would be stupendous.

Much of that cost is unavoidable. Lawns must be mowed, grass cut and leaves raked but there is no excuse for all the time lost in picking up trash.

Fort Benning has a beautiful post serving many people. This constitutes a medium size city. This makes every soldier a citizen of Fort Benning with the responsibilities that attend to citizenship.

One of these responsibilities is KEEPING Fort Benning CLEAN.

Be Safe This Weekend; Give Thanks Personally

With the Thanksgiving Day holiday almost upon us, it is an especially appropriate time to remind ourselves of the importance of keeping this and every day of the year free of tragedy on the highways.

It's been said before, it will be said again but it apparently can never be said enough...drive carefully, drive defensively, drive to stay alive!

The Teen Beat

BY SHARON GRACE

HI, THERE!

Recently, we saw a general meeting at Teen Square where the new members of the Teen Council were introduced. They are Bill O'Dell, president; Charles Francis, vice president; Sue Tjossem, treasurer; Mary O'Neill, secretary; Sue Reynolds, program chairman; Ann Griswold, Jr., chaperone chairman; Becky Copeland, publicity chairman; Sharon Grace, teen news chairman; Barbara Cronk, membership chairman; Tom Sweet, grievance chairman, and Steve Swenson, custodian.

The Halloween Costume Party at Teen Square was a howling success. We had mountains of donuts left over, tho. (Anyone for a donut party?)

Included on the guest list was everything from a very muscular Hula dancer to "Sonny and Cher."

First prizes for costumes were taken by Emily Cheatum and Joe Grant, dressed as ragdolls. Second porizes went to Sue Reynolds (Wanda the Witch) and Dicky Watts, dressed as a (?) girl.

Coming up at Teen Square is a coat-and-tie Thanksgiving Dance November 24 and a Hayride December 18 with the Gintrees playing. More on these later!

Last week was a busy one at school. Columbus and Pacelli both played their homecoming games and had homecoming dances.

• • •

Have you heard the latest? UMOC is coming!! To Baker High!! Anyone contributing pertinent information as to the "who" or "what" of this distinguished visitor will be handsomely rewarded (???). Well, that's about it for now.

See you next week.

Provost Marshal Tip

Easy Precautions Can Be Taken To Prevent Automobile Thefts

Most automobile thefts occur only because the owner of the stolen car invites the thief to steal it.

Keys left in the ignition, unlocked doors and windows, and leaving a car parked on a deserted street is virtually asking for trouble.

The majority of car thefts occur when a youngster wishes to take somebody else's car for a joy ride. The owner generally gets his vehicle back but the inconvenience to the owner and the danger to the thief and the owner make "joy riding" a very serious crime.

Of course there are the professional car thiefs who steal for profit and they come in two categories. One type takes a car and sells the complete vehicle and the other type "strips" the essentials off the car leaving a useless hulk.

Cold Injury Easily Prevented

Soldiers at Fort Benning are inclined to discount the possibility of being injured by cold weather. . .but it is very much a possibility . . .even in Georgia's mostly warm and sunny climate.

Cold injury is damage to the body, commonly the feet and the hands, produced by prolonged exposure to cold. The temperature is not the only factor causing cold injury. The moisture and wind both play important parts.

During the second World War, cold injury was responsible for much lost manpower. There were 91,000 soldiers in the Army who received some form of cold injury and the hospitalization time for these men averaged 48 days.

So you can see what an important role it can play. In addition, many of those afflicted with a cold injury are permanently disabled, having required amputation of a hand or a foot. The most important thing to remember about cold injury is that it is completely preventable.

There are several types of cold injury. Chilblains, the most common injury in Georgia, occur at temperatures between 32 and 50 degrees, fahrenheit, when associated with high humidity. It also occurs when there is exposure to intermittent cold, warm one day and cold the next.

Immersion foot occurs under similar temperature conditions but there is the additional factor of the actual immersion of the foot in water for periods of 12 hours or more. When the feet are wet or damp, but actually not in water, trench foot occurs.

