

DEU paradigm changes in the field of national defense policy

Parts of this presentation have been held during the
DEU- USA Concepts and Capabilities Developer
Conference 06apr16 to 08apr16 at FBGA

From Wales to Warsaw

"When we assess the equipment, we ought to bear in mind that for several years the Bundeswehr contingents deployed on operations abroad had the best kit."

"Now, because of the new security situation in the east, it is essential that operational units be held available for national and alliance defence."

Interview with the Chief of Staff, Army Hannoversche Allgemeine Zeitung, 29 Jul 2015

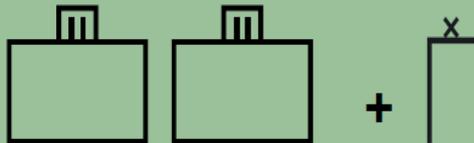

Paradigm change

Stabilisation operation

- C2 element
- 2 TF
- Land component, mixed helicopter TF
- sustainable

Equipment in line with the structural requirements

National/Alliance Defence

As reported under the DPCS

Balance of the capabilities of the Army

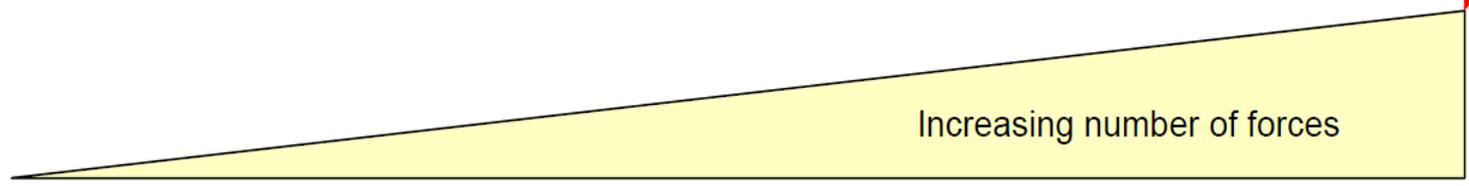

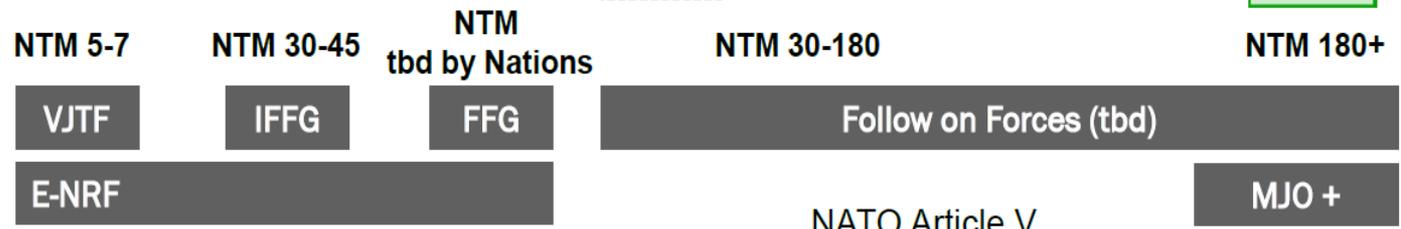

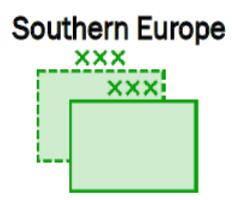

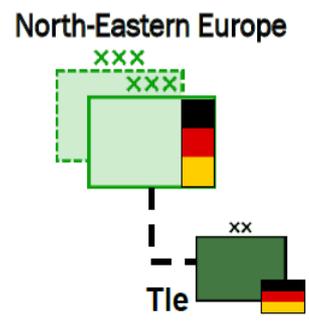

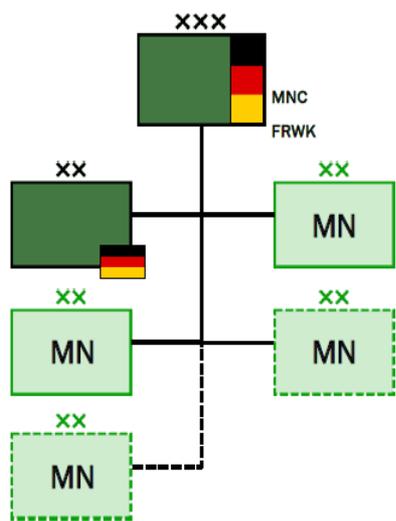

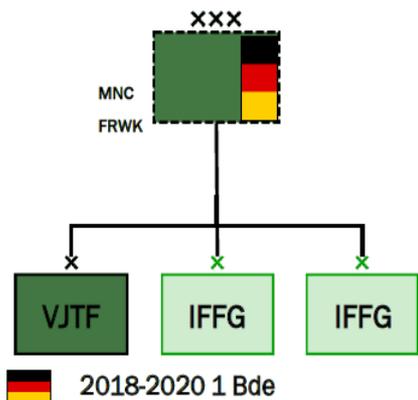

=

National defence as part of the Alliance defence and Stability Operations

(national defence provides the basis)

