

Figure 4 — Effects of Terrain

Naturally occurring or man-made terrain features can block or reflect GPS signals, reducing the number of satellites in view and preventing your handheld device from receiving the data necessary to get a good geo-location. Leaders should address such potential effects during mission planning.