Dental Clinic to be Dedicated; Named for Dental Corps Pioneer

A $345,000 dental clinic just completed at Fort Benning will be dedicated at 9:30 a.m. today.

The modern 26-chair facility will be named in memory of a Dental Corps pioneer, the late Julien Rex Bernheim, who began a 41 year career in the service as a contract dental surgeon in 1902.

The dedication ceremony, to be conducted at the clinic, across the street from Sight-seeing Road Chapel, will open with a prelude by The Infantry Center Band.

Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, Infantry Center commanding general, will make the opening remarks followed by Maj. Gen. John A. Beall Jr., chief of staff of Third Army.

Principal speaker will be Maj. Gen. Joseph L. Bernier, assistant surgeon general and chief of the Dental Corps.

Bernheim Clinic replaces U. S. Army Dental Clinic No. 1 which was part of an old cantonment hospital constructed on the post during World Warr II.

The clinic comprises 10,000 feet of floor space. It is ventilated and well lighted, officials said.

In addition to serving the military population of the main post, Bernheim Clinic will provide a center for the dental intern and resident training program. With all new equipment installed in the clinic, the training will utilize the most advanced technology.

After the dedication, there will be a conducted tour of the clinic.

Thanks Are Offered Community Services Workers; Given Badges

Community Services Agency volunteer patches were presented to 10 Fort Benning women in recent ceremonies at the Welcome Center in Bldg. 1101.

Designed and handcrafted by personnel of the center, the badges feature a silver gyroscope superimposed upon a Maltese cross on a gold disk. The symbol is centered on an Infantry blue felt tab.

Volunteers have been in training since September to acquaint themselves with the facilities of the post, the community and the services available at the center, according to Maj. Shirley Sneed, coordinator of the Community Services Agency.

"The volunteers will keep the center open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and from 8 a.m. to 12 noon on Saturdays. We will even open up on Sunday if the need should arise," she said.

Mrs. George E. Thayer is chairman of the Welcome Center.

The badges were presented by Lt. Col. S. J. Merrill, chief of the Personal Services Branch of the Office of the Director of Personnel.

Col. Merrill thanked the volunteers on behalf of Benning commander, Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, for their work at the Welcome Center. He pledged the cooperation of the Infantry Center in making the project a success.

"A booklet outlining the facilities of the Welcome Center will be handed to all incoming personnel," he said. "In a letter which is addressed to military personnel who are due to report to Fort Benning, there will be information about the center. We urge all new personnel to avail themselves of the services provided for them here."

Guests toured the building following the presentation ceremony.

An open house at the Welcome Center is planned for the near future.

Receiving badges were Mrs. Thayer, Mrs. J. A. Kay, Mrs. R. A. Witter, Mrs. E. N. Grix, Mrs. H. C. Detwiler, Mrs. J. A. Garner, Mrs. L. R. Knight, Mrs. Raymond Forehand, Mrs. W. B. Anderson and Mrs. J. K. Middaugh.

Famed Soldier-Educator

Hall of Fame to Enshrine Thayer

NEW YORK (ANF) — Soldier-educator Sylvanus Thayer has been elected for permanent enshrinement in the Hall of Fame for Great Americans at New York University here.

Chosen from a list of 225 outstanding historical figures nominated by the American public, Thayer's name was voted on by the College of Electors composed of distinguished men and women from the fifty states.

Known as the "father of the U. S. Military Academy," Thayer instituted principles of academic and military training which have remained substantially unchanged since his tenure as Academy Superintendent from 1817-1833.

He established the first, and for many years the only, technical library in the U. S. and his science and technical curriculum and methods of instruction transformed West Point into the leading science school of its day.

Thayer's work and the achievements of his students earned for him fame as the founder of technical education in the United States.

A bust of Thayer, sculpted especially for the Hall of Fame, will shortly be commissioned. It, together with an inscribed tablet, will be placed in a niche on the open air colonnade on the N.Y.U. campus which overlooks the Hudson River.

To date, 88 Americans have been immortalized; they have been selected as Americans who have "contributed significantly to the history, culture or development of the nation."