“larger Formations”

Development of Task Organization

NatCM/MilEvacOp

Missions*

- Planning guidance: cover up to 2 mission areas
- currently: up to 5 smaller concurrent missions
- Unchanged element

XX

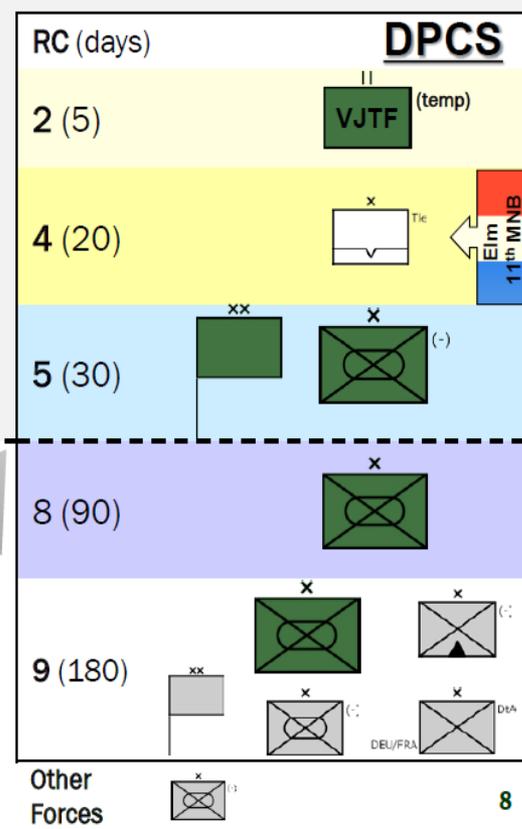

ARMY2011

Readiness Action Plan (RAP)

(Assurance & Adaptation Measures)