Special Team Recovers Copter Grounded by VC

AN KHE, (1st CAV-IO)—A highly specialized team of 1st Cavalry Division helicopters working with Air Force forward air controllers and fighter-bombers recovered a downed helicopter which had been shot down near the Viet Cong stronghold of Nui Ong, some 36 miles east of An Khe.

The downed aircraft had been on a routine Special Forces mission when it received heavy ground fire, took a round in the engine and was forced to land in a rice paddy.

A second Huey immediately landed and made a daring rescue, taking off with 13 men and the downed ship's radio gear aboard.

Less than three hours later a mixed force of 20 helicopters under the command of Lt. Col. Robert S. Keller arrived on the scene.

The Cav choppers, armed with a mixture of rockets and machine guns, delivered suppressive fire on suspected VC positions.

When the fire was returned, four aerial artillery ships of the 2nd Battalion, 20th Artillery delivered their load of 48 rockets on the VC targets.

Seven troop carrying helicopters from Keller's own 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion landed around the downed aircraft and discharged a reinforced platoon from the 2nd Battalion, 5th Cavalry's Company C.

The platoon quickly secured the crash site, allowing a ship carrying a 229th maintenance team to land.

In just over two minutes, the maintenance crew rigged the disabled craft for sling loading and a giant CH-47 Chinook helicopter from the 223rd Assault Helicopter Support Battalion lifted it out and carried it back to An Khe.

Top Ranger Grad Gets Darby Memorial Award

Second Lt. Donald C. Erbes was presented the Gen. Darby Memorial Plaque as the honor and distinguished graduate of the Infantry School Ranger class that ended last week at Fort Benning.

The plaque is awarded at each Ranger graduation in honor of Brig. Gen. William O. Darby and is presented by the Ranger Battalions Association composed of members of the six World War II Ranger battalion's.

Lt. Erbes also received a Ranger tab, Ranger guidon, An Association of the U. S. Army plaque and a year's subscription to Infantry Magazine.

Four honor graduates of the class were Lts. C. Robert Arvin, George R. Brock, Thomas H. Carl and John M. Howell.

Lt. Col. Robert B. Nett, holder of the Medal of Honor and commander of the 5th Battalion, Student Brigade, addressed the 146 graduates, nearly all of whom had also taken airborne training.

Nett told the graduates that by completing the Ranger course they had proven themselves exceptionaly well-qualified as Infantrymen trained for combat leadership.

"You have been given the skill and knowledge that will place you in key jobs with added responsibility," he said.

He added that they have been prepared for general war, limited war and counterinsurgency. The counterinsurgency training is suited to the war in Viet Nam where there is no definable front line, Nett said.

Nett said to gain a military victory, the need is for individual skill, advising the graduates to "raise the standards by teaching your men all you know."

Baby Alligator Becomes Mascot For Company A, 29th Infantry

BY JOE HUTTIE

West Point has its mule, Annapolis its goat and the Air Force Academy its falcon when it comes to widely-known mascots. But for the troops of "Alpha" Company of the 29th Infantry, these are mild mannered pets indeed when compared to Davie, their foot long alligator.

Guaranteed to be a genuine Florida-swamp 'gator by the pet store it was purchased from, Davie was originally the property of Sgt. Robert Curry, the 29th's athletic director.

However, at the start of this week, Sgt. Curry hit upon the idea of making the alligator the mascot for Company A.

Company commander William Golding termed the idea "just great" and the wheels were set in motion.

Unfortunately, before an official ceremony could be organized for presentation of the 'gator to "Alpha" Company, the unit left for maneuvers in the swamps of North Florida.

However, according to Curry, the Florida swamps were actually the motivating reason behind Company A's adoption of Davie as their mascot. Known around the 29th as the "Alpha Gators," Company A is one of the main support units of the Ranger School.

Their support missions take Capt. Golding and his troops deep into the swamps and woods of Florida to stage the insurgency training for Ranger candidates. "So what better a mascot than a 'gator," says Sgt. Curry.

Although Davie tips the measuring scale at about a foot in length, right now he is less than a year old. Eventually he will grow to full size with Sgt. Curry claiming that within the next two years Davie should fill out to a healthy three feet. What happens then?