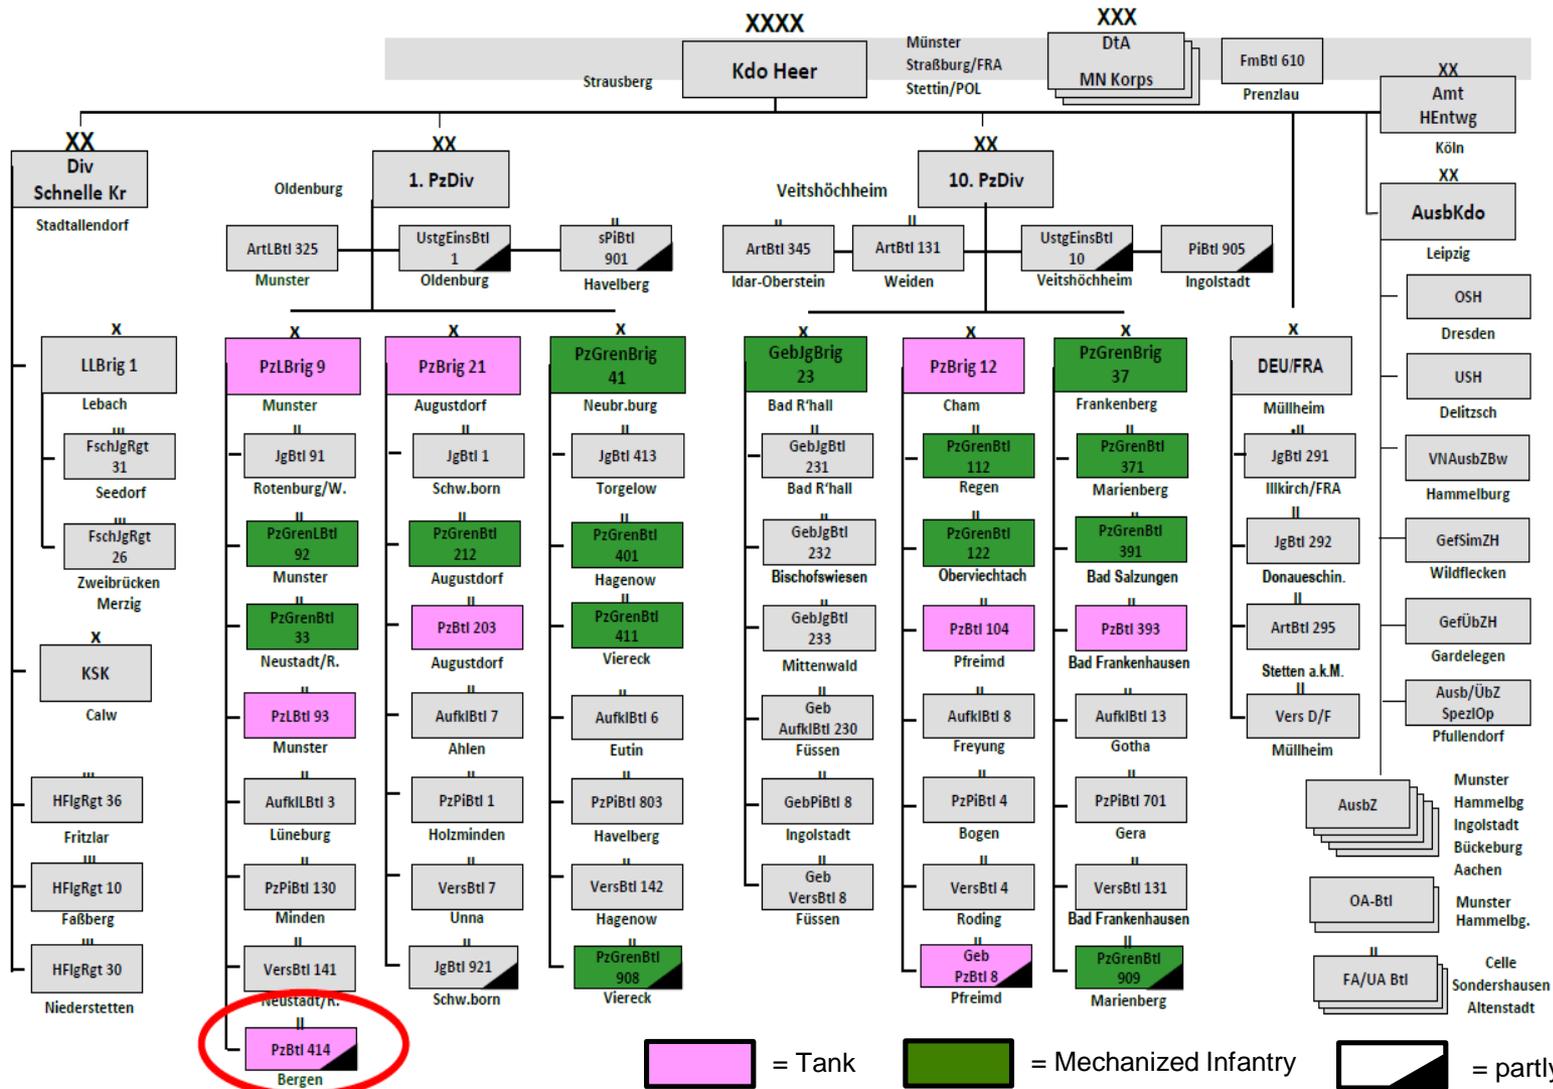

- High availability
- Exercises/ „Persistent Presence“
- Enhancement Response Capability MNC NE
- 2015/16 up to 5700 troops involved

* MN Plug-in
(E. POL, NLD)

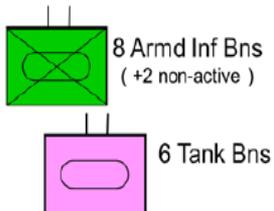

German Army Force Structure "ARMY2011"

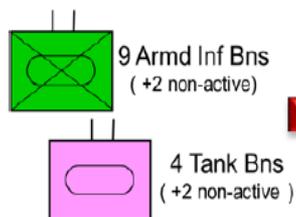

Changes to the Armored Corps within ARMY2011

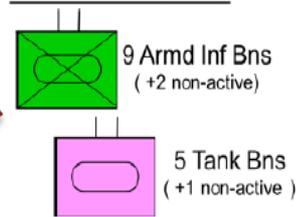

New Army

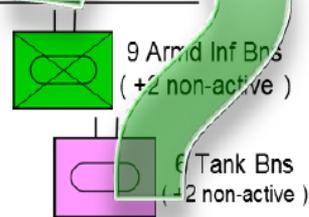

ARMY2011

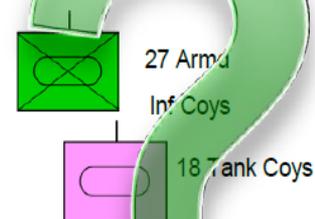

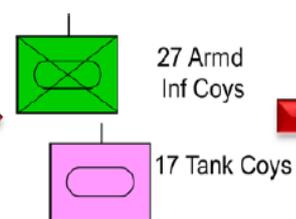

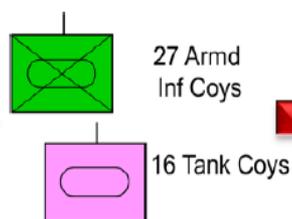

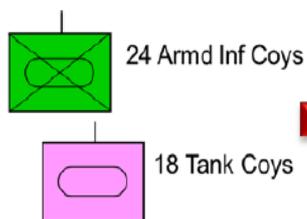

CURRENT ADJUSTMENTS

POSSIBLE FURTHER ADJUSTMENTS

Note: The German Army Armored Corps consists of all Tank and Mechanized Infantry Units.

Note: "New Army" has been the name of the Army Structure between 1997 and 2001. It has been followed by the "Transformation" of the Army till 2009. In 2011, the SecDef has announced the current Structure, ARMY2011, to be fully implemented by 2017.

DEU paradigm changes in the field of national defense policy

Parts of this presentation have been held during the
DEU- USA Concepts and Capabilities Developer
Conference 06apr16 to 08apr16 at FBGA