According to Curry, he plans on caring for the pet until he gets "unmanagable," "Then we will probably have to give him away," he adds.

Tentative plans call for Davie to get a paint job as soon as his body lengthens to allow for painting the checkerboard scales on his back.

Although a 'gator is a tough customer when he reaches maturity, the Curry family must maintain a watchful eye on the animal while he is still young. His meals consist of raw hamburger and fish and he must be kept in the sunlight for a minimum of one hour each day according to Curry.

Davie has two portable homes in the Curry household, one for inside and one for outside.

The two pens are approximately four feet long and two feet wide and filled with two inches of water. In order to make the surroundings familiar, genuine swamp grass, dirt and rock have been added to both pens.

How do the other Currys feel about the 'gator mascot? "They love it," says the sergeant. "When I first brought him home, the only one who would touch him was my six-year-old son Robert. I myself was actually a little afraid of the thing."

Mrs. Curry has a good time with the gator since it goes along quite well with her gold fish collection — when kept at a distance, the sergeant adds.

The Curry children treat Davie just like any other pet. They take him walking on a leash in the back yard and frolic with him all the time.

One of their favorite tricks is to turn Davie on his back and then stroke his soft underbelly until he falls asleep. "The first time I tried it, he got a little irritated and snapped at me. Even though his teeth aren't dangerous, it still scared me a little," says Sgt. Curry.

In summing up their current plans, the sergeant says that he and the family are going to try and tame the 'gator as much as possible in order to keep him as long as they can.

Since an alligator lives in most cases until he is 75 years old, it is doubtful that the taming process will last indefinitely, one cynic was overheard to comment.

Lexington May Be Chosen For 24-Hour Flag Display

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The town green of Lexington, Mass., may be added to three sites where the United States flag is officially flown 24 hours a day.

An act to this effect has been cleared by the House and Senate and referred to the Budget Bureau.

Lexington is the home of the Revolutionary War "Minuteman" and the scene of the first battle of the war.

Officially, the flag may be flown night and day at Ft. McHenry and Flag House Square, both in Baltimore, and the Marine Corps Memorial, Arlington, Va., according to Army Adjutant General Institute of Heraldry records.

Traditionally, however, the records show 10 other recognized places where the flag is flown all the time.

Two of these honor Francis Scott Key, composer of the National Anthem. One flag flies at his grave, Frederick, Md., and the other at his birthplace, Keysville, Md.

Servicemen Make Use Of Viet Cong Supplies

DA NANG RVN (AFPS) — The war in the Republic of Viet Nam is reported regularly in the press. The details of every major action and many of the small ones reach the public eye.

But there are many incidents often overlooked that are as much a part of the struggle in the RVN and part of the servicemen's life as there are combat actions.

One Marine Corps reconnaissance unit took a lesson from Mao Tse-Tung in guerrilla warfare. The unit captured a 28-hut Viet Cong (VC) compound and lived off the enemy for three days. They ate rice left behind by "Victor Charlie" and seasoned their food with VC salt. During the chilly nights, VC clothing helped give them warmth and they fashioned cigarettes using VC tobacco.

At a more settled post, a staff sergeant was writing his wife when he felt something smooth slither across his foot. He didn't pay much attention to it. Then he felt something hard strike this bare stomach. He froze, remembering that he was in a land where cobras, bamboo vipers and other deadly reptiles are common. He very slowly moved his head so he could see his lap. Sitting there, looking back at him, was a big brown, beady eyed frog.

Another man put American know - how to work. He turned punji sticks, the crippling booby traps used by the VC, to a very personal advantage. The man was out on a wet, extended mission and couldn't find enough dry wood for a fire to dry his clothing and prepare a hot meal. He found the hardened bamboo punji sticks burned well without giving off revealing smoke.

He now considers the VC very thoughtful. After all, they went out of their way to leave the enemy an excellent supply of firewood.

Contributions Can Help Retarded Child to Learn

Out of every one hundred babies born in the United States, three are afflicted with some degree of mental retardation.

Mr. William H. Schultz, president of the Muscogee Chapter of the Georgia Association of Retarded Children, said in a recent interview that "mentally retarded children need love and understanding to live useful lives.

"Many of them, with special education and occupational training can acquire the knowledge, skills and social poise which would help them toward greater independence and make them happy persons," he added.

The Columbus chapter of the Georgia Association of Retarded Children is one of the twenty-seven agencies supported by funds received by the United Givers Drive now being conducted on post.

Two schools in the Muscogee County School District, Edwina Wood and Woodall, are staffed and equipped for the education and training of the trainable retarded.

This program, unique to a publicly supported school system, was initiated through the efforts of the Board of Directors of the MCGRCA. Now that this course of instruction is available in these two schools, the primary function that the local chapter serves is to assist in the daily transportation to and from classes for these children.

Since the students come from throughout the Columbus - Fort Benning area, the number of miles these students must be transported is in excess of 1500 miles per month, an official said.

In 1964, over twenty-one per cent of the budget received by the Retarded Children's Association was devoted to military families.

The services provided by this association include the promotion of understanding of mental retardation with the general public, assistance to parents of retarded children by counseling and giving information on existing services, and demonstrated support of appropriate legislation for all the retarded whether in the home, school or in institution.

Through the Georgia Association of Retarded Children, the Muscogee Chapter helps parents and friends of the mentally retarded to form chapters over the state and coordinate the efforts and activities of these units.

Also, through the state association, they award scholarships to stimulate the training and education of personnel for work in this field.

Mr. Schulz stated that "if you don't have a mentally retarded child would you help us, if you do let us help you."

Small Coins Help Combat Tuberculosis

Colorful TB coin canisters will appear throughout Fort Benning this week seeking your voluntary contributions, according to the area TB association.

Nickels, dimes and dollars will be most gratefully received by the Columbus Area TB Association to continue the war against tuberculosis and step up control of other respiratory diseases.

The principal benefit to military personnel, an association official said, from funds received during the 1965 Christmas Seal Campaign is seen in the priority given to Veterans Administration hospitals in all research findings in new drugs, treatment methods and hospital care techniques.

Educational materials are supplied schools, teachers, physicians and nurses at Fort Benning. Tuberculin testing and screening for tuberculosis in community neighborhoods reach dependents of the military.

Thirty-five hundred occupants of Fort Benning quarters will receive the traditional TB Christmas Seals in their mail with a request for a voluntary donation. There will be no payroll deductions and the TB Association is not a part of the United Givers or Community Chest, the official pointed out.

Anyone wishing Christmas Seals to use on their holiday mail is asked to phone 323-4700.

Artillery Unit Booms Over Top As Post Heads Toward UG Goal

Units around Fort Benning reported great success this week in meeting their fair share goals in the current United Givers Fund Drive.

With the fund campaign stretching toward the halfway mark, the 197th Infantry Brigade this week vaulted past the 85 per cent participation mark according to Capt. Michael H. Hansen.

Leading the drive was the 2d Battalion, 42d Artillery, which attained over 100 per cent contributions within the first two weeks of the drive. The 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry was the second brigade unit to top the 100 per cent contribution goal when it climbed over the mark at the beginning of this week.

An 18 foot United Giver's torch erected on Ivy and Watkins Roads at the entrance to the brigade's Kelley Hill location keeps a running tally on the positions of the individual units in relation to their projected goals.

Statistics on other outfits within the brigade show that the 69th Armor currently stands at 90 per cent total contributions, the 10th Artillery at 88 per cent, the 58th Infantry at 83 per cent, the 72nd Engineer Company at 74 per cent and Headquarters Company at 70 per cent.

Spokesmen for the U. S Army Training Center said that the center has reached almost 70 per cent of its dollar goal. So far, $7,177.34 has been donated.

The 1st Battalion of the 1st Training Brigade has topped its goal with 100 per cent participation by the men of the unit. The 2nd Brigade is close behind with over 84 per cent participation.

The Reception Station and Headquarters Group report that 70 per cent of their men have contributed and the Committee Group announced that it has reached the 90 per cent participation mark.

The 666th Transportation Company reports contributions totaling $666.66 which far exceeds the unit's goal according to one official.

Service Club Holds Veteran's Day Program

The Sand Hill Service Club was the scene of a Veterans' Day program in honor of all the men who have lost their lives in combat.

The program which began at 7 p. m. was presented by Mrs. Shirley Burris and her children. The children are Deanna, 13; Denise, 12; Roland and Ronald 10; Gloria, 7; Caren, 6; and Curtis, 5. Mrs. Burris and the two older daughters were dressed in Hungarian costumes. The younger girls wore blue velvet dresses and the boys wore velvet Eton suits.

The children sang English, German and Hungarian songs and danced to the music furnished by Mrs. Burris on the accordion. There were an estimated 100 servicemen present for the program.

Army Tests Television For Basic Training Use

From The Army Times

WASHINGTON—The Army is accelerating tests of televised instruction for Army recruits at Fort Gordon, Ga. with the goal of standardizing lessons at all eight Army basic training centers by early 1966, officials said this week.

Previous studies proved that soldiers trained with the aid of television learned appreciably more than conventionally - trained personnel and that some savings could be realized in instructor man-hours.

The present tests, under the supervision of Continental Army Command, represent the most extensive use to date of an audio-visual medium in military training, DA officials told Army Times.

Approximately 24 BCT companies are receiving a portion of their instruction by television.

Techniques resulting from the Fort Gordon tests are expected to be the basis for standardized instruction at all Army BCT centers.

The use of television instruction is not new to the Army. The Southeastern Signal School at Gordon has been using it for 10 years in technical training. But it is fairly new as far as BCT instruction is concerned, officials explained.

Expert instructors from Army training centers across the country were brought to Gordon to become "television personalities." Some 40 periods of instruction for basic combat training were put on tapes.

New Armed Copters On Priority Orders

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army has ordered development of ten prototype models of the Advanced Aerial Fire Support System (AAFSS), selecting the Lockheed California Co. to develop the weapons ships on a priority basis.

The AAFSS is an integral system centered around a radically new compound helicopter, the first rotary-wing craft conceived and designed exclusively as a weapons ship. Other elements of the system are aerial navigation devices, weapons and ground support equipment.

It will replace the Army's present armed helicopters, which are converted troop carriers. Armed helicopters perform the role of troopship escort and provide suppressive fire in landing zones during airmobile operations.

Capable of cruising at speeds in excess of 200 knots, the AAFSS helicopter is more than 50-percent faster than any other operational Army helicopter.

In battle, the weapons ship's two-man crew will fire machine guns, grenade launchers, rockets and anti-tank missiles.

Lockheed's AAFSS model uses an advanced rigid-rotor system for high maneuverability, stable hovering and stable low and high speed flight. Stubby wings, characteristic of the compound helicopter, and a pusher propeller are also employed.

It will be powered by a 3,400 horsepower General Electric gas turbine engine.

AAFSS is the first major Army weapons system to undergo the three-phase Department of Defense development cycle which includes definition, the current phase of engineering development, and production.

577th Opens Educational Program

The five major subjects contained in the Army's General Educational Development lists will be offered to soldiers of the 577th Engineer Battalion of Center Troop Command.

Col. Earl F. Holton, deputy post commander, did the honors at a ribbon cutting ceremony for the opening of the 577th's new classroom program last week.

The program, initiated by Lt. Col. Joseph E. Halloran, commanding officer of the 577th, will not only expand the soldier's educational background but will also enable him to raise his Army technical scores.

Volunteer instructors from the 577th are 1st Lt. L. Willis M. Grimm, 89th Ordnance Detachment; 2nd Lt. Larry D. Brage, asst. operations officer; 2nd Lt. Richard R. Worobec, commanding officer, Company B; and Sp4 Walter J. Parker, Headquarters and Headquarters Company. They will begin instruction with English and math and follow up with general science, English literature and American history.

The classes will be held Monday through Thursday from 6 to 8 p.m. in C and D Company classrooms of the 77th.

Post Surpasses Reduction Plans

Fort Benning's contribution to the Army Cost Reduction Program for Fiscal Year 1965 ending last June has been outstanding according to information released by Gen. Harold K. Johnson, chief of staff of he Army.

In a message to Gen. Paul L. Freeman, commanding general, U. S. Continental Army Command, it was indicated that the accomplishments to date have exceeded expectations and have occurred as a direct result of the active support given the Cost Reduction Program by military departments and defense agencies.

Gen. Johnson stated, "With the increased support and expenditures required in Viet Nam, it is essential that our resources be applied in the most efficient manner possible."

Fort Benning's contribution to the success of the Cost Reduction Program, resulted in a savings of $2,570,000, for the last fiscal year. This resulted in a savings of 134 per cent over established goals of $1,920,000.

This was accomplished despite the added activity of deploying the 1st Cav. overseas and the buildup resulting from the Viet Nam action.

Goals established for Fiscal Year 1966 total $1,897,900 for this command and are expected to increase as additional goals for individual cost reduction areas are developed.

Maj. Gen. Robert H. York, commanding general of Fort Benning, in a message to the command stated, "All personnel of this installation, both military and civilian, must adopt a 'cost-cutting' attitude in our approach to each phase of operations. I am confident you will continue to excel in your efforts to give the American citizen the best possible defense preparedness at the lowest possible cost."

Scouts See Airfield During Post Tour

Over 100 boys attending the Chattahoochee Council Boy Scouts Explorer Congress toured Lawson Army Airfield Saturday afternoon as part of their annual two day conference.

The theme of the gathering at Benning was Army aviation and flights in Army Caribous and Chinook helicopters highlighted Saturday's activities. Response from the young Explorers was eager and enthusiastic.

Lt. Col. Lester Robertson of the 10th Aviation Group opened the boy's tour of Lawson with a talk on Army aviation and the airfield's activities. Following the talk, the scouts were divided into four groups and received orientations on the UH-1B (Huey) and CH-47 (Chinook) helicopters, the CV-2 Caribou and the flight line and facilities of the field.

Fort Benning Explorer posts 54 and 142 hosted the Explorer Congress in cooperation with the Infantry School, 10th Aviation Group and LAAC. Project officer was Maj. Gerald Dyer of the 10th Aviation Group.

The event began Friday with registration at Building 2756. Friday evening the boys heard a talk on Viet Nam.

Saturday's program began with live firing of the M-60 machine gun at Wagner Range.

On Saturday evening, the boys nominated cabinet members for the council and rounded out the evening with recreational activities.

On Sunday, Charles Orck of post 52 in Columbus was elected council chairman. Ronnie Jones of post 21, LaGrange, was elected vice chairman and Morris Hicks of post 20, Columbus, was chosen as treasurer.

Following the elections, the boys attended church services. The group departed the post on Sunday afternoon.

Post Accelerating Courses for Cooks

A special accelerated two-week course to produce needed cooks for Fort Benning's newly established Army Training Center (ATC) has been initiated by the Infantry Center Food Service Branch.

The course, taught by SSgt. William J. Graf, Food Service instructor, is designed to teach the basic needs and fundamentals of cooking. It includes four hours of instruction on the field ranges and two hours on the immersion heater.

The urgent need for cooks in the ATC mess halls made the course necessary and maximum stress is placed upon demonstration and practical exercise type of instruction. Enough theory is taught to give students a background in the basic principles of small unit cookery.

Purpose of the course is to give the students enough knowledge to be able to perform the duties of basic cooks in the ATC mess halls.

The first class, which had 18 members, completed the cooking school Oct. 30. The second course began Nov. 1 and ended Nov. 13. The school will continue as long as needed.

An accelerated one-week course in pastry baking has been scheduled and will cover the production of hot breads and pastries. It will be initiated at the request of ATC commanders.

Disabled Benefits Raised

ATLANTA — Increased compensation payments will go to almost 37,000 Georgia veterans suffering disabilities caused by wartime injuries, Pete Wheeler, director, Georgia Department of Veterans Service, said this week.

The payment increase will begin December 1 and be reflected in checks received in January 1966. The increases will be automatic; no application or claim is necessary, Wheeler said.

Individual increases will range from $1 per month for those veterans rated at 10 per cent disabled by service-connected injury to $50 for those rated at 100 per cent disabled. More substantial increases are provided by the law, which was signed by the President on October 31, for the more seriously disabled veterans (for example, those suffering multiple amputations).

For veterans whose disabilities are more than 50 per cent, the law increases by approximately 10 per cent the allowances provided their dependents.

Army's Only Searchlight Unit Now With Cavalry

By Nick Palladino

AN KHE, Viet Nam — The soft flow of artificial moonlight bathes the darkened hills and valleys around the 1st Air Cavalry Division base near here.

Providing the battlefield illumination for "The Cav" and any other U.S. Army units in the central highlands is Battery B, 29th Artillery.

The battery, activated at Fort Sill, Okla., arrived in the cavalry division camp early in November and immediately began sending the piercing glow of its 18 searchlights into Viet Cong territory.

Capt. Gary E. Schultz, Sioux City, Iowa, battery commander, said each 30-inch diameter searchlight fires out a 500-million candlepower beam that can pierce the gloom for distances up to 15,000 meters.

He said the beacon can be softened to provide a gentle, pervading glow that many Korean veterans are sure to recall.

"We feel our battery will be a great asset in preventing enemy infiltration of strategic areas," Capt. Schultz said.

Bravo Battery is the only searchlight battery, as such, in the U.S. Army since the last active searchlight unit at Fort Benning was deactivated in mid-1964.

The battery has seven officers and 144 enlisted men and is capable of deployment in platoon or section echelons.

Top NCOs Discuss Standardized Promotion Policy at AUSA Meet

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Some 400 Army sergeants major discussed a proposed standardized promotion policy for enlisted personnel at the second annual Personnel Conference held here Oct. 25 during the Association of the U.S. Army convention.

Lt. Gen. J. K. Woolnough, deputy chief of staff for personnel, presented the program which is designed to eliminate present inequities and provide more standardized promotion criteria throughout the Army.

To accomplish this, the proposal would establish: minimum time on active duty for all grades; a physical training test; minimum education requirements; a promotion qualification score — a combination of the commander's evaluation and the proficiency pay test score; and security clearance — secret or national agency check for E-7 and above, or as required for MOS and position for all others.

It would establish decentralized selection boards for promotion above E-5, enabling more people to receive valid evaluation and placing them in a better position for promotion should a change of station occur.

It would also expand present waiver authority to allow local commanders to waive not more than two of the requirements during the first year and one thereafter.

A further change would give promotion authority to commanders on three levels. Company commanders could promote to E-4, battalion commanders to E-6 and commanders in the grade of colonel or above to E-8.

A final proposal, clearing up a problem of continuity, would make E-2s who received accelerated promotion eligible for E-3 in four months instead of making them wait until they have eight months of active duty, as is now required.

Research Develops Clothing, Equipment For Use By Army

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Research has produced several new pieces of equipment for the Army, ranging from a lightweight 105mm howitzer to a new type of clothing to protect the individual soldier against chemical agents.

The M102 howitzer weighs almost a ton less than the current standard 105mm gun. Despite this weight difference the new weapon has a 4,000 meter increase in effective range over the present model.

The new protective clothing made of chemically-treated cotton sateen, will provide more comfort and cost supply cost in comparison to clothing now issued.

Other new developments announced by the Army are:

A new helicopter armament subsystem to replace that used on helicopters in the Republic of Viet Nam since 1962. The new system, known as the XM-21, is a combination machine gun and rocket weapon.

A new diagnostic system, called "Readymaids" (for Ready Multipurpose Automatic Inspection and Diagnostic System) that can pinpoint malfunctions in wheeled vehicles completely and automatically in minutes.

The "Readymaids," which can be carried in a jeep, not only prints out details on a disabled vehicle's problems but also types out a list of repair parts required along with their supply numbers and references to a manual telling the mechanic how to make repairs.
